Jury method altered for trial

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

More than 200 county residents are summoned Monday as jury selection for the capital murder trial of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr. of Colorado City begins.

Because of the large number, prospective jurors are asked to report to the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College at 9 a.m.

The meeting site was switched from the 132nd District courtroom to avoid overcrowding, court officials say.

The suspect, age 19 at the time of his arrest, is accused of the March 23 murder of convenience store clerk Jack Huddleston.

The victim was killed during the course of a robbery of the Allsup's store on College Ave.

Since the charge against Johnson is capital murder--which carries the possibility of a death sentence--several aspects of the jury selection process will differ from the norm.

As they assemble Monday, prospective jurors will be given a six page questionnaire which they will be asked to fill out at that time.

Once these are completed, jurors are expected to be released for the remainder of the week.

The 69 questions on the questionnaire include demographic data about the prospective jurors as well as questions about attitudes toward crime and capital punishment--questions normally asked during jury selection.

Individual screening of potential jurors will begin Oct. 20. This will allow attorneys in the case — District Attorney Ernie Armstrong and Frank Conard of Sweetwater, court-appointed defense counsel — one week to review the questionnaires.

Q. — When is the next scheduled driver's education class for beginning drivers?

A. — The program is now offered through the Continuing Education Department at Western Texas College, and WTC officials say the next planned class will start in January.

In Brief

TECAT thefts

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Several suspects have been identified in the theft of test booklets from the statewide March 10 teacher literacy exam, the Tyler Morning Telegraph reported Saturday.

However, an official with the Texas Education Agency said he could not say how many suspects the agency had.

Local

Rain reported

A general rain of approximately 1 inch fell across Scurry County Friday afternoon and night, upping the official year-to-date total in Snyder past the 27 inch mark.

The moisture seemed likely to repeat later in the weekend with a 60 percent chance for thunderstorms listed Saturday night, downgraded to a 30 percent chance for Sunday.

A cold front which invaded North Texas Saturday was also expected to move into the area by Sunday with temperatures not expected to rise above the 50s.

The city rain gauge measured 1.15 inches Saturday morning, and points in all directions from Snyder indicated similar amounts.

Lake J.B. Thomas received 1 inch and residents there said the Colorado River basin was again flowing into the lake.

Other rain amounts reported Saturday morning, moving from north to south, were Fluvanna, .70 of an inch; Loyd Mountain, .90 of an inch; Hermleigh, 1.20 inches; and Ira, 1.30 inches.

WTC to meet

The October meeting for the Western Texas College board of trustees is due Monday afternoon.

The board will meet beginning at 5:45 p.m. at the administration building on campus.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 68 degrees; low, 60 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 63 degrees; 1.15 inches of rain; total precipitation for 1986 to date, 27.02 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Tonight a 60 percent chance of thunderstorms, a few severe with heavy rain possible with low near 50. Wind north to northeast 5 to 15 mph. Sunday colder. A 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms with high upper 50s. Wind northeast to north 10 to 15 mph.

Fall cotton count expected to total only 14,000 bales

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The projected fall cotton harvest for Scurry County has been downgraded to less than 14,000 bales, an estimate county ag officials are calling "a real sad situation."

A good crop year would produce 60,000 bales of cotton and the harvest of 1986 is expected to be one of the county's all time worst.

The 14,000 bale projection--called a "wild guess" due to the factors which are affecting this year's crop--was made by County Agent Marvin Ensor and Joe Hefner, director of ASCS programs for Scurry and Borden Counties.

They figure that of 62,000 acres planted last spring, only some 35,000 will ultimately be harvested.

These acres are figured to produce approximately 190 pounds of lint per acre. Using these figures as rough guidelines, the total bale count would come to less than 14,000.

The most current and the most persistent problem facing cotton producers this year has been the untimely rains.

Rainfall last spring forced many cotton producers to plant in late May and early June. With the growing season already shortened, early fall rains and unseasonably cool temperatures in September effectively "chilled" the chances for this late planted cotton.

The extra moisture also added

3 contested races...

Campaign expense for locals reported

Scurry County candidates facing opponents in November's General Election have filed their third statement required by law disclosing campaign expenses and contributions.

Records indicate that Glen O. Butler, Republican candidate for Pct. 4 county commissioner, outspent all other office seekers since June 1.

He listed almost $718 in expenses excluding monies spent for loan repayment. His total expenses since campaigning began in January have reached just over $2,381.

He also reported contributions to his election bid at $400 with an additional $2,220 in bank and personal loans. His total in contributions and loans for the year are listed at $4,920.

Incumbent Commissioner Ted Billingsley, Butler's Democratic opponent, listed no expenses or contributions to his effort since June. His total for the year stands at just over $777 in expenses with no contributions recorded.

In the race for the Pct. 2 county commissioner spot, Democrat Tommy Pate lists $302 in expenditures with no contributions recorded. William A. (Bill) Jones, his Republican opponent, also listed no contributions with $128 in expenses.

Pate's total to the present has reached some $2,521 while Jones lists a $2,446 total. Both men have received no contributions to their campaigns.

In the only other contested local race, challenger Republican Troy Martin has outspent incumbent Dan Callaway for the Justice of the Peace Pct. 1 position.

Records indicate that Martin has spent almost $644 to cover campaign costs while receiving $828 from contributors since

Bank deposits show 3rd quarter drop

Total third quarter bank deposits in Snyder declined slightly since mid-year, according to four reporting financial institutions.

Three banks and one savings and loan firm had total deposits of $210 million--down $2.9 million from totals reported at the end of June.

West Texas State Bank was the deposit leader with $84 million, an increase of $1 million when compared to year's end, and a decrease of $600,000 when compared to the third quarter of 1985.

Snyder National Bank, on Sept. 30, had deposits of $79.2 million, a drop of $4.2 million when compared to mid-year and a decline of $4 million when compared to the same period in 1985.

American State Bank showed deposits of $17.6 million, an increase of $400,000 when compared to the mid-year total and an increase of $800,000 compared to the third quarter of last year.

Snyder Savings and Loan reported deposits at $29.1 million, down $100,000 compared to mid-year, but an increase of $1.2 million when compared to the same quarter in 1985.

Olney Savings and Homestate Savings do not break out individual branch figures.

West Texas Bank had total loans of $47.2 million compared to $50.4 million at mid-year--a drop of $3.2 million. The third quarter loan figure was down $900,000 when compared against the third quarter loan number last year.

Snyder National loans on Sept. 30 were $42.9 million, a drop of $1 million when compared to the

White Buff events due Sunday also

White Buffalo Days activities were to continue through the weekend with a matinee performance of Whirlagig and a first-ever team roping due Sunday afternoon.

The Sunday performance of Whirlagig is scheduled at 2:30 p.m. in the coliseum. The opening show was Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and a third performance is slated Monday at 7:30 p.m. also.

Tickets for the show are $6 for box seats, $4 for general admission and $2 for children. It features some 100 cast members and a crew of about 20 local individuals.

The Sunday team roping is a first for White Buffalo Days.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some folks itch for a lot, but aren't willing to scratch for much."

1986 will be remembered as the year of low oil prices, high taxes, giant mosquitoes, no crops and record-shattering rainfall.

The official rain gauge at the city water plant now stands at 27.02 inches--7.70 inches more than the county's average annual rainfall of 19.32 inches.

However, there are some folks in Scurry County who believe that the city's rain gauge may have a lid on it. There's an area near Inadale that has received more than 40 inches this year.

Motorists traveling between Hermleigh and Roscoe are aware of the growing lake on the west side of U.S. 84 on the Billy Joe Clifton farm.

It runs some 10 miles southwest and has the highway from Hermleigh to Loraine closed because of high waters. Few oldtimers can recall that much water, and that area is right in the heart of the 40-inches plus.

Commonly known as the Schattel Lake, a pump jack near the center of the playla lake is almost under water. What is traditionally fertile cotton land is now a haven for bull frogs.

During last Sunday's downpour, Scurry County farmer Darrel Bills and his wife, Susan, were driving on U.S. 84 near Hermleigh when Bills slammed on his brakes and backed up.

Bills couldn't believe his eyes. Floating in the bar ditch was a single water ski. Susan, who is secretary for Reda Pump, says she understands there have been folks skiing over near Pyron.

If it keeps on raining, we may see those 18-wheelers replaced by those Mississippi River barges.

Monday is holiday for some

Federal government offices and financial institutions will mark a holiday Monday in observance of Columbus Day.

It will be business as usual, however, for state, county and city governmental employees.

Local branches of federal departments slated to close include the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Soil Conservation Service, both located in the Ag Service Center here, and post offices in Hermleigh, Ira, Fluvanna and Snyder.

Snyder postal workers note that mail will be placed in post office boxes. However, the customer service desk will be

Government has shut down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is technically shut down Saturday after Congress failed to meet President Reagan's demand that they complete a massive spending bill — despite a Democratic surrender on controversial arms-control issues.

"The government's in a shutdown mode," said Ed Dale, spokesman for the administration's Office of Management and Budget. "It has meaning, but only minimal meaning on the weekend."

As the government ran on empty, Reagan was in Iceland for a meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Both the House and Senate passed a stopgap bill late Friday that would extend federal spending authority through Wednesday, but a White House official said the president did not intend to approve it because he wanted to keep pressure on lawmakers to finish the omnibus 1987 spending measure.

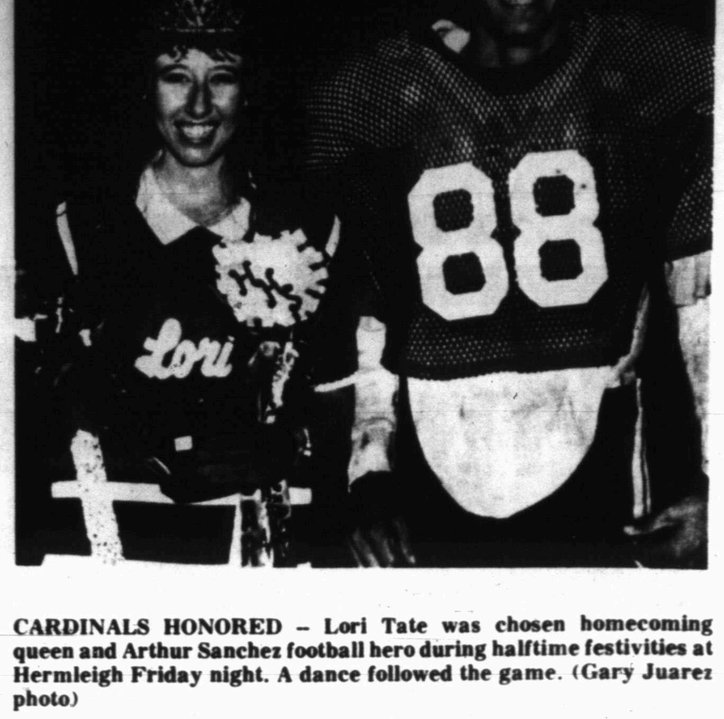

The measure was the third stopgap spending bill passed since the fiscal year began Oct.1.

The situation was unlikely to have much practical effect. Most government functions were shut down anyway over the three-day Columbus Day weekend, and essential employees like military and law-enforcement personnel would be unaffected by any short-term suspension of spending authority.

"This is something we don't like," said administration budget director James C. Miller III. "But Congress has had eight months, then another week, then an additional two days (to complete the spending bill). When is it going to end?"

House and Senate negotiators labored late into the night Friday in an effort to reach agreement on the half-trillion-dollar spending measure, which wraps appropriations for most government agencies into one record package. But they failed to reach final agreement, meaning work would have to continue next week.

Breakthrough did come on one of the largest stumbling blocks: what to do about five arms-control directives included in the House version of the bill but objected to by Reagan as tying his hands during the summit negotiations.

Vice president's aide linked to arms contract for Contra

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior aide to Vice President George Bush played a role in hiring a man said to be a former CIA employee to help coordinate secret arms drops to Contra guerrillas in Nicaragua, sources say.

Donald Gregg, national security adviser to Bush, recommended the Cuban-American, Max Gomez, for a sensitive position at Ilopango Air Force Base in El Salvador, according to a story in the San Francisco Examiner.

The Associated Press was told the same thing by a well-placed source, who insisted on not being identified.

The reports came as two Democratic senators said members of the National Security Council may have organized a private supply network to arm the Contras, violating U.S. law and decrees by Congress.

Gregg did not return a reporter's telephone calls Friday. But Marlin Fitzwater, a spokesman for Bush, said, "There is no one on the vice president's staff who is directing or coordinating an operation in Central America. Allegations to that effect are simply not true."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters in Iceland that he had asked Bush's office about the report, but that "the vice president's staff has not answered me." He said he expected a reply later.

Speakes suggested there might be nothing wrong with someone in Bush's office finding Gomez a job, as long as he was not in the direct employ of the U.S. government.

Gomez, sources said, apparently is on the payroll of the Salvadoran government.

Gomez, said to be a former CIA officer, reportedly served in Vietnam with Gregg, the Examiner said.

Eugene Hasenfus, an American captured in Nicaragua after a plane carrying arms to Contra rebels was shot down, told a news conference in Managua Thursday that Gomez and another Cuban-American "work for the CIA (and) did most of the coordination for the flights."

He said Gomez and the other Cuban-American were based at Ilopango, where Hasenfus said many of the flights originated. "We would be flying into Honduras to an air base called Aguacate and there we would load up small arms and ammunition and fly into Nicaragua. There it would be dropped to the Contras" Hasenfus named the second Cuban-American as Ramon Medina.

The Examiner story said Bush was aware that Gomez was being sent to Ilopango. It quoted its source as saying "I know that the initial deal (to place Gomez at Ilopango) was cut by Gregg after the fellow (Gomez) was introduced directly to George Bush. Bush said, 'This sounds like a good idea. See if you can arrange it.'"

The AP's source did not confirm a direct Bush role.

Speaking to school children at Coral Gables High School in Florida, Bush said of Hasenfus, "I have been told, by very high levels, that he's not working for the government, direct or indirect. When the truth comes out, the government's verson will be borne out."

Advanced writing course offered by local college

An advanced "Writing for Pleasure and Profit" course will be offered by the Continuing Education Department of Western Texas College from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. beginnng Tuesday and lasting until Nov. 18. Deanie Francis Mills will be the instructor.

The class will be limited to students who have already taken the first "Writing For Pleasure and Profit" class, which has been offered three times. Individuals who did not take the class, but who are actively involved in submitting manuscripts for publication, whether articles, short stories, plays, novels, or poetry, are welcome.

Mills said the class will be different in format and content from the first class. There will be almost no lecture or hand-out sheets. Instead, the chairs will be arranged in a round-table discussion group. Students are to bring a thick spiral notebook and pens.

"The class is very flexible in structure right now, because it will be molded to fit the needs of those who sign up for the course," says Mills. "We will have some exercises designed to stimulate creativity. For example, we might take 10 minutes to write a description of a place familiar to use, using all five senses. Or we will couple up, and each pair, sharing a "Writer's Market," must find three separate markets for an assigned idea in five minutes. I will be doing some of the exercises along with the class."

The students will also spend more time critiquing each other's work, using a fixed set of criteria.

Fee for the class is $25. For more information, call the WTC Continuing Education Department at 573-8511, or call Mills at home, 573-1308.

Vitamin C might lower risk of liver damage

NEW YORK (AP) — Large, daily doses of vitamin C might help stop alcohol-related liver damage, says a researcher who conducted experiments on guinea pigs and humans.

People who drink the equivalent of about three beers a day may be helped by long-term daily intake of 500 milligrams of vitamin C, said Vincent Zannoni, professor of pharmacology and toxicology at the University of Michigan Medical School in Ann Arbor. The dosage is about eight times the recommended daily allowance.

Zannoni said research found that vitamin C helped guinea pigs resist liver-fat buildup that can lead to cirrhosis. An experiment in humans also suggests the same effect might be at work, he said.

He spoke in an interview Friday after describing the research at an international conference on vitamin C sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences. The research was financed by the National Institutes of Health and Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., which supplies vitamins to companies that make vitamin supplements.

Dr. Mary Dufour, acting chief of the epidemiology branch of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, said she was not familiar with any studies relating vitamin C to alcohol and liver protection.

Most people can tolerate some fat in their livers without problem, and the buildup is reversible, she said.

She said scientists don't know what makes some people go on to get cirrhosis.

A federal survey of people age 18 to 74, concluded in 1980, found an average daily vitamin C intake of 63 milligrams for men and 53 milligrams for women. The federal recommended daily allowance is 60 milligrams for adults.

In comparison, a navel orange contains 80 milligrams, a cup of strawberries 85 milligrams and a cup of cantaloupe 68 milligrams.

Jews, Greenpeace mounting pressure on Iceland summit

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Demonstrators protesting Soviet treatment of Jews, and a ship dispatched by Greenpeace to make a statement against nuclear weapons, are not the only jarring notes at the weekend superpower summit.

British students, stationed outside the hotel where the Soviet delegation is staying, are arranged in shifts to read aloud the names of 11,000 Jews awaiting permission to leave the Soviet Union.

Yosef Mendelevich, who spent 11 years in Soviet prisons and now campaigns for Soviet Jewry from his home in Israel, said he would hold Sabbath prayers near the Saga Hotel, the Soviet headquarters. Police refused to permit the services to be conducted near the bayside house where Reagan and Gorbachev are meeting.

And even the Kremlin ruffled a few Icelandic feathers as the face-to-face sessions between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev began.

Greenpeace said it planned to sail the Sirius, its ship, into Reykjavik Harbor Saturday in a protest against nuclear weapons.

But immigration chief Karl Johannsson said he would board the Sirius "to determine their intentions." Greenpeace said it would withdraw the ship only on direct orders from the Icelandic prime minister.

