Miss Muff Robertson and Mr. Kenneth Kimbro Married Tuesday Evening At Methodist Church. Colonial Wedding

Miss Muff Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Robertson, and Mr. Kenneth Kimbro, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Kimbro were married Tuesday evening at eight-thirty at the First Methodist Church, Dr. E. T. White presiding in the ceremony. The church was indeed beautiful in the arrangement of a Colonial garden, with background of palms and ferns and a lovely archway with white columns which formed the marriage altar. Smilax entwined with white roses covered the improvised trellis of the garden wall, and also covered the balcony rail of the church. Lovely plumosa fern and calla lilies were placed at each side of the "garden" and tall baskets of roses were placed in front of the altar.

Baskets filled with sweet peas, roses, and valley lilies in all the pastel shades were at intervals in the aisles of the church. The garden scene was lighted with white tapers. Indeed the bride took her vows in a lovely setting.

The organ prelude began about half an hour before the ceremony, Mrs. Joe Flaig giving first two selections, "Dawn" and "Venetian Love Song." Miss Frances Hoffman, charmingly sang "O Promise Me," followed by "Ganzonetta" on the organ. Just preceding the entrance of the bride and her attendants Miss Flaig played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered and Mendelssohn's as the recessional. "The Wild Rose" was softly played during the ceremony. Mrs. Flaig wore a lovely white satin gown, hand painted and lengthened by a broad band of orchid maline. Miss Hoffman was dressed in orchid lace and georgette.

Miss Robertson, petite and childishly sweet and vivacious, was lovely in an all white period gown with tight fitting bodice, real lace yoke and bouffant skirt lengthened with tulle. The dress was heavily embroidered in pearls and rhinestones. Her veil was caught in a Dutch can of lace, ornamented with pearls and rhinestones. Her arms were bare except for the lace cap sleeves of embroidered petals. Her only ornament was a platinum and diamond dinner ring, the gift of the bridegroom. She was given in marriage by her brother, Sigs Robertson.

Four of the most charming children took part in the ceremony. Mary Sylvia Jarrott, dressed in sweeping Colonial gown in pink satin, and James Vickers, in pink satin, and two blue stans, preceded the brides attendants and opened the gates of the flower garden for their entrance. Demiree Hill's Harriet Gates, a miniature replica of the bride, and R. J. Murray Jr., in white broad cloth suit with long trousers, attended the couple at the altar.

The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Slaton, was in rose pink tulle and tulle period model which was embellished with French roses. She wore a rainbow sash held in place by French flowers in pastel shades. The dress was tight fitting with bouffant skirt. Miss Slaton and Mrs. John Hard, of Post, matron of honor, entered together. Mrs. Hard wore a pink tulle gown with white flowers which were outlined with beads. They wore gold head dresses which matched perfectly.

The three bridesmaids created a perfect ensemble in blue, yellow and softest green. Miss Mary Alice Johnson was beautiful in blue tulle gown with white flowers, which were outlined with beads. Miss Helen McDavid, of Abilene, wore yellow georgette over a knee length slip of gold cloth. Miss Evelyn Posey appeared the embodiment of spring time and youth in a beautifully draped dress of green georgette trimmed in rhinestones. All the bridesmaids wore slippers and hose to match their costumes in color, and carried old fashioned lace trimmed bouquets of sweet heart, ranunculus dyed in shades to match their dresses. The nosegays were the gift of the bride who also presented her attendants with powder boxes in white tulle with painted orange blossom wreaths and with lace handkerchiefs whose centers matched the costumes.

Miss Robertson gave the two little girls dainty platinum bracelets with monogram engraved, and the boys platinum rings.

Mr. Kimbro presented the ushers with their white ties and gloves. The bridegroom and ushers wore conventional black. Boss McWhorter was best man, and the ushers were Sigs Robertson, Lewis Price, Robertson, and Earl Jones.

Reception at Vickers Home Following Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Robertson entertained honoring their daughter and son with a reception at the home of Judge and Mrs. J. E. Vickers, after the wedding. The house was beautifully decorated with baskets of flowers in the pastel colors which had been used in the wedding appointments.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kimbro and their attendants formed the receiving line, and the house party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Posey, Mrs. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs Robertson, the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Robertson of Slaton, and Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Kimbro, assisted by Mrs. S. C. Arnett, Mrs. Floyd Beall, Mrs. W. S. Posey, Mrs. J. S. Johnson, Mrs. O. L. Slaton, Mrs. Frank Winn, Mrs. John Jarrott and Mrs. Dick Jarrott.

The bride threw her bouquet which was divided into three parts, containing a ring, a thimble and a coin. Miss Evelyn Posey caught the ring so will be the next bride among the wedding party.

Delicious punch and heart shaped cakes were served, from the dining table which was beautiful with its decoration of sweet peas.

The spacious verandah of the Vickers home was enclosed for the reception and the many handsome and exquisite gifts which had been presented Mr. and Mrs. Kimbro were displayed for the pleasure of the guests.

The young couple left Tuesday night for San Antonio and other south Texas cities where they will spend a few weeks. On returning to Lubbock they will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Kimbro until they receive possession of their home March 23.

The bride wore a stunning ensemble of white with beige with dyed of fine collar. The coat was of quilted chiffon broadcloth, and the dress was Eton effect with lace blouse. The costume was a Memser model, and the bride wore all accessories to match. Her hat was a chic close fitting model in soft pink.

These changes were made in an incredibly short time and were very interesting.

THE HOLY CITY—THE NEW JERUSALEM

This is the subject of the lesson in the Bible Study Class in the main auditorium of the First Baptist Church on next Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock. The New Jerusalem is the home of the redeemed saints of God. The average Christian believes that he will go to Heaven when he dies and that he will live there throughout the ages, but the Bible does not tell us that Heaven is the home of the redeemed. At the end of this age, the New Jerusalem will come down from God out of Heaven, take its place near this earth, and from it the saints, with the Lord Jesus, will rule over the nations throughout the future ages. Read John 14:1-3 and Revelation 21 upon which the lesson is based. There is no more vital theme in the Bible than this and it will give any Christian who makes a study of it a clearer vision of the place where he will spend eternity. If you are not attending Sunday school elsewhere, bring your Bibles and join us in this study.

The question of the uniform divorce law for the states of America which is endorsed by the General Federation of Women's Clubs was discussed by Mrs. J. R. B. Cooper.

Mrs. E. W. McLarry gave opinions as to whether a judicial separation is better than an absolute divorce.

All the members took part in the discussions of these important social questions, and the interchange of opinions were very interesting.

The course of Study for the coming year was brought before the club and the majority seemed to favor the study of Texas Authors.

The question was referred to the calendar committee composed of Mrs. Tom Stone, Mrs. Wm. Dingus and Mrs. Dana Harmon-Trent.

PROF. HARRISON IS ART EXHIBIT SPEAKER

Calling attention to "six centuries of art which look down upon us from these walls," and drawing comparisons between the painted representations of life and word pictures by great writers which he read Prof. R. C. Harrison, head of the English department at Texas Technological College, last night with a lecture on "Literature and Art" brought to a close the second day of the art exhibit being held at Lubbock High school under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Clara Price said last night that during the day a thousand school children had viewed the pictures on exhibition, while many adults had come in.

W. C. Rylander, who has traveled extensively and seen the originals of many of the masterpieces now on exhibition, will talk at the school tonight. The exhibit will continue through Thursday.

A crowd of over two hundred people heard Mr. Harrison. He has made an extensive study of literature and its relation to art and gave a very instructive and interesting lecture on the interpretation of art from an appreciative viewpoint.

He gave an interpretation of art as life seen by an aesthetic, sensitive personality and put into a memorable form or result by Music, Sculpture, Painting, or Literature. The common basis of art lies in three themes: Nature, Human Nature and Spirit. Art is the reflection of these in the personal reaction of the artist to his subject. The artist's attitude toward his subjects is either aesthetic, "Art for Art's Sake," or didactic, some lesson or moral of human life.

Mr. Harrison then read selections of American and English literature and showed how literature is related to the other arts especially to painting. All art is the reflection of the feelings, ideas, and fancies of the artist, according to Prof. Harrison. He then took the other side and made comments on a few pictures showing further relation of Painting to Literature. He took: Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair," Murillo's "Children of the Shell," Hoffman's Christ and the Doctors, Watts "Hope," Renouf's "The Helping Hand," "Adoration of the Wisemen" and others and commented on the relation of each to literature.

He then commented on the significance of the exhibit for the young people in the home and the school. It has an enriching and refining influence on the young which they will carry throughout their lives," he said.

Prof. Harrison was urged by the officials in charge of the exhibit to speak again tonight. He held out his address in two parts and will carry the subject further tonight. His address last night was the basic foundation for interpreting all art especially literature and painting. Tonight he will take certain pictures of the exhibit interpreting them and making comments on each.

Avalanche Force In Annual Dinner Tuesday Evening

Last night at 9 o'clock nineteen members of the Avalanche force, including all members of the Avalanche Chapel of the local Printers Union, enjoyed the Chapel's first annual banquet at the Teak Cafe.

"Doc" Jones, linotype operator who has had a part in the publication of the paper for some time, was toastmaster and introduced as the first speaker Anthony Borho, who stated the purpose of the meeting and welcomed the guests.

Response was made by James L. Dow, editor and publisher of the Avalanche, who made a few remarks about the early history of the paper, and declared he had been fortunate since first entering the work in being assisted by efficient and faithful workmen, whom he credited with having a large part in the development of the business.

In commenting on certain rules that were posted by the management Tuesday morning, Mr. Dow pointed out that these rules, if practically, will enable all members of the force to work to the best interest of the shop, and that if found impractical will be altered or abolished.

That the members of the force were pleased with the principles on which Mr. Dow declared he hoped to operate the business was shown by the hearty applause that was given him.

