U.S., Soviets express arms control desires

Pravda calls for 'strict observance'

Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Communist Party daily Pravda said today that arms control accords are possible only through "strict observance" by the United States of the agreement recently reached by the superpowers in Geneva.

In an article entitled, "Geneva and Afterwards," the newspaper reiterated the Soviet view that the meeting between Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Secretary of State George P. Shultz last week was a "very important but only initial step" along a long road to arms control accords.

"This is but a step compared to the immense tasks which are to be addressed in the course of negotiations and achieved through agreed solutions," analyst Tomas Kolesnichenko wrote.

"With this end in view, it is essential already during preparation for the forthcoming talks and in the course of the talks to keep the constructive, realistic approach by which the Soviet-U.S. meeting was marked.

"Only strict observance during the forthcoming talks of the reached accords in all its components can ensure real headway," he said.

Kolesnichenko complained about statements made last weekend by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger that the United States will continue research on the so-called "Star Wars" space weapons program, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

He also charged that Washington "intends to twist the allies' arms" and coerce NATO countries into cooperating in the research.

The article ran alongside a terse one-sentence announcement that Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, the unsuccessful candidate for last year's Democratic presidential nomination, arrived in Moscow on Wednesday.

Ronald Reagan, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, and ambassadors Paul Nitze and Edward Rowney.

Reagan wants more than 'paper'

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying he wants more than a "piece of paper" from new arms talks with the Soviets, is calling for a verifiable agreement guaranteeing deep cuts in the nuclear arsenals of both superpowers.

Reagan cautioned his senior arms control advisers Wednesday that they should have "no euphoria" about the U.S.-Soviet decision to resume negotiations that lapsed more than a year ago.

In a 20-minute meeting with members of the delegation that returned from Geneva with the promise of renewed U.S.-Soviet arms talks, Reagan said, "We can't rest on our laurels. This is the beginning of a process."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, who quoted Reagan's comments for the benefit of reporters, said the president told the group that although the United States wants an arms agreement, "if it isn't a good agreement, if it won't work, we just don't seek a piece of paper."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who led the U.S. delegation, said the negotiators were able to nail down an agreement and "get what we wanted in Geneva" because of their advance preparations and Reagan's instructions, Speakes said.

"We did not have to come back and ask for additional guidance," Speakes quoted Shultz as saying. "We knew as a negotiator that we were free to walk away from the table if we didn't get what we wanted."

Reagan met with the arms control advisers to congratulate them on their success in Geneva and to encourage them to continue working hard.

'Assault on dependency' urged

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Scholars from America's major think tanks recommended to President Reagan Wednesday he lead "an assault on welfare dependency" and gradually phase in a private-sector alternative to the government-run Social Security System.

Both suggestions were made as part of a report that emphasized "encouraging individuals to look after themselves."

A team of conservative as well as liberal scholars told the President at a White House meeting that the need for "pervasive" federal involvement in the welfare system has lessened.

The 14-member "Committee on the Next Agenda" also proposed that the government turn over the federal unemployment insurance system to private companies, "with some minimum and mandatory coverage requirement."

The 72-page report also suggested that the President devote his second term to "restructuring the tax system — not the federal deficits — the prime focus of fiscal policy."

It further called on Reagan to expand the "free market" by limiting government regulation of business and proposed that simple legal problems "which are reserved for the exclusive attention of lawyers" be handled by other professionals such as bankers, realtors and paralegals.

The study group claimed health care costs can be reduced by stressing preventive care and urged that the tax system be changed to become more "neutral" and simple.

with increases in personal income tax exemptions.

On foreign affairs, the report suggested the U.S. extend its support of Central America and in military matters the group urged continuing research on Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly called Star Wars. The report says exploring the feasibility of developing non-nuclear weapons capable of destroying enemy missiles before they hit their targets "can contribute to arms reduction and should be pursued."

Judge rules against drillers in gas dispute

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Independent oil drillers who tapped into a natural gas field illegally diverted billions of cubic feet from interstate commerce and federal pricing, an administrative law judge has ruled.

Dorchester Gas Producing Corp. had taken the case to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission complaining that 37 independent oil companies tapped into the company's gas reserves on a 20,000-acre Panhandle field in Carson and Gray counties.

Dorchester said the drillers removed 8.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas that was to be sold in federally controlled interstate markets.

Judge Brenda Murray listened to weeks of testimony in the case last summer and issued a ruling Wednesday afternoon.

Two of the 37 oil drillers — Meyer Farms and J.B. Watkins — were dropped from the case due to lack of evidence, but the judge recommended that the commission seek additional information on their cases.

"Apparently it is an unfavorable ruling for all but those two," said Charles Moore, a former FERC counsel now practicing law in Houston and representing the oil drillers. Moore said he had not read the 47-page ruling and could not comment in detail.

But, he said, "Her (the judge's) decision is simply a recommendation. The next step is to see what the commission wants to do with it. The ball's in their court."

John L. Dannelly, Dorchester's vice president in Amarillo, declined comment Wednesday night because he hadn't seen the judge's order.

But Jim Whitlock, an independent oilman from Amarillo who isn't directly involved in the case, said the decision would hurt independent drillers if it stands.

"It's going to really hurt the economy of the Panhandle," he told the Amarillo Globe-News, adding that he expects Pampa and Borger to be especially hard hit.

Dorchester owns gas rights on the field and the 37 energy companies had oil-drilling rights.

The oil companies admitted they were bringing up gas, but contended it was "casinghead gas," a normal byproduct of oil drilling that is not subject to federal regulation.

"FERC Administrative Law Judge Brenda P. Murray said expert evidence left no doubt that most of the companies' gas production was not casinghead gas," said a FERC news release accompanying the ruling.

The gas that was not casinghead gas was subject to federal price controls, and by selling it for higher prices in unregulated markets, the oil drillers violated federal rules, the judge found.

Moore has said that the case could eventually affect billions of dollars worth of gas if the agency rules for Dorchester and broadens the ruling to apply to other similar cases.

FERC staff members, taking Dorchester's side, have called the case the "tip of the iceberg."

Tax plan termed 'disaster'

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

The proposed tax reform bill of the Reagan administration would be a national disaster, said ARCO Chairman Robert O. Anderson at a petroleum function at the Plaza Club in Midland Wednesday.

Speaking on behalf of the Independent Producers Association of New Mexico, the Roswell, N.M., resident had an assortment of positive and negative observations for the gathering of independent oilmen.

On a positive note he said he didn't think the proposed tax bill, which would eliminate percentage depletion and intangible drilling costs, would go anywhere, but that the industry had better be prepared to fight it with everything it had.

Said Anderson, "Someone has estimated the bill will cause a 25-percent reduction in drilling. I think that estimate is very optimistic. I don't think we can run an industrialized society with a crippled energy industry."

The only major oil company chairman to have come from the independent ranks, Anderson has long been a supporter of improved dialogue between the independent and major sectors of the industry.

DPT vaccine in short supply in Midland

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

A severe shortage of supplies for infant and preschool immunizations nationwide has hit Midland, leaving area physicians and health facilities with little or no diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus vaccine.

"We have been having a problem for the last three months," said Lois Preston, a registered nurse who works for Dr. Carolyn Rhode. "When we went to order the last time, there was nothing."

"Everybody is having the problem," she said. "We have people waiting in line to get the shots."

While most area physicians are out of the DPT vaccine, the Midland Health Department reported a limited supply in stock.

"We were alerted last summer by the Texas Department of Health that a shortage might occur," said Erin Wall, a nursing supervisor. "Another report in September advised us on what to do to save what supplies we had in hand."

The Texas Department of Health furnishes municipal health clinics with medical supplies and receives regular communications from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, the organization behind the alert, she said.

Measures are being taken, said Ms. Wall, to make the current supplies last. Normally, she said, the shots, which give protection for diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus (lockjaw), are administered at the ages of 2, 4 and 6 months. Additional booster shots are then given at 18 months and between ages 4 and 6 years.

"We are now giving the primary series to the infants only," she said. "We are giving them at two, four and six months until greater supplies are available."

Those shots are sufficient to provide protection for the child, Ms. Wall said.

"The first three shots provide 70 to 90 percent protection for pertussis and more than 90 percent for tetanus and diphtheria."

The Texas Department of Health said those who are not getting the additional booster shots are not at a risk," she said. "They think that they could well wait until after the crisis."

The shortage is expected to last until next fall, according to reports from the Health Department. However, the manufacturer of the vaccine is not so certain.

"It takes six months to make one batch," said Bonnie Gwinn, a spokeswoman for Lederley Laboratories in Dallas, the nation's only producer of the immunizing agent. "We have absolutely no idea how much we will have or when. We will just start shipping against back orders."

Proverbial 'dog's life' really a mixed breed

By MARY MACVEAN

It's not all burying bones and boisterous barking for man's best friend. In separate incidents, police are accused of shooting a dozen puppies while children watched, officers have been warned not to dump live dogs in a landfill and a dog is on trial in the death of its owner's mother.

But in Florida, a bow-wow beach may become a haven for sun-loving pooches, and the love of a roaming retriever has a retired veterinarian in Washington traveling 2,000 miles to find him.

King Boots is on trial for his life in Birmingham, Mich. Authorities allege the prized sheepdog mauled his owner's 87-year-old mother to death. The dog's trial was to conclude today with "people who are going to testify how nice this dog is," said City Attorney John King-sepp.

In New Jersey and South Carolina, people have complained about the treatment of dogs.

MIDLAND
CENTENNIAL 1985-1986

WEATHER SUMMARY

Milder weather in the Southwest and Southeast, cold temperatures from the northern Plains to New England, rain from the eastern Gulf through the southern Atlantic Coast and snow in the north-central Plains color Friday's forecast from the National Weather Service.

Warmer temperatures due in Basin through Friday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Warmer temperatures are expected today and Friday as sunny skies continue, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Forecasters predict fair skies tonight with lows in the lower 30s becoming sunny Friday as highs reach to the low 60s. Winds will be from the southwest tonight at five to 10 mph increasing Friday to about 15 mph.

Thursday's high of 49 was 30 degrees below the record set in 1971. This morning's low was 12 degrees above the record of 14 set in 1957.

STATE

Texas will enjoy a few days' respite from cold weather, the National Weather Service says.

A Pacific high-pressure system over the Rocky Mountains brought cool and dry weather to the state early today, but the effect was nothing like the sub-freezing temperatures that accompanied last weekend's winter storm.

Most of Texas enjoyed fair skies, with some cloudiness evident across Southeast Texas. Today's highs were expected to be generally in the 50s and 60s.

Temperatures could drop into the chilling range again with the expected arrival of another cold front early next week, the weather service said.

A weak cold front raced through Texas Wednesday, triggering scattered showers during its journey into the Gulf of Mexico.

A large area of rain associated with this front was located offshore along the upper and middle Texas coast this morning.

Just before dawn, temperatures were in the upper 20s to mid 30s over most of North and West Texas. A few readings in the lower 50s were reported over extreme South Texas, with readings in the lower 40s elsewhere. Lubbock and El Paso shared the coolest temperature in the state at 4 a.m. with 25 degrees while Brownsville reported 53 degrees for the warm spot.

Northwesterly winds at 5 to 15 mph were common over the eastern half of the state, while westerly winds around 10 mph breezed over the High Plains and Panhandle, with light easterly winds in the Trans Pecos region.

NATION

Snow spread across the nation today from the Dakotas to New England, while a mixture of rain, freezing rain and sleet fell farther south and rain and thunderstorms dampened the Deep South.

There was snow from the eastern Dakotas across the upper Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley into the mid-Atlantic coastal states and parts of the southern and central Appalachians.

Snow mixed with freezing rain fell over parts of Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia.

Social Security freeze debated

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Administration and congressional budget writers are in agreement that this year's deficit-reduction plans should spare programs designed exclusively for the nation's neediest.

But Budget Director David Stockman, after meeting with GOP leaders of both House and Senate on Wednesday, conceded that there is sharp disagreement among Republicans over whether a spending freeze should include Social Security benefits. "It's an open question," he told reporters.

Senate Republicans are working on a proposal that would include such a freeze while House Republicans have shown little enthusiasm for altering the formula for Social Security benefits.

"We don't see that there's that much mileage in it. That's not the route to go," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., after the meeting with Stockman.

House Republican leaders were to meet today with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who has advocated large increases in defense spending in the face of pressure to cut spending in other areas of government.

Michel said many GOP members of the House "have serious questions in the defense area." He said he himself may put on the table a proposal to trade GOP support for the MX missile for a commitment by the administration to limit its request for defense spending increases to around 4 percent.

Stockman said that the administration's budget for fiscal year 1986 is nearing completion and that, while there are bound to be disagreements over specific spending cuts, "in the end there is going to be a consensus, at least among Republicans, on a target."

The budget will be submitted to Congress early next month.

Stockman confirmed that cost-of-living increases in programs containing a "means" eligibility test would be left alone. These programs include food stamps, disability benefits and supplemental security assistance.

"We felt at the outset that they shouldn't be freezing low-income programs. They're back where they ought to be," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kans.

Participants in the meetings with Stockman also said that cost-of-living increases in veterans' pensions would likely not be frozen. However, Stockman said that scheduled increases in other government pensions and salaries would be frozen under the administration's proposal.

Michel said Stockman told GOP House leaders that the administration's budget would call for reductions in the deficit "in the vicinity of $40 billion" next year.

"The administration is getting closer and closer to the figure they're going to lock in," Michel said.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., says deficit-cutting action this year probably will include some disguised tax increases and a limitation on future boosts in Social Security benefits.

The study was written by a team of research scholars from the Hudson Institute, Institute for Research on the Economics of Taxation, the Hoover Institution, the conservative Heritage Foundation and the American Enterprise Institute, and the liberal Brookings Institution. The scholars served on the panel as individuals, not as representatives of their institutions.

The two most important suggestions could potentially affect millions of Americans by changing Social Security and the welfare system.

"Unlike 50 years ago, the typical American family is more prosperous, has more resources to fall back on, and is more likely to know his own needs and how to fulfill them," the study said.

"The family... not the government or the state, is the social nucleus of society," the study said. "Government must stop trying to supplant the family... and begin defending and protecting it."

The group emphasized that the "welfare state" should not be allowed to wither away but urged Reagan to "lead an assault on welfare dependency."

"Encouraging individuals to look after themselves (either independently or through voluntary association with others) has, we feel, a number of salutary social consequences that impersonal, bureaucratic programs cannot come close to duplicating," it said.

The group said one way the welfare system could be changed is by removing some tax provisions it described as disincentives to work: increasing the personal exemption in the income tax, removing the very poor from taxation and increasing the earned income tax credit which offsets the Social Security tax.

Thomas Bell, president of the Hudson Institute, said the project represented "a significant milestone for the public policy community" because it involved such a broad cross-section of research organizations.

The scholars recommended Reagan appoint a national commission to report on the quality of family life in America and convene a White House summit meeting of state governors and top state education officials and school board chairmen to begin a long-overdue national discussion of "what every child should learn in school."

Budget deficits should be attacked, the group also said, through "privatization and other reforms, such as giving the president a line-item veto." (Privatization means the shifting of government responsibilities and functions to private industry.)

"The industry needs to pull together on more of the issues," he said. "All the issues are important. I have long deplored the inability of the larger oil companies to recognize the problems of the independent."

The former independent refiner and oil operator from Artesia, N.M., had kind words for the regional oil and gas associations and their ability to get things done for the producer at the grassroots level, but admitted that not much has changed in Washington in the 40 years that he has been working with the government. He said that even when there is no big hue and cry against the oil industry from politicians there is still pressure against it from the bureaucrats.

He sees crude oil prices as a continuing problem for oilmen. Anderson does not have much confidence in OPEC's ability to hold the line on oil prices, because of, in part, a depressed economy in the Persian Gulf and among other OPEC nations. "Houston resembles a boom town compared to the Persian Gulf. One of the most active areas of the world is now depressed. That is not good for the Middle East or the world."

He said OPEC had not received much help in holding up oil prices from the majors in this country, admitting that ARCO and EXXON reluctantly were the last majors to drop the price of oil.

While he offered no predictions on the future of oil prices, he did express reservations about the petroleum futures market which has become a new pricing mechanism in the industry. He called the idea of buying and selling other people's oil on paper a highly speculative and risky proposition. "This is not a good element in our market," he said about the futures market.

Anderson was more optimistic about the natural gas over supply, saying the "bubble" is probably not as large as suspected and may dissipate by the end of the year as reserves continue to be drawn down at a high rate.

Internationally, the oilman feels the economy is keyed to the price of gold. He says a dumping of gold in the market has caused a $1.5 trillion drop in the price of gold in the last five years and has created serious liquidity problems throughout the world, including the Middle East.

"Where is the missing $1.5 trillion?" he asked. "The U.S. should look what it has done to drive down the price of gold. When Roosevelt doubled the price of gold in the thirties, it sparked a worldwide recovery."

He said that some feel a break in oil prices would be good for the world economy, but a $100 increase in gold prices would offset any break in oil prices.

"One thing is certain," said Ms. Gwyn. "We will be pro-rating the shipments and everyone will get some — we just don't know how much."

One local physician was informed by the company just how large that shortage was.

"They (Lederley) told us that they had 100,000 orders on back order," said Dr. Carolyn Rhode. Dr. Rhode is also concerned about the price of an immunization, which "has gone from $20 last summer to $40."

Will Army board 'present' umbrellas?

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — The Army Clothing and Equipment Board is reconsidering a longstanding military policy that has left generations of soldiers standing wet in the rain.

The policy says an Army man, in uniform, never, but never, carries an umbrella, furled or unfurled, rain or shine.

The board is to vote later this month on an umbrella recommendation, which would then be passed up to Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., the Army's chief of staff.

The board considered the same question last year and rejected a change in policy.

It is a sensitive issue, involving questions of image and professionalism. Officers almost uniformly refuse to discuss the matter unless guaranteed anonymity.

The Air Force has allowed the use of umbrellas since 1979, perhaps because the Air Force, the youngest military branch, doesn't have the long tradition of the other services.

Last year, when the Permanent Marine Corps Uniform Board recommended allowing the use of umbrellas, the idea was vetoed by Gen. Paul H. Kelley.

Third-hand accounts suggest the general took a hard-nosed Marine approach along the lines of, "We're not going to carry an umbrella in combat, so we don't need them."

"A lot of the senior officers don't like the idea because they think it's too wimpy," says an Army officer who would comment only on the condition that he not be identified.

An Air Force officer who likewise requested anonymity extended his sympathy, recalling the furor that accompanied his service's decision.

The shortage is the result of lawsuits against a major manufacturer of the shots, said Ms. Preston.

"There used to be two manufacturers of DPT, Wyeth Laboratories and Lederley," she said. "But Wyeth had lawsuits against them because a certain small percentage of population reacts badly to the immunization. Judgments were made against Wyeth and they said, 'Fine, we won't make it anymore.'"

"Lederley then bought out Wyeth in September, making them the only manufacturers in the country," she continued. "Lederley couldn't keep up with the orders after they took over. The last bottle I got was a month ago."

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Taiwan's president, reportedly furious over the alleged involvement of military intelligence officers in the slaying of a Chinese-American journalist, says he wants the killers punished "no matter what their rank."

Officials of the Foreign and Defense ministries convened an emergency meeting today to discuss the developing scandal, which has linked one top official of the Defense Ministry's Intelligence Bureau to the assassination of political writer Henry Liu, 52. Liu was gunned down in the garage of his home in Daly City, Calif., on Oct. 15, allegedly by two Asians.

Government sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said President Chiang Ching-kuo, 75, personally ordered a special committee investigating the slaying to "spare no effort to find out the truth and punish those responsible, no matter what their rank." The makeup of the committee is not known.

"The big boss was very mad," said a government official after listening to Chiang during a meeting of the ruling Kuomintang party's standing committee.

Authorities have arrested the Defense Ministry Intelligence

FBI agents sent to Taiwan in search of writer's killers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI, seeking the extradition of a gang leader who may have masterminded the 1984 killing of a dissident Taiwanese writer in California, is sending agents to Taiwan to obtain more information about the case.

The announcement Wednesday from FBI spokesman Lane Bonner came after Taiwanese authorities investigating the murder reported they had arrested Col. Chen Hu-men, the deputy chief of the Defense Ministry's military intelligence bureau.

The authorities also said they had questioned "several others" in connection with the shooting of Henry Liu, a frequent critic of the Taiwanese regime, last Oct. 15.

The independent Chinese-language Independence Evening Post reported that two other "ranking officials" in addition to Chen have been arrested in the case. However, the Taiwan government declined to comment on the report.

Bonner did not say how many FBI agents are being sent to Taiwan nor when they are scheduled to arrive. Such information normally is not made public, he said.

Liu emigrated to the United States in the 1970s and often denounced Nationalist President Chiang Ching-kuo in his writings. He is said to have been shot by three Asians at his home in Daly City, Calif.

The FBI wants to extradite Chen Chi-Li, the leader of a Taiwan underworld gang known as the "Bamboo Union," which has chapters in the United States. Daly City police believe Chen Chi-Li masterminded the killing.

Under questioning in Taiwan, Chen Chi-Li said some members of the intelligence bureau of the Ministry of National Defense were implicated in the case.

Bureau's deputy chief, Col. Chen Hu-men, 47, in connection with the killing, and "several others" are being questioned. The chief of the bureau, Vice Adm. Wang Shi-lin, 57, has been dismissed. He is a former consul at the Nationalist Chinese Embassy in Washington.

The deputy bureau chief was said to have been implicated in the slaying by two Taiwanese gangsters wanted by San Francisco authorities in the assassination.

Among those attending today's emergency meeting was John Chang, director of the Foreign Ministry's North American Affairs office and Defense Ministry spokesman Maj. Gen. Chang Hui-yuan.

As the scandal escalated, there was concern that the involvement of Taiwan officials might damage U.S. relations with Taiwan, or Nationalist China, already strained over America's improved relations with mainland Communist China.

Lane Bonner, a U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation spokesman, said the agency was sending agents to Taiwan to seek information about Liu's death. He did not give the number of agents or say when they would arrive.

Taiwanese newspapers reported two other ranking officials of the military's intelligence bureau, who were not identified, have already been arrested. Like Chen, the newspapers said, they were not directly involved in planning the assassination but knew of the plot and failed to report it to the government.

Government officials declined to comment on the reports.

Australia to protest Ethiopia's seizure of supply ship, cargo

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya — Australia says it will protest Ethiopia's seizure of the cargo and crew of a ship carrying Australian famine-relief food and supplies to rebel-held areas of the impoverished African nation.

Ethiopia's Marxist government seized the cargo ship Golden Venture at the Red Sea port of Assab, and a spokesman for the Ethiopian Foreign Ministry on Wednesday described Australia's plan to aid rebel areas as "tantamount to interference in our internal affairs."

An estimated 7.75 million people are suffering from drought-related food shortages in Ethiopia. Many of the victims live in guerrilla-controlled areas of northern Tigre and Eritrea provinces.

In Australia, Foreign Secretary Bill Hayden said his government would protest the seizure.

"I have directed that our representatives in Addis Ababa should lodge a very strong protest and demand that the commodities and other items be released," Hayden said in a radio interview in Sydney.

He stressed the estimated $1.2 million in aid for rebel areas was for humanitarian purposes and not intended to support guerrillas. "We only supply humanitarian aid because people are starving," he said.

Hayden said the ship had disregarded instructions and put in at the Ethiopian port Monday instead of one in Ethiopia's neighbor Sudan, where it was supposed to have unloaded the goods.

Diplomatic sources in Nairobi, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the ship was carrying 6,000 tons of wheat for rebel-controlled areas and another 3,500 tons for elsewhere in Ethiopia, plus trucks, medicines, blankets and a well-drilling rig.

Each bag of wheat reportedly was marked as a "Gift of Australia" to the Eritrean Relief Association or the Relief Society of Tigre. Both groups work closely with the rebels who long have been fighting for autonomy in those provinces.

"Legally, the Ethiopians would be justified in saying the cargo is contraband because they know from ship documents that it is being taken to another country in order to be smuggled into Ethiopia," said one diplomat in Nairobi.

Australia has said previously it has sent aid into rebel areas of Ethiopia on humanitarian grounds.

Australia's Freedom from Hunger Campaign, Community Aid Abroad, and the Melbourne Herald and Sun newspapers helped supply the water pumps, trucks, medical supplies and thousands of tons of food dispatched to Eritrea and Tigre provinces.

The Freedom from Hunger Campaign issued a statement calling on Hayden to take the matter to the U.N. Security Council.

"The Marxist-Leninist government of Ethiopia is committing regular and premeditated atrocities on its people with guns and bombs," said the director of Freedom from Hunger, Hans Paas.