Gorbachev flew to Iceland Friday, despite the fact his arrival conflicted with the opening of the Althing, Iceland's parliament, the world's oldest.

Iceland's President Vigdis Finbogadottir and Prime Minister Steingrimur Hermannsson, who were at Keflavik Airport when Reagan arrived Thursday, skipped the tarmac reception for Gorbachev.

"It is unfortunate," said Hermannsson, while Foreign Minister Matthias A. Mathiesen, who received Gorbachev at the airport, said it was "a misunderstanding" and he expected no apologies.

But an Icelandic official who spoke on condition he not be identified said the Soviets had also delayed until almost the last minute telling the Icelanders they agreed to the site chosen for the summit.

Despite the Icelandic government's appeals to people concerned about Soviet Jewry to stay away, about 50 were in Reykjavik, waging a propaganda war with Soviet officials who are trying to put across the new, liberalized face of Gorbachev's government.

Immigration reform bill now with conference committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Immigration reform legislation died late in the congressional session two years ago, but supporters were confident a House-Senate conference committee would reach an agreement this time around.

Amnesty for up to 350,000 aliens and the cost of implementing the new program were judged to be major hurdles.

Key provisions in the House bill, which passed late last week on a 230 to 166 vote after 11 hours of debate, would penalize employers who knowingly hire undocumented workers and would grant amnesty for illegal immigrants who have been in this country for many years.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, the sole Texan named to the conference committee, said he opposed the amnesty provisions, but since they are in both the Senate and House versions they will probably survive.

"There is no question that if we want an immigration bill, that is going to be part of it," Bryant said.

The lawmakers bogged down after meeting Friday and scheduled meetings for Saturday and Tuesday in an last-ditch attempt to pass immigration control legislation before Congress adjourns.

The bill would permit up to 350,000 aliens who have lived here the past three years — and worked harvesting perishable crops at least 90 days during each of the years — to apply for temporary resident status. They could apply for permanent residency after one year.

Aliens who have worked for at least 90 days during the year preceding May 1986 would be eligible to apply for temporary status, with adjustment to permanent status, after two years.

The program would end in seven years unless Congress kept it going.

Ruben Bonilla, Chairman of Mexican American Democrats of Texas, said that in addition to the amnesty provision, he will be lobbying Bryant and the other conferees to retain language on three other key points.

"MAD has consistantly opposed the immigration legislation because of its propensity to burden our employers with employer sanctions and its likely discriminatory impact on minorities in Texas," Bonilla said.

"However we recognize that the House bill is probably the very best immigration legislation that has been adopted by either chamber."

Bonilla will be fighting to retain a sunset clause ending criminal and civil employer sanctions in five years; anti-discrimination language to protect employers who suffer unjustly under the bill; and a temporary amnesty for Nicaraguan and El Salvadoran refugees in this country.

Residents of Dunn to be special guests

Residents of the Dunn community are invited to Dunn Day in the Senior Center on Monday. They will be special guests for the noon meal on that day.

Senior citizens who help with the distribution of surplus commodities and those who would like to work with the project are asked to attend a training session set for 10:15 a.m. Tuesday. Distribution of commodities will be made to Senior Citizens from 9-11:30 a.m. on Tuesday and to the general public on Wednesday.

Hank Davis will play for country and western dancing in the center Tuesday night. Dancing is to begin at 7 p.m. and all senior citizens are invited to attend.

Carolyn Barbee will present a program on medicare forms Friday morning. Her discussion will begin at 11:30 a.m.

Permanent identification cards for senior citizens will be issued in the center on Oct. 22-24. All county residents 60 years of age and older are eligible to receive these cards, which can be presented for free admission to all home Western Texas College basketball games and for discounts from about 20 local businesses. Persons who want a card are asked to call the center office or go by to fill out the information sheet in advance. Having the information sheets in advance will speed the process of issuing the cards and also help the center plan for the amount of film needed for photographs which go on the cards.

Surplus commodity delays leads to streamlining plans

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Problems incurred by some East Texas school districts in getting delivery of surplus agricultural commoditions have led the Texas Department of Human Services to try to streamline its school lunch program.

Last week, school officials in Lufkin, Nacogdoches and Jacksonville said they were not getting surplus commodities, which are supplied by the U.S. Department of Agriculture through the state Human Services Department.

Legislators who looked into the problem said "bugs" in the Human Service Department's new computer system and storms in the Midwest, which slowed Agriculture Department shipments of surplus foods to Texas, led to the delays.

Wayne Kuykendall, head of the food distribution program for the Human Services Department, confirmed that arrangements had been made for the early release of commodities that arrived in Lufkin warehouses after October allocations were made.

Kuykendall said the changes in the distribution of commodities had caused concern in East Texas and added that he and other department officials were working to resolve problems.

"Some adjustments will have to be made," he said.

Commodities supplied through the program make up about 20 percent of the food stuffs received by school districts, Kuykendall said, adding that the department was doing its best to keep supplies flowing smoothly.

Linda Walters, an assistant in Congressman Charles Wilson's office, said she contacted officials with the Agriculture Services Department.

"The No. 1 thing is that the Department of Human Services is very aware of the problem in the area and they will contact the schools to see how it can be worked out," she said. "The problem seems to be that the Human Services people had some problems getting a new system in. Any time you have a new system, there are going to be some bugs in it."

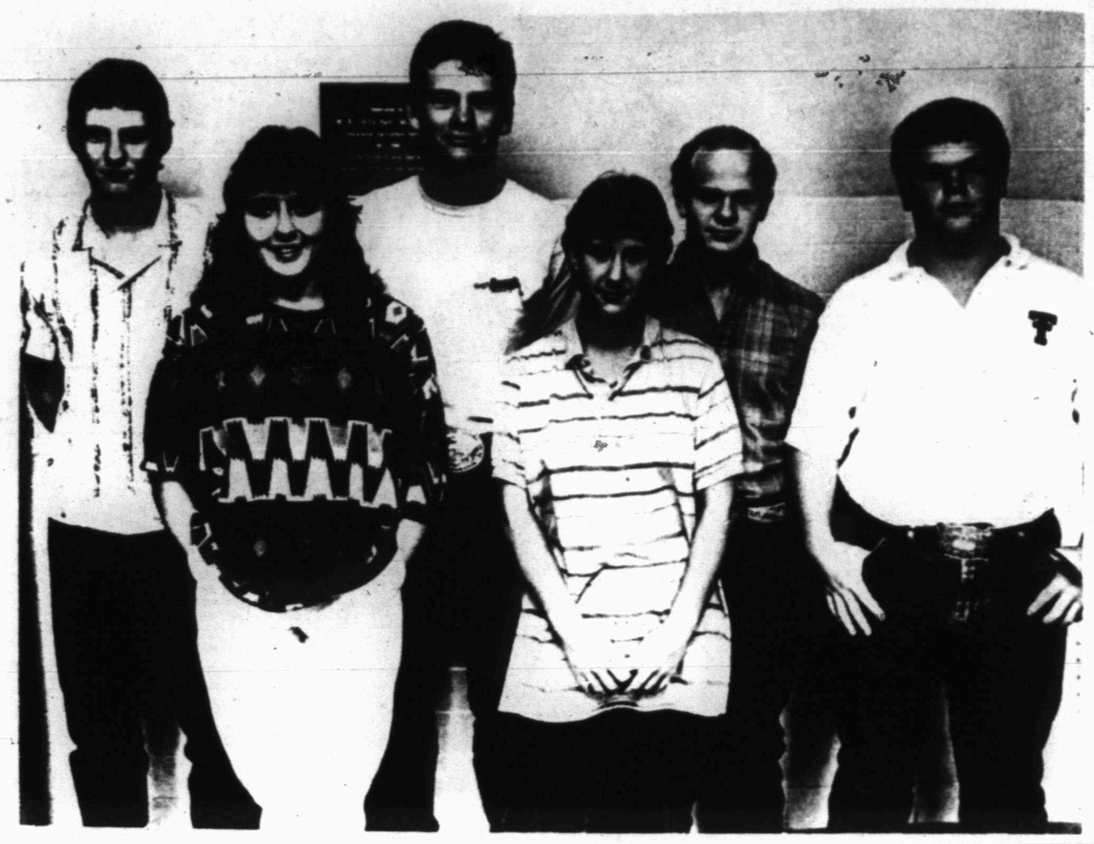

7 commodities distribution set

Commodities of cheese, butter, flour, milk, honey, rice and cornmeal will be given to eligible senior citizens and handicapped persons on Tuesday between 9-11:30 a.m. and on Wednesday from 9-11:30 a.m. and from 1-4 p.m. to the general public at the Senior Center, 2603 Avenue M.

If you are a first time applicant you must come in person and have proof of identity, proof of residence and proof of income. If the applicant receives AFDC, food stamps, medical assistance only (MAO), or SSI they must bring proof of being in the program by bringing forms Number 1009, 3087, 3088, or 1027, which establishes income eligibility.

Income eligibility guidelines are posted at the Senior Center for citizens of Scurry County. There will be no make-up day and participants are asked to enter through the north door of the senior Center and to bring paper sacks in order to carry the commodities.

Russians said informative

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The Soviets came to Reykjavik with something novel to show off — "glasnost," the policy of "openness" ordained by their leader, Mikhail Gorbachev.

"For the first time since I can remember, the Russians are more informative than the Americans," said one old Moscow hand in the press corps covering the meeting in the Icelandic capital between Gorbachev and President Reagan.

American and Western European correspondents who had served in Moscow and whose memories of the Soviet capital are haunted by visions of KGB plainclothesmen smashing cameras have been surprised to meet a new breed of Soviets accompanying Gorbachev.

Moscow-based reporters at Reykjavik are rubbing elbows and chatting with senior Communist Party and government officials whom they never see, much less interview, back in the Soviet Union.

The Soviets were quick to bill the change as part of Gorbachev's glasnost drive, sometimes known in the West as the "charm offensive."

For those charmed more by posturing than by the nitty gritty of arms control, the score was tied — Kremlin 2, White House 2 — as Reagan and Gorbachev prepared for their opening round today.

The first American point was scored by the Soviets for scheduling Gorbachev's arrival during the solemn opening of the Icelandic Althing, the oldest parliament in the world.

AP analysis

The Icelandic president and prime minister attended the Althing, and neither was on hand to welcome the Soviet leader.

"If the ambassador is not here tomorrow, you will know it was his fault," quipped one Soviet official.

Gorbachev scored again by bringing his wife Raisa, to the obvious chagrin of White House officials, while first lady Nancy Reagan attended to commitments in the United States.

"I'm sure you'll all follow her everywhere," gloated Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov. "With Nancy Reagan staying home, Raisa will steal the show in Reykjavik."

Gorbachev also scored a point with the Icelanders and West Europeans by making a speech at the airport saying he came in the cause of peace.

Reagan, playing to the U.S. audience, made his peace pledge as he left the White House, and gave no public remarks as he stepped off the plane at Keflavik Air Base near the Icelandic capital.

The Americans tied the score 2-2 Friday afternoon by unveiling a complex proposal to ratify previously concluded treaties in return for concessions by the Soviets on the issue of verification.

Nothing the Russians did, however, could divert media attention from the sometimes wrenching human rights cases they left back home.

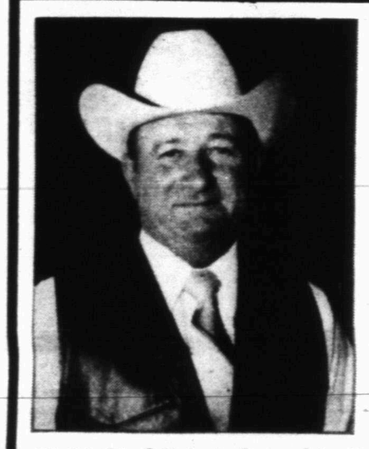

A half dozen Soviet officials held a news conference at the plush Saga Hotel on Friday to promote what they called the "new Soviet reality" under Gorbachev.

Led by Andrei Grachov, a spokesman for the powerful Communist Party Central Committee, Soviet academics, lawyers and journalists extolled the moderate economic reforms and mild relaxation of censorship of the fledgling Gorbachev era.

As Soviet officials extolled the virtues of participatory democracy, Vladimir Sichov, a Soviet emigre who works in the West as a photographer, turned to his colleagues, pointed at the Soviet panel and exclaimed, "Ten years ago, my friends were sent to the gulag for saying what they are saying now."

Farmer who helped others now hurt by flood waters

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Two months after he joined in helping Southeastern farmers cope with drought, Harold "Bus" Williams is waiting for flood waters to recede from his own land so he can assess the damage to his crops.

Normally, bronze milo heads atop dark green stalks make his fields a study in contrast as he prepares to harvest the feed grain. This year, Williams would need a boat and a depth finder to locate some of the milo and soybeans on his rich bottomland.

About 400 of the 800 acres he farms near Oswego in southeast Kansas flooded when 12 to 14 inches of rain fell in one week. It was more than the Neosho River and its tributaries could handle.

A week after the steady rain ended, Williams is still waiting for the waters to back off. He's not expecting to salvage much when things dry out.

"It depends on how long it's under," he said. "I don't suppose there's much hope for a lot of it."

Until the fields dry, Williams won't be able to do a precise accounting of his losses, which are sure to be at least $20,000.

He moved his cattle to higher ground, but some equipment left behind will have to be cleaned up and lubricated.

Two months ago, Williams was one of many Kansas farmers who pitched in to send hay to help drought-stricken farmers in the southeastern United States. Williams cut and baled hay for donation on fields not far from some that are flooded now.

Farmers face weather calamities year in and year out. Drought, floods, hail and high winds are among factors in farming that the producer can do little about.

The Southeastern drought created a situation in which a needed commodity was available from other states, and a relief effort was mounted. Such probably won't be the case with the less extensive problems in southeastern and south central Kansas.

"There, where the drought was, they were able to bring in feed for cattle," said Gary Kilgore, Kansas State University extension service regional crops specialist. "Here, we're not short on feed for livestock or anything like that. This was more of a cash grain loss."

Williams said he has had soybeans flooded before, but not for 10 or 12 days.

Many of the farmers who work the more than 400,000 Kansas acres that flooded expect occasional high water.

"Here in this locality, you can have floods," Williams said.

Gilbert Rahn has lived along Grouse Creek in Cowley County for 22 years. He's seen what it can do and takes it in stride. This flood he lost 100 acres of winter wheat seeded before the rain came.

"There's places where four inches of topsoil is gone," he said.

City hall shuts down Friday under austerity curtailments

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — City Hall shut down Friday as thousands of municipal workers began the first of their enforced three-day weekends to trim a $10 million deficit.

The main doors of City Hall were locked, and people who hadn't heard the news expressed anger and shock when they couldn't get in.

"You know I'm mad," said Melba Williams who rattled the locked doors when she couldn't get in to pay her water bill. "It's upsetting because I know they're spending the money."

Betty Boissalier, 22, said she drove in from suburban Metairie on an errand for her 1-year-old daughter, Inez. "I am upset," she said. "How am I supposed to get a birth certificate for my daughter?"

At the request of Mayor Sidney Barthelemy, the City Council on Oct. 2, ordered about 5,800 workers to work four days a week at a 20 percent wage reduction through the first of the year.

Emergency services continue round-the-clock, but the bulk of non-emergency city services are shut down Fridays.

Calls to City Hall departments went unanswered, and a switchboard recording advised that offices would reopen Monday. Barthelemy and some top officials went to work in an otherwise empty building.

"I think it will give me an opportunity to get to some things I just don't get to during the week," said Barthelemy, whose $75,000 salary also has been cut 20 percent, as have the $42,500 salaries of city councilors.

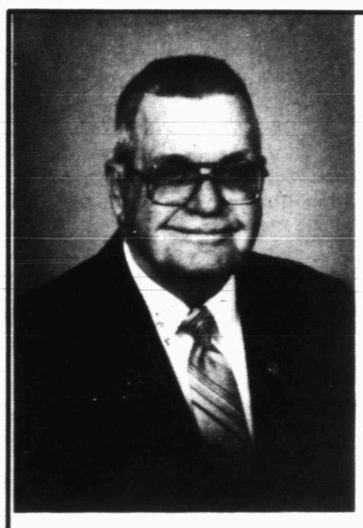

On the eve of the shutdown, the mayor made the first live television address of his six months in office and urged residents to pull together through the city's fiscal quagmire.

"Help me. Join with me and put our love of New Orleans above everything else," said Barthelemy, who inherited a $30 million deficit from predecessor Ernest N. "Dutch" Morial.

Killing of four suspects called 'coincidence'

MIAMI (AP) — One burglar's skull was smashed with an ax handle. An electrified booby trap killed a thief leaving a store. Two businessmen shot robbers dead.

Four criminal suspects killed and two others injured in two weeks.

Authorities say the cluster of incidents is coincidence, not a sign of growing vigilantism. Others disagree.

"Definitely something is going on here that's out of the ordinary," said William Wilbanks, a Florida International University criminologist. "A lot of people in Miami are saying, 'A bad guy's dead and that's good.'"

It started when Prentice Rasheed electrified an iron grid over the doorway of his variety store in Miami's blighted Liberty City. On Sept. 30, a robber toting out merchandise over the roof brushed against the metal.

Odell Hicks, 20, was electrocuted. Rasheed, 43, was booked for manslaughter.

"The average citizen is going to be sympathetic and fed up with street crime," Richard E. Gerstein, Dade's chief prosecutor for 21 years, said. "I'd rather be defending it (Rasheed's case) than prosecuting it."

Rasheed, whose legal plight drew sympathy and support from other merchants, said he is sorry the booby trap killed Hicks. It wasn't meant to kill, but to stop robberies that occurred so frequently he could not buy theft insurance, he said. He had asked for better police help just weeks earlier.