It was a real program and proved that the members of the Avalanche Chapel have unusual interest in their work and the success of the business by which they are employed.

The following were in attendance, and during the course of a round-table discussion made brief talks: "Doc" Jones, Tony Borho, James L. Dow, Neal Douglas, Jr., Larry Perkins, Leroy Davis, E. Whitaker, A. M. Eubanks, Sam Davis, A. C. Davis, Bill Stovall, W. C. Edwards, N. L. Tall, "Billy" Camp, G. H. Brown, V. H. Guy, and J. L. Whitaker.

In the absence of Circulation Manager G. R. Scott, G. H. Brown, who is a new member of the force and who has management of the job printing department, took advantage of the opportunity afforded to "iron out" wrong impression that was gained by him during his first days in the office. Brown, who recently lost all of his teeth in an engagement with a local dentist, stated that during the first day he was employed in the Avalanche shop, a patron called at Mr. Dow's desk for information about his paper. "Go back there and see that fellow who has no teeth and little brains," the editor told the patron. Unfortunately Brown was in the direction to which the editor pointed, and caught the full weight of the remark. "It was not until after I became better acquainted with our circulation manager that I realized the editor's wasn't talking about me." Brown told those attending the banquet.

The will was made at Natchez, Mississippi and was dated Oct. 31, 1835, a paper is attached to the will stating that is the original and that the signatures are correct. The will and paper were filed in Harris county, Aug. 11, 1852.

This is the first gift of this kind to be made to the Library and is the most interesting ever made to the college. These papers will be preserved by the college and will receive the best care that can be given them. Another gift of historical interest has been promised the college library by Mrs. Haworth of New York. It consists of the furnishings of an old law office used by her grandfather. With these gifts the College will be greatly enriched in valuable material.

Stillman Tacily Admits Settlement on Jay Ward Leeds

By United News
PARIS, Feb. 23.—James A. Stillman, chuckling his appreciation of the world and all that is in it, tacitly admitted Tuesday that he had settled a $20,000 annuity on his illegitimate son, seven-year-old Jay Ward Leeds, as revealed in United News dispatches from New York.

Stillman refused to deny or affirm the statement of Florence Leeds, Jay's mother, and the Stillman attorney in New York, that such a settlement had been made, but his effervescent good spirits and the absence of resentment when the matter was broached indicated that the former president of the National City Bank was not displeased that the settlement had become known.

While Stillman wanders in art galleries, Mrs. Stillman, with whom he journeyed to Paris on a second honeymoon, visits dressmaking salons in the rue De La Paix accompanied by Mrs. Henry P. Davison, the former Anne Stillman.

The Newer Basque by Peggy Paige

Allies itself with the Full Shirred Skirt

The smartest version of the full skirt is achieved by that shirring at the hips now sponsored by the great Paris houses—and this type of skirt is particularly effective in combination with the youthful Basque.

Applique or embroidered designs on the Bodice stress the gradual return to the normal waistline, for in its upward movement, this decorative treatment gives the effect of the higher line Paris has been hinting at for some time.

HEALTH OF CHILDREN

Outstanding facts about protecting and advancing school children's health in schools throughout the country were brought out in a meeting of twenty of the country's foremost educators. Ventilation laws must be changed in many states as a result of findings of New York State Ventilation Commission, which revolutionizes widely-accepted theories, it was reported. School superintendents from all over the country agree change is most desirable. Owing to the importance of janitors to the health of school children, standards of training and the selection of janitors must be improved. Handwashing equipment is inadequate in most schools. Dishwashing immunization campaigns are needed in all school systems. Dr. William H. Park, noted bacteriologist and leader of the fight against diphtheria in New York City, told educators it was necessary to reach parents through school children in order to protect children of school age and also the younger children, who are more likely to die if they contract the disease. He said physicians in private practice hesitate to suggest immunization for fear parents will think they are seeking the extra fee. He believes, with other authorities, that diphtheria can be eliminated in ten years. "Under the circumstances we felt the necessity of getting the advice of the school people themselves in dealing with the situation," said Dr. Lee K. Firankel, head of the company's Welfare work. "We were fortunate in securing the aid of men and women, whose reputations are nation-wide in their various specialties. The first year has demonstrated the soundness of our policy."

"During the last three months of 1925 our school bureau received an average of 350 letters a week from school people wishing to cooperate in the various lines of activity laid down by the advisory group."

The present meeting marks the close of the first year's work. During 1925, under the guidance of the group, the company prepared special pamphlets for school use. One is for the guidance of janitors, "The Janitors and the School Child." It stresses the need of ventilation reform and indicates the importance to the health of school children of the janitor's work. Another, the first of a series of pamphlets deals with "health heroes." Louis Pasteur was the first hero chosen, Reed, Trudeau and Jenner will follow at an early date.

It is planned to help the pupil become an active citizen in his own school and community by making it a more healthful place to live. The first part deals with the development of health laws from the early history of man; the second with specific health laws existing in the community, while the third raises questions of methods of application, improvement, enforcement of those laws.

Plans were started for a 1,000 fast reel motion picture of an historical nature dealing with health. A scholarship award and other honors, in cooperation with the proper authorities, for a health study of teachers, which is reported to be a serious problem, was also proposed.

The problem of standardizing children's medical examinations, in terms of the best possible method, will be studied. The group agreed that at least one parent, the school nurse and the teacher should be present at the examination of each child so as to insure the proper program for correcting discovered defects. Only a few school systems now require the presence of all three. Much examining is reported now to be useless through failure to follow-up to secure protection.

DISCRIMINATE

Think when you read. Headlines in the daily press usually tell you the unusual, not the normal, course of life as lived by some hundreds of millions of people. When surprised and puzzled by some inconceivably foolish act or deed of a man or woman, as recorded by the daily chronicle of today's idiosyncrasies—they, like you, are decent and law-abiding, or mostly so.

Burbank publicly stated his doubts about certain notions of eternity generally held. It was "first page stuff" because he was a prominent man and had views which would appear strange and unusual to the newspaper reader. A few days later Edison spoke favorably for prohibition and although he is a distinguished American, well-known, the keen newspaper men handling "copy" didn't feature the item—apparently, it was the accepted view-point, and not unusual.

Unexpected events take an unduly prominent place. A recent prohibition story illustrates the press tendency and the need for discrimination. When Dr. Empringham, secretary of an Episcopal temperance society, announced that his membership wanted a modification of the Volstead Act to permit wines and beer, the papers greeted it with big type. A temperance official aiding and abetting the wets—was new, unusual, and interesting. But, when 18 of 23 bishops of the Episcopal Church affirmed their faith in the present and future success of prohibition, little prominence was given—it was the attitude ordinary humans who read papers would expect from ecclesiastics.

Simpletons read and never think. They are heedless in their conclusions based on superficialities and misconceptions. Are newspapers to be censured? Maybe so, to a degree, but popular editors seek to interest many readers. To attract the multitudes sought for the sake of the weight of numbers with advertisers the journalist is always on the quest of the unusual, notwithstanding the myriad commonplace events duly recorded which will appeal to the inquisitiveness, the fascination and the diversion of his subscribers.

Winnow the chaff from the wheat in the daily news. Read with discrimination when you are moulding opinions from what you are cramming in your mind each day. The man who talks without thinking is bombastic and ridiculous, but the man who reads with out thinking will soon be a fool and a booby.

TIME TO BE CAREFUL

"The time to be careful is when you have a handful of trumps!"—Josh Billings. Josh Billings said a mouthful when he made the above remark. Just at the time the farm is paid for and things are beginning to look good and the farmer has a little money in the banks, some kind of proposition will come along that looks like easy money. That's the time to be careful. Stock salesmen and men with these "good propositions" never visit the rural sections except after good crop years. It's hard enough to make money—but investing and saving it are still harder. Ordinarily farmers are supposed to be very conservative and shrewd; but somehow or other the slickers manage to get some of that hard earned cash with promises of large dividends. Usually the lower the dividend yield the less the chances for loss. When that fellow offers you something that he says will pay big—that's the time to be careful. With a little cash surplus in the bank, you have a hand full of trumps and remember what Josh Billings said.

THE MIDDLE AGED PEOPLE

We hear a great deal about the change in manners and morals of our young people nowadays, but isn't the change in the minds of our middle aged people the most amazing thing, after all.

Remember the hue and cry raised some years ago against the contemptible childless married couple and the selfish bachelors and spinsters who refused to give up their comfortable mode of life that they might assume the obligations of a large family?

Well—Bruce Barton in an article "Do Too Many People Marry," published in Good Housekeeping, says that although the press, church and state, through influential leaders have in the past, urged marriage and a large family as a universal duty, conditions have changed radically within fairly recent times.

In the years gone by, making a living was fairly simple—the great need being for more lives with which to conquer the plains and forests. Today, however, scientists are questioning seriously whether the world is not menaced by the danger of too many lives.

Mr. Barton quotes Prof. East as contending that the struggle for food in the future will form devastating wars or that the race will be forced by dire necessity to inaugurate a drastic regime of birth control, and adds:

"The condition of bringing new life up through infancy, youth and maturity is more complex than ever before—it is no commonplace duty—it is a privilege demanding the highest degree of intelligence and hundreds of thousands of people may do a far greater service to their generation by voluntary celibacy than they could possibly perform as parents."

Shades of Colonel Roosevelt, how thoughts have changed.

NOTHING MUCH NEW

"The ancient Romans found in their experiments with crops and soils that wheat and other cereals grown following a crop of legumes produced larger yields per unit than any other rotation," says an exchange. They could not account for this, but they kept on using the lupines as fertilizers by alternating the cereal crops with a seeding of lupines. The modern farmer uses lupines but he calls them legumes. He understands better than the Romans did the process by which these crops take the nitrogen of the air and fix it in the soil where it is so necessary to plant growth. The satisfied and prosperous farmer of today who grows alfalfa, clover, vetches, peas, etc., has a right to be pleased with himself, but when he reflects that he is doing nothing different from what was done before Christ, he may think that the world progresses rather slowly after all.

