Impassioned Letters Of Love Described By Witnesses

(By The Associated Press)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 8.—A grim-faced prosecutor sought to put Harry F. Powers in the shadow of the gallows today—and the gum-chewing defendant squirmed in annoyance.

More than 20 state witnesses paraded to the stand on the stage of the town opera house.

They told how the little defendant, while he was writing impassioned love letters to widows and divorcees in all parts of the country, supervised construction of a windowless garage with under ground chambers—a place the prosecutor has pictured as a feudal type of torture house.

Tell of Grave Digging

They told of seeing him dig a grave for the two women and three children he is accused of slaying in that out-of-the-way place.

Then began the recounting of his relationship with Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, the Northboro (Mass.,) divorcee for whose slaying Powers is being tried.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flemming, Worchester, Mass., brother-in-law, and sister of the dead woman told how they found a picture of Cornelius O. Pierson (one of Powers' aliases) on the divorcee's dresser.

"We are going to get married," Mrs. Flemming quoted her sister as having said. "He has a big ranch at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and is going to give me everything my heart desires."

The Massachusetts couple told how "Pierson" had arrived at their home with Mrs. Lemke, talked

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — President Hoover told congress today what he thinks the country needs in the way of legislation and house Democrats voted to make his recommendations the subject of general debate on the floor of the chamber.

Meeting in caucus late in the day, they instructed majority leader Rainey to take the action necessary to bring this about. He will do so tomorrow, soon after the convening hour.

Legion Commander Has Program Calling For More Money To Be Used For The Relief Of Disabled Veterans

Favor Referendum

Ex-Service Men Are Advocating Prohibition Referendum And Other Matters; President Is Given Full Text

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. —The American Legion wants additional expenditures for veterans of over $25,000,000 yearly despite warnings from the president the federal pocketbook is very lean.

In his message to congress, Mr. Hoover today said veterans relief cost more than $1,000,000,000 last year and he felt this was no time to be adding to such a formidable sum.

Almost as his words were being read at the capitol, however, Harry L. Stevens, Legion commander, appeared at the White House and hanged the chief executive a program calling for more money.

Warning Upheld

Mr. Hoover's admonition for conservationism toward veterans relief was reinforced later in the day by the annual report of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the veterans administration.

Hines told congress it would have to dig deeper into the treasury wallet if it sent more veterans to government hospitals.

Commenting that it seemed the policy of the government to give hospital treatment to veterans, regardless of what caused the illness, Hines said if that attitude continued "the existing and authorized government facilities will have to be materially increased to meet future demands."

To Ask Regardless

Stevens was informed of the president's representations on expenditures for ex-service men.

"We intend to ask this anyway," the Legion commander said, pointing out the organization was not asking for government funds to take care of able-bodied veterans.

Included in the Legion program were requests for allowances for widows and orphans regardless of "service-connected death;" the reduction of interest on veterans' loans and provision for additional medical treatment for ex-soldiers.

Stevens also said the Legion advocated a prohibition referendum and wanted the navy built up to its maximum strength under the London naval treaty.

PRAYER MEETING TONIGHT

Program Meetings Of Four Study Clubs Are Of Interest In Lubbock

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

OF COURSE, you can never tell what will happen in this day and age, but somehow it hadn't occurred to me that we were going to have a bridge tournament sharing space on international news wires. And that we would be following our stories on Manchurian wars, taxes, presidential possibilities, marches of the unemployed and all the rest of these vital problems with a story about a quartet getting together up in New York to exchange "I bid's over a bridge table.

Yet, when you get right down to things that is pretty hopeful sign after all For, as long as nation has time for some play, things probably are'nt so bad as they might be. It takes some recreation to keep Jack from becoming a dull boy and it takes some recreation to keep a nation from growing stale.

For Mr. Lenz and the Culbertsons bridge playing is a business as serious as that of the world's big lawyers and manufacturers. It has long since passed the stage where it is purely recreational, but for a lot of these people over the nation who are watching this tournament, bridge is simply another pastime to help while away evenings and afternoons.

Actually, I have a hard time thinking that anyone who makes a game a life calling is as useful as the man who goes in for medicine, selling dry goods or peddling life insurance. But, I suppose, someone has to be an expert at bridge in order that the rest of us may have some way to learn to play. There probably are people who spend a lifetime on chess or checkers or such just as there are people whose business causes them to sit around the bridge table dealing cards.

That probably is an idea I acquired growing up out here with a bunch of cowpunchers who thought a man was a sissy if be bathed on Wednesday as well as Saturday night. And since we are having this tournament, which probably will go down in bridge history, we might get as well get a few pointers on whether to give the partner a raise or leave him to do the best he can. For those who take contract seriously, this event is as big as football to the Lubbock High school; or a lot of others, it is simply another interesting event—along in the class with Sino-Japanese troubles led by men with unpronounceable names or a new divorce in Hollywood.

USEFUL PRIZES

SPEAKING of bridge parties. The Plainsman's suggestion that useful prizes be offered is continually to grow in popularity. Four men, Mesdames Hub Jones, F. R. Smith, E. L. Klett and George Reed, who are planning auction and contract tournaments for Thursday and Friday to benefit the Camp Fire assure me that the prizes are not for while. Beauty parlors, tailoring establishments and such places have been enlisted and someone is going to have an opportunity to wash up for Sunday, according to the women.

FUN HAS A PLACE

PLAYING bridge, golf, drop the handkerchief and the rest of the things that contribute to our recreation isn't the terrible waste of time we are sometimes led to believe. Most people realize the benefit of play.

This week some of these visiting lady demonstration agents let me have lunch with them and were telling that their district agent, Miss Lucile Murray, urged them to seek recreation and pleasures, rather than to devote all of their time to their jobs.

Pleasure should be a part of every one's life. No one person can direct the entertainment of everyone else, I am sure, but everyone can recognize the value of these things. For one person, contract bridge is the right of recreation; to another it may simply some more thinking after a hard day at the office." One person likes these games where you move from room to room and tie handkerchiefs across each others doors for a hilarious game of pinning the donkey's tail to the roses of the wall paper. Others find recreation in gathering around a table and discuss this movement of modern art. Some people could dance all night and a part of the next day. Then to others that is simply some form of agony of letting other people step on their corns.

All of these things and a lot more may be under the general heading of fun or someone. Each one has its place in a world that has room for an unlimited number of activities. And that is one reason why we shall hear of the Culbertson-Lenz-Jacoby bridge tournament from week to week through the remainder of this month and have that story sharing the front columns with other battles and happenings.

The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and will last an hour and 20 minutes, according to the announcement.

Discovery Makes Possible

New Plan By Makers of Vicks VapoRub for

Better "Control-of-Colds"

Another advance in "Control-of-Colds" has been perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. A third of a century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern, external method of "treating" colds. Now, Vick Chemists introduce Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax" — in money, loss of time and health.

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds.":

1.—Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat —Nature's unmistakable warning that you are "catching cold" —use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.

If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking, over-heated, over-crowded rooms, etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled freely all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drop—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub).

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing", which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children — and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

The Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" has been tested—and proved. But the makers want all users of Vicks VapoRub to test it for themselves in their own homes. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops from your druggist today. Try the plan as directed. If results are not more than satisfactory, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

Attitudes On Message Vary

Congressional Leaders Comment On President Hoover's Annual Message; Watson Says It Is Very Strong

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—The long-awaited message President Hoover addressed to congress today evoked immediate and varied comment from numbers of the legislators.

Senator Watson, Republican leader, saw it as "remarkably strong."

At the same time Representative Laguardia, Republican, who often differs with his party, said "the president's heart seems to be in the right place but the punch is just not there."

Senator Watson said further:

"There is nothing that can arouse partisan rancor in a discussion of the measures proposed and it is to be hoped they will receive early and favorable consideration in order that the people may have the full benefit of their operations."

Senator McNary, the assistant Republican leader, said:

"It is a clear presentation of pending political and economic issues. It sets forth in strong language the attitude of the president."

"Increased taxes must necessarily be for a longer period than the two years recommended." Leguardia contended. "The reconstruction corporation contains the germ of a great plan. The president destroys its effectiveness by suggesting it should be liquidated in two years."

Opposition to broadening the base for federal reserve bank discount operations, as favored by the president, came again from Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia.

Money Is Sought For Needy Aliens

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 8. (AP)—An effort was being made here today to raise money to send about 250 Mexicans back to their homeland.

That group is a part of 700 Mexicans said to be in destitute circumstances as the result of the closing Nov. 23 of coal mines here where the Mexicans were working.

