Agree on Contract Terms For New Operator of Airport

Members of Aransas County Commissioners Court and Linwood Bland have tentatively agreed on terms of a contract naming Bland as the new operator of the county airport, subject to possible changes.

Bland will succeed Charles Schindler whose contract expires March 31.

Bland, who lives at Key Allegro, has been a pilot and flying enthusiast for 25 years, owns a ranch near Carrizo Springs, and plans to devote full time as operator of Aransas County Airport.

Schindler and his attorney, Robert Blackmon, were present at the Commissioners Court meeting on Feb. 26 at which the contract for the new operator was reviewed. Schindler, as one of six applicants, had sought to have his contract renewed.

Blackmon said he wished to address the court on two matters: (1) a request by Schindler to lease space at the airport to build a hangar, and (2) to point out that, in his opinion, the county had failed to observe state law in regard to giving proper public notice regarding the acceptance of proposals from prospective operators of the airport.

County Judge John D. Wendell told Blackmon (1) that the county would approve Schindler's request for space to build a hangar if the plan meets all aspects of the master plan for the airport including agreement on the location, and (2) that the county would investigate the applicability of the state statute regarding public notice as it relates to the airport operator matter.

A few seconds after Schindler and his attorney left the commissioners courtroom, a telephone call was received in Judge Wendell's office from the Sheriff's Department. The judge was informed that two out-of-town police helicopters (searching for the kidnappers of three Corpus Christi residents) had landed at Aransas County Airport, that they needed fuel to continue their search, and that there was no one at the airport to sell them fuel.

Judge Wendell dispatched his secretary to see if Schindler had left the courthouse. Schindler was located, he returned to the courtroom, was informed of the emergency, and said he would go to the airport and take care of the situation.

Pirates Lose In State Quarterfinals

The basketball season ended two games earlier than hoped for but much later than predicted for the Rockport-Fulton Pirates Saturday night in Victoria. This fine group of young men met the outstanding Rice Consolidated team which had defeated the defending State 3A champions the previous Tuesday and came away on the short end of a 66-52 score.

The Pirates were able to contain the Raider fast-break except for the beginning of the second quarter, but that was all the taller and quicker Rice team needed to hold on for the victory, despite a fine comeback effort.

Rice now takes its fast-break offense and pressing man-to-man defense to the State 3A tournament in Austin this weekend. They are paced by three juniors at post and forward who scored all but ten of the Raider points and gathered in 38 of the team's 46 rebounds. The two starting guards are the only members of the entire squad who will not be back next year.

It was nip and tuck for the first three minutes of the game at which point the Pirates held a 10-8 lead but from then on the Raiders began working out a lead which they never relinquished. The score was 22-16 at the end of the first quarter.

It was in the second quarter, however, that the game was won when Rice put together two spurts of seven and thirteen points to gain a 42-22 lead before the Pirates, who never let up, got it together and scored the last seven points of the half, which ended at 42-29.

Emergency Medical Care In County Under Consideration

The possibility of obtaining emergency medical care for the Aransas County area was discussed by Richard Kull, director of health planning for Coastal Bend Council of Governments, at a Rotary Club luncheon meeting at Ramada Inn Feb. 25.

Kull reported a committee representing Aransas County has been reviewing emergency needs for this area and has prepared a tentative recommendation that federal funds be sought for an ambulance with various types of emergency equipment and to pay for one or more trained individuals to operate the service. An initial cost of $50,000, partly covered by a federal grant, with the remainder funded locally is anticipated.

The committee has reviewed the possibility of a hospital for Aransas County or even a medical clinic but came to the conclusion that neither was feasible at this time, according to Kull.

In addition to the ambulance, recommended equipment would include monitors for heart and other vital functions, shock treatment equipment, electrocardiograph equipment, as well as a defibrillator and first aid equipment. Also included would be a rescue kit for extracting victims from car wrecks, and two-way radio equipment.

Also, it would be necessary to provide specialized training for one or more operators of the ambulance. Kull pointed out that the first three to five minutes following an emergency are most critical and must be handled by a trained person.

From the audience it was suggested that financing of the entire project from local funds if no federal money is available would be important to well being and progress of this area.

Girl Scout Little House Vandal Caught

Rockport City Police cleared up two cases in the city by taking one male juvenile into custody last week.

One case involved entry into a private residence where food items were taken.

The second case involved vandalism to the Girl Scout "Little House." The "Little House" was broken into on Tuesday. City police had the boy in custody on Wednesday.

In another case, four male juveniles were placed in custody in the Aransas County juvenile shelter on charges of burglary.

Rockport City Police received a report that the E.H. Camel residence on Percival had been burglarized on March 1st.

The four boys were runaways from home and were picked up by a Refugio County officer in Tivoli who called Rockport. Aransas County Sheriff's Dept. returned the boys to Rockport for the City Police who placed them in custody Monday evening, March 3rd.

