

Speedy Decision Seen On Patty Hearst's Release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has recommended that President Carter free Patricia Hearst and the president is expected to act quickly, administration sources said Sunday.

A White House source said the recommendation for commutation of the 24-year-old newspaper heiress' 7-year bank robbery sentence was delivered to presidential counsel Robert Lipschutz in the last few days and would be submitted to Carter "very shortly."

The Los Angeles Times reported Sunday the recommendation would be one of the first items of business Carter faced following his weekend at Camp David.

It was learned that the president was expected to act speedily, possibly within a few days.

The recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, who reviews most pardon matters for the Justice Department, came after about four months of study. It was delivered to the White House in time for Miss Hearst to be released before her planned Valentine's Day wedding to a former bodyguard, although Attorney General Griffin Bell has remarked previously, "That's her date, not ours."

Miss Hearst said the wedding to Bernard Shaw would take place whether she was in or out of prison. Bell has publicly expressed sympathy for Miss Hearst's appeal for executive clemency in the past.

Carter has commuted only four sentences since he took office. In a recent interview with UPI, John Stanish, the Justice Department's pardon attorney, noted that Miss Hearst's sentence was not excessive and she was not terminally ill, but described her appeal as "an unusual case."

Civiletti recently told reporters he was reading a stack of documents "three to three and a half feet high" on the case, including the transcript of Miss Hearst's sentencing and psychiatric reports.

Miss Hearst has served 22 months of her sentence and is currently at the Federal Correctional Institution in Pleasanton, Calif.

Her kidnapping on Feb. 5, 1974, by members of the radical Symbionese Liberation Army set off a chain of events that led to her avowed conversion to the SLA and her participation in robbing a branch of the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco.

She became a fugitive, missed a shootout in Los Angeles that killed several other SLA members, made the FBI's "Most Wanted List" and was finally arrested in September 1975 in San Francisco.

Under normal procedure, Miss Hearst would not be eligible for parole until July 11. Her attorney, George Martinez, petitioned for executive clemency last September, arguing her conviction was a "miscarriage of justice" because she was forced to join the SLA under duress.

She also appealed to the Supreme Court, but was unsuccessful.

In the past few months, a group called the Committee for the Release of Patty Hearst, with 82 chapters across the nation, has been campaigning hard for her release.

More than 50 congressmen, other public figures including conservative Ronald Reagan and dozens of newspaper editorials have supported her bid for freedom.

HIJACKING SUSPECT OVERPOWERED—Actor-folk singer Theodore Bikel, left panel, one of the passengers aboard the United Airlines 747 commandeered by a woman who claimed she was carrying nitroglycerin, speaks to reporters at New York's Kennedy Airport Sunday. Passengers said Bikel entered

Singer Entertains Hostages Aboard Hijacked Airliner

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman who allegedly commandeered a jumbo jet with 131 persons aboard was jailed Sunday after being overpowered by an FBI agent as actor Theodore Bikel sang to calm his fellow passengers.

"It wasn't entertainment, it was therapy," said Bikel, who played the guitar and sang during the 6½ hours the jet was parked at Kennedy International Airport after arriving from Los Angeles.

The FBI said Irene McKinney, a 49-year-old divorced mother of two described as distraught about her family and the Roman Catholic Church, commandeered the plane because she wanted to preempt network television.

Celebrities Aboard
Bikel, actor Sam Jaffe, agent Sue Mengers and singer Dino Martin, son of Dean Martin, were among the celebrities aboard the hijacked flight. The flight carried 119 passengers and a crew of 12.

For a time, Martin helped Bikel entertain the passengers, who snapped their fingers instead of applauding to avoid disrupting the FBI's negotiations with Mrs. McKinney in the rear of the plane.

No one was injured during the 11-hour ordeal in which the woman threatened to blow up the plane with nitroglycerin unless Charlton Heston, Jack Lemmon or Lindsay Wagner read an unspecified note over the air.

Heston spent five hours at the airport in Los Angeles and said afterwards, "I was prepared to do whatever I had to."

Mrs. McKinney, who lists separate addresses in Los Angeles and Cypress, Calif., was to be arraigned in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn today, assistant U.S. Attorney Ethan Levin-Epstein said.

Note Passed To Pilot

Authorities said Mrs. McKinney hijacked the plane over Prescott, Ariz., after passing a note to the pilot, Thomas Cook, claiming that she had nitroglycerin, a highly explosive chemical, in her flight bag. It was later discovered that the bag contained a bottle of perfume, a plane ticket and personal items, but no explosives.

FBI agent Quentin Ertel described Mrs. McKinney as a "fallen away Catholic, ambivalent about developments in the church" and "distraught" about her family situation. She was divorced from her husband and subsequently lost custody of her two children.

Mrs. McKinney's note said she had left a note she wanted read on television at the airport in Los Angeles, but none was found.

Long, Rambling Statement
During the negotiations with Mrs. McKinney, however, the FBI said she presented a 25-page statement, which they described as "long and rambling."

"It is a religious-type letter and it is quite incoherent," an FBI spokesman said.

The 747 aircraft, Flight 8, landed at Kennedy at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, and FBI agent Walter Yost boarded the plane

Wintry Storm Aims New Blow At Panhandle

TRAVEL advisories were issued Sunday for the Panhandle, but forecasters say that only trace amounts of snow are expected to reach the Lubbock area today.

The National Weather Service places the chance of measurable precipitation across the South Plains today at a slim 20 percent.

But even without any snow accumulations, Lubbockites will face another bout of temperatures bordering on the freezing mark.

Thermometers today should climb only into the mid-30s and drop into the upper teens tonight. The colder readings, along with considerable cloudiness, are expected to continue through Tuesday.

Sunday's high temperature managed to climb only four degrees above freezing, as another in a series of upper level disturbances began pushing southeastward

China's Teng Arrives For Talks, U.S. Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping, the driving force in China's outward reach to the West, arrived in Washington Sunday for talks with President Carter and a coast-to-coast tour that will draw the world's most advanced nation and its most populous nation closer together.

Teng's silver and gray Boeing 707 jet touched down at Andrews Air Force Base outside the nation's capital at 2:30 p.m. CST, more than an hour behind schedule, apparently because of fog in Shanghai. New fallen snow blanketed the countryside. The sky was leaden, but the snow stopped shortly before Teng arrived.

First To Visit

The Chinese vice premier, the first of Peking's Communist leaders to make a state visit to this country, was welcomed by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and a delegation from Congress. They stood in 38-degree weather on a tarmac plowed clear of snow for the arrival.

After the welcoming, Teng stepped into a black limousine with U.S. and Chinese flags decorating its front fenders. It was followed by a half dozen security cars carrying Secret Service agents and

Troops, Rioters Clash In Tehran

Street War Kills At Least 27

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops firing machine guns and anti-government rioters armed with firebombs turned central Tehran into a bloody, flaming battlefield Sunday in the city's worst violence in months. At least 27 persons were reported killed and more than 300 wounded.

The street warfare exploded as Iran's political crisis reached a new and dangerous impasse.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, spiritual leader of the anti-shah movement, rejected a proposal by Iran's Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar for a meeting at Khomeini's exile headquarters in France.

Bakhtiar Resignation Demanded
The Moslem holy man demanded that the prime minister resign to prove he is "on the side of the angels" and not of the shah.

But official French sources said Bakhtiar would travel to Paris this morning anyway, and this led to speculation that the prime minister, under increasing pressure from Khomeini's legions of militant supporters here, might be going to Paris to resign.

A French weekly, Journal de Dimanche, reported Sunday there may be a deal afoot for Bakhtiar to step down and then be reappointed prime minister. This would circumvent a key Khomeini objection to Bakhtiar's government — that it is "illegal" because it was appointed by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

In the Tehran violence, one of the reported dead was a soldier said to have shot himself after assassinating his colonel. Major rioting also broke out in the northern city of Rasht on Sunday.

Tension, Violence Mounts
The tension and violence here had been mounting for days as the Bakhtiar government continued to block Khomeini's plans to return to Iran and transform the country into an Islamic republic.

Thousands of pro-Khomeini protesters flooded Tehran streets Sunday chanting "Death to Bakhtiar!" and one large group tried to storm a police headquarters, flinging gasoline-filled bottles against the building.

Troops rushed to the scene and opened fire with 30-caliber machine guns mounted on the backs of trucks. Military officials later said the rioters were armed with machine guns and grenades, but reporters who witnessed the grisly three-hour battle said they saw none.

Associated Press correspondent Thomas Kent, reported from Esfand Square, site of the battle, that screaming rioters dived for cover as bullets slammed into walls above their heads. Some were hit by ricochets. Ambulances raced back and forth through the area.

Snipers opened up with pistols from rooftops. Their identities were unclear but at one point they were firing at demonstrators.

AP correspondent Robert Reid reported seeing five demonstrators hit by bullets in the Esfand area. Each time one was shot, the cry of "Death to Bakhtiar!" rose from his comrades, cowering in doorways.

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MURDER CHARGES filed Saturday may clear a two-year-old city murder and a 10-month-old county homicide, lowering to nine the number of unsolved homicides now facing local law officers.

Gary Lynn Vester, 20, of 601 Quirt Ave. remained in Lubbock County Jail Sunday night, after being denied bond on the charge of capital murder in connection with the April 1, 1978, shooting death of Robert Rios Rivera.

Vester also was charged with the aggravated rape of Rivera's 22-year-old female companion in that same incident. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy set a $100,000 bond on the rape charge.

Vester was arrested Thursday by sheriff's deputies and booked into the county jail on suspicion of public intoxication.

Early Saturday, however, deputies and investigators from Criminal District Attorney John Montford's office were able to gather enough evidence against Vester in connection with last year's murder to warrant the filing of charges.

The rape victim told deputies she and 29-year-old Rivera were "parking" just east of the city in a field off 19th Street when two black men carrying handguns overpowered the couple about 2 a.m. The two men, who had been hiding in nearby bushes, ordered Rivera and the woman to drive about a quarter of a mile east of where they had been parked.

There, Rivera was shot twice in the mouth with a .38-caliber revolver and the woman was raped. After debating whether also to kill the woman, the two men let her go and then drove off in Rivera's 1974 Dodge sedan.

The woman ran east from the scene across the freshly plowed field to a residence where she called for help.

Rivera's car was found later that day approximately two miles southeast of where the murder had occurred and was impounded by deputies for further processing.

Deputies said that in addition to stealing Rivera's vehicle, the suspects also took money during the incident, making the homicide a capital murder under Texas law.

Officials said Sunday that "various items from the scene" also have been recovered.

An investigator added that an "addi-

South Plains 1978 Weather Cost Millions

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LAST YEAR'S weather conditions were some of the worst experienced recently by South Plains residents, and area officials now predict that damage from the weather to area crops, roads and recreational areas will cost taxpayers millions of dollars.

Scorching summer temperatures and drought conditions, followed by heavy rains and temperatures which plummeted to new lows during the winter, means tax money will be needed this year to repair ruined road surfaces, provide relief for wiped-out farmers and repair or replace damaged vegetation in area parks.

Damage to road surfaces was the worst highway officials have seen in years because of temperatures which fluctuated from, for example, two degrees below zero on Feb. 18 to 73 degrees on Feb. 28.

Highways Hard Hit

"This is as severe a winter as we've had concerning freeze damage to highways, that I know of," said James King, district administrative engineer with the Texas Highway Department.

The widely varying temperatures caused "deeper and more severe damage to road surfaces" than usual, King said. "We're applying through the Austin (highway department) office for additional freeze damage funds."

King reported that $11 million will be needed to put highways in Lubbock's 17-county district back into "desired condition," and that will require both rebuilding and resurfacing.

Repair Estimates Fluctuate

Repairs needed to put Loop 289 into good condition will cost more than $3 million alone, according to the engineer.

To simply patch potholes and do some leveling, however, would drop the cost to less than $2 million in the district, King said.

The department poured 400 tons of salt on Lubbock area highways and used 33,859 overtime hours for workers to treat highways for safer travel during

Peking Officials Give Nixon, Taiwan Answers

(EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Special Correspondent John Roderick spent the past month in Peking covering normalization of relations between the United States and China. He has joined AP reporters in Washington to write about Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's visit.)

By JOHN RODERICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chinese are fully aware that their attitudes on Richard Nixon and Taiwan — the major irritants marring Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's historic visit — aren't popular with some Americans. But the Chinese insist principle is involved.
The subjects of Nixon and Taiwan came up a few days ago in conversations with informed and articulate members of the Communist Party in Peking.
"Why," they were asked, "does Teng wish to meet with Nixon when he must know how many Americans, particularly liberal Democrats, regard him? And why is it so difficult for China to make a public commitment not to use force in its various efforts to acquire Taiwan?"

The questions quite obviously had been expected. And the replies were given not so much defiantly as reasonably. The mood was that of someone trying to explain away differences which need not separate friends.

"Mr. Nixon," responded one of the party members, "played a very important part in bringing about the normalization of U.S.-China relations. He came to China in 1972 at great political risk and he signed, with the late premier Chou En-lai, the Shanghai communique on which normalization was built."

"For these things we regard him as a friend, regardless of what else he may have done. With us, friendship is important. It is a question of principle. Once a friend, always a friend."

Nixon has been invited to attend the state dinner Monday night at the White House for the 74-year-old Teng, the first high-ranking Chinese to come to the United States on an official visit. President Carter, criticized for inviting Nixon, calls it proper because the former president played a major part in the normalization process.

"We see your point," said the questioner to the party officials in Peking. "But why does Mr. Teng go out of his way to embarrass his American friends? How would he feel if the United States invited the Gang of Four to visit the White House?"

"The Gang of Four consists of the late Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, and three Politburo associates currently blamed for most of China's ills. Foes of Teng, they have been under arrest since October 1976."

"Ah, but that is different," came the reply. "The gang did not help bring about better Sino-American relations. In fact, they did all they could to hamper them."

"If it makes China critics in the United States feel any better, they can take some comfort from the fact that they are not alone on the subject of unpopular former government leaders smiled on by the Chinese."

On his otherwise highly successful visit to Japan last October, Teng ruffled quite a few Japanese feathers by calling on former Premier Kakuei Tanaka at his private residence.

Like Nixon, Tanaka figured prominently in his country's establishment of diplomatic ties with Peking. He followed Nixon to China by eight months in 1972 and brought about normalization in a single stroke.

If anything, the situation in Japan was worse as far as Tanaka goes than it is here with Nixon. Tanaka had to resign because of questions about the source of his private fortune, and he is now being tried on charges of involvement in the Lockheed bribery scandal.

The Taiwan problem is more complicated.

In the 1950s, the United States began trying to get Peking to say it will not use force against the Nationalist-held island. The refusal to do so seemed to successive U.S. administrations an over-riding obstacle to closer ties with the mainland.

Yet, the 1971 era of "ping pong diplomacy," and the Nixon visit which followed, were accomplished without such a declaration, much to the discomfiture of professional China watchers who had said rapprochement could not take place without it.

Now, full diplomatic relations have been established in the absence of such a commitment.

Why? Principle, say the Chinese. To promise not to use military means to resolve the Taiwan question would abdicate Peking's claim to sovereignty over the island, the 30th Chinese province.

"We will use all peaceful means, but we have to reserve the ultimate right to use force," the Chinese party members said in Peking.

Nixon To Attend Chinese Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, who went from the presidency to China to political exile by the Pacific, will go to the White House to be in disgrace 4 1/2 years ago for dinner with Teng Hsiao-ping and President Carter.
Nixon, whose Washington visit beginning Sunday was to be highlighted by the state dinner Monday evening, was invited to the executive mansion by the president. It will be Nixon's first visit to the White House since he resigned in August 1974 because of Watergate.

Nixon announced no plans to meet with any former aides, but one source said the former president might see Rosemary Woods, who was his White House secretary. The source, who is close to Nixon but who requested anonymity, said the former president also might meet privately with members of the Chinese delegation.

"The Chinese really respect the guy and his view of foreign affairs," said the source.

A Nixon aide, Jack Brennan, has been in Washington since last week arranging the former president's visit, but no specific plans were announced for any meeting with Vice Premier Teng or with any of the officials accompanying him.

Carter said last week he has no plans to meet privately with Nixon. The president said he considers Nixon's visit purely social.

"We will provide him with appropriate briefings on what has been done in our negotiations with the people of China," Carter said. "I think as far as I'm concerned it will be purely social. I don't have any plans now to meet with him in an extended private way to discuss these issues."

Carter said Nixon has been helpful in giving information "when asked about some of the historic inter-relationships he experienced with the Chinese."

Nixon's historic visit to Peking in 1972 ended 22 years of estrangement between the United States and China. On Jan. 1, Carter built on that initiative by establishing full diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China.

Nixon has never met Teng, who at the time of Nixon's visit to China had been purged from the government by the Mao Tse-tung regime. While in China, Nixon met with Chairman Mao and Premier Chou En-lai.

Nixon's wife, Pat, who suffered a stroke in 1976 which left her partially paralyzed, will remain in California.

During his visit to the east coast, Nixon is expected to go to New York to see his daughter, Tricia, and her husband Edward Cox.

Nixon was expected to return to his home in San Clemente, Calif., before the end of the week.

China Faces Immense Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA has issued a report predicting China will be able to carry out its dramatic modernization program despite formidable problems.

Issued shortly before Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's arrival in the United States, the unclassified analysis said, "Peking seems capable of resolving its difficulties in ways that will allow satisfactory gains in consumption and at the same time permit investment and industrial growth."

The report, by CIA's National Foreign Assessment Center, said, however, that the problems facing Teng and the post Mao leadership are immense:

—Worker unrest. "Peking not only has to face up to the problems of lost purchasing power and wage reform, but it must also convince the worker that this government is fair and can be trusted. It must come up with a package of wage increases and bonuses and ensure the availability of goods at prices that leave the worker with real gains."

—Management. It is unlikely the political and technical leadership will be able to solve management problems quickly and efficiently and without making serious mistakes that will hamper programs.

—Shortage of resources. As agriculture becomes increasingly mechanized, it will be necessary to increase petroleum consumption to meet new goals. Demand is outstripping the oil output, meaning shortages will occur that could cripple parts of the economy.

—Mechanical. These problems include "poor machine quality, lack of standardization and a limited range of equipment," in such areas as farm machinery.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service expects precipitation for much of the central part of the United States with clear skies expected elsewhere. Rain is forecast along the Gulf of Mexico stretching to southern Oklahoma where precipitation will change to snow, expected to fall north to Wyoming and South Dakota and west to Utah. Latest Chapter In U.S.-China Love-Hate Relations Unfolding

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

In 1788 Benjamin Franklin told Americans that if they wanted to be great they should "introduce the industry of the Chinese, their arts of living." It was the beginning of a fascination with China that is as old as America itself.

For 200 years the pendulum of Chinese-American relations has swung between love and hate. The visit of Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and the events that led to it are only the latest chapter in a long and troubled relationship.

Since the days of ancient Rome, the West has dreamed of China as a distant, fabled land of immense wealth and power. When Columbus discovered America, he was searching for a sea route to the Orient.

America has always dreamed of trading with China, seeing its vast population as a bottomless market. Sailing ships took 18 months to sail to China to trade cloth and oil for silk, spices and tea. The first trans-American railroad was hailed as the "passage to China."

American governments have fully shared this interest, viewing China as a strategically vital area. In 1852, the U.S. Senate was told, "Who does not see, then, that the Pacific Ocean — and the vast regions beyond, will become the vast theater of events in the world's hereafter."

The United States avidly competed with the European powers in the great race for China's wealth at the end of the last century. To assure its own interest, America authored the "Open Door Policy," under which the Western powers divided China into separate zones of political and economic influence. When the Chinese resisted these intrusions, American troops helped crush their opposition.

A proud people who regarded all foreigners as barbarians, the Chinese hated the "pink devils." Chinese police kept a register of foreign merchants, listing each as a "barbarian." One entry: "the barbarian just residing in the American devil factory."

This hatred was mirrored in America where politicians and newspapers warned of the heathen "Yellow Peril." It was America's God-given mission, they thundered, to subdue the teeming hordes of China.

Thousands of Chinese laborers brought to America to build railroads were met with a storm of hatred in which lynch mobs ran wild. A New York newspaper lambasted the "moon-eyed menace" for "disgusting habits of thrift, industry and self-denial."

Writer Bret Harte caught the mood of terror when he wrote of the death of one Chinese: "Dead my reverend friends, dead, stoned to death in the streets of San Francisco, in the year of grace 1869 by a mob of ... Christian schoolchildren."

By the end of the 19th century, the Chinese had learned at home and abroad that only through modernization could they be masters of their own country.

As Americans watched the Chinese struggle to modernize and reform, they were reminded of their own history and many began to believe China's immense problems could be solved with their help and ideals.

The large American community in China was heavily composed of advisers, teachers and missionaries. Between the world wars, America adopted China as its ward, or as one historian put it — "our favorite charity."

Americans were fascinated with China and writers such as Pearl Buck commanded huge audiences with accounts of Chinese life.

In this new climate, Chinese students flocked to America where they were deeply influenced by America's tradition of liberty and individual rights. Many of them later became prominent leaders who continued to look to the United States for aid and inspiration.

When in 1931, China was invaded by Japan, America aided the Chinese. Ten years later America itself was dragged into World War II, in part by that conflict.

As the war ended, America believed a new China was emerging and began to prepare the Chinese to become a great power. But the United States had little idea of what was actually happening in China.

Beguiled with its role as proud parent, America was stunned when the U.S.-supported regime of Chiang Kai Shek fell to Mao Tse-tung's communists. To Americans, who saw themselves locked in a death-struggle with communism, the Chinese had betrayed them.

Richard Nixon, then a California congressman, gloomily announced, "In 1944 ... the odds were 9-to-1 in our favor. Today ... the odds are 5-to-3 against us."

China once again saw America as a foreign oppressor, while the United States prepared again to contain the "Yellow Peril." In 1950 the two nations plunged into what the Chinese called the "Resist America, Aid Korea" war.

The bloody stalemate over Korea was followed by a 20-year-long Cold War, until a common apprehension over Russia brought them back together.

After several years of cautious maneuvering China and America have suddenly rediscovered their old fascination with each other.

American businessmen are again talking of China's unlimited markets; China is more important than ever in American strategic planning; thousands of Americans are visiting China.

In China, America is viewed as a possible friend who can help in the massive task of modernization; Chinese students are enrolling in American colleges; and in impromptu debates on the streets of Peking, America is once again being discussed as a model of democracy and liberalism.

Luke 9:25-34, The Living Bible

25 And what profit is there in gaining the whole world when it means forfeiting one's self?

26 When I, the Man of Glory, come in my glory and in the glory of the Father and the holy angels — I will be ashamed then of all who are ashamed of Me and My words now.

27 But this is the simple truth — some of these men standing here right now will not die until they have seen the Kingdom of God!

28 Eight days later He took Peter, James and John with Him into the hills to pray.

29 And as He was praying, His face began to shine, and His clothes became dazzling white and blazed with light.

30 Then two men appeared and began talking with Him — Moses and Elijah!

31 They were splendid in appearance, glorious to see; and they were speaking of His death at Jerusalem, to be carried out in accordance with God's plan.

