GAS PROPOSAL HANGS FIRE

Huge Republican Slush Fund Is Uncovered 12 TECH STUDENTS GET SCHOLARSHIPS

DR. SELECMAN IS HEARD AS FIRST YEAR IS CLOSED

1,043 ENROLL IN TEXAS NEWEST SCHOOL DURING INITIAL LESSON

With an address on "Human Progress," by Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, and the presentation of twelve scholarships to outstanding students as features, the curtain was brought down on the first year of the Texas Technological college shortly before noon today when a general convocation was held.

Dr. Selecman made an interesting address before several hundred students, faculty members and visitors. He was introduced by President Paul W. Horn, who presented scholarships and awards to students following the talk.

1,043 Students Enrolled

Proceeding the address, which was delayed because of the lateness of the morning train, which brought Dr. Selecman here, Dr. Horn announced that a total of 1,043 students have enrolled in the Tech this year, 315 of them women students and 727 men students. Only 26 of this number came from out of the state and 128 Texas counties were represented in the enrollment. Four hundred and two of the number reside in Lubbock county and 544 come from the square of nine counties that has Lubbock as a center. Ten students came from New Mexico, 11 from Oklahoma and the rest from four other states.

Registration for the summer session is in progress at the Tech Friday and classes are to begin at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. While it will be impossible for any figures on registrants to be given out for several days, it is thought that there will be a large enrollment, according to President Horn. Some estimates have said that there will be 1,000 students attending school here during the next six weeks, judging by the letters and inquiries received during the spring term of work. Many of the summer school students attended convocation Friday morning.

Scholarships Are Received

Twelve scholarship awards were presented by President Horn Friday morning as follows: W. C. Hedrick scholarship, $250, for the highest standing student in scholarship. Mrs. TURN TO PAGE 8, COL. 1 PLEASE

One Dead After Rail Wreck Near Capital

NORFOLK, Va., June 11. (P)—The locomotive, mail car, baggage car and two passenger coaches of a Norfolk Southern passenger train toppled off a trestle fourteen miles west of Washington, D. C., early today, killing the engineer and fireman and injuring a postal employee and a porter. The pullman of the train was the only coach to remain on the rails.

Engineer J. R. Shade and fireman William Harrington, both of Norfolk, were killed. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

"I'm Too Wealthy," Says Texas Rancher

AUSTIN, Texas, June 11. (P)—J. A. Whittenburg of Plemmons, a Lubbock rancher, on whose ranch some of the biggest oil wells of the country are flowing, was here today and said he didn't know what to do with so much money. He is reputed to be worth about $40,000,000.

Fifty-three years ago Whittenburg drove a remuda of cow horses through Austin, and he said it "sure has changed some." He fought Indians and weathered all the hardships of frontier life. He said he wanted to go back to Plemmons and live and die and be buried beside his wife who died in 1901.

Farwell Baby Dies As Stove Explodes

FARWELL, Texas, June 11. (P)—The ten months old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scanley was burned to death today when fire, caused presumably by an oil stove explosion in the kitchen, destroyed the Scanley home near here while the mother was washing clothes in the back yard and the father was working in a nearby field.

1,000 Barrel Oil Well Is Reported At Lovington, N. M.

Oil has been struck in Malmear No. 1, in Lee county, New Mexico, according to reports received here Friday, but the reports could not be confirmed by telephone due to the apparent absence from Lovington of almost the entire citizenship of the city. Various reports have reached here in connection with the flow of the well, these placing the flow variously at from 1,000 barrels to a several thousand barrel gusher.

The test is located under the caprock in Lee county about 30 miles east of the Artesia field, and about 24 miles west of Lovington, and excitement is rife among the citizenship in the vicinity, reports said.

The oil was struck at a depth of 3,950 feet, the reports said. Gas was encountered at a depth of 3,300 some time ago, but this was drilled through and several strata of oil sand was passed through by the drill. It is understood here that plans are underway to shut the well in the next day or two, when it is believed possible by citizens of this city who are interested more or less in the test or its surroundings, a further well be brought in.

Jibes Are Flung At Haitian President

NEW YORK, June 11. (P)—When President Louis Borno of the Republic of Haiti arrived today he became the object of a hostile demonstration similar to that which was reported from his own country as he sailed for the United States.

Nearly a hundred subjects of the island republic met their president at the dock. Many carried banners bearing phrases uncomplimentary to the Haitian president and admonishing American citizens and the American government not to break bread with him.

State Men Look Over Panhandle Oil Field

AUSTIN, June 11. (P)—The Texas Panhandle oil field, possibly the largest in the world in both area and production, presents unusual problems and no general rule will apply, Judge H. E. Bell, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division of the railroad commission said today. Individual attention will have to be given the oil and gas wells to save for the nation these vast resources, he said.

Judge Bell said upon his return from an inspection of the field and a hearing at Amarillo, that "uniform requirements to cement the casing in wells shows impracticable."

Amarillo Will Have Employment Bureau

AUSTIN, June 11. (P)—Labor conditions throughout the state in general are in excellent condition, E. J. Crook, labor commissioner, said today. Because of the great demands and rapid growth in population of the Panhandle, a permanent state free labor bureau will be established in Amarillo, if arrangements can be made, he said. The Panhandle and West Texas country is reaping a monstrous wheat crop and good prices are being obtained. There have been plenty of harvest hands and the crops will be gathered within eight more days. The oil fields in the Panhandle and West Texas are drawing much unskilled labor, while skilled labor throughout the state has sufficient employment with no surplus of hands or shortage reported, the commissioner explained.

Flaming Gasser May Be Controlled Today

AMARILLO, June 11. (P)—Shooting a forty-foot flame into the air for eight days, a hundred-million cubic foot gas well of the Gibson Oil corporation in South Hutchinson county, continues to defy efforts of workmen to extinguish the blaze, according to reports from the field. The gas was ignited by lightning. Tex Thornton, oil and gas well "shooter," is in the field preparing to "shoo" the fire out with explosives.

SENATE PROBES LEARN OF LOANS MADE TO PEPPER

MANUFACTURER SAYS HE IS "ANGEL" FOR THE CANDIDATE

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Expenditures in the republican primary campaign in Pennsylvania this spring were estimated at $1,225,295 today by Chairman Reed of the Senate investigating committee on the basis of evidence thus far placed before the committee.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, testified before the Senate campaign funds committee today that he had contributed $18,000 to support of the Pepper-Fisher-Smith-Woodward ticket in this spring's Pennsylvania Republican primary; he had made various loans to the fund during the campaign; and then after the primary, had loaned another $150,000 to make up a deficit. In addition, he said, he had signed with W. H. Fulwell a note for $30,000 negotiated at the Corn Exchange bank for the same purpose.

"Then you were the angel of this enterprise to the extent of $200,000?" Chairman Reed asked Grundy. "Yes," Grundy replied. "I was."

