Vic Slater Is Named New Postex General Manager

VIC SLATER

JAMES BROWN

Vic Slater, former manager of Burlington Industries' plant at West, last week succeeded Louie Burkes as general manager of Postex Plants in Post and in Memphis, it was announced.

He was in Memphis last Thursday meeting with Postex Hall Plant Overseer James Brown and other local employees of Postex, while looking over the local plant.

Burkes, who has been general manager of Postex for the last eight years, is awaiting a new Burlington assignment to a larger plant in the southeast part of the United States.

Slater, who has been with Burlington for 15 years, has been manager of the plant at West for the last 18 months. He will reside in Post.

His assignments with Burlington have included those at plants at Calhoun Falls, S. C., Greenville, S. C., High Shoals, N. C., Asheville, N. C. and Sherman, Texas, before going to West.

Slater is a native of Massachusetts, while his wife, Irma, is a native of South Carolina. They have three daughters.

Several other Postex men were named in personnel changes, which Dick Dickson, personnel manager at Postex Plants stated was a simple coincidence that many personnel changes be announced now by Burlington were "finalized" at the time of the cut-back in plant personnel announced recently.

Dickson said, in commenting on the cutback, that the "sheeting economy" is considered one of the most staple of the many product divisions of Burlington but that "the supply of sheeting in this country has finally caught up with the demand."

"Many companies, besides ourselves, are having to cut back in (Continued on Page 10)

County Insect Control Assn. Has Meeting; Plans For Future Control

The board members of the Hall County Insect Control Assn. met last Thursday night, March 13, and discussed possible ways of controlling the boll weevils in Hall County.

There are at present at least two local members from each of the eight communities in the county.

The organization reported it has received the support of State Senator Jack Hightower and Representative Bill Healy in attaining state assistance on boll weevil control. "We feel sure that this assistance will be available, which will pay for about one-half the spray costs. This assistance will not become available before next September, thus Hall County is on its own until next September in controlling the weevil," a spokesman for the organization said.

In a statement for publication the organization reports: "We all know that the boll weevil will not wait until next September to come out from his winter home and start his destructive damage to our cotton plants. Thus, some program must be put into operation in Hall County this spring and summer to stop this early build up and crop damage."

The only effective early season boll weevil control program that has proven successful is a uniform planting date followed by a uniform spray or dusting date with insecticides known to control boll weevil coming out for winter hibernation. These weevils usually begin showing up in the cotton fields about 45 to 50 days from the day the cotton is planted, which is at the time the first small terminal buds and squares appear on the cotton. This date is also about the same time that the cotton flea hoppers show up in the crop, and you can be assured that this little fellow does great damage to the bottom crop each year in Hall County. Any insecticide applied early to control the overwintered weevil will also control the flea hopper. Controlling the flea hopper alone will more than defray the expense of the insecticide application used for the early boll weevil control, the statement continued.

There are some eight established communities in Hall County. As a starter on the early boll weevil control program in the county a meeting is being held in the Brice community, Thursday night, March 20. The response and results of this meeting will be observed and studied by the members of the Hall County Insect Control Assn.

If this meeting proves to be a success with all farmers agreeing to plant their cotton within a set planting date and following up with a complete dusting or spraying program for the control of early thrip, flea hoppers and boll weevils, then it is hoped that the other communities in Hall County will immediately follow up with their own meeting and planning.

MHS Student Council Names Two As 'Teachers Of The Month'

The Memphis Student Council, composed of 15 representatives of classes and classrooms, last month began a program to honor faculty members of Memphis High in a "Teacher of the Month" recognition.

The first recipient of the "Teacher of the Month" honor for February was Mrs. Lorenn Hart, English and Speech teacher, according to Student Council President Sue Melton.

The "Teacher of the Month" selection for March is Mrs. Andy Gardenhire, freshmen and sophomore English teacher, President Melton said.

A bulletin board in the hallway of the school is decorated in honor of the "Teacher of the Month" listing educational background, and other interesting facts about the recipient.