"Now comes the hideous obscenity of the obstruction of vital aid from reaching starving people — aid shipped under the auspices of the Australian government and which is the property of the Australian people who donated for its purchase," he said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

New Caledonia visit shows Mitterrand's stand

PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand sets out today on a trip halfway around the world to show support for New Caledonia's embattled territorial government in the midst of a violent struggle over independence.

Mitterrand, in a surprise announcement during a television interview Wednesday, said he was making the trip "to express what I believe to be reason and to support the High Commission" in the Pacific island territory, where 20 people have been killed in political violence since November.

Mitterrand said the continued riots, snipings and arson between pro- and anti-independence groups have not diminished his support for a plan that would grant quasi-independence to the territory, but retain French military presence and responsibility for security.

Cypriot leaders meeting

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The leaders of the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities meet today in a session the U.N. secretary-general hopes will hasten the end of the bitter dispute that has divided Cyprus since 1974.

The meeting in the Secretariat building marks the first encounter since 1979 between Cyprus President Spyros Kyprianou, a Greek Cypriot, and Rauf Denktaş, leader of the Turkish Cypriot community that unilaterally declared independence in 1983.

Turkish Cypriots make up almost 20 percent of the Mediterranean island's population of about 650,000, and Greek-Cypriots form an overwhelming majority. The conflict between the communities has aggravated longstanding tensions between Greece and Turkey, both members of NATO and recipients of U.S. military aid.

Mine removal sought

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The government is pressing for removal of U.S. nuclear mines from West Germany under a NATO plan to reduce outdated atomic weapons in central Europe.

Defense Ministry state secretary Peter Kurt Wuerzbach, answering questions from Parliament deputies Wednesday, confirmed the existence of small atomic weapons in West Germany.

But he denied there were any plans to outfit soldiers with nuclear bombs small enough to be carried in backpacks for planting behind enemy lines in wartime.

Copter carried Kennedy

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A helicopter that crashed and killed three mining executives this week was the same one that carried Sen. Edward Kennedy on his tour of South Africa last week, the aircraft's owners said today.

A faulty starter motor on the aircraft forced Kennedy to drive back to Johannesburg on Jan. 7 after he had flown to a rural black village in the seven-passenger Bell helicopter.

But Joyce Harris, public relations officer for National Airways Corp., said the starter was "totally unrelated" to the cause of Tuesday's fatal crash.

U.N. reports on drugs

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — World-wide drug abuse and related crimes reached unprecedented proportions last year, even posing a threat to the security of some countries, according to a U.N. report released today.

"Illicit production, trafficking and abuse has become even more serious" in 1984, the annual report of the International Narcotics Control Board said. "An unprecedented number of countries and human beings are affected."

"The problem has become so pervasive that even the very security of some states are threatened," the report said.

The report did not elaborate on the national security issue but it may have alluded to developments in Colombia, where the justice minister was assassinated last May after declaring war on drug traffickers. A national state of siege was imposed there after the killing.

Sikh priest wounded

NEW DELHI, India (NYT) — Two young Sikhs shot and wounded a leading Sikh priest and two aides Wednesday as they left their car in the Ludhiana district of the Punjab, a district official said Wednesday.

The official said the two men had been on a motorcycle pursuing the priest, Kirpal Singh, who is head of the Akal Takht shrine at the Golden Temple in Amritsar, District Magistrate N.K. Lakhanpal said.

He said the wounded men had been rushed to a hospital, where doctors said they were out of danger. According to an independent news report, Singh was hit by at least six bullets in the forehead and right thigh.

Polish police overhauled

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The killing of a pro-Solidarity priest has prompted the most extensive overhaul of the Polish police system since the end of the Stalinist era, according to government officials and Western diplomats.

"The reform under way is the largest such effort in 30 to 40 years," said a Polish official, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

He said the changes, being made by moderates in the Polish government, may be as significant as the wholesale purges of hard-line Stalinist officials from the government and police in 1956.

Fire death toll hits six

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Thousands of firefighters battling bush-fires over a huge area of southern Australia for a fourth day finally appeared to be winning, officials said today.

But the death toll rose to six when a firefighter who had been badly burned after being caught by flames earlier in the week died of his injuries, authorities said.

The fires that swept across large areas of New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia injured more than 100 people, destroyed or damaged hundreds of homes and farms and killed about 30,000 horses, cows, sheep and other livestock.

Five die in South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Five people were killed and 11 injured today when a crowd stampeded while trying to get into an opposition political rally, the Yonhap news agency reported.

The agency said more than 1,800 people had swarmed to the entrance of a 650-seat auditorium in Andong, 149 miles southeast of Seoul, and were trying to enter the building when jostling began and triggered a stampede.

The report said most of those killed and injured were elderly people trampled by the crowd.

The political gathering was organized to set up a local chapter of a new opposition group called the New Korea Democratic Party. The party is seeking to form the required number of local chapters to take part in National Assembly elections on Feb. 12.

Relationship sought

WASHINGTON (NYT) — State Department officials said Wednesday that the Reagan administration would try to open a "limited military assistance relationship" with the Marxist government of Mozambique as a result of recent changes in that southeast African nation's attitude toward the United States.

The officials, who attributed the changes to economic and military pressure on the Mozambique government, said the administration notified Congress several weeks ago that it wanted to give Mozambique's armed forces $1 million in "non-lethal" military equipment, such as uniforms, vehicles and communications equipment. In addition, $150,000 would be spent to train Mozambican military personnel some of them in the United States.

Most Kingston roadblocks removed by security patrols

By LLOYD WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

KINGSTON, Jamaica — Using armored personnel carriers and heavy road equipment, security forces patrolled the streets of this Caribbean capital today and removed roadblocks set up by demonstrators during two days of protest over fuel price hikes.

By late Wednesday, most major streets in the capital had been swept clean of roadblocks. The government news agency, Jampress, said most roads in the north coast resort areas also were clear.

Police said four people had been killed and 18 injured in the protests over Monday's announcement of a 20 percent increase in fuel — the latest in a three-year series of austerity measures instituted by Prime Minister Edward Seaga.

Seaga said "a coalition of opposition political groups" was responsible for the roadblocks. He acknowledged the demonstrations had created transportation problems for tourists, but said there had only been 11 cancellations of tourist trips compared to 12,000 arrivals on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Eastern Airlines, which canceled flights to Jamaica on Tuesday, returned to its regular schedule Wednesday. Air Jamaica canceled two of its three flights from Miami on Wednesday, blaming its action on labor problems in Jamaica unrelated to the protests.

Winter is peak tourist time in Jamaica, but authorities said none of the estimated 12,000 foreign visitors was reported injured.

Seaga told reporters Wednesday that several incidents of sabotage made it necessary to end what he had tolerated earlier as peaceful demonstrations. He said sugar cane fields outside Kingston had been set ablaze and security forces had uncovered plans for blowing up a major bridge and highway overpass.

More than 650,000 of the island's 2.3 million residents live in Kingston.

"This turn of events has now reached a point where I must give a clear warning that the time has come for the demonstrations to be called off," Seaga said.

"I urge everyone to respect the necessity to return to law and order and to cooperate with the police."

Seaga said he had instructed security forces to destroy blockades and "to insure that no one interferes with their duties." Police and members of the 9,200-strong Jamaica Defense Forces were taking part in the cleanup.

Former Prime Minister Michael Manley, the country's chief opposition leader and head of the Socialist People's National Party, also urged an end to the demonstrations, saying the protesters had made their point.

In a statement virtually acknowledging his party's participation in this week's demonstrations, Manley said the protesters had "sent a message to the government loudly and clearly that they will no longer sit by and allow an arrogant and corrupt government to inflict unending economic pressures."

He said he told party representatives "to encourage and assist in the dismantling of the roadblocks. The People's National Party feels that the point having been made, the national interest requires me to call on all citizens to mount no further roadblocks and to end the demonstration."

Seaga said there was "no possibility" of rolling back gasoline and other fuel prices. Gasoline now costs $2.19 per gallon.

He also rejected his leftist opponents' demands that he resign and schedule new elections, arguing that "would be saying that it's an opposition that decides when elections are called." Seaga said elections are not required constitutionally until January 1989.

Seaga's government, which broke the close ties Manley formed with Cuba, has received more than $400 million in U.S. aid since 1980.

Jamaican rioting troubles tourists

By WILLIAM R. GREER
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — American travel agencies and airlines were flooded with calls Wednesday from some travelers who canceled trips to Jamaica and others who were simply anxious about the unrest there.

The extent of the cancellations and their impact on a struggling tourist industry in Jamaica was unclear.

American Airlines, which sends one flight per day to Montego Bay with a stop in Kingston, said that what is normally a packed flight to Jamaica was heading out with empty seats. Some people canceled their reservations and others simply did not show up at the gate, according to Joseph E. Stroop III, the airline's manager of corporate communications.

"They usually go out packed," Stroop said. "But we did today experience a slightly increased number of no-shows. We had a few empty seats."

American has canceled its Kingston stop on the flight, Stroop said.

"For the last two days, because of the unrest in Jamaica, the airport at Kingston has been inaccessible to our passengers and our flight crews," Stroop said. "I understand the roads between Kingston and Montego Bay are closed."

Air Jamaica, another airline that flies to the island, said that it had not canceled any flights, although the flights out of Miami Wednesday were delayed because of the unrest.

Men allegedly build marijuana cavern

ATLANTA (AP) — Race car driver John Paul Sr. and another man spent more than $300,000 to build an underground marijuana garden complete with "grow lights" and a diesel generator to run them, investigators said.

Paul also used the cavern as a hideout when Florida authorities were looking for him in 1983 in connection with an attempted murder charge, investigators said Wednesday.

The cavern became part of a joint federal-state drug investigation that resulted in a racketeering indictment unsealed in Jacksonville, Fla., on Tuesday. The indictment charged Paul, who was arrested last week in Switzerland, with conducting a criminal enterprise.

According to the indictment, Paul and co-defendant Christopher Schill of Jacksonville, Fla., spent more than $300,000 to build the 200-foot-by-40-foot underground room on a farm near Corinth southwest of Atlanta.

Their plan was to grow marijuana in the cavern, the indictment said. Investigators discovered that Paul and his associates spent $40,000 for grow lights and bought a $40,000 diesel generator to run them, said a source close to the investigation who would not be identified.

Tanks were buried beneath the room to provide fuel for the generator, the source said.

Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents became interested in the cavern in March 1983 when they learned that a Netherland Antilles corporation had purchased the 600-acre farm, GBI Director Phil Peters said Wednesday.

The cave was supported by steel beams and covered with sheet metal and plastic, said Holland M. Ware, a Hogsheadville businessman who sold the property to the corporation and later regained it through foreclosure and resold it.

Access to the hole was through the barn, down a shaft and through a 25-foot tunnel, according to the source.

He estimated the cavern could have been used to grow $4 million worth of high-grade marijuana per year.

There was no marijuana growing in the cavern when it was discovered, and GBI offered its information to a federal drug task force in Atlanta, which began investigating with other federal agencies and the GBI in the summer of 1983, Peters said. The case was turned over to the federal grand jury in Jacksonville in February 1984.

Paul had been charged with attempted murder in St. Augustine, Fla., in the April 1983 shooting of a witness in the drug investigation. He surrendered to Florida authorities in June 1983, but later failed to show up for the trial.

Investigators believe Paul used the cavern as a hideout while he was being sought in connection with the shooting, the source said. Paul remained a fugitive until his arrest last week.

The cavern was abandoned after Paul fled the country in December 1983, Peters said.

The Jacksonville indictment alleged Paul, Schill and four other men, including Paul's son, John Paul Jr., smuggled or attempted to smuggle marijuana from Colombia at least five times between 1975 and 1981.

Paul Sr. also has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Atlanta on charges of money laundering.

A Dutch immigrant who came to the United States at age 15, Paul Sr. secured his wealth on Wall Street in the 1960s and began racing cars. He won the World Endurance Drivers championship in 1978 and 1980, as well as the 24 Hours of Daytona in 1982.

Military drivers get their fill of M&Ms candy

WASHINGTON (AP) — When packages of M&Ms began arriving at President Reagan's inaugural headquarters some workers didn't know what to do with the candies. So they ate them.

Then more shipments arrived. And more. And more.

It seems the Mars candy company donated 8,000 pounds of the tiny chocolate candies to the presidential inaugural committee for distribution at the receptions, parties and inaugural balls being thrown all over town to celebrate Reagan's second inaugural.

When the bags began trickling into committee headquarters, the military drivers in the motor pool just assumed it was someone's thoughtful gesture toward them for all the long hours they've been putting in chauffeuring dignitaries around town.

About 15 or 20 soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen managed to get through about 50 pounds of the candy before they realized the shipments were coming in faster than they could possibly devour and that they must be for some other purpose.

Some people at the inaugural committee have had second thoughts about the 350,000 "commemorative" invitations the committee mailed out to people around the country whom it wanted to flatter but didn't really want to come to Washington for the inauguration.

The formal, suitable-for-framing documents look most official and request the honor of one's presence at the Jan. 20 inauguration. But that ceremony, because it falls on a Sunday, will be private. And only an accompanying little card informs the recipient that the invitation — like the traditional, public swearing-in outside the Capitol on Monday — is a fake. It doesn't grant the bearer admission to any official inaugural event.

Nonetheless, inaugural committee chairman Ron Walker received an R.S.V.P. from a man in Illinois, who said, "Great! I'll be there. The wife will be there. The kids will be there. Can someone meet us at Union Station?"

Walker had someone from the committee telephone the man to tell him he really wasn't wanted and wouldn't be met.

Nancy Reagan is so closely identified with the color red that sometimes she appears to be wearing it even when she isn't.

A painting of the first lady recently appeared on the cover of Time magazine portraying Mrs. Reagan in a scarlet dress.

Press secretary Sheila Tate said the first lady was surprised when she picked up a copy of the magazine because she distinctly recalled posing for the artist in a white blouse and navy blue skirt.

"I guess that's artistic license," the spokeswoman shrugged.

When a reporter noted that Mrs. Reagan would be wearing blue at the inauguration and asked if that and the outfit she wore for Time indicated she was trying to change her image as the lady in red, Mrs. Reagan replied, "No, I wore red last time and thought I should change."

In fact, she'll be wearing red to the gala on Saturday, white to the inaugural balls and blue to the swearing-in.

A patriotic gesture? "I really hadn't planned that," she said. "But it worked out that way."

Catholic bishops condemn abortion clinic bombings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops are condemning the recent rash of abortion clinic bombings as "dangerous, ill-considered and deplorable."

Wednesday's statement on behalf of the bishops, who are among the most outspoken foes of abortion, drew a direct connection between the bombings and "the violence unleashed into society" by abortion itself.

But the straightforward wording, coming just before a weekend when federal officials have warned new bombings might occur, made it clear church leaders don't condone violent action in the name of fighting abortion.

The statement, released in Washington by the National Council of Catholic Bishops, was issued in the name of Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago, chairman of the group's Committee for Pro-Life Activities.

Conference officials said the statement was timed to mark next week's 12th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The government has warned operators of abortion clinics to be alert to potential violence tied to the anniversary. Authorities say there have been 30 instances of bombing, firebombing and arson at abortion clinics since May 1982.

Artistic and creative endeavors bring lasting gains. Choose your assistants and associates with care. Although you enjoy being flattered, it is dangerous to surround yourself with yes-men. Build your social life around those you love and romance soars!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be creative and you earn extra dollars. Express your feelings through dance, song or writing! Homemakers can accomplish miracles now. A letter brings wonderful news. Share the glad tidings with close friends.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

If you don't know what suit to shift to after you win a trick, it is often sound technique to hold off taking that trick until you get a signal from partner. But sometimes, like Godot, that signal never arrives. Look what happened to the Venezuelan defenders in their match against Chile at the recent World Team Olympiad in Seattle.

North's response to his partner's no trump opening bid showed slam interest in a minor suit. South's rebid denied a four-card minor, and North blasted into slam without even bothering to check whether his side had enough aces for the purpose.

West led a spade, and you could not tell from declarer's demeanor that there was anything amiss with his contract. Declarer won the king in dummy and guessed correctly to lead a diamond to the queen. When that won, he continued with a diamond to the jack and king. Now

East was in a quandary. He was not sure what to return if he won the ace of diamonds, so he decided to wait one more round before winning the ace to give his partner the opportunity to signal a shift. When we last heard, he was still waiting!

With two diamond tricks in the bank, declarer turned his attention to clubs. A horror-struck East watched his partner win the ace of clubs, only to revert to spades. East's ace of diamonds withered on the vine as declarer quickly wrapped up 12 tricks—four spades, four hearts and two tricks in each minor suit.

Making a slam off two aces was nothing unusual in the World Team Olympiad. Perhaps somewhat rarer was the case of the Swedish declarer who got to a small slam off the ace-king of trumps. The opening leader held both those cards, but elected to lead a plain suit in the hope of a larger set. Unfortunately, her partner revoked during the play, and the small slam made!

BBC 'furious' that rival network bought rights to 'Dallas'

LONDON (AP) — In a deal that the British Broadcasting Corp. says ranks with J.R. Ewing's dirty tricks in "Dallas," a rival network has snatched away airing rights to the top-rated, U.S.-made television series.

The BBC said "Dallas" was the jewel in its ratings crown and angrily accused Thames Television on Wednesday night of "hooliganism" in the $1.5 million deal with Worldvision, the distribution company in Los Angeles.

It hinted it might retaliate by not showing the rest of its episodes, leaving viewers watching the program on the other network hanging when the shows resume after a 17-episode gap.

"Dallas" is about a fictitious family of Texas oil millionaires headed by the ruthless J.R. Ewing, played by actor Larry Hagman. BBC's audience for each weekly episode was 14 million in this country of 56 million.

It has been one of the most popular shows in the BBC's history and since the corporation began screening it in 1978, "Dallas" viewers have become a kind of cult in Britain.

When J.R. was shot in a 1980 episode, 27 million people turned on their sets to watch.

The BBC's "Newsnight" current affairs program reported Wednesday night: "The BBC has lost its long-running series 'Dallas'...in a secret deal that you might think was worthy of J.R. Thames Television has bought 'Dallas' from the program's American distributors."

"The BBC (management) is furious. It has accused Thames of doing a backdoor deal and indulging in a piece of hooliganism."

Michael Grade, controller of the BBC-1 TV channel that broadcasts

"Dallas," said on "Newsnight": "It is shortsighted because at the end of the day all this means is that we are all going to have to pour a lot more money...out of British broadcasting, both in ITV and in the BBC, into the pockets of American producers."

The BBC is funded by license fees, while rival Independent Television network (ITV), to which Thames belongs, gets its revenue through advertising.

Grade threatened J.R.-style retaliation over the Thames move.

The BBC still has 17 episodes of "Dallas" to screen before its current agreement with Worldvision expires. The episodes Thames has bought don't take up the "Dallas" storyline until the end of the BBC's 17th and final episode.

Threatening he might delay screening the BBC episodes, Grade said: "Thames is going to look very strange if they try to put out the episodes that they have bought before we have played (ours) and brought the viewers up to date on the story."

