Kidnap Plot Effectively Crushed in Nick of Time

3 PLOTTERS JAILED

Her Abduction Waas To Have Been Replica Of Screen Story

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—(AP) "America's sweetheart" is safe. Film fans have the assurance of Los Angeles police that the plot of two truck drivers and an automobile salesman to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom has been crushed as effectively as an amateur scenario seeking acceptance in the screen sanctums of Hollywood.

Of the three alleged plotters arrested yesterday and held in the city jail on suspicion of conspiracy to commit a felony, two, it was announced by detectives tonight, have made full or partial confessions, and the third is being subjected to further grilling. Meanwhile two automatic pistols have been found among the effects of the suspects, which, officers say, will prove to be important evidence if it can be established that they were purchased after the conspirators conceived their plan to emulate S. Robinhood by extracting ransom money from the wealthy screen portrayer of that role, Douglas Fairbanks. For Fairbanks, as the husband of Miss Pickford, was to be asked to pay the $200,000, according to the police.

A. J. Wood, one of the two truck drivers whose purported confession has been made public, is quoted as saying that the plot to kidnap Miss Pickford had its origin in conversations last fall between himself and C. Z. Stevens, the automobile salesman suspect soon after they had a few drinks.

Earthquake Shocks In Chinese Interior Took 5000 Lives Last March

PEKING, May 5.—(AP)—Five thousand lives were lost in the earthquake and fire that destroyed the town of Talifu in Northwest Yunnan March 16, according to Father Salvat of the Catholic mission there, whose story of the holocaust has just reached Peking.

Talifu is almost inaccessible except by river from the Gulf of Tonking, and the letter in question had been en route since March 20, when the earth shocks still were continuing.

The town itself was almost entirely destroyed, only the wall and a few houses remaining intact, the letter dislosed. Hundreds of people were trapped in the flames which followed the first shocks. Four or five neighboring towns also suffered severely.

"The worst shock lasted five or six seconds," the Catholic father wrote. "It was night. Most of the priests in Talifu were gathered in the Catholic residence. About 9:30 o'clock two shocks occurred, followed by another which cracked the house in two."

The letter tells how they raced for the open while walls fell all about them. From a nearby garden they looked upon an area of destruction, in which fires soon began breaking out.

"We left the garden wondering how we could help the unfortunate people buried under the ruins or trapped in the flames," the letter went on. "The streets were choked with debris. I ventured out into the city and managed to reach the place where the fire was the fiercest. General Li was there with his soldiers, but what could they do in such a cauldron? Frightened people were fleeing in every direction. The fire made rapid progress in the direction of the mission and I joined my comrades in the garden. At one o'clock in the morning the house next to ours was in flames and we employed ourselves protecting what was left of our mission. God preserved us in the ruins of our house, and I blessed it."

Shocks continued all night and day disclosed that the town had practically been wiped out.

NONE INJURED IN QUADRUPLE WRECK SUNDAY

Four Cars Figure In a Smashup on Eleventh Street

Four automobiles were damaged, one of them seriously, in a wholesale smash-up on Eleventh street at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Fortunately no one was injured but it was little less than miraculous that some of the numerous persons figuring in the crash escaped unhurt.

The accident started when a Ford coupe, coming out of an alley between Burnett and Broad, was rammed by a Studebaker touring car. The Ford sustained two smashed front wheels, a broken axle, punctured radiator and bent frame, while the Studebaker suffered a broken bumper, a dished front wheel and a flat tire.

Behind the larger of these two cars came a Haynes closed model which sustained a punctured tire and bent fender when it was unable to stop in time to prevent crashing into the others. An innocent Ford delivery truck standing in front of a store was side-swiped by the crumbling machaines in the general mixup and lost more or less paint.

No arrests were made by the police, an agreement being reached between the owners, it is reported.

BISHOP BOAZ APPEALS FOR MISSION AID

Visiting Official At First Methodist Makes Appeal

An urgent appeal in behalf of foreign missions, especially in Japan, China, Korea and other oriental countries from which he has recently returned and which he will again visit this summer was sounded Sunday morning by Bishop H. A. Boaz in an address at the morning services in the First Methodist church, south. Several hundred dollars were raised by the congregation after Bishop Boaz's sermon.

$750,000 Needed.

At least $750,000 must be raised by Southern Methodists before the general conference in November if scores of mission schools in Korea are to remain open, the speaker declared. He asserted the need for schools, hospitals and other Christian institutions was growing more pressing each year and that the necessities of the Oriental countries constituted a supreme challenge to the churches of America.

25,000 Active.

In Japan, Bishop Boaz said, more than 25,000 Nipponese had become active in the work of the Methodist church. Gratifying progress is being made in mission work throughout that land, he said, but its further development was dependent on the support accorded mission workers from home fields.

The sermon was interspersed liberally with interesting stories and ancedotes of his own observations in traveling through the far eastern countries. The bishop will leave the United States within the next 30 days to resume his work in the orient.

Noted Pastor Makes First Appearance At Park Avenue Church

PLEADS LIBERALISM

Is Well Received By Big Audience of Gotham's Distinguished

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—A congregation that crowded to capacity the Park Avenue Baptist church today heard its newly called pastor, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick preach his first sermon from its pulpit—a plea for a broader liberality in church doctrine. In the congregation were John D. Rockefeller, Sr., Mrs. Rockefeller and their son, John D., Jr.

After the sermon, Dr. Fosdick was enthusiastically received. He stood for more than an hour shaking hands with the hundreds of persons who attended the services.

"Thrilling Adventure"

Referring to "thrilling adventure which we are undertaking here," Dr. Fisdick said, "as I see it, we are endeavoring to exalt the central and spiritual elements in Christianity, to make great things great and small things small, and to make this so explicit in the organization of our church that nobody can mistake our sincerity in meaning it.

"We want to say to this city," he continued, "that just one thing is central in Christianity—discipleship to Jesus—and that anybody who has that spiritual root of the matter sincerely in him ought to be welcome on equal terms with everybody else in the churches of Christ."

Referring to the change of policies by the Park Avenue Baptist church, Dr. Fosdick said:

"It is my deep conviction that we are fulfilling in our plans the best tradition of the religious movement to which this church belongs. The genious of our denomination has been its insistence on the competency and freedom of the individual soul in matters of religion. That emphasis upon individual freedom has been our best contribution to Christian history."

To Travel Abroad

Dr. Fosdick will assume regular charge of the pulpit in the fall of 1926. In the meantime he will spend a year in travel and study abroad. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, who resigned as pastor because of his age.

At the end of the sermon, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., shook Dr. Fosdick's hand and congratulated him upon his "eloquent and thrilling sermon." Then with his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Winthrop Rockefeller, he stood under the pulpit and greeted the parishoners.

Several times he presented new dimes to children as they passed by and patted them on the head.

U. S. PLANS FOR GOLD STANDARD AID RELEASED

Federal Reserve Board Plans Support of New Standards

TWO TRANSACTIONS

Two Distinct Moves Are Sponsored by U. S. Interests

WASHINGTON, May 31—(AP)—Details of the plans by which American financial interests will support those of Great Britain in the maintenance of the gold standard in England, were given to the public today for the first time by the federal reserve board.

Two Transactions

While there were actually two distinct transactions, one being the establishment of a direct credit of $100,000,000 to the British government by J. P. Morgan & Co., the reserve board's statement, which appears in the June issue of the federal reserve bulletin, deals with the arrangement made between the Bank of England and the New York Federal Reserve bank prior to the re-establishment of the gold standard and abolition of the ban on gold exports from England. Other federal reserve banks also are participating in the creation of a credit of $200,000,000 for the Bank of England upon which it can draw when and if conditions require.

Expressed Views

The board also issued a lengthy expression of its views concerning the benefits which it believes will be derived from the re-establishment of the gold standard in England and its dominions. If this the board's observations coincide largely with expressions from official sources here, notably those by Dr. A. C. Miller, a reserve board member and by the board's advisory council, which were made public a week ago.

The board believes that the restoration of the gold standard in England will result in a limitation of exchange fluctuation and will thereby remove or largely reduce, hazards to business transactions where cable transfers and exchange must be called.

He did not say what attention the board would give to his consideration of the presidency of the University of Oklahoma.

CAL LABORING HARD TO MERIT HIS VACATION

President Plans Month Of Hard Work Before Play Time

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP) With less than a month remaining before he departs for an extended stay at Swampscott, President Coolidge is giving his attention to a mass of routine business he feels should be disposed of before he starts on his New England vacation.

The work of clearing his desk during the next few weeks will be interrupted for a day, however, when he goes to Annapolis Wednesday to address the naval academy graduating class, and from Saturday until the following Wednesday he will be away from Washington on a trip to Minnesota—his longest journey since he became president.

While Mr. Coolidge by going to Massachusetts late in June, will get relief from the heat which usually prevails here during the summer, his stay at Swampscott, in a sense, really will not be a vacation. Preparations are being made to transfer an office force to Lynn, where headquarters will be established a few miles from White Court, the summer White House, and it will be possible for the president to transact business with practically as much dispatch and ease as if he were in Washington.

In one respect, however, he probably will be to some extent handicapped and that will be his ability to keep in close personal touch with his cabinet and bureau chiefs with whom he is in constant touch here.

Fish in San Antonio River Go to Watery Graves, Man Believes

AUSTIN, May 31.—The mystery of dead hordes of fish in the San Antonio river has been solved.

Officials puzzled a week, inspectors examined and analyzed the fish and water from the river, but were up against an impenetrable barrier as to the cause. But the answer has been given.

How did the fish die?

"They drowned," is the answer of John B. Hawley, noted engineer, builder of Austin's million-dollar filtration plant.

"By drowning," he said, "I mean asphyxiation which appears during moderate rises following long drouths, when a small amount of water passes over an enormous quantity of dead leaves, grass and other decaying matter and is robbed of its oxygen content."

This opinion was given based on his research work done several years ago. When there is a big rise, he said, the quantity of water is such the oxygen content will not be lowered.

"In 1913 or 1914 this condition existed near Fort Worth on the Clear Fork," he said. "The fish all died and Guy Eldridge and I undertook an investigation. Analyses of the water showed no trace of poisoning, but a chemical test showed the oxygen content only three parts in a million, whereas it usually runs nine."

The situation in the San Antonio river is the same, he believes.

Auto-Plane Latest Of Racing Machines

PARIS, May 31.—A new racing apparatus with which it is hoped to make world records on land is a miniature automobile-airplane. The front part is that of a motor car with two wheels on the ground while the rear is designed along the lines of a flying machine.

This hybrid affair has a powerful engine in front and gets its driving power through the wheels. The body tapers in streamlike form which ends in a vertical rudder much like that of an airplane and with several curved horizontal surfaces like the elevators of a heavier-than-air craft.

Standing, the apparatus rests upon its two front wheels with tail drooping behind supported by one rear wheel. When it begins to move rapidly the air pressure under the rear elevators causes the tail to lift itself off the ground and sail through the air.

The chauffeur steers by a combination of gears on wheels and the rudder arrangement on the tail.

