TAAS test scores rise among local minority students

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Test scores among minority students in Big Spring were up this past spring.

Students in grades three through eight and sophomores took the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills Test during the spring and when compared to results from 1994, the scores had improved in most areas.

The TAAS test is broken down into three subjects: reading, mathematics and writing. Test results are also broken down into different groups such as white, African American, Hispanic and economically disadvantaged.

In the reading category, the percentage rate of African Americans who passed in 1995 was up 8 percent compared to 1994.

There was a 12 percent drop in the number of those who passed the mathematics portion. However, there were 14 more students taking the test this past spring.

The writing scores were up almost three percent with 68.8 percent of the students passing with a 65.9 percent passing rate in 1994.

The Hispanic students fared well this year and improved their scores in all three categories. In reading, 72 percent passed, with only 60 percent passing the previous school year.

The mathematics scores show the students with a 53.3 percent passing rate compared to 42.7 percent in 1994.

Almost 72 percent of the Hispanic students passed the writing portion of the test with only 70.1 percent passing in 1994.

Edmondson defense witnesses testify

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The defense's final witnesses began testifying at 8 a.m. today in an attempt to persuade the jury to give Levy Lee Edmondson Jr. life in prison instead of death for the capital murder of DPS Trooper Troy Hogue.

Prior to testimony this morning, members of Edmondson's family walked around the Howard County Courthouse carrying signs proclaiming his innocence.

Closing arguments in the punishment phase were also expected to begin this morning or early afternoon. A verdict could be rendered as early as this evening.

When the court's charge is read to the jury, the jury will have to answer two questions to determine Edmondson's punishment:

•Is there a probability the defendant will commit criminal acts of violence and continue to pose a threat to society?

A "yes" answer requires the jury to find reasonable doubt and be unanimous in their decision.

A "no" answer would require at least 10 of 12 jurors voting no. If it is no, the court would automatically impose a life sentence on the defendant.

If the jury decides there is a probability the defendant would commit criminal acts of violence and continue to pose a threat to society, they go to the second question.

•Are there sufficient mitigating circumstances warranting life rather than the death penalty?

A "yes" answer to this question means a life sentence, but a "no" answer mean the court sentences the defendant to death.

To prod further debate, Clinton expands welfare experiments

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Hoping to regain the initiative in the welfare reform debate, President Clinton plans to give four states waivers from federal rules and order his administration to act more quickly on other proposed state experiments.

In a speech Monday to the National Governors Association, Clinton also will disclose that he is ordering the government to deny additional food stamp benefits to welfare recipients who refuse to meet state work requirements, according to administration and other officials briefed on Clinton's plans.

Clinton's speech to the governors will follow an address by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, who plans to outline a new welfare reform initiative of his own. According to aides, Dole will call for lumping some job training and child care programs into block grants along with Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Dole also plans to promote a welfare formula that would guarantee all states, for five years, at least stable federal welfare funding with additional money set aside for states with growing populations.

Dole's proposal is designed to break an internal Republican impasse that has stalled the welfare debate in Congress. In turn, Clinton hoped to shape the renewed debate with a fresh round of ideas aimed at meeting his 1992 campaign promise to "end welfare as we know it."

According to three officials who spoke on condition of anonymity on Clinton's planned speech, the president will announce he is granting welfare waivers to West Virginia, Texas, Utah and California.

The California waiver, according to the officials, will allow the state to impose a "family cap" meaning it can deny additional benefits to mothers who have additional children while on welfare.

More broadly, Clinton plans to announce that he is ordering the Office of Management and Budget to rewrite food stamp regulations as part of an effort to put more teeth in state requirements that welfare recipients go to work, the officials said.

Under current regulations, food stamp benefits are based on income. So if welfare recipients refuse to meet a state work requirement and as a result have their welfare checks reduced, they are in most cases eligible for more food stamps. Clinton's order will prohibit additional food stamp benefits to people who defy state work requirements.

Also, the draft of Clinton's speech includes a promise that the Department of Health and Human Services will cut from 120 days to 30 days the time in which it evaluates requests for waivers from federal welfare rules. The "fast track" approach will cover requests for waivers in five areas, the officials said. They are:

—Tougher welfare-to-work requirements that provide child care services.

—Time limits on receiving welfare benefits.

—Requirements that teen-age welfare mothers live at home and stay in school in order to receive assistance.

—Tougher child support enforcement programs.

—Requests to use federal welfare and food stamp funds to pay cash subsidies to private employers who hire welfare recipients.

Details on the president's speech were reported by the Washington Post.

FBI suspect seems to fit
portrait of Unabomber

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who has lived underground for nearly 20 years bears striking similarities to the FBI's description of the Unabomber, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

Although the FBI considers James William Kilgore only one of many potential suspects, others familiar with the case say the government should try harder to locate the fugitive.

Kilgore, 48, disappeared in 1976 after a bomb-related charge and hasn't been seen since. He is best known for his connections to the Symbionese Liberation Army — the terrorist group that kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst more than two decades ago.

Two firefighters die
in brush fire

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A lightning-sparked brush fire that went from controlled to raging with the help of high winds killed two firefighters, blackened 10,000 acres before it was contained Saturday night.

The two firefighters had called for help Friday night after becoming trapped in their truck by rejuvenated flames about 20 miles south of Boise.

"Fire's all around us and we need help," one radioed. "Our engine quit."

The men were identified as Bill Buttram, 31, and Josh Oliver, 18, of the Kuna Rural Fire Department.

"We had everything cleared," Kuna Fire Capt. Joe Stear said. "All of a sudden we got a 70 mile-an-hour wind that entrapped the truck in a wall of flame."

U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokesman Barry Rose said 270 homes in two subdivisions were evacuated and one home was destroyed, as well as a large farm building and several smaller outbuildings.

Weak dollar entices
tourists to United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the weak dollar an enticing incentive, foreign visitors are flooding America's tourist mecca this summer in search of a good time at bargain prices.

International visitors are expected to pour $77 billion into the U.S. economy in 1995, making America the big winner in the highly competitive game of international tourism. In fact, U.S. earnings will be more than double those of France, the second-ranked nation.

Behind the apparent success, however, lies a largely untapped potential.

"In this country, most people simply haven't recognized the importance of attracting foreign tourists," lamented Greg Farmer, undersecretary of Commerce in charge of travel and tourism.

While most foreigners throng to traditional tourist locations such as California, Florida, or New York City, the West, New England and the deep South are virtually ignored because of poor advertising abroad, he said.

Democrats blast GOP's proposals for Medicare

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Thirty years after President Lyndon Johnson came to sign legislation creating Medicare, Democrats returned Sunday to bash Republican plans for slashing the program's spending.

A national town hall meeting at the Harry Truman Presidential Library — in the auditorium where Johnson signed Medicare legislation in 1965 — became a complaint session about GOP proposals.