Mrs. Hart has her bachelors degree and her masters degree from West Texas State University. She also has done post graduate work at Texas Women's University at Denton and the University of Texas at Austin.

She is a member of Kappa Delta Phi, a graduate honor fraternity at West Texas State. She is coaching the speech plays at Memphis High.

Mrs. Gardenhire has her bachelors degree from Wayland Baptist College and has done graduate work at North Texas State University and the University of Texas.

Mrs. Gardenhire is a member of Alpha Chi, honor society, and has coached the junior and senior plays at MHS.

The Student Council, which is this year affiliated with the state organization, will select "Teachers of the Month" for April and May.

New Kind Of Boll Weevil Control To Be Tried In Four-County Area

A team of forty inspectors from the Texas Department of Agriculture will fan out over Hall, Briscoe and Dickens Counties during the next two weeks getting permission to set up traps for a new kind of boll weevil control.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said in Austin this week that the cotton industry may be on the threshold of one of the most significant breakthroughs in boll weevil control in decades. The four-county area is a primary target in research work this spring.

The new boll weevil weapon relies partially on traps similar to ones previously used in pest surveys. The traps are baited with live male weevils which feed on produce a chemical that attracts female weevils. Once attracted, the insects get stuck on the glue-covered fins of the traps.

Commissioner White said the traps will be used in areas where insecticides have been applied in the fall during the past five years and has greatly reduced the weevil population. Another phase of small test plots of early fruiting cotton are an important part of the experiment.

In connection with the traps, small test plots of cotton will be planted earlier than normal ad-

Industry And Smalltown Welfare!

Cooperation means success. Cities do not just grow—they are a result of unending work by groups of citizens who place the welfare of all above their own private wishes.

Tulia today is what our forefathers made it. The Tulia of tomorrow will be exactly what the present generation sees fit to make of it—nothing more, nothing less.

Regardless of our individual desires to build well, we cannot, by ourselves, do very much. By itself, the newspaper can do nothing. By itself, the chamber of commerce can do nothing. It must be a combined effort, and that is where organizations like the Tulia Industrial Foundation can enter into the picture.

Here, every citizen has opportunity and privilege of joining with others to help make the city whatever we as a group may desire.

Nationally and internationally we are reaping the results of non-cooperation. We see it every day in our television news broadcasts and in the headlines of our papers. If we fail to cooperate in the city, we, too, will get the same disorganized results.

It is not idealism. It is just good common sense for all of us to think and work for the community as a whole.

Results will follow as surely as night follows day. Labor will have more work and better conditions. The farmer will have a better market and good prices for his product. All of which means business for the retailer.

A cycle has been set up, but not a vicious one and not a deadly one . . . but only if each group recognizes the rights and views of all other groups. Otherwise, it is and will remain impossible.

Tulia merchants . . . and all other small-town merchants in agricultural communities . . . are partly to blame for the pitiful agricultural prices of the hour! Also to blame are the farmers who have never had a unity of purpose.

How come?

If every merchant in agricultural communities had banded together ten years ago and demanded a stable farm economy, the job could have been accomplished. But instead merchants in smalltown communities like Tulia were chanting "Uncle Sam does nothing for me, why should he subsidize the farmers?" He did this while he was burning up bearings in his cash register as he sold merchandise to farm families and their hired hands.

He opposed "farm subsidies." He joined conservative farm organizations hellbent on "getting the government out of agriculture so the farmer can stand on his own two feet."

The belief is widely held that industry is the key to the survival of towns like Tulia in the face of declining agricultural economy.

Why is this belief so prevalent inasmuch as many towns have prospered in the past without industry? A listing of selected problems of the modern agricultural town may afford at least a partial answer to the question.

One of the well nigh universal characteristics of towns is their rapid growth since World War II. This has resulted in large part here in Tulia because of more intensive cultivation of the soil as irrigation reached its peak which helped to offset declining farm prices since 1952. Many farmers moved to town.

A second problem is the loss of human capital as high school graduates seek livelihood in distant cities. It is estimated that the overall cost of producing a high school graduate is near $25,000 and the local community pays a large portion of this. Small towns can hardly afford to make an annual contribution of this proportion to the metropolitan areas.

