SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 6. — The Allies landed in the Normandy section of northwest France early today and by evening had smashed their way inland on a broad front, making good a gigantic air and sea invasion against unexpectedly slight German opposition.

Prime Minister Churchill said part of the record-shattering number of parachute and glider troops were fighting in Caen, nine miles inland, and had seized a number of important bridges in the invasion area.

Four thousand ships and thousands of smaller landing craft took the thousands of American, British and Canadian seaborne forces from England to France under protection of 11,000 Allied bombers and fighters who wrought gigantic havoc with the whole elaborate coastal defense system that the Nazies had spent four years building. Naval gunfire completed the job, and the beachheads were secured quickly.

Allied Losses Less Than Expected

Allied losses in every branch were declared to be far less than had been counted upon in advance.

The Germans said the landings took place from Cherbourg to Le Havre — a front of about 100 miles, and that a strong airborne force was fighting as far inland as Rouen, 41 miles east of Le Havre.

Churchill told Commons:

"All this, of course, although very valuable as a first and vitally essential step, gives no indication whatever of what may be the course of the battle in the next days and weeks, because the enemy will now probably endeavor to concentrate on this area.

"In that event, heavy fighting will soon begin and will continue. It is therefore a most serious time that we are entering upon."

Many Air-Borne Troops

Thousands of highly-trained troops leaped down well behind Nazi lines from carrier sky trains boring through the rainy, stormy night, and a headquarters officer declared this "very large scale" operation was "carried out with great precision. Our losses in aircraft were extremely small. It was a fine job—very fine indeed."

The airborne troops carried the brunt of early battle, creating a large division and many demolitions.

The grand assault—scheduled for yesterday but postponed until today because of bad weather — found the highly-vaunted German defenses much less formidable in every department than had been feared.

"Extremely Small" Losses In Air

Airborne troops who led the assault before daylight on a history-making scale suffered "extremely small" losses in the air, headquarters disclosed tonight, even though the great plane fleets extended across 200 miles of sky and used navigation lights to keep formation.

Naval losses for the seaborne forces were described at headquarters as "very, very small," although 4,000 ships and several thousand smaller craft participated in taking the American, Canadian and British troops to France.

Coastal batteries were virtually silenced by the guns of the British, American and Allied fleets, including battleships, and the beachheads were speedily consolidated.

The German radio said the scene of the landing was a 100-mile stretch of coast from Cherbourg to Le Havre, around the bay of the Seine and the northeast shore of the Normandy peninsula.

Landings "First Of Series"

Britain's Prime Minister Churchill, in announcing the successful invasion to the House of Commons at noon — six hours after the first seabourne troops landed — said the landings were "the first of a series."

Churchill disclosed that 11,000 Allied planes were available as needed for the battle. The Allied bombers, climaxing 96 hours of steady pounding, lashed German coastal defenses this morning with 10,000 tons of explosives.

Fighters who went out to guard the beaches had little to do, however, as the German air force up till noon had flown only 50 sorties against the invading forces.

The Germans were known to have probably 1,700 fighters and have probably 1,750 fighters and 500 bombers to meet the attack, why they did not use them at the start was not apparent, but Allied airmen warned that a violent reaction might be expected soon, noting that Herman Goering in an order of the day had told his airforces, "the invasion must be beaten off even if the Luftwaffe persishes."

An optimistic air pervaded this headquarters over the smooth manner in which was launched the great crusade to liberate Nazi-enslaved Europe, a crusade in which the supreme commander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, told his men "we will accept nothing less than full victory."

Prime Minister Churchill told Commons tonight that Allied troops had penetrated in some cases several miles after their effective landings on a broad front, and happily asserted, "many dangers and difficulties which this time last night appeared extremely formidable are behind us."

He and all other sources agreed that the operation was going according to plan. The air forces, to which he paid high tribute for their work in smashing coastal defenses, estimated that between midnight and 8 a. m. alone more than 31,000 airmen were over France, not counting parachute and glider troops.

The Paris radio broadcast a report that "a last-minute flash from the battlefield" early tonight

Skies Cleared Of Nazi Planes

LONDON, June 6 (U.P.)—Thousands of Allied bombing planes softened up the defenses of western Europe for the Anglo-American invasion armies last night and early today, dropping more than 11,200 tons of high explosives down on the Nazi coastal fortifications in eight and one-half hours of furious attack.

The roar of the bursting bombs and the attacking fighter planes rolled back across the narrow Straits of Dover incessantly from midnight until 8 a. m. as some 7,500 planes hammered at the network of enemy gun emplacements studding the channel coast.

By mid-morning, the Allied air fleets had swept the skies clear of Nazi planes, and fighters were racing as far as 75 miles inland without drawing a challenge from the battered Luftwaffe.

More than 2,300 American and British heavy bombers spearheaded the great sky fleet, crashing an estimated 7,000 tons or more of bombs on the enemy's beachhead defenses. Another 4,200 tons were dropped by tactical air forces.

It was the heaviest attack ever hurled against a single objective, and all reports indicated that the

PATRIOTS WARNED

LONDON, June 6 (U.P.) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned millions of patriots in Europe today against a premature uprising as the Allied forces landed in France, but urged them to prepare and stand ready for the signal that will hurl them into the greatest revolt in history.

"The day will come when I shall need your united strength," Eisenhower said. "Until that day, I shall call on you for the hard task of discipline and restraint . . . Follow the instructions of your leaders . . . be patient. Prepare."

NEW LANDINGS REPORTED

LONDON, June 6 (U.P.)—The German DNB news agency reported new Allied landings on the Normandy peninsula this afternoon, with tanks being put ashore in one sector.

"ACCORDING TO PLAN"

LONDON, June 6. (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering House of Commons today that the Allied liberating assault upon Hitler's European stronghold was "proceeding according to plan — and what a plan!"

LOSSES HEAVY, NAZIS SAY

LONDON, June 6. (U.P.) — The German high command in its first invasion communique today said Allied forces suffered "particularly heavy reverses" in the Caen area of northern France and claimed that an entire regiment of paratroopers was destroyed in that sector.

ORDERED TO FIGHT

Soviets Massed For Smashing Blow From East

Invasion Of France Is "Second Front" Russians Asked

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 6 — Russian armies were understood today to be massing and preparing to perform their part of the joint Allied task of crushing Germany with a blow from the east, combined with Gen. Eisenhower's invasion from the west and Gen. Alexander's thrust up the Italian peninsula.

The invasion of northwest France was the "second front" for which the Russians had called for three anxious years. But the "second front" already had ceased to be a political issue here before Eisenhower struck.

The controversy amounted virtually to a crisis in 1942 when Stalin called for a front in western Europe of "first rate importance" and urged the United States and Great Britain to fulfill their obligations "fully and on time." The "second front" talk died down after the Tehran agreement on "the scope and timing" of blows from the east and west.

Allies Driving Ahead In Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, June 6 (AP) — Fifth Army forces drove steadily beyond liberated Rome today, some units plunging as much as five miles out from the historic Tiber river against what was officially termed "only weak resistance."

(A British broadcasting company announcement said French troops have captured Tivoli, on the Avezzano highway 30 miles northeast of Rome.)

"The battle to destroy the enemy continues without pause," said a communique.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops have crossed or reached the Tiber all the way from Rome to the sea and enemy divisions still in the flatlands below the city are in desperate straits.

In the coastal area alone well over 2,000 prisoners apparently will be unable to scramble out of the Allied net because all Tiber bridges from Rome to the sea either have been blown up or captured.

In still-jubilant Rome, however, eleven crossings remained intact, and the Fifth army poured across in a constant stream to chase the Germans fleeing northward in disorder.

Allied armored forces fanned out over a wide area. Infantry also has crossed the river in force and was reported driving due west of Vatican City. The only resistance anywhere came from isolated rearguards.

German Ships Rush Into Coast Area

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 6. (AP)—German destroyers and E-boats are rushing into the operational area off the northern coast of France and "no doubt are being dealt with" by the Allies, it was said here just before 1 p.m. (6 a.m. Central War time).

An Allied military commentator announced that H-hour for the invasion today ranged from 6 to 8 a.m. (11 midnight Monday to 1 a.m. Tuesday, CWT.)

German broadcasts said a furious battle between Nazi E-boats and Allied warships was raging off Le Havre.

BROTHER IS CONFIDENT

TACOMA, Wash., June 6 (U.P.) —E. N. Eisenhower, Tacoma attorney and brother of the supreme Allied invasion commander, today said he felt "certain" of the invasion's success because "Dwight never undertook anything he couldn't finish."

"I am as certain of success as I am of anything," he declared.

Shell Torrents Cover Invasion

Great Sea Force Escorts Attackers

LONDON, June 6. (U.P.)—The German Transocean news agency said today that a battle was in progress in the English channel north of Le Havre between German naval units and Allied forces attempting to make a landing.

(By The Associated Press)

WITH ALLIED NAVAL FORCES, June 6. — The United States navy struck the beaches of western Europe today with torrents of shells in shepgarding the Army's invasion troops onto the hostile coast, seared and pitted by thousands of aerial bombs.

Warship guns fired an ear-trying prelude before the swarms of homely hybrid landing craft broke away from the shelter of the convoys to begin the first critical showdown on the beaches.

This bombardment was a combined chorus from the cannon of several navies, but British warships spoke the loudest because there were more of them.

The immensely hazardous and complicated job of taking the soldiers across the last yards of the moat to Hitler's fortress found American soldiers and American landing craft by the hundreds carrying the foot-soldiers ashore.

Strange, Wonderful Craft

The untold hundreds of strange and wonderful craft would have caused the eyes of John Paul Jones to pop wide open.

In an amazingly ordered confusion came the whole flat-bottomed "Elsie" family laden with fighting men, guns, tanks, shells, field rations, hypodermics, radio sets, bandages, trucks and the other bewildering baggage of combat.

Thirty-six-foot LCVP's (landing craft, vehicle personnel) made of plywood, the baby of the family and perhaps its most important member; LCM's (landing craft, mechanized), steel 50-footers most valuable for the first supply phase; LCI's (landing craft, infantry) around 200 feet in length and almost proper looking ships; LCT's (landing craft, tanks), ungainly

ALLIES STRIKE ACROSS THE CHANNEL—The tiny black arrows pointing to the coast of France between Cherbourg and Le Harve give you an idea of the sector of the Allied invasion of continental Europe which was launched early today. The operations extended over a wide front and at least two substantial beachheads had been successfully established according to late bulletins.

Local Churches Remain Open For Meditation And Prayer

Relatives and friends of the men now participating in the great western assault were in Lubbock churches and homes today extending prayers for the welfare of their loved ones.

Approximately 100 to 250 people remained at all times this morning in meditation at the First Methodist church, center of Lubbock's invasion prayer services. Many hundreds of people had come and gone throughout the morning at the church.

First service was held at 3:30 o'clock this morning at the First Methodist church, after fire department sirens of both stations had heralded the news. However, it was believed that the sirens did not carry to all parts of the city, and many people did not know of the invasion until later this morning.

Church To Remain Open

First Methodist church will be open until 6 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor, announced. Mrs. Mamie I. Neal, church organist, will be at the organ all day, and pastors of all Lubbock churches will preside at different times, reading scriptures and leading prayers. In the absence of pastors, laymen will be in charge.

Texas Technological college, an institution that has countless numbers of ex-students among the invasion forces, conducted a convocation at 11 o'clock this morning in the Tech gym for prayers for ex-Techsans and all other servicemen. Dr. Robinson, head of Lubbock's Ministerial alliance, lead the student body in an opening prayer. Several addresses were made, and Tech's Matador band rendered three selections, including "America" and "Onward Christian Soldiers." Rev. John A. Winslow offered the benediction. The entire student body and faculty attended the convocation, which

President Writes Invasion Prayer For Allied Troops

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—This is the invasion prayer which President Roosevelt wrote while Allied troops were landing on the coast of France and which he will read to the nation by radio at 9 o'clock C. W. T. tonight.

My fellow Americans:

In this poignant hour, ask you to join me in prayers:

Almighty God: Our sons, pride of our nation, this day have set up a mighty endeavor, a struggle to preserve our republic, our religion, and our civilization, and to set free a suffering humanity.

Lead them straight and true; give strength to their arms, stoutness to their hearts, steadfastness to their faith.

They will need thy blessings. Their road will be long and hard. The enemy is strong. He may hurl back our forces. Success may not come with rushing grace, but we shall return again and again; and we know that by Thy grace, and by the righteousness of our cause, our sons will triumph.

"Will Be Sore Tired"

They will be sore tired, by night and by day, wihout rest—till the victory is won. The darkness will be rent by noise and flame. Men's souls will be shaken with the violence of war.

These are men lately drawn from the ways of peace. They fight not for the lust of conquest. They fight to end conquest. They fight to liberate. They fight to let justice arise, and tolerance and goodwill among all Thy people. They yearn but for the end of battle, for their return to the haven of home.

Some will never return. Embrace these, Father, and receive them, Thy heroic servants, into Thy kingdom.

And for us at home—fathers, mothers, children, wives, sisters and brothers of brave men overseas, whose thoughts and prayers are ever with them—help us, Al-

Mother Of Local Paratrooper Confident Son Did His Part

"I am proud of my son, proud that he is physically and mentally capable of being a member of the paratroopers for they are the toughest soldiers in the infantry," Mrs. Jessie L. Riek, 2321 Fourteenth street, said in an interview this morning.

Her son, Pvt. Robert Riek, 19, is a paratrooper in England and she has no doubt that he did his part this morning in launching the drive aimed at destroying the power of Hitler's Germany.

Mrs. Riek was awakened about 4 a. m. by ringing bells. She got up immediately and turned on the radio, and for the first time she learned that the invasion was on and that the parachutists were the first to land on the enemy-held soil of France.

Hold Prayer Service

"At 6 o'clock I awakened the college girls who room with me and we had a prayer service," she said. Mrs. Frances Farr, whose husband is in England, is a daughter of Mrs. Riek and she joined the group in prayer. They asked that "God protect our boys and that victory will be soon."

Mrs. Riek is confident that the paratroopers are doing their work in tip-top manner because, she says, they have had "the best training in the world." The last time her son was home they met in Dallas and came home together. En route she mentioned that Henry Ford had predicted an early ending of the war which brought this remark from her son, "After all I've been through it had better not be over before I get there." And it wasn't.

Knows Victory Is Ahead

This mother of a GI Joe, whose counterparts by the thousands are slugging it out in France today, said she was glad that the invasion had come at last and that she knew victory was ahead.

"Of course, not all of the boys will come back and my son may be among them. I pray the Lord to give me strength to stand it if it happens to me," she confided.

She said her friends had already asked her of she thought her son was coming back and she

Baby Girl Is Born As Sirens Shriek; Named Invasia Mae

DALLAS, June 6. (AP) — The Allied invasion of western Europe already has its first namesake.

She is Invasia Mae Renfrow, born to Mrs. Lester Renfrow as sirens sounded heralding the opening of the momentous offensive against Germany.

City Ambulance Driver Harry Goldberg said Mrs. Renfrow, wife of a truck driver and mother of three other children, heard the sirens and being told what they were announcing, said:

"Well, we'll name the baby for it. We'll call her Invasia Mae."

City Commission Due To Postpone Meeting

Garbage department employes, who quit their jobs Saturday and returned to them Monday, were at work as usual today.

However, announcement was made Monday afternoon that W. W. Stafford, garbage superintendent, had resigned because of dissatisfaction with his wages. His successor has not been selected. Stafford has been receiving $210 per month plus a cost of living bonus amounting to $28.80 a month.

News Of Invasion Is Quickly Spread By Local Residents

D-day reaction in Lubbock was exactly what might have been expected.

Fire and police sirens, and telephones of sleepy residents, were the principal noisemakers.

An orgy of telephoning quickly resulted.

Lights winked on all over town.

Neighbors, seeing lights in their block, or persons learning that friends in other parts of town were up listening to their radios, threw on robes over their pajamas and made unorthodox visits at unorthodox hours. They drank coffee and "mapped strategy" for General Ike Eisenhower.