"They are raiding Medicare to pay for a tax cut and that is wrong," said House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt. He said half the tax cut would go to families earning more than $100,000 a year.

Democrats chose Independence as the site for the town hall meeting because Truman tried unsuccessfully throughout his administration to create some type of national health insurance.

Similar meetings in Boston; Portland, Ore.; Tampa, Fla.; and Lorain, Ohio, were linked by satellite to the Independence event.

Republicans have proposed saving $270 billion in Medicare costs over the next seven years by reducing the program's growth rate. The Clinton administration says that could cost senior citizens an average of $2,800 over those years if half the savings is taken from beneficiaries.

Sen. Christopher Bond, a Missouri Republican, defended GOP plans and noted that Clinton's own Medicare Board of Trustees has warned the program could be broke by 2002.

Under the GOP budget resolution, Medicare still would rise 1 percent per person above projected inflation, Bond said. Other reforms will help account for new patients coming into the system and make sure care providers continue to get reimbursements.

Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said such slashes in Medicare would endanger the health of senior citizens.

"We will not go back to the days when older Americans brought bags of apples to pay for their doctor visits," Shalala said, drawing cheers from the mostly senior crowd of 250.

A protester is arrested by police at the Sheraton Hotel in Burlington, Vt., where the nation's governors were meeting. Protestors were demonstrating in support of Mumia Abu-Jamal, a former Philadelphia radio reporter, who is scheduled to die Aug. 17 for the 1981 shooting death of Philadelphia police officer Daniel Faulkner.

Hell Hole thrill ride
lives up to its name

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hell Hole lived up to its name.

The Coney Island thrill ride mangled a 24-year-old woman's leg Saturday night and left 13 other people with sprains and lacerations.

The adjacent boardwalk and arcades were jammed with people sauntering in the steamy night air. Shrieks and shouts followed a thunderous boom as those waiting to enter the ride fled the steel and wood structure.

Inside the ride — a large cylinder that spins so fast it pins people to its walls while the floor drops — there was "blood all over the place and what looked like pieces of skin," said Mark Wurzel, a spokesman for the city Consumer Affairs Department, which licenses Coney Island amusements.

Hole, which warns "Abandon All Hope" above its entry, passed inspection in April.

It happened when one of several steel bands encircling the cylinder snapped, ripping open the barrel, officials said. Most of the injuries occurred when people tumbled to the floor after an operator hit the emergency stop button.

Rider Lourdes Gonzalez got tangled up in the wreckage where the barrel gave way, battered by loose beams that broke her leg in several places and chewed her flesh, Wurzel said.

She was in serious but stable condition on Sunday. The other riders were treated at hospitals.

The city closed the Hell Hole and will reinspect all Coney Island rides beginning Monday, said Vahé Tiryakian, a spokesman for the Department of Buildings.

Ceremony marks 20th anniversary of Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance

DETROIT (AP) — What happened to Jimmy Hoffa?

The question that has plagued Hoffa's family, the FBI and Teamsters and became a staple of American labor lore remains without answers.

In their place, a memorial service was held Sunday at Most Holy Trinity Church, 20 years to the day after James R. Hoffa vanished without a trace.

"There's an emptiness that we have and we're never going to resolve it," his son, James P. Hoffa, said before the service.

The 54-year-old labor lawyer is campaigning for the position his father once held at the head of the mighty Teamsters union.

"This is a closure today. We've lost a loved one, but we've got to go on. Today is a healing day," Hoffa said.

With no funeral and no grave, it was the family's first chance for formal grief. About 300 friends, Teamsters and others joined them to mourn and pay tribute to one of the labor movement's toughest, most powerful men.

"Jimmy Hoffa never died. Where working men are out on strike, Jimmy Hoffa is at their side," his son, echoing the labor ballad "Joe Hill," told the gathering.

Hoffa, who had only a seventh-grade education, launched his rise to power from Detroit Teamsters Local 299, which he had transformed from a tiny, cash-starved local into a 15,000-member behemoth.

As Teamster president, he negotiated in 1964 the first industry-wide contract, the National Master Freight Agreement.

On July 30, 1975, 62-year-old James R. Hoffa got into a maroon Mercury in the parking lot of the Machus Red Fox restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township. He was never seen again.

in 1982, two years after the death of his wife, Josephine.

Though the FBI says it knows who was responsible for what it terms Hoffa's murder, no one has ever been charged.

Hoffa served four years in prison for jury tampering and defrauding a Teamsters pension fund before President Nixon commuted his sentence in 1971 and barred him from union activity until 1980.

In 1975, Hoffa was fighting to overturn that ban and regain the presidency of the international Teamsters.

The FBI theory holds that Teamsters hoping to prevent that used their connections to organized crime to have him killed and his body concealed somewhere.

Some say he's buried in an oil drum off the Florida coast, others that he was dismembered and crushed in an auto cruncher in Detroit.

Quote of the Day

"Ideas move rapidly when their time comes."
Carolyn Hellbrun, author, 1973

One setback can't be allowed to stop project

When the idea to renovate the Settles Hotel was first formulated, money was the biggest obstacle to making the idea come true. City of Big Spring has received a setback in their plans for the Settles when the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs turned down their grant application for a $300,000 Housing Trust Fund grant.

All is not lost yet. There are other avenues yet to be pursued. Even though this department turned down the grant, the city was invited to try again next year.

Always there is a multitude of grant applications from a multitude of cities who are in need of financial help to accomplish some project.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

The Big Spring project fell only five points behind the 90 needed to fund the grant. Which means the project, in concept, is good, there are just a few bugs to be worked out.

City officials, along with citizens, need to continue giving the project the support it needs. At least give it enough time to make sure all funding possibilities have been pursued and the only thing left to do is bid the hotel farewell.

It isn't often that things come together on the first attempt. Perseverance is the key for the Settles.

Close your eyes and see

Should you visit my skyscraper offices, your attention will focus first on a large portrait on the reception-room wall.

It's a portrait of a young boy whose clothing dates to a generation past; the plus fours are wrinkled. The mismatched shoes are worn out ... one is worn through.

But the boy, leaning forward on one elbow, is enrapt - listening to a 1930s vintage, cathedral-shaped, multi-dial radio.

The boy does not resemble any person in particular - except me.

The artist is an Oklahoman, Jim Daly, whom I have never met. But with the painting, he included this note: "There is no way for me to express the pleasure I received from listening to the old radio programs. In my mind, those wonderful heroes were magnificent. No movie, no television program, not even real life could have equalled what my imagination could conjure up. Amazingly, all those heroes looked a little bit like me."

Radio people, in their preoccupied haste, have been letting go of the might and majesty of the well-spoken word.

Van Gogh is pleasing to the eye; Shakespeare is fathomless.

Our industry's poets you can count on your thumbs: Charles Kuralt, when he has time, and Jack Whittaker, when some classic sporting event deserves added dimensions.