Consider the Tulia graduates. How many have become doctors, lawyers, engineers, business men, ministers . . . but had to go to the city to practice their profession?

Can industry help in relieving these and other problems? Experience indicates that industry can help although it can hardly be expected to replace the original agricultural economy.

It will however, tend to stabilize the economy of the area . . . helping everyone, the merchant, employee or farmer.

ACROSS the DESK

What Other Editors Say

Considerable stress is being placed on vocational training nowadays through our high schools, junior colleges, technical schools and by private enterprise through its own company programs.

This emphasis on vocational training has a threefold purpose. First, the shortage of skilled craftsmen and workers is becoming more prevalent. It is hoped that these training programs will offset this loss.

Secondly, such training programs will be helpful in taking people off of welfare rolls and make producers, and taxpayers, of them. If all who are physically able to work and are trained to do so, then will, this will take a great burden off of the taxpayers of the nation by cutting down on the billions going into the welfare program.

Thirdly, vocational training is helpful in keeping youngsters in school. Many youngsters become bored with routine academic courses. So much so that when they can legally drop out, they do so. Or some can't cope with the routine academic curricula and drop by the wayside. Yet many of these same drop outs are not lacking in intelligence or talent and would be top performers in a vocation that had appeal and challenge for them.

Of course just creating these various vocational training programs is not the sole solution. One of the biggest drawbacks is the attitude many people have about vocational training.

Many mothers of boys are particularly obstinate about accepting vocational training for their sons. They feel it is some kind of stigma if their son is trained to work with his hands in one of the crafts. They consider it degrading. Mothers want their sons to take up the glamor professions of medicine, dentistry, law, engineering, or become architects.

Or many parents feel that if their sons are guided into vocational programs, this is an inference they are mentally inferior to other young people. When in reality, in many cases, nothing could be further from the truth. With the complicated mechanism of automobiles today, for example, an automobile mechanic has to have more intelligence and skill than fellows in most other kinds of work.

There is a great need today for air - conditioning repairmen, television repairmen, electricians, plumbers, welders, mechanics, machinists, brick layers and similar type craftsmen. But all crafts call for skill and intelligence. No dumb bunnies need apply because they can't cut the mustard.

And what is wrong with a boy setting his sights on such vocations? They are honorable fields. If a boy becomes good at any of them, he can command and receive great respect . . . also a substantial income. In most cases he will eventually own his own business and hold a position of prominence in his community equal or higher than anyone else in it.

These men know cotton... and they know what Paymaster's Certified Lint Block Program means to all High Plains Cotton Growers.

Associate Professor, Texas A & M University
South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock

"The Texas High Plains has made tremendous progress in upgrading the quality of cotton fiber. This was accomplished by planting better varieties, using better quality seed and marketing through lint blocks or similar programs. The image of this area is greatly improved and it has meant millions of dollars to growers. I am concerned that we do not lose ground. We must (1) plant varieties that will produce fiber the mills want and can use; (2) plant the best quality seed; (3) do a good marketing job."

Gene Ellis, Manager
Bruegel Bros. Gin & Elevator
Hereford

Gene sees a real "bind" in meeting the demand for high quality cotton in 1969. "Certified Seed is the only way to produce the high quality that's more and more in demand each year," he says. "The acreage in our county planted to Certified Paymaster Seed has increased nearly 500% in the three years we've been in the Certified Lint Block Program because it brings a better profit, year after year. We recommend Paymaster 111 and 202 very highly."

"A planting program wherein Certified seed is used is certainly a great step toward production of a more uniform fiber. A Certified lint program would help to assure the mills of a reliable supply of quality cotton from which they could choose to produce a given fabric."

Carl Weathers
Kroco

"Paymaster's Certified Lint Block Program could mean the difference between success and failure this year," says Carl Weathers. "Cotton prices are close to the break-even point — and an extra 4¢ or 5¢ premium for quality can make a big, big difference. Paymaster Certified lint has the qualities mills want. I think it's the best... after all, Paymaster knows our area and our growing problems and they have the research to come up with answers that help. I plan to plant about 200 acres in Paymaster Certified 111 and the other 60 acres in Paymaster Certified 202."

