Second Tahoka Round-Up Is Declared Big Success By All

12,000 People Were Here Second Day Of Celebration

Thousands of people from many towns on the South Plains and from over Lynn county enjoyed two days of festivities last Thursday and Friday at the second annual Tahoka Roundup, one of the biggest events of its kind ever staged in this section.

At least three or four thousand people were in town Thursday, and Friday fully 9,000 were served free barbecue, and the crowd for the day exceeded 12,000 people. Claude Wells and his efficient staff of workers did a fine job of preparing and serving this immense meal.

The rodeo, sponsored by the Lynn County Rodeo Association, and directed by Butler Bros. of Elk City, Oklahoma, was one of the best ever seen in this part of West Texas. The stock was among the roughest ever seen anywhere. Sixty cowboys were entered from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

B. J. Leedy is general chairman of the Association presenting the celebration; R. W. Fenton Jr. heads the important finance committee; A. P. Edwards is chairman of the Board of Directors; and W. T. Bovell, Lee Roy Knight and Sam Price compose the rodeo committee.

Each day's program opened at 10:30 a. m. with a concert by the state champion Slaton high school band, under the direction of Clyde Rowe. Sixty strong, dressed in red uniforms, with black and gold

Neta Dulin, 9, Is Death Victim

Little Miss Neta Dulin, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Dulin, who reside 12 miles north of Tahoka, died in a Lubbock hospital Saturday morning at 11:15, after a long illness from nephritis.

Funeral services were held at the Harris funeral home Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Geo. A. Dale, pastor of the Baptist Church, and burial followed in Tahoka cemetery.

The little girl had been suffering for many months from a disease of the kidneys. She was born at San Angelo September 19, 1929, and moved to this county with her parents several years ago.

Surviving are the parents, two sisters, Mrs. Fay Dunn of Tucson, Arizona, and Thelma Lee of the family home; and five brothers, Burl, Kemp, Cene, Garlan, and Arlan, who also are at home.

The Dulin family have many friends in the Wayside and Crossroads areas, as well as at Tahoka and Wilson, who mourn the death of this little girl.

Rent Houses Are In Demand

For the past two or three years citizens have been turned away from Tahoka because of a shortage of suitable living quarters for renters.

This week alone, The News has had seven or eight inquiries for houses and apartments, and the fall season is not yet here.

The town faces another rush season with insufficient rent houses.

Missionary At Baptist Church

Mrs. B. L. Lockett, returned missionary from China, will speak at the Baptist Church Sunday night according to Mrs. Geo. A. Dale, on her work and experiences in that foreign land.

She is spending this week in the Brownfield Association, and while doing so is visiting with Mrs. W. J. West, north of town.

Five Are Charged In Cutting Scrape

Charges were filed against five Lynn county citizens this week as the result of a fight of near-serious consequences on the down-town streets Friday afternoon.

C. C. Thompson and C. B. Evans were each charged with aggravated assault, and C. B. Evans Jr., Jumbo Thompson, and Hoyle Branham were each charged with assault and battery.

The altercation was between the two Evans on one side and Mr. Thompson and son, "Jumbo", and brother-in-law, Branham, on the other. The two Evans received knife wounds on the faces and bodies, and both were carried to a Lubbock sanitarium for treatment. C. B. was released Sunday, but the boy, 19 years old, was still in the hospital Thursday with deep cuts in the back. C. C. Thompson suffered severe bruises about the face, especially around the eyes and ears, and was confined to his room several days, but was able to be in town Wednesday.

All parties to the fight were released on bond to await the October term of county court.

Progress Made On Electric Line

John Heck, president of the Lyn-tegar Rural Electric Co-operative, reports that he and seven other men have been signing up customers for lines in Lynn, Terry, and Garza counties and hope to have their work completed this week.

They are now laying special emphasis on lines which will come within about two miles of Tahoka to the north and to the east and on a line in the neighborhood of O'Donnell. However, they yet lack sufficient signers to put these lines over.

As many as three consumers to the mile are needed to secure a rural electric line. The REA proposes to build 300 miles of such line in the three counties if sufficient signers are secured.

McPherson Opens Seagraves Store

J. B. McPherson, proprietor of Mack's Food Store, last Saturday opened a new store in Seagraves with Jack Minor as manager.

Mack reports the store opened with an excellent day's business. The store is said to be one of the best in the town.

Goad, Mrs. Daniel And Mathis Are Vote Winners

Lynn County Voters Refuse To Follow Wishes Of W. Lee O'Daniel

Judge P. W. Goad was returned to the office of county judge, Walter M. Mathis was elected county clerk, and Mrs. A. M. Daniel was elected county treasurer in the run-off primary election held last Saturday. A total of 2831 voters went to the polls, 649 less than voted in the July primary.

Though Lynn county voters had given W. Lee O'Daniel twice as many votes as all his opponents combined in the first primary, they refused to follow his wishes in electing men of his choice. In every race, the O'Daniel "blessed" candidates lost in Lynn county.

Donkey Baseball Game Tonight

Tahoka Rotary Club will match bats with a town team of all-stars tonight at 8 p. m. in a game of donkey baseball at the ball park. A night of fun is promised for all who attend, if last year's game is an indication.

Jake Leedy will be captain of the Rotary team and Prentice Walker of the town team.

A herd of donkeys will be used by players. These donkeys are especially trained to play baseball and to buck off their riders. Some refuse to be mounted, some balk, and others refuse to stand on a base. The donkeys and their riders furnish a hilarious time to spectators and contestants.

Lights will be installed for the game.

Admission fees of 25 and 10 cents will be charged.

Their Returns Preacher's Box

Rev. Ben Hardy gets results from advertising in The News.

Last week he asked, in a classified, that the person who stole his strong box from the study of the Methodist Church please return the same and no questions would be asked. Bro. Hardy went away on a short vacation, and when he returned Tuesday he found the strong box in its place in his study. The box contained papers valuable to the owner but of no value to anyone else.

Bro. Hardy was certainly tickled over the results from the little ad or whoever or whatever was responsible for the return of the box.

School Band Is Added To This Year's Course

The Tahoka school board in called session this week elected J. H. Felts of San Saba to direct band work on a half time basis. This means he will direct band work from 1 to 4 in the afternoon and whatever night practice sessions are necessary.

Mr. Felts has an A. B. degree, Western Kentucky State, Bowling Green, with part of his work off for a Masters degree. He formerly directed the band at San Saba for a number of years. He has had 12 years experience in this work and comes highly recommended. All band work will be affiliated.

Those folks in Tahoka who are not in school but who wish to join the band are requested to register with Mr. Felts at your earliest convenience. School students are requested to consider seriously the band situation in making their schedules for the year.

Mr. Felts is a married man and has two children. He will move his family to Tahoka the latter part of this week.

For the convenience of non-school band members, there will be night practice sessions. Individual private instruction outside of school hours will be on a subscription basis. All other band work will be free to the band members, both students and non-school students.

Faculty Complete, Plans Ready For School

Opening Exercises Will Be Held At 9 A. M. Next Monday Morning

Plans are just about complete for the opening of what is hoped will be another successful year for the Tahoka Public Schools.

Everyone is cordially invited to come to the high school building Monday at 9 a. m., and by your presence and good will help start the new school year in the right way. The opening exercises will begin promptly at 10 a. m.

With the addition of public school music, band work, new curriculum procedure, activity program for all students, and night football it is expected and hoped that Tahoka schools will enjoy one of its most active and successful years.

But regardless of plans and hopes, it will take the unselfish cooperation of the entire district to have the kind of school that our youngsters are entitled to.

The school board has worked diligently and unselfishly in making plans and improvements for the new year. The members appreciate very much the generous words of encouragement that have come to them from time to time as they have gone about their unpaid duties as school board members. Now that plans are about finished and as the community enters the new school year, the Board makes the earnest appeal for the continuation of your cooperation and support to make this the most profitable school year Tahoka has ever had.

The teachers with their qualifications are listed below:

High School
W. T. Hanes, Superintendent, M. A., Texas Tech.
Lee Dodson, H. S. Principal and Mathematics, B. A., W. T. S. C.

School Buses Start Schedule

All Tahoka school buses will run on their regular schedule today, Friday, Sept. 2. Students who will be classified as Juniors and Seniors and who ride buses are expected to come in on their respective buses for registration.

Bus routes will be the same as last year on the South Ward bus, the Three-Lakes bus, the east-bound bus (with 2 minor changes). The route for the Dixie bus will be just as the route followed by the Wilson bus last year. From Dixie the bus will come straight in to Tahoka down the highway. All Tahoka patrons who ride the Dixie bus will catch it on the highway nearest your home.

Bus patrons are reminded that the buses are for your service but that it is practically impossible for the bus to travel to the door of each bus patron. The routes have been made with the sole idea in mind of serving the most people at the least cost to the district. The school officials earnestly solicit your cooperation and support in making the buses do just what has been mentioned above, namely, SERVE THE MOST PEOPLE AT THE LEAST POSSIBLE COST.

