MURDERED MAN DIDN'T CARRY BANKROLL

NEW DRILLING NOW WAITS ON WATER SUPPLY

All Companies Agree That Lack of Rain Is Holding Up Operations.

Only the lack of an adequate water supply stands between the present inactivity and a general renewal of drilling activities by the smaller companies in this territory, it was generally agreed today by the oil interests. One or two of the larger companies, however, declared that they were waiting both for water and for another leap in crude prices, which they are confidently expecting. At the present time there is practically no water available for drilling purposes with one or two exceptions, it is pointed out, and there can be no renewal of operations until the general prayer for rain is answered.

In the Frankell-Caddo section the Prairie company has practically the only water available in the section, with the exception of the Fraser interests who have arranged to supply their drilling operations from the railroad tank. The Sun company by means of pipe lines from the Brazos river, has been enabled to continue operations in that territory and recently made four new locations, one in the Bunker field, two in the Eliasville field and one in the Breckenridge section.

Expects Price Advance.

The Mid-Kansas company here is waiting both for an increase in prices and for water before renewing drilling operations and expect both as a matter of course.

E. Mc C. Moore, drilling on the Davis strip, has instituted somewhat of an innovation in this field by drilling an offset well for his water supply. While this is somewhat of a general practice in other fields, water wells have not been drilled in this section before because of the difficulty in finding it over the field at a shallow depth. Moore found a water sand at 400 feet recently while drilling and immediately drilled an offset well. The water was found to be slightly salty but hardly more so than surface water.

Despite the scarcity of water, however, McMichael Bros. have rigged up on the Martin lease, offsetting the Sinclair company's J. B. Stewart No. 3, near Frankell.

GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS ASKS SPEEDY TRIAL

By Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 12.—Motion that preliminary hearing in all of the three embezzlement cases against Governor Len Small be heard on Dec. 5, was made today by attorneys for the governor and the state's attorneys office of Sangamon county.

In the event that the indictments are sustained, they asked that the trial be started at the earliest possible date.

CONFEREES AT WORK ON TAX REVISION BILL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—House and senate conferees on the tax revision bill, holding their first session today, agreed to approximately 160 of the 833 amendments to the bill. The most important was that adopted by the senate continuing the taxes on the salaries of the president and federal judges.

The conferees passed over today the income surtax amendment and the corporation income tax provision—the two high spots in the bill—but agreed to the amendment continuing the present normal income taxes.

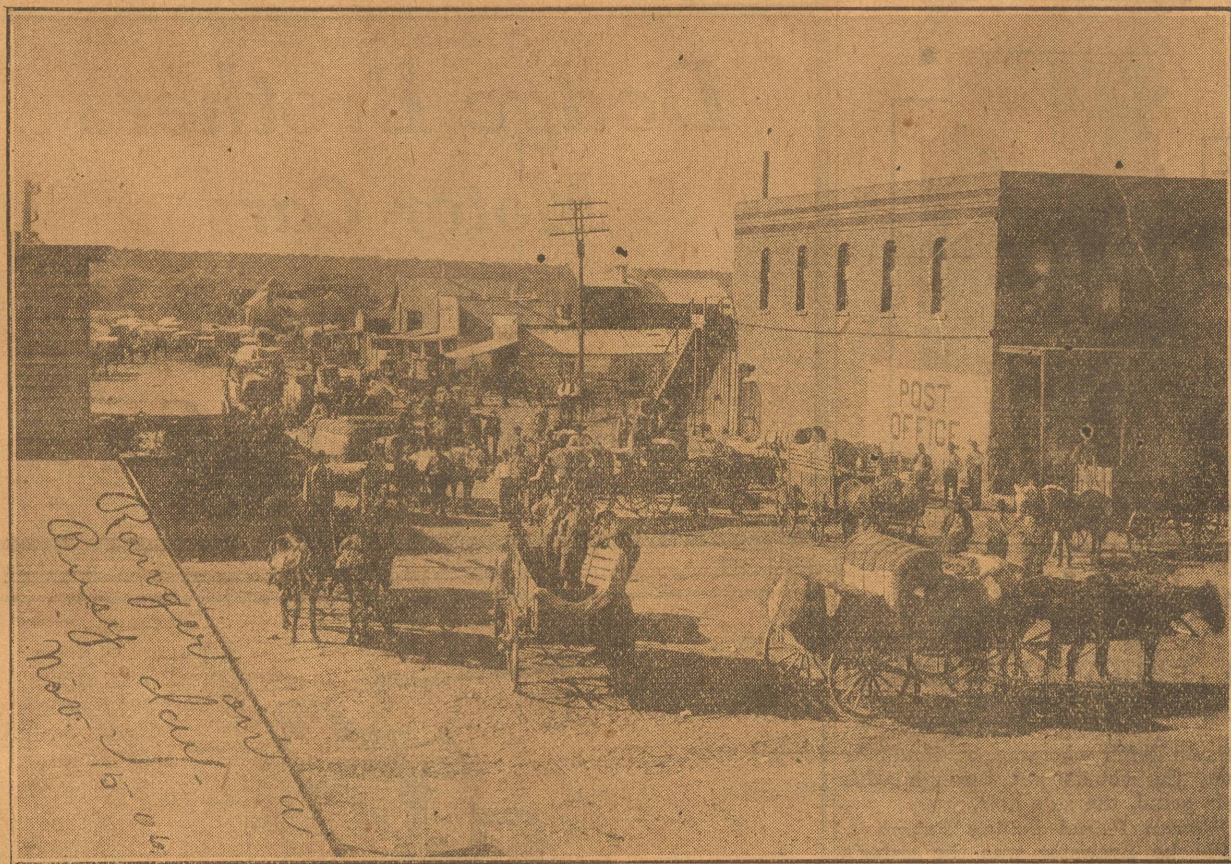

PROCLAMATION RATIFYING TREATY IN HARDING'S HANDS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The draft of a proclamation declaring the United States at peace has been submitted by the state department to President Harding for approval and signature and its promulgation is expected early next week.

This was learned early today, coincident with announcement by the state department of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Berlin, effective yesterday at the German capital.

RANGER FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Fifteen years ago Ranger was not excited over oil, unless it was cotton seed oil. It was the center of a farming and stock raising community and the marketing place for thousands of bales annually. The street scene below is of one of the principal streets, showing "Ranger on a Busy Day." There is a landmark which is a plain guide to what street is portrayed, if one notices the characteristics of buildings. Can you name it? The picture shows the building through the courtesy of J. L. Walker of the Annex hotel, who at that time was a cotton buyer here. Mr. Walker is the man with the white shirt, in the group near the center of the street. What street? Oh, yes! Rusk, looking south from Main. The picture was taken from the building now occupied by John E. Milford.

Ex-Governor Must Face Peonage Charge

By Associated Press.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 12.—Peonage was charged in a indictment returned here last night against Sidney J. Catts, former governor of Florida, by the federal grand jury at a special sitting, it was announced today.

AN IMPORTANT CORRECTION

In Saturday's account of the election of V. V. Cooper to succeed H. E. Clewell as chairman of the Law Enforcement bureau, a printer's error makes it read that Mr. Clewell is not relieved of responsibility for the acts of that organization.

The executive committee's statement as written and as it should have appeared, reads in this connection: "The action, however, DOES relieve Mr. Clewell from any further connection with or responsibility for the action of the bureau."

SECURITY BANK IS NOW PAYING OFF DEPOSITORS

EASTLAND, Nov. 12.—A number of checks for deposits in the closed Security State Bank & Trust company have been received by Eastland depositors, from the state banking commission. Some $40,000 worth of the checks were presented today at the First State bank.

The Security bank had between $400,000 and $500,000 in individual deposits subject to check, in addition to the county's money.

SINN FEIN PRISONERS FIGHT WAY TO FREEDOM

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.—Sinn Fein prisoners under sentence escaped from Mount Joy prison tonight. The men got away after a fight in which revolvers were used.

BRITISH STATESMEN DISCUSS ULSTER'S STAND

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister Lloyd George, Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, and Lord Chancellor Birkenhead, met this morning in Lloyd George's official residence in Downing street to consider Ulster's reply to the government's proposal for a settlement of the Irish question. Viscount Fitzalan, lord lieutenant and governor general of Ireland, was called for consultation during the conference.

FRENCH VISIT JAPS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Premier Briand and M. Viviani of the French delegation to the armament conference, late today went to the Japanese embassy to visit Admiral Baron Kato and other members of the Japanese delegation.

MEXICANS NEVER FAIL TO ADDRESS LETTERS CORRECTLY, P. O. FOLK SAY

Mexicans are the most careful letter writers of this section, employees of the local postoffice declare. They never forget to address and stamp their letters before dropping them in the mail boxes and apparently they always put the right address on them, for never in the memory of the present P. O. force has a letter found its way back to the writer from a Mexican address.

When they leave here some of the letters alone know where they are going, but they apparently get there after once crossing the border.

Americans Careless.

Not so with American letters. They often come back because of insufficient or careless addresses and often they never even get started after being hurriedly dumped into the postoffice with no address at all. In other cases the senders forget to stamp their letters. Every effort is made to return these letters to the careless senders by the department but very often the department is unable to connect with the writers and the letters go to the dead letter office.

This carelessness on the part of the public all over the country requires thousands of postal employees who do nothing but straighten out improperly addressed letters and packages, thereby increasing federal expenses. When an unstamped letter is dropped into a postoffice or mail box, it is returned to the sender if his address is available; if not, the addressee is notified that the letter is being held for postage. In cases of no address, either of sender or the person for whom it is intended, the letter or package is opened to ascertain the name of one or the other. In some cases the contents even do not reveal the name of either party.

Thousands of Errors.

In New York alone, postoffice statistics show, 400 letters without any addresses are mailed daily. It is shown that the special mailing clerks of large business houses are as guilty of this piece of carelessness as often as those for whom licking stamps does not constitute a calling. Every day 350,000 pieces of improperly addressed mail is posted. Often the wrong state is written, frequently the sender writes the name of his home town when he intends to write another.

Postal authorities attribute 80 percent of all the delays complained of to carelessness in mailing. Another cause for tardy delivery is the not yet abandoned custom of taking pride in eccentric, peculiar handwriting.

METHODISTS CONDEMN OFFICERS FOR NON-ENFORCEMENT OF DRY LAW

Special to the Times.

CISCO, Nov. 12.—Methodist ministers attending the Central Texas conference here today were called upon to adopt a report upbraiding federal judges for non-enforcement of the prohibition law and jurors who refused to convict in liquor cases, by Rev. Atticus Webb, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league. Webb's report was adopted by the conference over the protests of Judge George W. Barcus of Waco and Judge John E. Hickman of Dublin, lay delegates, who contended that "law-fearing and honorable federal judges should not be condemned without a trial."

Webb demanded the activity of every Methodist minister in the election of every officer from constable to president, with special activity in the elections of county officers. The Anti-Saloon superintendent started in with federal judges in his speech of condemnation and ended up with newspapers. He declared that a big drunk was pulled off at the Amarillo sheriff's convention; he opened fire on the legislature, took a personal shot at Senator Parr of Duval county and claimed that the newspapers were printing false reports about there being so much bootlegging and violations of the prohibition law, simply as propaganda paid for by the illegal liquor traffic. Despite his depreciation of bootlegging activities Rev. Atticus waxed warm over the "big drunks" which he attributed to sheriffs, prosecuting attorneys, district judges and district clerks. The sheriffs are engaged in bootlegging, he said. "They seize liquor and have negroes to peddle it." He declared that one district judge was so drunk on one occasion that he could not hold court for a week.

The dry leader declared that the league was going to carry on a gigantic campaign next year and get the right kind of legislature.

The conference voted at noon to hold its next session at Weatherford.

COLLIN COUNTY PIONEER FOUND WITH THROAT CUT

By Associated Press.

M'KINNEY, Texas, Nov. 12.—William H. Patton, 74, pioneer Collin county resident, was found dead at his home near here today with his throat cut. He had been in ill health, friends said.

NEW BANK WILL AID DEPOSITORS OF CLOSED F&M

Full List of Stockholders Will Be Announced When It Opens Wednesday.

Every effort will be made by the new Texas State bank, opening here Wednesday, to assist depositors of the old F. & M. bank, now in the hands of the state banking department, it was learned yesterday. Officers of the new institution explain that while they are in no way connected with the old bank; have no access to the books and are not authorized to make any advance settlements, that they will be glad to do whatever they can to relieve the situation. It is pointed out that the old bank was protected by the state guaranty fund and depositors will be paid off as soon as the affairs can be straightened out.

J. M. Dodson, state bank examiner, arrived here Wednesday and started the liquidation of the F. & M. bank Thursday. He explained that statements will be furnished depositors as soon as proof claims are in, and that the claims will be paid as soon as possible.

Will Name Stockholders.

A letter is being mailed out to the public tomorrow by M. H. Hagaman, president of the Texas State bank, explaining the purposes and intentions of the new institution and announcing the purchase of the old F. & M. building and fixtures. Aside from the names of the president and that of A. A. Buschow, vice president, and cashier, the names of the officers and directors will not be announced until the opening of the bank, as the list of local stockholders is not complete and it is desired to announce the directorate and the names of all the stockholders of the bank at the same time.

Mr. Buschow explained yesterday that it was the purpose of the bank to employ as many employees of the old F. & M. bank as possible. The new bank has $100,000 paid up capital and its organization includes a number of experienced oil field bankers of Oklahoma and Kansas.

PRITCHARD WON'T TAKE WARRANTS; DOESN'T SAY WHY

Special to the Times.

EASTLAND, Nov. 12.—County Treasurer E. S. Pritchard today announced that he would decline to pay any more of the Fleming & Stitzer road warrants. It was announced in the county papers last week on the authority of Judge Starnes that there was now on hand $32,000 with which to pay these warrants and that warrants Nos. 1 to 254 would be paid upon presentation. It is understood that a few have been paid. No reason for his announcement was made by Mr. Pritchard, his statement to the public merely saying: "I am not paying any of the Fleming & Stitzer road warrants at the present time. My position on the matter will be given to the public soon."

