Body of kidnapped Moro found in car

ROME (AP)—The blood-smeared body of former Premier Aldo Moro, shot in the head and his hands and feet chained, was found in a parked car in the heart of Rome today, 55 days after he was kidnapped by the Red Brigades.

Police said they found five spent cartridges in the car, a red Renault bearing Rome license plates and later determined to have been stolen.

The 61-year-old Moro also had several wounds in the body, police sources said.

The body was clad in a blue overcoat, wrapped in a red blanket and dumped on the floor of the Renault's backseat. Firemen who saw it said the face was extremely pale and Moro's 5-foot-11 frame had lost considerable weight.

The discovery ended tragically an ordeal that traumatized Italy and transfixed the attention of the world.

In Washington, the State Department condemned the killing as a "cowardly and contemptible act."

The body was found at 1:30 p.m. — 8:30 a.m. EDT — on Via Michelangelo Caetani, a narrow cobbled street of 15th and 16th century palaces running alongside Communist party headquarters and just a stone's throw from Christian Democrat headquarters. It was just two blocks from the busiest intersection in Rome.

Officers went to the area and discovered the body after police headquarters received an anonymous telephone call saying a bomb had been placed in a car parked on Via Funari, a street adjacent to the 200-yard-long Via Caetani.

They found nothing on Via Funari but then checked Via Caetani.

The car apparently had been parked on the street for several hours, police said.

The body was loaded into an ambulance and taken away. Police cordoned off the area. Crowds of weeping Romans congregated on the tiny street.

Police cars with sirens whining sped through the city, deserted as usual during the early afternoon lunch hours. Police said they had received other tips before the discovery of the car and were throwing out dragnets across the city.

Franco Evangelisti, top aide to Premier Giulio Andreotti, made the first official identification of the body.

Via Caetani leads into Via Botteghe Oscure, site of Communist Party headquarters two blocks from the traffic-filled Piazza Venezia intersection.

The Italian Communist Party's directorate went into session immediately, and party official Giancarlo Pajetta said as he entered the meeting, "This is a crime of sadist ferocity."

Moro, president of the ruling Christian Democrat Party and five-time former premier, was kidnapped March 16 in a Rome street ambush that killed his five police bodyguards.

Traffic control debated

By JAMES WERRELL

Residents of the Coronado Hills neighborhood crammed Big Spring City Council chambers at today's regular meeting to discuss traffic control near their homes.

The residents of the neighborhood, which is adjacent to the northeast portion of Comanche Trail Park, attempted to influence the council to slow car traffic and stop truck traffic altogether through the area. The result: A total of 10 stop signs will be erected on streets bordering the neighborhood, and "No Thru Truck Traffic" signs will be erected at all three of its entrances.

"Our main concern is the safety of our children. We have been real lucky so far, but unless something is done, we will have a tragedy in that neighborhood," said Lanny Hamby, 2900 Melrose, who said he had been elected as spokesman for the residents. "When we moved there it was a nice neighborhood, but because of park traffic, kids' traffic and overflow from FM 700, we are losing that nice neighborhood. And we resent it," he said.

It had also been suggested through the Big Spring Traffic Commission that Belvedere be made a one-way street between Crestline and Whipkey. D.A. Brazel, a resident of 2617 Crestline in Coronado Hills, rose in opposition.

"This is very disturbing. I and many others go that way to use the park and the Municipal Golf Course in order to avoid FM 700 traffic. If it is made one-way I could get in but not out. I don't see the advantage," he said.

Several other residents spoke in favor of further cordoning off of the neighborhood, while only one other disapproved, suggesting that the city "needs more streets open instead of closing them off and creating traffic congestion elsewhere."

Instead of making a section of Belvedere one-way, council member Polly Mays suggested that the city extend Whipkey west to create another entrance and exit to the park. This suggestion will be considered at the next regular council meeting, said Mayor Wade Choate.

Stop signs to be erected include: two at Belvedere and Crestline; three at Coronado and Belvedere; two to replace yield signs at Avondale and Crestline; and three at Chevy Chase and Coronado.

"No Thru Truck Traffic" signs will be erected at Avondale and Wason, Whipkey and Belvedere and Chevy Chase and FM 700.

In other traffic related business, council members agreed to ask the Texas Highway Department to investigate the feasibility of installing an entrance ramp onto IS 20 from the North Service Road somewhere between Highway 350 and Birdwell.

Members also approved two claims for damages to cars submitted at today's meeting. Esther Hughes, 1610 W. 3rd, was awarded $166.50 for damages to her car when it was struck by a city backhoe.

The Sid Richardson Carbon Company was awarded $1,615.27 when one of its cars collided with a city truck with malfunctioning turn signals.

Because Zirah Bednar, Howard County tax assessor and collector, was out of town, council members put off a final decision on whether to combine city and county tax offices. A decision will be made at the next regular council meeting, according to Mayor Choate.

Council members also passed an emergency resolution authorizing the city secretary to enter into contract with State National Bank to borrow $81,000 to pay off a loan of that amount at Security State Bank.

The council authorized the mayor to submit an application for funds to support a Retired Seniors Volunteer Program. The program had previously been funded by the Big Spring State Hospital and Howard College. In this case the funds would come from the state, and would be used to sponsor programs for citizens 60 years and older.

In other business, council members:

—Authorized the mayor to submit a preapplication for Community Development funds.

—Passed the first reading of an ordinance changing building permit fees.

—Awarded a bid for 50 sanitation containers to the Brillhart Company for $9,600.

—Accepted minutes of meetings of the Big Spring Steering Committee, the Tourist Development Council and the Structural Standards Board.

—Agreed to subsidize the Big Spring YMCA Summer Youth Program with $3,800.

—Approved a $100-a-month subsidy for the local chapter of the Texas State Guard on the condition that the county provides the same amount.

—Approved a special permit to allow calf roping practice at 2112 W. 3rd on seven acres of property, part of which is within city limits.

Watkins attacks policies

Action on budget tabled

By BOB BURTON

Howard County Commissioners listened to lengthy discussion from Jack Watkins and Howard County Tax Appraiser Earl Dean, then decided to table any action on Dean's proposed $140,000 budget for 1979.

Both Watkins and Howard County farmer Clay Reid protested what they called a re-evaluation of tax values, despite Dean's reassurances that there was no re-evaluation going on in his office.

Watkins attacked the financial policies of the city and school district, claiming that they are now "crying for more money" and intend to raise part of it through updated appraisals.

Replied Dean, "We don't know if all the acreage in Howard County is accounted for. I'm not advocating reappraisal, and this budget has nothing to do with reappraisal. We are just renewing old records."

Commissioner Bill Crocker summed up the commissioner's position, "We believe the board was formed to save money, and it still merits that. I believe that re-mapping is necessary, but others have threatened to break the board if we don't go along with them."

The commissioners also appointed R.E. McClure of Trans Regional Airlines temporary airport manager. McClure will have responsibility for the airport lights and the emergency vehicle until the county airport is shut down in favor of the municipal airport.

Also appearing before the court were District Attorney Ricky Hamby and County Librarian John Deats.

Hamby requested that the commissioners consider adding a special investigator to his staff to help him with the landslide of cases expected with the enactment of the Speedy Trial Law this summer. The commissioners took the request under consideration.

Deats requested that the Thursday library hours be changed from 12 p.m. to 9 p.m. to 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The court agreed.

Deats also presented his 1979 budget for the library. The court took the budget under advisement. The budget proposed for the coming year totaled $100,346. The 1978 budget totaled just over $90,000.

The court also approved the appointment of Anita Daniels as lay representative to the West Texas Library System. The system includes 27 West Texas libraries.

District Clerk Peggy Crittenden appeared before the court to ask for replacement of the bookkeeping machine for child support payments. The court discussed the possibility of putting child support payments on the computer, and agreed to go ahead and price replacement machines.

Earlier in their morning session, the court accepted the lone bid from Broughton Truck and Implement Co. on a tractor and mower in the amount of $14,778.

College rodeo team eyes competition in Bozeman

The Howard College Men's team placed first in the region and the women's team second in the region, to qualify both groups to enter the national college rodeo finals at Bozeman, Montana June 19-24.

The men's team not only placed first in total points for the college rodeo season, but Jess Knight also placed first in saddle broncs and second in all-around cowboy.

Two of the women placed first in the region with Tere Teague placing first in breakaway roping for the season and Pam Mitchell, first in goat tying.

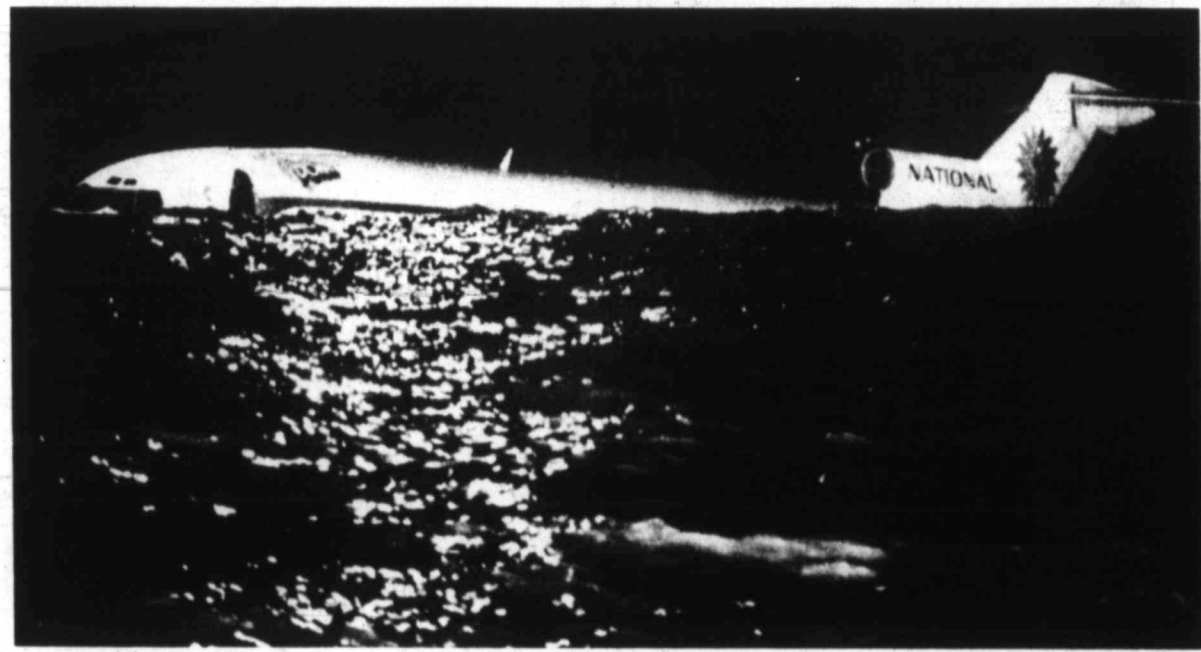

The men's team was closely followed by Sul Ross. Eastern New Mexico women was the only team out front of Howard College.

Coach Skipper Driver said here today, "This is one of the toughest rodeo regions in the United States including such schools as Sul Ross, Eastern New Mexico, Texas Tech, John Tarleton and many others who traditionally have good rodeo teams. I am extremely proud of the local teams."