Some of the items taken from the house included $12.00 in change, beer, cigarettes, cough medicine, pills, some jewelry and a picture.

Chief of Police Craigmile commented that this was a very good example of cooperation between several police agencies.

Pirates Lose—

was the Rice domination of rebounding at both ends of the court during the first half. They repeatedly had two and three shots while limiting the Pirates to a single opportunity most of the time. Rockport was able to gather in only 13 rebounds in the first half to 30 for the Rice team. In the second half, however, the Pirates were able to hold their own on the boards against the taller Raiders, each team getting 16 rebounds. For the game, David Mundine had seven, while John Brasher and Scott Gillis had six each.

The Rice coach used several different combinations in trying to press Rockport into errors bringing the ball up court, but the Pirates with Robert Crabb directing the play were able to calmly and efficiently cope with every combination. By the end of the game, the Raiders had abandoned the full-court press.

Offensively, the Pirates had difficulty getting the ball worked inside to Brasher and Mike Lyons as they did so effectively against Donna in the Bi-district win. Scoring mostly from the outside were Gillis with 15 points, Mundine with 14 and Rios with 10, the only ones in double figures.

At the free-throw line, Rice hit 16 of 28 for 57% while Rockport was 8 of 12 for 66%. From the field Rice was 44% while the Pirates were hitting 39%.

For a team which was picked to finish no better than third in the 15AAA North Zone, this group of players and coaches should be commended on a successful season which ended only when they met a superior team which deserved to win. The Raiders played well. The Pirates played better.

The game was played before an overflow crowd at Victoria High School. Rockport-Fulton was trying for its second trip to the state tournament in Bobby Flanagan's three years as coach of the Pirates.

Banquet—

used both humorous and serious stories to illustrate his points.

Another highlight of the meeting was awarding the Chamber of Commerce's Civic Achievement plaque to the local chapter of American Association of Retired Persons. Ed Gerchak, president of the chapter, accepted the award which was presented by Joe Hugenberg, Chamber president.

A.A.R.P. was cited for its operation of Concern Center, providing transportation for elderly people and supplying guidance and advice with reference to various needs of retired residents of this area. Also, A.A.R.P., in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce, conducted a cleanup campaign on Fulton Beach last year.

Tommy Hughes and Robert Taft were awarded a calf contributed by Ray Longino. Dewey Iles volunteered to process and package the meat for freezer storage. Approximately $400 was realized from the calf project. This money, together with contributions, will be used to pay for Christmas street decorations.

Approximately 200 participated in the banquet, including the speaker's wife and their daughter, Beverly. A patriotic color scheme of red, white and blue was used in decorating the banquet room and tables, in keeping with the upcoming Bicentennial celebration. Mrs. Richard Beck planned and supervised the decorations.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I have a problem. You may not think it is serious but it is to me. I am in high school and am in the band and I love the band and I do not want to quit.

My problem--in the band we have to learn about sixteen scales by memory and I can't play very well. Well our band director calls about three or four people in class to play a scale or two in front of everybody by yourself. I try to learn how to play, Louisa, but I just can't play well and when you are playing everybody stares and if you mess up they laugh.

Louisa, it hurts when people laugh at you. Please put my letter in your column and maybe the members of the band or the director will read it.

Depressed--S.C.

Answer:

There are two things you will have to do if you wish to play well in the band. The first is to practice and to practice your scales before people. Get several of your friends or your family to listen to you and then practice by yourself, over and over again.

The next most important thing is to forget about the people who are listening and pay attention to what you are doing. Probably the reason you are "messing up," as you say, is because of nervousness. You have your and start over again. It is very rude for others to laugh when a person makes a mistake and your director should see to that.

Louisa.

Letters to the Editor

The Rockport Girls Softball Team would like to thank Mrs. Bona Suttles of Suttles Dress Shop for her sponsorship of our teams.

Forty-nine girls have registered to play so far and another coach and sponsor are desperately needed. There is so little organized recreation for young people and they want so badly to play - won't you help?

Registration will close with the March 6 practice. Practice is held from 4-6 p.m. Monday and Thursday at Live Oak School.

L. D. NUCKLES

Hunting seasons are over and we're well into the time that I like for fishing for big bass. January, February, and March are the big bass months in Texas, as far as I am concerned.

During the warm months of summer it's nice to be out on the water but most of the bass you catch will weigh "Oh, about two pounds" by your estimate. Put them on the scales and they'll be more like a pound or a pound and a quarter.

Winter time is the time to catch those that weigh five pounds or more - on the scales.

The big bass are there in the summer and once in a while one is caught. With that many fishermen on the water it just stands to reason that one will be caught once in a while, but in the winter you won't catch as many fish but they are more apt to be big ones.

There is a reason for this, of course. In Texas, especially South Texas, the water seldom gets cold enough to really slow down the metabolism of the bass to the point where he quits being hungry, but there certainly is less food available to satisfy that hunger.