Attend Church Services

Cars backed out of drives as a vanguard of 500 persons who had attended services by 9 o'clock began the trek to the First Methodist church. "Continuous" services that commenced at 3:30 o'clock were slated up to 6 o'clock tonight there, under direction of "all ministers and laymen of the city." There were organ music and prayers.

A light plane "V" formation was flown over the city early this morning by fliers of the Texas Technological college air crew detachment. At Texas avenue and Thirteenth street, a sidewalk gathering grinned at a Cotton Row employe's observation that, "Is that all we've got left? Press and radio accounts indicate continental Europe's skies are full of everything we've got that has stings, sure enough!"

Contrary to those days a quarter-century ago when South Plainsmen landed in France with the AEF, police announced they had heard no gunfire, or reports of it. Even the switch engines reserved their tooting for the essential signals incident to moving the tremendous tonnage of freight required in wartime.

"Too much work to be done to blast confusing signals," one railroad official tersely put it. "But everybody was keenly aware of the charged atmosphere."

Avalanche-Journal publications had "run" their mail editions of The Morning Avalanche when the first flash of the invasion was received, so "re-made" for the home edition — throwing off the front page such "hot" yarns as "20 More Jap Ships Sunk" and a black banner of 76-point proclaiming that "Germans Report Invasion Started" so that the reading public might read under two shouting lines of 96-point:

"Invasion On! Allies Drive Over Channel to France."

Liberty Bell Rings Out Again Today

PHILADELPHIA, June 6 (AP)— The Liberty Bell, which heralded this nation's independence, rang out today as the liberation of Europe began.

Striking the great bell six times on a broadcast (NBC) heard throughout the United States and Britain Mayor Bernard Samuel quoted its inscription—"Proclaim Liberty Throughout All The Land Unto All The Inhabitants Thereof"—and commented:

"Let it indeed proclaim liberty throughout the land and the return of liberty throughout the world."

Meeting Held Here On Feeder Airlines

Delegations from Amarillo and Lubbock went into conference at Hilton hotel at noon today for a discussion of feeder airline plans and policies affecting their cities and territories.

Representing Amarillo are Shelby Kritser of Amarillo Aircraft, Inc., R. H. Epperson, a city commissioner, and Arthur Truitt, bottling company operator. Participants for Lubbock are Jack M. Randal, president of the chamber of commerce, Robert H. Bean, attorney, Bob Walker, aviation enthusiast, Parker F. Prouty, general manager of the Avalanche-Journal Publications, and A. B. Davis, manager of the chamber of commerce.

The two groups are to seek a plan under which Lubbock and Amarillo interests might cooperate in pressing a joint application before the Civil Aeronautics board to establish feeder airlines serving their trade territories. Indications were that the discussions might be prolonged well into the afternoon.

MISS HUMPHRIES RETIRES

DENTON, June 6 (AP) —Miss Jessie H. Humphries, last member of the original faculty of Texas State College for Women, has voluntarily retired as associate dean of the college and head of the department of sociology after 41 years of service.

During the Spanish-American war, American troops landed at Puerto Rico on July 25, 1898.

Emanuele Gives Up Throne In Italy

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NAPLES, June 6—King Vittorio Emanuele III stepped aside as monarch of Italy Monday as he previously had said he would do upon the liberation of Rome and handed to his 39-year-old son, Crown Prince Umberto, all "royal prerogatives."

Italian political pressure had been brought to bear against him since the conquest of Naples.

In a decree signed by himself and countersigned by Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, head of the Italian liberation government, the king named his son lieutenant general of the realm.

Retains Savoy Title

The monarch, however, retained his title as head of the House of Savoy and remains as king without power.

King Vittorio Emanuele, who became ruler July 29, 1900, had announced last April 12 his "irrevocable" decision to withdraw from public life "on the day on which Allied troops enter Rome," and to turn his powers over to the crown prince.

Prince Umberto opposed Fascism in Italy at the start but later made a truce with Mussolini.

In effect, Umberto becomes the king's regent.

The withdrawal was presented to the council of ministers this morning, an announcement by the ministry of the interior said tonight. The decree, signed by the king today at Ravello, announced Prince Umberto "will exercise all royal prerogatives without exception" and will sign royal decrees.

The council of ministers at the morning meeting also received this message from Gen. Roberto Bencivenga to Badoglio:

"In the name of the government of Italy and the king, and on behalf of the Allies, I have temporarily assumed command of the civil and military affairs of Rome and her territory situated in the war zone. Vive Italia."

Liberal Italian leaders loudly demanded abdication of Vittorio Emanuele after the conquest of Naples. The king's decision to retire from public life paved the way for a compromise and formation of an enlarged war cabinet under Marshal Badoglio in which each of the six political parties forming a liberation junta was represented.

Montgomery Is Leading Troops

By PAUL KERN LEE
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Possessor of perhaps the most glittering reputation of all the Allied invasion commanders is Sir Bernard Law Montgomery, leader of British ground forces.

Hatchet-faced, hard-fighting, hard-bitten Montgomery has been a professional soldier 35 years, but it was as commander of the British Eighth Army that he won fame.

That Army saved Egypt by smashing Rommel's Afrika korps at El Alamein in November, 1942, went on clear across Libya to Tunisia in the great drive that threw the Germans out of Africa, drew one of the toughest assignments in the conquest of Sicily, and was the first Allied force to invade Italy.

General Always There

Always with them was the general, and his cocky grin beneath his tank-corps beret was a recognized talisman of victory. A non-drinker and non-smoker "Monty" is an all-out advocate of physical fitness who never overlooks his own daily setting-up exercises even though he will be 57 years old next Nov. 17.

London-born son of a clergy man, he quotes the Bible to back his contention that spoken orders and personal command are better than written commands. He urges his men to read the Bible daily, as he himself does.

Not noted for modesty, he manages to instill some of his own cocky self-confidence into his troops.

Was At Dunkerque

He, too, was at Dunkerque in 1940 and was one of the last to leave, sitting boldly on the bridge of a British destroyer and watching unblinkingly as the Stuka bombs splashed all around him.

Possibly growing out of that bitter experience, he asks and gives no quarter and often has declared, "the only way to win is to defeat the Germans on the battlefield."

After taking command of his invasion Army, Monty told them that they could and would finish the war in Europe this year.

"This war began a long while ago," he general remarked. "I am getting fed up with the thing. I think it is nearly time we finished it."

NO KIDS AROUND?

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 6 (U.P.) — A circus man's cry of "candy, peanuts, popcorn," would have been very appropriate at an intercity intersection here recently when a freight train hit a truck loaded with all kinds of fancy tidbits. Contents of the truck were scattered thoroughly when the vehicle rolled down a 10-foot embankment.

Battle Needs for Gasoline Come FIRST

THE reasons are simple: Our military machine—mightiest in history—gets first call on the nation's available gasoline, of course. You wouldn't have it otherwise. And that vital need is tremendous... FOUR times greater than in 1942, and increasing in direct ratio to our intensified military activity.

Remember what the papers had to say the other day about a 4000-plane raid on Hitler's Berlin? That mission alone took more than 5 million gallons of high octane aviation gasoline—and it's only one small phase of an ever increasing military tempo. An armored division requires 25,000 gallons to move one hundred miles; to train a pilot requires 12,500 gallons—enough to last the average automobile 18 years. It takes more than a ton of gasoline to "deliver" a one-ton bomb.

After these tremendous military needs are met, there simply isn't enough gas left to keep civilian cars running "as usual." The only way to make the available supply go around is through rationing. The importance of a gasoline rationing system that really works is going to be increasingly great as the military needs for gasoline continue to multiply. Unfortunately, we have to face that fact. Rationing is no fun—but a failure of our present system would have dire results. It is to your interest as a good American citizen to fight the "black market" and help make rationing succeed. This is the only way you can be sure of gasoline for your own use in the months to come.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP: Don't apply for more gas than you really need. Get into a ride-sharing club and stick to it. Endorse all your gas coupons now. Don't take extra coupons from or offer them to anyone.

Mighty Invasion Strikes France

Ruen is 41 miles inland, east of Le Havre.

Nazis Admit Penetrations

German broadcasts said the Allies penetrated several kilometers in between Caen and Isigny, which are 35 miles apart and, respectively, nine and two miles from the sea.

German opposition apparently was less effective than expected, although fierce in many respects, and the Germans said they were bringing reinforcements continuously up to the coast, where "a battle for life or death is in progress."

The seaborne troops, led by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, surged across the channel from England by 4,000 regular ships and additional thousands of smaller craft.

They were preceded by massed flights of parachute and glider forces who landed inland during the dark.

Eleven thousand planes supported the attack.

The German radio said the landings were made from Cherbourg to Le Havre—a strip of coast roughly 100 miles long—and later said additional landings were being made "west of Cherbourg," indicating that the Allies intended to seize the Normandy peninsula with its port and airdromes as the first base of their campaign to destroy the power of Nazi Germany.

The initial landings were made from 6 to 8:25 a. m. British time (midnight to 1:25 a. m., CWT.) The Germans said subsequent landings were made on the English channel isles of Jersey and Guernsey and that invasion at new points on the continent was expected hourly.

Aside from confirming that Normandy was the general area of the assault, supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary force was silent concerning the location for tactical reasons.

From Moscow came word that the Russian army was massing in preparation for another great attack from the east as its part in defeating Germany.

All reports from the beachhead, meager though they were in specific detail, agreed that the Allies had made good the great gamble of amphibious landing against possibly the strongest fortified section of coast in the world.

Allies Advancing In Run

Reconnaissance pilots said the Allied troops had secured the beaches and were slashing inland, some of them actually running in a steady advance. The Vichy radio admitted the Allied drive inland was going right ahead.

More than 640 naval guns, ranging from 4 to 16-inch, hurled many tons of shells accurately into the coastal fortifications which the Germans had spent four years preparing against this day.

Prime Minister Churchill was able to tell parliament that the shore batteries had been "largely quelled," the underwater obstructions had proven less dangerous than feared, and the whole operation was "proceeding according to plan."

96-Hour Bombardment

Allied planes preceded the landings with a steady 96-hour bombardment which reached its pinnacle in the hour before the troops hit the beaches.

The air attack was thrust home through cloud banks 5,000 feet high.

Light Naval Operation

German naval opposition was confined to destroyers and motor torpedo boats which headquarters said succinctly were being "dealt with." The Germans, as expected, blared on their radios all sorts of claims of vast destruction done to Allied fleets and forces, but with no confirmation.

In one defiant gesture, some of the German cross-channel guns opened a sporadic fire on Dover during the afternoon.

Unconfirmed reports said Adolf Hitler was rushing to France to try his intuition against the Allied operation. Presumably Field Marshals Karl Gerd von Rundstedt and Erwin Rommel were directing the defenses from their headquarters in France.

German accounts through Sweden admitted that steady streams of Allied troops were continuing to land, particularly in the vicinity of Arromanches, about midway between Le Havre and Barfleur, and that tanks were ashore at several places. They said there was especially bitter fighting at the mouths of the Orne and Vire rivers.

The airborne troops' principal scenes of operations were placed by the Germans at Caen and Barfleur. The Germans said the American 82nd and 101st parachute divisions had landed on the Normandy peninsula, along with the American 28th and 100th airborne divisions. They said the British First and Sixth airborne divisions were operating in the Seine bay area. The Germans complained that at some points dummy parachutists were dropped, exploding on touch.

The tenor of their accounts lent support to Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that "there already are hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained" and that "we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises during the course of the fighting."

A superior officer at supreme headquarters said frankly he did not know yet what amount of surprise there was, but Allied Air forces were in control of the skies over the channel and the coast despite unfavorable flying weather.

To Seine Peninsula

If the Germans were correct about the locations, the Allied plan apparently was to seize the Cherbourg peninsula and make Normandy the initial beachhead for a drive up the Seine valley to Paris.

The German radio began broadcasting a constant stream of invasion flashes almost as soon as the first troops landed, and continued with extensive reports of the gigantic naval and air bombardments that covered the assault.

Allied headquarters, however, kept silent until 9:32 a.m. British time (2:32 a.m., CWT), when the following communique was issued:

"Under the command of General Eisenhower, Allied naval forces supported by strong air forces began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France."

Eisenhower Silent

A high officer explained that General Eisenhower had kept resolutely silent until he was absolutely certain the landings had "taken hold."

It was disclosed that a number of unannounced feints had taken place in the pre-invasion period, so that the Germans would not know when the real blow was coming.

It came this morning as the climax of 6 hours of constant heavy air bombardment which reached a cresendo at H-hour.

Warships of both the British and United States navies, including British and American battleships, hurled shells into the coastal defenses which the Germans have been building for four years. The Germans acknowledged that this fire was tremendous and that it had set the whole bay of the Seine area afire.

Parachutists, Glidermen Go In

The parachutists and glidermen went in after a personal farewell from General Eisenhower. The Germans said they landed at Caen and made deep penetrations at many points, with at least four British parachute divisions employed besides the Americans and Canadians.

Great flotillas of minesweepers led the way to the beaches for the Allied ground troops, and the sweeping operation alone was described by SHAEF as "the largest in history."

The German air force reacted very slowly, although a high Allied officer said it probably had been hoarding 1,750 fighters and 500 bombers to meet the invasion.

The German navy was represented only by a few destroyers and E-boats.

Channel Was Rough

The channel was rough and there was a shower of rain at dawn. At supreme headquarters it was stated that the condition of the sea had caused some great anxiety, but that the troops had gone ashore, even though many were seasick.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that the parachute and glider men had made successful massed airborne landings. He said 4,000 ships and thousands of smaller landing craft took the land forces in.

The Allies have about 11,000 first-line aircraft which they can draw upon as needed, he said.

"The landings on the beaches are proceeding at various points at the present time," Churchill said. "The fire of shore batteries has been largely quelled . . . Obstacles which were constructed in the sea have not proved so difficult as was apprehended."

"Most Complicated Operation"

Churchill called the operation "undoubtedly the most complicated and difficult which has ever occurred."

Swedish correspondents reported from Germany that the Allies had landed at twelve points between the Orne and Vire rivers with the central assault directed at Caen, 10 miles inland and at the base of the Cherbourg peninsula. The Germans themselves called Caen the "center of gravity" of the attack.

The Stockholm paper Aftonbladet said, "the attack seems directed against the most heavily defended section of the French coast and aimed directly at Paris."

"Grand-Style Operation"

The German radio called it "a grand-style operation" both in area and numbers of troops and admitted Normandy had been penetrated by the airborne troops "in great depth."

There was no confirmation from Allied sources of a rumor that Caen airfields already had been captured.

While the Allies described German naval activity as negligible, the Germans claimed a furious sea battle had developed off La Havre between Nazi motor torpedo boats and the invasion fleet.

Low-hanging clouds and artificial fog with which the Allied forces covered the landings made it difficult to obtain a clear picture of the great assault.

Channel Weather Unsettled

The channel weather was somewhat unsettled, but sun broke through occasionally, and the wind had moderated.

Allied sources said the parachutists dropped through low clouds, while the Germans complained that in some places dummies had been heaved over to confuse the ground defenses.

An Associated Press correspondent who flew over the scene in a B-25 bomber reported he saw hundreds of parachutes and gliders on the ground.

While making no effort to minimize the scope of the onslaught, the Germans made their expected claims to have wiped out many of the airborne troops and to have scored hits on numerous warships and transports at sea. All these claims were without confirmation.

Nazi Reserves In Action

The Germans said their emergency reserves already had gone into action.

Fighter pilots who returned from covering the first invasion waves said things already seemed well organized on the beaches.

"There was a hell of a lot of armored stuff on the beach that looked like tanks," said a Canadian flier. "I've never seen so many ships in all my life."

He and others said there was "lots of shooting going on" at the beaches but the troops got ashore well and many of the fighter planes did not even have to fire their guns.

A high officer at Allied headquarters described the landings as actually the third phase of the battle to crush Hitler, the first having been the gigantic air assault and the second the offensive in Italy.

Air Assault Hits Peak

The air assault hit a new high today, with constant streams of bombers of every description dumping repeated loads on the chosen coastal area from which French patriots had been warned by Allied radios to withdraw at least to a depth of 35 kilometers (22 miles).

