VETERANS BUREAU HEAD VISITS KERRVILLE

Unheralded and unannounced Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the United States Veterans Bureau, arrived at U. S. Veterans Hospital No. 93 Wednesday morning for the purpose of inspecting same with a view of the purchase of the hospital by the United States Government.

The General arrived from San Antonio by auto. It was announced from San Antonio Wednesday morning that he would arive at Legion on the noon train, but Hines is not bound by conventions, so he elected to come by auto. He was accompanied by E. S. Sandemeyer of the Regimental office in San Antonio and Col. I. V. Smith, Veterans Bureau Inspector, of New Orleans.

General Hines arrived in San Antonio from El Paso at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning and after breakfast the party came up here. Few people in San Antonio knew of his arrival in the Alamo City, as he did not even have time to visit the Regimental Office before he came to Kerrville.

Immediately on his arrival at the hospital General Hines began looking over the plant, and before his return to San Antonio late in the afternoon he had inspected every part of the huge hospital. It was no formal inspection he was making, as he looked into practically every room in all the buildings, and was not the least particular whether he gained entrance by the front door or the back of the different buildings.

Frequently on the inspection trip the party stopped while General Hines talked freely with some patient or member of the personnel. He gained a knowledge of the general conditions in the hospital in the few hours he was here that is comprehensive in its scope, as it covers practically every phase and condition of the service.

An idea of the democracy of the man can be gained from the fact that he slipped into the main dining hall and ate noon-day lunch with the patients, despite the fact that preparations had been made for him to dine with the personnel.

Following the noon meal, General Hines made a short talk to the patients of the hospital, talking freely to them of matters that affect their welfare. The only comment made in this talk relative to the purchase of the hospital by the Government was as follows:

"There is a project on foot for the Government to purchase this institution. If this project is closed, I can readily see that several improvements will have to be made here for the betterment of the service to you men." Referring particularly to the lack of a recreation hall, as the meeting he was then addressing was held in the open air, the General said: "I don't blame you fellows; I wouldn't get out and sit in the hot sun myself."

General Hines left Washington two weeks ago on a tour of Veterans Bureau Hospitals and is scheduled to return to the National Capitol by next Monday, if possible.—Mountain Sun

Mrs. Alva Fisher was taken to Mason last week-end and on Monday of this week underwent an operation for appendicitis and information available Wednesday was to the effect that she was improving nicely. Mrs. J. A. Browning, her mother, is with her.

Miss Clara Fritz spent a few days first of the week with Mrs. Joe Watson.

MISS FANNIE DUPEY DIES

Miss Fannie Dupey died at the Dupey Ranch home on Kyak Creek Monday and was buried in the Oakwood Cemetery at Austin, where all other members of her family are buried, Tuesday afternoon. Rev. J. J. Ray of Mason conducted the services.

Deceased was born at New Castle, Ky., Dec. 18, 1841, and with other relatives came to Texas in 1872, settling at Texana in Jackson County.

About 15 years ago she came to make her home with Major and Mrs. Dupey, and after the Major's death continued to live with her sister-in-law, Mrs. F. H. Dupey. Although totally blind she was active in body and mind and took much interest in the work of the Christian Church of which she was a member.

The body was accompanied to Austin by Mesdames F. H. Dupey, Hyde Felps ans Messrs. J. J. Ray, C. W. Atchison and Fred Coleman.

She is survived by her sister-in-law, Mrs. F. H. Dupey of Junction, Mesdames Chivers, Joffroin, and Miss Flora Dupey all nieces of Houston, and a sister-in-law at Houston and one at De Ridder, La., as well as a nephew, Edwin Dupey, and a niece, Mrs. Bulah of De Ridder, La.

What counts in a man or in a nation is not what the man or the nation can do, but what he or it actually does. Scholarship that consists in mere learning, but finds no expression in production, just as ability to shoot well at clay pigeons, may be of interest and value to him, but it ranks no higher unless it finds expression in achievement. From the standpoint of the nation, and from the broader standpoint of mankind, scholarship is of worth chiefly when it is productive, when the scholar not merely receives or acquires but gives.—Theodore Roosevelt.

MAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF ON BEAR CREEK RANCH TUESDAY

A horible tragedy occured at the James Russell ranch house five miles west of Cleo Tuesday night about ten o'clock when Louie Blackburn, San Angelo automobile salesman, killed his wife, fired at Mrs. James Russell and then shot himself, according to Sheriff Dee Gibbs who with Deputy Will Emsley had been called to the ranch earlier in the evening when trouble had been anticipated, occasioned by the man's visit to the Russell ranch where his wife, from whom he had been separated several weeks, was staying.

According to Mr. Gibbs, the man had telephoned that he was coming, was met by Mr. Russell and after going to the house, gave a 380 Colt's automatic, which he was carrying, to Mr. Russell and stated that he was not there to cause any trouble, and those present, among whom were some relatives and neighbors, thought no trouble would follow.

After a conversation with those present and just as the man was preparing to leave, the two men in the room and two or three ladies stepped outside, leaving Mrs. Russell, the dead man's wife and two or three children in the room, the man drew another gun, a 380 Remington and, it is stated, while extending his right hand to say goodbye, shot his wife twice thru the right breast, shot twice at Mrs. Russell, then turned the gun on himself, the bullet entering the head just above the left temple.

Mrs. Blackburn died almost instantly, but the man lived for about an hour and a half, or a few minutes after Justice of the Peace Howell Wright had reached the ranch in response to a phone call after the shooting occured.