In the final rodeo in the Southwest Region at Tarleton State, the girls won the team trophy. Pam Mitchell won goat tying with 9.5 and fourth in breakaway and won all around honors. Tere Teague had fourth in goat tying with 10.9 and Mrago Powell had 11.4.

Knight won in saddle broncs. Mack Altizer and Joe Martinez placed sixth in the team roping and Hank Adams split fifth and sixth in bull riding.

FLOATS IN MOONLIGHT — National Airline's 727 floats on the surface of Escambia Bay after crashing short of the airport.

Plane crash kills three passengers

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A National Airlines jet carrying 58 persons crashed into Escambia Bay while coming in for a landing, forcing stunned passengers to scramble out emergency doors into fog and a sea slicked with jet fuel. Three passengers were killed.

Most of the 52 passengers aboard the Boeing 727 were saved because a tugboat captain who saw the crash brought his barge to the rescue. The passengers had no warning that anything was wrong until the plane hit the water Monday night and came to rest about 500 yards from shore, settling in mud about 10 feet below the bay's surface.

"We were on our final approach," said Capt. Ronald Gift, a Navy pilot from Carmel, Calif., who was a passenger. "There was no warning, no violent maneuvering, no surging of the engines."

The airline initially listed 55 passengers, but later said three of those had never gotten aboard.

Three bodies were found floating near the plane. Divers sent into the partially submerged craft said everybody was out. But fog and haze hampered rescue efforts during the night, and a thunderstorm that moved over the bay early today churned up the seas as divers searched for the missing. A head count was further confused because passengers were scattered among six hospitals and several rescue stations.

Many were injured in the crash, but dozens escaped safely when tugboat captain Glenn E. McDonald, 41, pulled his barge, the Little Mac, to the plane, tied it up and helped men, women and children clamber aboard.

"If that barge hadn't been there, there's no telling how many would have drowned," Marine Patrol Sgt. William Clenny.

SURVIVORS REACH SHORE — An unidentified young woman is helped from a rescue boat here Monday night after a National Airlines 727 ditched in Escambia Bay. Three were reported dead, four missing, of the 60 aboard.

Liquor proposal again rejected

SNYDER — Snyder voters turned out in large numbers here Monday to defeat a proposal to permit the sale of package liquor in the city.

The margin was 2,225 to 1,420. Snyder has been dry since May, 1902. This was the 17th attempt to change the law.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: False rumor

QUESTION: Why did the college set a charge of $600 to the high school to use the new coliseum for graduation, thus keeping the school from having its ceremony there?

ANSWER: This is a false rumor being circulated through the city. The college had planned to charge the high school only utility costs to use the coliseum for graduation. Neither the high school or college graduation was held in the coliseum because the building was not complete and they were in the process of laying the gym floor this month. Last fall when the TSTA met in the facility, it was held on the base concrete floor which could not be damaged.

NOBODY CARES — Carol O'Shea, a 38-year-old mother of five, in Seattle, spent a day in jail rather than pay $25 in parking fines. When she asked to call her job so she wouldn't be fired, matrons kept putting her off. "Nobody cares if I keep my job," she wrote in her cell. "NOBODY CARES..."

'Son of Sam' slammed

NEW YORK (AP) — (Neyssa Moskowitz sat like a stone, eyes riveted on the back of the head of the man who killed her daughter in the last attack of the Son of Sam.

Michael Lauria kept nodding his head from side to side in bitter accord with the indictment that outlined how David Berkowitz killed his daughter, Donna, with a shot in the back. Hers was the death that began a year of terror by "the 44-caliber killer."

And a survivor, Donna De-Masi, who believes she can hear bone fragments still scraping in her head from the killer's attack, bent forward in her seat and plucked nervously at her lower lip.

Grim and anxious, they sat there Monday, drawing comfort from their friends and their families — and watching the baldish former postal clerk who calmly confessed to killing six persons, knowing it was wrong to do so.

"You bastard!" Rose Lauria sobbed through the handkerchief she pressed to her mouth as Berkowitz, 24, recounted how he killed 18-year-old Donna on July 19, 1976.

"This isn't the justice I want," her husband muttered afterward. "He's got to burn. He's got to die for all the heartaches that he's caused. What else can I tell you?"

Berkowitz is to be sentenced May 22. His lawyers say they'll appeal the judge's finding that Berkowitz was competent, a finding that enabled him to change his plea from insanity to guilty. If Berkowitz gets the maximum sentence of 25 years to life, he would be eligible for parole in 30 years.

The families waited for justice, seething in the certainty that no penalty, not even the maximum of life imprisonment, could stay the agonies of murder and the nightmares of sudden attack.

"I would have liked more to have happened to him," Ms. DeMasi's mother declared amid a crush of reporters and photographers. "The electric chair, for instance. He destroyed a lot of lives."

"He knew what he was doing," said Ms. DeMasi, who wears a neck brace from the effects of the bullet that the Son of Sam sent smashing through her collarbone. Fragments, lead and bone, remain.

"She's frightened all the time," the mother said, adding that her 18-year-old daughter never goes out alone at night.

Amtrak routes face ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak's Inter-American from Chicago to Laredo via several Texas cities is one of those which Transportation Secretary Brock Adams wants eliminated.

Adams recommended Monday that the Inter-American and six other AMTRAK lines across the United States be eliminated so costs can be held down on the federally subsidized railroad.

Beverly Silverberg, a transportation department spokesman, said the Inter-American was included because it does not have enough revenue.

However, the Lone Star route from Chicago to Houston, via Fort Worth, "is definitely included in the system and we do expect greater ridership on that because there won't be too many alternatives," said Ms. Silverberg. That route now averages 116 passengers.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Monday he favors elimination of the Inter-American route.

"In the past I've given strong support to efforts to rejuvenate long-distance passenger train service but we've given it a fair test now and it just isn't working. It's time that Congress quits trying to perpetuate a mode of travel that doesn't get much use anymore."

The Inter-American includes stops at Marshall, Longview, Dallas, Fort Worth, Cleburne, McGregor, Temple, Taylor, Austin, San Marcos, San Antonio and Laredo.

The Lone Star stops at Cleburne, McGregor, Temple, Brenham, Rosenberg and Houston.

Police beat
Man shot while walking

Four stolen bicycles and two assaults topped a long list of police activities Monday and early today.

Virgil Lee Graves received a gunshot wound to the middle finger of his right hand around 9:15 a.m. Monday. He was walking on a sidewalk near the Northcrest Apartments at the time of the shooting and police are investigating the incident.

Mary Ann Hayes, 63 Northcrest Apartments, reported that a man assaulted her with a chain and rocks while she was in the apartment parking area around 8:45 p.m. Monday.

Lally Griffin, Tammy Griffin, and Vickie Griffin, all of 32 OK Trailer Court, reported that their bicycles were stolen between 11 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday. Value of the bikes, respectively, was $10, $65, and $80.

Gunman thwarted

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A gunman thwarted in a robbery attempt took seven women hostage in a jewelry store, then released them over a 12-hour period before surrendering today, authorities said.

Police said William John Dwyer, 29, walked from the store with his hands up about 7:20 a.m. PDT. He left his 2-year-old daughter behind, and police brought her safely from the store.

Torrance Police Department spokesman Jim Papst said Dwyer had been holding the child hostage while he pressed demands for safe transportation to an unspecified location.

Police said Dwyer's wife, Sharon, had been allowed to enter the store through the night to bring him medication, but she was no longer inside. The child was thought to have entered with her.

Authorities would not say what kind of medication Dwyer was taking.

The next-to-last hostage to be freed, Mary Patton, 21, walked from the store about 5:30 a.m., and her sister, Joy, 19, left about 45 minutes later. Both worked at a dress shop in a shopping center where the jewelry store is located.

Dwyer took the seven hostages after police arrived while he was robbing the store about 6 p.m. Monday, police said. He ran back into the store, leaving a shopping cart full of jewelry at the front door, said police Lt. Jim Foster.

Pat McNellis, 49, of Redondo Beach, the fifth hostage to escape, was shot twice in the thigh as she fled, but she was listed in good condition at a hospital, police said.

At that time, Lt. Peter Herley said police were playing "a waiting game" in an effort to negotiate for the safety of the remaining hostages. The Torrance police hostage negotiating team and a SWAT team were on the scene while about 30 officers tried to keep the growing crowd of sightseers out of the line of fire, Herley said.

Farm

Good news is recieved

LAMESA — Dawson County cotton producers and other area cotton farmers received two pieces of encouraging news last week with the passing of the farm law changes and clarification of portions of the 1978 Set-Aside Program.

Lloyd Cline, president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. held Thursday's passage of the legislation which will raise the loan rate floor from 44 cents to 48 cents.

Cline pointed out that while legislation does not raise the target price, as had been sought, the raise could amount to as much as $20 a bale to area cotton farmers.

Edward L. Brown, Dawson

County ASCS director, said a notice has been received concerning the position that ASC committees may take concerning follow-up crops when a farmer is prevented from planting cotton.

Brown pointed out that about one-fourth of the area farmers have not yet signed an intention which is a requirement for payments and loans if the farm is involved in a set-aside crop.

The deadline for signing an intention is Monday, May 15. In explaining the ramifications of the new legislation, Cline said the bill brings the method of setting the cotton loan more in line with farmer recommendations and also puts a four-year 48-cent minimum on the base U.S. loan.

The 1977 law requires the Secretary of Agriculture to set the loan at the lower of two levels, one to be calculated from an average of U.S. spot market prices, the other from an average of the Liverpool A Index, accomplishment of Northern European prices.

Cline said one of the complaints with the A index is the short, two-week period from which the prices are taken.

Under the new bill, that two-week period would be extended to 15 weeks and the Secretary of Agriculture could also be given discretionary power.

Cline explained that if the A index is lower than the U.S. spot market, the bill gives the Secretary authority to adjust the loan rate to a figure higher than the A index figure but not higher than the U.S. spot market figure.

That is also a four-year decision, not a one-year deal, but will last the life of the 1977 Farm Act.

Houston riot scene calm

HOUSTON (AP) — Police in riot gear kept watch at a housing project in the near Northside Mexican-American barrio here this morning after youths pelted a store with rocks and bottles late Monday on the second day of disturbances that have resulted in at least 16 injuries and over 30 arrests.

The project is across Fulton Street from a shopping center in which several stores were burned and looted Sunday night following attempts by police to stop several fights.

Hill to eye state's spending habits

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas are worried most about what happens to their tax dollars, says Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor.

"My early emphasis will be on the budget, on how we are doing with our tax dollars, if we are getting our money's worth," Hill told a news conference Monday before disappearing on a short vacation.

"I think that is the job people want done first."

Hill said he has named Ernest Stromberger, a press aide during the campaign, to work on spending recommendations to the 1979

Legislature. He said Stromberger will be his "liaison" with Briscoe's budget staff. Hill said he doubted if he would present an entire new budget to the legislature, but would have recommendations.

"The proposals I made (during the campaign) can and will be carried out within our expected revenue," Hill said. "We are going to keep a close watch on the budget."