The bus drivers for the year will be: South Ward, A. R. Bostick, teacher of grade school; Three Lakes, John Kirkwood, also teacher in grade school; East-bound bus, Bill King; Dixie bus, V. D. Armstrong, teacher in high school.

Farm Problem Still Unsolved After Five Years, Three Bills

By Joseph W. LaBine

Agriculture

Since 1933, Franklin Roosevelt's administration has enacted three major agriculture laws, spending $3,000,000,000 to end the woes of 30,000,000 people on 6,000,000 American farms. Chief victim of this headache is Iowa's onetime Republican, Henry A. Wallace, who turned New Dealer in time to become President Roosevelt's one and only secretary of agriculture.

No business can live by spending alone. To match its $3,000,000,000 outlay, Farm Relief's five-year income has been only $969,258,000, collected in processing taxes before the Supreme court outlawed AAA in 1936. To replace AAA, congress enacted a soil conservation measure calling for periodic land retirement. Last spring this was incorporated in an intricate crop control law drafted by the Farm Bureau federation.

By last week it looked like this latest panacea was failing. To Henry Wallace in Washington came reports of good weather and bountiful crops, surpassing last spring's most fervent hopes. Prices were dropping, but that was only part of the problem. Foreign nations that once bought U. S. wheat, corn, cotton and tobacco have started buying from other surplus-producing countries. Some are even growing their own crops, approaching self-sufficiency.

That Henry Wallace deserved sympathy, was plain. Whether he would get it, was something else. To his office he called reporters, defending his department against charges that farm income has dropped back to 1932 levels. His figures: 1938 income would be $7,500,000,000, against 1932's $4,328,000,000. Not forgotten was the fact that this year's income is weighted with government subsidies.

Already seeking new ways of bolstering U. S. agriculture to a pre-war status, Secretary Wallace left for Montreal, there to discuss with Canadians a way of splitting the world export market between North America's two nations. When he gets back there will be more investigation into the McAdoo-Eicher bill for price fixing and export duties, generally opposed on the grounds that price fixing against processors would place a new hidden tax on consumers.

But next winter, when Farm Relief is again thrown at congress, there must be discussion of the only panaceas yet remaining: export subsidies, federal price fixing and compulsory limitation.

Domestic

Since 1927, Mexico has seized $10,000,000 in American-owned farm lands. Last spring Mexico did even better, confiscating $200,000,000 worth of American-owned oil lands. A month ago, Secretary of State Cordell Hull addressed a courteous note to Mexican President Lazaro Cardenas, asking what this nation intended to do by way of repayment. A few days later came the blunt reply, stating in effect that there is no law or treaty making compensation obligatory, but evincing a desire to pay when, and if, it is economically feasible.

Cordell Hull mulled this unprecedented answer through his mind for two weeks, then decided to try again with another tack. Scolded he: "It is proposed to replace the rule of just compensation by the rule of confiscation. Adoption . . . of any such theory . . . would result in the immediate breakdown of confidence and trust between nations."

Politics

Not since early July had Franklin Roosevelt seen James A. Farley. Since then the former had made a cross-country tour, fished the Pacific and wished for the defeat of anti-New Deal legislators in Georgia, South Carolina, Maryland, New York. The other had been on his own fence-mending expedition, soothing ruffled New Deal nerves as only Jim Farley can do it.

Last week Teacher Farley came to Hyde Park to see his most successful political student once more. Behind closed doors the President and postmaster general talked all afternoon, all evening, part of the next morning. Though no early official announcement was forthcoming, newsmen got their heads together, decided Jim Farley had urged the President to push his "purge" of Maryland's Sen. Millard E. Tydings. Less enthusiastic, thought newsmen, was Jim Farley's reaction to "purge" efforts against Georgia's Sen. Walter F. George and South Carolina's Sen. Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith.

● In Mississippi, where Democratic nomination is tantamount to election, all seven incumbent congressmen were renominated by primary voters.

Religion

In a cabin near Merced, Calif., Mrs. Ola Irene Harwell sat reading the Bible to her husband and two small sons. In the Book of Matthew, Chapter XVIII, she read the eighth verse:

"Therefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee cut them off and cast them from thee; it is better for thee to enter life halt or maimed than having two hands or feet to be cast into everlasting fire."

She read the ninth verse: "And if thine eye offend thee pluck it out and cast it from thee; it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire."

Finishing, Mrs. Harwell picked up her scissors, walked to the woodshed and gouged out one eye, hacked off one hand. Next day at a Merced hospital physicians said she would live.

Miscellany

By seven o'clock one night last week, Chicago's mammoth Soldier field was filled with 100,000 jitterbugs come to enjoy a jam session. Outside, as police closed the gates, milled thousands of other swing addicts who could not get in to hear 20 prominent dance orchestras or watch amateur swingsters swing it. The mob grew, stormed the gates, tore across the carefully sodded turf where bedlam reigned until early next morning. When the last of 200,000 music-mad youngsters had gone home, sad-eyed city officials found Soldier field needed resodding, many other repairs.

● In Rome, the Imperial Japanese empire bestowed on Benito Mussolini its highest decoration for a foreigner, the Supreme Order of the Chrysanthemum.

Foreign

To cope with military-mad Adolf Hitler has been France's biggest problem since the Nazi war leader quit the League of Nations. As Germany advanced her fortifications along the French frontier, Paris took counter steps, designed her magnificent Maginot line. But tonight ago when Adolf Hitler began drilling 1,300,000 troops in Germany's largest peacetime war games, Premier Edouard Daladier was frightened.

Jerking vacationing Frenchmen from their midsummer sluggishness, he suddenly proposed extending the 40-hour week to 48 hours, thereby boosting war industries, increasing general manufacturing output and aiding recovery.

If he expected radical France to take this pronouncement quietly, M. Daladier was badly mistaken. Two cabinet members quickly resigned. Next day, Socialist Leader Leon Blum, whose cabinet was overthrown last spring, threatened to withdraw government support of his party. Paris labor unions met, planning a countermove. Two hundred thousand miners threatened to strike by September 15. Along the Mediterranean coast, all stevedores struck and troops took their places.

By week's end a potentially dangerous situation was apparently smoothed out. Said Leon Blum's party newspaper: "We do not exploit the difficulties which Daladier himself has created. The hour is too grave for that. Next evening M. Blum and M. Daladier talked half an hour over the telephone, seeking conciliation to avoid a crisis while Germany is strutting her military strength. Still unsolved, however, was the problem of finding jobs for 340,000 unemployed now on relief—30,000 more than a year ago. Apparently a longer week would only make this number larger.

Lesson for September 4

SAMUEL: SPIRITUAL REVIVAL

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 7:3-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only. 1 Samuel 7:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Samuel Was Old
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Samuel Grew Old
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Putting God First
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Price Spiritual Revival?

"Revivals are costly. The spiritual awakening which our country so much needs must begin with a spiritual deepening which the church so much needs. There is a price to be paid. . . . Strange gods must be put away, gods of worldly pleasure, worldly ambition, love of ease and self-gratification. It is the unwillingness to pay the price that keeps us from the richness and power of the full spiritual life" (Prof. L. M. Lowell).

Israel had come to the place where the people recognized that they were on the brink of national disaster. They knew they had come to the end of the trail, and were ready to do something about it.

I. Return Unto the Lord (v. 3). Samuel appears in his first public ministry to call on his people to return to the Lord. Back of that public act is the history of a godly life and devoted service to the Lord and to His nation. Such a man can consistently urge others to turn to God.

The response of the people was wholehearted. They were thoroughly sick of their sin and separation from the favor of God. The earnest of their sincerity was their obedience to the admonition of Samuel that they turn from idolatry.

II. Put Away False Gods (vv. 3, 4). Israel had learned from their heathen neighbors to worship their false gods. These they must put away if God was to be able to bless them. The same prerequisite to spiritual revival exists today. But some may say, we do not worship heathen gods. Perhaps not, and yet one is astonished at the close similarity between the ritual and worship of some secret cults and orders and the ancient religions of heathendom.

The fact is that we have set up many new gods—money, fashion, social position, and what not. The command needs to go out again through God's messengers, "Put away the foreign gods."

III. Gather Together and Pray (vv. 5, 6).

Spiritual life thrives on the gathering together of God's people. The crisis in Israel was met by a great convocation of the people. We need to revive the great soul-stirring religious gatherings of a generation ago.

"I will pray," said Samuel. He was a great intercessor. (See 1 Sam. 15:11; Ps. 99:6; Jer. 15:1.) Revival never comes without a history of faithful intercession on the part of those whose hearts are really burdened. Ask yourself, How much have I really prayed for a revival in my church, my community, and my nation? If I should begin to pray in earnest, would not God hear me and answer?

IV. God Will Save Us (v. 8).

"Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened that it cannot save, neither his ear heavy that it cannot hear" (Isa. 59:1). "Thus saith the Lord . . . have I no power to deliver?" (Isa. 50:1, 2). God saved Israel and delivered them out of the hands of their enemies. The Philistines, seeing them gathered together to pray, assumed that they were preparing to fight and attacked. In the previous battle at that very spot (1 Sam. 4:1-10) Israel had fought with the weapons of men and been disgracefully defeated. Now they fought with the weapon of prayer and faith in God, and great was the victory.