Trust me to paint pictures on the mirror of your mind, and I will let you feel such agony and ecstasy, such misery and magnificence as you would never be able to feel by looking at them.

Let me paint you a picture of unrequited love in 17 words: "When the fire in me meets with the ice in you, what could remain but damp ashes?"

Now tell me, with what picture in oil or on film could you duplicate that poignancy?

We court with the lights turned down to remain undistracted. With our eyes closed, we savor a fragrance, a kiss, a foot massage ... or comedy.

In my book, "For What It's Worth," I was able to match cartoon sketches with some stories - not with this one:

On page 135, you meet Martha and Chris Gertson of Gering, Neb. Every weekday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Martha lowers the window shades, disconnects the telephone and turns on TV - to watch the wrestling matches.

Martha admits that she loves to watch those big bruisers head-butt and body-slam one another. Then, when she gets sufficiently worked up, she throws a step-over toehold on her husband, Chris, and there on the floor in front of the TV set, they wrestle until one is able to pin the other.

Don't tell Martha Gertson that wrestling matches on TV are staged. She says if there's anything on TV that's faked, it's soap operas.

She says the wrestling matches are for real. Including hers with Chris - which she usually wins.

Martha Gertson is 76. Chris is 82.

The picture you are right now imagining is infinitely more entertaining than any cartoon of the same thing.

As a boy, I fell in love with words, ran away from home and joined the radio.

It was really something. Close your eyes, and see - it still can be.

Earthquake kills two in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Thousands of people poured into the streets in panic after a powerful earthquake rocked a 1,000-mile stretch of northern Chile early Sunday. At least two people were killed and 18 were injured.

But considering the strength of the magnitude-7.8 quake — centered 12 miles offshore in the Pacific — the casualties were few and damage was minor, police said.

Many people spent the night outside after the 1:11 a.m. tremor, frightened by strong aftershocks and the possibility — called slim by officials — of tidal waves.

A 32-year-old man was killed when a wall collapsed on him in Antofagasta, a port city 850 miles north of Santiago, said regional police commander

Gen. Patricio Fuenzalida. A 19-year-old boy scout leader also died when he fell into a deep ravine near Antofagasta, police said. No other details were available.

Gen. Fuenzalida said the heart attack death of a 75-year-old man may also have been related to the earthquake.

The government's National Emergency Office said 18 people were injured in Antofagasta, none of them seriously.

The worst damage was to Antofagasta's port, where several piers and cranes were wrecked, said Juan Tagnon, a public works official. The port was closed for safety checks, he said.

President Eduardo Frei flew to Antofagasta and announced emergency aid to repair the damaged port, a key link in exports from huge copper mines nearby. The mines weren't affected by the quake and were operating normally.

Communications and some utilities were cut off in most of the region and some roads were blocked by landslides, police said. The Emergency Office said power and gas supplies were suspended to prevent fires.

The quake caused no damage to area copper mines, which were all reported to be operating Sunday. Chuquicamata, the world's largest open-pit copper mine, is 95 miles east of Antofagasta.

The quake was centered 12 miles west of Antofagasta in the Pacific Ocean, seismologists said. It was felt throughout a 1,000-mile stretch of Chilean territory, as well as parts of neighboring Argentina and Peru.

Russians, Chechen rebels to halt war

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian negotiators hailed a military agreement with Chechen rebels to halt their 7 1/2-month war, but shooting continued today in the breakaway republic and a political solution appeared distant.

"A major step was taken on the path to peace," Vyacheslav Mikhailov, Russia's top negotiator, told a news conference in Moscow.

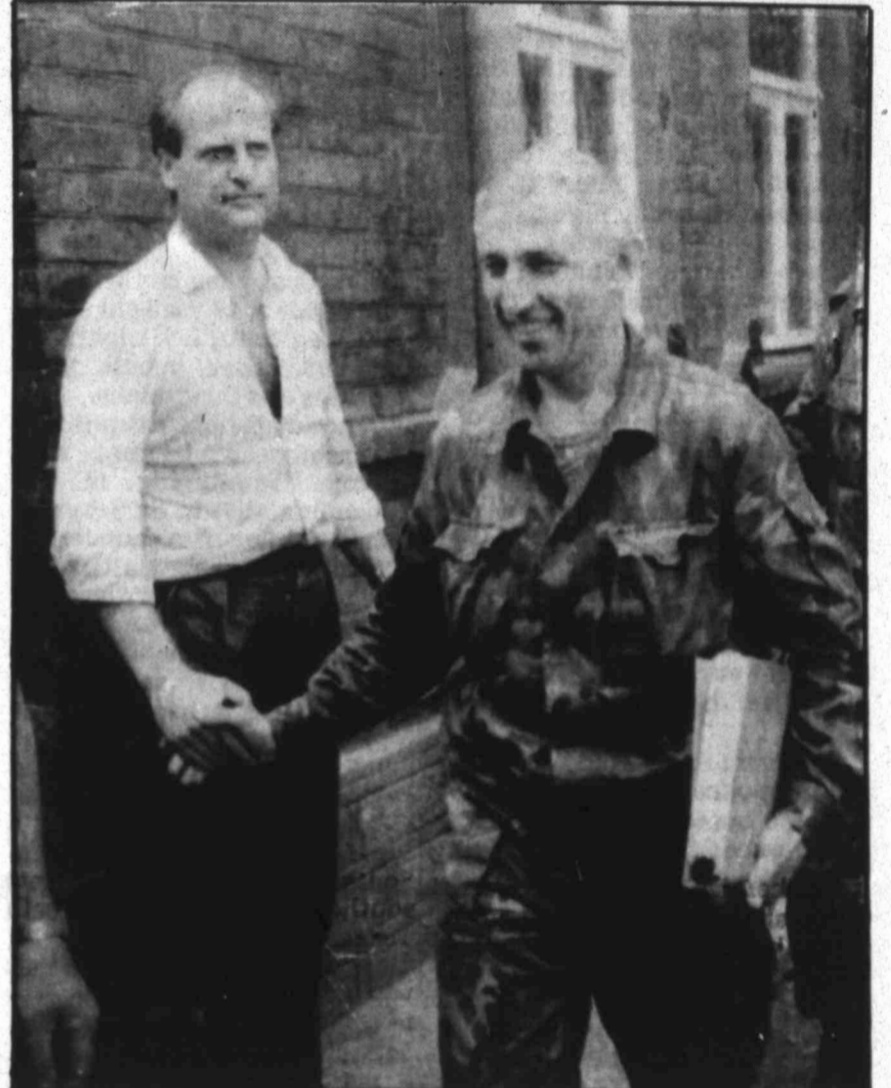

Chechen guns did not fall silent, and at least one Russian soldier was wounded as a result of rebel attacks, Russian news agencies reported.

Despite expectations that fighting will continue at a low level, the agreement represents a breakthrough for Russian authorities desperately seeking a way to end the unpopular war.