Hill said he received telephoned congratulations from President Carter Sunday night, but added that he had not asked Carter to campaign for him in the November election.

"I have always been one to rely on my own political resources," he said. "I don't anticipate asking for any outside help from anyone."

Hill said he and Carter discussed a meeting sometime in the future to Lamesa plans celebration

LAMESA — The 75th birthday of Lamesa will be celebrated July 4 under the theme "74 years of the Good Old Days."

The birthday party committee will be headed by J. D. Dyer Jr. The event will be held in Forrest Park from 5 p.m. to dark July 4.

It was in July 1903 that Judge Lindsay made the motion to name the city Lamesa.

Marilyn Cohorn and Ricky Smith will work with Dyer on the celebration which will center on the historical aspect of the community.

Dyer pointed out that the celebration will not be a commercial or carnival type thing but that civic clubs will be allowed to have food booths. The band and choir are expected to participate. The committee will meet May 18 to make further plans.

Howard County deputies are investigating the loss of a refrigerator, gas range, washer and dryer from a trailer house belonging to Beverly Epley and located on Sterling City Rd.

According to reports, the house has been vacant and was last checked in late February or March. Value of the lost items has been estimated as high as $1,000.

WHAT IS IT? — A telephone call to the Big Spring Herald reported Monday that some type of strange missile was on the back of a truck at Rip's Truck Terminal. The strange missile turned out to be a carnival ride en route to Denver. This is the back end of the strange-looking contraption. Rip's is a major Texas truck terminal and has all kinds of strange things stop at that location.

discuss matters of particular interest to Texas. "He assured me there would be time made available for us to have a good visit," Hill said.

Hill said the visit would not take place during Hill's planned trip next week to Washington to meet with members of the Texas congressional delegation and other party leaders involved in energy legislation. "It's going to be difficult to turn around," Hill said of the energy bill, "but I am determined to do all I can to gain as many concessions as possible for Texas."

Hill said he expected to have a great deal of support from Briscoe supporters in his campaign against the Republican nominee, Bill Clements, Dallas, "and I hope to have the governor's support."

Two men face assault raps

Charges of aggravated assault were filed against Antonio Vega and Salvador Garcia today in Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena's office.

The pair have been returned to the state hospital under $5,000 bond each after being arrested in connection with the beating of Vidal Garza, 110 Lockhart, April 28.

Garza was first admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital in intensive care and later transferred to Odessa for further studies.

Vega and Garcia are under closer supervision than they were when they first walked off the hospital grounds, according to state hospital spokesmen.

College's graduation rites slated May 11

Howard College has announced that graduation exercises will be held at 8 p.m., Thursday, May 11. Commencement speaker will be Steve Ritchie of Golden, Colo.

Ritchie is a native of North Carolina but has called Colorado home since attending the Air Force Academy where he played football for the Falcons and received his bachelor's degree.

Steve entered pilot training in August 1964, graduated first in his class, and became one of the most highly decorated individuals in U.S. military history. He was the only Air Force pilot "ace" of the Vietnam conflict and is the only American pilot in history to down five MIG-21 enemy fighters. His decorations include the nation's second highest award, the Air Force Cross, four Silver Stars, ten Distinguished Flying Crosses and 24 Air Medals. He volunteered for two tours of duty in Southeast Asia, flew 339 missions and amassed 800 hours of combat time in the F-4 Phantom.

In 1973, he was elected as one of the "Outstanding Young Men of America." Feeling the need to fight a different kind of battle, Steve resigned his Air Force Commission in April 1974 to run for Congress in the 6th District of North Carolina. He is currently employed by the Coors Company as a special assistant to Joseph Coors.

Steve is recognized for his keen ability to accurately analyze current legislation and its potential effect on our personal freedoms. He has been quoted in the Wall Street Journal and the Congressional Record. In 1976, he was named President of the Combat Pilots Association, a national organization dedicated to the defense of our country and the survival of our American system.

He is involved in community affairs as Chairman of the Colorado Crusade to Conquer Cancer, as a member of the Men's Advisory Board of the Denver Chapter of Freedoms Foundation, and as a public affairs representative for the Colorado Air National Guard.

Steve is an articulate spokesman for America and has logged over 400,000 miles appearing before more than 300,000 people. He has a challenging message for every American.

Karate class opens May 16

The new session of Karate classes will begin at the YMCA May 16.

The classes are taught by Lee Yu Son, seventh degree Black Belt. He will take his students through Yellow Belt all the way to the Black Belt, and will test at different levels.

It takes at least a year to progress from a beginning level to Black Belt, and involves much dedication and practice. Karate is a discipline of the mind as well as being a physical discipline.

Classes meet Tuesday and Friday from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the YMCA. Fees are: $33 for Y members, and $36 for non-members. Each degree upon testing requires an additional fee. If a student does not pass his test, his testing fee, less one dollar, is returned to him. Call the YMCA to register. The number is 267-8234.

Fog covers wide area along coast

B. The Associated Press
Fog covered a wide area along the Texas gulf coast early, but forecasters called for near perfect weather statewide.

Skies were to be mostly clear and temperatures were to remain warm. There was no mention of rainfall or thunderstorm activity.

Highs were expected to range from the 70s in the Panhandle to near 100 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. Most of the state expected highs in the 80s, forecasters said.

The fog reported early today was along and within 100 miles of the coast. It was dense enough in some areas to reduce visibility to about a mile.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 40s in the Panhandle and mountains to the 70s along the coast with extremes ranging from 44 at Dalhart and Marfa to a warm 78-degree reading at Brownsville.

Some early morning temperature readings included 46 at Amarillo, 48 at Wichita Falls, 60 at Texarkana, 57 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 67 at Austin, 60 at Lufkin, 68 at Houston, 75 at Corpus Christi, 72 at Del Rio, 53 at El Paso and 55 at Lubbock.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Fair through Wednesday with warmer afternoons. Highs 77 Panhandle to near 100 Big Bend. Lows 49 mountains and Panhandle to near 60 extreme south. Highs Wednesday 83 north to near 102 Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday becoming generally fair Saturday. Chance of thunderstorm Panhandle Friday. Warm daytime temperatures will continue. Highs in the 80s and lower 90s except near 100 lower elevations of the Big Bend. Lows in the 50s north and 60s south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Clear skies are forecast today for most of the nation. Temperatures will continue cool in northern states but warmer along the southern tier from California to Florida.

Radioactive patients real jolting matter

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Hospital patients who receive radioactive iodine treatments sometimes give off such jolts of radioactivity that if they were air cargo, most would be refused space even in a plane's cargo compartment, two Harvard experts warn.

At least 700,000 people a year receive radioactive iodine to treat and diagnose thyroid disorders. The Harvard specialists reviewed a study by the University of Michigan that measured the amounts of radioactivity showered on the families of seven of these patients.

They found the radioactivity given off was sometimes more powerful than the limits set for industry.

"If the patients in this study had been packages seeking transport as air cargo, most of them would have been refused passage even though consigned to the cargo compartment," they wrote.

"Yet as passengers, any of them could have sat next to other persons in the passenger section."

The specialists — Jacob Shapiro, director of radiation protection at the university, and Dade Moeller, head of environmental health sciences at the School of Public Health — wrote in an editorial in the American Journal of Public Health.

Doctors say iodine radiation can both cause thyroid cancer, a relatively rare disease, and be used to treat this form of cancer and hyperthyroidism, as well as to diagnose other thyroid disorders.

In an interview, Shapiro said the danger to people who have contact with these radiation patients is small.

Will Carter call it a career in '80?

Will Jimmy Carter be a one-term president?

Carter has slumped so badly in the opinion polls recently, one wonder if he plans to offer again in the next presidential sweepstakes.

Carter knew he needed a victory when he petitioned the Senate and the country to accept a decision he had made relative to the Panama Canal, but was it a victory for the chief executive when the waterway was ceded to the Panamanians?

One wonders. People like Ronald Reagan, who would dearly love to be the next president, has a knack for making political hay out of a decision such as this. Mr. Reagan can say he'll live with it but he doesn't have to like it and a lot of the constituency will go along with him.

AN INCREASING percentage of the voters is being dubious about Carter's administrative ability. The reporters at his press conferences are pressing harder, trying to get him to make a stand one way or another on issues.

The polls do not smile on Mr. Carter, and there is a particular fascination about them. A recent survey taken by the New York Times and CBS News gives Mr. Carter low marks indicating a drop worse than that indicated for any recent president other than Gerald Ford during the first 15 months of his administration, who plummeted from 71 to 44 per cent.

In other words, Richard Nixon,

Lyndon Johnson, John F. Kennedy and Dwight D. Eisenhower all rated bigger with the public at that stage of their administration than did the peanut farmer from Georgia.

TOO MUCH can be read into such comparisons, let it be stated. Each presidency is a very different political happening, governed by different conditions and moving to different rhythms. Invariably, they are decisively shaped by sharply differing presidential personalities.

Lyndon Johnson moved out of the shadow cast by his predecessor, John Kennedy, to influence enactment of some of the most significant legislation since Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal.

Much of that legislation, however, had been worded and projected by Johnson's predecessor. Kennedy's program stalled because he could not manipulate Congress.

Congress' resistance to Carter is much like that experienced by Kennedy.

Carter, to his credit, does not appear especially perturbed by his rating either with Congress or in the polls, which leads some to believe he may call it a career after one time across the stage.

His ratings would, no doubt, increase, if he could prevail upon Congress to do something about the national deficit and put a governor on the inflation monster. So far, that has not come to pass.

Spoiled generation

Around the rim

Dusty Richard

As I watched week-before-last's production of "Holocaust," I came to the realization that my generation must be the most spoiled generation there is. As much as we hate to admit it, we don't really have anything to complain about. At least not the ones like me. I was never rich, and I'm still not, but my husband and I make enough to get by; perhaps there are things we'd like that we have to do without, but not getting a new car quite yet isn't that much of a tragedy.

I remember while going to college that I felt cheated. The kids who were about four or five years older had a reason, I felt. They were the ones who protested the Vietnam War; they were the ones who got killed at Kent State; they were the ones who founded underground movements like S.D.S. and Weather men, etc.

I WAS IN ONE demonstration in my entire life, of which I'm neither proud or ashamed, and it wasn't really because I had something to demonstrate about, it was just that as a sophomore in high school I thought that it was the coolest thing to do — imitate those college kids who really believed in what they were doing.

Our generation is spoiled. We have never been fed the lions; we have never endured a depression, we have never witnessed the death of a leader by assassination: I was in the second grade when Kennedy was killed, and don't even remember how old I was when Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King were killed.

We've never endured a war, really. I was about a senior when Vietnam ended; I suffered because of relatives in Nam, but nothing really personal that affected me like the rationing and other things in World War II.

We Americans like to talk about how bad off things are, but do you really think they're really that bad? Things in Belfast and Tel Aviv are bad. We've never had a war tear up our country the way Ireland and Israel are torn up. Since the Civil War. We don't have dictator after dictator running the country, and if you think that Carter is a crummy president, perhaps you'd like to vote in Castro or Breshnev.

Our generation has never suffered the genocide that the Jews did. I think that some things that go down on the Blacks and Chicanos are pretty awful, and think that they have the right to be upset about them, and protest them, but we all — Black, Chicano or Anglo — are pretty well off when we stop to think about it.