While the French thus were warned away from the immediate attack area, an Allied officer at headquarters declared, "we have high hopes of the underground in France which we have aided so long."

General Eisenhower broadcast during the morning an announcement to the peoples of western Europe, telling them of the landings and declaring, "all patriots, young and old, will have a part to play in the liberation."

He urged against premature uprisings, however, saying, "be patient. Prepare. Wait until I give you the signal."

Daily Markets

Stock Market

RESPONDS TO BIG NEWS

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) — The stock market responded to the big invasion news today with an advance of pace-rating issues to peaks for the year or longer in the fastest dealings since last November.

There was a little nervous selling at the opening but it was short-lived and, led by motors which came out in blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares, favorites soon brushed off minus signs and tacked on advances of fractions to more than a point. Extreme gains were reduced in the final hour and, near the close, scattered losers were in evidence among aircrafts, rails and liquors. Transfers ran to around 1,900,000 shares compared with 850,000 yesterday.

In the "new high" class were General Motors, Chrysler, Packard, Willys-Overland, Studebaker, Nash-Kelvinator, International Telephone, Graham-Paige and Dupont. Ahead were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Eastern Airlines, American Airlines, United Air Lines, Pan American Airways, Union Pacific, American Telephone, Goodyear, Goodrich, Homestake, Dome and Dow Chemical. Park & Tilford dropped several points. Backward were Schenley, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Douglas Aircraft and Eastman Kodak.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, June 6 (AP) — Cotton futures broke more than a dollar a bale on invasion news here early today but later buying was general, and eased the losses and some months made new highs for the season.

POSTPONED 24 HOURS

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Farce, June 6 (AP)—The Allied landings in France were postponed 24 hours due to bad weather, it was learned today. They were originally scheduled for yesterday morning.

Texans Late In Learning News

(By The Associated Press)

Most Texans did not know that "a great crusade" had been launched against the continent of Europe until some four or five hours after the announcement.

The report, coming at 2:32 a. m., found most residents asleep and the first news many of them got was from extra editions of newspapers.

Papers "sold like hotcakes" reported the newsboys.

As they had planned, the churches of Texas called the people to prayer.

In Dallas, where sirens signalled the invasion, a minister, a rabbi and a priest led in early-morning prayer over the radio.

All-Day Prayer Services

In Houston 445 churches opened their doors early for 24 hours of special prayer for early victory and peace. Special devotionals were arranged for 7 a. m., 12 noon and 3 p. m.

At Beaumont, blasts from an air siren signalled the invasion at 2:35 a. m. A tour of the town showed fewer than one house to the block with lights on. Churches began blinking on lights by 3:30 a. m. for prayer meetings. The national anthem came over the shipyards' loudspeaker system at 6 a. m. while 4,000 workers stood silent at the change in shift. The flash was too late for the regular morning paper, but 38,000 extras were printed.

From Corsicana, publishers reported "we were on the street with an extra before many knew what was happening."

News Spreads Slowly

At Marshall, the invasion news spread slowly before fire sirens aroused the town — and the local pastors' association had a fishing trip planned today. The sleepy pastor called too late to get a postponement notice in the invasion extra.

"Our extra in many small northeast Texas towns was the first invasion news," reported the Marshall papers.

"Comparatively few turned on radios early as sirens sounded in downtown area," reported the Wichita Falls morning paper. "Papers sold like hot cakes." Churches were open all day. At Midland, fire sirens aroused citizens to hear the invasion news and city-wide prayer service was arranged at noon.

Activity At Pampa

Sirens, railroad whistles, bells, sounded D-day at Pampa, and the city came quickly to life. The Pampa News had an extra on the streets before daylight and the residents were out looking for it. Special prayer services were held in Pampa all day.

Old-time newspaper days were revived with the sale of extras by Dallas newspapers at a mile-a-minute clip. Buses and street cars, loaded with early morning passengers, were reading about the invasion. They had started buying papers from the ends of the lines.

One bus driver stopped at a corner and bought an extra, then passed it back to his passengers to read.

Solemn Hour For Texans

Governor Stevenson's comment that the invasion was a solemn hour for Texans everywhere typified the tone struck by the news in the state capital.

Lights flickered on in homes scattered over the city as the word was passed from house to house.

The first public gathering was a prayer service at the University Baptist church, adjacent to the campus of the University of Texas.

State department employes — many of whom had been awake most of the night — were at their desks as usual, at least going through the motions of work. Several brought small radio sets to their offices.

hour and a half. The conference took place in his command tent.

The weather, we learned, had been the biggest Allied headache in the selection of D-day.

The general smoked constantly, sometimes lighting one cigaret from another. Beyond that he made no movement. He did not appear to notice the express train roar of constant Allied air patrols overhead.

After the conference he stood outside, hatless and with hands in pockets, and chatted with us informally. We remarked upon his calmness and I asked him, "don't these things make you nervous?" He chuckled and said he was the type that boiled up inside but that when things got too bad he was usually able to sleep it off.

Texans Should Renew Their Responsibility

AUSTIN, June 6. (AP)—Of the Allied invasion of France, Governor Coke R. Stevenson said:

"This is a solemn hour for Texans everywhere and it should give a renewed sense of responsibility to Texans to support the war effort until final victory."

REPORT 15-MILE FRONT

LONDON, June 6. (AP)—Transocean in a Berlin broadcast today said the Allies had established a 15-mile front from a mile to half a mile deep between Villers-Sur-Mer and Trouville.

This area is about seven miles south of the big port of Le Havre where transatlantic liners docked in pre-war days and takes in the beach resort area of Deauville.

HOUSTON STORES CLOSED

HOUSTON, June 6. (U.P.)—Major retail stores closed here today in observance of the European invasion.

Despite its being our heaviest fighter, the seven-ton P-38 Lightning is one of our fastest combat planes, with a speed of 360 miles per hour and a range of 1000 miles.

Normandy Is Natural Pathway Into France For Allied Units

LONDON, June 6 (AP) — Normandy jutting out along the English channel opposite British invasion bases forms a natural peninsula pathway into France, and from the first Allied commanders have recognized it as one of their best bets for beachheads.

The gun-bristling coastline, rock shoals and in some places bad tide made initial landing hazardous, but once a foothold is established the Allies can attack along either side of the peninsula, protected on the flank by the sea.

The Cherbourg peninsula—old Normandy—thrusts out to the Cape de la Hague and Cape de Barfleur 88 miles from the Isle of Wight.

The peninsula is 70 miles long and ranges from 25 to 60 miles wide, with the port of Cherbourg at the tip as a keypoint of coastal defense. Cherbourg is 75 miles from Bournemouth, England.

From German accounts, the Allied objective appeared to be establishment of a broad beachhead along the curving coast between Le Havre and Cherbourg.

Penetrations inland would clear all of Normandy, with its good air field sites, and provide a pathway down the Seine valley to Paris.

Le Havre, 100 air line miles northwest of Paris on the Seine river estuary, is France's second seaport and has 14 ship basins and eight miles of docks.

One of France's main trans-Atlantic terminals for peacetime trade with New York and other ports, the city itself lies mostly on a level strip of ground except on the north where a great bluff overlooks the entrance to the Seine estuary. Before the war it was France's 11th city in population with about 165,000 persons.

It has been attacked by Allied planes because of its importance as a Nazi submarine base.

During the World war Britain and the United States used it as a base and point for landing troops and stores.

Mrs. John R. Freeman, 2112 Thirteenth street, who underwent major surgery in the Lubbock General hospital Friday, is reported to be convalescing satisfactorily. Her room number at the hospital is 304.

Two speakers, W. O. Fortenberry and G. P. Kuykendall, cited the increasing menace of Johnson grass on Lubbock county farms and outlined a campaign to eradicate the infestation in talks to the Lubbock Lions club today noon at the Hilton hotel. At the close of their talks, the club approved a resolution calling for concerted action on the part of the county commissioners' court in the campaign. A meeting on the campaign will be conducted Thursday afternoon at the courthouse and Lions were invited to attend. Tom Ingram, baseball chairman, introduced members of the Lions team in the kids summer baseball league who were guests at the luncheon.

Negroes Hold Meeting

Lubbock's negroes met at the Colored Presbyterian church at 9 o'clock this morning for "D-day" services, and had meditation for their men in service until 10 o'clock. Plans were being made at that church for an additional service tonight at 8 o'clock, W. M. Sedberry, elder of the church, announced.

Special services were held at St. Paul's-on-the-Plains Episcopal church at 12:05 noon today, with Rev. John A. Winslow, rector, leading the congregation. The service lasted less than an hour.

The Baptist brotherhood of the First Baptist church, consisting of about 110 members, will still have its weekly meeting tonight at 6:45 o'clock at the church annex, but the entire program will be devoted to prayers for our boys fighting in France, G. H. Nelson, president, announced. The program will continue until 8 o'clock tonight. Dinner will be served from 6:45 until 7:15 o'clock. Erton Tate, program chairman, extended an invitation to all Baptist men and men of all churches to join the brotherhood in "this most important meeting." If outside men, wishing to attend, do not want to attend the dinner, they may come at 7:15 o'clock at the church annex, Tate said.

Prayer Service Tonight

An invasion prayer service will be conducted tonight at 8 o'clock at the Calvary Baptist church. It will be held in the church auditorium.

First Christian church announced that while no plans have been made for special services, the doors of the church will be open for people desiring meditation in these times.

Majority of the churches will leave their doors open all day for meditation and prayer.

First services conducted at 3:30 o'clock this morning began with Mrs. Neal opening the all-church service with a soft rendition of "Nearer My God to Thee." She continued to play softly as people filed into the church auditorium.

Women dabbed hankerchiefs to their eyes and now and then sobs were audible here and there in the stillness of the building. It was a terrible uncertainty that they faced. They had no way of knowing if their sons or brothers or husbands or friends were in the first invasion waves. The men were grim and they were wondering, too.

Prayers were spoken by several ministers. At the altar and on every bench there was silent communion with the Almighty.

Lubbock streets were very quiet. Nothing was to be seen not heard that would suggest that the invasion at last was here.

Rev. Hershel H. Henkel, pastor of the East Side Baptist church, announces that there will be a prayer service at the church from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight. The church will be open all day for prayer services and the first service was held at 10 a. m.

Wranglers fraternity of Texas Technological college, men's social club on the campus having numerous exes participating with the Allied forces, will meet at 7 o'clock tonight at the First Methodist church in a body, for short prayers and meditation.

PRAYERS MAY BE OFFERED BEFORE ROLL OF HONOR

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have erected a rostrum on which they have placed a Holy Bible, in front of the Roll of Honor memorial at the county courthouse.

Names on the memorial are of men and women in the armed services—and of those, marked by gold stars, who made the supreme sacrifice.

The Colors, guarded by military police from Lubbock and South Plains Army Air fields, are flying.

The public may go there and offer brief silent prayers for the success of Allied arms—and for the safety of every survivor listed on the Roll of Honor, it was announced.

The observance was in response to proclamations making D-day Prayer day, as well.

PENINSULA SAID OCCUPIED

LONDON, June 6 (U.P.) — The German Transocean news agency said tonight that the Allied "offensive area" had been extended to the entire Norman peninsula.

GERMAN VESSEL SUNK

LONDON, June 6 (U.P.)—DNB, German news agency, admitted in a broadcast today that a German vessel had been sunk during violent fighting in the Seine estuary.

mighty God, to rededicate ourselves in renewed faith in Thee in this hour of great sacrifice.

Asks Continuing Prayers

Many people have urged that I call the nation into a single day of special prayer. But because the road is long and the desire is great, I ask that our people devote themselves in continuance of prayer. As we rise to each new day, and again when each day is spent, let words of prayer be on our lips, invoking Thy help to our efforts.

Give us strength, too—strength in our daily tasks, to redouble the contributions we make in the physical and material support of our armed forces.

And let our hearts be stout, to wait out the long travail, to bear sorrows that may come, to impart our courage unto our sons wheresoever they may be.

"Give Us Faith"

And, O Lord, give us faith. Give us faith in Thee; faith in our sons; faith in each other; faith in our united crusade. Let not the keenness of our spirit ever be dulled. Let not the impacts of temporary events, of temporal matters of but fleeting moment—let not these deter us in our unconquerable purpose.

With Thy blessing, we shall prevail over the unholy forces of our enemy. Help us to conquer the apostle of greed and racial arrogances. Lead us to the saving of our country, and with our sister nations into a world unity that will spell a sure peace—a peace invulnerable to the schemings of unworthy men. And a peace that will let all men live in freedom, reaping the just rewards of their honest toil.

Thy will be done, Almighty God. Amen.

Pvt. Riek was graduated from Lubbock High school at midterm in 1943 and was a football player for several years. Out of 37 boys at Ft. Frenchmen Asked To Remain At Stations

LONDON, June 6. (AP) — The Paris radio today broadcast an appeal by Marshal Petain to refrain from actions "which would call down upon you tragic reprisals."

"France has become a battlefield," said the aged Vichy chief. "The circumstances of battle may compel the German army to take special measures in the battle area. Accept this necessity."

He called on officials, railwaymen, and workers to remain at their posts — where they would serve the German military machine—"in order to keep the life of the nation and in order to carry out your tasks."

"Do not listen to outside voices calling on you not to listen to our decrees," he said.

Montgomery Sees Rough Show, But Successful One

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, London, June 6 (U.P.) —The invasion will be a rough show but it will succeed.

That's the word of the man who today commanded the Allied army group attacking the shores of Hitler-held Europe — Gen. Sir. Bernard L. Montgomery.

Monty of El Alamein made this confident appraisal in a pre-invasion talk to correspondents which may be reported now that the invasion is underway.

He asked that he not be quoted directly but made these points:

1. He expected the Germans to meet the invasion on the beaches.

2. He believed it would be a "reunion with Rommel," with Marshal Erwin Rommel, his defeated antagonist of the African desert campaign, commanding the German defense of the beaches.

U. S. Production Cited

3. The people of England do not generally appreciate that without the tremendous American production, the invasion would not have been possible.

4. The Americans are fine fighters and he was happy to be commanding American assault forces and working again—as in Tunisia—under an American commander.

Gesturing sharply and speaking in clipped tones which barely carried to the back row of the correspondents, Montgomery said he was pleased to be meeting Rommel again on the field of battle.

RETURNING PILOTS REPORT SLIGHT NAZI OPPOSITION

BY ROBERT RICHARDS

United Press War Writer

A U. S. FIGHTER BASE, Eng., June 6 — Thunderbolt pilots returned from the invasion area today reported that Allied troops were piling onto the shore of France apparently with little opposition and that the skies had been virtually cleared of German planes.

"From 4,000 feet I could see trucks and jeeps all over the beach and more coming," said 2nd Lt. Wayne Swanberry, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., "One truck blew up but that was the only sign of enemy activity." Swanberry said that while flying inland he saw a number of British gliders—"all neatly parked"—and colored parachutes dotting the fields.

Emphasize Lack Of Resistance

Other returning pilots who covered the invasion coast during the morning made similar reports emphasizing the lack of German resistance.

2nd Lt. Quinlan Regan, Chartley, Mass., said: "I saw 25 to 30 enemy planes on an airfield about 20 miles from the landing area. They wouldn't come up and fight. I went down to 1,000 feet with the idea of strafing them, but their ack-ack drove me off."

Pilots from this base were among the first back from covering the landing operations. They said they saw troops scrambling on the shore at 7 a. m. apparently without much opposition.

Warships Paste Enemy

The pilots, who criss-crossed the invasion coast giving cover to the ground forces, said they could see a huge fleet of warships standing off the coast pasting enemy positions.

"I've never seen so many boats in all my life," said Maj. John L. Locke, 27, San Antonio, Tex., a squadron leader. "Flying over a harbor, I counted a great number of cruisers, destroyers, corvettes and hundreds of other types of craft. The constant flashes of their guns indicated the beach was getting a heavy pounding."

Behind the warships pounding the coast, Locke said, came a never ending stream of line upon line of LCT's (landing craft tanks) escorted by corvettes and PT boats.

