Ask Us

Q—Will the DPS have more troopers out this weekend because of Labor Day?

A—A Department of Public Safety spokesperson said some areas will have a larger concentration of troopers, primarily along major highways. The troopers will be especially watchful for drunk drivers, he said. He also advised motorists to comply with the speed limits and connect their safety belts.

Economic strategy accord reached

'... A unified effort of working together'

— DCOS Chairman Bill Seale

The direction of economic growth in Snyder and Scurry County, discussed and debated over the past several months, took a positive turn Friday afternoon with a joint announcement of a plan and structure.

Called the "Unified Economic Development Proposal," the plan is a result of at least three meetings between heads of various organizations involved in the area's future.

Involved in design of the plan were Chamber President Donna Gray, Mayor Paul Zeck, County Judge Bob Doolittle, Board of County Development Chairman Max von Roeder and Development Corporation of Snyder Chairman Bill Seale.

Gray said a town hall meeting held at Western Texas College on Aug. 12 motivated her to try and get representatives from various groups together to arrive at a consensus.

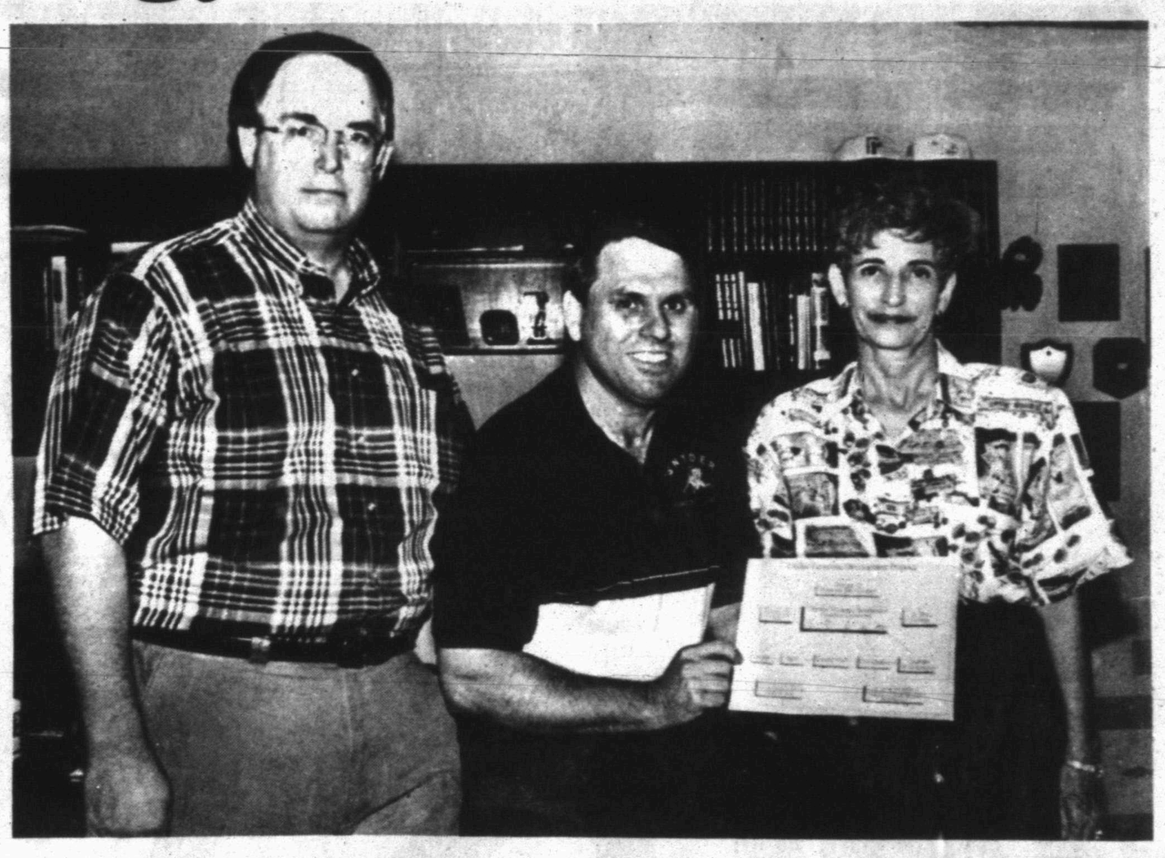

Following the three meetings, both an organizational structure and plan for financing were agreed on. The plan calls for the establishment of an office of economic development to be staffed by an executive director and a secretary.

The executive director will work with a seven-member executive committee composed of the DCOS chairman and one DCOS member, the BCD chairman and one BCD board member, plus the county judge, mayor and chamber president.

In recruiting and hiring the economic development director, the executive committee will make a formal recommendation to the DCOS.

Traveling exhibit to debut later this month at museum

Scurry County Museum will feature a special traveling exhibit beginning later this month, celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Permian Basin Museum Institute.

Nineteen members of the Permian Basin Museum Institute (PBMI) are cooperating in presenting the exhibit, which will be at the local musem from Sept. 12 through Oct. 31.

PBMI was organized in 1973 to assist member museums through the exchange of knowledge, professional training and promotion of museums as educational resources. PBMI sponsors three workshops yearly for museum personnel.

Scurry County Museum is a member of PBMI and is loaning a century-old Pin Wheel design and a salesman's sample early-day washing machine for the exhibit.

The museum will be open from 1-4 p.m. on Sept. 12 when the exhibit debuts and it can be seen during regular museum hours, 8 a.m. until noon and 1-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8-noon and 1-4 p.m. Friday. Sunday hours can be arranged by contacting the museum in advance.

Also loaning materials for the traveling exhibit are the Old Jail Art Center in Albany, Museum of the Big Bend in Alpine, Heritage Museum in Big Spring, Ernest and Dorothy Barrow Foundation Museum in Eola, Air Defense Artillery Museum, Fort Bliss Museum and 3rd Cavalry Museum in Fort Bliss and 11 others.

Gay 20s to handle telephone pledges

Local citizens are invited to make a pledge to help aid Muscular Dystrophy this weekend, during the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Members of the Gay 20s will man the telephones at the chamber of commerce again for the event.

Club members will begin accepting donations over the phone at 6 p.m. Sunday and will keep it up until 6 p.m. Monday. The numbers to call are 573-3558 and 573-3559. Donations may also be dropped off at the chamber office all day Monday.

About 17 members of the Gay 20s, plus sponsors Debbie Word and Shilla Kinney, will be participating.

Canisters have also been placed at various businesses throughout the community for individuals who would like to donate in that manner.

The 28th MDA Jerry Lewis Labor Day Teleton is a 21½ -hour live broadcast which will air from 8 p.m. local time Sunday through 5:30 p.m. Monday, originating from the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas.

Lubbock station KLBK-TV will broadcast the telethon live from its studios.

Organizers will be trying to exceed the 1992 pledge total of $45.8 million. The funds are used to support the programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Retransmission pact still not wrapped up

Larson Lloyd, area manager for TCA, said Friday afternoon the company is still negotiating with KJTV-Fox and KCBD-NBC in Lubbock to retransmit their signals to Snyder Cablevision customers.

TCA ran a notice in Friday's newspaper stating that negotiations are continuing.

"We're sincerely hoping that we can get something worked out. However, if not, we have a chance of losing these two stations," said Lloyd.

The Cable Act of 1992 requires Snyder Cablevision to have permission from TV stations to continue providing their signals. TCA has received permission from KERA-PBS in Dallas, KTAB-CBS in Abilene, KLBK-CBS in Lubbock, KTXS-ABC in Sweetwater, KRBC-NBC in Abilene and WFAA-ABC in Dallas-Fort Worth.

Lloyd said Oct. 6 is the deadline to work out retransmission contracts.

"We're real optimistic. We don't feel like it would be in the best interests of these stations to pull out. And, the feedback we get from our customers is that they would like for the stations to remain," said Lloyd.

Lloyd said that if no agreement can be reached, "we would probably put something else on (in their place). But 'what' is a good question. I'm not sure what it would be right now."

He said TCA will notify Snyder Cablevision subscribers if and when agreements are reached with KCBD and KJTV.

Lone Star to change bill pay system

Lone Star Gas announced today that the company will soon establish one or more payment centers at retail outlets in Snyder.

Phillip Cockerell, Snyder Lone Star manager, said that on Dec. 1, Lone Star will close the local office to walk-in customers and will have established pay agents locally.

System-wide, Lone Star has 140 alternate locations where customers can pay their gas bills. Additional locations will be set up for customers who now pay at Lone Star offices.

Cockerell said the objective is to have more locations and longer hours. Cockerell said the payment locations in Snyder have yet to be established.

Of the more than 550 towns served by Lone Star, Snyder is one of 85 where payments can be made at the Lone Star office. When the new payment centers are established, the local office will no longer accept payments.

Cockerell said the office will still be staffed by clerical and service employees.

A recent story about the DPS patrolman giving a ticket to a fan on the way to a football game reminded us of a story about retired Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway.

It seems that one of the DPS troopers had stopped an oilfield rig belonging to a local contractor. The officer cited the driver for going 75 mph in a 55 zone.

The driver brought the ticket to the firm's owner. Everbody in the company knew that the old truck wouldn't run 75. The owner told the driver that he would go on Monday and personally talk to Judge Callaway.

The speech was all prepared. He told the judge that the truck was pretty well worn, that it couldn't possibly get over 60 mph, even going downhill. He even offered to take the JP for a ride to prove his point.

"Won't be necessary," Callaway said. "How fast did ya' say he was going?"

The owner, feeling good, assured the judge it was 60 mph at tops.

"No problem," said the judge. "I'll just change the speed to 60 mph. The fine's the same."

He recently asked a customer about how often he rotated his tires. The reply was a jewel:

Said the customer, "Heck, every time I drive, I guess."

Somebody from the senior center said he recently asked his doctor the difference between gout and rheumatism. The doc explained in layman's terms:

"If you take a vise, put your finger between the jaws, and turn until you can't stand it any longer — that's rheumatism. If you turn it once more, that's gout!"

Truck convoy delivers Tilton documents

DALLAS (AP) — Television evangelist Robert Tilton avoided jail but was slapped with $81,742 in fines Friday after sending a convoy of trucks and vans full of documents to the attorney of a woman suing him for $50 million.

Although Tilton met Friday's 9 a.m. deadline for handing over the papers, state District Judge Eric Moye hit him with the sanctions for taking so long.

The documents were due a year ago, Moye said.

Tilton was smiling as he left the courtroom, apparently happy that he avoided a contempt of court order and jail time.

"I was always prepared to go to jail. I came prepared to go to jail today. But, thank God, I'm not going to jail, I'm going home."

The sanctions were sought by attorney Tony Wright, who is representing the widow of a former member of Tilton's Word of Faith World Outreach Church.

"This is the perfect case where they ought to be sanctioned severely," Wright said. "They cost me $150,000 in time in 15 months."

And by waiting so long, Wright said, the documents are almost worthless as the lawsuit against Tilton is scheduled for trial in 30 days.

"Who knows what's in there," Wright said of the five moving vans and other trucks that filled his office parking lot. "It's kind of like the needle and the haystack, and we've got several haystacks. ... Our problem is that if we find something in 25 days that leads to other information, how are we going to get it and use it?"

Wright is representing Norma Smith, who has accused Tilton of soliciting money from her husband after he had died. She claims she was harassed and suffered intentionally inflicted emotional distress.

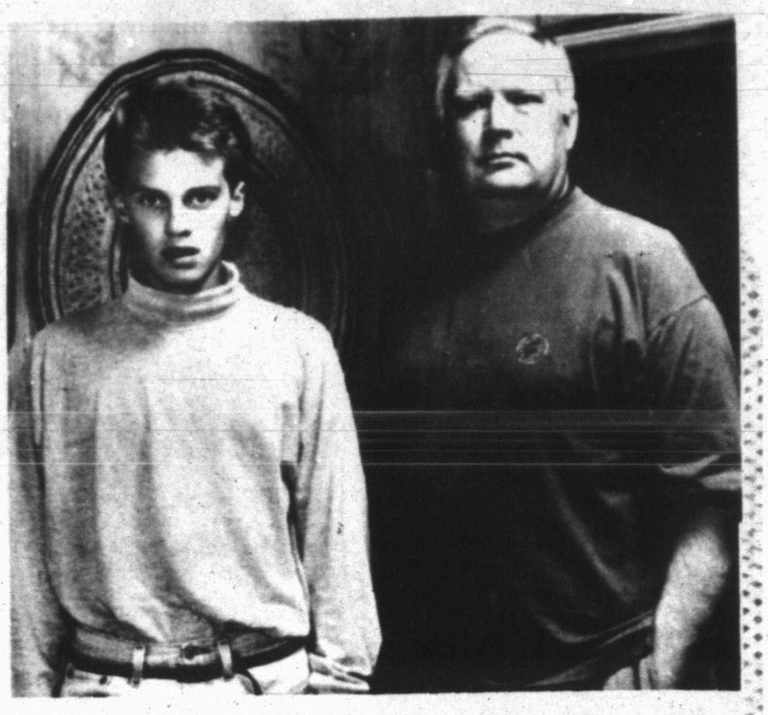

Although Tilton had vowed to never surrender the papers, his attorney, Bob Wellenberger, said Tilton changed his mind after church members convinced him that "it's in the best interest of the church if he comply."

Tilton has for months fought Moye's order to relinquish the documents, which include identities of those who claimed miracle healings on Tilton's television program.

Tilton tried to get Moye removed from hearing the $50 million lawsuit against him, saying the judge wa iased. But a visiting judge ruled last week that Moye had not compromised his objectivity and could remain on the case.

Norwegian youth new student at Snyder High

One of Snyder's foreign exchange students for the 1993-1994 school year is Thomas Berge, a senior at Snyder High School. He is staying with Dr. Albert Taylor, retired SHS teacher.

From Sarpsporg, Norway, Berge's stay in America is arranged through the Educational Foundation For Foreign Study. This is his first visit to the U.S. and his first stint as a foreign exchange student. However, he has visited every country in Western Europe.

Since arriving in Snyder on Aug. 7, Berge has been the recipient of West Texas hospitality. Everyone he has met has been "so nice," he said..

Berge has been studying English since he was 10 years, and though he speaks it rather well, he chose to study here for a year so he could "polish his skills."

He has also studied German for four years.

Berge arrived in the U.S. the latter part of July and attended Yale University's Language Camp in New Haven, Conn. for two weeks.

Lawyers ask that skinhead's trial be moved to another city

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecutors said they will back a motion to move the organized crime and conspiracy trial of avowed white supremacist Christopher Brosky out of Tarrant County because of pre-trial publicity.

"If ever a case was designed for a change of venue, this is it," Assistant District Attorney Marvin Collins said after the motion was filed by the defense Thursday. "I cannot recall in my career as a lawyer any other case where there was a march of 10,000 citizens in downtown Fort Worth."

Brosky, 18, received 10 years' probation in March after a jury found him guilty in the 1991 drive-by shooting death of Donald Thomas, a black man from Arlington. Two other white supremacists received prison sentences of 15 and 40 years for their role in the Thomas slaying.

Defense lawyer Ward Casey filed a motion asking for the next trial to be moved because of local media reports of community outrage at the sentence and a subsequent protest march that involved more than 10,000 people in downtown Fort Worth.

The trial is scheduled for Nov. 1.

Collins said he supports the move, but wants to be sure the trial is moved to a county where the minority population is at least equal to that of Tarrant County.

Casey also claimed in his motion that Brosky did not receive a fair trial at his first trial because of "prejudice against him in Tarrant County."

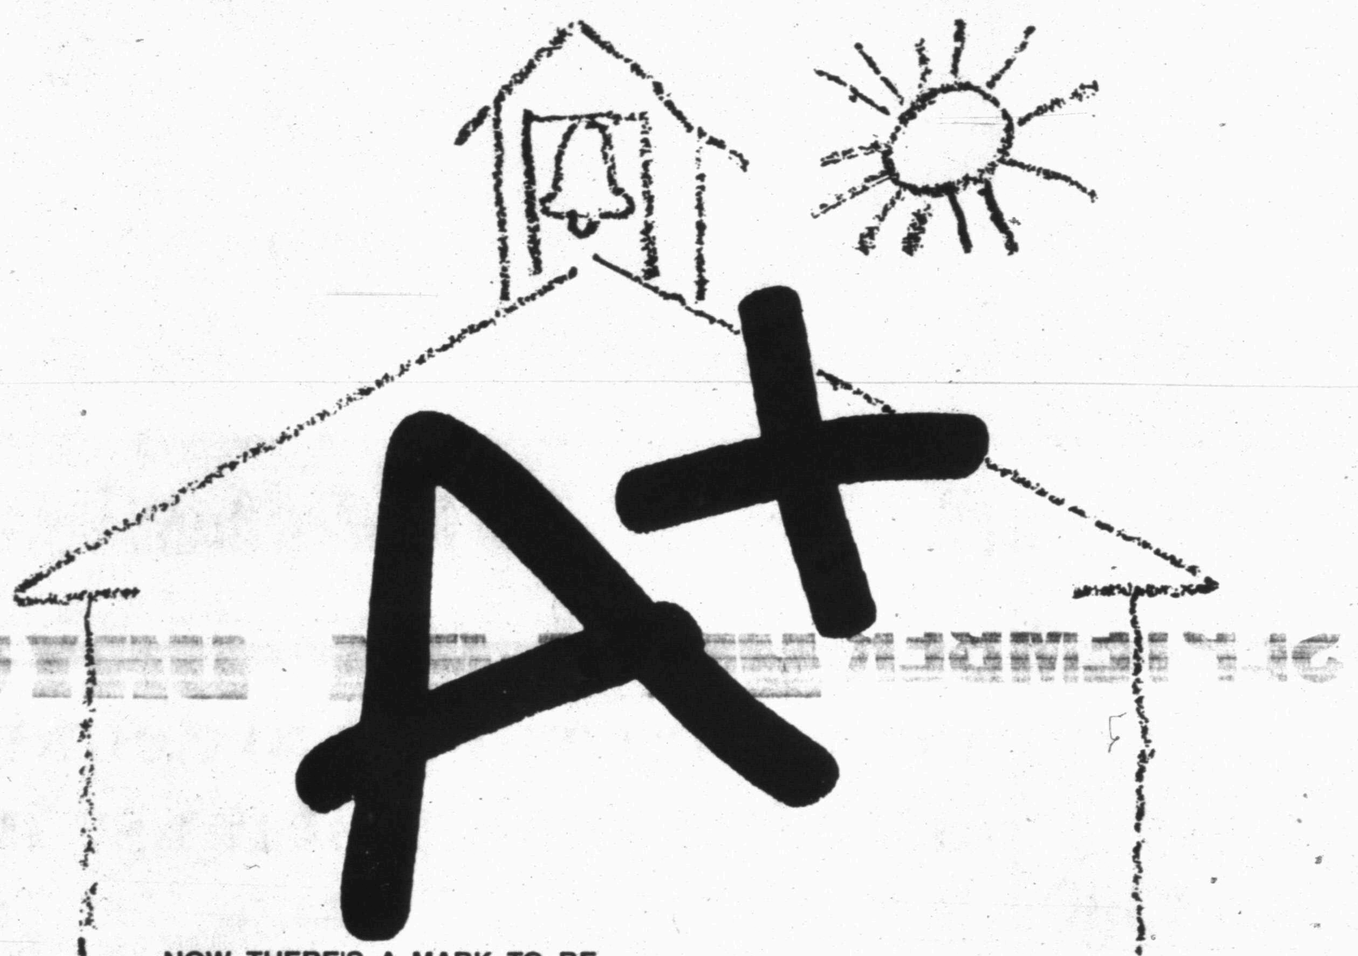

"The coverage has been almost uniformly negative and it has been commonly assumed that Brosky is guilty," he said.