Rev. G. A. Walls, superintendent of the Mexican Presbyterian mission here, left Fort Worth for Bridgeport today to attend a conference of Red Cross and chamber of commerce officials. Miss Cora V. Shuman of St. Louis, Red Cross representative, arrived in Decatur last night and planned to attend the meeting with Mrs. M. W. Burch of Decatur, Wise county Red Cross chairman.

Mr. Walls said the Bridgeport chamber of commerce Saturday borrowed $100 for the relief of the needy Mexican families. But that the food supply purchased with that money was practically exhausted last night. The Mexican government has agreed to issue railroad passes to the refugees at the border, if they can show their Mexican citizenship.

University Professor Says He Is Not Guilty At Trial

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—Professor Elisha Kent Kane, the third, shouted "not guilty" when arraigned today on an indictment charging him with drowning his wife in Chesapeake Bay.

Standing erect and calm with a steady gaze at Deputy Clerk M. L. Gidding, the University of Tennessee professor's emphatically loud voice thundered through the silence of the courtroom, packed with spectators.

Kane's denial of guilt came after commonwealth's attorney Roland D. Cock began a preliminary statement that Jenny Kane was drowned in the waters of the bay at a spot owned by the United States government.

Professor Kane has contended his wife slipped from the rocks at the base of the lighthouse and was drowned before he could reach her.

Germany To Send 125 Men And Women To 1932 Olympic Game

Darrow Sounds Plea For Life Of Boy Sentenced To Die In Electric Chair

By CLARENCE DARROW

(His plea for the life of 17-year-old Russell McWilliams, who faces execution in Illinois on Dec. 11)

WE have had plenty of death penalties, but it has not stopped murder. It is not that alone, it is what a person thinks of when he commits an act of this kind. He does not reason it out. Ten thousand things enter into it. It is absurd to say that the only thing that keeps people from doing certain acts is because they are afraid of getting hanged or executed in any other way, or serve long sentences in jail.

There are hundreds of things that enter into it that cannot be overlooked.

In the first place, the court; the statute has been explicit, as it is all over the Uniter States, most of the United States creating juvenile courts and taking special care of children, separating them from grown people, treating them as wards of the state. That has grown so it has reached almost all the states in the union.

Now, in many instances they are not even sent to prison—when they could be sent to prison under other circumstances—on account of their age alone and being in the juvenile court they are not even sent to prison.

Is it possible that anybody who knows anything about life does not think age is a proper thing to consider in a sentence? I wonder if there is any one of you gentlemen who would not consider the age of a child if it were yours, or who cannot look back at his own life and recount many things he did and charge them to youth—some good, some bad, some this form and that.

Age is one of the chief factors that enters into the judgment of crime, one of the chief factors everywhere, and here is a boy only three or four days past 17 years of age and he is sentenced to death.

It is the first time that has ever happened in Illinois on a plea of guilty. The first time.

Are we going backward or forward? Will we take one 15 next or 14? True, younger boys have been sentenced to death; they used to sentence them to death in England at eight years of age, but gradually people grow wiser and more humane until no such thing happens now in any country with which I am familiar.

I suggest to this honorable body that there are also others to consider as a reason for putting a stain on a family in a case like this. Can anybody tell what the boy would have been in five years, in 10 years, in 15 years?

After we get to mature age perhaps we cannot change, but a boy changes every day and every minute.

I submit that it would be strange, with all the modifications in the criminal statutes in the last 100-odd years, with the creation of juvenile courts for juveniles, and paroles and all the rest, that now—for the first time in the state of Illinois—we should put to death a boy 17 years of age on a plea of guilty.

There is not anything more I can say or care to say.

HE WILL MISS HIM — When Russell McWilliams goes to the electric chair no one will miss him any more than his collie, "Man Dog," shown above. One of the boy's requests in jail was that he be permitted to see his faithful pet.

Jurors Are Selected Tuesday In Murder Trial Of Sam Day

TEXARKANA, Ark., Dec. 8. (AP)—Jurors were selected today for the murder trial of Sam Day, 20, accused of slaying Sheriff Walter Harris in Miller county July 28. The 50-year-old officer was shot to death while raiding a still.

Judge Deter Bush overruled a defense motion to quash the indictment. Defense attorneys indicated the wounding of Joe Watson, negro, by Sheriff Harris, just before the officer was shot from ambush, might play an important part in the trial. Watson and John Perkins, another negro, pleaded guilty to operating the still.

DUCHESS NAMED

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Miss Mary Etta Kleberg of Corpus Christi, daughter of Richard M. Kleberg, Texas' new congressman from the fourteenth district, was named by Governor R. S. Sterling today as Duchess of Texas at the Galveston Mardi Gras celebration.

Chapman And Mayhew To Renew "Beautiful Friendship" When Their Teams Meet Here Saturday For Important Game

(Special To The Avalanche)

ABILENE, Dec. 8.—Saturday's quarter-final game at Lubbock, so far as a hasty check-up here reveals, will be the first ever played between high school teams of Abilene and Lubbock.

It renews, however, an old coaching rivalry. Weldon Chapman, who had charge of athletics for years and years at Cisco, and who opposed Dewey Mayhew for four seasons, is now in command of the Westerners. So far the local pigskin professor has the edge, 3 to 1.

Started in 1927

This beautiful friendship began back in 1927 when the Eagles walloped the Cisco Loboes 27 to 0. It continued in 1928 as Abilene took the decision 19 to 13, one of several boosts toward a state championship. Then in 1929 a twice beaten Abilene eleven gave a final grand flourish that resulted in the downfall of the Chapmanites again, 10 to 7. The Mayhewmen were not equal to the occasion last autumn, however, and Chap started getting even to the score of 20 to 6.

Mr. Chapman may not have so many more chances to square accounts now that he is out of the Oil Belt, so he's likely to make the most of opportunity. The Westerners, having never before played the Eagles, may not have heard of this Abilene football reputation, anyhow.

Looking over the season record, you can get the notion the Westerners and the Eagles are a good deal alike. Lubbock has the biggest score total, but Lubbock has played more games. In fact, the string of figures to the 1931 record of the Westerners makes it appear they have played a couple of season in one. They have run up an aggregate of 482 to 37 for 14 games, as compared with Abilene's score of 306 to 40 in ten contests.

One of Abilene's games, however, was only a tussle for the non-letter men.

Abilene differs from Lubbock in being undefeated. The Eagles are one of the two clubs in the league with perfect records. Corsicana is the other, just as it was last week. The Westerners had their tumble before the Amarillo Sandies, a team that they beat a week later.

Lubbock on the whole has been a higher scoring team than the Elephants. The closing games with Amarillo and Pampa cut their average. Amarillo limited 'em to two points the first go-round, to seven the second, and Pampa also gave up only seven points in the second meeting. Abilene has yet to be held to just a touchdown, although only a touchdown, an extra point, and a field goal were scored in the early visit to Sweetwater. There was the two-touchdown game with Ranger. All of the others have seen the Eagles scoring three times or more.

The high mark of the season for both teams was struck by Abilene in downing Colorado 73 to 0. The Eagles, however, never again scored 50 points, while the Westerners won two victories of 71 to 0—one against Snyder and the other against Odessa.

Besides Burke and Diegel, other "front-runners" in the list of stars include Walter Hagen, Al Espinosa, Aubrey Boomer of England, Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y., professional golfers' association champion; Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen, George Von Elm, Craig Wood, Wiffy Cox, Harry Cooper, John Golden, Paul Runyan, and the Dutra brothers, Olin and Mortie. Observers rated each of this group as having an even chance at the $1,500 top money.

Three noted linksmen were absent for the start of the winter tournament season. Tom Armour, British open champion, and Bill Mehlhorn, filed entries but had not appeared today. Johnny Farrell, a former national open champion, decided to continue his honeymoon and left for Los Angeles, there to take boat to Honolulu.

One Hundred Fifty-Four Dogs In Polk County Hunting Race

CAMP REYNARD, Polk County, Texas, Dec. 8 (AP) — One hundred and fifty-four dogs hit the trail today in the all-age stakes of the 36th annual meeting of the Texas Fox and Wolf Hunters' association, all trying to lift the championship title from Carey Cochran's Slow Drag.

Slow Drag, a Walker hound, won last year, as an 18-months-old puppy.

Little game other than fox remains in the woods to district the hounds in the all-age competition. Yesterday, puppies in six races jumped three foxes, two deer and a boar hog. The razorback furnished one of the best races of the day.

Dalrymple, Under Hospital Care, Says He'll Get Ready

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8. (AP) — Lying on a hospital cot under a battery of x-ray machines, Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane's football captain today continued to insist a kidney injury suffered in the Washington State game Saturday would not keep him abed long.