America is valiantly battling against the social and economic problems of these distressing days, but one fears that all too often the weapons are those of the arm of flesh which will fail us. Let us look up instead of to one another. "God will save us" (v. 8).

V. Ebenezer (v. 12). Our forefathers, familiar with the truth of Scripture, used biblical words in naming their children. The present generation all too often know the names simply as the strange signatures on old letters. The word "Ebenezer" might well merit a bit of a revival itself. Here Israel had met a disastrous defeat. They were broken by it and had become an almost hopeless people. Now God-had given them victory in the very same spot and they raised a stone of remembrance of God's help. The word "Ebenezer" means "stone of help," but also carries with it the meaning of Samuel's word, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" (v. 12).

There is an inspiring word of hope here for every troubled soul. You may, like Israel, have fallen into sin. Your life may be defeated. You may be utterly discouraged. Return to the Lord, put away sin, gather with God's people, pray, and God will give you victory, even at the very point of former defeat.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Save time with mock smocking.

IF SMOCKING seems to be time consuming, here is a short cut that saves hours. The first step is to shirr the material by machine. Loosen the tension slightly and stitch in straight rows; then pull up the bobbin thread to gather the material.

You will note in the sketch that some of the simple hand stitches are made over two rows of gathers and the others over a single row. Much of the beauty of mock smocking depends upon the spacing of the rows. The double rows of gathers in the sketch, No. 2 and 4, are 1/4-inch apart. The space between these and the single rows should be about 3/4-inch.

Another important point is the choice of colors and an interesting variety of stitches. In the arrangement shown here, rows 1, 3 and 5 are made in the darkest color by back-stitching over the gathers as in row 5 and then working loop-stitches through the back-stitches as in row 1. Row 2 is a version of plain feather stitching, and row 4 is done in the Cretan stitch. Variations of all of these stitches and dozens of others that will be new to you and your friends are fully illustrated in Book 2 offered herewith.

Are you ready for birthdays; and the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. It is full of new ideas for things you can make in your spare time. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—Sewing for the Home Decorator. Order by number enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, a leaflet on crazypatch quilts with 36 authentic stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

Strange Facts

Boy's Name on Coronation Chair

THE famous coronation chair in which all English kings sit for their coronation bears the name of a British school boy. The boy's name is carved in the oak seat. Tradition tells that two Westminster school boys made a bet. P. Abbot bet that he would sleep alone all night in Westminster abbey. The boy wanted to prove that he had stayed in the great dark church which contains the royal dust of Edward the Confessor, the bones of Chaucer, Sir Isaac Newton and many other famous men of Britain. In the chapel of Edward the Confessor is the oak coronation chair. In the seat is carved "P. Abbot slept in this chair January 4, 1801."

Only once has the coronation chair been taken from the abbey. The chair dates from the Fourteenth century. Beneath the seat is the famous stone of scone or "Stone of Destiny." It was brought from Scone, Scotland, by Edward the first. On it Scottish kings were crowned until Edward I brought it to London in 1296. The one occasion when the coronation chair was taken from the abbey was during the time of Oliver Cromwell. It was moved to Westminster hall when Cromwell was installed as Lord Protector. The same famous chair was used in May when George VI was crowned in Westminster abbey.

Humor From the Soil

There is a kind of sturdy humor in the country that the city does not know. A humor that grows straight out of the soil. There may be wit in the city, but wit deals with words; humor with life.

AROUND the HOUSE

Save Ironing.—If sheets are hung on the line dripping wet the weight of the water pulls them down and removes most of the wrinkles. They may then be folded neatly without ironing when dry.

Hang Pictures.—Pictures should be hung about at the level of the eye, but since they also are to be hung in relation to the furniture groups, it is sometimes better to hang one below eye level over a low table or desk, or above eye level over a high chest.

Left-Over Juice.—Save the juice from canned pineapple and the liquid from maraschino cherries to use when making fruit punch.

Perspiration Marks.—To remove perspiration marks from white silk, mix some bicarbonate of soda to a stiff paste with cold water. Spread thickly on the parts and leave for an hour or so before washing. This will also remove scorch marks if they are not very bad.

Better Luck . . . ?
Mr. Jones came down to breakfast in a very bad temper.
"It's no good!" he stormed at his wife. "I'm going to give that new chauffeur notice. That's twice he's nearly killed me."
"Oh, darling," said his wife, "couldn't you give him another chance?"

"You can disregard that vile rumor about the new bathing suit I bought," cries our luscious stenographer, Lotta Kerves. "There's nothing to it!"

Giving the Game Away
"Why did you break off your engagement with her?" the downcast young man was asked by a friend.

"Because she has a parrot which says 'Leave off kissing me, George, or I'll tell mother.'"
"Well, I can't see anything in that."
"Ah! But you forget that my name's Charles."

Spite
"Yes," said the bride-to-be, discussing her wedding plans, "the bridesmaids will be Lola Lemon and—"
"But," said a friend, "I thought you didn't like Lola."
"I don't," replied the bride, "but I'm going to be married in yellow and you know how that will match Lola's complexion."

Come Away, Anne
"Oh, Mummy," said we Annie, "look at that funny man across the road."
"What is he doing?"
"He's sitting on the pavement talking to a banana skin."

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Clean With Soda.—If there is a constant smell of burning when cooking is going on, examine gas burners. They are probably filled with sediment from "boilovers."

Economy Note.—Pieces of ribbon that come on gift boxes may be utilized in making shoulder straps for underwear. Cut them into six or eight-inch strips.

CHAPTER I

Hale settled deeper into the office chair and kept his brown eyes on Casper Kneeland's face. Kneeland had been "Uncle Cass" the last time they met. That was 18 years ago, out in the Northwest, when Hale himself had been a boy of ten. Kneeland was not "Uncle Cass" now. He was an impressive, successful, middle-aged New York business man. He had made a fortune by inventing a simple article widely known as Kneeland's Safety Catch. He was busy, preoccupied, and rather short of memory concerning ten-year-olds. He had welcomed Hale into the office suite of his factory with a handshake and a business-like smile. Now he was "making talk," and Hale resented it.

Kneeland might have forgotten a ten-year-old godchild, the caller told himself. He should not have forgotten that godchild's father. Hale Senior had been Kneeland's first partner and the closest friend of his youth. It had been a fine friendship. Yet here, 18 years later, was a Casper Kneeland equally vague in memory of the Hales, father and son, and talking too smugly, the young man thought, about his interests.

Listening to him, as the man sat at his handsome flat-top desk and poured out his trickle of small talk, Hale realized that "Uncle Cass" had not yet wearied of the flavor of his success. He rolled it on his tongue. He betrayed a tendency to enumerate his various possessions.

"We're at our Camp now, but of course I keep my town house open all summer," Kneeland was saying, apropos of the unseasonable June heat. "Joan, my niece, is always running into New York for a day or two, even in the hottest weather. And Hosanna (my sister, who joined my family after we came East), would live in New York 12 months a year if I'd let her. She doesn't care much for seashore life. It suits me down to the ground. I'd like nothing better than to put up at Halcyon Camp the first of June and stay there till the first of November. Can't quite manage that, of course, but I come as near it as I can."

"I can usually get away from here Friday night and stay at the Camp till Monday," he went on, as Hale merely nodded. "And I always put in all of August there. Greatest place in the world to sleep. Pines and spruces around and behind you, the whole Atlantic in front of you, good boating, fishing, swimming. We've got a modest place, but plenty of room. Say—by Jove!"

He stopped short under the impact of an idea that had just hit him, and stared at his caller.

"Why don't you get out of this oven and make the Camp a visit?" he rushed on after a second's hesitation. "The newspapers say this will be the hottest June we've ever had. It will do you no end of good to loaf awhile. Didn't you say you had just had a stiff bout of pneumonia in Spain?"

That pneumonia is ancient history now," young Rex assured Kneeland. "I was all right again a week before I sailed for home."

"Landed this morning, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir, and I'm hustling out to Chicago. But I once promised Dad I'd never go through New York without looking you up."

"Glad you did, my boy." Kneeland spoke absently, his mind full of the sudden idea that had come to him. "What are you going to do in Chicago?" he added in the same tone.

"Get a job, I hope."

"June is no time to make a start," Kneeland pointed out. "In Chicago or anywhere else. By the way, what's your line?"

He didn't even remember that, Rex reflected, though Hale Senior had written him about it some years before with paternal pride.

"Civil engineering."

Kneeland nodded.

"No use trying to find a job now," he underlined. "It can't be done. Everything's dead—till fall, anyway. I'll tell you the thing to do. You're a big athletic chap, but you need building up. You're too thin for your six feet, and your color isn't right. Come down to Halcyon Camp and spend the summer there. It will buck you up. I call it Halcyon Camp," he added complacently, "because I want it to be a serene and happy place. I want everyone to be comfortable there."

