Lubbock, Tahoka Men Are Held Up

Sterling Parrish And Dr. E. E. Callaway Bitten At "Lost Handbag" Gag to Lose $35 And Watch

Decoying their victims by placing a handbag in the middle of the highway, two masked bandits, each armed with a revolver, held up and robbed Sterling Parrish, of Lubbock, and Dr. E. E. Callaway, of Tahoka, three miles south of Post Friday night about 8:30 o'clock.

The highwaymen, springing from the barbit as Dr. Callaway appeared to pick up the hand bag, removed $25 in money from Parrish's pocket and took $10 in money and a $35 watch from the physician's pockets.

Woman Undisturbed
Mrs. Callaway, who remained in the automobile, was undisturbed by the culprits.

Shortly after the incident occurred, the trio drove into Post and after reporting to Garza county officers a hasty return to the scene of the robbery was made, but to no avail.

Description Meager
"A car was parked near the point where we were trapped, but was not easily observed," Dr. Callaway said. "After robbing us, the pair ordered us to drive on as fast as we could go. We could not give a good description of the robbers."

Dr. and Mrs. Callaway, returning from Fort Worth, were furnished transportation by Parrish, who offered them a ride when their car developed trouble at Post. Parrish was returning from a visit to Dallas. He is the son of State Senator Pink L. Parrish of this city.

Lubbock Building Is Third In State

DALLAS, Nov. 23. (AP)—While the slump of the last two weeks still retarded building initiation in several of Texas' larger cities two smaller cities which ordinarily are in the five figure class, spurred this week to swell the state's total. Corpus Christi had a total of $437,275 worth of permits in the week to rank at the top, ahead of Houston. The usual leader, Houston was second with $315,235 in permits just ahead of Lubbock which recorded

Harmony Seen In Lubbock County's Proposed Highway Paving Campaign

Good Roads Group To Map Out Plans Of Bond Issue Drive

COON after Thanksgiving, according to Charles F. O'Neill, chairman of the Lubbock County Good Roads association, a meeting of the association will be held to definitely plan the remaining part of the campaign to put over the bond issue of $291,000, to provide funds to pave highways number 7, 9 and 53, throughout Lubbock county, at the election to be held on Tuesday, December 17.

Expressing gratification at the interest manifested in the election, O'Neill also stated that there would be much work necessary to carry the proposition.

Slaton Drive Starts
"Slaton folks have already gone to work," O'Neill said. "I understand from L. A. Wilson, secretary of the city's chamber of commerce, that considerable has been done there for this project and that not a great deal of opposition is evident."

"Idolou citizens, however, if the expression contained in the city's newspaper last week is any criterion, seem pessimistic over the election call. Surely the county number 53 might miss Idolou. This is a remote contingency. The petition requesting the election calls for Idolou as one of the control points. The bond issue call specifies that highway 53 shall run through Idolou."

Safeguards Made
"Every possible safeguard has been placed in the election proceedings to make sure that this highway shall run through Idolou and the other towns mentioned in the election call. Surely the county commissioners can never permit the bonds voted on this highway in any way providing funds to build a road to any point other than Idolou."

O'Neill has figured out the cost to Lubbock county taxpayers for the bond issue as will be less than $100,000. The total cost on these bonds will be a maximum of 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

"The average farm in Lubbock county, of 160 acres," said O'Neill, "is assessed at $12 per acre, or $1,920. At 30 cents per $100 valuation, the total road tax will be only $5.76 per year, or a trifle over three cents per acre."

"Any farmer in Lubbock county will save more than this tax on his automobile tires alone, to say nothing of his saving on gasoline."

PRISONERS ASK BOND

Alleged Holmes Slayers In Jail At Stinnett

STINNETT, Nov. 23. (AP)—Sam Jones and Jim Hodges, charged with the slaying of District Attorney John A. Holmes, were still in the Hutchinson county jail late tonight attempting to obtain someone to make bonds for them.

The two men, who were whisked about North and Central Texas from one jail to another this week by Hutchinson county officers in an attempt to avoid premature bonds, were granted bonds totaling $9,000 each, after an exciting habeas corpus hearing here today. During the hearing remarks made by District Attorney Clem Calhoun concerning possible motives of the defendants' lawyers almost resulted in a fist fight. Calhoun refused to reveal all of the evidence against Jones and Hodges. Calhoun's explanation of his refusal to reveal state testimony, Wither, leaped to his feet and said that he took the remark as an insult.

Between 100 and 150 farmers are expected to attend the meeting, Mr. Seed said. The society is purely a local organization but is to be affiliated with a state and national co-operative soon after starting its work here, Mr. Seed said.

Mr. Mackenzie was sent to this city upon request of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Carlsbad Caverns Highway Group To Meet In Lubbock

Delegates From 30 Towns Along Route Will Gather Here Monday; Attendance Of 200 Is Expected

Delegates from more than 30 towns and cities along the route of the Carlsbad Caverns highway, between Oklahoma City and El Paso, will begin arriving in Lubbock today for the first annual convention of the association bearing the name of the highway, which will open Monday morning. Attendance at the gathering is expected to be between 150 and 200, not counting those of this city.

A wire received Saturday by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce from R. A. Singletary, of Oklahoma City, requested reservations for a party of 15 from that city. This party will arrive some time late Sunday evening, the telegram stated, and further remarked that it looks like all towns on the route in the state of Oklahoma will be represented.

Registration of delegates will begin at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning, at the First Methodist church, which will also be used for the morning session of the meeting. At 10 o'clock the convention will open.

TO ELECT OFFICERS

Co-Operative Gin Society Will Meet Monday

A meeting for the election of officers of the Farmers Co-operative Gin society will be held on Monday night at 7:30 in the county court room of the courthouse. T. H. Speed, who is aiding in the organization of the society, announced yesterday.

Between 100 and 150 farmers are expected to attend the meeting, Mr. Seed said. The society is purely a local organization but is to be affiliated with a state and national co-operative soon after starting its work here, Mr. Seed said.

Bond Issue Will Not Determine Routing Of Highway 53

FROM a telephonic conversation held between County Judge Robert H. Bean, of Lubbock, and Judge W. R. Ely, of Abilene, member of the Texas State Highway Commission, indications are that the next few days will provide another step toward county-wide harmony in Lubbock county's good roads problem.

"Judge Ely told me," says Judge Bean, "that he certainly would not look upon the coming election in this county as in any way a referendum on the routing of Highway 53 out of Lubbock. He expressed the belief, further, that the other members of the State Highway Commission would not consider this election as such a referendum."

Commission To Meet
The State Highway Commission is due to meet in session at Austin, beginning Monday, according to Judge Bean, and action upon a communication addressed to that body by the Lubbock county commissioners' court is expected within the next few days.

When the county-wide election was called by the court, on November 15, resolutions were passed in which it was agreed that the Lubbock county commissioners did not consider the past two elections a referendum on 53's routing and that it did not consider the election set for Tuesday, December 17, as a referendum. This body also stated, by resolution, that alleged action on the part of the State Highway Commission to the effect that, under certain considerations, routing of 53 was changed from the Avenue H route to the Broadway route.

The Lubbock county commissioners explained to the state body that no agreement had ever been made with them as to any considerations.

Community Chest Forces Recruited

One Week Remains Before Opening Of $30,000 City-Wide Campaign; Success Intimated By Leaders

With only one week left before the opening of Lubbock's $30,000 community chest drive on December 3 to 6, leaders of the various divisions will put forth every effort in securing that their forces are recruited to full strength.

Numerous organization meetings have been held during the past week. Practically 100 per cent attendance was experienced by Colonels and chairmen in holding their group meetings. Men and women are said to be giving unstintingly of their time and the firm determination that Lubbock will enjoy the reputation of putting off every worthy cause undertaken.

Action This Week

Two divisions will get in action this week. H. L. Allen and his big committee will start from a meeting to be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to call on all those in the city who are considered capable of subscribing $100 or more. Prospect cards will be distributed and the committee paired off. They will report progress on Friday. No public report will be made by this

Victims of Auto Crash Unchanged

Following a near-fatal crash here Friday afternoon, in which two persons were seriously injured, reports from the Lubbock sanitarium last night were that the condition of Mrs. C. C. Vance, 23, of Shallowater, was unchanged, though hopes are held for her recovery.

Attaches at the West Texas hospital last night stated that John Portwood, of Lubbock, was resting much better and that his recovery seems certain. Both of the victims received fractured skulls.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Seventh street and Avenue U, when the cars in which the two were riding collided and were overturned. One of the autos was thrown clear of the street into a nearby yard while the other landed in a ditch.

Victim Succumbs En Route To Sudan With Passing Motorists; Others Not Seriously Hurt

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 23.—G. L. Collard, 24, Littlefield, was killed and three other persons were slightly injured when two automobiles were wrecked in a collision two miles west of Amherst Saturday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

C. E. Thornton and Charles Glenn, both of Littlefield, who were accompanying Collard, and W. E. Love, of Sudan, driver of one of the other automobile, sustained minor injuries.

Injuries Fatal
Collard died while a passing motorist was en route to Sudan with the injured men.

The fatal victim sustained a broken shoulder and a severely crushed head, together with other body injuries. He was driver of the car, a light roadster.

According to explanations of Thornton and Glenn, Collard's car, after developing unaccountable trouble, swerved to the left of the road and struck head-on the auto driven by Love.

"I cannot explain the trouble," said Thornton. "It all happened too suddenly."

Collard, who was a lineman for the Texas Utilities company, is survived by his widow, a two-year-old daughter, a brother, Leo, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. H. G. Dobbs, of Wichita, Kan. Funeral services will be held here Monday.

Thornton is a lineman for the utilities company, while Glenn is a helper.

Five Boys Drown In Icy Reservoir

JEANETTE, Pa. Nov. 23. (AP)—Five boys ranging in age from 8 to 12 years, drowned near here today when they fell through thin ice on a reservoir while skating. The bodies were recovered several hours later.

The ice on the reservoir was said to have been about an inch in thickness and the boys had skated only 15 feet from the rim when they gave way and plunged their heads into the cold water. The boys, sons of miners, were John Chlaris, 12; Walter Lotzky, 10; Chester Lancuski, 10; John Gresh, 8, and William Gubiesky, 11. The accident occurred at Edna Number 2 mine of the Hillman Coal and Coke company.

Three hours' labor by the parents, brothers, sisters and friends of the boys were required before all the bodies had been recovered. Hundreds of persons from the Edna Number 2 settlement and nearby villages gathered about the reservoir as the rescue efforts proceeded.

Woman Swallows Poison Here To End "Troubles"

Mrs. G. W. Redman Is Recovering From Mercury Tablet

HER aim aborted, Mrs. G. W. Redman, 31, of Post, is recovering today at the Lubbock sanitarium following an attempt Saturday morning about 8:30 o'clock to take her own life as a means of ending her "troubles."