During the spring and summer months nature provides a tremendous amount of food for the bass. Everything from the young of his own spawn and those of the sunfish to the clouds of young shad literally swarm in the water and are readily available as food.

Crawfish, insect larva, young snakes, frogs, and even young ducks and other water birds offer a change in his menu. Living is easy for old Mr. Bass. It may be that he'll only have to be on the prowl a few minutes a day to obtain all the food he needs and the rest of the time he can just lay up in some hide-out and you're not about to get him to strike.

Then comes winter. Many shad die and the ones that are left are too large for the bass to utilize. The sunfish are in some hiding place and rarely move about. Snakes, frogs and crawfish hide out or bury themselves in the mud and the young-of-the-year bass are larger and much smarter.

A large bass requires a great deal of food to keep him going so he is alert to grab anything that comes by that looks like it might be food. He will strike at things that he wouldn't look at a second time during the "easy living" months.

It's up to you to be there to present these things to him. You may find out that you need to present them a little slower than you would later in the year. When the water is cold everything slows down a little bit.

The usual pattern of weather here in South Texas is a cold, blustery norther, then a few days of warm, clear weather. That's the time. Get out there right after the norther quits blowing and the sun starts shining.

That's not the only time - you can catch bass when the line is freezing in the guides - but

Department Gives Tips To Fuel-minded Boaters

Austin -- The price and availability of gasoline is no joking matter for the recreational boater, so fuel economy should be foremost in each captain's mind, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

A leaflet distributed by the department, derived from material excerpted from an article in MOTOR BOATING AND SAILING MAGAZINE, gives tips on boat maintenance that will help boaters stretch their fuel dollars.

Here are a few of the suggested ways to save fuel:

--Keep your boat clean. If one barnacle on the boat's bottom slows her by a factor of X, then the same barnacle on a propeller will slow her by a factor of X times 5 or more. Cleaning props on outboards or outdrives is easy, as they can be tilted up within easy reach. On conventional drives, cleaning involves a haul-out or donning a face mask and taking a swim with a wire brush.

--Clean the trap. The back-fire trap or flame arrestor is intended to quench flame which might spit back from the carburetor. Clean the trap once each six weeks, blowing and washing all dirt from it so air can whistle through freely.

--Make sure your choke is adjusted. When the engine is warm the butterfly plate (a round disc) should be parallel to the air horn, offering minimum those warm-up periods between the northers are best.

Don't pay any attention to the old adage about fishing early and late and resting during the middle of the day - that's summertime stuff - right on through the day the fishing will be just as good, maybe better, than it was at daylight.

Winter time is big bass time and you'll have to hurry. Summertime is right around the corner, so get out there and get with the big ones.

resistance to air. The choke plate on manually operated chokes must be fully open when the choke button is pushed in.

--Fine-tune the engine. It is important to adjust the engine to factory specification. Time the engine by the book, since an engine time outside the manufacturer's tolerances will waste gas. This same attention should be paid to point clearance and dwell specifications. Spark plugs should be clean and properly gapped, and all wiring in good condition for maximum efficiency.

--Don't overcool your engine. Running a modern marine engine too coolly wastes gas because combustion is not as clean or complete, and internal friction is greater in the over-cooled engine.

--Use the right oil. Overly high-viscosity oil generates engine friction and wastes fuel. Particularly bad is oil which has been overloaded with one of the super-viscous additives intended to reduce oil burning in a worn engine.

--Select the best propeller. Since the correct prop has an important bearing on fuel consumption, the boatkeeper should consider the following. A too-small prop diameter allows the engine to overspeed. Too great a diameter overloads the engine and slows the boat. Both have a detrimental effect on gas consumption. Besides the size of the propeller, other factors to consider are the pitch of the propeller, the design and number of blades and cavitation. A little experimenting with your boat's propeller could mean a great increase in mileage.

Other suggestions for saving fuel in the brochure are reduction gears, adjusting the stuffing box, finding the correct angle for the lower unit of your outboard, trim tabs, fixing any slipping or the clutch and cutting down on accessories which might require more energy.

Fashion
Chiffon is being used extensively by many fashion designers who live across the ocean. Long, blousy sleeves and scarfs of this material feature many of the new clothes.

Hats have come back in a big way with the fashionable set. This is a result, probably, because of smaller hair-dos. Large floppy hats of white straw are popular.

Miss Dee Ann King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. King of Rockport holds trophy won in Corpus Christi's 12th Annual Custom Car Show. Her car (in background) a 1965 Ford Mustang 2 plus 2 Fastback, was entered in the conservative hard top class.