Grundy had loaned $150,000 before the primary, and the same amount afterwards, without counting the $90,000 note.

His loans to the committee, Grundy said, began April 4, with $7,000 or $8,000 and his advances continued "from time to time as the bills came in" and as the contributions failed to arrive.

He contended that he had no idea of the amount of bills still owed, but the committee asked for a list.

Chairman asked Grundy how he expected to "make up" the $200,000 list. "To 'Come Out All Right'."

"We have had some experience in the past," Grundy replied, "and we have come out all right."

"You just have faith in the hope people of Pennsylvania to make that up?"

"Yes."

"There must be something else besides vain hope—you know where you expect to get that back?"

"I could not say at the present moment."

"You got notes for the $200,000 you advanced?" asked Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

"Yes, receipts or notes."

WASHINGTON, June 11. (P)—Having received testimony from W. L. Mellon that approximately $300,000 was spent in Western Pennsylvania for the Pepper-Fisher-Smith-Woodward ticket in the May Republican primary, the Senate campaign investigating committee today decided Senator Pepper for questioning about his own per-

Death Of American In Mexico Will Bring Forth Federal Probe; Father Believes Oklahoma Boy Is Murdered

Good-bye, Earl!

(By Associated Press.)
CHICKASHA, Okla., June 11.—Richard Dawson, 21, whose recent death in Los Mochis, Mexico, is to be investigated by Federal authorities, was murdered by unknown parties who had been preventing him from returning to his home here, in the opinion of his father, Dr. E. L. Dawson.

"That bears out my suspicions. I had thought for some time that the boy was married, but had never been able to get him to tell me in his letters."

"I could tell from the tone of his letters that something was wrong and I suspected that he had married a Mexican girl. He sent me telegrams from time to time for money. At one time he sent me a telegram saying 'Send me $200. Life or death.' I sent him $50 and told him to come home. Later he was sent $30 with another request to come home. His letters were plaintive and I surmised that he was being held in Mexico by threats. All told I sent him considerable money."

Believes Him Murdered
"I believe he was murdered by parties who were forcing him to stay in Mexico."

Dr. Dawson indicated that he believed an attempt to extort money from him was made in connection with his efforts to have the body of his son shipped to Chickasha.

The first news he had of his son's plight was received at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, Dr. Dawson said. The telegram stated that he was seriously injured and unconscious. At 11 o'clock Monday night he received a telegram stating that Richard was dead. He was told in a telegram Wednesday morning that the boy was buried Wednesday morning.

The State Department in Washington has asked the American consul at Mazatlan to investigate and take steps to return the body to the United States.

Reports from Nogales, Ariz., state that Dawson had been found in the Mexican city by a policeman. His head had been crushed by an unknown assailant. He was still alive when rushed to a hospital, but died soon afterward.

The City Commission of Lubbock has again deferred final action on the proposal of A. J. BOSTON BRAVES CONTINUE LONG WINNING STREAK

PIRATES DROP BACK TO SECOND PLACE WHILE YANKEES WIN

(By the Associated Press)

Happenings of a dozen years ago are etched in the National League race of 1926—the Boston Braves once again appear to be on the warpath.

In 1914, with George Stallings at the helm, the Bostonians started from the bottom in July and rushed through to the top before September had gone. They then accomplished one of the greatest feats of modern baseball by turning back the powerful Philadelphia Athletics in four straight games. Mack had his wonderful infield then and his great staff of pitchers.

Braves Win Number 8

The rush of 1926, now carried to eight straight victories, finds a new set of men performing for the Braves, and Rabbit Maranville, now Brooklyn's shortstop is about the only member of the "Miracle Team" remaining in the major leagues.

Yesterday, Hank Gowdy, soldier-catcher of Ohio, whose long smashes did much to win the world's series of 1914, left his job as manager of Columbus in the American Association.

Concentrated hitting gave Larry Benton his victory over the Chicago Cubs at Boston yesterday, 5 to 4. Manager Dave Bancroft leading the attack with three singles.

The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped out of first place when they lost to Philadelphia, 13 to 5, and Cincinnati downed Brooklyn, 4 to 3. The Phils made sixteen hits against fifteen for the world champions.

Adolph Luege, Cuban moundsman, hurled Cincinnati to victory, allowing only five safe blows. Flint Rhem, the youngster who has lost only one game this season for the St. Louis Cardinals, added to his string of conquests by humbling the New York Giants, 3 to 2.

Herb Pennock of the Yankees turned in a five-hit performance in the American League and defeated Detroit, 8 to 1, aided by 10 hits, among which were homers by Bob Meusel and Lazzeri.

A ninth inning rally by the Washington Senators which produced four runs, stopped the winning streak of Cleveland.

Old Jack Quinn pitched steadily for the Philadelphia Athletics and set back the White Sox, six to nothing. Ring Miller hit a homer with one on in the eighth.

The Red Sox hammered Vangilder hard in the opening inning, scoring four runs, and eventually beating the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 3.

PLAINVIEW TAKES HARD DRUBBING THURSDAY

"Sket" Ratliff was at himself again Thursday afternoon, as has been his usual custom this season, holding the Plainview amateurs to six hits, while he with his team mates was pounding Holmes, Plainview's southpaw ace for a total of seventeen safeties, including five extra base hits, and the Hubbers got away to an easy win for their twelfth straight victory of the season winning 13 to 2.

Ratliff was invincible for the first seven innings, holding the visitors helpless and hitless, retiring them 3 in a row except for one man he walked and one near hit on which Lassiter was charged with an error. In the seventh he was singled for three doubles in a row for two runs, Plainview's only score.

Intermittent flurries of hitting and scoring marked the contest for the Hubbers, who scored only in three innings out of the nine. They jumped on Holmes in the first session for five hits, Jackson leading off with a triple to right field, and batted around except for one man, for a total of four runs.

In the fifth a like procedure occurred when two doubles, two singles and a walk score four more runs, and in the seventh, the Hubbers batted around the line-up to a man for a double and three singles that brought five runners across the plate.

Plainview threatened a rally in the ninth with three singles in a row, but Ratliff tightened, striking out the two last men to face him.

Score by innings:
Plainview 400 000 200—2 6 3
Lubbock 400 040 508—13 17 1
Holmes and Wilbanks; Ratliff and Allen.

Real Class Shown In One Tilt Of City League Play

The City League pennant chase apparently is beginning to assume the air of settled baseball as the season gets under way, and Thursday afternoon was marked with a hard contest between two teams that are rated as among the leaders for final honors. The hardware men nosed out a win over the bankers in one of the best contests seen in city league circles this season, winning by a 6 to 5 score, while the bankers were being romped on to the tune of 6 to 2 by Hix-Baker, and sent to the cellar winless in the two games they have played during the season.