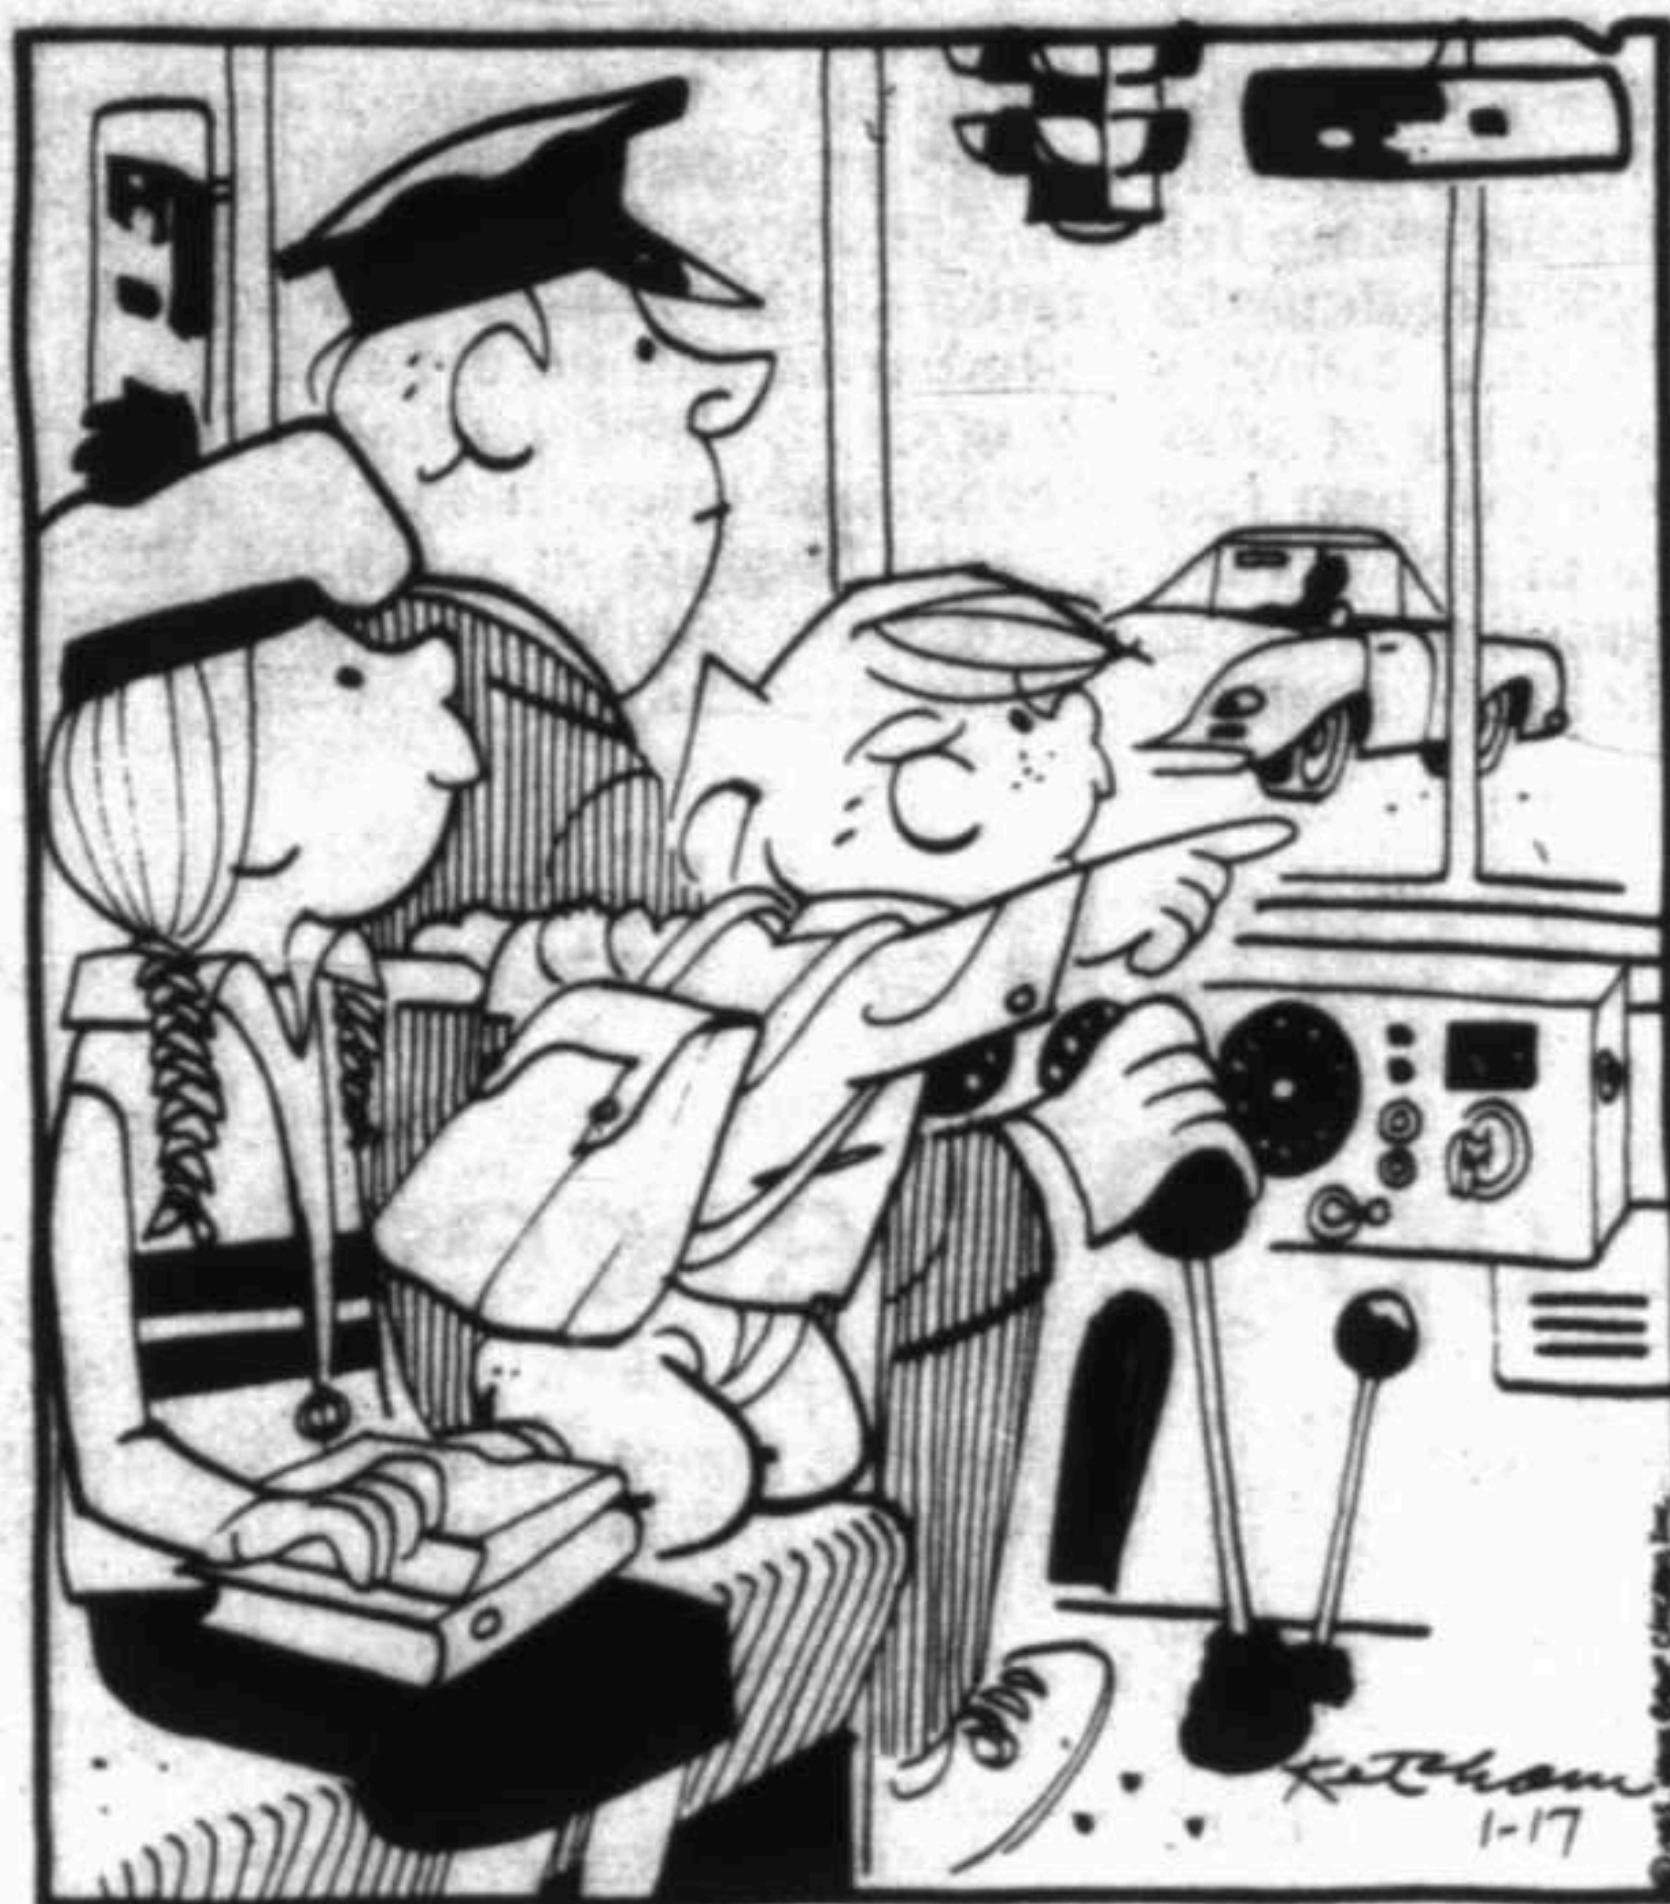

Earlier Wednesday, Bill Cotton, managing director of BBC Television, told a news conference that Thames was paying $61,000 for each episode of "Dallas" under its deal with Worldvision versus $32,400 the BBC has been paying per episode.

"This is nearly an act of vandalism. Thames went around to the back door and did a deal. It was a ridiculous price to pay and will obviously start a price war which can't do the British viewer any good and will only benefit Hollywood," Cotton said.

Cotton charged that Thames broke a "gentleman's agreement" between the BBC and ITV that neither would poach a ratings success.

Leonard Nimoy honored with star on Hollywood Walk of Fame

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Leonard Nimoy, who roamed the galaxies as the elfin-eared, emotionless Mr. Spock of the "Star Trek" television series and movies, has been given a star of his own.

Surrounded by "Star Trek" cast members and about 600 fans, Hollywood's most famous Vulcan was honored Wednesday with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Other than the half-Vulcan, Leonard Nimoy half-human Spock characterization, the 53-year-old Nimoy also has been a writer, producer, photographer and director, including the recent movie, "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock."

The Boston-born performer has a master's degree from Antioch University and two children from his 30-year marriage to the former Sandi Zober.

In October, the Footnotes entertained guests, including Carvel, at a New York City birthday party for Iacocca, who received his master's degree in mechanical engineering from Princeton in 1946.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach may get another chance to play hard-boiled detective Mike Hammer — after he serves nine months in an English prison for trying to smuggle cocaine, a CBS television network executive says.

CBS programming executive Harvey Shephard said a decision is expected in May or June on the future of the crime series which halted production after Keach pleaded guilty to smuggling 14 ounces of cocaine into London's Heathrow Airport in April.

Shephard, speaking Monday night to a conference of newspaper and television editors, said CBS turned down proposals to shoot the last eight episodes of the season with "guest detectives."

Shephard suggested that Keach had suffered enough already. "Why should we make an example of him?" he said.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart recipient William Schroeder has no date to leave the hospital, but officials there say he is just about able to care for himself.

"Schroeder can now take care of virtually all his personal needs on his own," Bob Irvine, a spokesman for the Humana Inc. hospital group said Wednesday. "He likes to do things himself and the level of nursing care will be reduced gradually."

The 52-year-old federal retiree, who received the externally powered implant Nov. 25, is recovering well from three strokes on Dec. 13, and spends as long as 25 minutes a day riding an exercise bicycle, Irvine said.

The Jasper, Ind., man will move into an apartment house near Humana Hospital after he is discharged, Irvine said.

Kathy Gangwish said Greenwood, the Country Music Association's male vocalist of the year for the past two years, was riding in a limousine Tuesday when it collided with another vehicle.

He was treated at a hospital for cuts around his eye and later went ahead with an interview on the BBC. Ms. Gangwish said Wednesday.

Greenwood, 41, who is in London on a songwriting project, is known for country music hits such as "I.O.U.," "God Bless the USA," and "Ring on Her Finger and Time on Her Hands."

Dollar eases, gold gains

LONDON (AP) — The dollar eased in early trading today as investors speculated that finance ministers meeting in Washington would act to halt the dollar's record-shattering climb against other currencies. Gold prices gained.

Dealers described currency trading as nervous as the Group of Five finance chiefs — from the United States, Britain, West Germany, France and Japan — met.

The European contingent has said the top agenda item is America's big budget deficit, generally blamed here for artificially inflating both U.S. interest rates and the dollar.

The dealers said the dollar also was being weakened today by predictions that the West German central bank would raise interest rates later in the day. Such a move would bolster the West German mark, which sank to a 12-year low against the dollar on Tuesday.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell nearly one yen to close at 254.10 yen from Wednesday's 254.93. Later, in London, it was quoted at 254.60 yen.

Other dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Wednesday:

- 3.1765 West German marks, down from 3.1840.
- 2.6745 Swiss francs, down from 2.6775.
- 9.7385 French francs, down from 9.7515.
- 3.5880 Dutch guilders, down from 3.5975.
- 1,947.00 Italian lire, down from 1,961.75.
- 1.32365 Canadian dollars, down from 1.32470.

In London, the dollar rose against the pound, which was quoted at $1.188, compared with $1.1208 Wednesday.

On Monday, sterling hit an all-time low of $1.10 in Far East trading before the Bank of England stepped in to hike interest rates sharply. The dollar also has shattered records this week against the French franc and Italian lira and set a seven-year high against the Swiss franc.

Gold, meanwhile, benefitted from the dollar's setbacks.

The metal opened in London at a bid price of $304.90 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $303. At mid-morning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $305.80.

Oil consumption up first time in 6 years

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans broke a five-year oil diet in 1984, when consumption rose 3.5 percent in the steepest climb since 1977, but the increased appetite failed to reverse a slide in oil prices, an industry group reported.

The first increase in oil demand since 1978, attributed to a severe cold spell last winter and a surge in economic activity, also failed to keep pace with the economy's growth, estimated at a robust 6.7 percent clip, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

"Oil prices weakened in a year in which U.S. oil demand increased rather respectfully," said John Lichtblau, executive director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, a study group in New York supported by the oil industry.

He said that while the growth in U.S. oil consumption was impressive, demand was sluggish elsewhere in the world, rising about 2 percent overall, or one million barrels a day.

However, "supplies increased more rapidly than demand," Lichtblau said.

In addition, oil is sold for dollars and the dollar has been rising on world foreign exchanges, climbing nearly 80 percent since the end of 1979. As a result, while oil prices are at five-year lows in the United States they are still climbing in many other countries.

But prices continued to tumble Wednesday in the United States.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, announced it had reduced the price it will pay for the top grade of U.S. oil, West Texas Intermediate, by $1 a barrel to $28. The reduction was in line with recent cuts by other industry giants.

Until October, the U.S. oil industry was locked into a $30-a-barrel price for West Texas Intermediate crude. Currently, prices posted by U.S. companies range from $25.90 to $29. On the spot or non-contract market, West Texas Intermediate fell 30 cents Wednesday to $25.60 a barrel.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), the largest producer of Alaskan oil, said it had cut the sales price for Alaskan North Slope crude. Sohio refused to disclose the size of the cuts, but an industry source who spoke on condition he not be identified said the sales price on the West Coast was cut $2 a barrel to $25 and the Gulf Coast sales price was cut by $1 to $27 a barrel.

The report Wednesday by the Washington-based trade group said U.S. gasoline prices at the pump fell 2 1/2 cents a gallon in 1984, ending the year at an average $1.18 a gallon, a level last seen in the spring of 1980. The price decline over the past five years came despite a nickel-a-gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes in April 1983 and an increase of about 30 percent in consumer prices for the same period.

The institute said that domestic oil consumption, which reached a record 18.847 million barrels a day in 1978, fell as low as 15.232 million in 1983, a drop of almost 20 percent.

In 1984, oil use rebounded to 15.772 million barrels a day, the sharpest annual growth since the 5.6 percent spurt in 1977, but analysts said they don't expect demand to keep growing at that rate.

Theodore Eck, chief economist with Chicago-based Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), said he did not expect oil use to rise at even half the rate of economic growth in the next few years because of conservation and industrial shifts to less expensive alternate fuels.

Tom Carvel of Carvel Ice Cream Corp., left, and Lee Iacocca, head of Chrysler Corp., relax during a ceremony where "The Footnotes," an all male singing group of Princeton University received a van from the two men on Wednesday.

Strikes at two GM plants continue

By The Associated Press

Strikes by 4,800 United Auto Workers union members continued today as local contract negotiations stalled at General Motors Corp. plants in Missouri and Kentucky, officials said.

Meanwhile, the UAW union sought to iron out a conflict over Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday that caused a brief wildcat strike at a Chrysler Corp. plant in suburban Detroit.

No agreement was reached in negotiations Wednesday between GM and UAW Local 2250 in Wentzville, Mo., said GM Assembly Division spokesman Andrew O'Keefe. The 3,125 hourly workers walked off the job Tuesday at the plant that makes front-wheel drive Buicks and Oldsmobiles.

Bargainers said the major issue was a company plan to pay more money to production workers who master 16 or more assembly-line skills. Those workers would belong to a special labor pool and be assigned accordingly to need.

At Bowling Green, Ky., about 1,600 UAW members walked out Wednesday after local negotiations stalled between GM and UAW Local 2164, officials said. The plant produces Corvettes.

GM spokesman Fred Craig said negotiators planned to meet again today after bargaining was resumed Wednesday after the walkout.

Neither side would reveal issues involved in the strike, which was the third walkout in two years at the plant.

Employees at both plants have been working without contracts since Sept. 14, when their old agreements expired.

The five-hour wildcat strike Tuesday by 800 workers at Chrysler's Warren, Mich., truck plant Tuesday began after a supervisor implied that some blacks took an unauthorized day off to observe King's birthday, the UAW said Wednesday.

UAW Region 1 Director Perry Johnson said he would meet today with Chrysler officials to discuss the dispute.

"This began when a production manager decided that he was going to take a survey to determine how many blacks stayed home Monday for Martin Luther King's birthday," Johnson said. "No whites were surveyed."

"People thought it was racist and ... everybody walked out. They are both blacks and whites on the afternoon shift."

Contrary to the foreman's suspicion, it appeared that Monday's absenteeism was no higher or lower than usual, Johnson said.

Chrysler spokesman Robert Heath said he didn't know whether any supervisors tried to identify absentees by race. He said only 200 workers struck Tuesday and the remainder were sent home.

Home construction edges up 2 percent

By The Associated Press

New home construction edged up 2.1 percent in December, the government reported today.

The gains came from new activity in the Midwest and South, the Commerce Department said.

New housing was started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.59 million units in December, it said. While this is the best performance since September, it is still well below the peak rate of 2.26 million units reached in February.

The December gain followed a revised 1.2 percent increase in November. That month had originally been reported as a 0.7 percent drop.

Meanwhile, an increase in merchandise sales in November and a subsequent rise in industrial operating rates in December may signal a renaissance of economic activity, one economic analyst says.

"We have an economy where growth is reviving, although at a modest level," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of Shearson Lehman American Express. The Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday that the industrial operating rate hit 81.9 percent in December. The 0.3 percentage point increase followed a smaller, 0.1 percentage point gain in November.

Before November, the rates had fallen for three consecutive months.

In another report Wednesday, the Commerce Department said that sales of manufactured goods surged upward by 1.1 percent in November, the largest increase since May.

Retailers led the gain in sales with a 2.3 percent increase, followed by manufacturers with a 1.3 percent boost and a 0.5 percent gain at the wholesale level.

Inventories posted a tiny 0.1 percent gain, the smallest gain since a 0.1 percent decline in June 1983.

Some analysts said inventories, especially at the retail level, were still very high and could cut into economic growth in the first half of this year.

Roger Brinner, an economist at Data Resources Inc., said the inventory overhang could cut as much as 2 percent off economic growth in the first three months of this year. He forecast a 1.5 percent growth for the first quarter.

Investor to purchase Gibsons

Despite reorganizing under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code since August of 1983 and the recent closing of a sixth store, Gibson Distributing Co. seems an attractive opportunity to an El Paso investor.

Thomas A. Prendergast has offered a plan for repayment of $19.7 million in unsecured debts that will allow him to purchase the discount chain. Margaret Christian, attorney for Gibsons, said, "Thomas Prendergast is basically going to purchase Gibsons."

The plan depends on the approval of the firm's creditors and a bankruptcy judge's approval of Gibsons' disclosure statement, which puts forth the plan to repay unsecured creditors.

Although creditors are effectively stockholders of the company, Herschel O'Kelley and Jim Hooker own voting control of the stock.

Law requires a repayment plan have approval of 51 percent of the creditors holding 67 percent of the debt. A creditors committee approved the present plan in November. A final vote is expected in February.

Gibsons' plan for repayment calls for Gibsons to cancel outstanding shares in the company and issue new stock to Prendergast for $5.48 million. That amount and $2 million the firm hopes to get from preferential transfers will go to pay 1,600 creditors 37.7¢ on each dollar of debt, according to Christian.

Gibsons filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on Aug. 2, 1983. The firm closed five stores, including stores in San Angelo, Big Spring and El Paso. The company also brought back Bill Howard as president. He had been part of an original group of investors that founded the chain before selling to investors. Prendergast has said that Howard will stay on as president of the company.

The recent liquidation of the Midland store netted Gibsons $1.7 million, according to Howard. He also said the three Odessa stores "are running double digit increases over 1983."

PREPARING YOUR INCOME TAXES

Tax changes make writing off prescriptions easier

EDITOR'S NOTE: This third article in a series on preparing 1984 income tax returns discusses deductions.

JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over-the-counter drugs are no longer deductible against federal income tax but it will be a little easier to write off prescriptions at return-filing time this year.

Another change allows a medical deduction for some lodging expenses incurred in connection with treatment in an out-of-town hospital or clinic. The bad news for taxpayers with big medical bills is that they still may deduct only unreimbursed expenses that exceed 5 percent of their adjusted gross income.

The change in treatment of drugs — there is no longer a separate income-related threshold to cross — makes it simpler to calculate the deduction for medical expenses but denies a write-off for any non-prescription drug except insulin.

On the revised Schedule A that accompanies Form 1040, add together your prescriptions, doctors' and dentists' fees, cost of transportation and lodging and other medical expenses, including eyeglasses and medical insurance premiums, and subtract from that total 5 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI). You may deduct whatever remains, assuming your deductions of all types exceed the standard deduction ($3,400 for a joint return, $2,300 for a single return).

(AGI is your income minus such adjustments as employee business expenses, moving expenses and contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts. It appears on Line 32 of Form 1040).

For the first time, you may include as a medical expense the cost, up to $50 a night, of staying in a hotel if that is essential to treatment in a hospital or clinic. For example, if a cancer patient must go out of town for regular chemotherapy treatment and the distance from home is sufficient to warrant a hotel stay, the cost up to $50 a night is deductible. If the patient is a child accompanied by a parent, the deduction is $50 each.

The Internal Revenue Service generally considers a deductible medical expense to be an amount paid to diagnose, cure, treat or prevent disease or to affect any structure or function of the body. That definition has been interpreted to include expenses as far-ranging as electrolysis to remove facial hair, to the purchase of a wig that a doctor considers necessary for a patient's mental well-being, to the full cost of special education to alleviate a mental or physical handicap.

Deductible transportation costs include 9 cents a mile for actual cost of gas and oil for trips to a hospital or doctor's office, plus parking and tolls. IRS Publication 502 lists medical expenses that may and may not be deducted.

Oil strike tested for 94 barrels

Staff Reports

A recompletion has resulted in an oil discovery in Ward County.

EXXON CORP. tested the No. 1 State University "DG" to pump 94 barrels of oil, 258 Mcf and 132 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 2,745:1. The well is producing from perforations 9,003 to 9,142 ft., which had been acidized with 1,350 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Total depth of the well is 14,083 ft., plugged back to 10,200 ft. A five inch liner was hung from 10,318 to 14,080 ft.

On a ground elevation of 2,604 ft., formation tops chosen were the Silurian, 14,050; Devonian, 13,590; Woodford, 13,110; Mississippian, 12,561; Derry Shale, 11,610; the Canyon, 11,137; Cisco, 11,070; and Bone Springs, 7,730 ft.