The pact signed Sunday calls for a gradual withdrawal of Russian troops and the disarmament of rebel fighters to pave the way for elections on Chechnya's relationship to the Russian Federation.

The military agreement lets Moscow keep an unspecified number of troops in Chechnya. The legal status of those troops, which has been the subject of a case before Russia's Constitutional Court, is likely to be decided today.

The court is expected to rule on a parliamentary challenge on the legality of President Boris Yeltsin's order to send troops into Chechnya, a decision that could affect the future of Russian troop deployment in the republic.

Chechen leader Dzhokhar Dudayev dismissed the agreement even though his top officials signed it, the Interfax news agency reported. It was not clear whether rebel field commanders would honor the accord.

The agreement also provides Russia with a basis for pursuing its goal of rooting out Chechen opposition. Russia's interior minister, Col. Gen. Anatoly Kulikov, said tough measures would be taken against rebel fighters who refused to honor the agreement.

Tens of thousands of people have died since the Kremlin sent troops into the region Dec. 11 to oust its rebellious government and stamp out its three years of self-proclaimed independence.

Croatian Serbs renege on pledge

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Rebel Serbs from Croatia reneged on an hours-old agreement, attacking Bosnian government forces today in a northwestern enclave that threatens to become a flashpoint for more widespread Balkan warfare.

The United Nations reported a Croatian Serb attack in Bosnia's Bihaq region early today — an assault that showed Croatian Serbs remained in border regions of neighboring Bosnia despite a partial pullout.

Croatia's Serbs, in a verbal agreement with U.N. mediators Sunday, had promised to stay away from Bihaq and not to attack Croatian troops unless provoked.

They also said they would allow the United Nations "unhindered access" to areas around Bihaq and to let aid convoys from Croatia travel through their territory to Bihaq.

The Croatian Serbs also proposed holding talks with the Croatian government. But Croatia, flush with recent battlefield victories, swiftly rejected the offer.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman said in a letter to U.N. envoy Yasushi Akashi that he would not negotiate with the Croatian Serbs' leader, Milan

Martic, or "any other war criminal."

Serb rebels in Croatia and Bosnia are allied against the Croatian and Bosnian government and have been involved in the fight for the Bihaq region in northwestern Bosnia.

Croatia has sent thousands of troops across the border into Bosnia, where they joined forces with Bosnian Croats and seized two strategic towns, Gracovo and Glamoc, from the Bosnian Serbs. They also cut the main supply route between Knin, the Croatian Serb stronghold, and Serb-held Banja Luka, the second-largest city in Bosnia.

The Bosnian Serbs vowed to retaliate.

"Croatia has made a decisive mistake and shall pay dearly for it," their military commander, Gen. Ratko Mladic, said Sunday during a visit to Knin.

Serb-held villages 10 miles northwest of Knin came under sporadic rocket attack Sunday. Croat commanders also reported that their troops took a strategic hill north of Gornji Vakuf, at the far east of the Croat advance into Bosnia.

War broke out in the former Yugoslavia in 1991, initially in Slovenia and then in Croatia, when the Serb minority there seized control of about a third of the republic. A truce within Croatia largely held from early 1992 until last May when Croats retook a swath of rebel-held land.

This month, after Serbs defied NATO air strikes to conquer Srebrenica and Zepa, two Muslim enclaves in eastern Bosnia, the Croats turned their attention toward Knin. The Croatian government simultaneously pledged increased military cooperation with the Muslim-led Bosnian government.

The NATO allies have vowed to use airstrikes to protect Gorazde, in eastern Bosnia, and now say they plan to protect other U.N. "safe areas," such as Bihaq, as well.

Rebel Serbs in Bosnia and Croatia share an ethnic heritage and a desire to establish a unified Serbian homeland. But they field different armies and serve under different leadership.

The United Nations fears that if the two rebel Serb forces united, as has threatened to happen near Bihaq during the past week, the Bosnian war could spill over into Croatia to the north and west.

Man charged with capital murder in shooting spree

Handgun permits may cost more than expected

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texans may not find concealed handgun permits as easy and inexpensive to obtain as they thought, experts said. Some handgun instructors said they plan to offer training for twice the $100 estimated by legislative sponsors. Several said they will be boosting the price for evening and weekend sessions.

Experts say expenses could be most burdensome for novices because instructors are worried about liability issues. Those instructors want to make sure beginners know what they're doing before accepting them in the state certification course.

Many will be sent to beginners' lessons starting at $30 an hour, they said.

"It'll be based on skill level," said gunsmith Grant Bethurum of Arlington Arms Gun Co. and Sporting Goods, whose waiting list has more than 100 names.

Formosa cited for violations

POINT COMFORT (AP) — Louann Morris longs for the days when her neighborhood didn't stink and she felt safe sending her three children to school down the street.

Nowadays, Morris says, she worries constantly about a chemical catastrophe and the long-term effects of hazardous air emissions.

Formosa Plastics Corp., part of a Taiwan-based conglomerate that last year opened a $1.5 billion expansion plant next to Lavaca Bay, uses petrochemicals to produce plastics for household products like soda bottles, trash bags and lawn chair webbing.

Formosa's smaller, original plant has come under fire from environmental regulators for years. And the startup of its new chemical plant hasn't been blemish-free. Formosa's new plant has been cited for violating its state and federal environmental permits, according to government records reviewed by The Associated Press.

Report: Unpaid fines stacked up in court

GALVESTON (AP) — A judge's son-in-law was paid $140,000 to serve traffic warrants for a court that has millions of dollars in outstanding fines on the books, according to a published report.

The Galveston County Daily News reported Sunday that the city's latest annual report shows $10.6 million in unpaid tickets, fines and charges in municipal court. Each comprehensive city financial report since 1987 indicated problems, including uncollected revenue from fines and outstanding charges, but City Manager Doug Matthews told The Daily News he learned of problems in the court only earlier this year.

The Galveston County district attorney's office started investigating a former Municipal Court clerk in April, when Matthews said he first learned of the problems. City financial reports show unpaid fines were growing at a rate of $2 million a year between 1987 and 1992.

Sex ed law could apply differently than intended

DALLAS (AP) — A state lawmaker who worked during the recent legislative session to limit sex education says he will seek an attorney general's opinion on whether school-based clinics can provide condoms.

Health clinics in some school districts continue to distribute condoms, believing that the new state law sponsored by state Rep. Warren Chisum does not apply to them.

"Until someone says we can't, we're going to keep on doing what we're doing," said Dr. Janice Smith, who runs Galveston's Teen Health Clinic, which serves the Galveston Independent School District.

Sherrill Tompkins, general counsel for the Galveston school district, agreed.

"The law simply says that if you go into a classroom to teach kids how to use a condom, you can't hand them out. We don't do that, we practice medicine," she said.

FORT WORTH (AP) — A church maintenance worker who allegedly killed two children in a shooting rampage after finding out their mother was about to tell police he molested one of them has been charged with two counts of capital murder.