RECEIVERSHIP ASKED FOR GENERAL OIL CO.

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Nov. 12.—Appointment of a receiver for the General Oil company, capitalized at $20,000,000, and organized by S. E. Cox, promoter and airplane enthusiast, who later lost control through court proceedings, is asked in a suit filed in district court today by the Lincoln State bank, and State Bank of West Pullman, and six individuals of Chicago.

The plaintiffs claim $80,000 worth of notes as past due, and allege insolvency. Hearing of the case, which promises to be hard fought, was set for next Friday.

LAWYER'S REMARKS GET NEW TRIAL FOR R. M. TODD

By Associated Press.

EASTLAND, Nov. 12.—R. M. Todd of Ranger, who this week was convicted on the charge of theft by bailies, has been granted a new trial. The second hearing is based upon the fact that the prosecuting attorney in his address to the jury pointed out that Todd did not take the stand in his own defense, which is a violation of judicial procedure.

SIMPLE BURGLARY WOULD HAVE WORKED, BUT KILLING FAILED

Four Hundred Dollars in Bills Were Carelessly Stowed in Tin Box on Table of Tailor Shop; May Have Legion Funeral.

An ironical twist was given to the brutal murder of Joe Fiebrich, Ranger tailor, when it was discovered late yesterday afternoon that the "bank roll" which the hijackers had committed murder to obtain Friday night had been reposing all the while unprotected in the rear of the tailoring shop on Pine street and within easy access of any one entering with burglarious intent.

Four hundred dollars in $10 bills, so far as is known comprising the tailor's sole hoard of savings since his fear of banks last summer is said to have caused him to keep his collections on his person, was found by Justice McFatter in a tin box. McFatter as administrator of the estate was directed to the hiding place of the money by a friend of the dead man, who explained that he had seen the tailor place the roll of bills in the box last week. So far as has been determined, the dead man's entire estate consists of the sum of $427, two diamond rings, a watch and his equity in the tailoring establishment. Justice McFatter, who was appointed temporary administrator yesterday afternoon, has not yet been able to learn whether or not the tailor had any funds on deposit in banks.

Body Awaits Relatives.

The body is being held at the Milford Undertaking establishment pending the arrival of a relative from West, Texas. The local establishment was instructed yesterday by the West Undertaking company by ship the body there on the Sunshine Special today, but as the West firm was unable to give the name of the supposed relative by the uniform now acting, it is understood that the authorities requested the relative to appear here in person.

The dead man's only relatives so far as known here, are his mother and several members of his family residing in Austria. A letter in possession of Justice McFatter, supposedly written by the mother, bears the postmark of Movaria and the return address of what appears to be "Natz Fobrich, Rakova, Kusovec, Movaria, Europe." The letter was written in March.

Served in Two Armies.

Friends state that before coming to this country a number of years ago, that Fiebrich served his compulsory enlistment in the Austrian army, as testified to by the uniform now hanging in his shop, and by a photograph. He is also said to have been a service man in the world war. A delegation from the American Legion post at Thurber, headed by the post commander, came to Ranger yesterday afternoon to offer their services, after being notified by Justice McFatter, a member of the Thurber post that the dead man was supposed to have served his adopted country.

In the event that Fiebrich is buried here, arrangements will be made to give him a military funeral by the Thurber and Cisco posts, it is stated, in the absence of any legion post in Ranger.

No New Developments.

No new developments in the murder case occurred yesterday. The police feel that in the arrest of Lloyd Lyons and Johnny Boyd yesterday that they have got beyond the shadow of a doubt the men responsible for the murder and that the testimony of Fiebrich's companion, Stella Winks, who had left him a short while before the murder, and that of the other woman involved has woven a chain of direct circumstantial evidence around the pair that cannot be shaken.

Officers yesterday had been unable to find the bullet fired by the shooting, which was buried in the upholstery of Fiebrich's car after passing through his heart. The upholstery was cut away and a close examination is being conducted for the missing ball. An examination of Fiebrich's .25-caliber automatic, which was found several feet from his car, revealed that not only had the tailor been given no chance to fire, but that there was no cartridge in the chamber of the weapon.

No Eyewitnesses.

As published yesterday, testimony of the two women in the case revealed the fact that Fiebrich had been shot and killed about 8:20 Friday night while seated in his stalled car in a lonely spot off the Tiffin road on the outskirts of the city. While neither woman witnessed the shooting, their testimony, together with that of Lyons himself, tends to fix the murder on one if not both involved in the attempted robbery.

Lyons and Boyd were hurried to Eastland yesterday morning under charges of first degree murder by Sheriff Nollet, without any signs of violence being offered against them. Feeling ran high in some quarters of Ranger during the day and was freely expressed on the streets.

FORMER POSTMISTRESS FACES MURDER CHARGE

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 12.—Lena Clark, former postmistress of West Palm Beach, and Baxter Peterson, chauffeur, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today on charges of murder in connection with the death of Fred A. Miltmore, last August. Trial was set for Nov. 22.

GOVERNOR NEFF TO SPEAK AT BOWIE AND DECATUR

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Nov. 12.—Governor Neff left tonight for Bowie, where he speaks tomorrow afternoon. Tomorrow night he speaks at Decatur. Both addresses are to be made at citizens' mass meetings.

COLLEGE PIN LOST 42 YEARS FOUND IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Chauncey H. Pember was a sophomore at Yale and proud of it. He wore his class pin with a swagger. He also wore a derby hat with a curled rim and a low crown. All his shirts had to be pulled over his head and the collars buttoned in the back. If he had worn knickerbockers he would have been chased off the campus because they were "short pants," the badge of babyhood, and Chauncey was a man. He had a fine student lamp in his study fed with kerosene.

Great news, incredible, spread at Yale, and Chauncey was punning to the campus to see if one of the new students really could pitch a "curve" ball. That was an attribute of supermen then, because it was the autumn of 1879. College youths still frankly considered a career of fighting Indians. Gen. Custer was only recently slain at the Little Big Horn by Sitting Bull and his redskins, and buffalo roamed the plains in such hordes that milk wagon drivers wore overcoats of their shaggy hides.

Wonderful Days. Rutherford B. Hayes was president, more or less by favor of the electoral commission and its decisions against the face of the returns of Samuel J. Tilden. And Mrs. Hayes had barred the wine glass from the White House table. John Kelly was head of Tammany and many New York people took the stages of Harlem because they were certain the new elevated trains were going to fall off the "high trestle" at 110th street almost any day.

But Chauncey never had been to Harlem and never has gone there. Also he did not know what "chauffeur" meant, he never had used a telephone or played golf or shot craps.

He lost his pin, engraved "Yale, class of '82, C. H. P.," while tearing over to see that fellow who said he could pitch a "curve ball." And he never saw it again until last week.

Mrs. George Thompson, of 85 Morningside Avenue, wife of the detective sergeant in charge of the bureau in the 125th street police station, found the pin in front of a "movie" theatre in West 125th street a few days ago. (Chauncey had some "daguerotypes" taken of himself while he was at Yale.) Mrs. Thompson wrote to Yale university, was informed that Chauncey H. Pember of 187 Sisson avenue, Hartford, was the only member of the class of '79 with his initials, and Mrs. Thompson sent the pin to Pember.

Chauncey H. Pember replied with gratitude and told Mrs. Pember he had not seen the pin since 1879, had never in his life been in Harlem and would wonder for the remainder of his days why anybody not the owner should be wearing such a pin in October, 1921, forty-two years after he lost it in New Haven.

WOMAN HURT WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO AT EASTLAND

Special to the Times.

EASTLAND, Nov. 12.—Miss Jean Vinyard of Kansas City, who is visiting friends here, received injuries today when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by the east-bound Sunshine Special, at the crossing a short distance west of the depot. The machine had stalled with two wheels on the track.

Miss Vinyard is at a local sanitarium suffering from bruises and cuts.

MARINE, AGED 100, TO "SETTLE DOWN" AFTER VISITING SON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Sergeant Matthew Bradley, 100-year-old marine, wants to visit his son before he "settles down," he told Secretary Denby in a letter today. He requested that he be allowed a furlough so that he can leave the Leavenworth hospital in Kansas and make the trip to Brooklyn, where his son is a retired policeman. Records at the marine corps headquarters show that Bradley enlisted on Jan. 3, 1855.

THIRSTY WARNED AGAIN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Roy A. Haynes, prohibition commissioner, today warned the public against the dangers of drinking "bootleg beverages."

Less than 2 per cent of the liquor analyzed by chemists of the prohibition unit, he says, has been found to be fit to drink since the cutting down of withdrawal permits has cut off the supply of bonded liquor.

Whisky and gin made of wood alcohol by bootleggers, it is asserted, virtually is certain to result in blindness and death.

RECLAMATION LOAN URGED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Appropriation of $16,200,000 as a loan to continue development of authorized reclamation projects, was proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican. He and other Western senators said funds were needed urgently.

FORD AND WEEKS TO CONFER

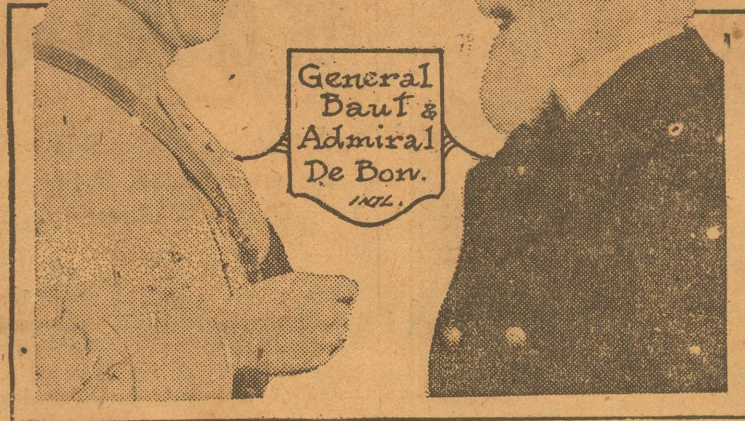

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Arrangements were completed today for a conference between Henry Ford and John W. Weeks, secretary of War, to be conducted here Nov. 18, with respect to the Detroit manufacturer's offer for the Muscle Shoals, Ala., nitrate plant and power project.

PUBLIC PAYS 558 MILLION LESS TO RIDE

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—That the public actually paid about $558,000,000 less for railroad transportation during the first year after the present freight and passenger rates were put in effect by the interstate commerce commission on Aug. 20, 1920, than it did during the preceding year while the rates were lower, but the roads were under a government guaranty, is shown by the Railway Age in an article in its current issue analyzing the statistics of railroad operations for the twelve months' period ended Aug. 31.

Figures compiled by the bureau of railway economics show that for the year ended Aug. 31, 1921, the total earnings of the Class I roads were $6,045,338,100, as compared with $5,724,912,265 for the year before, an increase of $320,425,835, or 5.6 per cent. In the year ended with Aug. 31, 1920, however, the railroads were guaranteed by the government at the rate of approximately $906,000,000 per year. As the roads actually earned during that period a net operating income of only $28,548,077, the public had to make up the difference of $878,000,000 from taxation.

This made the total it paid in both rates and taxes about $6,602,900,000, or about $558,000,000 more than during the first twelve months the present rates were in effect. This reduction in the amount the public paid was about 8 1/2 per cent, while meantime the reduction in the freight service rendered was about 14 per cent.

Expense Are Reduced. In addition, the statistics show that "while, because of the slump in traffic, the full benefits of the rate increase were not realized, the roads still earned more than they did before at lower rates, and that while they were unable to reduce expenses in proportion to the reduction in traffic, partly because of the wage increase, the expenses were less than they were the year before.

"Freight revenues for the year were $4,279,028,738, an increase of 9.6 per cent, and passenger revenues were $1,258,394,376, an increase of 2.8 per cent.

"Total operating expenses for the year were $5,161,760,829, a reduction of $218,876,981 as compared with the preceding year, or 4.1 per cent. Expenditures for maintenance of way and structures decreased 12.3 per cent and for maintenance of equipment 7.1 per cent, while transportation expenses were reduced only 1.1 per cent and traffic expenses increased 33.8 per cent and general expenses increased 12.8 per cent.

"Taxes took $283,331,368, an increase of 10.4 per cent, and the net railway operating income was $530,655,927, as compared with only $28,548,077 in the previous year. The operating ratio for the year was 85.38, as compared with 93.99 the year before."

Business Relations Improved. Although the net railway operating income represented less than half of the 6 per cent return contemplated by the law, the results show that the relation between expenses and earnings was far better than it was in the previous year, during half of which time the roads were being operated by the government and the other half they were under the six months' guaranty provided by the transportation act.

The net return earned by the roads for the year ending Aug. 31, 1921, was 2.9 per cent on the investment. This was $571,342,073 less than the amount needed to produce a 6 per cent return, and about $435,000,000 less than the owners would have received as rental for their properties if government control had been continued. For no month since the rates were increased has the rate of return reached a 6 per cent basis, although the volume

Prince's Wife Drops From High Life to Newspaper Selling in Houston

Grind, grind, grind. Year in and year out the courts keep pace with the mills of the gods in their ceaseless grind of the grist of human weal and woe, with now and then a story of strange and unusual interest dropping from their maws, says the Houston Post.

HIS OBSCURITY DOESN'T WORRY EX-GOV. HASKELL

By LEO T. HEATLEY,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—New York is big; New York is cosmopolitan—it is even friendly. But New York is also the crucible into which the great come, only to find that they have dwindled into insignificance. The fame of Napoleon himself could not survive other and more immediate questions in this great city.

All this is preliminary to the story of C. N. Haskell, Oklahoma's first governor, a big political gun in that state and a national figure—until he came to New York. Haskell went back to Oklahoma last month on his first visit in five years. The newspapers there got out special welcome editions, and the welkin rang from Altus to Miami and from Guyton to Hugo—considerable territory.