Rasheed's case was followed by others:

— On Oct. 3, Wilburn Brooker, 45, chased the gunman who had robbed him in his Homestead apartment complex office. He caught Terry Lee Johnson and fired his shotgun at him. The stolen cash box, emptied, was found near Johnson's body.

— Two days later, Serafina Rivas, 41, woke up in her Homestead apartment to the noise of breaking glass. She found a man crawling through a window, screamed, and when he grabbed her throat, she grabbed an ax handle and bashed Salvador Perez in the head. Police found the 17-year-old illegal alien from Mexico draped over the windowsill. He died the next day.

— On Monday, Seth Sklarey saw an intruder inside his Coconut Grove home. He fired five times through a window with his .25-caliber gun, wounding the man.

— The next day, an unidentified man shot and wounded one of two teen-agers he surprised as they ransacked a neighbor's home.

— Thursday, Kelly Jacobs, a Dade County Burger King franchise owner, fatally shot Tyrone Linewood. He said the youth was robbing his store.

"I think it's coincidence that we've had so many in so short a time," said Miami police Lt. Edward Carberry, chief of homicide investigations.

So far, only Rasheed has been charged, and prosecutors haven't decided about pressing formal charges against him or the other Dade County residents, said State Attorney Janet Reno.

"In light of recent events, with citizens arming themselves, they've got some soul searching to do at the state attorney's office," said Rasheed's lawyer, I. Mark Rubin.

Brooker's case was one of self-defense, said his lawyer, Jeffrey Weiner.

"This fellow had a loaded gun and pointed it at him," he said. "People are fed up with the fact that the police can't protect them."

Police lauded those efforts. But they warned that the law forbids people from killing suspects unless their life is threatened.

Top county official not told of gas leak

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The county's chief decision-maker never found out about last week's hydrogen sulfide leak until after evacuated residents were permitted to return, an Ector County official said.

Pat MacAllister, administrative assistant to Ector County Judge Jan Fisher, said she called Ms. Fisher last Saturday morning with news of the gas leak after she learned of the situation herself from news reports hours after it happened.

Meanwhile, the Texas Air Control Board is considering fining Baruch-Foster Corp. of Dallas up to $20,000 for two separate violations in connection with the leak.

Baruch-Foster was repairing a pipeline casing when the potentially deadly gas leaked out about 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 3. It prompted the Ector County Sheriff's Office to evacuate 1,000 to 2,000 residents. They returned to their homes the next morning.

Ms. Fisher is the county's top elected official and has the authority to declare any part of Ector County a disaster area. Ms. MacAllister is the deputy emergency management coordinator for Odessa-Goldsmith-Ector County.

Representatives of Ector County and several agencies met Thursday night to critique the handling of the gas leak and resulting evacuation.

Most officials cited communication problems as the biggest obstacles to smooth handling of the evacuation. A new emergency plan is being drawn up.

Texas Air Control officials said Baruch-Foster received a notice of violation for a small hydrogen sulfide leak from the same water injection well on Aug. 27.

Only one person called the air control board office to report that leak, which fell into the "nuisance" category, said Charley Sims, air control board regional director.

Bates may be missing from Cowboys lineup

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys could be without their starting strong safety when they play the Washington Redskins in an NFC Eastern Division showdown on Sunday in Texas Stadium.

A sprained ankle suffered by Bill Bates in the fourth period of Sunday's 29-14 loss to Denver has not responded to treatment.

If Bates can't play on Sunday it would cause a major reshuffle by Coach Tom Landry. Vince Albritton would start at strong safety if Bates, a strong fixture of the special teams as well, can't play Sunday, team spokesman Greg Aiello said Friday.

There was some late week injury news that looked good for the Cowboys.

Running back Tony Dorsett and defensive tackle Randy White practiced on Friday and their chances of playing were improved. Dorsett was moving better on his left leg where he has knee and ankle injuries.

White was bothered by a hamstring pull he suffered in the first quarter of the Denver game.

There was other gloomy news for Dallas which is 3-2 and trying to hand the 5-0 Redkins their first 1986 loss.

It appeared quarterback Danny White might sit out the game with a pulled groin muscle with Steve Pelluer filling in as he did in the Denver loss.

There also was shuffling in the Cowboys' offensive line.

Kickoff is at noon with a sellout crowd assured in the 27th game of the series.

Spoil homecoming, Cardinal effort...

Gorillas go ape at Hermleigh

HERMLEIGH – Hermleigh's Cardinals held tough for two quarters, but couldn't keep up with the Jones - Sam Jones, that is - as they fell to the Trent Gorillas 46-0 in a District 4-1A East Zone ballgame here Friday night.

The loss spoiled a homecoming celebration, already dampened by heavy rain.

Jones, a senior, ran for five touchdowns, passed for another, and tacked on four points in conversions as he led Trent to its third win in five outings this season. The Gorillas are 1-0-1 in zone play as they take on McCaulley next Friday.

Hermleigh, still looking for its first win at 0-5, is idle next weekend, and will play at McCaulley on Saturday, Oct. 25.

The Cardinals kept the Gorillas out of the end zone in the first quarter, but Jones finally broke through for a 19-yard score with 9:20 left in the second. He also kicked the points-after.

Six minutes later, Jones tallied on a nine-yard scamper. The kick-after was no good, and Trent settled for a 14-0 halftime advantage.

Jones got going full stride in the third quarter. He hit Lee Hunt on a 36-yard TD pass, then scored on runs of 11 and 51 yards. He also ran over one conversion. Another, a kick attempt, was blocked by Hermleigh's Daniel Ramey.

A 40-yard, fourth-quarter touchdown run by Jones and a follow-up Jones-to-Jason Massey conversion pass put the Gorillas up 40-0. The game ended via the 45-point rule when Chris Simpson scored for the visitors with 2:40 left in the game.

Trent rolled up 252 yards rushing and 97 passing while holding the Cardinals to 62 on the ground and 16 through the airways. The rain played in favor of the visitors as they played error-free ball yet recovered four fumbles and picked off one pass.

Leading the defense for Hermleigh were Rodney Foster with 15 tackles, Ben Smith with 11 and Jeff Rosmisch with 9.

Lori Tate was named homecoming queen. Arthur Sanchez was the Cardinals' football hero.

"The rain was a big factor," said Coach Mitch Lee. "We didn't play that bad. In fact, our blocking blocking was good. But we couldn't get through the hole because we were fumbling the ball all over the backfield. It was pretty frustrating."

An example of the Bulldogs' problems occurred when Mike Martini ran a kickoff back 72 yards to the McCaulley 4-yard line, only to have the visitors fumble on the next play.

"That's how it went," mused Coach Lee. "Defensively, we played real well. Because of the turnovers we had our defense on the field most of the night and they did a great job under the circumstances."

Juarez and Brent Bearden led the defense with 13 and 11 tackles, respectively. Bearden

Loop Longhorns overpower Borden County in downpour

GAIL – Loop's Longhorns broke open a tough defensive game with 22 third-quarter points and went on to defeat Borden County 36-15 here Friday in a District 4-1A West Zone six-man football game.

Borden, which suffered only its second loss of the season, stalled repeatedly in the first half because the Coyotes could not control a slippery football. Rain fell before the game and intermittently in the first half, then worked into a deluge by the fourth quarter.

The Coyotes drove down inside the Longhorn 15 three times in the first half but came up empty.

Loop finally got the scoreboard to flicker when David Davis hit Monty Scott on a nine-yard pass with one second left in the second quarter. Davis' PAT kick was wide left and the 'Horns took a 6-0 halftime advantage.

The visitors went to an all-out passing game in the second half, and it worked. Loop moved the ball downfield via the pass before Davis scored on a one-yard run with 6:42 left in the third quarter. The conversion try failed.

Borden finally retaliated on a 60-yard touchdown pass from Shannon Bond to Brice Key. Randall Hollis' kick-after was good and the Coyotes trailed only 12-8.

But Borden was unable to catch the Longhorns. On their next possession, the visitors tallied when Davis found Billy Garza on a 30-yard scoring toss. Davis kicked the points-after for a 20-8 Loop lead.

Again Borden came back, this time on a 19-yard pass from Bond to Mickey Burkett. The PAT snap was bobbled, but Michael Murphy passed complete to Key and the Coyotes were back within five points, 20-15.

Loop took the wind out of the hosts on the ensuing kickoff, however. Ramon Esquivel took the boot, bobbled it, then ran 75 yards to score with 1:14 left in the period. Davis kicked the points-after for a 28-15 advantage.

Borden tried to come back and answer again. The Coyotes reached the Longhorn 10, but this time Loop intercepted an errant pass. The Longhorns went to work again, finally scoring with 4:02 left in the ballgame. John Rodriquez did the honors on a 19-yard run. Davis' kick was good for the 36-15 victory.

The loss leaves Borden at 3-2 overall and 1-1 in zone play. The Coyotes try to regroup as they travel to Grady next Friday.

BULLDOGS

also recovered three fumbles.

Spradlin led the 'Dogs' ground game with 70 yards on 10 carries. Juarez hit five of seven passes for 67 yards. Withers caught two of thoses tosses for 54 yards and a pair of TDs.

Now 2-3-1 overall and 2-0-1 in East Zone play, Ira will entertain Blackwell next Friday.

Brief

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - Citing serious shortcomings in the way the University of Maryland educates its student-athletes, a task force proposed that players meet tougher admission and academic standards and do without some of the special treatment they have received in the past.

A report by the task force did not fault anyone specifically, but it did say some coaches placed the academic and personal development of their students below their athletic performances.

The task force study was undertaken in the wake of the June 19 cocaine-induced death of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, and the subsequent disclosure of serious academic problems among some university's athletes.

Runners gain 100 and more in District 2-4A grid battles

It was a big night for Pecos' Bobby Ray Smith, Monahans' Dana Amos Big Spring's Charles White Friday night, despite a driving rainstorm throughout District 2-4A.

Monahans remained undefeated on the season as Amos ran for 148 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Loboes in a 27-6 victory over Andrews.

Pecos blanked San Angelo Lake View 26-0 behind the 144-yard, two-touchdown effort of Smith, a sophomore quarterback.

Meanwhile, Big Spring rolled to a 35-0 halftime win before squashing Lamesa 46-7. White also picked up over 100 yards as he broke loose on touchdown runs of 67, 45 and five yards.

In the only other 2-4A ballgame played Friday, Sweetwater powered past Fort Stockton, 18-0.

Snyder was idle.

Monahans will be favored to win its sixth straight game next week when the Loboes pack the bus for San Angelo. In other games, Fort Stockton is at Big Spring, Pecos at Sweetwater and Snyder at Andrews. Lamesa takes the weekend off.

The Pecos-at-Sweetwater contest poses as a possible elimination match. Both teams are 3-1 in district play. Besides Monahans, Big Spring is also undefeated in 2-4A. The Steers will bring a 3-0 loop record into next week's game with Fort Stockton, now 1-3.

Sports in summary

TENNIS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - Top-seeded John McEnroe won both of his singles matches in contrasting fashion in the $279,000 WCT Scottsdale Open.

McEnroe easily beat 18-year-old Jaime Yzaga of Peru 6-3, 6-4 in a second-round singles match.

But in the quarterfinals, McEnroe struggled before finally eliminating Glenn Layendecker 6-2, 6-7 (2-7), 6-2.

The semifinals will pit McEnroe against fourth-seeded David Pate, who beat Jim Grabb 6-3, 6-4.

The other semifinal will pair third-seeded Kevin Curren against Todd Witsken. Curren outlasted Marty Davis 6-7 (7-3), 6-1, 6-4 while Witsken downed stubborn Sammy Giammalva 6-7 (2-7), 7-5, 6-3.

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) - Top-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany defeated Stephanie Rehe, the No. 6 seed from the United States, 6-3, 6-1 on Friday and reached the semifinals of the $150,000 European Indoor tennis tournament.

In another quarterfinal, seventh-seeded Lori McNeil of the United States scored a 7-6 (11-9), 7-5 victory over Laura Gildemeister Arraya of Peru.

GOLF

LONDON (AP) - Peggy Conley, upset by a slow play warning, recovered her composure and took a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the $87,000 British Women's open golf tournament.

Conley finished with an eagle-birdie for a second-round 69 and moved ahead of Britain's Debbie Downing and Spain's Marta Figueras-Dotti, the first-round leader, with an 11-under-par 139 total.

LGA elects officers

Snyder's Ladies Golf Association elected new officers for the upcoming season at its recent monthly luncheon and business meeting.

Gertrude League was elected president by the 38 members present at the meeting. Other new officers are Charlene Light, first vice president; Margie Briggs, second vice president; Glenda Hollingsworth, secretary; Lou Keeble, treasurer; and Donna Stehley, reporter.

Betty Hildreth, Play Day chairman, presented golf balls to winners for the month of September. Winners were as follows:

Flag Tournament, Sept. 9: Carolyn Greene, Betty Hildreth, Evelyn Thomas.

Queen of the Hill, Sept. 16: Finnie Seale, Ethel Wadleigh, Martha Fagin, Suzy Reed, Doris Gard, Becky Knipe, Donna Stehley, Chris Jordan.

Low Net Foursome, Sept. 23: Ethel Wadleigh, Margie Briggs, Norma Thompson, Bobbie Hargrove, Becky Knipe, Mary Blackmon, Suzy Reed, Chris Jordan.

Low Score on Even Holes, Sept. 30: Gay Bownds, Becky Knipe, Gertrude League, Colleen Duke, Mary Blackmon, Donna Stehley, Juanita Hester, Jo Sterling.

Following the business meeting, radiologist Dr. Buerk Williams gave a slide presentation on xero mammography.

Red Sox fall behind in AL playoff series

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Reggie Jackson, a veteran of 11 American League playoffs, says the Boston Red Sox aren't in deep trouble - yet.

"We're just up 2-1, it's 'advantage Angels,'" the California slugger said Friday night after the Angels beat the Red Sox 5-3 to take a 2-1 advantage in the best-of-seven AL playoffs.

"They (the Red Sox) are not in a must-win situation yet because they don't have three losses," Jackson said.

"But in the next game, they have their best pitcher going, the best pitcher in baseball this year, and I think they're really going to have their backs to the wall if they don't win it.

"But with guys like (Bill) Buckner, (Don) Baylor, (Jim) Rice, guys who've been here before, the Red Sox certainly aren't going to lie down for us."

Roger Clemens, who had a 24-4 record this season but was shelled in the Angels' playoff-opening 8-1 victory, was to start for Boston in Saturday night's fourth game.

Don Sutton, who this season became just the 19th pitcher ever to win as many as 300 games, was to oppose him.

The Angels took a 2-1 edge in the series on seven steady innings by starter John Candelaria, a solo homer by Dick Schofield that snapped a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning, and a two-run homer by Gary Pettis later for a 4-1 lead later in the same inning.

The game was marked by controversy, as home plate umpire Terry Cooney changed a call he made at the plate in the fourth inning when the Angels' Wally Joyner attempted to score from second on Doug DeCinces roller down the first-base line.

Cooney, who'd moved down the line toward first, initially called Joyner safe. But, making the call on the assumption that Boston catcher Rich Gedman had missed the tag, Cooney decided to double-check and asked third base umpire Rich Garcia if he saw a tag.

Garcia said he had, and Cooney changed his call. So the Angels, who would have been tied 1-1 with two runners on base, instead were out of the inning with nothing to show for it.

Capping the commotion, which delayed the game for about 10 minutes, Angels Manager Gene Mauch was thrown out of the contest. He became the first manager ever ejected in an AL playoff game.

"That was one of the best games I never saw," Mauch joked afterward. "I think I wore out two pairs of shoes going up and down the runway (between the clubhouse and the dugout)."

Soviets dismiss U.S. offer as 'manuever'

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev Saturday resumed their face-to-face talks to narrow the dangerous differences between the superpowers. An American offer for limiting nuclear testing was dismissed by the Soviets as "nothing but a manuever."

The two leaders shook hands and posed for pictures briefly on the steps of the bayside house that is the site for six hours of talks during three meetings today and Sunday.

It was their first summit since they agreed in Geneva last November on a plan to accelerate work toward arms control agreements.

No pacts have been sealed in negotiations since then. But on the eve of the today's meeting, both men declared their willingness to work diligently.

The president went into the meeting with an offer to seek ratification of treaties restricting nuclear testing for both military and nonmilitary purposes to no more than 150 kilotons.

In exchange, he planned to seek Gorbachev's agreement to verification procedures to prevent cheating.

However, Soviet spokesman Georgi Arbatov told a news conference that Reagan's offer was not new and "nothing but a maneuver designed to take us away from the real problem" of a total ban on nuclear testing.

Reagan, acting as host for the morning session under an agreement worked out for summits outside the Soviet Union and the United States, arrived several minutes early and greeted his "guest" in an ante-room with a small unused fireplace.

Asked by a reporter if he was going to "give away the store," Reagan replied, "don't own the store."

About 100 bystanders watched the leaders' arrival from behind barricades across the street from the house.

One outcome of the meeting could be a follow-up summit in the United States.

Gorbachev called for "serious and decisive action."

Reagan said of the Soviets' desire for a good outcome, "I hope their hopes are realized."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that Reagan brought to the talks an offer that would provide "more impetus" toward erasing a superpower dispute on how to frame an agreement to stop nuclear testing.

Speakes said Reagan would promise Gorbachev he would seek Senate ratification in January of two long-pending, Soviet-favored treaties limiting nuclear testing.

The president would not sign the treaties, however, until the Soviets agree to a system of scientific verification to ensure against cheating on the testing, Speakes said.

Acknowledging that the new administration proposal does not substantially alter U.S. policy on nuclear testing, Speakes said it gives both countries "more impetus toward reaching agreement on verification, which has been a sticking point."

The Soviets have repeatedly rejected the notion of anything less than a complete nuclear weapons test ban.

