Tort reform approved by legislators

AUSTIN (AP) — The House quickly joined the Senate Wednesday in approving on voice vote a package of legislation aimed at revising civil justice laws and providing more regulation of liability insurance.

The votes completed the duties of the special session called by Gov. Bill Clements after a Senate filibuster killed the tort reform measures at the end of the regular session Monday night.

The House adjourned after sending the bills to Gov. Bill Clements.

"There will be bills down the road to clarify what we are doing today but this is a big step," said Rep. Mike Toomey, R-Houston, in a brief explanation of the package.

The measures were approved by the House with little debate.

The bills, approved by the Senate Tuesday night, had been cleared for House debate by the House State Affairs Committee after midnight.

Speaker Gib Lewis told the committee any attempts to change the Senate-approved measures might end the session without approval of the package.

The Senate approved the measures Tuesday on voice vote in the special session called by Clements after a filibuster by Sen. Craig Washington killed the tort reform measure at the end of the regular session Monda night.

Washington again postponed a vote on the bills Tuesday night for several hours.

"This is not a filibuster. I'm just asking questions," Washington said after he had been on his feet for more than three hours before a committee made up of the entire Senate membership.

The Senate approved 30-2 an allied measure making numerous changes in state liability insurance law. The bill creates a new consumer protection division in the State Board of Insurance and authorizes a public counsel for the department.

Judge offers plan in TU line dispute

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

District Judge Gene Dulaney, asked to rule in a legal dispute involving a proposed Texas Utilities Electric power line, has issued a letter which outlines a compromise proposal that could allow completion of the line.

The electric company originally went to court in February to condemn an easement across the Winston Ranch south of town for construction of the line, designed to bring additional power to the substation on 37th St. which feeds all of the Snytler area.

This hearing was required since members of the Winston family declined to voluntarily accept a damage payment for a right-of-way easement across their property.

In March, a three-man special commission appointed by the court granted the easement — involving some 20 acres of land — and awarded the heirs of the Winston estate damages in excess of $53,000.

In April, TU filed an objection to this award as "grossly excessive." This legal question remains pending before the court.

Construction on the line began in early May, but was halted after Helen Hatter, granddaughter of Wade and LeClaire Winston, filed suit in 132nd District Court claiming that the electric company had erred in failing to include herself and any other potential Winston heirs, legally know as "unknown remaindermen," in the condemnation suit.

Her lawsuit includes seeking an additional damage award for the easement, and Dulaney honored her request for a temporary injunction May 14. This ruling halted work on the power line.

The original defendants named by TU in the condemnation suit included Hatter's parents, J.R. and Florentz Joyce, as well as Sam Casey, Dorothy Casey, and Jess Everett who leases some of

NEARING FINAL PHASE — Tuesday afternoon, workers with the J.H. Strain Construction Co. put in place the last segment of a mat underliner for the resurfacing of College Ave. The work is now expected to be completed in 14 days provided no time is lost due to rain. (SDN Staff Photo)

14-days to end project

College Ave. resurfacing

Crews with the J.H. Strain Construction Company finished laying a mat underliner Tuesday afternoon for the resurfacing of College Ave. from 27th St. south to the city limits.

Texas Highway Department staffer Robert Elkins of Abilene was on the job site Tuesday and said that, assuming clear weather, the resurfacing project could be finished in 14 days.

According to Elkins, the next work phase will involve the installation of a storm drain in front of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

Work on that job was scheduled to begin Wednesday morning and take the rest of this week.

Once the drain is installed, actual topping of the roadway can begin. If all goes as planned, this phase of the project could start Monday morning.

53 percent decline occurs in building

Building permits for six mobile homes added some $100,000 to Snyder's construction total for the year.

The year-to-date total now stands at some $1.2 million, still some 53 percent below the total of $2.6 million in new construction reported for the same period last year. Exact figures for each are $1,261,698 and $2,681,016 respectively.

Application permits for additions to existing housing and a permit for one house moved in added another $34,035.

Permits for mobile homes were issued to David and Christi Nations, 2511 26th St.; Jesse M. Salazar, 702 23rd St.; Jay Baze, 2204 Merrill; Lynn Taylor, 3008 Avenue J; Javiel Masiel, 1708 Avenue M; and Polly Rodriquez, 701 N. Avenue U.

For appraisal, collections...

District budgets both 'under'

Scurry County Appraisal District board members approved Tuesday an audit report profiling the district's twin budgets, appraisal and collection operations for 1986.

In both cases, the district ended the year under its initial budget estimates.

Jerry Vestal, local certified public accountant, made the presentation.

He quoted a total of $443,987 in assets and liabilities for the district. This figure reflects some $342,470 involving the building, equipment and office furniture.

Regarding the appraisal operation, which involves the larger of the two budgets, the report listed just over $388,377 in income.

Some $373,879 was realized from the pro-rata fees charged the six taxing jurisdictions for appraisal work by the district. The six include Snyder ISD, Hermleigh ISD, Ira ISD, Western Texas College, Scurry County and the City of Snyder.