John Wheat, 51, also was booked into Tarrant County Jail Sunday night on five counts of attempted capital murder, police said, after he allegedly shot seven people during a terrifying four-minute span Sunday morning.

The shootings began after Angela Anderson accused Wheat of fondling the 6-year-old, neighbor Michelle Lopez told The Dallas Morning News.

Wheat, a resident of the Les Jardins apartment complex in a working-class part of south Fort Worth, first opened fire on 28-year-old neighbor Ms. Anderson and her three children, killing her 6-year-old daughter and 8-year-old son.

Anderson and a 20-month-old daughter were severely wounded.

"So far, to the best of my knowledge, the children received gunshot wounds execution-style to the head," police Lt. Eddie Pricer said. Police said Anderson was shot in such a manner as well.

Pricer said he was told doctors didn't "think the prognosis is good" on either the mother or her baby, who suffered a shot to the forehead that exited through the back of her head, a Cook-Fort Worth Children's Hospital spokeswoman said.

Anderson's mother requested that information concerning the condition of her family be kept private.

Witnesses say Wheat turned his attention from the Anderson family to others in the complex when he exited their apartment.

He allegedly shot security guard Jesse Cranfield, 33, in his doorway and an unidentified 19-year-old Hispanic male. Both were taken to John Peter Smith hospital, where hospital officials say Cranfield was in critical condition Sunday.

The other man, who police said was trying to direct them to the gunman when he was hit, could be released from the hospital as early as today, hospital sources said.

One witness said she heard the final three shots fired by the gunman, which were apparently aimed at police officer Angela Jay, 32.

"Then he turned the (gun) back down toward the hall," said the woman, who declined to be identified. "That's when I shut the door."

Jay, who like Anderson was in critical condition at Harris Medical Center Fort Worth Sunday, was one of the first three officers to arrive at the disturbance.

Wheat surrendered to the other two police at the scene after allegedly shooting Officer Jay.

Police said they found Anderson, bleeding from three gunshot wounds, hiding in a closet.

That's when Wheat, according to Lopez, accosted Anderson as Lopez accompanied her to a telephone to report the child molestation accusation to police.

Lopez told the newspaper that Anderson's daughter had said Wheat "touched her on her chest and private parts and kissed her on the mouth."

Tropical storm offers emergency plan practice

HOUSTON (AP) — The remnants of short-lived Tropical Storm Dean drenched areas of Southeast Texas early today with flash-flood producing rainfall.

The rain began spreading across a vast area of Texas today with flash flood watches posted from Southeast Texas northward and westward into the Hill Country, portions of South Central Texas and into southeastern areas of North Texas.

A flood and flash flood watch was in effect today for the area north and east of a line from Rockport to Beeville to Hondo to Junction. It included the cities of Houston, Galveston, Beaumont and Port Arthur as well as San Antonio, Austin and Victoria.

Rainfall was expected to spread into most of West Texas by tonight and continue through Tuesday.

In North Texas, forecasters said the clouds and rainfall from the storm system would give residents a break from the heat wave with temperatures to remain in the 80s today and in the 80s and 90s on Tuesday.

Authorities said the storm system, a full-blown tropical storm for only four hours on Sunday, provided coastal emergency teams a chance to check out their emergency preparedness plans.

But the tropical depression produced flash flooding in Chambers and Liberty counties. A flash flood watch was in effect through the night for Southeast Texas along and south of a line from Columbus to Newton and included the cities of Houston, Beaumont, Port Arthur and Galveston.

Chambers County authorities said portions of Interstate 10 and Texas 61 west of Winnie were closed. Flooding was also reported on Farm Road 1406 and on Texas 12 south of Winnie.

The National Weather Service estimated that 8-13 inches of rain fell in Chambers County in an eight-hour period.

Local surfers take advantage of 5-foot-high waves in Freeport Channel, off Freeport, as prudent sailors bring an oil rig into the harbor to escape Tropical Storm Dean.

One ticket in El Paso wins $45 million Lotto jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) — One ticket bought in El Paso correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $45 million. The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 1, 9, 14, 18, 24 and 46.

There were 317 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,663.

There were 19,231 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $99.

And there were 361,907 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Wednesday night's estimated jackpot is $4 million.

Astros win, but lose

Bagwell breaks hand again; out 3-4 weeks

SAN DIEGO (AP) — This broken hand thing is getting old for Jeff Bagwell.

Been there, done that, three years in a row.

"I'm flustered right now," Bagwell said on Sunday after a pitch from former teammate Brian Williams broke the fourth metacarpal bone in his left hand. "They say bad luck, whatever, those things come in threes. So I hope I'm done."