SPIES ON NEW AIRPLANE.

Man Held for Peonage in Paris In Plane Case.

PARIS, May 31.—A Russian named Michal Lischinsky has been arrested on charges of attempted espionage in connection with the French Aeronautical department. It is reported that early in March he entered into relations with one of the officials employed in the technical section of the department from whom he sought to elicit confidential information concerning the new all-metal airplanes recently adopted by the French government.

The official informed the police, and by arrangement with them, he made an appointment to meet Lischinsky at a safe for the purpose of handing him the confidential documents he desired. A search o fthe Russian's rooms after his arrest led to the discovery of a large number of documents in his native language and many letters addressed to airplane constructors. Lischinsky has been under suspicion for years owing to his attitude during the war.

TO REMOVE FLAG POLE.

Artists Decide Pole Does Not Blend With Arlington Cemetery.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The great flagstaff that has topped the heights of Arlington, in front of the Curtis-Lee mansion, ever since the National cemetery was established shortly after the Civil war, is to fall before the modern-day conception of harmonious landscape.

The National Fine Arts commission has ruled that the 100-foot shaft doesn't blend with the beauty of the natural surroundings of the cemetery, and the war department is contracting for its removal. It will be preserved, however, by re-erecting it on the Fort Myer Reservation a mile or so away.

COYOTES BOIL THEIR FOOD.

Man Says He Saw Animal Place Rabbit in Hot Spring to Eat Later.

RENO, May 31.—Boiled food for coyotes is the latest tale of the mining camps. George I. James, Nevada state game warden, swears that while on a hunting trip recently he saw a coyote loping over the hills to the edge of one of the boiling Steamboat Springs, near Carson City, with a freshly killed jack rabbit in its jaws. The coyote glanced about, cautiously tossed the rabbit into the natural boiling cauldrom and left.

Twenty-five minutes later, so says Warden James, the coyote returned with two frisking pups and with a rapid thrust of his muzzle flipped the rabbit to the surface and placed it before the pups.

Discarded Favorites Return to Do Battle In the Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—Discarded favorites in the major league's tonight had become potent factors in the pennant race after a tumultuous seventh week during which their bludgeons dealt telling blows at the champ Washington and New York teams.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, Boston Braves and Detroit Tigers, all recent tenants of last place in their respective circuits led the revolt. With seven straight triumphs over the fading St. Louis and Chicago clubs, the McKechnie march into the National carried Corsar colors from fifth place to win the shadow of the pedestal, a top which McGraw-s men found their security seriously threatened for the first time this season.

It remained for the poorly rated Boston Braves to clip the wings of the senior league champions last week, even as the long restrained Tigers in the previous week had broken their baseball fast at the expense of the world champion Senators. Only a record home run by Snyder in the closing game of the series rescued the Giants from a four-game shutout at the hand of Bancroft's entry and on top of the Boston calamity the New York club ran into such determined opposition from Philadelphia that for the first time this year, they dropped more than half of their week's games.

To the Braves, likewise, fell the distinction last week of temporarily checking the rush of the Brooklyn Robins. Jess Barnes' brilliant pitching providing the stumbling block.

Recovering after the severing of their six-game winning streak to finish with an even break on Memorial day, the Dodgers, however, profited by the break of the Giants to shorten the distance to first by three full games.

Back on pennant course today with McGraw at the helm after several weeks of illness, the Giants fenced off the attack and prevented further slicing of their margin as Jack Scott pitched shut out ball against Robinson's men.

Rabbit Maranville's return to the Chicago National line-up failed to completely check the skidding Cub machine, while Cincinnati held fourth place berth with an even break and compelled the Phillies to fall back from third to fifth place to make room for the rushing Pirates.

The Cardinals continued to lag in the rear of the entire pack.

Following up the jolt they gave Washington last week, the Detroit team advanced under a barrage of more than 100 hits last week to six victories in seven starts, the best performance in the American league. Although his pitching staff gave Manager Cobb little opportunity for encouragement, Washington, Cleveland and Chicago, all were compelled to retreat under the blinding batting storm while the Yankees retreated from sixth place to give the Tigers clear room.

Before they fully recovered from the damage of the Detroit eruption, the Senators were singed again in the heat of the Philadelphia flare and escaped for the second week in no better condition than an even break. Failure of the champions to recover their stride, gave the Mackmen a firmer seat in the saddel as they pushed their advantage from two to four full games.

1,500 Wichitans Hear Band at Lake Sunday

Over 1,500 people at Lake Wichita heard the band concert given Sunday evening in the new legion arena by the Municipal band, according to A. B. Miller, manager of the concessions at the lake.

Owing to the crowded condition of the parking, Mr. Miller stated many pleasure seekers were forced to pass the pavilion by. He stated that this condition would be remedied during the week, however, and new parking grounds will be provided next week. An officer will be stationed there to watch.

Weekly band concerts will be given in the arena by the local band and prize fights will be given each Tuesday.

MOORS AND FRENCH QUIET

Raids Continue But Fighting Subsides In Riff Offensive

FEZ, French Morocco, May 31.—(AP)—Large scale offensive operation of both French and Moors are at a standstill, although there have been numerous local raids.

The French have completed evacuation of the entire zone north of the Quergha river, except in Bibane and Aacunet. Their attacks have been merely for the purpose of giving these two "fortresses" a little air.

The Moors are busy raiding the territory abandoned by the French, confiscating cattle and sheep.

Foreign Cars Will Make Bid for 1926 Speedway Honors

Indianapolis Man Believes America Must Look To Laurels

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—(AP)—Racing car builders of the United States will do well to prepare for a foreign invasion next year, T. A. Myers, manager of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway declared today. Mr. Myers, happy over the shattering yesterday of both speed and attendance records at the 1925 automobile racing classic, said he would settle up the affairs of the memorial day event as soon as possible and then turn his attention to the program for 1926.

The speed creations of this country, which have easily overcome a few feeble challenges from foreign cars within the last few years will encounter keen competition next season, Mr. Myers predicted. His forecast is based upon observations during a trip abroad several months ago when he visited a number of European motor car factories.

Pete De Paolo's rhythmical working motor that carried him thrugh the 500-mile dash yesterday to racing renown and prize money that is equivocal to a pot of gold, had scarcely begun to cool before the speculation began as to the race next year. Some track fans expressed the belief De Paolo's averag e of 101.13 miles an hour was a climax in automobile speed performances for the local course but many others held the opinion the small motors to be used next season will be so designed to keep up the pace of this year!

Zbyszko Has Praise For His Conqueror

ST. LOUIS, May 31.—(AP)—Stanislaus Zbyszko, former world's title claimant, defeated by Joe Stecher, Nebraskan, in a heavyweight wrestling match here yesterday, reported himself in the best of health late today despite rumors last night that he was hurt and others that he was dead.

"It's not hard to lose the championship and I do not feel the slightest grudge against Stecher," he commented. "I have realized for a long time that some day or other I must meet the stronger man. It can't be otherwise when one reaches the age of 52 years," the veteran continued.

"The world's title," he added, "has come into the possession of a most worthy man, both physically and morally, and I can recommend Stecher to the public as one well worthy of its highest consideration."

Zbyszko spent last night in a local hospital with suspected internal injuries as the result of one of Stecher's scissors holds. He was evidently in good condition today, saying his injuries consisted only of a "twisted rib."

A freight steamer loaded exclusively with grapefruit arrived here in February, and this shipment is to be followed by regular consignments.

OILERS PICKLE TWILIGHT TILT, TYING LEADERS

Thompson Holds Clothiers To Three Base Bingles

Slugger Thompson shut out and held the Ludlam and Riggs entry to three lone bingles in the nine inning battle of the Twilight league Sunday afternoon on the Twilight diamond. Len Smtih, who twirled for the Ludlam and Riggs nine pitched good ball but ragged support behind him lost the contest, 9 to 0. Len was in rare form for the first half of the game, but the tilt lagged in the last four frames.

Hoow Kizziar led the hitters with three bingles in three times at the plate. Kellogg and Hale each collected a pair for Texhoma, while Dick Gordon poked out two of Ludlam and Riggs three safeties, one a double. Thompson poked out a long home run in the sixth with Ross on the paths.

Hershel Johnso nstarred in the field with several flashing catches that looked good ordinarily for hits. Gordon also made a nice catch of Brown's drive to center in the third. Bashara made a neat play on Ward's hot grounder in sixth and threw him out at first.

Vernie Ross howled loud and long over a called strike in the seventh frame and was chased by Umpire Shamburger. Shadie Hale went behind the plate and Boone went to third.

Bears Come Back Strong After Triple Setback By Panthers, And Show Heels to Rest of League

Cats Continue Dizzy Pace—Spudders Don't Fare So Well on Jaunt Through South Texas

DALLAS, May 31.—(AP)—Another week of heavy hitting and high run scoring, relieved only here and there by flashes of good twirling, passed into the Texas league records Saturday night. The week produced no change in the relative standing of the teams, although some of them, notably the two leaders, improved their percentage.

San Antonio had the best week, losing but one game. The Bears came back strong after their triple setback at the hands of the Panthers the week before, and through sheer power of attack took a firmer hold on second place and gained a half-game on the leaders. Led by Clark and Rosenthal, the Bears piled up 69 runs during the week, offsetting work by their pitchers that at times was worse than mediocre. Nevertheless, they were the victims of the only nine-inning shoutout of the week, Bill Prough of Shreveport turning the trick for the first time this season on the Bear field. Considering the hat-box propositions of this park and the frequency with which home runs are obtained, this was no mean pitching feat. Rosenthal made a valid claim to distinction when on three successive days he drove in the tying or winning runs for his team, sharing honors with Clark who on Saturday bingled his nineteenth home run.

Them Cats Still

Fort Worth met momentary opposition in Beaumont and Houston, but this caused no slackening of the Panthers' dizzy pace and Saturday found them going strong. Houston's failure to win at least two games from the Panthers was a disappointment to advocates of a close race, but the Buffs put up a good enough fight to prove that they still will have to be reckoned with. Fort Worth was the first team to beat Carlyle Littlejohn, who had hung up seven victories in a row for the Buffs. The Panthers are the only team that is consistently getting good pitching, which is probably the best way of explaining their success. Pate, Wachtel and Johns seem to be booked for their best years. Johns, with seven wins and no defeats, is the league's leading pitcher to date. The youngster apparently is after a strike-out record, having registered 21 in his last two games.

Steers Out of Luck.

Wichita Falls, in common with all North Texas teams except Fort Worth, did not fare well on the South Texas invasion. They got but an even break on the week's games. The Spudders are not living up to pre-season expectations. Like San Antonio, they are hampered by indifferent pitching, but they lack the driving power of the Bears. The week-end found them barely above the .500 mark, but safely intrenched in the first division.

Dallas had the poorest week since the season opened. The hapless Steers, after being chewed to tatters in the lair of the Bear, tottered on to Panther park where a duplex defeat was branded into their hides Saturday. By getting two victories over Waco early in the week the Steers managed to maintain their position at the top of the second division, although hard pressed by the Cubs. The latter only split even on the week's games, but in view of Dallas' poor showing, they threatened to displace the Steers.