Mrs. Felix Harrison and son of Del Rio were visiting relatives here this week, stopping over while enroute to Kerrville where her son will enter Sshreiner Institute.

MONEY LOST IN RIVER RISE, FOUND

A. G. Stewart and wife of Cleo were in town Wednesday and in talking with the Eagle reporter stated that during the big rise in Bear Creek in April 1923, when the Gentry house was washed away, a fruit jar containing $14.48 was lost with the house, and that on the 9th of this month the money and jar were found near the Stewart Spring on the Ft. McKavitt road by Mrs. Stewart and was in fair condition.

The jar had lodged in a drift and chickens in scratching for food in this drift had uncovered it.

They recalled the loss of the money by the Gentry family and returned it to its owner.

SEPTEMBER 17th IS CONSTITUTION DAY

July 4th is a date known to every school child. September 17th is another date of almost equal importance, but few people realize that it is anything different from the other 365 days. How many remember that it is the anniversary of the signing of the constitution of the United States? The makers of the American constitution had from some source a wisdom that seemed like divine guidance. With consummate insight into human nature they put together a system that has worked without any vital change for 138 years. The purpose of the observance of Constitution week is to counteract the growing disrespect for the law and the increase of crime. If there is to be respect for law it is necessary that the citizens should be informed in regard to the law—and the best point to begin the study is at its fountain head, the constitution of the United States.—Exchange.

Rev. J. J. Ray, Christian minister of Mason, will conduct the regular monthly services of the Christian Church at the C. W. Atchison home Sunday, Sept. 27th. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A. A. G. B. A. BUILDING IS NEARING COMPLETION

The new office building for the American Angora Goat Breeders Association, on Austin street, is nearing completion, in fact the carpenters who are now putting in the doors and windows hope to get the building completed this week. It was to have been completed by September first but that was not quite accomplished.

J. D. Braley is the contractor, and the local citizens and ranchmen are providing the building for the association, and the ossociation will have an office to be proud of. It is fireproof, and about as solid as if the two rooms had been hewn out of a granite bouider.

It is supposed that Mr. C. E. DeGroff, secretary of the association, will be moving up from Sabinal right away.—Edwards County Leader.

P. T. A. NOTES

Friday afternoon the P. T. A. held a called meeting at the high school building with an unusually large number attending. The President reported several improvements made as ordered, including book racks in the study hall.

It was decided to have a public health nurse visit the school and examine the children, especially for teeth, nose and throat troubles, as soon as it can be arranged.

To encourage attendance at the regular monthly meetings, and to arouse the interest of the children, it was decided to give a picture each month to grade having the largest number of parents present.

In order to increase the number of books in the our school library, it was decided to ask for a contribution of used books suitable for the purpose. Any one having books they are willing to give may leave them with Mrs. A. W. Loeffler at the Hardware Co., with Miss Tottie Martin at the State Bank, with Mrs. H. G. Perry at the Eagle Office or with one of the teachers. It is hoped that every one leaving books with any of these will leave his or her name so that the name of the giver may be written in the book.

A membership campaign was begun with Mrs. Roy Blackburn leading one side, which chose white as their color, and Mrs. Riley Felps leading the other, with gold as their color. The losing side will be expected to entertain the winners Friday evening, Oct. 2, at the high school building.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be Monday afternoon, Sept. 28. A full attendance is urged.

SIXTY BORN A MINUTE

From the beginning of recorded events folks have been humbugging folks. But it took Phineas Taylor Barnum to discover why. Barnum declared that most people liked to be fooled. And Barnum made several fortunes fooling people and got a great laugh after it besides.

So patent is the public eagerness to be fooled that commonwealths have stringent laws against it. But they can't pass laws that the fooler can't get around or under or over or through.

There's a new wrinkle—the soul photographer. He is an itinerant person who appears at your front door, glib and well dressed. You tell him you already have a photograph, thank you. He asks to see it. then he smiles indulgently. He tells you it is very good, but that his are different. He photographs the soul. He persuades you to let him take a picture of your soul, with the understanding that if it is not the finest likeness you ever had you don't have to pay him for it.

And when he brings the finished photos around you do pay for them, because you feel sort of morally obligated. And besides you don't like a row. And he does very good work, too—about as good as the local photographer. The only difference is he makes you pay twice as much for it. He makes you pay for the others who don't feel morally obligated to accept his photos and who don't object to a scrap.

But it doesn't take new wrinkles to fool people. Most are still coming around with that old one: "I want to make you a present of a beautiful hand-painted enlargement of a photograph just to get our work into the hands of a few prominent people.

Then after he gets possession of some cherished photograph and returns with a hideous enlargement of it, he won't deliver you either photograph or enlargement unless you pay the "actual expense" of enlargement. And that "actual expense" is a plenty.

And then there is the chap who calls around and wants to give you a set of books and you find you have to buy a magazine. Or he wants to give you a magazine and you find you have to buy a set of books.

And there is the fellow who cautiously displays a wallet of glittering jewelry. There's an air of mystery about him. The stuff has evidently been stolen or has been smuggled in; that is why it is so cheap. But the real reason it is so cheap is that he buys it at the local five and ten-cent store.

And along comes the wight with the rolling gait and a nautical twang and a hitch in his trousers who sides in and furtively unrolls a piece of cloth—just enough to make a suit—genuine irish cloth that he smuggled over from England Grant staff. You buy it. And then he goes down to a local dry goods store and buys another piece—just enough to make a suit.