An appeal by Brosky's lawyers concerning the second trial is pending in the 2nd Court of Appeals. They contend that the second trial means Brosky is being tried twice for the same crime.

The Supreme Court issued its landmark Brown vs. the Board of Education of Topeka, Kan., ruling May 17, 1954. The court unanimously reversed its 1896 "separate but equal" Plessy vs. Ferguson decision and declared that racially segregated pulic schools were inherently unequal.

Slaton fires police chief

SLATON (AP) — City commissioners fired police Chief Barbara Fowler Friday, eight days after she came back to work following a suspension with pay.

"The council voted to terminate her effective immediately," Mayor Don Kendrick said.

Ms. Fowler, who has headed the seven-officer force for nine years, was out of town and unavailable for comment.

"She's upset about being reinstated last week without the support of the commission," said her attorney, Mary Alice McLarty of Lubbock.

City officials suspended Ms. Fowler in May amidst allegations that she had altered a traffic accident report. A Department of Public Safety report recently cleared her of wrongdoing.

"That was one of the first things that started the dissension," Kendrick said. "I can't really be specific."

Ms. McLarty said Ms. Fowler believed city officials and others were undermining her authority since she was reinstated Aug. 26.

Belgium student will stay with 3 families

Benoit Gridelet of Belgium will live with three Snyder families during the 1993-1994 school year. He is currently staying with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Lowrance and their daughter, Brooke.

Gridelet is also slated to spend part of this school year with the John Gayle family and Janice Mitchell and her family.

This is the new Snyder High School senior's first trip to the U.S., but he said, "It won't be the last."

His stay in Snyder has been arranged through the Rotary Club's Youth Exchange Program.

REBEL ROYALL

Royall earns STSU degree

SAN MARCOS — Rebel Royall of Ira has received a Masters of Education degree in agriculture from Southwest Texas State University.

Graduate School commencement was conducted Aug. 13 in Strahan Coliseum. The speaker was Dr. James Irving, professor of chemistry. Dr. Jerome Supple, college president, conferred the degrees.

Royall is a 1987 graduate of Ira High School, graduating as salutatorian. He received a Bachelor of Science degree from Texas Tech University in 1991. He was active in Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity.

While at SWTSU, Royall coached the livestock judging team and was teaching assistant to Dr. Tommy Perkins.

Royall will begin duties as assistant agricultural extension agent for Henderson County, Athens, on Sept. 15.

He is the son of Suzanna and Jimmie Wilson of Ira.

Tourism officials: summer successful

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As summer vacation season winds to a close this Labor Day weekend, tourism businesses in Texas are counting their cash.

Some also are counting their blessings.

Amusement businesses and tourism officials report a successful season and attribute the number of visitors to marketing strategies, new attractions and, in some cases, sunny skies.

"This year we started off slowly because of the weather," said Bob McCullough, public relations director at Sea World of Texas.

San Antonio experienced record rainfall the first half of this year then endured a two-month dry spell beginning in late June that only in the last 10 days was broken by light showers.

"The sun came out and we started gaining tremendous momentum," said McCullough. "We've had a good year."

Sea World and other major amusement parks including Fiesta Texas and Six Flags Over Texas would not release attendance figures.

Anamaria Suescun, a spokeswoman for the music theme park Fiesta Texas in San Antonio, said the park is doing slightly better than last year's inaugural attendance mark of 2 million.

Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington this year sustained gains it made in 1992, its first year under Time Warner management, said spokesman Bruce Neal.

Most major amusement parks cease daily operations after Labor Day but continue weekend schedules for several more weeks.

Other tourism businesses also are preparing for the summer's last big moneymaking weekend.

Many hotels and motels along the Texas coast were fully booked.

In New Braunfels, where the population is about 27,000, an estimated 65,000 visitors were arriving for Guadalupe and Comal river recreation and other attractions.

"Labor Day weekend will be the last big kick," said Jim Scheele Jr., convention and visitors bureau director at the New Braunfels Chamber of Commerce.

In Galveston, beach-goers also made time for other attractions like Moody Gardens, which has received 850,000 visitors since March.

The San Antonio Convention and Visitors Bureau reports the city's tourism business experienced "a very healthy summer," but said the exact number of visitors is difficult to determine.

Hotel and motel tax collection was up 19 percent in June compared with the same month last year, said Sharon Eason, director of marketing for the visitors bureau. However, she said, that number fluctuates as hotel room prices change.

Figures are not yet available for July, the peak tourism month.

Another factor in the San Antonio tourism scene is the Alamodome, which opened in May and has been host to several summer events including two exhibition National Football League games and Olympic Festival events.

A Paul McCartney concert at the dome in late May attracted 40 percent of its attendance from Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston, according to Ms. Eason.

"Our repeat visitors just look for an excuse to come back to San Antonio," she said.

Doris Barrett's only excuse was that she likes the city, which she had visited about five years ago.

"We're just having a good time," she said, as the family headed out one morning to the Alamo and the downtown Riverwalk.

Mrs. Barrett and her husband, Bob, stopped in San Antonio as part of a trip from Guntersville, Ala., with relatives Dot and Clifton Barrett of Athens, Ga., and Bob and Sarah Cooper of Stark, Fla.

"We started out about nine days ago, and we've been about 4,000 miles," Doris Barrett said.

In far South Texas, greater numbers of Mexican tourists have helped make 1993 a big year for South Padre Island.

Convention and Visitors' Bureau spokeswoman Elsa Cantu said the island's hotel tax took in $10.2 million in the second quarter of 1993, compared with $9.8 million in that period last year.

Also, the number of cars crossing the Queen Isabella Causeway has increased every month this year compared to last year, Ms. Cantu said.

Ms. Cantu said the island's promotions in Mexico appear to be reaching not only the mainstay markets of Mexico City and nearby Matamoros and Reynosa, but cities such as Monterrey, Veracruz and Saltillo.

Senior Center will be closed Monday

The Senior Center will be closed all day Monday for Labor Day. Due to the holiday, an Eight Ball tournament will begin on Tuesday.

Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the center's dining room at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Kitchen Band will go to Snyder Oaks Care Center for a performance at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Favorite songs will be heard in the "Olio" singing at 11:15 a.m. Thursday and the Friday Sing Along will begin at 11:30 a.m. The Sunshine Choir will meet to rehearse at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Cowboy Football Activity is new in the Senior Center and senior citizens interested may contact Pamela Fenton, activities director, for details. The Golden Corral will be awarding a free meal each week to the winner.

Swimnastics for senior citizens has resumed with the opening of the fall semester at Western Texas College. Senior citizens participating may enter the pool at 9:15 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and remain until 10:45 a.m. The pool is in the HPE Building at the east end of the college campus.

Raffle tickets for a quilt to be given away by the Senior Center will go on sale at the center's Scurry County Fair/White Buffalo Days booth Sept. 23-25. Also for sale will be handicrafts made and donated by senior citizens, with all proceeds going to the operating fund of the center.

The Golden K Kiwanis Club meets at noon each Tuesday in the Senior Center. Men and women interested in joining the club are invited to attend any meeting. The club is made up of those 60 and older and its activities include fund raisers to benefit the center.

Your chart indicates a rise in status is a strong likelihood for the year ahead. Although it might have seemed like a long time coming, when things begin to break they'll happen very fast.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your first impressions are likely to be your most accurate ones today, especially those you get when you meet people for the first time. Give them the respect they deserve. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll fare better than most of your peers today, because you're extremely resourceful and ingenious in dealing with off-beat situations. Things that don't make sense to others will to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be afraid to test new techniques or procedures today in both your social life and you commercial one. Your conceptions should work well in either instance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't turn a deaf ear to financial proposals brought to you by friends today. One of your pals might be onto something that could be very substantial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) On two occasions a friend of yours has talked to you about something that could be of immense value to you. However, you never have paid proper attention, so listen well today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An idea for which you've been searching has in actuality been in the back of your mind all this time. Today it might reveal itself with greater clarity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility you may meet someone new today through a close friend. Both will be amazed at how much you have in common. This relationship could really take off.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to succeed in competitive commercial situations today, you have to effectively utilize your smarts as well as your experience. If you apply yourself, you'll be tough to beat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Endeavors which require creativity and imagination should be the most appealing for you today. You won't have to put your signature on your work, friends will know who the author is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something rather extraordinary may suddenly develop for you today that could lead to material gains. An inquisitive acquaintance might trigger the happening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't be plagiarizing, yet you'll be extremely effective at taking the ideas of others and developing them in a manner that produces mutual advantageous results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pay heed to any hunches or insights you get today regarding ways to achieve personal gain. Your perceptions are ingenious and they could prove to be profitable.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Sept. 5, 1993

Persons for whom you have done favors in the past will be looking for ways to square accounts in the year ahead. Friends might play more important roles in your affairs than ever before.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are presently in a cycle where you can expand or build upon good things you already have going for you. Be grateful for what you have, but don't be awed by the status quo. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons with whom you are presently involved cannot run a collective endeavor as well as you can. Don't abdicate your authority or delegate critical assignments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Let events run their natural courses today instead of trying to control things from behind the scenes. The end results might not please others, but they should please you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Present developments are moving in a direction that could give you something big about which to be hopeful and expectant. It may also involve two friends of yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's a possibility you might get involved in a challenging development today. If this occurs, don't view yourself as the underdog, because the odds are titled in your favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Knowledge you've acquired over the past year can be used to your advantage at this time to advance your personal interests. Others are prepared to pay for what you know.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't attempt to change things that can't be changed, but if there is an arrangement you can alter to your advantage, by all means, do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In a situation that requires an associate or partner the right choice could substantially enhance your luck. Take ample time to make the best selection possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't sit around waiting for opportunities or breaks today. Your destiny is in your own hands and you're luckier than you think. Do something positive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you know socially can be of help to you at this time in the business world. This person likes you and will do what he/she can, so don't be reluctant to ask.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are going to attempt to forecast the outcome of events today, don't do it with a negative attitude. Your mind set is of enormous importance, so think win at all times.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you are not likely to be intimidated by the scope or scale of situations. Don't stop thinking big, because, in your case, it's an essential ingredient for your success.

Securities can be owned individually or jointly with another person or persons. If you're a joint owner, how the security is registered can significantly affect your estate and taxes.

Two types of joint accounts are available: joint tenancy with rights of survivorship and tenancy in common. Except in states that prohibit rights of survivorship, it's your option to choose how your joint ownership is registered. Before you make this decision, it's important to understand the differences between the two types of registration.

Joint tenancy with rights of survivorship: the most common type of joint ownership. It appears on your account and certificates with the full names of all owners followed by the abbreviation JTWROS (or sometimes JT TEN).

As the name implies, upon the death of one of the joint tenants, that person's entire interest in the account passes to the survivor or survivors who are registered as joint owners. The estate of the deceased has no interest in the account.

A similar type of joint tenancy is tenants of entirety. This is basically the same as joint tenants with rights of survivorship, except it exists only between spouses.

In certain states, known as community property states, the law does not immediately recognize joint tenancy with rights of survivorship. In these states, upon the death of one spouse, half of the assets in the account pass directly to the surviving spouse, and the other half is probated and taxable. Special joint tenancy agreements may apply in certain situations, but it's advisable not to assume this or act on the advice of anyone other than a competent attorney.

Tenancy in common: This designation appears on your account and certificates as the abbreviation TEN COM following the names of all owners. Certificates that do not bear a tenancy clause are assumed to be tenancy in common.

With tenancy in common, each registered tenant has a fractional interest in the account. In the event of the death of one tenant, the deceased's interest in the account passes to his or her estate. It does not pass directly to the surviving joint tenant or tenants.

There is also a special registration for investors in Wisconsin called marital property and survivorship marital property.

Joint accounts can be created by two or more persons. If it is important to have your account registered with several joint tenants, you should clarify the rules before opening the account.

The choice you make regarding joint ownership of securities could have significant tax and estate implications. If you have any questions as to how either type of joint ownership will affect your heirs, estate of tax liability, a visit to your attorney or tax adviser could prove to be worthwhile.

Snyder students visit New York City

A group of Snyder students had a memorable summer, visiting the nation's capital, White House and Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

Some 36 students and sponsors participated in the six-day trip, during which the students visited Times Square in New York and saw "Phantom of the Opera."

A highlight of the trip was when the junior high students placed wreaths at the Vietnam Memorial and Tomb of the Unknown Soldier on July 4.

The Vietnam Memorial bears the names of the more than 58,000 Americans who gave their lives or are still unaccounted for in Vietnam. Also known as "The Wall," it is symbolically located between the Washington and Lincoln Memorials.

The students also visited FBI headquarters, Ford's Theatre, the Supreme Court Building and the Library of Congress. In New York City, the group saw the Statue of Liberty, Stock Exchange, Empire State Building, World Trade Center, Central Park, China Town and many other places.

Students and adults making the trip were Carla Allen, Monte Beaver, Cody Cribbs, David Drum, Jon Hensley, Mary Higby, Ryan Landes, Sha Marricle, Jerrod Rinehart, Joey Steakley, Molly Wilson and Betsy Griffin.

Others were Troy Allen, Chad Chaney, Jay Griffin, Maribeth Dillaha, Kay Hensley, Shauna Huddleston, Lisha Leatherwood, Elyse Merritt, Vicki Rinehart, David Thomas, Nancy Wilson, Laurie Brown, Caley Coffee and Joan Beach.

Still others were Clark Church, Sue Ann Dominguez, Jack David Hedges, Michael Hensley, Kevin Lacik, Nicole Lyons, Russell Riggan, Elaine Steakley, Christi Whitney and Janeen Patterson.

In 1861, the capital of the Confederacy was moved from Montgomery, Ala., to Richmond, Va.

TSU professor: complaints against band were ignored

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Southern University professor says he warned university officials four years ago about improprieties involving the Ocean Of Soul marching band, but was ignored.

Band misconduct included the use of non-student members, whose received $6,200 last fall in expense money, according to a state audit.

Such payments, thought to date back to at least 1988, are illegal.

The state audit was undertaken in the aftermath of the Ocean of Soul's December trip to Tokyo to perform in the Coca-Cola Bowl.

There, some band members shoplifted $22,000 worth of electronics. Of the 125 on the trip, about one-fourth turned out not to be students.

Daniel Adams, a music teacher, said the head of his department told him in 1989 that top administrators and regents did not appreciate criticism of the Ocean of Soul.

"She was sympathetic to my concerns about the band's improprieties," Adams said. "But she said she wasn't listened to when she tried to report them," he said.

The allegations were denied by provost Bobby Wilson and music department Chair Fennoyee Thomas. Both noted that neither the state audit nor a TSU audit found any prior knowledge of band misconduct by any high-ranking school officials.

Adams called on new TSU President Joann Horton to take disciplinary action against any administrators who violated state laws.

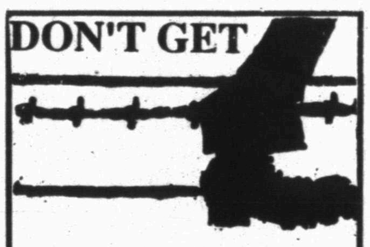

In a Texas Faculty Association release, Adams said the organization will appeal the matter to the state attorney general, governor and Legislature if necessary.

Wilson, the acting president until Horton takes over in September, said he will not recommend any new action.

"I think this thing is behind us now," Wilson said. "I don't see any reason to redo two investigations."

Snyder takes 33-28 victory...

Tigers down Sweetwater in offensive show

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

SWEETWATER — Fans have come to expect a game of grudging defense and grinding running games on offense when Snyder and Sweetwater lock horns during the football season.

But fans were shocked Friday night when the two teams combined for 40 first downs and 857 yards of total offense in a 33-28 Tiger victory in both teams' season opener.

Snyder exploded for 20 points in the last 12 minutes to claim the non-district win, its third straight over the arch-rival Ponies.

"I really think our kids did a great job," said Snyder coach David Baugh. "They went out there against a team that was favored to beat them and they never gave up. They felt all along like they could beat Sweetwater.

"It's always a great win when you can beat Sweetwater," Baugh continued. "They have a great football team and you feel like you've accomplished something when you're able to beat them."

The Tigers, 14-point underdogs, were led by junior tailback Chris Mitchell, who rushed for 136 yards on 14 carries, including TD blasts of 9, 32 and 22 yards.