Shreveport and Beaumont seemed content to remain at the bottom of the heap and made no move to improve their positions. Each had a bright spot on their week's record, however. The Exporters scored a victory over the lordly Panthers and the Sports bearded the Bears in their den.

The week saw the transfer of Joe Rabbitt, fleet outfielder, from the Sports to the Steers, to replace Hack Miller, king pin of the Steer offense, who was beaned in San Antonio and placed on the injured list for an indefinite time.

GOODWIN STRUTS STUFF.

BEAUMONT, May 31.—Marvin Goodwin, right hand pitcher-manager of the Houston Buffs, proved to be an "Iron Man" here Sunday afternoon, as he won both games of a double header with the Beaumont Exporters 14 to 5, and 6 to 4. The spitball hurler showed remarkable control, walking but one man in the sixteen innings, and that one in the first game. Deviveros, shortstop of the losing team, cracked out a home run in the last frame of the short game, bringing in one man ahead of him, but to no avail. The score:

BEARS GO ON RAMPAGE.

SAN ANTONIO, May 31.—With a seven run lead up to the fifth inning, Jim Lindsey let the Waco Cubs overtake him with Pratt's home run in the sixth when Buck Winters halted proceedings to enable the Bears to win 16 to 12 in the final game of the series Sunday. It was far from an earned victory, however, for the fielding on both sides was of an inferior order, aggrevated by erratic pitching. Jim Galloway knocked his eighteenth home run in the sixth, the first batter to face Winters, after Del Pratt had just circled the bases on his four-ply swat off Lindsey, scoring Foss and Brown ahead of him. The fielding feature was a double play by Cohen and Galloway in the eighth when Cohen ran into center field to take Gonzales' fly and wheeld around for a prfct throw to first to catch Booe off the bag.

HERD WHIPS CATS

FORT WORTH, May 31.—Slim Love and Paul Wachtel battled to a fare-thee-well here this afternoon and the Herd from Dallas finally came through with a 2 to 1 victory. The Steers won the game in the eighth when O'Brien pasted a single to left which scored Kearns who had reached first on a fielder's choice and second on an infield out.

ROGERS GETS CHEERS ON TAKING MANAGER JOB

ST. LOUIS, May 31.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby was accorded a great reception by St. Louis fans today when he made his debut as leader of the Cardinals. A crowd of 12,000 were present.

Mayor Victor J. Miller led Hornsby to the plate before the contest. The mayor made a brief talk and Hornsby was presented with a dozen floral pieces while the spectators stood and cheered.

"It's too early to say if I will make changes," the new manager, who plays second base, said. "All I ask is that the players give me their best."

The added duties, he said, would not effect his playing.

There were cheers for Hornsby when he started a fast double play in the first inning and again when he came to the plate for the first time. After a long foul, he drew a walk; the crowd booted.

TRIBE HANGS DETROIT

DETROIT, May 31.—(AP)—A ninth inning rally that brought in four runs came too late to do any good and Detroit bowed to Cleveland 6 to 4 in the last game of a three-game series today. After pitching shutout ball for eight innings, Uhle had to be taken out and Miller got the last two Tigers. Score:

SPORTS TOUCH UP EULAS FOR FIVE SAFETIES

Bodie Cuts Up Something Scandalous—Golvin Triples

SHREVEPORT, May 31.—Dick Morgan made the Shreveport Sports hitters look helpless for nine innings here Sunday afternoon and the Spudders won the final of a three-game series. In five of the first six innings Morgan retired the Sports in order and during the first half dozen stanzas only three balls were hit beyond the infielders. One was a home run by Schick in the third and the other two were out. The score ended 8 to 1 and the Spudders batted against two hurlers, Lefty Thompson and Harlan Peters. Thompson was making his debut here, just reporting from the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league. In the seventh the locals got one man as far as third but the side ended with two runners on base.

Ping Bodie, the fence buster, played a big part in the downfall of the locals. Ping made three hits in four trials and one was a homer over the left field wall in the fourth. He drove in two other runs. Schick's homer was the only real blow for the sports. Golvin's three-bagger in the first inning with the bases full was a feature.

Spuds Score.

Wildness of Thompson and a triple by Golvin and two infield hits counted for four runs in the first for the Spudders. Distel hit a hot one to first and was safe. Callaghan flied to Silva. Bodie walked. Thompson caught Fitzgerald's foul fly. Turgeon walked, filling the bases. Golvin hit to right center for three bases. Dorman was safe on a scratch hit to McDonald. Jonnard flied to right field. It was three up and three down for the Sports. McGaffigan flied to left field. Golvin making a nice stop of Benton's grounder and Benton was out at first, Morgan covering the bag. Ostergard hit a high foul fly to Dorman.

The Gate for Lefty.

Lefty Thompson lasted but one-third of the second inning. Morgan walked but was forced at second on Distel's grounder to short. Callaghan singled to right. Distel went to third and Callaghan to second, when Ostergard's throw to third base passed through the infielders. Bodie singled to left and Distel scored and Callaghan went to second. Peters went in to pitch. Fitzgerald hit to second and Bodie was out, Callaghan scoring on the play. Fitzgerald stole second. Turgeon fanned. Morgan was again master in the second. Silva flied to center. McDonald rolled to second and Bonowitz was thrown out by Dorman.

Peters came through the third without a run being scored against him. Golvin rolled to second and Dorman was out short to first. Jonnard drew a walk but Morgan forced him at second with a roller to Benton.

Schick Homers.

A home run by Schick put the sports in the scoring column in the third. His drive went over the left field wall to start the inning. The next three were out in order. Burns rolled to Sport and Peters to second, McGaffigan rolled to Port. The Spudders evened up for Schick's homer when Bodie hit over the left field wall for a home run after two were out in the fourth. Fitzgerald flied to right field. Benton rolled out to start the second half of the fourth. Ostergard was safe on a grounder to first but Silva hit to third base and a double play followed.

To start the fifth Turgeon popped to Burns and Golvin rolled to McGaffigan. Dorman walked. McGaffigan started towar dsecond to "cover" for an attempted steal and Jonnard singled past him to right field. Morgan hit to Benton and Jonnard was out at second.

It was the same dose for the Sports in their half of the fifth. McDonald fanned. Bonowitz rolled to short and Schick struck out.

Poor Old Ping.

The Spudders scored their eighth run on Bodie's third hit of the day. Distel beat out a slow one to first and went to second on McGaffigan's bad throw to first. Callaghan flied to right. Bodie singled to right and Distel scored. Fitzgerald rolled to second. Benton made a nice one-handed stab of Turgeon's hot grounder and retired the runner. Morgan did not allow the locals to hit the ball out of the infield in the sixth. Distel threw out Burns and then caught Peters' pop fly. McGaffigan rolled to Morgan. Golvin started the seventh by rolling out Schick to Peters who covered first base. Dorman singled to right. Jonnard hit to Peters and Dorman was out at second. Schick stepped off first base taking McGaffigan's throw for a double play and Jonnard was safe. Morgan flied to right.

Ah Ha! a Threat!

The nearest the Sports came to scoring was in the seventh after two were out. Benton popped to short and Ostergard rolled to second. Silva then singled left and McDonald hit to right and Silva went to third. Bonowitz was thrown out on a roller to short. The Sports made a healthy protest on the decision calling Bonowitz out.

The Spudders went out in order in the eighth for the first time. Distel and Callaghan were thrown out by McDonald. Bodie flied to center. After two were out Peters singled to center and McGaffigan rolled to the pitcher.

Fitzgerald opened the ninth with a pop to short and Turgeon popped to Burns. Golvin fanned.

After Benton rolled out to start the ninth Ostergard drew a pass, Silva fouled to first. Ostergard stole second and third but Bonowitz rolled out to second base.

Lewis Ready to Take On All Challengers

CHICAGO, May 31. — (AP) — Ed "Strangler" Lewis, conqueror of Wayne "Big" Munn in their match at Michigan City, Ind., yesterday, had refused so many alluring offers tonight that he was puzzled as to which to accept. He was offered a renewal of an European tour, cancelled at the time Munn tossed him out of the ring at Kansas City, a fifteen weeks vaudeville engagement and the opportunity to make a personal appearance with moving pctures of yesterday's match.

The "Strangler" however, said he will not make any decision for at least two weeks, as he plans to spend a vacation with his parents at Nekoosa, Wis.

Billy Sandow, manager of Lewis, said that "Strangler" will meet any legitimate challengers for the title, which Lewis still claims.

"Lewis is still the champion," Sandow said, "and is ready to defend the title whenever the promoters find a suitable opponent. Lewis does not bar anybody. He never lost the championship to Munn and should have been declared the winner on a foul when Munn tossed him out of the ring at Kansas City. Lewis convinced everybody yesterday that the Kansas City bout was a fluke victory for Munn."

The world's heavyweight wrestling championship is still in a muddle tonight with Lewis and Stecher, the Nebraska farmer, both claiming the title as a result of their victories yesterday.

SHEPPARD AND HIS MILLIONS.

William Sheppard, who is holding the center of the stage in the city of Chicago, may win a vindication and control of the millions that he claims to have inherited in the not remote past. Sheppard accusers say that he is the most fiendish poisoner of the age, that he plotted for years to send to their graves those who controlled the millions that he coveted and finally succeeded in removing the last of the heirs to the great fortune.

Now the prosecutors of the state admit that they are up against a rock wall. Their principle witness against Sheppard has disappeared and left no trace behind him. William Sheppard is either a male borgia or the victim of a chain of circumstances and relentless prosecutors. He has never lost his nerve. Mrs. Sheppard has never lost her nerve. He says that he is as innocent as a new born babe. She says he would not harm a fly. There is a stake of seven million tied up in the case.

If Sheppard is convicted he will not get the millions and neither will his wife get the millions. There are distant relatives of the alleged victims of poison who are ready to step in and ask the law to cut a big ripe mellon.

Clarence Darrow is not in the case. He saved Leopold and Loeb from the electric chair. He pocketed his large fee and then he announced that he was through with the defense of men accused of the crime of murder.

He is wealthy and widely known. Hence forth, he is going to do something for the needy or the unfortunates who are unjustly accused of crime. In his spare moments he is willing to defend free speech, free thought, free assemblage and what he calls the bill of rights. If Darrow had stepped in he would have cleared Sheppard, now that the most important witness for the state has made his get-a-way.

There are ugly stories in Chicago relative to the get-a-way. One newspaper carries the tale that the missing witness received $25,000 and a promise of a beautiful home in a far-a-way clime if he would get away and stay away. This isn't evidence. It may be fiction, but the witness got away and people are asking why.

RUM ROW ON THE RUN.

Rum Row has been beaten. Rum Row is on the run. Rum Row was a fleet of rum ships twelve miles off the American shore line. For six years Rum Row and its captains and speculators had defied the federal government, they defied the law enforcement agents, they flounted the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and they landed millions of gallons of contraband liquors on these shores.