The woman stated yesterday that she swallowed one bichloride of mercury tablet shortly before going to the home of her sister, Mrs. W. P. Smith, 2413 25th street. She was taken immediately to the sanitarium for emergency treatment.

Wants To Recover
"It seemed to be the easiest way out," she explained. "I've had just a whole lot of trouble. But now after it is done I want to get well, and I probably will never do such a thing again."

Mrs. Redman explained that she has been living with her mother at Post for the past two months and that she has three children in that city though they live with her husband's mother. She stated that she and her husband had been separated for about that length of time.

Attendants at the sanitarium last night stated that her exact condition could not be determined for a period of between 16 to 18 hours though she seemed to be resting well at that time.

Lubbock's population now is conservatively estimated at 23,448, reflecting a gain of 2,856 during the last year.

These figures were obtained Saturday in a letter received from the Hudspeth directory company by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Three Charged In Stinnett Robbery

(By Associated Press)
STINNETT, Nov. 23.—Reuben A. Franks, former assistant cashier of the First State bank here, who was handcuffed in the vault yesterday when robbers escaped with more than $6,000 of the bank's money was charged with theft of more than $50 here tonight. Bert Smith and Bill Adams, arrested in Amarillo, were charged with Franks and police were searching for a fourth man whose name they did not reveal.

Police said they had full statements from each of the prisoners and that they had recovered all but $138 of the $6,001.80 loot. The men were expected to get their examining trials Monday.

Confesses Robbery
According to officers Franks confessed that he planned the robbery with Adams, whom he then knew as Baker, and that Adams followed him into the vault yesterday, held a sack while Franks placed the ready stacked money in it, and placed the handcuffs on his wrists, leaving the vault door open a crack.

Adams, police said, admitted that he planned the robbery with Franks and said that after he left the bank he went down the road toward Borger a couple of miles, turned north of the money over to Smith and then returned to Amarillo, where he and Smith were arrested.

Lubbock County Production Expected To Exceed That Of Last Year; Picking Slowed Up By Weather

Lubbock county's cotton production this season is practically certain to exceed that of 1928, with ginnings for last week bringing totals to 32,896 bales. This is within 2,748 of last year's total, which was 35,644 bales.

During the past seven day period there were 2,266 bales reported ginned.

Weather Halts Picking

Weather was responsible for only about half a week of picking and gins were therefore running about half the time.

The seven Lubbock gins reported a gain of 740 bales, making their season's figure at 9,584. Slaton's six gins turned out 292 bales in the week, giving them 5,528 to date. While Idolou's four gins report 332 bales handled and a total of 4,182 this year. The two gins at Shallowater have handled 3,664 bales, of which 262 were obtained last week.

There are 30 gins in the county, all but one of them in active operation, with the exception of one of the two at Monroe, which has been idle for the past few weeks.

Totals Given

The following totals are reported, other than those of Lubbock, Slaton, Idolou and Shallowater gins: Monroe, 1,425; Wolffarth, 1,565; Acuff, 1,981; McClung, 1,860; Benton, 501; Posey, 1,223; County Line, 250; Union, 253; Hurwood, 868.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(Sunday)—The stout heart of Georges Clemenceau, Tiger of France, ceased beating at 1:45 this morning. The wartime premier was 88 years old.

The sharp tongue of the grand old man of France was silenced forever. His predominating quality as author, journalist and statesman always had been the display of fighting spirit and he died as he had lived—fighting until his last breath.

Announces Death

His grandson, Dr. Jacquemaire, who had watched in the death chamber during the last hours with other members of the family, stepped from the little house in Rue Franklin at 2:00 a. m. "Grandfather has just died."

Madame Jacquemaire, daughter of Clemenceau, his son Michel and his close friend Dr. Laubry were present when "Father Victory" met defeat at last in the struggle which he had waged for several days with indomitable courage despite terrific pain from uremia.

The last hours began on Thursday. It found him barely recovered from a serious heart attack which followed the strain of Armistice Day. Doctors gave injections to bolster up the heart against the terrific strain placed on it and administered morphine.

Mail Carriers In City Prove Their Efficient Labors

Recent Survey Shows Local Postmen Average 95 Per Cent Perfect, Is Report Of Postmaster Vaughan

Following a recent survey made by local postoffice authorities and announced this week, the Lubbock city mail carriers show an average efficiency rating of over 95 per cent, the lowest being 89.95 while the highest is 98 per cent.

"The survey just completed," said John L. Vaughan, postmaster, is approximately running true to form as compared with others made, though the under-time of each carrier seems to have increased somewhat. Carriers are allowed a certain length of time in the office and on the route by the postal department. Every man is carrying his route and completing work in the office in a minimum length of time averaging a whole almost 30 minutes under-time.

Ten Carriers Working
There are ten carriers working out of the local office in the business and residential districts. One of these has been handling 364 pieces of mail daily for 220 stops within 447 blocks. Officials estimate each package to cost 5 cents for delivery, making this route an expense of about $11.55 daily. Ordinary packages daily number 206, insured 58, postage due 1 and C. O. D. 26.

The survey reveals that among the other carriers there is an average daily of letters, cards and letter-size circulars handled of 6,344 while all other classes total 1,794. Average number pieces of all classes is 8,138 pieces. The average number of insured, registered, C. O. D. and postage due pieces handled is 71.

Many Pounds Totaled
The carriers deliver an average weight of 104 2-5 pounds each daily for a grand total of 1,044 pounds. There is relayed daily 364 pounds. A great deal of trouble is caused every day through failure of persons to give the right address on matter. It is shown that 703 pieces must be brought back to the office and checked through the carelessness of the sender in not having the right address. Together with this there are recorded 46 changes of address each day.

Many Stops Made
Over the entire length of the ten routes, which are classified as level, there are 3,264 delivery stops and 3,043 street boxes and chutes to be collected from. Two of the carriers make three daily trips while the remainder make only two. Time required for the routes range from the lowest of 7 hours and 3 minutes to the highest of eight hours and 1 minute.

The longest route is 4 7-18 miles while the shortest is 5-9 of a mile. Average age of the carriers is 33 3-10 years. The oldest man on the force is 50 while the youngest is 24. This survey was made over a consecutive five full-day period from October 21 to 26.

Over Friday and Saturday a great number of students visited the library. Perhaps they were studying but a greater part of them looked over their books at students who came in the door. Those who did probably saw Happy Dalton going to meet Sadie Tarwater, Marie Butler and Thomas Hickey waiting for books at the desk, Felix Dockray waiting for her sister, Willie Pearl; Jean Shelley Jennings standing in the entrance looking over those in the library, and Solon Clements preparing a study on the foreign relations of the United States.

Saturday was a day of rest after the night before for those students who made the Centaur club dance. Dorothy Rushing was absent from her 8 o'clock class. Pledges of the club were congratulating each other on the fact that no one stumbled during their presentation. Wayne Castleberry was just getting waked up in time to make an 11 o'clock.

Collegiate wrecks were running much smoother and several owners reported themselves well satisfied with the change in the weather Saturday. Earlier in the week most of the cars covered in ice had to be pushed a short distance before the engine would run.

Carlsbad Cavern Highway Is Important Route In U.S.

National Monument Route Touches Important Centers Of Nation; Route Comprises Section's Greatest Outlet

Direct Route To El Paso From New York State Is Afforded; Towns Closely Located On Highway

BY AL HILL (Avalanche-Journal Staff)

There are two aspects of the Carlsbad Cavern highway which mark it as the most important route of transportation on the South Plains.

First, this road is to be looked upon in its relation to giving Lubbock and the South Plains area a direct route to the Caverns and El Paso, or to the northeast and Oklahoma City.

Is Important Link

Second, the highway completes an essential link in the federal government's system of straight routes across the United States. This link furnishes the necessary extension to U. S. Highway No. 66, which starts in the state of Maine in the upper northeast corner of the United States, running southwest through Syracuse and Buffalo, N. Y.; Erie, Pa.; Cleveland, Ohio; Indianapolis, Ind.; St. Louis, Mo., and ending at Oklahoma City.

If one takes the time to look at these points on a map of the United States, it is easily discerned how straight is this route pointed toward El Paso.

Follows Population Areas

And, should one glance at population figures of the nation, it will be seen that the great centers of our population lie immediately surrounding and, therefore, indigent to a straight line running from Syracuse, N. Y., to El Paso.

No other link in this chain, from a standpoint of scenic beauty, compares favorably with the Carlsbad Cavern Highway. Upon departing from Oklahoma City one motors down into a rolling and rugged section of Oklahoma, with mountains rising skyward. All this within the first hundred miles.

Town, Closely Connected

Speedometers will explain there are 30 miles between Oklahoma City and Blanchard. To Chickasha from there there are 21 miles. To Comanche, 15 miles. To Lawton, 15 miles. To Fort Smith, 15 miles. To El Paso, 15 miles.

Here one sees one of the nation's greatest artillery points. The Wichita National forest is within easy access. Should desire lead to a tour of this mountainous region.

It is 16 miles from Fort Smith to Custer, 17 to Indianola, 14 to Snyder. And here the ruggedness is ceasing. Rolling prairies predominate for a spell. From Snyder to Altus it is 23 miles, then 12 to Ouster, 16 more to Eldorado, last stop in Oklahoma.

Crosses Red River

Red River is crossed and Quanah approached with 17 miles of road from Eldorado. Follow now 16 miles to Laramie, 29 more to Paducah, 33 on to Matador, nine to Reaching Springs and 30 to Dickens. All this time the tourist is seeing rolling prairies, ruggedness some more and ranch country. The 30 miles from Dickens to Crosbyton provides the thrill of climbing the cap rock. To one who has never seen the upper plains of Texas, this is indeed quite a thrill.

Up here the newcomer remarks:

"The sky is so much bigger."

From Crosbyton to Ralls there are nine miles, then nine more to Lovington, nine to Idalou and 11 to Lubbock. "Hub of the Plains," home of Texas Technological college, where the first annual meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association meets tomorrow.

Continue From Here

Continuing our trip, after seeing Lubbock and Texas Tech and a development surprising to the extreme, we journey 23 miles to Roswell, then six to Meadow, 12 more to Brownfield, 33 from there to Plains, 19 additional to Bronco and 15 to Tatum, N. M. Turning south at Tatum, we motor 22 miles to Lovington, county seat of Lea, largest county in the United States, so it is claimed. It is interesting to learn that this county is some 50 miles wide by 100 or more long.

From Lovington we clip off 82 miles to Carlsbad, descending the cap rock into and across the "Great American Desert." From Carlsbad to the Caverns it is 23 miles.

While we are at Carlsbad Caverns, it is well to remember that this is the wonder of all the world's wonders, beyond a doubt.