"Chris did an outstanding job for us," Baugh exclaimed. "Their linebackers had a hard time bringing him down. He broke an awful lot of tackles."

Mitchell made the game-winning score with just 1:01 remaining in the see-saw contest.

With Sweetwater holding a 28-27 lead, Mitchell burst through a gaping hole in the center of the line and bulled through the secondary and sprung free behind a block from split end Larry Thompson.

The SHS defense was able to hold off a furious last-second rally by the Mustangs, that ended with a flag for a forward lateral at the Tigers' 5 as time expired.

After a scoreless first period, Sweetwater quarterback Terry Clemmer found tight end Travis Black for 30 yards and the game's first touchdown to lift the Ponies to a 6-0 margin.

Snyder answered with a Matt Cave-to-Larry Thompson scoring toss that covered 30 yards. Matt Parker's PAT kick gave SHS a 7-6 advantage with just :27 left in the half.

That was enough time for Clemmer to march Sweetwater's newly installed shotgun offense to its second score. Lamar Blueford hauled in a Clemmer toss from 22 yards out to lead the home Mustangs to a 12-7 lead at intermission.

Snyder eased back into the lead, 13-12, in the third on Mitchell's 9-yard scamper that was set up by a David Krenek interception of Clemmer that put the Tigers in business at Sweetwater's 13.

Matt Cave killed the Mustangs' next drive with an oskie, as well, but the Tigers had to kick the ball back after a pair of motion penalties cost them 10 yards and a chance for a first down.

Tyrone Amos slithered two yards for Sweetwater's next score. Amos' TD, coupled with a Clemmer-to-Black 2-point conversion put the home team up by a 20-13 tally.

Mitchell capped a five-play SHS drive with his 32-yard run for a score to even the score at 20-all.

Mitchell's game-tying blast came following a 35-yard punt return by Thompson, leaving Snyder only 34 yards to cover.

After another Sweetwater punt, Snyder took over again, this time needing 70 yards for a touchdown.

Tight end Jimmy Henry made a one-handed grab of a Cave pass that covered 23 yards, then a pass interference call against Sweetwater, which was flagged five times in the second half for 60 yards, gave Snyder a first down at the Mustangs' 32.

From there it took one snap and a handoff to Mitchell to untie the score.

Trailing 28-27 with under six minutes to go in the game, Sweetwater began what turned out to be a 65-yard touchdown drive. Clemmer hit Zach Gonzalez for six, then scrambled for 29 yards on a quarterback draw. On first down from Snyder's 35, Clemmer again rushed the ball, this time picking up 10.

Kerry Carr snagged a pass that covered 18 yards and Amos went the last seven to paydirt.

Clemmer once again found Black in the end zone for the 2-pointer and Sweetwater held a 28-27 lead with just 3:23 on the clock.

The Tigers, who passed an uncharacteristic 18 times in the game, used the run effectively on their last drive.

"The key to that," Baugh reported, "was that our offensive linemen are in a little better shape than theirs, I think. We were able to rest two of our linemen, Bryan Lickey and Brad Hart, and they threw the key blocks late in the game."

Behind Lickey, Hart and the rest of the Snyder front, Snyder drove 70 yards for the game-winning tally, topped by Mitchell's 22-yard run.

Cave started the drive with a 9-yard completion to Thompson, then, after a pass interference penalty against Sweetwater, Mitchell gained 17 to the Sweetwater 32. Cave called his own number and scooted 10 yards on a quarterback draw before Mitchell raced in for the final TD.

Snyder totaled 378 offensive yards Friday, including 226 on the ground and Cave's 152 passing on a 13-of-18 night.

Henry was the Tigers' top receiver, gathering 53 yards on five catches. Thompson snagged three for 51 yards.

Sweetwater's new offense amassed 479 yards, including Clemmer's 342 passing.

Blueford collected four of Clemmer's 18 completions, for 105 yards.

Amos was the Mustangs' top ground gainer, rushing for 68 yards on 15 tries. Clemmer ran for 64 on nine attempts.

The Tigers, now 1-0, will take to the road again Friday when they visit Monahans, a team coach Baugh has never beaten.

GAINING GROUND — Snyder's Josh Bell heads for the corner of the Sweetwater defense as the Mustangs' Kevin Allen (20) tries to cut him off. The Tigers topped Sweetwater 33-28 in both teams' season opener Friday. (SDN Staff Photo)

Book details 'Pokes' season

IRVING (AP) — First the Super Bowl and now the dirt.

A recently published book on the Dallas Cowboys asserts that during its championship run, the team was nearly undone by friction between owner Jerry Jones and coach Jimmy Johnson, who aren't the "buddies from Arkansas" that outsiders believe.

Skip Bayless, author of "The Boys: The Untold Story of the Dallas Cowboys' Season on the Edge," also tracks the coming of age of quarterback Troy Aikman in a caustic review of the Cowboys' 1992 title run.

"From the start I had a journalist's eye view of a stunning story — how a talented, young team run by two talented, egomaniacal men came and somehow stayed together," Bayless said.

Bayless, who wrote "God's Coach," a negativistic 1990 biography of former Cowboys coach Tom Landry, contends that Aikman replaced Johnson as team leader after a spectacular blowup by the volcanic Johnson on a flight home from a Dec. 13 loss at Washington.

From then, Bayless said, the team won sometimes in spite of its coach.

Much of "The Boys" focuses on a teetering relationship between Jones and Johnson, although the author said he left out much of the day-to-day squabbles over points both minor and major.

Bayless writes that throughout the season, the perpetual optimism of a fiercely driven Jones was the perfect antidote for the dispiriting Johnson, whose consuming desire to win finally pushed him over the edge.

It was Johnson's tantrum on the flight from Washington, concludes Bayless, that drove Aikman to take over the team, propelling the Cowboys on a sensational playoff run that culminated in the 52-17 thrashing of the Buffalo Bills in the Super Bowl.

Johnson suggests the blowup, in which he tried to deny his team dinner after intimating his players didn't hurt enough after the loss, was scripted, along with two subsequent outbursts after victories over Atlanta and Chicago. Jones and Aikman disagreed, and Bayless didn't think so, either.

"I'm pretty sure Jimmy Johnson flipped out," Bayless said in a recent interview. "It's a combination of too much pressure and his own tumultuous personality. Was it instinctively the correct thing to do? Yes, in retrospect, I think it was wonderful. He got the proper reaction, but I don't think he calculated that reaction."

Bayless writes how Jones has more of something called "tolerance for ambiguity" than Johnson does. That is, the Arkansas oilman can, for example, risk millions of dollars on a drilling venture only to come up with a dry well, shake his head and, undaunted, go looking for the next strike.

Johnson, on the other hand, has no such threshold, Bayless said.

Bayless said Johnson's reaction to his book reiterates this view.

Johnson told The Dallas Morning News he was concerned about the accuracy of his quotes in the book because he'd had only one 15-minute interview with Bayless during the season.

Bayless counted 15 one-on-one interview sessions beginning with the 1992 draft and ending with a post-Super Bowl discussion.

Johnson, whose autobiography hit bookshelves last month, later said his secretary's log revealed two interview sessions with Bayless at his office, and, "I've said all I want to on the subject."

Jones said, "I think Skip tried to do two things: He tried to be as accurate as he could be, but he wanted to make his book as interesting as he could."

Bayless said his book shows Johnson and Jones make a good team, although not one that always gets along, clashing just as good business partners often do.

"Jimmy Johnson is as egomaniacal as anyone you'll ever see. I like that about him; it makes him great. But, there's a flaw in his working relationship because he wants no working relationship," Bayless said.

"He wants to do it all himself and in turn, he wants to share none of the football operations credit with anybody, let alone with a sort of frustrated football coach, a would-be one of the boys who paid no dues.

U.S. Open...

Wilander wins 4-hour match

NEW YORK (AP) — Move over David Letterman and Jay Leno. Make room for the newest king of the late night show.

Mats Wilander, returning to the U.S. Open, scene of one of his greatest triumphs, provided an encore Friday night that will go into the record books.

Playing this year's final Grand Slam tournament as a wild-card entry only after Jimmy Connors turned it down, Wilander outlasted fellow Swede Mikael Pernfors 7-6 (7-3), 3-6, 1-6, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4. The match took 4 hours, 1 minute and didn't end until 2:26 a.m., the latest singles match in Open history.

"I feel great," Pernfors said afterward. Wilander said just the opposite.

Wilander, the 1988 champion who currently is ranked 558th in the world, and Pernfors, a two-time NCAA champion at Georgia, engaged in long, brilliant baseline rallies, punctuated by an occasional foray to the net by Wilander or a perfect lob by Pernfors. The match, the best of the tournament so far, kept a couple of thousand fans cheering until the end.

Wilander's victory here in 1988 boosted him to No. 1 in the world and marked the beginning of the end of his career. He just returned to the game after a long hiatus and said he only would enter tournaments where he could drive from his home in Greenwich, Conn.

Pernfors dove for a drop volley and shot back a crosscourt winner to start the fourth-set tiebreaker. As he lay on the court, Wilander stared at him in disbelief.

But Wilander bounced around while Pernfors massaged his cramping leg muscles, then pushed the match to a fifth set.

With his body aching throughout the final set, Pernfors, the French Open runnerup in 1986, started taking riskier shots, hoping to shorten the rallies. Wilander, steady as ever, refueled himself with bananas and fluids and never relented.

He broke Pernfors at love to take a 4-2 lead, but Pernfors somehow found a way to break back to 4-3.

Then at 5-4, on Pernfors' serve, Wilander amazingly achieved match point at 30-40 by keeping alive a rally with a desperate scoop of a lob from behind the baseline. Pernfors netted the ball a few shots later, and lost the match when he sailed a forehand long on the next point.

Exhausted, the two embraced as the crowd rose in a long ovation.

Earlier, eighth-seeded Andrei Medvedev eliminated Richey Reneberg 4-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, 6-3, clinching a third-round berth against Germany's Karsten Braasch.

While Medvedev was having fun both on the court and in the interview room, No. 11 Goran Ivanisevic became the latest seeded player to tumble out of the men's draw, falling to Carlos Costa of Spain 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (7-5).

That raised to seven the number of seeded men to be eliminated in the first two rounds, a U.S. Open record. The largest previous number of seeded players to be ousted in the first two rounds was six, set in 1976 and equaled in 1982.

Besides Ivanisevic, also gone from the year's final Grand Slam tournament are third-seeded Stefan Edberg, the two-time defending champion; No. 5 Sergi Bruguera; No. 6 Michael Stich; No. 9 Petr Korda; No. 13 Ivan Lendl; and No. 16 Andre Agassi.

That leaves Boris Becker, the 1989 U.S. Open winner, with a seedless path to the semifinals after he crushed Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 Friday.

The upset bug hasn't come close to top-seeded Jim Courier, who is attempting to add this title to the Australian Open crown he won in January. Courier, runnerup at both the French Open and Wimbledon, zipped past qualifier Michael Joyce 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Two seeded players also fell in women's singles play. Japan's Kimiko Date upset No. 9 Anke Huber of Germany 6-3, 6-2 and 17-year-old Lindsay Davenport ousted No. 15 Amanda Coetzer of South Africa.

SHS spikers grab spot in consolation bracket after pool-play round

SEMINOLE — Snyder's Lady Tigers forged a split with Pecos and Denver City, and lost to Odessa High in the pool-play round of competition at the annual Seminole Volleyball Tournament Friday.

Snyder, 4-7 on the season, opened the tourney with a 15-6 win over Pecos, then fell to the Lady Eagles, 10-15. Against Denver City, SHS won the opening game, 15-14, then dropped Game 2, 15-9.

Odessa downed the Lady Tigers 15-11, 15-10.

By virtue of Friday's results, Snyder was to face Big Spring at 11 a.m. Saturday in the consolation bracket quarterfinals.

A win by the Lady Tigers would have them back on the court at 1:30 p.m. to face the winner of the Estacado-Denver City matchup in the semifinal round.

In Saturday's championship bracket, Pecos was to take on Fort Stockton, host Seminole battles Lubbock Coronado; Alpine squared off with Odessa, and Midland faced Crane.

The tournament winds up Saturday with the 7 p.m. championship match.

Smith's agent appears on Dallas talk show

DALLAS (AP) — Complaining that the Dallas Cowboys have been negotiating through the media, the agent for holdout running back Emmitt Smith has retaliated by going on the airwaves to give his client's side of the story.

Richard Howell, who asked for the interview on Dallas radio station KLIF-AM, said he was upset that owner Jerry Jones has negotiated publicly, despite an agreement by both sides not to do that.

"We've been a little disappointed, frankly, by the constant public statements made by ... members of the Cowboys organization," Howell said. "I get a kick out of Jerry Jones. Perhaps he just can't help himself in that direction."

Howell also denied ruports that negotiations have deteriorated to a personal dispute between him and Jones.

"Private conversations with Mr. Jones indicated that wasn't the matter," Howell told KLIF sports talk show host Norm Hitzges. "We hope to keep this on a business basis."

Howell said the team isn't offering Smith his market value. Smith has questioned the fairness of the Cowboys paying him low when he was the 17th pick in the 1990 draft, then not paying him as the National Football League's leading rusher.

"Now in 1993, they don't seem to want to pay any attention to any kind of slotting of Emmitt," Howell said. "They don't want to talk in terms of value to other great players, but instead want to talk about franchise designation and things of that nature."

Howell didn't mention the specific numbers Smith is seeking, but did say he should be "paid among the top handful of players" in the NFL.

Twins hand Rangers 9-5 loss

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota manager Tom Kelly wants his team to play hard. Texas manager Kevin Kennedy wants his team to win.

Kelly had reason to be doubly happy Friday night — the Twins hustled and they won. Kennedy could only be sad as his Rangers played poorly in losing 9-5 to drop six games behind AL West-leading Chicago with only 28 games left in the season.

"When the club gets after the game, the manager does not care whether you win or lose. We got after the game tonight. We played the game the way it's supposed to be played," Kelly said.

"There was a mistake here, a mistake there; and a lot of good things here, here, here, here and here. But we got after the game. I want to see if we can get after the game with some consistency," he added.

"We made a lot of mistakes up in the strike zone," Kennedy said. "We weren't able to field the ground ball. We had a chance to open it up and we didn't. We allowed their pitcher to get through five innings. We beat ourselves. We made a lot of mistakes you can't make in the big leagues. We didn't deserve to win."

Kirby Puckett, who hit a two-run homer in the third inning, said the Twins' poor season isn't a result of lack of effort.

"I'm not proud that we're 20 games back. Nobody wants to be a good loser," he said. "We should have been better, but I know we've given our best and I'm proud of that. I don't know what anybody else said, but we try to get after the game every day."

Dave Winfield and Kent Hrbek also hit home runs — the first time all season that the Twins' 3-4-5 hitters have homered in the same game — and David McCarty had two doubles, two singles and two RBIs as the Twins won for only the second time in their last 11 home games.

"It was nice for us to get the big hits when we needed them," McCarty said. "That's something we hadn't been doing all season."

Winfield's homer was the 452nd of his career — tying Carl Yastrzemski for 18th on baseball's career list and giving him his 14th season of 20 or more homers. He now is within eight hits of 3,000 and he also tied Lou Brock for 29th place with 1,610 runs.

Greg Brummett, acquired from San Francisco last week for Jim Deshaies, allowed three runs in five innings to win his AL debut. Rick Aguilera pitched the final two innings for his 29th save.

Texas shortstop Manuel Lee hit his first homer since May 27, 1992, but committed two errors.

Gillespie leads Sands to victory over Cards

HERMLEIGH — Hermleigh was vicitimized for three touchdown runs by senior running back Heath Gillespie in Friday night's football debut as Sands rolled to a 46-12 non-district victory.

Gillespie scored on runs of 21, 8 and 27 yards, and added a 25 yard pass reception for a score to lead the Mustangs.

"He's a good running back, there's no doubt," said Hermleigh coach David Rogers. "I know he gained something like 1,200 yards last year. He's liable to have another good year.

"I was pleased with our kids, overall," Rogers added. "They finally scored in the third and fourth quarters. They hung in there and never quit."

The Cards' first tally came in the third period when Jimmy Digby burst in from two yards away. Bobby Smith passed to Freddie Martiez for 27 yards for Hermleigh's other score.

"Bobby Smith did a good job leading our offense," Rogers said, "and Buddy Atkinson had a good night at defensive end."

The Cardinals continue the 1993 campaign Friday when they visit Southland.

Aspermont deals loss to hurting Bulldogs

ASPERMONT — Ira's '93 grid season got off to a rocky start Friday when the injury-plagued Bulldogs were handed a 56-6 non-district loss by Aspermont.

"It was pretty rough," said IHS coach Darren Janssen, "but I was pleased with our boys. They've shown a lot of improvement since our last scrimmage. We were playing a large, experienced, physical football team. We played a lot of boys who had never been in a varsity football game before. We just need a few games under our belt."

Scott Strong gathered in an Eddie Brasuel pass for a 50-yard TD in the first quarter for Ira's only score.

Aspermont's Travis Martin scored four times to pace the Hornets. The game ended at halftime on the 45-point rule.

The Bulldogs will host Midland Christian in Friday's home opener. Midland Christian was a 50-0 winner over Abilene Christian in its first outing.

Expos blank Houston, 3-0

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie Kirk Rueter (6-0) pitched three-hit ball in seven innings, leading visiting Montreal over Houston 3-0 for the Expos' eighth straight victory.

John Wetteland, the third Montreal pitcher, worked 1 2-3 innings for his 32nd save, and Montreal finished with a combined five-hitter.

Loser Darryl Kile (14-6) allowed three runs on seven hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Fullingim, Leopards down Borden County

NEW HOME — Defending District 6 champion Borden County watched New Home senior Troy Fullingim rush for 249 yards and four touchdowns on 22 carries as the Leopards ripped the Coyotes, 52-20, in Friday's football season debut for both teams.