Then Uncle Sam organized his armed rum chasers. He placed in command men who obey orders. He decreed that Rum Row should be obliterated. Well, it has happened. Many ships flying foreign flags steamed away from Rum Row. Many boats owned by the go-betweens were captured or destroyed. Millions of dollars worth of contraband liquor fell into the hands of the government agents. There is no mercy to be shown on the high seas within the legal limits by the agents of the government.

Now that Rum Row is a thing of the past and federal judges are padlocking aristocratic cafes on Manhattan Island, the laugh is on the man who has said all along that the prohibition laws cannot be enforced in many American states.

Foreign ship owners and foreign financiers who are largely responsible for Rum Row and its free booters of the sea may come out of their trance some day. Uncle Sam is an ugly customer when he declares war. He has never known defeat and no criminal ever escapes his clutches.

A CHAPTER ON CIGARETTES.

A total of seventy-three billion cigarettes will be produced in the United States this year, which is an increase of fifty-six billion in ten years. These figures are government made and are official.

Cigarettes produced in the United States alone, if laid end to end, would girdle the earth at the equator more than 126 times, and the tobacco industry this year will pay more in taxes than was collected by the government from all internal revenue sources prior to 1914.

It is estimated that the tax collection from this one industry alone this year, wil lapproximate $345,000,000. For every man, woman and child in the United States, there was collected $3.12 from tobacco taxes and customs duties.

More than 450,000,000 farmers in a single year participated in the distribution of the half billion dollars which the domestic tobacco crop produced when marketed.

John Barleycorn has been outlawed. Queen Nicotine is a reigning monarch. Are the women of America cigarette smokers? According to an A. and M. college professor, most of the pioneer women of Texas were snuff dippers or pipe hitters.

A cigarette is much more dainty and far more attractive than a cob pipe in the hand of the daughter of Eve, and this isn't an argument for smoking cigarettes.

By the way, where did the college professor obtain his information concerning the snuff dipping and tobacco smoking habit of the pioneer women of Texas?

By Dr. Frank Crane

WHAT IS IT TO BE HUMAN?

We often say we like such and such a man because "he is so human."

Such a woman attracts us because she is "human."

What we mean by this remark is that they are subject to the human frailties.

An old Boston preacher once called on me, and as he lit his cigar and drank some cognac brandy in his coffee after dinner, he said, "I am glad to see a man who has a few redeeming vices."

Most of us regard vices as evidences of brotherhood. They show that a man is down on our plane and is not removed from us.

We should remember, however, that while it is human to err, as Pope said, it is also human to be conscious of error, to reject it and struggle against it.

The human thing is to have a temptation, to be subject to it. That is one part of our humanity.

Another element of our humanity, however, is to struggle against evil.

We go for comfort and help to the men who have overcome weakness, not to the men who have yielded.

It give us a fellow feeling for a man to know that he is subject to the same temptations as ourselves. But his advice and example do us no good unless he has successfully combatted with these temptations and overcome them.

It is said of the Master that He was tempted in all points like as we, yet was without sin. It is this very fact of His being without sin, of His having had the temptations and of having overcome them that renders Him a source of strength to humanity.

On the one hand we do not get any benefit from one who has never felt the urge that we have felt, the propensity to evil; on the other hand we do not get any help if he has yielded to it.

The fact that another man has felt the same temptations that we have makes him an inheritor of our common lot, gives us for him a fellow feeling; but we must remember that he is of no assistance to us unless he has successfully combatted these temptations.

There are many examples of those who have gone wrong, who have yielded to the same attacks that are made upon us, but there are a few examples of those who have successfuly resisted them.

We all know how to yield. We all do not know how to resist. And the power to resist is what we most desire.

WANTED—A KNOCKOUT FOR OPIUM.

Here is an opportunity for a chemist or inventor to win a handsome size fortune. Herman A. Metz, a very wealthy New Yorker, has offered a prize of a hundred thousand dollars to the first man to invent a process for producing synthetic opium at a price low enough to wipe out the poppy growing industry of India and China.

Why a great Christian nation is responsible for the great poppy growing industries of India and China. A great Christian nation, or its government or its financiers has protected the traffic and the industry for almost a hundred years.

There is money in opium for the traders and the traffic in opium became a stench in the nostrils of Chinese. They are of the boasted Anglo-Saxon race. They are the owners of the poppy plantations of India and the traders who ship opium to China where it has found a ready sale for almost a century.

These plantation owners and the opium traders were protected by a treaty forced upon China by the British government for many years until the traffic in opium became a stanch in the nostrils of mankind.

Never point the finger of scorn at the Mongolian. He did not encourage the poppy plant industry and neither did he invite the British traders of India to sell their opium to the people of China. Chinese statesmen have battled against the opium curse for years.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

The Most Useful Profession.

Man soon learns to protect his own life.

The instinct of self defence keeps him from being run over by automobiles.

The instinct of the hunter keeps him from starving to death.

If he has ordinary intelligence, he will soon learn, on his own account, rules of eating and bathing and getting sufficient sleep which will keep him in fair physical condition.

But he must be taught to get an education.

Left to his own devices he will get a very primitive one.

Which is the reason that school teaching is the most important profession in the world.

Educate the people, and they will soon be able to dispense with most of the service that doctors and lawyers now give them.

Educate them and statesmen will not continually be needing to save the world for democracy.

Educate them and there will be no doubt whatever about what our children are coming to. We shall be sure that the next generation will be far better than our own.

It is only of late that the importance of the educator has begun to be appreciated. Even now he does not get paid anything like an adequate return for his services.

The president of the biggest and most widely known university in America gets not a quarter of the money paid to Jack Dempsey.

In England and Scotland educators are paid even less in proportion to their services.

It is common, among uneducated and half educated people to regard college professors as theorists, who know nothing about life, and whose practical experience is limited to what they have learned in the halls in which they teach.

Yet it is the force exerted by these men through those they send out into the world that is making men better and nobler, giving them higher ideals, and incidentally vastly increasing material prosperity.

When we begin to think as seriously about the people who will have the mental training of their children as they do of the servants who care for their material comforts the profession of the educator will come into its own.

Great teachers do become famous, and are given a high place in the esteem of the country.

But they deserve something besides that.

The work of the lawyer and the surgeon and the engineer pays high substantial rewards, which can be translated into terms of comfort and security.

The educator deserves fully as well, if not better, at the hands of his countrymen.

If the people can afford to enrich the movie star and the prize fighter, they can certainly pay their educators enough to enable them to live comfortably and to retire when their work is done without anxiety as to the future of themselves and their dependents.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

Gemini.

Today's planetary aspects are not very favorable during the forenoon and counsel abstention from any initiative work of an aggressive nature, but they do present a good opportunity for deliberation, thought, and planning, as the conditions denote an atmosphere that will beget clearness of perception and safeness of judgment. Immediately after midday, other influences prevail, and the signs indicate that what has been thought out in the morning, can now be put into execution, as an urge to accomplish will be felt, and a degree of optimism will be engendered that can only assist, and never hinder, the successful achievement of the task in hand.

The child born today makes its appearance under very auspicious conditions, both as regards physical and moral welfare. It promises to enjoy more than normal health, and its ailments will not only be few, but of an unimportant character. In temperament and character, it will be cheerful and bright, truthful, loyal, and persevering. It will not be brilliant, but will have a plodding nature, and what it once learns will never be forgotten. Its personality will not be one to quickly attract or command attention. Only intimate acquaintance will enable others to appreciare at their true value its many sterling traits. This child is not destined for leadership, but will shine best when carrying out the orders, or executing the plans, of others.

With very few exceptions, all those whose birthday it is today are cheerful companions, and always take a hopeful view of life and its affairs. They enjoy dispositions that apparently rise superior to everyday worries and disappointments. They are optimistic—at times, unduly so—and it is impossible for them t oassociate a thought of failure with any enterprise in which they may be engaged. If failure should occur, an dit often does, they never become cast-down, but immediately start out on something else, with undiminished enthusiasm and hope. It would, of course, prove more successful in a material sense, if their excessive optimism were tinged wit ha more practical outlook. On th eother hand, this might detract fro mthe zest with which they attack their self-imposed tasks, and, thereby prevent wholesouled effort, without which nothing worth while can be accomplished.

They are loyal friends and constant lovers, and their greatest enjoyment is derived from home life, where, by virtue of disposition and temperament ,they are always at their best.

DON'T MARRY PUGLLIST.

Georges Tells German Girls to Let Boxing Gentry Alone.

BERLIN, May 31.—German girls are advised not to marry a boxer by Georges Carpentier, who has arrived in Berlin to referee the Prenzel-Nieman fight. Carpentier admitted that it was on account of his wife that he quit the ring.

"No matter how splendidly one wins his wife sees nothing but a swollen eye," declared the fighter, after confessing that his own wife always trembled while he fought.

Carpentier also found that a wife is disappointed at the life a pugilist must live during training, making it impossible for him to taste the delicious dishes she prepares.

Not less formidable a reason for quitting the ring than his wife, was his baby.

"Remember I have a child of four," he said. "How often I have feared that the baby might not know me if I returned home with a broken nose. No, believe me, boxers should not marry."

British Dramatists Give Yellow a Boost

LONDON, May 31.—The British Drama league appears to have given yellow an enormous boost towards popularity by choosing it for the decorative scheme of its new headquarters in Adelphi Terrace, where Bernard Shaw and Sir James M. Barrie have apartments. Together with the charming view over the Thames, the coloring, it is hoped will produce an atmosphere of the right kind for inspiring playwriting. There are many nooks, corners and dens where genius may work undisturbed.

At the opening of the new quarters Lord Eustac Percy, president of the board of education, gave an official air to the ceremonies and said a good word for the scheme of decoration.

In one of London's largest hotels, 1,200 breakfast cloths of daffodil yellow have been brought into use, the management explaining the idea was to have the linen harmonize with the food.

"Yellow," it was pointed out, "suggests warmth. Above all it makes a sunny color scheme with the brown of toast or rolls and of coffee, and matches the color of apples, grapefruit and oranges."

Another hotel has dull yellow in all its bedrooms.

French Commander Is a Retiring Hero

PARIS, May 31.—General Daugan, new commander-in-chief of the French forces in Morocco, was one of the most modest heroes of the World war. He never got beyond the command of the Moroccan division of the Colonial corps, but he did such execution in difficult places that he received the honor of leading the first French contingent into Germany after the armistice. For this march he chose the first regiment of the Foreign Legion then composed largely of volunteers from Alsace-Larrain.

The entry of the regiment into Chateau Salins coincided with the arrival of the German mission on the way to Nancy to negotiate turning over the Alsatian railways to French direction.

An officer on General Daugan's staff asked him where the German cars could be parked while the columns marched through.

"You see that high spot in the public square, up there?" asked the general, pointing. "Place them there so they can't miss a good sight—their fellow countrymen taking possession of Alsace-Lorraine in the name of France."

MACHINE BUNS, F. O. B.

French Officer Was Given Nest of Machine Gune As Gift.