Sometimes I still feel cheated. No, I'm glad I wasn't a Jew when Hitler was in power in Germany, but sometimes I wonder if maybe I wish I had been. Because I've never suffered, just like most of the rest of you 22-year-olds haven't.

AND BECAUSE I've never suffered, I wonder what I would do if something happened so that I did. Would I be woman enough, I wonder, to fight back if I had to, to keep myself together if things were happening that made me want to die, would I be strong enough to take whatever was thrown my way and learn to live with it?

Of course, I like to think I would be. I like to think that had I been around when Christians were martyred, I would have been brave enough to stand in front of my lion and take death like a woman. I like to think that had I been in Europe when the atrocities were happening, I'd have joined the Resistance, Jew or not, and given my life to help others. I like to think that during the Depression, I'd have taken with grace losing everything I had and would have started over again with all my courage.

But of course, I don't know that I would. Because I've never had to do anything even half-way equal to those things. I have never gone hungry or without clothes or witnessed the violent death of someone I love or anything else that would indicate that I could do that. That I am woman enough to take it.

Sure, I complain right along with everyone else about the fuel shortage and rising prices and stuff like that. But I confess that those things still haven't affected me badly. I buy gas when I need it and pay for it at the end of the month. My husband and I buy food we need and eat it. And we're the average middle-income couple with no kids and two cats, so I think that most other average middle-income couples with no kids and two cats are in the same shape we are, which is not too bad off.

And that's why, when my husband says to me, "You're spoiled," I say, "Yeah, I know," not because I'm spoiled in the way he means it, but because I know I'm spoiled, in the way I mean it, which is the way that a lot of people I know are.

Study scheduled

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — President Carter has held up production of the controversial neutron bomb, which spares buildings but kills people. It's a nasty weapon that bombards the populace with deadly neutron radiation. Its victims would suffer violent nausea, diarrhea and other unpleasant symptoms before they die.

Yet a low-yield neutron bomb may be ticking away in every nuclear power plant in the country. An internal memo, circulating inside the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, warns that the workers at nuclear plants are being exposed to neutron bombardment.

"These exposures have gone unnoticed," states the memo, "because of the inadequacy of the neutron measurement techniques employed and insufficient knowledge of this field." The memo was written by Glenn Zimmer, a regulatory official who deals with occupational health standards.

OF COURSE, nuclear plants aren't as lethal as neutron bombs. No one has yet computed the neutron radiation inside nuclear plants. The exact exposure, therefore, is uncertain, and the health effects on workers is unknown, except that neutron radiation is thought to be even more deadly than other rays.

Workers cannot be protected from neutron radiation by traditional shields such as lead. The neutrons must be stopped by thick layers of water, concrete, berrillium or plastic. Neutrons have a nasty habit of ricocheting off conventional shields and bouncing around corners undetected. This phenomenon is known as "neutron scattering," and scientists have been unable so far to prevent it.

The neutron radiation was first detected by a health physicist at an unidentified nuclear power plant. He found that heavy neutron exposure was possible within a few days, even hours. He reported his findings to Battelle Pacific Northwest Laboratory, which notified the government but did not identify the site of the test. Our own sources have identified the mysterious place as Millstone, Conn., where two power reactors are located.

At first, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission dismissed the danger of neutron radiation. In a memo dated March 6, 1978, officials declared: "We have no reason to believe that a problem exists...as long as radiation protection programs are appropriately implemented."

But within a month, the commission reversed itself and began preparing for a $100,000 one-year study at six to 12 reactors. Still, officials don't think atomic workers are in any immediate danger. Independent scientists disagree, charging that the methods for calculating neutron exposure are woefully inadequate.

The proposed study, of course, is tacit admission that the regulatory officials don't really know the extent of the neutron radiation problem at nuclear reactors. Yet they have been telling the public for 30 years that the reactors are safe.

The officials admit that nuclear reactors will have to be backfitted to prevent neutron leaks and that individual dosimeters still have to be developed to detect the neutron radiation. As one official told our associate Howard Rosenberg: "An international workshop has been meeting for more than six years...trying to come up with a dosimeter that can be available universally."

Yet our investigation revealed that manufacturers not only are producing dosimeters but are also supplying colleges, universities, government labs, state highway departments and government contractors with them. But incredibly, few of the 68 operating nuclear plants are equipped with the dosimeters, and NRC regulations do not require them.

Meanwhile, no one really knows how dangerous this new nuclear menace is.

TORTURE BY MAIL: Soviet commissars are callously using the mails now as a subtle instrument to torment Jewish dissidents who are sent letters of friendship and encouragement from the outside world. Censorship has long been practiced in the communist world, but the pettiness of the Kremlin's latest mail obstruction campaign goes beyond censorship.

WE HAVE obtained evidence from a number of sources that Soviet bureaucrats are trying to destroy the letter link between the dissidents and their relatives or friends.

For example, a New York Jewish congregation recently sent postcards of support to the celebrated dissident Anatoly Shcharansky. They were mailed back, torn into tiny pieces, in envelopes from the Soviet Union.

Another example of mailbox persecution involves a harmless, elderly Jewish couple named Liberman. Their son managed to emigrate to Israel. But for a long time, Soviet authorities refused to accept any letters from him. Then in 1973, the Libermans were falsely informed by Soviet authorities that their son was dead.

Two years later, they received their first letter from him in years. Almost every word was obliterated by malicious communist censors. The son had sent his parents photos of their grandchildren whom they had never seen. Ominously, the eyes of the four youngsters had been stabbed out by Soviet postal authorities.

What a bomb!

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON—Now that President Carter has rejected the neutron bomb, the military has been racking its brains to come up with a bomb that everyone will be happy with.

As you know, the advantage of the neutron bomb was that it killed people without destroying property. The new bomb, called the "RRR" or "Blast bomb," is a great improvement as it will not only kill people but will also destroy everything. It is so powerful it will blow up a mountain, dig a ditch three times the size of the Panama Canal, and with the proper fuse break off the Horn of Africa.

Man has dreamed of a bomb with this much power since time immemorial. Its destructive capability is beyond all imagination, and American scientists have assured us it can work.

THE ONLY problem is, if the United States builds it can it keep it for itself?

Every time we get a good thing, the oil-producing states get wind of it and want it for themselves.

There is no reason to doubt that when we perfect it Saudi Arabia and Iran will want it for their own defense, and we'll have no choice but to give it to them in exchange for not raising their prices by $1 a barrel.

This is what will happen. A Saudi Arabian prince will visit President Carter and say, "We understand you have a new bomb called the Blast Bomb which will blow up all of South Yemen."

Mr. Carter will reply, "It's only a tactical weapon. We need something to replace the hydrogen bomb in Europe."

"We'd like to buy a dozen of them for our 1st Camel Brigade."

"I'm not sure the United States would want to sell them to you as it might upset the balance of power in the Middle East."

"ALL RIGHT, if that's the way you feel about it we'll raise the price of oil at the next OPEC meeting. We consider your refusal to sell us the Blast Bomb an unfriendly act. Besides, President Ford promised us we could have it when it was perfected."

"Ford didn't mention it to me."

"He told me. Anything our military has, you can have providing you only use for defense..."

"Ford said that? Wouldn't you consider something like a little F-15 airplane instead?"

"We wanted the F-15s until we heard about the Blast Bomb. Our military people are very concerned about the health of the dollar, and we want the biggest bang for the buck. With the Blast Bomb we could become one of the major powers in the Middle East."

"But if we give any other country the Blast Bomb it could fall into the hands of the Soviets."

"They've already been in touch with us and they claim they have a bigger bomb than you have. If you won't give it to us we'll buy it from them. We want the biggest bang for the ruble."

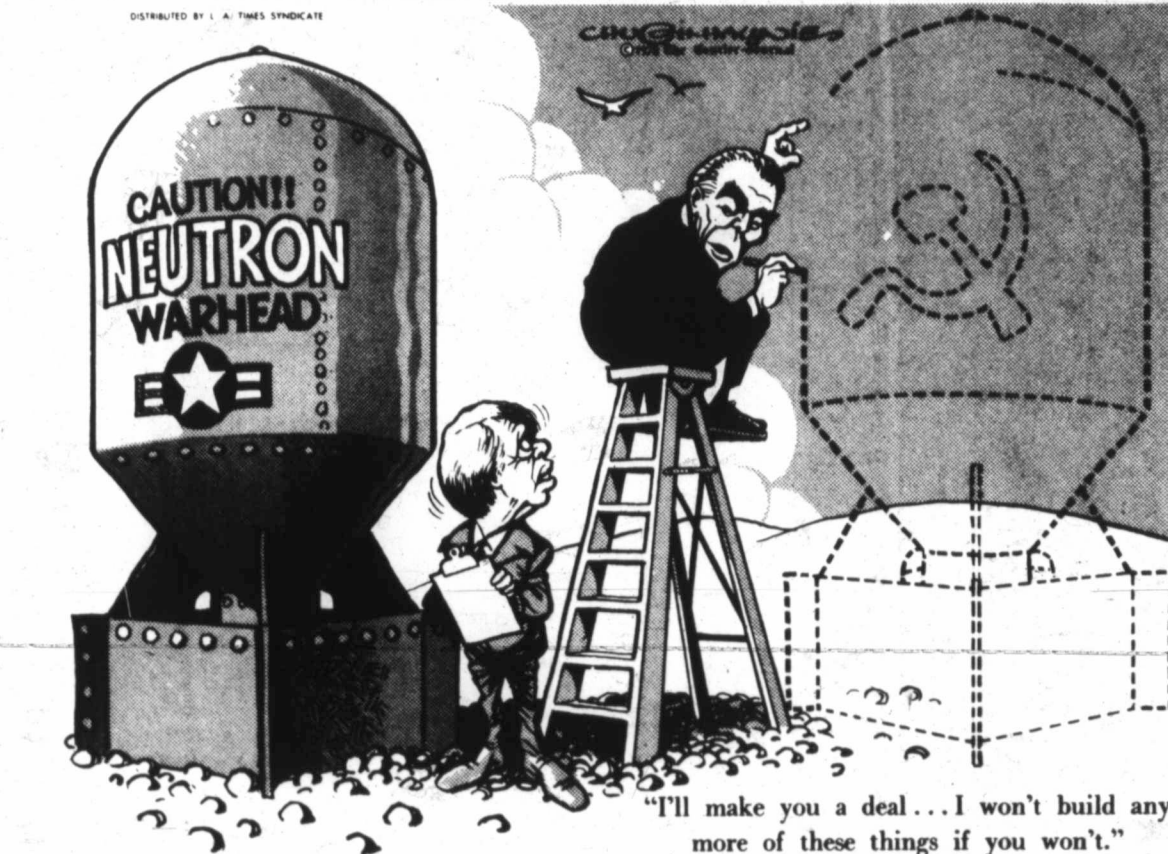

"YOU'RE MAKING it very difficult for me. If I give you the Blast Bomb, then I'll have to give it to Israel and Egypt. The Shah of Iran will also want it, and then every Third World power will insist on the Blast Bomb to prop up their National Guard."