"It felt like you could almost look down and see the anxious grins on the infantrymen's faces," Locke said.

MANY AIRBORNE TROOPS ARE LANDED IN FRANCE

BY GLADWIN HILL

Associated Press Correspondent

Representing The Combined American Press

A MARAUDER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 6 — From the cockpit of one of many hundreds of planes which supported the Allied landing in northern France early this morning I watched a battle royal rage on the sea and in the air.

The fields along the French channel coast were dotted with parachutes of Allied airborne forces who had landed a few minutes before and interspersed among the parachutes were aircraft — probably gliders.

Warships Shell Coast

The first signs of battle were flashed from the channel below, which through the mist and a naval smoke screen gradually became distinguishable as gun detonations on warships shelling the coast.

The channel wasn't "jammed with shipping" as might have been expected. The channel is a big place, but on every hand there were forces of ships either battering the coast line or bringing up forces to take advantage of breaches.

Aircraft Zebra Striped

The aircraft dotting the fields bore the distinctive Allied invasion black and white zebra stripe, which was hurriedly slapped on the aircraft late yesterday.

(A broadcast from supreme headquarters said the black and white identifying stripes on the planes were one step toward preventing confusion and repetition of such mistakes as Allied gunners firing on friendly planes, as happened in Sicily.)

United Nations convoys are bringing up additional reinforcements to support this initial invasion drive, and thousands of Allied planes are hammering the coast.

Jap Destroyer, Freighter Sunk

(By The Associated Press)

Destruction of Japan's dwindling seapower mounted today with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's announcement of the sinking of a destroyer and a freighter—losses which boosted the enemy's total to 20 ships reported in two days.

Liberator bombers, blasting the southern invasion road to the Philippines, potted the Japanese destroyer off Halmahera and the freighter was bagged by attack planes in New Guinea waters. Other planes from MacArthur's command left a second enemy destroyer dead in the water and damaged two other supply ships.

Submarines Sink 16

The Navy announced yesterday that prowling American submarines had sent six transports and 10 cargo vessels to the bottom of the Pacific and Navy planes got two more in the Truk area.

In land fighting, meantime, six Japanese columns tightened on Changsha, key city on the Hankow-Canton railway in China's Hunan province. Hunan's governor, Gen. Hsueh Yueh, said "the fate of the nation depends upon the outcome of the present battle."

In the Southwest Pacific, American invaders of Biak island in the Schouten group off Dutch New Guinea outflanked the Japanese defenders and cut in on the Mokmer airfield from two directions. Nineteen enemy planes were added to the 30 announced as destroyed in this theater yesterday.

Navy Lashes Coast

200-footers, and LST's (landing ships, tanks) queens of the family able to disgorge anything from jeeps to monster road building machines — all these plus amphibious "ducks" and other weird craft were there.

Had Its Own Firepower

This bizarre snub-nosed fleet did not confine itself to a transport job. It had its own firepower to supplement that of the orthodox warships. In many American warships and in the vast "Elsie" fleet were seasoned sailors who had done this sort of job before — in the Mediterranean or the Pacific.

For many more it was the first stark climax to grindingly weary months of rehearsals.

Nor was the Navy's job confined to bombardment, to protecting the vast convoys from air, surface and undersea attack and to the landing of troops. Sailors tumbled out of the landing craft along with the first wave of troops in naval shore battalions integrated into the Army's amphibious beach brigades.

Under fire or not, these beached sailors in Army garb and gear had to do preliminary demolition of underwater obstacles, clear the channels for the landing craft, tend wounded and prisoners, direct the landings of incoming craft, bury the dead, repair or blow up disabled craft clogging the beach approaches, establish communications between the beachhead and the ships and establish emergency dressing stations dug into the sand.

MINESWEEPING OPERATION GREATEST IN HISTORY

LONDON, June 6. (AP)—In the face of enemy shore batteries and aircraft a gallant minesweeping force of 10,000 British and Americans guided D-day's seaborne assault with the greatest minesweeping operation in history.

The great armada of little ships—converted fishing trawlers, coal burners which served in the last war, ships still on the secret list and recently launched in British and American yards — performed their task on a huge scale. The length of sweep wires used to tear loose moored mines stretched nearly 70 miles in all.

Other ships dropped markers to guide the invasion fleet through the cleared seas.

The job had to be completed on a timetable despite gunfire, attacking aircraft and tricky tides. Doggedly the little craft kept perfect formation to make sure the swept lanes went straight to the designated landing points.

NAVAL GUNS LAID DOWN MIGHTY BARRAGE

By PIERRE HUSS

Representing The Combined American Press Distributed by the Associated Press

ABOARD A BRITISH WARSHIP, June 6.—Six hundred naval guns, opening fire on the French coastal stretch west of Le Havre, laid down a mighty barrage of 2,000 tons of shells each ten minutes beginning at 5:15 a. m. today as the Allied invasion of Europe began.

Apparently taken by suprise, the Germans replied from under a smoke screen laid down by our aircraft to hide us. The red glare of flames enveloped targets.

Covered by the tornadic bombardment, British assault troops successfully stormed ashore at 7:30 a. m. and were clearing the beaches by 7:45. Beginning at 7 a. m., one of the most sustained bombardments struck. It must have stunned the Germans and apparently silenced the majority of the shore batteries.

The luftwaffe was absent. The Allied Air forces appeared to have complete sky mastery.

NO NAZI GUNS FIRING

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—An NBC reporter who flew over 20 miles of the invasion coast this morning said "not a single German coastal gun was firing in the entire invasion zone," and NBC said this indicated "we have completely knocked out the initial line of defenses of the much-vaunted Atlantic wall."

Elaborate Nazi Defenses Built

By FRED L. STROZIER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

The winter of 1941-42 marked the period in which Adolf Hitler quit boasting he would invade England and began looking to the defense of a European coastline 9,000 miles long.

When the resurgent forces of Soviet Russia were halting the German drive before Moscow and beginning their first spectacular Winter Counter - offensive, Hitler and his advisers appeared first to realize the vulnerability of his vast new continental empire.

The growing offensive strength of the Royal Air force in the last days of 1941 and the addition of United States striking power in the months that followed drove home to the German high command that the coasts of France and the low countries no longer could be considered a springboard for an attack against the British Isles, but instead were areas to be defended.

Many Immobilised

Hitler was compelled to keep scores of divisions tied up in the West. As early as the summer of 1942, it was authoritatively estimated that 3,000,000 Nazis were idling away in garrisons in France, the low countries and Norway, or were working on fortifications of steel and concrete to meet whatever thrust might come. Almost one-third of these were believed to be soldiers; the others German workmen sorely needed at home.

To portect the most obviously vulnerable portions of France and the low countries, just across the English channel from the British Isles, Hitler built elaborate fortifications. These begin at the beaches with land mines and extend miles inland.

Pillboxes connected by Communication trenches were placed throughout the coastal areas. Minfature forts manned by small permanent garrisons and mounting artillery were scattered at strategic points.

Most Formidable Strip

This type of fortified coastline is most formidable in a strip 500 miles long running from Brest, at the western tip of the Brittany coast of France, along the channel into Holland.

The fortifications are deepest just across from England around Calais, Boulogne and Dieppe. Tank traps, mines, anti-tank and other artillery, flame throwers and possibly poison gas equipment are spotted through this primary invasion coastal area.

Farther back from the coast, Hitler placed greater concentrations of troops at strategic points to be rushed to any danger spot.

Back of these are the airports which the Allies have been pounding for months.

Others Not So Elaborate

The remainder of the 4,500 miles of coastline in western and northern Europe, of course, boasts nothing so elaborate.

To defend Germany proper, Hitler banks on natural obstacles and great inner fortifications to which he may withdraw as the pressure increases. His western and southern defense plan depends on the Meuse and Aisne rivers in France, the Po river and the Alps across northern Italy, and the old Rhine fortifications.

The Maginot line on the old French frontier offers major aid as a bomb-proof shelter for men and supplies and within Germany itself the "West Wall," or Siegfried line, provides a last-ditch fortress for defense of the nation. It is generally understood that this great line of forts has been extended from the Swiss border to the North Sea.

May Withdraw Inland

Some sources have predicted that Hitler, in case of invasion, would withdraw to a central European stronghold that he could defend more easily than could be done with his vast areas of occupation. This reported scheme would involve abandoning southern France, Norway and the Balkans, and withdrawal from the Russian front to a less extended eastern front closer home.

These sources said such a plan would cut the boundaries to be protected from 11,000 miles of land and sea frontier to less than half as much and still keep the fighting front out of Germany itself.

Man Sentenced For Killing Son-In-Law

DALLAS, June 6 (AP) — A district court jury Monday convicted Robert Lawler, 49, on an indictment charging him with the shotgun slaying last Sept. 15 of his son-in-law, Terry Windsor O'Donohue.

The jury assessed a penalty of 16 years in state prison. The case had been in the hands of the jury for 40 hours.

O'Donohue, a member of the Seabees, was slain while he was home on leave to visit his wife, Nadine, 17, whom he had married several months prior to the shooting.

Lawler, World war I veteran, testified he shot because O'Donohue appeared at the Lawler home to see Nadine against her wishes.

Scientists say that the war has condensed 50 years of normal development in the technique of weather forecasting into two or three years.

Johnson Grass Drive Planned

A meeting of Lubbock county farmers and landowners of Lubbock county will be held in the district court room of the courthouse here Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss eradication of Johnson grass.

Farmers, landowners and other interested parties are urged to attend this meeting, as this menace is beginning to appear on the farms of the county and an effort will be made to "stamp it out," according to Joe Nislar, chairman of the resolutions committee.

Committee members already have met with the county commissioners court and with representatives of the two railroads serving Lubbock and of the State Highway department.

Nislar said the commissioners will be asked to employ a man with knowledge and experience and set aside for him to employ men and equipment to completely free the county roads of Johnson grass. The highway department and the two railroads will be asked to take care of their rights-of-way in like manner.

The Kiwanis and American Business clubs, in their luncheons last week, passed resolutions wholeheartedly endorsing the program. The four other civic clubs of Lubbock will be contacted this week and, according to G. P. Kuykendall, member of the committee, "their wholehearted support can be expected.

This program is being undertaken at the insistence of the Lubbock county Soil Conservation committee, Nislar said.

Members of the resolutions committee are Joe Nislar, W. O. Fortenberry, L. A. Howard, R. A. Boyd, Henry Mahoney and G. P. Kuykendall.

SPAAF Commanding Officer Is Proud Of Gliders' Important Role In European Invasion

News of the European invasion was greeted with quiet assurance and pride this morning at South Plains Army Air field — particularly when early bulletins disclosed strategic and tactical employment of gliders in the Allies' mass investment of the continent.

For the "Home of the Winged Commandos," the country's only remaining glider school, "hatched" many hundreds of pilots—doubtless the majority of those who glided this fateful morning to key points of extreme danger, heavily loaded with Arm, personnel bent on destruction of some of Hitler's most fearsome implacements.

Statement By DeMarco

The feeling at the base was articulated in a brief statement of Col. James A. DeMarco, commanding officer, through request of The Evening Journal:

"Many months ago, Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Brant told a graduating class of glider pilots at South Plains Army Air field that the glider was 'a weapon of opportunity.' Today, the Germans know what the general was talking about; as far as we of the Army Air Forces Flying Training command are concerned, the invasion began several years ago. This holds particularly true of the personnel at SPAAF. This is what we have been working and waiting for. We, at our country's only glider school, are most concerned with the initial phase of this operation. With keen interest and quiet confidence, we look forward to news that our glider spearhead has attained success that will make easier the paths for those who follow.

"Next to actual participation, we will derive the greatest satisfaction in the proud knowledge that w contributed to that success. We confidently anticipate this culmination of all our hopes and faith in the effective employment of the glider. Supreme Headquarters in London has announced that glider troops and paratroopers struck telling blows 'behind the Atlantic Wall.' The successful invasion tactics are a tribute to the Allied Forces as well as to those who trained them so magnificently.

"Proud To Have Had Part"

"We at South Plains Army Air field are proud to have had a part in the training of these men. We will continue to train men. Our job is by no means finished.

"All Americans can be proud of the efficient teamwork of the land, sea and air forces in the greatest military maneuver of all time. This teamwork goes even further—people on the home front share in the success of the invasion too. Four War Loan drives have helped pave the way for D-day. We are now in the midst of a Fifth War Loan drive which will enable the United Nations to carry on.

"So, for us at home, this is a day of opportunity also."

Col. Ralph E. Holmes, commanding Lubbock Army Air field, declined comment on the subject of the invasion.

People Throughout U. S. Receive News Solemnly, Quietly

(By The United Press)

The waiting was over.

In city and town, village and farm, Americans looked at each other and said, "This is it."

In many places church bells pealed and sirens screamed the news that the battle for Europe was on. The Liberty bell, cherished symbol of American freedom, rang again in Philadelphia for liberation.

But mostly the people were quiet. They had waited a long time.

The waiting for the invasion was over. Now the people would wait a while longer, anxiously and prayerfully, to see how it turned out.

Reports from all over the country told of a common impulse—an impulse to prayer.

People Pray For Men

In metropolitan temples, in steepled white churches in the country, in synagogues and cathedrals people prayed for the men storming Europe's beaches and flying Europe's skies.

On the eve of invasion President Roosevelt, knowing what was coming a few hours hence, said:

"May God bless and watch over . . . all of our gallant fighting men."

The D-day prayer service were planned in advance for those who would have time to attend them. Those with work to do did it. They caught a radio bulletin or two, scanned the headlines, and went to their jobs. If they prayed, they did so silently, perhaps subconsciously.

In Washington, the thousands of government workers — the clerks, the service men and women, the teen-age girls — queued up for breakfast at the cafeterias just as they did yesterday.

But there was a difference. The girls were not giggling. The men had little to say. And a popular cafeteria placed little American flags on the tables, hard by the plastic ashtrays.

War workers in hundreds of congested industrial centers kept at their work. At Douglas and Lockheed in Los Angeles workers listened silently to the loudspeaker. Then they went back to work.

They went back to work, the report from the West coast said, "with such a fury as foremen said they never before had observed."

New York, the nation's largest and most merciful city, took the invasion news in stride. No sirens greeted the first communique and no crowds gathered. Newsstands sales were brisk, and throngs in restaurants avidly read all the bulletins in the papers.

Three Federal Cases Tried

Swearing in of the jury panel of 28 men and the trying of three criminal cases made up the session of federal court here this morning. U. S. District Judge T. Whitefield Davidson, presiding judge, excused five of the 33 jurors reporting for various reasons.

Two of the three criminal cases were completed while another was in the process of being tried when court was adjourned shortly after noon. All three were non-jury cases.

Judge Davidson dismissed the jurors, ordering them to reappear at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Pleads Guilty Of Theft

James Robert Morris, alias Bill Johnson, 30, pleaded guilty to charges of taking, stealing and carrying away from the depot of Dalby Motor Freight line, one carton containing 11 suits of men's clothing, moving in interstate commerce, and possessing the stolen shipment. He was sentenced to two years in some federal correctional institute on first count and sentence was withheld on second count.

Will Clay, 39, pleaded guilty to the second of two counts charged in the indictment. He was chared with unlawfully having in his possession gasoline ration coupons which had not been issued to him by any war price and rationing board, and with possession of grade No. 1 tire which he purchased without tire rationing certificate. He was assessed a fine of $50.

Testifies Against Husband

Rachel Ray testified in the case against George W. Ray, her husband, who is charged with transporting of a female from one state to another for immoral purposes. She was on the stand for approximately 45 minutes when court was dismissed. Ray entered a plea of innocent to the charges. The case was to be completed this afternoon.

Also scheduled for this afternon was the hearing of five applications for naturalization.

Criminal cases heard Monday afternoon were as follows:

Cecil T. Hines, 28, charged with unlawfully wearing the uniform of an enlisted man in the United States Navy, was assessed a fine of $100. He entered a plea of guilty.

Archie M. Cook pleaded guilty to charges of disposing of personal property in violation of the Emergency Relief appropriations act of 1941 and was sentenced to 13 months in the federal correctional institute in Texarkana, the sentence being probated for two years, provided he pay bacl. the $1456.70 he reecived for the personal property at the rate of $100 per month.