There was no indication the Soviets had changed their minds and would accept the verification regime.

Unlike the Geneva meetings, held in the glittering surroundings of an international city, the Iceland summit setting was the lamplit corner of a 20-square-foot room in Hofdi House.

The two-story clapboard villa, mirthfully depicted in local legend as haunted, is used as a banquet hall by the Reykjavik municipal government.

Arriving from Moscow on Friday, Gorbachev said, "We believe that the time has come for action, serious and decisive action." He said he wants to reduce the threat of war in order to "allow us to get down to business on disarmament questions."

"We are prepared to seek solutions to the most critical problems that worry people and, most of all, those solutions that would remove the threat of nuclear war," the Communist Party chief said.

"I hope their hopes are realized," Reagan said later to reporters who accompanied him on a courtesy call to Iceland's president.

Asked if he and Gorbachev could "do business," the president declared: "We're going to find out."

The president's offer on nuclear testing was part of a deal he made with congressional Democrats to get their approval of a defense and foreign affairs spending plan for the fiscal year beginning this month.

Before leaving for Iceland, Reagan had complained that delay of the spending bill was undermining the unified front he needed in his talks with Gorbachev.

Now that the compromise has been reached, Speakes said, "we are satisfied that the agreement with Congress puts Congress and the president on the same wavelength in dealing with the Soviet Union. We enjoy a unified support as we go into this."

Bodies sent home

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The bodies of two Americans killed in a rebel supply plane shot down by Sandinista soldiers were sent home Friday. Government radio said the men "arrived as pilots and are leaving as cargo."

Eugene Hasenfus, the American who survived, remained in prison. The CIA denied his statement that it was involved in a series of supply runs to the rebels, including the one the C-123 was making when it was hit by a missile Sunday and crashed in the jungles of southern Nicaragua.

The plain gray coffins, of the type used to bury Sandinista soldiers, were sent by U.S. Embassy officials on a commercial flight bound for Houston via San Salvador, El Salvador.

The bodies of the plane's pilot, William J. Cooper, and co-pilot Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr. were turned over to the embassy Thursday. A third victim has not been identified, and the Sandinistas continue to hold his body.

An American official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Nicaraguan government had agreed to bring the two Americans' bodies through the embassy gates in a truck. The coffins were left on the ground outside the gates instead, and Nicaraguan employees of the embassy carried them inside five minutes later.

The embassy issued a statement saying it "abhors the ghoulish behavior which characterized the Sandinista government's return of the remains of the two Americans."

A broadcast on the official Voice of Nicaragua radio said: "The two Americans arrived as pilots and are leaving as cargo. They came to destroy our people and they were annihilated. They arrived clandestinely and they leave legally."

Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., bailed out of the plane and Nicaraguan soldiers captured him Monday at an abandoned jungle cabin.

Indigent appeal board appointments planned

County commissioners will appoint a board to handle indigent health care appeals, appoint a county health authority and make changes in the county's group medical plan when they meet at 10 a.m. Monday in the courthouse.

Court members are expected to name a three-member appeal board related to the recently implemented indigent health care laws in the state. This action follows discussions last Monday with Louie Jones, a regional health coordinator with the Texas Department of Human Services based in Abilene.

Commissioners indicated they would also determine which entity — Cogdell Memorial Hospital or the county welfare office — would bear the primary responsibility for record-keeping and "identification" of local indigent cases.

Also Monday, commissioners will reappoint Dr. Robert Pierce to oversee the Scurry County Health Unit as required by law. His name will be recorded with the Texas Department of Health.

Court members will also consider changes in the county's medical plan which will allow retired workers the opportunity to remain under the group plan at group rates. Each person accepting the option will be responsible for premiums incurred.

In other action, County Treasurer Billy Wayne Thompson will present his quarterly report.

College hires Leon Pettitt

Leon Pettitt has been employed by Western Texas College as assistant plant director and electrician effective Oct. 1. He replaces Bill Mapes who retired at the beginning of the 1986-87 school year.

Pettitt has been employed as an electrical supply salesman by Cain Electrical Supply in Big Spring for the past three years. He was employed at Webb Air Force Base from 1958 until the base closed in 1976. He operated his own business, a lighting and electrical supply house, in Big Spring for the next five years, then began employment with Consolidated Electrical Distributors in Odessa and later with Corbell Electric in Big Spring.

Pettitt holds a master electrician's license for Big Spring, Lamesa, Odessa, and Colorado City and has served on the Big Spring City electrical Board since 1977.

Born in Hermleigh, Pettitt was graduated from Big Spring High School.

His wife, Patsy, is administrative secretary at Howard College. The couple has two daughters.

DPS accidents for week told

Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen were called to investigate two minor traffic accidents during the week.

The first of those was reported at 9 a.m. last Sunday about one-half of a mile east of Snyder on U.S. Hwy. 84.

Involved in it were a 1985 Ford driven by Elvis Benton Bollinger of 103 Browning St. and a 1984 Mack truck-tractor driven by Rebecca Espersen of El Paso.

Involved in the second accident, reported at 6:30 a.m. Monday 18 miles west of town on State Hwy. 180 — was a 1982 Porsche driven by Paschual W. Neely of Odessa.

Neely reportedly veered off the road and into a culvert while attempting to avoid hitting an animal on the road.

No injuries resulted from either mishap.

Vehicle struck, yards damaged

Damage to two front yards and a parked vehicle was reported early Saturday following a minor traffic accident here.

It occurred at 1:28 a.m. in the 1900 Block of Scott St.

According to reports, a 1973 Dodge driven by Armando Perez of 1909 Coleman Ave. struck a parked 1976 Chevrolet owned by Walter Courtney of 1905 Scott St.

Also listed as damaged in the mishap were some cross ties at the Edwin Galyean residence at 1901 Scott and a tree in the yard of the Courtney residence.

Police investigated also a Friday mishap reported at 11:40 p.m. in the 100 Block of East 37th St.

Police say a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Alvin Gonzales of Rt. 2, Snyder struck a planter box at the Kingswood Apartments.

Items said taken from residence

Police are investigating a residential burglary reported early Saturday morning.

Dennis Ewalt of 1010 ½ 26th St. discovered the incident at 4:14 a.m. Entry to the house was apparently gained by breaking out a window.

Listed as missing were a radio, alarm clock, comforter and some food items.

City officers are also investigating a criminal mischief report filed Friday morning.

Sue Black of the Snootie Fox beauty salon in the 1900 Block of 40th St. reported at 8:29 a.m. that the back window of her building had been broken out.

No value was estimated for damage to the beauty shop.

In other action, police logged four misdemeaor arrests including two subjects jailed for misdemeanor theft in connection with a gas "drive-off" from the C&W store on the Lamesa Highway.

Suspects were jailed also for driving while intoxicated and public intoxication.

to insect problems, extending the season for the boll worm moth and her egg laying.

Earlier in the summer, flea hoppers caused damage to the emerging cotton, and some boll weevil problems--a perennial danger for Scurry cotton--were noted also.

Rain falling at the wrong time has been the primary problem, however, creating plants which are "A lot of stalk with nothing on them," according to Ensor.

With the cotton totals appearing questionable, he noted he was not aware of any cotton gins running at present. The county is still awaiting its first bale of cotton for 1986.

Holiday planned for some Monday closed and no home mail delivery will be made.

All Snyder financial institutions will be closed Monday also.

Events continue for White Buffalo

It is to begin at 2 p.m. at an arena at the Roy Lee Beaver ranch in Fluvanna. The "round robin" event is limited to Scurry County residents only.

Entry fees are set at $75 per roper. Buckles will be awarded to the champion header and champion heeler.

Jurors slated at WTC Monday

Beginning Oct. 20, court officers are hoping to call back 12 prospective jurors per day for individual interviews.

These will be conducted in the 132nd district courtroom on the fourth floor of the Scurry County Courthouse.

A total of 14 jurors acceptable to both the state and the defense will be chosen. The two extra jurors will be required in the event illness prevents one of the 12 from hearing the complete trial.

Testimony amd presentation of evidence will begin once the 14 are selected. They are expected to be sequestered at that time through the conclusion of the trial.

This will be done to insure they are isolated from news coverage of trial events or individuals who might have knowledge of the trial proceedings.

All prospective jurors called for Monday are required to report to the college unless they have already returned their summons to the district clerk's office and filed for a valid legal exemption from jury duty.

first six months of 1986, and a drop of $900,000 when compared to the third quarter last year.

American State loans were $7.3 million compared to $7.4 million at mid-year--a drop of $100,000. When viewed against last year's third quarter loan figure, ASB loans were up $100,000.

Snyder Savings loans were $25.6 million compared to $19 million at mid-year, up $6.6 million. When compared to the third quarter total in 1985, the loan figure is up $400,000.

June. He has spent approximately $1,528 on his effort to date. He has garnered $1,801 in contributions including a $300 personal loan.

Callaway reported expenses at just over $204 the past four months with a total for the year at almost $1,196. He listed no contributions.

Candidates running in uncontested races were not required to file the October report. All candidates, however, must file again in January.

Casualties mount in El Salvadoran quake

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A strong earthquake and jarring aftershocks toppled buildings and cracked streets in this capital city and unconfirmed reports said more than 100 people were killed and hundreds more injured.

Wary residents spent the night in parks and plazas and some of the injured lay on mattresses outside overcrowded hospitals.

As of Friday night, there was no official casualty toll from the quakes, the first of which hit shortly before noon. San Salvador, a city of 800,000 people, was almost completely cut off from the rest of the country and the world.

Dazed residents wandered the streets littered with rubble and traversed by downed power lines.

President Jose Napoleon Duarte declared a state of emergency, the Mexican news agency Notimex reported.

Speaking on Radio El Salvador, he urged citizens to stay away from damaged buildings and appealed for calm. He said damage was confined to the capital area.

Radio station YSU said more than 150 people were killed in the collapse of the 10-story Ruben Dario building.

Radio Cuscatlan said about 45 people were known dead, including at least 30 students whose bodies were found in two schools.

Costa Rican Ambassador to San Salvador Jesus Fernandez said in an interview with the station that the bodies of at least 30 young people were taken from the Santa Catalina school and another school.

The radio said hundreds of people were injured and wounded soldiers were evacuated from a military hospital in San Salvador to make room for civilians. The soldiers were casualties in El Salvador's 7-year-old civil war.

Ernesto Ferreiro, spokesman for the Salvadoran Red Cross, said about 200 people sought shelter or treatment at the organization's headquarters alone.

Peter McPherson, administrator for the U.S. Agency for International Development, said in Washington that a disaster assistance team was on its way to El Salvador. He said the United States also will send tents, blankets and a 12-person medical team from Panama.

A disaster-response team from Miami's Metro-Dade Fire Department also was flying to El Salvador today to determine what aid the earthquake-stricken nation might need, an fire department official said.

Vacationing Americans Robert Annadle and his wife Pam Ascanio, who were inside a pizza parlor when the initial jolt hit, said the tremor damaged Bloom Children's Hospital across the street.

"They were digging out (from the hospital) kids, babies," said Ms. Ascanio, of Rockledge, Fla.

"We were the only ones who got out (of the pizza parlor) when it was happening. The roof fell," she said.

Shanties of tin and wood collapsed, but affluent neighborhoods in the hills appeared to have escaped undamaged.

Army units and the national police were deployed to control crowds and prevent looting.

The U.S. Geological Survey said an earthquake measuring 5.4 on the Richter scale, centered about 10 miles northwest of San Salvador, struck at 1:49 p.m. EDT, 11:49 a.m. Salvadoran time.

At least seven or eight aftershocks were felt in San Salvador over the next three hours.

Order halts funds transfer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Farm Credit Administration member associations suffering from financial problems in other states will not get Texas money before a full trial is held in a lawsuit, U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled.

Woodward issued a preliminary injunction against the Farm Credit Administration and Farm Credit System Capital Corp. on behalf of numerous Federal Land Bank and Production Credit associations in Texas.

Woodward's decision undoubtedly will affect the discussions at a top-level session in Lubbock Tuesday when Farm Credit Administration chairman Frank Naylor meets with the Texas Farm Credit Bank Board about the controversy.

The Texas associations have sued to prevent the transfer of about $50 million they said belongs to the farmers who spent decades accumulating the earnings. The Texans said the funds might help farmers in other states but the transfer would cause more severe economic stress and perhaps the collapse of many Texas associations.

Friday's judgment was a result of hours of testimony in a hearing last week. It prevents the defendants from "attempting to compel or otherwise effect a transfer of plaintiffs' funds to the Capital Corp., either directly or indirectly, and until a trial of the case on the merits."

The Farm Credit System, the nation's largest agricultural lender, is a 70-year-old institution which is owned by farmer-borrowers. The system includes Federal Land Banks, Banks for Cooperatives and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank which funds Production Credit Associations. The system is funded by the sale of bonds, not federal money.

About one year ago, Farm Credit System officials announced that outside funds might be necessary to help certain financially troubled associations in six states recover from $428 million in losses during 1984. Without the infusion of funds from the strong associations in states such as Texas, the officials argued, the entire system with a portfolio of about one-third of the nation's farmers might fail.

In ordering the preliminary injunction, Woodward noted that his decision is not based upon constitutional violations claimed by the plaintiffs. Attorneys for the plaintiffs argued that the assessments demanded by the Farm Credit Administration and Capital Corp. are unconstitutional "takings" of the farmers money.

Flood impact not pinpointed

WASHINGTON (AP) — With water still standing in some Midwestern fields, the government is forecasting that this fall's corn harvest will be down 7 percent from last year and is prepared to lower that estimate further if need be.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that heavy rains and flooding in the nation's midsection could reduce both yields and crop quality. It said the extent of the problem would be reflected in later forecasts.

Oil show draws record crowds

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The annual Permian Basin Oil Show has signed a record-breaking number of exhibitors, giving oil industry members wearied by the continued slump in prices a dose of optimism.

All 912 booths at this week's show have been claimed, and the 594 registered exhibitors at the 27th annual event is a record, said oil show president T.L. "Woody" Gregory. A waiting list has already been started for 1988, he said.

"It's another indication that we in this country kind of gather together when things get tough," Gregory said. "There is always a need for an exchange of knowledge and ideas ... and this is what this show is all about."

The turnout contrasts sharply with that at Houston's Offshore Technology Conference held in May, where the number of exhibitors was down 20 percent.

The show starts Wednesday, and is open to the public Friday and Saturday.

Enerdyne Inc., a South Dakota-based company with an Odessa office, was the 594th exhibitor signed this year.

"We needed the exposure," said Enerdyne sales manager C.W. Sizemore, explaining the company's Odessa office has only been open a little over a month.

Gregory said a larger percentage of those displaying their wares this year are smaller businesses. He said he has also seen a trend by companies away from multiple booths.

Dramatic changes in the industry during the past two years — including restructuring of companies and early retirement programs — make this year's exhibition different from those in the past, Gregory said.

New faces in decision-making positions, he said, will provide a much-needed "re-acquainting" of industry players.

"I think from an exhibitor's point of view, it's not necessarily the numbers of people who come through the gate," he said. Exposure to the right customers is the key, he said.

Events open to the public include a parade beginning at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday featuring astronaut Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr., who walked on the moon during the Apollo 11 flight.

An all-you-can-eat Chuck Wagon Gang feed from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Friday will feature what is being billed as the world's largest corn chip-chili pie. Bob Howard, chairman of the pie feed, said proceeds from the $2 tickets will go to the Odessa Youth Shelter.

On Saturday at 5 p.m., there is a Chuck Wagon Gang barbecue.

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown

The fourth annual showing of the musical Whirlagig this weekend also marks the first anniversary of a second career begun by a group of Scurry County men — a career that has now broadened to include out-of-county engagements.

Snyder's "Singing Cowboys" began last year as Whirlagig music director Lynn Bethel and choreographer Myra Martin began planning the event. They asked Jerald Garner, minister of music at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, to organize a group of men to sing a medley of cowboy tunes.

"We saw that people liked it, so we decided to keep the group together for the community," Jose "Joe" Coronado explained.

Mort Ewing and Gene Cutler also believed that the community had received their music favorably. A men's chorus, they felt also, would provide an outlet for their love of music.

"We all like to sing and since we really didn't have much opportunity other than church, the group gives us an opportunity to do what we like to do. Not often can you sing cowboy songs in church," Mort added.

Of the six original members, only Joe, Mort and Gene remain. "We tried to keep people from Whirlagig," Joe said. "But several members had conflicts with jobs and distance to practice."

Word of mouth and live performances have increased the group's size to eight. As other local men heard the chorus, they asked to join. Group members also enlisted friends simply by explaining the fun and satisfaction they enjoyed through music

Bob Womack plans to join the group following this year's Whirlagig performances.

The group uses five-part harmony to produce their cowboy sound — lead, first and second tenor, baritone and bass. "We are trying to get two individuals for each part. People will sometimes switch parts, that way, if someone is missing, someone else can step right in," Joe explained.

He added that due to business obligations, every member cannot attend every scheduled performance. With at least two persons able to sing each part, no gaps are left in their harmony pattern.

Because most of the men cannot read music, parts are recorded on cassette tape separately. Group members can listen to the tapes while on the job or at home and memorize their individual sections.

"At first Jerald sang all five parts and sent them home with us. That's what we learned on," Mort noted.

For a time, the group worked also with J.D. Smith (owner of Smith's Music Place).

When business obligations forced Smith to devote less time to the group's development, several members approached Jane Womack, Western Texas College voice instructor, about coaching them.

Through her influence, college officials established a continuing education course for them early in February and all the men enrolled. They hope to continue to improve with professional training. "We would like to learn more about the theory and how things should be done," Gene said. "We would also like to learn to read music. I think that would reduce the time we now have to spend just learning new music.

"It's surprising to me that several of the fellas want to get fairly professional with the group. We would like to have a band of our own as well. But the problem is that it can get too large," he added.