32 Peter and the others had been very drowsy and had fallen asleep. Now they woke up and saw Jesus covered with brightness and glory, and the two men standing with Him.

33 As Moses and Elijah were starting to leave, Peter, all confused and not even knowing what he was saying, blurted out, "Master, this is wonderful! We'll put up three shelters — one for You and one for Moses and one for Elijah!"

34 But even as he was saying this, a bright cloud formed above them; and terror gripped them as it covered them.

Pontiff Decries Priests' Involvement In Politics

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Pope John Paul II, cheered by millions as his car inched its way to Puebla, told Latin American bishops in a major address

Sunday that social justice must be sought spiritually and not politically. The pope encountered opposition as a group of rebel priests, demanding that the Roman Catholic Church take a more active role against oppression, organized a "dissidents' conference."

They said it would discuss human rights and social reforms, which they claimed would be ignored by the bishops' meeting. The third Latin American bishops' conference is expected to determine the church's future role in the social and political life of turbulent Latin America.

The Polish-born pontiff cautioned the bishops against depicting Christ as a political figure involved in class struggle. "The idea of Christ as a political figure does not tally with the Church's catechesis," John Paul said in the speech believed to be his most important statement since his election Oct. 16.

The 58-year-old pontiff spoke out against violence to achieve social change, but said church leaders should continue to fight for more equal distribution of wealth and for human rights.

Police in helicopters flying over the pope's motorcade as it drove to Puebla 75 miles southeast of Mexico City, said 10 million people gathered along the route. The surging crowds filled three lanes of the four-lane valley highway, causing a delay in the pope's schedule.

Church bells pealed a deafening cadence as the pope's motorcade reached the entrance of this city of one million, a bastion of Catholicism in an officially anti-clerical nation.

Bonfires dotted the edges of the highway, where thousands had camped overnight for a vantage spot.

Puebla was in a festive mood for the pope's arrival. Young people trotted through the city with torches, shouting "Viva el Papa!" Some slept in the streets to make certain they would be able to view the pope's motorcade.

Banners hung throughout the city. "Down with the Fascists, a leftist church is our only salvation," read one. Others said, "Revive spiritual values" and "Long live the Holy Church."

John Paul told the 250 bishops that the church should serve as "the voice of human conscience."

"Whatever the miseries or suffering that afflict man, it is not through violence, the interplay of power and political systems, but through the truth concerning man that he journeys toward a better future," he said.

The pope expressed the church's opposition to "campaigns in favor of divorce, of the use of contraceptive practices and of abortion which destroys society."

He also said the bishops should encourage men to become priests to meet a growing drain of clergy leaving the church to marry or in disagreement with church policies, and urged pastors to be closer to the young people in Latin America, where a majority of the population is under 30.

One of the rebels, the Rev. Heraclio Perez Garcia who is a priest in Puebla, told reporters Sunday, "We are not in agreement with the Puebla conference. We believe we shouldn't be satisfied with just prayer. We also believe we have the right to express our opinions."

He did not say how many priests and laymen would take part in the dissidents' meetings in the Sacred Heart church, which are to be held nightly through Feb. 11. The bishops' conference will last 17 days.

A sign in the Sacred Heart church in Puebla's Parral district read, "Puebla for the People! Support Latin American Struggles!"

The Rev. Ernesto Cabezas, a member of the bishops' conference security body, said he had ordered that the rebel meetings not be held. Ideas expressed by the dissidents will have no weight, he said, because the meetings were banned by the archbishop.

John Paul, in an address Saturday, warned the Catholic clergy against becoming too involved in temporal affairs, and urged the Roman Catholic clergy Saturday to be "spiritual guides" rather than "social leaders."

The pope told the gathering of priests and members of religious orders Saturday, "You are spiritual guides who try to orient and improve the hearts of the faithful. You are not social leaders, political leaders or employees of temporal power."

The pope said it was up to laymen to improve temporal matters, using a Christian approach.

He stressed a return to a more evangelical role in lands where the number of priests and nuns has been decreasing in the past decade and many have become militantly involved in demands for greater social justice and human rights.

More than 300 million of the world's 750 million Roman Catholics live in Latin America.

Prelate, Pope On Good Terms

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre said his relations with Pope John Paul II are much better than they were with the late Paul VI, but the Roman Curia is still biased against him.

"Nothing has changed in the Curia. These people are still biased against me. But with the pope, the situation has clearly improved," Lefebvre said in an interview with the Swiss telegraph agency.

The archbishop is the leader of a worldwide conservative movement within the church that has rejected reforms stemming from the Second Vatican Council of the early 1960s, including some modern ways of celebrating Mass. In July 1976, Paul VI suspended him from performing his priestly functions after the archbishop continued to ordain priests at his traditionalist seminary.

The dispute has brought the church to the brink of schism despite efforts by conservative members of the Curia, the Vatican's central administration, to soften Lefebvre's position.

The interview was published Sunday, one day after the archbishop left Switzerland for Rome to resume his meetings with Vatican officials, which began in November.

Lefebvre told the agency that John Paul "told me he approved my formulations with respect to the Vatican Council. This means he approves ... that I agree with the council's acts in so far as they conform with (church) tradition."

But Lefebvre said the Curia is still led by "persons who do not seek the welfare of the church, and some of them are so liberal they simply cannot stand traditionalists."

He also told the agency he was not afraid of excommunication, once threatened by Paul VI, because "the Holy Father well knows I am as much a faithful Catholic as he."

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B, this will be used for Step 2.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental group charged Saturday that the oil industry "scored a partial victory ... at citizens' expense" when the government agreed to increase by 50 percent the allowable levels of smog in U.S. cities. "Scientific evidence shows that the new level of smog permitted will increase our vulnerability to infectious respiratory ailments," Environmental Action said.

Watching Teng On His Hand

BY ALL ADVANCE accounts, Red China Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping will charm the pants off Americans during his eight-day visit here to promote U.S. aid and trade under the newly "normalized" relations between the two countries.

Described as a pragmatic, blunt and humorous man with a crowd-pleasing flair, Teng may give us some insight into how Peking got everything it wanted from the Carter administration without giving anything in return.

He was to be wined and dined at the White House today before going on a political-type tour that will take him to such points as Atlanta and Houston.

The President has invited former President Richard Nixon, whose 1972 trip to Red China began the thaw in the generation-old cold war between the two countries, to the White House to help toast the vice premier.

DEMONSTRATIONS against Teng are expected, primarily because Carter capitulated to Peking's demands that he sever diplomatic relations with Nationalist China and break a mutual defense pact with Taiwan as the price for friendly relations with mainland China.

Even his mildest critics think Carter should at least have gotten a promise from Red China not to use force against Taiwan.

AN EDITORIAL:

Run In Debt Now, Pay Later

TEXAS SEN. John Tower is among 15 of the 35 U.S. senators elected last fall who are deeply in hock and, in most cases, personally liable for the debts incurred by their campaigns, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Indeed," said The Times, "what might be called the 'run now, pay later' style of campaigning seems to be spreading. In last fall's election, more senators went into debt—and their deficits were larger—than in 1976," according to FEC records.

Federal campaign laws do not specifically force candidates to assume liability for their debts. But that is their practical effect.

Practical political considerations usually make candidates personally responsible for adjunct campaign debts such as bills for media production, office supplies, polling services and other campaign essentials.

THE CANDIDATE assumes the debt personally, planning to pay it off after the election, when fund-raising can be done at a more relaxed pace.

Federal law provides elaborate mechanisms to ensure that citizens can find out the identity of campaign contributors before voting. But campaign debts defeat this purpose, since senators do not disclose until after the election the identity of major contributors who donate money to repay the debt—simply because the money is not actually raised until after the voting.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Mozart Refused To Bend And Died A Broken Man

NEW YORK'S great Metropolitan Opera will this spring again play Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Die Zauberflöte"—"The Magic Flute." It is another tribute to the great Mozart.

He was the son of fine composer Leopold Mozart and was born in Salzburg Jan. 27, 1756. The house faces the lovely, bubbling Salzach River, endowed with ducks and swans.

Mozart was born on the third floor and you can still wander through the house, a five-story dwelling, the windows gracefully arranged and massive beams that create everywhere the scent of aged wood.

He was an infant prodigy. The child could read and write musical notations before he could read the alphabet. And at three he played the harpsichord competently.

SO WAS RICHARD Strauss an infant prodigy, his parents beginning his musical education at four. At 12 his school performed Strauss' "Festiva-March" and, later, it was published. At 18, he was a fully recognized composer and conductor.

At five, Mozart began to compose. Soon he became proficient on the violin. Later Mozart concentrated on the piano, his father taking the boy and his sister on European tours. The boy continued to compose while traveling.

Mozart was shorter than average and was sensitive about this.

He had a frail build, his hair was blond and he had a smile like a shaft of Christmas-afternoon sunshine. His hands were small, but amazingly flexible. Mozart loved billiards and he was skillful at it, claiming billiards kept his fingers nimble.

MANY COMPOSERS write correctly, but to have heart, ah, that is different. From the beginning Mozart had it. But, like some other artistic geniuses, Mozart really was two men.

He was a human being full of affection, genuinely embraceable and, at the same time, a master fanatically critical of his craft. In rehearsal, Arturo Toscanini made his orchestra play a single

He failed in that, however.

Vice Premier Teng, who says everybody knows Peking has two hands—one of peace and one of force—has gone no further than to say his government "intends to pursue the hand of peace."

His visit to this country is designed to—pardon the expression—capitalize on the new era of trade with us.

THE UNITED STATES in the long run could gain substantially from having mainland China as a friend, as the two countries were before the Communists seized power after World War II.

However, China at this point has much more to gain than does the U.S. from trade agreements. Its people have little money for buying U.S. goods, but could undersell American manufacturers for the U.S. market.

Also, U.S. capital is needed to help modernize China and, especially, to help it develop its vast oil reserves. Thus, whether the U.S. ultimately benefits from the normalized relationship or merely helps China develop a capability for waging war against us depends largely on the domestic politics of China.

Vice Premier Teng will be smiling and showing us the "hand of peace"—but the "hand of force" won't be forgotten by him or, if we are smart, by us.

THE TIMES listed Tower's post-campaign indebtedness at $36,571—left over from a multimillion re-election bid.

While such debts are completely legal, they clearly violate the spirit and intent of two of the past decades' most important reforms aimed at restoring public confidence in Congress, i.e., a prohibition against members of Congress receiving large gifts or contributions for their personal benefit, and a requirement that the identity of all major contributors be disclosed prior to election.

Fund raising, admittedly, is a political fact of life. But there are plenty of special interest groups with an interest in legislation before the senate. And there is nothing, legally, to prevent them from doing their patriotic best to participate in the American electoral system—even after the elections are long over.

passage again and again until he found the right sounds and went back at them in search of perfection. That was Mozart.

CLAUDIO MONTEVERDI of Florence developed in the 16th century his recitative, the acorn from which all operas grew. Mozart turned to opera.

"Idomeneo" was the first of his mature operas. It was written in 1781 and performed in Munich. But "Idomeneo" was only the first of others. We inherit to our joy "The Magic Flute," "Don Giovanni" and "Figaro." Audiences love them.

Despite Mozart's opera successes, he fell increasingly into debt, a 1789 concert tour doing little to improve his position. And, impaired by an indomitable character that would not allow Mozart to bow and scrape, he was caught in Vienna's court politics.

In the spring of 1791 Mozart's health failed. He died in Vienna, Dec. 5, 1791, age 35, absolutely penniless. Bach, Chopin and Schubert all died penniless and so did Mozart.

Providence, in an act of mercy, broke the string.

MOZART IS BURIED in the churchyard of Salzburg's St. Peter Cathedral, the marker giving merely his name.

Only a simple gray granite shaft (which Thomas Jefferson, himself designed) marks Jefferson's hillside grave at his beloved "Monticello," near Charlottesville, Va.

Only a plain white headstone in the Blandon, Oxfordshire, village churchyard marks Sir Winston Churchill's grave.

In Florence's Santa Croce church yard just a small marker identifies Michelangelo's burial place. Such tiny monuments for such consequential men. History needs more?

Usually the centuries sit down before the portrait of a great man and finish it by dint of long successive labors. But in the case of Mozart, the human race refused to wait.

The Friendship Toast

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Carter's Ace In Hole

WASHINGTON—The difference between labor leader Jerry Wurf haranguing his own union members and facing President Carter just two days later suggests reports of an anti-Carter revolt on labor's left are greatly exaggerated.

Wurf, president of the nation's largest public employees' union (AFSCME), spared no rhetoric Jan. 10 in flogging the same President he had supported early on the road to the White House.

At a nationwide meeting of AFSCME officials,

Effetes Of Clay

WASHINGTON—Chatting with one of his ex-officio advisers from Georgia the other day, President Carter grinned when his visitor mentioned that Gov. Jerry Brown of California had come out in favor of a constitutional amendment mandating a balanced federal budget.

"Well, if it passes I'll take appropriate action," Carter said. "And one of the first things I'll have to do is cut off federal aid to states and cities."

Both men guffawed, and well they might. For Jerry Brown and other political advocates of the amendment apparently have given little if any thought to what a mandatory balanced federal budget would mean to their neighborhoods.

Almost $85 billion will go to states and local communities in the coming fiscal year. That's about 29 percent of their total revenues, a figure that should not be confused with hay.

ONE WONDER how Brown, or some future governor of California, would make do without Uncle Santa's annual largesse to that state, which in 1976 amounted to a whopping $7 billion.

Brown, himself, of course, always has had a hot comment when somebody in Washington suggested a reduction in revenue sharing. To this particular would-be President, revenue sharing is "a solemn commitment" that must be fulfilled.

Alas, politics makes strange economists. Candidates for President, state legislators and members of Congress have their ears ever cocked for what the people seem to be thinking, and these days the people are thinking economy in government.

So the vote-seekers do their best to out-economize the voters. And Big Brother in Washington is a handy and politically safe whipping boy.

MAY MY typewriter be confiscated if I ever say a kind word about the big spenders in Washington, but I demand specifics from the alleged problem solvers.

Sure, balance the federal budget. But I want the Jerry Browns to tell me, in chapter and verse, with the 's' dotted and the 't' crossed, how they're going to do it.

The answer, when you can get one out of these economists, boils down to the sly solution: Cut the other guy's share of the loot. In other words, don't bug them for details on account of they're too busy running for office.

Anyway, I'm not sure Jerry Brown qualifies as a reader of political entrails. He denounced Proposition 13 (which already has cut California property tax revenues by $7 billion) when it first surfaced.

But after the state's voters endorsed the thing, he hastily decided it was the greatest invention since the wheel.

THEN THERE is Ronald Reagan, another candidate for Top Banana. Reagan traveled to Miami Beach and blamed all the country's economic problems on government interference in the free marketplace.

Speaking to the American Farm Bureau's annual convention, he urged his listeners to "get the government off your back." But he carefully avoided a suggestion that Washington reduce the $3 billion in subsidies and loans to those farmers.

Asked at a press conference which government farm aid programs he would stop, Reagan replied—guess what? "I'm not prepared to offer any specifics at this time," he said.

Anybody in favor of abolishing Presidential campaigns and finding us a king?

Wurf contended the Carter budget "will destroy our jobs" without affecting inflation.

He, therefore, promised to express "outrage" at the White House two days later, adding he might "get into a confrontation" with the President.

But the Jan. 12 session between Carter and labor leaders was conciliatory, not confrontational.

Wurf did criticize the restrictive budget policy but in scarcely the robust language used to his union members, and he omitted his complaint that Carter's budget cuts are ineffective against inflation.

This fits the pattern of Carter's relations with liberal unions, such as Wurf's. Comprising the heart of Carter's labor support, they are distressed by his turn to fiscal conservatism and publicly pressure him to change course.

But in the expected absence of a presidential challenge from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, they have no place to go. That is Carter's labor trump, and the White House knows it.

The dilemma is particularly acute for dynamic and hot-tempered Jerry Wurf. Although he has close ties to the White House, his members as public employees are hit first by tightened public pursestrings.

WHAT'S MORE, Wurf faces a possible challenge for the AFSCME presidency in 1980 from the equally dynamic and hot-tempered Victor Gotbaum, the union's New York leader.

Accordingly, when Wurf read the riot act on Carter to AFSCME officials here Jan. 10, an outsider would have prudently concluded a final break with the President.

Asserting that "unions must start facing the truth," Wurf declared: "One of those truths is...what the President is doing to that budget that will destroy our jobs and destroy our ability to get raises and will have no effect upon inflation. The President knows it as well as we do."

Wurf added that the President knows "this terrible infliction of unreasonableness" upon "the have-nots and the public employee" will not improve inflation; "he is playing a public relations game, a political game, and you are the patsies."

"WE CAN GET so enthusiastic about electing a public official...that deep in our gut we're really not disappointed when he screws us after the election is over, he continued. This means we need an arm's-length relationship with the boss that has sometimes been missing."

Therefore, Wurf promised: "I intend to tell the President on Friday that we think what is happening is an outrage."

While declaring "I have no desire" for a confrontation with Carter, Wurf added that "I also intend to let him know in the clearest possible tones that if confrontation is necessary, we are quite prepared for it."

That Friday, however, Carter's confrontation was with Bella Abzug, not Jerry Wurf. Once in the Oval Office, Wurf cooled his rhetoric.

THERE WAS no talk of "outrage" or "confrontation." While asserting his union's vulnerability to budget cuts, he politely asked for better communications and greater sensitivity.

The contrast confirmed feelings within the labor movement that Wurf is a Carter man at heart, a view shared by the President's aides.

Except for Carter-hating William Winpisinger of the machinists' union, there is a consensus among labor's liberals that they are stuck with Carter, for better or worse.

This explains delight at the White House over even more conservative fiscal stands by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Carter's most likely Democratic challenger.

IF WURF'S speech to AFSCME colleagues temporarily assigned Jimmy Carter to purgatory, it permanently sentenced Jerry Brown to the lowest reaches of hell.

Wurf called Brown a "prostitute," contended he "would take a position of Mary Queen of Scots" to be elected President and called him "a man without commitment to anything."

Unless and until Kennedy surprises everybody by running for President, Carter's political operatives can turn the other cheek to public sniping from the President's labor friends.

With Brown as the only alternative, they are confident of nothing more strident than Wurf's muted criticism in the Oval Office on Jan. 12.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

The Soup De Jour

GUESS WHAT'S bothering President Carter now (besides brother Billy's latest)? He's worrying that we might NOT have a recession this spring.

Honest. All this happy talk in the marketplace is hurting his chances for re-election.

And if that seems to make no sense at all, don't fret overmuch. The economic whiz kids have an explanation. (Don't they always?)

Here's how it goes: There's going to be a recession this year. Can't escape it. Period. Everybody agrees on that. What they don't agree on is the size, flavor and color.

It's either going to be mild, a mere inconvenient dip in the economy, or it's going to be a good, old-fashioned capital-D type Depression.

IT'S GOING TO come any day now, if we're lucky. Or it might not hit us until late in the year. That's the bad news.

And here's why:

A little bitty-recession now will burn itself out in less than a year. Folks who chart the ups and downs of the business barometers say your everyday, plain-vanilla recession usually hangs on for about 11 months.

(Take the six we've had since 1945, average them out, and that's what you get.)

But what Carter's worrying about is an end-of-the-year slump. That means the bad times will slop over into 1980, with all their nasty side effects. Like bigger budget deficits, unemployment, bankruptcies, business failures, hungry voters. And Republican sneers.

HE CAN HEAR them now, nipping away in the primaries at his economic know-how (or lack of it), reminding the country that what it needs is a President who's tuned in to conservative spending to lead it back to prosperity, a stalwart who understands the complexities of Big Business, a Republican.

But if Carter can have his little slump now and then bring us out of it by the end of 1979, he can be a hero all through 1980, campaigning as the good guy who saved us from the soup lines.

What's bugging him is that it just doesn't look likely at the moment. Business has too much bounce. No matter how gloomy the forecasts get, it just won't roll over and play depressed.

TO ALMOST everybody's astonishment, the economy grew at the peppy rate of five percent in the past three months. That's almost double its July-through-September speed.

Retail sales, with a pretty good boost from Santa Claus, are up 11 percent over this time last year. And still the customers keep coming.

Home building, which everybody expected to be flat on its back by now, is booming. Even with mortgage and construction costs going through the ceiling.

Unemployment is still around six percent, there are plenty of jobs available, and businesses are hiring as if a recession is something that happens only to the other guy.

IN A RECENT survey, dozens of corporations said they weren't planning any layoffs in anticipation of a slowdown. One out of four employers even expects to hire more workers between now and April.

And if hard times are just around the corner, nobody's told the purchasing agents of big companies about it. Almost 70 percent of them say they're ordering up supplies as usual. Only 19 percent say they believe the recession forecasts.

Most everybody else said business was "good to excellent." That there are so many order backlogs in key industries their factories will be "humming for months."

Buyers, they report happily, are signing up for products faster than they can turn them out.

CORPORATIONS AREN'T going too far out on the expansion limb, though. Plans to increase spending on plants and new equipment add up to only a three-percent increase.

And prices keep going nowhere but up. There's speculation about which will get here first, the early crocus or 11-percent inflation. That's something else Carter doesn't want to find in his Easter basket.

But the scariest part of all is that he doesn't have to if he doesn't want to.

He can bring on a quick (and maybe even a mild) recession merely by slashing federal spending and shutting off the federal money pump for bank reserves.

THAT WOULD TRIGGER a double-dip plus for his second-term chances. For one thing, it would get the bad times over with and give voters a chance to see prosperity ahead by election day.

It would also reduce inflation (no President ever managed that without a recession) and give him the powerful campaign weapon he needs to beat out those Republican naysayers.

So you can probably forget the economists' predictions about what's going to happen to the economy. A tinkering politician can outwit 'em every time.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

SNAKES once were assumed to be stone deaf. But researchers now say their studies indicate rattlesnakes can hear some of the noises made by other rattlesnakes.

These are the same scientists who uphold that notion that the rattling of a rattler is call for help, only one of several theories about why a rattler rattles.

Others think the rattling attracts prey. Commonest explanation, though, is that it is nothing more than a natural warning to those undesirable animals too big to eat.

In Iceland, television shuts down all day every Thursday. And all of the month of July. This lets the TV workers take their weekly day off and their yearly vacation. Owners of TV sets pay an annual license fee of $55. That supports the one-channel state network. Icelanders say they'd rather turn the thing off Thursday and July than pay a bigger license fee to hire more help.

Q. "What's the population of the world at the time of Christ?"

A. That's guesswork. But most of the bright minds who look into such matters figure it was about equal to the population of the United States now or a little more.

Rockefeller's Body Cremated

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The body of former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was cremated Sunday, a family spokesman said, a day before a private memorial service was scheduled at the Rockefeller estate overlooking the Hudson River.

Rockefeller's ashes will be buried today at the family cemetery at the Pocantico Hills, where he and his brothers and sister spent much of their childhood.