In New York Haskell is chairman of the board of the Middle States Oil company. When he made up his mind to visit Oklahoma the only ones to miss him were his stenographer, his office boy and the office doorman. Outside of these and a few friends, no one knew he had ever been in New York, to say nothing of his leaving it. Outside of his business and social orbit, the tax collector or the only individual who has evinced any special interest in him.

Wrote "Denver Platform."

In Oklahoma the name of "C. N." was a household word. President Roosevelt thundered at him and newspapers exposed him. He wrote the Denver platform of Democracy and was the party's national treasurer.

In New York he has made just as much of a success in business as he did in Oklahoma politics. As an Oklahoman his name and face were once familiar to New York. As a New Yorker—well, he still is remembered in Oklahoma.

When he made this last trip to the state—he was first to rule he spoke at the State fair, and everyone hustled to McAlester and listened to him. Publicly they cheered, but privately they asked each other what he was "up to." They speculated as to whether he was about to return to Oklahoma politics and give Cherokee Bob Owen another run for the senate, or was this to be the opening gun of a national campaign? But he fooled them all. He spoke of national extravagance and the direct election of federal judges. They went away still cheering and still puzzled, and he came back to the Madison avenue offices of the Middle States Oil company.

"Then you are not going back into politics?" he was asked.

a sister living who was, or would be when the courts got through with their grind, the sole heir.

Woman Found Selling Papers. Phoebe Brewster was the sister's name and the trail of her life from the time seventy-six years ago that she was born, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Percy Brewster, was taken up to be followed through good times and bad, through prosperity and adversity. It led to one of Houston's busiest street corners where every morning for the last seven years had stood an elderly woman matching her feeble voice with the more blatant and raucous cries of hustling newsboys.

A court official found her there and asked her if she was Phoebe Brewster.

Phoebe Brewster? Yes, Phoebe Brewster Wittgenstein, or if you want the full name, Madame Dominique Louis Sayn Wittgenstein, widow of a Prussian prince who died before he could take her back to the home country and left her nothing but a tongue-twisting name.

First Married When Only 16. Her father was a young lawyer. She had three sisters. All were given an excellent education. Her mother died when she was 9 years old. Her education continued until at 16 she was married the first time, despite the objections of her relatives.

The marriage lasted only a few years and was followed by another that was not without its glamor of romance. This was the marriage to the Prussian prince, solemnized in Houston, and later officially recognized under German law.

And then the story of ups and downs. A teacher at one time of French and Latin in one of Houston's select schools, she mingled with the early family folk of the city and has at her tongue's end the names of the misses and the young bloods of those early days.

Culture Still Clings to Her. And now a newspaper vendor on the street corner. But not an ordinary vendor. No, there is the culture, and at times, the age has enfeebled her, the carriage, of the Phoebe Brewster of long ago.

Five thousand dollars she was told she would get. Quite enough to care for her throughout the remainder of her life. Would she stop selling papers?

Well, not right away, she said.

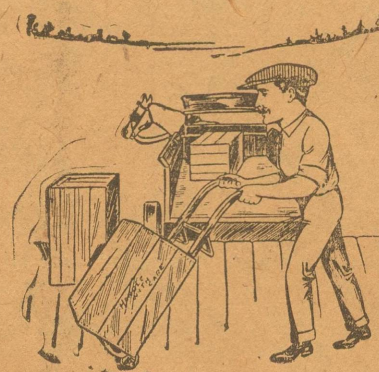

And as she passed out her papers with a "Good morning, sir," or "Here's your paper, sir," and renewed her daily appeals for customers in competition with the shrill voiced youths who were bidding against her, it was quite evident that hers was not a life so dull and uninteresting that it could be given up without a pang of regret.

YALE'S ATTACK TOO POWERFUL FOR PRINCETON

Bulldogs Win 13 to 7; Their First Victory Over Tigers in Five Years.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12.—A powerful Yale eleven defeated Princeton here today in their annual game, 13 to 7. The Elis scored a touchdown and goal in the first period and field goals in the third and fourth periods. Princeton's seven points were earned on a touchdown and goal in the second period.

The game was bitterly fought from start to finish. The sheer power of Yale's attack conquered the smoother play of the Tigers for the first Eli victory over Princeton since 1916.

The captains of both elevens were forced to leave the game on account of injuries.

The first Yale victory in this annual football classic since 1916 was due to a touchdown by O'Hearn on eighteen-yard end run in the first period, coupled with a twenty-four-yard drop kick by Captain Aldrich in the third period and another fifteen yards in length, kicked by the same player, during the last quarter.

Make Long March.
Princeton made a touchdown in the second period on ten plays, including four forward passes, the series enabling the Tigers to march fifty-eight yards, the last play being a buck of one yard across the goal line by Garrity.

The advance to the last white line was sixty-eight yards long and was made in eight plays, largely from the triple threat formation by Aldrich and O'Hearn. Aldrich made one end run of eighteen yards and another of twelve during this first offense, without recourse to the forward pass.

HARVARD NOSES OUT VICTORY OVER BROWN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—Harvard, with regular players absent from the lineup, scored a 9 to 7 victory over Brown at the Stadium today. The winning points came in the last few minutes. With the score 7 to 3 in Brown's favor the Crimson plunged down the field for a touchdown from the visitors' twenty-yard line.

Marshall, substituting for Taasche, tried in vain to overcome Harvard's lead by attempting a field goal from Brown's thirty-five-yard line just before the final whistle ended the game.

PENN STATE HANDS NAVY ITS FIRST DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Penn State defeated the Navy here today, 45 to 7. It was Annapolis' first defeat this season and Penn State is unbeaten so far this fall.

Played on a field deep in mud from recent heavy rains, with here and there a puddle of water showing, the game was most stubbornly contested on Franklin field in a long time. Although beaten, the Sailors went down with colors flying, for in the last period they gave the best exhibition of line plunging and carrying the ball that has been seen this season.

FRISCO DANCER BURNED BY ACID, ASKS MAYOS TO RESTORE LOST BEAUTY

DENVER, Nov. 12.—With her face horribly marred as a result of acid burning, Miss Flo Lieualien, of San Francisco, is making a heroic struggle to overcome the handicap of poverty and reach Rochester, Minn., where she hopes her ill-shaped features will be corrected by operations at the Mayo Brothers hospital.

Miss Lieualien came to Denver endeavoring to raise sufficient funds to continue her journey to the Minnesota city, and was aided by a local charitable organization.

She made the trip from California alone in a small automobile, which interested persons here had overhauled for her. She declared that a jealous suitor threw carbolic acid in her face four years ago in San Francisco, "so no one else would have me."

Unable to obtain work because of the repulsive marks on her features, and penniless, Miss Lieualien determined to make her way to Rochester, where she hopes to regain her beauty. She said she had been promised free treatment upon her arrival there.

In 1917, according to Miss Lieualien, she was a toe dancer in a San Francisco cabaret, having followed the show life of that city from the time she was a young girl and able to give recitations.

BRYAN ROACH TO DIRECT BIG RODEO AT GRAHAM

GRAHAM, Nov. 12.—Thousands of persons are expected here for the Graham rodeo and fair which opens Nov. 22 and continues three days. The program of professional and amateur events includes riding, roping, bulldogging, steer riding, trick riding and roping. A daily purse of $450 will be offered. Bryan Roach, Chicago's champion bronc rider, will serve as arena director. Other local and nationally known riders will contest. The Graham I. O. O. F. band will play during the rodeo and fair and a free Thanksgiving dinner will be served on the ground.

RACE DRIVER KILLED

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 12.—Omar Toft died from injuries received in the fifty-mile automobile race at the State Fair grounds here this afternoon when his machine went over an embankment at a curve in the track.

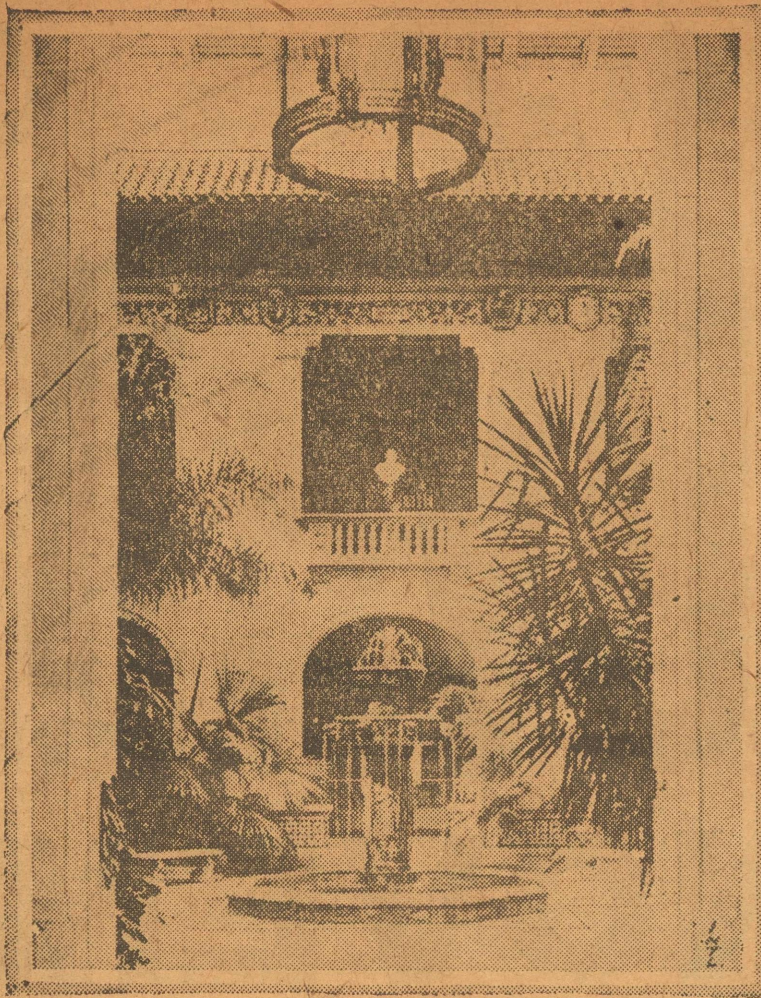

'PUSSYFOOT' JOHNSON BURNS IN EFFIGY AS MODERN GUY FAWKES

LONDON, Nov. 12.—"Guy Fawkes Day," the anniversary of the discovery of the plot to blow up King James' parliament, was celebrated with old-time gusto by British juveniles, rejoicing in the removal of wartime restrictions by exploding fireworks to their hearts' content.

The "guys" which were burned in public and private, however, had little resemblance to the conspirator of history, and even the ex-Kaiser lost favor as a "guy." This year's effigies chiefly portrayed "Pussyfoot" Johnson of the United States, "arch-enemy of father's beer," and "Bolshevik."

The disposal of huge stores of government munitions in the form of Very lights, rockets, etc., enabled ex-Lieutenants Jones, Smith and Brown to give their offspring a fair illustration of night-light effects on the Ypres front, etc., at a very small cost. Very lights largely replaced the old-time fireworks today.

CARDINALS WANT TO TRADE STOCK TO CINCY REDS FOR HEINIE GROH

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Despite the fact that reports from several Western cities insist that Heinie Groh, the Cincinnati third baseman, will be a member of the New York Giants next spring, John J. McGraw refuses to say anything further than that there's "nothing new" in the status of the deal which Judge Landis blocked last summer when he "sentenced" Heinie to play out the season with the Cincinnati Reds.

However, on the heels of the Groh-to-the-Giants story comes the declaration from St. Louis that Branch Rickey has announced that he's "through" with Milton Stock, to whose stubbornness he blames the loss of the 1921 pennant for his Cardinals and that "Stockie" will be traded. To replace him Rickey has already made an offer to Garry Herrmann for Groh.

Rickey believes that with Groh and a couple of pitchers he can capture the 1922 pennant. He will, according to the Mound City reports, offer Stock to the Brooklyn Robins for the pitchers he thinks will benefit him. There's no question that Stock could be used to great advantage by Wilbert Robinson, but again there's the question whether "Robbie" can afford to give up any pitching talent. Those he has weren't good enough to get him better than fifth place this last season, however, so he might.

But with Groh and some Brooklyn pitchers in the Cardinal camp McGraw would see his chances of repeating his pennant success next year endangered, and out of the discussion may come a scramble for the services of the Cincinnati third baseman.

Western critics are saying that the team, New York or St. Louis, that lands Groh will win next year's flag.

Others Want Him, Too.
Perhaps. That's counting out the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Boston Braves, both of whom showed great form this year, rather early. And it's liable to make Groh feel rather important. He'll feel more so, probably when he hears that the Pirates and the Robins are also preparing to make offers for him. There's nothing to prevent Squire Ebbets making a deal direct with the Reds for a better third baseman than Stock if he finally decides to turn loose some of his lived-up pitching talent. And George Gibson needs Heinie in the reconstruction of the Pirate infield, as Cutshaw seems about through after a glorious span of service.

They'll probably all put in bids for Groh, and Garry Herrmann will tell them that the line forms at the left. If a player who can swing a pennant anywhere he lands is to be disposed of, Garry will get all the law allows for him.

There's no question that McGraw can outbid the rest, if it's just a question of cash, but the Reds need players and Herrmann may be willing to look at some of the material that Rickey, Dreyfuss and Ebbets have to offer.

There promises to be a lot of interest in the California Winter league this year, for four big league heavy hitters will manage the four teams and all bat against the same pitcher. Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinals' star, leader of the National league this year, will head Los Angeles. Harry Heilmann will manage the Mission team, Ty Cobb will have San Francisco and George Sisler will pilot the Vernons. Hornsby has publicly stated that the American league pitching is "easy," and the three American leaguers are going to make him prove that he is a better hitter, which is apparently the inference Rogers wished to be drawn, when they meet him on even terms. Hornsby and Heilmann are right-hand batters, Cobb and Sisler left-handers, and the race should be worth watching.