Some $14,498 in additional revenue was earned through the sale of equipment, royalties on newly developed computer programs and accrued interest.

Disbursements for appraisal operations were listed at over $342,856 — some $25,523 under budget estimates for 1986. Salaries accounted for about $177,617 of the total expense with mineral appraisal services contracted with Thomas Y. Pickett Valuation Engineers of Dallas receiving $57,500.

New value notice mailed to owners

Some 5,700 reappraisal notices have been mailed to property owners here, officials with the Scurry County Appraisal District noted Wednesday.

Changes in oil valuations account for 2,401 of the total with the remaining 3,306 involving values placed on real estate.

Taxpayers must be notified when their property value is increased $1,000 or more; when the property is rendered or declared by the owner; or when the ownership of the property changes.

Chief Appraiser L.R. Peveler noted that most of the real estate changes are due primarily to an upswing in agricultural values.

Values on agricultural lands are based on a five-year average and, for current value estimates, the years counted are 1981-85.

Peveler noted that government payments for cotton, corn, grain sorghum and wheat significantly raised the five year average for this period.

Payments for 1985 included some $6.7 million for cotton, over $49,000 for corn and grain sorghum and over $50,000 for wheat.

Peveler added that values for grade three agricultural land, which includes most local land used for cotton production, increased from $128 per acre to $206 per acre.

He also noted this is the first year all real estate in the county

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Courtship is like looking at the pictures in a seed catalog. Marriage is what actually comes up in your garden."

The other morning we asked a group of coffee drinkers if this community would respond if it had the opportunity of landing a new industry that provided 68 to 100 new jobs.

As expected, the group was enthusiastic and optimistic that the community would respond positively to attract that kind of work force. It was even agreed that money could be raised, if necessary.

The industry we have in mind really won't cost anything. It will just take a conscious effort to practice an important ingredient of community growth--loyalty.

We've already mentioned that about 50 cents out of every dollar earned in Scurry County leaves for purchases made elsewhere. That means not only the loss of revenue and help with an increasing tax burden, but it also means the loss of jobs and a declining retail base.

The new industry we had in mind was loyalty with regard to the medical community. Since Jan. 1, 1984, utilization of the 72-bed Cogdell Hospital has declined to an average census of below 20 patients per day.

Hospital management has done an yoeman's job of reducing expenses in keeping with declining revenues. The results have been increased needs for tax money and a loss of jobs at the hospital.

Since 1984, the fulltime staff at Cogdell has been trimmed by 28 persons and the number of part-time employees have been reduced by 80. This is an equivalent of 68 full-time job losses--folks who no longer have money to spend in the community.

Utilization of the facility--loyalty--would reverse this trend and provide the equivalent of a new industry for Scurry County. Think about it.

Did you hear about the guy who got an estimated bill from the utility company. He sent back an estimated check.

Ask Us

Q. — What types of medically trained personnel are involved in emergency medical service and how do they rank regarding levels of training?

A. — Those customarily associated with emergency medical service include a paramedic, a designation which involves a minimum training of 400 hours; an EMT special skills (EMT-SS) with 160 hours training; a basic EMT (Emergency Medical Technician) with 120 hours; and an Emergency Care Attendant (ECA) with 40 hours training. The ECA is obtained strictly through classroom work while the other classifications involve both classroom and clinical work on an amublance or in the hospital.

In Brief

Stark attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Iraqi government, during a joint investigation of the attack on the USS Stark, told U.S. officials the ship was accidentally attacked because it was inside a war zone in the Persian Gulf, Pentagon sources said today.

U.S. officials have challenged that assertion, saying they have numerous "positive fixes" and radar tracking data on the Stark's location that show it was well outside the so-called Irani exclusion zone at the time of the May 17 attack.

The Iraqi military has maintained the claim, however, and it emerged as the "essential difference" between the two countries in sorting through the events leading up to the attack, the sources added.

Summit set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, promising to seek ways to "strengthen Western solidarity," set out for Italy today for an economic summit likely to be dominated more by trouble in the Persian Gulf than by trade disputes and currency imbalances.

Before boarding Air Force One to embark on the 10-day trip, Reagan appeared at a departure ceremony on the White House's South Lawn and spoke about some of the issues that will be raised at next week's meetings with the leaders of Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, Canada and Japan.

AIDS vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — A researcher who courageously injected himself with an AIDS vaccine to be certain it was safe says it now has produced a modest boost in the immune systems of 10 AIDS victims and 12 healthy people who have received it.

Some researchers feared that Daniel Zagury of the University of Paris would damage his own immune system by injecting himself with the experimental vaccine.

Greater AIDS risk reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — American blacks are nearly three times as likely as whites to get AIDS, and illicit drug use probably accounts for most of their increased risk of the lethal disease, federal experts say.

Figures compiled by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control show that the AIDS risk also is relatively high among Hispanics, but Asian-Americans are substantially less likely than whites to develop the disease.

"The most likely attribution for most of the increased risk among blacks and Hispanics is related to intravenous drug abuse in the cities where intravenous drug abusers have large amounts of AIDS," said Dr. James Curran, head of the AIDS program at the CDC.

