Boom town officials talk growing pains

Mayor Jerry Morales featured as panelist at Texas Tribune symposium

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

SAN ANTONIO — Midland Mayor Jerry Morales, speaking at a Texas Tribune symposium on Friday, gave more exposure to the economic struggles Midlanders have dealt with during the shale boom years.

He and other panelists from boom towns summarized the impact of massive growth on infrastructure — the unemployment rate and the labor shortage, as well as the inflated housing market and the disparity in wealth. Morales portrayed Midland's challenge as the city with the nation's third lowest unemployment rate — 2.6 percent.

"One, you say it's great for the economy — we have workers — but at the same time ... industries talk about not being able to keep up with these high wages and overtime," Morales said.

In his discussion about the low unemployment rate, Morales mentioned the signing bonuses restaurants advertise to lure workers, which made the moderator, Texas Tribune CEO and Editor-in-Chief Evan Smith, pause and repeat the words "signing bonus" to ensure that is what Morales said.

"We're not talking about minor league baseball here," Smith said.

The signing bonuses and other incentives Morales listed include shuttle service, flexible schedules and tuition payments. He added that companies have

Virgin Galactic ship explodes on test flight

By Brian Melley & Justin Pritchard

MOJAVE, Calif. — A winged spaceship designed to take tourists on excursions beyond Earth's atmosphere exploded during a test flight Friday over the Mojave Desert, killing a pilot in the second fiery setback for commercial space travel in less than a week.

Virgin Galactic's SpaceShipTwo blew apart after being released from a carrier aircraft at high altitude, according to Ken Brown, a photographer who witnessed the explosion.

One pilot was found dead inside the spacecraft and another parachuted out and was flown by helicopter to a hospital, Kern County Sheriff Donny Youngblood said.

The crash area was about 120 miles north of downtown Los Angeles and 20 miles from the Mojave Air and Space Port, where the flight originated.

British billionaire Richard Branson, founder of Virgin Galactic, has been the front-runner in the fledgling race to give large numbers of paying civilians a suborbital ride that would let them experience weightlessness and see the Earth from the edge of space. Branson was expected to arrive in Mojave today, as were investigators with the National Transportation Safety Board.

"Space is hard, and today was a tough day," Virgin Galactic CEO President George Whitesides said. "The future rests in many ways on hard, hard days like this."

The accident occurred just as it seemed commercial space flights were near, after a period of development that lasted far longer than hundreds of prospective passengers had expected.

When Virgin Group licensed the technology from Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen, who put $26 million into SpaceShipOne, Branson envisioned operating flights by 2007. In interviews last month, he talked about the first flight being next spring with his son.

"It's a real setback to the idea that lots of people are going to be taking joyrides into the fringes of outer space any time soon," said John Logsdon, retired space policy director at George Washington University. "There were a lot of people who believed that the technology to carry people is safely at hand."

Friday's flight marked the 55th for SpaceShipTwo, which was intended to be the first of a fleet of craft. This was only the fourth flight to include a brief rocket firing. During other flights, the craft either was not released from its mothership or functioned as a glider after release.

At 60 feet long, SpaceShipTwo featured two large windows for each of up to six passengers, one on the side and one overhead.

Companies, city: Safety has always been priority

By Rye Druzin & Rachael Gleason

Two crashes this weekend have shaken the private space industry, with one rocket exploding shortly after launch Tuesday and a suborbital shuttle exploding in mid-air Friday afternoon.

The shuttle, named SpaceShipTwo and operated by Virgin Galactic, was reported to have exploded after it was released over the Mojave Desert in California from its mothership, White Knight 2. The co-pilot was killed, and the pilot was seriously injured after he ejected from the craft, according to the Associated Press.

Earlier this week, an unmanned supply rocket called Antares exploded shortly after launch from a pad in Virginia.

The accidents come after Midland received a spaceport license in September, which allows for XCOR Areospace, a suborbital space company, to operate out of the Midland International Air and Space Port. Spacesuit company Orbital Outfitters is also setting up research and development facilities in the same area of the Spaceport Business Park as XCOR.

Virgin Galactic and XCOR are both currently based at the Mojave Air & Space Port out in Mojave.

XCOR CEO Jeff Greason told the Reporter-Telegram that Friday's explosion was hard to experience but accidents have been a part of pushing new forms of transportation forward.

"Spaceflight is certainly hazardous and will be for a long time to come," Greason said. "It's an important part of how we fly that the FAA checks that we're flying in a place and in a manner where the uninvolved public on the ground is not put at risk. That is part of why we have to be careful where we fly."

Midland posts third lowest jobless rate in nation

Editor's note: This story ran earlier this week on mrt.com

From staff reports

For the second straight month, Midland posted the third lowest unemployment rate in the nation, according to figures released Wednesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Bismarck, North Dakota, topped the list for the fourth straight month with a jobless rate of 2.1 percent. Fargo, North Dakota, was second at 2.3. Midland and Logan, Utah, tied for third at 2.6.

A total of 10 metropolitan statistical areas around the nation posted unemployment rates of 3.0 percent or lower. Midland was the lone MSA in Texas at or below 3.0.

Midland again ranked near the top of the list of MSAs in the nation when it came to percentage gain in employment. Midland's 6.4 percent growth ranked second to Muncie, Indiana (8.9 percent). In September, Midland showed a work force 100,100, an increase of nearly 5,000 from September 2013.

By the numbers

The following are the lowest unemployment rates in the nation during the month of September, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Mexico orders immediate release of Marine veteran

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — A Mexican judge on Friday ordered the immediate release of a jailed U.S. Marine veteran who spent eight months behind bars for crossing the border with loaded guns.

The judge called for retired Marine Sgt. Andrew Tahmooressi to be freed because of his mental state and did not make a determination on the illegal arms charges against the Afghanistan veteran diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder, according to a Mexican official who had knowledge of the ruling but was not authorized to give his name.

Tahmooressi has said he took a wrong turn on a California freeway that funneled him into a Tijuana port of entry with no way to turn back. His detention brought calls for his freedom from U.S. politicians, veterans groups and social media campaigns.

"It is with an overwhelming and humbling feeling of relief that we confirm that Andrew was released today after spending 214 days in Mexican Jail," the family said in a statement.

U.S. Republican and Democratic politicians had held talks with Mexican authorities to urge his release. A U.S. congressional committee also held a public hearing to pressure Mexico to free him.

U.S. Rep. Ed Royce, R-Calif., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he was "elated" by the news and that his PTSD will be treated by specialists in the United States. He had met with Tahmooressi in jail and talked to Mexico's Jesus Murillo Karam about the case.

"As I said after visiting Andrew in the Mexican jail, he needs to come home to the United States to be with his mother Jill and the support network of friends I know to be standing by to help him. He is a hero who served his country bravely on the battlefields of Afghanistan, which is why so many Americans have been focused on getting him home," Royce said.

PRIORITY

representative for District 2 and the board president of the Spaceport Development Corp., said the recent accident involving Virgin Galactic is a "tragedy" and his condolences go out to the families of the pilots.

But Love said that safety has always been at the forefront of conversations between the city, the airport, XCOR and the NASA.

"We want to look at the public and make sure we keep it safe and also make sure XCOR is doing everything they can with its design to make sure that it's passengers and pilots are safe," Love told the Reporter-Telegram.

While the two accidents have happened very close to each other, Love said that little will change in the discussions between XCOR and the city.

"We will discuss it and talk to them about it, but (the accident) is not something that's going to require us to look at safety again because we are already looking at safety," Love said. "Our safety standards are extremely high, and we would be looking at them with the same intensity that we would be if these two accidents did not happen."

The process for the city to gain the spaceport license took longer than two years and involved checks to make sure that the approaches any space vehicles would be clear of people.

Members of the Spaceport Development Corp. reviewed a risk analysis study and discussed future airport zoning at a meeting back in April.

That's when Stephen Matier, senior engineer and president at Silverwing Enterprises in New Mexico, spelled out the risks of spaceflight with fancy formulas, flight path trajectories and failure rates.

He said the airport and company must look at future population growth in the Midland-Odessa area and form "what-ifs" for particular areas.

"If there's any one thing in a licensing application process, the only 'thou shalt' you really have to deal with is making sure you're protecting people on the ground to a standard level," Matier said previously. "That level is the three in a million. The odds are less than three in a million someone on the ground is going to get hurt during a launch."

During that meeting, Greason said there's plenty of room in West Texas to fly missions that need to be flown.

"It's just getting away from population centers," he said.

Open space is one of the reasons XCOR chose Midland, said Dan Delong, XCOR's vice president and chief engineer, during an FAA public hearing in April. Delong has personally flown in an airplane over the Permian Basin, and saw plenty of "emergency landing strips" along the criss-crossed roads between the oil rigs and pumpjacks.

"It happens to a lot of airports: They are outside city limits — out by themselves — and then suburbia gets built up around them," Delong previously told the Reporter-Telegram. "Then there's the question of being good neighbors."

Although it was a dark day for the space industry, Greason said accidents will not stop the private sector's expansion.

"While we can't know the future — after Columbia was lost, I got a lot of the same questions — and nobody was scared off after the loss of that space shuttle because we're always upfront that spaceflight does have an element of risk," Greason said. "People should be prepared for that if they want to undertake this kind of adventure."

"get creative" in West Texas.

Don Tymrak, city manager of small boom town Karnes City, kept referring to his city's struggles as "trading one problem for another." One example he gave was how the city opened up a downtown restaurant to revitalize the area, but now the area doesn't have any parking.

And though San Antonio Mayor Ivy Taylor acknowledged the new job opportunities that have flourished in her city, she pointed out the lack of "human infrastructure" — such as raising awareness for the opportunities or providing transportation for those who don't have vehicles.

"We have a large population here that is poor and doesn't have the skill sets to compete with many of the jobs in today's economy, and it's an issue we've dealt with for a long time here," Taylor said.

When asked to send state politicians a message on the economy, Taylor asked them to think outside the box and think of policies to assist cities struggling with growth, particularly housing.

Tymrak asked for consideration for the Eagle Ford area and pointed out the poor roads. As for Morales, he urged politicians to come out to the remote areas, identify the issues and listen to the people.

Obituaries

James Chandler Ameel

James Chandler Ameel was called to be with the Lord on Sunday, October 27, 2014 after spending the afternoon watching football with his best friend, Stan Brosig.

Jim was born on May 28, 1933 in Lavonia, Michigan. His family moved to Dallas, Texas on the day of the attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941. He remained a proud Texan for the remainder of his life. He served in the U.S. Army during the Korean War. After his discharge, he returned to Dallas where he met his soul mate, Joanne McCaffrey, who he married on May 5, 1960.

Jim took a job as a sales representative with Smith Klein & French pharmaceuticals in 1963 and he was soon after transferred to Midland, Texas .This is where he raised his four children and where he called his home for over 50 years.

Jim was a very involved father and citizen. He coached his children in tennis, basketball, and baseball. He remained active as a volunteer and member of Habitat for Humanity, Christmas in April, Midland County Housing Authority, and St. Ann's Catholic Church. He was a founding member and former president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of St. Ann's. He served on the Midland County grand jury and he was named an "Outstanding Citizen of Midland." Jim epitomized our Christian calling to help those in need, especially those in our own family and community.

Jim loved sports, especially the University of Houston Cougars, Texas Rangers, and Dallas Cowboys. One of his happiest experiences was attending the Rangers first World Series game in Texas, which they won!

Jim joins his beloved wife, Joanne, and son, Brian, in Heaven.

He is survived by his daughters, Suzanne Leggett of Austin, Texas and Elizabeth Morrow of Midland, Texas; son, Chris and wife Lisa of Austin, Texas; brother, Col. Joseph B. Ameel, III and wife Betty of Pacific Grove, California; and grandchildren, Emily, Abby, Ryan, Annie Rose, Alexandra, Luke Henry, and Elias.