Looks like a good winter for trades. Philadelphia rumors have put Lee Meadows, the famous "Specs" on the Giant pitching staff next season. Barney Dreyfuss is said to be trying to get something for George Whitted, too. The fleet "Scoops" Carey may also be used in a deal.

NEW YORK YANKS AFTER WHITE SOX'S PITCHER

By HARRY NEILY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Already the baseball trading pot begins to simmer. The championship season scarcely ended before the New York American league club sent an emissary to Chicago to treat for the services of Urban Faber. That worthy, in spite of a collapsed knee, pitched the best baseball of any man in the majors. No wonder the folks with the corpulent bank roll sought his services.

Faber, with a seventh-place club behind him, won twenty-six games last season. Five weeks he could not toil because of a damaged knee.

The last stay of the Sox at home—just prior to the end of the season—Joe Kelley, chief scout for the Yanks and confidential man for the Colonels, Huston and Rupert—appeared in Chicago on a mysterious visit. He was here four days. Nobody asked him the object of his visit and Joe assumed an air of secrecy as thick as a London fog.

Nothing was ascertained about his visit until the scribes journeyed to New York for the world series. There it was learned that he had been here offering Charles A. Comisky huge sums of money and plenty of players for Faber's contract.

They know a lot about Faber in New York. When the Giants and White Sox played in 1917 the red-headed won three games. Of course, he could have been of no use in the recent series but 1922 is another season and the Yanks then will be in need of competent flingers.

It is understood that the proffer from the Yanks was turned down. They are said to have offered quite a considerable lot of cash for Faber. You can't pitch cash, and C. A. Comisky is not particularly in need of that commodity. He has plenty of the same. On the other hand, he aspires to have a better ball club and has bent every effort to build up a machine. Removing Faber would be like taking the last wheel off a four-wheel wagon.

The ambition of the Yanks is commendable—from a New York standpoint—but minus the sterling activities of Faber it is difficult to see how the Sox could finish out of last place next season.

A wise cracker once said: "There are only two places in a league race—first and last—the others do not count."

Therefore one reasonably may expect to see Faber in white stockings next season, in spite of the fabulous offer from New York.

TWENTY-NINE BILLION TAXES PAID ON TOBACCO AND RUM IN SIXTY YEARS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—More than one-third of all the government's revenue since the civil war have been derived from taxes on liquor and tobacco, according to figures made public by the bureau of internal revenue.

Taxes on these twin "vices" have amounted to $29,000,000,000, it was shown, or more than the present national debt.

JACK MAY MARRY MARYLIN DESPITE CRUEL CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—If Marylin Miller is engaged to Jack Pickford, as reported, they may have to wait four years before they can marry. And all because a manager who wrote into her contract a clause that forbids matrimony.

Miss Miller in signing the contract for the musical comedy, "Sally," a year ago, agreed that she would not marry for five years.

More than once Dan Cupid has upset the plans of theatrical managers by luring stage beauties from the footlights. Flo Ziegfeld Jr. decided to protect himself against such encroachment, and he did—or thinks he did, for 'tis said that the legality of the anti-marrying clause is doubtful. No less an authority on theatrical contracts than Attorney Francis McGarrey, declared Sunday that in his belief the stipulation forbidding marriage is "against public policy, and would be so held in court."

"Despite this contract I do not think Miss Miller could be enjoined from marrying," said McGarrey. Ziegfeld, producer of "Sally" in which Miss Miller is the star, said in regard to the reported engagement: "Miss Miller has a clause in her contract with me which prevents her from marrying for five years and the contract has four years to run. I do not think that she has any intention of marrying."

IN REFEREE'S CORNER

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—If Benny Leonard doesn't soon grow a beard and start hobbling about on crutches some of our ambitious, present-day lightweight contenders will curl up and blow away without getting any nearer to the light-weight title than they are right now.

Two of the best—Kansas and Tendler—tossed punches at each other in a red-hot battle at the Garden a few nights ago for the right to meet Leonard. When it was over—and it was a corking bout, at that—Kansas was declared the winner. Well, he won it by a slight shade and the decision was popular, but—

In the ninth round Kansas had Tendler weaving like a souped-up sailor and lacked the ring generalship and aggressiveness to go in and finish him.

In the fourteenth Tendler had Kansas going and hit him with everything but the building, but couldn't finish him.

What about it? Simply this. Leonard would have sent the fans away saying: "A dollar a dozen for that kind with Leonard" had he had either chance to put an end to that bout. So are Richie Mitchell, Charley White, Willie Jackson and some others. But there's a long gap between the best of 'em and the champion.

Freddie Welsh saw the Tendler-Kansas go from a back seat.

"Oh, boy," murmured Welsh. "Why wasn't I born seven years later? I would have been mortified if either of them could have laid a glove on me when I was good."

A little harsh, maybe, but when Welsh was good, he WAS GOOD.

The boxing commission of New York held out a helping hand to the ancient order of boxing managers when it made a rule that no boxer shall take part in a contest in the Empire state unless he has a manager. Guess all the boys will get their three squares regular this winter.

Eddie Kane writes to say that he recently confabbed with Tex Rickard in Chicago and that Rickard told him he fully expects Georges Carpentier to live up to his promise to come back to the U. S. A. and fight Tommy Gibbons.

"Rickard says he heard from Desamps a short time ago," says Kane, "and that Francois assured him that Georges will return to America in January to go through with our match. I only hope he does. That's one match we want the worst way. Tom couldn't get a nicer New Year's greeting than the news that Georges was on the way."

Carl Tremaine, who made his initial appearance at the Garden recently against Marty Collins, will be welcome back again any time. Tremaine showed himself to be a finished boxer, of the Kilbane school, a cool-headed ring general and a powerful hitter. It just happened that in Collins he met a professional iron man. Carl hit his man with every pound he had and it took him nearly eight rounds to make the referee stop the bout with Collins tottering on his feet. Carl often slipped around behind Marty to see what was holding him up.

Harry Greb and Charley Weinert are hooked up for a Garden bout on Nov. 4. Here are two boys who have made a lot of talk about a match with Dempsey. Their bout ought to settle which has the best claim to recognition. Meanwhile Promoter Rickard is looking about for a suitable opponent for Tom Gibbons in the boxing emporium and the winner of the Greb-Weinert bout can have Tommy the minute he'll say the word, according to Eddie Kane.

ABILENE WINS FROM COMANCHE

Special to the Times.

BROWNWOOD, Nov. 12.—Abilene scored a clean-cut victory over Comanche here today, 20 to 7, winning the championship of the Central West Texas district.

Abilene will next play the winner of the Childress-Electra game and if successful in that battle will play the winner of the Big Spring-El Paso match, which will give them the championship of all West Texas.

HUSBAND AUCTIONED WIFE.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Declaring that she was sold at auction by her husband to Leo Ploom, who says he is a doctor of divinity, Mrs. Tony Perkossky has sought police protection to prevent enforcement of the bargain.

Mrs. Perkossky told the police her husband compelled her to mount a chair, when he, with a whip in his hand, acted as auctioneer and called for bids from the crowd of prospective purchasers who had assembled in the house.

During a free-for-all fight that followed the sale Mrs. Perkossky escaped from the house and fled to a nearby engine house, where she asked for protection. The price paid for Mrs. Perkossky was $1.15.

LATEST ENGLISH STYLE—Mrs. Vincent Astor, returned from Europe recently wearing a strikingly handsome English suit. She bought many gowns while abroad.

VALUED AT $100,000—Gainsborough's masterpiece, "The Blue Boy," has been purchased from the Duke of Westminster by Sir Joseph Duveen. It will be exhibited in the United States in January, and then sold to the highest bidder.

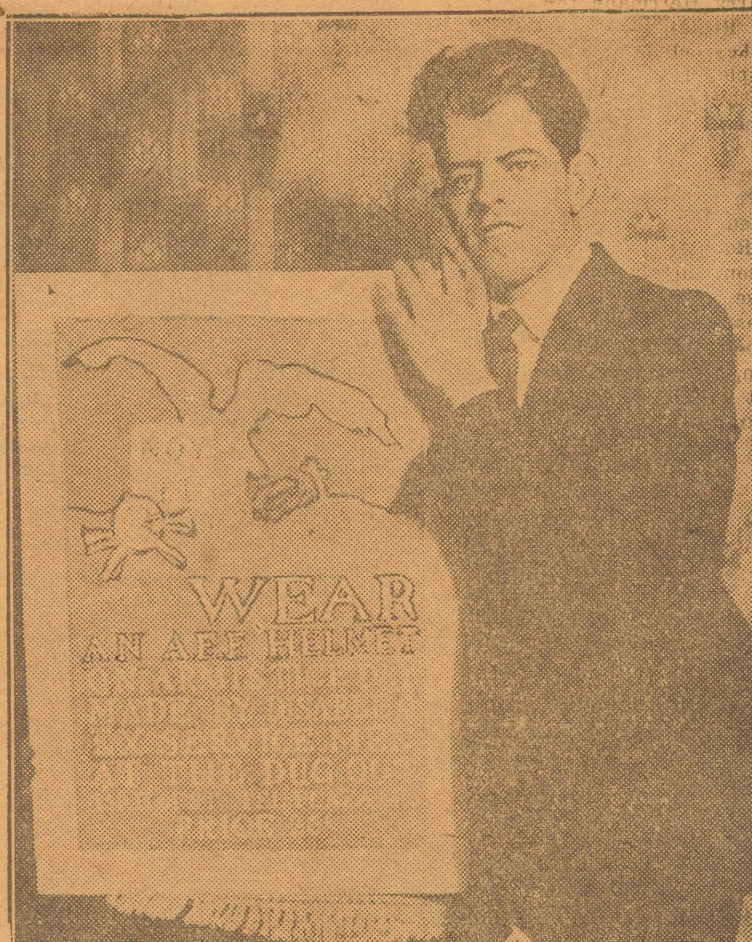

INDIAN RELIC AT HARVARD—These totem poles, a marker of the Kwakiutl Indians, British Columbia, is a new addition to the vast collection of treasures at the Peabody Museum, connected with Harvard University, at Cambridge, Mass.

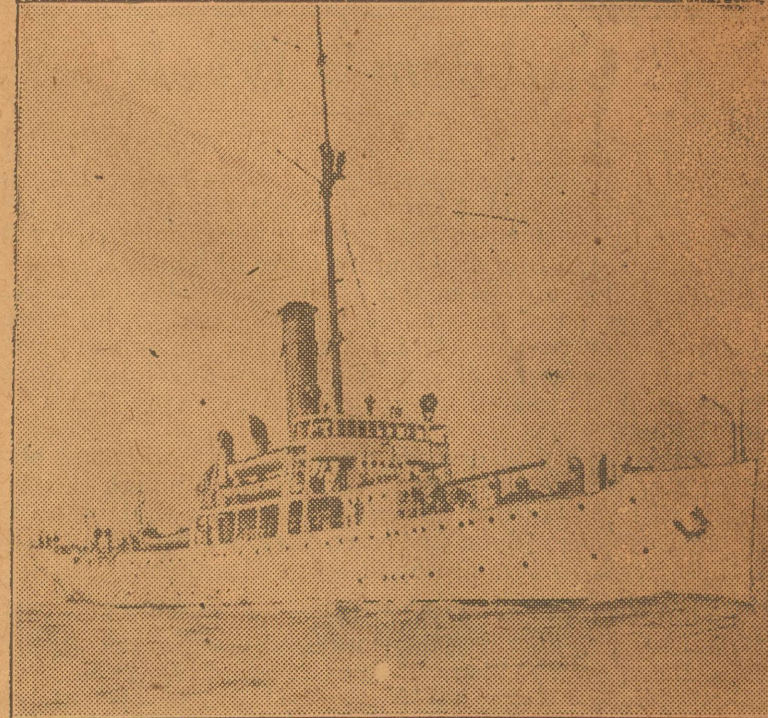

FLOWERS FOR DIAZ—Headed by Mary Card, Campfire Girls visited the "Hero of the Piave" at his hotel in New York and presented him with a floral tribute. Miss Card is of Italian parentage. The bouquet was of roses and so arranged as to represent the flag of Italy.

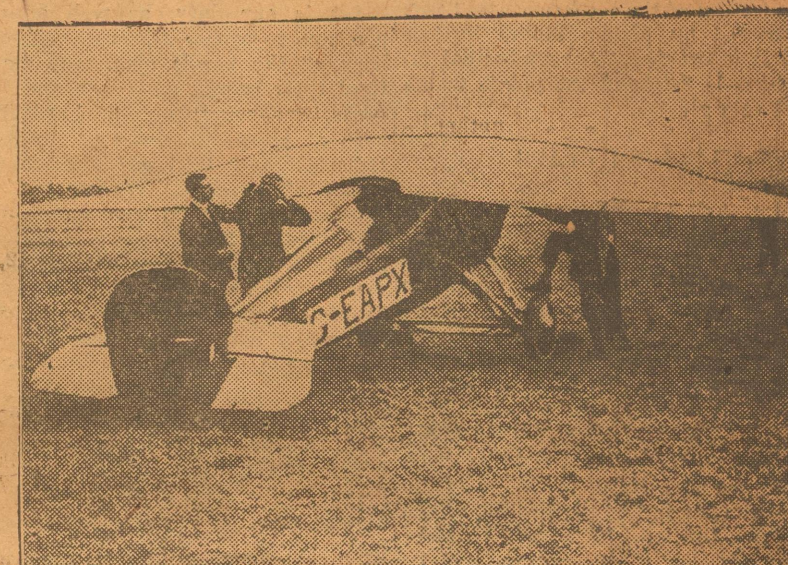

A WONDERFUL DANCER—Margaret Loomis, exponent of the Greek dance, declares its rhythm brings to pass that desirable triangle, Health, Wealth and Happiness. "But, Margaret, not everyone could look so lovely, and are you sure about the wealth?"