He spent a good night, hospital attendants reported, but physicians withheld a final diagnosis pending the x-ray examination.

Dalrymple said he was "getting a swell rest" in the hospital, "and you can bet your bottom dollar I'll be in the Rose Bowl against Southern California."

Littlefield To Send Group Of Fans To Lubbock To See State Game Here Saturday

(By Staff Correspondent)

LITTLEFIELD, Dec. 8. — Littlefield football fans are all "het up" over the prospects of seeing the scrap Saturday afternoon in Lubbock between high school football teams of Lubbock and Abilene to determine which one will go downstate to the semi-finals.

Just as soon as R. E. McCaskill and several other fans learned Monday that the game was to be played in Lubbock, the job of getting up a party to drive to the Hub City was set in motion. In half an hour more than 20 tickets were guaranteed.

"I think that there will be at least 30 to 40 football fans from Littlefield going down to Lubbock," Mr. McCaskill said. "I have asked that our Texas Utility man in Lubbock get us the tickets. I am ordering about 20 to 25. There will be a number of others go from here.

"We have never failed to send down a bunch from Littlefield to the games at Lubbock. There has not been a special train out of Lubbock this year that didn't have a good bunch from this city on it. We saw the Pampa and Amarillo games. We were right there rooting for Lubbock."

Among those who have ordered tickets for Saturday's game are: R. E. McCaskill, Charles Glenn, Harold Cook, H. W. Wiseman, Joe W. Hale, Pat Boone, Art Chesher, L. C. Grissom, J. S. Hilliard, Jack Johnson and D. G. Hobbs.

Owing to the fact that the game comes on Saturday a number of business men who usually follow the gridiron sport will not be able to make the trip, Mr. McCaskill said.

Negotiations Under Way For S. M. U.-Tennessee Grid Battle

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Joe Utay, promoter of the annual Dixie football classic for the Texas Scottish Rite Masonic hospital for crippled children, said today negotiations were under way for a New Year's game between Tennessee of the Southern Conference and Southern Methodist of the Southwest Conference.

Utay was confident that Southern Methodist will accept his invitation if Tennessee agrees to play the game.

Old Minnesota Shift Is Good Yet At Tulane

Loyola Coach Recalls Words Of Former Minnesota Coach In Which Request Was Made For Return Of Bernie

BY CLARK D. SHAUGHNESSY
Coach Loyola Of The South
(Written for The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8. (AP)—That old "Minnesota shift," the pride and joy of Henry "Doc" Williams in the Gophers' heydey, is being brought back to its old home attired in modern garb and attuned to the swift pace of 1932 football.

It goes back with Bernie Bierman, who returns to Minnesota as a sort of prodigal son, even though the cheers and acclaim of his playing days still ring in his ears. Bernie goes back to take up where "Doc" Williams left off and put Minnesota back on the crest of the wave it rode in the early decades of this twentieth century.

I remember vividly the old doctor on his deathbed in a Minneapolis hospital last winter. With Dr. L. J. Cook, business manager, and E. R. Pierce, alumni secretary at Minnesota, I went to see him and we talked two hours on football. It was then that he told me:

"Minnesota should get Bernie Bierman and put him in charge of football. Until they do, they will never win a championship."

Minnesota lost faith in "Doc" Williams' football some years ago—although he had led the Gophers to their greatest triumphs. Since that Bill Spaulding and Clarence Spears and Fritz Crisler have tried their hands at the assignment with varying success. Now Minnesota has gratified the doctor's dying wish by bringing Bernie Bierman back home.

And Tulane Carries On

Bierman's Tulane teams have not lost a football game in the south since mid-October, 1928. They have been co-champions of the Southern Conference two years, and this season have won an undisputed right to the Southern, and maybe, the national crown. Yet, I do not think that Tulane University, New Orleans, or the south fully appreciated the work he did until his departure was imminent.

Old Shift Changed

Minnesota may not recognize the old "shift" that Bernie Bierman will re-introduce next year. Its appearance is as far removed from Dr. Williams' as the feminine clothes of today are from those of the hobble-skirt era. Yet basically it is the same. It has been the key to Tulane's success on the football field since I came south in 1915, and it will continue to be so. Tex Cox, another Minnesota man, and Lester Lautenschlaeger, former Tulane quarterback, who now coach the Green Wave, are well grounded in its workings.

Every Minnesota man throughout the land will welcome the return of "Doc" Williams' favorite. I do not think they could have found a finer or more loyal man than Bernie Bierman.

Comanche And Snyder To Meet In Class B Contest

COMANCHE, Dec. 8. (AP)—Comanche and Snyder high school football teams, bi-district Class B winners, will meet here Friday for the championship of four West Texas Districts. Both teams came through last week in bi-district tilts, Snyder defeating Stanton decisively and Comanche winning on points from Albany in a scoreless draw, officials deciding the game on first downs.

The Hack, "Peck's Bad Boy" Of Major League Ball, Gets In Training Early

(By The Associated Press)

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 8.—Hack Wilson, "Peck's Bad Boy" of baseball, is taking himself more seriously.

Friends of the Burly Chicago Cubs' outfielder revealed today that Wilson, a native of Martinsburg, now has but a single thought in mind—to get himself in the proverbial pink. Wilson is keeping his own counsel as to the purpose of his changed manner of living but associates are convinced he is trying to live down his reputation as a "trouble maker."

Soon after Wilson returned home from Chicago last summer, he started indulging in intensive outdoor calisthenics. Hunting rabbits, squirrel and deer and refereeing football games has occupied his attention. This winter he plans to play and manage an independent basketball team.

Since coming back to Martinsburg Wilson has kept close to the family hearth.

Wilson never confided in his friends the reason for his failure to maintain his hitting stride last season nor did he give an indication of what the future has in store for him. They see in his actions, however, signs that he has forsaken his indulgences which worked against his professional interests, and is trying to get in condition for any eventuality.

The Cubs management has indicated Wilson will not wear a Bear uniform this coming season.

When Worksop opened its annual fair it did so for the first time in centuries without the official proclamation being read, the crier failing to appear.

Nobody Is In Need Of Hack, Eddie

Cubs And Indians Have Hard Time Finding Homes For Two Popular Sluggers For 1932

They'll Talk Averill But They Don't Want Hack Wilson Nor Ed. Morgan; American Loop To Curtail Radio Broadcast

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Two of the best known hitters under baseball's big top, Eddie Morgan of the Cleveland Indians and Hack Wilson of the Cubs, handcuffed the major league trade winds today.

It appeared the two players were pivotal points in virtually every outstanding deal and that none of the clubs in the two major leagues, here for their annual winter meeting and market days, wanted them. The Cubs were trying to use Wilson, their fallen home run king, in deals with Boston, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and St. Louis without success. While the Indians offered Morgan, a great batter but a mediocre fielding first baseman, without a definite nibble.

No, Not Averill

Everytime the Indians mentioned Morgan, a club owner or manager with whom they dealt would ask for Earl Averill, star Indian outfielder, but each time General Manager Bill Evans would toss up his hands and answer: "not a chance for Averill."

Ralph Kress, star St. Louis Brown outfielder, definitely was on the trading block and Washington, Chicago and New York were after him ever since it was revealed the Browns had failed to make a deal with the Indians.

The Cubs offered Wilson and a large bundle of William Wrigley, jr.'s, gold to the St. Louis Cardinals for outfielders George Watkins and Ernie Orsatti, but the trade fell flat as far as was known.

Yanks In Tough Spot

New York's Yankees were confronted with the sudden necessity of sending another player to St. Paul of the American association today in the transaction that gave them Jack Saltzgaver, star St. Paul second baseman. The Yankees sent Pitcher Roy Sherid to the Saints as part of the deal, but Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has ruled Sherid ineligible for violations of rules and the Yankees have to send another player in his place.

Harris Signs Contract

The 1931 managerial lineup for the major leagues was completed when Stanley "Bucky" Harris signed a one year contract to pilot the Detroit Tigers for the fourth season. It was revealed Harris was approached for the Pittsburgh managership which George Gibson took over last week.

Radio Attacked

Club owners of the American League held a long discussion on the radio problem and adopted a resolution by which no American League club can contract for radio rights after the 1932 season when a meeting will be held to decide definitely on the question.

The American League also voted to oppose "artificial double-headers" whereby clubs agree to move games up for double header purposes. The movement to obtain sanction for intra-league exhibition games during training was voted down.