Their current musical selections include cowboy songs, "soft" country hits such as those performed by Mac Davis, contemporary and traditional gospel music and patriotic pieces. "We have a few barbershop type songs we are working on too," Joe said.

Following their debut at Whirlagig, the men have been asked to perform for several local organizations and groups including a spot in "Greater Tuna" — a play performed at WTC last spring by Glenn Polk and Mike Dennis.

Recently, they have acquired two out-of-town engagements including the opening of a new restaurant in Colorado City. The highlight of their blossoming schedule, they say, will come Nov. 6 when they travel to Odessa to sing for a statewide meeting of educators and school counselors.

SINGING COWBOYS — Last year's Whirlagig propelled members of the Singing Cowboys into a musical career that has now branched out to include performances beyond Scurry County's borders. Shown during a recent Whirlagig rehearsal are (seated) Terry Bowden, Joe Coronado, (kneeling) Gene Cutler, Joe Don Jones, (standing) Jackie Greene and Malcolm Crawford. Wine made in France

PARIS (AP) — Bordeaux is one of the most popular French wines, yet many people are unaware of the province in France where the wine is produced.

It is made in Gironde, surrounding the port city of Bordeaux in southwestern France. This is the largest of the great wine areas of France.

FEATURED THIS WEEK

ENTREPRENEURS OF THE OLD WEST. By David Dary.

The first full-scaled portrait of the adventurous entrepreneurs who brought capitalism to the nineteenth-century American West: traders, trappers, wagon freighters, merchants, cattlemen, railroadmen and other profit-seekers. To take us into their working lives, David Dary uses a wide variety of historical sources — diaries, letters, official documents, reminiscences and newspaper accounts. We see how pioneer businessmen brought to the West the institutions of the East, adapted them to the conditions at hand, enlarged upon them and changed their character, evolving an interpretation of the American dream that equated success with material wealth, an interpretation that still shapes the image we hold of ourselves.

REDUCING VISIBLE AND HIDDEN FATS IN THE DIET

Consumers may associate fat with meat because it is visible, and tend to ignore the hidden fats in other types of food.

There are three types of fat in food:

—Polyunsaturated fats are liquid at room temperature. These fats tend to lower blood cholesterol. Vegetable oils, such as corn, cottonseed, safflower and soybean oil are all polyunsaturated fats.

—Monounsaturated fats seem to lower blood cholesterol, but still provide fat-based calories. Peanut butter and peanut oil, nuts, avocados and olive oil contain monounsaturated fats.

—Saturated fats are solid at room temperature and tend to raise blood cholesterol levels. Animal products, such as cheese, meat, butter and lard are a main source of saturated fats. However, vegetable products including cocoa butter, coconut oil and palm oil also contain large amounts of saturated fats.

Unless people read food ingredient labels, they are often unaware that coconut oil, palm oil and other saturated fats are frequently used in baked goods and other processed foods.

One way consumers have tried to cut back on saturated fats is to choose lean meat.

Results of a recent national study conducted by Texas A & M University showed that consumers evaluate the leanness of a cut of beef primarily by the amount of trimmable fat, or the "plate waste" fat that would be cut away and not eaten.

The degree of marbling in the meat also contributes to its fat content. Consumers may wish to select beef on that basis as well. In general, USDA "choice" grades of beef have more marbling than those labeled "good."

About 3 to 6 percent of fat from marbling is necessary for tenderness and taste appeal in beef. A 3-ounce portion of cooked lean beef has 192 calories.

Some of the leaner cuts of meat include flank steak, top sirloin steak, bottom sirloin, top loin steak, top round steak, chuck top blade steak, beef tenderloin steaks, round tip roast and bottom round roast.

Both the U.S. Dietary Guidelines and the American Heart Association Dietary Recommendations advise Americans to cut back on their consumption of fat so that it is no more than one-third of their daily calories. In addition, the Heart Association recommends reducing saturated fats to under 10% of daily calories.

Consumers need to be thinking in terms of their total fat intake. They may want to watch their intake of saturated fats from processed foods and baked goods as well as select lean meat.

Using a minimum of fats and oils and choosing to broil, bake, poach or steam foods instead of frying will also help reduce total fat consumption.

GRANDPARENT HOPEFULS PLAY WAITING GAME

The trend toward delayed childbearing among young married couples has left many of their parents anxious about becoming grandparents.

The "empty nest" feeling parents experience when children leave home may be prolonged as their adult children marry and then put off having children of their own.

The basis for "grandparent anxiety" is more than just the desire to have a baby around. This waiting game can actually interrupt a crucial transition in the aging process.

Grandchildren reassure older adults that the family will go on. Grandchildren are also taken as a sign that the adult children have settled down into secure lives.

Older parents need to look at the positive aspects of their adult children's delay in having children.

The young couple will have more time to enjoy their early years together and to build their marriage. They will also have a chance to get established financially and to fulfill career aims and personal goals.

Older couples may also find comfort in the fact that grandparenting has not gone out of style, it's just being delayed. About 90 percent of older Americans with children over 40 are grandparents.

Older grandparents are also more likely to be retired and actually have more free time to spend with their grandchildren.

In the meantime, parents need to try to provide needed social support for their adult children, so that if and when grandchildren arrive, they will enter a strong extended family.

Knot is worldwide

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The term "knot" — for nautical mile — is used worldwide to denote one's speed through water.

Today, knots are measured with electronic devices, but 200 years ago such devices were unknown.

Ingenious mariners devised a speed-measuring device called the "log line." This was a length of twine knotted at 47.33 foot intervals. At one end was fastened a large log chip which was wedge-shaped and weighted with lead.

When thrown over the stern of a ship, it would remain relatively stationary and would float. The rest of the log line was allowed to run free over the side for 28 seconds and then hauled on board. Knots which had passed over the side were counted and in this way the ship's speed was measured.

Christian Women's Club holds luncheon

Snyder Christian Women's Club celebrated its fifth anniversary Oct. 8 at their monthly luncheon. Seventy-three guests were present for the special program featuring dolls.

Betty House, program guest, presented a collection of Madam Alexander dolls ranging in price from $35 to $500.

Jane Womack presented a vocal rendition of "Hello Dolly" in keeping with the theme, and "A Perfect Heart." She was accompanied by Barbara Wilkerson.

Gail Stennis of Amarillo was the guest speaker. An attorney with five daughters, she pointed out that she has learned to base her self-worth on God's terms of acceptance rather than on having an education, being well organized, having a perfect home or a lot of money. She indicated that when we see ourselves through God's eyes, all else is temporal.

The Nov. 12 luncheon will feature a theme of "Gingerbread Fantasies." Creative Touch will share Christmas decorating ideas and Liz Neeley will provide special music.

Careers stay static

LANGHORNE, Pa. (AP) — More than half of the kids interviewed at a play park here recently declared they did not want to be president of the United States when they grow up.

What they do appear to want, according to the results of the Sesame Place Kids' Poll, is traditional careers that reflect the sexual stereotypes. For example, girls want to be nurses or teachers; boys hope to become athletes or policemen.

None of the boys surveyed said they wanted to be a nurse when they grow up and only 2 percent want to be teachers. Girls, however, did cite one traditionally male-dominated field, with 13 percent saying they would like to be a doctor or dentist.

The most common reason offered by the 55 percent who do not want to be president was that "it's too much work," while others said "it's too dangerous," "I don't like politics," and "there's no privacy."

However, given the opportunity to be president, among the kids' priorities would be to help the poor and hungry, work for peace and seek a reduction in nuclear weapons.

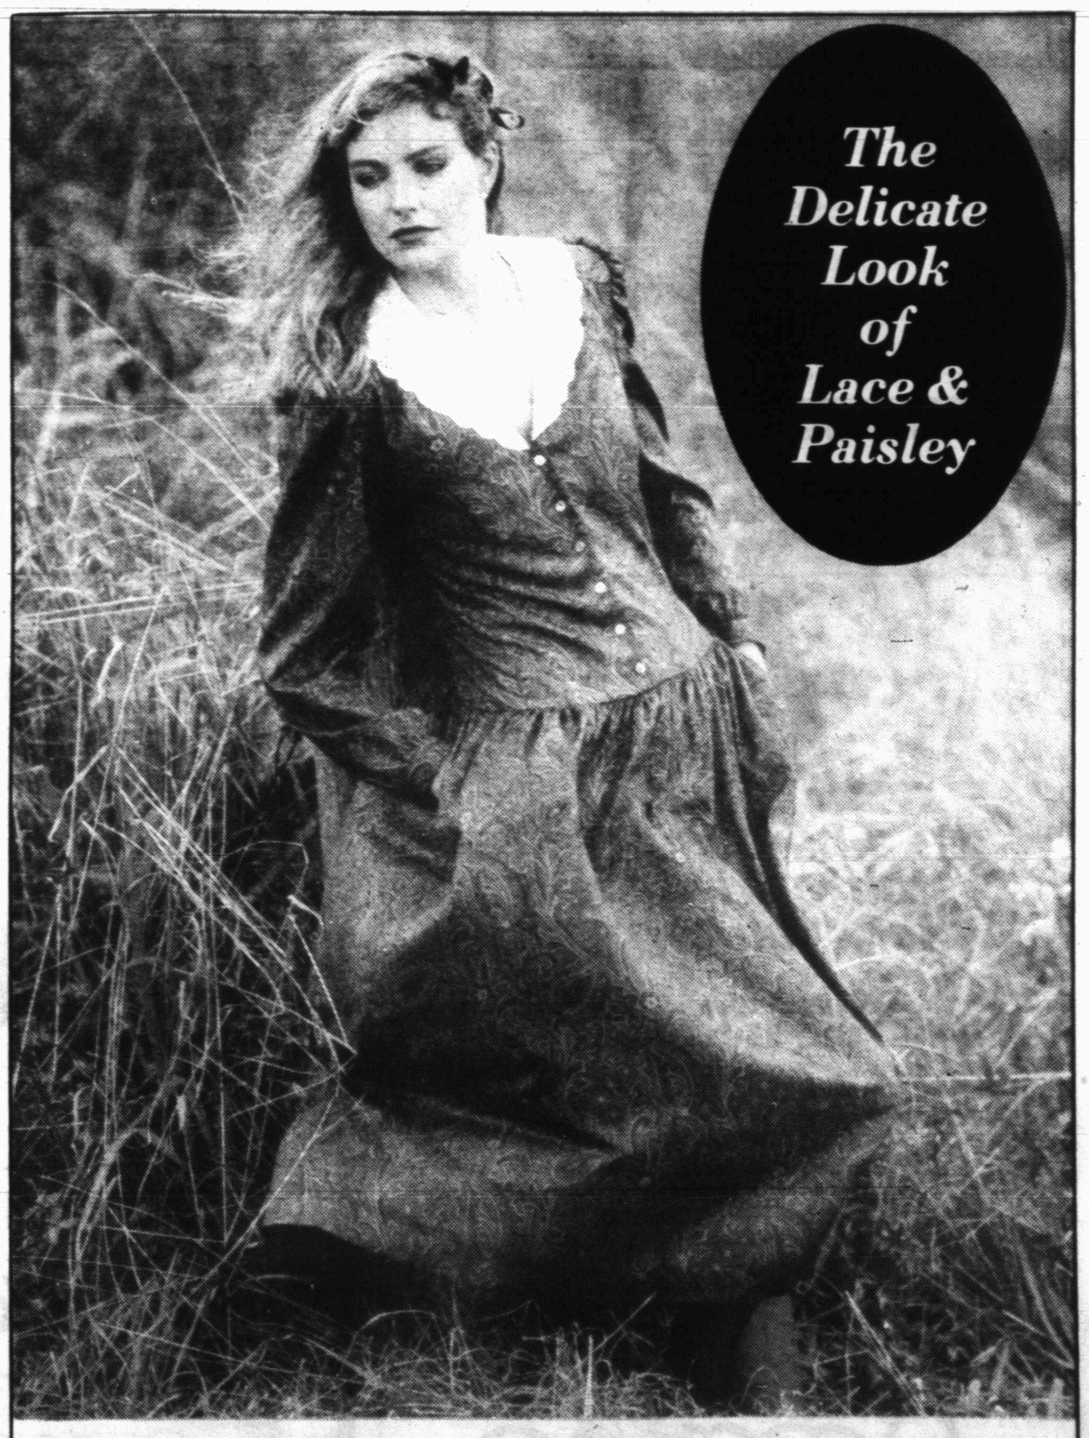

Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded May 14, 1981, in St. Peter's Square in the Vatican City. A 23-year-old Turk, Mehmet Ali Agca, was arrested in the assassination attempt.

Three players hit 600 or more home runs during their majorleague careers. Hank Aaron is the all-time leader with 755. Babe Ruth had 714 and Willie Mays connected for 660.

PRUSSIC ACID POISONING IN LIVESTOCK

Plants of the sorghum group (Johnson grass, sorghum, sudan and hybrid sudan) have a high potential for prussic acid poisoning. These plants have cyanide-containing compounds which are converted to prussic acid when the plant cells are disrupted due to drought, hail, harvesting, frost, etc. Prussic acid is liberated in the rumen, absorbed into the blood and carried to the tissues where this potent toxin interferes with oxygen utilization. If absorbed rapidly, it can cause respiratory paralysis. Early symptoms are labored breathing, frothing at the mouth, irregular pulse and staggering.

Stressed plants should be checked for prussic acid before they are grazed. When growth conditions change due to rainfall, drought, frost, etc., analysis should be conducted to head off problems. If prussic acid is detected, cattle should be removed until analysis shows the prussic acid has dropped.

A sodiumnitrite - sodium thiosulfate combination can be administered as an antidote. It must be injected intravenously very slowly. The dosage and administration are critical. The toxic principal works very rapidly, so speed of detection is important.

—1. Graze sorghum or sorghum cross plants only when they are at least 15 inches tall.

—2. Do not graze plants during and shortly after drought periods when growth is severly reduced.

—3. Do not graze wilted plants or plants with young tillers.

—4. Do not graze for two weeks after a non-killing frost.

—5. Do not graze after a killing frost until plant material is dry (toxin is usually dissipated within 48 hours.)

—6. Do not graze at night when frost is likely.

—7. Delay feeding silage and hay 4 to 6 weeks following harvest.

Suspect forage can be checked for prussic acid at the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Lab, Amarillo, Texas. About a one pound sample that is representative of the forage should be submitted through your local veterinarian.

An effective countermove

East and West defended well, but declarer South should have prevailed. After leading the diamond king, West switched to the club nine. When declarer played low from dummy, East won the king and returned a club to South's jack. Playing in a natural manner, South led to dummy's heart queen. East took the queen with his ace and played back a club. Now West's nine of hearts entered the game. If South ruffed with his heart 10, he could not be overruffed, but eventually East's heart jack would be the setting trick. If South discarded or ruffed low, West's nine would doom the contract immediately.

If the heart suit existed in a vacuum, declarer's lead up to the heart queen was absolutely right. If the queen held the trick or lost to the ace, South would later play from dummy back to his hand and insert the 10. But readers of this column know that a bridge deal is all 52 cards, not just the trump suit. The play in the club suit virtually guaranteed that declarer would be set by normal play whenever East held the trump ace. Therefore, the right play was for South to cross to dummy with a spade and lead a low heart. If East played low, declarer would put in the 10. Essentially, declarer was always going to play East for the heart jack, so very little was given up. And the advantage was that declarer protected himself from what actually happened.

What if East went up immediately with the heart ace to play back a club? South should then ruff with his heart 10 and pull trumps.

Soil and Water Conservation District election to be held

On Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Room A at the Scurry County Coliseum, a District Directors Election for Subdivision 1 and 2 of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be held. The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is composed of Borden and Scurry counties.

Subdivision number 1 is all of Scurry County lying south on U.S. Highway 180, and east of State Highway 208.

Zone number 2 is all of that portion of Scurry County lying west of State Highway 208 and south of U.S. Highway 84 to the Colorado River.

To serve as a director, a person must be a resident of Scurry or Borden County and must be 18 years of age or older.

Following the Directors Election, representatives from the Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and Soil and Water Conservation District will conduct an informal meeting to discuss the rules and regulations on the Sodbuster Law and the Conservation Compliance Law passed by Congress. We hope that this discussion will better inform the landowners and operators of Scurry and Borden County on how this legislation could affect their farming operation.

Oldest sorority was radical idea at start

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — It was a radical idea in its day, independent-thinking women starting a fraternity for women. More than a century later, though, it's considered the start of a tradition.

Kappa Alpha Theta, which proudly boasts of being "the first Greek-letter fraternity known among women," was founded in 1870 at Asbury University, now DePauw. The oldest sorority in the nation, the Thetas have grown from the four women who started the first, or "alpha," chapter to 127,000 members and 108 chapters in the United States and Canada.

"I think there's a great deal of pride just being a Theta," said Sue Supple of Indianapolis, the international president. "I'm extremely proud to be from alpha chapter."

The Theta membership includes Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas, actress Marlo Thomas, singer Amy Grant, author Kate Millett and 12,000 undergraduates. They trace their fraternity heritage to Bettie Locke Hamilton, who spurned the idea of wearing a male friend's fraternity pin if she could not belong to the group herself.

Shark eyes to aid in human eyesight

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — They are feared as killers of the sea, but sharks also can be allies in the effort to cure cataracts — a disease for which more than a half-million people annually undergo surgery.

Dr. Seymour Zigman of the University of Rochester says he has found that some shark eyes are very similar to human eyes. He has found a correlation between the pigment in the lenses of shark and human eyes and cataract formation.

Further tests of shark eye lenses may reveal the chemical basis for cataracts, and this, in turn, may lead to the restoration of sight for those with cataracts, he said.