The Bible study of the book of John was continued with the leader, Mrs. Mary Lou Erwin, introducing it with an interesting description of the disciple, John, as an eminent personality. She had arranged a suitable worship setting.

B.B. Shots

By BYRON BALDWIN

Just had a note written on the edge of part of "Hutcherson Kansas News" from Jane Tarvor Dronberger saying that BB Shots had scattered to Hutcherson, Kan., and note they had a reprint in the Kansas paper about our teenage boys in 1914. Thanks for even reading our shots, Jane. Your Uncle Mac Tarver made the remark a few days ago that he guessed that he had drank 100 thousand gallons of Coke in the drug store all those many years. He beat me on Cokes, but I believe I can top him on peanut butter. My grandson figures that in fifty - seven years, I had consumed two thousand six hundred thirty pounds of peanut butter. Fifty - seven years ago I weighed one hundred and thirty - five pounds and now after all the operation and consumption I only weight one hundred and seventy-five pounds. It does not take a computer to tell how this profit and loss sheet shaped up. That is the reason these feed lots have to watch what they put into the cattle and what they came out with.

Had a letter from Uncle Willis Lemons of Houston few days ago with check enclosed for Heritage Hall in memory of Mrs. John Dennis. Thank Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lemons. Willis has been away many years and his brother "Sug" of course still resides here and Willis calls this his home town.

Check from Ruby K. Thornton for Heritage Hall with her best wishes. She is one of our faithful old - timers, and has lived here most of her life, but anyway she knew some of the old timers I knew.

I was invited out to the annual meeting of the C. B. Club last week. There were about 50 present for the salad supper and to elect new officers. They are doing good work with their short wave sets and are even saving lives by their alertness in reaching others quickly. Have been especially good in operating on storm warnings. Hope they get the city to go along and have the police car connected up which would be good for any distress signals. They had members present from Briscoe, Collingsworth, Donley and Hall Counties. Met one of Uncle Sam Alexander's great - grandsons from Briscoe County. Uncle Sam was county clerk here about 1907.

Found election sheet in Heritage Hall, showed returns in April 1928 with sixteen votes cast. J. W. Webster, Judge, W. L. Wheat and Geo. Trotter, clerks. Ballots cast that day gave S. T. Harrison mayor and R. H. Wherry councilman. Both received all 16 votes.

Let I forget at the close of the C. B. meeting, we were presented a check for Heritage Hall by Dwayne Ellerd, out - going president, as he turned the gavel over to Roger Messer, the newly elected president. Thanks a million. It does your heart good to see the enthusiastic young people so full of vim and vigor to carry on after us older ones are gone. Appreciated the honorary membership bestowed upon me.

Introduced myself to a stranger on the streets of Memphis a few days ago. Mr. Freddie Roberts of Bakersfield, Calif., who happened to be here for the day. He was visiting relatives in Sharnock. He said he would never forget the wild ride he had down Schott cap in 1920, with a four wheel trailer tied on behind his car. As he started down the hill the pin came out of the hitch and the trailer passed him and met him at the bottom of schott cap turned over.

Visited in Clarendon March 16, for the dedication of the new Baptist Church there which is located in a beautiful spot on College Hill and can be seen facing down town. New address is 3rd and Bugbee Street. My grandparents came to Clarendon in 1906 and attended the Baptist Church and I have always had a warm spot in my heart from this church. We missed so many of the old timers there as we do here. There was one man on the building committee this time that served the same committee when the old church was built in 1912. Mr. O. C. Watson, who was presented with a special plaque by the pastor W. K. Lawrence in behalf of the church. I have heard O. C. make a good many speeches, but I believe this was his best one, as he was filled with emotion and said only a few words, but it was all reflected in his face without words. Many others were given special mention in the construction of the new building. Mrs.

Lawrence, wife of the pastor, did an outstanding job as she directed the special music for the occasion. The value of the four new churches that have been dedicated in Memphis and Clarendon is about one million dollars, good for small towns. Think Winfred Moore is right, "the Golden Spread, the best part of the world".