President Storey, of the Santa Fe railway, said recently that within the next 10 years more people would journey to see the Carlsbad Caverns than now travel to view the Grand Canyon. He also predicted that it would be but a few years until this Carlsbad Cavern Highway would be witnessing the travel of 200,000 tourists a year.

Points of primary stops, on the highway, would be Oklahoma City, Lubbock, Carlsbad and El Paso. There is an easy day's drive between each of these points.

From the Caverns to El Paso there 138 miles of road, on the new cut-off. And, from El Paso to Juarez, Mexico, well, it's just two miles. However, before reaching El Paso the motorist will pass near the highest peak in Texas, Mt. Guadalupe, which is 9,500 feet above sea level.

A saving of between 350 and 500 miles can be made over the Carlsbad Cavern Highway, by those desiring to reach El Paso, compared to the All-winter route formerly used by way of Fort Worth and the Bankhead highway.

A saving of 150 to 200 miles is to be had over this route, as compared to the one from Oklahoma City to Amarillo, Clovis, Roswell and to the Caverns.

Such savings are going to be of much interest to tourists from New England, the eastern and middle western states.

It is to be the effort of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association, during its session here Monday, to secure federal designation of this route. During the first year of its existence the organization has succeeded in designating the route, logging and mapping it and giving it considerable publicity.

Much work remains to be done to inform the entire nation of this highway's offering of attractions and the accessibility of these attractions.

HOW HIGHWAYS ARE OBTAINED (AN EDITORIAL)

The first annual convention of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway association, which is to be held in Lubbock tomorrow, occasions the thought that highways, like cities, do not just happen—they are built.

Long months of hard work, by men interested in the movement, and open up, designate, log, map and otherwise establish certain highway routes before actual building is done, sometimes goes by without due recognition from the public in general.

This group of men who are to be in Lubbock tomorrow have been working for more than a year at the task of creating a route from Oklahoma City to El Paso, by way of this city and the Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico. They first arrived at a name. Next they became busy with the task of designating the route. They followed the achievement of logging and mapping this designated route.

All of this has been accomplished. Undoubtedly the results of the meeting here will point toward securing Federal designation of this established route and further spreading of information regarding it before the populace of the United States.

Lubbock welcomes every one of the delegates to this convention with all the warm-hearted appreciation for their far-looked service that it is possible to express. The Sunday Avalanche-Journal is fully aware of the magnanimous efforts put into past meetings by representative business from every town along the route of the Carlsbad Cavern highway. These men, we know, have sacrificed considerable time from their own private affairs in order to do this thing for the good of their communities and for the entire area of three states traversed by this highway.

And we urge every citizen of Lubbock, as well as every reader of the Avalanche-Journal, who is interested in better roads and better highway routes, to attend the sessions of this convention, if at all possible. Everybody is welcome, we are sure of that.

Numerous questions are coming before this gathering. One, in particular, is of vital import to Lubbock and other cities along the designated route of this highway. This question pertains to efforts of some folks in other towns near the established route of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway to steal some of the thunder of those who have worked hard to establish this highway.

Effort is being made to swing the highway by way of Hollis, Ok., west of Altus, and across the Texas Panhandle to Clovis, N. M. Further effort is being made to swing the route from Hollis down to Childress to Paducah and Gut, then westward to Dickens and Lubbock.

Certainly the work done by those who have created the highway should be protected. In view of the fact that they have selected the absolutely straightest route possible from Oklahoma City to El Paso, all possible support to this designation should be given and a determined fight made to have the present route recognized by the government and given Federal designation.

SOLICITOR ADDED

Tom Terrell Joins Staff Of Avalanche-Journal

Tom Terrell, former assistant manager of the Kress store at Fort Worth, will arrive in Lubbock today to take up his duties as a member of the advertising staff of the Lubbock Morning Avalanche and Daily Journal.

Mr. Terrell is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin. He will be accompanied here by his bride.

Twitty Seeks Perfect Department In City; Believes In Men Obeying Him

Chief W. E. Twitty, of the Lubbock Fire Department, has one great ambition—to make every member of his organization so efficient that he can hold down a job as chief of any fire department in the state. That is an ambitious ambition.

Wants Only Cool Heads The chief demands that nothing but cool heads be connected with him. He wants them to also realize and concede that in case of fire, no matter how large or small, their superior is the chief, boss, director and party responsible for the success or failure in outwitting the flames.

"I don't want anyone on this department who loses his head, no matter what the size of the fire or what the emergency might be," the chief explained. "There is no use in getting excited and to do so seriously impairs efficiency."

Chief Twitty is also a sort of crank on the subject of preventing needless destruction or damage to property that is found ablaze. "I want it distinctly understood," he has warned his men, "that not a single drop of water is to be poured onto a fire until it is needed, and then only in the most efficient manner. And you, after you have had some experience will understand just what I mean."

"For example," the chief continued, "supposing we receive a call to a fire in a residence. We make the run and reach the scene. Now then, before we drag the hose in the house and begin pouring water on everything just because there is a little smoke rolling out, we must determine the fire is and if it cannot be handled without our doing considerable damage to the furnishings in that home. This is easily done and without loss of a single second. There is no sense in kicking down doors, knocking out windows and needlessly destroying a person's home just to get to a fire."

The chief is boss of his fire department, simply because that is his title. He wants no interference from either his men or the public. His record made with the Lubbock department during the many years he has been connected with it, shows clearly that he "knows his stuff."

"During the first dozen fires the young fireman usually thinks he knows it all and tries to give orders to everyone about him," the chief explains. "But when he goes to his thirteenth blaze he just begins to realize that he doesn't know a blasted thing about fire fighting and starts looking to someone for instructions."

Herbert C. Martin, has moved with his family to Littlefield to make his home. Mr. Martin will be associated with E. S. Rowe in the practice of law.

Coming just before the holidays this wonderful event offers a remarkable money saving opportunity.

SUPERTWIST CORD IN CARCASS

The part of the tire that can not be seen has more to do with the service you may expect than has the tread. The carcass or body, of all Goodyear tires is made of a special designed and patented cord known as Supertwist. Supertwist was designed for greater flexibility . . . to absorb rather than to resist shock. It stretches farther . . . up to 60 per cent farther . . . before it will break. It stretches thousands of times every day and comes back like a rubber band while the regular cord will stretch and stay stretched. And in Balloon tire service nothing is more important than the ability of a carcass to stretch and come back millions of times and that is why Goodyear has greater durability. We prove this to you on the supertwist cord stretching machine

These sharp edged All-weather blocks of rubber are in the center of the tire where they are most usefully used in gripping the road. Goodyear is the only tire having traction in the center of the tire, where it belongs.

Notice too, that the edges are scientifically placed to resist skidding. The rubber blocks on the shoulder are to resist skidding on turns and down on the side walls All-weather treads give you traction in ruts. The riding ribs take the brunt of wear.

Beyond this, millions more ride on Goodyear and we think that this is the best looking tire on the market.

Harvard Downs Yale For Second Successive Year, 10-6

Booth Fails To Avert Defeat In Dramatic Combat

Crimson Tide Breaks Through To Block Two Kicks From Toe Of Eli Flash; 58,000 There

Associated Press Sports Editor
HARVARD STADIUM, CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23. (AP)—With one of the most dramatic strokes of the football season, Harvard converted the return to the game of the celebrated Albie Booth to its own advantage today, and beat Yale 10 to 6, for the second year in succession, on a half frozen battle ground before a roaring crowd of 58,000 spectators.

Yale sent her Little Boy in Blue in the game early in the second period to lead what looked like a triumphant drive but two swift "breaks," a blocked kick by Booth each time, enabled Harvard to counter-attack and win the game with a brace of smashing, slashing scoring drives.

Field Goal Blocked

The Elms were hammering toward the Crimson goal early in the second quarter when Little Albie came on to the field to shed his heavy wraps and attempt to drop kick a field goal from the 25-yard line. The ball scarcely left his toe before it was blocked by the surging Crimson wall, bounding off the chest of the alert Jim Douglas, Harvard end, and recovered on the 18-yard line.

From there, the Crimson marched 32 yards to a touchdown, scored by Fullback Wally Harper after brilliant advance featured by a lateral pass, Devere to Mays, which the latter converted into a 35-yard gain.

Shortly after the kickoff, Booth, pointing from near his own goal, again was smothered. Again Douglas, the ubiquitous Crimson end, was on the job of the mighty stop to block and recover the ball on Yale's 17-yard line. This time, the Blue braced and prevented a touchdown but Barry Wood, the sophomore Harvard quarterback, calmly drop kicked the pigskin between the uprights at the 13-yard line at a difficult angle.

Yale Fights Back

Fighting desperately to check the Crimson rush, with less than two minutes to play, before the end of the half, Yale's big captain, "Pip" Greene, broke through the line to block the ball on Harvard's 12-yard line. Two passes thrown by Booth failed, but on the third, after a five yard penalty, the Eli ace tossed to "Hoot" Ellis who took the ball on the 15-yard line and fought his way across the goal line for Yale's only score. Booth's drop kick was not blocked but it went wide of the uprights.

Booth, whose inspiration to the Eli attack had all year been in evidence, had the strange experience of seeing his appearance signalize the victory of the Crimson drive. Until Booth entered the game, Yale held what little edge was to be had in a strictly defensive battle. From the moment he came in, Harvard, instead of Yale, seemed inspired.

Crimson Holds Edge

It was a clear-cut triumph for the Crimson over the ancient foe, with the Harvard sophomore field general, Barry Wood, outshining his more famous rival, Booth, and the Crimson forwards more than holding their own against the great line of the great Harvard team. The Harvard forwards were not to be battered down. Led by Ben Tieknor, who played a brilliant game at center, and flanked by two sensational ends in Jim Douglas and Dick O'Connell, the Harvard display of aggressiveness, courage, and stamina sufficient to meet every emergency. In the final analysis, it was distinctly a triumph for this Crimson line, alert to seize every advantage.

Booth, who played throughout the second and third periods, made his last attempt to rally the Blue line in the third quarter, but it was through the air, rather than in his customary whirling zig-zag fashion that Booth engineered the last big Eli threat.

On a series of well-executed forward passes, tossed by Taylor as well as Booth, Yale swept from around his own 20-yard mark to Harvard's 18-yard line. Booth darted off tackle for a yard but was thrown for a loss on the next play. Twice he tried the end but he was smothered each time. Harvard, on its second play, sent its pariahs, took the ball on downs. Twice later Yale got inside Harvard's 35-yard line but lacked the punch to penetrate the scrappy Harvard defense. Booth was taken out early in the final quarter, replaced by Don McLennan, but there was not much menace left in the Eli attack.