Singing Cowboys making music their second career

Because of their decision to accept as many engagements as they can handle, group members pooled their resources to buy their own sound equipment. "We decided that we would accept invitations by any organization, no matter how small, as long as we didn't already have something scheduled at the same time," Gene explained. "We felt that we needed equipment of our own so that it would always be available."

Most of the men have some musical background — some through high school or college bands and choirs and some at church. "There is just so much talent in Scurry County," Gene said. "It's amazing the kinds that exist. For most people, it's a matter of having the time to commit to performance."

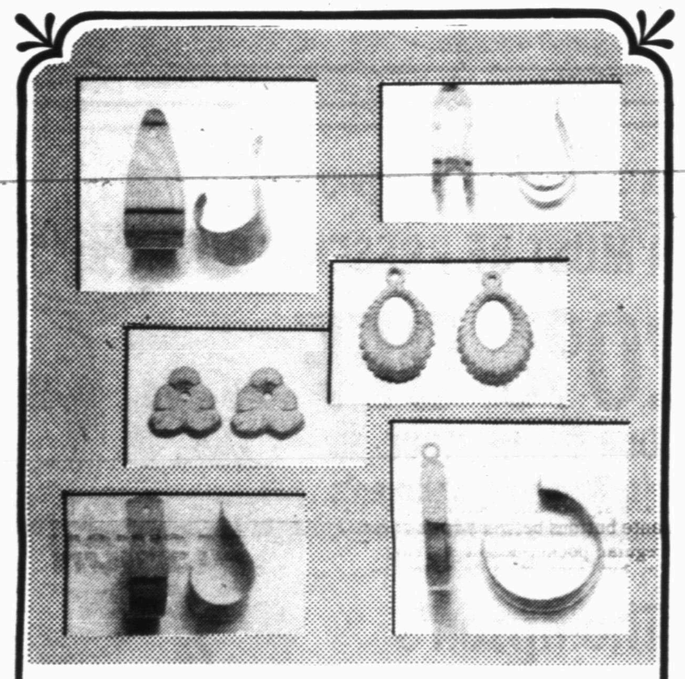

Joe, a certified public accountant and partner with the firm Yorgesen, Blakely and Coronado, played saxophone at one time, sang in church choirs and has also directed church music.

As operations manager for Dow Chemical and Cynara, Gene noted he has no formal training in music although he sang in his high school choir. He was also a member of a quartet that traveled over Texas and New Mexico during his high school and college days.

Mort, chamber of commerce manager the past four years, gained most of his musical experience singing in church and by singing with others on an informal basis. "We did mostly pickin' and grinnin' stuff. I guess I did most of the grinnin'," he laughed.

All three men plan to continue performing with the group as long as schedules permit.

"We like to have our spouses involved with us as much as possible. We like to sing for organizations and groups that allow them to come. We want this to be a community thing, not just a men's choir that forgets about everybody else," Joe remarked.

Boy Scouts join war on drugs

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The organization that once helped youngsters to "Be Prepared" now is urging them to "just say no."

More than 40,000 members of the Explorer program of the Boy Scouts of America are marching off to do battle in the war on drugs, and their weapons are persuasion and facts, said Brian D. Archimbaud, director of law enforcement Exploring.

"The whole purpose of the program is to affirm that it's good, it's OK to say 'no' to drugs," said Archimbaud. The program encourages Explorer scouts, he said, to "become role models and peer leaders to help other young people say 'no.'"

And it also encourages parents to talk to their children about the drug temptations the youngsters are sure to face.

Yvonne Roque, a 20-year-old Explorer who says she knows of eightand nine-year-olds who have experimented with drugs, believes that the battle against drugs has to begin in the primary grades.

"If we're going to prevent drug abuse in the future, we have to start out in the elementary schools," she says. "They first try inhalents, such as sniffing Liquid Paper. From there, they would usually try smoking cigarettes and that leads to marijuana. Crack and cocaine usually start in high school."

Persuasive information, not preaching, is the Explorer approach, she said.

"We are there to inform them how it can affect your body and your mind. We are just trying to inform them what the dangers of drugs are," she said.

Peer pressure often lures high school students into the drug culture, but C.T. Clark, another 20-year-old Explorer, believes the program can turn that around.

"We go in and use reverse peer pressure," he said. "We emphasize that for every kid standing on the corner saying, 'You have to use drugs or you're an outcast,' there are other kids saying, 'Hey, you're stupid!' "

His post received a lot of thank-you notes for the lectures, Clark said, with one parent saying she didn't realize her daughter had a drug problem until she attended an Explorer presentation.

"She got home, went into her daughter's bedroom, snooped around and found some drug-related items. She confronted the girl and found out she had a problem — not only was she hooked on LSD and heroin, but she was four months pregnant," he said.

The mother thought she had an open and honest relationship with her daughter, but the girl said, "I was just telling her what she wanted to hear," Clark said.

The key to enlisting parents in the battle, said Clark, is for youngsters to learn early to take their problems home to Mom and Dad.

"Raise them so when they have a problem they don't even think about going to their best friend," Clark tells parents. "They've got to go to mom and dad because they are always going to be there."

Officer Mike Gifford of the Dallas Police Department, an adviser to Southwest Patrol Division Explorer unit where Clark and Ms. Yoque are members, also emphasizes the role of parents in the drug war.

"Parents can take a big step toward eliminating the (drug) problem by talking to their kids instead of just watching TV with them," said Gifford. He suggests that parents talk each night with each child about what happened that day.

"The amount of time being spent with kids — quality time — is constantly going down," said the officer. "It's a little too late to wait until high school to say, 'Well, Johnny, talk to me.'"

Gifford's unit, or post, was one of six Explorer units around the country that conducted experimental efforts in drug abuse prevention.

The pilot programs worked so well that after two years they attracted seed capital from the U.S. Justice Deptment and the Drug Enforcement Administration. Now 40,000 law enforcement Explorers nationwide are joining the effort, coordinated from Boy Scout headquarters in Irving.

"Young people are those most affected by drug abuse and youth-to-youth programs have been found to be very effective in exercising peer pressure to alleviate teen abuse," said DEA acting administrator John C. Lawn in a guidebook printed with the help of a $3,000 government grant.

Archimbaud said the drug abuse prevention program is supported mostly by Boy Scout funds and no additional federal grants are being sought.

The big factor, he said, is the amount of time spent by the Explorers. Last year's award for the most time spent in community service — 23,000 hours — went to the 30 members of the Phoenix, Arizona, police explorer post.

Archimbaud also emphasized that the Explorers provide only information and persuasion — not detective work.

"We have a policy that precludes utilizing law enforcement Explorers in undercover activity," he said.

However, Explorers become involved in many other aspects of the career specialty they are exploring.

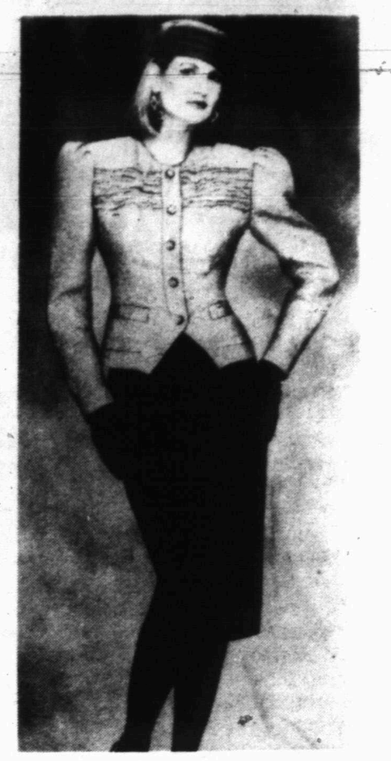

Boys and girls of high school age can get first-hand experience in more than 100 career fields, ranging from aviation to zoo managment.

Day-to-dinner suits are a hit for fall

By Florence De Santis

A beaded sweater isn't always the answer on those days when you have to go right from work to a dinner date. To solve the problem, separates designers have expanded their revival of day suits to dressier versions that can double as office and evening wear.

A favorite silhouette in dinner suits is the waist-fitted, peplum-flared jacket. Anna Sui even doubles the peplum, with one on the long slim skirt and the other on the coachman jacket, both of black rayon sateen. Most designers are content with one, often varying its detailing.

The peplum on Kathryn Conover's black rayon velvet dinner suit, with puff-top sleeves, ripples gently around the hips. Tahari's black rayon moire jacket features a pleated fish-tail peplum whose front lies close to the body. Morton Myles's entire collection makes a definite point of peplums, starting with his gold metallic silk suit accented with a dramatically flared peplum done with waistline tucks.

Myles also adds a twist to dinner clothes with hybrids he calls suit-dresses. One in gray flannel with a full skirt has a band-collared Russian-blouse top, which closes in back. Its seams curve in at the waist, then move out to shape the peplumlike hemline. Silver embroidery on the lower sleeves lends a subtly glamorous accent to the suit fabric.

Lengthen the peplum jacket until its rippling hemline creates a tunic effect over a narrow skirt, and you have another version of this look. At Chetta B., designers Peter Noviello and Sherie Bloom use military cutaway styling and double-breasted button detailing for a collarless, fitted long jacket and short, slim skirt in purple heavy wool crepe.

Cathy Hardwick likes the same silhouette single-breasted and accented with one large patch pocket in a taupe and black rayon tweed that can be jeweled for late day. Norbury & Osuna use gray glen plaid for their fitted coachman jacket with flared hem over a skirt with back ripple silhouette.

Beyond the day-to-dinner suit there's the suit look that starts at cocktail time, in dressier fabrics and details. Richard Warren likes it in two kinds of silk. He uses shocking pink cloque for the fitted top, which is jacked-styled and buttoned in diamante buttons between rows of softly irregular pocket-height shirring. The slim but easy skirt is black tissue faille.

Tracy Mills's shapely peplum suit with melon sleeves comes in emerald silk/cotton ottoman. Geoffrey Beene sharply fits and flares a peplum jacket in quilted black silk over a gleaming black lame skirt that's softly rounded over the hips.

Dinner suits this fall show variety in hem lengths, depending on the skirt silhouette used. Slim skirts usually come at knee length or slightly above, if they're really narrow like Carolina Herrera's black and white silk ottoman suit with semi-fitted, collarless jacket. Young designer David Cameron is one of those favoring above-the-knee lengths. Even though his yellow, green, blue and orange plaid wool is pleated, it just peeks out from the long, straight, quilted jacket accented in sequins.

On the other hand, a slim but trumpet-flared skirt calls for length, as in Michi's jade and charcoal jacquard suit with a loose jacket that's near ankle length. Anne Klein deliberately does everything loose and long, with an ankle-length brown velvet skirt and easy red satin jacket. Ralph Lauren also likes sporty mixes, with long skirts in printed velvet and fitted tweed jackets.

1 cup whole wheat flour
½ cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 beaten eggs
⅔ cup buttermilk
⅓ cup cooking oil
1 teaspoon vanilla

Reserve ¼ cup of the granola. In a mixing bowl combine the ¾ cup granola, whole wheat flour, all-purpose flour, baking powder and salt. In another bowl stir together eggs, buttermilk, cooking oil and vanilla. Add to flour mixture; stir just until combined. Turn batter into a greased 8 by 4 by 2-inch loaf pan. Sprinkle reserved granola over top. Bake in a 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes or until done. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf — 12 slices per loaf — ¾ths of an inch thick.

GRANOLA LOAF — Granola and wheat flour are the ingredients that make this loaf rich in fiber.

NO PAIN, NO GAIN

The "no pain, no gain" attitude that dominates many physical fitness programs leads to injuries. To prevent the injuries:
1. Do slow stretching exercises before and after vigorous exercise or sports activity.
2. Strengthen the quadriceps (thigh muscles) with special exercises - weak thigh muscles allow knee injuries.
3. Wear well-fitting shoes with flexible soles.
4. Play, run, dance, exercise, on a surface with 'give,' like grass, earth; a wood floor is better than cement.

Zaccaro arraigned: Ferraro says life has been nightmare

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro says her life has been a nightmare since she ran for vice president, but hopes her husband's bribery trial will end their two-year ordeal.

Ferraro sat in the front row of a Queens courtroom Thursday as her husband, John Zaccaro, was arraigned on bribery and grand larceny charges for allegedly demanding a payoff to influence the awarding of a cable television franchise.

Zaccaro, a wealthy real estate investor, pleaded innocent and was released on his own recognizance.

It was the latest in a series of legal troubles for the couple that began after intense scrutiny of their finances during the 1984 presidential campaign. Ferraro, a former Queens congresswoman, was the Democrats' vice presidential candidate and the first woman nominated by a major party for the post.

Since then, her husband has been penalized for borrowing money from an elderly woman's estate and had his real estate license suspended for fraudulently obtaining bank financing.

Their son, John Zaccaro Jr., has pleaded innocent to charges that he sold cocaine to an undercover police officer at Middlebury College in Vermont.

At a news conference following Zaccaro's arraignment, Ferraro said, "We're going to prove that John is innocent in this case, and maybe once and for all we're going to put an end to the '84 campaign and the nightmare we've been living for the past two years.

"If I had not run, John Zaccaro would have been John Zaccaro, real estate broker. ... He would not have been John Zaccaro, center of national attention, husband of Geraldine Ferraro, who ran for vice president," she said.

The indictment alleged that Zaccaro demanded a payoff in 1981 for introducing Richard Flynn, attorney for CableVision Systems Development Corp., to Queens Borough President Donald Manes, who committed suicide this year amid reports of corruption.

CableVision rejected the alleged deal and did not get the franchise.

If convicted of one count of bribe receiving and two counts of attempted grand larceny by extortion, Zaccaro could be sentenced to up to seven years in prison.

Economic forecast reported

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — A blue-ribbon panel of business executives forecast Friday that the U.S. economy will continue to muddle through the next two years without a recession but without much pickup in growth either.

In its semi-annual economic outlook, the Business Council expressed a general uneasiness and said "concerns about the economy abound."

"A disappointing performance in trade and lingering weakness for U.S. industries have prevented the economy from growing up to expectations," the council's report said.

The Business Council, made up of executives from 65 of the country's largest corporations, forecast economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, of 2.6 percent this year, weaker than last year's 2.7 percent performance.

The group predicted GNP growth would climb modestly to 2.9 percent in 1987 and 3.1 percent in 1988.

These forecasts are far below the expectations of the Reagan administration, which is looking for growth to top 4 percent next year.

James D. Robinson III, chairman of the American Express Co., said even the modest upturn predicted by the Business Council will not occur unless the trade deficit improves.

The United States is expected to suffer a record $170 billion trade imbalance this year, which the Business Council said was the prime reason economic growth has been depressed.

"Our technical consultants do see trade picking up at the end of this year because of the lower dollar and faster growth abroad," Robinson said Thursday night at a news briefing on the report.

"Basically, we are back where we were a year ago when we spoke of an economy that will continue to muddle through," he said. "There still is no indication of a recession, just slow growth."

In an encouraging sign for the future, Robinson said that about one-third of the companies surveyed reported that demand for their products, including export demand, has begun to improve.

As they have in the past, the executives continued to express unhappiness over the inability of Congress and the administration to lower the federal budget deficit.

Other executives said they were glad that Congress has finally resolved two years of debate over changing the tax code.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Oct. 12, 1986

Two dynamic new friends you'll be making in the year ahead will play happy roles in your social affairs. Both of them know all the right people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Should there be someone special you must get in touch with today regarding an important matter, don't wait too long or you might not be able to make the contact. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, PO Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a person well endowed with social graces, and it's imperative that you don't allow these qualities to desert you today. Be sure to properly acknowledge anyone who helps you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The busier you are today, the happier you'll be. If others haven't included you in their plans, make your own arrangements and include them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your possibilities for personal acquisition are exceptionally strong today. If there is something you've been secretly wanting, pursue it in earnest now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others may sit around wishing for things to happen today, but you have the wherewithal, if you choose to use it, to make a dream reality.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Challenging conditions bring out your ablest qualities today. Situations that intimidate others won't faze you if you meet them head-on.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvements with old friends today will serve to revitalize your enthusiasm about life in general. Camaraderie contributes to your sense of well-being.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Changes in circumstances today are likely to be of greater benefit to you personally than they will be to your associates. Don't expect them to stand up and cheer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have solutions for friends who come to you with their problems today, yet you may not be so wise when it comes to resolving your own concerns.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Ingenious procedures will enable you to easily dispatch difficult situations today, provided you let your head, not your heart dictate your mode of action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before running off to participate in your exciting plans today, check to see that you're not leaving your mate at home twiddling his or her thumbs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're looking for a worthwhile way to spend your time today, doing some preventive maintenance around the house will fill the bill. Get out your tool kit.

October 13, 1986

Several opportunities of extraordinary potential may unfold for you in the year ahead, but if they are not developed in a practical manner, you may not be able to cash in on them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your powers of observation will be extremely keen today, but don't use this gift to find faults in others. Help them overcome their shortcomings with kindness and tolerance. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, PO Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions could be such today that you might be unable to fulfill your material desires. So what? There's always the next time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You must have continuity of purpose today if you hope to gratify your ambitious aims. Don't cave in if the going starts to get a bit rough.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend of long standing may do or say something today that will displease you. If you don't make a big deal about it, it will quickly be forgotten.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A material objective can be fulfilled today, but you might not get everything you hope for. Keep your expectations within reasonable parameters.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sure you know what you want today or else you might try very hard for something only to discover, after you get it, that it really wasn't worth the effort.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Self doubts will have a negative influence on your effectiveness today. They could cause you to take half-measures instead of making a total commitment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Persons with whom you associate today are likely to be only superficially compliant. If you make any heavy demands on them, don't be surprised if they are rejected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An important collective career objective can be achieved today, provided everyone on the team is equally productive. Any dead weight will hamper all.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Assume a positive attitude toward your assignments today. If you think they're a breeze, they will be; if you think they are tough, you'll be beat before you begin.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's imperative that you keep things in proper perspective regarding financial speculations today. Don't bet a dollar in order to win a dime.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mate could be a trifle hard to please today, so you might be required to bend a little. Think of all the times he or she has done this for you.