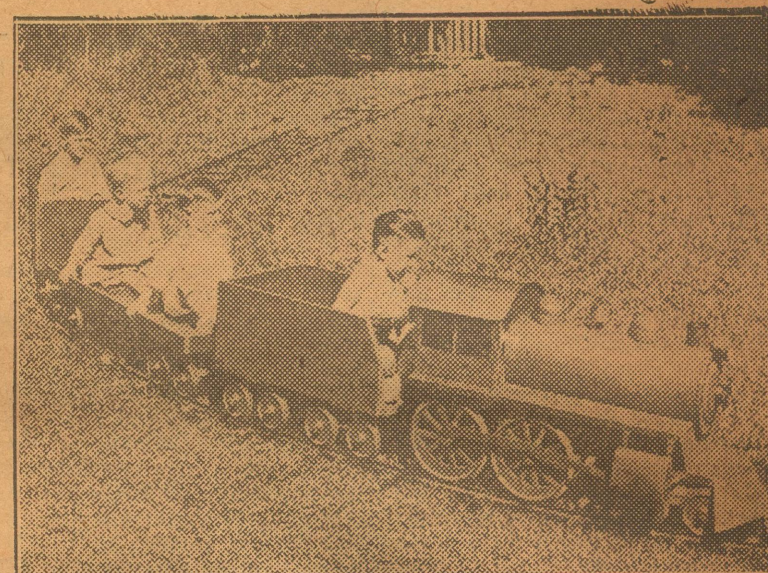

DISABLED WAR VETERAN WINS ART PRIZE—Simon Risberg, a disabled soldier student of the Society of Illustrators of New York, was awarded first prize for his poster presenting the trench-helmet emblem to be worn on Armistice Day.

WORLD'S FIRST ELECTRIC COAST GUARD CUTTER—The Tampa, the world's first electric Coast Guard cutter, has been given her official sea trials off the Pacific coast. She exceeded her speed requirements, making 16.26 knots per hour. She has a 2,600 horse power motor.

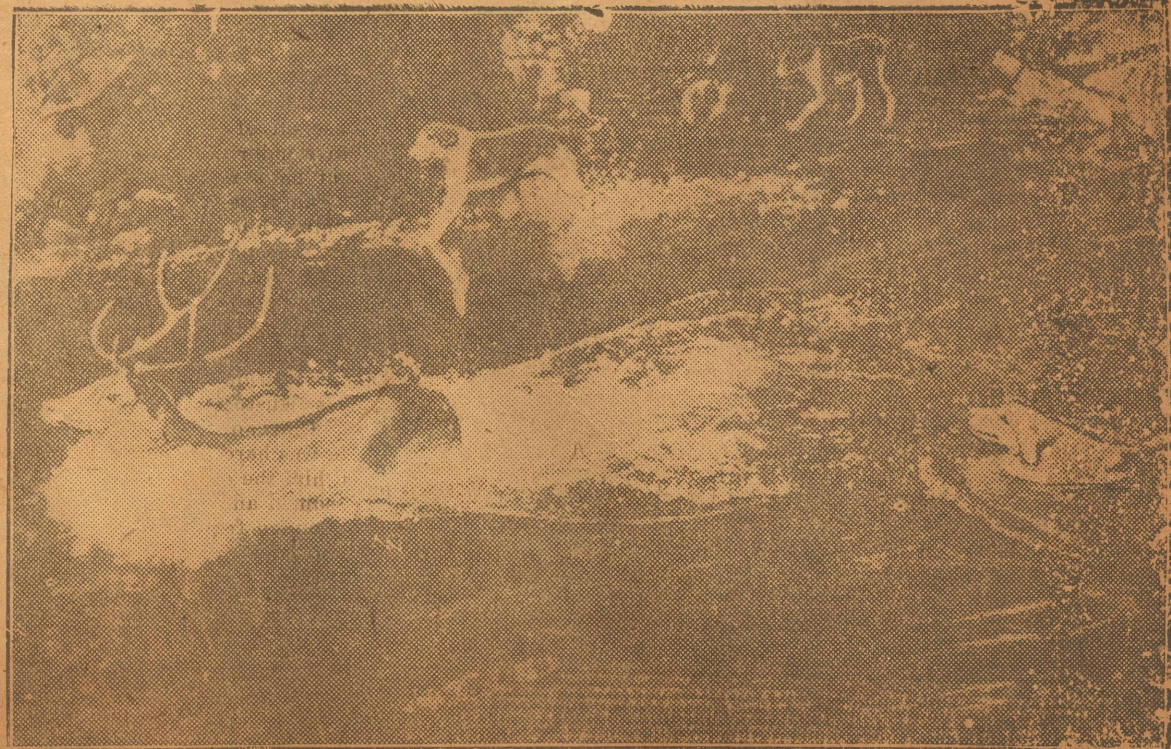

NEW FLYING WONDER—A new type airplane that may revolutionize flying. The feature of the plane, which was tested at Northolt, England, is its wing, which strikingly resembles that of a huge bird. It is arched at the center and tapers away to a point at the tips. The plane has reached a height of 3,000 feet in 72 seconds in its test flight.

ALL ABOARD—This miniature railway, large enough to carry an engineer and several youngsters as passengers, provides no end of pleasure and sport for the children. It is driven by an electric motor, and any boy's back yard will be a splendid right of way for this big "choo-choo."

Clubdom's Week

Ranger club affairs have been in the ascendant this past week, and no doubt the entertainment given by the 1920 Club and the Symphony Club Thursday was the most notable of the club meetings. Armistice Day was properly honored by Rangerites, and Texas Day also had its share of honors.

Thanksgiving now is in the limelight and no doubt before the week over all of its symbols will be assisting hostesses in their decoration motifs. Quite a number of Ranger's young people who are away at school are expected home for that holiday, and already several affairs honoring them have been planned.

It is rumored that one may expect some activities on the part of the Red Cross in the near future, although this is not official, still it is rather the general opinion that while their drive will not take place just now, they are "still on the job" and their headquarters are open every afternoon.

CAMPING PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. McKinley, Mr. and Mrs. Ruble, Miss Watson and Mr. Orr composed a party that spent a couple of days hunting and camping at the Hamon & Kell lake, near Frankell, this week. They were joined Friday afternoon by Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Stackable. They report that the hunting was good.

FOLLOW UP MEETING OF EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE.

Rev. Emerson of Thurber will conduct a service Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, which will be a follow-up meeting of the conference that was conducted by Bishop Moore in this city last Tuesday. A very cordial invitation is extended the public to attend this service.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. J. B. Stackable and Miss Watson entertained the members of their Sunday school class, composed of young married women, at the home of Mrs. Stackable Wednesday afternoon. Refreshments were served, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent by the hostesses and their guests.

THE DATE IS MONDAY THE 21ST.

The date of the musical to be given under the auspices of the ladies of the Baptist church, for the benefit of the Buckner Orphans' home, will be Monday, Nov. 21. The program will be announced later.

SEVEN AND SIXTY-SEVEN.

There are sixty years between seven and sixty-seven, yet the enthusiasm of a birthday party is just as noticeable in sixty-seven as it is in seven, and we never grow too old to feel the charm of a birthday cake "with candles." Still it is very seldom that a little girl of 7 has the privilege of sharing her birthday with her uncle of 67, but such was Dorothy Outlaw's good fortune. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Rex Outlaw entertained for her little daughter, Dorothy, in honor of this very special occasion—Dorothy's and her "Uncle Alex's" birthday. The color scheme was pink and white. The birthday cake proudly bore sixty-seven candles and seven candles, and "Dorothy" was written in pink across its white surface.

A big white goose made out of flannel mysteriously made its appearance in front of the portieres, and while it was not the goose that laid the golden egg, still perhaps the candy and nuts that it gave the children as they passed by it, appealed to them more than the egg of the fairy story. Refreshments of cake and chocolate were served. The children were given pink and white baby rattlers for souvenirs of this very happy birthday party.

Those present were: Reba Watson, Evelyn Long, Alayne Stroud, Marguerite Vandervoort, Jean Williams, Louise Taylor, Martha Marie Gholson, Jane Garrett, Martha Ellen Peters, John Thomas Scott, Junior Vandervoort, James Phillips, Bill and Charles Terrell, Billy Bohning, Billy Peters, Saunbino and Louis Gregg, Tom Lauderdale.

THURSDAY BRIDGE CLUB.

Mrs. Howard Gholson was hostess to the Thursday Bridge club Friday afternoon. Mrs. Garrett Bohning made high score.

At the conclusion of the game the hostess served a salad course to the following club members and guests: Mmes. Hill, Gregg, Craig, Terrell, Rarey, Dudley, Srahoney, Barnes, Phillips, Peters, Steel, Garrett Bohning, Liles, and G. H. Bohning. The next club meeting will be with Mrs. A. N. Harkrider.

THE AMUSE CLUB.

The members of the Amuse club entertained their husbands Friday evening at the home of Mrs. John H. Moyer, on North Marston street. Five hundred was played. High score went to Mrs. John Moyer and Mr. Carroll Clarke. The consolation to Mr. Edward Liles.

A two-course luncheon was served to the following members and their guests: Messrs. and Mmes. Claude Lander, Liles and Moyer.

OPEN MEETING OF 1920 CLUB AND RANGER SYMPHONY CLUB.

One of the most entertaining programs ever rendered in Ranger was that given at the open meeting of the 1920 club and the Ranger Symphony club, Thursday afternoon, at the Methodist church. Mrs. O. L. Phillips, vice-president of the 1920 club, presided. In her gracious manner, Mrs. Phillips made the following address:

"It gives me great pleasure to announce that the Symphony club will co-operate with us in rendering this, our Armistice day program, a program celebrating that memorable day, Nov. 11, 1918; a day when the guns were still on Flanders fields; a day which brought practically to a close a war, which in magnitude, in scope of influence, in selfishness and cruelty knows no parallel in the history of the world.

"It is our duty, as well as our pleasure, to perpetuate in memory the lives of the heroic men, who sacrificed their homes, ambitions and fortunes, suffering untold hardships, both at home and overseas, to keep from our fair land and fireside the hordes of invaders. We are glad to express our respect, love, honor, and reverence, for that flower of American manhood, who made the supreme sacrifice, the sacrifice of their young lives, and who in the language of the firing-line have 'Gone West.'"

Immediately following the opening remarks the assembly arose, singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," with Mrs. Wakefield at the piano, after which the following program was rendered:

"Short Historical Review of World's Condition When Armistice Was Signed," Mrs. M. H. Hagaman.

Solo, "Christ on Flanders Field," Miss Schmuck.

"Origin, Plan and Purpose of the American Legion of Honor," Mrs. T. L. Lauderdale.

Readings, "On Flanders Fields," by Lieut. McKee, and "America's Answer," by R. W. Lillard, read by Mrs. J. F. Drienhoff.

Solo, "When the Boys Come Home," by Ole Speaks, sung by Mrs. R. C. McCoy.

Reading, "Young Fellow—My Lad," by Robert Service, read by Mrs. S. D. Terrell.

Poem, Selections from Robert Service, Mrs. S. P. Boon.

"There's a Long, Long Trail," sung by club, with Mrs. McCoy as leader.

Mrs. Wakefield, as president of the Symphony club, closed the program with expressions of appreciation, looking forward to other co-operative programs.

BOX SOCIAL AND PAGEANT.

The box supper and pageant given for the benefit of the Parent-Teachers' association of the Young school, in the auditorium of the school in the evening of Nov. 10, was quite a success financially and socially. A very interesting program, which follows, was rendered:

Piano solo, Mary McNeal.

Song, "Playmates," Mary Will and Martha Jane Turney.

Reading, Elizabeth Dillingham.

Following the program, a very elaborate pageant commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the Austin colony in Texas, was given by the pupils of the school, directed by Mrs. E. L. Cheney, assisted by Mrs. Caldwell. A miniature school room was staged, with Gladys Hemstead as teacher, and her pupils were Raymond Taylor, Billie Denay, Geraldine Williams and Martha Jane Turney, and the teacher showed her pupils some of the events and characters that have made the Lone Star state's history. The first visitor to the little schoolhouse was the Goddess of Liberty, which part was taken by Miss Brewer. She was escorted by two pages, Mona May Jones and Lucile Rush, one carrying the Texas flag and the other the Stars and Stripes.

The second scene was a tableau, composed of girls representing the rivers, harbors, gulfs and lakes in Texas. Those taking part were: Lavora Chambers, Madeline Scott, Elizabeth Dillingham, Clara Rice, Effie May Gordon, Maxie Graham, Norma Hinton, Margaret Dillingham.

In the "Great Impresario," Charles Stubblebine took the part of Seguin and William Knight of Stephen F. Austin. Gladys Harding and Ethel Shaw, very cleverly depicted the "Pioneer Mothers." The Texas heroes were impersonated by Byron Pierce, as Travis; Glen Hawkins, as Fannin, and Gerald Hughes as Houston. "Citizens of Today" were Clara Stahl, Ida May Hayden and Grace Jackson.

In the grand finale "Dixie" was sung.

THE CRANBERRY

The wholesome and delicious cranberry should appear on our tables not only as an adjunct to roast turkey, but in combination with cereals and other fruits, for it may be served in a great variety of pretty and tempting ways.

Cranberries, like rhubarb, may be kept for months in perfect condition. To do this, look the berries over, rejecting all the soft ones, pack them in glass fruit jars, adjust the rubbers, fill them to the brim with cold water and screw on the tops. In all cases they should be thoroughly washed in hot water before using.

Solid or Jellied Cranberry Sauce.

Four cups cranberries, 5 cups sugar. Add two cups of boiling water to the berries. Cover, boil six to eight minutes, then add the sugar and boil five minutes more. Long boiling destroys the flavor. If you dislike the skins, sift the berries before adding the sugar. A different flavor is obtained by putting the raw berries through the food chopper.

One quart cranberries, 1 cup water, juice and pulp of 2 oranges, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup walnuts, chopped, grated rind 1-2 orange.

Wash the cranberries and add the water, oranges and raisins. Cook until the cranberries burst and are soft; add the sugar, stir until dissolved, skim, turn in nut meats and chill in individual molds.

Cranberry Salad. Jellied cranberries, nut meats, celery, head of lettuce, mayonnaise dressing.