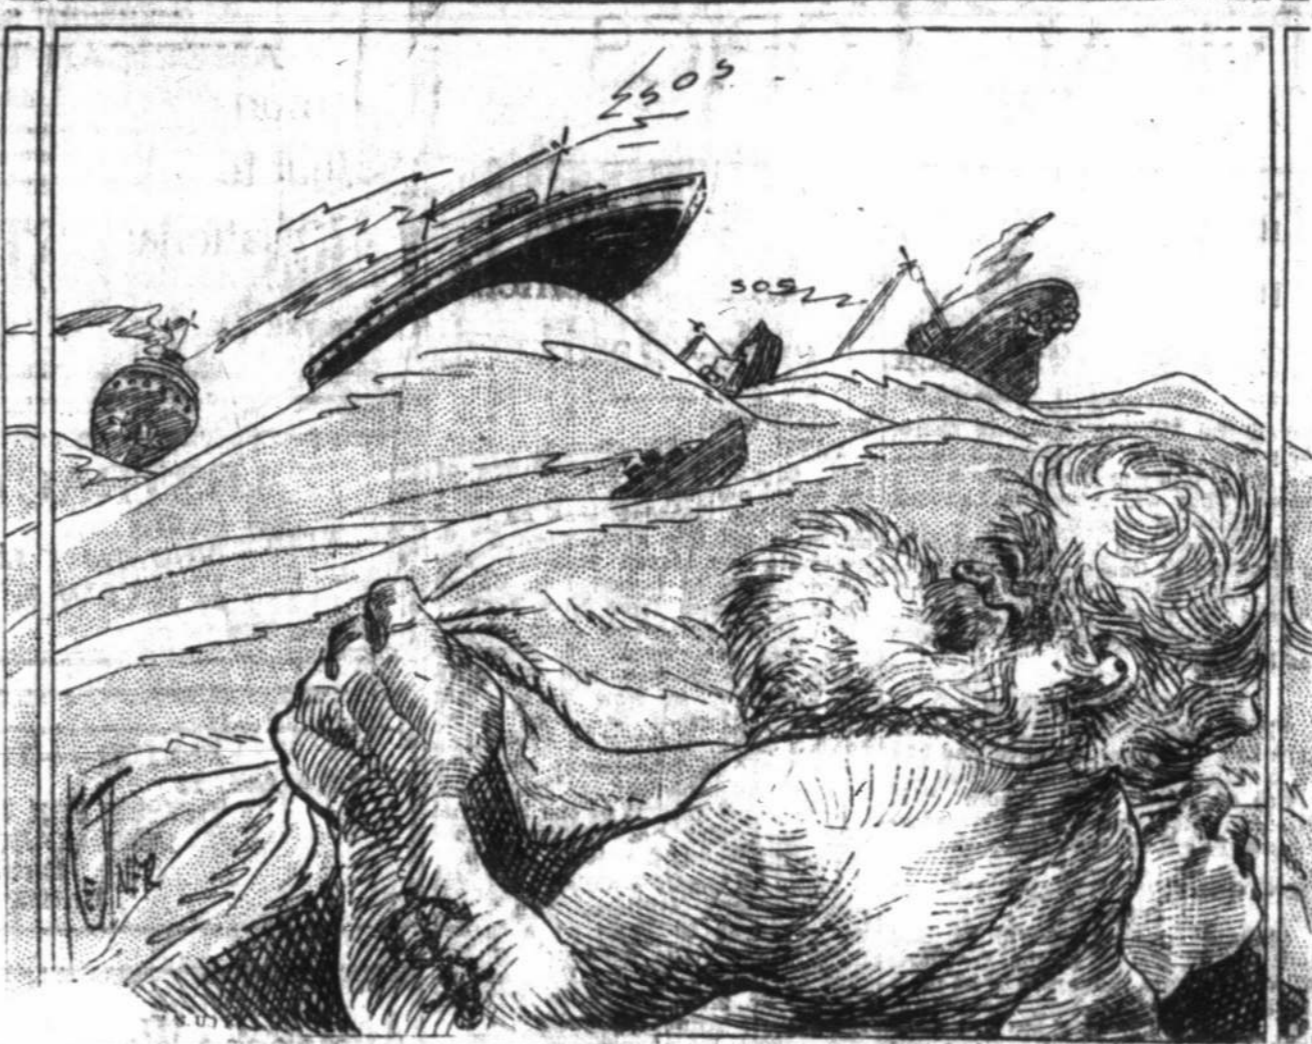

WHAT'S A FARM WORTH

No farm should be bought from a "so much per acre" standpoint, but from a standpoint of net cash profit that can be conservatively estimated to be made on that farm. If this view was held by purchasers and sellers there would never be as much fluctuations in land prices as we have seen in the past few years.

Some few went and crazy and loaded up on property to farm that could never pay as an investment, except some other land wild fellow may want it so bad as to pay more for it. That is of course a speculative deal and we are writing of buying land to farm.

A farm that will yield a good living and a profit of $500.00 actual net cash as an average one year with another, is worth $10,000. Or in other words, one can afford to pay for a farm that will net 5 per cent as a minimum over all costs of operation, plus its use as a home and what the family gets from it.

Neptune's Pranks

This and That

Corporal: "Hey you! Why haven't you shaved?"
Private: "There were six others using the mirror and I think I shaved somebody else!"

The Grand Lodge of New York has two Lodges in Syria under its jurisdiction. Ten nationalities are represented in one of them. The Master is a Protestant, Samson Warden an orthodox Hebrew, Junior Warden a Moslem, Treasurer a Roman Catholic, and the Chaplain a Swede.

"Smatter, Mose?" said a little tanned darkey, "you look all tuckered out."
"Dem craps done cleaned me."
"Fo' how much?" asked Shorty.
"Ninety-fo' cents."
"Say, Mose," chuckled Shorty, "yo' all wasn't so dirty when yo' went in wuz yo'?"

Sambo: "Say, Snowball, why do they call that town up in Michigan 'Bottle Creek'?"
Snowball: "Dunno—less it's dev starts so many breakfast feuds up dar."

Billy came home from school bearing every evidence of having had the worst of a fight.

"Why, Billy," exclaimed his mother, "how often have I told you to play only with good little boys? Good little boys don't fight."

"Well," said Billy through his teeth, "I thought he was a good little boy till I hit him."

SO THINK WE

We think that very few women are so wrapped up in antiques that they want an old fashioned dress.

We think the difference in England and America in the matter of guests, is that in England the guests furnish their own soap while in America according to the statement of a hotel man, the guests lay in a supply for the family.

We think that the old slogan, back 100 miles may be right so far as the anthracite coal is concerned, but it will not apply to the soft coal proposition.

We think some of the old adages are entirely out of line with the requirements of the present age, for instance the one we used to head when a small boy that children should be seen and not heard. How in the world could we become radio announcers if we are not heard.

We think the straws used in taking the prohibition straw-vote must have been rye straw.

We think the President is setting a good example. He is now using lowa corn sugar in the White House. He is making a demand for lowa corn. A lot of Texas folks are doing equally as well. They are also creating a demand for "corn."

We think it is pretty hard to tell some time whether a woman is the picture of health or just a successful artist.

We think that a bee in the bonnet is not always political. Some times it is a domestic bee, and sometimes it is something worse. Better be cautious about the "bee in the bonnet."

We think that harping on one string is liable to get a fellow all out of tune with the world.

We think about the biggest fool in the world is the man that has the best wife in the world and does not appreciate her.

We think that when you hear a fellow say that he has outlived his usefulness it is a very good sign that he was never very useful anyway.

We think that very few children are kissed good night by their mother now days. They are hardly ever in the home at bedtime, and the mother is usually abed and asleep when they come.

We think that "matchmakers" very often get their fingers burned.

We think that if we would improve the politics of this country we will have to put less politics in the mixture.

We think that the fellow that makes trouble is not apt to make many friends.

We think that possibly the most unwelcomed visitor is boils.

We think that one of the very easiest things to acquire is debt and they are also the hardest to get loose from.

We think that of all the professional men that we have ever had anything to do with, the dentist gives us the greatest pain.

We think that as little as you think printers put ink in their

We think very few people make a mistake and pay the same bill twice, though we have known a number who have never paid their bill once.

We think a lot of folks must have had a terrible time spending their spare hours before the advent of the radio.

We think some people are really surprised at the wise cracks that their off spring make. Some of us wonder where they get their "smartness."

IT IS REPORTED

That a home burns in the United States every minute.

That there are more than a million children in the schools of Texas, and it is also reported that sixty percent of the buildings housing the school children are fire traps.

That a very small percent of the school patrons ever look inside of the school building, and do not know whether the buildings are safe or not.

That the next West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention is going to be a dry affair.

That quite a number of people are planning to build new homes in Lubbock this summer. It would be a very fine time to begin now.

That quite a number of people are planning to plant trees and grass around their homes this spring. This is tree planting month. Lets go!

That some folks are having a hard time keeping people from walking across the corner of their lots and beating down the grass. It would seem that people would have more thought of the looks of the other fellow's yard than to do that.

That the traffic cop is still picking up folks who persist in running their cars without lights, and some of them just cannot help speeding a little.

That the new hotel is going up rapidly, and the fellows who have not paid their subscription should do so if possible so there will be no delay or embarrassment on the part of the building committee in putting the contractors as they go along.

That the leaders of the boy scouts are getting lined up for the annual summer camping trip, and the scouts are looking forward to that time with a good deal of enthusiasm and anticipation of the fine time they are going to have.

The Early History of Lubbock

by Mary Ruby Greene
High Sixth History Central Ward School

In 1890, the few people living in this section of the South Plains took steps toward the organization of a new county. A division arose over the location of a county seat. Two town sites were laid out; one by F. E. Wheelock on the north side of the Canyon, and another by W. E. Rayner northwest of the present site of Lubbock. Each of these men offered strong inducements to any who would build upon his site.