The Hardware-Banker tilt showed marks of real baseball, Hix-Baker, ace moundsman for hardware-drawing 5 strikeouts during the five frames while being touched for eight safeties. Hix-Baker and banker clash, each team hitting but two safeties, but the error column was black.

Tar Heel Stars

GALEN ELLIOTT, ABOVE, AND LAWRENCE WATT.

Presenting two of the outstanding stars on the University of North Carolina track team this season. Elliott set a new Southern Conference record the other day by doing the mile in 4:21.2, while Watt bettered the 220-yard mark for the low hurdles, taking them in 24.4. Both boys are expected to compete in the national intercollegiate at Chicago June 11 and 12.

BERLENBACH IS VICTORIOUS IN HECTIC BATTLE

CHAMPION BEATS YOUNG STRIBLING TO KEEP TITLE FREE

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 11.—Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, New York, pugilist and dog fancier, retaining champion of the world's light heavyweights after registering an overwhelming point victory over the youthful Georgian Billy (Young) Stribling.

More than 50,000 persons, paying something like $200,000 were astounded at the contest they witnessed at the Yankee Stadium last night. They saw the rout of a challenger who had ruled a favorite up to the very week of the battle.

Brilliant, powerful, aggressive for the first three rounds, Young Stribling in the fourth felt the sting of a solid Berlenbach smash over the heart, and from that moment resorted to the only escape from punishment a beating man can, of holding and pushing his opponent.

Champion Wakes Up

Even then the champion broke from the clinging arms to drive heavily to body and head and several times the Georgian appeared to be near oblivion.

At times after that terrific blow in the fourth, Stribling mustered a little of his former fire and lashed back at the rugged mauler before him to score a few points. These gave him, in the opinion of critics, just three rounds out of the fifteen while two were about even. But when the final bell rang, the man from the South was a badly beaten boxer, booted by the throng for his tactics while from the same throng arose tremendous cheers for the champion's fiery defense of his valuable crown which he gained a year ago in the same ring from one of the greatest defense fighters of the time, Mike McTigue.

Paul's Aggression Wins

Berlenbach met the hopes of his friends, who argued that a return to his old aggressive policy would carry the day. He fought in the manner that won him the title, always boring in, shaking off the drives of his antagonist to return them three fold. On the other hand, Stribling failed to gamble in the opening rounds as expected and contented himself with gaining a lead by his speed and defensive ability.

To the champion the victory meant another battle this summer with Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn. This will be staged at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, in the near future. Berlenbach and Delaney have met twice. Delaney won the first contest by a knock out before Paul gained the title but Berlenbach retained the crown in a second battle last winter.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By JILLY EVANS

On fly ball that is caught, base-runner, originally on first, who had run almost to third, believing the ball would drop safe, failed to touch second on his way back. How can he be retired?

When forced to return to a base to escape being doubled up, as on the caught fly ball, the runner must touch the intervening base or bases in the reverse order.

Failure to do so makes said runner liable to be put out if the team in the field notices the slip.

Said runner can be retired by holding the ball on the base he failed to touch or by touching him with the ball.

SECRETS OF STARS on INSIDE BASEBALL

By ROGER PECKINPAUGH

Most Valuable Player 1925—American League.

Unless nature has endowed a ball player with a strong throwing arm, it is a mistake for him to select shortstop as the position he desires to master. No place on the ball field calls for a player to throw from more unusual positions than that of shortstop.

Going from right to left in pursuit of elusive ground balls, he is often forced to throw while on the run and off balance as well.

Just as important as a strong arm is accuracy. One is a gift, the other can be perfected through practice.

Too many shortstops with good arms make the very serious mistake of wasting them by not using their heads in timing the runner to be thrown out.

It is foolish to use as much speed on a slow-running pitcher as on one of the fastest men in the business. Incidentally, to hurry throws, as is necessary on the very fast men, handicaps accuracy if the ball is heaved across the diamond always in the same manner, regardless of the speed of the batsman.

Proper timing of the runner is essential to the success of any player who seeks to get very far as a shortstop. The moment a batter steps into the box, reach a definite conclusion as to his speed and then handle the ball accordingly.

Knowledge of the speed of the runner is a great help in enabling the shortstop to make the proper play. This is particularly true relative to the chances of getting two men in a possible double play.

Never waste a throw when you are reasonably certain you haven't a chance to get your man. A hurried throw invariably makes for inaccuracy.

Camel is the smoker's sign of friendship

IN THE home, or at the club—in busy office or crowded street—whenever friend meets friend, you will hear that magic invitation—have a Camel!

And wherever Camels are lighted, men come together in more friendly understanding. No other cigarette ever had or made so many friends or brought so much added friendliness to the world as Camel, for Camel's quality is a universal language.

Camel is more than a cigarette. It is an experience in smoking enjoyment—the finest this old earth affords. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown, and these fine tobaccos are superbly blended, as in no other cigarette. The enjoyment of Camels goes on forever, for they never tire the taste no matter how liberally you smoke them. They simply never leave a cigarette after-taste. No other cigarette in the world is like them. Millions of experienced smokers who could well afford to pay more will buy and smoke only Camels.

Whenever and wherever you meet a friend, let that be a standing invitation to the sheerest enjoyment that ever came from a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

THE FIRST YEAR

To President Paul W. Horn and members of his faculty, to the students of the Texas Technological college, The Journal expresses profound and unstinted congratulations upon the completion of a glorious year—the first of many of its kind.

As far as The Journal has been able to discover, there has never been an educational institution launched under more auspicious conditions than has Texas Tech and The Journal feels that it can say, without fear of contradiction, that certainly there has never been another to accomplish more during its initial session.

Texas Tech, of course, is in its infancy—in infancy not only from a standpoint of time, but also in reputation. Its importance, Lubbock should take a great amount of pleasure in turning her eye future-ward and conceive, if possible, what the years will bring through the progress and advancement of Texas Tech.

But even though the work and abilities of President Horn, his faculty and members of his student body have been largely responsible for the rapid strides made by the college, the people of Lubbock—the bank and file of its citizens—who have so heartily backed the institution in its every undertaking—are also to be congratulated for their important work in making the college what it is today. Unselfish to the nth degree, Lubbock has borne honorably and well the educational standards entrusted to its care by the lawmakers of a great commonwealth.

West Texas, too, from Dalhart to the border and from Dallas to the New Mexico line, has been influential in the rapid rise of the college. Many friends—some of them living in remote parts of Texas, have rallied to the support of the Matadors—have done their "bit" to help the school along and these people, too, The Journal would not for one moment forget. So, as we write "finis" today on the fly-leaf of Texas Tech's first year, let us do so with a feeling of satisfaction and without misgivings—let us toast Texas Tech—"All West Texas" college—and wish for it a long life and unstinted success.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

Buy that season ticket today. It's not too late.

PUPILS AND TREES

Dr. Louis Mendoza, minister, attacks newspapers for printing interviews with the late, esteemed horticulturist, Luther Burbank, on the subject of religion.