Hear say is that Mrs. Herb Curry was helping her son, Reg and wife, move to Colorado Springs last week and took them about three days to get to their destination, which usually only takes a few hours. They got caught in snow storm. Opal told someone that she thought she had been scared and prayed before, but not to compare with this trip. I wish Opal would write complete story of this trip. Dr. Reginald Curry is another one of our home town boys made good. He has a degree in Nuclear physics and is now located in Colorado Springs, Colo., with Kaman Nuclear. I don't know what this is all about, can hardly spell it, but we all proud of him.

Snow is so pretty and white, pure looking as an angel but it also can cause lots of trouble with accidents and deaths. But the most beautiful and angelic women in the world can be disappointing and cause a lot of heart - ache and trouble. We remember the old saying "all the glitters is not gold gold".

I am short one sock this week. Willie Mae just let one go in disposal! Printing is finer, stairs are steeper and tissue papers are thinner.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Brewer, Memphis, Texas.

In the interest of modern times, it is quite gratifying to find that genuine southern hospitality is not all gone yet. My wife and I and daughter - in - law were passing through Memphis, Texas, on our way to Colorado, when we met one of those West Texas blizzards.

The roads were closed ahead of us, and we were really frozen in. Being of modest circumstances, our funds were limited. We parked our pickup with camper in the Trailer Park of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Brewer. After paying the parking fee and parked the truck, we found that our small camper was going to be somewhat inadequate to cope with the blizzard. We went back to the office and inquired about the possibility of a room for the night. After a few minutes of conference between Mr. and Mrs. Brewer, they said they could put us up.

However, they were inconvenienced since their business did not ordinarily include this type. Being careful to ask them the price, they said, "well, we won't worry about the money." We were soon settled in our new quarters, which consisted of two rooms, complete with television and bathroom.

We were scarcely settled, until here came Mrs. Brewer with hot tea. This was only the beginning. The generous hospitality was continued throughout our stay.

You can see the genuine Christian principles being carried out in the lives of these people. The Lord said, "I was a stranger and you took me in." Lord when did we see you a stranger and took you in? "In as much as you did it unto the least of one of these my people, you have done it unto me also."

These people will certainly reap their reward for this great kindness.

The Lord said if you as much as give a cup of water to one of his people ye shall in no wise lose your reward.

Hospitality of this kind is well nigh priceless. Knowing this we humbly offered $5 as a token of appreciation. They would not accept money for helping a fellow man in time of need.

Needless to say, we left with a prayer on our hearts for God's richest blessings upon these people.

The name Brewer and the little town of Memphis, Texas, will linger in our memory indefinitely. They have definitely helped to restore our faith in humanity.

November 15, 1968. These arm themselves with aerials snapped off of autos, long thin rods, and then beat up pedestrians "just for the pleasure of it," not bothering to rob their victims. One of the victims required 13 stitches to close the gashes on his forehead and left ear.

Of course, it is one thing to report the facts. They all point to the use of drugs and promiscuity, the serious danger of the College scene, how the exploiters of youth, which the music industry, the comic book industry, the motion pictures and television, the pornographers and drug traffickers all stand bloodily.

There is also the burden parents must bear where firmness and discipline are neglected. It prompts one to ask, "Why are so many parents not sufficiently firm with their children?" An Author, T. C. Purcell in "Tonight Is Too Late," writes: "The fact remains, inescapable and damning, that there are parents in every community who drink too much and who do not seem to care what their children do . . . at least one could hope for parent rather than child education."

Without a doubt many children fail in school because their parents fail to take an interest in acquiring knowledge themselves. Thus the New York Times, November 5, 1968, reported that "one of the most serious problems in the education of the city's Negro children is a lack of educational enrichment in their home." It is quoted a public school official as saying that some homes have four television sets but no dictionary.

And as McCann wrote in "Delinquency - Sinkness or Sin?" - "The dockets of our juvenile courts . . . reveal in one child after another a common experience; parental indifference, neglect, rejection."