Rationing Coupons

John E. Hall, jr., 23, pleaded guilty to charges of unlawfully having in his possession 25 serially numbered "T" gasoline rationing coupons and two valid A-10 coupons which were unattached to any regular folder or book as provided by ration order 5-c, none having been issued to defendant by any war price and rationing board. He was fined $25 and given six months in jail, the jail sentence being probated for three years.

Imposition of sentence was withheld in the case against Marvin Chester Harper, 29, who pleaded guilty to all of seven counts in the indictment charging him with possession and transfering of gasoline ration coupons equivalent to 7,500 gallons of gasoline. In commenting upon his decision, Judge Davidson pointed out he was withholding imposition of sentence in the case due to the fact that Harper served with the Marines on Guadalcanal in the service of his country and had received a medical discharge from the Navy hospital recently. He said, "Those boys on Guadalcanal went through purgatory."

Negro Pleads Guilty

F. A. Stephenson, negro, charged with purchasing from Laverne Jones two new passenger type tires for the sum of $60 and without surrendering tire certificates issued by a war price and rationing board, pleaded guilty to the charges. He was assessed a fine of $25.

Laverne Jones, negro, entered a plea of innocent to the charge of unlawfully selling to F. A. Stephenson two grade-one passenger type tires without having and obtaining in exchange therefor tire rationing certificates as required by ration order 1-a as amended. He was sentenced to six months in federal correctional institute in Texarkana or similar institution.

A 17-year-old boy, facing a juvenile delinguency charge, growing out of the alleged robbery of the postoffice at Gilpin in Dickens county on April 2, 1944, was sentenced to three years in "some school." The boy's home is in Camden, N. J.

The civil case of M. R. Free and others against Lubbock Independent school district board of trustees was dismissed.

Dollar A Barrel Hike On Oil Is Advocated

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — An increase of $1 a barrel in the price of oil was advocated today by Rep. Winter (R-Kas) as "the best way to solve the apparent crude shortage."

While the House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation increasing the price limit 35 cents a barrel, Winter in an interview expressed the opinion there was little chance for favorable Senate action because of opposition from the Office of Price administration and the Director of Economic stabilization.

A $1 increase would bring the total price to $2.17. Winter pointed out that during the First World war, oil sold for as high as $2.50.

(By The United Press)

The Tokyo radio reported the Allied invasion of France to the Japanese people at 6 a. m (EWT) today, two hours and 12 minutes after it gave the news in an English language overseas broadcast.

Both broadcasts, reported by the Federal Communications commission, gave only German versions of the landings.

Infantry Unit In Spearhead Attacks Drilled For Months

(By The Associated Press)

HEADQUARTERS, European Theater Operations, June 6 — Some of the bravest soldiers in the United States Army — it was a job only for the brave — made the initial land attack on the fortress of Europe by knocking out pill boxes and other fortifications of the Atlantic wall.

Assault tactics, perfected in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, were drilled into troops in Great Britain for months before the actual invasion. Special training was given infantry units which were designated for the spearhead of the attack.

The assault on concrete emplacements is one of the most exciting and dangerous operations of modern war. It looks impossible, but it isn't, as American doughboys have proved. The key to success is plain old fashioned fortitude spelled with a capital G.

Infantry More Effective

Originally, the reduction of fortifications was considered a job for engineers. However, after some experiences it became apparent that it would be more effective to train infantry with special engineer weapons and this was the technique used in Europe.

The preparation is provided by artillery, by naval guns, by air bombardment and by waterproofed tanks firing hull-down in the water.

There are 30 men in an assault section — 29 enlisted men and one officer. This is the capacity of the assault boats, and it is also the most convenient size for attacking a single pill box.

It is the job of the first men ashore to locate land mines, and mark safe lanes with special tracing strips.

As part of this operation, barbed wire must be cut, and American soldiers have a wonderful weapon for this purpose. It is the Bangalore torpedo, which blows a wide swath through the wire.

Other Members Follow

Then the other members of the team follow through the wire, and move up the beach.

The climax of the entire operation is played by the soldier with the flame thrower and the man with the demolition charge.

As soon as one pill box blows the entire section moves forward for another attack. During a landing operation these tactics are repeated by many squads along a considerable front — there will be at least one division in line, and probably more.

But right now the greatest thing of all, I'd say, is to keep wheels going; keeping your car in service, for instance. There's this and that to help you. There's one motor oil and another. Now from what I know, the explosions in any engine must produce acids, which brings up the bright idea of safely OIL-PLATING your engine's insides with Conoco Nth motor oil. You want to prevent damage from acids... internal corrosion! Some things are specially good at fighting corrosion, and OIL-PLATING comes in that class. Even chromium plating, just for comparison, couldn't stay closer to working parts than this protective OIL-PLATING. It battles corrosion, so as to help you preserve your transportation as soon as you switch to Conoco Nth oil.

Treaty Ratification, Voting By Negroes Are Still Live Issues

By MARLOW and ZIELKE
Associated Press Staff Writers

WASHINGTON, June 6 — The words majority, minority, two-thirds have become brightly significant during this session of Congress.

They are wrapped up in two proposals to amend the Constitution. Congress and the big political parties are giving thought to them now.

This country's future peaceful foreign relations and quiet at home may depend upon those proposals: Modification of the Senate's special treaty-ratifying powers and elimination of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in eight southern states.

Involved are the majority rights of Congress, the minority rights of the Senate, and the voting voice of negroes who are a minority in this country.

Southern Negroes Seeking Votes

Southern negroes, more actively now than in generations, are seeking to vote. They are aided by northern negroes, many northern whites and some southern whites. The poll tax is one of their prime targets.

The southern states contend—and they have many supporters elsewhere in this—that the Constitution gives states the rights to fix their own voting requirements, such as poll taxes.

So, on the ground that it was unconstitutional, southern senators forced withdrawal of an anti-poll tax bill, already approved by the House, by threatening to filibuster against it.

Cloture Attempt Failed

A filibuster could be stopped by a vote for cloture which limits debate to one hour per senator. They voted on cloture. It needs a two-thirds vote. Not even a majority voted for it.

Meanwhile, even an attempt to abolish poll taxes constitutionally, by a constitutional amendment, was crushed, at least temporarily. Early in January Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) made such a proposal. The Senate judiciary committee refused to let it reach the floor. Recently it refused again.

But almost every Republican senator signed a resolution proposing a similar constitutional amendment. A resolution for such an amendment, of course, would need a two-thirds vote of both houses and approval by three-fourths of the states, a lengthy process. Both parties are aware of the worth of northern negroes' votes in November's elections.

Negroes To Watch Parties

Negroes north and south will watch what both parties do about putting into their convention platforms at Chicago this summer a proposal to kill the poll tax in one way or another. And southern whites will watch, too. Some southern Democrats have warned they would carry their fight for "white supremacy" to Chicago.

Both parties, too, will have to think about a platform plank! to amend the Constitution on the Senate's treaty-ratifying powers.

Under the Constitution, the House has no voice in treaty-making. The President approves a treaty and sends it to the Senate for ratification. To ratify, a two-thirds vote is needed. Thus one-third of the senators, plus one, could kill a treaty.

From the House side have come proposals to amend the Constitution so that both House and Senate vote on a treaty with only a majority vote necessary.

From the Senate side there's a proposal to amend the constitution—but still keep it strictly a Senate function by permitting ratification by a majority Senate vote instead of the harder-to-get two-thirds.

STUBBORN CASE OF CONSTIPATION GONE

"No more salts, oils, every day," writes ex-sufferer

Want to stop dosing—and yet keep regular? Then read this unsolicited letter from Mr. Lowe.

"I am 71 years old. Today I'm in the best of health. But, for 15 years I had a stubborn case of constipation—had to rely on salts or castor oil every day. Got so weak I could hardly walk. Five months ago I read one of your ads and my wife advised me to try your ALL-BRAN. After first week my passage was normal. For 5 months I have been eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and haven't taken a laxative. Thanks for ALL-BRAN'S grand relief." Frank Lowe, 4505 S. W. 9th St., Des Moines, Iowa.

You'll be interested in knowing exactly how KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps so many people—how this wholesome cereal gets at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary cellulosic elements. You see ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora to fluff up and prepare wastes for easy elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative, it is a "regulating" food.

If your constipation is this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly—and drink plenty of water. See if it doesn't help. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Court Rules Invalid 'Area Of Production'

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The Supreme court ruled invalid Monday an interpretation of the federal wage-hour administrator that companies handling farm products "within the area of production" are subject to the wage-hour act if they have more than seven employes.

The administrator told the Supreme court that "annual wage payments of from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 turn on the scope to be given the term 'area of production.'"

Justice Frankfurter delivered the 5-4 decision, specifically involving Holly Hill Fruit products, Inc., of Davenport, Fla. Justices Rutledge, Black, Murphy and Douglas dissented.

OPA Hikes Price Of Early '44 Potatoes

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Ceiling prices for early 1944 potatoes were increased today 20 cents per hundred pounds for the rest of this month, through an Office of Price administration order effective in all states except California and Arizona.

The action, under which the increase in growers' prices may be passed on to the consumer, was taken to permit growers to recoup, to some extent, losses suffered because of bad weather conditions, OPA said.

The action may result in an increase to the housewife of about one-fourth of a cent a pound, it was estimated.

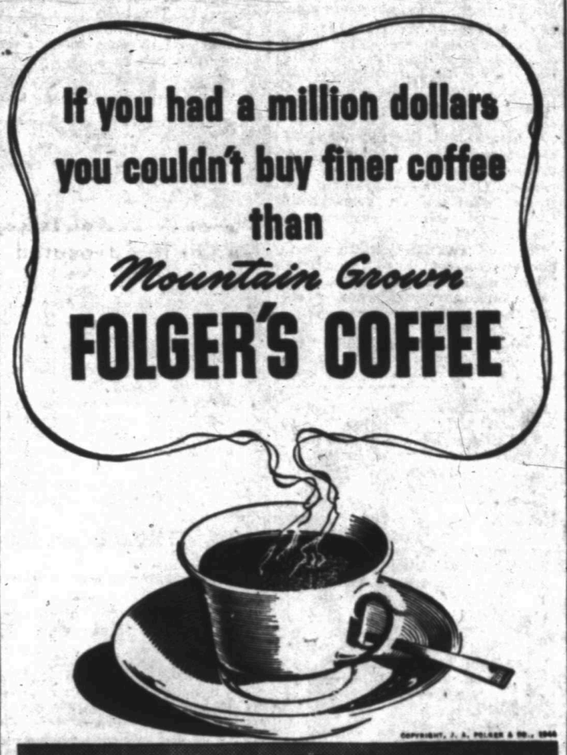

At the same time, and also for the rest of this month only, the minimum diameter of potatoes was reduced from one and seven eighths inches to one and one half inches to qualify for the ceiling on U. S. No. 1 grade potatoes. This ruling will eliminate a previous price differential between the U. S. No. 1 grade and the "size B" potatoes.

Plane Output Exceeds Goal

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Warplane production topped its goal by two per cent in May, Charles E. Wilson reported today, with 8,901 aircraft delivered to the armed forces and heavy bomber output described as "the most we ever got in a month."

The executive vice chairman of the War Production board and head of the aircraft production board said the showing was "particularly gratifying" since every high-urgency ship was delivered at or above schedule rates. Every bomber plant met or exceeded schedule, he said.

Three Plants Dropped

Three plants are to be dropped from the production on Liberator B-24 heavy bombers, Wilson told a press conference, but will concentrate on other work so there will be no decline in production or employment. These are the Consolidated plants at Fort Worth, Texas, and San Diego, Calif., and the Douglas plant at Tulsa, Okla. Tulsa will turn exclusively to Douglas' light bomber, the Invader.

This will leave production of the big B-24 centered in the North American plant in Dallas, where Liberator production is scheduled into next year, and the huge Ford plant at Willow Run, Mich.

Wilson gave assurance that no aircraft cutbacks now are contemplated beyond the fighter plane curtailment which resulted in the cancellation of the Navy's Cosair contract with Brewster Aeronautical corporation two weeks ago, effective July 1.

The number of aircraft produced was not a record but nevertheless, in terms of airframe weight, a new high was reached with a total of 104 million pounds.

Wilsn declined to specify the number of heavy bombers produced, but said that for several months production has been "substantially" greater than the 1,000 four-engined bombers reported in January. The new B-24 Super Fortress is included in the heavy bomber totals.

Boys In Shuttle Hop To Russia Eager To Make The Mission

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

A UNITED STATES AIR BASE Somewhere In The Soviet Union, June 6—Every one of the Americans participating in the history-making first shuttle bombing flight to Russia was anxious and willing to go, their commander, a colonel from Chicago, proudly related today.

"We got word the night before the flight we were going to Russia," he said in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press. "You can bet I was pretty excited."

"I made the announcement at a meeting of all officers and men, many of them veterans of more than 50 missions. They said 'swell' and 'hot dog'.

"Then I told them that not a man had to go if he didn't want to. I mean they had done their missions. Well sir, not a single man spoke up—they all wanted to go, so it amounts to almost the same thing as a volunteer basis. I was proud of them."

The commander said the Flying Fortresses and their fighter escort went straight for targets in Hungary. His plane went to the big railway city of Debreczen. No flak and no enemy planes were encountered, he related.

The colonel said that before he left he told his men about when they would hit the Russian-German front, and "we didn't miss it far."

"How did we know it was the front? Well brother, they began shooting at us—I mean the Germans."

The flak, however, was light and the planes appeared to be coming through all right, he said.

"Our fighters were with us and so were the Russians by this time. They were over us. And from then on it was a real pleasure."

The colonel said "I can't let you use my name—that's regulations. But I'm from Chicago."

Americans who are at the base have made this bit of Russia as definitely American as a Kansas wheat field or a Georgia melon patch.

Pvt. Arlon Boozer, Nacogdoches, Tex., was enthusiastic about the Russians.

"They're our pals," he said.

The Australian dingo, a curious dog, exists in that country both as a domestic and a wild animal.

War Department Wants 69 New National Cemeteries

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The War department, on the "hypothetical assumption" that 100,000 American fighting men will die overseas in this war, wants 69 new national cemeteries.

This was disclosed today in a report by the department to the House military committee in support of a bill to establish a national cemetery in every state.

The department emphasized that the 100,000 is just a round figure settled on for purposes of calculation, that there is no telling how many may be killed before peace comes.

Texas Has Had 1,011

Records show 20,176 overseas deaths of American military personnel between December 7, 1941, and November 17, 1943, New York topping the list with 1,746, followed by Pennsylvania with 1,479, California with 1,276, Illinois with 1,200, Ohio with 1,034, and Texas with 1,011.

The department plans to return all overseas dead after the war, if the next of kin request. Others will be interred in national cemeteries abroad. In only three cases so far have the next of kin requested burial abroad.

Would Discontinue Some

The cemetery development program, the report continued, contemplates establishment of burial grounds as accessible as possible to survivors of deceased service men. Many of the 77 existing cemeteries would be discontinued, some immediately and others as soon as available graves are filled and placed in a caretaking status.

There are now an estimated 14,271,524 veterans of all wars eligible for burial in national cemeteries, and the department said need for facilities for their burial should continue until the year 2028.

Lt. Maurice Hughett Is Prisoner Of Japs

A telegram advising that Lt. Maurice G. Hughett, former Texas Technological college student, is a prisoner of the Japanese has been received by his parents, who reside in Gatesville, friends here learned Monday. It was the first word in more than two years concerning him.

Lt. Hughett enlisted in the U. S. Air corps in 1939. He was attached to the 17th Pursuit squadron and had been in the Philippine islands eight months when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor. One day he and Maj. (then Capt.) Harold Cocanougher of Lubbock were talking at a base on one of the islands. Thirty minutes later there was a flight mission from which Lt. Hughett did not return.

Neither the parents, a cousin, Odell Hughett of 2024 Ninth street, nor anyone else known to relatives had heard from him until the Washington telegram quoting the broadcast.