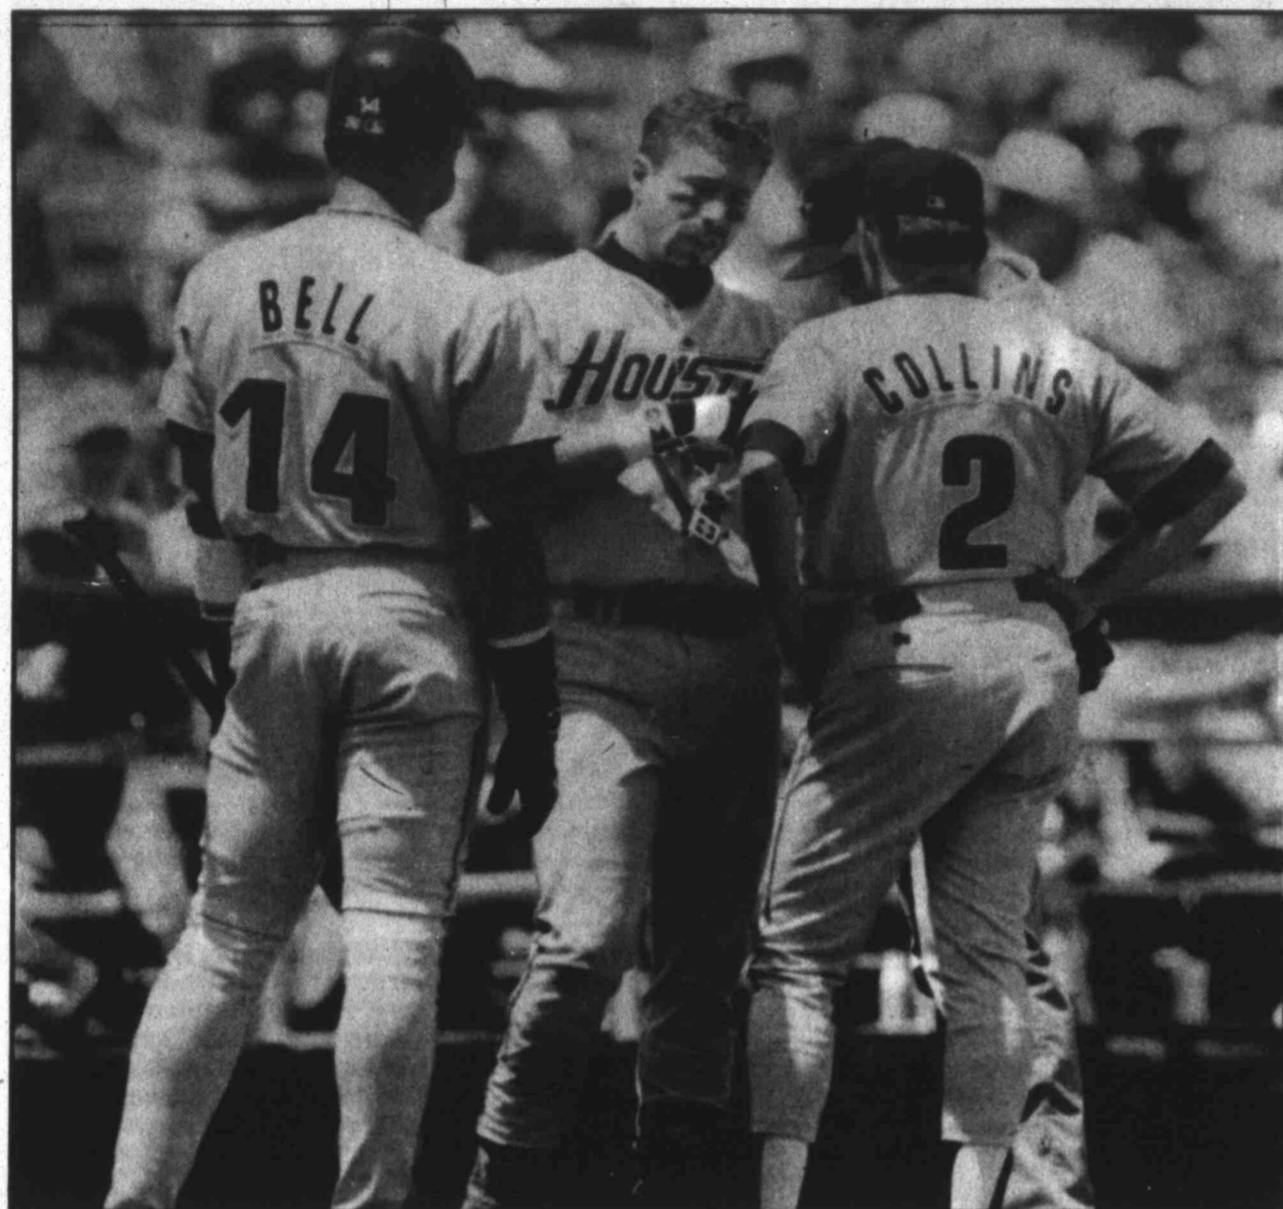

So do the rest of the Houston Astros. They routed the San Diego Padres 7-1, but the loss of the red-hot Bagwell could be costly.

"It's a tremendous blow to our club," manager Terry Collins said. "We've got veteran guys here and we're going to have to pick up the pace. This is where you find out how good your club is and what you're made of. He was swinging the bat like he's capable of, and for it to happen again is tough."

Bagwell, the unanimous National League MVP in 1994, is expected to miss three to four weeks.

Not only was it the third straight season that Bagwell has had his left hand broken, but it was the second time in just less than a year that the same bone was fractured by a pitch from a San Diego player.

"I can't tell you how sad I am

Houston's Jeff Bagwell, center, is examined by a team trainer after he was hit in the hand by a pitch from San Diego starter Brian Williams Sunday afternoon in San Diego.

about this right now because we're 3 games behind the Reds and we're playing great baseball," Bagwell said. "We've still got a great team and everything, but I know that my production was helping, at least."

Bagwell had a career year in 1994, hitting .368 with 39 homers and 116 RBIs. He slumped badly opening this season, but had raised his average 100 points, to .283, since May 31.

Rangers rally to down Boston

ARLINGTON (AP) — Everyone was laughing except the Texas Rangers.

The Boston Red Sox were all grins after taking an all-too-easy 3-0 lead in three at-bats

Sunday. Some folks already were cracking jokes about the Rangers heading for their 13th loss in 14 games.

Everyone was chortling over the antics of the Famous Chicken atop the Boston dugout roof.

Texas catcher David Valle then lined a foul ball that nearly knocked some feathers off the mascot.

Third triathlon winner with field

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

The third-annual Comanche Warrior Triathlon didn't draw its goal of 100 competitors.

Nearly everything else, however, was perfect.

The local triathlon, which started Sunday morning at Comanche Trail Park, drew a record field of 81 athletes on a cloud-covered morning. The race - consisting of a 1/2 mile swim, a 20-mile bike and a 4.3-mile run - had more volunteers than competitors. For the third straight year, athletes raved about the triathlon - particularly the course - and complaints were few.

"We had one flat tire in the bike, and a couple of people didn't finish the swim, but overall it was a great race," said race director Stephen Howard. "We had more people than ever, and I've heard nothing but good things."

The cloud cover kept temperatures down, giving the athletes an unexpected stroke of luck. The first athlete to cross the line was Kenmar Smith, who won the event with a time of 1 hour, 32 minutes and 43 seconds. Smith was in the men's 15-19 category.

Karen Hagner of Midland won the women's title - she finished in 1:42:12 racing in the women's 35-39 age group. Hagner has competed in all three Comanche Warrior Triathlons, winning in '93 and '95 while finishing second in

'94. Vic Keyes of Big Spring won the men's 45-49 group with a time of 1:41:32. Other age group winners were Mark Carter (men's 20-24), Kelly Brown (men's 25-29), Alex Schoellkopf (men's 30-34), Pat Barton (men's 35-39), Jack Alexander (men's 40-44), Flip Lyle (men's 50-54), Jimmy Key (men's 55-59) and Luke Oliver (men's 60-64).

Other winners in the women's categories were Tamara Hobbs (15-19), Katie Way (20-24), Debra McDonald (30-34), Sharon Yount (45-49) and Vicki Kelly (50-54).

Keyes, one of the triathlon's organizers, said 81 was still a good number despite missing the goal of 100 athletes.

"The great thing is that we had more volunteers than we had competitors," Keyes said. "And the volunteers were yelling on the course, cheering on the athletes and showing a lot of enthusiasm."

Kent Newsom, a local resident who finished his first triathlon Sunday, expects the Comanche Warrior Triathlon to be around a long time.

"This exposes our community in a way it wouldn't otherwise get exposure," he said. "Ten years from now, by the time we get to Triathlon No. 14 or whatever, this will be a significant event in this part of the world. It's unique for us."

One thing's for sure. Newsom, using his best Arnold Schwarzenegger voice, said: "I'll be back."