Booth Fails To Avert Defeat In Dramatic Combat

Crimson Tide Breaks Through To Block Two Kicks From Toe Of Eli Flash; 58,000 There

Associated Press Sports Editor
HARVARD STADIUM, CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23. (AP)—With one of the most dramatic strokes of the football season, Harvard converted the return to the game of the celebrated Albie Booth to its own advantage today, and beat Yale 10 to 6, for the second year in succession, on a half frozen battle ground before a roaring crowd of 58,000 spectators.

Yale sent her Little Boy in Blue in the game early in the second period to lead what looked like a triumphant drive but two swift "breaks," a blocked kick by Booth each time, enabled Harvard to counter-attack and win the game with a brace of smashing, slashing scoring drives.

Field Goal Blocked

The Elms were hammering toward the Crimson goal early in the second quarter when Little Albie came on to the field to shed his heavy wraps and attempt to drop kick a field goal from the 25-yard line. The ball scarcely left his toe before it was blocked by the surging Crimson wall, bounding off the chest of the alert Jim Douglas, Harvard end, and recovered on the 18-yard line.

From there, the Crimson marched 32 yards to a touchdown, scored by Fullback Wally Harper after brilliant advance featured by a lateral pass, Devere to Mays, which the latter converted into a 35-yard gain.

Shortly after the kickoff, Booth, pointing from near his own goal, again was smothered. Again Douglas, the ubiquitous Crimson end, was on the job of the mighty stop to block and recover the ball on Yale's 17-yard line. This time, the Blue braced and prevented a touchdown but Barry Wood, the sophomore Harvard quarterback, calmly drop kicked the pigskin between the uprights at the 13-yard line at a difficult angle.

Yale Fights Back

Fighting desperately to check the Crimson rush, with less than two minutes to play, before the end of the half, Yale's big captain, "Pip" Greene, broke through the line to block the ball on Harvard's 12-yard line. Two passes thrown by Booth failed, but on the third, after a five yard penalty, the Eli ace tossed to "Hoot" Ellis who took the ball on the 15-yard line and fought his way across the goal line for Yale's only score. Booth's drop kick was not blocked but it went wide of the uprights.

Booth, whose inspiration to the Eli attack had all year been in evidence, had the strange experience of seeing his appearance signalize the victory of the Crimson drive. Until Booth entered the game, Yale held what little edge was to be had in a strictly defensive battle. From the moment he came in, Harvard, instead of Yale, seemed inspired.

Here's the man who made possible Purdue's first Western Conference title—Coach Jim Phelan. Coming to the Hoosier school several years ago, Phelan found mediocre material on hand and by last season had whipped together an outfit that was tough for even the Big Ten opponents to beat. This year Phelan had Purdue at the team's peak and the Golden Horde smacked Michigan, Chicago, Wisconsin and Iowa in order.

Riveteers Close Undefeated Year With 32-0 Win

Purdue's Crushing Victory Over Indians Ends Drive For Claim At National Grid Championship

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 23. (AP)—The riveteers of Purdue drove a final rivet in their claim for the mythical national football championship here today by swamping their most traditional rival, Indiana, 32 to 0, before a shivering throng of 25,000 spectators at Indiana Memorial Stadium.

It was a glorious end to the most glorious campaign in Boilermaker gridiron history—a campaign that swept before it the Kansas Aggies, Michigan, Depauw, Chicago, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Iowa and Indiana, clinching the Big Ten title and retaining possession for Purdue of the Old Oaken Bucket, a trophy emblematic of football supremacy between the two Indiana schools.

Purdue won as it pleased today. Indiana didn't have a chance. Out-charging, out-gunning and out-pacing their rivals, the Boilermakers pushed over touchdowns in every period and the game ended they had the ball on Indiana's eight-yard line and going steadily toward another touchdown.

So fruitless was the Indiana offensive that it needed but four first downs, two of them because of Purdue penalties, and all of them deep in Indiana territory. Only once did Indiana get in Purdue territory and that was when the Hoosiers carried the oval to Purdue's 47-yard line early in the second period.

"Red" Welch and Glen Harmon, who ended their college football careers today, were the principal ramrods in the vicious and relentless attack today. They gained most of the ground and scored a total of 19 points between them.

Slaton Tigers to Meet Whirlwinds

(Special To The Avantage-Journal)

SLATON, Nov. 23.—After winning their fourth conference victory by beating the Post Antelope, 12 to 0, at Post Friday afternoon, the Slaton High Tigers are to meet the Floydada Whirlwinds here next Thursday, Thanksgiving day.

The Tigers have won the following games this season: Brownfield, 23 to 0; Spur, 30 to 12; Paducah, 22 to 0; Post, 12 to 0. The Post and Slaton clubs have been rated as the strongest eleven in the district since the season first began. Lamesa is the only team that has won over Slaton. Lamesa has won two conference games, beating Tahoka before meeting Slaton.

Comparative scores indicate that the Slaton team will win over Floydada. Spur crushed the Whirlwinds, 49 to 0, and Slaton won decisively over Spur.

Acquisition Of Robertson Held Master Move

DALLAS, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Acquisition of the veteran Claude Robertson, former Beaumont pilot, as first lieutenant to Jakey Aiz in the management of the Dallas club has been hailed by local fans and sport writers as a master move on the part of Steer officials.

Robertson, recognized as one of the shrewdest catchers and developers of young pitching talent ever to play in the Texas league, always has been immensely popular here. He and the astute Jakey Aiz, the critics agree, should make an ideal combination.

Robertson is expected to do a major share of the catching for the herd.

Huskers Trim Kansas Aggies To Retain Big Six Lead

Nebraska Eleven Piles Up Early Lead For Victory

Cornhuskers Need Only Win Over Iowa State To Clinch Title; Aggies Are Defeated, 10 To 6

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 23. (AP)—Sweeping through the Kansas Aggies for eight points in the first period, the Nebraska Cornhuskers piled up enough of a margin to withstand a last half Aggie threat and win the annual football game today, 10 to 6. The victory left the Nebraska still in the lead of the Big Six title race and needing only a victory over Iowa State Thanksgiving to assure second consecutive championship.

Forward passes led to the Kansas Aggie touchdown in the third period and another seemed imminent as the teams changed ends of the field at the close of the third period but in the final quarter all the Aggies' strategy could not avail and the Cornhuskers were holding the upper hand when the game ended.

One touchdown and two safeties, the last one given intentionally by the Aggies in a last desperate effort to maintain possession of the ball for a final offensive, constituted the Nebraska scoring. Nebraska won without the aid of Blair Sloan, its backfield ace, who was left at home with injuries. In his place was "Red" Young, who scored the Nebraska touchdown and performed in a stellar fashion not unlike the brilliant veteran player he replaced. All Aggie regulars were in shape and a good share of them got into the game before "Bo" McMillan played his last card—and lost.

Statistics show the Aggies made eight first downs to Nebraska's six, but by the aid of forward passes, The Cornhuskers outgained their rivals from scrimmage, 5 to 1.

Moffet Leads Tech Freshmen To 12 To 9 Victory Over Yearlings Of Canyon In Cold Wind Saturday

Shifts Halfback Scores Both Touchdowns Against W. S. T. C. Eleven; Fumble Helps Locals Score

(Special To The Avantage-Journal)

CANYON, Nov. 23.—The Texas Tech freshmen defeated the West Texas Yearlings here today, 12 to 9. The game was played through a freezing temperature with a strong north wind blowing. The Yearlings won the toss and with the aid of the wind kept the Tech freshmen from gaining and received their only score during the first quarter, but the Tech crew had the wind and completed their first score, Moffet making it.

Moffet made the second score for Tech. The Yearlings lost their last chance to score when Red McInnis fumbled the ball on the four-yard line with Tech covering. Tech gained their last score with the aid of the Yearling center being off side six times, thus causing the down to remain the same and having six trials at the goal line.

Both lines seemed to be on their guard. Tech proved to be a tackler at the end position, breaking up several interferences and frowning the Yearling ball carriers. On 64 plays the Yearlings made 221 yards for an average of 16 yards. Attempted 7 passes, two were intercepted, three complete, two incomplete. Penalized six times for 34 yards total, fumbled three times, recovering one lost two times. First downs 9. Tech freshmen on 44 plays made 129 yards, lost eight, including passes, punted seven times for an average of 35 yards, attempted three passes, one was intercepted, one incomplete, one complete, for 13 yards, penalized three times for total of 15 yards, fumbled one time and lost it. First downs 5.

Michigan, Iowa In Scoreless Tie

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 23. (AP)—Michigan and Iowa fought their hearts out here today in the final game of the season, but both teams failed to score. The Hawkeyes, making possibly their last appearance in the Big Ten, had the advantage of offense. Michigan with its back to the wall, had the advantage of defense, but its line was porous to the rushes of Hagerty in mid-field.

It was the last appearance of Captain Keener Cagle, Herby Murrel, Buster Perry and Herb Giber at Michie Stadium and two of the quartet said their farewells with touchdowns. Cagle and Murrel counting one each. Perry played a great defensive game and Giber was a star of the starting team which did well that Coach Bill Jones let it play half the game.

Army has two games left to play but one is in New York and the other at Palo Alto, Calif.

If they paid off in football on first downs Ohio Wesleyan would have won handsily. The visitors ran up a total of 19 to 7 for the Army, almost the same score of points by which Army won.

The lineup:

ARMY	Pos.	OHIO WES.
Gordon	Left Tackle	Rajen
Trice	Left Guard	Nelberg
Lazar	Center	Blair
Saurez	Right Guard	Kraft
McLean	Right Tackle	Jones
Fletcher	Right End	Osborne
Bowman	Quarterback	Werte
Stuart	Right Half	M. Franz
Golden	Fullback	McKinney

Ramblers Crush Northwestern In One-Sided Clash

Notre Dame's Men Of All Nations Smash Wildcats 26 To 6; Rocknemen Remain Undefeated

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.
D'UKE STADIUM, EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 23. (AP)—Notre dame's 34 men of all nations, eleven of them playing at a time, smashed Northwestern's well clawed Wildcats, 26 to 6, before 55,000 frozen spectators today to win their eighth consecutive game of the season and send them bounding along in the direction of a national championship.

The game was so lopsided that it was hardly a contest. A stone wall Notre Dame line supported by three young men who certainly are not full blooded Irishmen—jumping Joe Savolito, Frank Carideo and Merlemont Schwartz—similar ran the Northwestern players ragged.

This trio scored three touchdowns in the second period, and another in the third, tucking the same safety away for the Rocknemen Ramblers, while Northwestern managed to score its single touchdown on a blunder in the 4th, when the third string Notre Dame team was in trying to emulate the achievements of the regulars.

The victory was costly to the undefeated Notre Dame eleven because Tim Moynihan, the big 190-pound center sustained a broken leg after the scoring orgy in the second period, and had to be carried off the field.