In 1891, the two factions, realizing the folly of this expensive contest, agreed to consolidate, bury the hatchet, and work together for a greater town and county. According to terms of the compromise, the present site of Lubbock was selected and each settler received as many lots in the new town as he had owned in the old and the original promoters at their own expense, moved all buildings from their respective town sites to the new location. The largest building removed from Mr. Wheelock's town site now called the Broadway Hotel.

The county organization was effected and both the county and the town were named for F. R. Lubbock, once governor of Texas. Dissatisfaction, which resulted in political strife, soon arose from the fact that the lots in the new town were smaller than those of the abandoned sites. As a result of this dissatisfaction many residents moved to farms near Lubbock, and for fifteen years the town had very little growth. Residence lots sold for $1.00 and $50 was considered an exorbitant price for a lot on the public square.

In the course of time a saloon, was set up which proved a menace and was closed by an overwhelming vote in a local option election. The coming of the Santa Fe railroad in 1908 gave new impetus to the growth of Lubbock and the town has since made steady progress along all lines.

In 1923 the Texas Technological College was located at Lubbock, it has opened with a record-breaking attendance; and, together with an excellent system of city schools, has contributed much to the material growth and development of the city.

The present population of Lubbock is estimated at 15,500, and it is now the outstanding city of the South Plains.

Poems That Live

FIFTY NINE YEARS AGO
Folks boiled coffee and settled it with an egg.

Ladies rode on side saddles.
Little Johnnie wore brass-tot boots and daddy wore brogans.

When the preacher told the truth people said amen.
Left-over noon victuals were finished at supper time.

Neighbors asked about your family and meant it.
Merry-go-rounds were called flying jennies.

It took twenty minutes to shine shoes with Mason's blacking.
Ladies' dresses reached from their neck to their heels.

People served pot licker instead of canned soup.
Only crooks on record were lightning roof agents.

Indigestion was called plain belly-ache.
The neighbors got fresh meat at hog killing time.

Cotton seed was considered good fertilizer.
And men made the same wife do a life time.—Exchange.

DREAM OF THE FRANCISCAN PADRES

The first permanent settlement was made by the Spanish, Don Ramon, with his daring sodary and missionaries, broke ground near San Pedro Springs in 1685. Wherever Spain, by conquest or discovery, laid claim to a domain, alongside her armies or adventurers came the padre with his cross and chisel. He built fortress-churches and undertook the defense of his people and the conversion of the heathen. Here the Franciscan monks built a chain of missions stretching from the Sabine to the Rio Grande. They built two miles apart, and tradition has it that a secret tunnel connected these missions. They were magnificent monuments to the patience and fortitude of the Franciscans. Long ago the tooth of Time has destroyed all but six—San Fernando, the Alamo, Concepcion, San Jose, San Juan and Espada. Their purpose was a defense against Moqui and Comanche on the south and the christianizing of the Indians on the north.

This same order of monks, and almost simultaneous with the founding of the Texas Missions, began operations in Southern California. As in the great Southwest, California's most romantic history is that period when the Franciscan Fathers wrought their labor of love among the wild tribes that roamed the Pacific Coast country. Santa Barbara is a monument of their toil and zeal. On a spot, buttressed by the towering Santa Ynez mountains in the background, and saved in the forefront by the rocky Santa Barbara Channel, stands the hoary mission. And another is the one that stands in the beautiful San Gabriel Valley. Four of the six old chimes brought over from Spain still toll out the Angelus upon that perfumed and enchanted valley. Sombre with the fleeing centuries, still clinging to their old and rusty frames, are the paintings that show the deftness of a hand long since stilled. These missions, as in all the past, defy the tooth of Time. Their foundations are unmoved by the shocks and tremors of the soil on which they stand.

Wild Cats End Season With Victory

BOTH WILD CATS AND MATADORS CLOSE CAGE SEASON HERE LAST EVENING WITH A. C. C. WINNERS

The last game of the season for both clubs gave the basketball fans of the South Plains a great thrill last evening with the A. C. C. Wild Cats victorious over the Matadors by a score of 1 to 23. A much better game was shown last evening than on Monday night in the view of the fact that it was the last time for several months for the Wildcats to make the last appearance of their school; therefore they put everything they had in the tilt.

"Chille" Adams and George Brown making their last show up on the floor for their college and both deserve much credit for the outcome of the game. Adams was spectacular in that he shot long and high arched shots that were sensational.

Many personal fouls were called by referee Von Tongulien thus slowing the game to a certain extent; however there was a reason for the fouls in that one club member of the team were so interested in the outcome, in that it was the last game for both clubs, that they were in high spirits and their interest recorded fouls, which in some cases caused the score to accumulate.

Powell, a South Plains lad, was high point man for the game ringing up a total of 12 points ten of which were scored in the last half.

At the end of the first half the score was A. C. C. 15, Tech 13, but by the constancy of the Abilene cagers they gradually increased the lead to a great majority.

LORENZO QUINTET TO MEET CANYON EAGLES ON THE PLAINVIEW FLOOR FOR THE BI-DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP

Plans are under way by which the Lorenzo Cagers and the Canyon High School Eagles will play off the bi-district championship in Plainview on Friday and Saturday of this week.

The selection of Plainview has been practically settled upon and it is thought that the two would be played off of three games; the team winning the best two out of the three would be the team that would represent the South Plains and Panhandle in the state meet that is to be held in Austin on the 5th and 6th of March.

Coach Weaver, mentor of the Lorenzo club has been leading his gang of basketball players through some stiff rehearsals and are in the very best of shape for the championship game. The club presented one of the most consistent methods of playing shown during the recent district meet here on the 12th and 13th of this month. The Lorenzo club was selected by the fans of the tournament as the best in the meet but by their consistent playing and the steady manner in which the club worked they fought their way to the championship defeating Littlefield, the pre-picked club for the tournament.

HERE AND THERE IN LOCAL SPORTS

Sled Allen and his associates, who recently went into a lease contract with Capt. M. E. Merrill, owner of the Merrill Park, are to be engaged in the sale of fence advertisements very soon. The present plans call for something like 40 signs to be held on the fences and grandstand. Already merchants have taken part of the signs and many more have agreed to take signs. This is one way in which merchants of Lubbock will be a help to the club this season and at the same time derive good advertising from the fence ads.

"Lefty" Middleton, that southerner who dealt the Hubber between misery last year, has written to Skipper relative to locating in Lubbock this summer and becoming a member of the Hub City's nine.

Skipper has had the assurance from Capt. Merrill that if the crowd that attend the ball games this summer demand a larger grandstand that the east wing of the present stand will be extended out the same distance as the south wing. Here, hoping that the demand is reached.

It seems that Lubbock is awaking and coming to the aid of the repair and beautification of the Municipal Golf Course. The membership limit has been set and no doubt it will be filled by the first of March.

Wonder how many people in Lubbock know that the Municipal Golf Course is one of the fastest courses in West Texas—that it has the natural hazards that is demanded on real golf courses—yes, this is true and you may become a member of the new organization for $10.00 a year. See E. R. Adeock, Buddy Stewart, Floyd Bowen, J. O. Smith, Lee Dugan, Vacher Wilson or any of the other members about joining. If you don't join it will cost you two bits a nine hole game—so hurry and help get the organization going so that we may see Duke Germany, Herbert Stubbs, Lee Dugan, and other golfers strut their stuff.

Even old "Big Un" has gotten all pepped up and joined the golf association—certainly would like to see him tee off.

The high school coaches of the South Plains are anxious to see a new league formulated with headquarters of some located at Lubbock with the Tech coaches supervisors. In making this comment the high

U. S. TENNIS TEAMS DEFEND TITLE THURSDAY

By United News
NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—With the national indoor tennis championships behind them, the teams of France and the United States are "pointing" for the international team matches which start Thursday at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

The matches, which will last 3 days, are attracting attention never before focused upon indoor tennis, for it is recognized that the Frenchmen have a good chance of winning.

Jean Borotra already has defeated William T. Tilden, II and Lene Lacoste in turn, defeated his team mate Borotra Tilden, however, displayed excellent form in the doubles, following his defeat by the "bounding basque" and may not be such an easy victim in the team matches.

In the doubles, the Americans will be fully as strong as the invaders, as the international matches will be played under conditions which apply to the Davis cup competition, each of the four singles matches will count one point and the one doubles match another point.

Perhaps both Frenchmen—Borotra and Lacoste are to play in the singles matches—can beat Big Bill. If they can, they should win the "indoor Davis cup."

It would be less surprising, however, if the tall American champion showed a substantial form reversal, beat both Borotra and Lacoste, help to win the deciding doubles match, and thus restore the tennis supremacy of the United States practice—single handed.

The draw for the international team matches was announced Tuesday night. Tilden meets Rene Lacoste in a five set singles match Thursday afternoon; while Borotra faces Vincent Richards.

On Friday, Tilden and Richards will face the French doubles pair, after which there will be an exhibition match between Francis T. Hunter of New York and the remaining member of the French team.

Richards meets Lacoste and Tilden plays Borotra on Saturday.

Memorial Will be Built to "Matty" by National League

By United News
NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—President John Heydler of the National League has made a statement clarifying the situation regarding a proposed memorial for Christy Mathewson, the late president of the Boston Braves, and former star pitcher for the New York Giants.

"The National League," Heydler announced "is committed to the erection of a memorial for Matty at Bucknell College. Proceeds from the game to be played at the Polo grounds, New York, July 7, between the New York Giants and the Washington Senators will be devoted to the erection of this Bucknell memorial."

Bucknell was Mathewson's college and his body is to be laid at rest there.