"The Blast Bomb is a matter of honor with us. What good is all our oil money if we don't have the Blast Bomb to go with it?"

"I'll talk to our military people about it. They're excited about this bomb, and if I tell them the first ones off the production line have to be sold to you they're going to be very disappointed."

The phone rings. Prime Minister Begin is on the line.

Carter speaks, "Mr. Begin, you just heard about the Blast Bomb? And you heard we might sell it to the Saudi Arabians? I assure you no decision has been made yet."

She's pregnant: Should child get shots?

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I belong to a mother's club and several of us are faced with the same problem. We have children due for a rubella shot and are pregnant with our second children. Some pediatricians are giving the shots, some not. Some obstetricians say it's safe for us, some are opposed. Who are we to believe? — M.S.W.

I believe you're asking if it is safe for the mother to be exposed to a vaccinated child while she is pregnant. Tests have shown that the danger is quite minimal. However, in such matters it might be best to take the side of absolute safety. Thus, since there is probably no urgency about the children being vaccinated for rubella (German measles) it is best (to be absolutely safe) to wait until after delivery to have them (the children) immunized.

If the school demands proof of vaccination ask if this can be done sometime between now and fall, when they enter. I doubt, however, that mothers who have been pregnant when their children were vaccinated need have fears, because infection under such circumstances is rare.

The pregnant mothers are probably already immune by virtue of having had rubella themselves as children or by having been immunized before becoming pregnant. UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES should a woman be vaccinated while pregnant.

Another consideration to weigh is the risk of unvaccinated children being exposed to others with the disease and bringing it home. School health policy probably should rule in this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please let me know if anything can be done to prevent calcium kidney stones from forming again. — I.F.J.

It is hard to be specific. Much depends on the precise cause of the original stone formation — obstruction in the kidneys, diet, hyperactivity of the parathyroid glands, etc. Most stone formers are poor water drinkers. In this respect the kidneys and the urinary tract in general act very much like a plumbing system.

Some stone formers can be helped by dietary measures, such as avoidance of high calcium foods (chiefly dairy products). I presume that you have had surgery to remove the stones. Now you should consult your doctor to find out the precise makeup of your stones and which of the above steps seem appropriate for you. In cases where the parathyroid glands (near the thyroid) are causing excess removal of calcium from your bones (and hence stones to form), surgery may be required. In this case your future depends on what occurred in the past to form stones. For further information see my booklet, "Your Kidneys, What You Should Know About Them." Send a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 20-year-old male and believe I have hemorrhoids but am not sure. I have itching and soreness in the anal area. Please send me your material on this condition. — N.M.

Won't do you any good, I'm afraid. Your doctor can tell at a glance or at least with very little difficulty whether or not you have hemorrhoids. No need to guess about it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain these words — oesophagitis and gastritis. — J.R.

Oesophagitis (British spelling for esophagitis), is inflammation of the gullet. Gastritis is inflammation of the stomach lining.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me, when a woman has her tubes cut and tied what happens? Are eggs still produced? What happens to them? I have a few friends interested in your answer. — P.C.

The eggs are still produced at ovulation. They disintegrate and are

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband died shortly before the birth of our child last year. Sometimes I wish I could die too. Can you give me any real reason for living? — Y.K.

DEAR Y.K.: I know this has been a very difficult time for you, but you must not let the depression of the moment lead you to do something that would be wrong. There are many reasons for you not only to go on living, but also to make a maximum effort to have a good life.

One obvious reason for living is that your children need you. God has given this responsibility to you, and your children need your love and care more than you may realize. If their father were still alive, there would be no question in your mind about giving yourself to being a good mother. So, especially now, there should be no question about meeting this responsibility.

But there is a far deeper reason for living. God loves you, and He wants to help you and give you a real sense of purpose in your life. I know we may not fully understand why tragedies absorbed in surrounding tissue and disappear.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would like to say a few words about a brave little girl, Big Spring was lucky enough to call its own.

Little Lisa Thixton, didn't stay long among us, but she left her mark.

I for one am a better person from knowing her.

She was a visitor quite often in our home, during her illness, and was the little sister my son never had.

She was always happy and jolly. Her smile made your life's troubles seem far away.

This brave little girl is one we all will remember. Her parents, her friends, all are better people from knowing "little Lisa".

Mrs. J. T. Myrick

happen. But we do know that God is with us in the midst of tragedies, and He wants to comfort us and restore us. The Psalmist trusted God completely, and he said, "Thou, which hast shewed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again, and shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth. Thou shalt increase my greatness, and comfort me on every side" (Psalm 71:20-21).

God has a purpose for you if you will give yourself to Him and seek His will for your life. Your letter does not indicate if you are really a Christian. If you have never accepted Christ, I urge you to get on your knees and turn your life over to Him. God knows what it is to be grieved — He sent His Son to die on the cross for you, that you might know the forgiveness of your sins.

Take the words of Jesus as if they were spoken directly to you: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls" (Matthew 11:28-29).

Sorry for Moms in Nursing Homes

DEAR ABBY: When Mother's Day approaches and I see all those ads reminding us to "remember Mother on HER special day," I want to scream!

For 10 years I have been conducting arts and craft classes in one of the finest homes for the aged in this area. Lovely surroundings, a hospital on the premises, good food, attendants around the clock—but in each room two strangers who have nothing in common are cooped up for the rest of their lives in one room barely large enough for two beds, two easy chairs and two small chairs for "company." (I suppose the chairs for company are adequate because nobody stays more than 20 minutes.)

One of my pupils told me, "When my daughter finds time to visit me, she asks, 'How do you like it here, Mama?'" "Fine," I tell her. What am I going to say—that I cry myself to sleep every night?

Happy Mother's Day to all the mothers who have been put away in homes by their children!

CONN.

DEAR CONN. All mothers in nursing homes are not necessarily there by their children's choice. Some older people need more care and attention than can be provided at home. And many homes, and the lifestyles of the families occupying them, make the addition of an aging parent impractical. I agree, it's sad. But it's also true.

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago I attended the wedding of a girl I work with. My husband and I had sent her a silver and crystal wine decanter that was not inexpensive.

Three months later, I realized that I had not received a thank-you note, so I wrote to her asking if she had ever received it.

A month passed, and still no word from the bride, so when I saw her, I asked her in person if she ever got the decanter.

She said she had, and she'd also sent me a thank-you note, and I had a lot of nerve nagging her about it. Then she said, "I'll return it to you tomorrow. I don't feel like keeping it now!"

I told her that I didn't mean to "nag" her, but since I had heard nothing, I just wanted to know if she had ever received it.

Abby, was I wrong to mention it to her? If I was, I will ask God—not her—to forgive me.

ALICE

DEAR ALICE: Save your apologies. I think your inquiry was justified.

DEAR ABBY: Dotty, a very close friend of mine, is going with Henry, a good-looking bachelor who is involved with three other women that I know of. Dotty has heard about Henry's playing the field, but she thinks that by seeing as much of him as possible, and practically living with him, he might eventually marry her. I know for a fact it will never happen because my husband asked Henry if he was serious about Dotty, and Henry said he wasn't serious about any woman and he intends to die a bachelor.

Dotty is 50 and has a lot to offer, even if she is a grandmother; Henry is a few years younger and has never been married.

When Henry calls Dotty, she drops everything and runs. It hurts me to see her used this way. How can I keep her from making a fool of herself?

BROOKLYN

DEAR BROOKLYN: You can't. Let Dotty paddle her own canoe. Butt out. There's always a chance that Dotty will hook him.

For Girl Scout Field Executive Navaho reservation new home

By EILEEN McGUIRE

The intrigue of adventure cost Big Spring, Lamesa and surrounding area Girl Scouts their Area IV Field Executive when Kitty Reynolds left Big Spring Saturday to claim her new position on the Navaho Indian Reservation in New Mexico.

KITTY REYNOLDS

A native of Tulsa, Okla., Miss Reynolds has coordinated activities for the 300 Girl Scouts and over 50 leaders of Area IV since her arrival here March, 1977.

As District II Advisor of the Chaparral Girl Scout Council of New Mexico, she'll perform basically the same duties she performed here, but on a much larger scale.

District II, headquartered in Albuquerque, includes over 4,000 Girl Scouts and leaders.

Her replacement in Big Spring has not yet been announced.

According to Miss Reynolds, "The transfer is a promotion in my career, but even more important, it'll give me the chance to live the way I've always wanted to live."

Her new home is Chuska, a town of 50 people on the reservation which extends into Arizona, Utah and Colorado.

Located about two hours by car from Albuquerque, the town houses a boarding school for Navaho Indian children who come down from the surrounding mountains for their education and it also serves as the area headquarters for the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Compared to most reservation towns, which usually consist of a service station and a trading post, Chuska is a cultural center.

The simple lifestyle of the Indians and easy access to the mountains were two attractions which lured Miss Reynolds, who is a quarter Osage Indian, to the reservation.

One of her first tasks there will be to learn the Navaho language.

"Most of the tribe speaks both English and Navaho," she said.

Raw poultry needs rewrap

Poultry must sometimes be repackaged for home refrigeration, says Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Chilled, raw poultry wrapped only in market paper should be unwrapped, placed on a platter or tray, covered with wax paper and refrigerated.

TwEEN 12 and 20 Angel dust has hellish results

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: My boyfriend is into drugs and has introduced me to a few of them. I have tried marijuana, cocaine, LSD and heroin. He now gets off on PCP. He smokes it with marijuana and he really gets high.

The reason I'm writing to you is to find out what PCP really is. I don't want any lectures on the evils of drugs—just the facts, man.

Flo, Fresno, Calif.

Flo: PCP also known as angel dust, is an animal tranquilizer. In the last few years, 94 deaths have been related directly to the drug.

One of the reasons it is so popular with drug users is that it is easy to get and it's cheaper than cocaine or acid. Most users are not aware of the tremendous strength of this drug.

Dr. Wallace: I have met this 28-year-old guy and I fell in love with him. I know he is too old for me but I can't help it. I see him every Tuesday night.

I'm 13 but look older. I told him I was 15, but he didn't seem to think that I was too young.

I know he cares for me. Should I tell him that I love him or should I wait for him to express his feeling toward me.

Claudia, Scottsbluff, Nebraska

Dear Claudia: Men who are 28 and who date girls they think are 15 have severe emotional hang-ups. Do yourself and him a favor by telling him goodbye.

but Navaho is the primary language and the language they are encouraged to speak," she said. "So far, I can say 'Ya-teh-hay' which means 'hello.'"

Her new job will include about four days of travel out of each week in order to serve Girl Scouts throughout the reservation. She'll also be working with the Hopi Indians whose reservation is located within the Navaho reservation and will serve as director for the Girl Scouts' Camp, Le Bosque, which means "the forest."

The camp's name, Miss Reynolds said, is a combination of the Spanish and Navaho languages, two of the cultures of the tri-cultural state of New Mexico.

"Anyone who isn't Indian or Mexican, despite the color of their skin or nationality, falls under the category of 'white,'" said said.

Miss Reynolds is the daughter of Glenn Z. and Pat Reynolds of Tulsa, Okla., and is a graduate of Abilene Christian University where she majored in social work. She plans to continue her career in Girl Scouting and stay on at the reservation indefinitely.