PARIS, May 31.—Colonel Freydenberg, commanding in the central sector of the French front in Morocco, started life as a monk, but before taking the orders of priesthood, renounced the cloth in favor of a military career.

He fought valiantly in the World war, receiving the cravat of the Legion of Honor on the battlefield. He was a major under General Mangin during the Germans' terrific drive against Verdun.

"How is everything going in your sector?" General Mangin, who recently died, asked Freydenburg one day.

"All right, except for a nest of German machine guns on left flank," replied the major.

"German machine guns!" ejaculated the general, in mock surprise. "Why, I make you a present of them."

Freydenburg saluted and replied: "I will collect them tonight." And he did.

After the armistice, Freydenburg was assigned to Morocco where he resolved to act as a sort of missionary of French civilization in the protection, evangelizing the tribesmen. Now, however, he has been obliged to use other methods.

First Coffin for a King.

The manufacture of coffins has grown into a tremendous industry providing for the utilization of a large quantity of lumber not fit for other construction, due to the fact that coffins in many instances are covered with silk and other fabrics. King Arthur had the first coffin in English history, his having been a hollowed-out log.

HOW IT STARTED

"A MISS IS AS GOOD AS A MILE"

Constantly in everyday speech we meet with this saying to express the fact that to have almost achieved something to have just missed reaching a goal is no better, as far as results are concerned, than never to have made the attempt. It is far cry from the significance of this saying to the medieval tale in which it had its origin.

"Amis et Amile" ("Amis and Amile") is a French lyric dating from the Twelfth or Thirteenth Century, consisting about thirty-five hundred verses which detail the adventure of the two noble knights, the story of their great friendship and mutual sacrifice.

Closer than brothers, and resembling each other to a remarkable degree, Amis and Amile are in the service of Charlemagne, where they battle against and over some the opposition of the treacherous Hardie, and Amis wins for his bride the niece of Charlemagne. Bellicent, the emperor's daughter loves Amile, however, so darkest clouds gather over the heads of the knights. Amis saves his friend and obtains for him the hand of the princess.

In the course of his efforts on behalf of his friends, however, Amis has perjured himself, for which he is punished with leprosy. Amile then voluntarily sacrifices his two sons that Amis may be cured by their blood. By a miracle then the sons are restored to life—and they all live happily ever after.

Whether it was in the thought of their resemblance to each other or their great attachment, which made them inseparable, that our modern saying had its beginning, we do not know. We do know, however, that ther is little similarity between its original significance and the sense in which we today say "A miss is as good as a mile."

POEMS THAT LIVE

COMMONPLACE.

"A commonplace life," we say, and we sigh;
But why should we sigh as we say?
The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky,
Makes up the commonplace day;
The moon and the stars are commonplace things,
And the flower that blooms, and the bird that sings;
But dark were the world and sad our lot
If the flowers failed and the sun shone not;
And God, who studies each separate soul,
Out of commonplace lives makes his beautiful whole.

FOND OF SIMPLE LIFE.

Cal and French President Are Both Advocates of Simplicity.

PARIS, May 31.—President Doumergue, like his republican counterpart at Washington, is fond of the simple life, and an indefatigable worker. During his vacation stay at the Chateau in Rambouillet, which serves as a summer White House, the president arises early every day for a walk through the famous forest in which King Francis, I., hunted. There he saunters swinging a heavy walking stick and thoroughly enjoying himself.

His companions on these jaunts are the officers of his military household or the secretary of the Elysee Palace's permanent staff, who, while appreciative of their chief's smiling good humor and rich southern accent, do not exactly relish the early hour at which he starts his morning constitutional.

M. Doumergue lives frugally but well at Rambouillet, his favorite dish being "brandane de morue," which is something like New England fish balls seasoned with a suspicion of garlic. His favorite drink red wine from his native Rhone Valley.

Industry 4,000 Years Old

The silk industry of China is more than 4,000 years old. It began with the domestication of the wild insect which is now the valued silk worm and it has continued without serious interruption n China ever since. Although the industry has had its ups and downs like others, it is still flourishing and growing in spite of the artificial silk industry, due to the growing popularity of silk as a fabric of the western world. The silk-stocking vogue has had much to do with recent progress.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

MOTHERS, IF YOU WOULD BE BELOVED BY YOUR CHILDREN, KEEP YOUR OWN INTERESTS, YOUR OWN INDIVIDUALITY AND, ABOVE ALL, YOUR OWN INCOME

When a mother wishes to hand herself a large and gorgeous bouquet she says: "I simply exist for my children. I have no life outside of them. I used to go out in society a great deal, but I never go anywhere now. I used to read a lot, but I have given that up. My babies take all of my time. I used to be very fond of dress, but it takes so much money to buy the things the children need that I have nothing left to spend on myself. I have given up everything for my children."

Whereupon you murmur, hypocritically: "What a wonderful mother you are!" when what you would say to her if you spoke the truth is: "What a fool mother you are!"

For no mother makes a greater mistake in rearing her children than the one who sacrifices herself completely to them, who lets them absorb her, body and soul, until she has no separate entity, but has her life so merged in theirs that she hasn't an interest, a thought, or hope, or a desire of her own.

It is a double-barreled mistake, for in the end these selfless mothers nearly always become monsters of selfishness, who devour their children's happiness. As a matter of fact, it takes a lot of intelligent selfishness to make a woman a good mother and the more she preserves of her own individuality the better it is for her and her children.

For one thing, it is no kindness to a chold to inflate its ego and instill in its youthful mind the idea that it is a little tin god before which every one's peace, and comfort, and well-being must be offered up. Mother may put little Johnny and Susie on a pedestal, and burn incense before them, and humbly lay the best of everything at their feet, but when they go out into a cold and hard-boiled world they find that no one recognizes their godship and that if they get anything they have to fight for it, even as you and I.

Many a man is a failure because his mother has bred in him the belief that he is a darling of the gods, to whom success will be offered on a silver salver. And so when the time comes when he has to work for it, he lacks the courage and grit to do it.

Many a woman gives up a perfectly good home and rushes off to the divorce court for no other reason than becausce her husband did not worship her the blind adulation to which her mother had accustomed her and refuses to make of himself a door mat for her to walk on, as he mother had done

You cannot soft-pad life for your children. You cannot always stand between them and hardship and danger, and the good mother is the one who teaches her young ones to have grit and courage and gives them weapons to fight with, instead of babying them and trying to keep them tied to her apron strings.

Another mistake the unselfish mother makes is when she gives everything she has to her children. When they are babies, she wears her last year's hat so that they can have bonnets trimmed with real lace and fur. When they are growing girls and boys, she goes shabby, that they may have the latest things in Kollege Kut Klothes and imported frocks. And when they are married, she turns over all her property to them, certain that they will be as generous to her as she has been to them.

But they never are. No child is ever as submerged in mother as mother is in the child. No child ever has the love for the mother that the mother has for the child, which is, of course, perfectly natural, for the young are absorbed in their own affairs, in their own lives, in their own children.

So only too often, after a woman has impoverished herself so that her children may enjoy her money without waiting for her death to get it, she finds herself an unwelcome guest in the very house she has given her son or daughter and is made to feel that the bread she is really paying for is the bitter bread of dependence.

Between mother with her own pocketbook and mother who has given away everything, and from whom no more gain is to be hoped, there is a wide gulf, and wise is the woman who has sense enough to realize that, after all, her children are human being swayed by human avarice and greed, and who holds on to her own income as long as she lives.

Gratitude has been defined as a lively sense of favors to come. This is true of one's own children as well as other people's children, and the surest way for even a mother to retain her children's attention and solicitude is for her to make it pay them to be deferential to her.

The chief argument, however, against mothers submerging themselves entirely in their children is that by maintaining their own individuality they can avoid becoming parasites upon their children. Every one knows that the presence of the mother-in-law in the house is almost always undesired. Sometime it is a tragedy.

Often, of course, it is a financial necessity, and the mother must live with her children because she has no other means of support.

But in thousands of cases the mother is amply able to have her own home or live in a hotel, but she inflicts herself on her children and jeopardizes their happiness because she has lived so long for John or Susie that she has no life without them.

She has no friends of her own, no resources of her own. She is not willing to go anywhere alone and so she becomes an old woman of the sea upon their backs that they have to carry around with them wherever they go.

So it is that unselfish mothers are often their own undoing and that of their children.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an overworked little drudge in her father's inn.

Landis Ridgeway, her husband, is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

Florence Ridgeway, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn, loving her husband, knows he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying

Steve Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage, and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby Rosilyn and Briscoe will see a great deal of each other, and Lydia will have a chance to exert her wiles upon Landis. The plan works, and Landis, finding himself often alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more.

In Paris meanwhile Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a scheme. These two come to New York where Marietta begins to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Lydia, observing the turn of affairs, is none to pleased, especially when the dancer makes evident headway with Landis while Steve, seizing his chance, makes ardent love to Lydia. After a lavish revel in town the three accept Steve's invitation to a party on his yacht the next day, although Lydia would prefer to have Landis to herself.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosilyn, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. While walking she believes she sees the slumbering form of Briscoe—a few minutes later the earth opens and she is plunged in a mysterious underground passage.

On Van Vorst's yacht Marietta and Lydia engage in a verbal fusillade—Lydia's last shot being a question as to whether the dancer was interested in Landis.

"Oh, so-so."

Lydia went on:—

"I saw you in the Cafe de Paris, didn't I, with Rupert Briscoe? I've known him for some time."

She saw Marietta's finely chiseled nostrils quiver, and a dab of color rise into her smoot olive cheeks.

She cared for Briscoe, then did she? Lydia would find out all about it.

But before she could continue, Marietta said:

"Yes, Mr. Briscoe is a friend of mine. That is to say, I thought he was. Since returning from Paris, I however, have not seen him. I am wondering where he has hidden himself."

"Probably in the wake of a charming young married woman," rejoined Lydia with a light laugh. "He's quite a squire of dames." and then she added:

"Rich bachelors pick and choose, and Rupert really is rather run on. But I shouldn't call him spoiled. Should you?"

Marietta moved restlessly against the rail of the yacht, tapping a nervous tattoo with her long, slim fingers.

"I should call him as selfish as most men."

Lydia stared at her curiously.

"You're amazingly handsome," she announced, with an unusual burst of frankness and generosity. "You ought to have a wonderful time, with your looks, and 'nerve,' and all that sort of thing. And being on the stage is always rather an advantage."

"Is it?" Marietta shrugged her shoulders. Then she said abruptly—

"It depends on what you'd call advantages? Money? Perhaps. A kind of admiration? Yes, maybe. But has it never struck you—"—here she wheeled around on her companion—"that I'd chuck the whole thing for a shot if a decent man whom I love, asked me to marry him?"

Lydia supplemented:—

"If the financial inducement were strong enough, you mean?"

"I mean nothing of the sort," Marietta held her head up with a superb gesture of pride. "I'd marry a poor man tomorrow if I loved him."