GARNER RAMPAGES AS TAX CUT PASSES

Drane. The Florida member's motion was howled down without a record vote. As only one motion to recommit is in order, Newton was left looking on helplessly as the roll call on the bill was ordered. There was considerable discussion in the lobbies of the parliamentary maneuver, which, had been pre-arranged, but nothing could be done.

Some of those who agreed with Drane were found among those voting against the bill—16 republicans, eight democrats, three farmer-labor, and one independent.

Debate on the bill was featured by an attack by Representative Garner, Texas, democrat, on the senate democrats, who voted this year for repeal of the estate tax. He pointed out that the democrats originated the tax in 1916 and had stood for it as a party policy on the four revenue bills since.

Garner also assisted the American Bankers League as "one of the most damnable organizations in the country," and said it had paid the expenses of state tax cut representatives who came here to urge repeal of the estate tax.

In criticizing senate democrats, Garner said that "when the monied interests of the country got busy, they changed their minds."

He directed his attack principally against southern democrats and explained that the southern states pay less than six and one half per cent of the estate tax but that they want to save even this small amount by repealing the tax.

He drew frequent rounds of laughter by his sarcasm at the expense of democrats on the other side of the capitol, reading the amounts of tax paid in different states and commenting upon them, but always without mentioning any names.

"They tell these are prosperous times down in Mississippi—they've made lots of money there in real-estate," he said. "They paid only one eighth of one per cent of the total estate tax last year, such a small amount, but they don't want to pay even that."

This was regarded as a veiled thrust at Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who recently made money in real-estate. Harrison voted for repeal of the estate tax.

Mrs. Aschelman, both of whose senators voted for repeal, Garaway and Robinson, the latter minority floor leader, and also of North Carolina, without naming Senator Simmons, ranking democrat on the finance committee.

Pleading for support for his move, Newton told the house that the retroactive provision in the estate tax was "so unprecedented, so unfair" as to warrant action by the house. He denied that tax reduction would be delayed by sending the bill back to strike out this provision, saying that "if the people learn that this bill is being held up over such a provision as this, then the senate conferees will be forced to give way."

SENIORITA MAY BE WORTHY FOE FOR POKER FACE

By United News
MONTE CARLO, Feb. 23.—Riviera tennis enthusiasts Tuesday had a look at Seniorita Elia De Alvarez, the Spanish girl who is believed by some experts to be a real rival of Helen Wills.

Acknowledging the supremacy of Suzanne Lenglen, who still is resting and will not play before Friday, she sporting coterie of the coté d'Azur is wondering what Seniorita De Alvarez can do against the American champion.

The Spanish girl kept her light under a bushel while the furor over the Longten Williams match was raging. She played her first match Tuesday and displayed championship caliber in defeating the promising young British lass, Helen Pittman, 6-2, 6-0.

Miss Wills won all her matches Tuesday. The Californian was slightly off form, due to the fact that croquet slazenger tennis balls are being used in the Monte Carlo tournament. This is the fifth match of tennis ball with which the American girl has been forced to play since coming here this winter, and as there is considerable difference in bound and velocity, her difficulties are considerable.

Paired with Mrs. Carl F. Aschelman, wife of the Swiss champion, who was Helen's partner in the mixed doubles, Miss Wills carried the match through practically single handed and defeated Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss Eleanor Harvey of England 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Aschelman, who was formerly Leslie Bancroft, an American player of the first rank, was ill and only went through with the match to prevent the necessity of Helen scratching.

In the singles, Miss Wills defeated Miss Marriott of England 6-0, 6-0.

that would indicate lack of confidence in either of these cabinet members.

However, it is probable that the democratic plan will be frustrated long before it can reach the White House in official form. The senate will make a hard fight. The house would have to approve any such plan involving expenditure of funds for counsel. Its rules are such that the administration could pigeon hole the proposal and prevent action before the adjournment alleged in June.

Lack of vigor in the department of justice as the reason for such action. The answer is made that the department of justice did investigate and found no evidence of violation. Senator Reed, Pennsylvania republican, has presented the department's data, comprising perhaps 1,500 pages to a vote of confidence in Sargent.

Chairman Cummins of the senate judiciary committee said the senate has no right to ask the president to appoint special counsel.

"He could raise a constitutional issue in this case and I think he should if we adopt such a resolution," Cummins told the senate.

Senator Walsh, gave further evidence regarding alleged control of the foreign aluminum industry by the Aluminum Company of America. He named a list of foreign companies in which the Mellon concern held stock, in one case as much as 95 per cent. He said there was 44 direct subsidiaries in the United States and 13 other companies engaged in miscellaneous trade some of which are concerned with the aluminum industry.

"Some people say that our sole purpose is political," Walsh said. "What difference does it make when we expose facts and endeavor to bring relief through the only available channels?"

FALL ASKS REVIEW OF TEAPOT DOME INDICTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doherty Tuesday asked the District of Columbia district court of appeals to grant a special review of action of lower courts in holding valid their indictments charging a conspiracy to defraud the government in oil lease suits.

Through their attorneys, they asserted that there had been no conspiracy chargeable and pointed out that it was desirable to settle the question of validity of the indictments before bringing the case to trial, to obviate fruitless proceedings which might be later overturned in higher courts on the basis of the faulty indictments.

Fall and Harry F. Sinclair in a separate petition later Tuesday asked for a similar special appeal from the court's action in overruling their demurrers to the indictments charging them with conspiracy to defraud the United States in the leasing of naval oil reserves.

ROLLER SKATING POLICE NOT WANTED IN BERLIN

By United News
BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Berlin officials have turned down the proposal to have "gyrating policemen" as the roller-skating cops of Dresden have been dubbed.

It is pointed out that while roller skates may give a policeman an advantage in pursuing a criminal once he catches him the policeman has no tractive power unless he sits down. Otherwise Berlin might be treated to the spectacle of a policeman skimming down the asphalt streets in tow of a fleeing thief.

"Also the temptation to do a few fancy figure eights for the edification of passersby," said an official, "might prove too great a temptation for some of the younger members of the force. Such performances no matter how graceful would necessarily detract from the dignity of the force. Again what chance would a line of policemen on roller skates have in checking a pressure of a jammed crowd trying to push its way from the sidewalks into the streets?"

U. S. Smugglers Have Cost Canada 200,000,000 Dollars

By United News
OTTAWA, Ont. Feb. 23.—Canada has lost more than $200,000,000 revenue through the activities of an international ring which is smuggling goods from New York, Michigan and Illinois into the dominion, it was testified Tuesday before a parliamentary investigating committee.

R. H. Sparks said on the witness stand that the smugglers had formed a conspiracy with Canadian customs officers and the latter permitted millions of dollars of goods to be smuggled into Canada every year.

Cinderella Denies New Affair With Prince Charming

By United News
DENVER, Colo. Feb. 23.—Standing behind a pile of hat boxes in the department store which employs her, Mary Louise Spar, the Cinderella girl, staged an emotional scene for bargain hunters and newspaper reporters Tuesday afternoon, and figuratively speaking, slipped her self-appointed Prince Charming squarely on the nose with her list.

"It's nothing but an attempt on his part to get publicity," cried Cinderella. "I hardly know him, and since this happened I never want to see him again."

Herbert W. Singleton, son of millionaire candy manufacturer of Rochester, N. Y., who is selling magazines "on his own" in Denver, has announced to the world that he was Cinderella's prince charming.

Attorney General Moody said the only way to settle the suit was to try it before the court and determine the amount of the judgment.

CATALOGUE FOR "PLAINS SHOW WINDOW PANHANDLE, SOUTH PLAINS FAIR, NOW BEING PREPARED, SAYS BENSON

Work has begun on editing the 1926 catalog and premium list of the Panhandle South Plains Fair which will be held this year, September 28, 29, October 1, and 2, according to Geo. E. Benson, president of the fair association. At a recent meeting of the fair board, the directors voted to begin work at once on the book, and rush it to completion in order that it might be distributed to the thousands of exhibitors in the many departments of the fair in time for them to have their products in readiness for the thirteenth annual "Show Window of the Plains."

Last year the fair association had hundreds of requests for the book before it was off the press from prospective exhibitors. To avoid this and to encourage exhibitors to begin work early in preparing their products and livestock for the show, the book will be compiled as soon as possible and sent out to thousands of prospective exhibitors, according to Benson.

Gordon Baker has been employed by the fair association and is working on the advertising for the catalog at this time. A letter has gone out from President Benson to all of last year's advertisers asking them for their co-operation again this year in making the fair the success it must be, to properly represent Lubbock and the Panhandle South Plains area. The advertising will be worth much more this year. Benson stated recently due to the fact that it will be in the hands of exhibitors several months more before the fair this year than it was last year, however the prices will remain the same.

Advertising in the catalog is the only manner in which the merchants are asked to co-operate with the fair association financially in making the fair a success, Benson stated, with the exception of seeing the fair. The exposition has made rapid strides of progress in the past few years and has lived up to its name "The Show Window of the Plains." Many thousands of people passed thru the turnstiles of the fair last fall to view the products of this section. These people came from all corners of the Panhandle South Plains and each one went back to his home with a better feeling toward Lubbock.

DENVER POST STRAW VOTE SHOWS WET SENTIMENT

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 23.—Opponents of the prohibition law, acknowledged by the driest section of the nation as four to one favorites over their opponents are jubilant over the outcome of the newspaper referendum carried on by the Denver Post.

Nearly 80,000 people have declared themselves opposed to the eighteenth amendment. Only 20,756 were in favor of it. For wines and beer there were 83,356 votes, opposed by 18,999.

"The results of our referendum show that the eighteenth amendment never will make the people either law abiding or temperate," declared F. G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post.

"The polls show a tremendous change in the sentiment of the people of this region. I believe it was brought about by the people growing tired of so much law violation, corruption and bootlegging."