Rockefeller, who died Friday night at the age of 70, was cremated in Westchester County, said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. The spokesman declined to be more specific about the site of the cremation.

Hugh Morrow, another family spokesman, said most of the family, including Rockefeller's brother David, had joined Rockefeller's wife, Happy, and his children at Pocantico Hills by Sunday.

David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, was in the Middle Eastern nation of Oman when he received word of Nelson's death less than three hours after it happened, said the first spokesman, and immediately headed for home.

A separate memorial service for family, friends and national and international leaders was scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at the Riverside Church on Manhattan's Upper West Side, which was financed with the help of donations by Rockefeller's father, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said he intends to hold a tribute to Rockefeller at some future date in Albany.

Rockefeller served 15 years as governor of New York and two years as vice president under Gerald R. Ford.

Family spokesman Morrow said that Rockefeller had been working on his art book at his desk at private offices at 13 W. 54th St. when he collapsed.

Morrow said that only a security man and a chauffeur were with Rockefeller when he died. But another family spokesman, George Taylor, said Sunday that Megan Marshak, a researcher who was helping Rockefeller work on a series of art books, was working with Rockefeller when he collapsed.

Cambodian Troops Gain Against Viet Invasion

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Loyalist Cambodian troops fighting guerrilla style on familiar terrain have scored major victories against a Vietnamese invasion force bogged down with supply and transport problems, Thai and Western analysts said Sunday.

The guerrillas have retaken all or part of a seaport and most of a key Cambodian province, and apparently have seized a naval base, the sources said. An unconfirmed broadcast claimed the guerrillas also control the ancient temple of Angkor Wat, symbol of Cambodian nationhood.

"The Vietnamese certainly have the upper hand, but there is no question that they are in trouble," according to one European analyst closely following the Cambodian war, now entering its sixth week.

The sources said the invasion force, believed to number about 100,000 men, seems to have lost its initial offensive thrust, which took it 300 miles deep into Cambodia within a few weeks. The Vietnamese are having trouble moving their modern weaponry along highways whose bridges have been destroyed and where ambushes can be easily staged, they said.

The guerrillas, loyal to the ousted government of Premier Pol Pot, blew up bridges on major routes out of the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh as they retreated into the countryside, the sources said.

They said the Cambodians had seized most of Takeo Province, situated between Phnom Penh and Vietnam's southern Mekong Delta region, and the Vietnamese were having trouble moving their 4th Division up for a counter-attack.

Loyalist forces recently won back all or part of the Gulf of Thailand port of Kampong Som, the sources said. They said the Ream naval base, south of Kampong Som, appeared to be in the hands of the guerrillas.

The fighting is still intense in these areas, the analysts said, but it has been reduced to skirmishes and quick guerrilla hit-and-run strikes in others.

Some recent claims by the Pol Pot radio are believed to be exaggerated. The radio, broadcasting out of China, claimed Sunday that the Pol Pot troops had encircled six major provincial capitals, were killing Vietnamese defenders trying to break out and had recaptured some of the celebrated temples of Angkor, including Angkor Wat and the old city of Angkor Thom. These reports could not be confirmed.

The radio, the Voice of Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia), reported fighting at Kompong Speu on Highway 4 at Phnom Penh's western approaches.

The radio of the National United Front for National Salvation, the rebel Cambodian group put in power by Hanoi, continues to insist that life in Cambodia is gradually returning to normal after a four-year reign of terror by Pol Pot's radical government, allegedly responsible for the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Cambodians.

The new government's Voice of the Kampuchean People radio said representatives from the country's 19 provinces met in Phnom Penh over the weekend. Details were not given.

Despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary, Vietnam refuses to acknowledge its army carried out the Cambodian invasion, crediting the victories to troops of the rebel front.

Hanoi celebrated the Cambodian triumphs this weekend as part of its Lunar New Year — Tet — festivities. A special Tet poem described the three nations of Indochina — Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos — as a "three-man team." An Indochinese federation under Hanoi's guidance was a dream of the late Ho Chi Minh, father of Vietnamese communism.

In another development, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda asserted Sunday that a series of Chinese-provoked shooting incidents on China's border with Vietnam "evokes serious concern and indignation."

Tensions along the Vietnam-China border have heightened in recent weeks as Soviet-backed Hanoi pressed its war against the Pol Pot government, which is allied with China. The Vietnamese-Cambodian struggle mirrors the big-power animosity between Moscow and Peking.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I'm a widow with a problem. The broker handling the stocks I inherited keeps hinting that I should tip him when I make money on a stock. Is this customary? My husband never did. And it's the same broker, with a big brokerage firm.

A. No, it is not "customary." It's against all the rules. The New York Stock Exchange's "registered representatives and officers' agreement," which that broker had to sign before he took his job, among other things, prohibits taking "any gratuities."

Also, even hinting that "kickbacks" (I can't think of a more descriptive word) are in order is a clear violation of the stock exchange's rules on "good business practices."

You say hints are dropped when you "make money on a stock." I have to take that to mean when you sold stock at a higher price than you or your late husband paid for it. That means the broker has already made money on your account.

When you sell or buy stock, you pay a commission. The person you deal with — whether he or she is called a "broker," a "registered representative," an "account executive" or anything else — gets paid out of your dollars. You have already "paid" that broker. Tips are not only unnecessary and out of line but dead wrong.

My advice is to take your business elsewhere, away from that broker and his firm. Find a broker who isn't looking for under-the-table payments and who doesn't try to talk you into fast, furious and — usually — unprofitable buying and selling.

Q. I would like to obtain a 10-K of a certain company. I understand that it is on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission. How can I get a copy? Is there any charge?

A. So that all readers know what we're talking about, let's explain that a "10-K" is a detailed report which every company with more than 500 stockholders is required to file with the SEC within 90 days after the end of the company's fiscal year. And 10-Ks contain much more information than the often self-serving annual reports corporations mail to stockholders. Each company is also required, by the SEC, to send a copy of its 10-K to any stockholder who requests one. Many companies will also send 10-Ks to non-stockholders who ask for them.

You can get a copy of any company's 10-K by writing to the SEC at 500 N. Capital St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20549. The charge is 10 cents a page.

Q. Since April 14, 1971, I have invested a total of $14,682.99 in a mutual fund. Although the yield has not been too high, I have not been disappointed with this fund. At the present time, I do not need income.

The gentleman who handles my account thinks I should cash in, taking a

Men Playing Hard To Get - They Have To

MUNCY, Pa. (AP) — For 193 women prisoners, the presence of 19 men at the State Correctional Institution here creates a temptation as old as the Garden of Eden.

"It's like putting candy in front of a baby, then saying he can't have it," says inmate Trace Zombro.

"The staff was not too happy when men were first brought here," said Priscilla Frey, administrative assistant to the prison superintendent. "They thought the men would instigate problems. But it is the women who coax the men."

For the men, going to Muncy, a minimum security prison that looks like a college campus, is an "easy way to pull time."

But they are very careful about breaking the institution's rule against sex, because errant male prisoners are sent immediately to an all-male maximum security prison. Women who break the no-sex rule get 30 days in solitary confinement.

Pennsylvania is one of about a dozen states, along with the Federal Bureau of Prisons, experimenting with coed corrections programs.

At Muncy men and women eat together in the dining hall, attend movies, work and walk together. But the women's and men's living quarters are off limits to the opposite sex.

loss of around $350, and put the money in an insurance company annuity. What do you think?

A. I think that guy is no gentleman. He's a commission-hungry salesman, who got the lion's share of the 8 1/2 percent charge you paid on every dollar you put into the mutual fund and who is now trying for the really fat fee he would pocket by selling you that annuity.

The mutual fund you named in your letter has not been a world-beater. Few mutual funds have been since 1971, while stock prices didn't do well. But it has done reasonably well. You have no reason to be disappointed.

My advice is to keep what you have and steer clear of that (?) gentleman.

Q. Why is it that stockholders can vote at a company's annual meeting and bondholders can't?

A. Because stockholders are the owners of the company. Bondholders are creditors, not owners.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Author Says CIA Lied About Mind-Control Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is evidence that CIA mind-control research continued into the 1970s even though agency officials indicate most of it ended in 1963, says the author of a new book.

John Marks says that in response to a Freedom of Information Act request aimed at specific behavioral research topics, the CIA informed him it has identified 130 boxes of papers expected to contain related documents.

"I was astounded by the amount of this undisclosed material," Marks said. Marks is a former State Department intelligence officer. "The agency says it is reviewing the material, and I expect it to be released within six months."

Marks says CIA Director Stansfield Turner left the public with the impression that any general mind-control program ended in 1963 with the conclusion of a project called "MK-ULTRA." CIA officials have acknowledged that a more limited drug program using volunteers, called "MK-SEARCH," continued until 1972.

But Marks says there is evidence another CIA department, the Office of Research and Development, picked up general behavioral research after MK-ULTRA ended.

Attempts to control behavior under MK-ULTRA included sponsoring Canadian "brainwashing" studies involving LSD, forced isolation and shock treatments coupled with forced sleep. Marks says in his book, "The Search for the Manchurian Candidate," published by Times Books.

Marks says 16,000 pages of CIA documents and interviews with people directly involved flesh out details of CIA mind-control attempts disclosed in 1977 congressional hearings.

At the hearings, agency officials acknowledged testing LSD and other drugs on unsuspecting men lured by prostitutes into agency-run apartments. They also said the CIA secretly sponsored private research into behavior control drugs and techniques.

Turner said the CIA no longer uses secret organizations as fronts for funding behavior research and that the agency "is in no way engaged in either witting or unwitting testing of drugs today."

But Marks said documents show the agency contributed about $19,000 a year for several years to one of Canada's top psychiatrists, Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, at Allan Memorial Institute, part of McGill University in Montreal.

It's unknown if Cameron, who died in 1967, ever knew the money came from the CIA, which funneled the funds through the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology.

The book says Cameron attempted to treat mental illness by creating complete amnesia of all behavior patterns, theorizing that only normal behavior patterns would return.

Ethics Committee Service Unpopular Among Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress seems to be having about as much trouble finding members to serve on its ethics committees as some ancient civilizations did in finding messengers to carry bad news.

Harbingers of ill tidings often were routinely killed in the old days. And while impaling, beheading and quartering are no longer in vogue, attitudes haven't changed much since Sophocles wrote more than 2,300 years ago, "None love the messenger who brings bad news."

With Congress two weeks old, all committees in the House and Senate except those dealing with ethics have been constituted and are preparing to start their work.

The House has five vacancies still to fill on its 12-member ethics committee, formally called the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct — one Republican and four Democrats. The Senate is faced with filling all six of the slots on its Select Committee on Ethics.

Leadership spokesmen deny that the lack of enthusiasm for service on the committees means trouble for the concept of Congress policing the actions of its members. But they acknowledge volunteers for committee duty are hard to find.

"Everybody wants off," said Ron McMahon, spokesman for Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee. "The senator says we may have to institute a peacetime draft."

On the House side, Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., who is in line to be chairman of the ethics committee, said, "I don't think anyone wants to be on the committee. The people you get are the people who think you need an ethics committee."

The failure to name new members could slow the Senate committee's probe of Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., who is accused of converting campaign contributions to his own use, of falsely claiming expenses he did not incur and of other improprieties.

Senate leaders are trying to convince the current members of the committee to stay aboard until that probe is finished. So far, three of the six members have agreed to do so.

On the House side, Republicans have said they intend to ask the ethics committee to decide what actions, if any, are warranted against Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., who is appealing a three-year prison sentence for padding his office payroll and having certain employees kick back part of their salary to him.

There are several factors for the reluctance of members to serve. Many simply do not want to judge their colleagues. Others prefer to concentrate their energy on committees that can provide benefits to their constituents back home.

Some are willing to serve — but their past stands on ethical matters "make it difficult for them to serve" impartially, according to Gary Hymel, an aide to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

And others cite the time demanded by the job.

The committees can spend months investigating wrongdoing. The House committee's probe of the South Korean influence-buying affair stretched over a year and included two weeks of intensive hearings. The Talmadge investigation is in its seventh month.

The rewards of service often are small as well. Several House committee members acknowledged they were hurt by allegations by various interest groups that the committee recommended stronger punishment in the Korean probe for Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., than for two other members because Roybal was Hispanic. They viewed the House decision to reduce Roybal's punishment to a reprimand instead of a censure as a repudiation of their work.

Egypt May Replace Iran As Buffer Against Russia

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The impending arrival of a U.S. military delegation is seen as yet another indication that the United States is counting on Egypt to replace Iran as a buffer against Soviet influence in the Middle East. A Pentagon delegation is due here this week to expedite arm sales.

President Anwar Sadat has actively sought the role, telling visiting U.S. congressmen that Egypt needs more arms to assist pro-Western regimes in Africa and the Persian Gulf.

And in recent speeches and interviews, Sadat has sounded rising alarm over Moscow's ambitions in the area.

"We are following what is happening around us," Sadat told a joint session of the Egyptian-Sudanese parliaments in Khartoum. "(Moscow) is taking part in dark conspiracies to undermine stability in the region."

On Sunday, Egypt's parliament invited President Carter to "come to Egypt and address this assembly," the official Middle East News Agency MENA reported. Sadat has issued a long-standing invitation to Carter to visit Egypt. At the White House, a spokesman said no such trip is presently contemplated.

Last week, Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak said, "The situation in Iran threatens the entire Middle East." Egyptian officials said the turmoil might delay signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, or it might speed it up.

Meanwhile, Sadat urged the Americans to step up their arms deliveries, saying, "You should make it easier for your friends to buy arms from you so they can defend their soil."

While the United States has long courted Egypt politically, the military interest is relatively new. Well-informed sources cite the following examples:

• An office of military cooperation was opened in late October to "assist Egypt in receiving, using and maintaining U.S. military equipment and training." So far the program is limited to 20 HC130 transport planes and 50 F5 tiger fighters but sources say they expect more weapons deals with Egypt in the future.

• The chief of naval intelligence, the head of the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency and a deputy secretary of defense have visited Egypt in recent weeks on "get-acquainted" tours.

• A Pentagon delegation expected to visit Egypt and Saudi Arabia this week will try to resolve financial problems holding up the F5 deliveries. And in mid-February, U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown will stop in Egypt on a Mideast swing.

The first step in establishing a military role for Egypt is clearing the way for delivery of the F5s, approved by Congress after a lengthy debate last spring and scheduled for shipment last November.

Slaton Man Critical Following Shooting

SLATON (Special) — A 29-year-old Slaton man was in critical condition Sunday night at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital after he was shot while allegedly burglarizing a home here.

According to police reports, a Slaton couple returned to their eastside home about 10:40 p.m. Saturday and found the suspect inside their residence.

Reports indicated the homeowner entered the house, confronted the burglar and a struggle ensued. During the fight, officials said, the burglary suspect grabbed a 410-gauge shotgun belonging to the homeowner and pointed it at the resident.

The resident then pulled a .22-caliber pistol and fired once, striking the burglary suspect in the head, police said.

Slaton police are continuing their investigation into the incident and evidence is expected to be turned over to Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney for grand jury consideration.

Clements Wants Mexico Ties

HARLINGEN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' first talk to a private group played to favorable reviews here as he told Mexican-American business leaders that the state needs workers and energy from Mexico.

The governor was the keynote speaker at Saturday night's Rio Grande Valley Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce banquet. Clements told the audience that he was giving it the same "debriefing" given to State Department officials about his recent Mexico trip.

"It is absurd that we in the United States have not taken advantage of the potential that exists in Mexico for helping to solve our energy problems," he said, drawing one of several omissions he got here.

The governor proposed a "constant ongoing dialogue" with Mexican officials in an effort to bring energy north of the border at fair market prices.

"They have doubled their daily production (of oil) in the past two years," Clements said. "They could reach approximately the level of Texas' production — about five million barrels a day — in I'd say five years if they really made that kind of effort."

He added that Mexico's natural gas supply also could be vital to Texas. "They have a gas field just north and west of Monterrey that will have in it several trillion cubic feet of gas. This is larger than any gas field in the U.S.," he said.

Clements also reiterated his support for a return to the Bracero program of the 1960s. The program would allow Mexican workers to legally cross the border to work in Texas. Some Mexican-American groups oppose the program.

"President (Jose) Lopez-Portillo was astounded, in fact he didn't believe he had heard right, that we have in Texas three million illegal Mexican aliens. He had not heard that number and he was concerned," Clements said.

The governor said the Mexican president favors "some form" of the Bracero program.

"There's no question that we need the workers. He understands that and I certainly made it clear that these people are very, very important in our agriculture, industry and service work," the governor said.

"These people would be entitled to a fair wage. They would have their legal rights as a legal worker and they certainly would be living under proper conditions as opposed to the way that they have been living and being treated as being undocumented and illegal. The humanitarian side of this issue is extremely important," Clements said, again drawing applause.

State Agencies Begin Budget Maneuvering

AUSTIN (AP) — State agencies start trying this week to justify their spending requests to committees of the House, whose leadership has advocated $400 million in budget cuts.

The appropriations subcommittee of the House State Affairs Committee will listen to budget presentations from eight agencies Wednesday, including the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Last week, the commission protested a Legislative Budget Board recommendation reducing its consumer affairs office.

Agencies that want more than the budget board proposed are unlikely, however, to get much sympathy from House committees. Speaker Bill Clayton's version of the general appropriation bill would be 2 percent smaller, across-the-board, than the budget board's.

Although the Legislature has been in session since Jan. 9, this week marks the first full schedule of committee meetings.

The lawmaking process, delayed by opening ceremonies, inaugural festivities and the drafting of ground rules, gets into full swing as committee members begin screening and conducting public hearings on 650 proposed measures in the House and 330 Senate bills.

The House Appropriations committee holds its first public hearing on its version of the 1980-81 general appropriations bill Monday afternoon. And the Senate Finance Committee holds another session on its version about the same time.

However, legislative leaders predict it will be at least six weeks before either house is prepared to vote on a state spending bill for the next two years.

Senate committee hearings this week include a Wednesday airing of four proposed constitutional amendments that would repeal the state property tax of 10 cents per $100 valuation, as set by the counties.

Career Day will provide students access to employers who can supply resource material. Information will be available on recommendations for academic majors in career preparation and current job openings in various employment areas.

More information can be obtained from Gerry Phaneuf, assistant director of the Career Planning and Placement Service, at 742-2218.

Skeletons At Gacy's Home Identified

CHICAGO (AP) — Two more skeletons among the 27 found at the home of accused mass murderer John Wayne Gacy Jr. have been identified. Authorities said they were 20-year-old men missing since late 1977.

The Cook County medical examiner identified the men Saturday as John Mowry, of Chicago, and Matthew Bowman, of suburban Crystal Lake.

So far, 12 victims have been identified, including 10 whose remains were found at Gacy's home and two whose bodies were recovered from the Des Plaines River. Gacy, 36, has been indicted in the murders of seven young men. He reportedly told investigators that he killed 32.

Teng At Zenith Of Political Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the height of the Cultural Revolution in 1966, he was paraded through the streets of Peking in a dunce cap by the Red Guards, forced to confess his heresy publicly and was purged.

Three years ago, he was forced to flee Peking to escape from the "Gang of Four," in a second exile that lasted for nearly a year.

But Sunday afternoon, at the zenith of one of the 20th century's most remarkable political comebacks, Teng Hsiao-ping, vice premier of China, arrives in Washington as the leader of one-fourth of the people of the world.

This short, stubby, outspoken man of 74 will play the leading role in an international diplomatic and media event that promises to rival Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States in 1959 and Richard Nixon's trip to Peking in 1972.

The fascination that the West feels for Teng stems from the mysteries that still enshroud his past and present. He is, for example, nominally the third-ranking member of the Chinese hierarchy, behind Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and aging military leader Yeh Chien-ying.

American China watchers say Teng obviously commands a consensus of power in the Chinese Communist party, but they can only speculate how he does it and why Hua remains the titular leader of the government.

Teng Hsiao-ping (pronounced Tung Shao-ping) is not even his real name. He was born Kan Tse-kao in the southwestern Chinese province of Szechwan on Aug. 22, 1904. Like many of his communist contemporaries, he came from a fairly wealthy, landed family.

Kan was a bright student. He finished high school at 16 and qualified for a work-study program in France. There, he met Chou En-lai, six years older and the leader of the Chinese Communist Party in France.

In 1924, Kan took the revolutionary name he still bears, whose meaning has never been publicly explained. He, Chou and the other members of the party in France were recalled to China.

For most of the next 30 years, Teng was a revolutionary soldier. He became part of Mao Tse-tung's inner circle and was on the 1934-35 "Long March" that has produced most of China's communist leadership. By the time the communists won the civil war in 1949, Teng was in command of 300,000 troops and was military governor of his home province.

In 1952, he was called to Peking. Under the patronage of Chou and Mao, he rose rapidly. In 1956, he joined the six-member standing committee of the ruling Politburo. Mao is said to have pointed him out to Khrushchev as an intelligent young man destined to go places.

But in the aftermath of the failure of Mao's "Great Leap Forward" of 1958-59, a schism developed in the party's ranks, with Mao and Teng on opposite sides.

Teng, for example, favored some private ownership of farm plots as a spur to production. "It doesn't matter whether a cat is black or white, as long as it catches mice," he said in a famous statement reflecting his pragmatic brand of socialism.

But Mao felt that it did matter. He placed a higher priority on revolutionary egalitarianism and ardor, fearing that adoption of Teng's policies would lead to elitism within the society.

In 1966, Mao launched the Cultural Revolution to stamp his ideas on China. Teng and many of his allies were grabbed by the Red Guards and paraded through the streets. Party newspapers accused him of everything from intellectual arrogance to playing too much bridge and mah-jongg.

Teng was purged from the government and, by some accounts, was reduced to waiting on tables in a mess hall. Two brothers also were purged, and one committed suicide. And according to recent Chinese reports, his daughter was beaten and permanently crippled by the Red Guards.

But Teng survived, and the political winds shifted. By 1973, the army was fed up with the excesses of the Cultural Revolution. Teng's old patron, Chou, was able to bring him back into the government.

Chou began grooming Teng as his successor. By 1975, with Chou fatally ill and Mao enfeebled, Teng seemed to be in day-to-day control of the government.

But as long as Mao lived, the radicals had the most powerful patron. After Chou's death in 1976, they struck back and gained the upper hand in government. Teng was again forced to flee, reportedly staying with friends in the countryside. Hua, a relative unknown, was designated by Mao as his successor.

Western sources are unclear about what happened next. Hua either was not the radical the "Gang of Four" expected, or he was forced to accommodate pragmatists in the military and economic branches of the government.

The "Gang of Four," led by Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, were arrested. Teng returned to Peking and to power.

He launched China on a radical new course of modernization, opening up trade and educational exchanges with the once-despised capitalist nations of the West. He allowed and even encouraged a wall poster campaign calling for some measure of democracy and human rights.

Teng also ended the delirious notion that Mao had erred, particularly late in his life.