The results of AIDS tests given to military recruits also suggest that the epidemic may be increasing more rapidly among young blacks than among whites.

Two-thirds of the more than 35,000 AIDS victims in the United States so far have been male homosexuals, while 14 percent got the disease through needle drug abuse.

Witnesses: man arrested was covered with blood

BECKVILLE, Texas (AP) — The man arrested in the beating death of an 18-year-old legally blind woman returned to a graduation party with "blood up to his elbows" and was cleaned up and taken home by chaperons, a Longview newspaper has reported.

The Longview News-Journal said the party for Beckville High School graduates Friday night featured kegs of beer being served to under-age participants and video movies including a documentary depicting actual death scenes.

David E. Metcalf, 19, was released from the Panola County Jail on $75,000 bond Tuesday after being charged with murder in the death of classmate Theresa Ann Downing.

Metcalf was arrested shortly after the student's body was found Saturday afternoon after he went to the sheriff's office to tell them what he knew about her death.

Officers said Metcalf gave them a statement concerning the slaying.

Officers told the News-Journal Metcalf left the party with Miss Downing and later returned alone with blood on his shirt and arms. Metcalf claimed to have been in a fight and fled an attaker.

Witnesses said some of the chaperons then cleaned him up and drove him home.

Panol County authorities say they do not believe anyone else was involved in the slaying. Officers said witnesses saw Metcalf running from the area where the body was found.

Both Miss Downing and Metcalf were classified as students with learning difficulties, Beckville Superintendent Dr. Andrew Nutt said..

Glynna Goza, a classmate and close friend of the victim, told the newspaper that about 65 students attended the party.

"There were two kegs of beer and the young people swam and watched movies," she said.

Miss Goza said she saw both Metcalf and Miss Downing were there, but she left early along with several other students who were "disgusted with what was going on."

The victim's partially clothed body was found covered with brush behind a cemetery about 300 yards from the house where the party was held, officers said.

It looks like four but it's only three

By James Jacoby

When South made a game-try of three hearts, North was optimistic to catapult to four spades. But he had confidence in his partner's declarer skills. Let's see how that confidence was justified.

If West had been clairvoyant, he would have led diamonds. The defense would quickly take three diamond tricks and wait to take the setting trick in spades. Since he was looking only at his own cards, he led the club king. That gave South his chance.

The unthinking declarer would win the club ace and immediately play A-K of spades. He would then have no way to make 10 tricks. Instead, at trick two today's South played a club from dummy and trumped it. Then came A-K of spades. Although it appeared that the defenders would get three diamond tricks plus the spade queen, look what happened as the crossruff proceeded. South next played A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy as West discarded a club. Another club was ruffed and South led his last heart. West could not afford to ruff (declarer would simply let a diamond go from dummy), so he discarded a diamond. The heart was ruffed in dummy and declarer ruffed another club with his last trump. He now had 10 tricks and the defenders were left to divide the last three tricks between their high diamonds and the queen of spades.

AIDS, politics dangerous mixture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan and George Bush got just a small dose this week of the dangerous mix that results when AIDS and politics come together.

The president and vice president were booed in separate speeches when they proposed mandatory AIDS tests for some groups. And Bush stepped further into a political minefield after his speech Monday when he was heard to say of the boos, "Who was that, some gay groups out there?"

Those reactions show clearly why some politicians are tiptoeing very, very carefully around the AIDS issue.

"This is one time we've got to listen to the experts in the field," opined Republican presidential hopeful Bob Dole on Monday.

Teenager endures hardship

EDITOR'S NOTE — Living in Wyoming, with harsh winters and long hours spent working the land, has always meant endurance. Nowadays, it may mean enduring the loss of a ranch to an agriculture economy in recession. For a teen-ager, it may mean enduring another kind of loss, when the dream of ranching as your father did starts to fade. This is the third part of a four-part series on the pressures of Being 17.

By Tad Bartimus
Associated Press Writer

DOUGLAS, Wyo. (AP) — Only 500,000 citizens live in the almost 100,000 square miles of Wyoming. There's a lot of wide open space to go around. But Glenn Nicholson, a 17-year-old 4-H leader, knows first hand how tough it is to keep 100 acres to call his own.

"We used to live west of town about 10 miles. It wasn't a big farm. We lived there nearly eight years," he said.

His family "tried hard to hang on," his father spending four days a week on the road as a salesman, his mother working full time as the county 4-H agent. Glenn did a lot of the farm work — "haying, irrigating, raising my cattle." Hard work, he acknowledged, but he loved it.

"It wasn't because we weren't trying. We aren't quitters. But the numbers weren't there," Glenn says now. "We only had three years to go to pay it off. We had to give it up.

"We moved to town in January. It's been a hard transition. I haven't made it yet."

Town means Douglas, the Converse County seat. In 1980, when the uranium and coal mines were booming and ranchers and farmers were riding high, the population of the county, 70 miles long and 100 miles wide, peaked at 14,069.

Last year 2,000 fewer folks lived in Converse County. Closed mines and foreclosed farms drove most away.