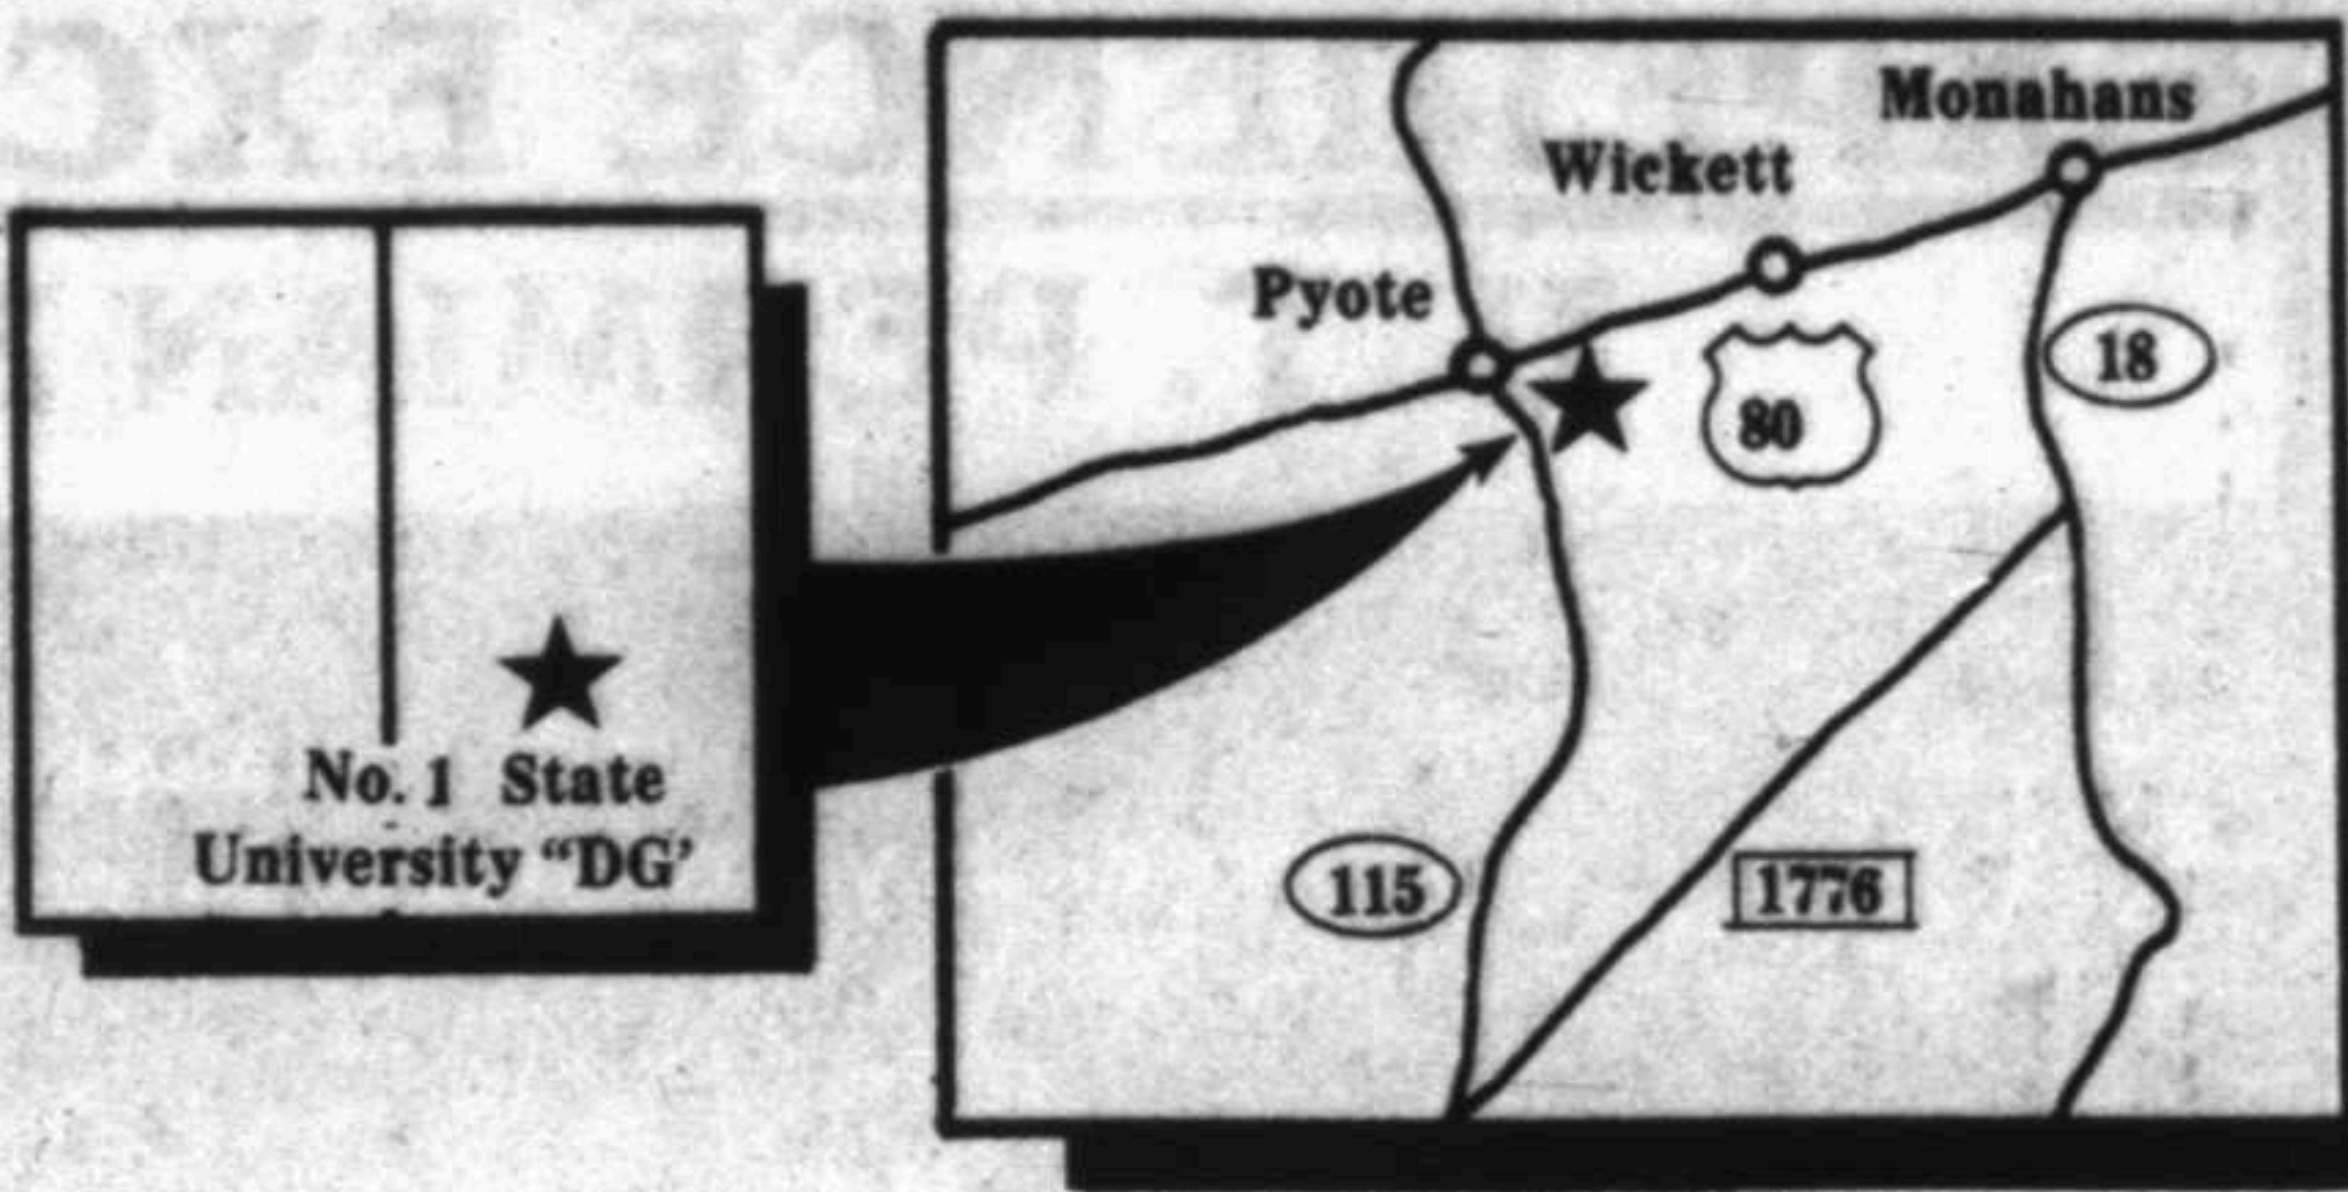

Location of the site is 1,980 ft. from south and 1,320 ft. from east lines of Section 29, Block 16, ULS survey, three miles southeast of Pyote.

The well was originally completed Feb. 2, 1968 in the Pyote Southwest (Devonian) field. It was recompleted in the Block 16 (Devonian) zone July 30, 1985. Exxon filed on March 12, 1989 to change the lease name to the Pyote Gas Unit No. 4.

Wolfcamp well flows 497 barrels daily

A prolific Wolfcamp well has been finished in the War-Wink field of Ward County.

NORTH AMERICAN ROYALTIES, INC. tested the No. 2 University "12-18" to flow 497 barrels of 42.1 gravity crude, 740 Mcf and 18 barrels of water on a 18/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 220 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 1,489:1. The well is flowing from perforations 11,221 to 11,333 ft., which had been treated with 3,200 gallons of acid.

The well was drilled to 11,450 ft. and plugged back to 11,380 ft. The final casing size was 5 1/2 inches set at 11,436 ft.

On a ground elevation of 2,744 ft., formation tops are Delaware Line, 5,044; Cherry Canyon, 5,996; Bone Springs, 8,555; and Wolfcamp, 10,824 ft.

The well is located 933 ft. from south and 2,100 ft. from east lines of Section 12, Block 18, ULS survey, 10 miles southeast of Pyote.

Getty has completed several University wells in the Wolfcamp field in the past year. Rates ranged from 50 to 172 barrels of crude and 61 to 225 Mcf.

Blalock producer tests for 117 barrels

A Wolfcamp producer has been added to the Blalock Lake field of Glasscock County.

EXXON CORP. tested the No. 1 Charles W. Blalock to pump 117 barrels of 44.5 gravity crude, 24 Mcf and 6 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 205:1. The well is producing from perforations 8,532 to 8,555 ft., which had been acidized with 8,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Drilled to 10,280 ft., the Blalock is plugged back to 9,880 ft. A 4 1/2 inch liner was hung from 7,680 to 10,280 ft.

With a ground elevation of 2,568.5 ft., formation tops are Brushy Canyon, 4,402; Leonard, 5,624; Spraberry, 6,488; Wolfcamp, 8,160; and the Strawn, 10,021 ft.

Plastic film cans can be 'recycled' at home

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. I read with interest your reader's suggestions for recycling plastic detergent containers, and wonder if you had any ideas for what I could do with hundreds of 35mm plastic film cans that I have collected. These little black cans are so nicely designed that I hate to throw them out.

A. I asked Kodak for help on this and Ronald Baird, a representative of that company, suggested the following:

"The main use would be for the storage of countless small items, such as screws, nuts, cotter pins, buttons, homegrown spices and herbs — anything that could be kept from rattling around loose in a drawer or from getting lost or ruined. With a little imagination, construction paper and paint they could be turned into attractive ornaments (a good Cub Scout or Girl Scout project).

"Another good scouting project might be to use them as forms to make small candles for emergency use during home power failures. Some people have attached them to strings or chains for light pulls in the basement, attic or garage. They could be hung from branches of fruit trees to scare away marauding birds. You might also punch holes in the top and bottom, thread cord through them, and use them as handles to carry parcels so that the cord can't cut into your hand. Filled with sand they could be used as weights for various purposes.

"They would be ideal for keeping small objects, such as matches and paper money, dry on camping or pack trips. They can also be used as an emergency measuring cup (exactly 1 ounce of liquid).

"If you still can't find a good use for your supply of cans," concludes Baird, "there's always the ultimate solution. If you live in an ecology-minded community, just turn them over to the nearest recycling plant." Readers with some other ideas, please let us know.

Q. Is green pasta any better for you than white pasta? Is it really dyed with spinach as some packages say or is it chemical food coloring?

A. Other than the fact that colored pasta, either green or red, looks pretty and might tend to stimulate a jaded appetite, it isn't any more nutritious than untinted pasta. It takes such a small amount of vegetable dye to color the dough that the amount of nutrients involved is insignificant. Spinach is used for the green pasta and beets for the red pasta.

Q. How do candy makers get the cherry flavor for red lollipops and hard candy such as Life Savers? I can't imagine how an artificial flavor is made.

A. In order to make an imitation flavor, such as cherry, a chemist would first analyze the natural cherry. In a natural fruit there could be tens or even hundreds of chemicals which combine by a natural process to produce a specific taste.

According to Michael Jacobson's "Eater's Digest," once the basic composition of a natural flavor is determined, scientists can reconstruct the flavor. They do this by using either natural sources or synthetic sources. They could also add chemicals not present in the natural flavoring.

Taste specialists prepare and evaluate the different mixtures until they come up with a taste closely approximating the natural flavor. A typical artificial cherry flavoring is not, therefore, a single chemical, but a mixture of 13 chemicals which is simply listed as one ingredient — artificial flavor — on an ingredients list.

If a lollipop manufacturer had to list all the ingredients of the flavoring on the candy wrapper, it could read something like this: eugenol, cinnamic aldehyde, anisyl acetate, anisaldehyde, ethyl cinnamate, benzyl acetate, vanillin, aldehyde C16, ethyl butyrate, amyl butyrate, tolyl aldehyde, benzaldehyde, alcohol.

The government regulates flavorings more leniently than most other food additives because relatively small amounts are used, usually less than 0.3 percent of a food.

Q. Just how safe is paper? We eat off paper plates, use paper napkins to wipe our mouths and drink out of paper cups. Do the paper processors sterilize these papers? What about the bleaches and other chemicals that are used — could they leach out and contaminate the food?

Gary Hawkins, Lawrenceville, Ga.

as the chemicals in the paper leaching out into the food, A.W. Wetmore, quality control manager at Crown Zellerbach, assures us that paper is always considered in light of the end use for which it is intended.

Consequently, all paper intended for food contact is required to meet Food and Drug Administration regulations. Several years ago it was thought that perhaps chemicals were leaching out of styrofoam cups, particularly when the cup contained an acidic beverage such as tea with lemon, but further investigation proved this fear to be unwarranted. Some of the wax will melt from paper cups and plates intended for hot foods, but apparently this is harmless.

BETTER BUSINESS

Elderly targets of frauds

By LINDA TRUITT

A common bond consumers share: growing older. Through much of life, additional age is an asset in the marketplace, bringing with it experience and sophistication young people and other novice shoppers lack.

Eventually, however, aging can reduce the awareness needed in making many consumer transactions.

Too often, unscrupulous operators take advantage of older Americans' loss of vision or hearing ability, or loneliness, only to leave the victims bewildered and disillusioned — and defrauded of their monthly allotments or life savings.

The best advice the staff at the Better Business Bureau can give the elderly is an implantation of this simple motto: Ask Before Acting.

Listed are several schemes of which the elderly, in particular, can become victims:

— Work-at-home schemes — Since retiring on a fixed income can make fighting inflation difficult, many senior citizens answer ads in magazines or newspapers which offer "huge profits" while working at home. Upon further investigation it is usually found that the purchase of equipment or supplies is required before beginning work and there is no guarantee that any money will be earned. Whether it be stuffing envelopes or raising worms, senior citizens should avoid any deal which requires money for instructions or merchandise before telling how the plan operates.

— Investing — With stories constantly being circulated on how a small investment turned into a bonanza, many older people are enticed into using their life savings to invest in such shakey speculations as oil or gas leases, futures commodities, investment diamonds and penny stocks. The cardinal rule when investing is "only invest money you can afford to lose."

— Insurance — Elderly people sometimes are victimized by unscrupulous insurance agents who sell expensive, unnecessary policies. They are frightened into buying additional policies by salesmen who paint pictures of financial disaster should an illness occur. Helpful hints when buying insurance include comparison shopping for the best cost/benefit ratio, obtaining a copy of the policy before signing in order to compare the salesman's promises against the written terms and evaluating the meaning of various terms used, especially the words "pre-existing conditions" and "waiting periods." NOTE: All insurance should be reevaluated after retirement, especially life insurance. Remember, death protection provides benefits for beneficiaries, not for the person insured.

— Home repair — These rackets occur in all seasons, but hit their peak in the spring when itinerant repairmen and fast-talking door-to-door salesmen hit the road. Most home repair cons have common characteristics: phony bargains, tricky financing, guarantees not honored, materials misrepresented and performance exaggerated. Home repair con artists, for example, drive through neighborhoods looking for homes in need of repair. Money is requested in advance, and often the repairman performs a portion of the job and then leave town without completion.

— Health care — Worried about their health, many senior citizens are easy targets for disreputable hucksters who promise cures for cancer, arthritis, deafness and other plagues of old age. Not only are the "cures" ineffective and expensive, but even worse, their remedies may be harmful to the body and delay proper medical treatment until it is too late for healing to occur.

— Mail-order companies — Mail-order shopping is a necessity for many senior citizens confined to their homes. Delays, non-delivery of merchandise and falsely advertised products complaints against mail-order companies top the list of most Better Business Bureaus. Consumers are advised to check with the BBB before dealing with any unfamiliar mail-order company.

Wills lessen heartbreak

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you discussed the importance of leaving a will. May I add this:

Two years ago we lost a beautiful daughter and a handsome son-in-law in a house fire. They had no children and they left no will. According to Michigan law, if a couple has no will, the surviving spouse inherits everything the couple possessed.

Since it was established that our son-in-law died last, everything he and our daughter left went to our son-in-law's nearest of kin — a no-good bum who couldn't wait to sell everything he felt heir to.

We got nothing — not even the few personal items we had given our daughter. This hurt me so deeply I had to be hospitalized. All this could have been avoided if our daughter and her husband had left a will.

Abby, please tell your readers to make a will — regardless of how young they are, or how few possessions they have.

We are now urging our other children to have wills drawn up. Nobody should ever have to experience what we went through.

STILL MOURNING IN MICHIGAN.

DEAR MOURNING: Please accept my heartfelt sympathy. I regret that you will never know how many strangers will read this, act on your valuable suggestion and avoid the nightmare you endured. Thank you, my generous friend, for caring enough to write.

Marinara sauce lacks star appeal

By LINDA ANDERSON

Tom Selleck and all his clones, eat your hearts out. When it comes to "hunks," none of these young men can compare to the master, Paul Newman.

Those ice-blue eyes, steel-gray hair and rugged good looks that have dominated countless movie screens for the past decades are now dominating labels for "Newman's Own" marinara sauce and other goodies.

Well, how can I resist a product like that? Besides, all the taste-testers at my house like spaghetti and other Italian-style dishes, so Newman's Own seemed made to order for the whole group.

"Newman's Own Industrial Strength Venetian Spaghetti Sauce" is the complete name on the label. The variety we tested (for taste, price and advertising accuracy) was described as "all natural" and "Marinara with Mushrooms" on the label.

The "all natural ingredients" listed sound like ordinary items found in many kitchens — tomato paste with diced tomatoes, water, mushrooms, corn sweetener, salt, soy bean oil, imported olive oil, spices, onion, garlic and basil — although "natural" might be stretching it a bit. How many tomato bushes give birth to cans of tomato paste?

Anyway, most of the items listed really do occur in nature without any help from canneries.

Other label information includes "All profits are donated to charity." That is very noble and great — and since the 32 oz. jar purchased cost $2.99, profits will probably be great, too. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

My favorite line on the label is: "La Stella delle Salse e la Salsa delle Stelle." I don't know what it means but it sounds lyrical.

The taste-testers (adults, a teen and a young child) are spaghetti fans. We browned ground beef and onions, poured in the Newman's Own and let it simmer for a few minutes, then served over spaghetti. The 4-year-old loves spaghetti. She could eat it every day if she were allowed. She cleaned her plate but did not ask for more, which is slightly unusual for her. She said she liked the sauce but she was full.

The teenage tester ate only one serving also. She liked Newman's Own but she is counting calories, like so many other girls her age do.

The adult male tester, who had been hungry for spaghetti for two days, said the marinara sauce was "pretty good for store bought" but not any better than "heavy-duty" Ragu. And Newman's Own doesn't begin to compare with the home-made marinara sauce of our Italian friend who is such an excellent cook. However, the male tester ate two servings.

General consensus was the Newman's Own marinara sauce is good, but not outstanding. It tastes better hot than it does cold. And it makes a decent quick family Sunday afternoon meal.

But marinara sauce made by our friend the excellent cook — now that's Italian!

Man shoots nun, kills himself

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Dominican nun shot twice in the head for no apparent reason by an ex-convict who then shot himself dead was in stable condition today as police sought a motive for the attack in a church vestibule.

Sister Mary Jude Marlborough, 68, had arrived Wednesday for a Mass she regularly attended when the gunman shot her once behind the left ear and once through the neck and cheek, police said.

The gunman, paroled from prison last June on an armed-robbery conviction, fired another shot which struck a statue of Christ above the altar at St. Rita Catholic Church, then put the gun in his mouth and took his own life, police said.

Although seriously injured, Sister Marlborough walked to a patrol car with the help of police. She was taken to Southern Baptist Hospital where she was listed in stable condition today, a hospital supervisor said.

In October, she will have been a Dominican sister for 50 years, said Tom Finney, spokesman for the Archdiocese of New Orleans.

Authorities identified the gunman as Charles Boles, 38, of New Orleans, whose lengthy police rap sheet listed him as a dangerous, "possible career criminal."

Marlborough

Archbishop Philip N. Hannan visited the church shortly after the shooting and said the gunman must have been insane.

"This certainly is the action of somebody who was demented, because there was no reason for it at all," he said.

Police spokesman Gus Krinke said there was no apparent motive. He said there was no evidence of a robbery attempt, and witnesses said they didn't hear any argument beforehand.

Records showed that Boles had been arrested but never convicted for burglary, attacking law enforcement officers, armed robbery and a list of municipal violations.

He was released from the Louisiana State Penitentiary last June after serving nine years of a 15-year sentence for armed robbery, according to the state Department of Corrections.

In Baton Rouge, state Corrections Department spokeswoman Martha Jumonville said Boles was released early because he had earned 25 days of "good time" for every month he served — even though a judge added a year to his sentence after an escape attempt in May, 1982.

Sister Marlborough, a native of Edgard and one of 10 children, was in her third year of teaching fourth grade at the parish school, said Rev. James Tarantino, co-pastor at St. Rita.

Finney said Sister Marlborough has been teaching in schools operated by the Dominican sisters for 48 years in Louisiana and Mississippi, always at the elementary level.

Coroner's investigators remove the body of a man who shot a nun, Sister Mary Jude Marlborough, 68, and then killed himself in a New Orleans church Wednesday. Police identified the gunman as Charles Boles, 38, but did not give a motive for the shooting.

Fleeing suspect tackled by 123-pound woman

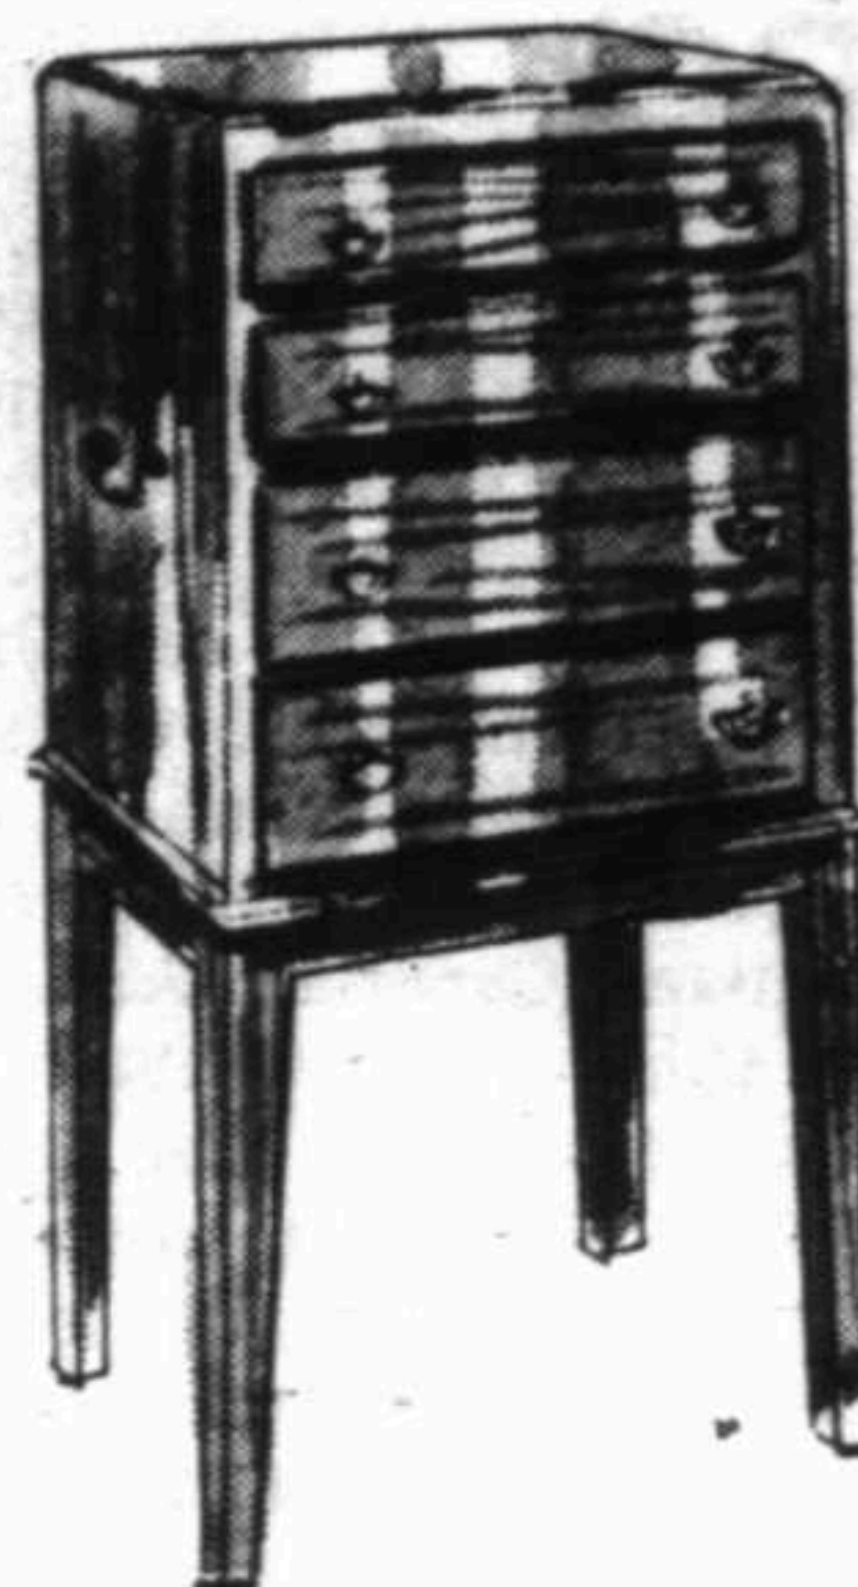

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man trying to flee police officers chasing him with guns drawn picked the wrong flower shop to run by. A 123-pound woman who works in the store knocked him to the pavement. "I was in a bad mood to begin with in the morning and to have him come by to be tackled just felt great," said Melissa Hendrix, 21.

The suspect, Kenneth King, 23, was booked on charges of auto theft, assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.

VA trying to collect $1.4 billion owed by veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration, armed with enhanced enforcement powers from Congress, is trying to recover $1.4 billion owed by more than a million veterans who collected money they weren't entitled to.

Delinquent debts totaling $367 million were collected last year, according to VA officials, but the amount of money owed during 1984 is up from $1.2 billion in 1983.

Some debts stretch back to the end of the Vietnam War, and agency officials doubt they'll ever be able to close the books on all the money owed.

"The collection of debt is an ongoing process," added Douglas Bartow, a VA collection official. "Paying public benefits sort of lends itself to that."

Of the nation's 28.2 million veterans, 1.16 million of them owe the agency some amount of money as a result of VA benefits, agency spokesman Ozzie Garza said. Individual veterans owe amounts ranging from $5 to as much as $20,000, he said.

Most of the money is due the government as a result of overpayment of VA benefits, defaults on VA insured home loans and unauthorized VA medical care.

Funds missing

How unconscionable that anyone would embezzle funds raised to feed starving multitudes in East Africa. Yet a California-based charitable organization stands accused of shuffling in Swiss bank accounts millions of dollars that were donated for famine relief.

This is only one of the allegations that have been leveled against International Christian Aid (ICA), a religious evangelical group that is conducting an expensive national advertising campaign linked to the African famine. ICA's fund appeals have included implied — albeit unauthorized — endorsements from Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, actor Martin Sheen and numerous prominent charitable organizations such as Catholic Relief Services and the American Council of Voluntary Agencies. Indeed, a spokesman for Catholic Relief Services, one of the private groups most active in providing African aid, said ICA has no operation in Ethiopia. Yet, the organization's emotional ads still suggest it is shipping large quantities of food and medical supplies to the drought-stricken country.