As for the future, not even Teng is clear, apparently willing to let China's practical needs dictate its course. "Who knows what kind of system we will have?" he says.

Gala Planned For Teng Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gala entertainment planned for China's Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping tonight is an all-America production — American entertainers with American businesses underwriting the costs.

President Carter is the host for the gala at the Kennedy Center's Opera House, which seats 2,300.

The program, which follows a state dinner at the White House, will be shown live on Public Broadcasting Service television, and will be shown in Lubbock at 8 p.m. on Channel 5. That time will be 10 a.m. Tuesday in Peking, so the Chinese intend to postpone the program for broadcast until prime time there Tuesday night.

Everyone invited to the dinner, including former President Richard Nixon, is invited to the gala. Nixon will attend both.

The entertainment is intended to portray some examples of the best contemporary American performers.

"It's an occasion where we're hoping to share a little of the gladness and vitality of the American people," said George Stevens Jr., director of the American Film Institute and producer of the show.

Stevens called it an historic event — "the first time the Chinese have seen American culture in 30 years."

The program includes the New York-based Joffrey Ballet doing sequences from Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo." The cast of the Broadway production, "Eubie," a musical based on the compositions of ragtime pianist Eubie Blake, will perform sequences from the show. In addition, popular singer John Denver will appear.

Entertainer Dick Cavett will provide commentary for television.

Sponsors of the show are 150 of America's biggest corporate names, including Allied Chemical, Bank of America and the Ford Motor Co. They pitched in to pay the $250,000 production cost. All are members of the National Council for U.S. China Trade.

The private group, founded in 1973 to foster relations between the United States and China, approached the White House about doing something for the Chinese visit. The White House suggested the gala.

The $500,000 cost of putting the show on public television and beaming it by satellite to China is being underwritten by Atlantic Richfield Co.

The sponsors have 600 seats in the Opera House, and other council members have 200 on a first-come, first-served basis. The White House has tickets for 1,500 seats.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:

I am overwhelmed and amazed at the number of responses to Mickey Lahman's suggestion that we initiate the custom here in the U.S. of removing our shoes before entering our homes.

It must have struck a sympathetic chord among all my readers because almost without a dissenting vote, you were unquestionably in favor of doing so.

Mrs. Frieda Tait wrote, "If we get enough wives behind the idea...mostly the people who must clean up the dirt...maybe it will catch on."

Other comments were, to mention a few, "I'm with you all the way," "Let's use common sense and have cleaner homes," "Smart," "Practical," "Ole!"

We heard from doctors, nurses and those concerned with the idea from the standpoint of our health. Dr. Phillip R. Brockman of the Illinois College of Podiatric Medicine, stated the college has recently completed a research project on disease-bearing bacteria that enters every home on the soles of the shoes of unwary citizens.

He wrote, "With infants and children playing on carpets which carry these organisms, we are subjecting them to diseases that have never been recorded. Sooner or later it will be necessary for us to face the issue."

Ominous sounding, isn't it? But he's right when you really stop and think about those germs we are possibly bringing into our homes.

Other letters had a wistful tone to them — couldn't quite believe anything so wonderful could ever happen.

Mrs. Alice Prusnick said it best when she wrote, "The custom of removing shoes at the door is my favorite fantasy! My idea of a small piece of heaven on this wicked, dirty earth!"

Mrs. Branal said: "If we could make this a habit, I think some day we would look back and wonder how we ever dared walk through our homes with those filthy shoes on."

The men had their say, too. Like their distaff counterparts, they too were very much in favor of removing one's shoes.

James Elliot even said, "If you could start a crusade for the adoption of this custom in the United States, future generations would indeed owe you a debt of gratitude. Here's hoping many, many others feel strongly enough in favor of the idea to inundate you with letters."

Well, believe me, dear hearts, they did! But what was so incongruous throughout the letters is that while so many feel the custom would be a good one, very few practice it for fear of hurting someone's feelings! Yet, their friends are not doing it for the very same reason!

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please explain in plain language what the words "organic heart disease" mean. — B.C.

This is another one of those medical terms that seem to be creeping into the general language. They roll off the tongue nicely, but are sometimes difficult to understand. Another is "functional heart disease."

"Organic heart disease" means the heart has a structural weakness, such as scarring of a valve from rheumatic fever, or damage to a heart muscle from a heart attack. Some hearts may have abnormal connections between chambers or some other defect formed before birth. All of these are organic problems.

A "functional" problem, on the other hand, implies that the heart, while structurally sound, does not function properly because of outside influences. For example, anxiety, depression, fear or simple nervousness can cause a functional problem in a normal heart. They may cause the heart to beat faster, and the patient may even experience chest pain or tire easily or be short of breath, even faint. In such cases the fault lies not in our hearts, but in ourselves, to paraphrase a famous line.

Nor do such functional heart problems always stem from emotions. The outside problem may be physical and originate in another part of the body, such as the thyroid gland. Or it may lie in a general disorder, like anemia (low blood). The possibilities are numerous.

Many readers write anxiously after carefully selecting the most ominous-sounding phrase or word they can find in a medical report. One man wrote recently about having a "sinus node" in his heart. Everyone has a sinus node, otherwise known as the heart's natural "pacemaker." It controls heart rhythm. Nevertheless, I am sure the words caused this man considerable anguish. I hope he's reading this.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 59-year-old business woman. I notice that when I take long trips I usually get ill, either during it or when I get home. Is there anything I can do to prevent nasal cold flares? Is it because I am running into different kinds of bacteria here and there? Can't something be done to prevent these problems? — A.S.

The problem is not bacteria, which don't change from place to place. Types of pollen do vary between locales, and traveling as you do you might encounter new ones, just as you might new acquaintances. Traveling also exposes a person to different population factors and to hundreds of allergy substances which may not be at home.

But, and this may be the most important factor, travel, even the pleasure trip, is fatiguing. Eating, sleeping and social habits change. This combination of factors makes it easy for the body's defenses to let down and invite trouble.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I developed hemorrhoids 20 years ago with the birth of my first child. While applying my ointment one day I discovered that if I gently tucked the hemorrhoid into the rectum I got complete relief. I no longer have need for the ointment now. Is this procedure OK? — N.J.E.

It's satisfactory for pain relief so long as you do it gently and take care about sanitary conditions. The question in mind, though, is just how sure are you that this is a hemorrhoid? Could be a polyp (a benign growth) that protrudes? It would be worth finding out after all these years.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Do you know anything about sporotrichosis, which I am told I have? — J.D.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

On top of my typewriter this morning, I found a note from my husband that read, "Walrunch Hinchinty. Sol. Quea?????Jne 17."

"What's this mean?" I asked. "Can't you read my handwriting?" he snapped. "It says National Handwriting Week. Column idea????? I thought maybe there was something in the fact that one day is being set aside to improve the writing habits of Americans and you could do a column on it."

"I write humor."

"What's that supposed to mean?"

"It means if you had penned the Declaration of Independence, the United States today would stand for 'lfn, liverte, and the prsut of hapines.'"

"That's a fine way for someone to talk who makes her sevens look like ones."

"Says who?"

"Says the wrong number I got the other night from a phone message you left me."

"You try writing a phone message on a piece of waxed paper with a steak knife."

"I still think you could make a funny column about how you flunked ovals in the first grade and went on to give birth to children whose 8's look like 3's and who forget to close their G's."

"Don't forget they were sired by a man who loops his O's and who once wrote a check to the paper boy for $8.00."

"At least I didn't write a note to the school when one of the kids was sick and have the nurse call to see what it was we had under control: his 'diarrhea' or his 'drain'."

"You know, it might be nice to have just one day when everyone took the time to write legibly: dotting their I's and crossing their T's. I bet millions of dollars are spent each year on people making mistakes and not saying what they really mean. I'm sorry I snapped at you. I'm going to file this idea until next June 14 and maybe get the country to observe a day when we could all read what one another is writing."

"What June 14?" asked my husband. "National Handwriting Day was Jan. 21. See? That's an A which you mistook for a U and the 4 is a 3 and is nowhere near what you thought it was and who would listen to a woman who can't even read English anyway?"

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Several years ago you ran a letter giving "advice" to parents. It was a guide that was certain to produce a messed-up kid. I laughed at it when I read it, but now I wish I had saved it. I have two sisters who could certainly profit from that column. Will you please hunt it up and do a rerun? I believe the year was 1972. — Time Changes Things A Lot

Dear Time: I found the column — and here it is:

1. Be disappointed that your second child wasn't a girl. After all, the first child was a boy, which pleased his father, so the second child should be a girl so his mother will be pleased.

2. Father: Devote all your time and attention to the first-born. Don't worry about ignoring the second son. His mother will make up for it.

3. Mother: Since Dad is a little tough on the second son (ignoring him and all), protect the boy as best you can. Be sure he doesn't come into contact with the cruel, hard world. A concerned mom can be a great shock absorber.

4. Father: Make your son feel like a sis-sy because he likes art, music and poetry. Any kid who can't bloody a few noses and be a leader in sports should be ashamed of himself.

5. Mother: In later years be critical of every girl your son looks at. After all, your son deserves the best, so don't let him settle for less. A young fellow needs your other's guidance these days. There are so many tramps around.

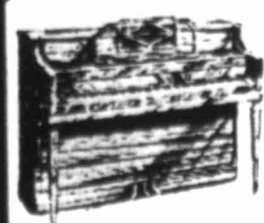

6. Father: Let your son know early that you consider him a failure. Compare him with his older brother who has done better. If you recognize that the second son is vastly inferior, be sure to mention it. Don't let people think you're so stupid that you don't know the difference.

Alan: "How about some hands that show the bidding by the best of the early contract players?"

Oswald: "We didn't have much science in those early days. One of our problems was how to bid suit slams and we played that the jump from one to four was definite slam try. Opener could then guess about bidding six. The late Hal Sims was the greatest exponent of the 1-4-6 school. As for grand slams Hal had a simple rule. He did not bid them."

Alan: "Modern experts could find their way to six spades in any number of bidding sequences, but that Model T bidding you have shown here was short, simple and effective."

Oswald: "Very few experts of that early day knew the correct way to play the heart suit. In fact, lots of today's players would go down at the slam. Not Hal. He drew trumps, cashed his ace of hearts, stripped the hand of clubs and diamonds, led a heart toward his hand and rose with the queen. West took his king but had to give Hal a ruff and discard."

Alan: "Hal's play was the best. He was sure to make the slam if East held the heart king or if West held it singleton or guarded just once."

Ask the Experts

A Virginia reader asks if the grand slam bonuses have always been 1,500 not vulnerable and 1,500 vulnerable.

No. From 1932 to 1935 they were raised to 1,500 and 2,250. This proved most unpopular.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦Q8 ♥AK762 ♠952 ♦AJ7

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ Pass 2♥ Pass

3♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—If your nostrils are attuned, you will smell the fragrance of a slam. Besides a good five-card suit and an outside ace, you have the queen in partner's suit—a card that could be very important. A cue-bid of four clubs will express your intentions without by-passing the "safe" game contract.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AJ852 ♥J7 ♦AQ72 ♠94

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

Pass Pass 1♦ Pass

2♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Since partner is a passed hand, abandon all thoughts of game. Your object now is to play in the best part score possible, and you have just found that spot. Partner's response guarantees a five-card suit which, opposite your holding, makes two hearts a playable contract. Any attempt you might make to improve the contract could lead to disaster.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦KJ1087 ♥A6 ♠973 ♠842

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♥ 2♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—If you had one more heart, you could afford to respond two hearts, but as it is, there is nothing you can do with any safety. A bid of two spades is forcing and is likely to propel your side to an uncomfortable level. You must pass and hope that partner can reopen the bidding.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦AK954 ♥AKQJ7 ♠8 ♦73

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ 2♦ Dbles. Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's double is for penalties, but it is not an absolute command. At this vulnerability, the 300 or so points we might receive will not be adequate compensation for a missed vulnerable game, or even slam. We would overrule partner and jump to three hearts to show our strong, distributional hand.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AKQ104 ♥93 ♦AJ8742

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 2♦ Pass

2♥ Pass 3♦ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—This is a very difficult problem. Without East's interference, we would have completed the description of our distribution by rebidding three spades. Now that action is fraught with danger because of the potential misfit. The more prudent course is to pass the decision around to partner, and hope that he comes up with the winning solution.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AK532 ♥K10 ♠83 ♦AQ7

Partner opens the bidding with five diamonds. What action do you take?

A.—For his preemptive opening bid at the five-level, partner should have at least a solid eight-card suit. Thus, you have excellent prospects for a small slam, providing the opponents are unable to collect two fast heart tricks. To guard against this, bid six no trump—if the opponents elect to lead hearts, it will be up to your king, not through it.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦KJ1085 ♥A982 ♦K983

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one club. What action do you take?

A.—Offensively, your hand is quite powerful—it could easily produce a game in any one of three suits opposite a very minimal holding in partner's hand. To advise partner that you have support for any suit he can introduce, make a takeout double. If you bid one spade, you risk losing a fit in one of the red suits.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦KJ852 ♥AJ1076 ♦A ♠A8

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 1NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Since you hold three aces and a king, your hand is actually worth more than its 17 high-card points. In addition, you have exceptional distributional values. Once partner has shown enough values to respond—6 points at least—we would insist on game, and would make our intentions known to partner by jumping to three hearts.

Plains Weather Affects Roads, Trees, Cotton

December's storm, according to department figures.

Some $638,000 already has been spent in Lubbock County alone to fill up potholes, King said.

Storm Kills Trees

The same storm in February which caused officials to call off school on Feb. 18 and prevented scheduled speakers from arriving for Science Fiction Week Mass Communications Week at Texas Tech, also killed trees and turf in Lubbock's 58 parks.

At least $5,000 damage was caused to just the trees in city parks, Walter Heard, superintendent of parks at the Parks and Recreation Department, estimates.

The major problem in maintaining parks in 1978 was the dry hot summer, Heard said. "We only had one to 1.5 inches of rain during a four-month period."

The department "increased watering slightly and tried to water at the most appropriate times for the least moisture loss," Heard said.

But the parks department still may have to reseed some turf this year, and fertilize earlier with a treatment that will include a pre-emergence herbicide to prevent increased weeds resulting from the damaged turf.

"Dismal" Year For Farmers

Although the 235-day growing season of 1978 was 31 days longer than usual, the National Weather Service reports that "1978 was a dismal year for South Plains agriculture, particularly for dry land farmers."

Less than three inches of rain fell during the months of June, July and August in 1978 and the Small Business Administration Disaster Relief office in Lubbock has approved 4,441 of 6,111 applications for drought relief on the South Plains, according to Bob Green, assistant branch manager.

Green also reports that applications for hail rain and flood relief have been submitted from seven South Plains counties and that nine counties have submitted applications for relief of unusual conditions.

"Heavy" Crop Losses

The loss suffered by South Plains farmers in 1978 could be "classified as a heavy loss, but the region has suffered heavier losses," according to Don Ethridge, agricultural economics professor at Texas Tech University.

"If we just look at one crop and if we compare 1978 with 1977," Ethridge said, "1978 cotton production in this area of the state is going to come to about 1.8 million bales and in 1977 the same area produced 3 million bales. So, if you simply compare the two years, then you've got 1.2 million bales of cotton less than the previous year."

The weather is only one factor in the decrease in production, the professor commented, but "it's the main one."

Congress May Bury Carter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional committees get to work this week on President Carter's legislative agenda, but some of his controversial plans, such as "wage insurance," already are in deep trouble.

Panels in both the House and Senate will be holding hearings to scrutinize the programs Carter outlined in his State of the Union message last week. Economic issues will dominate the sessions.

The visit of Teng Hsiao-ping also in commanding congressional attention. The Chinese vice premier will be spending Tuesday afternoon on Capitol Hill meeting members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House International Relations Committees.

Teng To Meet O'Neill, Byrd

Private sessions between Teng and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd also are planned.

The House Ways and Means Committee opens a week of hearings Monday on Carter's proposal to reward workers who hold wage increases to 7 percent this year. If inflation exceeds that level, they would be offered tax credits under the plan.

Although Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman has promised a "fair hearing," he claims most committee members are skeptical about the wage insurance plan.

Wage Insurance "Expendable" — Some members are eyeing the $2.5 billion put in Carter's budget for the plan as an expendable — an easy way to make room for other spending and still meet the president's overall budget goals.

And several top Democrats claim privately they got burned supporting Carter's 1977 plan for $50 tax rebates — eventually withdrawn — and are fearful the wage insurance plan is headed for a similar fate.

Carter's overall budget, calling for austerity at home and increased defense spending abroad, will be studied this week by the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, which has called a number of top administration officials to testify in defense of the plan.

Schultz To Defend Budget

Charles Schultz, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisors, is the leadoff witness on Monday.

The Congressional Budget Office also will unveil a detailed critique of the Carter budget on Monday.

The president's budget recommendation to meet a pledge to NATO by increasing military spending by 3 percent while trimming funding of certain social programs has generated much controversy.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown will get a chance Monday to spell out the administration's position on military spending when he testifies before the House Armed Services Committee.

toward the region from central California.

By 4 p.m. the new front had sparked a light snowfall over Dalhart, whose residents already were bundled up against a 27-degree reading, and a band of light but steady rain showers had cropped up in South Texas.

Forecasters say that up to two inches of snow could fall in the northern Panhandle by this afternoon, causing hazardous driving conditions in that portion of the state.

Late Sunday, however, Department of Public Safety officials said that no roads were closed, but that they were warning motorists not to travel unless it was absolutely necessary.

Inclement weather also was the rule across most of the United States Sunday, with even Las Vegas, Nev., receiving an unusual desert snowfall of more than an inch, the first since New Year's Day 1974.

Snow remained a hazard in the Midwest, with travel advisories extended for parts of 10 states.

National Guard troops in an 11-county area of north-central Nebraska airlifted supplies and evacuated persons in need of medical attention. The severe weather is the worst in Nebraska in three decades.

Neighboring Chicago residents, already battered with more than 75 inches of snow this winter, were hit with another four inches late Saturday and early Sunday. That city's snowfall accumulation is now just four inches shy of its record.

More than 200 Chicago Park District Buildings were closed during the week-end while teams of engineers inspected snow-covered roofs for safety. Officials there report that more than 200 roofs in the area already have collapsed under the weight of January snow.

Debit Insurance Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life insurance salesmen operating door-to-door in poor neighborhoods frequently sell a type of policy that has high premiums and low benefits, a federal report said Sunday.

A Federal Trade Commission staff report attacked "debit insurance," which is marketed primarily to the poor. In it, the salesman comes every month or every week to collect a small premium.

This contrasts with regular life insurance, in which payments are mailed directly to the company and policies usually are larger.

There were 102 million debit insurance policies in force in 1976, sometimes with a number sold to the same person, the report said.

Consumers who pay premiums steadily for many years may "pay in on their policies more than they can ever get back in benefits," it said.

The funds available to pay out benefits are drained by high administrative costs in marketing the policies, including the heavy cost of maintaining a door-to-door sales force, it said.

"The agent presents himself as a financial expert with the client's best interest at heart. Often with no one else to turn to for financial expertise, the consumer relies on the agent's advice."

"The agent is not likely to inform consumers about lower cost alternatives. Nor is he likely to emphasize the higher cost of his products and services," said the report written by FTC staffer Elizabeth Laporte.

Many buyers do not compute the long-run cost of the benefits because the weekly or monthly payments, which can be only a few dollars, seem small, the report said.

"It is reported that a cleaning woman in Washington, D.C., from the rural South and with an elementary school education only, for many years never computed the full cost of her dozen or more debit policies."

"Yet when she finally added up the annual premium cost of all her policies, she was dismayed to find she was paying over $500 a year for less than $10,000 total life insurance on eight members of her family," the report said.

The two types of debit insurance are called "industrial" insurance, which is collected weekly, and "monthly debit ordinary," usually larger policies that are collected monthly.

The American Council of Life Insurance said in a statement, "No one denies that you get less for your insurance dollar by buying industrial life. People in that income bracket get less for their dollar in every category. Their real problem is how to get out of all this. Industrial life does furnish a financial product to people who in all likelihood would not buy it otherwise."

The report said some state insurance officials also defend debit insurance by saying that the low income customers are unlikely to buy regular policies.

Insurance companies appear to be making high profits on the policies because of consumer ignorance about what they are buying and some questionable sales practices, the FTC staff report charged.

The policies have a high "lapse rate," or number of customers who stop paying on them, it said, noting that this results in many policy holders receiving no cash benefits.

The report said marketing abuses include:

— "Overloading," or selling more policies to a buyer than he or she needs. The report said one elderly Tennessee woman spent $99.86 per month on 30 life and health policies out of her monthly Supplemental Security Income of $177.80.

— "Churning," or convincing clients to buy new policies and let old ones lapse. This gives the salesman a new commission.

— Misrepresentation and high-pressure sales tactics.

Holy Man Declines Talks With Bakhtiar

force men were wounded. Doctors told reporters that a soldier had killed himself after slaying his commanding officer, a colonel. This could not be confirmed.

It was Tehran's bloodiest day since Sept. 8, when 121 persons died in political violence. Gunfire continued sporadically after nightfall.

The state radio reported that anti-government rioters in Rasht, on the Caspian Sea, set fire to cars and government buildings. There was no immediate report of casualties.

Bakhtiar announced Saturday he intended to fly to Paris to meet with Khomeini and seek his advice on Iran's future.

At first, Khomeini's aides issued conflicting statements about whether the religious leader would receive Bakhtiar. Then Khomeini told reporters Sunday he would not, unless Bakhtiar resigned as prime minister.

The 78-year-old Khomeini reiterated his stand that Bakhtiar's government is "illegal" because it was appointed by the "shah," who was forced into an indefinite trip abroad by the mass movement of strikes and demonstrations orchestrated by Khomeini. The shah and his family for the past week have been secluded in Morocco.

During prayers Sunday with several hundred followers outside his home in exile near Paris, Khomeini declared: "If Bakhtiar is on the side of the angels, let him resign and come and see me as a free man, like everybody else."

He again attacked Bakhtiar as a "puppet and agent of the shah."

To reporters, Khomeini spoke of "plots and conspiracies by the superpowers in Iran" — an apparent reflection of the ayatollah's annoyance with Western nations that want to give the Bakhtiar government a chance.

A source close to Bakhtiar had said that with the rebuff by Khomeini it was unlikely the prime minister would still travel to Paris. But French government sources reported later Sunday that Bakhtiar would be flying in to Paris this morning.

The Bakhtiar associate, who asked not to be named, said the main reason the prime minister was eager to meet with Khomeini was that he wants to head off further bloodshed in Iran.

Martial-law authorities said Sunday that Iran's airports, shut down last Thursday to keep Khomeini out of the country, would remain closed indefinitely. The Moslem leader, who has spent almost 15 years in exile, originally planned to make a triumphant return to Iran last Friday.

Khomeini wants to abolish the monarchy and establish a religiously oriented government in place of Bakhtiar's. The prime minister, hinting repeatedly of a possible coup by anti-Khomeini military commanders, is trying to reach some accommodation with the immensely popular Khomeini short of outright resignation of his government.