MAY REPUDIATE LOCARNO PACT, SAY POLES

WARSAW, Feb. 23.—Poland may repudiate the Locarno agreements as far as Germany is concerned, unless she receives a permanent seat on the council of the League of Nations and a position fully equivalent to that accorded Germany.

This was the substance of a statement given the United News correspondent Tuesday from a high source. Following a discussion by Premier Skrynski of the fight to enlarge the council of the League. While the premier himself refused to go into details as to his opinion of the need or lack of need for additional seats on the council, he emphasized his conviction that any problem affecting reconstruction of the council must be solved within the League itself.

Texas Mail Plane Hops off in Test At Moline Today

MOLINE, Ill., Feb. 23.—The Chicago-Whita-Dallas air mail route will be informally inaugurated Wednesday when an airplane hops off from here on a test flight. The plane, the first one delivered to the National Air Transport Inc., was flown here from Chicago Tuesday by E. P. Lott, chief pilot of the company, who will take off again in the morning, stopping briefly at St. Joseph Mo., before ending his first day's flight at Kansas City. The National Air Transport Inc. holds the contract for the air mail route and plans to start the service in April.

St. Patrick's Day to Be Observed Widely Throughout the U. S.

St. Patrick's Day parties will be more popular this year than they ever were before, according to indications. Not only are the descendants of St. Patrick's adopted country celebrating on March 17, but the day is fast becoming one of almost countrywide observation.

Of course, the color scheme for a St. Patrick's celebration ought to be carried out in green or in green and white, including the prices. A variety case with a bit of green enamel, a green leather address book, or handkerchiefs with green borders or embroidery, are acceptable presents.

Even the refreshments can be made very suggestive of the day, as is shown by the following recipes and menus:

- Cream of Pea Soup
- Buttered Green Beans
- Pigs in Blankets
- Irish Salad
- Patrick Sandwiches
- Pistachio Ice Cream
- White Cakes

REDUCTION OF RETAIL PRICES INDICATED IN GERMANY SAYS LUTHER

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—Haggling by the individual buyer will make for reduction of retail prices in Germany, Chancellor Dr. Luther believes.

The Chancellor formed this opinion while touring thru Berlin's various shopping districts, accompanied only by his housekeeper.

Dr. Luther undertook this personal investigation because official investigation had failed to provide him with the desired data on retail prices.

On his tour he found that, as was charged, retail prices for the same kind of commodity varied considerably without any obvious reason.

But he also found that thru haggling a rebate could be obtained in almost every case where prices were exceptionally high.

After this experience, he thinks it would not be amiss if housewives adopt the method of bargaining with shop keepers. He believes this will make clear to local merchants that they cannot ask exorbitant prices.

City Tested Seed Should Be Used, Banker Says

F. A. Norman, of the Citizens National Bank, is interested in having all farmers of Lubbock County have tests made of all planting seed before planting to avoid any possibility of crop losses from this source.

Mr. Norman declared that tests that have been made of large quantities of seed grown in this section the past season show the germination percentage to be so low that losses of time and crops would be suffered if they were depended upon for planting purposes.

Every seed supply on which the farmers of Lubbock County are depending for planting should be thoroughly tested. The loss of a large part of the cotton crop by the freeze last year has worked hardships on many farmers who are now in a position to lose any part of their crop in 1926, which is the more reason why seed should be tested and every caution taken against losses of crops," Mr. Norman said.

Navasota Strides Ahead on Concrete Streets

Those who remember the Navasota of a few years ago will recall the unpaved, bumpy, muddy, dusty thoroughfares called streets. These were always subject to the whims of the weather man, and ever a source of expense and dissatisfaction.

But in 1923 a city council of wide awake business men started a campaign for municipal improvements. A concrete pipe sewer system was installed. Then they started a street paving program. Contract was awarded for portland cement concrete pavement in the business district. As a result property owners soon demanded the same clean, easy riding pavement on residential streets. Today Navasota boasts 100,000 square yards of permanent concrete streets.

Yes, you are right, the whole town has changed. Lawns have been beautified. Homes have been painted; new ones have been built. Store fronts are dressed up and kept that way. Progress all along the line has been the result.

Navasota tasted the tonic of concrete and liked it. Wherever concrete pavements are built, they create civic pride and act as a town tonic.

People can get the kind of pavement they want if they insist upon it.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

The fourth, and one of the most delightful members of the High School Lyceum Course was held in the auditorium last Monday night. Mr. Qualen and Miss Green, who starred in New York's comedy success, "Six Cylinder Love," were the entertainers, and their program was an unusual and very attractive one. Mr. Qualen was especially good in his famous character sketches, and the war story in which he whistled "Listen to the mocking-bird," and Miss Green delighted every one with her excellent playing, and her clever acting in the little one act play, "Black and White."

Why is it that it's so much harder to go back to school after a holiday than usual? We wonder—and we think sometimes of the man who said:

"Life is a game of poker
Happiness is the pot
Fate deals us fine cards
And we play—if we like it or not!"

There's always something to be miserable about. Now it's those "falling-slops." Woe unto him who receiveth one.

Miss Peek Visits in L. H. S.
Miss Lillian Peek, State Supervisor of Vocational Home Economics, visited the departments of foods, cookery, clothing and Design of Lubbock high school, February 23. Much interest has been manifested in these two departments. Lubbock High School is hoping to be represented in the State Clothing Contest which is to be held in Beaumont in April.

Miss Peek suggests the probability of having the State Clothing Contest in Lubbock in 1927, it all depends on how much we want it. We assure her that we will be supported by the citizens of Lubbock and the students of L. H. S. But to do this we must be represented at the convention in Beaumont, therefore we must support these Home Economics girls so that they may attend the convention that is to be held in Beaumont.

Miss Eubank, head of the Department of foods and cookery has shown much interest in this department. Miss Eubank came here last year and by her winning personality has won the love and admiration of all the girls.

Mrs. A. Y. Doherty, head of the Department of Health, came to us this year. Lubbock high is indeed fortunate in having a woman of such a lovely character, head of this department. Miss Price, head of the department of foods and clothing has been with us for three or four years and High School owes much to her for the growth and expansion of these departments.

Cadet Corps Awards Prizes
Lieutenant Killen, military head of the Lubbock Hi Cadet Corps has awarded prizes to the following: Cadet C. B. Green, first prize, 5.00; Cadet Corporal, Alfred Adkinson, second prize, $1.00; Cadet Clyde James, third prize, $1.00. Another contest is to be held in the near future. The officer staff as well as the Cadet Corps are anxious that more high school boys join now, so we can work for credits next year. Extraordinary interest is being manifested by those already in the Cadet Corps. Their drill is not compulsory. If you want to be a real wide-awake fellow, come to the high school gym on either Monday, Wednesday, or Friday mornings at 8 o'clock and join us.

It is reported that several boys went to Littlefield to help Heart Breaking Homer Hardberger on his way. It is also reported that a free dinner was served, so we think that taut cleared the mystery up.

There is an Art Exhibit being held at Lubbock Hi this week. Many copies of the greatest masterpieces of the world are being shown. The Junior Hi is putting the sale of tickets over a hundred per cent. Where is Senior Hi?

When the A. C. C. team came to town we thought that the Tech girls would "strut their stuff," but it seems that Lubbock Hi Senior girls beat their time. Who said we aren't educated.

Sophomore was heard to say that he wished George Washington had been twins so we could have had two holidays.

Last night Mr. R. C. Harrison, head of the English department made a very interesting and intellectual talk before an audience at the Art Exhibit now being shown at the Lubbock High School. The talk was greatly enjoyed by all.

Fred Moore, one of the Seniors of Lubbock Hi has been absent for several days on account of illness. It is our sincere wish that he may be able to baze back with us soon.

The Juniors are wailing "Gone but not forgotten, those delinquent slips."

A crowd of Juniors were seen on Campus again Tuesday. We suppose the holiday did them good.

Juniors! Juniors! Don't forget the Junior Picnic Thursday night! There are some songs being learned and lots of good eats being prepared. So don't miss your part of the fun!

The Juniors are working on the Operetta to be given Commencement week. Miss Atwood, sponsor of Junior class is sponsoring the play. Miss Atwood is here this year from Cross Plains, Texas. The fact that she was elected sponsor of the class, shows the popularity she has gained among the students.

Miss Dorothy Lowmax, Junior English teacher, altho very small, is surely a wonderful instructor in English. She is thought well of as a teacher and also a friend. She is always curious for new knowledge, concerning interest of students.

Mr. Cox in Civics Class: Can you define the following: State, Community, Nation, etc? No response.

Belle rings.
Mr. Cox: Well if you can't they are each defined in your text book.

Roy Sanford came to school this morning with his eyes. All red, and looking as if it were "the morning after" for him. Being a personal friend of Roy's we asked him of course, what was the matter. He said he went to Littlefield yesterday, and did not get back until 2:30 this morning. Poor boy, we know about how he feels. We have been up late a few times.

Houston Jones was not at school today. Probably he went to Littlefield too, and did not come back at all.

Miss Morton: "What have you in your mouth Curtis?"
Curtis Davis: "I don't know."
Miss Morton: "You should know. You have been chewing it long enough."

WORK OF DISTRICT CLERK IS BACK TO NORMAL

The close of the Lubbock County term of the 72nd Judicial District Court last Saturday has given District Clerk Lonnie F. Moore an opportunity to get the work of his office back to normal again, and it will not be long now until work will be started getting the records straight for the next term which convenes April 5th.

The jury commission has completed selection of the grand and petit jurors for the term, and these have been filed in sealed envelopes with the clerk to be opened soon and delivered to the sheriff's office for proper notices to be sent to the jurors.

BRITISH FAT LAD PREPARES TO BE NEW MOVIE STAR

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Bertie Walters, the fat boy of Poplar—weight 252 pounds, age 17—is getting ready to go to the United States to become the new Fatty Arbuckle. "I am negotiating with an American movie company now," he puffed to the United News. "But even if this contract fails, I am going to New York and try to break in. I am determined to do it."