"Then I wouldn't." Lydia eyed her in wonder. Was the woman posing? Had she an ulterior motive in these revelations? Maybe she thought this virtuous attitude, this point of view, might be duly handed on to Landis or to Van Vorst and the speaker profit by the repetition?

As though she had read the thought in the other's mind, the Spanish girl said, quietly—

"You do not understand my race, we are emotional. You American women, you are cold. Amazingly cold. You marry for self-interest. This young man, Mr. Ridgeway, he is a bridegroom. Yet where is his loved one, I ask you? Where?"

Lydia repressed the impulse to blurt out—

"Probably down in the country at this moment, flirting with your precious Briscoe—if such a nincompoop as the Page chit knows how to flirt. Rupert, however, will doubtless do his best to instruct her."

Aloud she said, nonchalantly:—

"You are interested in Landis Ridgeway, then?"

CHAPTER LX.

Tete-a-Tete

"I? Poof!" Marietta shrugged her shoulders. "I am agreeable to all men who entertain me. He is only one of many."

The complacent egotism of the speech made Lydia long to crush this "dago upstart."

Before, however, she could frame the fitting words, the men joined them, and a servant came with coffee and liquors. The party, 10 in number, sat in the stern of the yacht. Van Vorst gave orders for the victrola to be started.

"Must be merry, whatever happens!"

It was a perfect day, and Lydia—with a becoming pale pink parasol held daintily above her golden head, and Landis Ridgeway—his old attentive self—beside her, felt that, beyond the unfortunate fact that Landis' marriage, there was nothing in the world to mar her absolute enjoyment.

Yet—afterall—that marriage of his wasn't so inopportune? Rather "bourgeois" to call a spade a spade, but it did make extravagant pleasures for both of them.

Just wait till Royal Cliff, his country home, was re-opened! She, Lydia, his former flame and still the lady who held the whole of his heart, would "make things hum."

With that end in view, she turned to him, and dropping her voice to the sweetly caressing note she usually turned on for his special benefit, remarked:—

"When does the great house-warming take place? And won't you give me lots of notice, Landis? I shall want a sort of trousseau, even if I'm not the bride!"

She saw him flush under his tan. He said uncertainly:

"It's pretty quiet down at Royal Cliff. I'm afraid a house-warming might prove a fizzle."

"Nonsense! Where's your old spirit? ? And what about Rosilyn?"

He bit his lip. Acutely sensitive to any reference to his wife, he somehow felt a cad when she was mentioned by Miss Harbrook.

"Rosilyn likes a quiet life."

Lydia laughed quizzically.

"She seems to get it, anyway." Then more persistent:

"You've simply got to entertain, Landis. All our crowd are expecting it."

"The man was thinking inwardly, and bitterly:"

"If I don't splash my wife's money about, they'll wonder why on earth I married her? Yet what a beast I feel!"

Aloud he said, rather stiffly:

"Something might be arranged. But it depends on Rosilyn."

"He would in words anybow, show deference to that young wife of his.

JUNE BLOOMS MAKE COTTON THE FASTEST

It Is Claimed That July Blooms Take the Longest

HOUSTON, May 31.—(AP)—Cotton which blooms in June makes bolls in 52 days; in July 65 days, and in August, 52 days, according to unofficial data in the possession of H. H. Schutz, government statistician here. Forms appearing on May 24 made open bolls August 9 and on the same dates for three successive months, made open bolls on September 21, October 8 and November 9, respectively.

In view of the late crop this year, the question of the first killing frost becomes of prime interest. Data available at the office of L. H. Daingerfield, head of the Houston weather bureau, show these indications for the various sections of Texas:

Along the coast, climatological data recites, light frosts are liable to occur about December and over the more or less immediately adjacent interior, killing frosts may be expected the latter part of November.

In Western Texas killing frosts may be expected in October, except in the extreme southern portion of that area; in northwest Texas late in October or early in November; in central Texas, usually in November although in portions of the section it has been recorded as early as October 8; in eastern Texas the range is from November 11 over the northern tier of counties to November 25 in the southern tier. The earliest killing frost recorded, occurred October 8 in the northern portion and on October 29 in the southern part.

BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The bond market last week failed to maintain the showing of strength which enabled it to start off with prices ruling at peak levels for the year. Profit-taking, invited by the previous rapid rise in speculative issues, caused moderate recessions in many railroad and industrial liens and later spread to the foreign and high grade and corporation bonds.

Investment buying of securities, although active in the few "bargain" sections of the market, was retarded by slightly firmer rates for money and the preparations being made by banks and institutions to take advantage of the United States treasury's June financing. This was reflected in the easier tone of liberal bonds, although one or two issues succeeded in eclipsing their previous high record. The most significant development of the week in the investment circles, was the indication of growing competition among American bankers for foreign loans. Having lost a $45,000,000 Argentine bond issue to J. P. Morgan & Company, the National City company, a week ago, a syndicate headed by Blair & Company, countered by outbidding the same Morgan group for a $30,000,000 Norwegian loan.

The contest for this issue made it possible for Norway to command the best terms she has ever received in this market. In contrast with previous interest rates of 6 and 8 per cent, the new bonds will bear a 5½ per cent coupon and will be sold this week on a 5.70-3 per cent. Proceeds from the sale will be used to retire the outstanding 8 per cent bonds. Norway's success in refunding high interest bearing obligations at a much lower rate aroused reports that Demark and other countries, similarly situated, would take advantage of the present favorable market conditions to reduce heavy interest charges.

Public offering of the Argentine loan also will be made this week by the Morgan group, which is understood to have obtained the business on a lower bid than the one finally submitted by Blair & Company. The Argentine bonds will be priced at 96 to yield 6.25 per cent. Funds derived from the sale wil lbe used to retire maturing dollar treasury notes and to consolidate Argentina's floating dbts.

TEXAS PRODUCE REVIEW.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 31.—If fortune continues to favor Texas with a brisk movement of her early watermelons, an active deal is in sight and the market trends of last year may be reversed to the better satisfaction of the growers and shippers, according to the co-operative state-federal market news service. A year ago a late movement and heavy competition from southeastern states gave the Texas deal a dragy tone throughout the entire season, while inclement weather in terminal markets further aided the demoralization of the trade. Despite the late opening of the season of 1924, the movement was heaviest recorded for the past five years, 6,813 cars, according to the service, which quotes a detailed summary of the marketing period which is to be mailed growers and shippers of this commodity within the next ten days. A brief resume of the statistical tables of the summary follows:

The movement for the United States as a whole in the season of 1924 was 44,024 cars, 16,110 of which originated in Georgia, 6,513 in Texas, 6,333 in Florida and 3,954 in California. The proportions of the increase can be seen by comparison with the shipment figures of the preceding year when of a total of 33,018 cars moved, 7,219 were from Georgia, 5,315 were from Texas, 4,317 were from Florida and 4,052 were from California. The fact that Florida, California and Georgia all peaked their rollings in the same period as the Texas deal, that is, in the weeks between June 28 and August 9 was one of the unfortunate turns of the season for shipments in the two weeks ending July 12 and July 19 were 7,869 and 8,069 cars respectively as against an average weekly movement for the period from May 31 to October 4 of 2,390 cars.

During the season five distinct deals developed themselves in Texas, the earliest being the Sandia district of Jim Wells and surrounding counties, the second that lying to the east and south of San Antonio and including Guadalupe, Wilson and Atascosa counties, the third the Hempstead-Bellville district, including Hempstead, Bellville, Peters, Cat Springs and adjacent points, the fourth, the northeast Texas district with Sulphur Springs, Como, Picton, Omaha, Mineola and Golden as outstanding loading stations and the fifth district that of Weatherford, Tolar and Granbury which is the most highly concentrated deal of the entire group. Wise and Gray counties, located in the Panhandle and using McLean as the chief loading station, were also important shipping areas. The shipping point of outstanding movement for the year was Weatherford which moved 1,299 cars. The Austin county deal shipped a total of 1,596 cars, 674 of which moved from Bellville.

While Texas was pushed with Georgia competition as far into her own territory as St. Louis and Kansas City, she put appreciable quantities before the consumers of both markets, 167 of 1,008 cars in the former instance and 1,026 of 1,077 cars in the latter arriving between July 1 and August 21 having their origin in this state. Chicago arrivals from Texas show up most unfavorably as compared with previous seasons. Only 285 Texas cars of a total of 2,382 cars received were listed on this market, the Texas deliveries being comparable to 522 cars in the same period in 1924. Sale was very slow on this market due to inclement weather and the overly large size of offerings which were not acceptable to the peddler trade. On July 17 it was estimated that 80 per cent of the cars on track were so badly spotted and sunburnt that it was necessary to turn them over for freight and handling charges.

Minneapolis and St. Paul both drew quite generously from Texas for their supplies, 297 of 497 cars in the former instance and 85 of 135 in the latter. Denver was fed exclusively from Texas during the period under review, the July 1-August 21 arrivals of 241 cars being all from this state.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—Despite a rather uneventful week in the principal commercial and commodity markets, signs of increasing business activity accumulated. Further improvement took place in a number of basic industries and although gains were moderate, they gave indisputable evidence that conservative forces were at work in many lines of trade.

Foreign developments continued to promise beneficial results for the trade of the United States and the rest of the world. With Great Britain maintaining its gold position satisfactorily and steadily, accumulating additional balances, sterling exchange maintained a strong tone within a fraction of a dollar parity. French francs fell below five cents, but anxiety over this reaction was allayed by reports that the franc might be revalued on a gold basis around the five cent level. Clarification of debt funding problems seemed to be making progress.

One of the most tangible indications of expanding business activity was found in advancing commodity prices. Another general increase in gasoline quotations took place and the leading tire manufacturers announced that their prices would be raised five to ten per cent on June 1, to conform to the higher cost of crude rubber, which recently has soared in value.

Conditions in the steel industry assumed a brighter aspect both from the standpoint of production and of prices. Indications that the readjustment of output to demand had been nearly completed were seen by the weekly trade reviews, while the price situation of the leading products was reported more stable.

For the first time in many weeks a note of encouragement was heard from the primary textile markets which have undergone more severe depression than most other industries. Improvement in retail buying was reported but curtailment of production was still urged as one of the remedies for the lowered vitality of the cotton and wool goods business.

The volume of freight traffic continued to set new records. Car loadings for the third week in May, the last for which statistics are available, were the highest of the year and only slightly below the million car mark. The heavy movement of freght, however, has not been reflected in the earnings of the railroads.

Most of the April reports showed lower revenues, partly because the carriers have been sacrificing minimum profits for greater efficiency and partly because of increased outlays for improvements and repairs.

In manufacturing activities, the motor industry has continued to rank among the first. Record breaking sales and production have been reported by several large companies and the automotive shares have not been slow to reflect these business gains.

The opera house at Athens has been converted into apartment dwellings.

Through A Woman's Eyes

WHICH AUNT WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

"I'll do my duty—I'll go and take care of Elsie, but I ll tell her—!"

And everyone felt sorry for Elsie. They knew what Aunt Jane would tell her—that if she had not been so careless she would not have become ill again and made herself a burden to others. It was true enough, Elsie was notoriously careless! She overtaxed her strength and snapped her fingers at care, and precautions, and warning, and advice, and then Aunt Jane would have to leave everything hanging fire and go and take care of her.