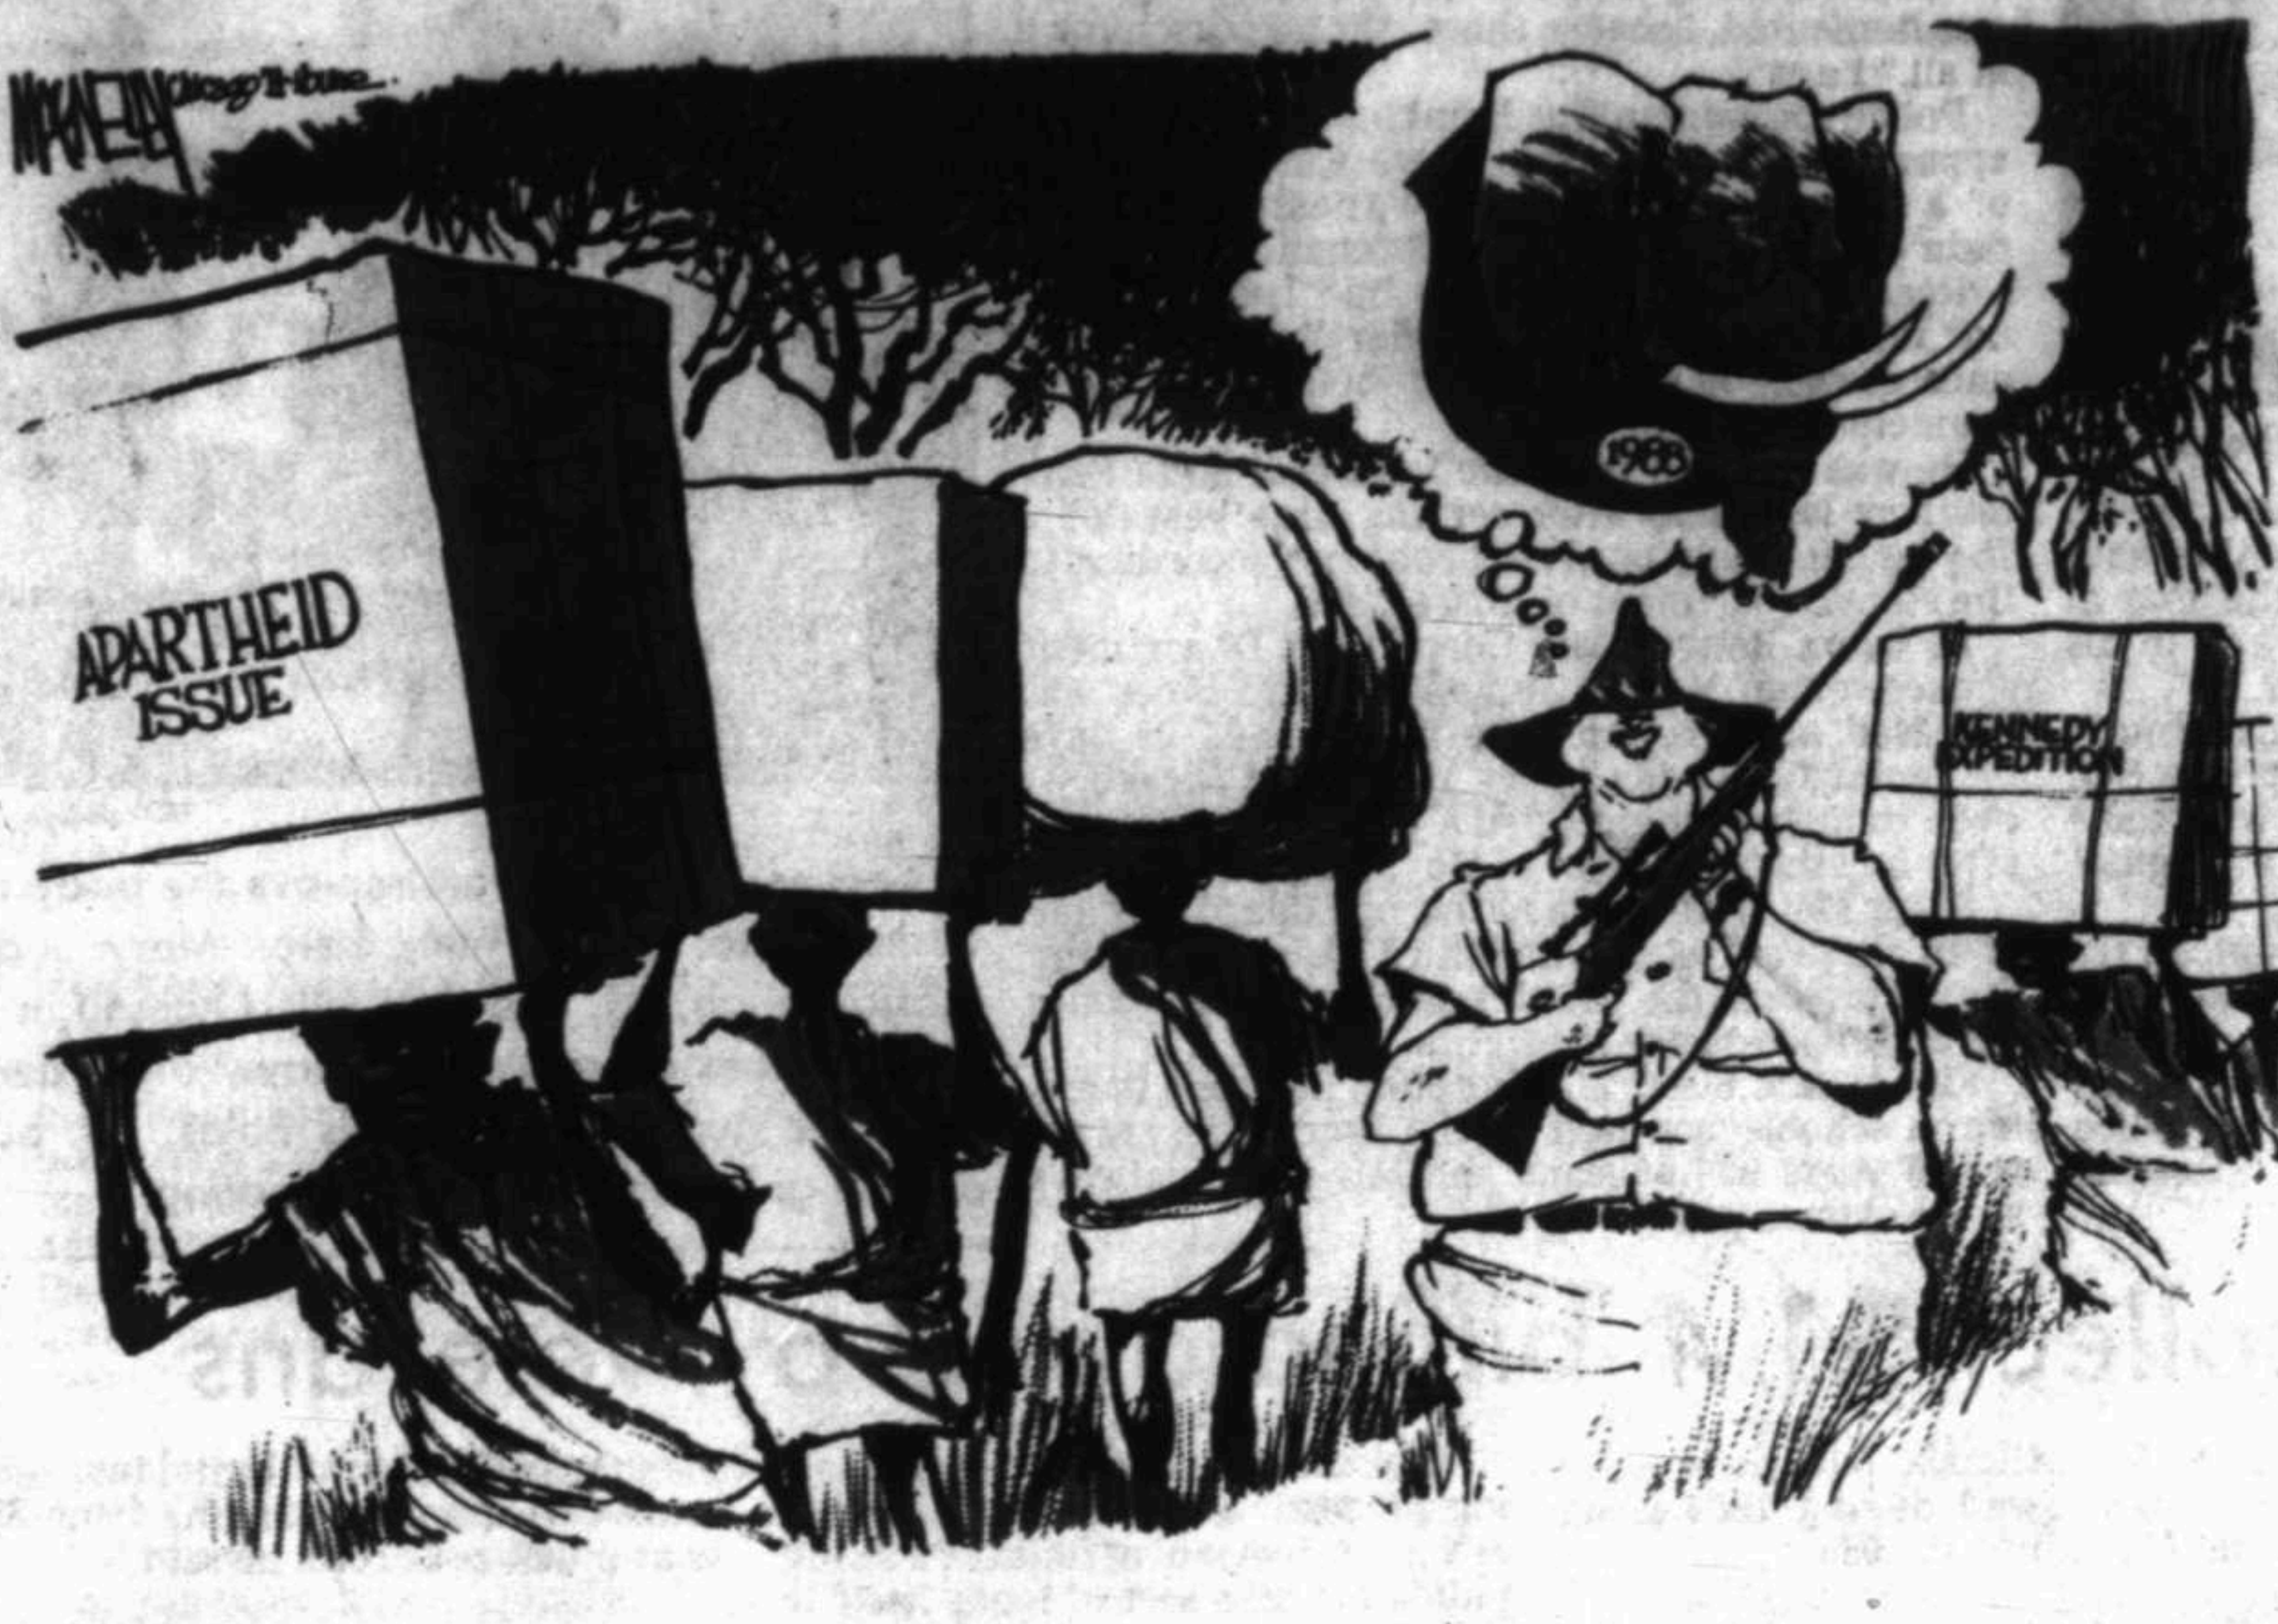

Such inconsistencies have prompted investigations of ICA by the California attorney general's office and the Ventura County district attorney's office. The U.S. Justice and State Departments are conducting inquiries as well. These investigations, in turn, have produced several conflicting "clarifications" from ICA.

Several days ago, ICA spokesman Nello Panelli said his group had sent supplies to Ethiopia through a French volunteer organization named Doctors Without Borders. The organization's president, however, has denied receiving "financial or any other contribution from International Christian Aid." Mr. Panelli then explained that the aid was sent to an ICA team working in Ethiopia in cooperation with the Christian Relief and Development Association. Yet a spokesman from the Agency for International Development said that no one in his office had ever heard of the Christian Relief and Development Association.

As matters now stand, it's unclear whether ICA is a victim of circumstantial evidence or, in fact, the perpetrator of one of this nation's most despicable swindles. Unfortunately, the truth may never be known inasmuch as ICA, a religious organization, is exempt from state and federal regulations that require non-profit groups to record the receipt of donations and specify whether the money is spent for the purposes outlined in the fund-raising appeals.

Suffice it to say that Americans should not send any more money to International Christian Aid until the organization accounts for the millions of dollars it has collected in the name of starving Ethiopians. Beyond prosecuting ICA officials determined to have defrauded the public, loopholes should be closed in state and federal laws that permit such an ugly fraud scheme.

Wettering obstacle to famine aid

WASHINGTON — Why did it take two years for the Reagan administration to discover that the famine in Ethiopia was a disaster that transcended its political hostility toward the Marxist regime in Addis Ababa?

Like many bad decisions made in Washington, this one was produced by committee. Here's what happened:

In 1982, officials of the Agency for International Development became convinced, through reports from the field, that a dangerous situation was developing in Ethiopia and the Sudan. An inter-agency task force was set up to deal with the problem — with representatives from the State, Defense and Agriculture departments, together with AID, the CIA and the National Security Council.

By 1983, the committee was meeting at least once a month, and two things had become clear: (1) The situation in Ethiopia was deteriorating, and (2) the NSC man on the committee, Fred Wettering, was one of the main obstacles to swift and massive aid by the United States.

Sources who were present at task force meetings told my associate Lucette Lagnado that Wettering never seemed interested in appeals that the United States should send food to Ethiopia strictly on a humanitarian basis, with no thought of immediate political profit. The NSC man, the sources said, took the line that the Marxist regime in Addis Ababa should either take care of its own mess, get help from its Soviet backers or make strategic concessions before it got U.S. aid. Only a few courageous officials expressed opposition.

The NSC representative repe-tedly quoted from intelligence reports that chronicled the Ethiopian government's indifference to the suffering of its starving people. Wettering pointed out that the Marxist regime hadn't even given its own hunger commission the money and vehicles it needed to carry out its assigned mission.

As one task force member recalled, "The NSC pointed to the failures of the Ethiopian government to support the relief effort...and to the fact that the Ethiopians were providing facilities to the Soviets."

None of the sources argued with the NSC man's facts, or with his presentation of the views of an agency whose middle name, after all, is "Security." They simply thought Wettering was being callous in a situation that cried out for humane action.

As it happened, the NSC's cold-blooded calculations were wrong about driving a bargain with the Marxist regime. Addis Ababa was even more coldblooded, and refused to make concessions to obtain U.S. aid.

Meanwhile, thousands — perhaps millions — are suffering because of this macho poker game between the NSC and the Ethiopian government. For almost two years the NSC argument carried the day, and the massive U.S. relief effort that could have saved countless lives never occurred.

The NSC finally folded its hand. "They backed down rather reluctantly when it became clear that our efforts to pressure Ethiopia were failing and that millions of people would die," a source said.

BANK BLUES: Three out of five bank failures are due to either incompetence or criminal misconduct by the banks' managers or employees. In the case of Penn Square's collapse in 1982, it was a case of mismanagement on an almost incredible scale.

A peek behind the scenes of this financial tragedy, which almost dragged down some of the most prestigious banks in the country, was offered recently in a court document filed against Penn Square's former executives by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. The FDIC had to make the biggest payoff in its history to the bank's insured depositors.

Your bank may offer toasters to depositors — and automatic overdrafts on checking accounts at usurious interest rates. But Penn Square's friendly officers OK'd several overdrafts of more than $1 million, including one of $20 million. Many of these overdrafts were — if you can believe it — to borrowers whose earlier loans were delinquent.

This bank-approved check kiting might have had a happy ending if the loans had been reasonably sound in the first place. They weren't. According to the FDIC court document, an "excessive portion" of the bank's total loans went to a handful of energy customers — at a time when the world oil glut had sent oil prices plummeting. In fact, the FDIC said, half the bank's total loan amount had gone to just 10 borrowers.

In 1980, Penn Square's overdrafts totaled $12.5 million. In 1981, they had gone up 450 percent to $56.4 million. By the end of May 1982, the bank's overdrafts totaled $65.9 million. In July, Penn Square collapsed.

AID TO HANDICAPPED: A polio-ridden Internal Revenue Service employee's pleasure at being promoted and transferred from Fresno, Calif., to Washington, D.C., was tempered by the realization that it would be risky trying to drive her specially equipped car across country. So she had it shipped — at a cost of $1,154 — and asked the IRS for reimbursement.

The agency wasn't sure if regulations allowed it, and asked the General Accounting Office. The government auditors said it was all perfectly legal, under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

ART BUCHWALD Super Bowl postpones inauguration

If anyone is wondering why the inauguration of the president of the United States was postponed from Sunday, January 20, to Monday the 21st, all they have to do is go back to their history books and read about the creation of the Constitution of the United States.

Fifty-five of the founding fathers met in Philadelphia in the summer of 1787 to write the greatest document in the history of mankind. It wasn't easy because every paragraph was fought over to protect the interests of the individual states.

One of the biggest stumbling blocks was when to swear in the president of the country. The suggested date for his inauguration was January 20, and there didn't seem to be any argument about it until John Adams of Massachusetts stood up and said, "Suppose January 20th falls on a Sunday, the same day as the Super Bowl is to be played? Do we still hold the president's inauguration on that day?"

The founding father from Rhode Island said, "I say verily the inauguration of the president of the United States must have precedence over the Super Bowl."

A founding father from Pennsylvania, who also owned a piece of the Philadelphia Eagles, jumped up and cried, "The American people will never stand for it. They didn't fight a bloody revolution to see the Super Bowl be moved from Sunday to Monday. I say verily the Super Bowl be played on its traditional Sunday and the president have his inauguration at a less auspicious time."

Another founding father from Pennsylvania said, "Speaking for the Pittsburgh Steelers, I fully concur."

The founding father from New Jersey, who never dreamed the New York Giants and the New York Jets would one day move to his state, took the floor. "How can the United States become the most powerful nation in the world, when it would put off the inauguration of its leader to pander to the sports tastes of its countrymen?"

This enraged the representative from Georgia, who had received PAC money from the Atlanta Falcons. "Nobody in my state cares when they inaugurate a president, but everyone knows you only play a Super Bowl on Sunday. I cannot go back home and ask my people to ratify this Constitution if the day of the Super Bowl has to be postponed in the name of political expediency."

The founding father from North Carolina hooted. "What difference does it make to you? The Atlanta Falcons will never get to the Super Bowl anyway."

The house broke into booing and laughter.

George Washington, who was presiding and had no idea that someday an NFL team would be named after him, said, "I think we should table this matter for the moment until we can speak to football commissioner Pete Rozelle, to see if his feet are in cement on the January 20th date."

John Adams rose and said, "I can speak for Commissioner Rozelle, as I represented the New England Patriots at the last league meeting. He said he would be breaking faith with the millions of people in the 13 states if the game was not held on a Sunday two weeks after the playoffs."

The founding father from Delaware roared, "The president comes first — first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Alexander Hamilton, who had season tickets to all the New York Giants games, said, "The delegate can easily say that since Delaware could never support a NFL franchise if every person in the state came to every game."

The constitutional convention was in shambles and about to disintegrate when James Madison offered his famous compromise. "Gentlemen, in deference to the states that do not have NFL franchises, I propose we do not put it in writing that the Super Bowl have precedence over the inauguration of the president. But let us include in the minutes that it was the will of this body that if the 20th of January falls on a Sunday we wanted the Super Bowl to be played first."

The motion was adopted and the Constitution was saved. That is why this year President Ronald Reagan, a strict constitutionalist, will be sworn in privately on Sunday, but his inauguration, according to the wishes of the founding fathers, will be held on Monday.

BIBLE VERSE

Pure religion and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction. Jas. 1:7

Quotable quotes

Remarks worth repeating in the past week came from the lips of the new Majority Leader of the United States Senate, and from the biggest liar in the world.

First, let's hear it from Senator Robert Dole, the Kansan who recently succeeded Tennessee's Howard Baker as the top man on the Republican side of the senatorial aisle. He spoke as follows about his wish that budget-cutting would be the government's first order of business in 1985:

"If we in Washington can do the right thing on both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue and in a certain five-sided building across the river, the people will really have something to celebrate next New Year's Eve:

"Sustained economic expansion."

Each year the liars of the world are invited to participate in an interesting contest to determine who should be honored as the world's champion liar. This year's championship was won by George Covington, of Clinton, La., Mr. Covington, who certainly deserved the award, fibbed as follows:

"I honed my hunting knife to such an edge that when I removed it from the scabbard the shadow of the blade lopped off two kitchen-table legs and a ceiling-fan blade before I could reach the switch to turn the light off."

That's quite a lie, to tell the truth.

Another View: Reach for the stars

On your last camping vacation or fishing trip far from the bright lights of urban America, perhaps you gazed upward on a breathtakingly clear night and were struck with awe at the starry panorama. If so, you may be able to appreciate the elation of scientists at the California Institute of Technology, which has been given $70 million to construct the world's largest telescope.

The generous donor is the W.M. Keck Foundation of Los Angeles, whose grant will pay for all but $15 million of the cost of building the telescope and an observatory to house it atop a dormant volcano in Hawaii. The telescope will have a system of 36 mirrors with a total diameter of about 33 feet, which will permit study of a volume of space eight times greater than that visible with the currently largest telescope, on Palomar Mountain in California.

A telescope is more than just a device for looking at stars. It's also a time machine; the light it captures may have left a distant star billions of years earlier. The Keck scope is expected to pick up light from matter that is 12 billion years old — three quarters the estimated age of the universe.

Small wonder, then, that the scientists are gleeful. The Keck donation puts much more of the universe within their view. For now, the rest of the heavens can wait.

Nondefeatists save democracies

WASHINGTON — Defense of democracy depends on pessimists who are not defeatists. It depends on spirited realists such as Jean-Francois Revel. For the first time since 1922, when Mussolini seized power, all of Western Europe is democratic. But Revel fears that democracy could prove to be a brief parenthesis in history because democracy practices intellectual self-dismantment.

Part of the problem is the notion that nations that are merely imperfect have no standing to despise nations that are atrocious. Thus in Holland in 1981, a substantial portion of an opinion sample agreed that the Dutch could not criticize Soviet actions in Poland and Afghanistan "as long as housing conditions in Amsterdam fail to meet the highest standards of modern comfort, as long as women remain exploited and the legal rights of heterosexual married couples are denied to homosexual married couples."

Part of the problem is a reflex for self-delusion. It involves representing defeats as victories. For example, the State Department hailed the building of the Berlin Wall as a victory for the West because it revealed the "insecurity" of the East. Actually the wall, like another "victory," the Berlin Blockade, showed that the Soviet Union could abrogate U.S. rights without fear of serious reprisal. Revel's new book, "How Democrcies Perish," is a catalog of folly, at once hilarious and hair-curling, especially regarding the lingering death of detente. Either economic links to the West are unimportant to the Soviet Union, in which case detente was even dumber in theory than in practice, or they are important, in which case they should be used for leverage. But what happened when the Soviet Union, showing toward the West's warnings the disdain the warnings deserved, imposed martial law in Poland?

France's prime minister declared that, were the West to retaliate by denying new loans to the Eastern bloc, that would be equivalent to "an economic blockade" and "an act of war." Amazing. There is no bankable economy in Eastern Europe. Poland, especially, is hopelessly in hock to the West and without the ability or intention to repay. Yet it is "an act of war" to refuse to stop the piling of bad loans onto the mountain of bad loans.

George Kennan is a tireless auditor of the errors, as he sees them, of people who regard the Soviet regime as radically unlike other regimes. Ten weeks after the invasion of Afghanistan, he said: "Their immediate objective was purely defensive."

Now, leave aside the question of what the Soviet Union had to fear from the communist regime in Kabul that the invading Soviet forces replaced. But what if what Kennan says is true? What does it say about the possibility of detente with a regime that says its vital interests are incompatible with an imperfectly attuned communist regime in Afghanistan, an independent trade union in Poland and an Anatoly Scharansky outside prison walls?

When Cambodian communists buckled down to the drudgery (the work of idealists is never done) of murdering three million Cambodians, the communists almost certainly suffered horribly from blisters on their palms, a result of using clubs in what Revel calls "an orgy of exploding skulls." It was like the killing of baby seals, except the killing of the seals evokes more protests, and does not result in movies deflecting the blame from the seal killers.

A new movie, "The Killing Fields," earns the "Blame America First" Oscar by preaching (it is nothing if not preachy) that communists killed millions but the blame falls on — hey, you peeked — America. Why? Because American bombing of the communists drove them crazy. And you thought you had seen every wrinkle in the insanity defense? This version is: The guilty party is the one that deranges the killer by resisting him.