Frank J. Navin, Detroit, was re-elected vice president of the American League while owners of the Chicago, Cleveland and Boston clubs were elected to the board of directors.

National League owners also voted local option on the radio problem but refused to approve the American League proposal to stop unnecessary doubleheaders.

University Of Georgia Party Arrives At Scene Of Big Tilt

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 8. (AP)—A party of 105, including 36 University of Georgia football players and Coach Harry Mehre, arrived here today in preparation for their game Saturday with the University of Southern California Saturday at Los Angeles.

Despite a drizzling rani Mehre put his Bulldogs through a sharp scrimmage. Although Vernon Smith, all-American end, was not in the practice, Mehre said he probably would play Saturday.

Charles Moran, Former Aggie Coach Believes In Limiting Gridiron Squad

ATLANTA, Dec. 8. (AP)—Charles Moran, whose 1921 Centre college team became famous through its defeat of Harvard, says all college football squads should be limited to 30 players.

Moran, who was a baseball umpire, football official and gridiron coach at Bucknell, Centre, and Texas A. & M., now is coaching at Catawba college, a small North Carolina institution.

"There is only one way for the game to be equalized" he says, "and that is by limiting the number of players."

"After the first game a coach should be ordered by the faculty to turn in a list of 25, certainly not more than 30 players, as his year's squad.

"No coach with 70 players can do justice to the institution in the role he is hired to fill. Football players need individual instruction and it must be given to them personally.

"A 70-man varsity cannot be as smart as a squad of 25 picked players."

PAROLES GRANTED

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Governor R. S. Sterling today granted general paroles to seven inmates of the Texas penitentiary.

Pie For Texas Congressmen

WITH West Texas' own John Garner safely installed as speaker of the national House of Representatives, Texas veterans in Congress are going to get generous slices of political pie they have been earning for many years.

Advices from Washington indicate that Marvin Jones, representing this vast district, will be chairman of the house agricultural committee and if the report is true—as we suspect it is—Southern farmers, as well as Texas farmers, are due for more consideration than they have had from official Washington in many a moon.

Congressman Jones has been in Congress going on 15 years now and, realizing that his constituency is made up largely of agriculturists, has been a deep student of that branch of service. For several years he has been the ranking Democrat on the committee and from that position he has been able to learn more and more, as the years have rolled on, concerning that deep problem of government and economics.

The Morning Avalanche has always been a staunch supporter of Congressman Jones for the very logical reason that he has been a good Congressman; that he has kept faith with the people and because he has been able to do as much as it is humanly possible for a minority party man, hailing from a new country, could do.

We sincerely hope that advance information from the nation's capital is correct as far as Texas Congressmen and their future positions is concerned. We sincerely hope Congressman Jones will receive the coveted post as chairman of the house committee on agriculture.

There is no Congressman more worthy of the honor; there is no Congressman who can do a better job.

And, on top of that, we have sectional pride enough to hope Mr. Jones receives the appointment, believing that he'll help our farmers are much as they can be helped while serving at the post.

MR. GREEN TELLS 'EM

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, placed his organization in line for more commendation Monday when he refused to confer with so-called "hunger marchers" upon the grounds that they represented communism.

The straight-spoken labor chieftan brooked no words in the few remarks he made to the delegation which filed into his Washington offices after parading the streets, singing the communist song, the "Internationale." In the language of West Texas, he told them "how the cow ate the cabbage" and abruptly dismissed the malcontents.

In acting as he did, President Green forcibly continued the policy of the American Federation of Labor in stubbornly opposing any alliance or collusion with Red forces. He brought home once more the fact that America's organized labor continues to stand as a bulwark against any offensive which may be planned in Moscow.

THE CHRISTMAS PAGEANT

There are fourteen more shopping days between now and Christmas but there are only two days separating Lubbock and the South Plains from the greatest Yuletide celebration in the history of this country.

On Friday morning, at 11 o'clock, the nationally famous Santa Claus Parade and Pageant of Christmas will get under way before more people than have ever before thronged Lubbock's downtown streets. It will be a big day for the kiddies—a big day for their elders. And the feature, itself, is of undeniable educational value.

Lubbock is the smallest city ever visited by this mammoth Christmas feature, which annually visits such cities as New York, Chicago, New Orleans, Dallas, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Kansas City and Milwaukee. The opportunity of seeing the Christmas parade is a great one.

Lubbock and South Plains parents will be robbing their children of a wonderful sight if they do not see that the kiddies have an opportunity to enjoy the event.

Educators say it is the equivalent of a week of ordinary school classes.

"This is small world economically, and getting smaller," says a Wall Street editor. It's got so when a banker sneezes, another 12,000 miles away cries "Gesundheit!"

Practical Health Problems

HOW TO AVOID ANTHRAX

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE anthrax bacillus was one of the first germs discovered by Pasteur. It is found in hair, hides, fresh excretions of infected human beings and animals. It usually gets into the body from contact of a wound or scratch with some of the material containing the organism, from inhaling the spores of the organism, from eating insufficiently cooked or infected meat, and possibly sometimes by transmission from some infected animal to man by the medium of the fly or the mosquito. Seven days after the germs get into the body the symptoms appear.

The disease is manifest in the form of boils that contain the organism. These open and discharge and the material from the discharge may infect other people. Epidemics have occurred in the United States due to hair from infected shaving brushes imported from Japan. They have also occurred in tanneries where infected hides have not been properly controlled.

BECAUSE of the great danger of the condition, public health officials have worked out a series of measures for the control of the disease. Animals that are infected should be immediately isolated and kept away from other animals. Animals that die of anthrax should be promptly burned without attempting to remove the skin or otherwise opening the body.

In the plants where hides are handled, every employe with any boil, pimple or bruise on the skin should immediately report to the physician for examination.

In order to prevent the spread of this disease to people outside factories or tanneries where hides are handled, it is recommended that all waste water or sewage from such factories be thoroughly disinfected before permitted outside the plant. Because of the possibility that anthrax germs may directly infect the air, it is recommended that tanneries and woollen mills be provided with proper ventilating apparatus. Finally the sale of hides from all animals infected with anthrax should be prohibited.

Probe Of Plan Threatened

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

Capitol

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — The well-known system of raising money for charity by voluntary subscriptions, secured through the medium of key individuals who are in a position to make their displeasure left in a fashion the average worker cannot afford to disregard, if volunteers are reluctant or niggardly, has just suffered a severe shock in Washington.

That is to say, an attempt was made to apply it to Uncle Sam's employees, whereupon Senator James Couzens of Michigan announced that, if so, there will be a congressional investigation.

Of course, the senator explains, he approves of charity (though regretful that so much of it is necessary this winter) and has nothing but words of commendation for those by whom it is volunteered; he wishes merely to be assured that it really is voluntary.

IN THE CASE of some persons on the federal payroll undoubtedly it is.

President Hoover, as an illustration, has stated that, to set an example for government workers generally, he himself will donate one day's remuneration to the capital's Community Chest for the months each of January, February and March, a total of $616.41.

Senator Couzens agrees that this gift, beyond question, is voluntary.

He is not so certain as to quite all the rest.

Indeed, what elicited his investigatorial threat was complaint which has reached him, from sources nearer the foot of the official ladder, that $616.41 puts nothing like so serious a crimp into Mr. Hoover's $75,000 per annum (not to mention that he is a rich man besides) as $15.41 puts into a departmental clerk's $1,875, even though the proportions are the same.

IT IS TRUE, if a departmental clerk on a $1,875 salary (and plenty of them manage to get along on that, without any additional private income, either) can see his way clear to contributing a day's pay in January, another in February and a third in March to the Washington Community Chest, the Michigan senator does not dispute his right to contribute it.

His attention was attracted, however, by a published remark of Engineer J. B. Gordon of the District of Columbia (prominently identified with Community Chest activities) to the effect that any one failing to make his voluntary contribution at the prescribed rate hereafter will be a "marked man."

Civil Service Commissioner Thomas E. Campbell, who originally hit on the three-day voluntary contribution idea, expresses surprise, to be sure, that Senator Couzens should interpret this casual observation by Engineer Gordon as implying any thought of coercion, since the intrinsic beauty of the whole concept lies in its absolutely voluntary character. Nevertheless, the senator wants an investigation.

IN GIVING credit to Commissioner Campbell for devising the three-day plan, perhaps it is fair to recognize that the initial suggestion of affording the rank and file of the government's humbler employes an opportunity to join the higher-bracketed fraternity in relief of unemployment distress came from Chairman Walter S. Gifford on President Hoover's committee on the winter's emergency.