The U. S. Treasury recently issued a statement to the press praising the work of the banks in the war effort. It was pointed out that 13½ billion dollars—over 80% of all bonds sold in the 4th War Loan—cleared through banks. Banks did this job at their own expense. They received no remuneration. They paid out large sums for salaries, overhead and advertising. We appreciate this recognition, but seek no special praise. We welcome the opportunity to help win the war.

France Is Again Battlefield As Allied Troops Hit Coast

BY CARL C. CRANMER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

The long trail of blood and heartbreak winding through nearly five years of war from Warsaw and Dunkirk turned toward Paris again today with the long-planned Allied invasion of the shores of France.

The avenging forces, the greatest amphibious expedition in this or any other war, opened another thrilling chapter in the stories of nations—the story of France, great in history, fallen in defeat, awakening today to the battle shouts of soldier friends and allies.

Dramatically, the signal for the greatest "D" day of the war, the opening of the second battle of France, was given by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"Lafayette We Are Here"

Once again doughboys from Maine to California answered "Lafayette we are here." And tossed into the scale were the lives of many thousands of other determined young men—British, Canadians and scattered European exiles.

At last, the black "clouds of planes" for which Premier Paul Reynaud vainly called four years ago, fill France's skies—manned by the equivalent of many divisions of men, flying to smash a way through the Nazis vaunted Atlantic wall on the shortest route to Berlin.

The fate of Adolf Hitler, evil genius of the 20th century, promises to be settled on the soil of northern France or Belgium, as was the fate of the kaiser a quarter of a century before him, and the fate of Napoleon a century before that.

It was at dawn, May 10, 1940, that Hitler hurled his army of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 men, his air force and 12 armored divisions consisting of 6,000 tanks against France and the low countries with the admonition that the outcome would determine the fate of Germany for 1,000 years.

On that day France was firmly believed by her allies to have the most efficient army in the world. Still unsuspected was the awful power which the German army had barely unfolded in its blitzkrieg on Poland.

But on June 17, just a month and seven days later, a stunned world heard Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, 84-year-old hero of Verdun, shakenly announce, "it is with a broken heart that I tell you today it is necessary to stop the fighting."

Asked Armistice With Honor

He had asked the adversary, he said, as one soldier to another to grant an armistice with honor. He still did not suspect the depth of his delusion.

The bitter cup of a second Compiegne was prepared.

Adolf Hitler stomped his feet and clapped his hands when he received the news. He dramatized his astounding victory with sardonic irony when he coldly received the French emissaries in the old railway car of Marshal Foch where the 1918 armistice was signed.

That was the first battle of France.

Believed Allies Were Done

Marshal Petain, and probably most of the French, believed that the Allies were done. Certainly it was much closer to defeat than they ever had come in the first World war.

The battle of Britain was about to begin.

"Our neck is in a noose," Petain brokenly explained.

But across the channel, Prime Minister Churchill defiantly bid his people fight.

"We have become the sole champions now in arms to defend the world cause and we shall do our best to be worthy of this high honor," he declared.

France Doomed To Suffer

France was doomed not only to suffer under the heel of the conquerer but to fight and quarrel with her friends.

The French said afterward they had but 2,500 tanks, some of 1918 vintage, and 510 combat planes with which to fight the first battle of France. They had suffered 2,000,000 casualties, mostly prisoners.

The British, completing the evacuation of Dunkirk on June 4 had left the French to fight alone, Vichy said.

While the British rounded up a few score tanks and guns, even pieces from museums, and distributed shotguns and hunting rifles from America to stand off the invasion they expected at any hour, a bill was introduced in Congress to draft United States men for the Army.

"Bordeaux Government" Hit

Six days after he had declared his grief for the "gallant people" of France, Churchill rose in the House of Commons to bitterly upbraid "the Bordeaux government" which he asserted had callously broken a promise not to let the French fleet fall into enemy hands.

Then, on July 4 he told with anguish one of the most dramatic occurrences of the entire war.

The British navy, fighting with all the ferocity it customarily reserves for the most hated foe, had fallen upon the French fleet at Oran and Mers-el-Kebir off Algeria, and broken its backbone.

A tense House of Commons heard of the "drastic and grievous" action against old comrades in arms, but Churchill said it was necessary to deal with a threatened "mortal injury."

There followed the Allied charges of Vichy treachery when Indo-China was surrendered in Sept. 1940 to Japanese occupation as a springboard for the attack in Southeast Asia, though Petain ordered his forces to fight the Allies in Syria in 1941 in Madagascar and at Dakar.

The blood spilled at Algiers and Casablanca in Nov. 1942, the wrangles over Martinique, St. Pierre and Miquelon in the western hemisphere, kept the sore spots open.

On July 9, 1940, the third French republic died when the parliament, the enemy's bayonets at its back, gave Petain power to govern by dictatorial decree and write a new constitution on totalitarian lines.

Pierre Laval emerged as the cunning political manipulator at Petain's elbow.

On Oct. 24, 1940, was born the policy of collaboration with Hitler at the conference between Petain and the German dictator.

But the ghosts of hostages shot by Hitler's squads of gunmen, the martyred heroes of a close-knit underground, the continuous stream of stories of dogged French resistance to the invader, made it apparent that Petain and Vichy did not represent France.

When British commandos attacked St. Nazaire in March, 1942, the French rose and attacked the Germans in the streets and continued to fight after the raid was over.

Finally, proof that the patriotic soul of France was sound came when Hitler made his abortive effort to seize the French fleet at Toulon on Nov. 27, 1942, and French sailors courageously set off the blasts that sent their own ships to the bottom.

The Pandora's box that was opened with Gen. Eisenhower's invasion of French North Africa on Nov. 8, 1942, may be duplicated many fold by the invasion of France.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, one of the few Frenchmen who dared openly to cast his lot with the Allied cause in the dark days of 1940, became the symbol and spark of resistance thereby. He now heads the French national committee in North Africa which is insistent upon taking over the reins in a liberated France.

De Gaulle has called Petain an "evangel of decadence," and De Gaullists propose to purge French national life of the collaborationists whom they regard as traitors to France.

In November, 1943, Petain was reported to have drafted a new French constitution along more democratic lines for France which the Nazi overlords vetoed. It was believed the old marshal was intene on preparint the way for a more liberal reyime which mibht stand up in a rivalry with De Gaulle when the Allies arrived.

Hemphill-Wells And ABC Win Openers

Sears Roebuck Goes Down 6-5

Hemphill-Wells' hustling ball club got away to a flying start in the National league junior baseball race Monday afternoon at Chapman field by staging a three run rally in the seventh inning to overcome Sears aad Roebuck 6 to 5 in a fine opening day performance.

It was a great pitching duel all the way, and both Bob Galey, the Hemphill-Wells ace, and Charles Pressley, Sears and Roebuck mound star, pitched wonderful ball games, each turning in a five-hitter while Galey whiffed 16 men and Pressley eased the third strike past an even dozen.

Pitching Is Good

Both pitchers worked smoothly all the way with Galey starting off rather rockily and all five hits off him came in the first four innings of the ball game and produced all five of the Sears and Roebuck runs.

A walk to Johnny Trout, David Coursey's triple and a single by George Brewer provided the first two runs for Sears and Roebuck, and sent them into a lead they held until the final inning. In this inning, Galey fanned the first two and the final out.

In the second inning, Galey struck out the first man, walked the second, struck out the next, then forced home the third run with three straight walks before whiffing another to run his string of retirements to six strikeouts.

Brewer Hits Homer

George Brewer opened the third inning with a lusty homer for the fourth run. In the fourth, Sears and Roebuck closed it's scoring as Noel Sikes walked, stole second and scored on Johnny Trout's single.

For the last three innings, Galey retired them in order, adding two strikeouts an inning to his record.

Pressley was greeted by a rousing triple off the bat of Clinton Benefield in the first inning, and Benefield came in on a fielder's choice for the first run.

Pressley struck out the last batter in the first inning, whiffed three in a row in the second and added two more in the third before Bill Cope broke the string with a long home run.

Benefield Hits Again

Hemphill-Wells pushed across another in the fifth on Benefield's single, a walk and a wild pitch, then coasted into the last inning trailing by two runs.

Benefield opened the "lucky seventh" with a long double and moved down to third on Cooper's single. Pressley struck out Galey and forced Cope to hit a bounder to first and Benefield and Cooper both scored when Bumpass threw wild to third. Cope scored the winning run a few minutes later on an infield error.

The West Texas Gas nine and Montgomery Ward play the second opener of the league this afternoon at 6:15 o'clock at Chapman field. Hemphill-Wells will try for its second win of the campaign Thursday afternoon, clashing with Montgomery Ward while Sears and Roebuck will try to even the count against West Texas Gas Wednesday evening.

Arkansas Gridder Is Honored For Bravery

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., June 6 (AP) — The general hung the Congressional Medal of Honor around the neck of the smiling young captain and told cheering thousands that the husky Arkansasn was "one of the nation's greatest fighters."

But Maurice L. "Footsie" Britt, who left his right arm on an Italian battlefield, looked up at the 5,000 thronging the University of Arkansas stadium where a few years ago he won football glory, and told them that he accepted the nation's highest decoration not for himself but for "the men fighting in Italy and in the Pacific and those poised for the invasion of the continent."

The citation that went with the medal told how the 24-year-old Carlisle, Ark., captain personally killed five Germans and so led his 52 men that an overwhelming enemy force was beaten, American prisoners rescued and an entire American battalion saved from entrapment.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

HOUSTON, June 6 (AP) — When Al Hostak battles Glen Lee here June 21 in a war bond boxing show, the state light heavyweight title is expected to be on the line. John Reed, state boxing commissioner, has agreed to recognize the bout as for the championship if both Hostak and Lee weigh over 160 pounds and under 175.

SIGNS LINE COACH

UNIVERSITY, Miss., June 6 (AP) —Harry Mehre, Old Miss head coach and athletic director announced today the signing of Louis "Farmer" Johnson, present line coach at North Carolina State as an addition to the University of Mississippi coaching staff. Johnson will join the squad sometime this week.

Business Club Takes Slugfest

The American Business Club baseball nine opened the American league junior baseball race Monday afternoon at Tech field with a "bang" but reserved the "bang" until the fifth inning explosion that piled up a 25 to 9 win over the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Rotary Club and Kiwanis Cardinals open the season this afternoon at 6:15 o'clock at the Tech field.

The two teams see-sawed back and fourth in lively fashion during the first four innings of the ball game with the JCC nine taking the lead three times and tying the ball game up again in the fourth, only to have the ABC nine come back in their half of the inning to regain the lead.

Coming out in the fifth inning, Mickey McCollum, ABC chunker, retired three men in order, the only time during the ball game that a team failed to score.

ABC then bunched four hits with eight walks and a number of errors in their half of the fifth inning for the 15 run deluge, then Umpire McCabe called the ball game because of darkness.

Skipper Royce Ellison paced the attack for the winners, smashing out four hits in five trips to the plate for the hitting honors of the evening.

Lefty Jack McCabe and Joe Scales divided the pitching honors for the losers, with both chunkers having trouble finding the plate. They gave up a combine of only nine base hits between them but were never able to stem the flood of runs.

Mickey McCollum went the route for the winners and hung up his first victory of the season with a four hit piching performance, but he was also bothered with wilderness to mar his pitching job.

Four LAAF Softball Teams Undefeated

Four softball teams at Lubbock Army Air field kept up an undefeated pace Monday afternoon with Flight B, Finance Department, Section E and the Flying Officers winning victory No. 2. The Hangers team, other winner in the openers last week, was knocked from the pace setting group.

The games Monday were close and well played with two of the games being shutouts and another going into extra innings.

Hayes pitched hitless ball for four innings, then went on to win his game for Flight B's second win of the season, blanking Section F, 6 to 0. Smith pitched the Finance department to victory No. 2 with another shutout, winning 8 to 0 over Section B.

Vyatel won his second victory of the season as he pitched Section E to a 7 to 6 win in 10 innings over Section A. This was a pitching duel with Clow, who hurled for the losers.

Lt. McDonald outpitched Lt. Kotch and Maj. Potter for a 5 to 3 victory for the Flying Officers over the Administrative Officers, and the second win of the season.

Flight A upset the Hangars 4 to 1 with Hollis outpitching Lovell for the honors.

Katy Jenkins, Ex-Wife Of Lew, Starts Stable Of Box Fighters

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 6. (U.P.) — Storm warnings fluttered along Jacobs Beach today as Katy Jenkins, the pistol-packin' mama from Texas, re-entered the fight game.

Katy — ex-wife of the ex-lightweight champion Lew Jenkins — announced that she was returning to pugilism as manager of a stable of fighters and as the proprietoress of a training camp, if she could buy a suitable camp.

Colorful Katy, an attractive little gal in cerise suit with matching carnations in her smoky brown hair, done up Betty Grable style, hinged her announcement on the purchase of a well known New York lightweight, Carmine Fatta. Previously she had obtained Lightweight Harold Valan.

Doesn't Mention Prices

During the announcement luncheon at the Hotel Abbey, Katy delicately refrained from mentioning what she paid for her box fighters, but guys in the know informed that she had plunked down "pah-lenty" — particularly for 25 year old Fatta, who is riding a string of 16 straight victories. It seems that Kay is "in the dough," having emerged from her tiffs with ex-champion Jenkins and a whirl in Florida real estate with a b.r. of about fifty grand.

It is rumored that she paid $5,000 cash to manager Fred Amorosa for Fatta's contract, merely because she had seen Fatta floor ex-husband Jenkins back when Fatta was sparring partner for Larrupin Lew when the latter was grooming for his successful title fight with Lou Ambers at a Greenwood Lake, N. Y., training camp in 1940.

Had Katy been affluent in 1940, or even in '41, she might have paid Fatta ten grand for dumping Mr. Jenkins — now in the Coast Guard in England. The Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins of those days gained almost as much space in the New York press with their marital brawls, as did Johnny Weissmuller and Lupe Velez in Hollywood. There was great hue and cry, for example, in July 1940, when Katy jerked Lew out of the Grossinger, N. Y., resort, where Lew had been training for his unsuccessful tilt with Henry Armstrong. It seems there was a young Spanish gal dancing at Grossinger's, who . . . .

Divorced In 1942

Anyway Katy got divorced from Lew in July 1942. Clutching her butter knife firmly at yesterday's luncheon, she amended, "but we're still friends."

Why does Katy—a good looking gal in her middle 20's—return to cauliflower canyon? — where only a few women have ventured before, like Maw Stribling, "Leaping Lena" Levinsky, Jimmy Hatcher's wife and the late Madam Bey.

Katy explains, "there's excitement and money in the fight game. I crave both—particularly excitement. I was an auto-racing driver when Lew Jenkins met me. Later, I had my own airplane, and had 21 hours in the air, which Lew didn't like. I was attracted to Lew because he was a great puncher — a dynamiter. His every fight was full of excitement. Now, I've signed another good puncher, Carmine Fatta, who has scored 38 knockouts in 83 fights."

Diz Dean To Return To 'Texas League'

DALLAS, June 6 (AP)—Old Diz Dean is coming back to the Texas league to see if he still packs the gate appeal that once made him a prize chattel of baseball.

There's no Texas league these days but there still are Texas league parks and Diz will appear in those at Houston and Dallas, pitch a few innings and get 40 per cent of the gate receipts.

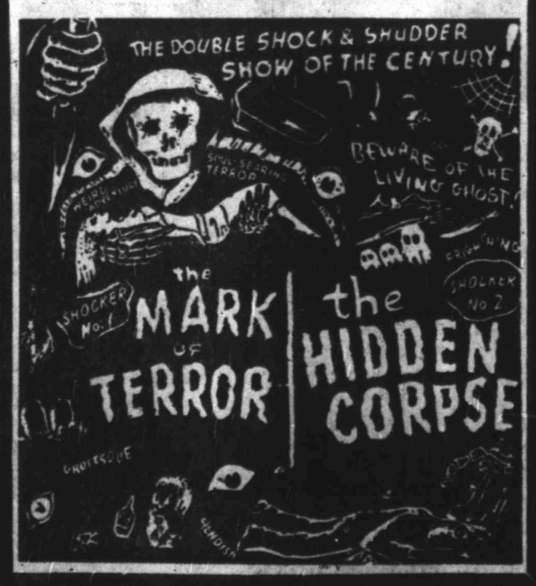

The Pribilof Islands, owned by the United States, yield 80 per cent of the world's supply of seal fur.