But as Revel notes, genocide can be discreet: "At a time when the entire world was anathematizing the war in Vietnam, an almost flawless program of genocide was being carried out in total secrecy a few thousand kilometers away on the same continent." The killers of millions of Tibetans were Chinese. One Tibetan had this experience: "Accused of having failed to stack the corpses correctly, he was forced to go down into the pit, where he sank into the heap of decomposing flesh. He was hauled out just in time to avoid asphyxiation."

America's conservative President refers to the regime responsible for killing the Tibetans as "so-called Communist China." Ponder that phrase. It is a symptom of the syndrome by which democracies perish.

Actor doesn't see character as tragic

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Art Malik says that despite everything that's happened in the "Jewel in the Crown," he doesn't consider Hari Kumar a tragic figure.

Malik, in this country for a brief visit, stars as the English-educated Indian in the critically acclaimed miniseries now unfolding on Mobil's "Masterpiece Theatre" on public television. It's based on four novels by Paul Scott, commonly called "The Raj Quartet."

Episode 6 is on Sunday night. Kumar was thrown into jail and tortured by a British police officer (Tim Pigott-Smith) after Daphne Manners (Susan Wooldridge) was raped by a group of Indians. The officer resents Daphne's love for Kumar and the fact that Kumar attended a more prestigious school than he did.

"I don't think Hari looked on himself as a tragic figure," said Malik. "I think he believes something would come, something would take him out of it. I never considered playing Hari for the sympathy vote."

Malik is also currently appearing in David Lean's new motion picture, "A Passage to India."

He was accompanied here by Miss Wooldridge and Charles Dance, whose character of Sgt. Guy Perron

— Susan Wooldridge, actress in "The Jewel in the Crown" of British Intelligence does not appear until the Feb. 17 episode.

Daphne, with her sad, haunting eyes, has cast a spell over viewers, particularly male viewers.

"She's shy but brave," Miss Wooldridge explained. "I think we all know someone like her. I think also that her role is so concentrated in the beginning of the series that you get to know her very well. I feel lucky that way. It was so funny when I was working on the film. Everyone was so fond of me and took such care of me. I think they all thought I was Daphne."

"But you must remember that Daphne drove an ambulance in the London blitz. She made her way alone halfway around the world. When I first started, the director told me I was blinking too much behind my glasses. He said Daphne that helpless wouldn't even be able to catch the No. 9 bus. Yes, she was shy, but she was also very brave and strong."

It is Daphne's rape that is the focus of the series, the metaphor for the British rule in India and the engine that drives the story forward. "Perron is the man who draws all the pieces together and puts the puzzle together," said Dance. "And he gets the girl." (But not Daphne, who dies in childbirth.)

Dance, as Perron, is the observer and the character generally regarded as being the author. The actor was spotted in the series when it played in England and was cast opposite Meryl Streep in "Plenty." British journalists called him "the thinking woman's pin-up" and "this year's crumpet."

Miss Wooldridge didn't work for 18 months after she completed filming "Jewel in the Crown" in India. "But I was lucky," she said, "because I knew this was coming up. I was once told the way to survive in this business was to prepare yourself for a lot of disappointment. I don't recommend that much unemployment for anyone, but it made everything that's happened since particularly sweet."

She has since starred in another British miniseries, this one about the "race" to the South Pole between English explorer Robert Scott and Norwegian Roald Amundsen. Amundsen got to the pole first, and Scott and his party died on their return trip. Miss Wooldridge plays Scott's wife.

Malik, who was born in Pakistan but has lived in England since he was 3, said prior to "Jewel" and "Passage," he "played the token Indian in British dramas."

But, he joked, "If people ever stop making films about India I'd never work again."

'Requiem' returns to Broadway

DALLAS (AP) — Rod Serling's "Requiem for a Heavyweight," first presented in 1956 as a "Playhouse 90" production on live network television, is returning to Broadway.

George Segal and John Lithgow share center stage in the production, which is trying out in Dallas prior to a March 7 preview date in New York.

The play centers around Mountain McClintock — played by Lithgow — an over-the-hill prize fighter who is victimized by his manager, Maish Resnick, portrayed by Segal.

"Everyone knows the title, but

'Angry' men, women lunch together

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A variety of entertainment industry figures got to state their diverse pet peeves recently at the Hollywood Radio and Television Society's "Twelve Angry Men and Women" luncheon.

"I'm getting tired of references to 'The Golden Age of Television.' I want THIS to be the Golden Age of Television," said Larry Lytle, vice president of program development at Warner Bros. Television.

CBS programmer Carla Singer complained that women and black directors have yet to find steady work on prime-time series, and Los Angeles Herald Examiner TV critic Elvis Mitchell followed with the companion observation that "the networks' idea of originality is to give black children black parents."

Thomas Radecki of the National Coalition on TV violence wanted to compress so many complaints into the three-minute per-person limit that he ended up drawing laughs from audience members who were reminded of the fast-talker on the Federal Express ad.

Legislature likely to pass tuition increase

By JULIE HILLRICH
Staff Writer

With state appropriations to Texas public colleges and universities soaring, and tuition rates remaining constant, students in Texas have enjoyed the benefits of a heavily subsidized education.

But some education researchers and government officials believe a more cost effective tuition policy is needed to avoid drastic cuts in educational services.

Gov. Mark White, in his state of the state address Tuesday, said he wants to raise $28.7 million by increasing tuition for non-Texans and for some graduate programs.

State Representative Tom Craddick, R-Midland, applauded the governor's proposal saying, "We've got to cut the budget somewhere."

Craddick said, however, he does not support a tuition hike for resident undergraduate or graduate students although he would be in favor of an increase for nonresidents and foreign students.

According to a Texas Research League analysis, issued this week, tuition fees in Texas public colleges and universities for resident undergraduate and graduate students are the lowest of any state in the nation — less than half the national average. Texas also ranks last in nonresident graduate tuition and next to last in nonresident undergraduate tuition.

In addition, tuition in Texas medical and dental schools for both residents and nonresidents is lower than any other state — from 10 to 20 percent of the national average.

FOR EXAMPLE, a nonresident undergraduate student attending a Texas public college pays $1,362 for a nine-month school year. That is less than what Maine, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia and other states charge their own residents to attend their state schools.

Also, a Texas undergraduate, who attends a state university in California, would pay $3,274 in tuition and fees — more than double the amount a Californian would pay to attend a Texas state university.

In other words, in other states it is cheaper for students to pay nonresident tuition in Texas rather than resident tuition in their home states, the analysis showed.

Craddick said in order to cut the state budget deficit — now reported to be $1.2 billion — "we must bring the cost of tuition in line with the national averages. Raising tuition for state residents would be nothing more than tax increase. I wouldn't be in favor of that."

The last significant increase in resident tuition occurred in 1967 when the amount was changed from $25 to $50 per semester, according to statistics. In 1971 the Legislature moved from a flat-rate tuition to a charge of $4 per semester credit hour. Thus, a full-time student (enrolled in 30 hours for consecutive semesters) now pays $120 per year in tuition.

Nonresident tuition has increased somewhat more during this time, however. In 1957 nonresident tuition, which was set by the governing board of each institution, was raised from not less than $75 nor more than $150 per semester to between $125 and $200 per semester. In 1971 the Legislature set nonresident tuition at $40 per semester credit hour for out-of-state students — or about $1,200 per school year.

FOREIGN STUDENTS, under a reciprocal tuition plan, paid $14 per semester credit hour until 1975 when the rate was set at the level paid by other nonresidents. Special exceptions, however, allowed more than 95 percent of the foreign students to continue to pay the $14 rate. Those exceptions were eliminated in 1979.

During the special legislative session in June, out-of-state tuition was increased to $46 per semester credit hour for 1985-86 and $53 for 1986-87. Tuition for foreign students was increased to $69 and $79.50 per semester credit hour for the respective years. A tuition increase for resident students was proposed, but failed to pass.

Dr. Duane Leach, president of the University of Texas at the Permian Basin, said he believes the Legislature will make a strong push to pass legislation requiring a tuition increase that will affect students across the board.

"Most people will be opposed to a tuition increase of any kind. But with the budgetary shortfalls, if people want quality education, they're going to have to be willing to pay for it," he said.

Leach added that a tuition hike for state residents probably will have no effect on enrollment at UTPB. "They won't like it, but they'll pay for it."

Midland College President Dr. Jess Parrish said he anticipates an increase of 50 cents to $6 for tuition across the board, adding that he favors such an increase as long as it "doesn't get out of the realm of the average person on the street."

OUT-OF-STATE students paid about 95 percent of per student costs in 1971, but only 31 percent in 1984.

When the new legislation goes into effect, nonresidents' tuition will pay approximately one-third of the institutional costs; foreign student tuition slightly more than one-half.

Current tuition rates, established in 1971 for state-supported medical and dental schools, are $400 for a 12-month year for residents and $1,200 for nonresidents.

Tuition for medical and dental students represents an even smaller portion of the educational cost than does tuition at general academic institutions. For the 1982-83 biennium, the Legislature appropriated approximately $40,000 per year for each full-time medical student and $28,000 per year for each full-time dental student. Still, resident tuition is only 1 percent of the estimated educational cost for a medical student and 1.4 percent of the cost per dental student.

Unlike most states, Texas separates the tuition and required fees assessed to students. The Legislature determines tuition rates on an ad hoc basis (for a specific purpose) while the college governing boards have the authority to set fees within state limits. Mandatory fees increased 157 percent during the 1970s — covering approximately 11 percent of the per student costs when combined with tuition, according to state estimates.

THE TUITION increase for all students attending Texas' public colleges — proposed last June — would have increased by 2 percent the student cost of education each year until it reached 15 percent and then be maintained. Medical and dental school tuition would have increased at the same 2 percent rate to a level of 10 percent of the educational cost while fees for nonresidents would have been proportionately higher.

Though legislators failed to pass the bill, it did direct the House Committee on Higher Education to develop other proposals to be presented to the 69th Legislature.

The new proposal would continue the current method of assessing tuition with the following changes:

— Resident tuition would increase by $2 per semester credit hour per year for the next 10 years.

— Resident medical and dental tuition would increase $200 per year for the next 10 years.

— Nonresident tuition would increase to eight times the amount charged to residents.

In addition, the Legislature would be required to review tuition rates every five years with a portion of the added revenue being dedicated to increased funding for student aid programs.

Judge sets date for suit against Odessa hospital

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The civil trial of a father-son surgical team which seeks from $20 million to $755 million in a lawsuit against Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, other orthopedic surgeons and insurance companies has been set for April 29 in federal court in Midland.

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton late Wednesday docketed the case for trial following a federal-court hearing in which about a dozen lawyers and 30 witnesses appeared. Only three testified.

Dr. Stephen E. Driscoll, 40, and his father, Dr. Edward T. Driscoll, contend their reputations were damaged and they were slandered by three other surgeons who allegedly had termed the Driscolls' surgical procedures as "incompetent," "horrible," and "unnecessary." Further, they claim workers' compensation insurance carriers and claims adjusters had libeled them by calling them "knife happy." In addition, the Driscolls say their livelihood would be jeopardized by their surgical privileges at the hospital removed.

THE DRISCOLLS were to answer charges, posed by the hospital's surgical committee and executive committee, on alleged infractions. But Bunton granted the Driscolls a temporary restraining order which postponed the hearings by the hospital's ad hoc committees of physicians.

The two are accused of using "unprofessional language and behavior" while in surgery; "inconsistent, inadequate and inappropriate" pre-operative evaluations; "superficial evaluations" which resulted in "early or unnecessary operative intervention;" "episodes of excessive use of medication;" "conflicts with the nurses;" and "unorthodox use of traditional treatment."

"The charges were ridiculous," the younger Driscoll testified in Wednesday's hearing for a preliminary injunction to prohibit the hospital from ending the Driscolls' practice at that facility. He also said the hospital's chief of surgery, Dr. C.C. Hutton, had indicated charges against the Driscolls "would be dropped if we were to leave town." Driscoll also was charged by the surgical committee with causing the death of a patient by use of excessive medication. "No, not true," he said. "I don't know which patient they are referring to."

"I DON'T THINK they like me," he said of the hospital's surgical staff, nursing force and insurance carriers. The surgeon, questioned by his attorney, Peter Fulton, said he viewed the hospital's nursing care as "less than adequate."

"When I make my rounds, the patients are full of complaints," ranging from bedpans to medication.

Bunton ordered the hearings on removing the Driscolls from the hospital to be held "no later than March 15" and the ad hoc committees' reports be submitted to him by April 15.

"The court is not in a position to look at 158 (medical) charts to determine if someone is doing a good job or a bad job," Bunton said. "I don't think this court or any court has any business running a hospital or any medical practice."

Further, Bunton ordered hospital staff physicians to refrain from monitoring the Driscolls' surgery. Fellow surgeons had been scrutinizing the Driscolls' surgical procedures, as required by hospital bylaws, after the Driscolls requested their status at the hospital be raised to staff surgeons. They now have only surgical privileges.

"THIS MATTER IS not going to be drug on, drug on and drug on," the judge said. "They (the Driscolls) are entitled to a hearing...and to due process."

Stephen Driscoll declined to comment on the upcoming trial and the judge's order for the ad hoc committees to hold hearings.

"I think the judge is trying to be very fair under the circumstances and to protect the Driscolls' rights," said Robert Truitt, co-counsel for the surgeons.

United Way announces funds' distribution

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

It took four months for the United Way of Midland to raise $1.95 million last year, but only a few minutes Wednesday to announce the money's dispersal among the 22 affiliated agencies.

Because the United Way is a steward for the financial generosity of Midland, "We are charged to be ever careful how we allot those precious dollars," said outgoing President Paul Rea at the annual meeting at the Midland Center. "Social conditions are changing. Family violence, rape, alcohol and drug abuse, divorce, youth and old age, day care, help for the needy and underprivileged are areas of concern that loom larger."

Agencies that perform "outdated services," or duplicate services provided by other agencies, or serve a very limited segment of the population, "however well they do their job, will have to justify our continued support," Rea said.

As an example of "outdated services," Rea said that agencies providing purely recreational services have less priority now than agencies which address social problems.

Allocations for 1985 included $120,000 for the American Red Cross; $49,000 for Big Brothers/Big Sisters; $120,598 for the Boy Scouts; $104,000 for the Boys Club; $29,700 for Camp Fire; $70,000 for Casa de Amigos;

$80,000 for the Community Day Nursery; $35,000 for the Council on Alcoholism; $137,000 for Family Services; $25,000 for the Midland Rape Crisis Center; $80,858 for the Palmer Drug Abuse Program; $42,500 for the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children; $76,000 for Permian Basin Girl Scouts; $225,000 for the Salvation Army; $28,860 for the Tape Lending Library; $17,409 for the West Texas Epilepsy Association; and $252,188 for the four YMCAs.

These allocations totaled $1.5 million; the other $450,000 will go to the American Cancer Society, United Way of Midland administrative costs, the United Way of Texas, the United Way of America, a contingency fund and a pledge-loss reserve.

Rea presented an honorary life membership to Jack Steele to recognize his efforts on behalf of the United Way over the past 20 years.

"Jack's contribution is unique because of the many leadership roles he has so successfully undertaken during his many years of service," Rea said.

"I do appreciate this very much," said Steele as he accepted the award. "The United Way is one of my favorite organizations, and I've enjoyed every bit of the time and effort I've put in."

What would it be like without work?

The supposed ideal state of mortal man would be to make a living without working. It would be sublime, not? And unrealistic?

It's not entirely unlikely. Chances of doing that are far better than living without prospects of dying.

Many there are who work industriously and save religiously so that they, in their latter years, can live without working. It's called retirement. But many in those so-called "golden years" are forced into working at surviving.

Some work is fruitful and fun. Some is laborious and worrisome. Some is boringly routine. Then there is just work-work.

Whoever said life was easy or even should be?

How does one live, say comfortably, without effort?

Well, first off, in the U.S. of A., it's quite un-American. But it's also a paradox. It is also quite American. It is un-American not to work; it's against principles of the work ethic. Work keeps the industrial-military complex thriving, the business world's paperwork stirring, the computers blinking, and the cash registers ringing, or, as they do these days, sputtering like demented tickers, spitting tape. And it is quite American to be leisurely rich, but there are not that many gold-clad Americans who can live lavishly without expending productive effort.

Nor should they.

The American fantasy (perhaps it's worldwide) is to live princely and to do one's will — whatever that might be — without worrying about that next paycheck. It would be a worldwide riot.

But the irony is this: Once you're in that leisure class, then you are locked into working at defining and redefining leisure. It becomes work and perhaps turns into enjoyment or into boredom. Many who don't have to work end up working anyway. It may not be due to the lack of anything else to do. It seems mankind was designed to work, to be productive and to develop some sort of self-worth in a process called continuous growth. The human being, like rusting machinery, seems to deteriorate if he's not up to something worthwhile.

Stepping back is the path to death. Even in nature, the fit survive; they keep active out of the instinct for survival. Golden and silver spoons, like the golden eggs, are mostly myths.

So, the upshot of all this dribble is quite simple: Since you've got to work or at least try to maintain an active life, you might as well enjoy what you're doing even if it means working.

Death Row inmates fearful after execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Billy G. Hughes said he and other Death Row inmates felt "a little bit of despair" after hearing of Doyle Skillern's execution.

Hughes, who was convicted in the 1976 shooting death of an officer making an undercover drug buy, said Wednesday most of the inmates awaiting execution were quiet and somewhat fearful after Skillern was put to death.

Skillern, 48, was executed early Wednesday for the 1974 killing of Patrick Randel, an undercover narcotics agent who worked for the Department of Public Safety.

Randel, whose 21-year-old daughter, Sheila Randel, works as a teletype operator for the DPS in Midland, was shot six times by Charles Sanne, 51, during a drug buy. Trial testimony showed Skillern and Sanne were trying to sell Randel $1,000 worth of Quaaludes when Sanne fired the shots which killed the officer.

Checks should be made to "Rebel." Yearbooks will not be sold after Jan. 25.

Texas' only woman state senator, Cyndi Taylor Krier, R-San Antonio, poses with a huge ID card presented in recognition of her vain attempt to get on the House floor for a speech by Gov. Mark White to a joint session of the Legislature Tuesday.

New state senator gets Texas-sized identity card

AUSTIN (AP) — State senators, who seldom miss a chance to rib House members, have presented a suitcase-sized ID card to a senator whose attempt to get on the House floor was blocked by doorkeepers.

Sen. Cyndi Taylor Krier, on the job only about a week, was barred from the House chamber Tuesday when she showed up to hear Gov. Mark White's speech to the Legislature.

Ms. Krier, a lawyer and San Antonio Republican, chose to go upstairs to the visitors' gallery rather than insisting on a downstairs seat with other senators.

Ms. Krier, who was not carrying her official Senate photo identification, said, "I guess I could have bulled my way in, saying, 'I'm a state senator.' But I didn't."

"Lots of those in the Senate are new faces to us over here," said House Sergeant-at-Arms Ron Hinkle, who wrote Ms. Krier an immediate letter of apology. Hinkle said he told her "it won't happen again." Legislators never wear their IDs, depending on employees and others to recognize them.

On Wednesday, Sen. Chet Edwards presented Ms. Krier with a large photo ID labeled "Official Legislative Identification — Texas Department of Public Safety."

"Carry it with you everywhere you go," said Edwards, D-Duncanville. "It might even get you a parking place at the Capitol."

The youthful-looking Edwards, at 33 the youngest senator, told the 34-year-old Ms. Krier "I can empathize with you." Edwards said that during his legislative career he had been mistaken for a page and high school student.

He also recalled for reporters a possibly apocryphal story about former U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, trying to get on the Senate elevator in Washington after returning from a barbecue, dressed in a cowboy hat and boots.

TIPRO opposes raising permit fees

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An increase in Railroad Commission drilling permit fees, from $100 to $900, is among the new or expanded fees proposed by Gov. Mark White to improve the state revenue picture.

Larry Springer, spokesman for Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said TIPRO's reaction to the proposal is "unfavorable."

He said a detailed statement was planned by the association.

White proposed to use $700 of the $900 increase for funding programs within the Railroad Commission, in place of General Revenue Fund monies, with a savings to General Revenue of $49.2 million during the 1985-87 biennium.

The other $100 in additional fees would be used to expand the well plugging work of the RRC.

Various other fee increases, including some for various permits issued by the Department of Water Resources, are proposed under White's plan.

Man released from jail after print doesn't match one from woman's car

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man released from jail after his fingerprint was wrongly matched with one on a dead woman's car will still be treated as a possible suspect, officials say.

Timothy Paul Volkmar was released from the Tarrant County jail Wednesday, not long after authorities dismissed a murder charge against him that was based on a misidentified fingerprint found on Lisa Griffin's car.

Ms. Griffin, 20, was the latest of five women to either disappear or be found slain in southwest Fort Worth since September. Four other area murders of women are also under investigation.

Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter said detectives will continue to investigate Volkmar as a possible suspect in the Jan. 9 murder of Ms. Griffin.

"We're still working on evidence," Carpenter said. "But we don't want anyone in jail unless he deserves to be there."

Also Wednesday, a state district judge dismissed a probation revocation motion that had also kept Volkmar, 25, in jail.

"I'm kind of surprised," said Volkmar, who had been arrested Saturday and charged with murder. "I didn't know the truth could work so quick."

His parents, Faye and Lloyd Volkmar, met their son outside the jail. "It has been a nightmare, but we were confident he wasn't guilty," Mrs. Volkmar said.

Volkmar, who has a history of mental problems and was on probation for assault, was arrested and charged by the Tarrant County sheriff's office.

But when Fort Worth police looked at the case in connection to their own probe into the murders, they said the fingerprint found on Griffin's car did not match Volkmar's print.

Sheriff's officials later concurred. "He's suffered considerable harm," said Volkmar's attorney, Allan Butcher. "But it's premature for me to say anything about the propriety of what happened" with the murder charge.

Woman who killed husband gets $20,000 from his estate

BAY CITY (AP) — A former hairdresser sentenced to life in prison for her husband's murder reached an out-of-court settlement with the dead man's mother to accept $20,000 from his estate.

Fran Turner, convicted of murder in the hired killing of her husband, Robert Turner, agreed to the settlement with Turner's mother, Roberta Turner, of Bay City.

Turner was killed in March 1982 at a roadside park near Richmond. An autopsy showed he had been stabbed more than 60 times.

Mike Miller, a lawyer in the case, was quoted as saying that Roberta Turner made the agreement rather than have her son's $500,000 estate tied up in litigation while Fran Turner appeals her murder conviction.

Fran Turner, a former Bay City hairdresser, married Turner in Colorado and separated shortly after she was named beneficiary on his $300,000 life insurance.

In her trial last February, testimony showed she hired a Bay City cable television installer, Michael Hunter, to help her kill Turner.

Officials stay away from waste dump hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials, including some who have been outspoken against a nuclear waste dump in Texas, were noticeably absent at a U.S. Department of Energy informational hearing on the proposed site.

The meeting at the Sheraton Crest Hotel in Austin Wednesday night was designed to discuss preliminary assessment studies of the site in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties as potential locations for the first permanent repository for high-level nuclear waste in the nation.

The audience was outnumbered by the 30 DOE officials and contractors on hand to answer questions.

The reception was a sharp contrast to the Hereford briefing where more than 400 people showed up Tuesday. About 60 people attended the Tulsa briefing at which federal officials said the Swisher site is all but out of the running for the underground waste repository.

Missing from the Austin meeting were top state officials, many of whom have sharply criticized the energy department for the selection process.

Several elected officials, including

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and Attorney General Jim Mattox, sent staff representatives, but it was not surprising that the officials did not attend.

Steve Frishmen, director of the Texas nuclear waste program office, said he urged Gov. Mark White and other state officials not to attend.

"We didn't expect to hear anything new," he said. Instead the state plans to attend public hearings to be held by the Energy Department in the three cities beginning late next month, Frishmen said.

Among those in attendance here were Richard and Marilyn Vrba, who had been giving some thought to moving to the Panhandle, but not if the government is going to put a nuclear waste burial ground there.

"There is no way we would go there if that's what there going to do," said Ms. Vrba, who was among a dozen people attending the briefing.

"I would like to know how they think they could build a safe site there," said Vrba, whose family wanted to find out what the government is up to in the Panhandle. "But they didn't give us any specifics that could give us any assurances."

Bill Bennett, a Department of Energy official, steps out into the audience to speak on how the DOE will select a nuclear repository site at a briefing in Hereford.