The injury ends his football career at Notre Dame as next week's contest with the Army was to have been his last.

A revolving stadium is suggested at Princeton so all the fans could have an equal view of the games. Tut, tut! Princeton fans are dizzy enough without such a thing as that.

Judging by the glassware picked up under the stands after the game there are quite a few football fans who wouldn't know whether the stadium was revolving or not.

The idea should be copied by boxing promoters. It might make it appear to the customers that the fighters were actually fighting.

Russell Dills Leads Tigers To Victory Over Old Rivals In 7-0 Decision; 31,500 Witness Game

BY CHAS. A. GRUMICH

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 23. (AP)—The Missouri Tigers, reconstructed in a combination sacrificing weight for speed, today defeated the Kansas Jayhawkers by 7 to 0 in a hard fought battle, featured by well performed aerial attacks. In their thirty-eighth annual gridiron meeting before a record-breaking Kansas Homecoming crowd of 31,500.

Russell Dills, 145-pound quarterback, making his debut in a starting lineup, was the individual hero of the game, just as he was in the Missouri-Kansas affair at Columbia last year, when he raced 100 yards with a kickoff too a touchdown in the Tigers' 25 to 6 victory.

King Turkey Puts Many People Here On "Easy Street"

More Than 34,000 Birds To Grace Eastern Tables As Result Of Labors Of Men Over South Plains Area

King Turkey, dressed for Thanksgiving table, has relinquished his throne on South Plains farms and ranches and today is being displayed in the markets of the north and east, leaving thousands of dollars in the bank accounts of his growers.

More than 34,000 birds were shipped out of Lubbock for eastern markets, according to estimates made by local poultry plants. Additional thousands of turkeys have been shipped from other points in West Texas. The last shipment was made from here last Monday.

Market prices have been around 18 cents a pound in Lubbock. The season opened at 20 cents for No. 1 birds, dropped as low as 16 cents but the general average has been maintained at 18.

More to Be Shipped

While the Thanksgiving market closed over a week ago, additional thousands are to be paid South

Plains farmers when the rest of the crop is shipped for the Christmas market. Shipping of these birds is to start the early part of December. Local reports state that Texas, from all prospects, will have shipped from 450 to 470 cars for the Thanksgiving market, totalling about 810,000 birds. Only about 25 per cent of the entire crop has been moved at this time while there is said to be from a 20 to 25 per cent increase this year over last on the South Plains.

Killing turkeys for Thanksgiving is not what it used to be, at least not in a wholesale way.

Plants Are Modern

Local plants have the most scientific and sanitary system for death that any turkey hen could ask for her children's slaughter.

Once, turkeys were killed with a club and their heads cut off with an axe. They were picked the best way possible, cooled, dumped into barrels, all grades together, and shipped to markets to receive a low price. If they arrived in bad order, it would usually be termed the railroad's fault because of improper refrigeration, and claims for loss filed.

King Turkey now, as well as his chicken cousins, is killed by cutting the jugular vein on the inside of the throat so that the blood will run out through the mouth into a blood cup placed over the bill.

Brain Nerve Pierced

A nerve in the brain is then pier-

ed with a sharp pointed knife which loosens the feathers and makes them easy to pick. The bird is run through a scalding vat by a machine and comes out to the pickers on a revolving belt.

Pickers are paid about 10 cents a turkey but they are warned to be careful and not break the skin. After picking the turkey's feet are washed, the head wrapped in parchment paper and the wing is placed on racks in the cooling room. After animal heat is gone they are graded, packed and shipped.

Cotton Closes Steady After Reaction

Reactions Follow Opening Advances In Cotton Market

Prices Firm Up Later In Session On Trade Buying And Covering; General Mart Shows Boost

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—Opening reactions on relatively steady Liverpool cables were followed by moderate reactions in cotton today, but prices firmed up later on trade buying and covering. After selling off from 17.50@17.45, or 3 points below yesterday's closing quotations, January advanced to 17.55 and closed at 7.53 compared with 17.48 at the close of Friday. The general market closed steady at net advances of 2 to 6 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 2 points. Nearly all active positions were higher. Active position soon showed net gains of about 2 to 6 points but the demand tapered off and there were setbacks under week end realizations. December eased off from 17.37@17.31 and March from 17.79@17.73, making net declines of about 1 to 3 points, after which the market firmed up again on renewed covering. It was reported that the trade had been a buyer around 17.75 for March and 18.00 for May.

Prices Rally.
Rallies in the late trading carried December to 17.40 and March to 17.84. Closing quotations were 3 to 4 points off from the best under realizing. A large part of the business was connected with the continuing winding up of December contracts in preparation for the ability of notices on Monday.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 23. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit this week was in a very unsettled condition, with a weak to lower undertone prevailing on most all classes. Killing classes closed the week steady to unevenly lower, several points reporting losses of 25 to 50 cents on weighty steers and fat she stock. Light yearlings scarce. Heavy steers were in burdensome supply, and sagged to the low point of the season. Receipts 247,000, a decrease of 21,500 from last week and 16,500 short of the corresponding period of a year ago.

Hog prices eased the fore part of the week, but on late sessions moderate activity developed and current values were 10 to 20c higher than a week ago. Chicago had a late top of $9.40. Total offerings 577,000 against 553,225 last week and 628,156 a year ago.

Sheep marked by moderate fluctuations in fat lambs. Advances effected the fore part of the week, but fat lambs were more than erased at most points. Aged stocks closed unevenly steady to 25c higher. Choice fat lambs on the wind-up at Chicago cleared at $13. The supply approximated 271,000, a decrease of 48,000 from last week, but 28,000 heavier than a year ago.

Liquidations Of December Option Dominant Feature

Trading Is Fair For Short Saturday Session After Declines; Moderate Net Advance At Close

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23. (AP)—The liquidation of December option was the dominating feature in cotton today and trading was fair for a short Saturday session. Prices fluctuated narrowly declining as some December longs sought to liquidate and rallying when belated shorts in that month sought to cover. As the shorts apparently over-stayed the market the eager covering at the end caused a moderate net advance.

After trading at one time 3 to 5 points below the previous close the market advanced over that level of 3 to 10 points and closed 5 to 10 points net higher. January advanced from a low of 17.40@17.53 and closed at that figure, or 10 points net higher. The general market closed steady 6 to 10 points net higher.

Liverpool Strong.
Liverpool came in 5 to 7 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 2 to 3 points soon all active months were trading 3 points above the previous. Prices later eased off on further December liquidation. December easing off to 17.25 and March to 17.67, or 3 to 5 points under the previous close.

Wheat Market Is Thrown In Uproar By Damage Report

Widespread Crop Damage In Argentina Confirmed In Late Market Session Saturday To Boost Prices

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—Definite confirmation of widespread severe crop damage in Argentina came just at the last today, and threw the wheat market here into an uproar. A leading Chicago crop expert cabled from Rosario that Argentina wheat in the central zone which he had visited amounted to 25 per cent. Immediately, big buying of Chicago wheat future deliveries was begun on the part of a house with European connections and the majority of traders here joined in, stimulated also because of announcement that open interest in December wheat contracts here had been reduced as much as 16,000,000 bushels this week.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were greatly unsettled, 2c to 2 3/4c above yesterday's finish, despite the fact that most of the time today the market was lower. Corn closed 3-4c down, oats 1-4c to 3-8c advanced, and provisions varying from 7c decline to 1c advance.

The world's available stocks of wheat were reported increased 55,000,000 bushels during October, and about 140,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago.

Enlarged receipts of corn, together with favorable weather, for shelling tended to pull the corn market down. Oats were responsive to the influence of wheat rather than of corn.

phine to relieve the pain.

Poisoning Spread.
The uremic poisoning spread gradually through his system and the physicians early abandoned all hope of saving the life of the patient. He was unconscious much of the time. The last words he uttered were "The Tiger" in the final lucid spell at 10:30 p. m. last night, was an expression of satisfaction. "My work is finished," he told Dr. Laubry. It was understood that he referred to the book which he undertook to write after the death of Marshal Foch in 1928. The book was to be edited by Raymond Re-coy which purported to have been inspired by the late marshal. Correction of the first draft of the proofs was completed only last week.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Mourning the death of his friend, General John J. Pershing said tonight he regarded Georges Clemenceau as the "outstanding World War figure" among the French people.

The commander of American forces in France during the war said: "The death of M. Georges Clemenceau fills me with grief. Those of us who knew him as prime minister the last year of the war recognized in him the very personification of the fine courage and patriotism of the French people. He inevitably inspired his friends with admiration and respect for his superb qualities of mind and spirit. I regard him as the outstanding World War figure among his people. My last visit with him was on Armistice Day two weeks ago. I deeply mourn his passing."

Secretary Stimson expressed his regret at the death of Clemenceau.

NATIONALISTS WIN

Government Troops Defeat Rebellious Forces

SHANGHAI, Nov. 23. (AP)—Nationalist government troops tonight appeared to have gained the upper hand in Honan Province fighting the rebellious Kuomintang troops being in retreat westward along the Lunghai railroad toward the Province of Shensi.

Developments of the civil war in the adjoining central China Province of Hupeh were uncertain however, as the nationalists strove to prevent the rebels reaching the Yangtze river at Hankow.

ELLIS MAKES BOND

HOUSTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Dr. J. C. Ellis, who will face trial here on December 16 on a murder charge in connection with the playing last Sunday night of Gordon Ross, was released from jail tonight under $10,000 bond. The bond was signed by four physicians and three other prominent Houstonians.

Packages of calves common 5.00 and 7.00. A few good at 8.50.

The Day of all Days

Some twenty-five years ago the dawning of a new day brought a new furniture service to the South Plains. With the arrival of this new store there came a desire to give an unequalled home furnishings service. The store grew... it prospered with fair treatment and honest dealings to its hundreds of patrons.

Yesterday came the dawn of a new day. A day that meant lots to us. It was the formal opening of our larger quarters on 13th street. The attendance was far beyond our expectation... this day, too, was a success. It was the answer to our fondest dream... for hundreds of South Plains folks crossed our portals to view a new and greater RIX.

We Thank You

The hundreds who visited us on this opening have made our hearts glad. This huge attendance makes us mighty happy to know that you have appreciated our service for a quarter of a century. We thank you sincerely for it.

Airport Plans

take into consideration in planning your field," he said at the meeting yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce office. "A marker measuring 100 feet in diameter must be placed in the center of the field. Runways to expedite safe landing and takeoff should be provided; gas, oil and drinking water facilities should be installed; a rest room should be erected, and other things to be considered are fuel, communication, transportation and from the field and the airport personnel."

Hangar Suggested.
"I would suggest as an ideal hangar," he said in response to a question "that you build one measuring 120 feet square, with a 24-foot clearance."