"Half of the 585 kids in this school have had some financial setback," said Gale Lane, principal at Douglas High School. "We finally had to go to the board of education and say, 'We are up to our eyeballs in personal problems in families because of the economy.'"

Last fall, Lane brought together 70 youngsters, picked at random, to meet with the prosecuting attorney, a minister, a parent and a teacher.

"We discussed our concerns about drugs, drinking, financial setbacks," said Lane. "We came out of it determined to sell a can-do attitude.

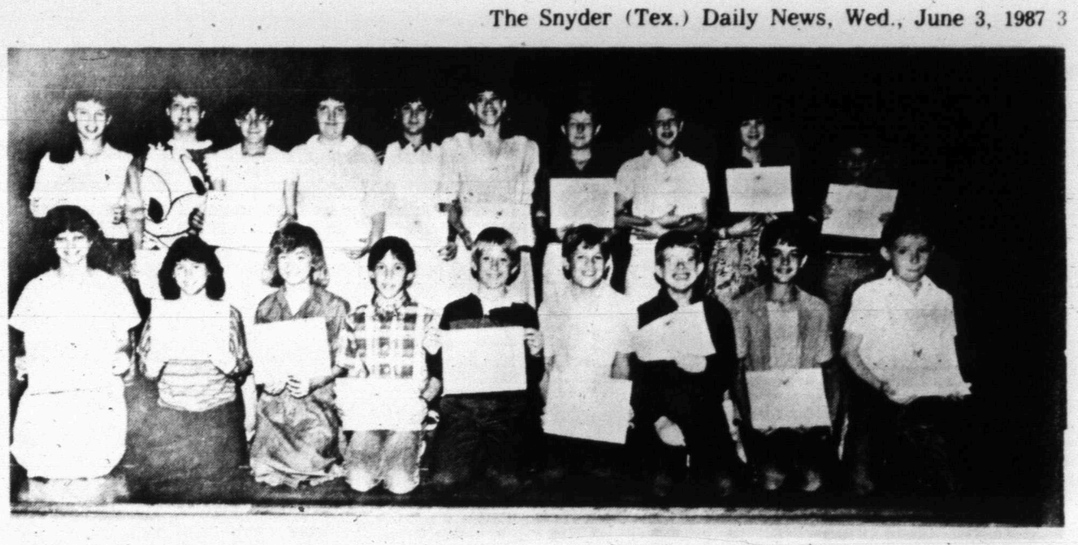

"I tell the kids, 'You're a good person, you're a winner. Everybody has setbacks — look at Churchill, at Gandhi, at Jesus Christ.'"

Next fall, the school district's budget will be cut by 9 percent, and Lane will lose four or five of his 48 teachers.

But college scholarship money for this year's seniors held steady. Much of the $130,000 was

Valedictorian attends grad ceremony; gets no diploma

HOUSTON (AP) — Kingwood High School's highest-ranking student attended his graduation, but didn't get to deliver his valedictory address or receive his diploma after being suspended for hiring a stripper to entertain a teacher.

Despite threats of a boycott, commencement ceremonies went as planned Tuesday night with Michael Woosley sitting in the stands at Humble Independent School District's football stadium in street clothes.

His robed classmates sat on the field and received diplomas. A Humble policeman stood nearby, watching Woosley.

Woosley, 18, was suspended for six days last week after a stripper posing as a police officer visited his physics class, questioned the teacher and began removing her clothes, school officials said.

Caroline Williams delivered the valedictory address, although the program listed Woosley as valedictorian.

When the announcer passed over Woosley's name, the crowd started yelling his nickname — "Wooz!" Two spectators put up a sign reading "Let Wooz Walk," but police promply removed it.

"I don't think the (school) board acted correctly on this. But what has happened has happened and they can't back out of their actions," Woosley said as he entered the football stadium. All around him, fellow students were yelling what became an overnight cheer: "Let Wooz Walk."

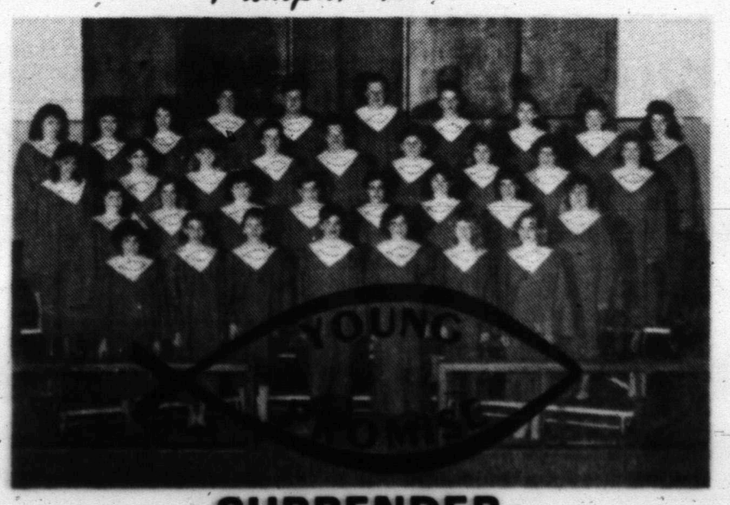

One student, Telle Crofts, wore a T-shirt with the cheer on the front and "Wooz for President" on the back.