Chinese Delegation Arrives For Talks

Phillip Burton, D-Calif., John Burton, D-Calif., Edward Roybal, D-Calif., Lindy Boggs, D-La., and Paul Findley, R-Ill.

Teng, another vice premier, Fang I, and their wives received bouquets of white, yellow and blue flowers from women representatives of the Chinese liaison office in Washington.

Escorted by Mondale, Teng walked along a metal fence, waving to a cheering, flag-waving crowd. But they did not approach the fence to shake hands.

The Stars and Stripes and China's bright red flag studded with gold stars flew from twin staffs atop the air base terminal. Not long before Teng's plane touched the runway, the American flag was hoisted from half staff, where it had flown to mourn former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

About 300 persons, mostly Chinese, joined in the greeting. The U.S. government arranged for their presence as representatives of the Chinese-American community. Some held a 28-foot banner, red with gold Chinese lettering, that said: "Warmly Welcoming Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping Visit to the United States."

Land In Alaska

On its way to Washington, Teng's plane landed at Elmendorf Air Force Base outside Anchorage, Alaska, for a 90-minute refueling stop. Teng and top Chinese officials were met by Leonard Woodcock, the U.S. ambassador-designate to Peking. The plane was behind schedule when it first touched American soil.

Teng's arrival began a nine-day whirl of meetings and ceremonies trumpeting a new era in the relationship between China and the United States. The new era began Jan. 1 with full diplomatic recognition between the two nations.

The splash will far exceed what is usually arranged for visiting monarchs and ministers and has evoked recollections of the celebrated 1959 visit of Nikita Khrushchev, the late Soviet leader.

During his stay in this country, Teng will visit a Ford plant near Atlanta, sample barbecue at a Texas rodeo and inspect the Boeing plant in Seattle which will build three new jumbo jets for China at a cost of $156 million.

Shah Extends Morocco Visit

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, forced by bloody rioting to leave Iran, plans to remain in Morocco for at least three weeks, a close aide said Sunday.

The aide, Ardeshir Zahedi who is still listed as the Iranian ambassador to Washington despite his dismissal by the new government in Tehran, arrived in Marrakech Saturday with the shah's four children and mother-in-law on a flight from Texas.

He said the shah has not decided if he will leave later for another country. "He is very happy here and has received a very warm welcome from King Hassan," Zahedi said.

He described the shah as "disappointed and tired."

A changing guard of Congress members and White House officials will accompany Teng around the United States. They will be trailed by two planeloads of 250 reporters.

Telecasts will be beamed back to China.

Staunch anti-communists and radical leftists have threatened to protest Teng's visit at every stop. Police everywhere Teng will visit are mounting extra security precautions.

Former President Richard M. Nixon, who initiated the thaw in U.S.-Chinese relations in 1971, is returning briefly from political exile in California to attend a state dinner for Teng on Monday evening. Nixon's presence, at Carter's invitation, marks the former president's first return to the White House since his resignation because of Watergate.

Nixon will join Carter and Teng for a gala at the Kennedy Center afterward.

Teng, who ranks third in the Chinese hierarchy but first in planning China's industrial revolution, hopes to make headway in the United States on trade, commercial and scientific deals that U.S. officials say could involve hundreds of millions of dollars.

The administration officials said, however, that the United States will not sell weapons to China — or to the Soviet Union, for that matter — and might veto British, French or other allied sales of arms with American components to Peking.

At the same time, Carter will emphasize "the high importance the United States attaches to a peaceful settlement on Taiwan," said one U.S. specialist on Chinese affairs who declined the use of his name.

In normalizing relations with the Communist mainland, Carter ended U.S. diplomatic ties with Taiwan. This has raised concerns in Congress and elsewhere about the security of the 17 million people on the island.

Since Jan. 1, Teng has made a number of statements interpreted within the administration as conciliatory. In addition, China has ended its long-time shelling of the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

But Teng also has not ruled out reuniting Taiwan to the mainland by "other than peaceful means." He said in Peking earlier this month: "We cannot tie our hands on this matter."

While Teng looks to the United States for a capitalist hand in modernization plans for his poverty-stricken country of 900 million persons, new opportunities are opening here as well.

The normalization of relations has sparked negotiations with major American oil companies on what could be a spectacular deal to develop China's vast offshore oil resources.

Chinese work on developing seed stocks is drawing the interest of American agriculturists.

"The Chinese intend to pay for what they get," said another U.S. official about the trade arrangements likely to grow out of Teng's visit. Commerce between the United States and China this year alone is estimated at $1.6 billion.

Tractorcade Group Takes Day's Rest

WYTHEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Hundreds of tractor-riding farmers rested up Sunday on their way to Washington to plant some demands with lawmakers which they hope will take root in Congress.

The tractorcade is one of the nine nationwide that will merge into three before arriving in the nation's capital this week.

It will leave here this morning for Roanoke, where it will stay overnight at the Church of God campgrounds off Interstate 81.

tional suspect involved in the alleged offense is still at large" but that authorities are "unable to specify a suspect at this time."

During the course of the investigation, in which Texas Rangers also assisted, deputies took aerial photographs of the rural murder site, a popular "lovers' lane" area. Officials also employed hypnosis in the hopes that the rape victim would be able to provide them with additional details of the slaying.

about an hour later. He worked his way to the rear and sat in the aisle opposite Mrs. McKinney, who was holding the white flight bag.

Mrs. McKinney allowed 25 of her captives off the plane after being told they suffered various ailments, the FBI said. As Yost and Mrs. McKinney talked, Bikel pulled out his guitar in the front of the aircraft and "did what I do best."

He opened his impromptu performance with "Time In A Bottle" and then, according to passengers, performed one song after another throughout the night.

"It was therapy for them and for me," said the 54-year-old veteran Broadway actor. But, he joked, "I don't want to go to such lengths to get an audience in the future."

Judge Sentences 176 Demonstrators

SEATTLE (AP) — A federal judge has sentenced 176 protesters who were convicted Jan. 2 of illegally entering the Trident nuclear submarine base under construction near Bangor.

U.S. District Judge Donald Voorhees on Friday handed down 45-day suspended sentences with three-year probations to 171 anti-nuclear demonstrators, but five other protesters were ordered to serve the 45-day prison terms.

The convictions stemmed from a May 23, 1978 protest staged following warnings by the Navy not to trespass.

The Sahara Desert, with 3.5 million square miles, is just a shade smaller than the United States.

Laetrile Injunction Court Relief Asked

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — While three-year-old Chad Green undergoes Laetrile treatment at a clinic here, a court hearing is scheduled for Monday in Boston that may affect his parents' future.

At the hearing in the Massachusetts Appeals Court, George Donovan, lawyer for Gerald and Diana Green of Scituate, Mass., will seek revocation of the court order that led them to flee 2,500 miles with their leukemia-stricken son.

A judge in Plymouth, Mass., Superior Court last week ordered that Chad not be given the Laetrile and metabolic therapy his parents believed was making him better.

Medico del Mar clinic here for Laetrile treatment.

Although Chad had been living with his parents, Judge Guy Volterra, who ordered the ban on Laetrile, placed him in the legal custody of the state Department of Public Welfare.

Volterra on Wednesday will hear arguments in Plymouth on a motion to have the parents cited for contempt of court for leaving the court's jurisdiction.

Chad had been receiving chemotherapy treatment for leukemia at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston for nearly one year. The leukemia was reported to be in remission.

The Greens added Laetrile, a substance derived from fruit pits, and large doses of vitamins to the hospital treatment. They say they fear what will happen to their boy if chemotherapy is continued without the Laetrile and special diet.

Judge Volterra accepted evidence by the state showing Chad had low-grade cyanide poisoning as a result of Laetrile and special vitamins.

Chad will continue to get the Prednisone prescribed by Massachusetts doctors while he is in Mexico.

"He's getting everything he would have been getting at Massachusetts General Hospital," Mrs. Green said here Saturday.

"We still feel the legal issue is important, but not more important than Chad."

The federal Food and Drug Administration has refused to sanction Laetrile, which some opponents say is harmful because it deceives patients into thinking they are getting better.

The U.S. Supreme Court agreed last week to consider whether to lift the ban on the interstate transportation of Laetrile.

Two-Day Bank Siege Ends With Man's Death

OSAKA, Japan (UPI) — Riot police burst into a bank office Sunday and fatally wounded a gunman who had held 25 people hostage for two days after killing two policemen and two bank employees in an attempted bank robbery.

Police said Akiyoshi Umekawa, 30, died of two neck wounds and loss of blood at the Osaka Police Hospital at 5:43 p.m., about nine hours after he was shot, despite emergency surgery.

The 25 bank employees — 18 women and seven men — held hostage by Umekawa for more than 42 hours were rescued and taken to a hospital, but all were reported in good condition.

The dramatic end came early Sunday when a six-man riot squad, armed with pistols, charged into the office of the Kitabatake branch of the Mitsubishi Bank in Osaka, Japan's second largest city about 315 miles west of Tokyo, where Umekawa was holed up with his hostages.

The action came shortly after Umekawa, with a murder-robbery record, turned over to police the bodies of four policemen and bank officials he shot and killed Saturday.

The four victims were identified as Masami Kusumoto, 52, and Kazuki Maehata, 29, both Osaka policemen, Koji Morioka, 47, bank manager, and Hiroshi Hagio, 20, a clerk.

The drama began about a half hour before the bank was scheduled to close at 3 p.m. Friday. Umekawa, armed with a hunting shotgun, walked in and demanded 50 million yen ($251,256) in cash.

"Put the money in this bag in 10 seconds," he ordered a woman clerk while brandishing the gun. But as she began putting money in a red sack, the two policemen arrived in response to a secret emergency call and were killed.

Umekawa then fatally shot Korioka and Hagio and took 45 persons, including customers in the office, as hostages. Turning a deaf ear by his mother's pleas to surrender, Umekawa ordered his hostages to line up and threatened to kill them "one by one" if police closed in.

However, he later released all the customers and some of the employees, including three who received wounds. One of the wounded, Sadao Takeuchi, 47, was shot at close range and had his left ear blown off. Doctors said he was in serious condition.

Police said Umekawa, an unemployed high school dropout, spent more than a year at a reformatory on murder and robbery charges when he was 15 years old.

Sanford Fleming, the Canadian who originated standard time, was born in 1827.

Seminole Officials Aid Mennonite Efforts

SEMINOLE (AP) — Time is running out, but officials of this West Texas town have joined 550 Mennonite immigrants in appealing for an extension of a Feb. 1 deadline given the group to win approval for permanent residence.

The immigrants came from Canada and Mexico with the dream of establishing a farm-based Mennonite community on the 6,400 acres they bought near Seminole.

The exclusive Christian sect was scheduled for deportation shortly after they arrived without proper visas in 1977, but Congress passed a special bill allowing them until Feb. 1, 1979, to get the okay for permanent residence.

Williams Chambers, regional director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said prospects look dismal for the group meeting the deadline.

The Mennonites applied for permanent residence on the basis of expected jobs with Seminole-Mennonite Enterprises Inc., which was to be busily building windmill-powered electric generators by now, providing work for half the Mennonite families.

But government investigators visited S-ME Inc. recently and found a cavernous building with almost no activity inside.

"The company simply is not in a position to hire them as it was expected to do," Chambers said.

"Naturally, it's a disappointment. They were looking for this to transpire, and so were we."

If the Mennonites are unable to qualify for permanent residence, "then they'll eventually have to leave the country," Chambers said.

"This doesn't mean we're going to swoop in on Feb. 1 and move all of them out. It will be taken gradually on an individual basis."

The land the Mennonites bought was less productive than they had thought, so most of them abandoned the land and sought work in town or on area farms.

All but 25 of the 118 family heads and single adults have managed to find jobs which they hope will qualify them for permanent resident status.

They are in various stages of preparing involved paperwork required to certify their jobs as ones no Americans want, or that no Americans are available to fill.

"We certainly hope that most all will be able to stay," Mennonites' attorney John Shepherd said. "There's no way I can guarantee that, of course."

S-ME Inc. is still a possibility.

Mark Harris, inventor of the windmill-generator and S-ME Inc. operations manager, says the company will be doing contract metal fabrication work by summer. The windmill project is "on hold," he added.

He said he won't be hiring any Mennonites strictly out of charity.

"I don't make any money on goodwill missions," Harris said.

"The only reason I'm in Seminole is to make money."

U.S. Mission Leaves Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A 34-member U.S. goodwill mission left for home Sunday expressing assurance that Congress will urge the Carter administration to acknowledge a governmental relationship between the United States and Taiwan.

One senator, nine congressmen and 24 war veterans, scholars, civic leaders and businessmen visited Taiwan for four days.

Rep. George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, leader of the mission, said "we'll be doing whatever we can to see to it that the United States keeps its commitments of giving the fuel, and the final equipment necessary to take care of the atomic program that you have started...we'll do everything we can to get you the necessary combat fighters to protect yourselves."

Commenting on President Carter's recent statement that he saw no need for a legislative resolution to affirm U.S. support for Taiwan's survival, Hansen said "well, we don't have a one-man government and it doesn't matter what Mr. Carter says that he thinks he can go along without the Congress...and the people who represent the people of the United States."

"It is always difficult to undo what the president has done — but we have the great sentiment of the American people to assist us. I think we have a cause which is right and just. I think we're going to be able to prevail by stopping the president from doing some of the things he wants to do, until he agrees to do the right things," he said.

On discussions that the mission held with Nationalist Chinese government leaders, including President Chiang Ching-kuo and Premier Sun Yun-suan, Hansen said, "we discussed the needs of the republic of China under the new circumstances and what circumstances they find themselves in and what we can possibly do to assist."

5 Million Americans Exposed To Radiation

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Nearly 5 million Americans are unwittingly exposed to potentially harmful radiation on the job, says a government health researcher.

Gene Moss, with the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, said, "We are uncovering some significant biological effects, often of alarming proportions, in certain occupations" where workers are exposed to amounts of radiation below accepted danger levels.

"Since people are apparently still dying of radiation-caused cancer, those levels must be re-evaluated," he added.

Moss is a member of a task force compiling a White House-ordered survey into the effects on people of exposure to radiation. The survey is scheduled to be released in April.

He said the study indicated 6.9 million of the nation's 100 million workers come in contact with radioactive products or material on their jobs, but only 3 million of those may be aware of the contact.

The survey concluded occupational exposure was, in most cases, 10 to 20 times lower than required by current safety regulations.

"This is the first time we've been able to get even a rough handle on how much radiation the average worker receives on the job," Moss said in a telephone interview last week from the institute's laboratories in Cincinnati. "If you want to believe those exposure figures, then you must assume that most people are working within safe limits. But it's obvious that something is wrong."

"Low-level radiation is apparently generating a medical phenomenon throughout the country. Leukemia and other types of cancer have been reported among people in Colorado living near uranium mine tailings; in men who observed atomic bomb testings; in nuclear shipyard workers, and people in many other areas."

"The Portsmouth (N.H., Naval) Shipyard may be the most current example of the problem," he said. "Shipyard workers have reportedly contracted a higher than anticipated level of leukemia then is found in shipyard employees not doing nuclear work."

Moss said if the cause of leukemia and other types of cancer among persons subjected to low-level radiation is not radiation alone, "perhaps its synergistic effect of radiation and other carcinogenic agents in the work area or something we don't even know about yet."

TRULY DIFFERENT, AND APPRECIATED — PKM Jewel Salon probably means "diamonds" or "fine jewelry" to most, but owners Ron and Leesa Morgan correctly point out that selective gifts, decor items and more is included in the departmentalized stock. Shown are the Morgans (standing) and staff-member Donna Golightly in an area of the so-pretty shop devoted to gifts and decor pieces.

PKM Jewel Salon Sets Special Showings, Tells Wide Variety

Devoted to excellence, the several departments of PKM Jewel Salon, afford much that is new even to those accustomed to the "difference" that is PKM! Truly, PKM, at 4509 50th St., phone 793-3291, is unique, a one-of-its-kind establishment, and proving in all aspects that PKM is for "Now!"

At this time, PKM probably can head its specialties with re-designing of family heirloom jewelry.

And there is lots of work, too, with gold fashion jewelry, new stock items and custom creations.

Pearls are strong in style, and more emphasis is noted on colored stones, among the trends noted by PKM that stocks and serves accordingly.

Special Showings Loom

Several special showings direct added interest to the "goodies in store" at PKM, and one is invited to inquire regarding dates and full details of such showings as (1) rubies and sapphires from Burma and Australia, (2) custom mountings, and (3) of special interest a showing of custom designed jewelry by

Peter Lindeman

(At an age when most children are at play, Peter Lindeman was seated for long hours at a European jeweler's table in Montevideo, Uruguay. He was 12 years old, and learning a trade.)

Now, the Peter Lindeman quality, style, value and superb craftsmanship must all exist together in every piece of jewelry he designs and makes in his own workshop. He stamps his own hallmark (a tear shaped design) with his initial on the back of every piece of his jewelry, from the highest price bracelet to the lowest cost pin.

Accessories For The Home

It is conceivable that some area residents do not realize that PKM not only provides the finest and most-desired jewelry, but stocks a most discriminating selection of accessories for the home. A distinct department and room is devoted to art objects, brass items, crystal, etc., each personally selected by PKM owner Ron Morgan as worthy of PKM and the clientele it serves.

Gifts suitable for the man receive full attention at PKM, as for others of the family and for the home.

Another benefit of note at PKM is the services of staff-member Henry Gibson who manufactures jewelry right on the premises.

Donna Golightly is on the staff and is especially knowledgeable and helpful in jewelry and gift selections for the home.

Ron and Leesa Morgan, the husband-wife team owning PKM, seem to have left nothing undone in providing a store and service to be appreciated. Ron, a Lubbock resident c. some 10 years, has been well known as jewelry department manager of another city firm, establishing PKM, Ltd. as his own business in November of 1977.

Decor alone could well be reason for a visit to PKM, but add to this the stunning arrangements and selections of diamond and gold jewelry, rare jewels, precious stones, loose diamonds, etc., at a "more affordable price" and one readily can recognize this as a store on which to rely, a "now" establishment.

Modern Chevrolet Fleet Lease Department Serves Nationwide

Possibly best known in the area as "No. 1 in Lubbock County for new unit sales for 23 consecutive years", Modern Chevrolet at 41st & Q is equally devoted to service in each of its several departments.

This week, attention is focused on the Fleet Leasing and Sales program there under direction of C.E. "Doc" Davis, with Modern for more than 13 years.

Imagine... some 500 units handled per year through the lease department, with lease cars and trucks from Modern Chevrolet in Lubbock being placed in 39 states and in Canada!

"There must be a reason!"

Multiple Advantages

This reason likely can be readily discovered upon talking with "Doc" and securing the full details that spell savings, utility and convenience.

Davis, knowledgeable in all aspects of auto leasing, likes to explain the tax savings incurred through utilization of lease units. The businessman, especially, finds multiple advantages, including capital being freed for other investment.

Modern Chevrolet has maintained its Lease Department for 15 years, and its president, Gordon Rose, points out that some 25 per cent of the firm's new car and truck volume is due to fleet lease and sales of cars and trucks!

Centralized Operation

Modern Chevrolet early this year marks its second anniversary in the big, convenient, new quarters at 41st Street and Avenue Q, where all operations and facilities of the firm are grouped (with exception of a truck facility only a short distance away. (Modern once had six locations for its various operations.) This new concentration enables a more streamline and efficient operation of the close-knit Modern family, with this progressive move benefitting the customer, as one can see.

Modern Chevrolet, 100 per cent locally owned, has a record and a status that is impressive, and the Fleet Leasing Department does not detract from this image!

"Modern is more than just a business... it is people... folks whose knowledge of the firm's products and services is equalled by their desire to serve, people whose devotion to their customers' interests is recognized in every transaction.

"You'll like all aspects of Modern Chevrolet, including the Fleet Sales and Lease Department."

Business & Industrial Review

Dubose Provides Full-Service Garage, Machine Shop In City

"Satisfaction" is the big word and very real situation at Dubose Automotive & Machine Shop, 1520 19th St., phone 765-8429.

Offering a full-service garage and machine shop at one convenient location, Dubose emphasizes that "our goal is to satisfy every customer, providing quality parts and service at least expense. We do what is needed, no more. If we find your auto needs additional repairs, we contact you before doing more than you expected."

Isn't this the type shop one can appreciate?

Major and minor tune-ups are a specialty and are guaranteed for 6,000 miles or six months with limited warranty.

"Now would be an excellent time to see Dubose for tune-up to ready the auto for post-winter enjoyment as well as present efficiency of its operation."

Local Operation
Mr. and Mrs. Dubose (Doug and Nancy) opened the machine shop in January of 1977, assuming ownership of the garage soon afterward. Both are lifelong Lubbock and immediate area residents, and Doug has literally been in the mechanical field all his life. They are the kind of folks on whom one can depend, folks to enjoy knowing and patronizing.

Capable staff members are in the machine shop and garage. Not only does Dubose do work for the individual, but also for other garages and dealerships.

The automotive machine shop can handle any machine work for auto, truck and guides replacement, resurfacing of heads and engine blocks, engine block boring, piston pin fitting, rod resizing, vat cleaning, brake drum grinding, disc rotor grinding, crankshaft exchange, Vega short blocks and valve work. Kwik-way head blasting and more.

Worried you'll miss an opportunity? Remember, we guarantee your satisfaction at Dubose Automotive & Machine Shop, 1520 19th St.

Quaker Villa Prides In Able Staff, Facilities Providing 'A Good Life'

SUE FLANAGAN, ADMINISTRATOR

Every phase of operation at Quaker Villa points to the fact that "it costs no more to enjoy the best."

Quaker Villa, intermediate care center at 4403 74th St., takes pride in affording "a good life for its residents", and for a year now has been associated with Friendship Villa, Inc., as a locally operated enterprise.

Sue Flanagan is administrator, Jimmie Kelley, LVN, is director of nursing, and Janet Hunton is program director.

Designed To Serve
Qualifying for old age assistance and welfare as an intermediate care facility, Type 3, Quaker Villa provides 96 beds, and the exceptional care is correctly hinted by the large staff of some 60 employees, and the spacious facilities.

Six LVN's are on duty to provide 24-hour-a-day care.
All residents must have doctors' referral, and all medications are by doctors' orders.

No extended contract period is involved, and residence can be for any length time, in no instance necessarily permanent.

Planned activities are very much a part of the program, including games, entertainment and numerous craft pursuits. Parties are arranged at frequent intervals, and community involvement is encouraged.

Sister Facility
Attention also is directed to the University Villa care facility, also under the same ownership, but located at 2400 Quaker Ave.

Physical facilities at each, and the qualified, interested personnel make residence at either a very pleasant experience, more than a few "who know" will attest.

Coppercreek MINE
A NAME TO BE REMEMBERED — WHEN FINE FOOD IS THE CONSIDERATION

Coppercreek Mine In Monterey Excels In Steaks, Wide Menu

Have you enjoyed the finest charcoal broiled steaks in the Southwest?
Or, we could say, have you dined at the Coppercreek Mine?