The minister reasons that Burbank, being a gardener and digger of the soil, was not just the man to be asked about God, Heaven and Hell.

"About the same as interviewing a ball player on the Einstein theory," says the minister.

We think that an unfair parallel. The person on the outside looking in may see equally as well as the one on the inside looking out. Is the pulpit any closer to the mysteries of the spirit than the great tree from which it was carved?

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING UP
BROADWAY

NEW YORK, June 11.—See-sawing up and down Manhattan Isle, I was made most happy at noting the democracy of gardens. For in the most valuable garden in the world, for its size, were growing weeds even as in my humble own. And a gardener was going about weeding even as I of Sundays. This garden is a little green square, enclosed by a high ornamental fence, at the front of millionaire H. C. Frick's mansion on Fifth avenue. Its value lies not in the type of plant to be seen, but in the land which, mayhap, is worth as much as a million dollars.

Street hucksters on Broadway selling copies of "Dan Magrew" and "The Face on the Bar-room Floor"—One of them tells me that folk still learn them and recite them despite the closing of the saloons. He sells several hundred a day.

Wooden bars and other barriers begin to appear over Fifth avenue and Madison avenue doors and windows indicating the flight of society for summer resorts.

Saw Winthrop Ames, the Mayflower's sole contribution to Broadway. He cometh directly down from the good Winthrops and Ames who stepped ashore on Plymouth Rock. Just now he finds himself an idol, thanks to his kindly treatment of the late Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan.

Saw Al Woods, the producer, in the process of being relieved of a cigar by one Rahman Bey, a great Egyptian fakir. And, truly, any magician who can relieve the portly Al of a cigar is really great.

Saw Olga Mayre, and though her name be strange to you here is an other of Broadway's romances.

She comes from Costa Rica where her father was a man of note, having been consul to Belgium and having been made a chevalier. Leaving the diplomatic service he came to New York where the pretty Olga took singing lessons. One day she was singing at a tea given by the Countess de Frees when her voice attracted the notice of Commander Thomas Gregory, who recommended the young lady for the stage. Now she is fast on her way to permanent stardom. Thus Broadway writes its romances about folk of the social world as well as the struggling lowly one.

Why, will some one tell us, is it that pretty maids who display their entire charms in the musical shows, are first to pull down their skirts when sitting in an agent's office waiting for a "call"?

ALL AT SEA

Sister has a bathing suit. My, oh my, but it's a beauty. Kinda short, and tight, but, shoot, even so it looks real cute. Father saw it. Calmly smiled. Feltin' proud 'cause she's his child. She goes swimmin', thusly styled. That's what makes the wild waves wild.

'Nother sweetie, lookin' grand, rather lost upon the sand. Doesn't bathe, but, understand, she prefers to get real tanned. Nothin' else she'd rather do. Sits and suns an hour or two. Goes away when she is through. That's what makes the ocean blue.

Still another little pip, goes up on a fishing trip, with her dad, who likes his sip. Kind, you know, that's the hip. Four miles out, so he should fret. Drops it in, so cold 'twill get. Hasn't spilled a drop as yet. That's what makes the sea upset.

Good hard work is the main thing that keeps a man from not succeeding.

Most people can keep a promise just about as easy as they can a secret—which is why it's foolish to make promises.

The number of reasons why a father and mother get little rest on a vacation trip depends on how many children they have.

He walked up to his sweetie's dad. The question that he put, "Was, 'Can I have your daughter's hand?"

WASHINGTON
LETTERORATORICAL LAVA FLOWS
'ROUND CONGRESS' DESKS

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

"And 'tis remarkable that they talk most who have the least to say." —Prior.

WASHINGTON. — Congress, in the last few days, has been in a state of oratorical eruption such as Washington hasn't witnessed in a long time. I say "witnessed" advisedly. No-body stays and listens to it.

It's all because election is coming. The lawmakers have been wanting to get home for quite a while, to find out what shape their fences are in, and fix them, if necessary.

The managers, however, weren't able to get through with their season's program as early as they had hoped, which has kept the session stringing along.

Tied by the leg here in the capital, the worried legislators have been forced to the expedient of making their political speeches in the Senate and House of Representatives, "extending" 'em in the Congressional Record, "ad infinitum" — and "ad nauseum" in some instances — and mauling 'em by the bale to their districts.

"Plenty of eloquence but little wisdom" as C. Sallust Crispus once remarked about a speech he'd been listening to in the Roman senate in 45 B. C., or thereabout.

The senators and representatives who really have anything important to say have been too busy recently, with the wind-up work of the session, to say it. They've said nothing and mowed wood. Most of the talking has been done by the ones whose first consideration is to get themselves re-elected.

I know of one congressman who made a ringing speech about nothing in particular and sent 30,000 copies of it, which is an awful stack, to his constituents.

For all the effect they have on Congress I don't believe one speech in 100 does any good anyway. They never seem to change any votes.

Some congressmen swear by the system. Some give it the laugh. If they themselves can't agree, how is a non-politician to know? Personally, I don't imagine many people would care to wade through a dozen or 20 pages of uninteresting fine print when it's so much easier to find out what a congressman thinks by duly noting how he votes, but you can't tell. Two tastes are never just alike.

Two-thirds of the senators, but none of the representatives, are unaffiliated by all the hustle and bustle of these concluding congressional days.

Their terms don't expire this time. There's a striking contrast between the atmosphere of the office of a national lawmaker who's just going into a hot campaign and the office of one who still has from two to four years more to serve. The former is an atmosphere of strife and tension, the latter of placid calm.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts BartonTHE BATHTUB TOY
AND A DUCK

The duck bent over and looked at them closely.

The alligators kept spinning the Twins around until you couldn't have told them from tops.

"Oh, dear!" gasped Nancy. "My goodness!" cried Nick.

"Aren't they cute?" laughed the fat alligator with the ruffles and the velvet basque. "Let's take them home to our children. They would make lovely bathtub toys. I wonder if they float."

But before Mister Alligator could answer, an enormous duck, quite as large as an elephant, waddled up.

"What are they?" he quacked. "We don't know," said the alligators, putting out her paw or her foot or her hand, or whatever it is alligators have.

fore anyone could stop her, she grabbed Nancy with one paw and Nick with the other and pushed hard.

"Ouch!" cried Nancy. "Ouch!" cried Nick.

"That's fine," said the duck. "I shall take them home to my children."

"I just guess you won't," quacked the duck. "They're mine."

"Just listen," said Mrs. Alligator indignantly. "They belong to us, my dear sir. We discovered them."

"Why, you're only an old bathtub toy, both of you are!" said the duck. "You're made of rubber, and so is this old fish here. I've got real feathers, I'll have you know."