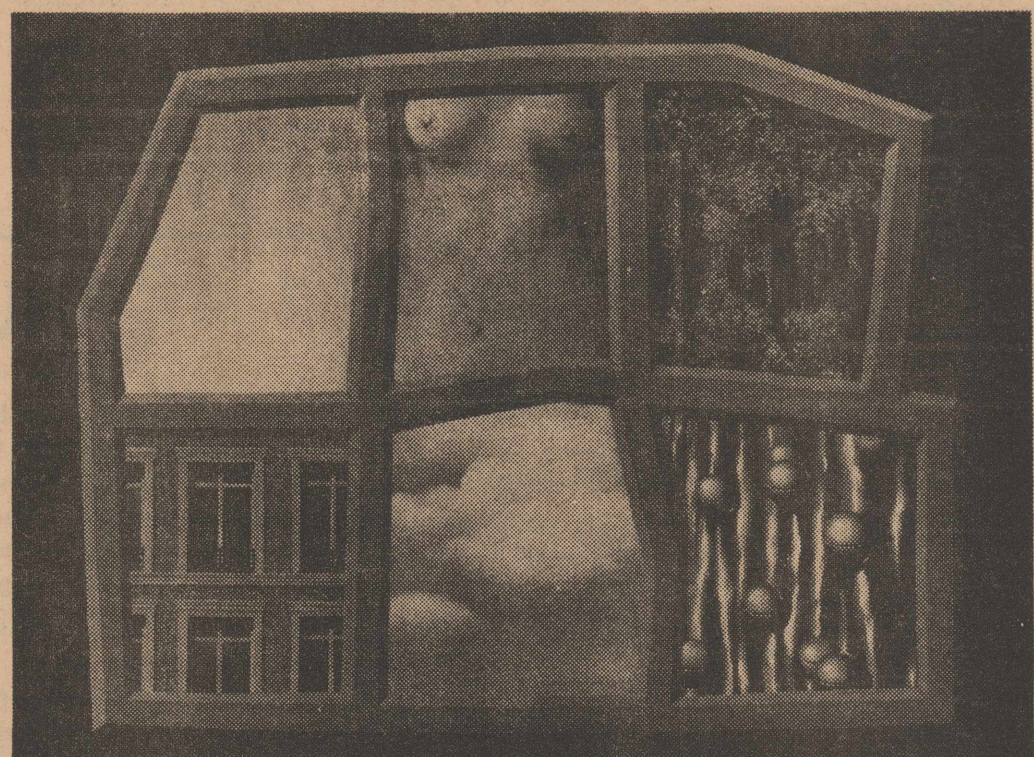

Bill Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Oliver, also won a trophy for his 1972 Motorcycle, entered in the racing division. Car Show was sponsored by the Corpus Christi Custom Car Club and Texas Autoramas.

RENE MAGRITTE — 'SOMETHING OF THE DRAGON'

The art of Rene Magritte is disconcerting to the viewer—and purposefully so—the aim of the artist is to upset the habitual ways of seeing—and even of imagining.

The childhood of Magritte born in Lessines, Belgium in 1898, was tragic, by ordinary standards. His father was successful financially, but a distant man, and his mother drowned herself in the Sambre in 1910, leaving three young sons. Rene was only 12 years old, and by his own accounting, a highly imaginative child. He read R.L. Stevenson enthusiastically, and later, E.A. Poe was a favorite of his.

In 1916, Magritte, described by Louis Scutenaire as "stocky, robust, not tall, with something of the dragon about him", attended the Academy of Beaux Arts in Brussels. He was influenced by the Futurist Movement, but did not accept its cult of physical energy which demanded the introduction of movement into art and glorified war as "the supreme hygiene." He was also influenced by Marcel Duchamp's concept of categorizing art as either retinal or cerebral, and Chirico's mysterious new vision of objects. Stephen Mallarme commented that "Magritte's contemplation of objects, while stripping them of their usual meaning, accentuated the static in their form through simplification of it, for his aim was not to render forms more mobile, but rather more dense."

The Surrealists' affinity for Fantomas, a novel published in 1913 and the inspiration for a later film series, also fascinated Magritte. He was often referred to as a Belgian Surrealist, although his sporadic relationship to Surrealism had ceased long before.

Magritte belonged to a group of artists and writers who called themselves the Society of Mystery. E.L.T. Mesens, poet, musician and collagist was a member of the Society, and an admirer of Magritte's work. He bought all of Magritte's work dating back to 1926 when Le Centaure Gallery went bankrupt, and later, when he was named supervisor of the London Gallery, he gave his friend a well-deserved boost.

Le Jockey Perdu, of which there are several versions, is often cited as pure Magritte—devoid of all the trendy movements of the twenties. The artist describes the work as "conceived without concern for aesthetics, purely as a response to a mysterious feeling, a kind of 'reminder' which at non-historic moments makes itself felt in my consciousness and which, ever since I was born, has guided my life."