Located at 50th Street and Flint Avenue (Monterey Center), Coppercreek Mine is locally owned and operated, and though affording a wide and choice menu, it takes special pride in its steak offering.

Winter hours presently are observed: 11 a.m. until 2 p.m., and from 5 until 10 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, with Saturday hours 5-10, closed Sunday.

Whether selection there is a prime rib, top sirloin, filet, pepper steak, T-bone or other steak order, Mexican food, deep fried shrimp, chicken bits, fried catfish, burgers and sandwiches or choice of beverages, Coppercreek Mine serves to invite return visits, time and again!

Luncheon Specials
Luncheon specials are afforded Mondays through Fridays, 11 until 2, with a dinner steak (6 oz. club) at a modest $3.25; chicken fried steak at $2.50, chicken bits at $2.50, steak fingers, $2.50, cheese enchiladas, also $2.50, and beef enchiladas at $2.75.

Folks You Know
Curtis Campbell and Ken Garner are partners and active operators of Coppercreek Mine.

It is pointed out that Frank Lee is on hand as charbroiler. Frank is well known as a steak specialist over the years in Lubbock; he was the original cook at the Hickory Inn, later serving at the Gridiron, then coming to Coppercreek Mine upon the present owner's purchase of this Monterey Center eating establishment last July 1.

Fully Staffed
Also on hand in the spacious facility are four waitresses, two cooks, two bartenders and two cocktail waitresses.

Banquet facilities are provided, with one room accommodating 90, another for 30. A "Mother Lode" lounge is provided, as is a really great salad bar.

Partner Curtis Campbell is a former Lubbock and area coach, having taught at Evans Junior High School in Lubbock and at Olton, Levelland and Roosevelt. A graduate of WTSC (Canyon), and of Texas Tech, Curtis is a nine-year Lubbock resident. Partner Ken Garner is a Lubbock resident of over 20 years, and marks years of service here in the real estate and insurance fields.

Both Ken and Curtis, widely known in the area, are anxious to renew acquaintance, make new friends and to serve you at Coppercreek Mine, a really distinctive establishment, phone 799-4379, in Monterey Center, whether for a lunch, evening out with family and friends, or for banquet service. Reservations are enabled.

"We want to prove that we have the finest charcoal broiled steaks in the entire Southwest... may we have the opportunity?"

Lee's Custom Jewelers Tells Appropriate Valentine Gifts

"For your Valentine... why consider less than a gift of jewelry?"
"And where better could one select a cherished remembrance than at Lee's Custom Jewelers, 2115 50th St.?"

Something for all ages is evident in the selective and attractive displays... from quality diamond jewelry to watches and bands.

Whatever the choice, one may be sure that "quality" has been the foremost consideration of Lee's, passing on this quality at sensible prices.

Lee's Custom Jewelers, in Oakwood Center, has a very good selection of mountings, with equally impressive choice in diamonds and colored stones. Gift certificates are available at all times.

A very good selection of Longines, Wittnauer, Seiko and Technos fine watches is stocked.

Custom-made jewelry is one of the shop's specialties, and there still is time to have custom jewelry orders completed by Valentines Day, but only if one hurries!

Repairs
Watch repair receives expert attention at Lee's Custom Jewelers, with qualified watchmakers including owner Lee Tyler Jr. on the job. All repair work is done right in the store, with none "sent out," thus assuring both personal and expert attention.

Master Charge and Visa purchase are welcomed.

Lee Tyler Jr., a Lubbock resident over a decade, purchased the firm about eight years ago, and he and his wife, Wilene, had a staff dedicated to quality merchandise and finest service.

"For jewelry items sure to please, and for watch service and repair (of all major brands), one can turn with confidence to Lee's Custom Jewelers, phone 744-4814, in Oakwood Center, Lubbock."

Paroled Slayer Regrets Shooting Old Friend

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Richard Jimenez and Richard Lama grew up together near Hidalgo Street at a time when Mexican-American street gangs ripped each other apart after night fell in the barrio.

Both knew the switch-blade life of San Antonio's rugged west side neighborhood. And each made a choice.

Jimenez ran with the "Ghosts," a youth gang that ruled the territory around Hidalgo during the height of the vicious gang wars of the late 1950s and early 1960s. His destiny was prison — a 99-year sentence for murder by the time he was 21.

Lama always wanted to be a cop. Nearly two decades later, the attention of the old neighborhood was riveted on two of its own.

Patrolman Richard Lama, 34, of the San Antonio Police Department answered a routine Thursday night "domestic disturbance" call at a tiny frame house on Hidalgo. As Lama got out of his car, Jimenez allegedly wheeled on the porch and cut down the officer with a flurry of gunfire before he recognized the target as his boyhood friend.

One bullet caught Lama in the knee, the other glanced off his belt, under his bullet-proof vest and into his back.

Jimenez, a paroled murderer who had the arrest record of a veteran before he was even 20, crashed through the front window of the mustard-yellow house and allegedly took Susie Guerrero, 28, and her three young children hostage.

Firing periodically with a .22-caliber rifle and a .38-caliber pistol, Jimenez coolly stymied a small army of heavily-armed police for a tense 22 hours. He gave up only after accidentally shooting himself in the leg when distracted Friday night by a low-flying police helicopter.

The hostages, including a 5-month-old girl, were unhurt. Hundreds of neighbors, many of whom knew both Lama and Jimenez, silently watched the drama through Thursday night and Friday.

Inspector Frank Hoyack said Friday night that Jimenez, 33, was being charged with attempted capital murder and could face other charges. He was hospitalized, but his leg wound was not thought to be serious.

Lama was listed in "good" condition late Friday night. Doctors said he was out of danger.

Throughout the siege, a specially-trained police team of negotiators conducted ticklish, nonstop negotiations by telephone and bullhorn in English and Spanish. At one point, Jimenez was told the identity of the wounded officer.

He said he was "very sorry." "He told us, 'If I knew it was Lama, I wouldn't have shot him,'" said Inspector Edward Foresman.

The wounded Lama, rescued under fire by ambulance attendants, told attendant J.J. Garcia en route to the hospital, "I can't believe it. I knew the guy. We went to school together."

"They grew up in the same neighborhood," Virginia Lama, 28, said of her husband and Jimenez. "He's a friend. Not a very close friend, but if they saw each other, I'm sure they'd know each other."

"My husband always wanted to be a policeman so he could help people," continued Mrs. Lama. "He grew up on the west side and knows how bad things are over there."

Lama worked seven years at a manufacturing job before getting his chance at the police academy when he was 31. He volunteered for the feared duty in the barrio. "He was never happy before he was a policeman," his wife said.

Jimenez, convicted in 1966 of stabbing and shooting a west side man to death the previous year, had also earlier been charged with two homicides, an assault, two robberies, a burglary and a weapons violation.

"He knew what he was doing," said Patrolman Hector Ayala, head of the crack team of negotiators. "We were playing with him and he was playing with us. He's an ex-con, he knew what was going on. He was no fool."

"He was a very shrewd man, a very intelligent man," said Patrolman Buck Conrad, also on the negotiating team.

Jimenez, who dated the divorced Mrs. Guerrero, regularly demanded food, coffee and freedom and said he wanted to see Mrs. Guerrero's ex-husband, Oscar. He regularly called police and radio and television stations.

All of his demands were refused after Jimenez declined to release the children. Breakdowns in the negotiations were punctuated by blasts from Jimenez's guns — more than 30 rounds were fired.

One deflected bullet slightly injured a bystander, but Jimenez passed up numerous opportunities to shoot neighbors who watched while clearly exposed to fire.

"We've got all the time in the world," Foresman said earlier Friday in outlining police plans to simply outlast the gunman.

Albania Scoffs

At Chinese Claim

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Albania scoffed on Sunday at China's image of itself as a leader of the Third World, claiming China is using the role to cover its "treacherous alliance with U.S. imperialism" and make developing countries subservient.

China was once the Adriatic nation's only ally, but relations have deteriorated in the past year.

According to a translation carried by the Albanian news agency ATA, the newspaper Zeri i Popullit said the Chinese leadership believes Third World nations actually "should do nothing else but play the role of the servile and become cannon fodder, because everything else is played and hatched up by the 'brain and heart' of this certain world: China."

Officers never returned fire. Hoyack said there were never any plans to storm the house with machine gun-carrying SWAT officers unless there was any "imminent danger" to the hostages.

After dark Friday, Jimenez took the phone off the hook and didn't respond to negotiators for more than an hour. That prompted police to bring in a helicopter equipped with a powerful spotlight.

The helicopter loudly buzzed the house several times before hovering over it, bathing the small structure in a bright light.

Mrs. Guerrero was forced to call police, saying that Jimenez wanted the helicopter to leave because it was upsetting him, said Hoyack. The helicopter remained, however.

HOSTAGE AIDED — An unidentified San Antonio police SWAT officer aids Susie Guerrero and her 5-month-old daughter Friday night after the gunman who had held the young mother and her three children hostage surrendered. The child is wrapped in a police officer's jacket. None of the hostages was harmed. (AP Laserphoto)

Loans To Students Must Be Collected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government warned the nation's colleges and universities Sunday that if they don't start collecting their defaulted student loans, it will try to cut off the federal share of their loan funds.

The announcement is the latest in a series of actions the Carter administration has taken to reduce or terminate federal participation in the 20-year-old National Direct Student Loan program administered by more than 3,000 institutions, but funded almost entirely by federal tax dollars.

The latest proposal by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. accompanied the release of new figures showing the default rate in the direct student loan program has continued to rise, despite government efforts to convince institutions to tighten up their collection activities.

At the same time, Califano announced that the government-run Federal Insured Student Loan program has cut its default rate from 13 percent to about 10 percent in a little more than a year, although it still has some 350,000 loans, totalling more than $400 million, in default.

The default rate in the direct loan program, Califano said, increased from 16.9 percent at the end of June 1977 to 17.7 percent a year later, with more than $700 million in bad debts, according to preliminary figures.

Califano said that despite offers of federal assistance in cleaning up the backlog and improving administration of the loan program, "institutions have not taken full advantage" of government help.

He said he has asked education Commissioner Ernest L. Boyer to develop a proposal that would cut participating schools off from further National Direct Student Loan money if they fail to meet federally set performance standards for reducing their default rate.

The proposal, to take effect in the 1980-81 academic year, would evaluate the schools' performance in the year ending this June 30.

At the outset of this administration, President Carter sought to end continued federal funding of the direct loan program, arguing that it was designed to be a revolving fund, with the schools using the money coming in from graduates as they paid off their loans to finance new loans for today's students.

As some officials have said, the institutions never tried to collect their outstanding loans because they always expected the federal government to continue to finance the program with 90 percent matching grants. Others said inflation in tuition and other education costs would make it impossible for the low-interest loan program ever to succeed as a self-perpetuating revolving fund.

Congress rejected the administration's attempt to pull out of the program, and this year Carter proposed to cut federal funding by $94 million, reducing the $329 million expected to be spent in the current fiscal year to $235 in fiscal 1980, which begins Oct. 1.

DIFFERENT INTERESTS

NEW YORK (AP) — To check whether depositors get uniform interest payments on savings accounts, a state legislator put identical amounts of money into the same type of account in three different banks. State Sen. Emanuel Gold of Brooklyn said Sunday each of the banks paid him a different amount of interest in each of two quarters. Gold said the differences were based on how each bank programmed its computers. The computer programs cost depositors millions of dollars, he added.

ME AND MY CADDY — Fuzzy Zoeller and his caddy, Mike Mazzeo, stride victoriously across the 18th green as the last foursome plays through in the final round Sunday of the Williams San Diego Open. Zoeller Captures Title At San Diego Tourney

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller followed his game plan to perfection — in fact, one stroke better — in scoring his first career victory Sunday in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"When I saw that wind, I figured I'd just try to play the first five holes one over par, and then par in," Zoeller said. He negotiated the first six holes one over par in the cruel playing conditions — howling, gale force winds, cold, occasional rain and snow squalls and a hailstorm — and, with a last-hole birdie, was one under par the rest of the way.

It added up to a solid par-72 and an easy, front-running, unchallenged 5-stroke victory.

"I didn't give anything back (to par). I'm very, very proud of that," Zoeller said.

Fuzzy — more formally Frank Urban Zoeller — collected $45,000 from the total purse of $250,000 after posting his 282 total, 6 under par on the 7,047 yards of windswept cliffs and crags that make up the south course at the Torrey Pines Country Club.

He was a front-runner throughout the once-delayed round. Zoeller started the final round with a 2-stroke margin, went to three in front when Jerry McGee bogeyed the first hole in windy cold and led by that margin most of the way. He took a 4-stroke advantage when McGee made double bogey beneath a tree on the 13th hole.

From that point on, it was just a matter of how large the winning margin would be for the man who got his nickname from his autograph-signature. He signs with his initials, FUZ.

Play was hampered all day by the winds that gusted to 50 mph, biting cold and occasional rain and snow squalls. It was halted for 15 minutes by a hailstorm which covered the greens with ice pellets.

Tom Watson, the Player of the Year for the last two seasons and making his first start of 1979, had just finished his round of 71 — including 33 on the back nine — when the hail struck the course, clearing it of the few, heavily-bundled spectators.

"The weather conditions raised havoc with us out there," Watson said. "It was an ordeal."

Using this tournament as a prep for the defense of his title next week in the Bing Crosby, Watson finished with a 287 total, 1 under par and tied for second with Wayne Levi. Bill Kratzert and Artie McNickle. Kratzert shot 74, McNickle matched par 72 and Levi had the best round of the day, a 4-under-par 68.

McGee, the second-round leader and second alone starting final-round play, had to birdie the last hole to get in at par 288 and a tie for sixth. He had a closing 76.

Sharing the position with McGee were Lee Trevino, who once held second place alone, Victor Regalado and Jerry Pate. All three had closing 74s.

"I've never seen weather like this here," said Regalado, a native of nearby Tijuana, Mexico.

The stocky, powerful Zoeller, packing 190 pounds on a 5-foot-10 frame, is one of golf's longest hitters, and he used his strength to an advantage in the wind.

"There's a couple of par-4s, Nos. 1 and 12, that it's almost impossible to reach in two," said Watson.

Zoeller, however, had little difficulty. He lost one stroke to par over the front nine, played steadily coming home and capped off the triumph with a birdie on the 18th after receiving a free drop from a paved road.

Chaps Play Host To Jarvis College

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Fresh from snatching defeat from the jaws of victory, the Lubbock Christian College basketball team takes on Jarvis Christian tonight and Tuesday night in a pair of home games.

"I've seen some games lost weird, but it's been a while," coach Larry Hays said of the 75-74 cliffhanger the Chaps gave to McMurry Saturday night.

Twice they seemed to have the game won, a two-point lead with only three seconds left in regulation and a one-point lead with six seconds left in overtime.

But mistakes at key times and the cool hand of McMurry guard Donnie Ray Cruse left Lubbock Christian with its 12th loss of the year against six wins.

Hays said he did see some things that encouraged him in the loss.

"There were some things I liked. Our guard play is still improving. We've got four guards doing a job now. There were some good things but when you lose it's hard to see them sometimes."

According to Hays, LCC is going to need all the guard play it can get over the next two days. Jarvis Christian, a team the Chaps whipped 97-86 just before Christmas break, is small but quick.

The Bulldogs' tallest players are 6-4, and they start a 6-3 post man and a 6-2 forward. But evidently they get the job done. Curtis Harris, the post, scored 16 points against LCC in the last meeting and Harrell Freeman, the forward, scored 18.

Leading all Jarvis scorers was Donnie Alexander, a 6-1 guard, he popped in 22 points.

"Their strength is at one of the guards," Hays said. "That guy (Alexander) is one of the best we've seen all year as far as one-on-one goes. He's not as good as somebody like Cruse for fundamentals but he goes a little wild sometimes and that hurts."

Hays said the Bulldogs did a lot of things the Chaps hate to see, things that a quick team does naturally.

"They'll press us, they'll do a lot of the things that give us problems. Then they'll drop back in a zone and make us shoot over them."

"Our guards are going to have to have good teams, not only offensively but defensively on their guards too."

That puts the pressure on starting guards Bruce Carver and Les Lierman. Carver's the one that missed the key free shots against McMurry.

"But I'll tell you one thing," Hays said. "If we were in the same situation again, I'd just as soon have him up there. He's going to come through more often than not."

Carver, Lierman and Bill McGee are all capable outside shooters. The other guard, Marshall Smith, is more of a traditional point man, bringing the ball up court and penetrating the key.

In the last meeting between LCC and Jarvis, Carver and quick forward Brian Fortner were the leading scorers with 23 points apiece. Fortner was also the leading rebounder with 15.

Fortner was also the leading scorer and boarder Saturday night, the only time that's happened since the Jarvis Christian game. He scored 19 and pulled down 9.

The team's leading scorers and rebounders over the season are still Keith Gardner and Kevin Wharton. Gardner still leads both categories with 20 points and 11.9 boards. Wharton's averaging 13.1 points and 11.1 rebounds.

Both suffered through tight games Saturday night against the taller Indians. Gardner got 17 points but only eight rebounds while Wharton was held to six points and seven boards before fouling out with seven minutes showing.

Tech Hosts TCU

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Question: What's it called when a swarming Texas Tech defense forces the University of Arkansas to turn the ball over six times during the final 10 minutes of play?

Answer: Pressed ham.

Although the full-court press worked almost to perfection against the Hogs Saturday night in Fayetteville, that doesn't necessarily mean coach Gerald Myers will be calling on it tonight when the Raiders host the TCU Horned Frogs in a SWC basketball contest.

"Just because it worked against Arkansas doesn't mean it's going to do the same against TCU," said Myers. "You really never know how a team is going to react under pressure. It certainly surprised me the way Arkansas turned it over the way they did."

The 7:30 p.m. contest in the Lubbock Coliseum begins the second half of conference play for the Raiders. Henceforth, it's all downhill.

Despite a late rally which saw the Raiders reel off 11 unanswered points and cut a 12-point UA advantage to only one with 3:36 left in the game, Tech wound up losing the matchup 63-57 due to some pressure free throw shooting by the Hogs.

At the same time down in Fort Worth, the Hogs were doing their damndest to upset Baylor, failing in their attempt, though, 77-69.

The loss dropped TCU to last in the conference, all by its lonesome, with an 0-7 mark (5-12 overall). Tech enters the contest with a 4-4 SWC record, sitting all alone in fifth place. The Raiders are 13-4 for the year.

Despite the loss, Myers feels the club is still in good shape as far as the race to the SWC tournament goes.

"We still have an opportunity to do well in the league," said Myers, adding that the Raiders will try desperately to finish in a position to gain a homecourt advantage when the tourney does roll around in March.

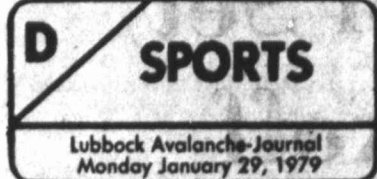

TCU coach Tim Somerville probably has other things on his mind than the tourney — namely his starters.

Against Baylor, Somerville suspended starters Steve Scales and Jeff Vincent and reserve Kenny Haynes for the evening because of breaking Friday night's curfew. And right now, the TCU boss is unsure if the pair will make the trip to Lubbock tonight.

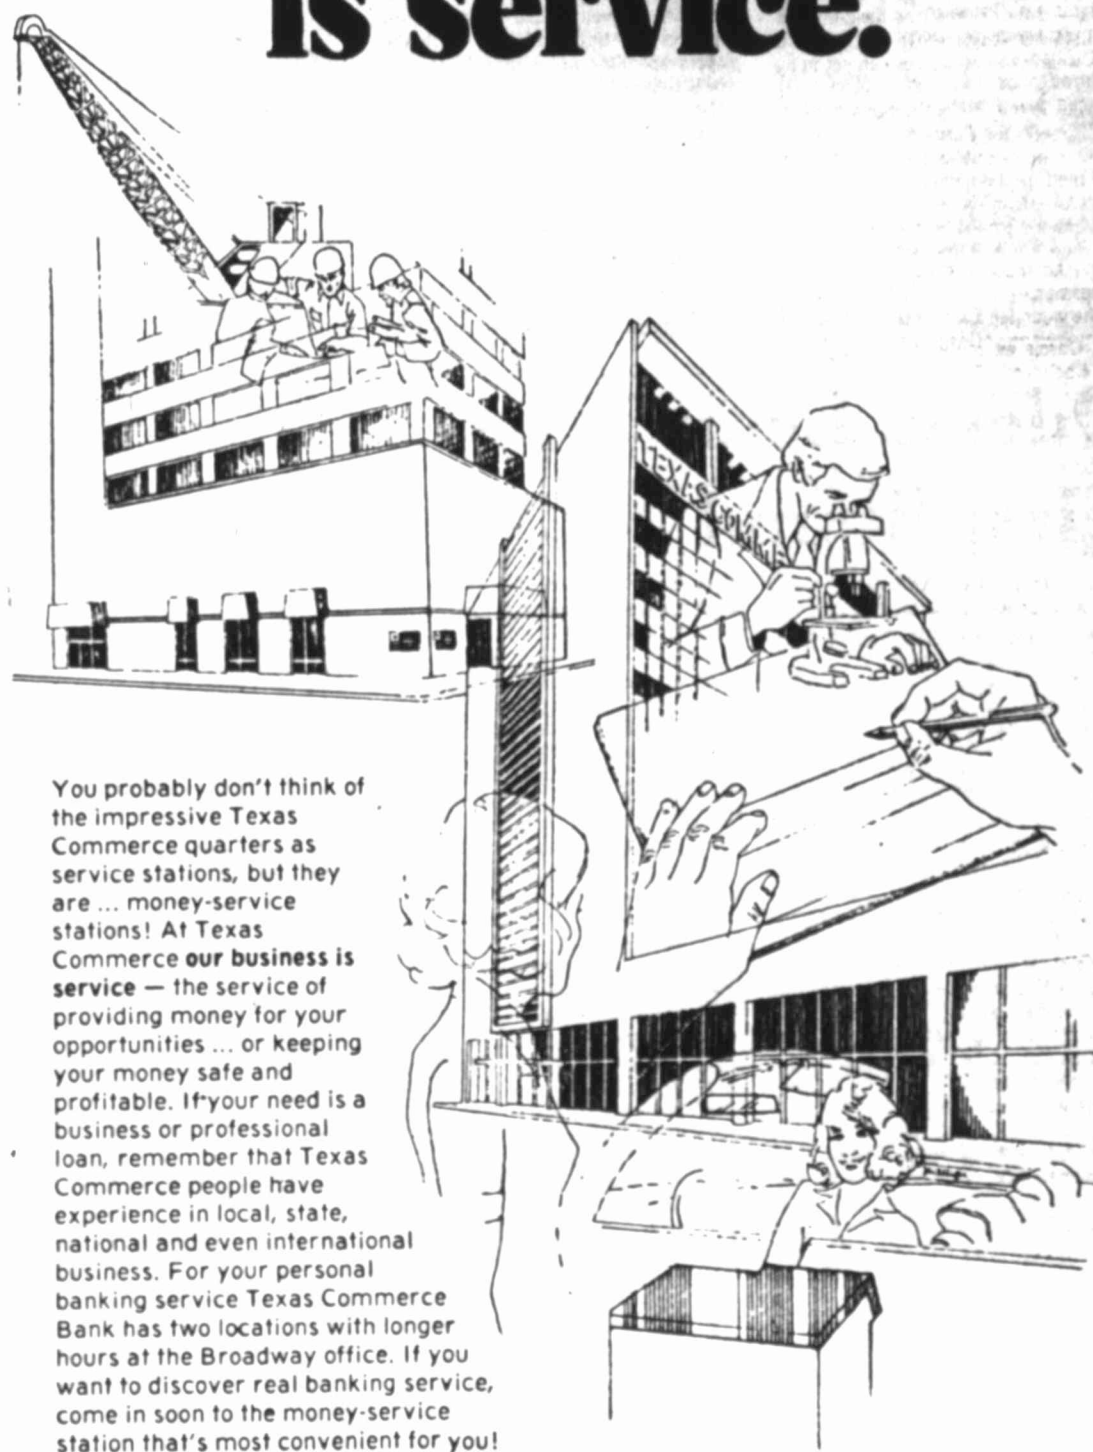

Scales, a 6-8 senior from Chicago, is the Frogs' second-leading scorer in SWC play with an 8.4 per game average, while Vincent, a 6-3 junior from Atlanta is hitting a 5.8 clip in conference.