A visitation will be held from 1:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Sunday, November 2, 2014 at Ellis Funeral Home, 801 Andrews Hwy., with a vigil rosary at 7:00 p.m. A funeral mass will be held at St. Ann's Catholic Church, 1906 West Texas Ave., in Midland on Monday, November 3, 2014 at 1:00 p.m. Jim will be laid to rest next to Joanne at the Texas Veterans Cemetery in Killeen, Texas on Monday, November 10, 2014 at 10:00 a.m.

FLIGHT

The accident's cause was not immediately known, nor was the altitude at which the explosion occurred. The first rocket-powered test flight peaked at about 10 miles above Earth. Commercial flights would go 62 miles or higher.

One difference on this flight was the type of fuel.

In May, Virgin Galactic announced that SpaceShipTwo would switch to a polymide-based fuel — a type of thermoplastic. It had been fueled with a type of rubber called HTPB.

Scaled Composites, the company building the spaceship for Virgin Galactic, had extensively tested the new fuel formulation on the ground, President Kevin Mickey said. He characterized the new fuel as "a small nuance to the design."

Officials said they had not noticed anything wrong before the flight. The problem happened about 50 minutes after takeoff and within minutes of the spaceship's release from its mothership, said Stuart Witt, CEO of the Mojave Air and Space Port.

Virgin Galactic — owned by Branson's Virgin Group and Aabar Investments PJS of Abu Dhabi — sells seats on each prospective journey for $250,000. The company says that "future astronauts," as it calls customers, include Stephen Hawking, Justin Bieber, Ashton Kutcher and Russell Brand. The company reports receiving $90 million from about 700 prospective passengers.

Former NASA top space scientist Alan Stern has seats to fly on Virgin Galactic and isn't rethinking his plans.

"Let's not be Chicken Littles here," said Stern. "I want to be part of the opening of this future frontier."

Friday's accident was the second this week involving private space flight. On Tuesday, an unmanned commercial supply rocket bound for the International Space Station exploded moments after liftoff in Virginia.

Virgin Galactic plans to launch space tourism flights from the quarter-billion-dollar Spaceport America in southern New Mexico once it finished developing its rocket ship.

Taxpayers footed the bill to build the state-of-the-art hangar and runway in a remote stretch of desert in southern New Mexico as part of a plan devised by Branson and former New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson. Critics have long challenged the state's investment, questioning whether flights would ever get off the ground.

SpaceShipTwo is based on aerospace design maverick Burt Rutan's award-winning SpaceShipOne prototype, which became the first privately financed manned rocket to reach space in 2004.

"It's an enormously sad day for a company," Burt Rutan told The Associated Press in a phone interview from his home in Idaho, where he lives since retiring.

Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — April Fisher walked into a brightly lit, flag-adorned room at the Harris County Administration Building this week and, for the first time in her life, contemplated a ballot.

"I've never voted in my life," the 30-year-old Louisiana native said with a shrug. "I don't even understand politics."

Fisher came to Houston five years ago after her father gambled away their family's life savings. The choices she made here ended in addiction, prostitution and criminal convictions.

But on this day, with her life on the mend, Fisher found the name of the judge who heard her most recent prostitution charge, a woman she credits with helping get her life back on track. She tapped the voting machine's selector dial. It felt good.

In a booth next to her was the kind of authority figure who had been an adversary in Fisher's past life — a sheriff's deputy.

"I was proud to stand next to that deputy and he didn't put handcuffs on me," she said.

Fisher walked out of the downtown building and into a balmy fall day minutes later.

"I feel like my voice was being heard," she said, before lighting up a cigarette.

A precious right for many Texans, voting for Fisher and a group of about 15 women — recovering drug addicts, former sex workers and others — was about something more: finding their voice.

They were enrolled in (or have graduated from) the "We've Been There Done That," a program run through the Harris County Sheriff's Office, which seeks to rehabilitate women and help them avoid returning to their criminal past.

"These women have never been empowered, have been victims of sex abuse, of abuse, of imprisonment," said Jennifer Herring, director of re-entry services for the sheriff's office. "Now, for them to be able to seek for themselves a voice through this voting process, it's liberating."

Associated Press

April Fisher, 30, who was in the Harris County Jail intervention program "We've Been There Done That", votes at an early voting location Wednesday in Houston. Kathryn Griffin-Townsend is a recovering drug addict and onetime sex worker that started the "Been There Done That" in-jail intervention program after her last stint in jail more than a decade ago. More than 3,500 people have participated in the program since then, she said. This year marked the first time she arranged for a group of women to vote.

Men and women booked on charges of prostitution, sex trafficking or theft are interviewed to see if they qualify for the program and are willing to do the work to change.

Those who do are moved to a "tank" at the jail where they all live, and where specialists visit and offer coaching in a variety of areas, ranging from life skills to drug abuse treatment to professional development. After leaving jail, they receive substance abuse treatment or participate in other programs.

Some 200 women have gone through the program in the last year, Herring said. Recidivism rates are about 14 percent.

Fisher's story was similar to those of many of her compatriots. She racked up a theft charge. On New Year's day four years ago, she lost custody of her kids after failing a drug test.

"I wanted to die," she recalled, choking up for a moment. "It was like they took my soul out of my body."

Then she served time for the theft charge and left jail, alone, without her children or any support. Fisher returned to the streets but said her most recent arrest for prostitution, earlier this year, pushed her over the edge.

"This is how I see it," she said. "When my kids turn 18 and come looking for me, I have to have a survivor story. I don't want to still be at the bottom."

Before voting, the women had gathered outside the building for a pep talk.

It came from the woman who started the "We've Been There Done That" program.

Many of the women had spent years in and out of courtrooms but had no idea judges were elected officials, Kathryn Griffin-Townsend told them.

"We can actually change the face of what is happening in politics!" she said.

Griffin-Townsend is a recovering drug addict and onetime sex worker. She started the program after her last stint in jail more than a decade ago. More than 3,500 people have participated in the program since then, she said. This year marked the first time she arranged for a group of women to vote.

Two booths down from Fisher, Matilda Perez also was casting her ballot for the first time.

The 44-year-old had paid special attention to the judicial elections.

"Some (judges) just look at your record and want to convict you for things you've already done time for," she said.

The fast-talking Trinity Gardens resident said she first ran afoul of the law 11 years ago.

"We wouldn't see her for a year (at a time)," said Heaven-Lee Acosta, her 18-year-old niece, who came along to watch her aunt cast her first vote.

Perez's last run-in with the law came in November. Now she works in a dental office and volunteers.

"I'm proud to say she's got her life together," Acosta said.

Third Ward resident Kimberly Price, 49, has been in and out of jail numerous times over the last 30 years. She's been on her own since she was 11, she said, after her godmother died.

"I had to hustle," said Price, a slim African-American woman with short black hair she'd dyed blond on top.

For her, she said, casting a ballot was a chance to vote for a program that had finally given her a chance at rehabilitation.

"The traditional system let me down; it was always 'go to prison,' " explained Price, another first-timer in the voting booth. "I'm excited I got the chance to vote for people who are for me, who want to help me succeed."

CORPUS CHRISTI

Man had more than 5M porn images

A South Texas man who acknowledged having more than 5 million pornographic images has pleaded guilty to possession of child pornography.

Terry Lee Clark of Corpus Christi faces up to 20 years in federal prison during sentencing scheduled for February.

Prosecutors in Corpus Christi on Friday announced the plea from the 48-year-old Clark, who remains in custody over the investigation that began in July.

Authorities received an anonymous tip and contacted Clark, who allowed them to search his home and examiner computer devices. Investigators recovered images and videos. Some show girls engaging in sex acts with men.

Clark, as part of the plea deal, acknowledged possessing millions of pornographic images and downloading items from various websites. Further details on the images weren't immediately released.

BROWNSVILLE

3 soldiers guilty of smuggling immigrants

Three Fort Hood soldiers who used their U.S. Army identification or gear to help hide immigrants have been convicted in a South Texas smuggling ring.

Eric Alexander Rodriguez of Odem, Brandon Troy Robbins of San Antonio and Christopher David Wix of Abilene face federal prison terms of up to 10 years.

Rodriguez and Robbins on Thursday pleaded guilty in Brownsville to transporting undocumented immigrants. Wix pleaded guilty to conspiracy to transport and harbor undocumented immigrants.

Investigators said all three soldiers, in separate incidents since April, were driving in South Texas and had stopped at the Sarita checkpoint. Individuals suspected of being in the U.S. illegally were found hiding under military gear during each of the stops.

Officials eventually linked the human smuggling cases.

CONROE

Woman who put gun into boy's backpack gets 3 years

A Houston-area woman must serve three years in prison for putting her boyfriend's gun in his son's backpack to get the child in trouble at school.

Montgomery County jail records show 28-year-old Heather Hodges of Anderson was being held Friday pending transfer to a Texas prison.

A judge in Conroe on Thursday sentenced Hodges, who pleaded guilty to unlawful carrying of a weapon on restricted premises in the 2012 case.

Investigators said Hodges believed the 13-year-old boy had mistreated her two younger children.

An anonymous phone call, later linked to Hodges, led to the gun being found in the boy's backpack at Magnolia Junior High School in Magnolia.

Nobody was hurt.

Feds, Albuquerque reach deal on police reform

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The U.S. Justice Department and New Mexico's largest city have reached an agreement to overhaul Albuquerque's police department amid several accusations of excessive force, agreeing to reforms that include new training and protocols for investigating officer shootings.

The deal announced Friday also ordered the force to be independently monitored and calls for the changes to be in place within four years.

Damon Martinez, the U.S. attorney for the district of New Mexico, said at a news conference that the agreement represents a new chapter for Albuquerque.

City and federal officials have spent hundreds of hours discussing overhaul plans in the months after a Department of Justice report found in April that officers showed a pattern of using excessive force.

The police department serving a city of about 560,000 people has faced scrutiny for 41 police shootings — 27 of them fatal — since 2010. The fatal shooting of a homeless man in March sparked protests around the city after video footage appeared to show the man surrendering during a standoff.

Attorney General Eric Holder said the agreement will transform the culture and practices of the Albuquerque Police Department.

"And I am confident that, with the cooperation of city leaders and brave law enforcement officials, we will take significant steps to restore trust with local citizens and build for Albuquerque's residents the stronger, safer, and more secure communities that all Americans deserve," Holder said.

Judge rejects Ebola quarantine for survivor nurse

Associated Press

FORT KENT, Maine — A Maine judge gave nurse Kaci Hickox the OK to go wherever she pleases, handing state officials a defeat Friday in their bid to restrict her movements as a precaution against Ebola.

In a case that has come to encapsulate the clash in the U.S. between personal freedom and fear of Ebola, Judge Charles C. LaVerdiere ruled that Hickox must continue daily monitoring of her health but said there is no need to isolate her or restrict her movements because she has no symptoms and is therefore not contagious.

The judge also decried the "misconceptions, misinformation, bad science and bad information" circulating about the lethal disease in the U.S.

After the ruling, a state police cruiser that had been posted outside Hickox's home left, and she and her boyfriend stepped outside to thank the judge.

Hickox, 33, called it "a good day" and said her "thoughts, prayers and gratitude" remain with those who are still battling Ebola in West Africa. She said she had no immediate plans other than to watch a scary movie at home on Halloween.

Gov. Paul LePage said he disagreed with the ruling but will abide by it.

"As governor, I have done everything I can to protect the health and safety of Mainers. The judge has eased restrictions with this ruling, and I believe it is unfortunate," LePage said.

Later in the day, the governor lashed out at Hickox, saying: "She has violated every promise she has made so far, so I can't trust her. I don't trust her. And I don't trust that we know enough about this disease to be so callous."

Hickox was thrust into the center of a national debate after she returned to the U.S. last week from treating Ebola victims in West Africa as a volunteer for Doctors Without Borders.

On Thursday, after Hickox refused to stay home and abide by what Maine called a voluntary quarantine, the state went to court to try to impose restrictions on her until the 21-day incubation period for Ebola ends on Nov. 10. State health officials were willing to let her go out on a jog or a bike ride, but wanted to bar her from crowded public places and require her to stay at least 3 feet from others.

But the judge turned the state down.

In his ruling, the judge thanked Hickox for her service in Africa and acknowledged the gravity of restricting someone's constitutional rights without solid science to back it up.