And there is the man with the rug cleaning compound. He comes in with a chatty smile. And, just to show you what his stuff will do, he cleans a spot about as big as a dish pan in the middle of your drawing room rug and offers to do it all over like that for $5.00. And you have to let him do it all over like that or else cover up the clean spot.

If one really likes to be fooled, then it is all right for one to deal with people who are trooping around the country from town to town and from door to door and who have no idea of responsibility. But if one wants to get one's money's worth, then it is a mighty good plan to trade with somebody that one knows something about and whom one can fall back on.—Wickes Wambolt in Denton Record Chronicle.

BIG WITHDRAWALS FROM RESERVE BANKS

Austin, Texas, Sept. 19.—Big withdrawals are now being made by the State Treasurer from banks acting as reserve depositories over the State, due to the fact that several of the departments are making heavy demands upon the Treasurer. However, no funds are being drawn out of banks acting as State depositories. A $2 apportionment to the school fund amounting to $2,670,000 now is being sent out. This is the first time in years that a $2 apportionment has been made to the schools during any September.

Also, the Highway Department has recently made heavy demands upon the Treasurer. Nearly $5,000,000 has been paid out of the fund since July 1, 1925, and a total of $22,675,000 has been paid to the highway by him since Jan. 15, 1925. The balance now in this fund, after deducting outstanding warrants, is shown to be slightly more than $500,000.

The balances in the general revenue fund are not affected by these heavy withdrawals and there is now in that fund the sum of $1,344,320.

It is believed that the general fund may escape a deficiency this year, though it is not absolutely certain.

UP TO HOME MERCHANT

Franklin was besieged with a horde of catalogs from the mail order houses Monday. It was necessary to make two trips by motor to transport the quantity from the station to the postoffice and from the train it looked like here was enough catalogs to place one in each and every home in the Franklin section. These mail order houses know it pays to advertise and this explains why they get so much business from this section that rightfully belongs to the home merchant. There is only one way to combat the mail order evil, and that is for the merchants to band together in a determined drive to keep the business at home. This requires that each merchant keep a good stock of goods, sell them at a reasonable price and above all advertise. The successful merchant, regardless of his location, is the advertising merchant.—Franklin Texan.

will ALWAYS give Most Miles per Dollar

No matter where crude rubber prices may go—Firestone advantages in securing raw material, in manufacturing and distribution are always active to make good the pledge of Most Miles per Dollar.

Racing drivers—hill-climbing and endurance record holders—taxicab, motor truck and bus operators—and hundreds of thousands of car owners—are daily emphasizing the unheard-of mileage and service delivered by Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords.

Gum-Dipping is one of the biggest factors in tire performance and long mileage, making Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords the most economical tires ever offered motorists.

The cord from the fabric mills is first delivered to a separate plant where it is treated in a solution of gum, which insulates every fiber of every cord. This protects against internal friction and heat, giving the sidewalls greater flexibility and additional strength.

Prove Firestone's many superiorities for yourself. If you have never had the safety, comfort and economy of these serviceable, long-mileage tires—go to the nearest Firestone Dealer—for Firestone only builds Gum-Dipped Cords.

STICK TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

West Texas (Del Rio) News: Coming as highly recommended as he does, Mr. Ewing, the new manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will doubtless accamplish much to set Del Rio prominently forward if——

Yes, if——the business people of Del Rio will resolve to "Push forward" instead of "Pulling back." No matter how capable a man is Mr. Ewing, he is only "one" man, and as this is not a "one-man's-town" no matter how efficient he may be, he can not do team work alone.

There are many ways to help him "Push," and one of them is the very essential one of every business man and nearby ranchman to join the Chamber of Commerce and pay in monthly dues to the amount that each individual feels able to contribute.

Like every other machine, the Chamber of Commerce needs lubrication to function properly. There isn't a day that this C. of C. machine is not working, reaching out after something beneficial to our city and section. Daily it is imparting information about advantages of our section. It is the information bureau of our city and a thousand and one ways it gives a prestige to our city that nothing else could.

The Chamber of Commerce is the mouthpiece of our city and section and a word from it carries more weight; more reliance put on it than a dozen from each of a dozen individuals speaking independently, and we do not think we put it too strongly when we say it is the sanctuary of the city's integrity.

To function properly the Chamber of Commerce must be accessible to all, hence it must have a domicile and somebody in that domicile or office, and to is entails expense, it must be equipped to function, it must meet current expenses, it must impart information through correspondence and through informative literature, and perform an hundred other duties, all tending to benefit every individual in this section. To enumerate that which the Chamber of Commrce has already done for this city and section would consume more space than the limit of this article permits. How much more it can and will do, is not dependent on the will to do by the Board of Directors and the Manager, Mr. Ewing, but upon the moral and financial support it receives from all those who are imbued with the spirit that aspires to progress and to the attainment of prosperity, which is essential to happiness, peace and prosperity.

We fear there are those in our city and section who think the Chamber of Commerce a superfluity, something we can do without. But these people have never considered that the institution is not a mere aggregation of individuals but a force, a power stronger, ten times stronger than ten times the number of its individual members acting independently, being, as we said above, the sanctuary of the section's integrity. When it welcomes a new enterprise, when it gives out information, when it does anything, its words or its acts are taken at face value, with never a doubt or suspicion. Can the objectors to the Chamber of Commerce command even a fragment of such confidence?