With the duo out, Jon Mansbury and Ed Wineinger stepped in and fired away scoring 17 and 22 points respectively. W-

Love Helps Tech Tennis

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Last year the Texas Tech tennis team wound up Southwest Conference action with a dismal love-6 record. And even the casual tennis player knows that in this instance "love" isn't a nice word. It means zero—the Raiders were 0-6.

But love, the nice kind this time, may also be responsible for the best thing that has happened to the Tech tennis program in a long time.

Doug Davis, who was an outstanding high school player at Lubbock Coronado, before playing at West Texas State for two years is now at Tech. And Davis is the Raiders' top-seeded player.

How was Tech able to lure Davis from WTSU?

"His girlfriend is going to Tech," said first-year coach Mark Hamilton. "That made it kind of nice for us."

After transferring from WTSU, Davis sat out of action last year but has asserted himself this season.

"Doug's probably the best player in Lubbock," says Hamilton. "He's got a big serve and a big volley. He plays the type of power game that you like to see your top seed play."

For the last three years Harrison Bowe has been the Raiders' No. 1 seed. But in his senior year Bowe will move down to the number two position.

"Harrison had a trouble because he's a baseliner," said Hamilton "and he tends to get overpowered sometimes. He should do better in that position."

And in the number three spot will be another newcomer to the Tech campus, Chow Wah—obviously not a local product like Davis. Wah is from Malaysia where he was the number one male player in the country while still in high school.

He played at Navarro Junior College and Hamilton spotted him in the junior college regionals in Paris, Texas last year. Wah lost to the eventual junior national champion at the nationals last year. Wah has also played on the amateur circuit in England before coming to the states.

David Chrissey, who was the number two player at Tech for the last three years, will play in the number four spot in his senior year. But that doesn't necessarily mean a demotion.

"David's a good player," says Hamilton. "It's just that he has been playing against great players in the past." He should be able to do more good for the team where he's playing now.

Two other positions are open and there are four players in contention for the spots. Randy Clayton, Greg Davis, Joe Blackshear and Robert Bayes—the younger brother of Doug Davis, are all in contention.

So how do you prepare a team that was winless in the SWC the year before?

"Well I think we've got the best team we've had at Tech in the last five years," says Hamilton. "But the SWC is probably one of the best tennis conferences in the country. Maybe the Pacific is a little better."

Houston, Texas, TCU and Arkansas should all be among the top twenty this year and the SWC Mustangs could easily have the best team in the country.

"If we could finish sixth in the conference we would be on the verge of national recognition," said Hamilton.

The young Tech coach will have his work cut out for him though. But he plans to give his squad plenty of chances to play some of the county's best teams before the season begins.

The Raiders will travel to the west coast in March to compete in the "St. Patrick's Day" Invitational and then face Dartmouth, Notre Dame, Northwestern, Cal State Fullerton, Cal State Los Angeles and Pepperdine—among other things. This lineup represents some of the best in collegiate tennis.

"I think the California trip will be a big help for recruiting," said the coach. "I mean, I can point to that now instead of just the usual local schools we play."

Of course the Raiders still compete with some of "the local schools." Tech opens the season this Friday when they compete in the Heart Open Doubles Championship in Lubbock—an area affair.

And then there are matches with West Texas State, Angelo State, Oral Roberts and Hardin Simmons before the journey to California from March 16-28.

Hamilton is optimistic about the future of the Tech tennis program.

"Tennis seems to be taking off in Lubbock," he says. "A Tech Tennis Booster Club is in the planning stages and the indoor courts at the Racquet Club have really helped us."

The spring windy season used to hamper the Raiders practices some but the Tech athletic club purchased each member of the team a limited membership at the Racquet Club, allowing them to practice in the courts. Hamilton is the pro at the Racquet Club in addition to his duties at Tech.

"We're having an indoor meet on Feb. 16 with West Texas that we're real excited about," said Hamilton. "I think the people in Lubbock are really going to enjoy that."

For ticket information, Hamilton can be reached at the Tech athletic office, 742-1555.

So after last year's rough going, the Texas Tech tennis team is ready to give it another shot. And you know what they say.

Pro Bowl Set For Kickoff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the teams is so loaded that players like Bob Griese, Franco Harris, L.C. Greenwood and Tom Jackson will be on the bench when the game begins. The other squad lists among its reserves Archie Manning, Tony Hill, James Lofton, Tom Mack and Thomas Henderson.

So who's starting? The American Football Conference squad in Monday night's Pro Bowl will be led by quarterback Terry Bradshaw, with Earl Campbell and Devin Williams as running backs, Lynn Swann at a wide receiver spot and Dave Casper at tight end. The AFC defense features Joe Greene, Robert Brantle, Lyle Alzado and Randy Gradishar.

The National Football Conference squad will have Roger Staubach at quarterback, Walter Payton and Tony Dorsett as running backs, with Harold Carmichael heading an outstanding wide receiver corps and Billy Joe DuPree at tight end. The NFC defense will be anchored by Bill Berkey, Matt Blair, Al Baker and Willie Buchanon.

The starters and the squads for the Pro Bowl are determined by a vote of NFL coaches and players.

"If I had this much talent on a regular NFL team," said a smiling AFC Coach Chuck Fairbanks, "I'm not sure I'd know what to do with it."

Fairbanks said he expects a wide-open, exciting game.

"With not much time to work out together, we'll have to keep things somewhat limited," he said. "But we'll be flexible enough to put on a show."

"It makes it nice that we don't have to prepare for every possible defense."

Special restrictions on defenses in the Pro Bowl should give the offenses an edge. The defense must always be in a 3-4 set, play a man-for-man with a free safety, and cannot blitz unless the situation is third down and less than 2 yards to go.

The atmosphere surrounding the Pro Bowl bears little resemblance to the Super Bowl, or even regular-season games. Practices are brief and light, with the players spending more time in tourist-type activities.

Members of the winning team will collect $5,000, with the losers earning $2,500.

"There's not the same air of electricity there would be for a championship game," said Fairbanks. "But you've got all of football's great players here, and I think their individual pride will make them play hard."

Kickoff time for the nationally televised contest at the Coliseum is 9 p.m. EST.

ORU Allows Free Game Admissions

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oral Roberts University's basketball team entertained a Bulgarian all-star team earlier this season and Andy Furman, the school's sports information director, let all Bulgarians into the game free.

Later, when the school played Hardin Simmons, Furman gave free admission to anyone named Hardin, Harding, Simmons—or even Hardin-Simmons.

Saturday night, Oral Roberts plays the Oklahoma City Chiefs in what Furman bills as the Last Roundup. All Indian chiefs—if they're wearing head-dresses—will be admitted free. In fact, any pale-faces wearing head-dresses can get in for nothing.

It will be the last promotional stunt at Oral Roberts for Furman, who is resigning to take a public relations position with the Fort Lauderdale Strikers of the North American Soccer League.

His talents probably will be missed at the school's next home game against DePaul. Oral Roberts University's founder and president is the evangelist by the same name, and the nickname of the DePaul team is the Demons.

Odessa Ector Wins First Round 2-AAA

By BOB RAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The way Odessa boys basketball coach Keith Thompson recalls it, the Eagles were faster getting out of the Andrews gym Friday night than O.J. Simpson is running through an airport.

"There must of been a lot of parties going on, because our kids were ready to get out of there," laughed.

Of course, the Eagles had reason to celebrate as they defeated the Andrews Mustangs 61-57 to claim the first half 3-AAA district championship Friday night. The two teams entered the 3-AAA showdown at Andrews with 3-0 records.

"I really don't know the reason for our success," said Thompson. "This was supposed to have been a rebuilding year for us. But I guess this group of kids didn't want to be the ones to break the tradition."

When asked about the strengths of this club, the Eagle mentor said, "It has to be quickness. Because we sure don't have any height."

To prove his point, Thompson referred to the starting lineup. The Eagles have Marcus Bray (5-6), Raul Laver (5-7) and Alvin Richardson (5-4) at the guard positions, with Edward Williams (6-3) and George Cooper (5-1) at post positions.

"Because we're so small we fullcourt press from the opening tipoff," said Thompson. "I think our quickness has made the difference, because we have been able to put a lot of pressure on people."

Ector's press has been able to prevent opponents from putting the ball through the hoop less than they would like.

COACH HIRED

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Raymond Roston, who has been an assistant lacrosse coach at Ithaca College and the State University at Farmingdale, is the new head lacrosse coach at the Rochester Institute of Technology. Roston succeeds Fred Herchio, who quit last November to take a job in private business in California.

Through the first four district tilts, the Eagles have relinquished the fewest points.

Ector has allowed its opposition 234 points, which broken down comes out to an average of 58.5 per contest.

How does the lack of height affect the Eagles' offensive strategy?

"The thing that impresses me is our ability of not taking bad shots," said Thompson. "Really, our opponent dictates the kind of offense we run."

Thompson recalled against Andrews one stretch where the Eagles worked for nearly three minutes before taking a shot.

"Our kids have learned to be patient," said Thompson. "We'll use our quickness until we find the open shot."

Since, Odessa Ector was able to beat the Mustangs in Andrews in the first half of district play, Thompson believes his team has a slight edge in claiming undisputed possession of the 3-AAA title.

"We're going to have the advantage the next time we play because they have to come here," said Andrews. "But we also have a big ball game on the road against Mustangs. Those two games just might decide things. I expect the rest of the district to come gunning for us though, because we took the first half championship."

But no matter what happens the rest of the season, there is no way the Eagles can avoid making the playoffs.

Other teams that can also make that claim include Dumas 1-AAA and Lamesa, who took the 3-AAA first half crown.

Dumas claimed won the first half of 1-AAA by defeating Dumas 56-51, and then getting help from some help from Berger. Berger beat Dumas 61-56 on the final day of first half play at the Bulldogs and Mustangs finished with identical 3-2 records.

Dumas took the crow with a 4-1 mark.

Meanwhile, in 3-AAA, Lamesa was in the driver's seat. The Tornados knocked off Brownfield 61-46 to keep its loop record unblemished at 4-0. Snyder, who was the runnerup at 3-1, will meet Lamesa in a rematch Tuesday night at Snyder. The last time the two clubs got together, the Tornados edged the Tigers 51-50.

'Horns Lead, A&M Behind

By The Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns are threatening to capture the Southwest Conference basketball championship just like all the experts predicted in preseason, but there are still two big games left in their schedule that could turn matters around.

The Longhorns—who beat Texas A.M., Baylor and Southern Methodist last week—are playing at the home that took Coach Abe Lemons' crew to the National Invitational tournament title in New York City last March.

After Texas blasted SMU, 94-62, Saturday night, Mustang Coach Sonny Allen was shaking his head.

"It was not as close as the score indicated," he said.

Texas is unbeatable at home in the Super Dome, where it has now won 25 as a row.

But the Longhorns have a hazardous February 12 date at Texas A.M. still on their schedule.

Right now it appears the Aggies are the only ones with a chance to overhaul the Longhorns in the second half of the SWC season.

Texas is 7-1 and the Aggies are 6-2. Arkansas and much-improved Baylor have outside chances at 5-3 while Texas Tech appears out of the running for a regular season championship at 4-4.

Texas has two games at home this week, hosting Houston Monday night and entertaining always-dangerous Arkansas on a busy Thursday night.

Texas has beaten both Houston and Arkansas on the road, but the Razorbacks played well and can give the Longhorns trouble.

Frailing Signed As Pitching Coach

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ken Frailing, former pitcher for the Chicago White Sox and the Chicago Cubs, has been named minor league pitching instructor for the Kansas City Royals, it was announced.

Frailing, 30, replaces Bill Fischer, who recently was named pitching coach for the Cincinnati Reds.

Frailing's appointment was announced by John Schuerholz, the Royals' director of scouting and player development, who was promoted to the job of club vice president Thursday.

GAME DELAYED

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Sabres and the New York Islanders will meet in Buffalo Feb. 14 and play their postponed National Hockey League game of Jan. 21. The game was postponed because of bad weather that prevented the Islanders from flying to Buffalo.

Texas AM whipped Rice 1-42, Baylor defeated Texas Christian 77-49 and Arkansas bounced Texas Tech 62-57 Saturday night.

Texas AM's Rudy Woods blocked three shots against the Owls to bring his season total to 42. The Aggies could only block 41 shots for the season last year without their unnamed freshman center.

"I have been lifting weights and I'm much stronger in the arms. But I'm still bony and light and I need to put on some pounds," Woods said.

"Our team needs a game like this. And now we get Texas at home, and we've been looking forward to it."

Allen said playing Texas "is hardly something to look forward to. It's hardly something to anticipate with joy."

"Texas has a Top 10 basketball team, there is no doubt about it. They came out hitting against us and we just kind of panicked and got behind," Allen said.

Jim Kravacs scored 36 points from the field as Texas built up a 49-26 halftime lead.

Lemons was asked why he kept his starters in the game so long.

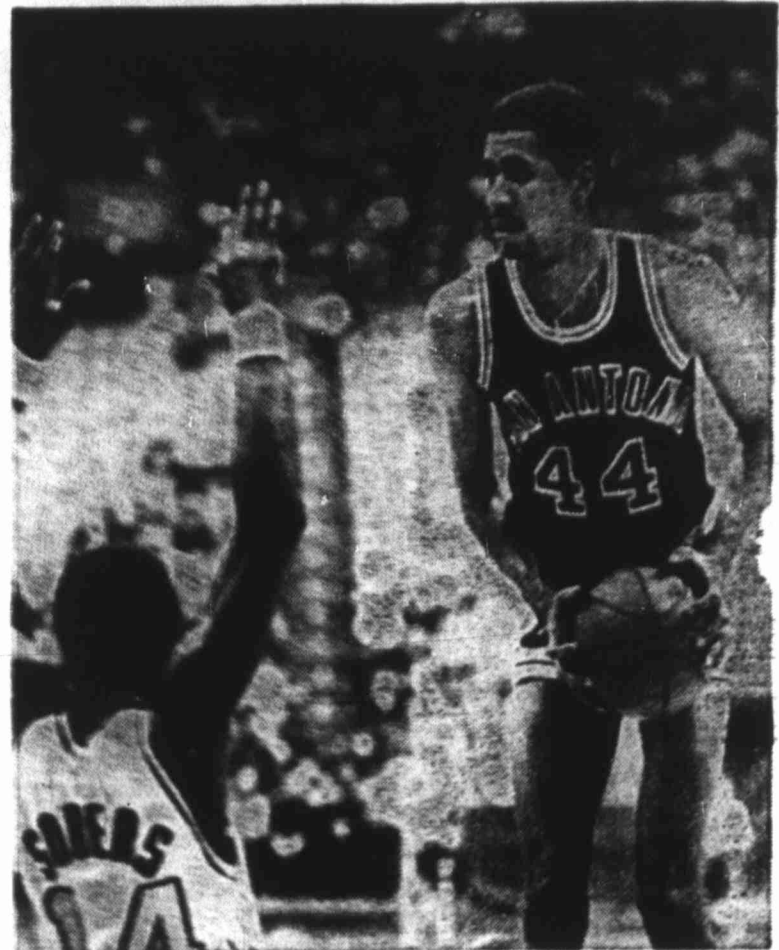

"You don't want to run up a big score but your players still need to work," he said, "and you never know when the other team is gonna run off a string on you."

Spurs Fall To Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Johnny Davis scored 27 points and Mike Bantom 26 Sunday afternoon to lead Indiana to a 122-101 National Basketball Association victory over San Antonio.

It was the third straight triumph for the Pacers, now 15-30.

San Antonio led by two, 60-58 at the half and 73-70 with 4:57 remaining in the third period.

Indiana tied the score at 72-all with 4:13 left in the third stanza on a jump shot by Davis and went ahead to stay seconds later on a layup by Ricky Sobers.

The Pacers built up a 12-point lead, 114-92, with 1:38 left in the game, before the Spurs rattled off six straight points to cut the margin to 114-108 on a George Gervin jump shot.

Indiana came back to score nine of the next 10 points to wrap up the victory.

Other high scorers for the Pacers were Sobers with 22, Billy Knight with 20 and Len Elmore with 13.

Nobody Wants No. 1 Rank

By The Associated Press

Oh, that red-hot No. 1 college basketball ranking. Not even this week's apparent winner wants it, it seems.

"So what if we're No. 1 in the nation?" says Coach Bill Hodges of the Indiana State basketball team. "Until we win the Missouri Valley Conference, we can't really prove it to the nation. The Valley is our route to the NCAA tourney."

"We're No. 1 in our conference, and that's what really counts. People just think I'm saying that, but I swear I'm not."

Want it or not, the third-ranked Sycamores put themselves in position for No. 1 consideration by beating Creighton 77-69 Saturday night, improving their season's record to a shining 18-0.

That beats both the records of top-ranked Notre Dame (12-2) and No. 2 North Carolina (15-2), both of whom lost Saturday. The Fighting Irish suffered a 67-66 defeat by Maryland and the Tar Heels dropped a 66-61 decision to Clemson.

If Indiana State is indeed moved up to No. 1 this week, the Sycamores would be the fourth team this season in that hot seat, which has at one time or other served as the uneasy throne for Duke, Michigan State and Notre Dame.

Creighton Coach Tom Apke, for one, thinks they deserve it.

"I think Indiana State is the No. 1 team in the country, and I think Bill Hodges is doing a great job," noted Apke. "Stepping into a situation like this is hard, but stepping in where you have a Larry Bird is more difficult because people expect so much. Bill is doing a fantastic job."

Apke's reference was to Hodges' takeover as coach of the Indiana State team after the unexpected illness of veteran Bob King.

Along with Notre Dame and North Carolina, three other Top Ten teams went down over the weekend, reflecting the norm of this topsy-turvy season. Fourth-ranked Michigan State lost to Northwestern 83-65; No. 8 Illinois was beaten by Michigan 56-54; and No. 9 Louisiana State dropped a 93-80 decision to Georgia.

Elsewhere, No. 6 UCLA routed Washington 86-61; No. 10 Ohio State downed Indiana 66-63 in overtime; No. 11 Georgetown trimmed American University 88-80; No. 12 Syracuse whipped Manhattan 113-88; No. 14 Texas A&M defeated Rice 81-62; No. 15 Texas turned back Texas Tech 63-57; No. 16 Temple beat St. Francis (N.Y.) 65-63; No. 17 Texas crushed SMU 98-62; No. 18 Alabama nipped Mississippi State 68-67; No. 19 Vanderbilt took a 66-59 decision over Auburn; and

Brandt Among Giant Choices

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants deadline for picking a new director of operations expires Thursday with the Los Angeles Rams' Don Klosterman and Gil Brandt of the Dallas Cowboys the apparent frontrunners.

The position became vacant Dec. 18 when Andy Robustelli formally announced his resignation. The Giants fired head coach John McVay the same day, less than 24 hours after the Giants finished a disappointing 6-10 season and missed the National Football League playoffs for the 15th straight year.

Wellington and Tim Mara, who each own 50 percent of the club, have indicated their desire to let the new director of operations be the predominant voice in selecting a new coach.

But the Maras have been feuding amongst themselves, to the extent that NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle has intervened, attempting to settle the situation.

The Giants had hoped to have a new D.O. by the time the Super Bowl people left Miami last week. But the search is neither averaging only 2.4 points in SWC play, but 11-of-15 shots from the field on the 20-to-25 foot range.

The Raiders no doubt remember Mansbury since he had 24 points in the earlier outing in a game Tech won 99-66.

Along with Wineinger and Mansbury, also drawing starting nods are Scott Blackwell (6-1), Larry Frevert (6-9) and Jim Hund (6-5). Blackwell and Hund are the guards. Frevert the center and Wineinger and Mansbury the forwards.

Ty Thompson, who hit 10 points in the first half against Baylor, was lost for an indefinite time after suffering an ankle injury Saturday night.

Although TCU has had its problems, Myers and the Raiders aren't taking them lightly.

Any team in the league can beat you," said Myers. "Just look at what Rice did to us. TCU is capable of doing the same thing too."

Myers is expected to start Joe Baxter at center, Ralph Brewster and Ben Hill at the forwards, and guards Geoff Huston and Kent Williams.

In other SWC contests tonight, Texas A&M travels to Baylor, Houston is at Texas and SMU entertains Rice.

Devils Win

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Senior guard Jim Spankrel hit a jump shot from the left corner and added two clutch free throws in the final two minutes Sunday afternoon to give seventh-ranked Duke a 69-64 win over No. 13 Marquette in a nationally televised game.

Spankrel redeemed himself for poor play throughout much of the game as he was tagged with three traveling violations and plagued with missed shots from the corners and missed outside shots.

now being conducted in Los Angeles, the site of Monday night's Pro Bowl game.

Klosterman, the Los Angeles Rams' general manager, is believed to be interested in the job. The Giants requested and received permission from Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom to talk to Klosterman.

"We haven't talked to Klosterman yet, but we plan to do so while we are here," Wellington Mara said. "And we also plan to talk to Brandt while we are here, but we haven't done so as yet. We're going to pick the director of operations first, and then let him pick the coach."

The Giants No. 1 choice, Penn State's Joe Paterno, turned New York down before the Maras were able to conjure up a serious offer. Paterno was to be offered the dual role of coach and D.O.

"The Giants have asked my permission to talk to Don," Rosenbloom said. "I don't know what's going to happen, but I will say if the Giants get Klosterman, they will be getting the most outstanding general manager in the country. He's the best."

Reports have circulated that Klosterman wants out of Los Angeles because Rosenbloom has been expanding the duties of his 33-year-old son Steve, the heir apparent to the Rams.