"Divisions taken into consideration in rating a field are equipment, size of landing space and lighting facilities. Many cities have found it profitable to employ engineers to design their airports. This has been done to provide for expansion. Makeshift structures soon fall into dis-use through rapid deterioration and obsolescence. Airport buildings today are far superior to those of 6 months ago, considering permanence, design and convenience."

Allow For Growth.
Mr. Mackenzie recommended that the city build the unit or units of the airport to meet the present needs, allowing for future growth. He further stressed that installation of the project should not be considered too much from a commercial viewpoint, although he expressed the opinion that the airport would be self sustaining. Benefits of the port will be realized indirectly, he said.

Those who attended the meeting were Commissioners J. F. Bacon and J. H. Hankins, City Engineer M. R. Smith and A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Centaur Club Honors New Members With Dance Here On Friday

Five Hundred See Entertainment Of Glee Club Friday

"Cinderella" Is Presented By Eighth Grade Pupils; Joan Sears Plays Leading Role In Operetta

"Cinderella," an operetta with a prologue and three acts, was presented by the Junior high school eighth grade Glee Club Friday evening in the high school auditorium before an audience of 500.

Miss Charlotte Ratliff, dressed in pink and gold satin was the godmother and sang the prologue following a conversation with cupid, cunningly represented by little Betty Ann McAfee, who dressed in the conventional cupid's uniform and carrying a silver bow and arrow, received much applause for her dainty dancing.

Joan Sears was quite lovely as Cinderella even before the fairy godmother arrived and transformed her rags into a beautiful evening dress. The first act was the kitchen in the little maid's home and witnessed the entrance of the haughty sisters played by Johnnie and Inez Mullins. After the few lines spoken by the characters, Cinderella sang songs of sadness and loneliness and the fairy godmother sent her to the ball with the warning to leave at twelve o'clock carrying out the fairy tale. The kitchen maids entered and sang a chorus. They were represented by Ione Drake, Doris Gore, Lela Lane, Norma Smith, Mary Wilson, Louise Hodges, Winnie B. Weed, Beatrice Mills, Margaret Wilson, Ann Smith, Thelma Meador.

In Drawing Room
The second act rose on a scene in the palace drawing room with the lords and ladies singing praises in honor of the prince. The chorus was made up of the lords Elinor Crenshaw, Mary E. Cammack, Maxine Hensley, Julia Blackwell, Eva Laura Hall, Lorraine Johnson, Ruth Wagner, Katherine Klett, Ruth Lewis, Martha Mathis, Mary Mathis, and ladies Elizabeth Spencer, Lois Adair, Mary Thomas, Lorene McCreary, Ernestine Herring, Evelyn Spaulding, Margaret Powers, and Maxine Burrus.

The prince, played by Billie Bob Jones, entered and sang a solo during which the Cinderella entered. The prince favored the little maid and the minut was danced quite gracefully. Perhaps the prettiest scene in the play was the dancing of Joan Sears and Billie Bob Jones.

Ends With Chorus
The final scene was in the parlor of Cinderella's home and followed the story of the fairy tale in the prince finding the lost princess by the golden slipper which fitted her foot and the play ended with a chorus.

The footman was Odell Ford while Sophie Alice Hardgrave played the part of the wicked stepmother. This fantasy was the first presentation of the glee club and would have done credit to girls much older than these taking parts. The club is composed of 40 girls and is directed by Mrs. Lee Quillen. Anna Mary Baucum played piano accompaniment to the choruses and solos.

Short Evening Wraps Best Complement New Long-Skirted Mode

By HENRI BENDEL
Written for NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Somebody has said that the short of the long-skirted evening mode seems to be the coats worn over the gowns.

Anyone attending smart restaurants, opera, theater or evening parties will see the truth of this statement. Unless women have their evening wraps fashioned very long and trailing, the short coat is tremendously the best solution from an artistic viewpoint.

By short, I mean really short, below the hips. The erstwhile popular length, three-quarters, seems to be out of the fashion. A coat must be very long or very short to properly complement an evening gown of the new silhouette.

Evening Wraps Many
There are many kinds of new short evening wraps. Some are wraps more than coats. Coats, however, are very popular. Rich brocade, laces, in gold and silver with greens, pinks, blue or yellow, are lovely. Often a rich, almost royal blue or deep purple makes a sumptuous coat. Velvets are excellent. Fur is used lavishly: chinchilla, mink, ermine, and lapin dyed a matching or contrasting color.

The use of lapin is growing steadily. Often long, sumptuous wraps are made of lapin. One such is a cape wrap, with a dipping back-line, quite in keeping with the new skirt line.

Collars and cuffs on the short coats are very important. Many of them are furred. One cute rose pink lame, threaded in silver has a mink collar that forms a little front vestee of the fur, too. Another ties its ermine scarf collar chinch under one ear. Any little original touch in the use of fur is excellent. If fur is not used, a shirred collar or a huge cushion with silver fox cuffs, but the collar is a soft, crushed one of the coat's fabric.

This coat tops an evening gown of orange transparent velvet, created by Paton. It has Patou's silhouette with a high waistline and a molded princess line that flares below the hips.

Another example of the new short coat is one of my own design. It is fashioned of exceedingly rich material, a green, rose and gold brocade lame. The colors are excellent for a coat that may have to escort several different gowns on various occasions. Rose is good with all the pinks and creams, green is excellent to blend with blues and both look good with yellows and lavenders.

Trimmed With Kolinsky
Wide bands of kolinsky trim it. The deep collar and revers have wide bands of the fur as has the bottom line of the coat.

This coat illustrates the tendency to emphasize the short coat's shortness, either by flare, bandings or godets of some kind. This is done to break the straight line that would not be in keeping with the fitted lines of the gown underneath.

These coats exemplify the philosophy of style change. The new silhouette takes changes with it all along the line, with every kind of apparel reflecting the new feeling.

Two Hundred Fifty Are Guests For Function To Welcome Nine Pledges; Black, Gold Used For Decorations

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Burroughs Lead Grand March At Ten Forty Five; Red and White Carnations Are Given New and Old Members

ELABORATE in every detail was the formal dance given at the Uptown Dance Palace Friday evening by the Centaur club of Texas Technological college to honor new members. Two hundred fifty guests attended the function.

The Centaur club is the only men's social organization of Lubbock which is made up entirely of college students.

The room was decorated in streamers of purple and gold, the club colors, and above the door of the lobby was a large half moon, on which was written in gold the word "Centaur". A variety of pot plants and ferns added a note of floral charm to the decorations.

As guests entered, the pledges were given red carnations, while old members were given white carnations. A book containing a list of the pledges and the girls whom they escorted, the officers and old members of the club was given as a favor to each guest.

Pledges were presented at 10:45 by the president, Orval Burroughs, after which Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs led the group in a grand march.

Following is a list of the pledges and the girls whom they escorted: Murray Ballinger, Miss Johnnie V. Menus Are Given For Thanksgiving Dinners Which May Be Prepared at Home

MARGARET TURNER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
"Hurrah for the fun, is the pudding done?"
"Hurrah for the pumpkin pie."
The Thanksgiving dinner of the twentieth century differs radically from the dinner served by our Pilgrim forefathers in the days of the New England colonies. Perhaps some people are skeptical about there being many dinners which will be served at home in this day when public eating places are so popular, but if we are to believe the many curricula which strengthen a spirit of fellowship for buying, preparing, and serving a typical Thanksgiving dinner at home, we must admit that this year, as every year, many folks will strengthen a spirit of fellowship among friends and relatives over a meal served in their homes. Calories Are Counted
It is true that no longer will a family sit down to a table groaning with enough calories to make dieting ineffective for a week, because ideals in health and diet demand that we temper our own feasting and serve a simple meal. No more can little brother (provided he eats with the older people) furtively eye a loaded table and heaping sideboards while the blessing is being said, and yet in many homes next Thursday families will sit down to favorite recipes with just enough added to provide new interest and zest.

Ready-to-use foodstuffs and modern kitchen equipment make it possible to plan much of the Thanksgiving feast several days in advance and by the arrival of the day, the holiday's work is reduced to a minimum and hostess and guests as well can be "thankful."

Turkey, of course, for Thanksgiving, and cranberries and cider and mince pie—all the time-honored accompaniments—for a menu. A dinner which is recommended by Miss Louise Baird, home demonstration agent of Lubbock county, is as follows: Mince pie, roast turkey, cranberry jelly, giblet gravy, rice pudding, green beans, rolls, butter, cinnamon apple salad, famous old Thanksgiving pudding, spiced nuts, hard sauce, candies and coffee.

Menu Is Given
In setting the table a centerpiece of autumnal fruits glowing with fall colors lends beauty while, needing to say, china helps much in making a lovely setting.

A Thanksgiving dinner which Miss Mamie Tyford, of the foods department in the home economics school of Texas Technological college, finds particularly appetizing is composed of Casaba melon balls in grape fruit juice, stuffed turkey, giblet gravy, candied sweet potatoes, scalloped candied sweet potatoes, scalloped sweet potatoes, scalloped cauliflower with mushrooms, cranberry jelly, ripe olives, cucumber, celery and almond salad, tomatoe French dressing, cheese crackers, pumpkin pie, coffee, and nuts.

The vegetable, according to Miss Ella Mae Lyle, of the home economics department at the local high school, should be fine flavored, carefully cooked to retain their fine flavor, with a simple, smooth, tasty sauce, melted butter, or other seasonings.

A good meal always has a good finish whether it be plum pudding with hard sauce; an elaborate gelatin dessert and cake; mince, apple, or raisin pie, and ice cream. And for the family dinner, celebrating a strictly American holiday, usually the dishes voted for are the good old substantial ones, nicely cooked, seasoned or spiced.

American Association Of University Women Forms New Study Groups

Books Of The Year, International Relations And Parental Education Are To Be Discussed At Meetings

One Book To Be Bought By Each Member Of Readers' Group; Are To Be Put In Circulation

The various study groups working under the direction of the local branch of the American Association of University Women are proving quite popular this year. A second group for the study of modern literature was formed at a meeting last Tuesday in the home of Mrs. W. P. Clement, 2530 23rd street, who is general director of the groups, and a third group has already been asked for.

This second organization, known as the Readers' group, is confining its membership to fifteen, and will outline its reviews largely to books of the year. Each member plans to buy a new book, to review it, and then place it at the disposal of the other members.

At the meeting Tuesday, Mesdames R. S. Rodgers and E. L. Reed and Miss Flora McGee were appointed as a committee to arrange programs for the next few months. Regular meetings are to be held each month in the homes of various members. Mrs. M. T. Campbell, 1621 Avenue Y, will be hostess to the group for the next meeting, December 14, at 7:30 p. m. Book reviews will be given at that time by Mesdames J. R. B. Cooper, E. Peters and William Dingus.