Chairman Gifford's recommendation, had it proved possible to adopt it literally, would have enabled the government workers, indeed, to contribute even more liberally than the three-day program contemplates—unless Senator Couzens' interference drives it on the rocks.

Commissioner Campbell's scheme, after all, is limited to a mere bagatelle of a day's pay monthly for three months.

Chairman Gifford proposed that the workers be given a chance to make a genuinely worth-while sacrifice. He urged that each worker (the small fry, naturally; not those in the upper brackets) surrender his job at least one, and preferably two, days weekly to an otherwise unemployed alternate until times improve.

THAT THE workers themselves did not take at all enthusiastically to this notion would not necessarily have been a fatal objection to it (means probably could have been found to persuade them to acquiesce in it voluntarily) but Comptroller General J. R. McCarl took exception to it, pointing out that it was against the law.

It had other drawbacks also—was described by one critic, in fact, as "impractical and asinine," which was no way to refer to an idea hatched by the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Suffice it to say that Comptroller McCarl was right; it was against the law.

Commissioner Campbell then came forward with his substitute and now Senator Couzens is threatening to knock that into a cocked hat.

This not only is bad for the system of blackjacking government employes into voluntary subscribing more than they can afford to charity; it may tend to make folk who are not in the government service balky, too.

Can it be that the earlier American hoodlum, like Jesse James, still seems romantic because he affected buckskin lingerie, instead of glove silk?

"Wonder what people got divorces for, before bridge was invented," muses an Eastern commentator. Did they?

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE 120-YEAR-OLD DEPUTY:

Jacob le Patriarche was a native of Alsace, born in 1670. He was elected to the National Assembly of France in 1789, when he was 120 years of age. When he entered the Assembly at the Menage des Tuilleries to take his seat between Barnard and Le Chapellier, the whole House rose to do him honor. He took a vigorous part in the deliberations leading to the expiration of land vested in the Church, and in that matter repeatedly clashed with Bishop Talleyrand de Autun.

In the list of members Jacob appears as "Orfevre" (gold smith). He died in 1791.

KELLY RAN 200 YARDS FOR A TOUCHDOWN:

In the Texas A. and M.-Louisiana State game of 1907, at Baton Rouge, La., Kelly, the Texas quarterback, called his own signal to carry the ball when he was on his own 45-yard line near the sideline. He started around the short end, found it blocked, then twisted and dodged his way across the field, was tackled and ran back across the field, then back again, and after a fourth time across the field he spied the opportunity to run lengthwise for a touchdown—200 yards in all.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARY HARKNESS undertakes to trap THE FLY, who she believes "framed" her brother, EDDIE, with the murder of MRS. JUPITER, and later ran Eddie down and killed him to keep him from telling. As bait she plans to use the famous Jupiter necklace of rubies, which the murderer failed to get.

She is aided by BOWEN of the Star. Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTHER, and his family stop the official investigation, objecting to the notoriety. They believe Eddie guilty.

BRUCE JUPITER, absent many years, returns from Europe with a woman friend. His father orders him out and makes Mary his heir. Bruce swears to rout Mary, who he thinks is a gold digger. Mary and Dirk quarrel because Dirk is jealous of Bowen and refuses to believe in the existence of The Fly. Dirk goes about again with his former sweetheart, CORNELIA TABOR, who is trying to win him back.

Mary prepares to sail with MR. JUPITER to Miami on his yacht the "Gypsy," believing The Fly will be at Hialeah to see his horse, the favorite, win.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

Mary was convinced beyond any doubt that the Count Enrique De Loma whom Ethel was infatuated with was The Fly. And Cornelia Tabor had barely missed having him in her house as a week-end guest!

It was frightful, and it was laughable. But most of all it opened up a new view of The Fly and his methods. So that was his game—tricking silly society girls with the old, old title racket! Whether his name was really De Loma did not matter; probably it was an alias. If so, it was a new one, for Bowen had searched police files for a record of a man by that name and found nothing. Also—and this gave her renewed heart for the chase—it was probably the name he would continue to use.

She dared not tell Dirk what she was thinking. He would think her utterly mad, looking for The Fly and finding him in every stranger who crossed her path. But there were some questions she simply had to ask.

"Did you see him at all—De Loma?"

"No."

"He didn't give Ethel his picture or anything?"

"No." Then he added pettishly, "What do you care, anyhow? Not going to fall for him, too, are you?"

She looked reproof at him. But the thoughtful pucker did not leave her brow.

"When did he call up and tell her he wasn't coming?"

"I don't think he did," Dirk answered after a moment's consideration "I think she said he failed to show up and when she called his usual hangout they told her about his father dying and his having to go home to look after the estate." He looked at her. "You think he just ran out on her? Maybe he did. But Lord, I'd go to South America myself to get away from that young catamount. No matter how many millions her dad's got."

"Did De Loma know that? About the millions, I mean?"

"Probably. I said he wasn't out to marry money." Dirk roused himself suddenly, crushed out his cigaret and put his arms around her. "But why are we talking about them, sweetheart?" he said gently. "Why are we talking at all?"

Why, indeed, Mary thought happily after several blissful, speechless minutes. This was what she had been longing for, for days. How had she ever lived through them alone? She sighed deeply. Well, that was all over now—Then she remembered, Tomorrow she was going away! Her heart cried out against separation from Dirk again.

She clutched him tightly. "Come along with us," she begged. "I can't bear to go unless you do!"

Dirk stroked her hair gently. "You really want me?"

Her eyes answered him.

"Better still," he suggested, "don't go. Stay here."

"Every thing's ready. I've got to go. Besides, I've just learned some things that may be of great value. There's too much at stake, now, Dirk," she turned toward him suddenly, an agony of pleading in her face. "Dirk, don't you believe in what I'm trying to do at all?"

It was very still in the room, which was lighted only by dim wall brackets and the flicker of a small wood-fire.

"I believe in you," Dirk said, presently. Mary's searching eyes saw his face contorted with the effort to speak fairly and plainly. "That is, when I'm with you. When I'm away from you, I get—wild ideas. Other people say things, and it—hurts. I shouldn't listen, I know. But I do. Because it's you." His hand gripped hers until her benumbered fingers ached with the pain. You mean so much to me that the least

"But, sweetheart—rents are lots cheaper now, and the price of foodstuffs is way down."

Joint Meeting Of Clubs Is To Be Held On December 22

A joint meeting of all Lubbock civic clubs will be held at the Hilton hotel Tuesday, Dec. 22, at which time Federal Judge William M. Atwell will speak, President E. L. Pitts of the Lions club said Tuesday at the Lions luncheon at Hotel Hilton.

Dean James M. Gordon discussed international goodwill before the club. "Down through the ages, history has shown us that might makes right," said Dean Gordon, "until the coming of that one great man who began to teach us other things. And today the attitude has changed and will continue to change as long as the schools, churches and the press show the horrors of war in history."

Dean Gordon explained neighborliness with people of other countries and nations of other lands was the most important factor in international peace. The Rev. J. O. Haymes was program chairman.

MAN ARRESTED

ALPINE, Dec. 8. (AP)—The Texas company office and warehouse was burglarized last night of supplies and equipment valued at several hundred dollars. Officers arrested a man at Marathon. Part of the stolen goods and a kit of burglar's tools were found in the man's car.

Also Phillips 66 Ethyl — at the regular price of Ethyl gasoline

YOU'RE in luck if you have been using Phillips 66... the greater gasoline, because cold weather brings you a tremendously important extra benefit—INSTANT STARTING.

Other drivers may be stalled by balky motors. May run down their batteries and run up towing charges. But your car will click into action pronto! when you press the starter.

That's what high test does. And the famous Phillips principle of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY insures that the colder the weather, the higher the test. All without a penny extra, since Phillips is the world's largest refiner of natural high gravity gasoline.

The easy way to make certain of carefree starting all winter long is to get gas only at the Orange and Black 66 shield.

reath—the least suspicion—" He opped and held his lower lip with is teeth like a man in physical ain.

Mary was appalled. "What do they y?" she whispered.

"Oh, nothing that's true—at least it is. I don't believe you realize it. think you're perfectly innocent bout it. That the Jupiter money as turned your head—that you're eing nice to the old man just for hat you can get out of him. God, they knew about that will what jabber there'd be! And of course hat newspaper story about you last eek was just about the last straw coming right out with the intima- on that you'd had the rotten bad aste to choose that horrible neck- ce . . . "

Mary was silent, stunned.

"There's nothing I can say," she altered, as Dirk seemed to be wait- ng for some comment.