Magritte did not, personally, describe himself as an artist, he only referred to his inner "necessity" to paint. In a lecture he gave in 1938, he attempted to clarify his attitude:

"The preoccupations and ambitions of artists were perfectly on a par with the motives of any run-of-the-mill careerist. Through the realization of all this, I developed a complete mistrust of art and of artists. My position was elsewhere, and determined by one guidemark: the magic of art I had known about as a child."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Name In Vain

"I urge you to veto the welfare bill."

So said a telegram sent to the governor, supposedly from a concerned citizen by the name of Watson. But in fact, Watson had nothing to do with the telegram. It had been sent by a local manufacturing firm, which had simply picked his name out of the telephone book.

Watson later found out about the telegram, and filed a damage suit against the company "for taking my name in vain." And a court ruled that he did indeed have good grounds for complaint. The court said:

"(The company) appropriated, without the plaintiff's consent, his name, his personality, and whatever influence he may have possessed. This they had no right to do."

This case illustrates the growing recognition of the right of privacy as a legal doctrine. Often called "the right to be let alone," it has already been applied in a wide variety of situations.

Another example arose when an obstetrician, summoned to a woman's home to deliver her baby, brought a young man into the bedroom with him.

The woman assumed that the

Easter Seal Mail Appeal Begins

Easter Seal Appeal letters are being delivered this week according to Henry Patton, the Aransas County Easter Seal Representative of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. The Representative serves as contact for disabled persons needing Easter Seal rehabilitation services and also serves as Treasurer of the Easter Seal Appeal in the County.

The Easter Seal Society offers physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs, and special equipment loans to enable disabled persons to make the best use of their abilities to overcome handicaps. These services are financed by the annual Easter Seal Appeal and Fall Membership Drive.

The Society finances public education programs, provides scholarships for training of professional personnel to staff rehabilitation centers, and helps provide for National research into the causes and cures of crippling conditions. Patton pointed out that all these programs are important if Texas is going to continue to provide the best in rehabilitation services for its own disabled citizens.

During 1974, the Texas Easter Seal Society provided treatment and services for 20,152 children and adults who were in need of assistance. Easter Seal services are available to any disabled person who can benefit from help provided by the Easter Seal Society, and who do not qualify for any other assistance. Self-mailing requests for assistance are available through the Representative.

The Kinsey Report

I sent the following "Letter to the Editor" to the Corpus Christi Caller-Times and it was published Sunday:

I have come to the conclusion that your alleged TV critic, Dorothy Stanich, if given the opportunity to watch our good Lord walk on water, would review the performance in this manner:

"The act lacked polish, was definitely routine, and would definitely have been improved had it been accompanied by music."

Recently, Miss Stanich wrote a review about the Doris Day special in which she downgraded the singing and performing of Miss Day and John Denver, and said Tim Conway's comedy skits were unfunny.

I thought the show was delightful. I was impressed by Miss Day's attractiveness and singing ability at the age of 50. I thought John Denver did an outstanding job in every way, and although I often think Tim Conway is unfunny, this time I thought his skits were funny. The one about "Behind Closed Doors" was, in my opinion, one of the funniest things I ever saw on TV....

NEW FOOD STAMPS ISSUED MARCH 1

Effective March 1, food stamp recipients will be using new coupons, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The coupons will be of $1, $5, and $10 denominations. The 50-cent and $2 coupons will be discontinued.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service said the larger denominations were prompted by the volume of coupons needed to meet increased food stamp allotments, paper shortages and increased production and shipping costs.

The new food stamps -- brown ($1), purple ($5), and blue-green ($10) -- use a more sophisticated design to deter counterfeiting.

FNS said that food stamp users must spend their current food stamps by June 30 of this year since retailers will not accept any old coupons after that date.

Authorized food stamp stores will use the $1 coupon for making change instead of the current 50-cent coupon and credit slips of 99 cents or less for change under $1. Books will be signed by the food stamp customer on the inside front cover, instead of on the back of the book.

The ivory-colored coupon books are in amounts of $2, $7, $40, $50 and $65.

FNS advised retailers to redeem the current food coupons as soon as possible. Banks will continue to accept them for redemption until August 1 of this year.

A.A.R.P. News

About 125 members and visitors participated in a pot luck dinner at the Airport--now the meeting place of A.A.R.P.--on Feb. 26. This was followed by many of the members playing bridge and canasta. A few played dominoes.

There was no business transacted at this meeting which was presided over by Ed Gerchak, president, other than a report of the various committees.

On March 3 the executive committee met to transact business of organization. At the same time, the Concern Center committee with Zollie and Besie Glass as chairmen, met to discuss the operations of the Concern Center, and agreed to have some new window signs printed to be placed in the store windows in the community.

At this meeting, it was announced that the Chamber of Commerce had awarded a Plaque of Appreciation for the best job done in the community by a service organization. This was done at the Chamber of Commerce banquet last Saturday night. All of the members were very happy over the selection.

The next regular meeting of the A.A.R.P. will be at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, March 12 at the Recreation Building at the Airport. Speaker will be Melton T. Pearson of Pearson's Garden Center who will speak on "Plants and Garden Care."