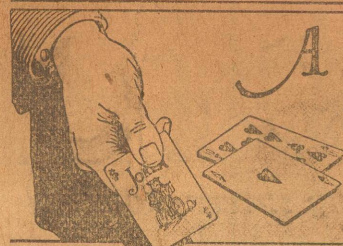

Prepare the cranberries from the chopped fruit as directed above. Pour into individual molds. When cold turn out in lettuce leaf. Chop nut meats and celery together and sprinkle the cranberry molds with it. Over each mold put a large spoonful of mayonnaise dressing. Serve with crisp salted wafers.

Apple Cranberry Style.

Select perfect apples, core them and fill the space in each with cranberry conserve or jelly. Bake gently, basting frequently with a syrup made of equal parts of sugar and water. When tender transfer to a plate and pour over them the syrup, which should be cooled down until thick enough to jelly. Chill the apples. Serve with whipped cream flavored with cranberry sauce, using a quarter of a cup to one of cream. Sweeten to taste.

Cranberry Roll.

Place in a bowl 2 cups sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 6 teaspoons sugar. Sift to mix and then rub in 4 tablespoons of shortening and mix to a dough with 2-3 cup of water or milk. Work to a smooth dough and then roll out 1-4 inch thick. Spread with a thick cranberry conserve; roll as for jelly roll, tucking the ends securely. Place in a well-greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven for 10 minutes. Start basting with 1-2 cup syrup and 4 tablespoons water. Serve the roll with cranberry sauce.

A Column for Card Players and Question Box—Conducted by Hoyle, Jr.

Auction Bridge—No. 5

As Eugene Ware sang, life and auction are much alike. Life is a game of Auction; from unseen sources.

The cards are shuffled, and the hands are dealt; Blind are our efforts to control the forces. That though unseen are no less strongly felt.

I do not like the way the cards are shuffled, But still I like the game and want to play.

Thus through the long, long night will I unroll, Play what I get until the break of day.

The Conversation or Bidding of the Game.

The dealer may either pass, or bid to win at least the odd trick (that is, one more than six). He may also bid to win more. Should he make a bid, he must state whether the hand shall be played with or without trumps. The lowest bid he can make is "One Club"—that is, he bids to win at least one odd trick, clubs being trumps. One diamond is a higher bid than one club. One heart is higher than one diamond. One spade is higher than one heart. And one no-trump is higher than one spade.

After the dealer, each player in turn, commencing with the player on dealer's left, has the right to pass or make a bid higher than has yet been made, or to double the last bid, or to re-double a bid which has been made, or to double the last bid, or re-double a bid which has been doubled.

Any bid may be doubled and re-doubled once, but not more. A player may not double his partner's bid, nor re-double his partner's double. He may, however, re-double a bid of his partner's which has been doubled by an adversary.

The order in value of bids from the lowest: up is clubs, diamonds, hearts, spades and no-trump.

To overcall a previous bid, a player must bid either a greater number of tricks, or an equal number of tricks of a higher value. For example, five clubs over four hearts; four clubs over three diamonds; or three hearts over three diamonds. The highest bid that can be made in any suit or no-trump is seven. A player, in his turn, may overbid previous bids any number of times, and may also overbid his partner. He cannot overbid his own bid which has been passed by the other three players.

When the final declaration has been made, (that is, when the final bid has been passed by the other three players), the player who has made such bid, or in the case where both partners have made bids in the same suit, or if "no-trump" has been made, the player who made the first of such bids shall play the combined hands of himself and of his partner, the latter becoming the dummy.

Three consecutive passes close the bidding. The first bid from any hand should inform the partner the true nature of the hand.

In auction the dealer generally, though not always, has a second bid. It is best to bid at least the hand's worth, if not its limit, thus giving partner early and accurate information.

In order to avoid giving partner information as to the character of one's hand, both the conversation and its order should be strictly adhered to, and the simplest form and the same phrases used.

When the value of each trick has been determined, and after a card has been led by Eldest Hand, or leader, the declarant's partner places his cards face upward on the table. (The writer prefers the trump laid down first and to the right. All cards should be sorted in suits, and in sequence, with the smallest cards lying nearest the declarant.) Declarant must then play dummy's cards and his own.

After placing his cards on the table, in reach of declarant, the dummy has no part whatever in the play of that deal, except that he may at once ask the declarant should he renounce "Partner none of the suit" in order to save a revoke. He may correct the claim of either adversary as to a penalty, to which the latter is not entitled, and he may also call his partner's attention to the fact that the trick has not been completed.

No other player except declarant should touch dummy's cards during the play of the deal.

The score consists of two separate counts—trick and honor score. The trick score is made by the side winning more than six tricks, the book in a deal. The honor score is made by the partners who hold the majority of the honors.

In no-trump, only the aces count as honors. With declared trump, the honors are ace, king, queen, jack and ten of the suit declared trump.

Honors are never affected by the doubling. Every hand should be played out, and all points in excess of thirty, the game, are counted at the end of the rubber.

Questions and Answers.

Q. Who is declarant?

A. The one who buys the make. He plays both hands, his own and his partner's. The partner places his cards face up on the table in front of himself, and his hand is known as the dummy.

Q. What is Doubling?

A. Increasing the value of the trick. Doubling makes the trick twice its original value, and redoubling makes it twice the value after it was doubled. Example, spade is 9; doubled, 18; redoubled, 36.

SKIRTS ARE LONGER

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Longer skirts, more pronounced waist lines, and simple trimmings of fur are the principal new edicts in street wear fashions as gathered from the November exhibits of the Art Fashion League of America.

A unanimity of opinion among designers as to the proper skirt length for informal dress is found in the fact that all of the more than two hundred models shown reach from three to five inches below the knees. Creations in the softer materials tend toward even greater length, some productions being within two inches of the ankle.

Fullness about the hips is found only in the sport models of white cottons and serge.

Tighter waist lines are conspicuous in all styles, from the soft gingham morning dresses to the most elaborate silk gowns. The long flowing straight line designs of the summer season—those which failed to accord the hips even formal recognition of existence—are found here only in the very latest styles of nighties.

NEW OIL FIELD FOUND 20 MILES FROM TAMPICO

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12.—An important new oil section has been found, according to reports received here, at Chicoy, a point on the railroad to Monterey, about twenty miles from Tampico.

Oil, it is said, has been found at a depth of 1,500 feet, making the drilling of wells much less expensive than in the other fields adjacent to Tampico.

A number of new wells have been brought in at Chicoy and early reports indicate that the field may be great enough to take the place of the areas in other sections which have felt the encroachment of salt water.

E. H. & A. DAVIS
WILL MOVE BACK TO MAIN STREET

E. H. & A. Davis, clothing merchants at the corner of Rusk and Pine streets, have leased the Main street building adjoining the Peoples bank and formerly occupied by the Palace of Sweets and will move into their new location about the first of the month. Extensive overhauling is now under way and the work of constructing a modern front for the building will be started next week, on the arrival of plate glass for the large show windows. The windows are to be twenty feet in depth and equipped to show up-to-date merchandise to the best advantage.

The firm's new location will be almost opposite its original location in Ranger, when it opened business here in January, 1919, and bought out F.
O. Keifer & company, who occupied a building 9x90 feet on part of the present site of the Hodges-Neal building. The building was burned in the big fire in the spring of 1919 and E.
H. & A. Davis moved to the building at the corner of Rusk and Pine streets, which they now occupy.

Members of the firm stated yesterday that they had been urged to move back to a Main street location repeatedly by their friends and now that the rental values had returned to normal,
they had decided to return to Main street.

RICH, YET KEPT POOR

NEW YORK.—Heiress to a fortune estimated as high as $50,000,000 and yet without sufficient means to spend for her proper education and support. This is the plight of a "poor little rich girl" in real life—Jacqueline Lebaudy—as revealed by an application made to Surrogate Howell, in Nassau county, for a paltry $40,000 from her father's estate. The 16-year-old daughter of the eccentric Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," who was slain on Jan. 11, 1919, by his wife, Marie A. Lebaudy, in their home at Westbury, L. I., is one of the richest girls in the world. But despite the vast fortune that rightfully belongs to her, Jacqueline has been unable to enjoy the comforts and luxuries to which a girl of her wealth naturally be entitled. For twenty months not a cent was collected from the estate by the widow. Seemingly endless litigation, extending from the courts of Nassau county to France, Chile, Bolivia, England, South Africa and many other points have delayed settlement of the estate. And because of the law's delay Jacqueline has found herself, not exactly impoverished, but powerless to get possession of even a small part of the great fortune that is hers.

PARLOUS TIMES BEFALL COUNTRY
STORE; FOLKS NOW WANT SERVICE AND SOCIABILITY, 'TIS SAID

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 12.—The days of the old-fashioned country store, where the "folks" came in, set their market baskets down along the counter and gathered around the stove,
the men swapping yarns and the women talking about their best recipes for making jelly, has been put into the discard in Kansas. That is the view of the merchants of the state and is a development that has come with the motor car and good roads.

A short time ago there was a shakeup in connection with the grange store at Olathe. This is the oldest and has been rated as the most successful cooperative mercantile institution in the country. The Patrons of Husbandry, better known as the Grange, organized this co-operative store forty years ago. It did a tremendous business and returned fine profits to the members.

Loses Business.

But in recent years the store has not been so successful as formerly. It did not get the business. Finally the situation became so bad that there was a complete wrecking of the old management and a new and younger management was put into its place.
The troubles of this store have been much discussed in newspapers and particularly trade papers is one particular instance of the failure of the co-operative plan of handling business.

Merchants who have studied the proposition in Kansas, however, view
the shake-up in an entirely different light. The store is running and is showing some improvement in business during the fall months. Merchants, jobbers and retailers, assert that the same reason for the heavy losses in business in the Olathe store may be attributed to the downfall of more than 200 country stores in the state in the last eighteen months. It was an attempt to maintain business on the same basis as that provided the older generations. It was an effort to make the "folks" feel at home and the generation that is being raised on motor cars doesn't care to feel at home in a store. They are looking for merchandise and service.

"The whole story of the shake-up at the Grange store at Olathe has not yet come out," said Paul Love-well, editor of the Merchants' Journal of Topeka. "But enough of it has been told to indicate pretty clearly that the trouble was:

To Feel "At Home."

"It tried to make its patrons feel
'at home,' by running much the same sort of store as it used to run twenty, thirty or forty years ago. Meantime wide awake young merchants were establishing modern, up-to-date stores. They put in handsome fixtures, attractive window displays and up-to-date stocks of goods.

"And at the same time the young men and young women were going away to college and they were driving motor cars and going to the cities and had an entirely different way of looking at things than their parents had.
Things which were plenty good enough for the older generation were not what the young folks wanted. What was

CIVILIZATION CAUSES JAPANESE
FAMILIES TO LEAD 'DOUBLE LIVES'

By PAUL H. EGOLF,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent.
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Japan
is leading a double life.

Such is the opinion of O. Toyoda, imperial minister of railways of the Island Empire, who has been a visitor in Philadelphia. But the double life has no sinister meaning—rather a humorous one, for it is the product of the never-ending battle between the traditions of Nippon and the practicalities of the Occident.

Even old man High Cost of Living has invaded the Orient in quaint fashion, according to Mr. Toyoda, selecting the kimono as the prime object of his attack. Once the regulation dress of every respectable Japanese, the kimono is being rapidly driven out of the islands by the American ready-made suit, which, in addition to being cheaper than the native garment, allows the wearer to work un-hampered by loose-flowing folds.

Even the children are now being clothed in rompers, overalls, and other Yankee clothing, which gives the maximum amount of freedom in play,
combined with ease of washing.

Prefers Chairs to Mats.

"But it is in other phases of home life that the clash between the old and the new is being most severely felt," said Mr. Toyoda. "Many of the younger generation have gone to school and been engaged in business in Europe and America and become accustomed while there to sitting in chairs, thereby acquiring an aversion to return to the Oriental fashion of squatting on a mat.

"As the younger person returning to Nippon will not squat, so it is equally out of the question for the older people to sit up straight in high-backed chairs and preside at tables.

If solution has been found in furnishing rooms to suit both generations, which, although it separates the family at social functions, is more suitable to the needs of the persons involved. This makes for 'jazz parties' in one part of the house and dignified recreation in the other.

"The changes wrought by contact with the Occident have affected the family meal, as well, making it now practically impossible for a Japanese household to dine together.

Young Japs Like Roast Beef.

"During their trips to Europe and America the younger generations have acquired a fondness for roast beef, mashed potatoes, French pastry and other articles of diet incompatible with the frugal Japanese diet of rice, egg and chicken combinations. Even tea, that firmly-rooted institution of Japanese life, is being threatened by the introduction of coffee or more exciting beverages. Again, this leads to a split in the home and necessitates the cook leading a 'double life,' unless the family is wealthy enough to employ two chefs to meet the tastes of the older folk and the younger gour-mands.

"In table service the conflict is again in evidence. Chopsticks for the older; knives, forks and spoons for the younger members are seen, as well as a variety of dishes and tableware.
Soup in different languages. Not only has the 'double-life' problem reached a point where it becomes serious in its social and economic aspect, but it forms one of the chief items in the upward march of the cost of living in the land of the Rising Sun."

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS FAVOR
HUGHES' PLAN

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—General and enthusiastic commendation was given by members of congress
today to the American plan for limitation of naval armament. Leaders of both parties joined in expressions of approval.

"I feel that the program—a wonderful ideal—is destined for success," said Senator Page, Republican, of Vermont, chairman of the senate naval committee. Similar views were expressed by Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, ranking minority member of the senate foreign relations committee.

"The boldness and candor of Secretary Hughes' proposal captured everybody," said Mr. Hitchcock. "The program is enormous and I believe it will be a success. I feel proud that we have such a secretary of state
as Mr. Hughes."

Old Stuff.

One Democratic senator pointed out that the naval appropriation bill of 1916 had a clause giving the president power to conclude an armament limitation agreement without a treaty.