Hale was surprised and showed it. "Oh, thanks awfully," he said, "but I couldn't do that!"

"Why not?" The question was sharply imperative. Evidently Kneeland was not a man who liked opposition.

"It's awfully kind of you, sir. It takes my breath away. But—I can't unload myself on your household. The women of your family might not like it."

"The women of my family are my sister, Hosanna, who is fifty, and my niece, Joan, who is twenty-one. They realize that I'm boss of the house. Julia, my wife, died 10 years ago. Your mother's dead, too, isn't she?" he broke off to ask.

"Yes, sir. She died very suddenly just after I entered college. I couldn't even get home in time to see her."

"Any brothers and sisters?"

"No, sir."

"I remember Rex writing that your mother was gone. It was the same year my wife died."

That, young Hale reflected, was why he remembered it. Kneeland's memory would not long hold anything not directly connected with his own interests.

"You ought to remember my wife," he brought out.

"Yes, sir, I remember her well. She was mighty good to me," Rex the youngster's face. The smile was more likable than the first glimpse of it had been. It banished the expression of anxiety that sat so oddly on the manufacturer's round face. He was suddenly a good-looking man in the early fifties, plump, slightly bald, pleasant-featured, human and engaging. Five minutes before he had seemed a harassed and nervous man in the sixties. Rex did not know that a similar change had wrought its miracle in his own face. He waited eagerly for his host's reply.

"In lots of ways. For one thing, I've no secretary at the Camp. My son Herbert, twenty-two now, was supposed to do that job. But he's no good this summer—always 10 miles away when I want him. He make myself useful if I can. But I won't go tonight, thanks. I'll stay over tomorrow and get a few things I'll need for camp life. Naturally, I didn't bring much in the line of clothes back from Spain."

"Then that's settled. Go any time you like. I'll telephone Hosanna that you're coming. Wait. I'll give you a check for expenses."

"Nothing doing, thank you. I'll pay my own way till I see how much bluff you're giving me about this job. I suspect that you're putting over today's good deed."

"Nothing like it. There will be work for you, all right."

The haggard look abruptly returned to Kneeland's face. For an instant he seemed old again, and very tired. There was something pathetic in the eyes he fixed on Hale. Then he suddenly recalled that the good-looking young giant before him had been a darned nice kid.

"I can't thank you enough, Mr. Kneeland," Hale got up.

"Uncle Cass," my boy. That's what it used to be a thousand years ago."

He had remembered his godson at last.

"Thank you, sir. By the way, where is the Camp?"

"Down on Long Island," Kneeland laughed and wrote the address for him.

Hale put in the next day shopping. The experience decreased his supply of ready cash but increasingly raised his spirits. He was not an economical young man, and even before the prospect of a camp visit he had realized that he must start his new life with a suitable American wardrobe. There were not many temptations to be sartorially dashing in Spain. There were plenty today, and he yielded to them with an abandon that endeared him to clerks. Moreover it was a pleasure to salesmen to fit him. They let him grasp their impression that he would do credit to the suits and shirts and ties and shoes and knickerbockers he was buying. His figure was excellent and his copper-colored hair and brown eyes would set off the heather mixtures he selected for outdoor wear. He would look well in his white flannels, too. He was fussy about shirts and ties, and the clerks who served him in those departments respected his knowledge. This young man knew what went with his coloring. Hale explained his satisfaction in his new purchases with an engaging grin.

"Besides," Kneeland interrupted, "you can make yourself useful."

grinned. "She was always filling me up with cookies and a kind of raisin bread I've never forgotten."

Kneeland's round, smooth face shadowed.

"She was a fine woman," he testified. "Her last year was very tragic. I don't know whether I wrote your father about it but—she had lost her mind."

Rex shook his head.

"We didn't know that," he said sympathetically. "At least I didn't. Father may have, but he never spoke of it. He was awfully cut up by Mother's death about that time."

Kneeland sighed and dismissed both dead women from his mind with an abruptness Hale knew now was characteristic. He returned to the congenial topic of his camp.

"Hosanna and Joan both realize that the Camp is mine, not theirs," he continued, as if there had been no interruption. "I invite any friends I want to visit it. So do they. We have three house-guests there now. Joan usually has some girl friends there, but she's out of sorts this summer and doesn't seem to want them. I've plenty of servants to look after everybody." The unctuous note crept back into his voice.

"There's a cook—and a good one, if I do say it. There's a maid, a butler, valet, and a handy man. We're supposed to be living a primitive life. We're off the main line and away from the social set. But we have all the comforts—good plumbing, plenty of bathrooms, big fireplaces for cool days. You can take the 4:30 train and be there in time for dinner tonight. I can't go till Friday, or I'd drive you down."

"Thanks again. But I really don't think—"

"Besides," Kneeland interrupted, "you can make yourself useful."

"Oh, that's different. How?"

Kneeland smiled at the change in doesn't seem to be interested. Flocks by himself and that sort of thing. He isn't even much use to Joan. He's off on his own affairs, whatever they are. Another young man around the place will be a godsend to the girl." His smile widened. "I'll pay you a salary, of course. Just thought of it," he added candidly.

Hale shook his head.

"We won't talk about salary till I find out whether there's really anything for me to do. I'll go, and

Buda and Pest Are United by Fifth Danube Bridge; Built by Hungarians

The fifth bridge to span the Danube between Buda and Pest is open to the public, writes the Budapest correspondent of the London Sunday Observer. The bridge, which stands near the Horthy Miklos road, is a plain solid structure designed by Hungarian architects and built from Hungarian materials by Hungarian workmen. It indicates the swift development of the capital in the last 10 years, for it opens new prospects over a district which not long ago was marshy land.

The fifth bridge commemorates both the World War and the post-war period and brings the history of the city up to date. A hundred years ago the only means of crossing the Danube was a bridge made of 42 boats, which was taken apart and stored in winter. When the ice formed the citizens walked across the river from one town to the other.

The first bridge to be built was the chain bridge, below the royal palace, after Count Szechenyi had struggled for seven years to carry through the plan. The chain bridge cost 6,500,000 forins, and the toll was two farthings. It was opened in December, 1849.

Twenty-seven years later the Margaret bridge was built by a French engineer named Guin; not by Eiffel, who was then director in the firm which employed him. The bridge was opened by the suicide of several persons who threw themselves down from its parapets, and immortalized by Arany in his ballad on the scene.

The Francis Joseph bridge was built in 1896 for the Hungarian millennium and was opened by the emperor hammering a silver nail into the construction. During the revolution this nail was lost, but was later found, and may now be seen under glass.

Weather Affects Bird Flight

Weather conditions affect the altitude of bird flight. On nights of rain and fog, birds fly close to the earth. Wind currents also are a great deterrent to bird migration, as head winds increase the labor of flight and, if at all strong, cut down the speed of flight. Moderate cross, quartering or light winds from other directions seem to offer the best air-movement conditions, according to experts in bird lore.

Will Your Child Be Ready For School?

Noted Food Authority Outlines a Correct Diet for the Growing Youngster

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

WHEN school closed last June, most parents looked forward to the long weeks ahead when their children could play in the sunshine, get plenty of rest, and build up a splendid fund of vitality to last them all through the new school year.

Some mothers resolved to do everything possible to prevent a recurrence of last season's disheartening colds. Others planned to look into a blood-building diet that would give Mary or Johnnie more pep and rosier cheeks. Perhaps there were teeth that required attention, or a nose or throat condition to be corrected. Now, within a few weeks, the children will be returning to school, or in some cases beginning their school life. Every mother should ask herself whether she has made the most of the opportunities offered by the vacation period.

Have you put forth a conscientious effort toward making your children 100 per cent fit for school? If not, there is still time! You cannot finish the job in a few weeks, but you can make a good start. And you owe it to your children to begin at once. For whether they enjoy school or find it tedious, whether they make excellent records or lag behind their fellows, depends in large measure upon their fitness.

Every child is entitled to good health, safeguarded by high resistance. And in this age of amazing scientific discoveries, every child should enjoy these blessings.

Top health and resistance to disease are the result of an intelligently planned and carefully executed health program. It should include proper diet, adequate sleep and rest, an abundance of sunshine and fresh air, freedom from physical defects, and the avoidance of fatigue.

Diet—the Key to Health
Perhaps the most important factor of all is the carefully balanced diet. When planned to take full advantage of modern nutritional discoveries, it will insure normal growth and health, and build up high resistance that is like a protecting wall to safeguard your children.

With our present knowledge of the power of food, there should not be one ill-nourished child in our land. Yet the spectre of malnutrition rears its ugly head among children of the well-to-do as well as in homes where money is scarce. For, as a rule, it is not lack of money, but lack of knowledge of food values, or faulty eating habits which are responsible for this tragedy.

Don't Overlook Protective Foods
A child's diet should be built upon a foundation of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Milk takes precedence over all of these because it is an absolute necessity if children are to develop strong, straight bones and sound teeth.