"You're only a Christmas tree toy yourself," retorted Mister Alligator. "Your feathers are all pasted on and your bill is made of paper and your feet are made of wax and wire. So are your legs."

At this Mrs. Alligator grabbed the duck by the tail and Mister Alligator grabbed him by the neck and the feathers began to fly in all directions.

"I think I'll be going," said the fish uneasily, putting his eye-glasses away in his pocket. "I'm not sure about my scales. I think they are only painted on, but if they should come off like the duck's feathers, I'd be a remarkable sight."

He hesitated a minute as he looked at the Twins, as though he had a notion to tuck one under each fin and walk off with them.

But he changed his mind and disappeared.

"Let's run!" whispered Nick. "Stop them!" shouted the alligators. But although dozens of hands and paws reached out for them, the Twins kept on going. At last they reached the end of the town and sat down on a stone to rest.

Helpful Health Hints

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMINGS
Director General U. S. Public Health Survey

It is an exceedingly difficult task to prevent the introduction of plague in rats without paralyzing our commerce, though every reasonable effort is being made to prevent the importation of infected rats by means of inspections, fumigations, and other measures.

It is not possible in this article to discuss the measures necessary for the control of plague once it is present in a given population. It may be said, however, that the pneumonic form is best combatted by isolation of the cases and preventing the travel of persons who have been exposed.

It is very important, by the development of economic conditions among all classes, to obviate the necessity for people living huddled together under insanitary conditions and being forced to subsist on poor and insufficient food.

In other words, the prevention of slums; and the way to prevent slums is to give every one a living wage, a decent place to live, and enough good plain clothes to wear and food to eat.

The fight against the bubonic and the septicemic types of plague is a fight against rodents, chiefly rats. Rats can be fought effectively in only one way, namely, by the ratproofing of buildings, preferably at the time the buildings are constructed. Ships also ought to be made as nearly as rat proof as possible.

What is the treatment for plague? Unfortunately, in the pneumonic and septicemic types of this disease, almost nothing can be done. In the bubonic type, fresh anti-plague serum should be given freely as early in the course of the disease as possible.

Rooms for convention visitors are difficult to obtain, report committees of the chamber of commerce. It is time for Amarillo to take inventory on convention plans. For three years Amarillo fought for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting. It promised adequate accommodations.

Early this spring, after Amarillo's hotels became congested on account of the oil boom, officials of the West Texas organization gave Amarillo an opportunity to have the convention changed to another city.

"We'll take care of them," was the city's reply. "We want the convention."

The time is near at hand. Reports from every hand indicate an attendance far surpassing any previous convention. Rooms for the visitors must be obtained in homes. There is no other way to care for the crowds.

If our visitors and our guests are forced to sleep in the streets, as they will unless Amarillo gets busy, this city will receive the worst black eye of its history. This is a job that calls for cooperation from everybody. Am-

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, buy a home of their own when the advertising agency in which John is a partner and copy writer, lands an important new contract.

Previous chapters told of the impression made on John by NEEL ORME, whom he met at a swimming party while Fay was in the hospital, and who, according to PAT FORBES, was having trouble with her husband. Months later the Milburns, dining at the Forbes, meet the Ormes there, and Fay tells John how charming she thinks Neel Orme is.

A party is given by NOEL and VERA BOYD and Vera shows an interest in John which he does not return but which is noticed by Fay and precipitates a quarrel.

During a poker game in a hotel Noel Boyd, who is playing with John, Menefee, PAT FORBES and PAUL DAVIDSON, calls his wife and says he is not coming home. He tells the group of men that it would have been all right with Vera if he had told her he was with another woman, and Pat Forbes wants to know whether he would condone similar indiscretions on Vera's part. The others are a little shocked and Noel, growing drunk, accuses them of being hypocrites. When they go, they leave Noel in the room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

"All right, Pat," John said to Forbes, and, turning to Paul Davidson, he complained. "The fault I find with Noel is not that he busts loose occasionally—I guess a lot of married men do that—but that he is so unconcerned over his affairs—and so blatant."

"I understand," Paul answered. "What you are trying to say is that wrong doing, or what is no regarded, is not as bad if we are ashamed of it. When it no longer bothers our conscience, we are sinners indeed."

Pat Forbes was strangely silent, and John after a moment said, "Well, yes, but a little more than that. He takes the attitude that it is all right to raise the devil, so long as you take everybody into your confidence. My own idea is that I'd feel a little ashamed and would want to keep my mouth shut. I maintain that a man is more decent if he takes his thing and then says nothing than if he broadcasts it."

"Good Lord! Why should he boast about the arrangement he has with his wife?"

"Noel," said Forbes quietly, "is less the honest man than the braggart. He rather prides himself on his conquests. Why, if we'd let him, he'd have told us about his women tonight. Now, to my way of thinking, that's a schoolboy trick—bragging about a thing like that."

"I'd like to know where he gets his statistics on infidelity," spoke Menefee.

"Oh, he's probably right," said Davidson, "or pretty close to it."

"Well, I don't think so," Menefee said doggedly.

"Not," and Paul smiled.

"Well, I'd just like to bet," put in Forbes, "that if Vera went out and had her fling, Noel would pretty soon be as conventional as the next one, and would be committing murder or starting a divorce suit or something. Those birds have logic on their side, I'll admit—fellows like Noel with their modern ideas. But when the shoe begins to pinch their own feet they forget some of their pretty arguments."

"I may be old-fashioned," began John, "but I believe the vast majority of married men play pretty square with their wives."

"So do I," chimed in Menefee.

"Oh, I don't know," said Davidson. "Marriage, of course is an outlandish institution. It stifles natural impulses. Men and women both—men more so—are inclined to be polygamous, yet each resists any inclination toward wandering on the part of his mate."

"If that were true," John replied, "marriage wouldn't survive."

"I'm not sure that it will survive," said Paul calmly.

John frowned. "That's your hope?"

Davidson laughed. "Thanks. However, John, if I were a married man and I happened to kick over the traces, I think I'd regard myself as a trifle more decent if I said nothing about it. Of course, if I met a woman I thought I'd tried more than my wife, I'd tell the wife about it. That should be only fair."

"Although," said Menefee, "it might hurt her pretty badly."

"Still," remarked Davidson, "it would be the best way out of a bad situation."

John laid his hand on Paul's arm. "I agree with you," he said, and he and Pat Forbes climbed into the latter's automobile while Davidson hopped into Dick's.

"I wonder," mused Pat, after a long silence, "whether Noel Boyd has found out something about me and was holding it over my head tonight. You saw how cocksure he seemed in narrowing down his accusations to you and me."

"Oh, forget it!" John struggled against the wind to light a cigarette. "Noel Boyd," he said, "gives me a pain."

"He stands just about so much more from him and then I'll smash him." Forbes jaw set in grin lines and his eyes were menacing.