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given by the Parks and Wildlife Department that a public hearing will be held at 8 p.m. on March 25, 1975 at the County Courthouse at Rockport for the purpose of gathering information concerning proposed hunting, fishing and trapping regulations for Aransas County.

As the result of action by the Texas Legislature, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission is responsible for the setting of seasons, bag limits, and means and methods of taking the wildlife resources in Aransas County. All interested persons are urged to attend and comment upon the proposed regulations.

During the Civil War some Southerners tried raising their own tea trees but most of the attempts to cultivate tea trees in the U.S. have been unsuccessful.

Largemouth Bass Still Most Popular in Texas

Austin -- For all the exotic fish stocked in Texas lakes by the Parks and Wildlife Department, the largemouth bass probably remains the top game fish for most freshwater anglers.

And yet, how many bass anglers know the first thing about their quarry?

Largemouth, spotted and smallmouth bass actually are sunfish and belong to the scientific family Centrarchidae. Bream and crappie are of the same family.

The species are identified by several physical variations: all black basses have a double-lobed dorsal (top) fin. Smallmouth and spotted bass have a membrane connecting the two lobes but the largemouth lacks the membrane.

The jaw of a largemouth extends to or beyond the rear of the eye when its mouth is closed.

The color and pattern of bass may vary from both the genetic background and the turbidity of the water. Bass taken from very turbid lakes will be light in color with indistinct spots on the sides.

Largemouths are historically slough or bayou fish but have adapted to some extent to the lakes and reservoirs of Texas.

The preferred water temperature is from 60 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Below 41 degrees, bass stop feeding and consequently their growth stops. Extended periods of temperatures. Under certain conditions such as favorable temperatures or abundance of food, black bass will congregate but rarely school. A concentration of forage fish during the day will often trigger this response in bass.

Forage fish disperse at night and bass do likewise.

There are specific movement patterns of bass which are caused by feeding, spawning, escape and changes in water quality, weather or habitat conditions.

Studies show that bass move through open water rather than along shorelines. They travel along submerged creek and river channels and prominent underwater irregularities.

Bass occupy deep water during the winter then move long distances to find suitable spawning habitat during the spring. After spawning, the fish will return to deeper water and follow routine patterns during the summer.

Bass weighing up to three pounds move about randomly. Their main concern is feeding and escape from larger bass. Larger species are more restricted and defined in their movements and require less food in relation to weight.

Curiously, bass have homing instincts. Fish displaced from their range have been recovered at the original site after a period of time. Various theories have been offered to explain this behavior. Their sense of smell seems to be the reason.

The senses of smell, hearing and taste are poorly developed, however. The major senses are sight and a sense of touch arising from the lateral line. The lateral line is sensitive to vibrations in the water.

Everything is seen through "yellow-colored glasses." A bass detects the yellow end of the spectrum clearly but cannot distinguish color differences at the blue or violet end. That's something to keep in mind the next time you stock up on lures.

The best way to attract bass to an area is to place some type of cover in the water. Cedar trees, willows or other brush sunk in water from three to 15 feet deep will shelter small bait fish which attract bass.

In some instances, ample numbers of bass can live in a body of water but still not be caught by anglers. In most predator-prey relationships, the prey -- bass in this case -- develop a resistance to predators -- man -- to eventually reduce their losses.

Over a period of time, the catch decreases although adequate numbers of bass remain. Bass and other sport fishes have varying abilities to resist capture.

It is possible that these differences in wariness and vulnerability are passed from one generation to the next. Temperatures above 90 degrees are lethal to bass.

Lakes with temperatures in the 70-degree range and with moderate turbidity stimulate the rapid growth of bass if abundant food also is available. Lack of proper temperature or adequate food supply will slow the growth rate of all black basses.

In colder, northern lakes, largemouth bass may live to be 16 years old.

The average age of largemouths in warmer water is five to 10 years. There is some indication that the female bass not only grows larger than the male, but, like humans, she outlives the male.

Depending on the part of the state, spawning begins from February to May, when the surface water temperature reaches 80 degrees, and may continue throughout the summer in some parts of Texas.

Texas largemouth bass can spawn at one year of age and a female can produce from 2,000 to 100,000 eggs depending on her size and age. Fry are guarded by the male for several days but fall prey to insects and other fishes. Fewer than one percent of all fry hatched live longer than a year.

These young bass fry and fingerlings eat microscopic plankton and small insect larvae until they reach a length of 2 1/2 to three inches. At this length they turn to a diet of fish. Adults feed on threadfin and gizzard shad and other members of the sunfish family.

During the spawn is one of the ideal times to fish for bass. While guarding his nest, the male fish will attack fish or lures which come too close to his small charges. This is more of an instinctive move rather than a feeding action since the male does not seem to feed while tending the nest.

Female bass will resume foraging soon after laying their eggs.