Fullingim scored on a 22-yard burst and then added a 2-yarder to give New Home a 24-0 lead before Borden County got on the scoreboard.

The Coyotes pulled to within 24-6 when Kurt Hess hit Richard Buchanan with a 6-yard scoring strike.

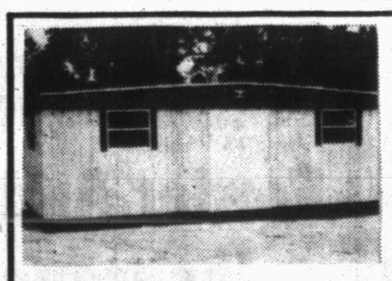

Fullingim raced 44 yards for a TD, then scored from nine yards out and the rout was on.

Borden County added an 8-yard TD on an interception return by Miguel Hernandez, then Hess scooted 75 yards with a kickoff return to wind up the Coyotes' scoring.

New Home's Shannon Zant and Greg Armes connected on an 18-yard toss to wind up the night for the Leapards.

Borden County will host Grady in its home debut Friday.

Hunter's class set

A course in hunter education has been scheduled for Sept. 11 and 12, according to Gene and Nancy Bowlin, volunter hunter education instructors.

The course will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the 11th and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on the 12th.

"According to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's mandatory requirements, every Texas hunter born on or after Sept. 2, 1971, must successfully complete a hunter education training course. However, any individual may take the course on a voluntary basis and is encouraged to attend regardless of requirements," said Gene Bowlin.

"The course is open to adults and youngsters and will include instruction in firearms and archery handling and safety, outdoor responsibility and ethics, laws and regulations, conservation, hunting traditions, wildlife identification, field care of game, wilderness first aid and survival," he added.

Students 12 years of age or older successfully completing the course will be issued a hunter education certificate from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Those younger than 12 will receive a certificate of attendance, but must take the course again for proper certification.

The fee is $5, which covers the cost of classroom materials and the certificate.

Class size is limited and those who pre-register will be given preference over walk-ins.

For information about the location of the class and pre-registration, contact Gene or Nancy Bowlin at 573-2323.

Volunteer caddies are needed

Volunteer caddies are needed for the Eddie Johnson Memorial Golf Tournament to be held Monday, Sept. 20, at Snyder Country Club.

The tournament is being held to benefit Snyder Boys' Club. For more information, or to volunteer, call Boys' Club executive director Jack McGlaun at 573-3344.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

Barking Dog Is Deserving Of the Attention It Demands

DEAR ABBY: Here's a copy of the letter I wrote recently:

"Dear Neighbor: A barking dog is an unhappy dog. A barking dog is a lonely dog. A chained dog is a useless dog. A chained dog cannot protect you from intruders. A chained dog cannot give you love and companionship. Dogs need companionship, just as you and I do.

"How would you like to be chained ouside in 80-degree (or hotter) weather with a bowl of warm and slimy green water? Also, dogs don't like to be near their own excrement. Tied up, they must live with the stench and the flies it draws. How would you like to live that way?

"In the winter, dogs feel the cold, and are just as miserable as humans when they are left outside with no shelter.

"Think about it!

(signed) YOUR NEIGHBOR"

DEAR NEIGHBOR: You have made some valid points — but I don't recommend anonymous letters. If a neighbor is neglecting a pet, a telephone call to the SPCA (Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) is in order.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: After reading "Completely Satisfied's" comments regarding her happiness with a man of 71 (her age being 36), I can top that — but in reverse.

At present, I am a widow after 49 years of marriage — during which I tried to avoid sex and get it over with.

I met a man two years ago, and that changed my life. He has all of the qualifications any woman would love — and by the way, I just turned 80. He is 53! We have been living happily together for a year and a half with the bells still ringing. (We both enjoy our musical talents, too.)

SENIOR LOVERS, SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR SENIOR LOVERS: Congratulations. It appears you both found golden nuggets in the Arizona desert! As my sainted grandfather used to say, "There's many a good tune played on an old fiddle" ... as anyone who has fiddled around in his youth can verify.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe your answer to Bea Zirk, who wanted to know why women over 60 years old were "invisible."

Couldn't you find more sensible comparisons than Helen Gurley Brown, Angela Lansbury and Mitzi Gaynor?

Yeah, right — we ordinary women have so many opportunities to be one of them. Then you go on to name all the movie stars who are up there in years and still look sweet 16 — as if every aging woman in America can afford a face-lift.

Get real, girl. Maybe you should consider retiring.

V. SURK, RETIRED AT 70, GREEN BAY, WIS.

DEAR V. SURK: Me, retire? I'm not ready — to me, retirement is the dirtiest 10-letter word in the dictionary.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this problem in your column but I'm sure many of your readers share my view. Commercials on TV are so much louder than the programs themselves, they practically blast us out of our chairs!

In order to protect our ears, we turn the volume way down during the commercials, and when they are over, we turn the volume up again.

Our solution was to buy a remote control, and now we push the "mute" button, shutting off the commercials completely!

ALMOST DEAF IN MERTZTOWN, PA.

DEAR ALMOST DEAF: I have no quarrel with the decibel of TV commercials, but I become very impatient with the number of back-to-back commercials that come on during prime time.

DEAR ABBY: If you can stand another letter about dentures, I think mine could take the cake:

In the late '40s, our troop carrier crew was diverted to the West Coast to pick up a load of priority freight. The operations officer didn't care that we were only prepared for a one-hour flight and had nothing (including money) with us for an overnight stay. As usual, if anything can go wrong, it will — we blew an engine and had to set down in San Bernardino, Calif.

I had no checkbook, no ID, not even my dog tags for identification and I needed cash for the night. I went to a branch office of my bank and told them my sad story. They offered to cash a counter check if I could produce proper identification.

Suddenly, I remembered the dentures Uncle Sam had made for me after I was banged up in a flight accident. My name, rank and serial number were engraved on my upper plate! I popped out the plate and pushed it across the counter, and asked the bank teller if that was good enough. After the teller and a bank officer regained their composure, I got two weird smiles and a counter check to fill out.

When the word got out, I was bugged every Saturday night at the club to show my "ID" in order to get a drink, so please withhold my name.

U.S. AIR FORCE, RET., INGRAM, TEXAS

DEAR USAF, RET.: Great story! You could lose your wallet and ID tags, but as long as you have your dentures, you'll have irrefutable proof of your identity.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 years old and have read your column since I was 9. What I'm writing about may have been in your column. Maybe not.

Yesterday, while I was at the beach, a child drowned. She was brought up to the shore and was given CPR. During these events, a crowd gathered. As the crowd grew, they circled around the child and just stared while the child's mother cried hysterically. I watched from a distance.

Here is my message: When someone is hurt, unless you can help, please keep your distance. The family and/or friends of the victim don't need you ogling at the scene of the tragedy while other people are trying to help.

This is something I've noticed at every accident I've witnessed and it makes me angry. People seem to think any victim means a peep show.

I hope this letter is printed so my message gets through.

STACEY NELLES, LAWSON, MO.

DEAR STACEY: Thank you for caring enough to write. Your message shows you to be a sensitive, kindhearted, mature 14-year-old. Most people live a lifetime without having learned what you already know. God bless you, Stacey.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I work for an insurance carrier, processing checks and coupons. Perhaps you would like to add these names to your collection of unusual names:

Sunset Bay, Clay Potter, Ima Payne, Olive Pitt, Town Hall, Virginia Reel, Tester Couch, Kissalee Fish.

JUDITH WANAMAKER, KUTZTOWN, PA.

Hutchison won't fight grand jury's subpoena

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison says she intends to be in Austin next week to answer a subpoena issued to her by a Travis County grand jury.

The district attorney's office said the Republican senator was subpoenaed after the senator refused the grand jury's request for her to appear on Sept. 9 or Sept. 10 to testify in an investigation of her tenure as a state treasurer.

Mrs. Hutchison had been given a 3 p.m. Friday deadline to respond, Assistant District Attorney Claire Dawson-Brown said. Ms. Dawson-Brown said the senator's response "was not in accordance with the grand jury's request."

"When the grand jury asked me to appear, I wrote them a letter which was delivered to their homes. I delivered a copy to the district attorney's office as is proper," Mrs. Hutchison said Friday evening after arriving at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on a flight from Houston.

"I said that because the Senate is voting on the dates that they asked me to appear, then I would like to appear on that Monday (Sept. 13) instead so that I could do what I was elected to do and that is cast a vote for the people of Texas," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison said the district attorney's office hadn't responded to her request to delay her appearance before the grand jury and that she plans to be in Austin on Thursday.

Robot uses water jet to blast shotgun from man's grasp

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman was slain and her shotgun-wielding boyfriend refused to surrender, so police sent in a 3-foot, 480-pound robot to disarm the suspect with a blast from a high-pressure water jet.

RMI-9 got his man.

The successful end to the five-hour standoff was the first time the robot owned by Maryland's Prince George's County fire department had helped nab a suspect.

Ordinarily, technicians direct its mechanical claws by remote control to dismantle suspected explosives, fire department spokesman Capt. Victor Stagnaro said Friday night. Built on wheels, low like a bowling ball, RMI-9 is so powerful that it has helped move vehicles out of the road.

"We're obviously very pleased; it's more than paid for itself over the years," Stagnaro said.

RMI-9 — which stands for Remote Mobile Investigator — cost the county $45,000 in 1986.

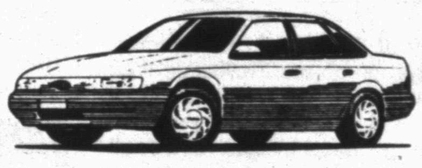

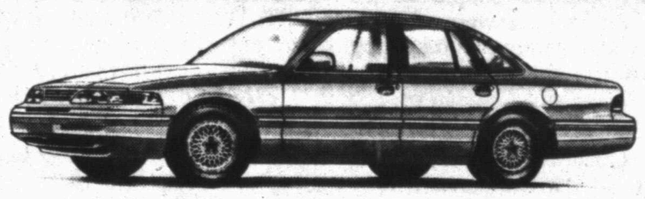

Police say 22-year-old Craig Smith fatally shot his live-in girlfriend Cynthia Wilkinson, 24, on Thursday and sexually assaulted a woman who was a friend of Wilkinson's. The unidentified woman jumped out a window of the second-story apartment.

Arafat pushes through peace plan, according to a top aide

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Yasser Arafat, once again triumphing over opposition in his own ranks, Saturday won approval for the peace pact with Israel from leaders of the PLO's most powerful faction, said one of his top aides.

This key hurdle on the road to Palestinian autonomy in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho was cleared after two days of stormy meetings of the Fatah Central Committee, aide Bassam Abu Sharif said.

"The chairman has emerged victorious despite some objections, but the majority of the members (of the central committee) endorsed his plan and voted for his policy on the peace talks," Abu Sharif told The Associated Press. He said Arafat won "a crushing majority," but declined to give a vote.

The support from Fatah, the most powerful faction within the PLO, allows Arafat to take the agreement to the PLO's ruling Executive Committee and the Palestine National Council, or parliament-in-exile, where he is expected to face an even tougher fight.

In Friday's turbulent meeting, two committee members stormed out after shouting matches with Arafat, PLO officials said. Members of the committee were not immediately available for comment about Saturday's discussion.

The criticism of the PLO chairman revolved around charges that Arafat failed to consult his aides during the eight months of secret negotiations with Israel. At least three also accused of Arafat of settling for too little too fast.

About two dozen fundamentalists marched through the alleys of Jabalia Camp in the Gaza Strip and then stoned an Israeli army base, Arab reports said. Soldiers opened fire, wounding five in the legs, hospital officials said.

Pope making first visit to former Soviet Union

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived Saturday in Lithuania for the first papal visit in history to the former Soviet Union. Thousands of cheering Lithuanians lined his route from the airport to the city's main cathedral.

The pope stepped out of the Alitalia jet from Rome dressed in a white robe, descended the steps and kissed the ground. He was greeted by Lithuania's president, Algirdas Brazauskas, Roman Catholic prelates and a color guard.

The Baltic country of 3.5 million is about 80 percent Catholic. More than 260,000 of its citizens are of Polish origin, like the pope.

The end of the Cold War and breakup of the Soviet Union have allowed John Paul to realize his dream and make the trip to Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Unlike his trips to his native Poland when it was governed by the Communists, the pope is not arriving with ringing calls on the need for freedom.

Instead, he will urge the people of the Baltics to struggle against "indifference and secularism," as he recently told pilgrims, and to overcome differences among the various Christian denominations that have come out into the open in Europe with the fall of communism.

John Paul's visit is expected to be watched closely by the Russian Orthodox Church in Moscow, which has accused the Vatican of overzealous missionary activity now that government repression of religion has ended.

Heavy fighting resumes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Tank and mortar fire erupted in Mostar as government troops and Croat fighters resumed full-scale fighting, setting back U.N. efforts to build trust between leaders in the divided city.

Seven people were reported killed Friday. The fighting, which ended a two-day cease-fire, followed a breakdown in peace talks in Geneva, where the Muslim-led government had demanded more land in the three-way partition.

Mostar, a once picturesque city in southwestern Bosnia, has been the site of intense fighting between its Muslim and Croat residents.

The plight of tens of thousands of Muslims trapped in the city's eastern side eased with the arrival in late August of a large aid convoy, the first in more than two months. Muslims then held the U.N. convoy and peacekeepers as a shield against Croat attacks, but released them after negotiations.

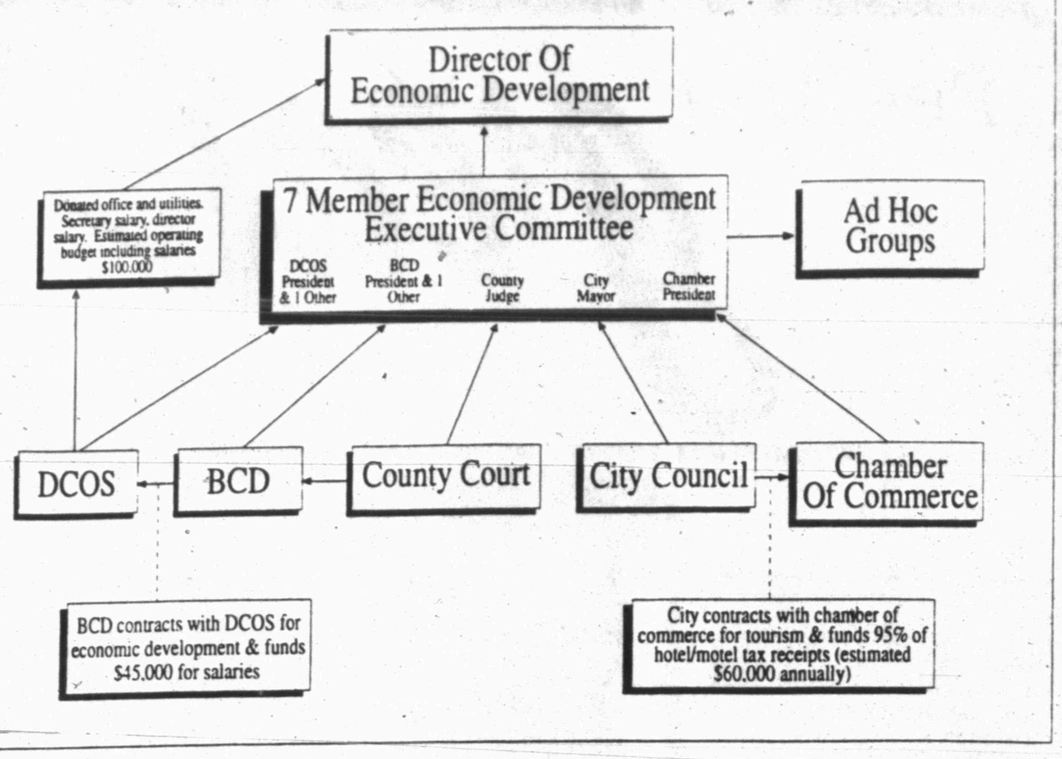

The fighting Friday appeared to derail days of U.N. efforts to build confidence between the city's Muslim and Croat authorities.

The former allies had agreed to a mutual evacuation of Muslims from eastern Mostar and Croats from the central Bosnian town of Nova Bila, which is held by Croats and surrounded by Muslim-led government forces.

The United Nations began evacuating wounded people from Nova Bila, but the Mostar evacuation had not begun by Friday evening, and it was not clear what effect the renewed fighting would have.

Croats fought alongside government forces against Serbs at the outset of Bosnia's 17-month-old civil war, which erupted when ethnic Serbs rebelled against a Muslim-Croat decision to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

Unified Economic Development Proposal

Economic strategy reached of $100,000, the BCD will contract with the DCOS for $45,000. The DCOS will fund the balance of the office operations.

The city in turn will contract with the chamber of commerce to receive 95 percent of hotel-motel tax receipts which are estimated to be some $60,000 annually. The chamber may use the funds for operations and also to help fund specific tourism events.

In making the announcement Friday afternoon, chairs of the various boards indicated they had spoken personally with all available board members and had received "overwhelmingly favorable response."

"One thing we realized as we began to meet," Zeck said, "is that we all share a common goal — to move in a positive direction for the future of Snyder."

Gray, speaking for the chamber added, "I think we are on the right track."

"I think the plan not only meets the requirements of the respective boards, but I believe it provides an organization for continuity and the ability to overlook personalities."

All agreed that the structure is in place to develop the tools needed for working with future prospects — be it tax abatement, utitity extensions or industrial park development.

"It's a great start," said DCOS Chairman Seale. "It's not a total solution, but a start. But it shows a unified effort of working together."

"I think it's a step in the right direction," von Roeder added. I believe it will work and we all need to give it a chance to go forward and I'm confident we're in a position to do that."

Zeck said all are committed to making the plan work and all anticipate favorable endorsements when various boards meet later this month.

Zeck said the first priority of the new executive committee will be to develop a job description and begin a search for a economic development director.

"It may be ambitious, but I would hope that we can have the office established and staffed by the end of the year," Zeck said. "I don't think that's an unrealistic goal."