Elsie had another Aunt—one who was oh, so different from Aunt Jane. She didn't go and stay all day with Elsie and put the house to rights and scrub while repeating what a mess things were, and cook soup that jellied until you could cut it while scolding Elsie and telling her that it was all her own fault, as Aunt Jane did. Oh, no, not Aunt Bess!

Aunt Bess didn't have those tight lines about her mouth that Aunt Jane had, and she didn't talk so much about duty. She didn't do so much for one either, counting the amount of work they did. Aunt Bess would come and bring flowers and some goodies, and smile her charming smile, and tell Elsie that she would be fine and dandy in no time, and go her pleasant smiling way as untired and unsoiled as she had entered. That was Aunt Bess. Aunt Jane, by the way, doesn't believe in taking flowers to sick relatives. She says that such manifestations are alright from strangers; that our relatives should know we love them anyway—we're supposed to.

If you were Elsie and could have but one of her aunts when you were ill, which would you choose?—the one who did her duty and cleaned and scrubbed and cooked for you, but kept reminding you how it was all your own fault that you had to suffer and give so much trouble to others, or the one who was charming and pleasant and sweet and brought you flowers, but never thought of taking her hat and coat off or even smoothing your bed for you.

It would be lovely of course, to have that perfect combination of the useful and the pleasant, but if duty must be hard and conscientious, and service and usefulness must be unsympathetic and self-righteous and unforgiving, I should choose Aunt Bess, with her flowers and her pleasantness and her good cheer, though I never saw a plate of soup, and parched for someone to bring me water.

But then, I never was a very practical person anyway.

Sub Rosa—Mimi

By MIMI.

I Haven't Time.

"Really, Mimi, it seems to me that girls exaggerate the importance of having dates and seeing men, and going to parties. Why is it of such paramount importance I haven't time for that sort of thing, myself, and I don't miss it at all. Do you think I'm wrong?

BACHELOR GIRL.

Well, Miss Bachelor, you'd better snap right out of it, and make time for a few dates, and a few men, and a great many parties.

Far be it from me to say that a career should be sacrificed to make room for social engagements—and perhaps you are one of the exceptional women who are contented and happy in a business career.

However, don't ever forget that the great majority of women, no matter how successful in their chosen vocations they may be, come to the point where they feel the need of a home and a husband to make them perfectly happy.

This is old-fashioned stuff, I know, but the fact remains that in nine cases out of ten, women who have given up their chance of wifehood and motherhood will admit their loneliness as old age approaches.

It seems to be a grim sort of rule that makes it impossible for women to pursue their ways alone.

There comes a time when the old urge for a nice, broad, comfortable shoulder to weep on overmasters the best of us, and we decide that after all the old-fashioned course is the best.

If you're strong enough in your own convictions, Bachelor Girl, to feel that there will never come a time when you'll have a home and children, you're pretty safe in shunning masculine attentions now, and denying yourself the pleasures of parties and dances.

However, if you plan to enter the ring at all—if you are going to make your bid for a husband, when the time comes—then you'd better begin stepping almost immediately.

Otherwise you'll find that the silly girls—those who went in for nothing but social engagements when they were young, have beaten you in getting a husband.

You see, they have run around so much and acquired so many friends that they're in a more favorable position to meet a man who will perhaps prove to be the great HE.

You, on the other hand, wrapped up in your business, meeting few people outside of your own office, have not the same chances for meeting men, and are rather apt to miss the opportunity of running up against the Right Man.

That's why I emphasize the importance of social life for a girl. It rather puts her in line for the big chance.

BOY DROWNS COMPANION

Angered Youth Holds Another's Head Under Water, Then Goes Home

BRESCIA, Italy, May 31.—With a 14-year-old boy, Paola Masherdotti, in prison on a charge of murder, this little village is recovering from the horror of his ruthless killing of Marcellino Boventi, another boy of the same age. The two little fellows met on the road, near a dairy farm, where their peasant parents were employed, and amused themselves by pitching stones. One of the missiles accidentally struck Paolo and, angered, he threw the other boy's cap into a creek. When the lad reached over to get his cap, Paolo pushed him into the water, held his victim under until he became unconscious and then continued on his way home, seemingly indifferent. When Marcellino's body was found, Paolo recounted the story of the crime with absolute "sangfroid." Although declared to be mentally weak, he was placed in prison.

DOG FILM STAR DIES

One Actor at Least Whom Scandal Let Alone

HOLLYWOOD, May 31.—Old age today ended the career of a motion picture actor who, in all the thirteen years his face and form have been before the public, never has been touched by the breath of scandal. He was Teddy, the Great Dane of a hundred comedies. His role generally was enacted somewhere near a baby in peril or a fire that called for a bright dog's presence of mind. He attained the advanced age of 14 years and is survived by a son and a grandson, both of whom have followed his footsteps and are acting before the camera.

U. S. PUBLISHES 30,000 PAPERS

France Is Second With 10,000 Newspapers.

BERLIN, May 31. — The United States leads the world in the number of newspapers published within its borders, 30,000, according to the newspaper Germania. France is second with 10,000.

The figures, however, tell a different story when the newspapers are compared to the number of inhabitants. On this basis Switzerland stands first with 270 newspapers for every million inhabitants, and the United States is second with 250. In England the proportion is 98 papers to each million of people.

TOURISTS WELCOME

Europeans Anxious to Make Things Nice And Expensive.

GENEVA, May 31.—Promoters of tourist trade in Europe are going out of their way to make easier the movements of parties traveling in automobiles. Free-spending Americans are particularly invited to take notice, and to come and bring their cars and their money.

An international road traffic conference will be held in Paris next fall. It will then be proposed to issue double certificates, one for the driver and one for the car, so the driver can change to another motor without trouble.

ST. PETER IS SUNDAY THEME OF RICHARDSON

He Speaks to Kay Bible Class on Life Of Great Saint

Rev. Frank M. Richardson, presiding elder of this district, was the speaker of the morning Sunday at the Kay Bible class, held in the Strand theatre. Rev. Richardson's remarks centered on the life of St. Peter and were as follows:

Mr. president, ladies, fellow members of the Kay class:

I often wondered what some of the new duties of this position I have would be, when I was appointed to it a year and a half a ago, and I have found out that generally it is a sort of pinch-hit proposition. When it comes to the end of the game the ninth inning, and the winning score on second base, and somebody just has to put the ball over in Texas league style, they always have to call on the presiding elder. So, I have been pinch-hitting all year. I know sometimes it is disappointing. A lady taking the place of a very gifted woman, the other day, made this statement about presiding elders: "Did you ever go to church, have your mind all fixed for a great sermon from one of the outstanding bishops of the church, and then, to your amazement and surprise, see the pastor walk out with the presiding elder?"

Praise For Kay.

I want to say, though, it is a real pleasure to be here this morning. I watch this class with a great deal of interest. I do not know of a body of men in the world that is doing a finer piece of work than you are doing in the heart of this great city. You have a marvelous teacher in this class, one of the most gifted men in scriptural interpretation I have ever heard in my life. He doesn't claim to be a scriptural scholar, and, yet, when he gets through with the Sunday school lesson, he puts to shame many scholars I have heard in my life, and I want to congratulate you upon coming here and listening to him from Sunday to Sunday.

Not only have you a great teacher here, but a president who puts as much nervous energy behind this class as anyone I ever saw. He literally lays himself out to keep this class going. And, not only has the class a great teacher and president, but also has behind it a group of splendid men that with lavish liberality and marked fidelity make this great meeting of men possible.

In following a man like Judge Kay from Sunday to Sunday, I feel like the darky who had been to the front and came home badly wounded. One of his young friends was going to the front, and he said: "Now, Sambo, I'm going to tell you how to keep from getting wounded when you get to the front. When you are marching to the front, don't go straight down the line, but zag, and then zig, and then zag." Old Sambo looked at him and said: "Mose, how did you happen to get wounded" He said: "I was zigin' when I ought to be zagin'." I am always afraid of a position like this. I am always afrnid that I might step off wrong.

So much for an introduction.

Turn to St. Peter

We turn, this morning, from St. Paul to St. Peter. I am going to call it from St. Paul to Peter. St. Paul was far above the average, ordinary man in almost every gift he had. We call him the field marsnal of early Christianity, the hero of piety, the iron man of Christianity, until he stands out yonder, literally by himself, a man far above any of the men of his generation, or even since. A man all to himself. But, this man St. Peter, that we take up this morning, is a man that lives right down on Main street, where we live; common, ordinary, every-day man, just like we are. We admire St. Paul and stand him way off yonder, but we love old St. Peter for what he was, and what he was not; if you will allow me to use that expression. St. Peter was just a cross-section of the every-day man; just an ordinary, industrious, vacillating, every-day man. Consider what he was and, somehow, or other, we can get up close to him, and we can love him, and we can see in him just what is in us, and when we meet with his life, we meet with our life. His name is not written up in the clouds; he is not lost on the pages of history. He takes his place by our side and lives your life and my life, every day that we live. St. Peter is a man; a real every-day man; one that we can love; one that we can love from; one that we can, almost, as in years gone by, worship, because he was a man, and yet, overcome the things that a man has to overcome.

We find about him, this morning, that he had a very tender and sympathetic heart. After all, this old world is hungry for a man that has a tender and a sympathetic heart. How our hearts go out! How we long! How we love the man that loves us! And, here was a man in need; a man that had been paralyzed; a man that was utterly helpless; a man that needed some big, strong man to come to his rescue, and St. Peter was the man that had the heart, and sympathy and brotherliness to go to him.

Sympathy

We find men today that have had all the rough edges and rough angles educated off of him. Not so with Peter. He was educated in the university of hard knocks, and those edges stuck right out in his life, and and you could see them, but the fine thing about him was, whenever he found a man in need, his heart went out to him. This man had his sympathy, and his love, and he went to that man in the only name in the world. He went to that man in the name of Jesus.

St. Peter would be lost back yonder in an unmarked and unnamed grave; St. Peter would have been lost back yonder and his name never heard of, if Jesus Christ hadn't come into his life, but when a fisherman on the Sea of Galilee, Christ came into his life and lifted him out of himself and, from then on, he began to climb the ladder that reached higher and higher, until he reached man's itself. What a man he w... sus took hold o... man in ... that when and I man b... rines of attained that are ...

has come into his life; and such a man this was. A man that was frail, and weak, and tempestuous, and yet, when Christ laid His hands on him, he grew into the marvelous man that he became. He said: "There isn't a man in the world that can help me in an hour like this. Here is a paralytic, and I am going to call on Jesus. He took me, rugged, uncouth and unkempt that I was. I am going to call on that name and see what He can do."

And, he called on the high name of Jesus, and that man was made well.