There are again those who hold back to share in the prosperity or other benefits accruing from the work of the Chamber of Commerce, this is just like swiping a stick of striped barber pole candy from a little child and just as honorable. These people are like the slacker who in the World War hid out while his neighbor went nobly forward to shed his blood to purchase for them liberty, safety and peace.

The Chamber of Commerce is an active element in the community and one which is working for the benefit of all and to deny it the proper moral and financial aid according to one's ability is to weaken that element, and to a great extent pushing against the very organization that is pushing forward to attain benefits so desirable and eagerly sought after by every one who appreciates health happiness, prosperity and everything conducive to our welfare.

PRACTICAL HINTS ON AUTO LAWS

What persons are subject to the headlight law and under what circumstances? This is one of the first questions to be considered by the motorist.

Every person, firm, partnership, corporation, association or other concern that shall operate or cause to be operated upon any public highway at night-time any vehicle, motorcycle, tractor, trailer, semi-trailer or bicycle is subject to the law.

Under the terms of the law "night-time" shall mean one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise; "public highways" shall include any roads, street, way, thoroughfare or bridge in this State not privately owned or controlled, for the use of vehicles, over which the State has legislative jurisdiction under its police power.

Of course, if you have a truck, tractor or any motor vehicle that is operated only during the day-time you will not be subject to the law; however should you operate it at any time between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise upon any public highway you will be subject to arrest for failure to comply with the law.

Every bicycle operated during the night must have a lighted lamp or a reflex mirror attached to the front and rear in such a manner as to be visible.

Every automobile must be equipped with approved headlamp devices and the proper focusing, adjusting and tilting of the headlights must be made and tested at a county test station.

If your car or motor vehicle comes under the terms of the law you must have a test certificate from the county test station before the Tax Collector will register your car.—Roy C. Coffee, Legislative Committee, Dallas Automobile Club.

MEMBER TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Menard Messenger of last week under the new management of L. C. Warren, formerly of Bertram, was an exceptionally fine issue of the paper. This is the third week under the new management and we note many new advertisers, several among the largest business concerns in the town, whose advertising we have not seen in the Messenger for many months. This is evidence that the business men of this little city will co-operate fully with a man who has his heart set on giving them a clean, and high class newspaper. We understand that Mr. Warren made a remarkable success of a newspaper in the small town of Bertram, he is highly recommended by those who know him, and the Eagle predicts that, in the larger field, he will accomplish much for himself and for the people of Menard.

The Eagle Editor and wife spent last week driving thru South Texas and saw some wonderful country and some not so desirable. By keeping the Ford going from about seven in the morning until eight to ten at night we were able to cover about 1200 miles and passed thru more than 100 towns. At a later date we may write a few observations but space does not permit this week. We might state however that for a town of its size we failed to find anything that would compare favorably with Junction. Kimble County has many resources that if developed with the same amount of advertising and work that is being shown in many sections we visited, would be a paradise. We visited about 35 printing plants. We found nothing under towns of four to five thousand that compared with the Eagle plant in building and equipment. After visiting so many plants where hand setting was still done and where printing was done on country Campbells or similar presses, we could not but feel more appreciative of the patronage accorded this paper, which makes its up to date facilities possible.

We understand the Ananias Club of Menard has decided to disband since John Munsell sold the newspaper there and is preparing to move to a field more in line with his "dark ages" manner of living and dealing with his fellow men. His last attempt to answer our query as to why he lied to the public thru a booklet he issued, by inserting copyrighted pictures without permission taken by J. E. Grinstead on the Gaudelupe River and labeling them "Beauty Spots on the San Saba" was a fine example of the Christian spirit that he claims to observe. He follows the spirit of the song "He goes to Church on Sunday, etc., but on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, etc., he is robbing everybody that he can." In his final episode, he admitted that he had lied, in that he dodged the point in question and went off into a long tirade of abuse which shows the trend of his mind. Evidently Munsell saw the handwriting on the wall and decided the good people of Menard did not countenance his conduct and that he had better sell while selling was good. There are still a few places in the country which are at such a low ebb morally and socially that would make a fertile field for Munsell and we hope he finds one of them.

J. Savage took a bale of cotton to Junction Wednesday.

Several cattle deals have gone thru the past week.

Mr. Savage and Mrs. Moran sold to Bob Ragland a bunch of stock cattle.

Ira Fleming left this week for Milwaukee, Wis., where he will attend school.

TUBES
Leak Proof

Every Goodyear Tube gets an under water stretch before it leaves the factory.

The Tube is inflated, placed in a tank of water, then stretched mechanically to a point far in excess of what it will actually get in the severest of wear.

This test exaggerates and reveals any possible pores. The slightest leakage means rejection. That's why Goodyear Tubes deliver such universal satisfaction.

Goodyears don't cost any more than ordinary tires.

Aurora Borealis

Scientists have not reached a definite conclusion as to the cause of the aurora borealis. There seems to be no doubt that it is the result of electrical discharges through the upper regions of the atmosphere. It is known to be associated in some way with the magnetism of the earth, and the occurrence of sunspots has been thought to have some connection with its appearance.

The young lady across the way says she notices in the newspapers where Germany is now preparing to enter the League, but she doesn't understand why Germany could be so foolish as to attempt to get up a team this late, with the season practically ended.

Another reason why we never buy anything from peddlers or order takers is because we often wonder what would happen if all the merchants of Clarksville would close their stores and start out with a little handbag of samples. Who would pay the taxes to maintain the schools and employ officers to guard the homes.