Zeck said that all areas of the community and county are represented, noting that the BCD is a county function and the DCOS is a city function. "We've all committed to working and cooperating together," Zeck concluded.

Helicopter reporter identifies Denny's assailants in court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A traffic reporter who watched as Reginald Denny was beaten at the flashpoint of the Los Angeles riots says he ordered his helicopter to get as close as possible so he could identify the attackers.

"Being helpless, I wanted to make sure there was a clear record of what was going on down there," Robert A. Tur said of the violence at the corner of Florence and Normandie avenues — images that crystallized the horror of April 29, 1992, for the nation.

First in his own narrative, then commenting on his own two hours of footage and other home videos, Tur repeatedly identified Henry Keith Watson and Damian Monroe Williams as two of the black men who attacked Denny and another white trucker, Larry Tarvan.

Watson, 28, and Williams, 20, are accused of multiple felonies — including trying to murder Denny — stemming from beatings and robberies at the intersection.

Tur said he even sounded his chopper's siren, to no avail.

Tur testified Friday that he gradually ordered the helicopter to descend as the violence continued until he was just 70 feet from the ground and could identify facial features using binoculars.

Tur said Denny was pulled out of the truck and pinned down by Watson, who used his right leg to force Denny face down. The witness said he found it "incredible" as he watched Watson momentarily remove his foot so another man could smash a heavy white object into the back of Denny's head.

Tur said he watched another man hit Denny three times in the back of the head with a hammer, and then watched Williams ferociously smash a brick into Denny's temple.

Police note five arrests

Snyder police arrested five people early Saturday morning — four of them on drinking-related charges.

Police responded to a disturbance at the Plaza Truck Stop at 2:16 a.m. Saturday where they arrested a 33-year-old man and a 31-year-old woman for public intoxication.

At 3:06 a.m. Saturday, contacted officers in reference to filing a runaway report on 16-year-old Margaret Villa, described as 5-4 in height and weighing 126 pounds.

Police arrested an 18-year-old man at 3:38 a.m. in the 3100 block of 25th Street and a 17-year-old man at 3:49 a.m. outside East Elementary — both for public intoxication.

At 4:12 a.m. Saturday, police received a 911 hangup call from a residence in the 2500 block of Avenue X. After investigating, officers arrested a 35-year-old man for assault/family violence.

Officers also worked a hit-and-run at 4:06 p.m. Friday in the 4100 block of College Avenue. A parked, unoccupied 1984 Chevrolet pickup owned by Andres Juarez of Ira was struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

Class of 1984 needs addresses

State district judge has third DWI arrest

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When Christopher Wilson raised his burn-scarred hand in court to identify two defendants as the men who set him afire, he revived the hopes of prosecutors in need of good news.

"It was very positive," said Assistant State Attorney Eric Myers. "He is probably one of the most kind, easygoing, genuine persons I have ever met. ... This was hard for him."

In seven hours on the stand Friday, the 32-year-old stock brokerage clerk from New York City told how he stood soaked with gasoline in a dusty field and heard his white attackers say, "Now you're going to die, nigger."

For an agonizing few seconds, he heard the clicks of matches, then a lighter, and then a "Foomp."

"It was like when you're lighting a stove," Wilson testified. "You feel this tremendous heat.

"I can't even describe it — you feel pain all over. You hurt so much."

As the soft-spoken Jamaican immigrant told the story of his New Year's Day ordeal near Tampa in calm, measured tones, some of the six jurors bowed their heads. The lone black woman on the panel wiped a tear from her eye.

"I never did anything to anybody," Wilson said he pleaded with his attackers before they ignited him. "Why are you doing this to me?"

Later, he identified Mark Kohut as the assailant he described as "bright eyes." And Wilson identified Charles Rourk as the "mean one" who showered him with gasoline from a plastic jug.

While Wilson had months earlier picked out Kohut from photographs, he had not positively identified Rourk before Friday.

Wilson's testimony in their attempted murder trial is crucial to salvaging a state case riddled with problems. There is no physical evidence tying Kohut and Rourk to the scene.

TAAS/TEAM registration packets available

Exit-level TAAS and TEAMS fall registration packets are available in the Snyder High School counselor's office now.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

What helps postoperative swelling?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother recently finished a six-week course of radiation following surgery to remove some lymph nodes and a partial lumpectomy for breast cancer. Her arm has become swollen three times its normal size, has red streaks and she experiences pain on use. Her doctors have indicated the condition might last one to three years, or forever. Their only treatment is an Ace bandage-type sleeve. I've urged her to obtain a second opinion, but she is reluctant.

DEAR READER: Your mother has lymphedema, swelling caused by blockage — or, in her case, removal — of the lymph glands under her arm. Lymph nodes act as filters, in various parts of the body, to remove foreign or infected material before it can enter the system.

When the glands are removed — as, for example, to get rid of any cancer cells that may have been trapped in them — the lymph fluid is prevented from draining out of the arm, so it accumulates in the tissues. Edema results.

Although it is not dangerous, this situation is uncomfortable. Patients can often be helped by using a pressure device on the affected arm. A tightly wrapped elastic bandage may give some relief, but most doctors prefer to use a Jobst sleeve, which fits over the arm and can be inflated with air. Ask your surgeon about this.

Your mother's affliction is somewhat unusual in that she has red streaks, too. I am concerned about this because the streaks may reflect infection that should be treated with antibiotics. Thus, I urge her to return to her primary care doctor for further examination, advice and treatment.

In my experience, uncomplicated lymphedema that occurs after surgery/radiation for breast cancer is permanent; I doubt that it will disappear in a couple of years. However, with the product I mentioned, it can be substantially lessened.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss pedophilia. What causes a person to become one? Can they get help to overcome their problem, and are our students safe in a school where one may be hired as a teacher, counselor or principal?

DEAR READER: Pedophilia is a despicable sexual aberration marked by a preference for young children. This form of child abuse is abhorrent and has received much recent attention in the media.

The pedophile has a complex psychological profile, the bottom line being a deep insecurity and an obsession to dominate helpless victims. These emotionally disturbed people require intensive psychiatric counseling. With long-term psychotherapy and a desire to change their behavior, pedophiles can be cured — or at least helped to control their destructive impulses.

Common sense would dictate that a pedophile be prohibited from working with children in any context. In my opinion, such adults — be they parents, clergy, teachers or counselors — should be prevented from contact with children whom they could harm. Also, I believe that adults should take seriously and investigate complaints from children who say they have been the objects of inappropriate sexual attention.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Medical studies can be information-giving, or, on occasion, thought-provoking.

For example, a recent study reported in the December 1992 Journal of Family Practice was authored by Dr. Mark Penn and Dr. Claire Bourguet of the Family Practice Center of Akron, Ohio, who obtained opinions from about 200 male and 250 female patients concerning their preferences for having a chaperone present in the examining room. The subjects were 14 years of age or older and attended a Midwestern family practice center.

The results were surprising: 35 percent of the females said that they would like a male physician to provide a chaperone during breast and pelvic examinations; 44 percent didn't care. About 10 percent of the males preferred a chaperone during genital or rectal exams by physicians of either sex; 60 percent didn't care. Teen-age girls wanted a chaperone in 46 percent of cases. However, when the exam (or the physician) was new, 63 percent of the girls wanted a chaperone, preferably a parent.

Although most patients would not balk at asking for a chaperone, 30 percent of the women, 12 percent of the males and 38 percent of the adolescents (of both sexes) said they felt ill at ease asking for one.

I was surprised that only 35 percent of the females wanted a chaperone; I would have anticipated a percentage in the 80s and 90s. Doctors have traditionally insisted that nurses or female associates be present during pelvic examinations. The purpose, of course, is to ensure that the doctor doesn't make a pass at the patient.

Because most doctors wouldn't dream of behaving in such an unethical manner, the chaperone custom is largely insurance against those who would. Nothing can destroy a practitioner's reputation more quickly and completely than a charge (valid or ungrounded) that he plays hanky-panky in the examining room with patients. Thus, the doctor who fails to provide routine chaperoning does so, in my opinion, at his own peril.

But what about the 44 percent who don't care? It makes you wonder. Is it possible that this many women actually trust their doctors to this extent?

And how do you explain that 10 percent of men want a chaperone? What are they afraid of? Do they — gulp — want a female chaperone? To my knowledge, no previous medical investigation has addressed this issue, but maybe it needs to be considered.

Interestingly, only 9 percent of the females and 3 percent of the males would prefer a chaperone during examinations by a same-sex physician. What, I ask you, are these people concerned about? Are some men fearful of being attacked by their male doctors? Evidently so. (Sometimes the small percentages can be more telling than the large.)

I was also surprised by the low figure — 46 percent — of girls who wanted company in the examining room. This is not in keeping with my experience, which is that virtually 100 percent of adolescent females EXPECT a chaperone to be present, new doctor or old, familiar physician notwithstanding.

Given the climate of malpractice liability today — and the real possibility of frivolous claims of sexual exploitation — a lot of doctors would be tempted to suggest that the chaperone issue is a classic case of man bites dog. They perceive every patient as a potential adversary. Every medical decision, no matter how trivial, can lead to a lawsuit, protracted court appearances, substantial loss of income, and a ravaged reputation. No wonder these doctors believe that they would have chaperones to protect THEMSELVES against unjustified claims of inappropriate behavior.

In any case, most physicians would have trouble understanding why ANY practitioner would examine a female patient's reproductive system without having a chaperone present. To do less is to court disaster. Do we really need medical studies to remind us of this reality?

Zsa Zsa pays bill

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor has paid a 4-year-old bill for a hairstyling she says she never got.

Stylist Jerry Perry went after the actress in small claims court, claiming she failed to pay him in 1989, when she was in town for the Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration.

The Sheriff's Department collected the $75 plus court courts on Thursday when she was back in town for this year's celebration.

"She was gracious considering the circumstances," sheriff's Sgt. Sandra Cullen said.

Gabor claims she asked Perry to style her hair but changed her mind once he came to her hotel room.

"This guy wants to get famous from me," she sniffed.

Michigan high court refuses to hear Willow Run appeal

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — General Motors Corp. got the green light for a piece of its cost-cutting plan with a court decision allowing the automaker to close its historic Willow Run assembly plant.

The Michigan Supreme Court refused Friday to step into Ypsilanti Township's legal bid to stop GM from consolidating production of its large rear-wheel-drive vehicles in Texas.

Ypsilanti Township Attorney Douglas Winters blasted the ruling, which means his township will lose 2,500 GM jobs.

"It really does nothing but to continue to reinforce in workers' and taxpayers' minds throughout this state that there is no justice when it comes to standing up against a corporation like GM," he said.

"You have a corporation that has misled, deceived, bamboozled, made promises and broken them and only one judge in this state had the courage to stand up and make GM accountable for their words."

GM spokeswoman Janine Fruehan said Willow Run won't reopen. It has been idle since a company-wide scheduled summer shutdown.

"We will just begin the closing process, do all the things necessary to idle the facility," she said.

The company estimated the closing will save GM about $800 per car on the Chevrolet Caprice sedan and wagon and Buick Roadmaster wagon once made at Willow Run.

The automaker announced Feb. 24, 1992, that it was closing the Washtenaw County plant and transferring production to Arlington, Texas.

Ypsilanti Township gave GM property tax abatements in 1984 and 1988. It sued GM on April 29, 1992, to keep the plant open. It claimed the company promised the jobs would exist indefinitely if it got the tax breaks.

Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Donald Shelton agreed, and on Feb. 9 ordered the company to keep the plant open. The Michigan Court of Appeals overturned Shelton Aug. 4.

The high court's routine, two-paragraph order refusing to hear the township's appeal let that decision stand. It also dissolved an injunction that had barred GM from closing the plant while the appeal request was pending.

"The Court of Appeals decision was so clearly correct that there was no reason for further review by the Supreme Court," said GM attorney Lee A. Schutzman.

The museum will be serving its annual beans and cornbread supper from 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Sept. 25. The supper will be served in the coliseum. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for chilren and may be purchased in advance at the museum.

REPENTANCE
By Homer Anderson

Repentance is difficult. It is a change of will. It humbles the ego to admit you have been wrong. Old friends will not understand why you want to leave the way you once walked together. The radical change of repentance makes you fearful. Should I? Can I? Do I really want to change?

This is the dilemma you face when you are convicted of sin. Your conscience cries out for change. The fear of judgment hangs heavy over your soul. The grace of God and the love of Christ tenderly encourage a decision of your will. The passing of time seems to say, "Why not now?" Change your mind! Change your will! Change your life! This is repentance. "For godly sorrow worketh repentance..." (2 Corinthians 7:10, KJV).

Jesus came to call "sinners to repentance" (Luke 5:32). This may require difficult changes in your life now; but if these are toward the will of God, it will bring both a new life and a future hope. Peter said, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.." (Acts 2:38).

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

It only happens once every four years, but it is well worth the wait.

That's the verdict of eight of the 10 Boy Scouts who attended last month's Jamboree in Fort A.P. Hill, Va. Sharing their experience Tuesday night following a Court of Honor were Wade Yearwood, Casity Reneau, Jacob Crawford, Chad McMillan, Chris Halbert, Seth Crawford, John Border and Joe Cheyne.

Not present Tuesday night were Jason Kelton, Patrick Earles, Leon Earles, scoutmaster, and Brian Earles, assistant scoutmaster.

At the Jamboree, Snyder Boy Scouts in Troop 27 joined fellow scouts in the Buffalo Trail Council which includes Midland, Stanton and Colorado City. For the duration of the Jamboree, they became Troop 1533.

Even an abundance of rain did not dampen these local scouts' enthusiasm for their first Jamboree. They all said they would not hesitate to attend another one.

This year's event attracted more than 30,000 Boy Scouts and 6,000 staff members representing all 50 states and 70 countries. Daily visitors ranged from 25,000 to 65,000.

Jamboree Boy Scouts had numerous opportunities to test their skills and earn merit badges in various areas. Many entertainment acts were also booked throughout the 6-day event.

Arrival day, Aug. 4, found the Snyder Boy Scouts hard at work setting up tents, the flag pole and a specially designed entryway featuring colorful Indian designs.

Army type meals were cooked on propane stoves. Duties were rotated daily with all Boy Scouts contributing to the upkeep of their campsite.

The next day, all the Boy Scouts separated into groups of two to four as they chose which exhibits they wanted to visit and events they wanted to enter.

Scuba diving proved popular as did the obstacle course, arts and science exhibits and the spectacular fireworks display which closed the Jamboree.

Other available activities included kayaking, rapelling and rifle range shooting.

Jamboree Boy Scouts also enjoyed playing pranks on each other.

The Snyder Boy Scouts mingled with other scouts, including those from foreign countries. They exchanged pocket flaps, hat pins and patches.

Live entertainment acts included "Up With People," who performed a 30-minute dance music set. The U.S. Navy had four F-14 Tomcat jets do a tree-top level, supersonic fly-by. The Army's crack parachuting team, the "Golden Nights," also dropped in.

Lee Greenwood performed three times, including his hit, God Bless the U.S.A. That, along with the fireworks, was the grand finale.

A crowd of about 75,000 people attended a concert by Louise Mandrell, sister of Barbara Mandrell.

One disappointment though was that President Bill Clinton did not make an appearance at the Jamboree. Bruce Babbitt, interior secretary, Clinton's appointed stand-in, also canceled.

This Jamboree marked the first time since 1938 that an American president or his stand-in did not attend the every four years event.

An editorial in the Aug. 22 issue of the Wall Street Journal attributed Clinton's actions to the Boy Scouts' stand against allowing homosexuals to serve as troop leaders.

Each one of the scouts expressed some thoughts about the Jamboree.

Wade Yearwood liked scuba diving best. The water activity was a "first" for the three-year Boy Scout.

Casity Reneau thought the closing fireworks were "impressive." He also enjoyed the exhibits and thought the activities were "great fun."

Jacob Crawford, a Boy Scout for five years, liked trap shooting and the conservation course most of all.

Chad McMillan preferred the obstacle course which was set up military style. He has been a Boy Scout for three years.

Chris Halbert did not like the all-day rain, but he liked the conservation area and the obstacle course. The hardest part for him was negotiating the monkey bars which extended from four feet upward to 12 feet.

A Boy Scout for three years, Chris also liked the Army exhibit.

Seth Crawford said he was "disappointed that (President) Clinton did not show up," but he did enjoy the Army exhibit best.

John Border, who has been in Boy Scouts for three years, preferred scuba diving, trap shooting, and the Army exhibit.

Joe Cheyne learned to scuba dive and while running the obstacle course he said he had to "wrestle a plastic alligator in the hay."

This is his third year in Boy Scouts.

Before arriving at the Jamboree, Snyder's Troop 27 toured Washington D.C., for several days. Sites they visited included the Smithsonian Institute, the National Archives, several monuments, the Capitol building, the Holocaust Museum and shopping malls.

John Border said he also enjoyed the "mile-long escalator rides."

This trip was financed through funds raised during the past year. The local troop launched their year-long fund-raising campaign during the 1992 July Fourth celebration at Towle Park. During the past 12 months they also averaged two fund-raisers per month.

The convention helped

By Phillip Alder

The gambling three-no-trump opening bid, showing a solid minor suit and little else, has been popular for decades. However, it occurred to me over 20 years ago that usually the wrong person ends up playing the three-no-trump contract. It must be better to have the opening lead coming around to, not through, the responder's tenaces. So I devised a system built around a three-spade opening that is equivalent to a gambling three no-trump.

Now you know why I could not resist writing about today's deal. It occurred during the Generali European Championships.

If North plays in three no-trump, East leads the club king and declarer will need second sight to get home.

West led the heart three. This looks like a poor choice, but actually it's annoying for declarer because, with the diamonds not breaking, it removes dummy's late entry, the heart queen.

South, the Rumanian Cornel Matei, after winning the first trick with dummy's heart queen, ran the heart nine to West's jack.

West switched to the club 10 in answer to his partner's signal. Matei ducked one round before winning the club continuation with his ace. Finally Matei embarked on the diamonds. He played four rounds of the suit, discarding a spade, a heart and a club from hand.