This prompts a thought as treated recently in AWAKE! magazine in answer to the question: "Why the Generation Gap?" Regarding this gap which it described as a worldwide phenomenon, it quoted the United States Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Earl Warren, as having stated, "One of the most necessities of our times is to resolve the growing friction between the daring of youth and the mellow practicality of the more mature."

Everywhere we look there is evidence of muddled thinking on the part of many youths. Thus one of the leaders of American's youth rebellion said, "First we'll make the revolution - then we'll find out what for." Does that make sense?

I'd like to call your attention to the answer AWAKE! published to the question, "What Can Be Done About It?" in its issue, February 22, 1969. "Parents can take their obligations more serious, be lovers of their children rather than lovers of pleasures. They can make a sincere effort to understand their children, to spend time with them and, above all, to keep open communication with them."

Parents can also be firm and exercise discipline, set a fine example and show loving concern for their offspring. And important also is not only inculcating right principles but giving their children a vision of God's purposes and kingdom, for "Where there is no vision the people go unrestrained." (Proverbs 29:18) To the extent that parents show understanding and keep integrity, children will be more likely to respect and obey their parents.

And as for youth? Does not youth owe a debt of gratitude to parents for food, clothing, shelter, education and entertainment? Each year many fathers desert their families because these burdens become too grievous for them. Rightly and wisely God's Word commands, "Honor your father and your mother . . . that it may go well with you." (Ephesians 6:2) "Observe, O my son, the commandment of your father and do not forsake the law of your mother." (Proverbs 6:20)

Where both parents and their offspring follow Bible principles, there will be no "generation gap."

In conclusion, it might be well to consider the key to success in avoiding lawlessness for ourselves and our children is the wisdom that comes only from God. No psychologist, sociologist, or any other human agency, however well - meaning, can thing as God thinks. Therefore the right solutions to problems regarding lawlessness must come from God. These he has recorded in his Word, the Bible. The first step necessary is for us to begin tacking in knowledge of what God considers right. As Proverbs 3:5, 6 urges, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy way acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." What about your children? God's Word counsels: "And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but bring them up in the nature

SCS Continues Research Into Many Select Grass Strains For Texas-Okla

Seeds from 65 select grass strains are being planted in Texas and Oklahoma this spring for field evaluation as part of a search for superior plants that will solve specific soil and water conservation problems.

H. N. Smith of Temple, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, reports that about 6,000 pounds of seed from the 65 strains are being planted

Social Security Rep. To Visit Here Wednesdays

The field representative of the Social Security Administration will be at the American Legion Hall in Memphis on four Wednesday mornings in April.

He is expected to be in Memphis from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m. on Wednesdays, April 2, 9, 16 and 23.

In May, the schedule calls for Wednesday morning visits on May 7, 14 and 28.

In June, visits will be on June 4, 11, and 25.

The representative will help residents in this area on any matters relating to social security.

Happiness is a pair of new shoes that feel like a pair of old shoes.

this year. The seed was grown at the SCS materials center at Knox City from grasses selected in Texas and Oklahoma.

"We are making progress in finding superior grasses adapted to a wide range of soil and climatic conditions," Smith said. "The individual problems, however, are so varied that it's a tedious job. In fact, we are now evaluating some 1,100 strains of more than 100 different grasses at the plant center."

To illustrate some of the problems SCS is trying to help solve, Smith cited a few examples:

Blue grama is a top grass on certain drouthy range sites in the western portion of Texas and Oklahoma and should be used in range seeding in that area. The only blue grama seed on the market, however, is harvested on the High Plains and it is not well adapted to other areas.

Twenty native selections of blue grama are being evaluated at the Knox City center to try to find a better, more widely adapted strain. Two selections, one collected at Aspermont and one at Waurika, are showing promise but further evaluation work is needed.

Work is also underway to find a grass that will thrive on land high in salt content. Such a plant would be extremely valuable for vegetating thousands of acres of bare, "salted-out" grassland in Texas and Oklahoma, as well as oil field areas damaged by salt-water.