THINGS UNUSUAL

By T. T. MAXEY

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE YERKES OBSERVATORY

To avoid the fine and numerous particles of dust and smoke which naturally hover in the air over a big city and cut down the effectiveness of the observations, the jarring—even though minute—which upsets the calculations of the observers, and the disturbing reflections from the night illumination, powerful telescopes are usually stationed at points where these conditions do not have to be reckoned with.

Accordingly, the great Yerkes observatory (connected with the University of Chicago)—one of the greatest of all the astronomical laboratories on earth, is perched upon the crest of a bluff above beautiful Lake Geneva, near the town of Williams Bay, Wis.—about seventy miles northwest of Chicago.

In the largest of the three domes which surmount the observatory is mounted the world's largest refracting telescope. It is also the busiest telescope, being in use both day and night the year round, weather conditions permitting.

In the center of this dome, which is 75-feet in diameter on the inside, balanced across the great pier which rests upon a solid foundation of concrete and supports the weight, is the barrel of this tremendous instrument. It is 62 feet long and weighs about 12,000 pounds. Each of the two great lenses which fit inside of this barrel are forty inches across.

The barrel of this instrument can be swung around in any direction and raised or lowered to any angle; the floor of the dome is movable and the entire roof of the dome revolves—all to the end that the observer can observe in any direction and at any angle necessary in order to properly perform the particular job in hand. After the barrel has been focused it can be adjusted to follow and keep in view the object under observation, relieving the observer of having to stop occasionally and focus his telescope. Adjustment as small as one-one-hundredth of an inch can be made.

With this telescope observers have been enabled to determine, with great exactness, the positions of stars in clusters and the distances between them. Stellar photographs taken, using the telescope as a camera, are among the best yet secured. The brightness of stars also is measurable with this instrument.

I've Wanted You
by Grace E. Hall

I've wanted you 'til all the earth seemed crying
In pleading, sobbing tenderness for you;
'Til every quivering leaf seemed grieving, sighing,
And asking for you all the long night through.

I've longed for you 'til every taut nerve, aching,
Was like a harp string struck by blundering hand,
Its deepest notes of melancholy waking,
And no one near to care or understand.

I've called to you 'til tones turned into dumbness
That somehow froze within my heart and brain;
I've called to you 'til tones turned into numbness
That throbbed on silently, a ceaseless pain.

I've prayed for you with prayers too wild for voicing
Then prayed for answer, in a mood sublime;
The Springtime calls—the whole world is rejoicing,
But silence rests between your soul and mine.

Mrs. Guy Wynne was in town Wednesday and furnished the Eagle with evidence of an excellent crop of feterita which was produced in the ranch this year. The feterita head which she brought in was from a second crop on dry land and was exceptionally well matured and measured 13 inches in length. It can be seen from the size that a few acres would produce a world of good feed in one crop, not to mention two crops in the same year on the same land.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS
From The Clarksville Times.

Time works wonders because it does not perate on an eight hour basis.

Feminine styles change frequently, but the male's habit of growling about them remains fixed.

A magazine writer says 5,000 matches are lighted every second in this country. That's a striking statement.

Soon as we get time we intend to invent a tooth brush with a permanent wave.

"Chicago opera ignores huge deficit," says a headline. Same being one of the differences between us and the Chicago opera. When we have a huge deficit we growl about it.

Our Oklahoma reader says there are lots of arguments in the drug store in his town, including the one "I'm sorry, but I can't sell it without a prescription."

A guy told us the other day one of the airplenes he intends to bring to the Red River County Fair this month can do anything a bird can do, and we are going to strike him for a "settin" of eggs.

Little Johnny, the well known school boy, says some folks make him tired talking about the dog being the closest animal to man, when any body ought to know a flea sticks lots closer than any "dog that ever was."

123456789 times 81 equals 999999999, and we'll bet thirty thousand dollars not less than a dozen doggoned newspaper men n North Texas try it out before night in an effort to find something to pick on us about.

They advertised a big terrapin race on the Miller Ranch in Oklahoma with a prize of $800 for th winner of the terrapin derby, and the young lady across the way says she can't hardly imagine a terrapin strutting around with a derby on.

Uncle Hugh Wilson, who is now making his home at Taft, was another of our good readers to renew this week. Uncle Hugh states in his letter that he will likely be up this way soon.

Jack Maddox is one of our recent new subscribers. Jack is in Lubbock where he is a student of the Texas Tech and of course wants to keep up with what's happening at home.

Albert Bartley and Ben Deckert purchased about 1,000 head of sheep from a ranch south of Kerrville and brought them up to the Deckert place last week.

Miss Joan Wilson left last week-end to resume her college work in C. I. A. She made a very creditable record last year at the Denton school which is one of the greatest colleges of its kind in the country.

ARTHUR SIMON BUYS SILVERS GROCERY

Negotiations were completed first of the week whereby Arthur Simon became the owner of the grocery and feed stock in what is known as the Allen Produce Building on the northeast corner of the square.

Mr. Simon purchased the stock from J. U. Silvers who has been conducting the business for several months past, having purchased it from L. A. Taylor. Mr. Simon is a successful business man and has had many years experience in business here and at Roosevelt and upon taking over the business Monday, began to rearrange and add to the stock and expects to be able to offer his customers a first class grocery and feed service.

He will be assisted by his son, Chester, and by Mr. Watters, who has been with the two previous owners.