The remainder of the winter dragged on unevenly. John saw the days gradually lengthen and spring flowers bloom, and Judith, who was approaching her first birthday, was a source of much amusement to him with her attempts at speech and her first clumsy efforts at walking.

She had reached that stage where she could stand alone—a little unsteadily, it was true—and she could also make progress around the room by holding on to things.

Each evening when he came home Fay had a new word to announce in Judith's vocabulary.

"She said 'mamma' today," Fay told him one evening.

"You know, she's been calling me mama. Today I told her to say mother—and she said it."

"Oh, is that equivalent," laughed John. "Where is the little nuisance? I want to try her out."

He found Judith wandering through the dining room, her hands clutching desperately at the table legs and whatever support she could find.

"Come here," he said, and lifted her high in the air while she squealed and wiggled her delight.

"Here," she demanded when he put her down, and he went through the performance again.

He called to Fay, "The little dickens would have me playing acrobat all evening if I'd do it. She never tires."

"I got a letter from mother today," Fay told him. "She says if I don't come home for a visit and bring Judith she'll disinherit me, and if that threat fails to move me she'll come out here and drag me back by force."

John smiled. "Well, there's no law against your going home, I guess. When would you like to go?"

"I had thought it would be best if we waited until you decided to take your vacation. Then you could spend some time there, too."

"I don't believe I'll take much of a vacation, Fay. Things are busy and will be for quite a while. Tell you what I'll do. Whenever you make up your mind to go, I'll go along and stay for a few days and then come back. Why don't you go this month? Here it is May, Judith will be a year old next month. She's old enough to stand a train trip pretty well."

"Perhaps if we wait you'll be able to stay longer," said Fay.

John shook his head. "Don't think we ought to wait. My folks haven't seen the baby, and neither has your father. You know they're all dying to get a look at her. Sooner the better, Fay," and he took his seat at the dinner table.

"But what will you do while I'm gone?" Fay asked him.

"Oh, I'll get along all right."

"I hate to think of you all alone here while I'm enjoying myself in Houston."

"That's all right. Don't waste any pity on me. I've got friends here, you know, and if I ever get homesick for a real square meal I can find plenty of tables around town to shove my legs under. Besides," and he transferred a forkload of dinner to his mouth and mumbled his words, "do us good to be away from each other a while."

Fay looked at him sharply. "What do you mean, John? Are you getting tired of me?"

"Course not. And I don't think you're getting tired of me. Blame it all, you know what I mean, Fay. It'll do us both good not to have the other around for awhile. I don't care how smoothly any two people get along, the time comes when they commence to get on each other's nerves and the only thing to do is to get away from each other for a while."

"Neighbors' Wives"

"I'm sorry I get on your nerves, and I'm sorry I get on your nerves," said Fay, and John was about to make an angry retort when he glanced to look at her closely and observed that she was smiling.

"Poor John, you do get so mad at me, don't you?" she teased him, and though he tried to look stern he was forced, in spite of himself, to laugh.

"Why can't you be serious?" he said, and plucked once more into the plans for Fay's homecoming.

"Suppose," he suggested, "we plan on leaving in about two weeks?"

"Are you going to get your own team while you're here alone?" Fay asked him.

"Not even your breakfast?"

"Not a meal. Besides being a rotten cook, I hate the thought of washing dishes. So that's out as the fellow said."

"Stop using slang John. I just don't like the idea of you eating all your meals at restaurants. You'll be having indigestion."

"Oh, the old stomach is in pretty good shape. And I'll try to get in an occasional eighteen holes of golf to keep in trim."

Two weeks later they left for Houston, John engaging a stateroom on the train.

They were met at the station by a delegation of four, and Judith was promptly seized and made much over by two enthusiastic sets of grandmothers.

With two grandmothers both crazy to take care of Judith, Fay felt free then she had at any time during the last year and she immediately set up to have a good time. All her old croquet—spad most of John—were assured of their homecoming and every minute was taken up, what with teas and theaters, bridge and dancing and as John put it nearly "everything on the calendar."

John found that he could stay for a week and during that time he and Fay and the baby lived with his people. It was agreed this Fay's parents should claim their daughter and grandchild after John's departure.

He said to her one night, on their way home from a dance at one of the country clubs, "We're lucky, Fay, that our people get along so well with one another."

"I'm very happy, John," Fay said, pressing his hand.

The next day John left for Dallas, and his father brought Fay and Judith down to see him off.

"Take care of Judy," he said to Fay as he kissed her goodby.

"I will," she promised, "and you be careful of yourself, John."

"Oh, don't worry about me," he called back and swung aboard the train, and filled with high purpose and the best of resolutions, he set out for Dallas, where circumstances or fate—call it what you will—were waiting to make him a plaything.

BRAZILIAN TAKES SEAT AT LEAGUE CONFERENCE

GENEVA, June 11. (AP)—Dr. Afranio Melo Franco, Brazil's representative, who absent himself from the opening meeting of the League of Nations Council took his seat at the conference table at yesterday's session.

The British foreign secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain, opened the proceedings with a glowing tribute to the "League of Nations and Austria for successfully achieving the financial rehabilitation of that country. On his motion a resolution was adopted terminating the league control of Austria's finances on June 29.

He revealed that the reconstruction of Austria seemed well nigh hopeless when the league took the situation in hand, and remarked that all the greater honor should be paid to the league for succeeding in the great enterprise. He also paid tribute to Austria's good faith and cooperation.

SLATON STARTS LEGION POST AT PEPPY MEETING

LUBBOCK MEN ASSIST IN PRELIMINARY WORK OF ORGANIZATION

(Special To The Journal)

SLATON, June 11.—The ex-servicemen of Slaton and immediate territory have joined in the spirit of "Carry On" that was such a familiar phrase following the close of the World War, and will band themselves into an American Legion Post for co-operative effort toward the uplift of their community, state and nation. The nucleus of what it is believed will be a very live Legion post was present last night at an organization meeting when a delegation of Lubbock legionnaires was present to give inspiration, suggestion and any other assistance possible.

Following several short talks by members of the Lubbock post who recounted briefly the purposes, aims and objects of the organization, temporary officers were elected, a petition for a charter was signed by all Slaton ex-servicemen present and other matters relating toward organization were discussed. Dr. E. C. Foster, of Slaton, was elected acting commander of the contemplated post, and L. M. Kelly was elected acting adjutant.

The petition for charter, to which thirteen names were affixed at the meeting, was placed in the hands of a committee, who will seek additional signers during the next few days, and another meeting will be held Thursday night, June 24 when a name for the post will be selected.

Various phases of Legion activity were discussed by members of the Lubbock post. Homer L. Pharr, discussed the successes and reversals of the Legion at Lubbock and other places that have come under his observation, told of the accomplishments of the Legion as a national organization for the ex-servicemen, and touched briefly on the great program ahead of the organization.