Pappa-to-be Funk regains composure to take Ideon; Irwin wins Senior stop

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Sharon Funk, six months pregnant, accompanied her husband around the golf course as he squandered a huge lead then came back to add $180,000 to their assets.

It wasn't a comfortable time for the man of the family.

"She followed me the last four days," Fred Funk said Sunday after winning the Ideon Classic by one stroke. "I thought she was going to have the baby today."

"I was nervous," Mrs. Funk said, "but the baby was sleeping."

Funk started the day an impressive 18-under par with a four-stroke lead over Jim McGovern. But after 13 holes marked by shaky putting and tee shots into the rough, he was 15-under and trailing McGovern by one.

"I didn't panic" when he fell behind, Funk said. "I was already in kind of a state of panic."

He was saved when McGovern bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes to drop a stroke back. Both birdied the 583-yard 18th as Funk became the fifth straight winner of the Pleasant Valley Country Club event to shoot 16-under 268.

Funk's 2-over 73 was the worst final round of any winner on the PGA Tour this year.

GOLF

But his 195 total for the first three rounds matched the lowest 54-hole score on this year's PGA tour.

'Rookie' Irwin takes Ameritech

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Hale Irwin may be getting better with age.

Irwin shot a 6-under-par 66 Sunday to post a tournament record 21-under 195 for his first Senior PGA Tour victory at the $850,000 Ameritech Senior Open at Stonebridge Country Club. It was the best 54-hole total on the senior circuit this year.

"I think I'm playing every bit as good as I've ever played," Irwin said. "Am I doing things necessary to play this well on the regular tour? I don't know."

A rookie on the senior circuit after celebrating his 50th birthday on June 3, Irwin won by seven strokes over Kermit Zarley to become the fifth youngest winner in Senior PGA Tour history. Irwin had earlier rounds of 66-63 at Stonebridge.

The previous tournament record was a 16-under 200 set by Mike Hill in 1991 at the 6,840-yard, par-72 course, which hosted the event for the last time. However, Irwin was shy of the senior tour's 54-hole record of 194 (22-under) set by Ray Floyd in 1993 at the Gulfstream Aerospace Invitational.

Unknown wins Friendly's Classic

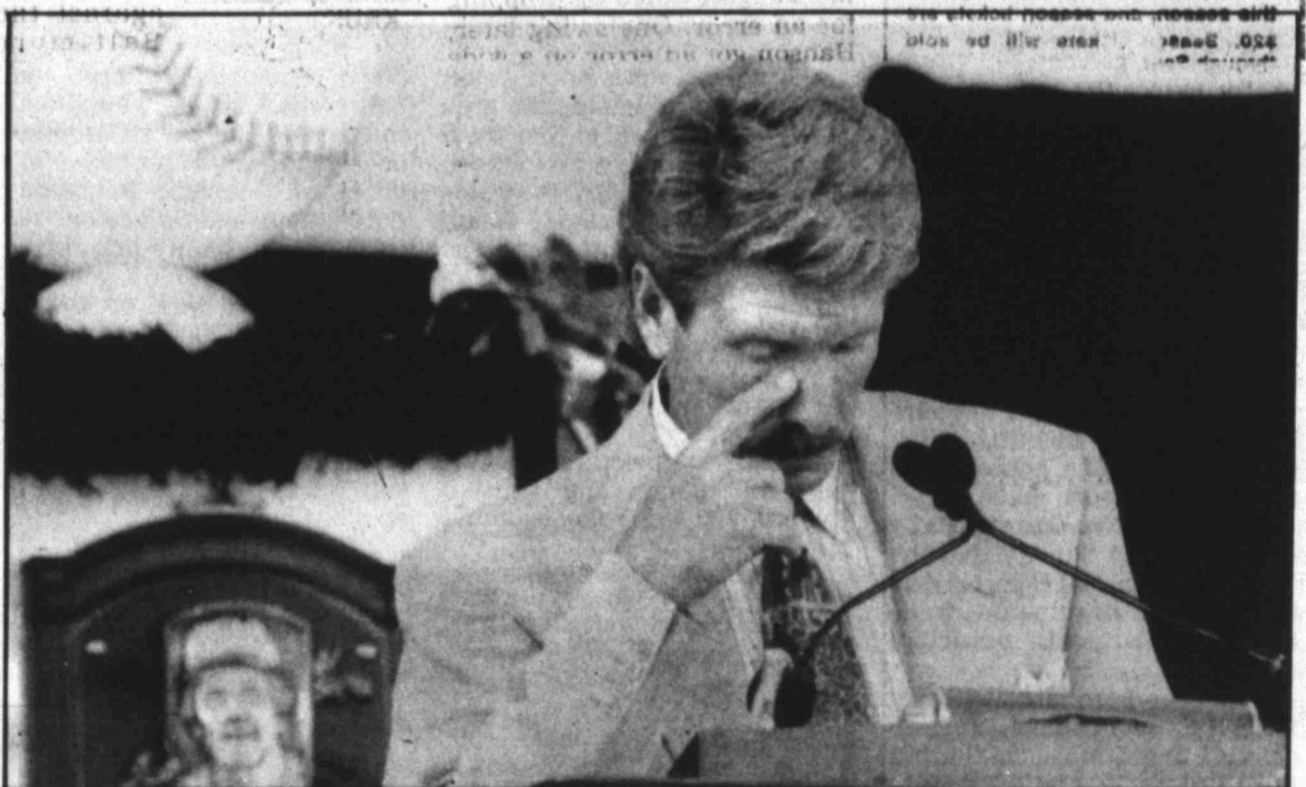

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) — Becky Iverson, a virtual no-name on the LPGA tour, should have folded under the pressure. Kelly Robbins, a three-time winner, should have held fast on honed nerves.

But "should have" meant nothing Sunday on the 12th hole of the Crestview Country Club, where Iverson birdied and Robbins double-bogeyed. Iverson, who began the round tied with Robbins for the lead, shot the 2-under-par 70 on Sunday to win the LPGA Friendly's Classic, finishing at 12-under 276.

A superstitious player, Iverson credited her unlikely victory to recycling the ball from her 9-under-par 63 in the second round.

"It's something mental," she said. "I'm going to use it until it gets lost."

Robbins shot an even-par 72 and finished in a second-place tie with Helen Alfredsson, who had a 69, two strokes behind Iverson.

National Baseball Hall of Fame inductee Mike Schmidt becomes emotional during his induction speech at ceremonies in Cooperstown, N.Y. Sunday.

Schmidt takes place in Hall of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Mike Schmidt promoted Pete Rose. Richie Ashburn presented his case for some former players. Leon Day's widow pushed for the Negro Leaguers.

Induction day at the Hall of Fame turned into more than the usual string of traditional thank-you acceptance speeches Sunday. Instead, it became a chance for the newest members to speak about platforms.