The penalty for breaking this fundamental rule is retarded growth, fragile, crooked bones, decayed teeth and possibly nervousness. How dare any mother inflict such punishment upon her children? A fine amount of calcium, high grade protein, and some of every known vitamin can be furnished so easily by providing children with a quart of milk daily—either as a beverage, or in soups, cream sauces, puddings, cocoa or with cereals.

For desserts, choose rice, tapioca and bread puddings; gelatine, either plain or with fruit; fresh or stewed fruit; milk sherbets or ice cream.

In planning meals for children, it is important at all times to keep the menus simple, and prepare foods so that they are appetizing and easily digestible.

Aids to Good Nutrition

It is important also to bear in mind that the most perfect diet will not provide sound nutrition unless the food is properly digested and assimilated. Adequate sleep and rest, which do away with fatigue, are therefore essential. However perfect the diet, overexertion and undue fatigue, if continued, will soon bring about a state of lowered resistance.

In planning a program of daily living that will make and keep your children fit for school, put food first. But consider also rest, fresh air and sunshine, and regular habits. It would be well, too, to check up on the child's general health before he returns to school, so that he will not be handicapped by some physical defect, such as bad teeth, diseased tonsils, faulty vision or impaired hearing—all of which hinder the ability to learn.

Never forget for a moment that a child's happiness and success are closely related to his health. All mothers should remember this, for it is no exaggeration to say that THE POWER OF A NATION DEPENDS UPON THE HEALTH OF ITS CHILDREN.

Eggs rank next to milk in importance, because of their protein, iron and vitamins. A child's diet should normally include one egg daily, or at least three or four weekly.

Green, leafy vegetables must not be neglected, as they supply iron and precious vitamins. Yellow vegetables, such as carrots and sweet potatoes are notable as a source of vitamin A.

Fruits, especially the citrus varieties, are important for their vitamin C, which helps to safeguard the health of teeth and gums. However, tomatoes, or tomato juice may also be used as a source of this vitamin. Bananas are an excellent fruit for children. Dried fruits furnish iron and are high in energy values. Fruits and vegetables in general are likewise an important aid to regular elimination.

As a rule, school children may have lean meat, fish, chicken or liver once a day, and a second protein food, such as cheese or legumes, is usually introduced at another meal.

Energy Foods in Abundance

There must be plenty of energy foods, such as potatoes, rice, macaroni, bread and butter, and cereals, to help prevent the physical fatigue which lowers resistance. At least one starchy food belongs in every meal.

A well-cooked cereal should be provided once daily; in warm weather a ready-to-eat cereal may be used instead. In order to provide an abundance of minerals, and vitamin B, nutritionists place emphasis upon the whole grain varieties.

For desserts, choose rice, tapioca and bread puddings; gelatine, either plain or with fruit; fresh or stewed fruit; milk sherbets or ice cream.

The party should have been gay

... but something sinister hung over this rich man's summer estate—over the owner's sister Miss Hosanna, "a pin cushion of a woman," over his niece Joan, and his son Bert; over a young scientist, Dr. Craig; over a man named Ainsworth and over Mrs. Spencer Forbes, a neurotic, sharp-tongued, social-minded woman.

Grim and threatening mysteries develop and are shrewdly and logically solved by young Rex Hale, hired to find out what ailed these unhappy people. In doing so, he found romance and happiness himself. It's the smoothest mystery-romance you've ever read!

Farm Program For 1939 Planned

College Station—The general plans for the 1939 governmental agricultural program are the same as those now in effect.

This information was welcomed by more than 100 farmer-state committeemen, state AAA officials, and agricultural workers who met in Washington, D. C., recently to discuss 1939 plans.

Texas representatives at the meeting were Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee, and G. E. Gates, Laredo, a member of the committee; E. N. Holmgren, administrative officer in charge of the state AAA office; and Jack Shelton, vice-director and state agent of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the group that no new agricultural legislation, with the exception of possible amendments, is expected for 1939. With machinery and procedure already set up to handle the provisions of the farm act of 1938, AAA workers will be enabled to bring the 1939 program to farmers without the delay experienced this year, when the legislation was enacted by Congress in middle February.

Soil depletion allotments for wheat, cotton, and rice are to be set up in Texas while peanuts may not be given special allotment but will likely be considered in the list of general crops, Slaughter said.

Consideration is being given to the proposal that special provision be made for commercial vegetable crops.

Jack Weathers and Wyman Johnson returned last week from Austin, where they had been seeking employment so they could attend the University of Texas.

Texas' cotton crop is forecast at 3,425,000 bales compared with 5,154,000 bales produced in 1938 and the 10 year (1927-36) average of 3,997,000 bales.

Much fun awaits those who plan to attend the Rotary club all Star donkey ball game tonight at the ball park.

The work is expected to begin between the 1st and 15th of September.

The project links with the Lynn county highway which is already under construction.—Post Dispatch.

RECOGNITION OF TEACHERS

There is no demand more fundamental to the progress of education in pace with the times in which we are living than this adequate recognition, in a competitive society, of the financial value of the profession of education, and of the simple, democratic, human right of the educator to personal freedom in his personal life.—Robert G. Sprout, President of the University of California, in The Rotarian Magazine.

Schools, Medicine Rotary Subjects

School superintendent W. T. Hanes and Dr. Emil Prohl were speakers on the Rotary club program Thursday noon.

Mr. Hanes spoke on the modern trends of education and plans for the Tahoka schools this year. Some changes will be made in the curriculum, he said, and asked that patrons thoroughly acquaint themselves with the school program and ideas before passing adverse judgment. Education for citizenship will be the theme of the school program, he said.

Dr. Prohl's subject was "Socialized Medicine". He gave a warning against proposed "state medicine" plans, backed up by good reasoning.

Rollin McCord of the membership committee inducted two new members, D. B. English and W. T. Hanes, into the club.

TAHOKA ROUNDUP IS DECLARED BIG SUCCESS

(Cont'd. from page 1) trimmings, they presented a striking appearance. In the parades, the band was led by Ray DeBusk, drum major, and Miss Maxine Cooper, band sweetheart. The latter was dressed in white and was followed by three assistants to the drum major, Misses Fern Turnbow, Marie Sanders, and Mima Garland.

In the parade Thursday, there were 93 horses and riders, and many merchants floats. On the second day, there were 105 horses in line, including 23 citizens from Midland, mounted on beautiful horses, who were here to advertise their rodeo September 3, 4, and 5. Henry Maasen and L. C. Haney had charge of parade arrangements.

Each day a delegation of Lubbock citizens was present.

In addition to riding and roping events at the rodeo, there was much special entertainment. Music was furnished by the Kelly Kids Cowboy orchestra of Lubbock over the public address system.

Silver King, educated horse, owned by L. I. Stewart of Big Spring and ridden by Truett Taylor of Abilene, performed at both afternoon and night shows.

The Ross sisters, three little girls 8, 10, and 12 years of age, gave acrobatic numbers that brought big cheers from the crowd at each show.

On the afternoon of the second day, a special contest in junior boys calf roping was presented by four young boys from Midland, Marion Flint, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Buster Cole, and Roy Parks Jr. Marion Flint roped his calf in 8 seconds, tying not being required of the boys.

Following the grand entry led by Lynn Beutler, arena director, Miss Dottie Turrentine, sponsor, members of the local rodeo committee, and judges and contestants, the fireworks began in earnest. Contestants and spectators alike said they had never seen such contests between men and beast in the rodeo arena. Beutler's stock, gathered from all over the United States, was very rough, and the roping calves and milking cows furnished by Tom Anderson and O. L. Harris of O'Donnell was equally as hard to handle.

One or two cowboys had to be carried from the arena at each performance, and one was sent to a hospital with a broken shoulder.

Hoyt Hefner of Wichita Falls and Chas. Broadnax, of Pampa were judges. Milt Good of Bronte was announcer the second day, while a member of Kelly Kids orchestra announced the first.

Results, which follow, are for each performance's events:

New Lynn School Ready To Open

Just recently R. W. Barton and Newman Bartley, president and secretary, respectively, of the New Lynn school board, received notice from Mr. O'Bannon, Superintendent of the Department of Affiliation, State Board of Education, that New Lynn High School had been granted nine accredited units. These are: English 2, History 2, Math. 2, General Science, Biology and Typing.

This is a result of the fact that the board of trustees in this school demands teachers with college degrees. For the coming school year New Lynn has the enviable distinction of having two teachers with Masters degrees. The remaining three teachers possess Bachelors degrees.

With a considerable increase in enrollment, capable teachers, and an excellent school spirit among the pupils and patrons New Lynn seems assured of its greatest success during the next school year which begins September 5.

Lubbock Visitors Attend Roundup

Delegations of Lubbock visitors, headed by A. B. Davis of the chamber of commerce, were present at the Tahoka Roundup last week.

Among those present were: Robert J. Allen, Homer L. Pharr, J. Sam Lewis, John Burleson, C. E. Luce, L. A. Prichard, Troy Edwards, and son, George Gaddis, Ed Allen, G. D. Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rosenthal, J. H. Brock, W. O. Dan'els, Charles Whitacre, George Meiser, Arno L. Dalby, Sen. G. H. Nelson, and W. G. McMillan.