Selections of alkali sacaton and inland saltgrass appear promising for these purposes. Alkali sacaton strains collected in Kennedy County near Dell City are showing up especially well. Evaluation work on inland saltgrass has been hindered by its failure to produce seed at Knox City.

After top plants are collected and proven at the SCS plant center, they are grown under field conditions on farms of soil and water conservation district cooperators. After final tests, superior varieties are identified and released to commercial seed growers who produce seed for sale.

A superior strain of Kleingrass, called Selection 75, was certified and released by SCS and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station for public use this year, Smith said. Other grass strains proven and put into use by SCS include El Reno, Texas, and Vaughn sidecoats grass; Rancho bluestem; plains panicum; green sprangle top; winged lovegrass; Blackwell and Greenville switchgrass; and sand bluestem.

Other work being done at the center includes a search for better ways to harvest certain grasses; ways to make some grasses seed more consistently; better ways to establish several plant species at one time and rate of fertilization; and irrigation efficiency studies for seed production.

Groups cooperating with the plant materials work include Texas A&M University, Oklahoma State University, Texas Technological College, Prairie View A&M College, Oklahoma and Texas Agricultural Experiment Stations, the Agricultural Research Service and soil and water conservation districts in the state area.

Ben Parks Is President Of Dallas Int. Motor Speedway

Ben Parks of Dallas, son of Mr. Ben Parks of Memphis, has been elected president of the Dallas International Motor Speedway, Inc., with offices at 510 Stemmons Tower in Dallas.

Parks is a Dallas realtor specializing in industrial and commercial properties.

He is also vice president and general manager of the Dallas International Motor Speedway, a successful drag racing promoter who has managed tracks in Texas and Colorado.

NOTE OF THANKS

For thoughtfulness expressed in many ways was deeply appreciated. We wish to thank every one who helped in the construction of the new drag strip. The children loved all the help and the greatest respect to all teachers and school personnel.

Thanks to the staff of Hall County Hospital. You were so kind to him. Doing for others is the greatest privilege we have in life. Thank you.

Mrs. Daisy White and Family

CARD OF THANKS

We are sincerely grateful to all who expressed sympathy during our sad bereavement. Our appreciation cannot be adequately expressed. May God bless each one.

Mrs. Henry Blum and Family

Parks is a graduate of North Texas State University. He moved with his family to Memphis in June, 1952, from Shamrock shortly after he graduated from Shamrock High School.

He went to Dallas in 1960 and joined the real estate firm of Campbell and Campbell, Inc. He opened his own firm, Ben Parks Company, in 1965, and has specialized in business properties.

Benny, as he is known here, has no experience in racing, but he became convinced that there was a need for a major racing facility in the Dallas area and that one could definitely succeed.

Construction began March 1 on the 380-acre site and is expected to be complete in May of this year.

The Dallas International Motor Speedway is a major racing facility specifically designed to bring the 1969 Spring Nationals of the National Hot Rod Assn. to Dallas. Initially the facility will accommodate only drag racing, but it will be capable of expansion for other types of racing as well.

The drag strip will be 5700 feet long and 60 feet wide, making it the longest major drag strip in the nation. An unusual safety feature will be a small lake at the end of the strip, approximately two and a half feet deep. If chutes, brakes and other methods of deceleration fail, cars will be halted safely by this water. The track is designed to handle dragsters traveling at speeds to 270 mph when such cars are developed. Current speed record is 229.59 for dragsters.

"Our aim has been to bring this great sports event, the Spring Nationals, to Dallas," Parks said in a recent news release. "And to do this we propose to construct in Dallas the finest and fastest strip in the nation, with safety features known to drag racing," he said.

Over 750 automobiles representing the finest drag racers in the world have already entered the Dallas event. With prize money expected to reach $175,000 this will be the richest Spring Nationals in history.

Some 75,000 to 80,000 spectators are expected at the Dallas track during the four-day event. In addition, television coverage will be provided by the award-winning program of the American Broadcasting Company, "Wide World of Sports".

American Legion Has Successful 50th Anniversary

The American Legion and Auxiliary had an outstanding 50th Birthday Anniversary Saturday, March 15, at the Legion Home in Memphis according to Henry Gregory, post commander, and Margaret Gregory, auxiliary president.