Schmidt wanted to talk about Rose, whom he called "the greatest hitter ever." Wearing a No. 14 lapel pin to honor Rose, Schmidt remembered that his grandmother used to tailor his baseball uniforms in the style of her hero, a young second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds.

"I join her and millions of baseball fans around the world in hoping someday soon, someday very soon, Pete Rose will be standing right here," Schmidt said.

Ashburn joined Schmidt on the podium, while family members represented Day, a star in the Negro Leagues, turn-of-the-century pitcher Vic Willis and key NL founder William Hulbert.

Buechele gets the boot

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers have made another change at third base, releasing veteran Steve Buechele and replacing him with Luis Ortiz. Buechele, 33, was placed on waivers Sunday for the purpose of granting his unconditional release. Buechele has batted .125 in nine games.

Cowboy RB shines vs. Bills

IRVING (AP) — The Cowboys may have discovered a rookie from Alabama who can extend Emmitt Smith's mileage during a long 16-game season. Sherman Williams scored twice and rushed for 40 yards Saturday night as the Cowboys opened the NFL preseason with a 21-15 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Pruett wins Marlboro 500

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — It was hard to tell the difference between the man who won the Marlboro 500 and the one who lost.

Both were excited by an adrenalin-pumping finish after a tense duel over the last 98 laps of the 250-lap race. But it was Scott Pruett who came back to beat Al Unser Jr. after losing the lead at the start of the last lap Sunday.

Looks like it'll be another Cowboy-Frisco NFL party

When the Super Bowl shoe is on the other foot, the road you travel after you've won is not as sweet the next time around.

The defending champion San Francisco 49ers are finding the going just a bit tough prior to the start of the 1995 season.

Carlton Johnson
Staff Writer

Aside from losing offensive coordinator Mike Shanahan, defensive coordinator Ray Rhodes and running back Ricky Watters, the 49ers may end up in a battle with the Dallas Cowboys for the services of Deion Sanders.

Somehow I just can't see Deion as a Cowboy.

He helped the 49ers, but for the most part he seems to use the football field more for a dance floor than a place to play football.

Dallas can do without him and San Francisco would probably not want to deal with the distraction again.

Repeating as Super Bowl champions is not an easy task and the Cowboys will definitely be on the 49ers' heels this season.

At first glance you think the 49ers will have an easy season, especially with the expansion Carolina Panthers being in the NFC West. But Frisco is the defending champions, and have the target on their backs this time around.

Every team in the league wants to do their best against the champions, including the Cowboys, who think the title is still theirs.

For the first time Barry Switzer will really have the controls of the Dallas Cowboys.

Last year it was a matter of the Cowboys showing everyone they could win despite losing Jimmy Johnson, and they came within one game of their third straight Super Bowl.

Had it not been for so many early mistakes (costing themselves 21 points) in the NFC Championship game, Dallas could very well be talking about winning a fourth consecutive Super Bowl.

Dallas is a team that prides itself on competing for the top spot. Each position, for the most part, has two or three people who could start for most teams.

Switzer has answered the call. He can coach in the NFL.

Last year he didn't want to rock the boat and fix what wasn't broke, but a few things broke along the way.

He's put himself right in the thick of things and he will take the Cowboys back to the promised land.

Of course Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin and one of the league's best defenses will have a little something to do with it, but I'm ready for another Super Bowl ring in Dallas.

For some reason, that seemed to jolt the Rangers awake and started what turned into a wacky 7-6 victory that was in doubt until the last pitch.

"For the first time this year, I couldn't sit down at the end," said Texas manager Johnny Oates. "We did get a few breaks, but we had to hit a few balls to get the breaks.

It took the worst fielding team in the American League to help Rangers post a 7-6 win Sunday

Erik Hanson began Boston's woes by fumbling a ball that Mo Vaughn ended up dropping for an error. One swing later, Hanson got an error on a wide throw to first. Then, after the Red Sox rebounded to tie the game, Mike Greenwell lost a ball in the lights.

The two errors and botched fly were enough propel Texas to only its second victory in two weeks. The Rangers improved to 43-42 and avoided going under .500 for the first time since May 19.

"We've had quite a few breaks go against us lately," said Will Clark, whose three RBIs were the offensive spark for Texas. "Tonight, we had some go our way and we took advantage of it."

Kruk calls it a career

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Kruk's scraggly beard and swollen gut were good for a few laughs on more than one comedy show. His retirement, however, was all first class.

Kruk, 34, quit baseball Sunday after getting a first-inning single for the Chicago White Sox in their game against the Baltimore Orioles. There was absolutely no fanfare; in fact, the announcement wasn't made until after Chicago's 8-3 loss.

"The desire to compete at this level is gone. When that happens, it's time to go," Kruk said in a statement that was released following the game.

By the time the statement was distributed to the media, Kruk was long gone. He began clearing out his locker shortly after being stranded at third in the top of the first, and Frank Thomas took his place at designated hitter in the third inning.

It was not a rash decision. Kruk made up his mind Friday and shared the news with his teammates Saturday.

Young love can turn defiant if teens not allowed to meet

DEAR ABBY: I am a 47-year-old woman married to a wonderful man who is my second husband. When I read the letter in your column from the 13-year-old who was not allowed to talk to her boyfriend, it reminded me of what happened when my parents refused to let me see a boy I was in love with when I was 14. (I'll call him Ray.)

Although I couldn't stop loving Ray, my parents refused to let me see or talk to him outside of school. On my 16th birthday, I again asked permission and was finally permitted to see him two or three times a week in my home, under very stressed conditions, and I was allowed a 15-minute phone call once a day.

At age 17, I ran away and married Ray, a boy I loved but didn't really know because my parents wouldn't let me spend enough time with him. After several years of sadness, we divorced.

I must also tell you that my parents learned from my experience. When my sisters were 13 or 14 and fell in love, my mother talked to me. I suggested they be allowed to talk to their boyfriends on the phone and have them over for visits as long as grades, chores, sleep, etc., were not compromised.

Predictably, they outgrew those loves and are now married to "new loves." WISER NOW IN PENNSYLVANIA

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, July 31, the 212th day of 1995. There are 153 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: Fifty years ago, on July 31, 1945, Pierre Laval, premier of the pro-Nazi Vichy government, surrendered to U.S. authorities in Austria; he was turned over to France, which later tried and executed him.

Lebanon released a grisly videotape purportedly showing the hanged body of American hostage William R. Higgins, a day after his kidnapers threatened to kill him. In 1991, President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty in Moscow. Ten years ago: House and Senate negotiators reached agreement on legislation to impose economic sanctions against South Africa, in the wake of that country's growing unrest and state of emergency. Five years ago: Pitcher Nolan Ryan of the Texas Rangers became the 20th major leaguer to win 300 games as he led his team to victory over the Milwaukee Brewers 11-3.

One year ago: The U.N. Security Council authorized member states to use "all necessary means" to oust the military leadership in Haiti. The Associated Press