West was in with the diamond jack, but what could he lead? A heart would allow South to run the remainder of the suit. But when he selected a spade, Matei won with the queen and established his hearts. He won two spades, three hearts, three diamonds and one club.

Miss Brown, Thompson were wed in double-ring ceremony in Bryan

BRYAN — Lori Lynn Brown of Brenham became the bride of Kelly Glen Thompson of Bryan at 2 p.m. on July 3 in Bethel Lutheran Church in Bryan. The Rev. Randy W. Ledbetter, pastor of Mount Olive Lutheran Church in Houston, performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Keith E. Jr. and Judy Brown of Brenham and the granddaughter of Wilma Austin of Depauw, Ind. The groom is the son of Dr. J. Glen and Marvella Thompson of Davao, Philippines, former teachers for Snyder Independent School District. He is the grandson of the Rev. Marvel and Viva Upton of Orangevale, Calif., and Zella Thompson of Snyder.

Wedding music was provided by Rex Paskett, organist; and Glenda Paskett and Thomas Newsome, vocalists.

Mothers of the couple served as candlelighters.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a white satin gown featuring a beaded bodice with sweetheart neckline and long appliqued lace sleeves. Lace appliques highlighted the cathedral-length train. Her veil fell from a Juliet crown. The bride carried a hand-tied bouquet of white roses.

Jill Couch of Houston was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Matthys of Houston, Alison Walunas of Sterling Heights, Mich., and Roxanne Brown of Brenham and Sheila Brown of Sterling Heights, Mich., both sisters of the bride. They wore black tea length brocade dresses with white portrait collars.

Greg Gopffarth of Abilene was best man and groomsmen were Greg Duewall of Bryan, Wayne Couch of Houston and David Brown of Huntsville, Ala., and Chris Thompson of Bryan, brother of the groom. The groomsmen also served as ushers.

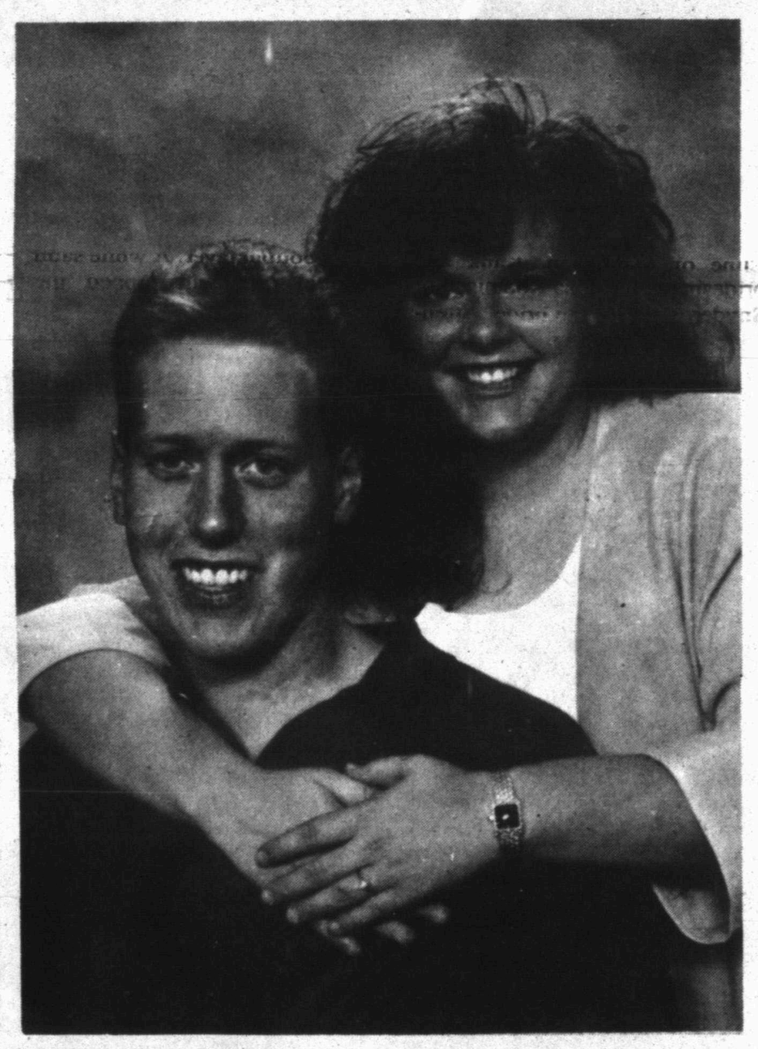

The reception was held in the Woman's Club of Bryan following the ceremony. The bride's three-tiered white cake with butter cream icing featured layers separated with pillars. The groom's cake was a chocolate sheet cake.

Members of the houseparty and others assisting with the wedding were Monica Thompson, Lea Zimmerman and Russell James.

After a wedding trip to Florida and the Bahamas, the new Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are living in College Station.

The bride graduated from Faith Academy in Manila, Philippines, and received a bachelor of arts degree from Concordia College in Ann Arbor, Mich. She is employed as a teacher at Grace Lutheran School in Brenham.

The bridegroom graduated from Faith Academy in Manila, Philippines. He has a BS degree in nuclear engineering from A&M University. He is a graduate student in nuclear engineering at Texas A&M.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright announce the engagement of their daughter, Tricia Michel, to Darren Keith Pylant, son of Judy Pylant of Big Spring and Rex Pylant of Fluvanna. They plan to exchange vows at 7 p.m., Sept 17, in the First Christian Church in Lubbock. A reception will follow the ceremony. (Contributed Photo)

In Colonial Hill Baptist...

Vows said by couple

Kimberly Lynn Massey of Snyder and Ronald Erich Grant of Llano were united in marriage at 2 p.m. on July 17 in Colonial Hill Baptist Church with the Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor, officiating.

Mrs. Patsy Huffman Massey of Snyder is mother of the bride and Mrs. Penny Grant of Llano is the groom's mother. Grandmother of the bride is Mrs. Emma Huffman of Snyder and the groom's grandmother if Mrs. Viola Staedtler of Llano.

Double-ring vows were pledged before an altar centered with a unity candle, and lighted with two seven-tapered candelabras decorated with white bows and English ivy. On either side, were baskets of greenery. White bows and English ivy marked the front pews.

Jeff Robertson of Canyon and Erik Sosolik of Munday, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters.

Pam Michel of Waco was soloist, accompanied by Connie Dickerson of Snyder. Songs performed were "This is the Day," as the mothers were seated, "When You Created Love," "I Will Be Here" and the "Bridal Prayer," as the unity candle was lighted.

The bride was presented in marriage by Jimmy Huffman of Irving and Glenn Huffman, her uncles. She wore a white satin formal length gown featuring a heavily beaded bodice with a sweetheart neckline. Schiffli lace embroidered with pearls and sequins adorned the long tapered sleeves, the skirt, and the hemline. The back's deep V-neckline topped the fitted waist and a large butterfly bow accented the full satin skirt and cathedral train. Schiffli lace insets decorated the train.

Her fingertip veil was attached to a white satin bow, accented with pearls and draping lilly of the valley. She carried a cascading bouquet of white silk lilly of the valley and English ivy.

Matron of honor was Amy Cline of Manhatten, Kan., and bridesmaid was Lisa Roemisch of Snyder, sister of the bride. Attendants wore tea length, hunter green taffeta dresses styled with large white lace collars. They carried a mound bouquet of white silk roses and English ivy with streamers of satin and pearls.

Flower girl was Natalie Reven of Pleasanton, niece of the groom.

Burl Huffman of Lubbock was best man. Groomsmen were Scott Holick of Arlington and ushers were Todd Childs of Austin, Spencer Gage of Houston, Chris Gravitt of Lubbock, and Greg Mundschau of Houston.

The groom wore a black Milano fulldress tuxedo from the selection of Raffinati. It was a fluent design featuring a notch lapel, satin covered button and satin breast pocket. Matching pleated pants and matching white three-button vest with satin lapels completed the three-inch double white fabric bow tie.

The male attendants wore matching fulldress tuxedos, black vests and matching black bow ties.

Becky Robertson of Canyon, cousin of the bride, registered guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's fellowship hall. The bride's table, draped with a white lace floor length cloth, was overlayed with a white lace cloth. An 18-foot serpentine table was fully surrounded with gold lame bows with streamers. A gold champagne fountain served citrus punch. Appointments of gold and crystal graced the table.

The three-tiered white chiffon cream wedding cake, frosted in pure white delicate ruffle and lattice design, was assembled on a floating cake stand. The floating arm was entwined with silk, small leaf greenery and was totally covered with white roses. A large arrangement of roses and greenery rested between the layers, and English ivy completely encircled the cake's bottom layer. A white satin wedding ornament topped the cake.

Mints, mixed nuts and dried fruit were served from American Fostoria crystal. The bride's and groom's names and their wedding date were printed on the napkins. The table was decorated with the bridal bouquet and attendant's bouquets.

The round groom's table, draped with white floor length satin, was overlayed with white lace that was encircled with gold bows to match the bride's table. The chocolate-over-chocolate cake was held by a crystal footed platter. Icing in a delicate reverse ruffle covered the cake, finished with a lace and ruffle on the cake's side.

Individual guest tables with white liners, overlayed with white lace cloths, were centered with greenery. The reception was catered by Reta's Cake Shop.

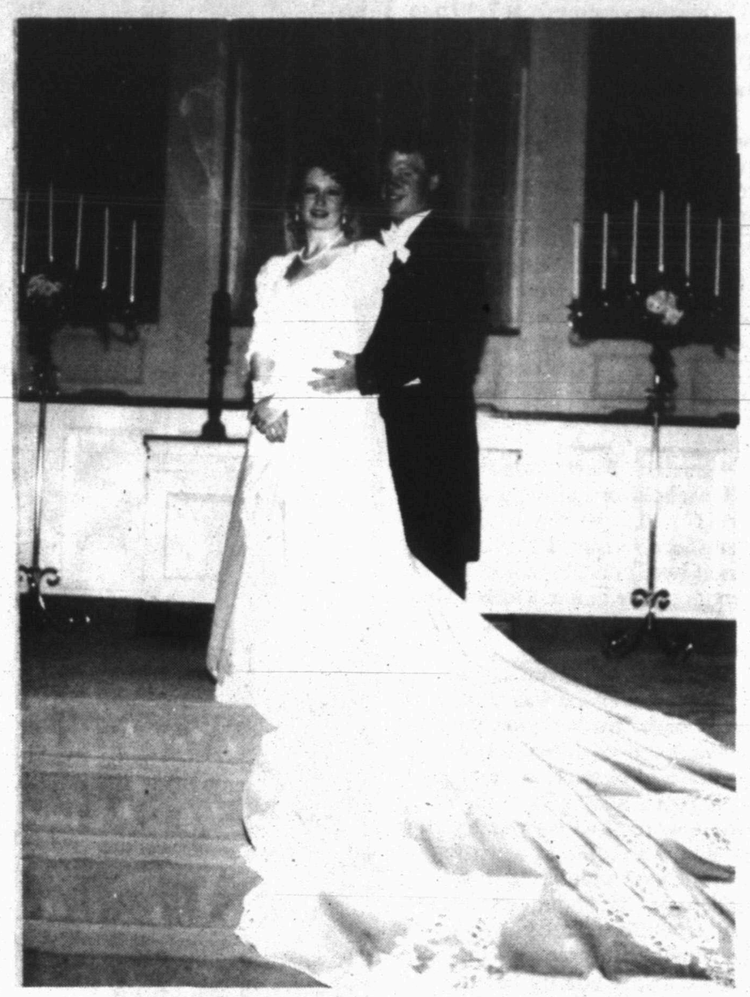

Serving at the bride's table were Michelle Morrow of Fort Worth, Jean Musslewhite of Lubbock and Pam Jackson of Austin. Serving at the groom's table were Nicole Winn of Pleasanton, sister of the groom, and Tricia Fink of Lubbock.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's mother, was also held at Reta's. Wedding attendants and their families were served a barbecue buffet.

Honorary guests were Mrs. Dot Wright of Seymour, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Martha Porch of Llano, aunt of the groom.

Following a honeymoon trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple's new home is in Weatherford where the groom is employed by Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Fort Worth. He is a 1987 graduate of Llano High School and a 1992 graduate of Texas Tech University, with a BBA in finance.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Snyder High School and 1993 graduate of Texas Tech University with a BBA degree in accounting. She is employed by Coopers and Lybrand in Fort Worth.

Homemakers aim for fashion businesses

By The Associated Press

Some of New York City's displaced homemakers, aiming for economic independence through home-based businesses, recently put on a fashion show at the Fashion Institute of Technology to show off children's wear they had produced.

The women — divorced, widowed, single mothers, parolees and others with little previous education and work experience — were trained through FIT's Small Business Center through the Women's Entrepreneurial Re-Entry Program.

They had been given instruction in time and financial management, organizational skills, marketing, self-image development with one-on-one consultations with business experts. Each participant was paired with an experienced mentor for further support and advice. The program was funded by the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Technical Educational Association.

Participants formed The Rainbow Achievers, an association to exhibit their children's wear and home decorating products.

Elaine Stone, coordinator of the Small Business Center, lauded the women. "Under the most adverse conditions, they've been able to use this training program to turn their homemaking skills into viable businesses that can bring economic independence to themselves and their families," she said.

Summer wedding unites Kurklin and Parkerson

The children of Melisa Parkerson, Shonnah and Tim Miller and Shana and Suzannah Parkerson, along with the children of Jerry Kurklin, Chris and Lezlie Kurklin, announce their parent's marriage.

The couple married in Abernathy on Thursday, July 1, at 11 a.m. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Shirley Groce, Justice of the Peace #3 of Hale County.

The bride wore a black and white linen suit, a gift from the groom, a black bead necklace, a gift from her parents, and white leather accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses, pearls, beads and baby's breath. The groom's boutonniere was a red rose adorned with baby's breath. They were made by Kloma Chrisman of Lubbock.

The bride carried a new 1993 penny in her shoe, given to her by her daughters as a token to represent the year the families were joined.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a short honeymoon trip to Cloudcroft, N.M. Later during the year, they plan to go on a cruise to the Bahamas, a gift from the groom's son and daughter.

The family is at home near Idalou where the groom is engaged in farming.

Parents of the couple are Mickey and Joanne Sterling of Ira and Les and Marie Kurklin of Lake Whitney.

NY City first capital

NW YORK (AP) — From 1785 to 1790, New York City was the capital of the United States.

The old Federal Hall, at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets, was the seat of government. The first Congress met there Feb. 4, 1789, and on April 30 that year George Washington was sworn in on its balcony as the first president under the new Constitution.

Comedian Harold Lloyd was born in Burchard, Neb, in 1893.

Homemade rinse shines dull tresses

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: While traveling last summer I had my hair done by a hair dresser who gave me a recipe that uses things ordinarily found in the kitchen to treat hair and remove buildup of hair spray and rinse. I neglected to make a note of the ingredients and have forgotten what she said. Could you possibly know what she was referring to, and if so, please pass it along? — DORIS LONG, Emporia, Kan.

DEAR DORIS: Our favorite hair dresser gave us the following recipe: Combine 1 gallon distilled water, 1 cup lemon juice (fresh or bottled) and 1 cup Epsom Salts. Cap the mixture and let it sit 24 hours. Pour into your hair and leave on about 20 minutes, then shampoo.

This solution will get rid of hard-water buildup, hair spray accumulation and will remove old-fashioned color rinses.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I am wondering if there is a button collectors' association. My parents were married in 1912; at the time my father was a Detroit, Mich., fireman. I have the buttons from one of his uniforms. I also have some buttons from an American Red Cross uniform from the same era. If there is an association, would you have an address? — DORIS SCHERER, Pigeon, Mich.

DEAR DORIS: The collectors' club is the National Button Society at 2733 Juno Place, Akron, OH 44333. There is a $10 annual membership fee.

FEEDBACK: COOKIE SHEET UNDER A PIE PLATE — Fran Zollars of Monongahela, Pa., wrote that putting a cookie sheet under a pie to catch the drippings would interfere with the proper cooking and browning of the bottom crust.

She writes: "They make and sell an item called an OVENMOAT. It is metal, shaped like a large doughnut, and the hole prohibits the heat from being blocked by the cookie sheet, as you suggested. The entire moat is large enough to place under the pie pan and neatly catches the drippings. I have learned to spray the moat with shortening to hasten cleanups. Hardware stores sell the OVENMOAT."

STUMPED: SLIM KIDS' CATALOG — Mary Kendrick of Pride, La., has a slim, tall 11-year-old granddaughter. The only thing that's easy to buy are jeans, she writes. Does anyone know of a source for a catalog for slim kids?

Write to 'Ask Anne & Nan' at P.O. Box 240, Hartland, VT 05048. Questions of general interest will appear in the column. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies cannot be provided.

Miss Warren, Hill wed

BIG SPRING — Charity Sue Warren and Kaleb Allen Hill, both of Big Spring, were married in a double-ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 13. The Rev. Cone J. Merritt of Snyder, grandfather of the groom, officiated.

Parents of the bride are Kenneth and Vicki Reed and the groom's parents are Billy and Jane Hammond, all of Big Spring. The groom's grandmother is Mrs. Cone (Florine) Merritt of Snyder.

Gold, wide-band rings were exchanged by the couple before an archway adorned with greenery decorated with large white bows. Candelabras, placed on either side of the altar, held seven tapers each and were adorned with greenery and white bows.

Vocalist Patti Adams sang "Household of Faith," and "Only God Could Love You More." Adrian Calvio sang "I'll Never Say Good-bye," accompanied by the groom on the guitar. Donna Thurman provided piano music. All are of Big Spring.

The bride was given in marriage by her father as she was attired in a dress made by her grandmother, Treva Reed of Sweetwater. Her bodice and sleeves, covered with lace, pearls and bows at the neckline, were handsewn by her mother. The veil was waist-length and adorned with white flowers at the crown. The bouquet was cascading white and red baby rosettes entwined with greenery lace and pearls, also made by her mother.