SALLIE FINDS WHEREIN IS MAGIC OF THINGS

Curtiss must have known that for some reason I did not want to give him a dance. Otherwise I would have not used the excuse about the directors. He knew that I could have promised him one of the later dances that I had given to some of the younger crowd and explained later that there had been a mistake somehow. I had done that for Curtiss many times before. In fact, he reminded me that on one occasion I had switched half a dozen dances in a row so that I might be with him. Oh yes, he knew.

And he must have been hurt for shortly after I had chatted with him, he and his brother left the dance. With his departure, it was the same as in the old days. The magic was gone and the little glass lanterns were not so bright.

Ah, God, the flight of fancy that visit a woman's heart! That night was one of open-eyed reverie and inexplicable doubt. And oh, the whimsicality of feminine device. I had proved to Curtiss that it was not my desire to give him a dance and then because he did not pursue me, I railed at him mentally one moment and then adored him for his pride the next.

And what of his engagement to Anne?

With these thoughts racing about in my brain a few days later, I decided to drive Father down to the Beach cottage and take a swim. I drove the 18 miles with the speed of the wind. I loved its sharp sting in my face. Father sensed my preoccupation and remained silent during the drive. I invited him to go swimming with me but he declined, declaring that there was a hint of Autumn in the air.

And so I went in alone. Because of the brisk day the surf was deserted except for me. But how pleasant it was to turn one's face skyward allowing the waves to lift you with the movement of a cradle, so calm was the ocean today.

Clouds as blue and brilliant as the eyes of a pretty child mantled the heavens on high and the turquoise tints of the water seemed friendly and soft. Overhead, seagulls sailed by—harbingers of good fortune to the sailors. Mom Nellie had taught, and as I recalled the superstition, I wondered what luck they would bring to me.

I floated on and on, allowing the waves to lift me in their majestic arms and then toward Mayport a pelican winged into sight. Someone had told me that the reason the pelican is used as a sacred symbol is because the mother bird feeds her young by boring a hole in her breast, from which drips the blood that gives them life. Mother-love! My heart softened toward the bird.

Then I began to swim. A path of sunlight reached golden fingers across the waves and over all there resigned an enveloping peace and that glorious sense of freedom that the ocean inspires.

There had been another swim in the ocean when I had not been alone. I recalled the first night I had met Curtiss and he had rescued me from the heavy surf. I wondered vaguely if I would ever be able to go any place or do anything that would not bring him to mind, and wondering, I heard his voice.

"Hello, there! Mind if I tag along?"

"No, I believe there's room" I replied, nodding to the vast ocean.

We swam in silence. I could have gone on indefinitely with the rhythmical swing of his accompanying strokes at my side but we had been swimming with the current and found ourselves beyond the row of cottages and even past the Inn. Toward the shore, were reaches of white sand and unending palms silhoutted against china-blue-sky.

As if by common consent, we headed in and were soon seated at the water's edge. The waves broke in playful melody against our feet. It was good to rest a while and to feel his presence at my side.

It was what I call a gold day. Even the edges of the water and the beach itself were bathed in a mellow glow. The clouds had thrown themselves in graceful abandon across the sky and the colors drifted from shell pink to the deep tint of wood violets. Over the entire scene a fleet-footed and invisible nymph of the sky had drawn a misty curtain. Here and there were baby clouds in pale mauve.

Pools of pink and blue lay on the beach and clung to the places still damp from the waves of the implacable ocean. Out toward the horizon, a two-masted freighter put out to sea with its heavy cargo. The day was still and the smoke scurried in an unbroken line upward, and distance with her flattering hands made silver clouds of it. A huge bird swift and sure as a man with a purpose, darted into the ocean.

A last faint sifting of gold-like ashes of roses from a chiffon scarf which the lady of the evening would soon draw close.

QUESTIONS THE TEACHER MAY ASK COMMUNITY

Much has been written about the demands that the community may make of the teacher. Not so much has been written upon the other side of the question. That there is another side no one can doubt. Every teacher has a right to ask certain questions of the community regarding its ability to furnish her with comfortable living conditions.

It is encouraging to find that school officials are giving increased attention to the teachers side of the subject. A good example is found in the latest report of the State Board of Education of New Hampshire. In discussing the subject of the home for rural teachers certain questions are found which it is stated, a teacher has the right to ask of her school community. Among them are the following:

Is the community split by a neighborhood which is likely to engulf the teacher or is it one which defends the teacher against idle gossip? Is there a boarding home within one mile of the school in a family of refinement? Will the teacher have a private room, heat when necessary, and is the house provided with the equipment and conveniences of modern homes? Are there arangements so that the teacher can go to church on Sunday? The discussion closes with the statement that districts not answering these questions satisfactorily can not expect to secure good teachers.

The opening of schools revives a discussion of the perplexing problems connected with the teacher's boarding place. School officials and others who have at heart the best interests of the school can do well to apply to their own communities the questions asked in the New Hampshire report. —Taylor County Times.

SHE WAS DIVINE, BUT—

Col. George Bailey of the Houston Post says: "She was a beautiful maiden with soft brown eyes. A girl of the long ago with modesty and gentleness written in her. A wealth of long brown curls draped her shapely shoulders. There was no bold nakedness visible to mar the sweet spirituality of her presence. Then she arose from the table at which she had been breakfasting, and we're a green hippopotamus if she didn't have on pants."