"The court is fully aware of the misconceptions, misinformation, bad science and bad information being spread from shore to shore in our country with respect to Ebola," he wrote. "The court is fully aware that people are acting out of fear and that this fear is not entirely rational."

Hickox's quarantine in Maine — and, before that, in New Jersey, upon her arrival back in the U.S. — led humanitarian groups, the White House and many scientists to warn that automatically quarantining medical workers is unnecessary and could cripple the fight against Ebola by discouraging volunteers like Hickox from going to danger zone.

Hickox contended that confinement at her home in Fort Kent, a town of 4,300 people in far northern Maine along the Canadian border, violated her rights and was unsupported by science.

North Texas town voting on fracturing ban

By Emily Schmall
Associated Press

DENTON — Anti-fracturing activists and campaigners backed by big oil and gas companies sparred outside of voting sites on the last day of early voting in a North Texas university town that's considering a ban on new permits for hydraulic fracturing.

The referendum is on Tuesday's ballot in Denton, which is about 40 miles north of Dallas. Though preexisting permits would remain valid, opponents have called it a wholesale ban on drilling.

"There are good drillers and bad drillers, and people with drilling near their houses should look into which kind they have before trying to ban it," said Larry Schumacher, a paid campaigner for Denton Taxpayers for a Strong Economy, the political action committee created to defeat the measure.

Industry groups have warned the ban could be followed by litigation and a severe hit to Denton's economy.

Scores of cities in other states have considered similar bans over health and environmental concerns. But the proposal in Denton is a litmus test on whether any community in Texas — the nation's biggest oil and gas producer — can rebuff the industry and still thrive.

The rankling began when local activists submitted a petition to Denton's City Council in June with enough signatures to force a vote on the ban. Because the council rejected it, the measure went to a public vote and is on Tuesday's ballot.

"This is it. The city will uphold the ban as law" if it's approved by voters, city spokeswoman Lindsey Baker.

From left, Topher Jones, Edward Hartmann and Angie Holliday hold a campaign sign outside city hall in Denton. Tensions are mounting as big oil companies and hydraulic fracturing opponents try to sway voters to their side over a Tuesday referendum that would make Denton the first Texas city to ban further permitting of the drilling practice.

Supporters of the measure have raised only a fraction as much as opponents, according to the city secretary's latest political campaign reports.

Exxon Mobil subsidiary XTO Energy, based in Fort Worth, and Houston-based Enervest Operating have each donated $45,000 to Denton Taxpayers for a Strong Economy.

Ed Soph, treasurer of the Pass the Ban PAC, said most of his group's contributions are individual donations of $50 or less.

"It's David versus Goliath," he says.

Fracturing involves blasting a mix of water, sand and chemicals deep into underground rock formations to release trapped oil and gas. Opponents in Denton say it pollutes air and drinking water, and the disposal of the vast amounts of water produced by the drilling process could cause earthquakes.

Industry groups counter that it's cleaner than other forms of energy extraction and can be done safely.

Denton resident Randy Sorrells, who hopes to use earnings from the five pump jacks on his property to fund his children's college education, believes a ban would violate his property rights.

Permian Basin sheds 6 rigs this week

From staff reports

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the Permian Basin decreased six this week to 562, according to the weekly rotary rig count released Friday by Baker Hughes.

In District 8, which includes Midland County, there were 331 rigs, down nine.

Texas shed five rigs this week for a statewide total of 901. There were 218 rigs in the Eagle Ford, up two; 59 in the Granite Wash, down three; 31 in the Haynesville, up one; and 23 in the Barnett, up one.

At this time last year there were 451 rigs in the Permian Basin and 821 in Texas.

The U.S. added two rigs this week for a nationwide total of 1,929. There were 1,582 oil rigs, down 13; 346 natural gas rigs, up 14; and one rig listed as miscellaneous, up one.

By trajectory, there were 365 vertical drilling rigs, up four; 1,353 natural gas rigs, down two; and 211 directional drilling rigs, unchanged.

A year ago this week there were 1,742 rigs in the U.S.

The top five basins by rig count this week were the Permian; the Eagle Ford; the Williston with 192, unchanged; the Marcellus with 84, up three; and the Mississippian with 78, up five.

The top five states by rig count were Texas; Oklahoma with 208, up four; North Dakota with 180, unchanged; Louisiana with 112, up two; and New Mexico with 100, down three.

In the U.S., there were 1,862 rigs on land, up three; 14 in inland waters, up one; and 53 offshore, down two. There were 51 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, down two.

Canada added three rigs this week for a nationwide total of 429. There were 237 oil rigs, up five; 192 natural gas rigs, down two; and zero rigs listed as miscellaneous, unchanged. Canada had 394 rigs a year ago this week.

The total number of rigs in the North America region — which includes the U.S. and Canada — increased five this week to 2,358. There were 2,136 rigs in North America at this time last year.

3 Calif. counties voting on fracturing bans

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Voters in three coastal California counties vote Tuesday on whether to ban fracturing and other intensive oil production, even as slumping prices globally are leading companies to start to scale back on production.

Chevron, ExxonMobil and other oil companies have donated about $7 million to try to defeat the fracturing bans in Santa Barbara, San Benito and Monterey counties. In Santa Barbara and San Benito counties, the ballot measures would ban not only fracturing but one of the most commonly used drilling methods in the state: steam injection.

None of the three counties currently are known to host onshore fracturing. That has led some opponents of the fracturing bans to argue the vote is no more necessary than banning ice-fishing in the temperate, coastal counties.

What to know: Gas prices fall under $3

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The sight is so surprising that Americans are sharing photos of it, along with all those cute Halloween costumes, sweeping vistas and special meals: The gas station sign, with a price of $2-something a gallon.

"It's stunning what's happening here," says Tom Kloza, chief oil analyst at the Oil Price Information Service. "I'm a little bit shocked."

The national average price of gasoline has fallen 33 cents in October, landing Friday at $3.00, according to AAA. Kloza said the average will fall under $3 by early Saturday morning for the first time in four years.

When the national average crossed above $3 a gallon in December of 2010, drivers weren't sure they'd ever see $2.99 again. Global demand for oil and gasoline was rising as people in developing countries bought cars by the tens of millions and turmoil was brewing in the oil-rich Middle East.

Now, demand isn't rising as fast as expected, drillers have learned to tap vast new sources of oil, particularly in the U.S., and crude continues to flow out of the Middle East.

Seasonal swings and other factors will likely send gas back over $3 sooner than drivers would like, but the U.S. is on track for the lowest annual average since 2010 — and the 2015 average is expected to be lower.

Here are a few things to know about cheap gas:

■ Crude prices came off the boil. Oil fell from $107 a barrel in June to near $81 because there's a lot of supply and weak demand. U.S. output has increased 70 percent since 2008, and supplies from Iraq and Canada have also increased. At the same time, demand is weaker than expected because of a sluggish global economy.

■ In the past, a stronger economy in the U.S., the world's biggest consumer of oil and gasoline, typically meant rising fuel demand. No longer. Americans are driving more efficient vehicles and our driving habits are changing. Michael Sivak of the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute calculates that the number of miles travelled per household and gallons of fuel consumed per household peaked in 2004.

■ The drop from last year's average of $3.51 per gallon will save the typical U.S. household about $50 a month.

■ The drop will save the U.S. economy $187 million a day, and also boost the profits of shippers, airlines, and any company that sends employees out on sales calls or for deliveries.

Military sex survey draws complaints

By Lolita C. Baldor
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Shocked and offended by explicit questions, some U.S. servicemen and women are complaining about a new sexual-assault survey that hundreds of thousands have been asked to complete.

The survey is conducted every two years. But this year's version, developed by the Rand Corp., is unusually detailed, including graphically personal questions on sexual acts.

Some military members told The Associated Press that they were surprised and upset by the questions, and some even said they felt re-victimized by the blunt language. None of them would speak publicly by name, but Pentagon officials confirmed they had received complaints that the questions were "intrusive" and "invasive."

The Defense Department said it made the survey much more explicit and detailed this year in order to get more accurate results as the military struggles to reduce its sexual assaults while also encouraging victims to come forward to get help.

The survey questions, which were obtained by The Associated Press, ask about any unwanted sexual experiences or contact, and include very specific wording about men's and women's body parts or other objects, and kinds of contact or penetration.

Here is a sample question, one of a series of 11 graphic questions out of 34. Some are even more detailed:

"Before 9/18/2013, had anyone made you insert an object or body part into someone's mouth, vagina or anus when you did not want to and did not consent?"

"We've had a number of complaints," said Jill Loftus, director of the Navy's sexual assault prevention program. "I've heard second- and third-hand that there are a number of women, officers and enlisted, who have gotten to the point where they've read the questions and they've stopped taking the survey. They found them to be either offensive or too intrusive — 'intrusive, invasive' — those are the words they used."

Early votes exceed 15 million; who benefits?

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Early votes soared past 15 million across 31 states on Friday, an outpouring that is giving hopeful Republicans as well as nervous Democrats cause for optimism heading into the final weekend of a campaign with control of the Senate, the U.S. House and 36 governorships at stake.

Republicans pointed to a strong early-vote performance in Iowa as evidence that Joni Ernst was a step ahead in her bid to capture a Senate seat for the GOP. "I feel real good about it," said Gov. Terry Branstad, campaigning with the party's Senate hopeful as he sought a new term for himself, as well.

But in Georgia, Democrats said a strong early turnout by African-Americans in the counties around Atlanta was a good sign for Michelle Nunn, running for a seat long out of the party's reach.

As candidates headed into a final weekend of campaigning, Democratic hopes of holding a Senate seat in Arkansas appeared to be fading, and Republicans already appeared assured of gains in West Virginia, South Dakota and Montana. They need to gain six to come away with the election's biggest prize — control of the Senate during President Barack Obama's final two years in office.

Strategists in both parties agreed privately that races in Louisiana and Georgia were probably headed for runoffs, and several Republicans expressed concern about Kansas, where polls showed Sen. Pat Roberts was in a tough race to keep a seat held by Republicans for decades.

Democratic incumbents in Alaska, Colorado and New Hampshire also faced difficult tests, as did Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell in Kentucky.

Republicans are all but certain to hold their majority in the House, and Democrats are working to minimize their losses in the campaign's final days by rushing help to candidates once viewed as safe.

The early vote turnout varied from state to state, exceeding 2010 levels in Louisiana, Wisconsin, Maryland, Florida, Iowa and Georgia. Most of those states are holding intensely competitive races for the Senate or governor or both.

In Louisiana, where Democratic Sen. Mary Landrieu is in a difficult three-way fight for re-election, the early vote was 80 percent higher than in the 2010 midterm elections.

In Iowa, figures provided by state election officials showed Democrats had cast about 41 percent of the early vote, Republicans about 39 percent and independents nearly 20 percent. Four years ago, Democrats held a double-digit advantage.

In Georgia, though, official figures showed an increase in heavily African-American counties accounted for all of the gain in early votes over 2010. Democrats have worked for months to bring so-called drop-off voters into the electorate, those who usually skip midterm contests.

In addition to Nunn's race against Republican businessman David Perdue, Jason Carter is challenging Republican Gov. Nathan Deal in the state with the highest unemployment in the country.

Wisconsin voters exceeded their 2010 early vote totals by 10 percent. Democrat Mary Burke is challenging Republican Gov. Scott Walker in one of the country's most closely watched elections. No party breakdown was available.

The early vote in Kansas was just shy of the 2010 totals, about 153,000 overall. Nearly 55 percent were cast by Republicans, but GOP officials privately expressed nervousness.

Roberts isn't the only Republican with a tough fight. Gov. Sam Brownback, whose agenda has been so conservative that it sparked a rebellion within his own party, is running against Democratic challenger Paul Davis.

In other developments on Friday:

President Obama

Barack Obama, shunned by many Democratic Senate candidates, campaigned in Rhode Island for gubernatorial contender Gina Raimondo. He urged voters to support candidates who will back economic policies that benefit women as well as men, saying, "The idea that my daughters wouldn't have the same opportunities as somebody's sons, well that's unacceptable."