Now, I am not here to say that I believe in all these faith cures to today. I will say that I am rather a hard-headed Christian and some of these things I don't believe in, and a lot of those things done under the guise of religion. That is anything but Christianity. But I want to say to you that no man can say, and I would be the last one to say, what faith in prayer would do in hours of great emergency. And, here was a man that faith and prayer lifted off of the couch of invalidism, and placed him on his feet, and then he goes to another city. This great heart of his goes out, and they find a woman that is dead. They say she was a good woman. What a wonderful tribute that word "good" contains in it. I want to pause here long enough to at least express, in a small way, the debt that we owe to the good women that we have met along the way. This hour would not be misspent at all, if each one, in our minds and hearts, could pause and think good for the god women that have come into our lives. You know, in this age of ours, when women are under a tremendous strain—it is a transition age with womanhood, from the old-fashioned Mother within the secret confines of the home, to the woman out in the business world. I wouldn't take one opportunity from the modern woman today, but I would rather have her understand that no matter how she may polish her mind, or elevate herself mentally, that she can never dispense with the goodness that belongs to a woman's character.

A Good Woman

Yes, this was a good woman, and what a debt we owe to the good women that have come into our lives. I remember when our conference met in my native city of Sherman. Somehow or other, after the devotional was over, I wasn't interested in what was going on in the conference, and I said to an old college chum of mine, "John Wesley, don't you want to walk with me? And, we walked down Travis street and up Lamar street, and then into a city whose numbers never decrease. I went down this well kept avenue, and then down that one, and I stopped in front of a little slab with uncovered head, and I read: "Ella Belle Richardson, born in Clarksville, Mo., August 20, 1854. Died in Sherman, Texas, December 21, 1911. Wife of W. J. Richardson." and I lost the world for a little while, and I found myself standing with the lite of that woman passing before me, and I thanked God that she had been a good woman, and that I would never be able to live quite the life that her prayers would warrant me living.

Men, let's stop this morning, as a group of men, and lay a flower on the memory of those good women that have come along our pathway. They are God's angels, and God's messengers to you and to me. Yes, it was a good woman. What a monument he builded when that word was said. Women may attain heights yet undreamed of by their sex; they will never scale a higher height than real goodness of character.

Yes, and Peter prayed again. I don't know what you think about prayer, but Peter prayed here. I don't know whether you believe in prayer this morning or not, but I want to tell you, the hour will come when you do believe in prayer. Every normal man believes in prayer. Whenever you are absolutely normal, you are going to believe in prayer. I do not know how you have been tossed about in this old, hard world of ours; I do not care what your life has been, whether religious or sinful; I want to tell you, the hour is coming when you will believe in prayer; and this man knelt down and prayed. The poet has said that "More things are wrought by prayer than this world drams of." He knelt down there and prayed by that dead man.

Can't Perform Miracles

Now I believe this, that the miracle of raising the dead passed out when the apostolic college passed into history. I don't believe that the modern church is warranted in believing or preaching, in any sense, that we can perform miracles like that. But listen, I do believe that the modern church and the modern men and women that believe in Jesus Christ have an undiscovered field of faith and prayer that we have never gone into. I do believe that there are possibilities for your life, and mine, in a field of prayer and faith, that we have never yet even touched.

Believe in prayer? Oh yes, we believe in prayer, when a tremendous emergency comes into our lives. It is a forgotten secret until that hour arrives. But, men, just this word. It is the finest, manly habit in the world to cultivate. It is a habit that puts granite in your character, and iron in your blood, and steel in your nerves. It is a fine habit—prayer.

What a man this was, that had done these things. A man of wonderful heart power, and a man that had done things because he had opened the windows of his heart and let Jesus Christ into his life. Oh, what man-making power there is when men lay hold of our Christ. What you and I can be, plus Jesus Christ, is the lesson of this hour. Not what you are in your native state; not what you are with your natural tendencies, but what you are with your native state, and your natural tendencies, in touch with Jesus Christ.

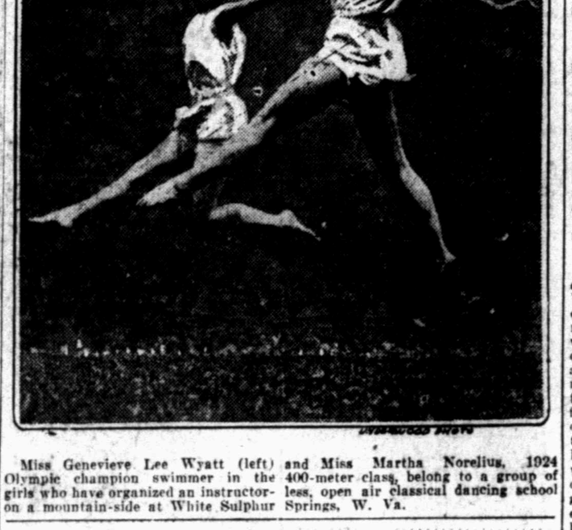

Once I was in one of the great art galleries of the world. I stopped before one of those great pictures. It was the picture of Mary Magdalena, falling on her knees, with her face upturned and clasping the ankles of the Christ, as He hung on the cross, and you could read in her face, and in her eyes, words of loving tenderness, as she looked into His face on the cross. And then there came into my mind another picture, and if I had been an artist, I would have touched the brush to the canvas, and would have painted the picture of an every-day man, living down on Main street, the every-day life that men and women must live in this old, sordid world, and that man, too, has fallen with his hands around the feet of Jesus Christ, and looking unto Him for strength and power.

POWERS TALKS ON TOWER OF BABEL SUNDAY

Pastor Takes Incident To Offer Warning To America

Dr. O. L. Powers read from Genesis the story of the building of the Tower of Babel. Sunday morning, to his congregation, and made practical application of the sthory to his church and to America as a nation.

He said: I want us to consider this story, this morning. After the flood, there were Noah, his three sons and their families. They built an altar and then they arose and moved westward, after the desolation of the flood, and they came to the plains of Shinar where they found fertile soil and a place where they wanted to abide, and there they lingered in contentment and multiplied. They said, Let us build an altar and a city and build a tower which shall reach to Heaven. Immediately they began work.

Came to Confusion.

It seems that God was not in it, for soon it came to folly and confusion. Why was it that their plans ended in confusion? First, they said "Let us make a name for ourselves." They were not thinking of God's name in order to give God glory; they wanted a name for themselves. What is there in a name anyway? What is the difference in names? After all, the difference between men and women is the dressing and the sauce—the outer trimming. We try to cover that fact, but after all, it is only camouflage; we all came from the dust and back to dust we will all return; there is no great difference between men however much we may try to cover up; but they said, let us make a name for ourselves. What is true of a man is also true of a nation.

You know that the highway of history is lined with the wreck of nations who rose and flourished and fell. Those nations started out to make a name for themselves and they forgot God, now they have fallen. It is fitting, today, that we should hark back and come down along the march of nations and ask ourselves if we are not following in the wake of nations that have gone down to the trashpile Are we, as a nation, following in the wake of those nations who have been buried. There are signs that America today, wants, and is seeking a place among nations of the world. There are signs that America has forgotten the conditions under which she was born and the travel through which she has gone and it is fitting that we, as Americans, should ask ourselves are we in that mad march and are we giving our aid to the steering of this great nation away from God? God made a place and separated us from the other countries and from kings and gave us this marvelous continent and climate and hedged us about by his wonderful providence and he opened the windows of Heaven and poured out His bounty, in material blessings, on us until America is almost the highest nation of the earth. Is America building a Tower of Babel? Is America headed toward the rock and following in the footsteps of the nation that have been buried

Look Backward.

Look backward, that is what we need to do. There are signs today in our body politic that there is a cancer eating out the very heart of our nation and that cancer has outward manifestations that are unmistakable signs of death and decay. Signs of decay and death are: Desecration of God's Holy Day. You say, preacher, you need not preach on that, and, honestly, it seems that the devil puts it into my heart that I just as well not preach on it again, but the desecration of Sunday is a sure sign of decay. On Saturday, men begin to get ready to go today to the lakes, or they go today to the golf courses and to see baseball games. Playday, this, and that leaves the churches destitute of people. Why have the nations of the earth fallen? Second, the emphasis today on the physical. We are emphasizing the physical instead of the spiritual. Who are the ones who are pictured in your papers today. Why, Dempsey, Babe Ruth, and others of their kind. While we are lavishing our laurels and our praise on these, who magnify the body, our school teachers are getting less than the man who carries the brick and mortar to build the houses for us to live in; the man who feeds our hogs makes more than the man who feeds our souls. If you will go back to Athens and Rome and Babylon, you will find that before they fell, they were going in the same direction that we are headed today.

Another sign that America is headed toward the grave is the desolation of our country,—growing up of the corn and decay of the farmhouses. Any read leading out of our city you will hardly find a country home that is well kept, that has the signs of prosperity and culture that homes should have; but go further on, and you find grown up farms, desolate homes. Most men who mean anything to our town, to our schools, to our churches were born and reared in the country. If I had my way, this morning, I would go out five or six miles on the pike and build me a cottage and try to rear my children out there. God don't raise men and women in the city—it is the exception when he does.

Corruption in Courts.

Another sign of decay is the prostitution of justice and corruption of our courts. When we go to get a lawyer now, we do not care whether he knows law or not, or whether he has power with the jury, we want a lawyer that has a pull with the government. Today, in this great state of Texas, robbers, murderers—every kind of criminal on earth, is being turned loose on our homes, on our business and our social life—from one to five every day and many of them almost before they reach the prison are turned out, and while we make a joke of it, the thing is killing the justice and righteousness and, stifling those things that ought to be the truest and most sacred in all of our governmental life. When did you ever hear of a rich man being hung? God forbid that I should play upon that string, and yet, everybody here, knows that if one has money enough he never will be hanged.

There is another sign—the passing

BEES ROUT MOTHER WREN

Wild Bees Take Charge of Bird's Home and Form Comb Over Nest

ABERDEEN, Wash., May 31.—How the maternal instinct of a tiny wren twice in as many years was frustrated by a colony of wild bees has been related by Samuel Benn, a bird lover of this city.

For two years, Mr. Benn said, he watched a wren carrying material to build her nest in a bird house he had erected, and although she occupied it for a time each season and laid her eggs, no baby wrens ever put in their appearance.

Recently when he was changing the location of the bird house, Mr. Benn discovered that both years wild bees had taken possession of the nest and had formed their honeycomb over the mother wren's eggs.

Many lumber concerns of Finland have combined to ship their products to this country.

Riff Leader Takes Flyers in Marl... And Reads Napoleon

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—Speculation on the Paris Bourse and reading about Napoleon are the two great pastimes of Abd-El-Krim, the Riffian chieftain, now oposing Marshal Lisatey's forces in French Morocco.

Abd-El-Krim's account with one of the largest firms of brokers on the Paris stock exchange was both large and active up to the time of his offensive against the French lines. Since the beginning of open warfare the account has been stagnant, with a small balance in favor of the Moor.

Caids accepting the French protectorate have readily acquired a liking for speculations. The game became so attractive that, according to people connected with the protectorate, it has had almost as much influence in pacifying the country as French diplomacy, bayonets and gunpowder.