J. L. Heare, vacationing in northern New Mexico, writes that he and his wife will be home in a few days. Fishing has been better there this year than ever before, he says. Mr. and Mrs. Otho Thomas expect to return in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Graham, brother-in-law and sister, of Dallas, and Mrs. D. A. Simmons, sister-in-law, of Bonham, have been here this week visiting G. W. Simmons and family.

Garrie White of Dixie was called to Post Tuesday night to the bedside of his cousin, Sam Beasley, who is ill with double pneumonia.

Midland Delegation Visits Roundup

Twenty-three riders of beautiful horses and 100 citizens from Midland attended the second day of the Tahoka Roundup, participated in the parade, grand entry and put on a special junior cowboy roping exhibition.

Among the group, which included many prominent West Texas cowmen, were: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer, Mr. and Mrs. Foy Proctor, Roy Parks, Donald Hutt, John Dublin, Leonard Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Reese, Floyd Roberts, Bob Preston, C. M. Floy, R. D. Lee, Misses Joan Proctor, Mary Sue Cowden, and Dorothy Sue Miles; and Masters Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Roy Parks Jr., Buster Cole, and Marion Flint, junior calf ropers, and many others.

The group was advertising the Midland rodeo on Sept. 3, 4, and 5.

Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Houston, is here visiting her uncle, J. M. Johnson, and family. This is her first trip to the Plains, and she is "carried away" with the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Pierce of Draw are the proud parents of a 9-pound boy. He will bear the name Marvin Elliott. Both mother and babe are doing fine.

Mrs. Terry Noble, who is recovering from a major operation in a Lubbock sanitarium, is expected home in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Yandell and family recently have returned from a two weeks visit in Eastern Oklahoma and Hot Springs Arkansas.

Bryan Haney of Roscoe was here last week to attend the Roundup and visit his brother, L. C. Haney, and family.

Pride School Is Ready To Open

Other teachers for this year are: Miss Grace Harville, Mrs. Marie Galloway, and Mrs. Bertha Payne.

James Minor was here Thursday from Brownwood, where he has been working this summer. He returned to enter Howard Payne, where he is a star football player.

J. B. Godwin returned to his home in Vernon Tuesday after two weeks visit with his grand parents. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Edwards.

LIGHT IN THE SCHOOL HOUSE

"Teacher's working late tonight," they used to say if they saw a light in the schoolhouse after, say, 5 o'clock. But not now. More and more the ever-lighted schoolhouse is becoming a fact, as new communities brighten to the realization that, as an after-hours center for adult cultural and social activities, it offers the finest opportunities.

Folk schools of countries like Denmark, where grown-ups often continue their classroom education all through life, have won wide attention. And an inspiring example of community education and neighborliness is found in the little town of Solomon, Kansas. Solomon has only about 1,000 people. It has no picture shows, no clubs; yet approximately 5,000 folks live within eight miles, and for most of them the high-school building is a natural focusing point for recreation, entertainment, self-improvement.

The building is open five nights a week, except during Summer. There is no attempt to formalize the school's open house. Half a dozen farm organizations hold their meetings in the schoolhouse. For the rest, people come, as to a reunion, to meet friends, to play games, to take part in plays and concerts, or to listen to them, to hear lectures, to play bridge, table tennis, basketball.
Townsmen eagerly give credit for the idea to a certain public-spirited educator who, during his superintendency of the school, won for his plan the support of a progressive school board and a place in the budget for lights, heat, and shower baths. No one, truth to tell, needed to be "sold" the ever-lighted schoolhouse idea.

All told, Solomon is a striking example of how a community may be vivified by having a common focusing point for neighborly activities and interests. The school itself takes on new life. There has been only one truancy in seven years.

SASS FROM UNCLE BILL

We've been the object of much good-natured gibbing ever since last week's News appeared. We praised Lee O'Daniel for his "hands off" policy in regard to other political races. But before our paper was circulated that unpredictable O'Daniel fellow had crawled in bed with at least two or three dyed-in-the-wool politicians. He had undertaken to tell the people who to vote for in the run-off primary from top to bottom. And to think the man who had repeatedly said he was going to run all the professional politicians out of Austin is now endorsing at least some of those very men. Well, we live and learn.—Lynn County News.

But Lee O' is your dog. Brother Hill. You entered him in the chase under the guarantee that he would not quit the pack and run after rabbits or suck eggs. Now since he treed the fox up a tall tree and everything seemed to hang high this Lee O' dog of yours could be heard down in the flats chasing Jackass rabbits, and when he came home, the disturbed condition of the Democratic nests leads to the accusation of sucking eggs—scummighty bad eggs, too—then he crawled under the house and went to bed with the shotes. I did not enter or bet on Lee O' in the chase, but since he proved to be the fastest dog in the race, I think that there is the making of a good dog in him. Don't whip your dog too hard, Brother Hill, because he is your dog. You should remember that Lee O' is young and ignorant of the rules of such chases, and he chased rabbits and sucked eggs because he didn't know any better.
He is yours and good treatment might be the making of the pup.—
Uncle Bill in the Sterling City
News-Record.

We deny the charge, Uncle Bill.
We didn't ask him to get in the race, and we didn't vote for him.
But now that the family of voters has taken him in, we'll help feed him because he's our dog too, but doggone if we pet him or jump every time he barks.

Rumor is abroad that Lubbock will soon have a new daily newspaper—a tabloid "sheet." We don't know who the parties are backing the enterprise, but we'll predict now that the proposed paper is in for some tough sledding. The Lubbock Avalanche and Journal are two of the best small city newspapers in the Southwest. No town or small city has any need for more than one newspaper organization. A newspaper, though operated as a business, is by its nature a public service institution. A town has no need for two telephone systems, two sewer systems, or two power and light systems. More than one newspaper splits up the circulation, and therefore makes advertising more expensive to the businessman if he reaches all the reading public. Lubbock has two dailies, a weekly, and a college newspaper. There's no room for another good paper.

DEMANDS OF THE JOBLESS

California is up against a hard spot. During the past thirty months, 221,000 job seekers have entered the state. Now the newcomers hold the balance of political power. They want pensions, short hours, high pay and a lot of things that are impossible so far as the property owning class is concerned. But what can they do about it? Exactly nothing.

We just wonder if Texas will become burdened in the same manner with all this talk about turning the state into a hog-heaven of good jobs, high wages and $30 a month pension on top of it. But the legislature has all the say about starting the $30 a month, not the governor, secretary of state, or any one else. Not even the attorney general. The legislature must have a majority to agree on the pension plan, vote it and then pass it up to the senate where another majority vote is required. All this hokey about anybody else doing anything is purely politics.—Donley County Leader.

We don't believe in brass collar politics. If you haven't found it out by now, No two men think alike, and no two men should always vote alike. We don't much like to see a president, a governor, or a local political boss attempt to tell the rest of the people how they should vote.
And, we don't like to see people vote a ticket someone has endorsed without studying each individual candidate's qualifications and considering his merits and demerits. Voters last Saturday refused to elect a solid ticket, and that's a healthy sign.

Captain Eyson, an Englishman, last Wednesday attained the highest speed a human ever traveled on land. He drove his seven-ton "Thunderbolt" automobile across the Bonneville Salt Flats, near Salt Lake City, at the terrific rate of 347 miles per hour, or a mile in a little over ten seconds. Here's another mark for street and highway speedsters, who always seem to be in such a hurry, to shoot at.

Andrew Jackson Stricklin, chief mugil of the old Terry County Herald for too many years to count, called at The News office Saturday afternoon to pass the time of day, as all newspapermen do when they stray from home. Old Jack doesn't come over often, and we're certainly sorry we were out when he called.
Come again Jack!

We can't figure out how Governor-Nominate O'Daniel's program would or could be helped much by a judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals or of the Supreme Court.
It's all over now, but we just wonder how and why he thought it was his place to tell O'Daniel followers how to vote in these cases.

CATHOLIC ACADEMY SUSPENDS OPERATION AFTER 50 YEARS

Stanton, Aug. 31.—One of the most historical institutions in West Texas, and the oldest landmark in Stanton is passing from the scene. After more than 50 years of service to the Catholic church Our Lady of Mercy academy is suspending activities in Stanton, and the buildings are being demolished.

Considerable damage was done to the buildings, already deteriorated to a great extent, in the cyclone which struck Stanton June 11. After a recent visit from the Mother Superior, of St. Louis, and a survey of what would be needed to put the school into good condition, authorities decided to abandon the school here, moving all equipment to Slaton, where the Catholic church maintains another school and hospital.

The main building and east wing, formerly housing the boys dormitory, dining rooms, sisters' refectory, classrooms and offices, will be demolished. Only the west wing and church will be left.

The site upon which the convent is located was originally a monastery, belonging to the Carmelite priests. The west wing was part of the monastery. The academy bought the property from the priests in 1896, after having held classes in a smaller structure now the priest's home, since it was founded in 1894, by Sister Beachman and Sister Angela. The main building and east wing was added some years later.