A post-election checkup?

Mail from Americans for Prosperity, a conservative group, is turning up in Arkansas, telling recipients their "voting record may be examined for completeness" after the election. Democratic Party spokesman Patrick Burgwinkle said it showed out-of-state billionaires are determined to elect Rep. Tom Cotton over Sen. Mark Pryor "no matter how dishonest the tactic."

In debt before any runoffs

Senate Democrats are leaning on a $10 million loan from early October to sustain their majority, and they face the prospect of possible runoff elections in Louisiana and Georgia. Even so, the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee has gone into the red in each of the last three election cycles, and managed to win each time. It ended 2012 with $16 million in red ink, finished 2010 with almost $9 million in debt and wrapped up 2008 owing close to $11 million.

Medicare weighs paying doctors for end-of-life counseling

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Medicare said Friday it will consider paying doctors to counsel patients about their options for end-of-life care, the same idea that spurred accusations of "death panels" and fanned a political furor around President Barack Obama's health care law five years ago.

The announcement came in a voluminous regulation on physician payment. It will "give the public ample opportunity to weigh in on the topic," said Medicare spokesman Aaron Albright.

Medicare will consider a change for 2016.

Such counseling would be voluntary, aiming to make patients aware of their options so they can determine the type of care they want at the end of life.

It's an idea that has wide support in the medical community, and some private insurance plans already pay for such counseling. Supporters say counseling would give patients more control and free families from tortuous decisions.

Passing game helps lead Monahans past Greenwood

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Loboes	28
Rangers	19

MONAHANS — It's not often in the rivalry between Greenwood and Monahans that the Loboes' passing game proves to be a huge factor in the game.

But for a Loboes team that's usually known for running the ball out of the wing-T, it has proven this season that it can throw it too.

Quentin Jones threw for 204 yards and four touchdowns, and the Loboes' defense came up with some key stops and four turnovers for a 28-19 victory over the Rangers on Friday night at Estes Memorial Stadium.

With the victory, the Loboes (5-4, 3-1 in District 2-4A Division II) clinched a playoff spot. Meanwhile, Greenwood (4-5, 2-2) will have to wait until next week's home game against Pecos to know if it's postseason bound.

An indication of what the Loboes were going to do in the game came on the first play of the night when Jones found Marcus Montez (four catches for 103 yards) in the middle of the field for a 61-yard touchdown pass. That automatically got the Rangers on their heels, while it also slightly softened up the Rangers' run defense.

"We've been throwing the ball all year but Greenwood makes it real tough to run the ball," said Monahans coach Mickey Owens, whose team rushed for 185 yards on 39 carries. "We've got to be able to throw it to loosen them up a bit. I thought Quentin had a great night and the receivers had a great night."

Greenwood coach Shad Hanna said he wasn't surprised by the Loboes' passing game considering that is something they've been doing all season.

"They lull you to sleep, run the ball, run the ball, run the ball and then all of a sudden here they go throwing the ball," Hanna said. "They did a good job with it and we didn't do a very good job of picking it up."

After throwing an interception on their first drive, the Rangers answered when they converted on a fumble recovery for a 12-yard touchdown run by quarterback Zach Redwine to tie the game at 7.

MHS fourth-quarter comeback falls short

By Len Hayward

Eagles	31
Bulldogs	24

Midland High had a chance to end its fourth quarter blues on Friday night against Abilene High.

The Bulldogs scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter and were on the verge of scoring a third late in the game to tie the contest, but a fourth down pass fell incomplete in the final minute and Abilene High held on for a 31-24 victory at Grande Communications Stadium.

Abilene High (7-2, 3-1 in District 3-6A) clinched a playoff berth with the victory, its first since the 2012 season. Midland High, meanwhile, fell to 4-5 overall and 1-3 in district play and now faces a win-and-in scenario next week against rival Lee.

"We've had tough games all year, and this one just got away," Midland High quarterback Ryan Goodrum said.

The Bulldogs stayed in the game thanks to a big defensive play and a big kickoff return by sophomore running back Juleon Bowers.

Midland High safety Blake Humble returned an interception 83 yards in the first half to keep the Bulldogs within striking distance in the opening 24 minutes at 17-10.

But it was Bowers' return that gave Midland High a chance to tie in the final quarter. The Eagles went up 31-17 after Payton Coffman caught a 29-yard pass from Eagles quarterback Derek Scott with 7:26 remaining in the game.

Scott led Abilene High's offensive attack on Friday, rushing for a game-high 182 yards on 18 carries and two touchdowns and also completing 16-of-30 passes for 217 yards, a TD and two interceptions.

But on the ensuing kickoff after the TD pass, Bowers broke free in the middle of the field and outran the Abilene High coverage for an 89-yard return to cut the lead to 31-24. In just a few seconds, Midland High went from being down by two scores and looking at a major uphill climb midway through the fourth quarter to needing to make a stop to have a chance to tie the game.

"I was screaming, 'We are still here,'" Midland High head coach Craig Yenzer said of the kickoff return. "I said, 'Let's go we need a stop. It was exciting and I was proud of these guys, and it was an exciting football game."

The Bulldogs' defense got the stop it needed when the Bulldogs tackled Derek Scott for a 4-yard run on third down, forcing the Eagles to punt. Scott, though, booted a beautiful 48-yard punt that pinned the Bulldogs at their own 3-yard line with 3:29 remaining in the game.

That did little to deter the Bulldogs. Midland High drove to the Abilene High 29 as Goodrum was 5-for-5 on the drive up to that point, and then Ricky Hubert ripped off a 25-yard run to put the ball at the Abilene High 4 with less than two minutes remaining.

The Eagles, though, stopped the Bulldogs on consecutive runs on first and second down, and then Goodrum had two incomplete passes on third and fourth down to guarantee the Abilene High victory.

Goodrum completed 20-of-37 passes for 260 yards and connected 16-of-25 passes in the second half after only completing four in the first half.

Blowout loss keeps Lee out of playoffs

Bobcats	49
Rebels	21

By Chris Hummer
chummer@mrt.com

SAN ANGELO — The ghosts were out in full force for Lee on Halloween night. These specters of the past haunted the Rebels all evening and seemed to spook Lee into every mistake already made this season, with the end result being a dreary 49-21 loss to the Bobcats.

San Angelo Central (8-1, 4-0 in 3-6A) throttled Lee (1-8, 0-4 in 3-6A) from the start, scoring touchdowns on its first three drives. Each of these scores came like a punch in the gut to the Rebels' already slim playoff chances, and by halftime a 39-0 deficit had all but eliminated the postseason as a possibility.

Dobbins

The Bobcats scored often, and they scored quickly in the first half. Six of Central's first eight drives resulted in points, and drive averaged just over a minute.

After a Lee three-and-out, the Bobcats opened up the scoring three plays later on a 57-yard touchdown pass to Coby Fielder from quarterback Braden Hucks. The long play proved to be a theme on a night as Central had seven plays of more than 20 yards, five of which were for 50 yards or longer.

Lee's defense struggled all night to contain Hucks, who threw for 275 yards and four touchdowns to go along with a 128 yards rushing and a touchdown. On the night, Hucks accounted for 403 yards of total offense and five touchdowns in less than three quarters.

The Rebel defense has struggled to prevent the big play all season, and the issue sprung up again. Lee, a defense decimated by injury, surrendered 507 yards of offense to Central, the majority of which came in one half of play.

Lee did make a fourth quarter charge of sorts, scoring three touchdowns in the final frame. Aron Dobbins got a much-deserved touchdown on a night where he toted the ball 27 times for 185 yards. Senior Juwan

Bishop Dunne too tough for Midland Christian

DALLAS — Bishop Dunne ran its undefeated streak to nine with a 24-14 win Friday over Midland Christian at Earl Hayes Field.

Dunne (9-0 overall, 6-0 in TAPPS Division I, District 1 action) scored on its first possession and relied on a tough secondary to keep the Mustangs in check for most of the game. The Falcons picked off a couple of Midland Christian's passes early in the game and harried the Mustangs' quarterback Garry Powell throughout. Still, Powell racked up 240 passing yards, due in part to a couple of big plays by Justin Fender, who lead all receivers with 103 yards.

Powell also strung a series of passes together late in the game to help drive his team 84 yards for their second score of the night. The final touchdown strike came on a 19-yard reception by Cameron Lawrence with just seconds to play.

MCS (5-4, 3-3) scored its first touchdown of the game with 10:10 left to play on a Justin Fender 1-yard run.

The Falcons had no trouble scoring, turning an interception into a touchdown the first time they had the ball. That score was run in by Rajan Cunningham, who gave the Mustang defense fits all night long and eventually had 108 total yards.

MHS' Hoppel, Greenwood's Magallan earn state berths in cross-country

From staff reports

LUBBOCK — Midland High's Bryce Hoppel wanted to run a time of 15 minutes, 40 seconds at the Region I-6A Cross Country Championships at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock. That would have been a personal best.

Hoppel didn't actually run anything close to that number Friday. Instead, he shattered it, dashing to a time of 14:54.01 seconds to finish second overall and earn a state meet berth.

Hoppel led the District 3-6A champion Bulldogs to a 10th-place finish at the regional meet, with Southlake Carroll, El Paso Eastwood, Lewisville Marcus and Keller Timber Creek earning the team state berths.

MHS junior Ruben Guerra just missed out on an individual state appearance, finishing two spots behind in 22nd.

Greenwood's Exalander Magallan qualified for the state championships in Class 4A by finishing 20th, clocking in at 16:36.34.

Andrews' boys team also earned a state meet berth by finishing fourth.

The UIL State Cross Country Championships will take place Nov. 8 at Old Settlers Park in Round Rock. The 4A Boys race will be at 11 a.m. while the Boys 6A race will take place at 12:30 p.m.

FRANK PHILLIPS COLLEGE AT MIDLAND COLLEGE

When/where: 2 p.m., Chaparral Center

Records: Midland College 12-18, 5-4 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference; Frank Phillips 12-23, 1-8

Last WJCAC match: Odessa College 3, Midland College 2; New Mexico Military Institute 3, Frank Phillips College 0

Notes & quotes: Today's match ends the WJCAC regular season. ...It's also Sophomore Day at Chaparral Center as MC will recognize the team's lone sophomore in setter Samantha Orta. ... The Lady Chaparrals are tied for third with Western Texas College but would have the No. 3 seed in next weekend's Region V West Tournament because of their sweep of WTC. ... MC will look to bounce back from a tough five-set loss to WJCAC champion Odessa College on Wednesday. The Lady Chaps had a 2-1 lead in the match but the Lady Wranglers came back to win the last two sets. MC coach Tammie Jimenez said she knew the match against OC would be a dogfight but said her team should be encouraged going forward. "I think it fueled the fire even more to know that we're capable of beating Odessa, or any other team for that matter," said Jimenez, whose team is the only one in the WJCAC to push Odessa College to five sets. "There's an increase sense of desire in our team to win and make a statement for ourselves." ... Alina Demidova had nine kills, Orta had 19 assists, Samantha Furtmann had 19 assists, Ashley Rocha had 19 digs, Aleana Crow had 15 digs and DeaAnn Greehey added 11 digs against OC. ... MC will look for the season sweep of the Lady Plainsmen as the Lady Chaps defeated Frank Phillips in five sets on Oct. 8 in Borger. ... Jimenez said the Lady Plainsmen should be fired up with a nothing to lose attitude as they would like to win to close out the regular season. "At the same time we have nothing to lose because we would likely be the third seed regardless," Jimenez said. "We need to play to our potential and have the hunger and drive to be a better team. This is also going to be the last time to play in front our friends and family."

Ducks beat Stars

Associated Press

DALLAS — Nate Thompson scored 2:30 into overtime and the Anaheim Ducks beat the Dallas Stars 2-1 on Friday night.

Thompson tipped a shot by Corey Perry from the top of the left circle past Stars goalie Kari Lehtonen.