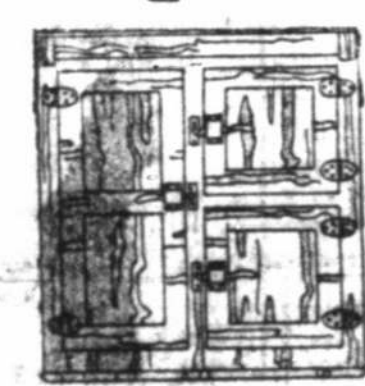

"I play tennis and box, but nothing keeps my weight down. It's a gift and I'm going to try to cash it." Walters is unusually optimistic for a fat boy, and his rosy cheeks frame an expansive and infectious smile. Despite his weight, he is active; but not too active for a heavy-weight movie comedian.

In Greater New York you pay 85 cents for a haircut-shave. A plumber receives $2 an hour and is no more skilled than the average barber.

"NEVER ALONE"

By Herbert de Mareau, Jr.

This wonderful painting, which transports one's very being to a higher realm and grips one's soul with irresistible power depicts a soldier's death on the lone marshes of Flanders.

Herbert de Mareau, the artist, has painted a war scene without any trace of the conflict; solitude without desolation; sorrow without horror. A young French soldier has been shot down in the midst of the marshes and lies, with life ebbing away, his lips apart, his eyes already fixed in the seal of death; his helmet has fallen off, his rifle lies at his side.

Alone he lies—not another human being in sight—no eye to note how and when he fell—no comrade to carry the news to kindred as to how he died for his country.

Yet not alone—for by his side, with arms extended, stands a figure—a Being with infinite compassion—the figure of Him who said: "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

Be sure and see this Painting this week.

Author of "The Wind" Makes Explanation

DID NOT WRITE NOVEL TO HINDER TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Polly Lobdell, of the Little Bookshop here, has received the following letter from Dorothy Scarborough, acknowledged author of the much discussed novel of life in West Texas, "The Wind":

Dear Mrs. Lobdell, I am glad to have your message that "The Wind" has come in like a hurricane sweeping all other fiction out of the shop with you. Long May it Blow!

You ask for a statement as to how I came to write the book. To begin with, of course, I naturally choose Texas settings and incidents for my stories, since I am a Texan, and a thorough one. I'd match my loyalty against that of anybody in the State. I have been accused of disliking West Texas, but that's a mistake. It's a great section and I love it. I used to live in West Texas—when I was about as big as a ground squirrel, and not of an age to be taking notes for novels. Perhaps Sweetwater regrets that she didn't take steps to exterminate me in these years of my babyhood there, but the West Texas Chamber of Commerce wasn't in existence then, so I escaped.

But "The Wind" had its real origin in the impressions I got from hearing my mother's vivid accounts of her struggles with the climate of the west. In the back of my mind has been for a long time the purpose to write a story which would show the effects of the wind and send on a nervous sensitive woman, of a type not prepared to cope with it. That seemed like good drama to me.

I choose the past for the time of the story, since the present wouldn't fit. Now that the country is built up, civilization would offer any "letty" many ways of escape.

Of course, I realize as well as anybody else, that West Texas is vastly improved now over what it was then, some citizens of West Texas have resented my account, but surely the section is too great and prosperous for a trivial thing like a novel to injure it in any way, even had the author wished to do that. And certainly I didn't. I wrote sincerely, and as honestly as I knew how.

I was impelled to write the book at the time I did by a certain incident. I had invited Edna Fisher to speak to the Writer's Club of Columbia University, and I was coming up to the hall with her in a taxi cab. She said "I'm nervous today, and I don't know what's the matter because of the high wind that's blowing." I told her "I don't know what's the matter with you either." She looked at me and said "I had never thought of that." Then I told her of our Texas winds, on sand dunes and how they are on the women. I told her of the story I meant to write of the effect of the wind and sand and drought on a nervous, sensitive woman not used to the environment.

"What perfectly wonderful material for a story!" she cried. "I'd give anything for it."

"But you can't have it," I laughed. "It's my story, and anyway, no one could write it who hadn't lived in Texas."

She mentioned the idea of the novel in her speech at the Writer's Club and it was enthusiastically received. It reminded them that if it was my idea and that no enthusiastic must snatch it from me. To make sure that nobody should, I hurried up and wrote the novel myself in my earliest leisure.

Mr. L. F. McKay, formerly of West Texas, suggests that I write

Texas State Board of Health News Letter

Activities in State-wide Clean-up Campaign Started

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 23.—Many inquiries have been received by the state board of health in regard to its annual state-wide clean-up campaign which has been designated this year for the week of March 28th to April 3rd. A feature of this campaign that is attracting unusual attention is that of the "cleanest-town" contest to be conducted in counties under the auspices of local chambers of commerce or other organizations.

"From such contests," Dr. H. O. Sappington, state health officer, stated, "much lasting benefits should result. Naturally, towns entering the contest for county honors would realize that no superficial campaign would award it the coveted prize, and consequently campaigns conducted in these towns would be thorough. Improved sanitation in any town means the promotion of public health and means much not only in the physical well being of the people, but also from a financial standpoint.

The most important of health requisites are safe water, proper sewerage and garbage disposal, safe milk supplies, mosquito control, and protection of food from flies, dust, dirt, etc. Each day of clean-up week has been given special designation in order that each community may give concerted action to the elimination of health menaces."

Special Days of Clean-up Week:
 Sunday, March 28, Health Sanitation Day.
 Monday, March 29, Physical Examination Day.
 Tuesday, March 30, General Clean-up Day.
 Wednesday, March 31, Safe Milk and Water Day.
 Thursday, April 1, Child Welfare and Birth Registration Day.
 Friday, April 2, Food Sanitation Day.
 Saturday, April 3, Rural Sanitation Day.

Anyone desiring further information in regard to contests or clean-up campaign, write the state board of health, Austin.

Sanitary Improvements
 The state board of health announces approval of the following plans: sewer system enlargements and new sewage disposal plants, costing approximately $250,000.00, for the city of Corpus Christi; sewer extensions and new sewage disposal plant at Haskell, Haskell County, costing $60,000.00; new sewer system, sewer system and sewage disposal plant, costing $50,000.00 each, at Trinity, Trinity County.

Gain in Statistics in 1925
 Statistics compiled by the bureau of vital statistics of the state board of health show 90,975 births and 45,702 deaths reported in 1925, this being a ratio of almost two births to each death occurring in the state. Statistics also show that a considerable increase was made in both birth and death reports during 1925, there being 23,426 more of both births and deaths reported than in 1923.

It is estimated that approximately another novel dealing with the vicarious West, and call it "Sand." I think I shall write that story some day soon. One can only put a small part of any life into one story.

I am glad that I am finding friends in Texas because appreciation from the "homefolks" means more than from anyone else.

Cordially yours,
 Anonymous and nee,
 DOROTHY SCARBROUGH.

75 per cent of births were reported in 1925, this being a gain of 10 per cent over the previous year.

Texas will be kept out of the registration area of the United States until at least 90 per cent of all births and deaths are registered.

Is Your City in Death Registration Area?

Any town with a population of 10,000 or more is eligible to admission into the death registration area of the United States, and if your town is not in this area, application for admittance should be made to the United States Bureau of Census, asking that a test be made to ascertain if 50 per cent of deaths are being registered. At present, only 7 or 8 of the larger cities of the state are in this area.

NAMES

By HEDDA HOYT
 NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—"What's in a Name?"

Her name was Violet. She wore She dressed in violet and orchid shades and her eyes had a violet hue. Everyone who knew her thought of her as a violet, although she was anything but the modest Violet type. She played upon her name and color scheme to get her effect.

What a pity we can't all have names that would assist us in expressing our individualities or our appearances. Unfortunately, most of us have names which require a lot of personality and clever dressing to overcome. Gertrude, Helen, Mildred and Anna can wear faddish clothes since their names express no particular personalities whereas Rose, Blanche, Gloria or Pearl, on the other hand, can wear clothes which express flowers, colors, romance and pearls.

Every name expresses something. It may express an entirely different personality than it's owner possesses, or it may express a lack of personality and one then has to build up a sufficiently strong personality to carry the name. It's too bad that we haven't a league like the Lucy Stone league, which would sponsor grown-ups changing their names to suit their individualities. Screen and stage stars are well aware of the influence of names. Take Lillian Gish for instance. Doesn't she live up to the lily idea of her name? Mary Pickford is the typical Mary of our dreams. Gloria Swanson would never have been the inspiration of the shop girls had her name been Lena Swanson.

Many persons are ridiculously misnamed. I know an enormous woman named Kitty whose only feline claim is a slight hairy growth on her upper lip which resembles a cat's whiskers. One of the worst night-hawks in New York is named Prudence. A miserly old woman, is called Charity. I don't recall a graceful Grace.

Fashions in names change just as fashion in dress and manner do. The Marguerettes of twenty years ago are now Peggys, Margies, Mags, etc., in accordance with the jazz era. Susan are Sues and Josephines are Joes. Fortunately is the girl with an exotic name for styles can't come too quickly or can't be too unusual for her. Where Mathilda calls for crisp neat lines, Gwendolyn, Zoe and Thelma call for Oriental weaves and rare colorings.

"Be yourself" means a lot in the world of slang but "be your name" is a better slogan if one wishes to get a personality over.

CANADIANS HAVE GREAT NATIONAL SPORT

By GENE KESSLER
 QUEBEC, Canada, Feb. 23.—Canada has a national game conducted as extensively as baseball in the states. From the kindergarten age upward, Canadians play hockey. The game is organized in such a manner that those in America desiring to rejuvenate the interest in sandlot ball might take a tip.