Texas' youngest veteran given honorable military discharge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government that slapped a 13-year-old boy with a dishonorable discharge in 1944, announced Monday that it had changed its mind.

A White House press release briefly stated that the Navy had "reviewed" the case of Calvin Graham and decided to give the Fort Worth man an honorable discharge.

Graham, now 47, was told of the move during a Monday afternoon telephone call from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who had championed Graham's cause since September. "I think it's about time," sighed Graham from his Fort Worth residence. "I've been fighting so long to get it. Thank God for the congressmen and news media we've got in this country."

Monday's announcement ends a 34-year bureaucratic battle for Graham whose efforts to obtain an honorable discharge had been smothered in government apathy and red tape. He has pleaded his case to two presidents, at least four congressmen and a horde of lower-ranking bureaucrats. The White House announcement stipulated that Graham must document his World War II injuries before he can receive veterans' benefits for treatment.

"It's already cost me about $5,000 in dental bills," he said Monday.

But Graham claims he lost much more. Without the aid of veterans' benefits, "I couldn't go to college and no one really wanted me in their high school because they didn't want me going to school with their kiddies...I couldn't get a job because employers would find out my real age through my service record and fire me. It really changed my entire life."

"He served with honor," said Bentsen. "He was awarded the Asiatic Pacific Service Medal with two service stars, the World War II Victory Medal and the Navy Unit Commendation with one bronze star. I was pleased to learn from the White House today that his honorable discharge — some 34-years overdue — is finally being awarded."

"Calvin Graham deserves recognition for his World War II service and he deserves the benefits that should accrue to him from that service," Bentsen continued. "It is gratifying that such recognition has finally been granted."

While other youngsters his age were learning about the war from John Wayne movies, Graham was receiving a first-hand education as a seaman second class aboard the USS South Dakota. He enlisted illegally at age 12 and a year later, fought in two World War II naval battles — Santa Cruz and Guadalcanal — before the Navy discovered his true age and sent him home after a brief stint in the brig.

During Guadalcanal, an enemy shell exploded near Graham sending the young warrior "falling through three stories of superstructure."

When Graham hit the deck, his two front teeth didn't.

Graham also claims he received 13 stitches in the head and suffered a concussion during his tumble. "I didn't say anything about it at the time because half the ship was dead," he said.

When the South Dakota returned to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for repairs, Graham was given a four-day pass and told to report to Houston. "I hitchhiked to Houston in three days...when I got there, the Navy told me then knew my true age and sent me to the brig in Corpus Christi."

Graham's efforts to right what he believed to be a monumental wrong began in 1944.

"I went to Rep. Albert Thomas' office and talked with President Roosevelt on the phone," Graham said Monday afternoon. "Mr. Roosevelt had too many things to do back then, though. He was busy fighting the war."

"I felt pretty good about it that day and I've never given up hope."

"Well, I did give up for a few years until I found out they were giving honorable discharges to Vietnam deserters and draft dodgers. "That tore me up."

grew Graham. "That's when I started my fight again."

Graham began anew by writing to then President-elect Carter.

"I got a note back that said 'put your trust in me.' But I had a machine signature on it...it didn't look like a signature you'd writeout yourself."

Following Carter's inauguration, Graham said the Fort Worth Star-Telegram wrote to Press Secretary Jody Powell. "He wrote back and thanked me for my youthful services but said they couldn't do anything for me," Graham added.

Graham's plight surfaced in the media last year and caught the eye of three Texas politicians.

Bentsen, along with Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, introduced a private bill on Calvin's behalf in September. Rep. Jim Wright, the House Democratic Leader from Fort Worth, sponsored a similar bill a month later. Both bills were stalled in committee after the Navy went on record as opposing the bills, claiming passage would set a dangerous precedent.

Bentsen sarcastically responded that if the Navy had such fears, then "each and every" 12-year-old that served as Graham did should be given an honorable discharge.

Last month, Bentsen announced that Secretary of the Navy Graham Claytor had agreed to review Calvin Graham's case. Bentsen applied even more pressure on the Navy last week when he revealed that at least three other under-age soldiers had received honorable discharges.

Four are dead in plane crash

HOUSTON (AP) — Four members of a skydiving club were killed Sunday night when their single engine plane crashed near Dobbins in Western Montgomery County.

The group was returning to Houston from Seagoville where they had participated in a skydiving event.

The dead were identified as John Scott Lee, 44, Spring, Joann Hoffman, 29, Houston, Stephen Moss, Hockley, and Lawrence A. Gallic, 29, Houston.

James Wilson, a resident of the Montgomery County area, said he heard a plane flying low over his home and then heard a crash. The plane did not burn.

Copter crash claims Texan

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — A Plainview businessman died Monday when his private helicopter struck powerlines near this High Plains community.

Police identified the lone occupant of the aircraft as H.M. Gebo, 64.

Witnesses said a whirlwind blew the helicopter into the lines. Gebo owned a chain of farm and ranch supply stores in West Texas.

TUG-OF-WAR — The crew of this cumbersome craft faced a big problem in the annual spring boat race on the Contoocook River near Henniker, N.H., Saturday — getting to the starting line. Made of 426 truck tire tubes, the vessel proved as unwieldy in the water as on the land, carrying its 60 crewmembers to last place in the race, behind an assortment of rafts, kayaks and a foot-pedaled barge.

Skalicky suit begins in court at Abilene

ABILENE — Mrs. Mary Skalicky's sex discrimination suit against Howard College of Big Spring got under way in Judge Leo Brewster's Federal District Court here Monday.

Mrs. Skalicky is alleging she was replaced by a man as a departmental head at the Big Spring school for no reason other than the fact that she is a woman.

College president Charles D. Hayes, however, testified he had received some complaints about Mrs.

Skalicky and he considered it important to "get along with the people you work with."

He said the complaints against the plaintiff as the head of the department had come in the areas of budget and communication and that a decision was made at the time the college changed from a departmental form of administration to a division form to replace Mrs. Skalicky with another instructor in the fine arts department.

Mrs. Skalicky claims her replacement, Kenneth Sprinkle, was on probation at the college for failing to fulfill his duties properly as a music instructor.

CUTTING UP A WHALE — Whales from the village of Wainwright are marking up this 53-foot long bowhead whale for cutting. The whale, the ninth taken by Alaska Eskimos this season, was killed early Saturday in the Arctic Ocean near Wainwright. The federal government announced Monday that it would not prosecute whalers from Barrow, 100 miles east of here, for taking one more whale than they were allowed under the new quota system.

Woodall 'babies' help in retirement party

By MARJ CARPENTER
Dr. J.M. Woodall was honored with a retirement party Sunday afternoon at Malone-Hogan Hospital as part of National Hospital Week.

He was presented a small plaque from the hospital, a framed proclamation signed by Mayor Wade Choate and presented by Mayor Pro-tem Polly Mays and a special gift.

But the biggest honor was the return of many "Dr. Woodall babies".

These included young children, their parents and in some cases three generations who had called Dr. Woodall their doctor. The volunteers at the hospital assisted with hospitality duties with Mrs. Clyde Angel registering guests and Mrs. Jack Irons serving punch.

Dr. Woodall retired from active pediatric practice Feb. 28. An art contest was held in the local kindergartens of posters which best depicted national hospital week.

Winners included Pam Barraza, Lakeview School first. Her teacher was Bernice Daniels. She received a small trophy and the school received $50. Second place went to Traci Lancaster, also of Lakeview. Her teacher is Shirley Shroyer. The prize was $30 and third place went to Todd Phillips, Kentwood, whose teacher was Mrs. J. Richardson. The price was $20.

Judges were Dr. and Mrs. Ray Owen, Mrs. Dolly Wilkins and Dr. and Mrs. Marc Schwarz.

The two volunteers in charge of the poster contest were Mrs. Wade Choate and Mrs. R.E. Bear.

K.H. McGibbon, as chairman of the board, spoke briefly at the ceremonies, paying tribute to both Dr. Woodall and his wife.

Dr. P.W. Malone recalled the old days when he said, "We had so few patients for a while that Dr. Woodall said we were going to have to lay in a supply of corn plasters for our backsides. But it soon changed."

Following all the accolades, Dr. Woodall spoke quietly, thanking "folks for the kind things you have said about me. It's time for me to change my pace a little bit." He paused and added, "I feel so humble that it's hard for me to say very much."

Charles Wilson named engineering manger

Charles Wilson has been named Big Spring Division Engineering Manager for Texas Electric Service Company. He replaces Harold Raines who is transferring to TESCO's Arlington office as Engineering Manager.

A native of Cleburne, Wilson holds both bachelors and masters degrees, in electrical engineering from the University of Texas at Arlington.

An employee of TESCO since June 1970, Wilson has been in the company's Fort Worth office in various engineering assignments. He is also a registered professional engineer.

Wilson and his wife, Shiela, have one child, Nathan.

His professional memberships include the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, the National Society of Professional Engineers, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers and the Power Engineering Society, of which he is chairman of the Fort Worth chapter.

Raines has been Division Engineering Manager since August, 1971, having moved here with his wife, Mary and children, Julianne and Jeffrey, from Wichita Falls.

He has been active in the community serving as a member of the City Electrical Board and past chairman, a member of the Downtown Lions Club of

Carter rediscovers Demo party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, just in time for the 1978 campaign, has rediscovered the Democratic Party.

The president, who spent most of 1976 running against the organized political establishment, warmly embraced Democratic officeholders and party functionaries during his four-state Western tour last week.

The president's calculated effort to identify himself with his party and its stalwarts was in marked contrast to his behavior in 1976, when he only occasionally acknowledged the existence of fellow Democrats running on the ticket he headed.

As recently as last year, Carter cast himself in something close to a non-partisan role during his travels around the country, save when he appeared at party fund-raising events.

But the situation is different now. As Carter visited Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington, fellow Democrats were much in evidence and the president went out of his way to praise them and boost their campaigns.

Sometimes, Carter's praise bordered on the extravagant, as when he told Denver Democrats that their embattled senator, Floyd Haskell, in many ways "is a national treasure."

And the president did not shrink from reminding his audience that Haskell — "one of the great senators of all time" — is in sharp disagreement with key farm policies of the Carter administration.

In Spokane, Wash., Carter similarly made public note of his differences with Democratic Rep. Tom Foley, who faces a strong Republican challenge this year.

Foley denies he urged Carter to stay away from Spokane on grounds the president might be a liability in the local campaign.

Even if he did, chances are Foley would think differently now. After all, the president pictured the congressman as an independent-minded legislator before the largest crowd of the trip, variously estimated at 20,000 to 60,000. Very few campaigning House members see crowds of that size, and it's safe to assume they did not show up just to see Foley.

The president's fresh embrace of fellow

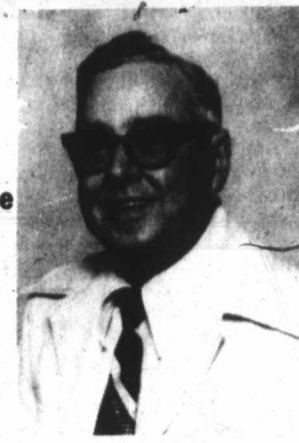

Democrats is no accident, of course. Carter knows the party occupying the White House traditionally loses ground in off-year elections, and he wants to hold losses to a minimum, if only because a major November setback might reflect poorly on him.