"I think it's ridiculous," Miss Crofts said of Woosley's punishment. "Everyone in the whole school is supportive of him. There are people that got busted for drugs and they're out there walking."

Ira standout inks pact with Western Dusters

Ira's Cathy Crowder, co-Most Valuable Player for District 17A last season, has signed a scholarship to play basketball for Western Texas College.

The three-time, all-district post player averaged 16.5 points and 11.5 rebounds for Coach Kevin James' Lady Bulldogs last season, as they advanced to the first round of the Class A playoffs. She averaged 13.7 points and 9.2 rebounds as a junior.

"I'm excited about it," said Crowder. "I know it will be a lot of hard work. It's kind of scary. It will be a lot different in college than it was in high school."

Crowder, 5-11, was not highly recruited, but WTC Duster Coach Kelly Chadwick believes she can contribute with hard work.

"She has a lot of work to do to be able to play the post position - and that's the position we'll want her to play," said Chadwick. "But her attitude seems good and I feel like her work habits will be good. She has a nice, soft touch around the basket and we'll be teaching her how to position herself. If she works hard, I think she'll be able to make a contribution to this team."

Crowder was a regional qualifier in the shot put as a sophomore and a junior. She also served as a cheerleader for four years.

Along with Crowder, Chadwick has signed Amarillo standouts Nickey Allen and Staci Smith, Jackie Reed from Pampa, Julie Roewe from Haskell, Cynthia Hernandez from El Paso, Tabitha Walton from Beaumont and Stephanie McKnight from Snyder.

Goetz doesn't take stand during trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz's attorney says he rested his case without calling the subway gunman to testify because jurors already had seen him at his moment of truth — when he confessed on tape about shooting four youths.

In audio and video tapes made after his surrender in Concord, N.H., Goetz told police he felt he was about to be robbed by four young men on a subway train in 1984 and that he turned into a "monster" who wanted to "murder" them.

The tapes were played by the prosecution earlier in the attempted murder trial.

"He's been seen by the jury at his most tender moment of truth. There's no need for him to take the stand now and repeat what he said before," defense attorney Barry Slotnick said after resting his case Tuesday.

Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples indicated he will call rebuttal witnesses on Friday. Justice Stephen Crane said the case could go to the jury by the middle of next week.

The defense rested after former Detective Charles Penelton testified that one of the shooting victims, while in the hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds, said all four men "stood around" Goetz because he "looked soft."

The testimony is important because Goetz claims he was surrounded by the youths and was about to be robbed and hurt when he opened fire.

Under cross-examination, however, Penelton said that the victim, Troy Canty, didn't say anything about robbing Goetz. The detective also acknowledged that during the 5- to 10-minute interview, Canty was heavily drugged, very drowsy and nodded off several times.

SHS freshman to attend session

Angie Buchanan, Snyder High student, has been awarded a $150 scholarship to attend a journalism workshop this summer.

The Texas Association of Journalism Educators awarded scholarships to eight Texas journalism students. Criteria for the scholarship included being a sophomore or junior, must have been a journalism student for at least one year, plan to continue journalism in the fall, adviser/-teacher must be a member of TAJE, and the applicant had to have a grade average of B. Applicants also had to write an essay explaining why they should receive the scholarship.

Buchanan will be attending the Interscholastic League Press Conference Summer Workshop June 26-30 with eight other Snyder students and her adviser, Diane Arnold, Snyder High journalism teacher.

"About 60 percent of this year's 138 seniors are going on to college," said Harv Domsalla, the high school guidance counselor. "Three-fourths of those kids are getting some kind of scholarship."

Amy M. Willox, 17, was fourth in her class. She leaves home next fall with $1,350 in awards, more than half of it from the Douglas Farm Bureau, the Douglas Lions Club and a local family's endowment.

She plans to study sports physical therapy at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley.

Amy grew up in the shadow of 10,274-foot Laramie Peak and, until the eighth grade, went to a one-room schoolhouse with no indoor plumbing. When she started high school she moved to an apartment in Douglas, across from the school.

"I live in town by myself during the week because our ranch is 20 miles away," she said. "Mom comes in twice or three times a week, bringing meals and food, and she calls every day."

She said she's learned from the challenge of living alone. "Being by myself has made me set priorities and take responsibility."

Her parents' 15,000-acre cattle spread, the 96 Ranch, was founded by her great-grandfather, James Willox, a watchmaker's son from Glasgow, Scotland. Her brother, Jim, is the fourth generation of Willox men to carry that name in Converse County. A student at the University of Wyoming, he will probably come home to the family business.

But not Amy.

"I've been on a ranch all my life, but I've always known I wouldn't come back and be a ranch wife. I want a career." She figures she'll stay in Colorado.

Starting salaries for college graduates in many professions more than doubled between 1975 and 1985. Engineers, who received the highest starting salaries, scored the biggest increase, while computer scientists had the smallest. Despite that, computer experts still receive far higher salaries than many other professionals.