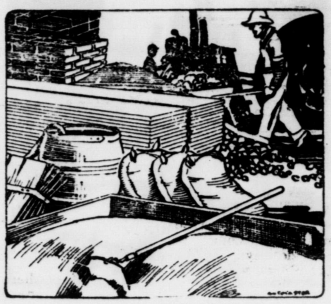

This country may not be as badly managed as it seems, but it seems to be.

MY TRIP ABROAD

By Sol Frank in Stephenville Tribune.

(Contnued from last week)

Before leaving Luxor, and Karnak, and the Tombs of the King, I must tell of our wonderful boat ride on the Nile. Our guide, who was an educated Arab, offered to take us a sail on the Nile, if a sufficient party could be made up, at so much "per." We started at about 6 p. m. and were out about two hours. We talked about everything in general, and then the crew sang several Egyptian songs. The guide then asked that we sing some of our songs. Our National Anthem and a few others were sung, which seemed to please them very much. When we went to Karnak and also to the "Tombs of the Kings" we rode donkeys, and the Arab owners would go along to "steer" the donkeys. The Tombs of the Kings was seven miles out, yet the Arab drivers would run along beside the donkeys barefooted in the scorching sands and prod them with poles to keep them going at a fast pace. Their wardrobe was a one-piece garment, coming down below the knees. They were all expert beggars, as are all the Eastern people.

After leaving Luxor, we went back to Cairo, a distance of probably 500 miles down the Nile. All along the Nile, as far as the eye can see, the land is level and extremely fertile except in a few places, as at Thebes and Cairo the desert comes very near the river. Whether these spots could be reclaimed by irrigation I did not learn, but from general appearance I would judge they could not. All along on both sides of the river there were immense groves of palms, presumably of the date variety, as no such large groves would be cultivated unless they would yield some profit. Wheat, oats and other small grain seem to be the chief crops, and I do not recall seeing any corn growing but they do grow sorghum and other feedstuffs. Their mode of farming is very primitive. Their plows have only one handle, and they use cattle, usually two cows, to draw the plows. Sometimes they use oxen, and the water-buffalo. They rarely use horses and mules for this purpose. In looking over the fertile valley of the Nile, one can well see why it was considered the granary of the ancient world, as most of the surrounding countries were dependent upon it for bread. Especially is this true of the "Land of Goshen" between Alexandria and Cairo, which Jacob chose for himself and his posterity as a home, as it is considered the most fertile and favored part of Egypt. The natives are ignorant, and without ambition, and don't seem to have any incentive for improvement. This is largely no doubt on account of their religion, most of them being Mohammedans. All up and down the Nile you see the natives working their crops, but they seem indolent and move about slowly. Being mostly Mohammedans, they are very much devoted to their religious rites, and having certain periods in which to pray, it matters not where they are or what they are doing, they prostrate themselves and turn their faces toward Mecca and pray. Some of our more enlightened people might well take a lesson from them in their devotion.

Returning to Cairo, we put up at the Continental Savoy Hotel, one the largest and finest hotels in Cairo. To the credit of Mr. Clark, the manager of our itinerancy, he gave us the best of everything going, and he could well afford it, as our expenses were $20 or more a day each. Cairo is a large modern city of probably a million people, and the better class of people have all modern conveniences. Most all business is carried on by white people. The natives are almost altogether devoid of ambition and initiative. They seem content with selling tourists their small wares and trinkets, which they push with a persistency which is very annoying. The waiters in the hotels are all natives and men, as far as I saw; and they were pretty proficient at that. They wear robes which are very much like the old time "mother hubbard" mostly of a white material. The fare at the hotels is good and things are well cooked and well served. They have large and well appointed department stores with fine and expensive goods in some of them. A peculiarity with the business men I have never seen in any other place, is that they close their stores from 12 to 2 p. m supposedly for lunch and rest. Some of the natives may be seen lying in front of their places of business asleep at this time of day.

The street peddlers and vendors are very annoying, the way they push their wares on you. They blockade the street in front of you, so as to get a chance to show their goods. They ask a high price, but will take almost anything you see fit to offer them. I don't see how so many of them make a living selling such things. Many of them depend on begging, and are experts at it. The bazaars here are large, and second only to those in Constantinople. Cairo has many large public buildings, but the Mosques are the most imposing. The most important of all the Mosques is that of Sultan Hassan near the Citadel. The Citadel is an immense building, now occupied by British soldiers as barracks. The Pyramids, and Sphinx, are only a few miles out from Cairo, on the edge of the desert. The largest pyramid is the Cheops, named for Cheops, one of the kings of Egypt, whose body is supposed to be buried in it. This pyramid has a height of about 500 feet and a length of 750 feet. An idea of the enormous labor it took to erect it, may be had from a statement of Herodatus, that 100,000 men were employed twenty years in building it. There are five pyramids in this group, the second being nearly as large as Cheops, the others being considerably smaller. It is still a mystery how these immense blocks of stone and granite were raised to such a height in their erection, as all modern engineering skill fails to account for it. Some of the greatness of these pyramids may be had when we are told that the largest contains over 3,000,000 cubic yards, and covers about 13 acres. The great Sphinx is not far from these pyramids. The Sphinx, which is sometimes overwhelmed by drifting sands from the desert nearby, was practically all visible when we were there. It is said that nothing ever made by man has been the source of so much confusion of thought as the Sphinx. It has been and is still confounded with the Greek Sphinx, but that seems questionable. The Greek Sphinx is a female deity, and the Egyptian Sphinx is a male deity, although, in common with most people, I have always thought the Egyptian Sphinx a female. The Sphinx was hewn out of solid rock, and is sixty feet high. In spite of many mutilations, it still preserves much of its nobility and majesty.