Perry scored Anaheim's first goal at 16:45 of the second period to quiet a crowd that booed him every time he touched the puck. Perry leads the NHL with 10 goals in 12 games.

Midland High's Chandler Berrones (4) is wrapped up by Abilene High's Hill Holloway (22) on Friday at Grande Communications Stadium.

Permian outlast rival OHS

From staff reports

Panthers	17
Broncos	14

ODESSA — Taylor Thompson caught a 6-yard touchdown with five minutes remaining to give Odessa Permian an 11-point lead, but it took an onside kick recovery with less than a minute remaining to clinch Permian's 17-14 victory over Odessa High on Friday.

The Panthers clinched a berth in the playoffs with the victory.

Odessa High's Sebastian Galindo rushed for 99 yards moving him over the century mark with 1,090 on the season in six games. His 3-yard touchdown run with a little under a minute left cut the lead down to three, setting up the onside kick.

Permian marched down the field on their opening possession to take the quick lead. Afterwards the Broncho defense became stingy and forced the Panthers to four different three-and-out possessions.

The Panthers offense was held scoreless the rest of the first half and held to 87 yards. However Permian's defense held Odessa High to two field goals and stopped them once on a fourth down attempt.

In the second half, Permian quarterback Heath Wood finally got outside of the pressure, and Permian was able to come up with timely third down conversions, slowly wearing out the Broncho defense and gaining an 11-point lead.

The loss doesn't eliminate Odessa High from playoff consideration. Regardless of what Odessa High does next week should Lee defeat Midland High by more than a field goal, the Bronchos will make their second straight playoff apperance.

Permian (7-2, 3-1) will end the regular season at Ratliff Stadium against San Angelo Central. Odessa High (3-6, 1-3) will end the regular season at Abilene.

Bulldogs

From 1B

"I was very proud of their effort," Yenzer said. "For the first time this year, we played four quarters, and we tried to win it in the fourth quarter. It just wasn't meant to be. We really struggled offensively in the first half, and I don't think we matched their intensity. But our guys responded, and we kind of found our niche with what we could do and threw the ball effectively, and had a chance at the end."

Lee

From 1B

Lee broke out with a 44-yard touchdown grab from Wesley Hall, and then recovered a block punt for a 19-yard touchdown.

But the late burst on the scoreboard makes the final score a bit misleading in a game that was finished by the fourth quarter.

Three turnovers — two interceptions and a fumble — stalled a trio of promising Lee drives, which is a bugaboo that hasn't gone away for the team this season. Outside of Dobbins, the offense really never managed to find a rhythm.

Lee had four offensive plays of more than 20 yards, three coming courtesy of Dobbins and the other on Lee's long touchdown grab. The Rebels' passing attack struggled most of the night with Hall completing 6-of-18 throws for 102 yards.

The Rebels did find success running the speed option and the wildcat with Dobbins, but the individual plays never resulted in sustained drives.

With the loss, Lee was unceremoniously eliminated from playoff contention. The only solace left in the season could come next week in the Rebels' crosstown rivalry with Midland High. With a win there, the Rebels would possibly knock the Bulldogs out of the playoffs.

But for now, the Rebels are staring at a possible 1-9 season, which would the program's worst season since a 0-10 campaign in 1969.

Rebel history is faintly trailing behind this year's team. Lee has one game left to shake these ominous ghosts. But if they don't, this Lee team will loom in the record books for years.

Conduct of 'do-gooder' at heart of UNC scandal

By Aaron Beard
Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — The University of North Carolina has tried for years to remove the stain of an academic scandal that began with an office administrator setting up sham classes to help struggling students — only to see things get worse.

An independent investigator hired by the school outlined how academic fraud ran unchecked for 18 years, rooted in the conduct of a "do-gooder" who handed out artificially high grades in courses that typically required one research paper with no class time in the formerly named African and Afro-American Studies department.

Now the school faces renewed questions from its accreditation agency about the university and awaits the NCAA's next move before it can try to repair its damaged reputation. The lack of institutional oversight could impact the NCAA probe and ultimately lead to possible wins and championships being vacated.

"It is hard for me to imagine how any person of character could've said, 'No, sorry, don't want to hear it,'" Chancellor Carol Folt said. "So we didn't have a choice. This is the right thing to do."

Several reports indicate the scandal began with retired administrator Deborah Crowder and former chairman Julius Nyang'oro, who created problems with things like lecture classes that didn't meet and operated as independent study.

Some details in former U.S. Justice Department official Kenneth Wainstein's report mirrored an internal probe and one conducted by former Gov. Jim Martin, all saying blame fell to Crowder and Nyang'oro.

The "shadow curriculum" affected more than 3,100 students, roughly half being athletes. It started with Crowder, who provided paper topics and typically issued high grades regardless of the work from 1993 until her 2009 retirement.

Nyang'oro went on to offer six similar classes over the next two years. His hands-off management style empowered Crowder — whom he trusted with tasks such as scheduling courses and approving enrollments while also allowing her to sign his name to department paperwork — and enabled the problem to flourish.

In a statement, Crowder's attorney said she wouldn't speak publicly about the report and noted she fully cooperated with Wainstein.

Greenwood's Zach Redwine looks for space to run Friday evening against Monahans at Estes Memorial Stadium in Monahans.

GREENWOOD

From 1B

"We really put the defense in a bind by turning the ball over, we can't do that," Owens said. "But defensively, we made some big stops during the game. It was kind of like we bent but didn't break. We gave up quite a bit from 20 to 20, but when they got inside the 20, we were able to bow up and make a stop."

Redwine finished with 113 yards rushing to lead a Greenwood running attack that had 321 yards. Stace Bell added 124 yards on the ground for the Rangers.

Greenwood answered again following a Jones TD pass when J.P Contreras caught a 27-yard TD pass from Redwine in traffic in the second quarter. But Greenwood missed the extra point to give Monahans a 14-13 lead at the half.

The Rangers also missed a 21-yard field goal and couldn't convert on a two-point conversion pass attempt.

The game stayed close in the second half, and Greenwood continued to miss out on opportunities.

With the Rangers trailing 22-19 late in the third quarter, the Greenwood defense got a big stop and forced the Loboes to punt.

However, one play into the Rangers' possession, Redwine threw his second interception of the game when Montez stepped in front of a Ranger receiver for the pick.

Monahans put this game away late in the fourth quarter when Jones found Justice Andrews for 14-yard TD pass. The Loboes converted on fourth-and-1 and fourth-and-2 to keep the drive alive.

The Rangers had one last chance to put points on the board, but they fumbled the ball away at the Monahans 1 with 38 seconds remaining in the game.

We put together some great drives and they came up with stops on us," Hanna said. "They did a good job tonight, they were tough. I'm so proud of my kids right now. We're playing so much better right now. I'm disappointed, they're a little disappointed, but I told them, 'Shoot, let's get over that, let's go play some ball, and let's get into the playoffs. We've got a big game next week against Pecos.'"

Kentucky earns No. 1 nod in AP preseason poll

By John Marshall
Associated Press

The story seems to be the same every season at Kentucky: Lose star players to the NBA, replace them with another group of one-and-doners, compete for a national championship.

The Wildcats changed the script this season: This year, the fabulous freshmen will be surrounded by other former McDonald's All-Americans who played for the NCAA title just seven months ago — a team so deep and talented that coach John Calipari is considering a platoon system.

Kentucky was the runaway No. 1 in The Associated Press preseason Top 25 released Friday, becoming the fourth program to earn the honor in consecutive seasons.

"It's something for our kids to live up to," Calipari said. "At the end of the day, you've got to play the games and figure it out."

Kentucky earned 52 first-place votes from the 65-member panel in landing its fourth preseason No. 1. The Wildcats also were No. 1 in 1995-96, when they won the national championship, and in 1980-81.

Kentucky joins UCLA (1966-60, 1971-74), UNLV (1990-91) and North Carolina (2008-09) to be named No. 1 consecutive seasons since the AP preseason poll started in 1961-62.

Arizona is ranked No. 2 and received five first-place votes after adding a strong recruiting class to a team that came within seconds of reaching the Final Four last season.

Wisconsin, which returns most of last season's Final Four team, has its highest preseason ranking ever at No. 3. The Badgers received eight first-place votes, but are 35 points behind Arizona in the poll.

No. 4 Duke added a strong recruiting class headed by Jahlil Okafor and is ranked for the 137th straight week. Reloaded Kansas is No. 5, with North Carolina, Florida, Louisville, Virginia and Texas rounding out the top 10. Virginia is in the preseason top 10 for the first time since Ralph Sampson's senior season in 1982-83, when it was No. 1.

"I think there are probably seven teams that all could be No. 1 in the country," Calipari said.

Wichita State, a Final Four team two seasons ago, is No. 11, followed by Villanova, Gonzaga, Iowa State, Virginia Commonwealth, San Diego State, defending national champion Connecticut, Michigan State, Oklahoma and Ohio State.

Rounding out the Top 25 are Nebraska, SMU, Syracuse, Michigan, Harvard and Utah.

They'll all be chasing Kentucky, at least at the start.

The Wildcats were No. 1 heading into last season after Coach Cal pulled the strings on another best-in-the-nation recruiting class. They lived up to expectations, too, overcoming a midseason slump to reach the national championship game, where they lost 60-54 to UConn.

But a funny thing happened during the offseason: Instead of all those freshman packing up for the NBA after one season, most decided to stick around.

Busch wins Truck race at Texas

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Kyle Busch passed German Quiroga off a restart in a two-lap shootout in the Camping World Truck race Friday night at Texas Motor Speedway for his seventh victory in nine series starts this year.

Ninth on a restart with five laps left, Busch moved to third in one lap and was running second behind Quiroga when a caution forced the green-white-checkered finish.

Matt Kenseth waves Friday after taking the pole position for Sunday's Texas 500 at Texas Motor Speedway in Fort Worth.

Stewart hits 200 mph; Kenseth takes Texas pole

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Tony Stewart turned NASCAR's first 200-mph qualifying lap on an intermediate track Friday. He just did it too soon to win the pole for the Sprint Cup race at Texas Motor Speedway.

The top spot went to Matt Kenseth, who had a final-round lap of 199.299 while Stewart slipped to sixth after winning the second round at 200.111 mph on the high-banked 1 1/2-mile track.

"To be able to say we're the first guy on a mile a half to run 200, that's pretty cool I think," said Stewart, who is coming off his first top-five finish since March after taking fourth last weekend at Martinsville. "Of course we were trying for the pole, but I missed the corner a little bit."

Kenseth topped the eight drivers eligible for the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship with a lap that also broke the previous Texas qualifying record of 198.282 set by Kevin Harvick in April.

In fact, there were 44 laps over three rounds that broke Harvick's previous record. Nine of the 12 in the final round were faster than the April mark.

"It's crazy fast," Kenseth said. "It just amazes me every time you qualify here how fast you can go, especially when it cools off a little bit."

Currently holding the last of the four championship-round spots with two races left before the finale at Homestead, Kenseth was the first driver out in the 5-minute final round. He hit the track with about 3 1/2 minutes to go, and his lap held up.

"That was probably the right time for us to go," said Kenseth, who's on the pole for the first time in 25 Texas races and the 13th time in 542 career races. "I don't know how much difference it made or if it made any difference, but it seemed like a good time."

Jeff Gordon will be outside on the front as one of five Chase qualifiers starting in the top 10. The others are Harvick (fifth), Ryan Newman (seventh), and Joey Logano (10th).

Carl Edwards qualified 11th and Denny Hamlin was at No. 20.

Brad Keselowski was the lowest of the Chase qualifiers at 26th. His only worse start was 33rd at the season-opening Daytona 500.

Kurt Busch qualified fourth, and Danica Patrick was 27th with their new crews. Stewart-Haas Racing last week announced it would swap crews between the two drivers. Tony Gibson took over Busch's team, and Daniel Knost was named interim crew chief for Patrick.

Hurley takes a 2-shot lead at CIMB Classic

By Chris Lines
Associated Press

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Billy Hurley III made six birdies on his front nine en route to a 5-under 67 Friday that gave him a two-shot lead after the second round of the CIMB Classic.