All of the attendants wore street length dresses of white and red satin, and matching shoes. Maid of honor was Amber Hilger of Big Spring; bridesmaids were Melissa Roberts and Angela Murphy, both of Big Spring. They carried matching bouquets similar to the bride's.

Brenna LaDae Hill, 23-month-old daughter of the bride and groom, and Codie Reed of Big Spring, sister of the bride, were flower girls. They wore matching red satin dresses with white collars and matching wrists flowers.

Best man was Jeremy Edens of Big Spring and groomsmen were Michael Anderson of Big Spring and Kenny Hammond of Colorado City, brother of the groom.

Male attendants wore white tuxedos shirts with red cummerbunds and bow ties, black Wranglers and black boots.

Amie Noel Hammond of Colorado City, niece of the groom, attended the registry book, a gift of the bride's mother.

Following the ceremony, a reception held in the church fellowship hall honored the new Mr. and Mrs. Hill.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth decorated with red and white bows. It was centered with a bouquet of red roses and white gladioli, a gift to the couple by Wayne and Bert Warren of Sweetwater, grandparents of the bride.

A three-tiered, heart-shaped strawberry cake with white icing was separated by white columns. Topped with a traditional bride and groom, the cake was made by Paula Underwood, a friend of both families.

The groom's table was covered with a cloth featuring musical notes and held matching napkins. Also served were white chocolate candy mints in the shape of musical instruments, notes and guitars. The groom's guitar-shaped chocolate cake with chocolate icing, was made by his mother.

Serving were Gwen Mason and E.D. Barnett, both of Big Spring, and Elyse Merritt of Snyder, cousin of the groom.

Special out-of-town guests included Wayne and Bert Warren, Atlon and Treva Reed, and Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Oden, all grandparents of the bride and all are of Sweetwater.

The couple are at home in Big Spring where the groom is employed by Pool Well Service. Both are graduates of Big Spring High School, the groom in 1992 and the bride in 1993. The bride is employed at Richard Cauley Dentist.

Plant showy, wild goldenrods

Planting goldenrod in the garden may seem crazy — after all, it's in bloom all over the place! But the flowers are pretty, so why not plant them? In the garden, the plants grow larger, with fuller and richer blooms.

Goldenrods are common in European gardens, perhaps more cherished there because Europe has only three species, as compared to our more than 60 species.

One look at the infertile fields that wild goldenrods call home will convince anyone that growing this plant does not require a green thumb. You can grow goldenrod from seed or purchase plants from a nursery that specializes in perennials.

The easiest and quickest way to get plants is to dig up wild ones. Do this now or else mark particularly attractive plants for digging next spring. Once planted, goldenrod needs little care beyond dividing the clump every few years as vigor declines.

If you insist on sowing seeds, collect them when the seedheads are almost dry. Sow the seeds thickly because germination is notably poor. Plants that grow from seed will not necessarily be identical to their mother plant because goldenrods cross-pollinate freely.

Look around, and you will notice a few different types of goldenrod flowers. Non-botanists might be surprised to learn that goldenrods are in the daisy family.

Differentiating the various goldenrod species is no easy task and gives even botanists sleepless nights. For garden purposes, plant size and garden type are enough to know. Peterson's Field Guide to Wildflowers (Houghton Mifflin Co., 1968) classifies the flower heads as: plumelike, elm-branched, clublike, wandlike and flattopped.

Among the very tall goldenrods, one of the prettiest is the Showy Goldenrod. The 2- to 6-foot plant is topped by a "club" of yellow flowers. Stout Goldenrod is similar, the most obvious difference being its smaller stature. Look closely and you also will note that the latter species has more petals on its flowers, and its bottom leaves are more toothed than those of the Showy Goldenrod. Tall Goldenrod, a very tall species with plumelike flowers.

The shorter goldenrods range from about one to four feet in height. Lance-leaved Goldenrod has flattopped yellow clusters of flowers. Early Goldenrod is — you guessed it — the earliest to blossom, with plumelike flowers appearing in July. Sweet Goldenrod also has a plumelike flower head, and the crushed leaves have the scent of anise.

This is a small sampling of the many beautiful species of wild goldenrods. If your inclination is more horticultural than botanical, just find a clump of wild plants you like and forget about which species it might be. (Temper your enthusiasm long enough to get permission to dig the plant if it is on someone else's land.)

Goldenrods have been accused of causing hay fever.

Here is a case of guilt by association. The true culprits are rapseeds, whose pollen wafts into the air from inconspicuous green flowers at the time when showy goldenrod flowers are in bloom.

More feminine, clasic styles for fall

By The Associated Press

Softer silhouettes and touches of color characterize clothes offered for women this fall.

"It's an evolution," says Lucille Klein, J.C. Penney's fashion director. "We've had structured looks with their squared shoulders and sharp lines for several years. But women have become more comfortable in the work force. They're at ease expressing themselves with more feminine, classic styles."

A case in point might be a rich red suit by Jacqueline Ferrar, available at Penney's. It's softened by a classic dress-up detail: Black velvet trim on a notched collar and buttons. The store also offers a soft ruffled blouse by Rafferty, which it shows paired with pants and a long vest in glen plaid from Worthington.

A jaunty variation on the theme is a red riding jacket with black velveteen trim for Chaus, which can be worn with velveteen jodphurs.

A soft and bright ensemble from Theomiles includes a cable-knit sweater with matching wrap skirt and leggings, either in pastels or red. This new label from Leslie Fay also offers a range of classic jackets, trousers, dresses sportswear and evening clothes.

Soft but tailored fare from Jones New York include wide-leg trousers and long belted vest in neutral tones, set off by a golfing jacket in bronze suede.

The soft look done up with European sophistication is offered in Ungaro's Emanuel line, featuring a series of easy fitting but tailored jackets, pants, wrap skirts and vests. One ensemble includes a stone crepon jacket with matching waistcoat with echoing collar notches and matching trousers.

Layered knits figure prominently in the collections at Express, with long cowl-neck tunics with matching wide-leg pants or ribbed wrap skirts. There's also a soft column dress or a wide-ribbed V-neck sweater dress.

The Sherman Antitrust Act was passd in 1890.

CWC begins with 'Apple Festival'

Snyder Christian Women's Club will kick-off the year with a luncheon titled "Apple Festival" at noon Wednesday at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Bushels of Goodies will be presented by Martha Weatherby who will display apple crafts; A-Peeling Songs will be presented by soloist Glenda Hollingsworth of Snyder; and Apple-cations for Life will be presented by the guest speaker, Myrna Dozier of San Antonio.

Reservations should be made by noon Tuesday by calling Holly at 573-1876 or Doris at 573-3996. A free nursery is available with reservations.

The luncheon is $7, or $1 for those desiring coffee or tea only. The organization asks that reservations be honored, canceled or used by a friend.

All women of the area are invited to attend.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

One potato, two potato, three potato, four.

How many starters on a football team? Eleven, of course. And how many football games are there on TV this weekend? That's right, 11. Boy, what a weekend for couch potatoes!

Do you realize guys, that you can watch football from 11:30 a.m. Saturday until after midnight without skipping a beat? Just load up the fridge with your favorite beverage, pile up plenty of cold cuts and bread, chips, popcorn — fluff up the throw pillows — and relax back.

You can practically do the same thing Sunday! And as we all know, the Cowboys play on Monday night.

Glory, glory. It's football season once again.

Here's the lineup, with just a touch of baseball thrown in to fill the timeouts and in-betweens:

Beginning at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, remote in hand, you can switch back and forth between Rice at Ohio State on ESPN and South Carolina at Georgia on HSE. Keep that remote burning by adding Northwestern at Notre Dame on Channel 9 at 12:30 p.m.

Then at 2:30 p.m., catch the Aggies hosting Louisiana State on Channel 8.

You've got an hour break between 6 and 7. There will be an attempt at mutiny here. Guard the remote, carefully. You can fill the time with one of a couple of baseball games or the U.S. Open.

At 7, it's back to action with Texas playing at Colorado on ESPN, followed by Houston at Southern California at 10 p.m. on HSE.

Might as well sleep on the couch, too, because it will be 1 a.m. before the game is over, and you'll need rest for the "Coaches" show at 10 a.m. Sunday on CNN, followed by NFL Preview, the Jimmy Johnson show or NFL Gameday at 11, and NFL Live or NFL Today at 11:30.

Finally, at noon, the action begins with pro games on two networks. Channel 5 offers a doubleheader, the 49ers at Pittsburgh followed by the Giants at Chicago.

There's another 6-to-7 p.m. break, at which time the Houston Oilers play at the New Orleans Saints on Channel 31. For those less-than-die-hard football fans, you can remote back and forth to ESPN and catch the Texas Rangers at the Minnesota Twins. Wrap it up with the NFL Post Game at 10.

Potato life begins at 7 p.m. Monday with NFL Prime Monday on ESPN, followed by Monday Night Football — Dallas at Washington — on Channel 8 at 8. During time outs, pop over to HSE and catch the Yankees at the Rangers.

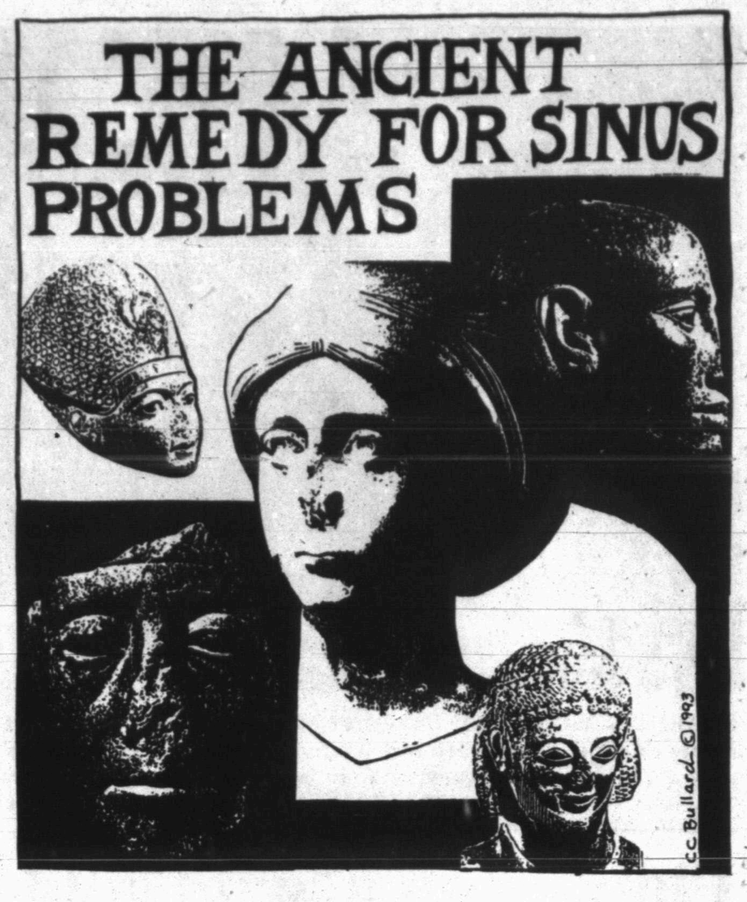

Wow! What a weekend!

One word of warning, men. What you do this weekend will set the tone for the entire football season. So be firm. Be strong.

Some of you may have already weenied under during pre-season. That's okay. You have a second chance this weekend. Assert yourself.

When the woman says, "Not another football game!" just hold up that remote control defiantly and declare, "Baby, I have one goal and one goal only this weekend, and that is to turn into a couch potato. I want to be a couch potato. A football couch potato, do you hear? I am proud of that. That is my goal. That is the way it is, and that is the way it is going to be.

"Now don't get me wrong. I am perfectly willing to take you along on this journey. You can be my couch potato-ette. The first thing we need is to make some nachos. And while you're up, I could use some more ice."

Attention: Worry season starts soon

By Joseph Spear

You can stop it with the ridicule now, OK?

I am referring to all those people who hoot and jeer and chortle up their sleeves every time I call attention to the fact that we don't worry enough about extraterrestrial objects that are zooming toward the Earth at incredible speeds.

I speak of comets and meteorites and asteroids and things like that.

You can stop razzing me because it turns out I was right: On May 20, an asteroid measuring 30 feet in diameter and weighing 6,000 tons passed within 90,000 miles of the Earth — the closest brush with the planet on record. And get this — astronomers were paying so little attention that it wasn't detected until several hours after it went past!

Told you so.

What's the big deal, you ask? Well, about 65 million years ago, scientists say, a huge asteroid plowed into Mexico's Yucatan peninsula and kicked up so much dust it blackened the skies and killed off the dinosaurs. About 35 million years ago, the experts believe, a large meteorite plunged into the Atlantic Ocean and triggered a tidal wave a thousand feet high that decimated the coast from New Jersey to North Carolina.

All this comes to mind because summer is over and the day after Labor Day is the start of the official worrying season, and I've been worrying about what I'm going to worry about in the coming year.

For the uninitiated, the worrying season runs from Labor Day to Memorial Day, with a week off between Christmas and New Year's. Serious Worriers work overtime during these nine months fretting over things that Normal People dismiss as piffle.

I will give you some examples of relatively minor stuff that has occupied the minds of SWs during the past year:

Maple syrup production is down because of bad weather. ... Soot pollution may be killing thousands of people a year. ... Bacteria in raw oysters can cause diarrhea and even death. ... Mud wrestlers are prone to skin rashes. ... The bigger the waist in relation to the hips, the higher the risk of death. ... Rock dancing can give you whiplash. ... Undercooked hot dogs harbor bacteria that can cause serious illness. ... Squeezing limes in the sunlight can burn the skin, a condition known as "margarita photodermatitis."

Some more serious matters that have been bothering SWs:

Left-handed people may have shorter life spans. ... Men who are balding on the top of their heads may be more prone to heart attacks. ... More Americans die in January than any other month. ... Stormy weather triggers bleeding strokes. ... Because of the popularity of mesquite barbecuing, Mexico's Sonoran desert is being denuded of the trees. ... The struggle to be strong and silent may be shortening male lifespans. ... The Marshall Islands may be swamped by the rising ocean.

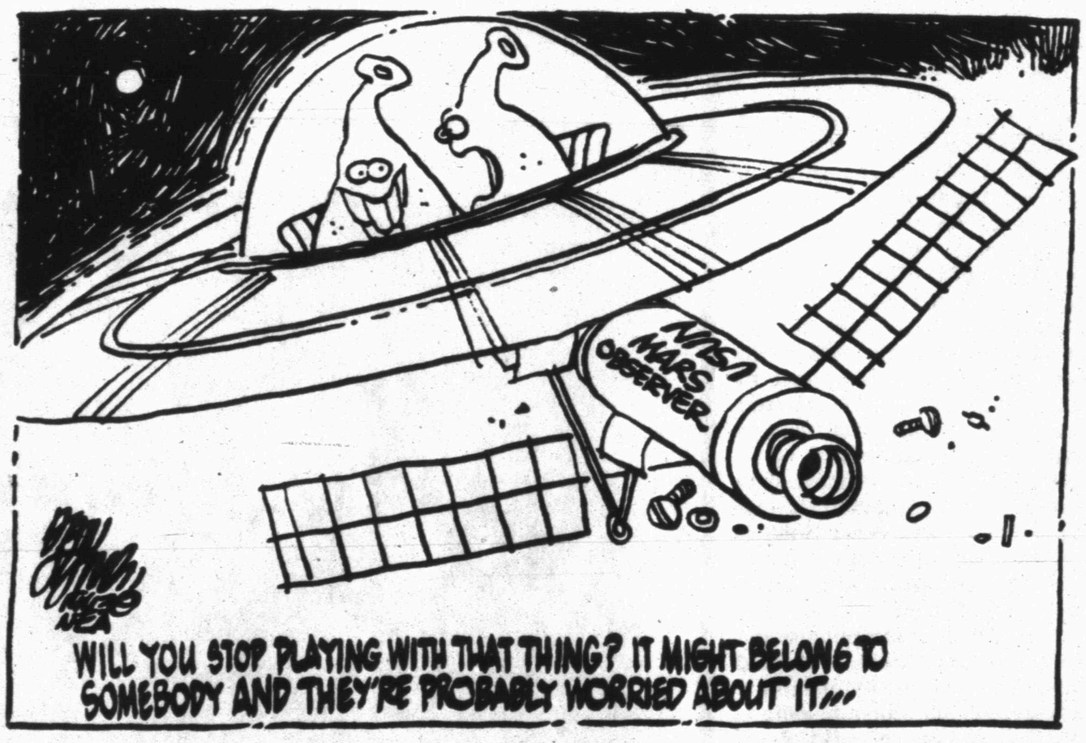

And finally, some very heavy stuff that true professionals have been chewing on:

—Mount Everest is inundated with 50 tons of trash left behind by the hundreds of climbers who have ascended its slopes since Sir Edmund Hillary first did it in 1953.

—The proliferation of fast-food restaurants is killing off traditional French cafes. At the turn of the century, there were 300,000 bistros for 38 million people; now there are only 62,000 to serve 58 million. (Surely this has something to do with the decline of the Socialist Party.)

—Your life expectancy may be determined by the number of spots that appeared on the sun during the year your mother was born (this according to a statistical analysis by two professors at Michigan State University).

You didn't listen when I told you we should be worrying about heavenly bodies hurtling toward Earth and you almost got squashed by an undetected asteroid. So please, listen now as I issue yet another Serious Worrier's warning to all balding, big-waisted, small-hipped, left-handed macho men who like rock dancing, mud wrestling and medium-rare hot dogs: For heaven's sake, don't eat any raw oysters during a January storm.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank all who supported our annual fund-raising supper August 21. Without their generous donations we could not operate for the coming year. We hope all who attended had a good time visiting with friends and neighbors and met some new friends.

A special thanks to Taco John's, IGA and Everybody's Thriftway for donating food and paper goods for our supper. A big thanks to everyone who bought baked goods at the auction.