Battle over gay rights ordinances gains momentum

HOUSTON (AP) — The battle for votes in a Saturday referendum on gay rights ordinances gained momentum this week, with a former congresswoman, a rabbi and a physician joining the hubbub.

Former U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan began appearing this week in television commercials urging voters to support the two ordinances, which have become the center of controversy in recent weeks.

At issue are two propositions that would block the city of Houston from discriminating against homosexuals in its employment practices. City council passed the ordinances last summer, but a petition drive that collected more than 61,000 signatures forced the city to set an election on the issue.

Absentee voting on the issue closed Tuesday with a total of 3,806 votes cast. Another 753 absentee ballots have been mailed and not yet returned.

The Houston Post quoted city officials as saying the absentee vote was unusually high and may indicate the overall turnout may be greater than the original projections of 6 to 8 percent.

Officials of the Campaign for United Houston, a group campaigning for passage of two gay-rights ordinances, said Ms. Jordan has endorsed their efforts, and taped television and radio commercials for the organization.

The commercials are part of a final push by the pro-gay rights group to garner support in Saturday's election.

Campaign activity against the issue also has intensified. Anti-gay groups have brought in a physician from California and a rabbi from New York to speak at rallies and meetings against the ordinances.

A group of prominent local lawyers announced on Tuesday their opposition to passage of the ordinances.

The group, calling themselves Attorneys Against the Ordinance and Resolution, denounced the proposed ordinances at a news conference.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T Communications) gives notice to all of its Texas customers that a new procedure for long distance billing was made effective on an interim basis on August 6, 1984 in Docket No. 5800.

The procedure referred to is "Rate Period Specific Billing" and it applies to all message telephone service (AT&T Long Distance calls) including non-REACH OUT Texas calls within the State of Texas. This new procedure effects all AT&T Long Distance customers. All intraLATA long distance calls and all interstate long distance calls are currently billed using this procedure.

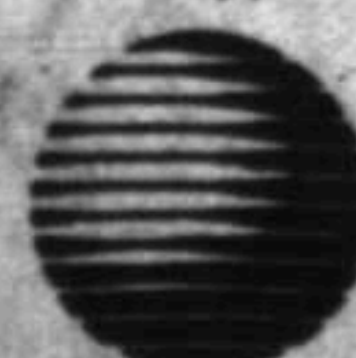

Under this procedure, customers are billed a specific charge for long distance calls according to the rate or rates in effect throughout the time of each call. If a call begins in one rate period and extends into a different rate period, the customer will be charged whatever rate is in effect for each portion of the call.

For example, if a customer places a call at 4:58 p.m. on a weekday and talks for ten minutes, the first two minutes of the call would be charged at the full weekday rate which extends from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The remaining eight minutes of the call would be billed at the evening rate which extends from 5:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. and includes a 25% discount. If Rate Period Specific Billing were not in effect, the entire call would have been billed at the higher day rate. Calls which extend from the evening rate period (25% discount) to the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) or from the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) to the day rate period (no discount) would also be billed according to the actual minutes of use during each rate period.

AT&T Communications anticipates a minimal increase of approximately .02% in its revenues or approximately $250,000 annually.

A complete copy of the "Rate Period Specific Billing" tariff is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

WHEN GERMAN DRIVERS PICKED THE WORLD'S BEST CARS,
THEY PREFERRED SWEDEN'S SAAB TO Porsche, BMW AND AUDI.

To tell you the truth, the Germans surprised us this year. The readers of Auto Motor und Sport, Germany's leading auto magazine, vote for their favorite cars in several categories every year. This year again, they named the Saab Turbo as the "best imported car under 2.5 liters." That didn't surprise us. We've now won that category for each of the last four years. We are pleased to have won again. We're honored by their choice. But we're not surprised. What did surprise us was the voting for the best cars regardless of category. In that tally, German drivers preferred the Saab Turbo to such famous German performance cars as the Porsche 911, the BMW 318i and the Audi Turbo. You know, maybe there really is some truth to those television commercials we've seen about how knowledgeable German drivers are. They sure seem to know our car.

Chaps roll to Chap

One albatross down, Hawks next

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland College returns to Langford Chaparral Center tonight for first time in more than a month fresh from what probably is their biggest win of the season.

When the Chaps beat Amarillo College, 69-68, in overtime at Amarillo Monday night, it not only was a victory over a Western Junior College Athletic Conference contender, but a road victory as well. And road wins are juicy morsels in this league. What's more, it came over a team that was their biggest tormentor a year ago.

The Badgers had a four-game success string going against Midland, beating MC by two, three and seven points last year and then winning 69-58 in the finals of the Amarillo tournament back in November. So, with the win Monday, the Chaps divested themselves of an annoying albatross.

Another plus was the fact that the Chaps won a big one without an adequate tuneup after the long layoff. A couple of games last week in Big Spring against less-than-taxing opposition is the only competitive action MC has had since the holiday break.

SPEAKING of an albatross, the Chaps' "welcome back" opponent at 8 p.m. today will be Howard College, another opponent that usually has Coach Jerry Stone reaching for a glass of water to wash down the aspirin.

Howard not only gave MC trouble on its way to the WJAC championship a year ago, but was the team that handed MC the first of its two losses a few years back when Midland was stringing together a run of conference and regional titles.

Midland is 14-2 for the season and 5-0 in conference. Howard is below 500 for the season and in conference play.

Adding to the bushwhacking possibility tonight is the fact that Midland will play Odessa College, 5-0 and ranked No. 4 nationally, at Odessa Monday night. If Howard catches MC looking back in relief and ahead in anticipation, well, let's not think about it...

POOKEY WIGINGTON, MC's 54 freshman guard, popped in the game winner at Amarillo Monday with one-second left in overtime. For a while it looked as though it might be a replay of 1983-84 all over again when MC let a five-point lead get away in the final minutes and had to go for the extra period.

It was the only basket Wigington made all night.

Six-nine Tevin Binn was the game's high scorer for MC with 18, but Chuckie Graves with 12 and Vernon Coleman 13 were big contributors.

The loss was the second of the season in WJAC for Amarillo, both at home.

Odessa College delivered the other blow and Coach Archie Meyers' Wranglers have established themselves as the team to beat.

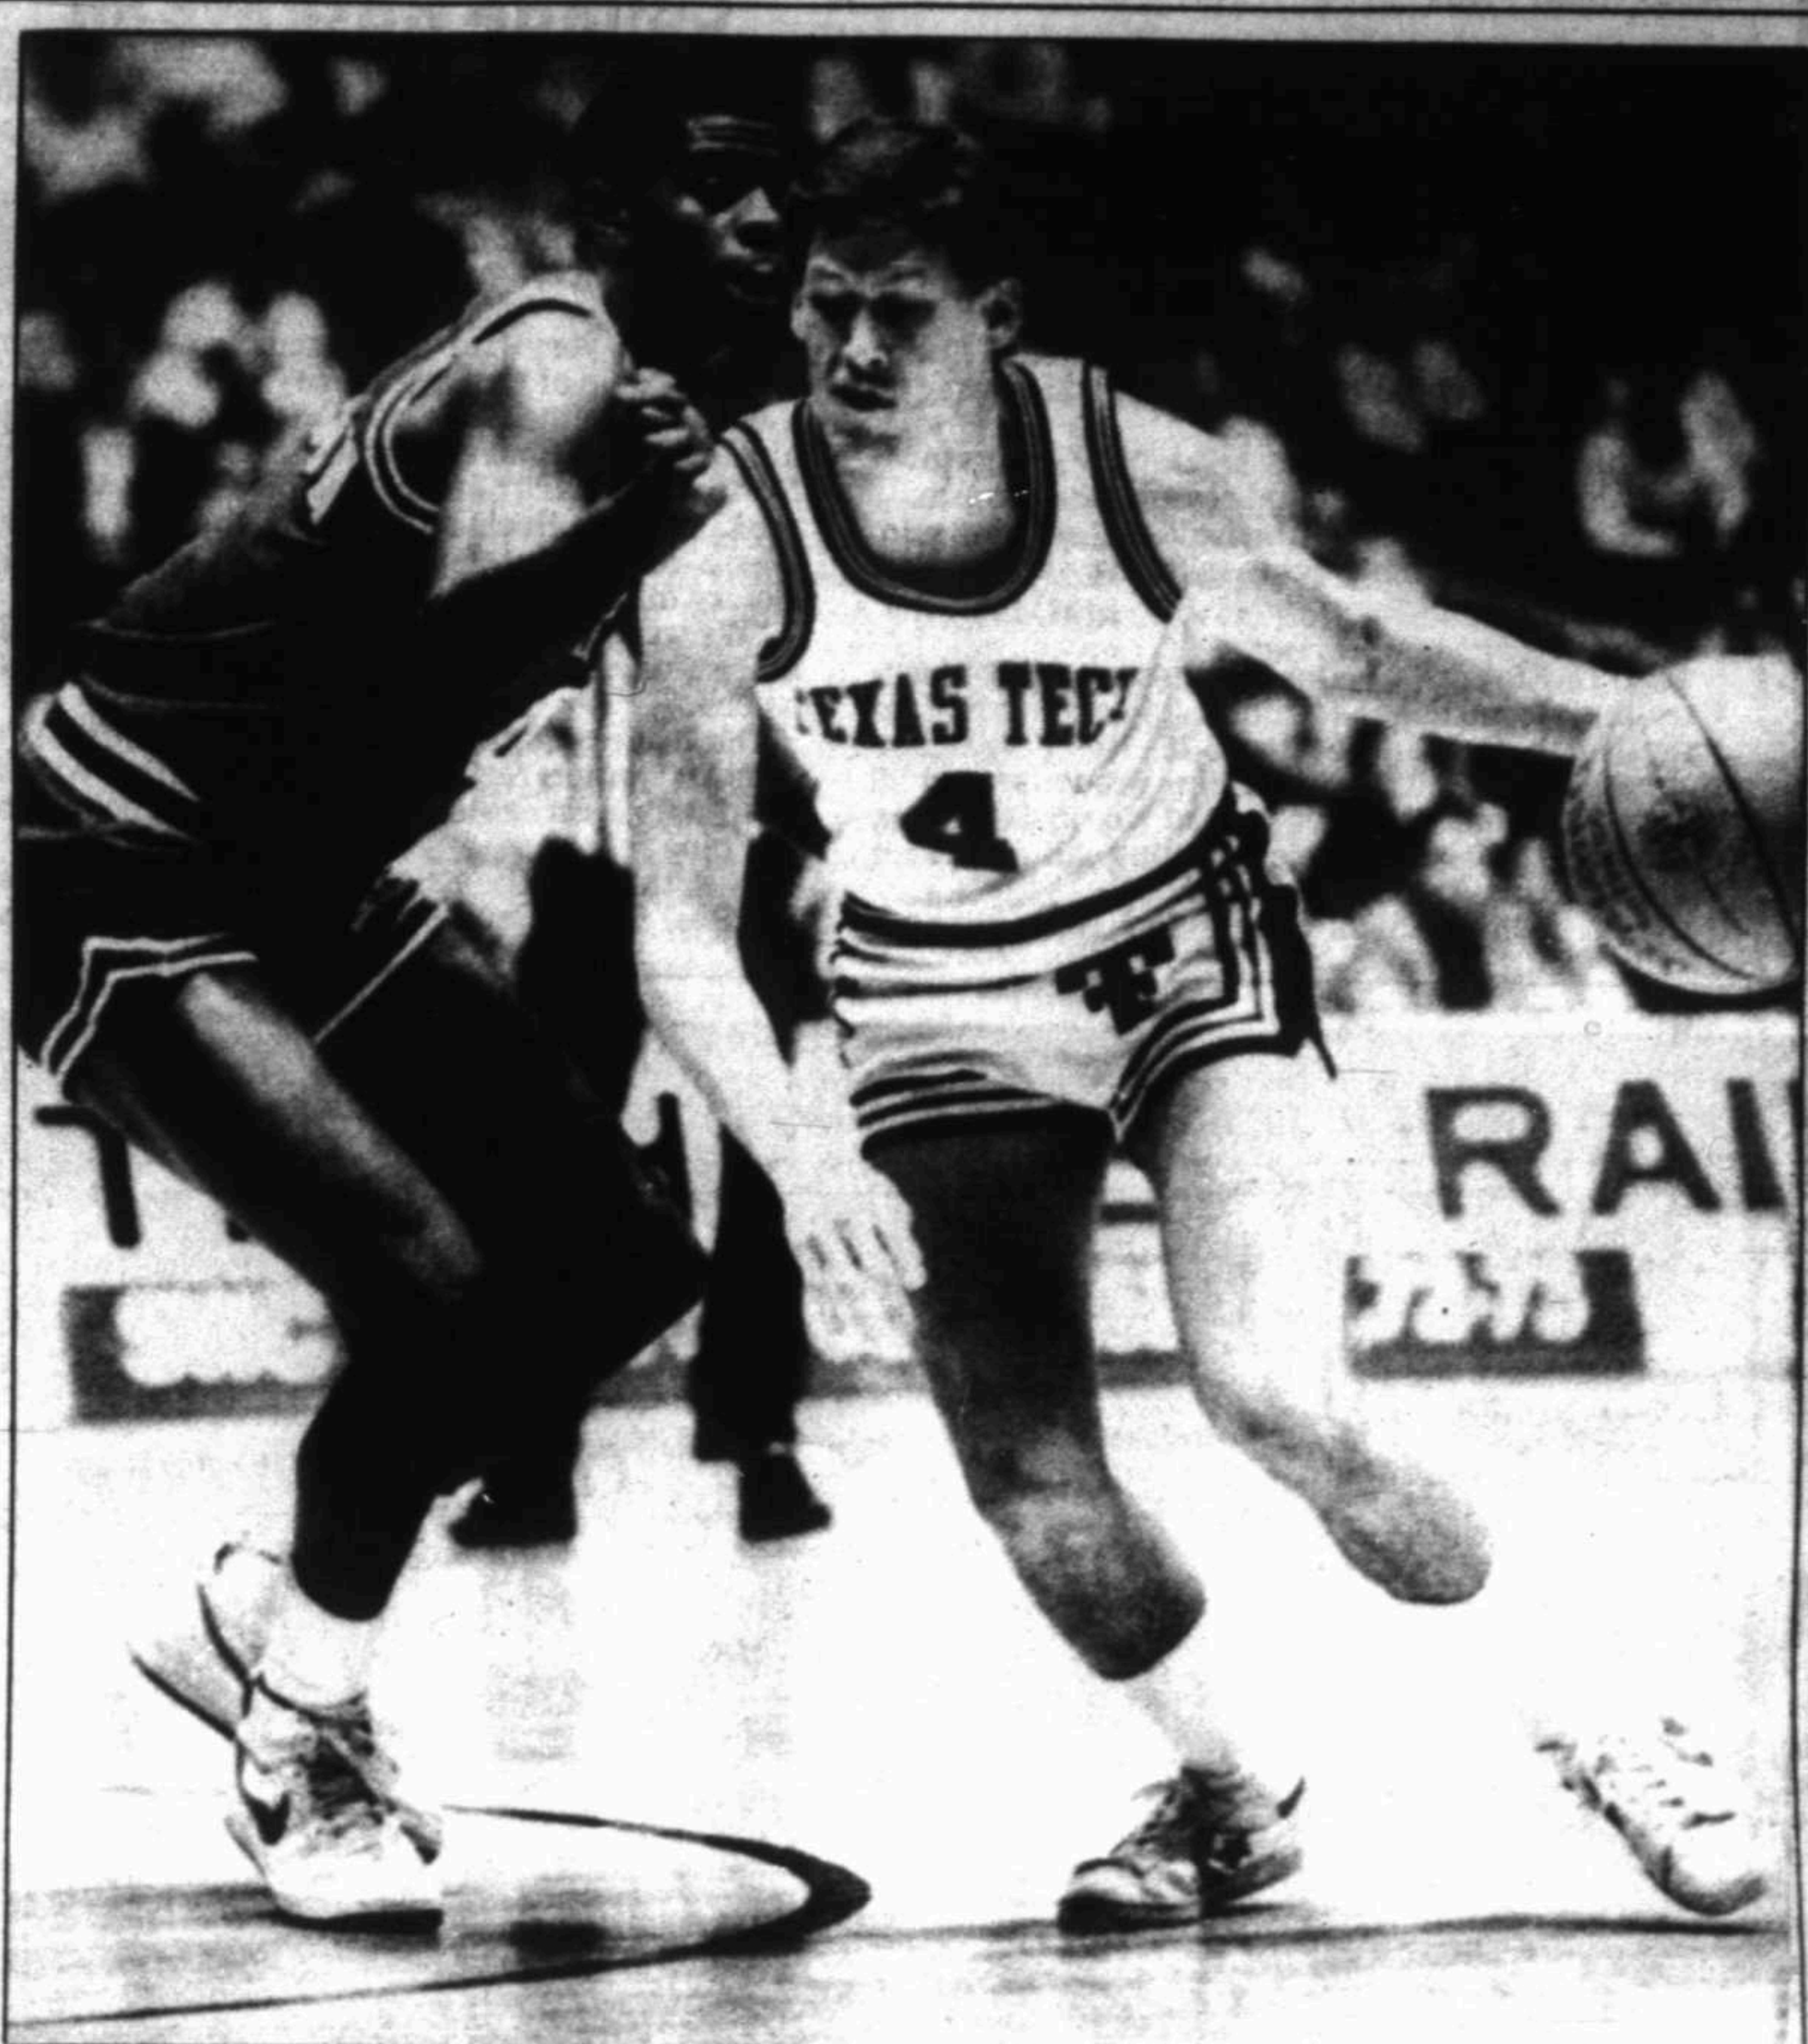

With a 17-1 record, OC is ranked fourth nationally. San Jacinto, 14-1, is the only other Texas team ranked.

While Midland was winning Monday at Amarillo, OC was experiencing more trouble than expected against South Plains, still winless in WJAC, at Levelland.

BRUCE KIMBLE, averaging 18.0 points a game, is the Hawks' leading scorer while Will Rogers has a 16.0 average and Joe Burney 13.0.

On the boards, HC's Walter Reynolds is among the league leaders with eight a game and is fifth in blocks. Mike Porter, fifth in assists, runs the offense. Porter also is the team's steal leader with 35 for 12 games.

In WJAC action, Howard lost to Western Texas, 101-86; Frank Phillips, 84-71; and Amarillo, 78-65. In a non-conference game, Howard lost to OC by 10.

Texas Tech guard Bubba Jennings drives against Arkansas guard Kenny Hutchison as the Raiders handed Arkansas its worst Southwest Conference loss in history, 64-48, Wednesday.

Raiders slaughter Hogs

Associated Press

Arkansas coach coach Eddie Sutton was feeling tired and philosophical over the worst conference game loss one of his teams has ever suffered in Southwest Conference play.

"We've had a lot of great games here in Lubbock, but this wasn't one of them," he said after Texas Tech "drubbed" his Razorbacks 64-48 Wednesday night. "We've won a lot of close games here, but this certainly wasn't very close. Texas Tech displayed its maturity and shot extremely well."

Senior guard Bubba Jennings canned 20 points and Texas Tech hit a school record 67.5 percent from the floor en route to the thumping.

IN OTHER Southwest Conference play Wednesday night, Texas A&M overcame Texas Christian 65-60 in overtime, Texas squeezed past Baylor 68-65 and Houston beat Rice 77-73.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers was quick to credit his defense after the Raiders limited Arkansas to just 19 of their 55 field goal attempts.

"We came out in the second half and played with great effort on defense," Myers said. "I have to give everybody on our team credit for the job they did. Our defense was good throughout the game and we just had a tremendous effort by all of our guys."

Jennings fueled Texas Tech's hot-handed effort by hitting nine of 12 field goal attempts, including seven of seven in the first half, as the Raiders withstood a tremendous 32-point performance by Arkansas senior center Joe Kleine.

The Raiders are now 3-1 in conference play and 10-4 overall, while Arkansas fell to 3-2 and 12-5.

Texas A&M's squad also showed its mettle in their overtime victory over Texas Christian.

Only seven players — six in the second half — played in the entire game, and they'd fought to a 51-51 tie before going into overtime and pulling out the victory.

"I am really proud of our guys," said a relieved A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf. "They showed a lot of courage down the stretch. We only played six men in the second half and they had to be tired."

A&M raised its record to 10-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference, while TCU slipped to 9-7 and 1-4.

Houston guard Eric Dickens scored six straight points and Braxton Clark hit a layup in the final 1:36 to rally the Cougars to their narrow victory over Rice.

The surge by Dickens and Clark gave Houston a 70-69 lead with 1:20 left in the game, and Dickens added two more free throws with 12 seconds to go that put the game out of reach for the Owls.

HOUSTON, 11-4 for the season, upped its SWC record to 3-1. Rice dropped to 8-7 and 1-3 and now trails the series 28-1 against their cross-town rivals.

In Waco, Texas center John Brownlee scored 21 points, and the Longhorns held off a furious 22-point Baylor rally to defeat the Bears.

Paced by guards Carlos Briggs and Eric Johnson, the Bears subsequently outscored Texas 12-0 to tie the game at 59 with 2:36 remaining. Six points, four on free throws in the final 44 seconds by Texas guard Karl W. Lock, lifted the Longhorns to their third SWC victory against two losses.

Texas is 10-5 overall while Baylor is 7-8 and 0-4 in the conference.

Super Bowl security arm for worst

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A helicopter, a small army of police and private security agents, an 8-foot fence with barbed wire and standby riot squads are part of an elaborate plan to protect the Super Bowl teams and fans at the game.

"We hope for the best and plan for the worst," said National Football League security director Warren Welsh.

Authorities expect about 110,000 people in and outside Stanford Stadium on Sunday.

Officials involved in guarding San Francisco 49ers players and coaches and the public from enthusiastic fans and others are reluctant to discuss details such as numbers of police or costs.

"Let's just say they have great big guys to protect those great big guys," said San Francisco deputy police chief and Super Bowl security chairman George Emil.

But the 85,000 who plunked down $60 and a lot more for a ticket to attend the game can get an idea of what to expect.

First of all, according to Stanford public safety director Marvin Herrington, the closest glimpse of players that fans are likely to get is on a TV set.

"They're coming in by bus and the crowd won't be able to get near them either coming in or getting out," he said.

HOME TEAM fans may be distressed when they find their seats, but the NFL specifically programs ticket sales so fan seats are away from the field "to dampen the enthusiasm of someone who might want to get onto the field," said Emil.

Those who try to swarm the field after the game will have to break through a ring of 300 police guarding the turf. Welsh says only two people have managed that at Stanford in the last seven years.

Fans won't be allowed to bring anything but themselves and a raincoat or warm jacket. Alcoholic beverages, umbrellas and coolers are on a list of items that can't be carried in.

Herrington said fans can buy drinks at the game, but can't bring their own. He insisted restrictions are due primarily to space concerns, but admitted an umbrella ban is partly because of its potential as a weapon.

"It causes friction among the fans when somebody brings in a cooler, picnic basket and umbrella, and another fan says, 'Hey, where am I going to sit?'" Herrington said.

Approximately 500 police and security agents will be on hand to discourage anyone daring enough to try scaling the 8-foot fence topped with six rows of barbed wire surrounding the facility. They will be arrested on the spot. So will out-of-control drunks, brawlers, and ticket scalpers.

Santa Clara County Sheriff's Lt. Robert Wilson said his department is trying to transfer inmates from the nearby Palo Alto jail to make room for Super Bowl arrests, which he predicted could run to more than 100. Deputies in a special riot team also will be on hand.

A booking office will be set up on the campus with five patrol cars to transport anyone arrested to jails in Palo Alto, San Jose or Milpitas.

Herrington said he doesn't expect serious trouble with Super Bowl fans. "First of all, it's going to be crowded. Second, it's probably going to be cold," he said of reports that game-time temperatures will be in the 50s.

Emil said surveys show 80 percent of people at Super Bowls earn $60,000 a year or more.

"The kind who make $60,000 a year aren't the type who are going to climb the fence," he said, blaming problems on those who can't afford tickets but come to hang around the game or prey on those who do.

Baseball negotiations hit snag

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations for a new baseball contract were cancelled Wednesday over a disagreement involving remarks made by Houston Astros owner John McMillen concerning the game's financial state, the union said.

Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, said the next negotiations were "tentatively scheduled for the week after next, on a rather more intensive basis."

Fehr said the reason negotiations with the owners were not held Wednesday — or Tuesday, when they originally were scheduled to resume — was that "we haven't solved the problem yet that arose from comments made by John McMillen."

The last session was held Jan. 9 in New York, where the McMillen issue first was raised.

Last month, Fehr said, McMillen remarked that "the players must remove some of the control Marvin Miller and Don Fehr have over them and that baseball has severe financial problems." Miller is the former union head.