Brandt openly expressed his interest for the Giants job about 10 days before the Super Bowl. Brandt has been with the Cowboys as personnel director since their inception in 1960.

The Giants have received permission to talk to Brandt and Cowboys offensive coordinator Dan Reeves, is considered one of the top choices for the coaching job.

"Right after the Super Bowl, Tex (Schramm, Dallas general manager) and Tom (Landry, Dallas coach) told me the Giants asked permission to talk to me," Reeves said. "They said they granted that permission, but so far I haven't heard from the Giants."

Others the Giants have reportedly considered for director of operations include Tommy Prothro, former coach and general manager of several NFL teams, John Ralston, former coach of the Denver Broncos and currently an assistant with the Philadelphia Eagles, and Sid Gillman, also a former coach and general manager of several NFL clubs.

Brandt is expected to start Joe Baxter at center, Ralph Brewster and Ben Hill at the forwards, and guards Geoff Huston and Kent Williams.

Brewster was the leading scorer against Arkansas with 12 points. Hill followed with 11 points, earning all five of his attempts from the floor and his only free throw.

No. 20 North Carolina State walloped Virginia 87-67.

Bird was not at his usual best, but was good enough to lead Indiana State's triumph. The Sycamore Birdman was held to 17 points, well below his 31-point average, but played a good board game — collecting 15 rebounds.

"We played hard," said Hodges, "and we didn't let anybody mess up our concentration in the second half. Creighton is an extremely smart basketball team. But tonight they didn't handle the pressure like they have in the past."

Larry Gibson's three-point play with only one second remaining gave Maryland its upset victory over Notre Dame. The Terps lost a 12-point lead in the second half before coming back to win it.

With five seconds left in the nationally televised game and Notre winning by two points, the Terps brought the ball inbounds to Greg Manning, who fed Gibson in the lane. The 6-foot-9 center tied the game with a field goal and then, after being fouled by Bruce Flowers, dropped in the winning free throw.

"We had the last play figured out," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "We knew Manning would get the ball. It was the same play they ran against North Carolina earlier this year. We went over it and diagrammed it, but we just had a breakdown."

Clemson defeated North Carolina as Larry Nance scored 21 points. The Tigers took the lead for good with 4:35 to go on Billy Williams' baseline jumper.

"We lost to a very good basketball team tonight," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "Coach (Bill) Foster had them well prepared. They shot well, played good defense and made their free throws down the stretch."

Rod Robinson scored 20 points and Northwestern's Wildcats never trailed in their upset victory over Michigan State.

"This has to do a lot for our confidence," said Northwestern Coach Rich Falk, whose team won its first Big Ten game after seven losses. "We took an awful lot of shots that a coach normally wouldn't like to see go up. But they were going in, and as long as they go in, they are all good shots."

Marty Bodnar's layup at the buzzer after a steal by Tom Stoton gave Michigan its victory over skidding Illinois, which lost its fourth game in the last five. Walter Daniels and Eric Marbury scored 2

Best 'Script' To Decide Marvin Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Lee Marvin says that whichever side presents the best "script" will win in the trial of Michele Marvin's $1 million suit against him.

One thing is for sure. The judge has two very different scenarios to choose from in the breach of contract case which could set legal guidelines for community property settlements between unmarried lovers who break up.

Miss Marvin was on the witness stand a little more than six days telling her story. Marvin has testified for two days about their 1964-70 romance and is expected to take most of this week relating how it ended.

The trial was in recess today but will resume Tuesday.

Miss Marvin, now 46, painted this picture:

She was 31, a professional dancer and supper club singer with a promising career, when she met Marvin. She says she gave it all up to devote herself exclusively to the Oscar-winning actor, making a home for him and providing companionship and affection.

In return, she testified, Marvin told her that, while he would never marry again and put nothing in writing, he swore to her that everything he had would be shared with her and in case of his death she would inherit his Malibu beach house and receive a financial settlement.

Instead, Marvin discarded her after six years and was married again within six months to his childhood sweetheart. He forced her to leave the home under threats, paid her $800 a month for a brief time and then cut that off although his income over the period was more than $3 million.

Marvin, 54, contradicted most of the key points of her account.

The actor said he found her "fun" and "very enjoyable." He said he may have told occasionally he loved her and meant it at the moment. He said he never told her they would be together forever although he once wrote that he would not mind spending the rest of their lives in bed.

Miss Marvin said the actor persuaded her not to use contraceptives, that she became pregnant three times and had an abortion which prevents her from ever having children. Marvin acknowledged he gave her $600 to pay for an abortion.

Marvin has not yet reached his account of their parting but his preliminary answers indicate he will contend that she became increasingly troublesome and a burden to his career.

Actually, the precedent in the "Marvin case" was set when the California State Supreme Court reversed two lower courts and ruled that a partner in an unmarried relationship does have the right to sue for division of community property.

What Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall has to decide is whether Marvin did make oral promises which constituted a contract and, if so, how much she is entitled to.

And that depends on the two "scripts."

whom he works. "I am very happy with the work I am in now; God gave me this talent and I want to use it to serve Him."

DALLAS HOLM

Dallas Holm Featured In Thursday Concert

Dallas Holm will be in concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Municipal Auditorium. Holm takes a personal interest in kids who have turned to drugs — he almost ended up there himself.

The youthful singer is a former member of a rock group. "It was a lot of money and fun and it took a long time before I realized I wasn't ever going to accomplish anything."

"I was raised in a Christian home and went to church, but somehow all that got lost in the shuffle. One day my pastor told me to take an honest look at myself and I didn't like what I saw. It was then that I made a commitment of my life to Christ."

After leaving the rock group, Holm went to college to prepare for the ministry. He began traveling to sing a give his story in churches and schools. Soon he was invited to join the staff of a large church as minister to youth.

It was at this church that Holm was approached to join the David Wilkerson Crusades as crusade soloist. "At first I wasn't sure. I liked what I was doing, but the whole thing sounded exciting."

Holm is a very special part of the Wilkerson Crusade and his singing is much respected among the young people with

Bus Drivers Regulate Transportation Firm

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Back and forth. Back and forth along Pacific Avenue, parallel to the Boardwalk. The blue and gray jitney buses have been running the same four-mile route for 64 years.

The drivers of the 160 minibuses work when they want to, keep all their fares, increase or decrease service depending on demand and run their own private traffic court — all without government help.

The new gamblers in this resort town are learning what the conventioners, resident senior citizens and summertime tourists have known for years — if this jitney is full, there's always one coming.

The city sets the fares, now 40 cents, and establishes the route, but the Jitney-men's Association of Atlantic City handles everything else — from complaints by passengers about rude drivers to disputes between drivers.

"The city doesn't want to be bothered and we do a good job of regulating ourselves," said Milt Greenberg, the crusty, white-haired association president.

"If a man is caught stealing gasoline or being constantly nasty and belligerent to passengers, we just won't stand for it," the 64-year-old Philadelphia native said.

For lesser offenses, such as running a stop light to pass another jitney or starting work before the assigned shift, the driver may be fined or suspended for a short period of time.

"We're unique. We're the only transportation system in the nation that gets no subsidies and doesn't want any," said Kenneth Roden, 35, an owner-operator for the past two years.

"And this is the only city in the country where a person waits less than five minutes to get a bus."

There are 190 franchises, which change hands only when an owner-operator dies or decides to sell out.

"Before casino gambling, licenses went for less than $2,000," said Greenberg.

who has been in the jitney business for 35 years. "Now, a license goes for no less than $10,000 and it will be $15,000 or $20,000 soon."

Jitney drivers come from all ethnic categories. "Puerto Ricans, Jews, Italians, blacks, Greeks. You name it, we've got it," Greenberg said. Except for women. There are no female jitney drivers and there never have been.

Although the drivers bemoan their financial condition, most said they do it because they like being their own bosses.

"If I don't feel like working because it's snowing, then I don't work," said Willie, a driver who declined to give his last name. Willie has one of the newer, 13-seat jitneys, on which he painted a pair of dice and the slogan, "Atlantic City: A Good Bet."

Most jitneys have 10 seats and the maximum allowed by law is 13. "If we had more than 13 seats, the Public Utilities Commission would regulate us and we don't want that," Greenberg said.

The biggest problems for drivers are increasing fuel and insurance costs and vandalism by school children.

"Ninety percent of the people are wonderful," said one 14-year veteran who asked not to be identified. "I love talking to them. But that 10 percent. Boy, oh boy."

The term "jitney" was derived from the slang expression for a nickel during the early 1900s, Greenberg said. It cost a "jit" or five cents to ride one of the minibuses when the system started here in 1915.

The association regulates the work shifts to insure that each driver alternates his hours and days off.

"It's fair this way," said Leon Escar, a former salesman who has been driving a jitney for two years. "If business is bad, we all starve. If it's good, it's good for everyone."

Nazi Group Denied Right To Protest

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — A Nazi group has been denied permission to demonstrate here because of city fears the protest may lead to physical violence such as occurred last September when four policemen were injured and seven people arrested.

Police Chief Salvatore Rosano called September's melee between Nazi demonstrators and angry opponents the worst civil disturbance this community of 75,000 has experienced in five years. Santa Rosa is located about 75 miles north of San Francisco.

Senator Knocks U.S., U.N. Roles

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Totalitarian governments have succeeded in destroying the role of the United Nations and this country as the world's primary keepers of peace, says Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y.

The totalitarians now have a working majority and the institution (United Nations) responds increasingly to totalitarian norms," he told an audience of 500 law students, faculty and judges at the opening Saturday of the new Pace University law center.

This would not have been the case when the United Nations was first formed," he said.

Moynihan, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, also said that the United States, as part of the U.N., has

Katharine Hepburn Great In 'Corn Is Green'

NEW YORK (AP) — "I like the smell of cow dung, don't you, Mr. Jones?" remarks Katharine Hepburn a few minutes into "The Corn Is Green."

We believe her. We accept the notion that this elegant, cultured woman, who could surely hold her own in any royal court, would also feel at home surrounded by the crude simplicities of a turn-of-the-century Welsh coal-mining village.

It's one of the many moments in the two-hour drama, shown Monday night at 8 CST on CBS, when our image of the actress merges with her portrayal of Miss Moffat, a hardy, eccentric woman of independent means who opens a school for young miners.

"It's often difficult to tell Miss Hepburn from the character she plays," is how Morley Safer put it during his recent interview with Miss Hepburn on CBS' "60 Minutes." "The determined school teacher, who cycles uphill against the harsh life of mining town, and the determined East Side lady of New York, who may not be winning the battle against big-city degradation, but at least exists it, always with chin out and head high." What a role it is! No wonder Miss Hepburn has been quoted as saying, "I would say I was born to play two roles. Jo in 'Little Women,' and Miss Moffat."

Similar sentiments have been voiced by actresses ever since the Welsh playwright and actor Eithel Barrymore had great success in it on Broadway. Bette Davis starred in the movie, and recently appeared in an ill-fated musical version called "Miss Moffat."

The plot centers on Miss Moffat's relationship with one young Morgan Evans, in whose first semiliterary composition she discerns signs of poetic genius. Determined to give him a classical education, she drags him mercilessly for 2 1/2 years in everything from Macbeth to Henry VIII.

Finally, he wins a scholarship to Oxford and departs with the promise of putting his talents to use for his fellow villagers, who still are trapped in the gloomy life of the mines.

Miss Davis' schoolmarm had about it a touch of the repressed spinster not quite resigned to middle age, and we could imagine her entertaining a more-than-scholarly interest in her pupil.

But Miss Hepburn, at 60, makes the character more a study in courage against encroaching old age. The quaver, the hesitation in her voice, even the nervous shake of her head, suggest the difficulties overcome both in Miss Moffat's pursuit of her goals and in the actress' performing her craft.

The one place where Miss Hepburn's age stretches our credulity a bit comes at the end, when Miss Moffat adopts the unwanted baby her prize pupil has fathered in a moment of reckless passion. It's hard to imagine her a dozen or so years later raising a teen-age son.

She has many wonderful comic moments. Take the understated satisfaction with which she comments on the village squire after she has sweet-talked him into sponsoring her disciple for an Oxford scholarship.

"That man is so stupid it sits on him like a halo," she tells her friends.

Miss Hepburn has been given a lavish production, filmed on location and directed by George Cukor, with whom she has made 10 films, including her first, "Bill of Divorcement," in 1932.

It's Miss Hepburn's show all the way, but she has first-rate support from a cast of actors largely unknown in this country. Ian Saynor, a 25-year-old Welsh actor who looks even younger, plays Morgan Evans with genuine passion and is an excellent foil for the star. As the housekeeper's daughter who hires him to bed and almost proves his downfall, Toyah Wilcox provides a chilling study in adolescent selfishness.

The rest of the characters make up a rich comic gallery: Bill Fraser, the very essence of empty-headed pomposity as the squire; Anna Massey and Arto Moris as Miss Moffat's fellow teachers; and Patricia Hayes as her Bible-thumping housekeeper.

Jane Fonda And Jon Voight Selected Best Actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Fonda and Jon Voight, the illicit lovers of "Coming Home," were selected the best dramatic actors of 1978 by Hollywood Foreign Press Association at the Golden Globes Awards Saturday night.

Miss Fonda, whose career went into an eclipse because of her opposition to the Vietnam War, also was named World Film Favorite.

"I guess I'm back," she cracked to the film industry audience at the Beverly Hilton. "So is Nixon — only I'm getting paid and he is not."

"Midnight Express," the hard-driving treatment of an American's imprisonment in Turkey, was a surprise winner as best dramatic film. It was also chosen for Oliver Stone's screen play.

Michael Cimino was chosen best director for "The Deer Hunter."

"Holocaust," a mini-series on the Nazi brutality to Jews in Germany, won acting honors for Michael Moriarty and Rosemary Harris.

"Last Dance," from "Thank God It's Friday," was designated best motion picture song. Peculiarly, "60 Minutes," was named best dramatic series, an honor which CBS declined before the awards presentation.

"Heaven Can Wait," a fantasy about a football player's return to earth after a motorcycle death, won honors as best comedy or musical. Warren Beatty, who produced and co-directed the remake of "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," won best actor for a comedy or musical.

The Golden Globe for actress for best comedy or musical was shared by Ellen Burstyn of "Same Time, Next Year" and Maggie Smith of "California Suite."

"Autumn Sonata," Ingmar Bergman's mother-daughter relationship, was named best foreign film of the year.

Brad Davis, the American imprisoned for dope traffic in Turkey, was selected for the best acting debut in a film. Irene Miracle of the same film was cited for female debut.

Supporting actor in a motion picture: John Hurt, "Midnight Express."

Supporting actress in a motion picture: Dyan Cannon, "Heaven Can Wait."

Best TV motion picture: "A Family Upside Down."

TV Supporting Players: Norman Fell, "Three's Company," Polly Holliday, "Alice."

Television performers, comedy or musical: Robin Williams, "Mork and Mindy"; Linda Lavin, "Alice."

Comedy or Musical Series: "Taxi."

Original Motion Picture Score: Giorgio Moroder, "Midnight Express."

'Drunk Monkey' Top Chinese Film

SINGAPORE (AP) — "Drunk Monkey in the Tiger's Eyes" is a big hit with the world's leading cinemaphiles.

The Chinese movie offers no prospect for an Oscar, but it has been playing in as many as eight theaters at once since opening here more than a month ago.

"Star Wars" was Singapore's top box office attraction from Hollywood last year, one exhibitor said, taking in about $253,903 in 70 days.

"Drunk Monkey in the Tiger's Eyes" collected $543,779 in its first 21 days and is challenging the all-time hit, "Jaws," which banked $576,037 in 128 days in 1976.

"The heavy patronage of kung-fu films besides 'Drunk Monkey' reflect the continuing thirst for blood and gall," the Straits Times said.

"Drunk Monkey" star Jackie Chan also had the lead in last year's big kung-fu extravaganza, "Snake in the Eagle's Shadow." It, too, beat "Star Wars" at the box office.

Singaporeans are listed in the UNESCO statistical yearbook as the world's most avid moviegoers. It says local fans averaged 19 visits a year to the cinema. Russians were second with an average of 18 visits per year, according to UNESCO.

Singapore has 69 theaters plus one drive-in for a population of 2.2 million. Total attendance last year was more than 40 million, the exhibitor said.

Six new cinemas opened last year and at least two more are planned for 1979.

Ticket prices range from about 69 cents in U.S. money to $1.61 in first-run theaters. Exhibitors are required to allot 20 percent of total capacity to the lowest price seats.

Advertising stills and filmed commercials are screened before each feature.

A survey by the University of Singapore said 70.3 percent of movies here have Chinese soundtracks, 21.8 percent are in English, 5.3 percent in Indian and 2.6 percent Malay.

Dramatic and romantic offerings were the most popular film fare, the survey said. Next came crime-violence movies, thriller-mysteries and comedies.

Government censors reviewed 3,483 films in the first 10 months of last year and banned 79 of them.

"Equus," the film version of Peter Shaffer's play for which Richard Burton won an Academy Award nomination, was rejected as "morally objectionable."

"Annie Hall," which won Oscars for best film, best director, best actress and best original screenplay, was not shown here. Its makers insisted that it be screened in its original form and without cuts by the censor. Since this was not possible in Singapore, the distributors withdrew it.

Also among the banned was "Skateboard," presumably on grounds of consistency, since the government has prohibited skateboarding in public places as unsafe.

Pravda Attacks Yugoslav Paper

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda accused an influential Yugoslav weekly on Sunday of undertaking a "purposeful campaign" to distort Soviet foreign policy.

A commentary in the Soviet Communist Party newspaper was one of a series of heated Kremlin attacks that have appeared recently against the Yugoslav news media, prompted by their reporting of the war in Cambodia.

The Yugoslav media have not followed the Soviet line, which claims that Cambodian rebels were responsible for ousting the Chinese-backed Pol Pot government from Phnom Penh, rather than the pro-Soviet Vietnamese invasion forces.

The Pravda commentary denounced the weekly Nin, a supplement to the newspaper Politika, for "shedding tears" over the downfall of Pol Pot's "blood-stained regime," ally of Russia's arch foe, China.

Nin, Pravda said, "does not miss a single chance for publishing anti-Soviet materials and is conducting a purposeful campaign in order to give its readers a distorted view of the policy of the U.S.S.R. and other countries of the socialist community."

Germans Eye Legal Change After Telecast

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The American-made "Holocaust" television series about Nazi atrocities has led many West Germans to believe there should be no time limit set on the prosecution of Nazi criminals, a polling organization said Sunday.

The Wickert Institute reported its opinion poll showed the number of West Germans opposed to a statute of limitations for Nazi killers jumped from 15 percent to 47 percent following presentation of the four-part series last week.

Under West Germany's present 30-year statute of limitations, unindicted war criminals suspected of murder could not be prosecuted after Dec. 31, 1979. Parliament must decide this year if it will lift the statute, and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told legislators Wednesday that "Holocaust" should stimulate "moral reflection."

He praised the television series, which had been dismissed before its showing by some television critics as "shallow and slick," and told Parliament "reflection is necessary in view of the decision each of us must make in the course of this year on the issue of the statute of limitations."

According to the Wickert Institute, the percentage of West Germans who wanted to keep the time-limit statute in force dropped to 51 from 65 in the first half of this month, with two percent undecided.

"Such a sudden change in public opinion occurs very seldom in empirical social research," a statement said. "We have never found such a switch in our 27 years of continuous work. This can be explained ... by the effect of the film 'Holocaust'."

The series swept network ratings during its showing Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Network officials said the number of viewers increased from 11 million, or 32 percent, of the national audience Monday to 15 million, or 42 percent, Friday.

They also said TV stations received more than 30,000 telephone calls about the program during the week and an overwhelming majority praised the series.

Study Shows Favorable Public View Of Kennedy Candidacy

By LOUIS HARRIS

A remarkable turnaround in public attitudes toward Edward Kennedy has taken place during the 1970s. Back in 1971, two years after the Chappaquiddick incident, a 51-34 percent majority of Americans did not feel that Kennedy had "the personality and leadership qualities a president should have." A recent ABC News-Harris Survey found that a 63-29 percent majority of voters now thinks the Massachusetts Democrat has high credentials to occupy the Oval Office of the White House.

Of course, Kennedy has steadfastly maintained that he is not running for the 1980 presidential nomination and that he plans to support President Carter next year. However, differences between the two about both matters of philosophy and specific legislation have come to the fore frequently in recent months. At the mid-term Democratic mini-convention, for example, Kennedy sharply disagreed with Carter over national health insurance and over the need to have the federal government help the elderly, the poor and those on fixed incomes during the current economic crunch. Carter is gambling that his more conservative position on federal spending will be appealing to the electorate as a whole, even though it may hurt him somewhat among the Democratic Party rank and file.

By any measure, the Kennedy shadow will hang heavy over the Carter candidacy during the next 12 months, even if the Massachusetts senator finally decides not to run. The Kennedy threat is not an artificial creation of the public opinion polls; it is a subject actively on the minds of voters all over the country.

Since 1971, the changes in the way Kennedy is perceived are dramatic. The latest ABC News-Harris Survey, taken late last month among 1,039 registered voters, finds that:

— The number of voters who feel that he "works hard at his job and is a good U.S. senator" has jumped from 68-20 percent to 84-11 percent over the past seven years.

— Whereas a 51-34 percent majority once felt that "he is one of the few people willing to take courageous stands on basic issues facing the country," a much more decisive 68-25 percent majority now feels that way — a rise of 17 points.

— By 66-23 percent, Kennedy is seen as a person who "really cares about people who are the underdogs and are having a hard time." This was not asked back in 1971.

There are still some negative feelings about Kennedy, although they have tended to decline during the 1970s:

— Back in 1971, 33 percent of the voters

felt that "because of what happened at Chappaquiddick, he showed he does not deserve to be president," although 51 percent disagreed with this serious charge. Now, a lower 24 percent are still disturbed by that episode, but a much higher 67 percent say they are not. While Chappaquiddick would undoubtedly become an issue if Kennedy were to run, its potential to harm him has diminished with the passage of time.

— By 57-35 percent, a majority felt in 1971 that he "has gotten as far as he has because of his name." A 51-43 percent majority still shares that view.

— Back in 1971, a 48-37 percent plurality felt that the youngest Kennedy was "not in the same league with his older brothers." Now, a narrower 46-43 percent plurality still feels that way.

The biggest shift between the findings of 1971 and those of this latest ABC News-Harris Survey is that at the beginning of the decade, a 51-34 percent majority thought Kennedy did not have the required personal qualities to be president. Now a big 63-29 percent majority thinks he does have those qualities, a change of 29 points.

Kennedy would be a highly controversial candidate who would divide the electorate more sharply than anyone since Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is by no means a certainty that he would win the election, but he continues to be a major figure among the voters. Some observers argue that because Kennedy can influence the mainstream of American politics, whether he becomes a candidate or not, there is no great urgency for him to declare in 1980 — or any time in the future. But it would be foolhardy for any presidential aspirant in either party to count on this as the 1980 race begins to take shape.