We want to thank the membership for their time, work and contributions, Mrs. Gregory said. Our birthday dinner was a success. Open house was held in the afternoon and honored World War I veterans. Birthday cake and coffee was served to all those present.

Mr. Gregory said he wanted to give special thanks to West Texas Utilities, General Telephone, Lone Star Gas, Herschel and Bill Combs of The Democrat, KBGH Radio Station and Coy Miller, Lone Star Gas Manager. Without their help our Freedom Flame could not have been installed for our community, he stated.

A regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held on Tuesday evening, March 18, at the Legion Home.

The meeting was called to order by the Auxiliary president, Margaret Gregory. Pledge to the flag was given in unison.

Minutes were read by Kathryn Webster, secretary - treasurer of the auxiliary.

Plans were made to start in the near future to raise funds for legion and auxiliary activities. Funds are needed for USO Boy and Girl State and child welfare.

The meeting was adjourned. Work Day will be Thursday.

Who Started The Harlem Globetrotters?

The Harlem Globetrotters combine basketball brilliance with a bagful of tricks!

The late Abe Saperstein found the Globetrotters. In 1927, he took five players, a ramshackle jalopy and a tattered road map. Thus started one of the most amazing careers in history of the sports world.

The Globetrotters have many achievements to their credit:

They played before the greatest crowd in basketball history. There were 75,000 fans in the Berlin Olympic Stadium in 1951.

They are the only team in basketball history to play before one million spectators in a season.

Some famous Globetrotters are: the late Reese "Goose" Tatum, Marques Haynes, the great dribbler, and the madcap "Mendowlar" Lemon.

adjacent to hibernation quarters to provide entrapment grounds for the insects that might not be caught by the traps.

The cotton in the trap plots will be treated with TEMIK, which will kill the weevils when they feed on the plants.

"The traps and test plots will give us a double shot at the insect in the early spring in an effort to eliminate the emerging, overwintering weevils," White explained. "If the traps don't get the early insects, we believe the treated cotton will take care of much of the remaining pests."

Some 26,000 of the sticky traps will be set in the test area, along with the treated test plots. The experiment is being conducted in a four - county growing area which normally plants about 40,000 acres of the crop.

Effectiveness of the trap crop will depend largely on whether plant pest control works can establish the fruiting cotton plants in the field ahead of the normal crop.

The Texas Department of Agriculture is working with the U. S. D. A. Agricultural Research and Plant Pest Control Division, Plains Cotton Growers and the Cotton Producers Institute on the project. Commissioner White said his inspectors will be making contacts with growers in the four - county area in connection with the work. "I anticipate wonderful cooperation from all concerned when they fully understand the work being undertaken," he said.

used to haul camping equipment for the scout troop.

The campaign to raise funds to buy the trailer was begun last year. Enough funds were raised so the troop could purchase the trailer and begin use of it now; however, there still remains a certain amount to be raised which the troop will endeavor to accomplish this year.

Scoutmaster Sims said the troop wants to raise the funds for the trailer from scout participation projects. Last year, over 50 percent was raised which leaves less than half to be paid off this year.

The retiring of Soapy Tribble from the chairmanship of the Scout Troop committee marks the end of over a decade of Tribble's service to the boy scout program here. However, Tribble is still a member of both the Explorer Post and Boy Scout Troop 35 committees in Memphis at the present time.

He donated many hours of his time, his talents, and facilities to many boy scout projects. Among them was a paper collection campaign in which the entire back end of Tribble Cleaners was piled high with bundles of paper, which porting horses, which is adequate troops activities.

The purchase of the camping trailer for the troop was another of the projects that Tribble instigated as chairman of the committee.

In past years, every time the troop tried to use a "small" trailer, it would always end up somewhere along the way. Tribble and other scout leaders would spend many hours repairing the trailer, getting ready for the next year.

The one purchased by the troop is a 14 - ft. trailer used for transporting horses, which is adequate for transporting tents, and personal gear.