Perhaps equally important, the president will be needing party support in a lot of cities like Spokane if, as expected, he seeks reelection.

Fire victims need clothes

Clothes are needed for the children of the Bobby Richters family, which experienced a fire at its home at 1216 Lindberg Street this morning.

The three boys in the family wear sizes 3-4-8-10. No one was injured in the blaze.

Mrs. Darden is expecting another child and all the baby clothes she had accumulated were either damaged or destroyed.

The fire was attributed to the fact that the wiring system had been overloaded. The family will continue to live on the premises.

Use of secret ballot at Public meeting against law, Hill says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The use of a secret ballot at a public meeting is against the law, Attorney General John Hill said today.

The question was raised by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena. Hill said Brooks had indicated that school trustees had met recently in an open session and elected one of its officers by secret ballot.

Hill did not say who the trustees were.

He said at least four states have "reached the conclusion that a secret ballot violates a statute requiring open meetings of governmental bodies."

"The (Texas) Open Meetings Act is designed to insure that decisions of public bodies are reached openly and that the public can observe the actions of their representatives," Hill said in an official opinion.

"The secret ballot, when used to protect citizens when choosing their representatives, is a hallmark of the democratic system of government; but, when it is used to conceal a public official's vote, it violates the fundamental tenet of an elected or appointed official's ultimate accountability to the electorate," Hill said.

"We believe," he added, "it is the antithesis of the requirements of the Texas Open Meetings Act. Thus, it is our opinion that the Open Meetings Act prohibits the use of secret ballots in meetings of governmental bodies."

While Rice respected, 'Yaz' burns bat, Royals

By the Associated Press
Jim Rice got plenty of respect from the Kansas City Royals, but it turned out they were worried about the wrong man.

While the Royals pitched around Rice and even went so far as to use a four-man outfield against the Boston strong man, Yazdzemski's bat caused the Kansas City plans to backfire Monday night.

The honored veteran of the Boston team knocked in four runs, three with a homer and another with a sacrifice fly, to power the Red Sox to an 8-4 victory at Fenway Park.

"Yaz did just what he's done against other pitchers," said Al Hrabosky, victim of Yazdzemski's seventh-inning homer that put the game out of the Royals' reach. "I should have gotten him out and kept us in there, but I didn't. I could have thrown the ball in a little better, but he wanted to hit the ball — and he did."

Prior to Yazdzemski's game-clinching blast, Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog had ordered an intentional walk to Rice, the American League leader in home runs and RBI.

"It was the right percentage move to walk Rice," concurs Yazdzemski. "They had one of the best left-handed relief men out in the bullpen in Hrabosky."

Earlier in the game, the Royals showed a rare amount of respect for Rice in the third inning, setting up a four-man outfield by sending third baseman Jerry Terrell to left and moving left fielder Tom Poquette to left-center. Ironically, Rice hit a pop fly that dropped for a single in the infield.

Rice shook his head when he saw the alignment. "I just tried to hit the ball like any other time," he noted.

In the only other major league game Monday night, the New York Mets edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 10 innings in the National League.

Olympic bill action pends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early action is expected by the House on a bill to make the U.S. Olympic Committee the national coordinating body for all sports played in the Olympic and Pan-American Games.

The bill was passed by the Senate by voice vote without dissent Monday.

It is to be introduced in the House today by Reps. Norm Mineta, D-Calif.; Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.; Robert Michel, R-Ill., and former Olympian Ralph Metcalfe, D-Ill.

The four congressmen, along with the Senate sponsors — Ted Stevens, R-Alaska; Jim Pearson, R-Kan.; Richard Stone, D-Fla.; John Culver, D-Iowa, and Howard Cannon, D-Nev. — were members of the President's Commission on Olympic Sports.

The commission recommended the proposal in its final report in February 1977 after studying amateur athletics for 18 months.

The measure would give the USOC authority to spend $30 million in the 12 months beginning Oct. 1. Eighteen million dollars would go to the sports governing bodies for development programs and $12 million to the USOC for Olympic training centers and a sports-medicine program.

The measure would give the USOC the power to recognize eligible amateur sports organizations as national governing bodies for any sport included on the program of the Olympic and Pan-American Games.

It also would empower the American Arbitration Association to settle questions of athletes' rights and hassles between groups seeking recognition as national governing bodies in specific sports.

Even though sources said all sides agreed to the measure, the Amateur Athletic Union, long a foe of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said last week it would seek reinstatement of an athlete's bill of rights in the proposed legislation.

Originally the bill guaranteed an athlete's right to be part of any legitimate U.S. national team for international competition, a proposal opposed by the NCAA. In its present form, the bill has been amended to guarantee this right only for competition in the Pan-American and Olympic Games.

Regaining title, retirement on Ali's mind

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali says his only real goal now is recapturing the heavyweight title he lost to Leon Spinks, but the former champ has made some retirement plans.

Ali announced at a press conference Monday that he will join a business venture that includes some Saudi Arabian royalty when he retires from the ring. He would not say, however, whether he plans to quit fighting after his September rematch with Spinks for the World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

"I've announced three times that I was retiring, then unretired the next day," he said. "I'm not going to commit myself now."

Ali said that he had made a commitment to the First African Arabian Corp., an international marketing firm.

"I have been offered so many 'big' business deals that it got confusing," he said. "When these people approached me, I told them to show me some sheiks."

Three Saudia Arabian princes, Khalid Al Saud, Abdullah Al Saud and Mohammed Al Saud, are involved in the corporation and attended the press conference.

Khalid Abdullah Tariz Al Mansour, an attorney for the First African Arabian Corp., said the company's ventures would include marketing a soft drink in the Mideast, possible Muhammad Ali housing projects in Africa, world-wide paint factories and machinery supplies.

He implied Ali would receive a percentage of the company's profits.

"One thing we hold foremost," said the lawyer, "is that Ali can do whatever he thinks is best for himself. If he wants to fight, he can fight; if he wants to retire, he can retire."

"Money will no longer be any consideration for Ali."

Sports Banquet tonight, 7:30

Those local sports fans who have already purchased tickets to the annual Spring Sports Banquet at Big Spring High School are reminded that that function is tonight at 7:30 in the high school cafeteria.

Rev. Kenneth Patrick of the First Baptist Church will be the keynote speaker, and boy and girl athletes in baseball, basketball, swimming, track, golf and tennis will be honored.

Marcum is a graduate of McMurry College.

They're using real Bullets!

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Washington Bullets, one game away from winning their National Basketball Association semifinals, are beginning to convince people they are for real.

"I've said all along that we're the better team because we play better together," Coach Dick Motta said after the Bullets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 121-105 Sunday in their best-of-seven series. It resumes here Wednesday night.

"This isn't over yet. We respect their talent, but we play the game better as a unit," Motta insisted.

"We have totally taken away from them what they wanted to do," said forward Elvin Hayes, Sunday's top performer with 35 points and 19 rebounds. "We're making them do what we want them to do."

"They came into this as the running, watch-my-flash and that trash team and we took all that away from them," Hayes continued. "We wanted to get them into a game where they walk up the floor. Now, we're the team that's running — and they're still walking."

The Sixers weren't walking in the first quarter Sunday, as star forward George McGinnis scored 11 of their first 15 points, guarded Hayes and dropped back to get defensive rebounds.

But McGinnis, who scored 22 points and had 10 rebounds, disappeared in the second quarter as the 76ers lost an 11-point lead.

"We just lost our composure," McGinnis said. "We had opportunities on the break. But we made errors. We had people open, but we lost the ball, threw it away."

The Bullets ran off 17 straight points to turn a 48-37 deficit to a 54-48 advantage for Washington at halftime. "I hated to see the half end," said Motta.

"I could see them talking back and forth — you know, bickering," said the Bullets' Mitch Kupchak, who got 19 points and eight rebounds as he again filled in for the ailing Wes Unseld. "I wouldn't like that if I was on their team."

"They have the superstars, the newspaper players, the big money players," said Hayes. "All we got here is good people who like each other — and a team that just keeps going out and playing the game."

Hayes said all the Bullets have to do is keep the pressure on and they are home free.

And they're using nature

SEATTLE (AP) — Denver Coach Larry Brown may regret the day he discovered Elaine Busse.

Because Mrs. Busse, a nationally known nutritionist and massage therapist, has turned into one of the Seattle Super-Sonics' secret weapons. Her regime of large doses of vitamins and mineral supplements, loads of natural fruit juices and vegetables, correct breathing, massage and exercise is credited with helping Sonic Marvin Webster recover his playing strength after a bout with hepatitis.

Brown asked her to help Webster when the latter was with the Nuggets, but her loyalties followed Webster to the Seattle camp after he was traded a year ago.

"Because Marvin is with Seattle, they have to be my first love and Denver is second," the Denver resident said in a telephone interview.

Before Sunday's 121-111 Seattle victory over Denver evened the teams' best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at 1-1, she also set to work on Dennis Johnson's dislocated finger, Fred Brown's flu and John Johnson's swollen arm.

Brown scored 26 points in Sunday's game, while Dennis Johnson had 22 and Webster blocked Denver shots when it counted.

The two teams move to Seattle on Wednesday night for Game 3 of the NBA semifinal playoff. Game 4 will be Friday night in Seattle.

The Nuggets will be trying to stay out of foul trouble in Wednesday's game. In both of the previous playoff games, played on their home court, the Nuggets were whistled for a rash of personal fouls.

Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds, who became the 13th player in major league history to collect 3,000 hits, received the honor in the National League.

Rice collected 16 hits in 29 at bats, smashed two doubles and a pair of triples and hit safely in each of Boston's seven games, while compiling a slugging percentage of over 1.000 and knocking in the winning run in three games.

Rose reached the 3,000-hit mark Friday night with a pair of singles off Montreal's Steve Rogers. A day later he passed the late Roberto Clemente for 12th place on the all-time list.

Stephenson and Daniel both earned 2-over-par 74s in the final round, while Penny Pulz was even par for the tournament at 288 and finished in a tie for third with Donna Caponi Young and Pam Higgins.

Tiant suffers more bad luck

BOSTON (AP) — Bad luck continues to plague Boston Red Sox veteran pitcher Luis Tiant.

The 37-year-old right-hander pulled a hamstring muscle Monday night in his start against the Kansas City Royals.

The injury was diagnosed as "not serious," but will be examined on a day-to-day basis.

Boston won the game 4-0 on seven strong relief innings by Bob Stanley, now 3-1.

It was Tiant's second injury of the year. He dislocated a finger on his pitching hand during spring training and missed the first nine games of the season.

Dibbs to ignore 'Nasty' at WCT

DALLAS (AP) — Eddie Dibbs says he'll be doing everything he can to ignore his first-round opponent in the World Championship of Tennis Finals — something he failed to do last year.

His opponent is volatile Ilie Nastase, who just happens to have been Dibbs' first-round opponent last year. They got into a shouting, shoving match before Dibbs won in four sets. "We almost came to blows last year," Dibbs admitted Monday.