Hurley matched his score from Thursday for a 10-under total of 134, two strokes ahead of American compatriot Kevin Streelman (68) in the jointly sanctioned PGA Tour and Asian Tour event.

A group of seven players was one stroke further back at 7 under, including defending champion Ryan Moore (69).

Hurley, a former U.S. Navy lieutenant who did active duty in the Persian Gulf from 2007-09, is chasing his first tour victory.

"If I can keep hitting it in the fairway and keep putting it like I have and hitting a lot of good putts, then I'll be right there on Sunday," Hurley said.

Hurley, who played bogey-free in the opening round, had a superb start with three birdies on his opening four holes, including two that played the toughest in the opening round: the par-3 11th over water and the long par-4 13th.

He then had three straight birdies from the 16th to make the turn in 30, but his bogey-free run came to an end on the second when he hit a wayward tee shot into the bushes and wound up with a double-bogey 6. He did not let the errant drive distract him, finishing his round with six pars and a birdie on No. 7. He said the ability to withstand bad moments like that and handle the pressure of being in contention is the main thing he learned from three top-10 finishes last year.

"After the bad swing it could have unraveled there on 2 and 3 but I drew on some of the experience I had from last year and was able to hold it together coming in," Hurley said. "The cameras, more people watching the last group, couple of groups. It's the atmosphere of it, and you learn a little bit from that."

Also in the group of players three strokes back was the field's top-ranked player, Sergio Garcia (68), and former top-ranked Lee Westwood, who recorded a hole-in-one en route to a 65 that moved him into contention for his second tournament win at this course in seven months.

Financial troubles dogging F1 before Texas race

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Formula One's third year at the U.S. Grand Prix in Texas is an excellent opportunity for the series to expand its footprint in a rich, largely untapped market for fans and money.

But looking inward, F1 has some troubles. Smaller teams are scrambling to keep up with the spending required to keep pace — spending that tops $400 million a year in some cases, easily the most expensive outlay in motorsports.

Two teams, Marussia and Caterham, won't race in Austin because of financial problems. That leaves Sunday's race with just 18 cars, F1's smallest starting grid in nearly a decade, prompting new warnings from the governing body of international motorsports to control costs or risk losing sponsors and viability with fans.

"These failings once again acutely raise the question of economic balance" in F1, the FIA said this week, urging cost controls to "ensure the survival of the existing grid and attract new potential entrants."

Marussia and Caterham were small players in an expensive sport that stages races around the globe in places like Monte Carlo and Abu Dhabi. No nation hosts more than one event. The teams that pull up the rear in F1 are typically derided as "backmarkers," and both Marussia and Caterham spent almost all their time there.

In three seasons, Caterham had failed to win a single point and Marussia's grand total of two was corralled by Jules Bianchi, the talented young French driver who was severely injured last month at the Japanese Grand Prix and remains in a hospital in critical but stable condition.

On Friday, there was no sign the teams even existed at the Circuit of the Americas. One paddock garage sat empty while another was taken over by tire supplier Pirelli.

Caterham driver Marcus Ericsson sat in the media center cafeteria for lunch after watching the day's first practice session. Instead of his race suit, he wore blue jeans and a black sweater, minus any sponsorship/advertising.

Tech, Texas search for elusive wins to keep glimmers of posteason hope alive

oleroy@mrt.com

When it was announced in August that the Texas-Texas Tech game at Lubbock's Jones AT&T Stadium was sold out, few could have predicted that the teams would have a combined six victories going into today's game.

It wasn't the kind of season the Red Raiders and Longhorns envisioned, either, but both have seen their share of struggles this season for various reasons.

Every program goes through some sort of transition period with a new coach, and the Longhorns (3-5, 2-3 in the Big 12) are no exception in Charlie Strong's first year in Austin.

Not only has Strong cleaned house with some dismissals, including a pair off the offensive line, but the 'Horns had established quarterback David Ash retire because of concussions.

The Red Raiders (3-5, 1-4 in the Big 12) are going through the new coach hangover in the second year under Kliff Kingsbury. But maybe a sign of things to come was late last season when Texas Tech experienced a five-game losing streak in conference play after injuries decimated the little depth it had on defense.

That depth didn't improve much this season on defense, especially after the graduation of key players, while the offense lost the quarter back's best friend in Jace Amaro to the NFL.

Quarterbacks in the spotlight for TCU, WVU matchup

By John Raby
Associated Press

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Most improved is a label that certainly fits quarterbacks Clint Trickett of West Virginia and Trevone Boykin of TCU.

A year ago, Trickett looked lost at times trying to run the Mountaineers' offense after transferring from Florida State. Boykin was relegated to wide receiver until relieving injured quarterback Casey Pachall.

Both Trickett and Boykin ended up throwing seven touchdowns and seven interceptions as their teams finished 4-8.

They're the main reasons behind their teams' remarkable improvements in 2014 and will try to move them closer to first place in the Big 12 when No. 10 TCU (6-1, 3-1) and No. 20 West Virginia (6-2, 4-1) meet today. The Horned Frogs also hope to land in the four-team College Football Playoff. TCU is No. 7 in the CFP rankings, West Virginia is 20th.

Boykin set a school record with seven TD passes in an 82-27 win over Texas Tech last week. He's thrown for 433 and 410 yards in his last two games.

"He is the most improved player in college football," said West Virginia coach Dana Holgorsen.

Both Holgorsen and TCU coach Gary Patterson said their respective quarterbacks are at their best when they aren't trying too hard.

"Let the offense run itself," Patterson said.

Boykin has 21 touchdown passes and three interceptions this season. When Boykin was TCU's quarterback as a freshman two years ago, TCU was averaging about three turnovers per game, Patterson said.

Although Trickett had his streak of 300-yard passing games snapped at eight last week, he's completing 68 percent of his throws and has West Virginia going after its fifth straight win, including the second against a Top 10 opponent.

"We've talked to him a little bit about that this week as far as just playing the game," Holgorsen said. "Don't try to be perfect. Don't try to control the game."

Other tidbits about today's game:

KEVIN WHITE TRIFECTA: West Virginia's Kevin White is one of the nation's top wide receivers. Kevin White also is a TCU cornerback who will see plenty of his WVU namesake. It's also the name of the quarterback who led the Mountaineers to a 31-14 win over TCU in the 1984 Bluebonnet Bowl.

BIG 12 BRRR: Temperatures will be in the 40s with a good chance of rain showers at game time. Last week it was 89 degrees at kickoff for West Virginia's game at Oklahoma State and 88 for TCU's home game against Texas Tech. "We can play anywhere," said TCU defensive lineman Chucky Hunter. "It's football."

Aggies could have new QB for Monroe

By Brent Zwerneman
Houston Chronicle

Sophomore Kenny Hill, in his second season at Texas A&M, had the pleasure of being the most popular guy on campus for all of about two weeks.

Backup quarterbacks typically own that mythical title for at least a season, but Hill had the non-pleasure of serving as second in command in 2013 to one of the most popular players in A&M history in Johnny Manziel, now a rookie with the Cleveland Browns.

Not only was Hill not Mr. Popular, hardly anyone knew his or then-fellow backup Matt Joeckel's name in the illumination of one Johnny Football. Hill, after edging out freshman Kyle Allen in training camp and with Joeckel having transferred to TCU, set the grass of South Carolina's Williams-Brice Stadium on fire in his starting debut, however, with an A&M single-game record 511 passing yards on Aug. 28, prompting the way-too-premature headlines of "Johnny Who?"

Hill then carried on with a decent (and

Relying on inexperienced players at key positions on both sides of the ball and putting too much on a 19-year-old quarterback to make things happen has led the Red Raiders to a ton of self-destructive woes this season.

"Everybody goes through it, and we as a team are going through some things right now," Kingsbury said. "(We) have to continue to work hard and clean up a lot of things."

So where does this leave these two teams when they meet in a 6:30 p.m. game to be televised on Fox Sports 1? Searching for any wins where they can find them, that's where.

With each team having four games left on their schedule, they remain longshots to qualify for a bowl game. If you look at each team's schedule, it's more than just a longshot to reach the postseason.

Texas Tech, which is coming off the 82-27 debacle at TCU, still has Oklahoma, Baylor and Iowa State left on the schedule. While Iowa State might be the only probable win, even that is not a given considering the Red Raiders travel to Ames, Iowa.

Texas, which got shut for the first time since 2004 with a 23-0 loss at Kansas State, still has West Virginia, Oklahoma State and TCU. Both West Virginia and TCU are at home, but if Texas expects to beat one or both of those teams, it must discover ways to get in the end zone more.

But don't try to tell either team that a bowl game is realistically out of reach. Shooting for the stars still very much exists in the college football world when you're not completely out of the picture.

"I think it's not only important for the seniors, but I think it's important for just this team in all," said Texas junior running back Jonathan Gray about getting to a bowl. "I think that there's a lot of guys on this team that need to experience a bowl game. I think that it would do some good for the program. I wasn't here for the 5-7 year when we missed a bowl game, but I heard it wasn't great. So I don't think we need that around here."

Said Texas Tech senior linebacker V.J. Fehoko, "You know what, at this point we've kind of dug ourselves into a pit, and we've really got to dig ourselves out. I think winning out will be crucial for us to get into a bowl game, but like I said, I have confidence in everyone on this team."

In all reality, while this game is still very much for in-state pride and bragging rights, this game might as well be the "Build for the Future" bowl.

From now until the end of the season, each team will be holding auditions as coaches will be looking for which players are "all in" to the program and who's worth keeping around.

Texas Tech defensive coordinator Mike Smith said earlier this week that nobody is irreplaceable and is looking for some players to step up.

Texas senior wide receiver Jaxon Shipley hinted that the Longhorn coaching staff has instilled discipline that maybe wasn't there before Strong got there.

"Guys will learn to do the little things right and I think that will affect the future years here," Shipley said. "I think you'll get guys being brought in and stuff. Right now, we're not focused about any of that. We're just focused on this game."

But you know what, this is still Texas vs. Texas Tech.

This game still means something for both teams. Texas Tech junior running back DeAndre Washington said after the loss at TCU, that if the players can't get up for this game, they're in the wrong sport.

Who knows? Maybe a win by either team might propel them to a strong finish and to that bowl game. It couldn't hurt recruiting either as they begin to build to hopefully better days ahead.

abbreviated showing) the next week in the Aggies' 73-3 whipping of Lamar at Kyle Field, giving him that two-week cushion of Big Man On Campus among the maroon-blooded masses. Questions began bubbling up, however, about his overall accuracy and quarterbacking in general when he "only" completed 20 of 31 passes on Sept. 13, when the Aggies eased past Rice 38-10 at Kyle Field.

Since that time, and especially since the Aggies have dropped three consecutive SEC West contests in appalling fashion, Allen owns the sash as most popular guy on campus — and that sash appears more glittery by the day. Following the Aggies' 59-0 setback at Alabama on Oct. 18, a troubled A&M coach Kevin Sumlin declared all positions open for competition during the program's bye week.

Even quarterback. This week, offensive coordinator Jake Spavital said Hill and Allen were engaged in a renewed competition for starter and A&M would name a starter on Thursday. The Aggies didn't, at least publicly, and a spokesman said everyone would know starting 11 a.m. Saturday, at kickoff, who'd earn the nod against Louisiana-Monroe in a non-conference contest.

Allen reportedly drilled with the first team for the majority of Thursday night's practice, but Sumlin has pulled bigger surprises with starting lineups, and he urged reporters this week not to draw any conclusions on any new starters until the team runs out on the field today.

The suddenly maligned A&M coaching staff is walking a tightrope concerning quarterback, and the choices the coaches make now could impact the program long into the future. At one point — the now head-scratcher against South Carolina — Hill appeared primed to lead the Aggies for the next three seasons.

But with his drop-off in play against much better competition — he threw for a scant 138 yards against the Crimson Tide, lowest by an A&M starting quarterback in the three-season Sumlin era — the persistent question keeps getting asked by fans who've come to expect more from an allegedly high-octane offense.