Another pointed out that the disarmament clauses relating to Germany in the Versailles treaty declared specifically that Germany's disarmament was stipulated in order to prepare the way for other powers to limit their disarmament. From the same sources came the suggestion that Germany might well be invited to the present conference, to be a party to a voluntary agreement of limitation as a factor of the French demands for an army for potential defense, against Germany.

A Bold Play.

Senator Simmons, Democrat, of North Carolina, said he was "heartily in favor of the Hughes suggestions."

"I think it was a bold play," said Senator Simmons. "I hope that the other nations will agree to it and if not, will demonstrate that the United States had taken the lead toward work peace."

"The plan is a masterly one," said
Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah.
"Its conception and presentation reflects honor upon the nation. I am sure that it will bring about success
of the conference."

Beverages on Tap in Every Household, Is Idea Dietrich Intends to Put Over

C. J. Dietrich within a short time expects to start his campaign for the distribution of "Punch-Bowl Beverages," a Smith, Jr., product for which he has obtained the state agency. Samples of this product have been received by Mr. Dietrich.

These beverages are guaranteed pure concentrated fruit juices, made of the lemon, lime, cherry, orange and raspberry, put up in concentrated form and capable of providing five quarts of refreshments for the home or social circle. Each flavor consists of two small bottles of extract, containing about one ounce each, which the housewife mixes with three cups of sugar dissolved in a quart of water. This is then placed in the ice box for use as wanted, when one part of the syrup is mixed with four quarts of water. It is then ready to serve. Ranger people who have tried the beverages say they are delicious.

These "Punch-Bowl Beverages" are very popular in the north, it is said, and in fact it was through a visit of his mother to New York last summer that Mr. Dietrich obtained the Texas territory. She brought a number of the extracts back with her, as it is a new product not yet distributed in this section and Mr. Dietrich was so impressed by them that he wrote about the agency, which he secured. The distribution campaign will be started in Fort Worth and Dallas, after which Mr. Dietrich expects to extend it to all parts of the state.

LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE RESOLUTION PRAISES RETIRING CHAIRMAN

An expression of esteem and appreciation toward E. C. Clewell and his work as chairman of the Law and Order league of Ranger was adopted yesterday following his resignation by the executive board of the organization.

"He did what he could to make Ranger a better place to live in and rear our families," the resolution states, and continues in full:

"We, the executive board of the Law and Order league of Ranger, Texas, wish to publicly express our esteem and appreciation for the untiring efforts and faithful service rendered this organization by our retiring chairman, Mr. E. C. Clewell. He ever stood for all that was high and pure and holy, and did what he could to make Ranger a better place to live and rear our families. He leaves the position of chairman of this organization with the full confidence and esteem of each and every member who constitutes this organization." (Signed) J. M. White, A. K. Wier, Charles A. Bobo, W. Bobo, P. C. Long and E. E. Crawford.

The resignation of Mr. Clewell was accepted by the league yesterday morning at a meeting of the executive committee after it had been before the committee for some two months. V. V. Cooper, large real estate owner, was elected to succeed Clewell. The committee announced that the resignation of Clewell as chairman relieves him of any responsibility for the action of the bureau.

COUNTY'S COTTON CROP IS ABOUT HALF LAST YEAR'S CENSUS FIGURES SHOW

The toll taken by the oil boom from the agricultural production of the county is vividly shown by the statistics for Eastland county in the government preliminary report of cotton ginned in Texas prior to Oct. 18.

The figures for Eastland county for 1920 are shown to be practically cut in half this year or a total of 3,064 bales ginned in 1920 as compared with 1,627 during 1921. The steady decline in the amount of cotton ginned in the county since oil was first found in this territory is brought out in the statistics furnished by old residents of the county who report that in former years from 10,000 to 12,000 bales of cotton was ginned annually in the Ranger section alone.

The decline has been so marked in Stephens county this year that the county is not even listed on the government report. Callahan county, however, shows an increase in the number of bales ginned this year. Decreases are shown in the number of bales ginned in Erath and Comanche counties and Palo Pinto county, like Stephens, is not even listed on the report.

OIL WORKERS CLAIM BLACKLIST AND LOCKOUT IN CALIFORNIA FIELD

The California oil operators have "again defied" the government by refusing to take back striking oil field workers after the strike had been called off by the union on Nov. 3 at the request of the government, according to an official communication received here from the secretary of the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America.

The government immediately notified the operators of the action of the union in calling off the strike, the communication states, and requested that it be accepted and that operations be resumed. "When the men presented themselves at the leases, however, they found that the operators had again defied the government by locking out the majority of striking employees and instituting a blacklist system and also by attempting to again institute the twelve-hour work day as against the eight-hour day that has been the basis of operations in the California fields for the past four years," the communication explains. It requests oil field workers to stay away from California.

ROUND AND ROUND.

A couple of doughboys, both of whom had been seeking Paris to the best of their ability and financial capacity, took a ride in the Metro. One fell asleep and, on awaking, demanded:

"How long you say I been asleep?"
"Hours," replied the other with conviction. "We've passed this Daubonnet station six times already." — The American Legion Weekly.

RANGER M. D.'S PERFORM RARE OPERATION

An unusual Caesarian operation was performed Thursday at the Ranger General hospital. Surgeons state that the causes leading to the operation place the case among the rarest on record and make it one of especial interest to the medical fraternity. Both the mother, the wife of a local man, and the child are reported resting well. The operation was performed by Dr. J. M. Stucki assisted by Dr. W. C. Palmer and Dr. H. H. Pantan.

LITTLE THINGS

When Ironing Pleated Skirts.

The home laundress will find the ironing problem greatly lessened if, after pressing each plait in exact place, it is clinched through the two under thicknesses by one of the little "spring" clothespins. Each plait will hold its place firmly while the others are being ironed, and when the skirt is ready for the clothes frame it will not have the loose, musty appearance so often noticed from handling over the ironing board.

Ounce of Prevention in "Footcraft."

Before the children begin to break in a pair of new shoes, especially low, heavy soled shoes, paste over their heels a square of surgeon's plaster with the result that they will never have blistered heels.

Keeping Pressed Yeast.

The following plan has been found successful in keeping yeast where a fresh supply cannot be secured daily: Put an inch of salt in a Mason jar, a cake of yeast wrapped in tin-foil, a half-inch salt, another cake of yeast, and so on until jar is full. The top layer should be an inch or more of salt. Screw on the cover and place in ice box or cool place: It will keep two weeks or more.

Mock Cherry Pie.

Pick over 1 1-2 cups cranberries, then place in a saucepan and add 3-4 cup raisins, 1 cup water. Cook slowly until berries are soft and then cool. Now place 3-4 cup sugar, 1-2 cup flour in a bowl and rub between the hands to mix. Add sugar and flour and stir until dissolved. Bring to a boil and cook for a few minutes. Cool. Bake between two crusts. This amount will make two pies.

PRINCE'S VISIT TO INDIA SEEN AS PEACE MOVE

By International News Service

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Very high and far reaching results are expected from the visit of the Prince of Wales to India and the Far East. The prince sailed from Portsmouth on Oct. 26.

A great change in the outlook in India has occurred since the trip was first decided upon. The monsoons have broken the long drought and more than the average rain has fallen; the gloom in industry, and more particularly agriculture has been largely dispelled with the rise of the rupee; frontier fighting has almost ceased; the proceedings of the new government have not been subjected to that bitter criticism which has been heaped upon it hitherto; but apart from that the feelings of the native tribes have not been assuaged in any degree by the advent of this Prince of the Sahib.

Ghandi still holds sway among his Mohammedan brethren, and unless this modern prophet is coerced into a better humor the visit of the heir to the British throne to his Britannic Majesty's Eastern domains will not be attended with that outburst of enthusiasm which characterized his visits to Australia and Canada.

The visit is not to be a mere duplication of the visits of other heirs to the British throne when they have wandered abroad to the dominions overseas.

The war has had its effect on the relations between the British Royal family and its Indian subjects. The prince is therefore going to take every opportunity to show to the colored populations of India the indebtedness the royal family owes to the native troops.

Will Witness Manoeuvres.

The prince intends to be present at the manoeuvres on the northeast frontier, where all the recent fighting has been taking place. There the famous native volunteer contingents of Hyderabad, Patiala and Bikaner flourish. All these provinces are ruled by princes created by the British government and there at all events, a royal welcome is assured.

The cross-country tour will be from Bombay to Lucknow, with visits to Baroda, Udaipur, Ajmere, Indipur and Allahabad. From that point other towns of interest will be visited in the Ganges valley.

The tour altogether will last until March 17. Then the prince will leave Karachi for Japan.

During his visit to India the prince will take part in many spectacular events. An elephant hunt on a grand scale will take place at Nepal. At Gwalior later he will be met by a great procession on elephants; his own howdah will be of richly carved wood with trappings of rich silver cloth, the same as that used by his father on the occasion of the royal visit to the Delhi Durbar.

The prince also promises to be present at the pig sticking contest (hunting the wild hog with lances) at Kadir. The first prize-winner in this event in 1883 was Sir Robert Baden Powell, the chief of the Boy Scouts.

MAJESTIC—Sunday only, Hap Jones Musical Comedy in "Step Lively." Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "The Inner Chamber" (all-star cast); also big comedy.

TEMPLE.

"Out of the Dust" is a picturesque type of melodrama. It is a big, clean, thrilling outdoor picture of early prairie life, inspired, we are told, by the popular paintings of Frederic Remington, who, perhaps with Colonel Cody, is credited more than anyone else with knowing the real old west as it was in its early days. J. P. McCarthy has caught the spirit of the Remington paintings and artistically woven beautiful campfire scenes, silhouettes, and the livelier glimpses of spirited Redmen into his photoplay. All of those fans to whom the old type of western melodrama means much will find the feature a rare treat.

The picture is exceedingly well presented with careful costuming of the period and a faithful attention to detail. The early scenes of life at Fort Sheridan, when the army post was a mere barricade and the Indians roamed the plains, are unusually interesting. Charming stage-coach excursions, exciting encounters with Indians and mad horse-back rides contrast the man's mode of living with the monotony of the army post as viewed from the woman's angle. The story which the picture introduces is the eternal triangle set in this early, primitive atmosphere. A woman, bored to a frenzy by the monotony of her existence runs away with another man, leaving her husband and child. A year later her husband finds her, settles the score with the man who lured her from home, and takes her back into his heart.

The story vibrates with a human appeal and it is all convincing and real. It contains many of those moments which make the eyes suspiciously moist, while now and then a bit of good humor creeps in to even the score. Showing at the Temple Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

MAJESTIC.

Several weeks were consumed in preparing the big bazaar scene for "The Inner Chamber," the Alice Joyce production which will be shown at the Majestic theatre today, Monday and Tuesday. This set represents a lawn party fete given on the estate of a millionaire. In the background a huge porch set with tables at which guests are being served with luncheon. In the foreground is a magnificent garden with beautiful trees, Japanese lanterns, some fifteen in number, decorated to represent pagodas, gardens, candy boxes, balloons and the like. In the center a Turkish orchestra is placed around a beautiful fountain sending up attractive streams of water that sparkled and glistened iridescent in the colored lights. Balloons were let loose and floated here and there throughout the entire scene.

Over 150 players were used to get atmosphere and give the event a touch of a real bazaar. This scene plays an important part in the story. It is here that the heroine is informed that her sweetheart is already married. The man, too proud to admit that his wife has been confined in an asylum, hopelessly insane for over twelve years, allows the girl to think he has been playing with her.

THERE'S A REASON.

HOW CONFIDENCE HELPED.

One "Jam," who—like most of those who look on the doings of men with suspicion—fails to sign his name, submits to the Times a long article on "Confidence." Of confidence, Jam takes a satirical view and professes to see treachery on the part of Ranger business men in asking the people to believe in the security of the Ranger banks some months ago. He affects to believe that the people have been cheated, what with the cold winter coming on and people's savings tied up in the F. & M., and all that sort of thing. He reasons that the business interests must have known just what sort of thing was going to happen and bewails the whole situation as one brought about by the iniquity of man.

Friend Jam is invited to pause and reflect.

Are the people any worse off by having the bank closed now than they would have been if it had closed four months ago?

Isn't it the fair thing and the sensible thing to do to give an institution a chance?

Wasn't the F. & M.'s staying open as long as it could a benefit to the town and its industry?

Suppose the rush of mad depositors had closed it several months ago, would not the people with money therein—the great majority who would not have joined in the rush—have had their money tied up just the same?

Would not the town have been absolutely demoralized, with not a banking institution within its borders?

On answering these questions, if Jam is a reasoning person, he must admit that it is incomparably better to have confidence and see the bank closed in spite of it, than to have it closed several months earlier through lack of confidence. If it had closed at the time the business men asked the depositors to have confidence, there would have been no facilities for the transaction of business and NO PLACE TO GET MONEY. To-day, there is one bank, carrying deposits. Next week there will be another, which announces it will be in a position to aid F. & M. depositors who need assistance. Hasn't confidence paid, Jam?

Another thing, it would be impossible now for people to make a mistake by having confidence in Ranger banks. Both will be new and clean. There is no old paper to give them trouble and sap their life blood. They do not have to change their habits of banking from those of one regime to another. They cannot be otherwise than in substantial condition. That is something no other banks in the United States can say—not even those of the larger cities. Certainly it cannot be said of the agricultural section banks, for the farmer has been hard hit, just as the oil man has.

It stands to reason, then, that it is poor business not to put money in Ranger banks. Ranger money especially should be brought back here, where it rightfully belongs, because it will be safer here as well as more convenient. The old sock national should be liquidated and the money contained therein put where it will be safe. A man was killed Friday night because he was known to distrust banks and guarded his money personally. Rats are curious creatures. They might not eat silver, but bills would be an appetizer for them, and would make fine nest linings to boot.

Think it over, folks. "Fix yourself." You not only guard your own interests, but you foster those of a whole community. For the financial prestige of a town is rated by its bank deposits. If they are lower than they should be, it looks bad.