Nastase and Dibbs haven't faced each other since, but both qualified again for this year's WCT Finals, which opens tonight. The luck of the draw pitted them against each other again Thursday night.

"I'm ready for anything with that guy," said Dibbs. "He does crazy stuff. You just try to ignore him."

Nastase's antics have caused headaches for tournament officials worldwide. The Romanian drew the wrath of WCT officials for his behavior in Houston's River Oaks tournament last month.

"He can really tick you off sometimes," said Dibbs. "I really ticked off last time. I guess he does it in all of his matches. He takes it overboard. Actually he's not a bad guy off the court."

We're friends — and everything, but when he gets on the court it's a different story."

Nastase said he didn't think Thursday's rematch would produce another altercation. Asked about last year's confrontation, he shrugged and said, "That's normal for me. It's nothing special."

Dibbs and Nastase traded curses and obscene gestures and shoved each other at various times during the match, won by Dibbs 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. At one point, Nastase quickserved Dibbs, who then fired back a series of curses.

The tournament gets under way tonight with 1976 champion Bjorn Borg meeting Dick Stockton. Raul Ramirez of Mexico takes on Vitas Gerulaitis on Wednesday night, while Italy's Corrado Barazzutti plays Brian Gottfried before the Dibbs-Nastase match Thursday night.

Defending champion Jimmy Connors and Sandy Mayer administered a pair of black eyes to the WCT by qualifying for the elite final eight and then refusing to play.

Connors' mother informed the WCT by cablegram April 13 that her son would not be back to defend his title. She said he was playing a May 7 exhibition in Michigan and did not have time to prepare for a match two days later. The WCT did not release the information, however, until five days later "because people change their minds," according to one WCT official.

Connors has since contracted mononucleosis and couldn't have played anyway.

Mayer wanted to accept, but had to honor World Team Tennis commitments this week.

Connors and Mayer are the first players to refuse berths in the WCT Finals. Unlike all previous qualifiers, neither is under contract to the WCT because of last year's compromise agreement between WCT and the Grand Prix circuit.

Machete deaths

Corona gets new trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Accusing his lawyer of being more interested in selling a book than in defending his client, the state Court of Appeal has granted convicted mass killer Juan Corona a new trial.

However, the court said Monday in its 71-page decision that circumstantial evidence of Corona's guilt in the machete hacking deaths of 25 transient farm workers was "overwhelming" and suggested that his only defense is insanity.

It said defense lawyer Richard Hawk was "in gross neglect of his basic duty" for not offering an insanity defense.

Corona, now 41, was convicted in 1973 and is serving a life sentence at Soledad State Prison.

His current court-appointed lawyer, Alan Exelrod, said a counselor told Corona of the decision and said Corona was "very happy."

Corona, a labor contractor who recruited transients and supplied them to growers in the Feather and Yuba River valleys, was taken into custody after a search of his Yuba City home turned up an assortment of edged weapons.

After his arrest, Corona was described by his priest as "an exemplary father and a fine Christian," who neither smoked nor drank. It was learned later that he had been a mental patient years before, suffering from paranoid schizophrenia.

The court said Hawk's conduct "constituted not only an outrageous abrogation of the standards which the legal profession has set for itself... but also rendered the trial a farce and mockery."

It said Hawk acquired all literary rights to Corona's life story and trial in lieu of salary, hired writer Ed Cray to sit at the counsel table during the trial and wrote an afterward in Cray's book.

Such an agreement was a conflict of interest on Hawk's part and suggested he was more interested "in his own pocketbook" than in Corona's legal rights, the court said.

Hawk, reached at home, denied the court's contention that he was negligent and described the decision as a personal attack on him. "If the question is, 'does it hurt me,' hell yes it hurts," he said.

Hawk said all profits from the book went to pay for Corona's defense. "That case cost me a minimum of $150,000 of my own money," he said.

Expressing "delight" with the reversal, Hawk said there "was no psychiatric support for an insanity defense."

He said he refused to claim insanity because Corona "insisted he didn't do it, and I believed him, and I still believe him."

Ted Hansen, district attorney for Sutter County where the bodies were buried, said he expected the state attorney general to appeal the reversal. "The problems in trying any case as old as this are extensive," he said. "It would be extremely difficult for anybody to prosecute."

It was unclear whether Corona, married and the father of four children, would be granted bail during an appeal. Michael Mendelson, Exelrod's partner, said it was premature even to discuss bail.

Mrs. Black to preside

Mrs. Virginia Black, Howard County auditor, will preside as state president of the 20th County Auditors Institute at the University of Texas at Austin Thursday and Friday.

Addresses Thursday morning will be made by Mark Jones, director of budget and research in San Antonio; Donald H. Cormie, San Angelo CPA and Jim Johnson, personnel director for Travis County.

Following lunch, three concurrent workshops will provide an opportunity for discussion and further exploration of the topics presented in the morning.

A dinner meeting at 7 p.m. at the Villa Capri will feature Dan Baker of San Antonio as speaker.

Mrs. Black who will be accompanied by Mrs. Helen Stewart, to the meeting, said the Auditors Association, of which she is president, will host a reception at the Villa Capri Wednesday evening.

On Friday, a panel discussion on implementing the standard financial management system for Texas Counties. On the panel will be Jack Reynolds, Tom Nilsen, Edward Peterson and Don Stiles of Austin.

The concluding session will feature a discussion of recent legislation, judicial decisions, and Attorney General Opinions of Significance to Texas County Government.

Two-car crash kills three

ALTAIR, Texas (AP) — Three people were killed Monday night in a two-car crash west of Houston, the Department of Public Safety reported.

The head-on collision took place at 10:20 p.m., on U.S. 90A, 3 miles west of this Colorado County town.

Troopers identified the victims as Richard Reese Jr., 19, Garwood; Elizabeth Wilkerson, 41, of Rock Island and her 9-year-old son, Terry.

Terry's twin brother, Jerry, was flown by helicopter to Houston's Hermann Hospital, where he was listed in critical condition with a fractured skull.

All you folks who say the television has been so full of politics that you couldn't watch your favorite reruns will be horrified to hear that there are runoffs and then after that campaigns for November.
But I find it difficult to feel really sorry for you. Because I was just looking around at all the things there were to do Sunday if you were sick of the television.
For instance, if you knew and loved Dr. Jack Woodall, you could go out to Malone-Hogan Hospital to his retirement party. And it was worth going just to see Pam Barraza of Lakeview School come up to win her prize for the best poster about hospital week.

DR. WOODALL was passing out the prizes and Dr. Woodall was little Pam's doctor. Suddenly she grabbed him around the legs and gave him a really big hug. That expression of genuine love for him was probably worth more than the plaque from the clinic, the framed proclamation presented by the mayor pro tem and his present — although he appreciated them all.

Also worth viewing were the kindergarten posters on their ideas of the hospital. It wasn't a winner, but I personally loved the poster that depicted a big black building with all the lights on with an ambulance out front.
I think it was done by some kid that is a little big afraid of hospitals and that's kind of the way I've always felt about them, although they work hard to project a different type of image. And the poster contest was a good way to do it.

Those who desired could go on to the tour of homes on Sunday. I hope somebody will forgive me that I didn't, because we had gathered round the home fires here at the Big Spring Herald until the wee morning hours during the election. We were quite proud of the fact that we had the most complete coverage with the most boxes in on the Congressional Race in the entire 33 county district. But by Sunday afternoon, after getting up and teaching Sunday School Sunday morning, my enthusiasm for anything was wearing rather thin.

Anyway, Gloria Strom is such a favorite of mine that when I visit there, I head right for the back of the house. I wouldn't know how to act at a genuine party at the Strom home.
At the Charles Hays home, I told Jackie in advance she was a brave soul to be having a tour of the house when there's a young baby in the home. I used to shut doors to the kitchen, bedroom, baths and laundry room when my children were babies. Heaven forbid anybody tromping through the house. I couldn't help but admire Mrs. Eddie Cole's "cool" Friday night as she sat calmly at the Jaycee banquet while knowing that Mr. John Q. Public was going to be tromping through her home on Sunday. Now I have a feeling Nita Estes keeps hers neat all the time, but the neighbors did report that Bill was doing more yard work than usual during the past week.

ANYWAY, THERE WAS also an art show, ladies and gentlemen, out at the Senior Adult Center at Kentwood, with the Big Spring Art Association in charge.
Saturday, when we almost turned into an information bureau here at the paper, one of the calls we kept getting from out of town art enthusiasts was "How do you find the Kentwood Center?" I needed a recording to answer, "Get on Goliad and head south across FM 700 until you dead end. Turn left, then turn right on any street and you'll come to it back there somewhere."

Other questions we got a lot of Saturday included, "Where do you vote for precinct 15? or 3? Or 2? or Republican?"
What I'm trying to say in all of this hodgepodge, folks, is that there's lots of things going on in Big Spring you can attend. The Little League, Pony League and Teenage baseball season is about to begin.

Although I was distressed to hear that there is some kind of conflict where boys who want to play teenage baseball have to be out for tryouts at the exact same time as spring football workouts and they can't do both.

Somebody has got to work that out. We don't have that many athletes. The football coach is told the times he can have spring workouts by UIL. He has no choice. Surely, teenage baseball league officials care enough about the boys and the school to make some sort of exception for boys who wish to do both. I feel confident they will.
There's activities tonight. You can go to the All Spring Sport banquet at the high school cafeteria at 7:30 p.m. or you can go about the same time down east of the courthouse and listen to all kinds of music at the Night of Music. Or out to Forsan to the band concert.
There's lots of things to do in the spring — out where I ride fence.

Balloon accident beds Hobbs resident

LEVELAND, Texas (AP) — A Hobbs, N.M., truck salesman remained hospitalized in serious condition today after a freak weekend accident involving a huge advertising balloon and a 100-mile chase across the Texas High Plains.

A hospital spokesman in Lubbock said Michael Garner, 30, was in the intensive care unit suffering from anoxia (suffocation) and possible gas inhalation.
Dr. Bill McCullough of Leveland, said he and a Lovington, N.M., pilot, "Zip" Franklin, shot the balloon down near here after it snapped its moorings at a Ford dealership in Hobbs.
"This big advertising balloon broke loose from the Permian Ford dealership in Hobbs at 2:22 p.m. Saturday," said McCullough. "This kid (Garner) climbed into a pickup, went home and got a gun and some binoculars, and told his wife to call Zip. He knew Zip and wanted him to shoot the thing down."

McCullough said Franklin fired 200 rounds of .22-caliber ammunition into the balloon. However, the balloon was apparently self-sealing and remained aloft.
"This thing was at 15,000 feet above sea level and bigger 'n a house," said McCullough. "I mean, if a 747 or any other plane hits it, that plane is coming down."
Zip radioed the airport at Leveland and told them to get hold of me. I grabbed a shotgun and some double-aught buckshot and the two of us went back up."
It took six shots, but McCullough said the balloon finally began dropping. When it touched down, the doctor said he noticed someone climbing out of a truck and running up to the balloon.
"We didn't even know he was following it at the time," he said. "Zip made another pass and then we didn't see him."