Misses Flora McGee and Nina Trigg. In order to study with one of the groups it is not necessary to be a member of the A. A. U. W., according to announcement of the president, Mrs. William Dingus. Members of a branch who have friends interested in the study should consult the director, Mrs. W. P. Clements.

Study English Novel
The Bookman group, the first to be organized under the direction of the A. A. U. W., held last week's meeting in the home of Mrs. W. O. Burford, 2319 16th street. A review by Miss Dorothy Leach of the new English novel, "Black Hester," was followed by a round table discussion of the book. Mrs. Burford served a dainty refreshment plate after the program.

"Six Steps to Folly" and "Hunk" are the novels to be reviewed at the December meeting.

Miss Daak Is Leader
The International Relations group, with Miss Mary Daak as director, holds regular meetings on the first Monday evening of each month. The program of study for this group is based upon the program of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, which was designed to bring before the members of the academy the outstanding problems of foreign policy confronting the United States.

Meetings are open to all members of the A. A. U. W., and to others interested in the question of international relations. They are held at 2421 Broadway at 7:30 p. m.

Topics Chosen
Dates of the meetings, topics for discussion and program leaders are as follows: December 8, "The Significance of Growing World Armaments," Mrs. J. C. A group interested in child and parental education also is being formed under the supervision of the Education committee of the A. A. U. W. The group is a consolidation of the pre-school and adolescent groups, which formerly were sponsored by the organization.

The first regular meeting will be held December 11 in room 104 of the home economics building of Texas Technological college, and all interested are invited to attend. The discussion will be in charge of Miss Margaret Weeks.

At a meeting Thursday afternoon members of the pre-school committee outlined the year's study which will hold interest for mothers of children of all ages.

Following are the topics to be studied during the year: "Medical Preventative Measures for Child Health," "Food for Health," "Habit Formation with Particular Reference to Control of Emotions," "Mental Growth and the Laws of Learning," "Constructive Discipline," and "Social Adjustments of Childhood." B. Y. P. U. PARTY

W. H. O. Union Entertained In Carroll Home

The W. H. O. B. Y. P. U. of First Baptist church, met for a social hour at the home of Mrs. J. D. Carroll, 1911, Broadway, Friday evening.

Following an evening of games and contests, the hostess served refreshments to Misses Inez Law, Mattie Williams, Doris Kimbriel, Dorothy Kimbriel, Grace Emerson, Wynona Panther, Geraldine Turner, and Wyle Simpson. Noble James, Worth Gamel, Jack Usher, Homer Duncan, Maurice Snyder, Dayle Dean, Travis Haynes, James Carroll, Hollie Carroll, and Tom Cammack, and the two sponsors, Mrs. J. Carroll and Miss Gladys Tyson.

In China a square mile of soil is capable of supporting 4000 people.

Holiday parties call for costumes befitting the occasion.

The Thanksgiving week-end college dance or the town party deserves a new gown in its honor.

The holiday party gown should be as romantic and glamorous as the spirit of the party it attends. Color should be young and joyful, something in yellow, pink, scarlet, green or one of the new blues. Fabric should be rich and beautiful or delicately dainty and exquisite. Line should emphasize the soft curves of the body and do the most possible for the figure.

It is not hard to find a gown. Rather the difficulty comes in discovering so many flattering frocks that to choose only one is a hardship.

There is infinite loveliness in the winter's party mode. All evening gowns are short waisted, slim and long limbed, and touch the floor, usually in points. Some of them are several inches from the floor in front. But most of them have extreme length on the sides and back, and many of them have all-round length, with trains.

Spirit of Youth Expressed
Whether they are of plain chiffon, square mesh silk net, embroidered mousseline de soie, shimmering satin, velvet or lame, and whether they are plain colored or printed, all evening gowns have one outstanding universal quality. They are unanimous in expressing a spirit of youth. More gentleness, more femininity, and more subtle softness they have, to be sure. But the new evening mode has not yielded out whit of the youthfulness that women of today appreciate and crave in their clothes.

Most of the bodices of evening gowns are fitted, modifying the princess silhouette or flaunting it joyously. If the fabric is rich and heavy, the princess line is apt to be the cut. If the fabric is sheer and supple, basque effects and other youthful cuts are preferred. Fullness begins at a low hipline and the manner of arriving at the desired fullness is a matter of individual taste.

Sophisticated evening gowns make much of bejeweled shoulder straps and elaborate décolletages, often outlining them in straps. But the evening gown of youth is more apt to have its neckline cut into

The sumptuous and beautiful fabric of its bodice. The simpler the neckline, the smarter, in this case.

Happy Choice
For the holiday party frock, metallic brocade chiffon is a happy choice. A lovely party gown of this type is fashioned of metallic brocade chiffon in tones of rose, pale green and buff, with silver threads tracing out the design of the pattern.

Instead of emphasizing the waistline with a belt, this gown is intricately cut so that the fitted hip-line suggests the waist. A very full skirt is fitted up into the princess bodice in a slanting, curving line, far more graceful and elegant looking than an abrupt, even line could possibly be.

The bodice has a modestly rounded front décolletage, while the rear is cut lower and in a U shape. The skirt is essentially a long one, with the front width at ankle length, and the sides and back dip, dipping in cut line, to trail on the floor in the very newest manner.

'Queen's Husband' To Be Presented On Tuesday Night

Mrs. Alan L. Strout Directs
First Play Of Season; College People Cast In Leading Roles

The Lubbock Little Theatre will open its winter season next Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium with the presentation of the play, "The Queen's Husband," directed by Mrs. Alan L. Strout. Ellis R. Hefner and Mrs. Al. Fred Stehli head the list of characters, being cast in the role of king and queen.

Other characters are as follows: General Northrup, Prime Minister, played by Frank Kent; Lord Birken, Dr. Leroy T. Patton; Granton, the king's secretary, Johnnie Campbell; Laker, an anarchist, James Gordon; Prince William, Lennis Baker; Petley, a footman, Dawson; Major Blent, aide-de-camp, Charles Rod-effer; Princess Anne, Miss Sophie Favorman; the two ladies-in-waiting, Miss Graves and Ada Baugh; a soldier, Gordon Dickinson, and a sergeant, Benjamin Powell.

Is of Fictitious Kingdom
The synopsis of the play in brief is the story of a fictitious kingdom in the North Sea with a modern setting. In the opening scene the king is merely a figurehead and the powers go to the queen, the foreign minister, and the Prime Minister. The daughter falls in love with an untitled person, none other than the king's secretary. They plan to elope.

In the meantime the Prime Minister has become so officious and antagonistic that a radical element has risen against him in the city and a revolution is brewing. The queen has arranged a marriage between the princess and a neighboring emperor whom the princess has never seen but known only of his reputation which is not so savory. The queen insists that the princess owes the marriage to her country.

King Is Passive
The revolution begins and the Prime Minister is made military dictator; the king remaining passive to all arising circumstances. The radical leaders, foreign minister, and Prime Minister come together and are just beginning to fight when the king says that the Prime Minister must resign, and after he does so a radical leader is made head.

It develops that the king has the revolution staged on purpose and intended that the Prime Minister resign from his post.

A complication arises when the queen learns of the proposed elopement of her daughter with the secretary. She orders that he be deported to South America and plans for the wedding with the neighboring emperor continue. The queen and her escort leave for the cathedral and the king, princess, and the secretary are left alone. The king has guards to bring the secretary from the prison and with his powers as king and high vicar of the church he performs the wedding ceremony between his daughter and the untitled secretary. The deportation slip is changed to read secretary and wife and the play, closes with the king having asserted his

Captain F.E. Kleinschmidt To Lead Flight To Pole

Noted Explorer Will Head Hunt Of Avalanche-Journal For Polar Home Of Santa Claus; Plans Being Laid

"I Am Certain I Will Find Santa's Home For Kiddies Of Lubbock", Is Belief Expressed By Airman

MINEOLA FLYING FIELD, Long Island, New York, Nov. 23.—Mr. Chas. A. Guy, editor of the Avalanche-Journal, Lubbock, Tex., accepted with delight your proposition to pilot and head expedition to Polar regions in search for Santa Claus. Will have plane ready to take off whenever you say. Wire when. Happy to undertake exploration for the kiddies of Lubbock and confident of finding Santa Claus. Await further instructions.

CAPTAIN F. E. KLEINSCHMIDT Above is a copy of the telegram received late last night from Captain Kleinschmidt by the Editor of the Avalanche-Journal.

Many Applications Received After perusing countless telegrams and letters of application which flooded the editor since the insertion of an ad for the explorer to head the Avalanche-Journal expedition to the north pole negotiations have been entered into with a well known and experienced Arctic explorer, Captain F. E. Kleinschmidt of New York City, a man of wide experience in organizing and leading expeditions of this sort, has been engaged and most of the details concerning the expedition have been agreed upon. Captain Kleinschmidt comes highly recommended for this job and the Avalanche-Journal feels fortunate in being able to engage such an experienced explorer for the expedition. He has led four expeditions into the Arctic and brought back specimens of animals such as polar bear, walrus, seals, kodjok, bears for the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh, Museum of National History in New York and Arctic birds for the Field Museum in Chicago. He has lived with the Eskimos for years and his motion pictures of the Arctic are well known. Captain Kleinschmidt is also an aviator and will pilot one of the airplanes on the thrilling journey to the realm of Santa Claus.

Confident of Outcome "I am certain that I will be able to discover Santa Claus" said the Captain last night in a lengthy telegram in which he expressed his delight at being hired to render such a service to mankind and childhood. "I will be ready to take off whenever you say," he added. Captain Kleinschmidt will fly from New York over Ottawa, Hudson Bay, Coronation Gulf to Victoria Land, the home of the blond Eskimos. This is as far as their fuel supply, including sufficient gas for the return trip, will permit them to go by airplane. Here the explorer has many friends among the Eskimos from whom he will obtain dogteams and reindeer for his final dash to the Pole of Inaccessibility, where he believes the home of Santa Claus is located.

Specially Outfitted Plane This trip is very precarious and dangerous, as the Polar regions are covered with thick ice and are very rough and the plane will necessarily be equipped with skis and skis, allowing it to land in open water and on the snow.

Further details concerning the personnel will be announced in Tuesday's Avalanche as well as details concerning the equipment and supplies.