Hubert L. Allen, charter member of Allen Bros. Post at Lubbock spoke a few minutes on "Comradeship," explaining that the Legion is the only really exclusive organization in America, and that it can be made a great source of good fellowship and a real benefit to the community in which it is located if ex-servicemen eligible for membership will band themselves together in a spirit of mutual helpfulness and community building.

Harley D. Woods, commander of the Lubbock Post brought out a very suggestion when he explained that the American Legion is absolutely non-sectarian and non-political in its every true meaning, and that only by maintaining the perfection of the national constitution can a Post expect to survive. He said that the Legion is a place of assembly for ex-servicemen where they may discuss their problems, past, present and future, but that the Legion should and cannot legally or otherwise be used for furtherance of any personal ambitions.

The organization of the Post here is expected to be completed at the next meeting, by which time it is believed that at least 25 or 30 names will be affixed to the application for charter. The potential strength of the Post in Slaton and immediate vicinity is believed to be more than 250, and an earnest effort is to be made to bring this membership together. About 20 Lubbock legionnaires were present at the meeting last night.

TEXAN RECOUNTS ESCAPE WITH BANDITS

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., June 11. (AP)—

Captured in the bottom of an abandoned mine by a police bandit, forced to write a letter for his own ransom, and behind his fellow captive strangled into submission at the end of a rope, Jules B. Gallagher, 34, was home here today to tell of his experiences at the hands of Mexican bandits.

He was captured with C. C. Braden of Laredo near Descurtidora, Durango and held for 10 days, being rescued by Mexican Federal troops.

Gallagher and Braden were inspecting an old mine, when Galindo and his band came upon them, said Gallagher. Galindo, he related, invited them to become his guests and they were taken to an old Spanish hacienda in the mountains.

After several days, Galindo ordered the captives to write letters to their families asking $5,000 ransom each. Gallagher wrote under protest, but Braden refused.

The bandits brought rope, Gallagher said, "and Braden securedly about the body, hands behind, and then slipped a rope around his neck."

"The rope, not being noosed, did not quite strangle, but after a while his face grew red and began to strain. Finally he murmured something and Galindo ordered him cut down. He then wrote the letter."

"The surprise attack by Federal troops was made possible because one of the guards fell asleep, Galindo and Corral, his aid, were standing by us when the attack began. He ordered the men to hold on and began firing with revolvers, standing in the open in the center of his band. Corral fell dead. Two others were killed. Galindo himself was wounded when he turned to us and said:

"Goodbye, my friends. We'll meet again, I hope, and then escaped."

NEW HEARING IN GURLEY CASE IS ASKED BY STATE

ACT FOLLOWS DECISION THAT ACCUSED MAN MUST BE FREED

(By Associated Press.)

AUSTIN, June 11.—The state's motion for rehearing of habeas corpus proceedings before the Court of Criminal Appeals was submitted today in the extradition of A. J. Gurley, former sheriff of Miller county, Arkansas, convicted of a misuse of public funds, Wright Patterson of Texarkana appeared for the state.

Because the state failed to cite that the Arkansas Supreme court declared Gurley's pardon by acting governor invalid, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals previously instructed that Gurley be freed.

Motion for re-hearing of S. F. Larson, fined $50 and sentenced to ten days in jail in Jefferson county for violation of the medical practice act, was overruled. "The appellant's contention that the law is discriminatory and unconstitutional because it requires a diploma before he is eligible for examination is unsound and not supported by the authorities," the court said.

The three murder sentences affirmed at the appellant's motion for re-hearing overruled in two murder cases, and application for leave to file a second motion for rehearing denied in one case.

Those affirmed: R. B. Butler ten years from Jones county in connection with the killing of Viola Butler, Aug. 20, 1925; J. T. Persons, five years from Falls county in connection with the

READ THE TRUTH ABOUT KILLING INSECT PESTS

In the first place—
don't pay a Big Price for an insecticide

WHY pay a big price for an insecticide or buy expensive spraying apparatus when so little as 25c buys a generous size of Bee Brand Insect Powder—sufficient to rid your home of insects, or to prevent insects invading it for a long time to come. Bee Brand Insect Powder is not only a most effective insecticide, but it is also the least expensive.

Bee Brand Won't Explode
You can use Bee Brand Insect Powder anywhere, near an open fire or flame of any sort, without danger. It will not explode nor is it easily inflammable. An insecticide that is explosive, or highly inflammable is a menace—a fire risk.

What of the Plants?
Dare you apply your present insecticide to plants? If you wish to remove insects from plants or flowers, or if you wish to use Bee Brand in a room where plants and flowers are, have no fear. It will not harm them. Bee Brand is non-poisonous. Dust it or sprinkle it on your pets and domestic animals. It will not harm them. Eat it if you wish—it will not hurt you.

How Much Apparatus
None is necessary. If you prefer to use the little puffer gun, the cost is only 10c. Blow Bee Brand Insect Powder from a piece of paper. It floats in the air and its fine particles kill Flies, Mosquitoes, and Moths. Dust it in cracks and crevices, or about the furniture, it kills Roaches, Water Bugs, Fleas, Lice and Bedbugs.

Settle It Once and for All
You know what kind of soap serves you best. Modern sanitation has made insect powder as necessary as soap. If you have never used Bee Brand you have not yet found the most effective and least expensive insecticide. Order it by name and insist on getting it.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, June 11. (P)—The selling movement responsible for the sharp break in the cotton market yesterday was resumed today at the opening which was easy at a decline of seven to 17 points. The market soon showed net losses 20 to 25 points on active positions. October and all later deliveries making new lower records for the season.

Further liquidation came from tied longs, together with Southern, local and commission houses selling on the more optimistic view of coming crop prospects, while the bulk of the demand was attributed to covering by shorts. Combined with some price fixing, however, it proved sufficient to check the break around 17.80 for July and 16.50 for October, prices showing rallies of two or three points from the lowest at the end of the first hour.

A private report placing the condition of the crop at 75.5 compared with an estimate of 71 by the same authority at the end of May, 1925, probably contributed to the early decline. There was enough covering and trade buying to absorb heavy offerings around the 16¢ level for December contracts, however, and there were rallies later in the morning. December sold up to 16.65, and was holding around 16.50 at midday when active months were 7 to 12 points net lower. The demand responsible for the mid-day rallies appeared to have been supplied on the recovery to 16.50 for December and prices eased off again later under a renewal of liquidation. Southern and local selling. December sold off to 16.40 with all positions making new low ground for the movement around 2 o'clock, when prices were 28 to 32 points net lower.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 11. (P)—The cotton market opened active and as Liverpool was about as due, first trades on near months showed gains of 1 to 2 points with later positions showing losses of 10 to 11 points. First sold up to 16.65, and was holding around 16.50 at midday when active months were 7 to 12 points net lower. The demand responsible for the mid-day rallies appeared to have been supplied on the recovery to 16.50 for December and prices eased off again later under a renewal of liquidation. Southern and local selling. December sold off to 16.40 with all positions making new low ground for the movement around 2 o'clock, when prices were 28 to 32 points net lower.