Perhaps Allen, the nation's top-rated passer out of high school this year, owns more upside long term in the program? There's also the ponderance that if Allen grows frustrated as Hill's understudy, would he consider a transfer closer to his home state of Arizona in search of playing time.

Finally, there's the Kyler Murray factor. The touted son of former A&M standout Kevin Murray is a senior gunslinger near Dallas, and has led mighty Allen High to consecutive Class 5A state titles. This past summer, Murray offered a nonbinding pledge to play for A&M in a ceremony at Allen High, but lately visited Oklahoma and apparently is still considering a trip to Oregon, according to multiple recruiting websites.

Murray, an outstanding all-around athlete, also projects as a potential first-round draft selection in the 2015 amateur baseball draft — giving him one more thing to think about along the way to fame and perhaps fortune.

Ideally for A&M's fortunes moving forward, Hill will look more like he did against South Carolina than he did against Alabama. Allen will continue patiently honing his skills one class behind Hill. And Murray will show up this summer ready to either compete for the starting gig, or perhaps even redshirt in biding his time to run Sumlin's once-celebrated system that's taken its lumps in blowout losses to Mississippi State, Mississippi and Alabama.

No. 11 K-State prepared for Oklahoma State

By Dave Skretta
Associated Press

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Oklahoma State's Mike Gundy tends to stick to himself at coaching conventions and meetings. He isn't someone who tends to spend much time schmoozing with others in his profession.

The same goes for Kansas State's Bill Snyder.

But while Gundy and Snyder haven't spent much time hob-knobbing over the years, that hasn't diminished the amount of respect the Cowboys' coach has for the 75-year-old silver fox.

"As I've said each year, I have a lot of respect for him," Gundy said this week. "You can go back to when Barry Switzer said that he was the coach of the century, at one time. It's a challenge for me, as a head coach, and for our staff against them."

That goes doubly this year. Snyder has No. 11 Kansas State off to a 6-1 start, and a 4-0 mark in the Big 12, the lone unbeaten team left in conference play. The Cowboys, meanwhile, have dropped two straight regular-season games for the first time since the 2012 season.

"I've said this from day one, and I said it years ago when we were standing here talking about being 6-1 or 7-0, but each week is different," said Gundy, whose Cowboys (5-3, 3-2) visit Kansas State tonight. "You can't get too high, you can't get too low."

That's good advice for the Wildcats, who were ninth in the inaugural playoff rankings this week but still have the toughest part of their schedule awaiting them.

TEXAS&BIG12CAPSULES

FROM WIRE REPORTS

TEXAS (3-5, 2-3 Big 12) at TEXAS TECH (3-5, 1-4), 6:30 p.m. (Fox Sports 1)
Line: Off.
Series Record: Texas 48-15

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Both teams need three wins in last four games to qualify for bowl game, and both are coming off demoralizing losses. The Longhorns fell 23-0 at Kansas State for their first shutout in 10 years, while the Red Raiders gave up the most points in school history in an 82-27 loss at TCU.

KEY MATCHUP

Texas Tech passing offense vs. Texas pass defense. The Longhorns are eighth in the nation in pass defense, allowing just 171.4 yards per game. Tech QB Davis Webb is day-to-day after reinjuring his left ankle last week. If he plays he'll need his offensive line to protect him from Jordan Hicks and Steve Edmond. Texas' senior LBs have combined for 185 tackles, including 19 for losses and five sacks. If Webb can't play, freshman Patrick Mahomes will make his first career start.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Texas Tech: Webb has thrown for 2,539 yards and 24 TD but also has 13 interceptions. Mahomes has thrown two TDs and been picked off twice.

Texas: Sophomore QB Tyrone Swoopes seems to be gaining confidence and is a dual threat, although he regressed some and in an uneven showing at Kansas State. He's thrown for 1,495 yards and eight TDs. He's also thrown five interceptions.

No. 10 TCU (6-1, 3-1 Big 12) at No. 20 West Virginia (6-2, 4-1), 2:30 p.m. (ABC/ESPN2)
Line: TCU by 5.
Series Record: West Virginia leads 2-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

TCU needs a win to remain highly ranked in the College Football Playoff top 25, while West Virginia is going after its fifth straight win. Both teams are having surprisingly strong seasons, considering they were picked to finish toward the bottom of the league, and have upcoming showdowns with first-place Kansas State. TCU plays the Wildcats at home next week and West Virginia faces K-State at home on Nov. 20.

KEY MATCHUP

West Virginia QB Clint Trickett against TCU's secondary. Trickett had his streak of eight straight games of 300 passing yards snapped last week at Oklahoma State. He was 21 of 30 for 238 yards and two scores. The Horned Frogs have allowed three 300-yard passing performances in their last four games, including 510 yards to Baylor's Bryce Petty.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

TCU: QB Trevone Boykin set a school record with seven TD passes against Texas Tech. He's thrown for 433 and 410 yards in his last two games. Boykin played wide receiver a year ago in a loss to West Virginia, making 11 catches for 100 yards.

West Virginia: WR Kevin White had his streak of seven consecutive games with 100 yards receiving snapped against Oklahoma State. He was limited to three catches for 27 yards in double coverage but managed a 19-yard scoring reception.

FACTS & FIGURES

The temperature is expected to be in the mid- to upper 30s at kickoff, 50 degrees colder than when TCU played at home last week and when West Virginia visited Oklahoma State. ... ESPN's "College GameDay" show is coming to Morgantown for the second time ever. ... The game marks the third meeting since the schools joined the Big 12 in 2012. Each won on the other team's home field the past two years. Both games went to overtime.

KANSAS (2-5, 0-4 Big 12) at NO. 12 BAYLOR (6-1, 3-1), 3 p.m. (Fox Sports 1)
Line: Baylor by 36.
Series Record: Baylor leads 9-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Baylor, playing for the first time since its loss two weeks ago at West Virginia, needs to win as expected. The Bears are still in a good position to win another Big 12 title, but need some impressive wins down the stretch for the College Football Playoff selection committee to see. Baylor was 13th in the initial playoff rankings this week. That was six spots below TCU, which the Bears beat at home, and four behind league-leading Kansas State, which ends the regular season in Waco the first weekend in December.

KEY MATCHUP

Refreshed Baylor RB Shock Linwood vs. Kansas defense. The Big 12's leading rusher (99.4 yards per game) averaged 26 carries in the three games before the open date. The Jayhawks allowed 219 yards rushing in their last game, the third time this season to give up that many. In three of its four games before that, Kansas didn't give up more than 114 yards rushing.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Kansas: MLB Ben Heeney leads the Big 12 with 12 tackles a game, and has had at least 10 tackles in the first half of his last two games. His 84 total tackles include 10 for losses.

Baylor: MLB Bryce Hager is the team's leading tackler with 55, with 13 in each of the last two games. He had 29 tackles the previous five teams.

FACTS & FIGURES

Baylor has won 13 consecutive home games (only Auburn with 14 in a row has a longer active streak), and 22 of its last 23 in Waco. ... The Jayhawks have lost 24 consecutive conference games since 2008. ... Kansas has lost 30 consecutive games away from home, and 27 consecutive true road games since a win at UTEP in 2009. ... Bears QB Bryce Petty has thrown a touchdown in each of his last 19 games.

LOUISIANA-MONROE (3-4) at TEXAS A&M (5-3), 11 a.m. (SEC Network)
Line: Texas A&M by 32 1/2.
Series Record: Texas A&M leads 2-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Texas A&M is looking to bounce back from an embarrassing 59-0 loss to Alabama and avoid losing four games in a row for the first time since 2005. A win would make the Aggies bowl eligible for a school-record sixth straight season.

KEY MATCHUP

The Louisiana-Monroe offensive line vs. Myles Garrett and Texas A&M's pass rush. The Aggies have 23 sacks this season led by Garrett's 7 1/2. He's already set Texas A&M's school-record for sacks as a freshman and is just a sack away from breaking the SEC freshman sack record of eight set by Jadeveon Clowney in 2011 at South Carolina. Monroe has allowed 21 sacks this season.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Louisiana-Monroe: DL Lorenzo Jackson. Jackson had six tackles, 1 1/2 sacks — both career-highs — and two tackles for losses last week against Texas State. Jackson has six tackles for losses this season and also has four quarterback hits and a fumble recovery.

Texas A&M: The quarterback position. Texas A&M could bench Kenny Hill this week after the sophomore struggled with turnovers in three straight losses. Offensive coordinator Jake Spavital said Hill and freshman Kyle Allen have been taking snaps with the first team this week and that the job is "wide open." Hill beat out the touted recruit Allen in fall camp to earn the job replacing 2012 Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Manziel. Hill leads the Southeastern Conference and is sixth in the nation with 2,649 yards passing.

FACTS & FIGURES

Today is Monroe's third game this season against an SEC team after losses to LSU and Kentucky. ... Monroe's defense didn't force a turnover last week to end a nation-high streak of 32 straight games with a turnover. ... Monroe had nine tackles for losses and five sacks last week against Texas State to give the team 26 sacks this season. ... The previous meetings between these teams came in 1985 and 2007. ... The Aggies are coming off of an open week. ... Texas A&M CB Deshazor Everett leads the team with 53 tackles and needs just eight tackles to reach 200 career stops. ... WR Josh Reynolds leads the Aggies with eight touchdown catches. ... The only time Texas A&M lost to a team from Louisiana besides LSU was 1928 when the Centenary Gents beat the Aggies 6-0. ... Texas A&M has played 14 true freshmen this season.

NO. 19 OKLAHOMA (5-2, 2-2 Big 12) at IOWA STATE (2-5, 0-4)
Line: Oklahoma by 16 1/2
Series Record: tied Oklahoma leads 71-5-2

WHAT'S AT STAKE

The Sooners can keep their faint Big 12 title hopes alive with yet another win at Iowa State. The Cyclones can inch closer to a possible bowl if they can pick up their first home win over Oklahoma since 1960.

KEY MATCHUP

Oklahoma's offensive line vs. Iowa State's defensive line. The Cyclones won't have a chance if they can't get pressure on Sooners QB Trevor Knight. Oklahoma has allowed just one sack all season.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma: WR Sterling Shepard. He tied the school record with 15 catches in a 31-30 loss against Kansas State and has nearly half of all of Oklahoma's receiving yards this season.

Iowa State: QB Sam Richardson. The Cyclones will need at least 31 points to win considering that Oklahoma has scored at least 30 in 11 straight games. Richardson had 345 yards and 3 TD passes in Iowa State's last outing, a 48-45 loss at Texas.

FACTS & FIGURES

The Sooners are 42-1-1 in their last 44 games against Iowa State ... Iowa State is second in the Big 12 with just eight turnovers ... Oklahoma has shut out Iowa State in the second half of three of their last four meetings ... The last Cyclones coach to beat Oklahoma in Ames, Clay Stapleton, died on Thursday. He was 93.

OKLAHOMA STATE (5-3, 3-2 Big 12) at NO. 11 KANSAS STATE (6-1, 4-0) 6 p.m. (ABC)
Line: Kansas State by 13 1/2.
Series Record: Oklahoma State leads 37-23.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

The Wildcats were ninth in the inaugural playoff rankings, so they're hoping to make a statement to the selection committee, especially with high-profile trips to TCU, West Virginia and Baylor still on the docket. The Cowboys are trying to end a two-game skid.

KEY MATCHUP

Kansas State QB Jake Waters against the Oklahoma State defense, which is allowing 282.1 yards per game — 109th in the Football Bowl Subdivision. Waters threw for 224 yards in last week's 23-0 win over Texas, and he has not committed a turnover in his last four games. He has thrown for at least 200 yards in eight straight games.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma State: WR Tyreek Hill leads the Big 12 in all-purpose yards at 150.2 per game. He's returned two kickoffs for touchdowns, and is averaging 9.62 yards per touch. He's been timed at 10.19 in the 100 meters, faster than former Clemson star C.J. Spiller.

Kansas State: WR Tyler Lockett needs 40 yards receiving to pass current Packers star Jordy Nelson (2,822) for second-most in school history. Lockett also needs two TD catches to pass Nelson for second-most with 24. Lockett's father, Kevin Lockett, holds both records with 3,032 yards and 26 touchdowns receiving from 1993-96.