We visited the ruins of old Memphis about 15 miles out from Cairo. Like Thebes it has been buried for thousands of years, but excavations are being made and many important discoveries have been made. This was the capital of Egypt when Joseph was ruler, and here the Pharoahs lived. On the banks of the River Nile in Cairo is pointed out, on a little island called "Rhoda" as being the spot where Pharoah had his summer palace and where tradition has it Pharoah's daughter found Moses in the bull rushes. In Heliopolis, several miles out of Cairo, is an obelisk, the most ancient of all obelisks, except one at Luxor, and is said to cover the site of the ancient city of "On" mentioned in Genesis 41:45-50 and 46:20. Heliopolis is the "On" of the Bible, where Joseph found the daughter of the "High Priest" of "On" and no doubt wooed and won her beneath the shadow of this stately obelisk. Tradition has it that at this spot Joseph made himself known to his brethren. I am not very long on legends and traditions, but I don't see why these should not be true. We know that the Kings of Egypt and Joseph lived somewhere near these places and why shoudn't these traditions be true?

There is much more that could be said about Egypt but this letter is already too long. My next letter will be from Naples, Italy.

LATEST RECIPE FOR MAKING HOME-BREW

Chase wild bullfrogs for three miles and gather up the hops. To them add ten gallons of tanbark to give it a body, half a pint of shellac to make it smooth, one bar of soap to make it foam, and four door knobs to hold it down after you drink it. Boil for 36 hours then strain through an I. W. W's. sock to keep it from working. Add one grasshopper to each pint to give it a kick. Pour a little in the kitchen sink. If it takes the enamel off, it is ready for bottling.

FIELD YET OPEN FOR INVENTIONS

Although the layman would perhaps imagine that the modern world is practically perfect by virtue of the plethora of inventions that have been swamped upon it in recent years, the suggestion book of the Institute of Patentees in London indicates otherwise.

Famous scientists and others who have put suggestions for things that are wanted in the book show that the following are among the inventions which would make the world more comfortable and happier:

Glass that will bend.
Unshrinkable flannel.
A noiseless airplane.

INVENTS DEVICE TO MARK ROADS

A perpetual and accurate map and log of the highways of Texas placed on a cabinet on a standard at intervals along the roadside where the information would be easily available for tourists is proposed by J. E. Lett, Jr., of Dallas, who, with D. S. Nash, has invented and patented a device that would make such a plan possible.

Texas highways are marked after a fashion, but chiefly by advertisers and not with a sufficient degree of completeness and accuracy to inspire the confidence of motorists, Mr. Lett said. Hunting for the right road takes half the joy out of touring and the lack of adequate marking of the highways often is hurtful to a community, he said.

The device invented by Mr. Lett and Mr. Nash consists of a metal or wood container designed to be placed upon a permanent standard at intervals of five or ten miles along the highways. Within the container are two drums, the surface of which can be seen in sections through a slit or window in the front of the device. The drums are rotated by means of a crank on the side of the container.

It is the idea of the inventors that one drum would show a complete log and detailed map of that section of the highway to the next device, together with a list of accurate distances to the larger cities and towns. The other drum would show a general description of the surrounding country, naming points of interest and enumerating the advantages of the community.

In addition to the two enclosed drums the device also makes provision for a map of the entire State. This is attached to a slide at the back of the cabinet which is projected vertically above the cabinet when the crank is turned.

The State map gives a general idea of all highways, while the inclosed drum gives detailed information concerning that particular section of highway being traversed.

According to Mr. Lett, the cost of manufacturing his device in quantities will not be great and that their adoption will more than repay the initial cost through saving of time for Texas motorists and popularizing the roads of Texas for outside tourists. Rather than dispose of his device for advertising purposes he would turn the rights over to the State government for a nominal fee.

One particular advantage of the device is that it can be kept up to date at all times to show detours on account of highway construction, Mr. Lett said. It requires no upkeep after the first installation.

FROM A TEXAS PAPER

"Married, Miss Sylvia ——— and James ——— last Saturday at the parsonage of Rev. Gordon. The bride is one of those spineless females who doesn't know any more about work than an oyster, and never wiggled a dishrag more than three times in her sweet life. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living with the old folks all his life and is not worth the gunpowder to blow him up."

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

These notes will be sad today for all I can think about is that Brother Kelley has sent in his resignation and will be leaving in about a week. We are losing the ministrations of a sympathetic, earnest, Christian pastor whose only aim in life is to uplift Jesus. This pastor can be counted on the right side of every question; and we, who have watched his daily life and conversation in Junction during the past year know he has been the means of leading many lost souls to the Savior. However, the dark cloud has its proverbial silver lining, for our loss will be Brother Kelley's gain, as he is going to the Seminary at Fort Worth for a three year study course, and we who love him couldn't wish him anything better.

Next Sunday will be his farewell, and D. V. Brother Kelley will preach both morning and evening. Let every member of the church, and every friend of the pastor's in this community co-operate to make Sunday, Sept. 27th, a great day and attend these special services to wish Rev. E. L. Kelley and his good wife Godspeed in their new undertaking.

Will the East Circle be sure and remember the singing at 4:45 next Sunday at the home of Dan St. Clair.

A special woman's meeting at the church at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 29th. Every member of all the Circles invited. Reporter.