The market ruled steadier following the early decline and prices rallied 4 to 7 points on the low on short selling and profit taking. Prospects for better weather and favorable reports from the interior as the crop progress created a bearish sentiment.

Following the slight rally near mid-session the market turned easy again on a renewal of long liquidation and some short selling.

Secretary Hester's mill takings of 174,000 against 186,000 last year were disappointing all active months making new lows, 27 to 30 points below the previous close. The market at the beginning of the last hour was still on the down grade.

HOLD TEXAS WOOL

SAN ANTONIO, June 11. (P)—Short wool totaling 70,000 pounds, assembled by the Scriener interests of Kerrville, will be held from the market pending an improvement in prices. A long wool was sold by sealed bids to J. L. Allison of San Angelo and C. D. Stokes of Lampasas, both said to represent Eastern buyers. The price paid was not announced.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, June 11. (P)—Confused price movements characterized the opening of today's market. Over night business and financial developments were rather colorless in character so that the early trading represented largely the shifting of speculative accounts. Ralls continued firm, with Gulf, Mobile and Northern opening a point higher. Bullish demonstrations also took place in a few specialties. Onyx Hosiery and Butterick Publishing moving up high records for the year while General Electric showed an initial gain of 1 point. Rubber were heavy, Goodrich sagging a point on the first sale.

Prices swung upward soon after the opening when heavy buying was resumed in U. S. Steel common and General Motors, which advanced 2 and one half points, respectively, before the end of the first half hour. Ralls also took on a new lease of life with buying presumably influenced by the favorable nature of current traffic and earnings reports. Union Pacific assumed leadership of that group by crossing 151 to a new high level for the year while Seaboard Airline, Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville climbed a point higher. Faced by the prospect of easier money by the end of the month, pools resumed buying of many specialties. May Department Stores advancing 2 1/2 points. Internal Combustion 2, and Coca Cola, Owens Bottle and American Car and Foundry a point or so. Ray Copper touched another high level for the year.

Foreign exchanges opened irregular. Demand sterling ruled unchanged near $4.86, but French francs dropped six points to 2.90 cents, Belgian 4 to 2.95¢, cents and Italy to 2.04.

WOOL REPORT

BOSTON, June 11. (P)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: There is a higher movement in wool bales to the westward and the woolen mills which have been augmented by a big export movement. Prices are not greatly changed, and some quotations may be a bit lower as compared with a week ago, but sentiment in the trade as the week ends is better than for some time. Buying in the West has continued moderately and no one seems disposed to hurry matters, reflecting the slow demand for goods and clothing, which even now persists, although the outlook seems more hopeful.

London showed a slight easing on the finer wool stored the close of the colonial series.

Mohair is virtually firm. Wool quotations: Scoured basins, Texas, fine 12-months (selected) $1.10; fine 8-months $0.95; 1.00.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 11. (P)—Foreign exchanges irregular; Great Britain demand $4.86 1-16; cables $4.86 9-16; 60-day bills on banks 4.82 3-16. France demand 2.91 3/4; cables 2.93 1/4; Italy demand 2.62 1/2; Belgium 2.90; Germany 23.80; Tokyo 46.75; Montreal 100.10 15-16.

Grain Markets

CHICAGO REPORT
CHICAGO, June 11. (P)—Rain West and Northwest affording relief from drought tended to ease down wheat values today during the early dealings. Starting 3/4 off to 1/4 up, the wheat market later showed moderate declines all around.

Corn and oats were weaker, corn opening unchanged to half cent off, and the sagging all around. Provisions turned stronger.

sonal organization. The Senator told the committee he did not know about expenditures by the joint committee, which finally had charge of his campaign. He presented a list of those making up his own state campaign committee, and Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, chairman of the committee, remarked that the names of many women appeared on the list.

"Did they stick to you throughout the campaign?" Reed asked.

"They did, God bless them," replied Pepper.

The Pennsylvania Senator, who with Governor Pinchot was defeated for nomination to the Senate by Representative Vane, presented a list showing contributions of $84,000 to his own campaign fund. He added that there was a deficit of between $20,000 and $25,000.

"In other words," he added, "my friends spent something like $112,000 or $114,000."

He promised complete figures by June 17.

Joseph R. Grundy of Bristol, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, was the next witness.

Expenditure Is Large.

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—Expenditures of the Pennsylvania primary ticket headed by Senator Pepper, republican, were $115,000 in Eastern Pennsylvania, Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, estimated today before the Senate campaign funds committee.

Of this amount about $100,000 is yet to be collected.

CITY DADS VOTE TWO AND TWO ON PIPELINE PLANS

thick and fast among proponents and opponents of the proposal. The Lubbock Kiwanis club went on record at its regular weekly luncheon as almost unanimously favoring the proposal, and interest has been running high throughout the city since the first announcement of the possibility of securing natural gas.

Mayor Parrish, following his return to the city after several days' absence due to a death call, voted opposition to the plan with reservations, saying that if the proposal was a bona fide business proposition, he would favor it without hesitation.

The proposal of Mr. McMahon and associates is that they will pipe natural gas to Lubbock and all intervening points from the Panhandle field, extending the lines on to Station without a guarantee or bonus of any nature. He asked only a franchise to do business in the city of Lubbock. His proposal called for the laying of a fourteen inch main from the field to Amarillo, a twelve inch line from Amarillo to Plainview, a ten inch line from Plainview to Lubbock, and a smaller line on to Station, with at least three pressure stations along the route to insure adequate pressure at all points.

The proposal further recites that work of construction on the mains will begin within ninety days after the franchise is issued, that the line would be to the city limits of Lubbock by December 1, and would be available through lateral lines in the city not later than January 1. Mr. McMahon promised that under favorable conditions, he believed that the gas would be available in Lubbock by November 1st.

Other towns along the route of the proposed line, while exceptionally interested in the proposition, have been holding up definite action pending a final decision by Lubbock, according to reports reaching here.

"The hero of the future is to be the man who does the most to enrich and conserve humanity rather than the warrior that has been pictured in the past," Dr. Seleckman said in this talk, which was a review of the accomplishments of man and a vision of what he may accomplish in the future.

"Progress is man's distinctive mark alone," the speaker quoted, saying that no other creature has the power to learn and to impart knowledge as does man.

The lives of great inventors, scientists, writers, moralists and other men should illustrate to people that man is capable of attaining much that he has not reached in the past and these men should be looked upon as a type of what the average can reach, rather than the exception, he said. Humanity faces toward the rising sun today and the possibilities are untold, he stated.

"My dream of the future," he concluded, "is that the progress of the world is marked by a gradual elimination of methods of destruction and a state wherein men live by the law of love."