CRIME DOESN'T PAY.

Ten bandits last week held up a mail train. They killed one man and wounded four others, besides destroying thousands of pieces of mail. For that fine night's work, it is announced, they got about $100—less than plumber's pay per man, to say nothing of the expenses they incurred in the foray.

Friday night Joe Fiebrich was killed in Ranger with premeditated robbery as the obvious motive. From all appearances, the slayers were rewarded with one $20 gold piece. Two men are in jail. If they did it, are they repaid? If they are innocent, does the perpetrator of the deed feel well about putting them in jeopardy for such a paltry sum?

Crime does not pay. Sooner or later the long hand of the law reaches out and snatches those who would live by plunder and casts them into dungeons. Even if the criminal makes a haul, does it reimburse him in dollars and cents for the time he will almost certainly put in behind bars to earn it?

Nope.
The slaying of Fiebrich, by the way, was one of the dastardly outrages which have spread the name of Ranger far and wide as the tenderloin of the West—a name it does not deserve. This will be another blot on its reputation if Fiebrich's murderers are not caught and punished. No effort of the law should be spared to that end.

HOW COME, MR. PRITCHARD?

Last Sunday it was announced that Fleming & Stitzer road warrants Nos. 1 to 254 would be paid upon presentation at the county treasurer's office. A few of these warrants are understood to have been paid.

Today—one whole week after the statement was spread broadcast over the county—Treasurer Pritchard announces that he will not pay off these warrants, and will issue a statement in a day or two as to his position.

It is just such things as this that create so much confusion and distrust of the county administration. We suggest that you hurry up with the statement, Mr. Pritchard, and would request that you also tell why you waited a whole week to make the announcement.

GOVERNOR WILL MAKE RULING ON SKIRT LENGTHS

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 12.—Governor McKelvie of Nebraska has to decide just how long or how short the girls in the statehouse can wear their skirts, and whether or not they can bob their hair, and must issue an edict on the question of rolling 'em down or wearing 'em full length.
The case is complicated by the fact that the governor is a young man—the youngest executive in the country—and by the further fact that the governor has a young and pretty wife. And the governor's edict must be given in the broad light of day and published in all the newspapers.
The proposition has been put up to the governor by a committee of the "statehouse girls"—girls who are employed in the Nebraska state capital.
"Go away, I'm too busy—and I've got more important things to do, anyhow," the governor sidestepped as he heard the questions fired at him by the committee. But the questions will not down.

Steno Responsible.
Miss Blanche Clemmons is responsible for the situation. Miss Clemmons was a stenographer in the office of the state boxing commission under H. H. Antles, secretary of the state department of public welfare. She was graduated from the university last spring. She was a sorority girl and wore short skirts. She also bobbed her hair.

Miss Clemmons denies that she rolls her hose. But she is now out of a job. And she blames her short skirts. "Your skirts are too short. You're fired. And, besides, your boss hasn't enough work to keep you busy," Secretary Antles said to Miss Clemmons the other day.

Two weeks previously Secretary Antles had called the short-skirted, bobbed-hair young woman into his inner office and had given her a lot of fatherly advice about "too much fussery in dress." Miss Clemmons says that some days later Antles told her she didn't seem to be heeding his warnings.

"But I couldn't change wardrobes just because he said so," she says.

Anyway, Miss Clemmons was discharged. And then indignation broke loose among the other girls in the statehouse. If Miss Clemmons lost her job because she wore short skirts and bobbed her hair, scarcely a girl in the building but had a job in danger.

Indignation Meetings.
They held indignation meetings and a committee went to call on the governor and lay the proposition of short or long, bobbed or natural, rolled or flat, before him.

"Go 'way, I'm busy—and I've got more important things to look after, anyway," the governor said, then hurried off.

"Just as if there could be more important things," one of the committee complained.

Representatives of the committee called on other secretaries in the statehouse to ask them what was their position on the grave question. They wanted good backing when they should eventually corner the governor and have to argue with him.

"You can wear 'em as short as you like so far as I'm concerned," Secretary Stuhr told them. Stuhr is a bachelor and he had a soft and peaceful look in his eye.

"I'm too old to care," Secretary Hart of the bank board told them. Hart is about 65.

"Go as far as you like," Attorney-General Davis told the representatives. The attorney-general is just about 32.

"Why use up too much dry goods in making skirts? Make the goods for one do for two or three," they were told by Phil Brose, secretary of trade.

That's the sort of backing and expert opinion the advocates of the short skirts and the bobbed hair have ready for Governor McKelvie when they approach him again.

SCRIPTURE

II Kings 6:16.

And the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold, now, the place where we dwell with thee is too straight for us.

Let us go, we pray thee, unto to Jordan, and take thence every man a beam, and let us make us a place there, where we may dwell. And he answered, go ye.

And one said, Be content, I pray thee, and go with thy servants, and he answered I will go.

So he went with them, and when they came to Jordan, they cut down wood.

But as one was felling a beam, the axe head fell into the water: and he cried, and said, alas master, for it is borrowed.

And the man of God said. Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut down a stick, and cast it in thither; and the iron did swim.

STANDARD OFFICIALS WILL VISIT WORTHAM

Special to the Times.

WORTHAM, Texas, Nov. 12.—Arrangements are being made by the Chamber of Commerce for the entertainment of officials of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, due here on Nov. 17 for a tour of the Wortham-Mexia fields. The party, headed by President Teagle, will be composed of the leading oil men of the country who desire to obtain first hand information in regards to the local field, which is believed by many to be the largest oil producing section in the country. Acreage controlled by Col. Humphreys and the Pure Oil company, who recently purchased a $7,000,000 interest, will be shown the visitors. A number of gushers will also be opened for their benefit. The Standard officials are chiefly interested in the holdings of its subsidiary companies, they now controlling several thousand acres. Of this acreage the largest amount is held by the Magnolia company who have 2,500 acres and the Sun company which controls close to 1,500 acres. This latter company recently purchased the Cranfill well and a large block of acreage on the C. S. West farm, northwest of town.

PROHIBITION'S EXTREME MODERATION.

The theory of the World Digest of Reform News that "the only good bootlegger is a dead bootlegger" reflects the sweet reasonableness of prohibitionist zeal. In the opinion of this organ of the Methodist Board of Temperance, peddlers of liquor, instead of being lodged in jail, "should be lodged five feet underground," and while it "would be the last to advocate the unwarranted use of weapons by officers, a bootlegger is worth a lot more to the country dead than alive."

No doubt the only thing to be astonished at in these sentiments is their

A LEADERLESS PARTY.

In naming Cordell Hull to succeed George White as its chairman the Democratic national committee lays stress on the necessity for vigorous party leadership. Certainly the administration and the country would both benefit by increased energy and initiative in the councils of the opposition. A party that has everything its own way grows careless and indifferent. The Republicans can tilt back in solid comfort and go to sleep these days, confident that nothing of real import will disturb the even tenor of the Congressional Record. Grass is growing under everybody's feet. Politics and finance have slumped together. Yet there was never an administration wider open to criticism, never such a hash of campaign promises, such trifling with vast opportunities.

What the Democratic party most needs is leadership in the houses of congress. In the senate Mr. Underwood practically abdicated when he lined up with President Harding on the German treaty. In the house there is no Democratic leadership of any kind. Republican leadership has evaporated almost as completely, probably because there's nobody to argue with. For lack of live opposition congress has sunk to the status of a lawyers' convention, with a few hard-working committee members grinding out bills and resolutions to comply with the requirements of lobbies and other powers that be.

If Mr. Hull can infuse a little leadership and a little ambition into the Democrats now decorating the capital he will have accomplished the greater part of what he has to do.—New York World.

moderation. Why limit the remedy to the purveyors of liquor? Why not lynch all the bootleggers' customers as accomplices in crime and on the equally logical theory that the only good opponents of the eighteenth amendment are its dead opponents? If the "use of weapons" is not unwarranted in the one case it should not be unwarranted in the other. Then we should have a 100-per-cent-pure prohibition population; the country would be unanimous in support of Volsteadism and there would be no further need of the expense and trouble of enforcement. Only the automatic elimination of paid propaganda occurs at the moment as a serious defect of the plan.

It is something, however, to have the lynching of bootleggers proposed as a policy of prohibition enforcement. It is the first step that counts, and a program for the complete extermination of all anti-prohibitionists may be evolved in time.—New York World.

In the Japanese home the mother-in-law is the boss.

Now—as to economy

ECONOMY is not only a matter of saving. It consists also of spending money to best advantage. You can often add materially to the effectiveness of your purchase by reading the advertisements in this paper.

Advertising identifies goods of unquestioned value. When a store or manufacturer puts his name on a product and tells you about it, you may rest assured that it is worth while. It does not pay to advertise merchandise that is not sound. The come-backs are too costly.

Make a practice of reading advertisements. Read them as news from the business world, published for your benefit.

Sometimes, they keep you from making an unwise purchase by pointing out just why one article suits your needs better than another. A step toward real economy!

Often, they help you live better and dress better and make more of your income in every way. Also, real economy.

And you will find that they frequently save you money.

Economy, certainly!

LEARNED DELVERS IN GREECE FIND RUINS OF BATHTUB IN WHICH AGAMEMNON WAS SLAIN

ATHENS, Nov. 12.—Some very interesting discoveries have been made by the British School of Archaeology in this season's work at Mycenae, the ancient Greek city which already has yielded some of the most remarkable finds bearing on the epic period which preceded the dawn of authentic history.

One of these discoveries is of a tank bath in the palace of the Acropolis at Mycenae which suggests the possibility that it may have been the legendary bath of Agamemnon in which he is reputed to have been murdered by his wife Clytemnestra.

At all events, if Agamemnon were an historical person, he should have lived in this palace for it was built about 1,400 years before Christ and was destroyed before the end of the twelfth century B. C.

Mycenae was one of the most important cities of ancient Greece and was the fabled seat of Agamemnon, son of the king of that city and most powerful ruler in Greece. It was Agamemnon who the Greek historians credit with having led the Greek expedition against Troy. On his return from that expedition, he was slain. In the tragedy of Aeschylus, the scene of the murder is laid in the palace of Agamemnon at Argos, some miles distant from Mycenae.

Lined With Stucco.
The bath uncovered by British investigators is lined with red stucco and its sides are composed of steps.

The palace which was discovered in 1886 has now been completely cleared as the result of this season's efforts. One of the most interesting parts of it is the great hall, or Megaron, in which is a raised ceremonial circular hearth made of painted stucco and having floors of the same material edged with slabs of gypsum.

The walls of the hall were covered with painted fresco which suffered much in the fire which destroyed the palace. Some fragments of these decorations were found. They represent elaborately dressed women with auburn hair.

The domestic quarters of the palace were much destroyed but in them were found a row of jars and a shrine with the remains of painted stucco floors.

Some Old Houses.
Under the floors of the palace have been found scanty remains of a yet earlier edifice dating probably from 1,600 to 1,400 B. C. There probably lived the kings who were found by Schlieman in 1876 buried with their treasures in the famous shaft graves of Mycenae.

Below this again are the tombs of still earlier periods back to about 2,000 B. C.

In addition, the British archeologists found several new chamber tombs in the Mycenae cemeteries. The two largest tombs just discovered have not yet been cleared. In the entrance to one were found painted vases, gold and amethyst beads and five splendid intaglio seal stones. On two of these are standing lions and the figure of the great mother goddess dressed in the elaborately flounced and gathered gown worn by Mycenaean women. Above her head is her secret symbol, the double axe.

One of these big tombs has an entrance passage nearly 100 feet long and six feet wide. The tomb chamber is twenty-one feet square and lies thirty feet below the level of the ground. It is hoped that they contain articles of great historic value.

DANCE-MAD HUSBAND DRIVES HER TO COURT

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Further details in the suit of a wife who was driven to too much high life to seek freedom were revealed yesterday.

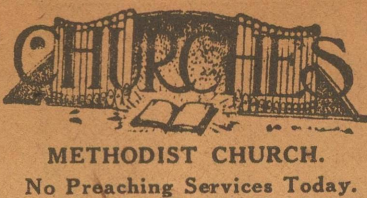

The complainant in the separation suit is Mrs. Grace P. Van Iderstine, No. 270 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn. The defendant is William P. Van Iderstine. Mrs. Van Iderstine says her husband, member of an old and wealthy family, "invariably insisted on going to public dance places in the afternoon and would become abusive if I refused to dance with him."

Incidentally, she says, he introduced her to men friends and "became abusive if I refused to dance with them." On another occasion, when she refused to dance at the Huntington Country club, through sheer weariness, he made a scene.

MEDICAL MEN ENDORSE FERRASAL

DOCTORS AND DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE KNOW VALUE OF MINERALS

Ferrasal contains the same elements as the most famous European mineral waters. It contains nothing harmful or painful in its action. Its elements include Calcium (Lime) and Iron, Acid Citrates, Acid Tartrates and the Sodums. All of these elements are vital to the human system and are particularly needed to relieve and tone up the digestive organs.

—of Minneapolis, Minn., says: "The majority of cases of weakened physical condition which ultimately leads to tuberculosis are caused by a deficiency of lime in the system." (See Journal of American Medical Association, issue 7-27-12, page 308.)
Druggists everywhere recommend Ferrasal because they know it benefits the system. If one package does not convince you the trial will cost you nothing.

Wearing Apparel
Sale Starts Monday, November 14th

This is to be the biggest value-giving event ever known in this part of the country. Every one will be talking about the wonderful quality, style and low price of the Boston Store merchandise.

The Boston Store merchandise is superior quality and sold at a very low price throughout the season and now comes a big reduction off of the regular price. You cannot help but appreciate these values once you have seen them. Our policy has always been to sell the very best makes of standard merchandise and at a very close margin of profit—always giving the customer the most possible for the money spent. Patrons of the Boston Store know that when we put on a sale that the reductions are bonafide and that a real saving is to be had. We will be prepared to give everyone service, so come Monday and share in the wonderful values that are to be had.