Several families are evacuated

By The Associated Press

Several families living in a low-lying area near D'Hannis were evacuated from their homes today after swollen Ceco Creek began to overflow its banks, authorities said.

Medina County Sheriff's spokesman John Franklin said he did not know the number of families evacuated, but said they were among those rescued last week when heavy rains hit the area near their homes.

He said the families' belongings were being taken to a parish hall in D'Hannis and the families were going to the National Guard armory in Hondo.

"They're living in mobile homes and houses in that low-lying area," Franklin said. "We started moving them about 10 this morning and we haven't had any reports of any injuries."

Street flooding was being reported in San Antonio and flash flood warnings were issued for numerous counties in South Texas, whose residents were trying to assess flood damages that likely will run in the millions of dollars.

TU line dispute proposal made the Winston land south of Western Texas College.

In his letter, addressed to attorney's representing the Winston heirs and TU, Dulaney outlined a plan under which he would lift the injunction and allow construction to resume.

According to Dulaney, the injunction could be lifted if TU places money for a potential damage award to Hatter into an account which will be held by the court.

That money would be paid to Hatter only if the court ultimately decides that she is entitled to additional compensation other than a portion of the amount already awarded to the heirs of the estate.

An exact amount was not specified since both parties in the dispute would have to agree on this or set a formula for deciding the amount.

Dulaney is also requiring that Hatter's brother, John Joyce, and any other potential heirs be made parties to the suit at this time.

The judge has requested that action so that any future court orders will apply to all possible parties in the suit.

Trial by fire foreseen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly nominated Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan is likely to undergo trial by fire as he attempts to keep the U.S. economy from derailing under multiple pressures caused by sluggish growth, renewed inflation and a plunging dollar, analysts say.

And these observers also say Greenspan, nominated Tuesday to be the 13th chairman of the Fed, will need the nerves of a safe-cracker and the hide of an elephant to succeed in the new job.

Greenspan has a tough act to follow in the departing Paul Volcker.

District budgets under estimate

The second budget involving the collection operation involves only the three local school districts. These three were charged $61,662 during 1986 for collections. The district also earned some $1,788 primarily in interest income to reach about $63,450 in income for the period.

Salaries accounted for the largest share of collection-related expenses. The district's collection budget was some $50,845 for the year, $26,580 used for salaries.

The collection department ended the year $13,376 underbudget.

Monies remaining at the end of the fiscal year will be counted as credits on each jurisdiction's assessment for 1987.

Vestal noted the report does not include an audit of the actual tax collections for the school districts. The fiscal year affecting those funds runs Sept. 1 through Aug. 31 in line with the school's fiscal year.

In other action Tuesday, the board approved district bills for the month.

Board members attending the session included Pete Hester, Ross Blanchard, Dwaine Williams and Mairl McFaul. John Reed was not present.

Also attending the meeting were County Tax Collector Rona Sikes, Lee McNair, an associate of Vestal and Company, Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler and Assistant Appraiser Larry Crooks.

Neighborhood Is Not in Tune With Untimely Church Chimes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Hates Ding-a-Lings" — the lady who hates wind chimes — I would like to swap places with her.

I live within 150 feet of a church with a P.A. system that broadcasts hymns twice a day — at noon and again at 6 p.m. These are lovely and enjoyable. However, once in a while something goes wrong with the "timer," and the machine throws the program off schedule. Like last night, the chimes were released at 2 a.m. This is not unusual.

Once I asked a neighbor if she had heard the chimes in the middle of the night and she said yes, but she was afraid to mention it for fear people would think she was "tetched" in the head if she said she had heard hymns playing at 2 a.m.

JOE H. CROOKS,
RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR JOE: The wind chimes letter rang a bell for many readers, both pro and con — mostly con. Read on for a letter from a reader who researched the subject:

DEAR ABBY: After losing too many hours of sleep because of a neighbor's wind chimes, I did some research on the subject of sound. The results of several studies indicate two points that pertain to wind chime problems:

1. If a person knows that he/she can control the sound, that sound is less likely to cause irritation, frustration and the loss of sleep.

2. Annoyance from sounds increases if those sounds are unpredictable and uncontrollable — especially those of high frequency and pitch.

I feel that no one should hang wind chimes outside without first obtaining the approval of all neighbors within hearing distance.

DEAR ABBY: I have an aunt, 77 years old, who "lost" an heirloom quilt her mother made for her. Her mother made one for each of her five daughters. (I inherited my mother's.) I live next door to this aunt. I've never had a key to her house, yet she has told everyone who will listen to her that I stole her quilt! I thought she would stop her lying once she realized how ridiculous it would be for me to steal her quilt.

In the first place, I'm 67 years old with no children to leave the quilt to. Second, I have plenty of money and if I wanted a quilt, I would buy a new one — I wouldn't steal a 50-year-old quilt that might disintegrate any minute.

Shall I see my attorney about suing her for slander and defamation of character? Or should I see her minister and ask him to tell her that a person can go to hell for lying, same as stealing?