Sports To Be Held As Usual

Baseball Games To Mark Invasion

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) —With few exceptions sports will be held as usual today—D day.

A quick survey by the Associated Press within a few hours after the invasion flash announced the Allied landings in France, showed that only the Aqueduct race track in New York had definitely suspended the sport for one day.

Ford Frick, president of the National league, declared that the two major league baseball games scheduled tonight at Brooklyn and Pittsburgh would be played and that a moment of silence, or some other appropriate ceremony, would be held. No games were scheduled in the American league.

In Philadelphia, Pete Moran, matchmaker for Promoter Herman Taylor, said that the Sammy Angott-Ike Williams 10-round fight would go on as scheduled at Shibe park.

No games were scheduled in either of the major leagues yesterday.

PORTRAIT of a West Texas country editor looking over some British magazines sent him by a chum now on the staff of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery:

From "News Review," the British counterpart of "Newsweek" magazine but gotten up, typographically, to look like "Time"—

"The average British soldier is 28 years old; stands 5 feet, 7 inches; weighs 10 stone, (roughly, 140 pounds); and is master of 14 weapons." ... "The one thing which will bring the Germans to their senses is the crushing military defeat of their army." ... "The essence of United Nations policy is that there must be no wholesale terrorism of the German people and no massacres, but 'a soft peace' must be avoided." ... When an American marries into a titled British family, "News Review" describes the event as an American "crashing the portals!" With the exception of the general subject of war, more space was given in our edition of "News Review" to the marriage of Joe Kennedy's daughter to the Marquess of Hartington than to any other event.

Organized labor in England is doing very much the same thing its American counterpart is doing: seeking to take over the government lock, stock and barrel for the benefit of its organized minority, often to the detriment of the best interests of the unorganized majority. Also, British counterparts of our leftist columnists and radio commentators charge "fascist" leanings to members of the House of Commons who refuse to support any and all radical legislation and are using the same tactics there as our tub-thumbers here: calling their political opponents "Hitler helpers."

Best bit of journalism in "News Review" in recent weeks: two pictures for the comparison of readers. One shows Hitler shaking hands with a line of his munition makers, all of whom look like dolts or beasts; the other shows King George shaking hands with a similar line of British soldiers, each straight, trim, serious and intelligent. Contrast in faces and clothing is marked; cannot help but give the British reading public a boost in morale.

"News Review" seems to be straining a little to "sell" the British public on Russia and the latter's outstanding contribution to the United Nations effort.

Saltiest bit of writing in the edition is the description of the British "GI Joe," called, affectionately, "Tommy Atkins":

"Two things ... make Tommy the best foot-slogger in the world; his adaptability and his unquenchable good humor. He will advance at bayonet point under withering cross-fire with a ribald remark on his lips.

"He'll come out of action, possibly wounded, sucking a sorry-looking fag (cigaret) and with a new story about the swine who got him. He is a lusty, derisive, sweaty fellow with no false patriotism and no illusions about war and he fights with a gaiety of spirit born of cold, heat, wind, rain, rough country and hard living.

"He will curse the cook, grouse like the devil if his mail doesn't get through, grumble about red tape and the company sergeant major (top sergeant), but he does it with a slap-on-the-back air and no bitterness."

* * *

Manfully, we waded through an edition of "Punch," the ancient humor magazine of our English cousins and got only two wry grins. Apparently "Punch," which is sort of a combination of our old "Life"—pre-picture days; "Judge" and the "New Yorker," deals strictly in British humor. If so, it is safe to say that British humor has no connection with our own.

Only smiles we got were forced, and from these paragraphs:

"Expensive and ostentatious weddings are rare nowadays, although there was a case recently of the happy couple's being presented with some second-hand furniture." And—

"There is some talk of making radio comedians queue up (line up) to use that same old joke."

The balance of "Punch" left us wondering. For wit or sense, it might as well have been written in Sanscrit as far as the average American is concerned.

* * *

"ILLUSTRATED," which favors the American "Look" magazine, showed a very evident desire to do right by the U. S. and its contribution to the war. Its front cover was in colors and presented—with a chestful of "fruit salad"—the Commander-in-Chief of U. S. Fleet, Admiral Ernest J. King. Much space inside was given over, too, to Gen. Ike Eisenhower and his aides, both American and British.

"Illustrated" is war-minded and gave over its entire edition to the conflict except for an article, with pictures, on Ginger Rogers and her film, "Lady in The Dark;" to one illustrated feature on feminine reducing; one "human interest" shot of a pair of kittens, and a story, with one picture, on a new play.

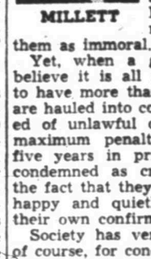

Best things in the edition were comparisons, in word and picture,

Feminine Viewpoint

BY RUTH MILLETT

(Copyright, 1944, For The Journal)

A MARRIED American soldier has illegitimate quadruplets by an English girl—and there is no great hue and cry against him. His children are even entitled to support by American taxpayers.

MILLETT

News columns are full of stories about people in Hollywood and cafe society circles whose marriages, re-marriages and divorces are so frequent that you can hardly keep up with them, but public opinion does not condemn them as immoral.

Yet, when a group of people believe it is all right for a man to have more than one wife, they are hauled into court and convicted of unlawful cohabitation, the maximum penalty for which is five years in prison. They are condemned as criminals, despite the fact that they are living quite happy and quietly, according to their own confirmed belief.

Society has very good reasons, of course, for condemning polygamy. Certainly church leaders have been conducting an active fight against divorce abuses. Yet the public exhibits a strange blank spot in the attitude toward violators of marital morals.

PUBLIC DISAPPROVES

SOCIETY considers it all right for a man to have as many wives as he wants—so long as he lives with them one at a time. But decency is outraged when a man, with the full consent and approval of the women themselves, is the husband of several women and the support of their children.

He could marry the same woman and it would be all right, legally and in the public's eye, if he finished with one before he took another. Or he could be married to one and have affairs with the others, and a large segment of the public would pass it off lightly as none of its business.

But he says, "Look here, I want to be married and stay married to three women, supporting them and their children," and that becomes everybody's business. That is immoral.

It's a fine distinction I'd hate to have to try to explain to a wondering adolescent.

A recent nationwide check-up by the Gallup Poll resulted in an ominous result, namely that the 1944 Victory Garden campaign is 4,500,000 gardens short of the 22,000,000 goal set as necessary to avoiding any food shortage.

Our own Southern area, which embraces, in addition to Texas, the states of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia, has 6,000,000 vegetable gardens in to date. That's a lot of gardens, but it is 500,000 short of what the total should be, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the War Food administration. The central states, with 6,000,000 gardens, are short the same number, but the worst offender is New England, where there are 3,000,000 gardens this year, as compared to the 4,000,000 of 1943. Best record—300,000 gardens shy of the goal—is held by the Far Western and Mountain states which this year have 2,500,000 as compared with 2,800,000 in 1943.

For some reason or another, the feeling is widespread in the land that the nation is "over the hump" in the matter of foodstuffs; that there's no future danger, as there was last year, in foods running short.

That isn't necessarily true. We may be over the hump—but we may not. And unless we get all the "breaks" of nature, the lagging in this year's Victory Garden drive can result in a serious situation.

LET'S HAVE NO POLITICAL CENSORSHIP!

Prospects have become increasingly discouraging that Congress will provide relief from any conditions affecting the freedom of the airwaves which should be corrected in the national interest.

Work on one radio control bill was brought to an abrupt halt in the Senate Interstate Commerce committee a few days ago by the committee chairman, Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who was one of the most vocal of the nation's isolationists before the war. Because his proposal to forbid commercially sponsored newscasts aroused opposition, Wheeler took the position that, "if you don't approve my scheme, I'll try to keep you from getting anything at all."

Now Senator Johnson of Colorado, a member of the same committee, has proposed a new bill under which commercially sponsored news commentators would be required to obtain a federal permit and to comply with a "code of ethics" written by politicians into the proposed law.

Both the Wheeler and the Johnson proposals have the same fatal fault. They do not attempt to free broadcasting of the dangers of unreasonable and self-serving political censorships. In the basic sense, they merely propose to transfer the censoring power from other agencies to Congress. Even under the Johnson proposal, which appears to be an improvement over the Wheeler scheme, any commentator might be excluded from the air through the simple process of denying him a permit. Thus, it is clear that any commentator might be hesitant to voice anything that might be offensive to whoever might control the permits—which, presumably, would be Congress through its specifically designated agents.

Congress, clearly, is beset with a censorship complex in its approaches to radio control legislation. This sort of an approach is not going to make for reasonable freedom of the airwaves, because one form of censorship—even by Congress—is just as objectionable and just as dangerous as another. Effective legislation cannot be expected unless and until Congress abandons its scheming to obtain a whip to snap at the heels of radio.

"Winnie" Not So Popular With Eleanor
Her Recent Indictment Is Nothing New
Combat Fliers Resent Promotions At Home
OPA Probes Alleged Tire Violations

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's blunt press-conference remarks about Winston Churchill's recent speech in the House of Commons brought out publicly what those around the White House have known for some time—that she never has been too enthusiastic about the Prime Minister.

Last summer, Churchill came to Washington after Quebec and, together with Harry Hopkins, occupied one section of the White House. There, military conferences continued day and night, with the Prime Minister walking up and down the White House corridors in flapping bedroom slippers and a great gold-and-red silk kimono.

PEARSON

At that time, Mrs. Roosevelt is said to have telephoned from New York to a member of her family in the White House and to have tactfully inquired:

"Is that man still there?" (She was not referring to the President).

It was not the way the Prime Minister dressed or made himself at home in the White House that bothered Mrs. Roosevelt. But, according to friends, she did feel that Mr. Churchill wore her husband out with his long hours. (He often sleeps from noon until about 7 p. m., then stays up until about 3 a. m. Meanwhile, the President had to face his regular routine all day long).

Also, Mrs. Roosevelt, to her intimates, has made no secret of her belief that Mr. Churchill is living in the political past as far as the empire is concerned. She has entertained rather liberal views on India and other British possessions, such as Hongkong. Therefore, it was no surprise to friends when Mrs. Roosevelt, asked about Churchill's speech and his references to Franco Spain, replied:

"The speech was very characteristic of Mr. Churchill."

"Mr. Churchill has thought a certain way for 60 years."

UNPROMOTED FLIERS

ONE thing that gripes the boys at the front is the way a lot of the desk officers in the War department and others here at home seem to get promotions more rapidly than the boys who are up on the firing line. Some of them feel so badly about it that the aren't anxious to come home, though given opportunities of furlough, because they are outranked by their old friends at home.

For instance, most of the new pilots just arriving in England are second lieutenants. They haven't been on any missions at all. Meanwhile, men who have been in England for two years, and have been flying over Europe constantly, still remain second lieutenants.

"How many do you have?" Asks some newly arrived pilot who has flown twice across the Channel, each flight being a mission.

"Oh, yesterday was my 34th," is the cool reply of the man who, after two years of combat flying, still is a second lieutenant.

DILL OF WASHINGTON

WHEN ex-Senator Clarence Dill of Washington ran for governor of Washington in 1940, he was so confident of victory that, when he filled out his autobiographical sketch for Who's Who, 1942-43 edition, he put himself down as "governor."

He was defeated. Nevertheless, Who's Who, Vol. 22, page 683, lists "Clarence C. Dill, governor." Later it states: "elected gov., State of Washington, 1940."

Maybe he was not superstitious and didn't think it was bad luck to count his chickens before they were hatched.

TIRE-RATION PROBE

THE Office of Price Administration is quietly probing several cases of tire ration violations which promise to be sensational. They go right into some of the biggest tire companies of the country.

One of the big tire companies is being probed on a charge of having failed to void the tire ration certificates turned in to them by retailers. In other words, when a retail tire store or garage sells a tire, it has to send back to the tire manufacturer the certificates issued by the OPA ration board. However, the OPA is tracking down reports that these tire certificates, instead of being stamped as used, are going back to the dealers, or else remaining with them in the first place. Thus, they are able to sell more tires without requiring more certificates in exchange.

Another big company is being investigated by the OPA for buying up new tires of various makes from dealers and later reselling them through the company's own stores at considerable loss. Even though not the tires made by this company, the loss was considered a good investment because it got motorists into the habit of trading with this company's retail stores.

There may be some startling news breaking on this soon.

BEES FOR MAVERICK

MAURY MAVERICK, hard-working chief of the Small War Plants corporation, is going in for bees in his office.

Talking to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard the other day, Maverick remarked:

"What this town needs is to study bees. They could give us all a lesson. I want to get a hive of bees in my office so folks can sit and study how they get things done."

Maverick, who gets down to his office at 7 every morning, two hours ahead of his staff, was half joking, though back in Texas he did keep bees. However, Secretary Wickard was having dinner with Donald Nelson and Russell Arundel sometime later and recounted the conversation. Arundel then promised to get Maverick a hive of bees.

He has now fulfilled his promise and sent the hive to Wickard to be delivered to Maverick. The bees will be in a glass case with a hole through the window still so they can feed on the flowers around the capitol. The queen bee's name is Beatrice.

Arundel, who is presenting the bees, was formerly secretary to Republican ex-Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island. Maverick, informed that his bees were Republican, replied: "That's all right. I can use Republican bees—just so long as they work."

ON BROADWAY

(Copyright, 1944, For The Journal)

ONE of the war's most tragic stories is going the rounds in Washington these days ... When Pearl Harbor was bombed, all personnel was ordered to battle stations, of course, and the command meant the beginning of a terrible drama for four storekeepers aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma ... For them "battle stations" meant closing the watertight compartments of their storeroom and remaining at their posts. When the vessel was raised recently, the four were found dead, clad in winter clothing ... A check of their calendar revealed that they had lived, sealed in that waterproof tomb, until Dec. 26, nineteen days after Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Those trying to suppress the novel, "Strange Fruit," insist that it vilifies the South, but what are the facts? ... The reviews of the book in the Southern newspapers have been almost 100% favorable. It's been having good sales all over the South. It hasn't been barred in any Southern city ... The only place where it was censored is in Yankee Boston ... The trend to the left in recent primaries, which knocked off nine of the busiest reactionaries in the two Houses of Congress, has got the Repubs on an aspirin jag. The only two victories the GOP can claim were an OK for MacArthur, who is out, and a repudiation of Wendell Wilkie ... Don't be surprised, if the left shift keeps up, to hear that Governor Dewey wasn't kidding when he said he didn't want the nomination. He's a young man—too young for a 1944 licking—he may say, so give it to Bricker, who's asking for it.

FOR the Peace-Makers: "At the close of World War I, the Allies left to Germany the trial of military, naval and official personnel, who during hostilities had committed offenses contrary to the laws and customs of civilized warfare. The right of the Allies to try such 'war offenders' before military tribunals had been recognized by Germany in the Treaty of Versailles. On the plea, however, that the delivery of the war offenders would topple the peace structure, Germany was permitted to conduct the trials at Leipzig, guaranteeing impartial and firm execution of the proceedings. Of an original list of some 900 persons accused of serious offenses, only 45 were included in a 'test list' submitted by the Allies after protracted argument on the part of the Germans. Only 12 were actually tried and but six convicted. They received inadequate sentences, and the two whose sentences were severest soon escaped from German jails, apparently with official connivance."—From the Harvard Law Review, June, 1943, page 1059, Vol. LVI, No. 7.

We the Mothers is another one of those outfits that doesn't live up to its lily-white title. This reporter has exposed its activities in the past ... After Pearl Harbor it went into oblivion temporarily, but it is again spreading the seeds of disunity ... This group has been urging a negotiated peace. Strangely enough, they never urged Hitler to make peace when he was winning ... They were grumbling about the high costs of living in the Reich Chancellory, and the top Nazis agreed that the only thing that hadn't gone up in price since the war started was Laval.