A male taken from the nest usually means that the eggs or fry are lost to predators. This does not seem to harm the overall bass population since more young fish from the remaining nests take their place. Reducing the number of adult bass in a given area increases the production of young bass.

Many of the young fish are devoured by their cannibalistic parents and other bass. Cannibalism is seasonal and reaches a peak in May - June after spring spawning.

For the most part, largemouth bass do not school and are generally solitary crea-

UNDERSTANDING DRUG ABUSE

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Science and Marijuana

It is unwise to think that any drug with major pharmacological action can ever be truly safe. Marijuana is such a drug.

But intense controversy in an emotional climate is not helpful in accurately evaluating marijuana and developing a rational social policy with respect to possession and use of it.

History bears witness to the difficulties of placing drug use, especially of new substances, in realistic perspective. Dangers have sometimes been understated; at other times potential risks have been exaggerated.

For example, when coffee was introduced into Western Europe from the Near East much controversy arose over its possibly harmful effects. Penalties as extreme as death were imposed for its use.

On the other hand, drugs that have turned out to be harmful to human health have not always seemed so at first. The medical and scientific community has not been free from error in some of its early judgments.

Heroin when first introduced was believed to be nonaddictive. It was even advocated as a cure for morphine addiction. Cocaine at first was believed to be completely safe for human use and was even thought to have therapeutic properties.

The methodical, objective way of science is the only acceptable approach to understanding the effects of drugs on the human body.

The scientific method is admittedly tedious and slow, but a drug such as marijuana probably will be with us from now on; therefore it is imperative that we carry out the necessary scientific research to give us a full understanding of this substance.

The marijuana research program which is now supported by the National Institute on Drug Abuse—a part of HEW's Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration—was begun in 1967. Five years ago, 27 marijuana research projects were being supported. In fiscal year 1974 there were 65 such projects.

Thus the Institute, which supports a major portion of all ongoing marijuana research nationwide, seeks to investigate the drug from every possible angle.

Marijuana is not harmless. The detrimental effects of marijuana intoxication on automobile driving have been well established. There are also tentative indications that users may incur serious impairment of various physiological functions.

Further research eventually will lead to a definitive evaluation of marijuana and enable us to place it in proper perspective. Meanwhile, prudence suggests that here is a drug too potentially dangerous to be taken lightly.

Rose Care for Beautiful Blooms

College Station -- A little extra care of those rose bushes in your home landscape can bring a season of beautiful blooms.

"Prune roses now and also plant new varieties," advises Everett Janne with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Plant bare-root rose bushes about four weeks before the average last frost date in your area. However, potted bushes can be set out at any time."

Prune roses in early spring before active growth starts, suggests the landscape horticulturist. Cut off any insect damaged or diseased canes.

When pruning, leave about five vigorous canes 18-24 inches tall. For an abundance of small blooms on Hybrid Tea varieties, cut back about one-fourth of the plant. For medium-sized flowers, prune back about one-half of the growth and for exhibition-size roses, prune about three-fourths of the plant.

Janne suggests pruning rambling and climbing roses after they bloom. However, some long stems must be left to produce flowers.

"After pruning, cover the cut end of the cane with asphalt wound dressing or caulking compound. This will prevent larvae of carpenter bees from burrowing into the canes," notes the horticulturist.

To keep roses healthy, weed and fertilize the garden area regularly. Apply one-half cup of 8-8-8 or a similar fertilizer at least a foot from the trunk of the rose bush and reapply every three or four weeks if the soil is sandy or infertile.

Apply a two-inch mulch of sawdust, wood chips or peat moss to the soil to retain moisture and retard weed growth.

Spray roses with a fungicide -- Benlate or Manzate -- every week during the summer to control blackspot.

"Try growing a few miniature roses this spring," suggests Janne. "They are hardy and are good for low border plantings, rock gardens, window boxes and as house plants."

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q - Because I work for two different employers, more than $13,200 (1974) of my wages this year will be subject to Social Security tax. How can I reclaim the excess tax paid?

A - You are entitled to claim the excess withheld as a credit against your income tax. Compute this credit by adding the Social Security (FICA) withheld by all your employers this year, and the "uncollected employee tax on tips" as shown on all your Forms W-2. From this total, subtract $772.20 (1974), the maximum Social Security tax that may be withheld from your pay. The balance is your credit which you may claim on line 62 of Form 1040.

Q - My father paid the $900 we owed on our car as an anniversary present to my husband and me. Do we have to pay income tax on this money?

A - No. Although a debt paid by another person is generally income to a debtor, it is not income if the payment is intended as a gift. It is the intent of the one who pays another person's debt that determines whether the payment is a gift.

Q - My employer has given me an expense-paid vacation to Mexico next January as an award for my reaching the million-dollar sales mark. How will this affect my income taxes?

A - Rewards and bonuses including vacation trips paid to you for outstanding work are income. If such an award is payable at some future time at the option of your employer, it is not taxable until you receive it or your employer makes it available to you.