Television not to blame for illiteracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A literacy expert, asking the nation's newspapers to pay more attention to the millions of Americans with reading problems, says it is not accurate to blame illiteracy on the popularity of television.

"People are not illiterate because they watch TV. They may watch TV because they are illiterate," said Jonathan Kozol, who presented a report on illiteracy to the newspapers industry Thursday. "Rather than condemn TV, we ought to explore the ways to use it to bring people back to print," he added.

Kozol said there is a need to examine the "myth" that television is the culprit behind the nation's reading problems.

In 1920, Oxford University passed a statute admitting women to degree courses.

Paper claims death threat letter was sent to Lockshin

MOSCOW (AP) — President Andrei Gromyko met Friday with American scientist Arnold Lockshin and his family and told them the Soviet people understand why they decided to resettle in the Soviet Union, the official Tass news agency said.

Gromyko assured the Lockshins they "are now among friends," Tass said.

A newspaper today published what it said was one of several threatening letters sent to the Lockshins before they left their home in Houston.

The daily Sovietskaya-Rossiya published a picture of an envelope addressed to Lockshin and a sheet of paper with the words: "Death to traitors, Dr. L." in letters cut from magazines.

Tass commentator Yuri Kornilov said Lockshin told him the letter was only one of the threats made against him and his family.

Lockshin, 47, who worked from 1980 until August as a cancer researcher at St. Joseph Hospital in Houston, claims he left the United States because he was persecuted for his opposition to Reagan administration policies. Tass said he and his wife and three children arrived in Moscow on Wednesday.

Tass said the meeting between Gromyko and the Lockshins at the Kremlin "passed in a warm atmosphere."

"Andrei Gromyko declared that those in the U.S.S.R. fully understand the attitudes and thoughts of the Lockshins," it said.

Tass said Lockshin told Gromyko he "disagrees with the U.S. government's home and foreign policies and he had come to the conclusion that the forces which are shaping the country's policy course do not express the interests of the American people, and serve big business alone."

It quoted Lockshin as saying he and his wife were followed and blackmailed. Lockshin also has claimed he was hounded out of his job.

The hospital has said Lockshin was fired for poor performance. The State Department has dismissed the allegations of official persecution as absurd.

Tass also reported that a Soviet woman who left 18 months ago to join her husband in the United States decided to stay in her homeland after returning on a visit.

Tass did not say when the woman, Irene Leisberg, had returned to the Soviet Union.

American stock market declines slightly on Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 4.08 to 1,792.74 by noontime on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 5 to 4 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

IBM stock, down more than 11 points in the last three sessions, recovered 1½ to 123½ in active trading today. GM was unchanged at 66⅝.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the producer price index of finished goods posted a 0.4 percent increase in September.

After Friday's session, many investors will take a three-day weekend.

SNYDER IS STILL BETTER THAN EVER!

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

"Now tell the sales lady what you want."

"You tell her, Mom."

"Allright. We'd like to look at your Halloween costumes, please. Yes, thank you, something for a seven-year-old.

"Hey! Look at this stuff! Look at this mask! His eyeball hanging out and all this blood. I want this one Mom."

"Why don't we look at the costumes first."

"And here's the werewolf. Look at those TEETH!"

"Costumes first."

"Look at this guy! What in the heck is he supposed to be?

"COSTUMES FIRST!"

"But I like the masks."

"I know. We'll come back. But first let's look at the costumes. Then we'll come back to the masks."

"Sick."

"That's enough of that. Now we're going to go look at the costumes. Here, look at this one. Oh, that's darling, a little pumpkin."

"I can't wear that..."

"But look, it has this little green collar and these little green vines hanging down. See, we can stuff it with material so it will pooch out. Oh look, it even has this little cap that's the pumpkin's lid. Oh, this is perfect."

"Sick."

"And it has orange leotards to wear under it."

"Leotards! No way. Only girls wear those dumb things."

"Well then, look at this. Now this is different. A doctor's uniform. See, it has the green top and the green pants and a surgeon's mask so people won't know who you are."

"Mom! Look over there. Count Dracula teeth."

"Come back here..."

"And fake blood! Look, you put this blood on your teeth and lips and stuff to make it look like you just bit somebody."

"Come back here and look at this costume. This you'll really like. See, it's a dragon."

"Is it Godzilla?"

"Uhhh...no, I don't think so. It says 'For Halloween, let your child be 'Puff the Magic Dragon.'"

"Sick. I want to be Godzilla and stomp on cars and shoot fire out."

"Well, couldn't you pretend it's Godzilla?"

"It doesn't even look like Godzilla. He's green with big feet. That's blue with those dumb polka dots. Sick."

"Would you PLEASE stop saying that and come back over here!!?

"Okay...okay. Stop yelling."

"Go ask your father what he thinks you should wear."

"Where is he?"

"In the front of the store. Trying on those wax lips."

"Dad, Mom wants to know..."

"Don't get me involved in this."

"Mom, Dad says..."

"Okay, okay. Let's look over here, then. Oh, here's something. A bat costume...I mean, a VAMPIRE bat costume. Here, try this on."

"Mom. It's just a black cape and a fuzzy mask. Vampires suck blood and stuff."

"We'll add the teeth."

"And the blood?"

"We'll talk."

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

sometimes your life skins its knee and you want to put a band-aid over a whole week of it.

There is a term used in football, generally when referring to the Dallas Cowboys or the Texas Aggies, called "snakebit."

Sometime during the third quarter, the team makes so many bumbles, fumbles and costly mistakes that they become "snakebit," and fork over the game on a platter at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

The resulting carnage is too painful to bear, and most fans turn off the TV then and go to bed. Even if it's 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Now, long before the current troubled economic times, the Mills family were old pros at making do and doing without. But we are beginning to feel snakebit.

Thoses of you who are misguided enough to read my column every week will remember that we returned from vacation to find our refrigerator out and the food ruined. Well, while the repairman was out, we had him fix the dishwasher too, and were just getting ready to mention the washing machine when we caught a glance at his bill. We decided to make do.

But, surprise! It was not the washing machine that conked out on us but the clothes dryer. Real kablooey time. New motor time. Needless to say, I have become reacquainted with the Joys of the Laundromat, but that's another column. Kent strung me a line the other day, but you can guess what happened. (When, exactly, IS it all right to complain about rain in West Texas?)

So I gave up on clean clothes and decided to vacuum. That's right. The thing burned up in my hands.

Okay. Let's remain calm here. There is no such thing as a jinx, is there? Or bad luck? Or being snakebit?

Not to be daunted, I made up my mind that I was going to throw caution to the winds and take my husband out for a steak one day while the kids were at school. I should have known something was amiss when it took a half-tank of gas to get to town. Not to mention the loud, embarrassing noises the Blazer was making.

The steak money turned into fuel pump money and a romantic lunch turned into a session in automotive mechanics.

The tragic thing about being snakebit is that it is contagious. That's right. Jinxes can rub off. I know this because our neighbor came out to do some farming for us. His tractor broke down so many times that I feared he would leave it where it sat and never return.

Now, I understand that Tony Dorsett is unhappy because he doesn't think that $500,000 a year is enough to pay for all his fumbles.

I'm here to tell you, Tony, that you can get snakebit for a whole lot less.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
October 5

A pay plan devised and implemented by the Snyder school district last spring is now being used as a model by other Texas districts, it was reported Sunday.

Local school officials were invited to make a presentation profiling it at the recent joint convention of TASB and TASA.

This region's representative to the just completed Silver Haired Legislature gives the session high marks, while admitting that at least one of the SHL's recommendations was "unnecessary," it was reported Sunday.

Texas' first senior legislature, made up of 116 members over the age of 60, included Delbert Downing of Snyder. He noted a resolution calling for improved benefits for teacher and state retirement recipients was "unnessary."

MONDAY
October 6

The West Texas storm system which produced up to 16 inches of rain in some areas dumped 2.17 inches in Snyder this past weekend, bringing the year's total to 25.85 inches, it was reported Monday.

In addition, Lake Thomas received 5½ inches, causing the lake's level to rise another 2 vertical feet. The lake now stands at 2,230 ft. above sea level, 13 ft. above where it was at the beginning of the summer.

A new manager for the Scurry County Coliseum was named Monday--Wes Partain, who has been serving as assistant manager the past 13 months.

Partain's appointment came following the retirement of current manager Charlie Yoast. Yoast had submitted a letter to commissioners Monday indicating he would be resigning effective Oct. 18.

Ralph Williamson, customer supervisor for the local Southwestern Bell Telephone office, won a place on the Snyder city council by a one-vote margin Saturday. The final count was 73 to 72, it was reported Monday.

He won the seat over John Johnson, 28, head of pharmacy at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Monday morning, Johnson said he saw no need for a recount and indicated he would not ask for one.

The city's insurance plan--which covers liability insurance for staffers plus disaster coverage for buildings and vehicles--was renewed by council members Monday.

Cost to the city will be an annual premium of $50,000. The plan is essentially all of the insurance the city carries and includes a $25,000 deductible for the areas covered.

Scurry County is expected to form a three-member appeal board related to the recently implemented indigent health care laws in Texas.

County commissioners and members of both the county welfare board and hospital board met with a state official with the Texas Department of Human Services Monday to discuss the impact to Scurry County of the law which went into effect Sept. 1.

A man linked to chemicals allegedly used for the manufacture of methamphetamine was indicted by a Scurry County grand jury Monday.

The jury, meeting for its regular October term, returned eight felony indictments against eight defendants.

TUESDAY
October 7

Tax bills issued by Scurry County's three school districts last year produced a collection rate of from 95 to 98 percent, but the collection of delinquent taxes in each case pushed these percentages near or above the 100 percent mark.

These facts were reported Tuesday by the entity charged with collecting these taxes, the Scurry County Appraisal District.

WEDNESDAY
October 8

The estimate for new construction in Snyder the past 12 months is the lowest recorded here during the 1980s, it was reported Wednesday.

In addition, when compared to last year, building estimates dropped to approximately one-half the value of projects completed during fiscal year 1984-85. The one-year decline in building value equaled 51 percent.

THURSDAY
October 9

The pre-trial hearing on the "voluntariness" of statements given police by capital murder defendant Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr. concluded Thursday evening with the presentation of closing arguments in 132nd District Court.

Judge Gene Dulaney took the matter "under advisement" at the conclusion of those arguments and issued no ruling. Arguments were presented by Frank Conard Jr. of Sweetwater, court-appointed defense attorney, and District Attorney Ernie Armstrong.

The hearing was an attempt by the defense to have statements given police by the defendant declared inadmissable.

Snyder school trustees Thursday asked for alternate plans for some type of wall to serve as a wind break between the main campus building at East Elementary and a four-room classroom annex.

The board was meeting at a called noon session held at the East campus.

Some type of structure was said needed by Principal Jim Erwin, who explained that the approximate 20 ft. space between the two buildings is proving a hazard for children on windy days.

The actions required at the regular October session of the Snyder school board meeting were relatively few with trustees voting to approve a waiver for the one teacher per 22 student rule; adopt new school policies; and accept bids for a new washer-extractor for the athletic department.

In addition, the board presented a certificate of appreciation to the former head of the Snyder Soccer Association, Gerald Corkran.

FRIDAY
October 10

Police detectives have arrested a 22-year-old man in connection with the recent series of purse thefts from vehicles here, it was reported Friday.

Held in the Scurry County Jail on nine counts of felony burglary of a vehicle is J. Elston Jones of 2905 Ave. X. He was arrested late Thursday night

Investigators allege that he has been connected with some 16 burglary or theft cases, the earliest dating back to last April.

To the editor,

The carriers of the Snyder Daily News would like to ask the parents of school kids and preschoolers to please tell their children not to pick up the papers from other people's yards.

They don't realize the problems this causes--to the carriers and the subscribers.

People pay for and expect their papers in the afternoon. If it is gone when they arrive home from work, they have to wait until 6:30 p.m. for their carrier to bring them another paper, or go buy another one.

We would greatly appreciate your help.

LTV Corp. to sell tickets to Cowboys-and Mavericks

DALLAS (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has given LTV Corp. permission to sell 70 Dallas cowboy season tickets and 12 Dallas Mavericks season tickets for $293,000.

Approval of the sale was required because LTV filed earlier this year for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankrupcy code.

LTV attorneys argued Thursday that it required hasty approval of the sale to take advantage of pressing market conditions.

It's time for the annual clash between the Cowboys and the Washington Redskins, one of the National Football League's premier grudge battles. The game is to be played Sunday at Texas Stadium and tickets for the soldout contest are hot items in the Dallas area.

"The Cowboys are currrently 3-2 and are fighting the Redskins for first place," LTV lawyer Cindy Tzerman told Judge Burton Lifland Thursday. "The Redskins are 5-0 and are playing in Dallas this weekend so LTV would like to sell the tickets today."

The sale also includes parking passes for both football and basketball along with revenue bonds that assure the owners the right of first refusal for future season tickets.

The Cowboys bond, which are worth $300 each in 2008, are more valuable because of their seat guarantees than their face value.

The federal court approved the sale of the tickets and bonds to First Dallas Co., a local investment firm.

LTV Corp. is expected to seek approval for the sale of a 15-yard-line sky box at Texas Stadium.

Sources have told the Dallas Times Herald that the LTV skybox will sell for more than $300,000, but the sale must still be approved by the federal bankruptcy court.

Man enjoys walking around world

CHICAGO (AP) — A man who's walking across the world is telling people he's just like Charles Kuralt — without the motor home.

Like CBS newsman Kuralt, Steve Newman has been on the road talking to people. Only Newman, 32, has been walking the road, and he says he has trekked more than 19,000 miles.

Four years ago, the former newspaper reporter left his hometown of Bethel, Ohio, for a walk. Next April, he hopes to become the first person to complete a round-the-world journey on his own.

"I want people to realize that adventure is still possible by an individual," said Newman, who has taken a few days off from walking to appear at the National Sporting Goods Association International Convention and Show at Chicago's McCormick Place.

Newman's walking route took him east across the United States, and from Ireland through Europe, parts of Africa.

DENNIS THE MENACE

GOP, Democrats expecting to hold ground on Nov. 4

DALLAS (AP) — A wide-open race in a sprawling West Texas district, two freshmen Republicans considered vulnerable and three Democrats portrayed as out of touch with their constituents highlight the November congressional ballot.

Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle predicts all of his party's incumbents will win re-election in the Nov. 4 election.

And Kelly Johnston, regional field manager for the National Republican Congressional Committee, makes the same forecast and goes a step further — he predicts a victory in the district that Republican Tom Loeffler abandoned to make an unsuccessful run for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Slagle said Democrats have a good chance of unseating Reps. Mac Sweeney of Wharton and Joe Barton of Ennis.

Meanwhile, a trio of Democratic incumbents — John Bryant of Dallas, Jake Pickle of Austin and Ron Coleman of El Paso — have been targeted by the Republicans as being too liberal for the voters in their districts.

With Ronald Reagan at the top of the ticket in 1984, Republicans won four districts that had been Democratic. They also held onto two open GOP seats, raising their share of the 27-member delegation from four to an unprecedented 10 members.

Considered up for grabs is the 21st district seat that Loeffler left, in a race that pits Pete Snelson, a longtime Democratic state senator from Midland, against former Bexar County Commissioner Lamar Smith.

The huge district, which stretches from San Antonio to the Big Bend, traditionally has been represented by a West Texan, but the corner comprised by Bexar County has a disproportionate number of the voters.

Slagle isn't as quick as Johnston to predict victory in the 21st.

"Snelson is extremely popular," Slagle said. "He will probably carry Midland where he is well-known, and will extend down into sheep and goat country. The question is whether Bexar County will negate Snelson's popularity in rural areas."

Sweeney, who defeated Democratic incumbent Bill Patman of Ganado in 1984, has been accused by members of his congressional staff of insisting that they work on his re-election campaign.

However, Democrats were unable to recruit a "name" candidate to run against him, settling for attorney Greg Laughlin of West Columbia.

"I would say that Mac has a tough race. But he's done an outstanding job. All the garbage they threw at him this summer, according to our polling, didn't change anyone's mind," Johnston said.

Laughlin has criticized Sweeney for "waffling" on the issue of the oil import tax, and is basing his campaign on the issue of fair trade.

"That's the impact in this district — the loss of jobs and the potential loss of more jobs," he said.

In the 6th district, Barton faces Fort Worth lawyer Pete Geren, former state director for Democratic U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. The district, which ranges from Houston to Dallas, was represented by Democrats until Phil Gramm switched parties in 1983 and won a special election as a Republican.

The GOP is targeting three incumbent Democrats as being too liberal.

Mesquite attorney Tom Carter is running against incumbent John Bryant in east Dallas' 5th district.

In the 10th district, former Austin Mayor Carole Keeton Rylander, who switched to the GOP to run for Congress, is challenging Democrat Jake Pickle, first elected in 1963 to the seat that Lyndon Johnson once held. Ms. Rylander is hoping for support from a rising number of Republicans in Travis County.

And in El Paso's 16th district, incumbent Democrat Ron Coleman is being challenged by accountant Roy Gillia.

"I think we stand an excellent chance in the 5th, 10th and 16th. Between those three, I think we are going to get one," Johnston said.

But Bryant, who is seeking his third term, said the Republicans do not understand the political leanings of his district.

"The Republicans have the erroneous notion that everybody who buys a house is a Republican," he said. "We have a lot of growth in our area, a lot of which is middle-class folks buying new houses."

In 1963, the United States proposed a "hot line" communication system between Washington and Moscow in an effort to prevent war.