EVERY brazen legislative attempt to gag newscasters fizzled. Now a more subtle approach is being used: They hope to push commentators off the air by hitting them in the pocketbook. Sen. Wheeler introduced a bill that would ban the sponsorship of news programs ... How long would some Congressmen exist if taxpayers ceased sponsoring them to the tune of $10,000 each per year? By the same line of reasoning, all newspapermen could be deprived of their incomes because their gazettes have adverts. The alibi is that sponsors pull the strings of commentators' opinions.

OUR Just-a-Moment Dept: Congressiady Clare Luce's statement is a startler: "We were in the war not because we were attacked. We were attacked because we were already in on the sides of Great Britain and China. Pre-Pearl Harbor lend-lease to China and Great Britain and economic sanctions applied to their enemies were acts of war clearly understood by the Axis."

That's a surprising remark from a supporter of aid-to-allies and a critic of appeasers. The fact is, before Pearl Harbor—we gave the Japs more aid (in the form of steel and oil) than we ever gave to China!

If it weren't for them you'd be a total stranger ... H. M. Warner: It seems incredible. Thirty-five million laws, and no improvement on The Ten Commandments ... John Steinbeck: The orchestra of flies sang their symphony of boredom ... Ralph Osborn: She returned his glances unopened ... H. L. Mencken: A cynic is a man who, when he smells flowers, looks around for the coffin ... Anon: Marriage isn't merely a knot; it's a knot on a noose ... A. Martin: A tongue-twister is a group of words and phrases which gets your tang tonguelled up.

His Fine, Italian Hand

Ernie Pals With General, Fears Loss Of "Amateur Standing!"
Despite His Rank "Jimmy" Doolittle Is O.K.

By ERNIE PYLE
Special War Correspondent

LONDON, (By Wireless)—Here I've been gallivantin' around with lieutenant generals again. If this keeps up I'm going to lose my amateur standing. This time it is Jimmy Doolittle, who is still the same magnificent guy with three stars on his shoulder that he used to be with a captain's bars.

ERNIE PYLE

General Doolittle runs the American Eighth Air Force. It is a grim and stupendous job, but he manages to keep the famous Doolittle sense of humor about it.

Doolittle, as you know, is rather short and getting almost bald. Since arriving in England from Italy he has diabolically started a couple of false rumors circulating about himself.

One is that his nickname used to be "Curley," and he occasionally throws his head back as though tossing hair out of his eyes. His other claim is that he used to be 6 feet tall but has worried himself down to his present small height in the past five months.

* * *

Man Of Many Talents

Jimmy Doolittle has more gifts than any one man has a right to be blessed with. He has been one of America's greatest pilots for more than 25 years. He is bold and completely fearless. Along with that he has a great technical mind and a highly perfected education in engineering.

In addition to his professional skill he is one of the most engaging humans you ever ran across. His voice is clear and keen, he talks with animation, and his tone carries a sense of quick and right decision.

He is one of the greatest of storytellers. He is the only man I've ever known who can tell stories all evening long and never tell one you've heard before. He can tell them in any dialect, from Swedish to Chinese.

* * *

The other day he had his plane set up for a flight to Northern England. The weather turned awful, and one of his crew suggested that they cancel the trip. As Jimmy said, he would probably have cancelled it himself, but when the junior officer suggested it he sort of had to go ahead and go.

They were hanging around the operations room, getting the latest reports. The crew thought General Doolittle had left the room. The junior officers were talking about the dangers of making the trip in such weather. They didn't think the general ought to take the chance. And then he overheard one of them say:

"I don't think the B——gives a damn about the weather."

The poor officer almost died when he discovered that the general had heard him.

Other passengers said that throughout the flight this benighted fellow just sat staring at the floor and now and then shaking his head like a condemned man.

The general thinks it was wonderful. No, he didn't do anything about it, for he was flattered by the compliment.

"But only one thing saved him," Doolittle says. "If he had used the world "old" in front of B—— I would've had him hung."

* * *

And He Can Be Stupid!

He tells another one. He was at a Flying Fortress base one afternoon when the planes were coming back in. Many of them had been pretty badly shot up and had wounded men aboard.

The general walked up to one plane from which the crew had just got out. The upper part of the tail gun turret was shot away. General Doolittle said to the tail-gunner:

"Were you in there when it happened?"

The gunner, a little peevishly, replied:

"Yes sir."

As the general walked away the annoyed gunner turned to a fellow crewman and said in a loud voice:

"Where in the hell did he think I was, out buying a ham sandwich?"

A frightened junior officer, fearing the general might have overheard, said:

"My God, man, don't you know who that was?"

"Sure I know," the tail-gunner snapped, "and I don't give a damn. That was a stupid question."

With which Jimmy Doolittle, the least stupid of people, fully agrees when he tells the story.

* * *

ANOTHER time the general went with his chief, Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, to visit a bomber station which had been having very bad luck and heavy losses. They thought maybe their presence would pick the boys up a bit. So they visited around awhile. And when they got ready to leave a veteran Fortress pilot walked up to them.

"I know why you're out here," he said. "You think our morale is shot because we've been taking it on the nose. Well, I can tell you our morale is all right. There is only one thing that hurts our morale, and that's having three-star generals coming around to see what's the matter with it."

* * *

More Tomorrow

Jimmy tells these stories wonderfully, with more zest and humor than I can put into them second-handed. As he says, the heartbreaks and tragedies of war sometimes push all your gaiety down into the depths. But if a man can keep a sense of the ridiculous about himself he is all right. Jimmy Doolittle can.

More of this Tomorrow.

Apology By FEPC In Dallas Case Reported

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) said today that Leonard M. Brin, Texas regional director of the Fair Employment Practices committee, had apologized to C. T. Dean, president of the American Beauty Cover company of Dallas, for "erroneously intervening" in the company's employment practices.

The tone of Brin's letter of apology will determine whether O'Daniel will cease to press his suggestion that Brin be fired, the senator added.

"I have been informed by FEPC Chairman Malcom Ross," O'Daniel said, "that Brin has written a letter of apology to Dean expressing regret for erroneously intervening in the employment practices of the Dallas concern.

"Brin is to send me a copy of that letter. I want to see the tone of it, and also hear from Mr. Dean, before deciding whether I think the incident should be dropped.

"Meanwhile, I am still opposed to the FEPC itself and think the organization should be abolished and everyone in it fired."

The incident to which O'Daniel referred occurred when the Texas FEPC director declared that the Dallas company, in advertising for white women, was guilty of racial discrimination and ordered it to make no further distinction as to races in its hiring practices.

USE SEA POWER TO GET
HOGS IN A HURRY
FEED STANTON'S
20% PIG RATION

Today, more than ever before, it is extremely important to speed up growth and keep mortality down in young pigs. Feed is too precious to waste on the laggards and pork is too valuable to lose before it goes to market. Stanton's 20% pig ration provides extra protection against both. In hundreds of hog lots, it is working consistently to improve pig health, speed up growth and reduce mortality because it gives little pigs the same kind of boost that chick starter gives to baby chicks. It is being fed widely to sows before farrowing and through creep feeding—to pigs from 2-3 weeks of age on up.

MANAMAR

B-G PLUS
Is a patented vacuum concentrated extract from fish. This new and potent product, resulting from ten years of ceaseless research and experiment, supplies extra tract minerals and vitamins in Stanton's 20% pig ration.

Last Great Battle To Kill Nazi Beast

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The greatest amphibious invasion of history got underway today. There are many things of which we cannot be sure at this stage, and we shall see bitter days, but on one score we can be certain—there is no doubt of ultimate success.

This is the coup de grace for which we have waited so long—the last great battle to exterminate the Nazi beast.

Allied forces—Americans, British, Canadians—have been landed in Normandy in a big scale operation. They came from the choppy English channel whose roughness caused "awful anxiety" to officers and made many men seasick; they came as paratroopers from the air (the Germans said four divisions of 'em). They've gone in under cover of a titanic bombardment from sea and sky.

Fierce Battle In Progress

A fierce battle is in progress, and of one thing we should be warned: The Germans have been holding their reserves well inland, back of their coastal defenses in order to be able to fling them in any direction quickly. So our men aren't yet undergoing the full strength of Nazi attack.

That will come later, and it's likely to be terrific.

The entire invasion coast of western Europe is blazing with Allied aerial bombardment. Whether this presages quick thrusts at other points isn't yet apparent—but that wouldn't be surprising. We should watch for it.

The Allied high command has chosen—as this column has so often predicted—to hit western France at the tough spot, right in the teeth of Hitler's strongest defenses. It was the logical thing to do, for our forces must be close to their main base—and that base is in England. So we are going at it the hard way in the beginning, but it will be the easiest in the long run.

Area Waste Grease Collection Totals 344,113 Pounds

Approximately 344,113 pounds of waste grease has been collected from South Plains housewives, restaurants and packing houses the past year, and 27,763 pounds of that was saved during May, a survey of Lubbock packing houses revealed here today.

Keeton, McDonald and Kuykendall packing houses and Nortex Hyde and Produce have been picking up waste fats for shipment from collection stations over the entire South Plains the past year. Housewives and every concern in Lubbock and surrounding towns have contributed to the worthy collection.

Intensive waste grease campaigns have been carried on in Lubbock, Levelland, Brownfield, Lamesa, Abernathy, Littlefield, Lorenzo, Crosbyton, Ralls, Slaton and many other towns the past year. The collection has increased steadily since the public has been offered two red points per pound.

Collection of the fat which is so vital to the war effort has been headed by Girl Scouts in Lubbock. During a campaign in May the girls collected 2,000 pounds which gave them a total of 4,000 pounds for the year, Miss Rosemary Head, executive secretary of the scouts, reported.

A portion of the total collection for this area was contributed by the packing houses who have a great deal of waste fats during a year.

PROUD AS A COLONEL

CONWAY, Ark., June 6 (U.P.)—A large protograph of Pvt. Jeffie Hardin appeared on the first page of the Seattle Sunday Times rotogravure section recently, showing the Conway soldier with a bald eagle, mascot of his unit, perched on his shoulder. The caption explained that the "eagle does not make Hardin a colonel."

It is estimated that by the end of 1944 the number of existing usable cars will have been reduced to 5,000,000.

Sect's Injunction Suit On Flag Salute Is Dismissed

Dismissal of an application for an injunction brought by M. R. Free to restrain trustees of Lubbock independent school district from requiring students to salute the American flag was ordered by Judge T. Whitfield Davidson in federal district court on a defendant's motion Monday afternoon.

The motion, as read by George W. Dupree, of the defense counsel, pointed out that on May 31, 1944, the board of school trustees of the Lubbock Independent school district adopted a resolution, under the terms of which no pupil may be denied the right to attend schools conducted by the Lubbock Independent school district by reason of any failure on such pupil's part to take the pledge of allegience or to salute the flag, but insisting that each pupil must remain at attention during the flag ceremony.

Board members said Monday night this was more or less a test case and their (the board's) sets a pattern which will probably be followed by others in similar cases which are likely to arise in the future throughout the nation.

Regulation Set Out

The resolution as adopted by the school board provides that at periodic intervals and not less frequently than once each week during the school terms," the pupils of the schools under the jurisdiction of the board" shall be assembled either in their classrooms, or in the general assembly hall of the school which they are attending, and that on each such occasion there shall be brought in and displayed before the pupils the flag of the United States.

The resolution further provides that at each such assembly either the superintendent, principal of the school, or the teacher of the class shall read aloud to the pupils the pledge of allegiance. Each of the pupils in such assembly as may desire to evidence their adherence to such pledge may do so by repeating the pledge as it is read, holding their right hand over their heart during the reading of the pledge, but no pupil shall be compelled to pursue this form of observance.

It also provides that as the flag is brought into the assembly hall or classroom by the color guard, and during the reading of the pledge, and until the superintendent, principal, or teacher in charge shall direct the pupils to be seated, all the pupils present shall stand at attention and with decorous and respectful demeanor maintain perfect quiet during the entire ceremony. By standing is meant that the pupil shall stand erect with his hands at his side and with his eyes turned toward the flag. Such of the pupils as desire to do so may show their respect for the flag by saluting same, but no pupil shall be required to make such salute.

Named as plaintiffs in the case were: M. R. Free, Myrtle Free, Darlene Free, Doyle Free, George Dodge, Linnie Dodge, Ora Dell Dodge, Lillie Worthington and L. C. Worthington, all members of a religious sect know as "Jehovah's Witnesses."

Defendants were: Lubbock Independent School district Board of Trustees, Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, president; R. W. Matthews, superintendent of schools operating with said board, and all other officials, teachers and servants of said school board, and R. F. Bayless, secretary of the board.

Judge Makes Comment

In dismissing the case Judge Davidson commented from the bench:

"In connection with the court's action in this case, we can scarcely refrain from making a few observations. It is within the lifetime of men now living that the public school system has taken on its present proportions. In the lifetime of our fathers there were no public schools in most states. However, 100 years before then there was a man sowing the seeds that brought forth the public school. That man said in these words:

"The ignorant voter with the ballot in his hand is more to be dreaded than the muskets of foreign lands.'

"This man was the man that drafted the Declaration of Independence. That man was the author of the statute of religious liberty of the State of Virginia. It was his idea that we had more than one enemy, that free government had more than one enemy. One was the musket in the hands of our enemies and the other was an ignorant voters exercising the right of soverignty, guiding his country into channels he knew not where because of his ignorance. In order to obviate that situation he was one of the first to see the advantage of public schools.

Jefferson's Idea Explained

"At that time most men who were able gave their children an education in private institutions, and those that were not able gave them some kind of an education, although there were many in ignorance. But it was the idea of Mr. Jefferson that we should have a system of schools so that before a man cast a vote he should be sufficiently intelligent to know why he was casting it. In order to have that degree of intelligence, he should be a reading man. It therefore necessarily follows that Mr. Jefferson had in mind that he should be able not only to read, but the right kind of material should be read and the right kind of impression should be given forth, and if that is not done, that the entire system of education falls flat and the purpose of it is lost.

"A man never has a conscience that hurts him unless he has a standard of measurement. Those South Sea Islanders that are cannibals, their conscience doesn't hurt them if they catch one of their nighbors's children and barbecue it, because they don't know that it is not all right. If a boy is not taught that it is wrong to steal, his conscience don't hurt him when he steals. I have had young men before me guilty of crime, guilty of misappropriating other people's money, that were not conscious that they had done wrong; nobody had taught them.

"Must Have Lessons"

"If you are to teach the child what is good and what is bad, you have to have some lessons, some books, and a teacher whose ideas will be whetted to impress it upon the child. If we do not have those things, education, so far as turning out a better citizenship is concerned, is a failure, because an educated man that has no conception of right or wrong is more dreaded than an ignorant man.

"At this time there are people who can look at the nation's flag—you had one here before you today that suffered in the South Sea Islands—but some people can look at the flag of their native land and say, 'I am neutral; I am not interested in this war.' That is to say, 'I have no interest in our government and its free institutions.' A man that is neutral should have independence enough not to put his child in a public school; a man that will not salute the flag that gives him protection ought not to send his child to the public school, and the school ought to have courage enough to prescribe a course of study that will train citizens intelligent enough to cast the ballots to carry it on.

"The case will be dismissed."

Hockley Jury Returns Five Indictments

LEVELLAND, June 6, (Special)—A Hockley county grand jury reported Monday to District Judge Dan Blair five indictments, naming:

Harlan Miller and Jimmy Burney for burglary March 19 of a Levelland filling station from which were taken 60 inner tubes and 12 tires; Douglas Watson, R. E. and J. L. Comer, for burglary; Robert Lee Broughton for forgery.

The jury asked the court to keep in effect bonds set in connection with burglary complaints naming L. A. and L. J. Crawford and E. D. Brookshier, alleging burglary of the Cole Bros. wholesale oil and gas company office in Levelland, pending assembly of more evidence. The jury stated its intentions of looking into the case at a later date. A large number of gasoline coupons were taken in the burglary.

T. A. Woolam of Smyer was jury foreman.