"My idea was," he went on, "for ou to give out a statement—just a lines, no more—denying it in a nified way. It's too late to stop lot of fools from gaping over it, ut it's the best you can do—now he harm's done. You'd have to say, f course, what it was you did hoose—a ring or a pin or what- ver it was, just for the sake of sen- iment. It would help to quash this old-digging notion about you that verybody seems to have—"

Mary said "I coludn't do that, Dirk. I did choose the necklace."

Dirk said "Oh, Mary." It was al- most a groan.

"It was bad taste but I need it. have to have it. When The Fly's een caught with it, it can go to the ottom of the sea for all I care. Why you make so much of it, hough, is beyond me . . ."

"You're going to wear it, in pub- ic, where people can see?" He said t as if he were asking whether she meant to go out naked. "Later, per- haps—but not now, surely."

"Now, if necessary. Whatever I must." She felt as if she must burst into uncontrollable laughter. "Dirk", he said, "this is the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of. It's such a little thing to cause such a big rumpus. And what's wrong with the Jupiter money? Don't you want me to have it?"

He was almost insane with jeal- ous anger she saw when he turned his distorted face toward her. "I daresay it's small of me," he said sarcastically, "but I don't! How do I know what that old fool thinks he's buying when he turns his en- tire fortune over to you? How do I know his son isn't right when he tells Masterson, the critic, that he's too busy to have an exhibit now—he's got to rout his father's mistress? How do I know the old reprobate didnt shoot his own wife to get rid of her? He stopped the police inves- tigation, didn't he? And why did he do that? Because it threatened you, or himself? I don't know. I wish to God I did!

"That wild kid brother of yours and his threats when Jupiter re- fused him money make a handy peg to hang the murder on. Maybe he really did it. Maybe he only knew who did it! Eddie was killed purposely, perhaps, by someone who wanted to shut him up. You want me to think some mysterious gun- man was responsible for it, for the first murder and Eddie's, too. And you wonder why I don't fall in with your fantastic tale! Lorimor car killed Eddie; a Lorimor car car- ried the murderer to and away from the house, after Mrs. Jupiter was killed. Whose Lorimor car? Why not Jupiter's?"

"Jupiter's?" Mary asked, stupidly.

"His, yes! You didn't know he owned a Lorimor car, did you? Well, he does."

"Oh, Dirk," Mary wrung her hands, "how can you say such things of a sweet old man like that! You don't know him! Why, he's never said or done a single thing—"

"I don't know him," Dirk grunt- ed, "and neither do you. How long has his wife been dead? Two months. Well, he knows better than to make a pass at you so soon. He knows the sort of girl you are, that a false move would repel you."

Mary smiled, but there was no humor in the smile.

"Then you don't believe I'm as bad as Bruce and other people say I am?"

Dirk glowered mutinously. He gathered her roughly into his arms, held her cramped and breathless as if he would never let her go."

"Come on away with me," he beg- ged, "out of this house. Damn it, it hurts me every time I come here to see you. It's ugly, for all the money that went into it. Maybe be- cause of the money that went into it. And its ugliness has come off on you. You're going to be smeared with it and I can't get you away . . . . I can't make you see."

He was breathing hoarsely, al- most crying.

"But what about Bowen? He could not be in the plot, even if the rest were true. And it isn't . . . it's too preposterous!"

"Bowen's just a cheap sensation- monger, as I've always tried to tell you," Dirk remarked, irritably.

There it was again. Mary stirred restlessly in his arms. Pullyng away from him, she sank to the couch, put her forehead in her hands.

"I've got to think," she said. "I'll tell you later what I decide to do."

Dirk shrugged.

"Does your father believe all this you've been telling me? If he thinks Mr. Jupiter murdered his wife, why does he remain his lawyer? His friend?"

"I don't know what Dad believes. He wouldn't desert Jupiter if he murdered a township, though. Jupi- ter Motor Car stock is about all we've got that survived the crash, you know. We owe him gratitude for that. Besides, Dad's his lawyer, remember. He wouldn't turn against him any more than a doctor runs away when his client falls ill."

"Besides," he went on miserably, "what men do isn't important—to men. It's what women do, that— hurts."

"And I've hurt you," Mary mur- mured, sadly. "And there's more to come."

"You think you'll go, then?"

"I have to go," she told him dog- gedly. "I can't quite believe— I've got to find out the truth for my- self!"

Dirk stood up with an air of final- ity. He looked very white and stern.

"If you go—" he said in a fright- ening voice, "if you go, I'll know that you—I'll know—"

He choked and stopped. What- ever it was he would know Mary was not to learn, for with a twitch- ing face he turned and bolted from the room.

Petty Thievery On Increase At Lockney, Officers State

LOCKNEY, Dec. 8. (Special.) — Petty thievery is on the increase in Lockney, according to reports made to local officers.

Threats are being heard of armed opposition to any attempts to steal. One man is said to have purchased a shot gun and cartridges after his home was visited and several items taken.

Noah Smalley reported an at- tempt made to steal his car while he was attending a party at the home of A. L. Rains, in West Lock- ney. Failing to get the car started, the thief made away with Mr. Smalley's overcoat.

Recently in the same neighbor- hood a man was observed peeping into windows of homes. Officers were notified but he made his get- away before they arrived.

Numerous reports of cars being opened and articles taken while the owners were attending church ser- vices, meetings or social events.

Mail Service Rearranged As Denver Schedule Is Changed

LOCKNEY, Dec. 8. (Special.) — The recent change in the Fort Worth and Denver train from a morning to an evening passenger service has caused a rearrangement of mail ser- vice here.

Mail from Lockney that is placed in the postoffice before 6:30 p. m., for Fort Worth and Dallas, will reach those towns early the fol- lowing morning. The mail is sent to Lubbock on the P. W. D. C. and transferred there to the Santa Fe that leaves there at 10 p. m.

D. E. Cox, local Santa Fe agent, is trying to arrange for the morn- ing train from Plainview to leave there immediately after the arrival of the morning passenger train from Lubbock and Sweetwater, or about 9:20 a. m. This change would get mail here before 10 o'clock and per- mit rural routes to leave here soon after that. At present rural routes leave Lockney postoffice at 9 a. m.

Eight-year-old Mary Marchalt of Alcombe, England, has been pre- sented a gold watch for saving her baby sister from being run over by a motorcycle.

Cotton — Cotton Market Rules Quieter; Livestock — Limited Supply Has Good Sales; Grain — Fair Demand Is Being Continued

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8. (AP)—The final government report of the season was the main feature in today's cotton market, which was quieter than usual on such days. The government's final estimate of the crop was 14,912,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight which was about 300,000 bales smaller than had been looked for.

The market, which had declined 4 to 8 points in the early trading prior to the release of the report, advanced 14 points after the report was received, but later eased off 5 to 7 points from the top owing to weakness in stocks and uncertainty as to what congress might do in the way of legislation affecting trade.

The market experienced decided weakness in late trading. All months made new lows 17 to 19 points under the highs with Jan. at 5.97, March at 6.18 and May at 6.34. The close was at the bottom showing net declines for the day of 18 to 19 points on the three most active months.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—After holding fairly steady during early trading and advancing slightly on smaller government crop figures than expected, cotton weakened today.

Today, after selling up to 6.16 or 13 points net higher, broke to 5.97 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 2 to 6 points.

December sold up to 6.10 and May to 6.36, making net advances of about 13 to 13 points on the active positions. Demand tapered off and selling increased later, when sentiment was evidently influenced by the action of the stock and wheat markets. December broke to 5.91 and May to 6.34 in late trading, and the close was at the lowest prices of the day.

Hoover Policies

be outlined in detail tomorrow by Secretary Mellon, the higher levies would remain effective only two years. Arguing the need of more revenue, the message disclosed the treasury expects to be more than $4,400,000,000 behind when the next fiscal year closes.

Among other measures proposed for revivifying confidence were subscription of more money to federal land banks, use of federal reserve assets to thaw assets frozen in failed banks, institution of a home-loan bank system and broadening of the base for federal reserve discounting.

Asks Appropriation

The president asked rejection of proposals to extend federal payments to veterans, and at the same time said $200,000,000 should be appropriated immediately for the veterans bureau to continue loans on service certificates. The house appropriations committee will go ahead to provide the money without delay.

All federal expenditures have to be kept down, Mr. Hoover said. He emphasized that if the limits defined by him for taxes, appropriations or federal borrowing should be exceeded, it would react tragically on confidence, jeopardize the financial system and "actually extend unemployment and demoralize agriculture rather than relieve it."

He objected strongly to any form of federal dole.

The specific recommendations opposed any general revision of the tariff, and favored adjustments in the anti-trust laws and federal regulation of interstate power transmission.