The academy has been under the supervision of Mother Superior Aloisius for several years. Mother Beachman, its founder, still lives at the school, though she does not take an active part in it. She is 93. The entire faculty will go to Slaton to assist in the school there.

SERUM TREATMENT FOR DIPHTHERIA

Austin, Texas Aug. 31.—"Few conquests of science have been so spectacular and complete as those relating to diphtheria. Science has firmly established the value of serum treatment in both its preventive and curative phases. However, toxin-antitoxin or its successor toxoid for immunization and antitoxin for cure, are serums of which the general public is even yet not fully aware," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"As indicated, toxoid is the immunizing or preventive agent now usually employed. However, three or four months are required for the body to develop immunity. At that time the Schick test can be applied to determine the results of the preventive treatment.

"Children should receive diphtheria immunization as early as possible, preferably as soon as they are six months old. The necessity for this immunization is recognized when it is known that two-thirds of all deaths from diphtheria occur in the age group under six years.

"It cannot be too strongly emphasized that to deprive children of this protection science has made possible is to subject them to unwarranted and unnecessary hazards that can easily turn into a tragedy. Parental interest in immunization must be more widespread, if the Texas death rate from this disease

"When a child has been taken ill with diphtheria, antitoxin is the only treatment that will save its life. Also, to be effective, it must be given early in the illness and in large doses. Delay is usually caused by parents failing to realize that any sore throat may actually be diphtheria.

CONQUERING BOREDOM

Happiness is not a picture which can be painted with a few bold, sweeping strokes. It is, rather, a delicately wrought mosaic whose intricate pattern is composed of many small pleasures and interests. The people who get real joy out of living are those who continually manufacture little harmonious pieces of experience. Every boredom and dislike is the raw material of pleasure. The only manufacturing equipment you need is the ever-ready desire which is yours for the thinking.—William Moulton in The Rotarian Magazine.

The 65 Guernseys in the herd of A. B. Buchanan, Silverton, Briscoe county, returned an average profit above feed cost of $97.04 per cow for the past year, records of the Central Plains Dairy Herd Improvement Association show.

Highway 84 Boosters Hold Joint Meeting At Tatum, New Mexico

New Mexico and Texas citizens interested in U. S. Highway 380 (Texas State No. 84) assured each other at a joint meeting in Tatum, New Mexico, Monday that work of paving the entire route would be pushed to completion.

Thirty automobile loads of citizens, one airplane, and the Brownfield band composed the Texas delegation, headed by J. E. Shelton of Brownfield. County Judge P. W. Goad, Commissioner Tom Hale, and Postmaster W. E. Smith represented Tahoka.

The program consisted of a band concert on the streets of Tatum and speeches by officials from both states, including a talk by Judge P. W. Goad.

Texas was assured by New Mexico

on advice from their state highway that work would continue on that end of the highway if Texas continued to push the paving and routing in this state.

Yoakum county, where most of the hitch has been in securing completion of No. 380's paving, was represented by its county judge and commissioners, who promised right-of-way immediately through that county.

In New Mexico, work is under way on the highway from the state line at Bronco to Tatum, and this paving will be complete in the next few weeks.

Contract for completion of a 15-mile sector east of Roswell will be let in September.

In Texas, the east-west highway is paved from Dallas to the west Kent county line. Work is under way between Kent county and Post, this to be completed in the next few weeks.

Some grading and drainage work has been done between Post and the east Lynn county line, and approval has been given for more work on this sector.

Grading and drainage work is now under way between the east Lynn county line and Tahoka. Paved from Tahoka to Brownfield.

Paving under way from Brownfield to a point 12 miles west. Grading, drainage and caliche base being laid from that point to Terry county line to Plains. Highway department now locating caliche beds for further improvement.

Field notes will be delivered by October 1st to the officials of Yoakum county in order that right-of-way between Plains and Bronco may be procured. Completion of this sector is expected by the close of 1939.

Highway 380, when completed, is expected to carry a heavy tourist traffic, since it leads directly into the New Mexico mountain vacation centers, and since it is also the shortest route East and West across the continent. In fact, this highway is 180 miles shorter than the Bankhead between Dallas and Fort Worth and Los Angeles and the west coast.

Twelve years ago this route was only partially designated, had no U. S. highway number, and much of it was little more than a cattle trail.

Names for United States Capital

Several experiments were made in naming the capital of the United States until the present one became fixed. From the beginning until 1871 the following names were used: "The Federal City," "City of Washington, District of Columbia," "City of Washington, Territory of Columbia," "City of Washington," without reference to the district, "Washington, D. C.," and simply "Washington." In 1871 the municipal charters of Washington and Georgetown were revoked by congress and there ceased to be any difference between Washington and the District of Columbia so far as government and laws are concerned. In 1921 President Harding's Thanksgiving proclamation was "done in the capital of the United States." The designation raised the question as to what the official name of the national capital should be. Accordingly an executive order was issued designating "The City of Washington" as the official name of the capital of the United States.

Bishop's Rock

The first land sighted by people who journey to England or France is Bishop's rock, a small member of the archipelago known as the Scilly islands, 25 miles beyond England's Land's End. The legendary title of the "Land of Lyonesse" indicates the Scillies' connection with the romances of King Arthur and the tragedy of Tristan and Isolde. The Gulf Stream winds in among these islands, and although they are as far north as the "cold" tip of Newfoundland, the winter thermometer rarely goes below 46. The climate is always temperate.

His suite, when completed, will consist of a waiting room, office, operating room, patient's bedroom, x-ray room, sterilizing room, wash room. Not only will his offices be more convenient and modern, but will offer opportunity to handle many cases which would otherwise have to go to the hospital.

ELDER DRENNON IS HOME AGAIN

Home again, and there is no place like home! I had a very pleasant stay in Grayson county but was glad to get back home. I was greeted with fair audiences here yesterday after an absence of one month.

At a business meeting, the church extended to me an invitation to labor with them another year, which I accepted; so, I will be around in these parts some time yet.

I visited Lubbock last Friday and hoped to see Editor Hill, but did not as he was not able to see visitors. I am hoping he is better this morning and have been praying that he may be spared many more years of life as we need him and his sound mind on the paper. I am asking the readers to join me in praying to the Father to spare his life if it is the Father's will.

I will begin my third meeting at Mesquite tonight, and am hoping it will be the best of the three.

Now that the election is over, let us turn our minds to more important things—I mean those who are members of the church. I have never been able to understand why church members will get so greatly interested in human government and so little interested in divine government. When we think of our great privilege of being citizens of the Kingdom of Christ, it seems we would be more interested in it than any other thing. But such is not the case with many.

Our public schools are soon to open. Let us parents see that our children take advantage of getting an education and co-operate with the teachers and school board to that end.

Thanks for the many kind things said to me about my notes on our Brother O'Daniel and his election. I am still for him.

Yours for more people who are steadfast rather than stuckfast.—R. P. Drennon.

H. C. Hickerson and family of Canyon were here last Thursday and Friday to visit his brother, G. W. Hickerson, at Three Lakes, and attend the Roundup.

THANKS!

I want to thank each and everyone that voted for me, used their influence or helped me in anyway in the Second Primary.

And to show my appreciation I will do my best as your next County Treasurer.

KANSAS CITY MAN COLLIDES WITH BUFFALO

Austin, August 31.—"Shades of Buffalo Bill" exclaimed Captain J. D. Moffatt, state police statistician, when he read this traffic accident report from Potter county:

"Dave Griest of Kansas City, Mo., was driving his car along the highway two miles east of Amarillo when a full grown buffalo jumped in front of it.

"The driver did not see the prairie roamer in time to avoid the collision which resulted in slight damage to the modern automobile and substracted from the diminishing buffalo census."

UP THE LADDER TO FAME

NEW YORK—It took Ross McKee of the New York Daily News 35 minutes to climb to the top of the 700 foot Trylon on the grounds of the New York World's Fair 1939. Once up he squeezed out on a 14-inch ledge and took panoramic pictures of the Fair grounds and snapshots of the giant 200 foot Perisphere, the framework for which is nearing completion.

McKee was the first cameraman to accomplish this feat. He followed in the footsteps of steel "birdmen" who had just planted the U. S. flag, marking the finish of the steel frame of the Trylon.

These two structures will be covered with stucco and, as the Theme Center of the Fair, will set the pace for the $150,000,000 Exposition.

O'Donnell Had Fire Last Week

Fire, believed caused by defective wiring, completely destroyed Curtis here early Wednesday morning, and the contents of the two buildings owned by Mrs. J. B. Fancher Produce and City Pool Hall, occupants of the two buildings, at an unofficial estimated damage of $6,000. The only insurance carried $1,500, was on the contents of the recreation parlor.