Fehr added: "If he meant that and if that is the view of the clubs, it's very troublesome... we don't take it lightly."

McMillen is a member of the executive board of the Player Relations Committee, which oversees labor negotiations for baseball's owners. Baseball's current labor contract expired on Dec. 31.

Fehr said that before the union could continue negotiations "we've got to know if John is correctly voicing their position (the position of ownership). We've got to know which is which."

If owners were to use financial difficulties as a negotiating tool, they would have to open their books for public scrutiny, a move unprecedented in the game.

Both the union and the Player Relations Committee confirmed Wednesday that the two sides had exchanged correspondence regarding the McMillen issue.

"The psychological hill we had to climb was a big one." In any sport the mental part is equally as important as the physical aspect. If you don't believe you can accomplish good things before the start of a game, the other team sure isn't going to give you any encouragement." — West Texas State coach Don Davis after his football team beat Abilene Christian, 14-10, to snap an 18-game losing streak.

Super Bowl: Shula against Walsh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Don Shula and Bill Walsh are two very different individuals — the first forceful, the other professorial; one caustic, the other contemplative; one with a military demeanor, the other with a corporate outlook.

Yet, in their own ways, they are very much alike — both winners.

They have, in one respect, common roots. They are both alumni of the Paul Brown School of Coaching. Shula as a defensive back with the Cleveland Browns, Walsh as an assistant with Cincinnati after Brown had taken over as head coach of the Bengals.

Yet they have taken the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers along very different, almost ironic, routes to Super Bowl XIX.

Shula has a defensive background, yet his Dolphins scored more points than any National Football League team this season. Walsh is offense-minded, yet his 49ers allowed fewer points than any team.

On Wednesday, at a news conference for much of the estimated 2,000 members of the media descending on the Bay Area for Sunday's game at Stanford Stadium, Walsh called Brown the creator of the modern era in coaching.

"He was a teacher, the first person who really taught about organization, about planning. He brought science to football and anyone associated with Paul had an opportunity to live in that atmosphere and absorb it."

"I'm sure it affected Don," Walsh said. "I'm certain it affected me."

After their respective news conferences, the teams resumed workouts — both virtually injury-free — the 49ers at their own Redwood City training camp (they have the option of using Candlestick Park, their home stadium and the assigned site for the National Conference game), the Dolphins at Oakland Coliseum, former home of the Raiders.

Paul Lankford, the reserve defensive back who comes on in Miami's prevent-defense situations, said he had recovered from the twisted knee sustained in the Dolphins' 45-28 American Conference championship victory over Pittsburgh.

John Frank, a rookie backup tight end who suffered a dislocated elbow in the 49ers' 23-0 NFC title victory over Chicago, may be replaced on San Francisco's roster by reserve linebacker Ron Ferrari, an injured reserve with a knee injury since Nov. 11.

Chuck Studley has worked for both Walsh and Shula. During 1979-82, he was San Francisco's defensive coordinator. He left the 49ers for Houston when it appeared Walsh would be relinquishing his coaching duties.

After spending 1983 with the Oilers, the final 10 games as interim head coach (he took himself out of the running for the head job), Studley joined the Dolphins, also as defensive coordinator.

"There are similarities and there are marked contrasts between them, but they're both successful — extremely successful," Studley said Wednesday. "And both of them are in complete control."

"Our players know that Don Shula's the boss. The 49ers know that Bill Walsh is the boss. There's no one to go to. There's no higher appeal the way it is on other teams, where the owner is always meddling... They just prove there's more than one way to get the job done."

Studley said Shula tends to be "much more involved in the moment-to-moment operation of all aspects of our football," sitting in with each unit at various times, questioning, suggesting, not directing.

Providence helps Georgetown end frustrations

Associated Press

After suffering through two overtime games in its last three outings, it figured that top-ranked Georgetown would take out its frustrations on some unfortunate college basketball team. Providence became that victim.

In a game that was over early, the unbeaten Hoyas mauled the Friars 85-44 Wednesday night to extend their winning streak to 27 games.

"They made us look bad," said Providence Coach Joe Mullaney, whose club fell behind 21-7 after 12 minutes and never recovered.

Despite the ease of the triumph, Georgetown Coach John Thompson found reason for criticism.

"I'm never pleased with the defense," he said. "This team still hasn't done anything yet this season."

IN OTHER Top 20 action Wednesday, No. 6 North Carolina stormed back from a 15-point deficit to bury North Carolina State 86-76, No. 7 Syracuse stopped Seton Hall 90-60 as Mike Brown scored 23 points and Wendell Alexis 21, and No. 13 Oklahoma overcame the foul trouble plaguing All-American Wayman Tisdale to rip Missouri 82-65.

Georgetown led 51-22 after a 16-2 spurt opening the second half and upped the bulge to 66-31 before Thompson emptied the bench with seven minutes left.

College Basketball

All-American Patrick Ewing scored 21 points and grabbed 12 rebounds for Georgetown, 16-0 this season. Providence, 8-8, was led by Brian Walker's eight points.

"It was a very bad performance, and sometimes we're capable of that," Mullaney said.

North Carolina State used an 8-2 spurt to build a nine-point halftime edge into a 51-36 advantage over North Carolina. Then the roof fell in on the Wolfpack. The Tar Heels scored 26 of the next 33 points over a nine-minute span in carving out their 13th victory in 15 games.

"We were up by 15, then nothing," North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano said. "It was an avalanche."

The leader of the North Carolina comeback was 6-foot-11 junior forward Warren Martin, who finished with a career-high 16 points, six blocked shots and nine rebounds.

"Yes, this was the best game Warren has played," Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith said. "But he's going to have better ones. He's coming on. It takes big men longer to develop. This has to help his confidence."

Brad Daugherty scored 17 points to lead six double-figure scorers for North Carolina. North Carolina State, 9-5, got 31 points from Lorenzo Charles, including 20 as the Wolfpack built a 43-34 intermission margin.

Syracuse, 11-1, led seven-time loser Seton Hall only 50-48 early in the second half before pulling away, and Coach Jim Boheim wasn't happy.

"We're just not playing the way we have to play to beat good basketball teams," he said. "We're not consistent either as individuals or as a basketball team."

For his part, Seton Hall Coach Pete Carlesimo was upset that his club failed to seize the opportunity. The Pirates missed 12 of 29 free throw attempts.

"We beat ourselves," he said. "You can't make mental mistakes and miss free throws and expect to win."

COACH BILLY Tubbs knew his reserves would be tested after Tisdale, Oklahoma's two-time All-America forward, picked up two personal fouls within 19 seconds early in the first half against Missouri. With Tisdale riding the bench for 15 minutes, the reserves got the call — and came through handsomely.

"I thought Oklahoma's support people really played well," Missouri Coach Norm Stewart said. "We tried to make a run at them in the second half, which we did, but we couldn't crack that 10-point barrier."

Tisdale, who scored 14 of his 16 points in the first half in helping the Sooners to a 52-39 lead, went to the bench with his fourth foul with 18 minutes to play. Missouri trimmed the deficit to 10 on two occasions, but could get no closer.

Freshman Richard Madison's two free throws with 18 seconds to play gave Kentucky a 58-57 decision over Mississippi State and sole possession of the Southeastern Conference lead at 4-1. Mark Gottfried's 25-footer with three minutes left gave Alabama the lead for good in a 60-55 verdict over Auburn that pushed the Crimson Tide to 4-2 in the SEC. Georgia beat Florida 71-60 and Tennessee stopped Vanderbilt 87-79 in other SEC matches.

Len Bias scored a career-high 27 points and Jeff Adkins added 24 as Maryland beat Clemson 94-84 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In the Metro Conference, Southern Mississippi beat injury-riddled Louisville 72-63 and Cincinnati pummeled South Carolina 73-51, while in the Big Eight, Nebraska defeated Kansas State 75-63 and Oklahoma State ripped Colorado 94-76.

Celtics win finals replay

Mavs, Rockets run out of fuel

Associated Press

Magic Johnson remembers last June's National Basketball Association Championship Series with some regret. Although the result was the same, the Los Angeles Lakers' latest trip to Boston Garden won't have the same bad memories.

"You take it hard because you lost. But I'm taking it good because we played well," Johnson said after the Lakers lost to the Celtics 104-102 Wednesday night on Kevin McHale's short bank shot with one second left. "We're not sitting here thinking about last season. I think everybody knows if it (a Boston-Los Angeles final) ever happens again, it'll be a great series again."

Twice in last year's finals the Lakers blew leads down the stretch before succumbing to the Celtics in seven games.

On Wednesday, they led 102-99 in the final minute, but Robert Parish's three-point play tied the score with 44 seconds left. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers with 33 points, missed a shot for the Lakers and Johnson also missed the rebound follow, setting up McHale's last-second game-winner.

Boston has won seven games in a row. While Boston Coach K.C. Jones said that the Lakers-Celtics game was played with playoff intensity, several players said there was no comparison with last year's post-season series.

"It's a new season. There's no carryover," Johnson said. "Right now, we have a chance to win it (the title) like everybody else. This was just a regular-season game. Nothing bigger. Nothing more."

"It's always good to beat the good teams, but the intensity wasn't like the playoffs," added Larry Bird, who had 19 points for the Celtics.

The game was close throughout, with 17 ties and neither team leading by more than eight points.

McHale, despite being Boston's leader in field-goal percentage, had made just three of 12 shots when the Celtics took a timeout with 14 seconds left after Parish rebounded Johnson's miss.

McHale said he was surprised when Jones called a play for him in the huddle.

"I said 'Oh, boy.' I was having a tough night," said McHale. "The first thing I thought is, 'I'm due. One of these has to go in.'"

"The idea was to get the ball in Larry's hands, let him hold it until six or five seconds remained and drop it into Kevin because he had the smaller guy (Kurt Rambis) on him," Jones said. "Robert had Kareem on him."

NBA Roundup

The 6-foot-10 McHale is two inches taller than Rambis. Parish is two inches shorter than Abdul-Jabbar.

Dennis Johnson's 20 points paced a balanced Boston attack that included 19 from Parish, 16 from Danny Ainge and 10 from McHale. Byron Scott had 16 points to follow Abdul-Jabbar in the Los Angeles scoring column.

Clippers 98, Rockets 88
NBA field-goal percentage leader James Donaldson scored a season-high 23 points as Los Angeles handed Houston its fourth straight loss.

The Clippers trailed by one point after three quarters, but an 11-2 spurt in the next three minutes put them in front to stay.

Donaldson, leading the league with a .604 percentage, connected on nine of 10 shots and teamed with Bill Walton to hold Twin Towers Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon to 21 and 16 points, respectively.

Suns 98, Mavericks 95
Maurice Lucas scored 28 points and Phoenix overcame an 11-point halftime deficit by outscoring Dallas 34-22 in the third quarter.

The Suns took a 76-75 advantage into the final period, but the lead seasawed until Larry Nance's layup put Phoenix ahead to stay at 86-85 with 5:42 left.

Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks with 27 points.

76ers 122, Hawks 99
Philadelphia won its 13th straight game and kept pace with the Celtics atop the Atlantic Division as Moses Malone scored 34 points and Julius Erving 23 against Atlanta.

A 20-8 streak by the 76ers in the second quarter extended a one-point lead to 59-46. The Hawks, who got 22 points from Dominique Wilkins, got no closer than 14 points in the second half.

Nuggets 115, Warriors 107
Calvin Natt scored 19 of his 27 points in the second half and pulled down 15 rebounds to help Denver add to its Midwest Division lead with a victory over Golden State, which now has lost nine in a row.

The Warriors, who got 27 points from Purvis Short, trailed by as many as 19 points in the second quarter, but closed the deficit to 87-82 in the third period, when the Nuggets hit only six of 24 field-goal attempts.

Denver, which leads the Houston Rockets and Dallas Mavericks by 1½ games, got 22 points from Alex English.

Nets 100, Bulls 94
Otis Birdsong scored 20 points and New Jersey's 8-0 streak in the fourth quarter carried the Nets past Chicago.

The Bulls led 81-77 early in the final period before the Nets started the decisive run. Darryl Dawkins, making his first appearance since the second game of the season after a back injury, scored one of the baskets during the streak.

Chicago, which played without injured forward Orlando Woolridge, was led by Michael Jordan with 27 points.

Bullets 103, Jazz 101
Greg Ballard's jump shot at the final buzzer lifted Washington past Utah.

The Bullets led 82-64 going into the final period, but the Jazz rallied and finally tied the game on Darrell Griffith's three-point basket with only two seconds left.

Gus Williams led Washington with 31 points and 12 assists, while Utah got 22 points from Adrian Dantley and 21 from Griffith.

Dr. J passes on retirement

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Veteran forward Julius Erving, who had considered making this his last season in the National Basketball Association, has signed a contract to play again next year for the Philadelphia 76ers, the team said.

General Manager Pat Williams said Wednesday the new contract would take effect when Erving's current pact expires at the close of the season, when he could have become a free agent.

Terms were not announced, but the contract was estimated at $1.5 million.

Erving, who will be 35 next month, is in the midst of his 14th pro season — nine in the NBA and five in the now-defunct American Basketball Association.

He recently collected his 15,000th NBA point and moved into fifth place on the list of all-time pro scorers, including the ABA and NBA.

Erving has scored 15,243 points in the NBA and 11,662 in the ABA, a total of 26,905.

The Philadelphia team captain joined the 76ers in the 1976-77 season after playing in the ABA for two seasons with the Virginia Squires and three with the New York Nets.

NIT gets preseason boost

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The struggling National Invitation Tournament, which has been having trouble funding one tourney, suddenly has two.

Approval of a preseason NIT was the highlight Wednesday as the National Collegiate Athletic Association concluded its 79th annual convention, one of the tamest in memory.

The delegates overwhelmingly made the NIT, the nation's oldest postseason tournament, the newest preseason one, as well.

Jack Kaiser, athletic director at St. John's University, said 16 teams will be invited to play on the last two weekends in November "to provide a dramatic opening to the basketball season."

The amount of money in the NIT's television contract has decreased and Kaiser said the preseason tourney "will help us stabilize our tournament. We could still make the NIT go without the preseason tournament, but we weren't sure."

THE DELEGATES also rejected a proposal that could have wrecked national champion Brigham Young's football program by eliminating the exceptions to the NCAA's limit of four years' eligibility in a five-year period for time spent in the armed services, on official church missions or with organized foreign aid services of the U.S. government. Many BYU players served a two-year mission for the Mormon Church, which does not count against their five years.

"We're elated, really pleased," said BYU athletic director Glen Tuckett, who had prepared a four-page speech opposing the plan but never had to use it. Speaking against the proposal were athletic directors Carl Ulrich of Army and J.O. Coppedge of Navy and faculty representatives Col. Harvey Schiller of the Air Force Academy and Marvin Johnson of New Mexico.

Wilford S. Bailey, faculty representative at Auburn and a member of the policy-making NCAA Council, which sponsored the legislation, said it was intended "to eliminate inequities. There was nothing vindictive against Brigham Young because of its present position. It's been a concern for years."

Opponents claim the missions gives BYU an edge because players who have been on missions are older and more mature. Tackle Robert Anae turned 26 the day BYU defeated Michigan in the Holiday Bowl while linebacker Marv Allen played in the first and seventh Holiday Bowls.

The postseason NIT format will not be changed by the preseason NIT, which will not count against the NCAA's 28-game limit on regular-season basketball games. Kaiser said the first weekend would consist of a quartet of four-team regionals around the country with the survivors playing the next weekend, "hopefully in (New York's) Madison Square Garden."

He said it would be "different in nature" from the established NIT. "I think the postseason tournament will be for middle-echelon teams that can't get into the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We hope the preseason NIT will attract some Top Twenty-type teams."

THE GAMES will be held on Friday and Sunday nights so they won't conflict with pro and college football.

The preseason NIT will try to land the projected top team from a conference but a team would be limited to one appearance in three years. Every conference would be represented over a 10-year period.

Kaiser said the participating teams would receive 80 percent of the revenue and the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association, which sponsors the NIT, the remainder, which will go to five groups, including the American Basketball Coaches Association.

Kaiser said the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic at Springfield, Mass., the traditional college basketball opener, will choose its two teams before NIT selections.

NCAA delegates overwhelmingly approved the new tourney for the last two weekends of November.

The 16 teams will compete at on-campus sites with the semifinals and final all but set for Madison Square Garden, which is the setting for the postseason tournament.

"I don't see the dates of being any hindrance," said Paul Munick, director of amateur athletics for the Garden.

"We knew what Pete and his group's proposal would be to the NCAA. It's just a matter of sitting down and working out the details."

Under the ground rules, Carlesimo said the preseason NIT will try to land the top team from a conference, based on projected strength determined by an NIT advisory council.

According to Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, one of the convention's most significant actions was the abolishment of complimentary tickets for athletes. Instead of tickets, frequently sold in violation of NCAA rules, there will be given a pass list which can be used only by an athlete's relatives or fellow students.

Williams becomes Outlaw in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Doug Williams, upset because the Arizona Outlaws have not yet upgraded his United States Football League contract, says he will not report with the rest of the quarterbacks to this weekend's preseason mini-camp here.

Williams said he would arrive for the start of regular preseason training Monday, but is uncertain if he will stay.

Tall City swimmers count chickens

MHS, Lee host Invitational tank meet

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland High Coach Jesse Marsh can barely disguise his anxiety for the start of the Midland Invitational Swimming meet at City of Midland pool Friday and Saturday. Midland Lee Coach Charles Guthrie would just as soon see the meet delayed a week or two.

While Marsh isn't counting any premature chickens, he figures his Bulldog swimmers, led by Andrew Jordan and Becky Simpson, will score their share of points.

Guthrie is counting his chickens and he can't see very many without Caroline and Allen Reed, not to mention several other key performers, who will be en route to Washington, D.C., to march with the Midland Lee band in the Presidential Inauguration Sunday.

"A LOT OF my swimmers will be with the band in addition to Caroline and Allen, two of my top swimmers," says Guthrie, whose team is just recovering from the football season, which experienced an extended run last fall. And then, after football, preparations for the swim season were interrupted by a rampant seige of sickness that swept through the squad.

"The boys have been looking better. We've had a lot of sickness, but without Allen (200-free, 500-free and 200-IM plus the relays) we are going to be hurt. Frank Yarborough in the medley and free relays plus the breaststroke; Braden Law, a breast-stroker will also be gone.

"Caroline is my top swimmer in the IM, 500-free and medley relay. She'll be in Washington along with Michelle Driver and Kelly Simmons, our top swimmer in the butterfly and backstroke."

Guthrie says, "I haven't really sat down and figured out what I've got left, but we will do the best we can with what we've got."

WITH THE Midland High band already having made its biennial trip to the Rose Bowl, Marsh isn't plagued by absentee problems. And he's looking forward to the competition against the likes of NMMI of Roswell, N.M., all of the District-45A teams, plus entries from Amarillo, Tascosa and Caprock, Hobbs, N.M., Andrews and Pampa.

"I wish Amarillo were coming. They would provide the type of competition outside-of-district we need," says Marsh. "But this year, the Sandies were the ones scheduled to go to El Paso for a meet this weekend."

Andrew Jordan, who swims well in whatever events he enters, will lead the Bulldogs, who are expected to be a contender in district and regional in boys.

Other potential first place winners are Sam Perry and probably Doc White or Gene Dackel in diving. "We should be able to win either one of the relays that we decide to go for with Jay Green, Ricky Perkins, Paul Harris and John Brenner."

COMPETITION begins at noon Friday with swimming prelims. Diving will follow and resume at 9 a.m. Saturday. Finals in the swimming events begin at noon Saturday.

The meet is important since the District 45A meet at Odessa looms Feb. 15-16.

Marsh sees San Angelo, Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper as the tough boys teams in district.

Guthrie agrees. "Abilene Cooper is good in the boys and girls, San Angelo has a strong boys team and Permian is no slouch. But Midland High is the best of the boys. Still, I think we can stay with 'em in the girls."

Atlanta Braves make Ramirez rich

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves have reached a multimillion dollar contract agreement with shortstop Rafael Ramirez, which has prompted the club's top prospect at the position, Paul Zuvella, to ask to be traded.

The Braves and Ramirez reached an agreement in principle Tuesday for a five-year contract worth $4.1 million. The Atlanta Constitution reported. Only some minor details in the contract remain to be worked out.

Ramirez, 25, has been the Braves' starting shortstop for three seasons, hitting .286 last year when he was a member of the National League All-Star team. He batted .297 in 1983.

The Braves are committed to Ramirez as the starter with Zuvella as a backup.

But Zuvella's agent, Jim Neader, said Tuesday his client wants out.

"We need to get out of this situation. Paul is a major league shortstop, as far as we're concerned. I think a lot of people feel like that," Neader said.

Atlanta General Manager John Mullen said Zuvella is in the Braves' plans and the 26-year-old will not be traded.

"I think (Braves Manager) Eddie Haas sees him as a possible utility infielder next year," Mullen said. "And what if Ramirez sprains an ankle and misses six weeks in the middle of the pennant race? With Zuvella, we wouldn't have to go scrambling for a shortstop. We have a lot of confidence in his ability."

Mullen said there is a possibility that Zuvella, who hit .304 with Richmond of the Braves' Class AAA International League farm club, may start the season there again because the Braves have utility infielders in Randy Johnson and Paul Runge.

"That is not an option, as far as we're concerned," Neader said. "Going back to Richmond just can't be done. Paul is definitely not going to Richmond. He wouldn't show up. I do think Paul would reluctantly fill a spot on the big league club, and he'd do the best job possible, but a trade is the only real option. There are some clubs out there who need shortstops."

ABC bowl announcers already staging jokes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Theismann replacing O.J. Simpson as "expert commentator" for ABC-TV at Super Bowl XIX led to some good one-liners Wednesday as the network unveiled its game plans.

Simpson, a regular this season on the network's Monday Night Football, has been shifted to halftime analysis with Dallas Coach Tom Landry for Sunday's game. Simpson also was assigned to the loser's locker room for post-game interviews.

SIMPSON USED a term originated by Howard Cosell to joke about working with Frank Gifford and Don Meredith, complaining "I just about got fed up with the jockeying in the booth with those two guys."

To which Meredith responded: "I think it's rather poetic that (Simpson) and Tom will be working together. I had a hard time understanding either one of them."

Cosell, who had served as a color commentator on ABC's Monday Night Football since its inception until he announced his retirement before the 1984 season, will not work the game at all.

Simpson said he wasn't jealous of Theismann, but noted that rumors can sometimes get out of hand.

"Early in the year, I read in the newspaper that I was taking out (Theismann's) fiancée," Simpson said. "Later I read that I was taking out his ex-wife. And now he's taking out my two partners in the Super Bowl."

Theismann, the Washington Redskins quarterback who is noted for his gift of gab, promised, "I will not talk a lot."

He did, however, speak twice as fast as anyone else at the news conference.

Landry sympathized with Simpson's role as his partner at halftime: "O.J.'s probably got the toughest assignment of all, and that's to get me to smile."

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, said Simpson probably will be back with the Monday Night Football series next year. "I expect he'll be with us for a very long time," Arledge said.

ASKED WHETHER he had signed a contract with the network, Simpson replied: "No, but you all heard him. ABC has an option. I certainly hope to be back."

Arledge said there won't be any special gimmicks or innovations used on the Super Bowl telecast. However, the network is using 20 cameras — seven more than it used for Monday night games. It will use the Super Slow Motion cameras shown during the Olympics, and another in a helicopter.

Before the game, the network will air a two-hour show featuring players from previous Super Bowls.

The Smell of Spring

by AROMATIQUE

At last...a way to capture and hold the elusive, undeniable freshness of springtime. It's like throwing open the window to let spring rush in...filling your rooms with its airy fragrance.
Even as you pour it in your favorite container, you'll remember one certain spring, and look forward to another...how nice!

"Here's a Sensible Weight-Loss Program That Really Works!"

DIET CENTER.

In just 15 years, Diet Center has grown to over 1,500 locations all across the United States and Canada. We've grown to this scope this quickly for one basic reason...Our Program Works! The Diet Center Program is totally natural and based on sound nutrition. Techniques employed during private, daily counseling and weigh-in sessions emphasize the need for permanent changes in eating habits to achieve and maintain ideal body weight. Behavior modification, a nutritionally balanced diet and the support of a counselor who cares help Diet Center patrons lose weight quickly and safely. Diet Center Counselors work closely with each dieter's personal physician.

AVERAGE WEIGHT LOSS:
17 TO 25 POUNDS
IN JUST SIX WEEKS

And, if necessary, that rate of reduction can be sustained until 50, 75 or even 100 pounds and more have been lost. There are separate programs for men, women and youngsters.