Rotten Eggs Are In Demand; Big Supply Is Being Sought

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 8 (AP)—Rotten eggs, the rottener the better, are in demand in Milwaukee.

An industrial concern, planning to produce "tanners egg yolk," a finish for patent and other glazed leather, offers to buy a major part of Wisconsin's supply of bad eggs. "The worse the eggs are, the better. If rotten, they're good," the firm's manager said.

Austria will increase its taxes.

Stock Market Is Heavier Tuesday As President Issues Congress Message

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—The stock market was heavy today, closing more than 3 points lower on the average at a level about equal to the previous bottom of the post-October reaction.

Except for a rally led by the rails in the first half hour, the market was heavy all day. It reached its lowest point after the presidential message had been distributed, slipping rather sharply as renewed selling hit railroad equities, several of which made new lows. Bonds were irregular, but many rail liens strengthened in response to the interest commerce commission's rate decision.

Unfavorable action on several rail dividends exerted a depressing influence. New Haven, Colorado and Southern, Boston and Maine, Texas and Pacific, and Missouri Pacific were the systems added to the dividend casualty list.

proudly of his ranch and his plans for the prospective bride and then drove off with her the next day.

Both sought to avoid the cold stare of the man whose fate their words might be deciding, but when they were required to identify Powers, Mrs. Flemming looked him in the eye for a full minute before speaking, then said:

Identifies Powers

"That—is—the—man."

Around Mrs. Flemming, as she sat on the stand, were bundles of her sister's possessions which she identified with occasional sobs. They were coats, dresses, shoes, a camera, an umbrella, photographs and checks.

The first witness exhibited a rotted piece of belting shaped like a noose, which had been knotted around the divorcee's neck. As it was held up almost directly over Powers' head, he glanced at it with unconcern—then suddenly twitched and looked the other way.

He had regained his composure by the time the next exhibit was brought out—the canvas straps with which Mrs. Lemke had been bound.

Col. Zack Miller Is Sued By Wife Whom He Divorced

NEWKIRK, Okla., Dec. 8. (AP)—Col. Zack Miller of the 101 ranch was sued for divorce today by Mrs. Margaret Blevins-Miller.

The suit followed her action yesterday in asking a writ of habeas corpus to obtain custody of her two children. The petition alleged Miller obtained a divorce in Louisiana in June, 1930, but Mrs. Miller contends the decree, which awarded Miller custody of the children, was void on grounds he was not a resident of Louisiana.

Bay rum exported from the Virgin Islands in 1930 totaled 108,182 gallons.

out that school taxes had been cut from 92 cents to 86 cents, he said he gave the loyalty council credit for the fine showing in tax collections.

C. E. Maedgen, president of the chamber of commerce and board of city development, explained his organization's efforts to cut expenditures in tune with the times. Although between 40 and 45 thousands of dollars are made available to the BCD each year, the 1932 budget has been set at under the $20,000 mark, he said. He showed curtailment of expenditures over the past two years at approximately $20,000.

BCD Ready To Aid

"The BCD," President Maedgen said, "stands ready to do anything and everything that needs to be done for the benefit of Lubbock."

County finances were discussed by County Judge E. L. Pitts, who explained that the county tax rate of 73 cents had been held at its last year's figure in spite of the issuance of $300,000 in regularly voted bonds; the erection of a jail costing more than $100,000 and the fact that county and city authorities are this year caring for charity through use of public funds.

Asks Suggestions

He closed his remarks thanking the loyalty council for its approval of the city-county charity plan and urged that membership of the organization aid in the project by making suggestions on its operation.

Mayor J. J. Clements stressed the city's side of the governmental problem, listed savings in various departments, consolidating of departments, decrease in personnel and a 10 per cent salary cut. He foresees, he said, even additional improvement in the city's financial condition at the close of the fiscal year next March.

O. L. Slaton, dean of South Plains bankers, commented upon community morale and urged support of Lubbock manufacturing concerns as well as of other institutions. He was followed by Spencer Wells, who explained outline of procedure for the council in coming months. The membership at large is to be asked for suggestions along this line in a letter to be mailed the early part of next week.

Secretary Chas. A. Guy then read the pledge card and cards were then passed to new members for signature.

The meeting adjourned shortly before 10 o'clock.

BOBBITT NAMED

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Robert Lee Bobbitt, former attorney general, was appointed today by Governor R. S. Sterling to succeed Congressmen Richard M. Kleberg of Corpus Christi as a member of the board of directors of the College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville.

Wheat, No. 1 ordinary hard milling 58 1-2@59 1-2; No. 2 hard 12 per cent protein 59@61; 14 per cent 66@68; 15 per cent 68@69; 16 per cent 72@73.

Corn, No. 2 mixed 43 1-2@44 1-2; No. 2 white 44 1-2@45 1-2; No. 2 yellow 44 1-2@45 1-2.

Sorghums, No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. 70@71; No. 2 kaffir 70@71.

Basis delivered Texas group three: oats, No. 2 red 26@27.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 8. (AP)—Jolted by an onslaught of selling after President Hoover's message to congress had been issued, wheat values underwent a decided setback late today. Execution of stop loss orders accompanied the downward sweep of wheat. A big part of the wheat selling was ascribed to houses with Wall street connections, and went hand in hand with weakness of securities, as well as with news of moisture relief in drouth regions of domestic winter wheat territory southwest.

Wheat closed nervous at almost the day's bottom, 3-8 to 2 1-8 cents under yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 3-8 down, oats a shade to 3-8 off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

ser and others. At Cobleland the Lubbockites met J. I. Hewlett; and R. H. McCasland at White Face. Supt. J. J. Phillips of Morton approved the pageant, it was said. A proposal to dismiss Lehman school will be made by Supt. Lewis Owens. Bledsoe school board also will consider school dismissal, said Supt. R. D. Flesher.

Interest Growing

R. C. Smith, L. H. Beall and J. H. Brock visited Plains, Seminole, Seagraves, Brownfield, Meadow and Ropesville and Tatum and Lovington, N. M., Tuesday carrying the same message.

Interest in the pageant is growing steadily as time of the big event draws nearer.

Hearts are beating faster, excitement is becoming contagious and happiness permeates the air as the time of the arrival of Santa Claus with his unusual objects, beautiful features and merry makers from the Top O' The World draws near.

Local participants and organizations that are to take part in the parade are all set and ready to go. Stores are prepared for the largest crowd of visitors and shoppers in their history. City officials are making every preparation to handle the crowds and the police department will be in readiness to meet every contingency which might arise.

Miniature Floats

Besides the miniature float of Mother Goose, there will be two other tiny floats and all will be drawn by twelve Shetland ponies, four to each float.

It must be remembered that these are not Mardi Gras floats but are what might be classed as miniature reproductions.

The Old Woman Who Lived In a Shoe will toss kisses to the crowds as she rides in her shoe like a queen on a throne.

Then there will be the other little float representing Cinderella.

For those who have forgotten the story of Cinderella we will recall that she had two haughty and selfish step-sisters who made her do all the work about the house and would never take her to any of the parties and dances in the city near where they lived.

One time there was to be a grand ball at the castle. The step-sisters went to the affair, leaving Cinderella at home. She had no pretty dresses and was compelled to wear the cast-off clothing of her step-sisters.

After the step-sisters had departed for the dance Cinderella wept bitterly for she was so very sad and forlorn. Presently there appeared before her a fairy god mother who said she would wave her magical beautiful gown and glass slippers wand and grace Cinderella with a beautiful gown and glass slippers, and send her to the royal dance in a golden carriage. But she exacted the promise from Cinderella that she must not remain at the dance after the hour of midnight.

Broken Promise Causes Trouble

Cinderella arrived at the Castle in grand splendor and during the dance attracted the attention of the prince who fell in love with her. Cinderella became so consumed in the grandeur of things that twelve o'clock arrived and she forgot the promise she had made. Immediately at the striking of the hour her beautiful clothing turned to rags and in despair she fled from the castle. In her excitement she did not notice that she had lost one of her slippers.

The prince found the slipper which she had lost and sent messengers throughout the land to find the foot it would fit. Eventually one of the messengers arrived at Cinderella's home and the mean stepsisters tried to make the slipper fit them. At last Cinderella asked permission to try on the slipper and to the surprise of everyone it was found to fit exactly.

In Santa's parade we will see the magical float with the Royal Prince at the feet of Cinderella.

Costumed banner bearers will precede each feature of the parade with standards announcing the subject. These pages will be local girls who have been selected by Santa Claus' advance manager to assist in making the program a complete success.