FACTS & FIGURES

Cowboys can become bowl-eligible for school-record ninth straight season with win. They have won five of last six in series. ... Cowboys DE Emanuel Ogbah leads Big 12 and ranks third nationally among defensive linemen with eight sacks. He has five sacks in his last three games. ... Oklahoma State CB Kevin Peterson has 11 passes defended, fourth-best nationally. ... Kansas State is coming off 500th win in school history. ... Waters has a 153.0 quarterback efficiency rating, best in school history. His completion rate of 63 percent trails only Carson Coffman (63.38 percent, 2007-10). ... Kanas State RB Charles Jones has eight TD runs, third-most in Big 12. Seven have come out of wildcat formation. ... Kansas State has scored on 33 of 36 red-zone chances.

Woman's second job is good money but bad way to live

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: For the past year and a half, I have worked a full-time and a part-time job while attending school. I recently graduated from college and now have a career that has put me into a better financial position.

My problem is, I'm still working my part-time job. My boyfriend, "Jared," and I get into arguments over whether or not I should keep it.

I enjoy the extra cash, but I'm starting to feel like life is passing me by because I'm working seven days a week, usually 10 hours a day. I am exhausted, but Jared doesn't want me to quit.

Jared doesn't seem to understand that I feel left out when I work this much. I don't have time to see my family or visit friends, something I feel he takes for granted. Should I keep this job and keep Jared happy, or stand my ground and live life my way? — EXHAUSTED IN IOWA

DEAR EXHAUSTED: At the rate you're going, Jared will work you into a state of collapse. I could understand his not wanting you to quit your part-time job if the two of you were saving for something special, but because you didn't mention that, I am assuming it isn't the case.

In order to have a happy, successful life, people need to achieve a balance between work and time to themselves. If Jared wants the extra income, then my view is that Jared should earn it.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a quandary over a situation I don't have any legal rights over. A friend of mine has two grandchildren. The mother of the children is neglectful. She didn't take them to a pediatrician for two years. My friend baby-sits all the time and the kids know that she loves them, but she can't take care of them full time because she has health issues.

I think Child Protective Services needs to know what's going on with these kids. The little boy is VERY mean to animals and he's not yet 5. If CPS is called, they will take the kids away and put them in foster care that may be worse than what they are currently in, but without the love from their grandma. Is there any way to help these children without causing more emotional trauma to them and their grandma? — CONCERNED IN TEXAS

DEAR CONCERNED: I'm not sure, but of this I AM certain: That little boy desperately needs to be evaluated by a mental health professional — the sooner the better. Children who hurt animals have been known to harm other children.

If Grandma can see that her grandson gets the help he needs, she should see that he gets it ASAP. However, if she can't, and the neglect he is suffering at the hands of his mother is what's causing him to take out his rage on animals, then Child Protective Services should be notified.

DEAR READERS: It's time for my "timely" reminder that daylight saving time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday, so don't forget to turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed. (That's what I'll be doing.) — ABBY

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 1, 2014:

This year you often find yourself manifesting what you desire. You also become clearer about what you want from an emotional tie. Too often, you might be tempted to break through others' barriers, and vice versa. Barriers are there for a reason — remember that. If you are single, meeting someone fun will be easy, but meeting the right person will take time. It is likely to happen later in the year. If you are attached, you or your sweetie will become much more playful and romantic. This behavior will help the relationship bond more strongly together. PISCES encourages you to dream.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Take some much-needed personal time. You probably would be happiest being reclusive. Spend some private time with a friend or loved one. This type of time off will renew both of you. Tonight: Choose a restful activity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Say "yes" to friendly invitations. You might feel as if you have no choice but to go along with one of them. You could be surprised by how much you will enjoy yourself as a result. Tonight: Do not stay home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Keep reaching out to someone at a distance. You might not be comfortable until you make contact. This person expects you to take a dominant role in his or her life. Whether you do this or not will depend on how you feel. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ When you are around good music, you naturally relax and open up more. Make a choice today for your mind and body that will allow you to relax and get past a problem. You could be taken aback by news from a relative or friend. Tonight: Rethink a decision.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Follow a loved one's lead. You might gain more understanding of the complexities of this person by spending a day in his or her shoes. Pace yourself, and understand your limits. Make listening a high priority today. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ You'll have a lot to share, and so will others. It might be difficult to schedule your day with so many requests heading your way. Honor your needs first, because you will not enjoy yourself otherwise. Tonight: Enjoy being with good friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ No one can blame you for living out today exactly how you want. In fact, by doing so, you are likely to accumulate more energy as the day goes on. Pitch in with a project; your help will be appreciated. Tonight: Time for a favorite TV show or another favorite activity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Make it OK to break a daily pattern. You will enjoy yourself much more than you might realize, and you'll like the excitement of a new experience. Invite a friend along or meet a friend halfway. You might not want to return home. Tonight: If you can, honor your need to wander.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You might need to test the waters at a public happening. You could notice a high level of irritability among people at this event that is likely to make you feel slightly uncomfortable. You might have a strong emotional reaction as a result. Tonight: Be nice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ A lot will be shared with you, and you might not have the right words to respond accordingly. Be open and more willing to share your thoughts and feelings. Your fiery personality will emerge with the right kind of motivation. Tonight: Hang out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You understand why playing a smaller role could cause you a problem. Try to get more information, and you will come to an understanding. You still might opt to play it low-key. Tonight: Hold the reins on spending; you easily could go overboard.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You have a way of coming to an understanding with others, though sometimes a hot argument still occurs. You might be able to express feelings that you have kept to yourself. Be careful not to cross any lines. Tonight: Expect to be the main event.

Legal & Public Notices

MIDLAND COUNTY PUBLIC FACILITY CORPORATION
MULTIFAMILY HOUSING REVENUE BONDS
(COMPASS POINTE APARTMENTS PROJECT)
SERIES 2015

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to section 147(f) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Midland County Public Facility Corporation (the "Issuer") will hold a Public Hearing on November 17, 2014 at 4:00 p.m. in the office of the Midland County Housing Authority, 1710 Edwards, Midland, Texas 79701 with respect to the contemplated sale and issuance of not to exceed $21,000,000 in principal amount of one or more subseries of its "Multifamily Housing Revenue Bonds (Compass Pointe Apartments Project) Series 2015" (the "Bonds"). The proceeds of the Bonds will be used to finance the costs of the acquisition, construction and equipping of a 206-unit multifamily housing facility known as Compass Pointe Apartments located in the 1500 block of Wayside Drive, Midland, Texas 79701 (the "Project"). The Project is to be owned by VDC Compass Pointe LP, a Texas limited partnership (the "Borrower"). The initial property manager of the Project will be Homespring Residential Services, LLC.

The Bonds will not constitute a general obligation of the Issuer but will be special obligations paid by the Issuer from funds provided by or at the direction of the Borrower.

In order for the interest on the Bonds to be exempt from federal income taxation, the Code requires that the issuance of the Bonds be approved by appropriate elected public officials of the City of Midland, Texas or Midland County, Texas, following a public hearing. Approval of the Bonds for purposes of the Code does not create, and shall not be construed as creating, any debt, obligation, or liability of the City of Midland, Texas or Midland County, Texas, nor the approval of the Project pursuant to any other applicable provisions of law.

All interested persons are invited to attend the hearing to express their views with respect to the financing of the Project or the issuance of the Bonds. In lieu of attendance at the meeting, written comments may be submitted to the Issuer. Further information with respect to the proposed Bonds will be available at the hearing, or upon written request prior thereto addressed to the Issuer. If requested by a substantial number of members of the public prior to the scheduled date set forth above for the public hearing, the Issuer will consider changing the site and time of the public hearing or holding a second public hearing. Such requests should be directed to:

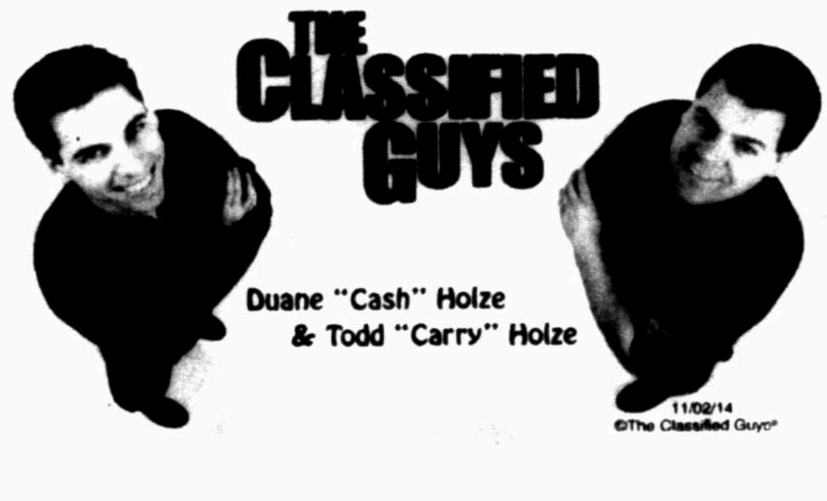
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys,
Ever since I was a little girl, I dreamed of becoming a nurse. The idea of helping people in need and offering some comfort just appealed to me. However, coming from a family with limited financial resources, I didn't get to go to college. I found myself working to get by and then got married and had kids. Recently I've become divorced (it's for the better) and I am proud to say I am doing well on my own. I always read the classifieds looking for a new job, and have worked up the ladder to a point where school is once again an option for me. I'm now 33 years old and can't decide if it's too late for me to go back to school to become a nurse. The program can take up to five years to complete. I need some help working through the pros and cons. Can you help me?

Carry: It's never too late to continue your education, no matter how old you are. It's often said that life without dreams isn't living at all. At only 33 years of age, you still have plenty of time to realize your dreams.

Cash: We could make a whole list of the pros and cons for you, but in all honesty it sounds like you have already done that. You've listed more pros in your question alone. It's obvious that becoming a nurse has always been a dream of yours.

Carry: That alone should give you enough motivation to work toward achieving your goal. We know countless people who went back to school in the evening to get their bachelor degrees, MBA's or PHD's, all of whom are happy they did.

Cash: There are also a lot of advantages to going back to school as an adult. Older students tend to be much more focused on their education with specific goals in mind. People just out of high school often lack direction and use college as a way to determine what they like and don't like.

Carry: As you probably already realize, going to school while holding down a job and raising your children will be a lot of work. Building a support system among your kids, co-workers, friends and relatives will be important. However, your determination is sure to get you through.

Cash: Good luck and keep us posted on your progress. And, like you would tell your children, always do your homework before you go out and play!

Fast Facts

Making the Grade

Continued education is more important than ever and people are taking notice. From 1995 to 2005 enrollment in degree-granting institutions rose 23% to 17.5 million people each year. And women are taking the lead. During that time female enrollment rose 27% compared to men at 18%. Part-time students are on the rise as well. Students over age 25 enrolling for a degree rose by 18% during the same ten-year span.

Final Exam

When it comes to determining intelligence, some people turn to testing their intelligence quotient, also known as "IQ". To be considered superior according to the tests, one would need a score of 130 or higher, currently met by less than 2.2% of the population. However in 1986, Marilyn vos Savant made the Guinness Book of World Records by scoring an IQ of 228. Her results brought her widespread media attention, but with a last name like "Savant", meaning wise person, she was obviously destined for greatness.

Petrified

Some people don't understand the difference between a doctorate degree, like I have, and being a medical doctor. At a recent party, I tried to socialize with my friend's family. I got the usual questions like, "Do you live nearby? or "How do you know the hosts?"

However, one older woman noticed the "Dr." on my nametag and immediately asked, "So as a doctor do you work with kids or adults?"

Making conversation, I told her that I don't work with either as I am a doctor of paleontology. "In other words," I said, "I work with dinosaurs."

I could tell from her response that she was a bit confused. "Then you must get a lot of vacation," she replied, "Since they're all extinct."

(Thanks to Dr. Jimmy N.)