Have you any suggestions as to how to stop a liar, short of punching her out?

C.A. IN PAULS
VALLEY, OKLA.

DEAR C.A.: Trying to "stop" a liar is like trying to put toothpaste back in the tube. The poor woman could be disturbed, so I advise you to do nothing. People who know her — and you — will consider the source and pay no attention.

DEAR READERS: I need your cooperation for an important survey.

Question: Have you ever cheated on your mate? How long have you been together?

You need not sign your name, but please state your age, and indicate whether you are male or female. Send letter or postcard to: Abby's Survey, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Ballistics testimony entered into lawsuit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — In testimony essential to a wrongful-death case against millionaire Cullen Davis, a ballistics expert said the same gun killed two victims of an August 1976 shooting spree at Davis' mansion.

The testimony came Tuesday from Frank Shiller, director of the Fort Worth Crime Lab.

A lawyer for the millionaire defendant was to resume cross-examination of Shiller today.

Davis' ex-wife Priscilla claims in a multimillion-dollar civil suit that Davis was the man dressed in black who killed her live-in boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, and her daughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Mrs. Davis and a young mansion visitor, Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, were critically wounded.

Shiller said a bullet removed from Farr's body matched a bullet recovered in the basement utility room where Andrea's body was found.

Since there were no witnesses to Andrea's death, it is essential to the plaintiffs' case that evidence show that the fatal bullets came from the same gun. Miss Davis will testify that she witnessed the slaying of Farr.

Shiller told the jury Tuesday that his conclusions regarding the physical evidence of the case would be consistent with Mrs. Davis' claim that the assailant wore a woman's black wig and fired the fatal shots in a gun concealed in a black plastic bag.

On cross-examination, Shiller testified that nothing found by crime scene officers would place Davis at the mansion the night of the shootings.

An Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of Andrea's slaying in 1977 but that verdict has no legal bearing on the civil proceedings.

The current trial is a consolidation of suits filed by Mrs. Davis and a former husband, Jack Wilborn, the father of the slain girl.

A Dallas pathologist, Linda Norton, testified Tuesday a bullet severed Andrea's aorta, the body's main artery, and that she bled to death.

How osteopaths treat illness

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What's the difference between an osteopathic doctor and a medical doctor?

DEAR READER — Osteopathy has undergone enormous changes since it was founded during the 1860s. The basic tenet of osteopathic medicine is that the human body has an inborn capacity to resist disease and that the body's musculoskeletal system plays a vital role in overcoming illness.

In most ways, medical doctors (M.D.s) and doctors of osteopathy (D.O.s) are similar. Both types of healers are required to complete premedical training, four years of graduate work and at least one year of post-graduate training (internship). Like M.D.s, osteopaths may elect to specialize in three- or four-year residency programs.

The distinctions between M.D.s and D.O.s have dimmed over the years. Osteopaths are now licensed in many states by the same boards that license M.D.s. In my opinion, qualified osteopaths are on a par with M.D.s; they diagnose and treat the same afflictions.

Many osteopaths continue to emphasize the primary role of muscles, bones and joints in disease. However, D.O.s are very likely today to use the same surgical techniques and medicines that are used by M.D.s. Osteopaths seem to have gravitated toward the use of more traditional, allopathic (M.D.) methods. Conversely, many M.D.s are now using manipulative treatment, such as spinal adjustment.

The American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine points out that M.D.s still have more prestige than D.O.s, but I believe that is less true today. In addition, the association insists that the thrust of osteopathic training is to provide practitioners for family and general medical practice. Interestingly, in the past few years, M.D.s have also indicated a renewed commitment to the practice of family medicine.

Therefore, in summary, M.D.s and D.O.s are virtually equal partners in providing health care. The differences in the two groups are more likely today to be due to personality and orientation than to healing theory or quality of training.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am male, 67, and have bursitis and arthritic pain, especially at night in bed. I would like to find a doctor who is knowledgable about these ailments and who will not brush off what is happening as "getting old." Are there specialists in this field?

DEAR READER — Doctors who are trained to diagnose and treat arthritis are called rheumatologists. Ask your family physician for a referral.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE discusses symptoms, management and new studies of this tragic and irreversible disease. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

The 1986 Tax Reform Act eliminates deductions for yearly contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) for people who are active in employer-sponsored plans or for those who earn more than a certain amount of income. Although financial planners are not in agreement on the value of continuing IRAs for those who can no longer deduct contributions, that does not mean individuals should reject them out of hand.

Illegal aliens should delay asking for their SS number

DALLAS (AP) — Illegal aliens should protect themselves by not seeking a Social Security number until their amnesty applications win final approval, according to the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Applicants who seek a number before receiving temporary residence might leave an easy trail for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to track those denied amnesty, cautioned the conference, the nation's largest voluntary network helping undocumented aliens apply for amnesty.

"We know there is some kind of mechanism of understanding between the INS and the Social Security Administration," said Gilbert Carrasco of Washington, D.C., a spokesman for the conference, which operates 100 field offices and hundreds of satellite offices nationwide.