There are junior, senior, commercial, national amateur and professional leagues, with games played almost every night. Rinks with a capacity of 12,000 are no longer large enough for the pro-matches. Professional players are paid as high as $10,000 per year and the stars are valued at from $50,000 up. Though the game has spread to America and the league made an international affair for commercial purposes, all the stars have learned to play in Canada. Only two learned the game in the U. S.—Jerran, of Boston, and Drury, of Pittsburgh.

Tex Rickard, thru the snake-up process used for heavyweight fights, drew 17,000 in Madison Square Garden to see his New York club play. In Montreal where there are two teams in the league capacity crowds of 12,000 attend regularly with several thousand always turned away at the doors.

Howie Moretz of the Montreal Canadians, is considered the biggest drawing card of the game. He has just signed a contract calling for $20,000 for three seasons. Babe Dye of the Toronto club won his sobriquet by leading the league in shooting goals. He is the Babe Ruth of hockey.

Ottawa's team is leading the international circuit with the Montreal Maroons second. When these two clubs recently played there was a sell-out a week in advance. It resembled the fight Washington and Philadelphia put up for first place in the American League last summer. Pittsburgh is third in the league. The Pirates are all American-Canadians who formed the U. S. Olympic Hockey club and turned pro when the league branched into international proportions. As in baseball, Boston holds the cellar post in the hockey league. However, the Red Sox have one outstanding player in Sprague Cleghorn for whom Pittsburgh recently offered $60,000.

Man's Absorption in Science Stirs Modern Woman's Unrest According to New Philosophy

By MARK W. CHILDS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (United Press)—A new contribution to world philosophy, interpreting existence as a spiritual movement of creative activity culminating in the human race, has been made by J. W. T. Mason, in a book called "Creative Freedom," just published by Harper and Bros. Commentators are accepting the book as opening up a hitherto unexplored field of psychological, aesthetic, religious and ethical research.

Mason, who gained an international reputation as a critic and analyst of human emotions during the World War by his writings for the United Press, has been a close student of philosophy for twenty-five years. His present work is the result of a quarter of a century of analytical work in Europe and America in his chosen field of spiritual interpretations of life.

In "Creative Freedom" Mason maintains that the fundamental problems of human evolution can all be traced to the effort of the creative impetus or Pure Spirit to progress by means of objective activity, seeking freedom to express itself in terms of personality. All egotism to man is spirit, which marks its own progress by striving to evolve ever higher capacities for creative activity. There is no omnipotent control of this movement, for if there were, it would be simply mechanical. The movement can fail as well as succeed, since it creates its own way by experiment. Man's success is the triumph of spirit as man's failure is the failure of spirit.

In analyzing this conception, Mason shows how primitive humanity as in Japanese Shinto, was much nearer to a realization of spirit as life's source of being than is modern man. Religion, by Mason's argument, is now getting back to primitive man's spiritual understanding, which primitives evolved by direct intuitive knowledge without the aid of creeds or doctrines. Evil is no more than the obstacles presented to the progress of the creative impetus, as it struggles to extend spiritual creative activity. Evil disappears as spiritual creative activity increases.

Mason finds that man and woman are two specialized, individual movements of the creative impetus. Man is a center of utilitarian activity and woman is a center of aestheticism. Man concentrates on materialistic production while woman's major purpose is to prevent materialism overwhelming life by means of her aesthetic influence. Without feminine influence, man worships the material things he creates instead of worshipping creativeness, which is spirit and is man's source of being. When woman fails to adjust herself to man aesthetically, she betrays her trust just as man becomes a betrayer when he thinks only of matter.

The present unrest of women, according to "Creative Freedom" is due to the difficulty the modern wife has in making her aesthetic power felt. Science has opened up for man far vaster fields for utilitarian productivity than humanity has ever known before, in recorded history. Man is thus being dragged away from woman's aesthetic attraction and woman has not yet evolved methods of counteracting the new rivalry. This explains the strange paradox of woman being more restless the more freedom she obtains. In reality, she does not want freedom for itself but wants to regain her lost power over man, without knowing how to do so. Unless she eventually succeeds in doing so, civilization will fall, buried in materialism.

In a final chapter on "The Evolution of Love," Mason puts forth the theory that the primary purpose of woman's being is not simply to become a mother, but to be the spiritual fount of human existence. The time may come when human beings will live for hundreds of years, making reproduction a noxious secondary fact for all women. Nevertheless woman must continue without them, man will have no aesthetic influence to save him from materialistic degeneracy. Mason points out that in primitive races, knowledge of paternity is unknown. Yet, the men insist on a marriage ceremony binding them to individual women. This cannot be for the benefit of offspring, Mason argues, because the men do not know they are the fathers of their children. They believe spirits enter the mother in various ways. The marriage ceremony under such conditions, Mason claims, is proof that man seeks union with a single woman in the most exclusive sense not for reproduction purposes but because in no other way can he obtain from woman the full aesthetic spiritual satisfactions which his nature craves and without which he perishes.

Brown—What makes your bank account so slender?
Black—Reducing exercises.

Eaton to Assist Farmers Select Planting Seed

County Agent David F. Eaton has made preparations to assist Lubbock County farmers in ascertaining the germination percentages of all seed planted by thorough tests.

The county agent has several means of testing seed, and will assist farmers in making tests or will instruct them in providing equipment with which to make accurate tests.

There should not be any chance taken with regard to planting faulty seed," the county agent said.

ACTRESS INVENTS "EXERCISE" DANCE

Mae Murray, who portrays "The Merry Widow" in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture of the same name coming to the Palace Theatre today, whose lithe, body, graceful and slender form is the envy and admiration of her plumper sisters, has a method all her own of keeping slim. Where other pet reducing methods may make you do things you DON'T want to do, or do without those things you really DO want such as abstaining from just the foods you'd like to eat, or getting up early in the morning to do your daily dozen when you'd rather stay in bed, Miss Murray's reducing methods ADDS joy to living rather than subtracting from it. In other words, Miss Murray's pet reducing and-beauty secret can be concisely stated in one word:

"Dance."
"Dance a lot and you won't have to worry about diet or exercise to keep slender," says Mae. "Besides, look at all the fun you have," she mischievously adds. And then she clinches her argument logically by adding:
"What is dancing if not the sugar coated pill of exercise swallowed appealingly to the tune of pleasant music? Dance by all means, every chance you get! If you don't get enough regular dancing to keep slender and you don't like stereotyped exercises you feel you must to to keep slim, adopt this idea originated by one of my friends—combine your "daily dozen" with the tepichorean art of creating an original "exercise dance" embodying ordinary exercises practiced to the strains of a snappy dance record! In other words choose those certain exercises you need to make your figure more perfect, incorporate them to music and then do them rhythmically in dance form once or twice a day as regular as you would take your daily dozen! You will be surprised how much fun you can get out of this novel "exercise dance," how much slenderness and more graceful you will become, how much more alive and alert you will feel and how much more enthusiasm an zest this will give you."

"Dancing, when you come right down to it, really is keeping active and exercising rhythmically. And since nothing brings about plumpness of the figure more quickly than laziness and inactivity, dancing supplies the sufficient exercises to keep the figure slim and graceful. You will rarely find a little shop girl who can boast of any excess flesh, for those girls are on their feet, moving about and keeping away the demon, "fat."

"If you must retain the figure of a sylph, and don't want to pay the price of dieting and rigid exercising, follow my friend's example by creating your own "Exercise Dance." That is of course, if you don't get enough outside dancing to keep you slim and graceful."
"The Merry Widow" was directed and adapted by Erich von Stroheim from the famous play by Victor Leon Leo Stein and Franz Lehár as produced on the stage by Henry W. Savage. John Gilbert plays opposite Mae Murray. Benjamin Glazer collaborated with von Stroheim in adapting and scenarizing the play for the screen.

The truck was out of running order but a short time, several members of the department being mechanics were used in making the replacement.

Dr. Y. J. Aiken, local veterinarian, has just returned to his home here from Hereford, where he was called by Colbert & Son, Hereford breeders, to diagnose and treat a valuable bull that was suffering with a malady peculiar to this section, which caused some alarm among owners of fine herds in that vicinity.

Noah Webster, author of the American Dictionary of the English Language, was responsible for the change in America of the "our" ending to "or." Thus labour, honour, behaviour, became labor, honor and behavior in America.

Several Cases of Smallpox; One Death In Snyder

SNYDER, Feb. 23—There are several cases of smallpox in Snyder and there has been one death from this disease.

Some children went to school, took sick, and it is reported that some of them developed smallpox upon returning home. Nearly all the cases, however, are so mild that they are difficult to distinguish from chickenpox. The county health officer is hoping to keep the disease under control and prevent a real epidemic.

WE WANT TO MERIT YOUR CONFIDENCE

John Conner Now sells the PHILCO

Do you ALWAYS have utmost confidence in the REPORT your battery man makes to you when you have your battery examined? If new repairs are suggested do you believe, sincerely, that they are needed? Have you a battery man in whom you have full confidence?

We ask these questions with the highest of motives. We do not refer to the character of any individual battery station or proprietor. But having devoted the best part of our lives in the battery and ignition business we find a large number of people very doubtful of suggestions made to them about their battery.

We have tried since we have been in business to build confidence—not only in our spoken word, but in the work we do and in the products which we sell.

We can't say that we have harvested a fortune in dollars and cents in the business but we have special reason for being proud of the patrons who are ours—regularly. We take a delight in prolonging the life of our customers' batteries—in making repairs as quickly and cheaply as GOOD work will allow. There's a certain pleasure we get out of doing good work and out of giving service and "coming clean" with our customers that satisfies as much as the money we make.

Our business grows steadily—not in leaps and bounds! We want to continue this growth, continue increasing enjoyment in the work.

We are never satisfied until we have our shop equipped well and have products to sell that call for no apologies for quality regardless of cost. We never have imposed a higher cost on labor or products than others. We always will try hard to protect your interests because in so doing we think we are advancing our own.

(Signed—John CONNER, Proprietor.)