The blaze was first discovered shortly after 2 a. m. and the alarm sounded. Firemen battled until 4:30 o'clock before the last smoking embers were extinguished. Lack of any high wind prevented a spread to other buildings.—O'Donnell Press.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

We had a delightful week at Lake Kemp. We are rested and refreshed and glad to be back and at our work again. We start on our last 2½ months now. We have quite a bit to do but with everyone in his place and doing his part to help we have a good closing out and a good report. So I am expecting you next Sunday in our services.—Rev. Ben Hardy, Pastor.

Wise and Otherwise

No matter how lazy a man may be, his laziness seldom extends to his tongue.

Charity used to begin at home; nowadays nobody stays home long enough to start it.

Some folks pick their friends carefully; others to pieces.

Money, says the moralist, is a poison. And the antidote is marriage.

"Golf is the most dangerous game in the world," says a writer. Risk of spontaneous combustion?

In five years the output of real silk stockings has increased from a million dozen pairs to five million dozen. What one might call the worm's turn?

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vitality to enjoy life and assist in relieving itchy nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Sentiment vs. Action

Every man feels instinctively that all the beautiful sentiments in the world weigh less than a single lovely action.—Lowell.

'Tragedy Closes In'

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

You know, they say troubles never come singly, and I know doggone well that is true in at least one case. It's the case of Amy Castaldi of Chicago. When fate began piling grief on Amy's shoulders, she piled it up high.

It was a Friday morning, the second day of July, 1933, when things began to go wrong. Amy's eight-year-old son, out playing with some other kids, burned the pupil of his right eye. He was in constant pain, and for two days and nights after that Amy never left his bedside until a far worse calamity forced her to. And right on the heels of that accident came the news that an uncle had died in Louisville, Ky. Amy couldn't go to the funeral. Not with her boy in constant agony. So, on Saturday night her husband went without her, leaving her to take care of her son, and her two young daughters.

Fierce Gale Struck Her House.

Night had come on. Amy had put her two little girls to bed and they had gone to sleep. She was back at her son's bedside, weary and worn, for another long night's vigil. The hours rolled on. The wind had begun to rise. At 2 o'clock in the morning it was blowing a young gale. The Castaldi's house was completely exposed to that wind on three sides. On the other it was protected by a factory, but the gale wasn't blowing from that direction.

The wind rose steadily. It whistled and howled in the telephone wires outside. The whistle rose to a shriek, and still it kept on rising. Then, suddenly, the lights went out in the street. A burst of hailstones rattled against the house. And at almost the same time a window crashed in the front of the dwelling.

The house was shaking—shaking violently. It was about all Amy's frazzled nerves could stand. She let out a scream. The scream woke up her two little girls, and they came running from their beds. The little boy was already awake. He, poor kid, hadn't slept for two nights.

Fled With Her Three Children.

Another window broke with a clatter, glass falling to the floor. The kids huddled around Amy, clutching at her dress. One by one the windows crashed, there was a louder crash—a shriek of rending wood—and a huge piece of sheet metal came TEARING RIGHT THROUGH THE SIDE OF THE HOUSE!

The wind had stopped howling now. Instead, it tore by with a loud, steady, hissing roar. The house was deluged with water that came through the broken windows. Now rocks and pieces of lumber came hurtling in and Amy could hear more flying debris battering against the side of the house with a force that was all but tearing it to pieces.

"I was about to faint with fright," Amy says. "I grabbed my children and ran for the back door. I took hold of the knob and tried to open it. It wouldn't budge. The movement of the house under the force of the storm, had wrapped it tightly shut. My children were screaming, and their cries gave me strength. I tugged at the door with renewed vigor and finally opened it."

But when the door opened, Amy paused and looked out on a scene that looked almost as uninviting as did the inside of her home. Before her was nothing but the blackest of darkness and the terrible hissing roar of the wind. Thunder boomed and a streak of lightning rent the sky. As the flash illuminated the heavens she could see that the air was full of flying debris. More rocks and pieces of sheet metal—boards, bricks and everything imaginable.

Just Escaped a Live Wire.

Says she: "My head was reeling. I almost fainted again. A piece of sheet metal landed near us, barely missing our heads as it fell from above. For a minute I wondered if the world were coming to an end, and I began to pray. Then, with what little strength I had left, I gathered my children close and made for the gate of our back yard."

The wind tore at her, almost sweeping her off her feet. Clinging to all three of her children, she led them across the yard. When she came to where the gate should have been she found it gone—and the rest of the fence along with it. Across the street was the factory—the nearest solid building—and she headed for that.

"We walked and stumbled—fell and picked ourselves up again," she says. "I thought that trip would never come to an end, but finally we reached the factory. We learned later that we had walked over a live wire that had been blown down and we can only thank God that none of us stepped on it. But once we were inside the building the night watchman came to our rescue."

When Amy went back to her house the next morning she found every window broken. The furniture was water-soaked and broken by flying debris and the whole doggone place looked—well—like a cyclone had struck it, which was the truth. "But I didn't care about that," says Amy, "for my children were safe. The next day the papers carried stories about the freak tornado and told about the damage it did. But no newspaper will ever be able to describe the way I felt during those awful moments while it was occurring."

Strangest Portrait

In the West Highland-museum, Ft. William, Scotland, is one of the strangest portraits ever painted. It looks like nothing but a mess of colored paint, but when a metal cylinder of the right size and shape is placed at a certain spot on the canvas, the reflection mirrored on the cylinder becomes a portrait of Bonnie Prince Charlie, pretender to the British throne in the Eighteenth century.

China's First Railway

China's first railway, 10 miles in length between Shanghai and Wosung, was built by foreign enterprise in 1876. After a farmer had been run over and killed, however, it was purchased by the Chinese government and torn up.

Happiness and Unhappiness

A goodly part of human happiness and unhappiness consists in the dwelling upon what has been, what may be, what might be and upon what might have been.

A Cheerful Word

Have you ever had your day suddenly turned sunshiny because of a cheerful word? Have you ever wondered if this could be the same world, because someone had been unexpectedly kind to you? You can make today the same for everybody. It is only a question of a little imagination, a little time and trouble. Think now "what can I do today to make somebody happy?"—Maltbie D. Babcock.

Brush-Turkey Covers Its Eggs

The brush-turkey covers its eggs with a mound of earth, sand and dead vegetable matter often having a circumference of more than 100 feet, and being 2 feet high. The young, when hatched, dig out.

Birds Have Combs on Claws

Some birds—barn owls, herons, grebes, nightjars, cormorants—have combs on the inner edge of their third claw, with which they scratch themselves and preen their feathers.

Becoming, Practical Frocks

this basque frock, and yet it's just as simple as a school-girl's dress should be. This is the style that growing girls, too thin for their height, look very well in. The high neckline covers up their collar bones, the puff sleeves and flaring skirt have a filling out effect. This style is pretty in so many fabrics—cotton, wool and silk. Especially linen, gingham, challis, jersey and for dress-up, taffeta.

For Large Women.

This afternoon dress is carefully designed to look well on large figures. The v-neck, cut in one with the shoulders, makes your face look less full. The short, rippling sleeves minimize the size of your forearm—and they're so pretty and graceful, too. The skirt is smooth over the hips, and the bodice has necessary bust fullness. Here's a dress that will be your favorite, when you make it up in the prettiest silk crepe, georgette or sheer wool that you can find.

GOAD, DANIEL, MATHIS ELECTED

Stevenson for Lieutenant Governor in Lynn county 1603 to 1166.

For Attorney General, Gerald Mann led Walter Woodul 1627 to 1114.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, W. H. Davidson led the present incumbent, Richard Critz, 1522 to 1105.

For Judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, the West Texan, James A. Stephens, received 1627 votes to only 979 for the incumbent, Harry N. Graves.

For Railroad Commissioner, G. A. "Jerry" Sadler, whose popularity is due largely to that of his kinsman, Harley Sadler, received the largest vote of any man in Lynn county, 2096, while the veteran C. V. Terrell, incumbent, received the smallest vote, 694.

Present Commissioner of the General Land Office, William H. McDonald likewise a West Texan, led in Lynn by a small margin over Bascom Giles, the vote being 1353 to 1309.

Though T. W. Montgomery had withdrawn from the race for State Representative after his name had been printed on the ballots, he received a complimentary vote of 672, while Alvin R. Allison, Hockley county judge, received 1836.

P. W. Goad, present county judge, led former county judge G. C. Grider by 326 votes. Goad received 1550 votes and Grider 1224.

Walter M. Mathis of Draw and Grassland defeated Garland G. McWhorter of New Home 1619 to 1208, a margin of 411 votes.

The closest county race, however, was for county treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Daniel emerging from the contest victor over Mrs. Jewell Wells by 97 votes. Mrs. Daniel received 1464 votes to Mrs. Wells' 1367.

The only precinct race in which a run-off was necessary was that of Justice of the Peace at O'Donnell. Geo. D. Foster won with 281 votes to 259 for his opponent, D. M. Estes. The complete official vote as compiled by County Chairman J. K. Applewhite is found in other columns of this paper.

The returns came in rapidly Saturday night, and final results were available by 10 o'clock. However, due to the rush of compilation Saturday night, the official figures will be found to vary considerably in some instances from those posted at the election party.