To Mr. Ray Herring, we couldn't have done this without you. Thank you for your fine auctioneering. Thanks to Snyder Daily News for announcing this event so many times. Thanks to the Snyder volunteers for pitching in and helping serve.

All the money raised will be used to pay for upkeep on our equipment.

Congratulations to Mr. W.A. Telchik for winning the TV in our drawing.

Again, we appreciate all the support.

Dear Editor:

Thanks to all of those who wrote last week to inform the public more accurately about the many benefits of our Senior Center. Although I spent 32 years overseas as a missionary, I can add that, I find this program to be one of the most constructive and wholesome I have ever participated in.

I was a van driver for the Center for four years, taking some of those who could no longer drive to shop for groceries, for general shopping, to meet doctor and/or beauty appointments, or for other errands in general. Many times I found myself wishing I could help them more. Several former passengers have died, and it always left me wondering if I might have done more. But I could always console myself that my meager efforts had helped to make their difficult, final years more bearable.

Then, the time came that I needed help. Both times I had surgery on my feet, I was unable to drive for over a month, but had no qualms about receiving home-delivered meals, for a small donation. I was without a car for almost a month on two occasions, but cars from the Center took me shopping and to meet medical appointments. On another occasion, I had an intestinal bug, and it was unsafe for me to drive to get the kind of food I needed. Jerry Baird drove in the snow and waded in the snow to deliver the right kind of food to my door. My sister and friends were thoughtful on the above occasions. But, how nice that they could make their own plans without wondering if someone would come to my aid when I needed it.

I have a friend whose only retirement income is a small Social Security check. She works as a volunteer five days a week, and makes a donation for her noonday meals. Then she finds a bowl of cereal for breakfast and some fruit for supper is all she needs above that. So she can still pay her own way, drive her car and maintain her own home despite such a limited income, without feeling she is a burden to taxpayers.

None of us would insist that Mr. Knollenberg participate in the Senior Center's program against his desires. Hopefully, the time will not come when he cannot fend for himself, or when health, the State of Texas, or other circumstances will no longer allow him to drive. But, hopefully, he would feel free to call on the Center, should such circumstances arise.

That's part of what the Senior Center is all about. With everyone pooling efforts and resources, and with a minimum of tax dollars, we can help one another. Or we can help younger citizens to find help for their aging parents, thus lightening their burden of caring for their elders, and thank God for a community that provides such help

"Und vhat is de problem?"

"Football."

"How do you mean? She vants to play it? Heh-heh. I make a little joke."

"No. You see, I know my wife has had her problems, but for the most part, she was, well, a kind, decent person."

"Vhat happened?"

"Our son started to play football."

"I don't understand."

"See, she really didn't want him to play the game. She was always afraid he would get hurt."

"It is a rough sport."

"Anyway. He was playing in his first scrimmage, see, and that's when she started to ... change."

"Vhat do you mean, change? Does she need more medication?"

"No, no. Not that. At first, she was just sitting there on her little stadium seat, fiddling with her sunglasses and hunting for gum in her purse and complaining about stuff. You know, the usual."

"Uh-huh."

"Then our son began to play. At first he was just playing center. Nothing glamorous. Then he switched to defensive end. That's when she started screaming, KILL HIM, SON! KNOCK HIS LITTLE HEAD OFF!"

"Und dis is unusual behavior for Mrs. Mills?"

"In public, yes."

"Den vhat happened?"

"Our son got hurt. He took a finger poke to the eye and the trainer took him out of the game."

"Vhat did your wife say about dis?"

"She yelled, YOU'RE OKAY, SON! YOU'VE GOT ANOTHER ONE!"

"Und?"

"Und — I mean, AND, the trainer put this big patch over his eye and wouldn't let him play any more in that scrimmage."

"Vhat happened den?"

"She screamed, THE TRAINER'S A WEENIE! TAKE THE TRAINER OUT! ... It was humiliating."

"Did you take your son to de doctor?"

"We did. He said our son had a bad inflammation of the iris. He put him on strong steroid eyedrops and warned him that a blow to that side of his head could spread the infection. Then he took him out of contact practice for one week."

"Und how did your wife react?"

"She started hollering, THE DOC'S A QUACK! HE'S GOT NO TIGER SPIRIT!"

"Dat must have been uncomfortable for you."

"Uncomfortable? We had to gag her."

"I see."

"What can we do, Dr. Feelgood? The season's just started and our son's got games all the way to November."

"You know, Mr. Mills, you vife has responded very vell to de strait jacket in de past."

"You mean...?"

"Sure. Just carry it right in to the stadium vid your stadium seats. It should help to calm her down."

"Oh, thank you, Dr. Feelgood. I knew I could count on you."

Audit blames TSU administration

AUSTIN (AP) — A state report said Texas Southern University's Ocean of Soul marching band made illegal expense payments to non-students and committed other improprieties.

The state auditor's office said Thursday that TSU's administration failed to monitor the actions of the band, which was disgraced last year in a shoplifting scandal in Japan.

In a report sent to elected state leaders, State Auditor Lawrence Alwin said that TSU "has been fully apprised of our findings and has begun to take action to correct the weaknesses."

Last year, some band members stole $22,000 worth of electronic equipment during a trip to Tokyo to play in the Coca-Cola Bowl. Nearly one-fourth of the members on the trip weren't even enrolled at TSU.

Shortly after the incident was made public, the school suspended 12 students determined to have stolen items. They were later allowed back in school if they took an ethics class. No criminal charges were filed.

The audit found that for the 1992 fall semester, TSU paid, from student service fees, an estimated $6,200 in band travel expenses related to participation by non-students. The Texas Education Code limits the use of student service fees to the support of student services.

The audit also found that non-students have been participating in the Ocean of Soul band since 1981.

Perot's stand on free trade attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration will formally present the North American Free Trade Agreement to Congress within the next few weeks, U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor says.

William Daley, who is spearheading the administration's lobbying effort in a Congress sharply divided over the merits of the pact, said Thursday that the outcome there remains unclear.

"I don't think anyone has the votes on either side to have that vote today and feel confident," he told reporters.

President Clinton is expected to send the 2,000-page treaty and accompanying side accords on the environment and labor to lawmakers during a speech Sept. 14, congressional sources said.

Congressional hearings on the trade accord, which has been roundly denounced by labor unions and many environmentalists, are planned soon after it is sent to Capitol Hill.

NAFTA would, over a 15-year period, phase out most barriers to the free movement of goods, services and investment between the United States, Mexico and Canada.

Kantor said he was "a lot more optimistic" about ratification than he was four months ago. "The status quo is unacceptable," he said.

Several prominent Democrats, including House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt and Whip David Bonior, have voiced serious concerns about the accord. But Kantor said the debate "isn't going to be a civil war in the Democratic Party."

"There will be Democrats for it and Democrats against it just as there will be Republicans for it and against it. But I am confident there will be bipartisan support for NAFTA."

Kantor's comments came at a news conference called to denounce a new book by Ross Perot that attacks the trade accord. "We want to make sure that as we start this critical debate for the country that the facts are clear and straight," he said.

Kantor issued a 73-page rebuttal of the book, which he termed "riddled with inaccuracies, errors and misleading statements."

The charge against Perot, one of the most vocal opponents of the NAFTA, comes just as the White House prepares to make its full-blown sales pitch to Congress.

The administration, which has been accused by Republicans of not pushing the trade accord hard enough, has turned its attention to rebutting the anti-NAFTA rhetoric.

"We believe because the book is out there and Mr. Perot has become a leading spokesperson against NAFTA ... that he should have to defend his statements," Kantor said.

The Perot camp didn't immediately provide a response, but spokeswoman Sharon Holman called the administration response "interesting."

Kantor said Perot's 124-page book, titled "Save Your Job, Save Our Country: Why NAFTA Must Be Stopped — Now," contains 193 misleading statements. Chief among them, he said, is that 5.9 million jobs are at risk because of the accord.

"We believe, and we are confident that this agreement means thousands and thousands of more net jobs to Americans and a growth of our economy," Kantor said.

Washington economist Pat Choate, who co-authored the book, said he stood by the book's conclusions and in turn accused Kantor of misleading statements.

"It's like a frog calling somebody ugly," Choate said. "They've played so fast and loose with the facts. We source all of our material."

Bats invade Victoria office

VICTORIA (AP) — The bats are back at the Texas Employment Commission.

About 250 of the furry, nocturnal creatures first invaded the building Tuesday night, forcing employees to postpone the office's opening until a local exterminator could herd the bats into a trap. They were taken to Coleto Creek and released.

An air conditioning vent, the suspected entry, was closed after the bats were snared.

Laura Sanders, area manager for TEC, had thought the problem was solved, but Thursday morning, another 250 bats were flapping around inside the building.

The bats were back again Friday morning, she said. "There could be thousands of them," said Ms. Sanders. A bat expert was expected to try and remove the creatures Friday afternoon.

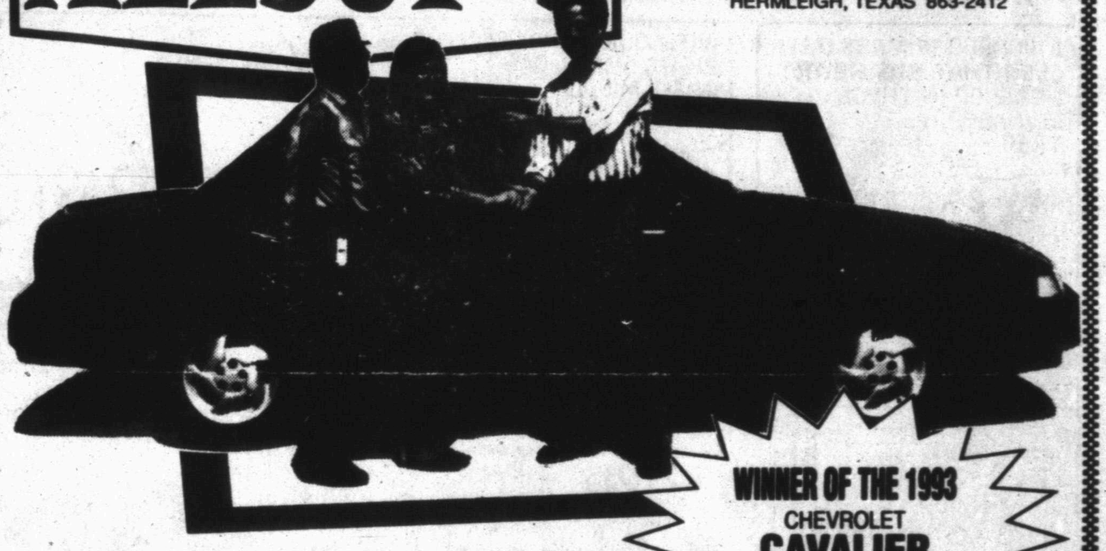

Ms. Sanders also wondered if the same bats had come back to TEC from Coleto Creek.

The bats were once again removed, this time by a professional bat remover from San Antonio.

Midwest governors complain about flood-relief formula

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Some Republican governors say Washington is shortchanging them with a flood-relief formula that requires state and local governments to pay 10 percent to 25 percent of the cleanup and repair costs.

One GOP governor in the flood-stricken Midwest accused President Clinton of reneging on a promise to do more, and a spokesman for another called the plan "grossly unfair."

Though Clinton agreed to lower the share that will have to be paid by state and local governments in the hardest-hit areas, politicians in both parties said the Midwest was being asked to pay more than victims of other disasters.

"I am disappointed that the level of assistance granted will apparently not provide Iowa and the other flood-damaged states with the same level of assistance Florida and other hurricane-damaged states received last year," said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency announced a formula Thursday under which the government will shoulder more than the usual 75 percent share of the costs in the hardest-hit states. In states where the damage reaches $64 per resident, the government will pick up 90 percent of the cost of damage to public facilities.

However, none of the nine Midwestern states so far has met that standard.

Michael Lawrence, spokesman for Republican Gov. Jim Edgar of Illinois, said, "We think it's grossly unfair." He said Illinois will probably not qualify for the 90-10 split, while neighboring Missouri probably will.

"That means a small town in Illinois that has been devastated will receive 75 percent of its cost, and a town right across the river in Missouri will receive 90 percent," Lawrence said. "The logic of that escapes me."

Republican Gov. Terry Branstad of Iowa said the state will probably qualify for the 90 percent level. But he argued that hurricane-battered Florida got even more aid — and that's what Clinton promised the Midwest.

"It's certainly better than nothing, but it's not what the president promised," Branstad said. "We hope this isn't the last we hear of it."

"It's disappointing that they're not going higher," said North Dakota Gov. Ed Schafer, also a Republican.

FEMA spokesman Morrie Goodman said the $64 threshold is the same that was applied to victims of Hurricanes Hugo and Andrew, which hit South Carolina in 1989 and Florida in 1992, respectively.

Congress approved a $5.7 billion aid package for the Midwestern states. Total flood damage is estimated at more than $10 billion. And officials of Midwestern states expect to ask Congress for more money later.

The aid will go toward rebuilding roads and bridges and covering added government personnel expenses.

Branstad said Iowa will be forced to come up with $70 million even if, as expected, the state's losses exceed $64 per person.

That could force across-the-board cuts in state spending or a special legislative session to overhaul the budget, Branstad said. Many other flood-battered states will find themselves in the same situation, he said.

The per capita loss in South Carolina from Hurricane Hugo was $133, and $157 for Florida residents hit by Andrew.

POW issue said 'closed'

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 22,000 Americans were kept in the former Soviet Union during World War II, but most returned home and nearly all the rest died in prison camps, the co-chairman of a U.S.-Russian commission says.

Some U.S.-born ethnic Slavs were forced to become Soviet citizens before and during the war, but they are now elderly and wish to stay, said Gen. Dmitry Volkogonov, a military historian and an adviser to President Boris Yeltsin.

Volkogonov's commission has investigated the fate of thousands of American servicemen still unaccounted for from World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars. It has never held out much hope of finding prisoners of war still alive.

"We believe that there are no Americans on the territory of the former Soviet Union, except persons who have willingly stayed here," Volkogonov said Thursday. "Such people and their addresses are known by the U.S. side."

The American co-chairman, Malcolm Toon, a former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, concurred. It was the commission's most definitive statement yet that no American POWs are still living against their will in the former Soviet Union.

Plea in BNL case may coverup story

ATLANTA (AP) — A banker pleaded guilty to making illegal loans to Iraq, short-circuiting a case he had warned would lay bare the Bush administration's role in arming Saddam Hussein during the 1980s.

Christopher Drogoul, 44, was scheduled to go on trial next week in federal court but instead pleaded guilty Thursday to three counts in a 70-count bank-fraud indictment.

His lawyer, Robert Simels, said the plea bargain does not require Drogoul to give the government any more information. Asked if the full story of the politically sensitive scheme would ever be told, Simels said, "Not in this case."

Drogoul, the former Atlanta branch manager for Italy's state-owned Banca Nazionale del Lavoro, was accused of sending $5.5 billion to Iraq through loans and credit agreements, and hiding the deals from his BNL superiors and U.S. regulators. Some of the money helped arm Iraq's military before the Persian Gulf War.

Claiming he had been made the fall guy for failed U.S. policy in the Middle East, Drogoul said his deals were authorized by senior BNL officers in Rome and monitored by the U.S. government, which he charged turned a blind eye to the transactions.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said Attorney General Janet Reno approved the plea bargain, under which Drogoul pleaded guilty to one count of fraud and two counts of making false statements to bank regulators.

"With these three counts, the government achieved the likely prison term which would have been achieved no matter how many counts you took to trial," Stern said. "It would have been pointless to go to trial."

Drogoul could get up to 61/2 years in prison at sentencing Nov. 29. Simels said he would ask U.S. District Judge G. Ernest Tidwell to limit Drogoul's sentence to the 17 months he has already served.

Simels said Drogoul agreed to the plea "as a result of the urging of his family to terminate the nightmare of this Alice in Wonderland setting."

Among those Drogoul had subpoenaed as witnesses for his trial were former President Bush.

"We would have liked to have had a full-blown trial ... and place Mr. Bush on the stand," Simels said. "But he also had to deal with the tribulations of his wife and four small children."

Reno said that the Justice Department is "going to continue the efforts to find out who else may have been involved in wrongdoing."

Drogoul was indicted in 1991, about 11/2 years after the BNL office in Atlanta was raided by the FBI.

He was accused, among other things, of using an Agriculture Department program to get money to Iraq. At the time, most banks were refusing to loan money to Iraq because of its poor credit record.

'Bullet train' opponents question ridership study

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents of a proposed "bullet train" questioned a new ridership study and route that was unveiled by the high-speed rail developers.

Texas TGV Corp., a French-American consortium, has been awarded the franchise to build the system with trains traveling up to 200 mph. The current estimate to build the rail line is $6.8 billion.

By 2010, the system would annually carry about 14.4 million riders, make $618 million in 1991 dollars, and have a 26 percent share of the traveling public, according to the new ridership study.

"There seems to be a very substantial market for high-speed rail," David Rece, president of TGV, told the Texas High-Speed Rail Authority on Thursday.

But opponents said the ridership study, which was conducted by the Massachusetts firm of Charles River Associates, was way off base.

"The bottom line number that they gave for ridership is incredible," said Ron Ricks, a spokesman for Southwest Airlines, which has contended the project is not needed.

"What they anticipate carrying is four or five times what Southwest Airlines is carrying today. And we have a two-thirds market share in that market," he said.

Ricks said a major flaw in the survey of ridership preference between air and rail assumed that fares for both modes of transportation would be about the same.

"Of course that ignores the reality of the marketplace. There's always going to be fare competition," Ricks said.

He also said the new route would slow the train's travel time, thus making it less competitive.

But TGV said the route change would make the train accessible to more passengers.

TGV's original proposed route included stations in Fort Worth, Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, Dallas, Houston, Austin and San Antonio. The new proposal adds Waco and the Bryan-College Station area.

TGV said travel time between Dallas and Houston would be an hour and 41 minutes.