Black-Haired Dolores Del Rio Now Considers Director As Her Enemy

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8. (AP)—The black-haired Dolores Del Rio, who came from Mexico to Hollywood to reach stardom in pictures directed by Edwin Carewe, film producer and director, now considers Carewe as her "worst enemy."

Her black eyes flashing, Miss Del Rio revealed the enmity which exists between herself and Carewe when she took the witness stand yesterday to deny she owes Gunther R. Lessing, local attorney, $31,000 in fees.

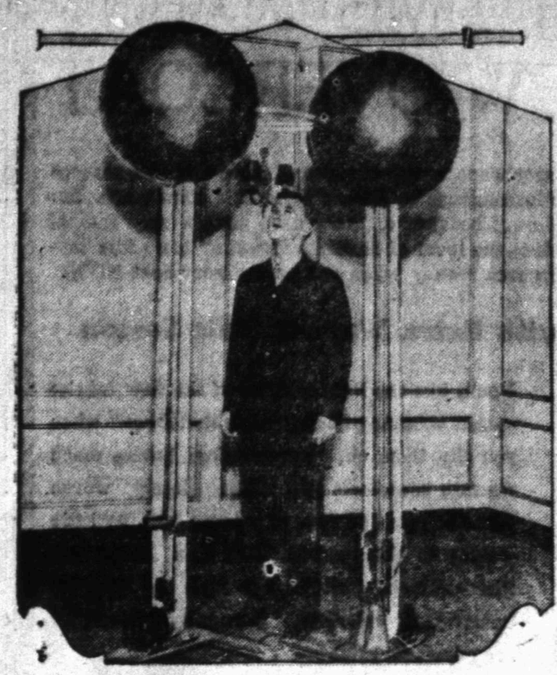

"Ewdin Carewe—my worst enemy," the actress told the court, "was being represented by Mr. Lessing at the same time he was representing me."

She said she discharged Lessing when she found he also was representing Carewe in negotiations with United Artists studios on a contract for Miss Del Rio's services which had been held by Carewe.

"Mr. Carewe and I weren't even talking then," the actress testified. "I have never heard of an attorney going to represent one's greatest enemy."

Miss Del Rio did not reveal the cause of the ill feeling between her and the director.

Harnessing The Atom

The elusive atom, which scientists have been trailing for many years, has been harnessed by Dr. Robert J. Van De Graaf, young American scientist, in such a way that he is able to produce 1,500,000 volts of electrical energy by splitting the tiny particles. The machine, which Dr. Van De Graaf is shown demonstrating at the New York Athletic Club, is believed to have opened up an unlimited field in electricty, although it cost only $90 to build.

Sixty-Three Books Are Donated For Use Of Prisoners In County Prison

Sixty-three books, ranging from Knibbs' "Sundown Slim" to Dumas' "Man in the Iron Mask," were ready to be taken to the new county jail for the use of prisoners, Miss Rutillia Eubanks, county librarian, said.

Cleaned and repaired as much as possible by the librarian, the books were those withdrawn from general circulation because of missing or damaged pages, bindings so badly broken renovation would be impractical, and dirty pages and covers.

The sheriff's department said the books would be available to prisoners, Miss Eubank reported. If the books had not been sent to the jail, they would have gone in the wastebasket, she said. As the books wear out others will be added to the group in the jail.

More Books Will Be Sought For C.-C. Library At Ralls

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 8.—Just as soon as the boys of the vocational agriculture class of all High school complete a set of book shelves for the chamber of commerce, A. V. Bullock, secretary, plans to start a drive for more books for his circulating library.

At present he has about 150 to 200 volumes in the library. He does not have enough shelf space, he said.

"J. H. Taylor and his boys have agreed to build some shelves for the east side of this office room," Mr. Bullock said. "When they get it done I am going after more books. We do not have enough books in the library now and we could use a whole lot more. I have had a promise of a large number."

The library has been in operation since early spring. It is well patronized.

Feeding Project Being Conducted By Head Of Bank

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 8.—One of the largest hog feeding projects in Crosby county is being conducted near here by W. E. McLaughlin, president of the Security State Bank and Trust company and a widely known farmer and feeder.

He has 20 pure bred Hampshire brood sows and five grade animals. These now have more than 100 pigs that are being fed a ration of ground wheat and barley, mixed.

"I have the pens so arranged that the sows cannot get to the feed where the little ones feed," he explained." I grind the wheat and barley for the shoats and put it in troughs, separate from the troughs for the grown hogs. The fence between is fixed so that the large animals cannot get through, while the little ones can.

"So far this arrangement has worked fine. All of the pigs are doing well and are gaining. I think that I will have them ready for market early in the spring."

Mr. McLaughlin did not sell much of his wheat crop this year, believing that it would pay him better prices to feed it out into livestock. He harvested nearly 20,000 bushels and bought several thousand more. He also has some barley.

A large barn was built for feeding purposes and also for storing of wheat. This is fitted out to take care of a large number of pigs and hogs.

Accused Of Spying

Student leaders said President Crane, during an intermission of a college dance last Friday, visited several parked motor cars in which co-eds and their escorts were sitting, opened the car doors and reprimanded the occupants for their conduct.

Pickets patrolled the campus most of the day but did not use force to prevent class attendance. Orderly mass meetings were held. After he had been jeered when he attempted to address a student gathering, Dr. Crane issued a public statement in which he warned "strikers" of the grave responsibility they had taken upon themselves.

Tariff War Is Believed Near

One Newspaper Predicts That Great Britain Is On Verge Of Struggle; Unions Being Talked In Europe

LONDON, Dec. 8. (AP)—At least one newspaper predicted today that Great Britain is "on the verge of a tariff war."

There were rumors, too, of a plan of a Franco-Belgian economic union, similar to the now abandoned Austro-German customs pact, as the British parliament considered the question of a 100 per cent duty on vegetables and fruits as part of the new tariff program.

Conservative supporters of the national government pressed their demands for high protection rates in the face of a prospect of reprisals by continental Europe, including France, Germany, Belgium, Holland Scandinavia, Spain and Portugal.

The French have protested most vigorously. Foreign Minister Paul Hymans came post-haste from Brussels for a conversation with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and others. M. Hymans, was said to have a plan for a Franco-Belgian economic union.

Spain entered the area for the first time yesterday. Perez De Ayala, her ambassador in London, interviewed the British minister of agriculture.

In the meantime, Prime Minister MacDonald was believed by some high protectionist conservatives to have stolen a march in the maneuvering. Although the conservatives vigorously pressed for separate debates on tariffs in the house of commons, apart from the general discussion on a formal vote of censure of the government, the prime minister promised the debate, but only as a censure proposal, claiming lack of time.

The conservatives said they wished a separate debate unassociated with a vote of censure against their own chiefs who are members of the government.

Bridge Battle

Thursday night the players will be on their 60th hand of the 150-rubber match. Only one hand has been passed out. Only one slam has been contracted. Lenz made it at the second session. It was a little slam.

Each Gets Bonus

Two rubbers of the second session involved a 700 bonus for leaving the opponents without a game in the rubber and each side got such a bonus.

Culbertson made the following comment on the second session:

"Our game continued to be purely defensive with occasional counter attacks. We are still retreating after the second session with our worthy enemies. We feel reasonably certain it will not be a retreat from Moscow."

Said Lenz:

"I think that Mr. Jacoby and I demonstrated the value of knowing when to make strategic sacrifice bids. For proof I am certain we would never have reached the slam bid contract in the eighth rubber without having been willing to spot our adversaries as many hundred points as was needed to bring about a turn in the cards. That they did turn is history. I consider that the high point of the night's plays."

IT'S HIGH TIME TO BUY YOUR NEW OVERCOAT

Overcoats are garments that men choose with the idea of more than one seasons wear. For this reason it's advantageous to choose them at a time when the price level is in your favor. Hart Schaffner & Marx have done a very radical thing this season—"prices back to the level of fifteen years ago" is no idle saying. Its something that means real money when you choose your coat NOW.

Lighter Weights with Extra Warmth This Season

You'll like the light weights of the new fabrics—that absence of being "weighted down" when you slip them on. Never before has so much warmth been built into these closely woven Camels Hair and Tweed weaves with so little weight as this season. Rich fine colors are there—Blacks and Greys as well as natural Camel Hair colorings. Especially interesting are garments priced—

Fair enough! That's all Chesterfield wants. That's all Chesterfield could ask for and does ask for—a trial.

"Promises fill no sack." After all, it's what you get out of a smoke that counts. And what you get out of Chesterfield, or anything else for that matter, depends on what goes in.