X-rays' effects are cumulative

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — If one has unwittingly, or of necessity, received large or excessive doses of X-rays, is there a way to reduce the future impact?

DEAR READER — No, there isn't. However, such a person should be checked periodically to make sure that the excessive radiation hasn't caused damage to reproductive tissue, bone marrow or other organs. In addition, I would suggest that future X-ray doses be minimized because, in some respects, X-ray dosage appears to be cumulative.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been bothered by boils in my pubic area for three years. They develop in the same place every two weeks, then drain and go away, but the spot feels hard under the skin. I'm a very clean person and have tried different soaps. My gynecologist prescribed an antibiotic, which didn't work. Do you know of anything that could help?

DEAR READER — You could have chronic follicultis — recurring infections within the same group of hair follicles. Surgery may be necessary to remove the inflamed portions so that they won't continue to break out.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My face and right leg are numb, and my hands get numb and tingly. What could be wrong? The neurologist says he doesn't know.

DEAR READER — Numbness usually indicates malfunction of the nerves of sensation. Although neurological diseases can cause this symptom, so can circulatory difficulties. I recommend that you make an appointment with an internist (a doctor who specializes in diagnosing medical illnesses). You may need blood tests and other laboratory investigation.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a 63-year-old male. Several years ago, my doctor prescribed Tagamet for an overacid stomach condition. After about two months I noticed breast enlargement, so I quit taking it. My medical book lists that as one of the side effects. Can this condition be reversed?

DEAR READER — The gynecomastia (breast enlargement) in people who take Tagamet is rare. The condition usually will disappear within a few weeks after stopping the medicine. If your breasts remain full or tender after a couple of months, see a general doctor for further evaluation.

Dealing with haughty healers

A young out-of-town patient recently described to me her experiences in the emergency room of a large urban hospital. She did not know any doctors in the city when she was struck by an attack of chest pain. Therefore, properly believing that she needed immediate medical attention, she zipped over to the closest emergency room.

After a seemingly interminable wait, she was questioned and examined by a harassed and youthful doctor "with white sidewalls." ("It was his hairstyle," she explained, "the way his hair was clipped above his ears. I thought he was in the military.") The doctor ordered a blood test, chest X-ray and electrocardiogram. After analyzing the data, he came to her and reported: "There's nothing wrong. You can go home."

"Wait a minute!" she protested. "I have sharp pains that are worse when I take a deep breath."

"I know," he replied, "but there's nothing wrong."

"Well, I hurt. There must be something wrong."

He became irritated. "Look," he exploded, "the tests are normal. What do you want me to do?"

She was satisfactorily intimidated. Clutching a tranquilizer prescription, she left the hospital. The pills didn't help.

In reflecting on this verbal transaction, I concluded that the "white-walled" doctor was probably tired, frustrated and overworked. He didn't know what to do next, so he chose the easiest option: Send the patient home without a diagnosis.

I think that he could have chosen a more appropriate course of action. However, he compounded his error. His final question raked her deck with grapeshot. Not satisfied to admit he was puzzled and let it go at that, he had to fire a closing barrage that removed blame from him and anchored it securely to the patient. Had the woman with chest pain been a bit more confident and feisty, she might have won the battle with a final salvo, such as: "What do I want you to do? Find out what's wrong and fix it, dummy!"

I wonder if physicians' perspectives have warped to the point where we really have to ask what patients want. The whole issue seems quite basic to me. The doctors I know don't have to ask rhetorical questions. They recognize that patients want to be cured without having to deal with a supercilious healer. Why isn't this message getting through to our younger colleagues?

By the time the young lady got to me, her pain had improved. An examination and tests were again normal. I couldn't identify the cause of her discomfort any more than the emergency-room doctor could. She seemed to me to have a chest-muscle spasm, so I gave her a muscle relaxant and made sure she understood that a third or fourth opinion would be necessary if she didn't recover in a few days.

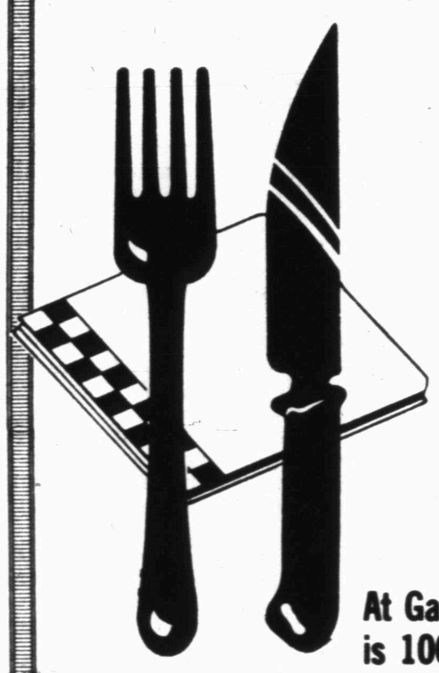

This is a ticklish situation. We doctors don't want to lose patients because we may appear inept. A medical wag once suggested that the best doctor is the one who a patient sees last. None of us has all the answers all the time, however, not every patient needs to escalate to the department chairman of a teaching hospital. For many of us primary-care physicians in the trenches, diagnoses are sometimes elusive. We do the best we can with what we have. If we get stuck trying to find solutions, I believe we owe our patients forthright answers and the courtesy of a referral for other medical opinions.

The doctor who asks, "What do you want me to do?" is raising an open-ended question that begs a variety of responses, most of which the physician may not want to hear. He may wish he had never asked it when confronted by an imaginative patient.

If you're ever in a situation like the one I described and you have your wits about you, smile at the doctor, count to 10 and tell him off. See what happens. His reactions may tell you a lot.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

AIDS vaccine to be tested

HOUSTON (AP) — A potential AIDS vaccine will be tested on humans for the first time early next year at the newly created Institute for Immunological Disorders in Houston, pending the drug's approval by the federal government, officials said.

The institute is planning an initial trial using about 40 high-risk people who show no previous exposure to the AIDS virus, hospital spokeswoman Lynne Walters announced Thursday.

Those at high risk for acquired immune deficiency syndrome include homosexual and bisexual men and intravenous drug abusers, she said.

Viral Technologies Inc. of Washington will provide the vaccine for the study after it receives a permit from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Recent studies on rabbits showed the prototype vaccine was able to generate antibodies that could in a test tube neutralize the AIDS virus and block its replication. Additional studies are being performed on monkeys.

Edward Jenner performed the first successful vaccination in 1796.

Captive says rebel supply flights coordinated by CIA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Captured American Eugene Hasenfus, contradicting U.S. authorities, said the Contra rebel supply flight shot down by Sandinista forces in Nicaragua was coordinated by CIA agents.

The U.S. Embassy, meanwhile, criticized as "ghoulish" the way Nicaragua handed over the bodies of two Americans killed in the plane's crash.

The 45-year-old Hasenfus of Marinette, Wis., who was captured by Sandinista soldiers after bailing out of the C-123 transport, said in a news conference Thursday that he had been on 10 such arms drops: four that left from Aguacate air base in Honduras and six from Ilopango air base in El Salvador.

Both Honduras and El Salvador are staunch U.S. allies.

President Reagan and other American authorities have denied any connection between the downed supply flight and the U.S. government, which said Hasenfus told his story under duress.

Nicaraguan authorities on Thursday handed over to the U.S. Embassy the bodies of two Americans killed when the plane was downed by a surface-to-air missile Sunday.

A U.S. official, who commented on condition of anonymity, said the Nicaraguan government and the embassy had agreed that the bodies would be delivered through the embassy gates by truck.

Instead, the truck parked half a block away and the gray wooden coffins were carried to the gate. The coffins remained on the ground outside the closed gates for about five minutes before Nicaraguan employees of the embassy carried them inside.

"Their behavior showed an unwillingness to provide even a sense of decency," the official said.

A statement by the embassy said it "abhors the ghoulish behavior which characterized the Sandinista government's return of the remains of the two Americans this afternoon."

Nicaraguan officials have said Hasenfus faces up to 30 years in prison, but have not yet filed charges against him.

The embassy also protested its lack of consular access to Hasenfus.

Manuel Espinoza, spokesman for President Daniel Ortega, said Wednesday that Hasenfus would be allowed consular visits, but did not say when.

Nicaragua says pilot William J. Cooper and co-pilot Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr. were killed when the plane crashed. A third victim has not been identified, but is believed to be American.

The embassy at first refused to allow Nicaraguan newsmen and reporters from the Soviet news agency Tass and the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina into the news conference. It was opened to all after reporters for several major American and British news organizations boycotted in protest.

Hasenfus said he was employed by Corporate Air Services, which has the same Miami address as Southern Air Transport, formerly owned by the CIA. He said the company had 24 to 26 people in El Salvador.

"We would be flying into Honduras to an air base called Aguacate and we would be loading up on small arms and ammunition and this would be flown to Nicaragua," he said in the news conference. "These we would drop to the Contras."

He said the company personnel "consisted of flight crews, maintenance crews, drivers and there were two Cuban nationalized Americans that worked for the CIA that did most of the coordinating of these flights and overseeing all of our housing projects, transportation projects, also refueling and some flight plans."

Dear Abby

Older Virgin Feels Lost In Her Search for Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am writing because I would like to know if you think that a 29-year-old female virgin is necessarily a freak. I've always felt that sex and love go together, but I've never been in love, nor have I ever had sex. Getting close to someone has always been a problem for me and I'm working on this in therapy, but I feel like a misfit.

Although I am a successful physician, this problem really shakes my self-confidence. I put on a good facade, but I don't feel like an adult, and I am afraid my colleagues and patients can see through me.

It would take only one night to solve my problem, but the idea of forcing myself to have sex with someone breaks my heart, and I'm not sure I could go through with it.

I'm trying to keep up my courage, but it's an endless cycle of feeling different, getting more withdrawn and feeling more different than ever. I cry when I see happy couples in the park or a baby in a TV commercial.

Are there others out there like me? Please don't use my name, just sign me "A Freak" or ...

LAST VIRGIN IN AMERICA

DEAR LAST: I think being a virgin because you've never been in love is something to be proud of. You are in therapy, which is where you belong in order to find out why "getting close" has always been a problem for you.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently playing cards at the home of a new friend when her preteen children came home from school. She called them into the room and introduced them this way: "I'd like you to meet my son, Andrew. And this is my stepson, Johnny."

I felt a little sorry for the stepson. Might it not have been kinder to have introduced them both as "sons"?

I was reminded of a relative who always made it a point to tell people on first meeting that Sharon and Natalie were her whole sisters, but Jennifer was her half-sister.

I had another relative who, believe it or not, would say in the presence of her children, "Tommy is our own child, but Jimmy is adopted."

I hope this makes your column. Some folks may need to see this in print.

BIRMINGHAM

DEAR BIRMINGHAM: In making casual introductions, any mention of "step," "half," "own" or "adopted" strikes me as insensitive and uncalled for. Should a closer friendship develop, the specific relationship will probably be disclosed in due time. But until or unless it does, I think to make a point of it is both tasteless and inappropriate.

DEAR ABBY: I have two big problems: two enormous breasts. They make me miserable. Many girls say they wish they had big ones, but I would do anything to get rid of mine. I can't find any clothes that fit me right. And I have to put up with people's smart cracks and jokes until I am sick of them. A lot of times I laugh with them and pretend I don't care, but inside it kills me.

There is no way I could afford an operation, and I'm pretty sure my insurance won't cover that kind of an operation. Do you have any suggestions on what I could do, or do I have to live with these gigantic jugs the rest of my life?

TOP-HEAVY IN N.C.

DEAR TOP-HEAVY: "Pretty sure" isn't sure enough. Breast reduction surgery is considered essential for health reasons by many insurance companies. Check your policy and explain your miserable situation to your insurance agent. Oversized breasts can cause severe backaches, not to mention mental stress and humiliation. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: What historical salt wrote: "Oh, Lord, please make me pure, but not yet"?

C.J. IN NEW YORK

DEAR C.J.: I think you're referring to St. Augustine (A.D. 354-430). The quote is from "The Confessions of St. Augustine," Book VIII, Chapter 7: "Give me chastity and continence, but do not give it yet."

Joan Rivers 'Late Show' opens on television

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Bitch is Back," Joan Rivers sang, and you might have thought she had gone all the way back to "The Tonight Show."

The very first sound emanating from Fox Broadcasting Co.'s "The Late Show Starring Joan Rivers" on Thursday was a hardy "Hey-oooooh" in the Ed McMahon tradition, and the set featured a desk, chair and sofa in front of a phony window, just like that other show.

Miss Rivers, wearing a black sequined something or other and clapping her hands stiff-armed like a seal, seemed to shed a few tears as she basked in the yips and yowls of her frantic audience.

"I have a whole monologue, which you won't hear," Miss Rivers said when the audience began to tire. "It's been five months, and so much has been written, and I'm so, so happy to be here, and I thank you all so much."

More yips and yowls, delirious applause and kisses from the host for a few people in the front row, and "The Late Show" staggered to its first commercial break.

"The Late Show" is the first offering from the new Fox Broadcasting Co. network, which built a new studio for Miss Rivers in Los Angeles and lined up six of its own stations and 93 affiliates to carry the first show.

That's less than half as many stations as carry NBC's "Tonight Show," where Miss Rivers had been permanent guest host until taking her risky and highly publicized leap to Fox.

John Roland, the news anchor for Fox's New York station, had set the hyperventilating tone for his viewers by saying that Joan Rivers would shortly "make history" as the first woman to be permanent host of a late-night talk show.

That's not history, that's trivia, and here are a few more for your files:

First joke — Miss Rivers introduced a woman in the band as the author of a new book, "The Joy of Sax."

First guest — rock musician David Lee Roth.

First dull guest — rock musician David Lee Roth.

First clip — rock musician David Lee Roth.

First low point — referring to a Boston station which refused to carry her show, the host held up her hand and said, "Pick a finger, WXNE." WXNE will carry the show in December as soon as Fox takes over from the current owner, the Christian Broadcasting Network.

First high point — Miss Rivers joining flamboyant rock pianist Elton John in singing "The Bitch is Back," the first sign of anyone having any sense of humor and proportion about the show.

Johnny Carson, who had maintained a pained public silence about Miss Rivers' defection, referred obliquely to his new rival in his monologue Thursday.

"There are a lot of big confrontations this week," Carson said as his audience giggled expectantly. "Reagan and Gorbachev, the Mets versus the Astros, and me versus 'The Honeymooners' lost episodes."

Opening night hardly counts as an indicator of what the show will become. Succeeding nights will bring monologues, even duller guests and audiences which don't require leashes, but there are already disturbing signs that the show will be a lot less hip than intended.

Groups protest show

DALLAS (AP) — Local and national Arab-American groups have asked State Fair of Texas officials to cancel a planned appearance at the fair by a professional wrestler known as "Abdullah the Butcher."

State fair officials said Thursday they will neither cancel the fair's Cotton Bowl Wrestling Spectacular nor bar the wrestler from appearing.

The furor started Monday when a resident of suburban Richardson wrote in a letter to the Dallas Times Herald that the depiction of an Arab as an object of wrath and hate for wrestling fans is "a despicable racist practice that can foster hatred and contempt toward the Arab-American Community."

Representatives of the Araban-American Society of suburban Irving wrote State Fair Manager Wayne Gallagher, Texas Gov. Mark White and Dallas Mayor Starke Taylor and other local officials demanding that the appearance be cancelled.

Faris Bouhafa, spokesman for the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee in Washington, said his group became involved in the protest after receiving telephone calls from people in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

"What you have a clearly Arabic name associated with the word butcher, which is basically your average negative ethnic stereotype," Bouhafa said.

The man known as "Abdullah the Butcher," a 400-pound wrestler, claims to be a native of the Sudan, but wrestling insiders say he may be from Canada, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The wrestler and his manager were not available for comment Thursday.

Nancy Wiley, a spokeswoman for the fair, said officials do not consider the protest a serious matter because other wrestlers scheduled to appear Sunday include performers with names such as "Crusher Yrkov, the Dingo Warrior, Mad Dog, Maniac and Bruiser."

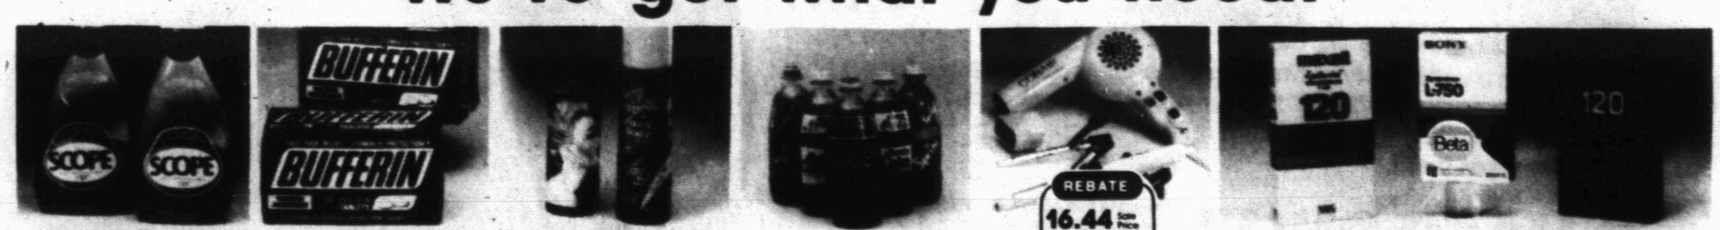

"I think someone is making something out of this that not only was not intended but is no more of a slur on people of Arabian descent than any of these others would be," Wiley said. "They're just names, which may or may not be the names of these (wrestlers)."

George Scott, coordinator of the wrestling show, said previous matches involving the wrestler have not prompted complaints.

"I don't think they (the wrestler and his manager) even claim he's an Arab," Scott said.