"We recognize the utility of having a Social Security card and a valid number," he added. "But the cooperation is making it disadvantageous for the applicant."

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, INS regulations and amnesty applications do not mention the need for a Social Security card application.

As a courtesy, an INS spokesman said, Social Security application forms are included in legalization packets to encourage aliens to apply for amnesty and Social Security simultaneously.

"The policy that we are going to use is to ask them to fill out the form, but we are not going to deny them if they don't," said Cheryl Dean, a spokeswoman for the INS Southern Region office in Dallas.

Although not in North Texas, some INS officials mistakenly are refusing amnesty applications based on an alien's decision against applying for a Social Security number, officials said.

Robert Gibbs, a Seattle lawyer, said a Mexican citizen he accompanied last Friday to a Washington legalization center was turned away when he declined to seek a Social Security card, which he legally obtained more than a decade ago.

"They refused to accept the application because he said it was incomplete without an SS-5 form," said Gibbs, whose client documented living at the same address and working at the same job since May 1981, well before the Jan. 1, 1982, amnesty cut-off date.

A policy directive last week from the INS central office in Washington, D.C., states: "Each applicant should be encouraged to complete the SS-5 form with the legalization packet."

After accepting an amnesty application, the INS issues aliens work permits valid for six months and encourages them to seek the number. The Social Security Administration mails a new card to the INS, which is held until aliens eventually receive temporary residence.

At meetings with high-ranking Social Security officials in Washington, Carrasco was told that aliens denied amnesty would have their numbers invalidated, raising a red flag if they work and have deductions credited to that Social Security number.

SSA officials said they would provide information the INS requests but would not volunteer information for INS investigations, Carrasco said.

Denied applicants can be traced when aliens work under an invalid Social Security number or when the SSA receives cards sent to the INS while amnesty applications are under review.

Texans meet to firm super collider plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans held a "super collider" summit today to firm up a strategy that would vault the Lone Star State into the fore in the national competition to get the $6 billion atom smasher.

Coming from Austin were Gov. Bill Clements, Dr. Peter Flawn, chairman of the Texas National Research Laboratory, and J. Fred Bucy, chairman of the state SSC Advisory Commission.

They were joined by half of the 27-member congressional delegation, the state's two senators and several interested parties from the state business and scientific communities.

The state and federal officials installed Henry Gandy, newly chosen director of the Texas State Office, as the man who would coordinate the strategy, which will unfold over the next several years in an intense national competition.

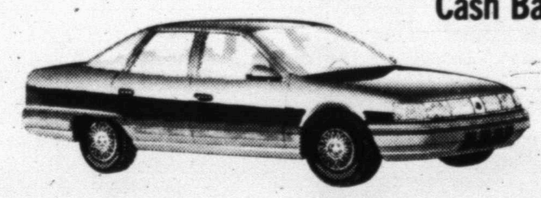

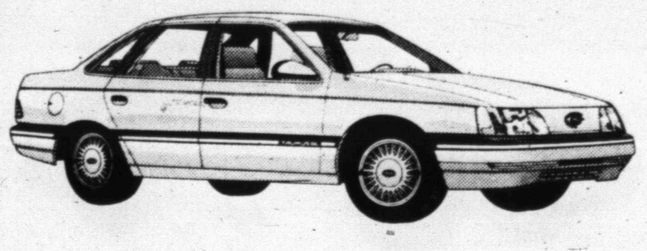

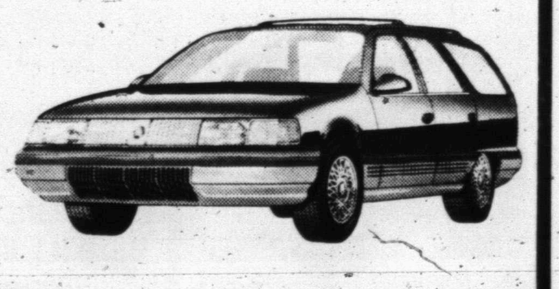

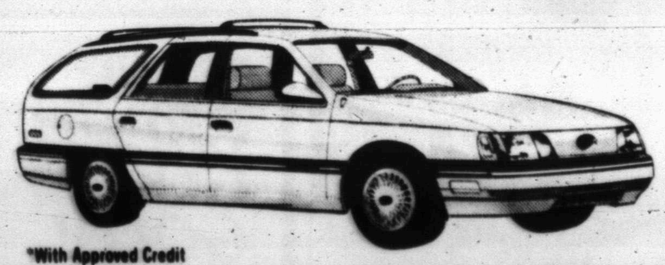

Dallasite Bob Strauss, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and currently a practicing lawyer in Washington, said he and two associates from Texas will do all they can to help the state get the SSC — free of charge.

"The state's got enough problems without us charging it for our services," he said.

Strauss joined Flawn and Bucy in stressing that the two Texas project sites, near Dallas and Amarillo, are good enough to stand up against any other proposal in the country on purely technical grounds.

They discounted the successful passage of an amendment offered by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., that would prevent the Energy Department from considering monetary incentives in its search for an appropriate site for the atom smasher.