Q - Some of my co-workers and I are planning to start an investment club. We don't know whether to operate our club as a partnership or a corporation. How can we find out?

A - Most investment clubs operate as partnerships and are treated as such for Federal tax purposes. Others operate as corporations, trusts, or associations taxable as corporations.

Raw Fish and Nutrition

Austin -- Seafood has long been considered a good source of protein for the people of underdeveloped countries with limited land areas, but some of the other nutritional values of seafood have been overlooked because of the emphasis on protein.

Seafood is a good source of vitamins in the B complex, including niacin, thiamin and riboflavin. The amounts of these vitamins found in the cooked product vary according to method and length of cooking. Heat, light and alkali destroy the B vitamins.

The following recipe cooks fish in a strong acid -- lime juice -- eliminating much of the deterioration of the B vitamins. The fish is completely cooked and has the characteristic milky color of "done" seafood. No heat is needed.

Seviche has long been a favorite in South America. Each country or area has its own delightful way of preparing "raw" fish. The following recipe is an example of how seviche can be used as either a main dish, a salad or as an appetizer.

Additional seafood recipes can be obtained by sending a postcard to Seafood Recipes, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Austin, Texas 78701.

Seviche

1 lb. skinned fillets, any white fish

1 large onion, finely chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
1 cucumber, chopped
Jalapeno pepper to taste
30 pitted, whole, Spanish green olives

1/8 teaspoon comino
1 (8 oz.) bottle lime juice, or juice from 23-30 fresh limes
20 capers

1/4 cup olive oil
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/8 teaspoon oregano

Dice fillets into dime-sized pieces and place in a glass bowl. Cover with lime juice and soak without ice for four or more hours. Then press out lime juice and drain meat. In a separate bowl mix remaining ingredients. Add drained fish and mix well. Refrigerate. It can be kept five days in the refrigerator and can be frozen.

Ranchers' Tax Information

College Station -- With farm and ranch income fluctuating considerably from 1973 to 1974, producers may want to consider a technique called "income averaging," says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Income averaging" can reduce taxes in situations where taxable income changes measurably from year to year. For the technique to apply, taxable income for 1974 must be at least $3,000 more than 30 per cent of the total taxable income for the four immediately preceding tax years.

In addition to ordinary income, capital gains on the sale of livestock and other assets may also be included in income averaging, points out Hayenga.

For income averaging, complete Schedule G and turn it in along with Form 1040, advises the Texas A&M University System specialist. It is not necessary to file amended returns for the four preceding years, but information from the tax returns from these years must be available to compute the tax for the current year.

Hayenga suggests a simple check to determine if income averaging will save tax dollars. First, total the "taxable income" for the prior four years and then multiply that figure by 30 per cent. If the result is more than $3,000 below the current year's taxable income, income averaging can be used.

With income averaging, the progressive rate schedule is eliminated on the top four-fifths of averageable income, points out Hayenga.

The deadline for filing farm and ranch income tax returns is Mar. 3 unless an estimated return was filed. In that case the deadline for the final return is Apr. 15.

Gardens Need Organic Matter

One thing that will benefit home vegetable gardens in San Patricio and Aransas Counties is organic matter, says D.P. Pawlik, County Agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Organic matter usually takes the form of animal manures, cover crops, compost or mixed organic fertilizer.

Although many gardeners add some type of organic matter to the soil, most do not apply large enough quantities. At least two inches of organic materials should be applied each year and then tilled into the soil to a depth of six to eight inches.

Organic matter should be added to soil at least two weeks before planting and preferably longer.

What is so important about organic matter soil? The Extension Agent lists these benefits.

1. Improves tilth and condition of soil.
2. Improves ability of soil to hold water and nutrients.
3. Improves "buffering" capacity of soil; keeps soil from "over-reacting".
4. Supports the soil's micro-biological activity (its life).
5. Contributes nutrients.
6. Releases nutrients slowly.
7. Releases acids as it decomposes; this helps convert insoluble natural minerals into plant-usable forms.

Organic material added to moist, warm and well-aerated soil will be decomposed rapidly by soil micro-organisms such as fungi, bacteria, molds and earthworms. This decomposition process gives "life" to the soil and thus allows it to better support growing plants.

So, organic matter does play an important role in crop production, but often it is not given enough attention.

Socks Take A New Look

College Station -- Latest look for legs and toes is the "toes hose," Marlene Odle, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System, reported this week.

These are 100 per cent acrylic knit knee-high socks with individual multi-colored toes. Stripes and argyle prints are most popular, she said.

"Lovers of this fancy legwear don't have to give up the fashion for warmer weather either," the specialist said.

New designs are now available in nylon lightweight heat transfer print in art deco designs.

The colorful knee-highs are popular worn with slacks--especially among the college set and young adults, the specialist noted.