Women Hold Gala Dinner On Friday

Miss Ruth McCormick Toast Mistress For Event Given By B. and P. W. Club At Gloria

The Business and Professional women's club held a banquet at the Gloria Friday evening, November 22, with Miss Ruth McCormick as toast mistress. The program for the evening was opened with the singing of the club songs followed by the introduction of three new members, Mesdames Robert Miller, Elmer Scates, and Mable Dunlap, and two guests Mesdames Cole and McCarroll. Each of the five were presented with a lovely corsage. Each member responded to the roll call with "What I am thankful for" and then gave the leading address of the evening in tracing the history of the Thanksgiving holidays from the landing of the Pilgrims on to the present days, and was followed by discussions by Mesdames Lou Eubank and Emma Jean Smelser, and Misses Mattie Randolph, and Ruth McCormick on various legislative problems concerning the city government. Laws pertaining to labor conditions for both women and children, current bills now before our national government, school land, money and laws governing non-partisan parties, were given round table discussion. Henry Clark gave a talk on the purpose and plan of the Community chest.

Those Present Plates were laid for the following members and guests: Mesdames Emma Jean Smelser, Anna Baze, Leo Buchanan, Robert Miller, Clara Hale, Lou Stubbs, Charles Galbreath, M. S. Cole, Mable Dunlap, Lena McCarroll and Lena McElroy and Misses: Mattie Randolph, Margaret Mallard, Beatrice Padgett, Agatha Gore, Clara Randolph, Ruth McCormick, Claudia Kizer, Billie Jones and Ruby Marie Douillard.

The WOMAN'S DAY

"Did you ever notice," it was a smart looking but by no means handsome woman who put the question to me, "that usually girls who are not pretty make better marriages than the beauties?" I had not noticed it, so she went on.

"A pretty girl's looks become her handicap, unless she has a hard, shrewd brain—which she usually does not have, because they blind her to those unpleasant facts that a girl who is no beauty faces."

"You see, a pretty girl doesn't have to worry about beauty—unless she is a morose—because she attracts them as naturally as flowers attract bees."

"She does not have to worry about dates, or bids to proms, or what not—she does not have to worry about being brilliant or sparkling, if she is pretty enough—and consequently she does not look ahead to the day when her looks fade."

HOMELY WISDOM

"Not so with the girl who isn't so easy to look at. Unless she is extraordinarily talented or endowed with unusual social graces, she takes the jolts that come along."

"She knows what it means to stand aside and let the pretty girl grab off the men. She knows the bitterness of wondering whether she is going to be a wall flower, or who, if any, is going to cut in on her dances. She knows what it is to need an escort, occasionally."

"And, if she is smart, she knows the necessity of wading right in and picking herself a husband, while the picking is good. She is not blinded by her own light. She is not over-confident from conquest. She keeps her head—and you know any woman can get the man she goes after, if she wants him bad enough. She selects a man she wants instead of the kind of a man who is out offering himself to a pretty girl."

"Using her head all of the time, as she has to, she keeps her judgment fairly clear, is a better judge of men than the pretty woman who always sees them in a flattering mood."

"I know it is stupid to generalize, but it is true that most beautiful women develop a great taste for adulation, and they are apt to judge men by the compliments they can sling. And you know that is a poor test."

ROOM FOR ILLUSTRATION

We were dining in a public hotel as she spoke. It was the hour before theater, so the room was filled. Many of the tables were small ones with only a man and a woman seated together.

"Now look around," she urged. The women in here aren't beauties. Most of them look about like you and me. Go to the theater, go to the movies, go anywhere. And you will find that the women that get around, and have the good times, aren't the beauties. They are just the smart ones that know how to get what they want."

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

Modernity

John Erskine has discarded historical satire and steps forward with a modern novel that is called "Modernity" and deals with the curious relationship between two women and a man. It concerns Winthrop Beavel and his wife Isabel, and the circumstances that caused Isabel to leave the country for 19 years, while Beavel and another woman masqueraded as man and wife before the town of Harrington. All of them had acted upon what they believed to be high motives. Their troubles came from their attempt to be absolutely sincere.

Indian Tragedy

"Laughing For" by Oliver La Farge, (Laughing-Butt) is one of the first novels to come out of the southwestern Indian reservations and the life of a Navajo with a town-bred Indian girl is told with true regard for the background. Laughing For defies the conventions of the tribe to run away with Slim Girl. She brings in the further unconventionalities of "civilization" until after she is slain by a jealous lover, there is for the boy only the emptiness of an outcast life.

Indian legends and an almost literal translation of Navajo conversation add to the story.

Treasure Hunts

If you have a young son to whom the long autumn evenings are a bit monotonous, try him a copy of "Hunting Hidden Treasures," by Harold T. Wilkins. It ought to solve his problem nicely.

This book, published by E. P. Dutton, recounts all of the famous treasure hunts of the last half dozen centuries or more, and does it in a graphic and exciting manner. Pirate gold, buried plate, sunken galleons—are all here, in profusion. Incidentally, many a young son's father will find the book entertaining. This reviewer did, at any rate.

A Woman's Soul

Susan Glaspell tells again of a woman's troubled life in "Pugitive's Return," the central figure of which, like that of "Brook Evans" last season, is a middle-western girl.

Believing herself deserted by life, Irma Lee is about to end her own when she is interrupted. The emotional stress blots out her memory for a time. For a while she lives placidly in Greece.

Then, at Delphi, her past descends upon her and she relives her snobbish childhood, when she hated the poverty of her home; her husband's death because of income; and her own death of her life, when Mrs. Schuler won first place in the district contest.

Pioneer Couple To Observe Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Burns Will Celebrate 45th Anniversary Thursday; Recall Olden Days

Next Thursday will have a double significance for Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Burns, 2425 Fourteenth street. While a first will be spread for Thanksgiving day it will also commemorate the 45th anniversary of their wedding married on the South Plains. Mr. and Mrs. Burns have played a paramount role in the development of Lubbock.

Recalls Old Thanksgiving Mrs. Burns' earliest recollection of a gathering around Thanksgiving table near this city was one in 1883 or 1884. Among those who assembled at the Idlewild ranch, 9 miles southwest of Lubbock to enjoy the country and the delicious food from Mrs. Burns' table were George Boles, W. D. Crump, F. E. Wheelock, and George Wolfarth. Added to the guest list also were about 15 cowboys who came from widely separated ranges.

"We prepared far more food for Thanksgiving dinners in those days," Mrs. Burns commented, "for we never knew just how many would drop in for the day. The menu was principally composed of chicken, beef and pork roast, cranberry sauce, cooked fruits, a set and Irish potatoes, pickles, cakes, pies, etc."

"Thanksgiving was chiefly a day for gathering in for a much needed visit. The ranches were so far separated that we seldom saw each other, and we observed Thanksgiving in wholesome manner."

FIVE-MILE RACE TODAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22. (P)—Sixty distance runners, the cream of the western conference, will run over a five-mile course here tomorrow for the team and individual championships of the Big Ten.

Turns Modern

"Invitation to the Dance," by Madge Jensen, tells the story of a small-town spinster who, for all that she has no money, no charm and no back-scratcher, manages to get three husbands, a fortune and a trip to Spain after she has passed middle age.

The heroine of this novel is Aunt Guddah. She "learns to understand life," the author tells us; to accept the decrees of fate without questioning them and without being disappointed by them. She is entirely submissive, yet this very submissiveness enables her to get things that more self-assertive people miss.

Miss Jensen has written a novel of considerable charm. Her style is warm and rich, her characterization is excellent; and if the story occasionally falls to carry conviction—if Aunt Guddah seems at times to be rather more the favored child of fortune than the author intended—the book is, nevertheless, well worth your reading. It is published by Doubleday-Doran, and sells for $2.50.

Laundry Work Is Lauded In City

The Lubbock Laundry is more than fulfilling its part in providing for the health and sanitation welfare of the community. R. E. Hauber, laundry research expert of the Proctor and Gamble company of Ivorydale, Ohio, declared here yesterday after an inspection of the company's plants here.

"There is no chance for any communicable disease ever spreading in Lubbock through the laundries. Mr. Hauber said in speaking of the conditions here. "The laundries not only sterilize the clothes as they clean them but they also remove the odors, microbes and other reasons for possible spread of disease."

"When you take the washday out of the home, you not only provide better health conditions for the mother but for the baby also," Mr. Hauber said. He stated that Lubbock laundries are enjoying a patronage that most cities of this size and population.

He stressed the importance of sending laundry work to recognized firms, declaring that the matter of health is so important that the work should be done under conditions that are thoroughly known and understood.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COOMAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Oh, gee, but aren't these lanterns cute. I'd like to take one down and scoot," said Clowey. "I could use it then to light things up at night. A handle is on every one. To swing one round would be real fun. Won't someone please boost me. I can reach one then all right."

"Now, wait a minute," Scouty said. "Why don't you ever use your head? You know that it is wrong to steal. Be honest every day. Those lanterns don't belong to you. If you never think of what you do, right on the wall, where they belong, is where they are going to stay."

Then Coppy cried, "I wonder where there is a path to open air. I don't like being in a cave, especially one like this. We're safe and sound the way we are, but we had best not travel far. When we don't know our way most anything might go amiss."

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Scouty. "You're afraid. Investigation must be made so we can find out what this cave is all about. We may walk in much deeper, or we may soon walk right out." And so they started, rather slow, as Carpy shouted, "Here we go. I'm curious as I can be. Let's keep away from dark." As long as there are lanterns here, there's nothing that we need to fear. And then he stopped and whispered, "Say! I hear a voice, boys. Hark!" Just then two little lumps of coal ran up and shouted, "Bless my soul! Who are you little fellows and what are you doing here. We've been alone and it's a shame. Oh, we are mighty glad you came. We are the little coal men and you've filled us full of cheer." (The Tines have fun with the coal men in the next story.)

ANOTHER STEP MADE

TAKING THINGS ON FAITH

Of all the dirty stories that Chicago's racketeers have provided the nation's newspapers, the recent one about the prohibition league that played both ends against the middle, for profit, just about takes the prize.Here was the set-up, as related by federal investigators who finally smashed the outfit:A few ingenious gentlemen banded together and founded a "law and order" league, whose avowed purpose was to support the prohibition law. They enlisted the aid of a 60-year-old woman, an ardent temperance worker, and put her name down on their stationery as president.Then they went into action. From friends of probhibition they collected funds. The lady president, delighted to be of service, got her friends and acquaintances to contribute. In this way a nice little banking fund was established.Thereupon the organizers went out and began to sell liquor to retail liquor keepers. They had two very powerful sales arguments. To men who bought of them they promised protection. Men who refused to buy they raided.Thus, part of the time the outfit was a crusading prohibitionist organization. And part of the time it was a booze-selling, high pressure racket. Or so, at any rate, say the federal authorities who finally got wind of it.It would be hard to imagine anything more impulsive—or more lucrative. There was money coming in from two sources. The lady president remaining in blissful ignorance of the outfit's true character;
so, naturally, did the high-spirited folk who contributed to its funds. While it lasted, everybody was happy—except, perhaps, the unlucky liquor dealers who refused to buy from this law and order concern and so got raided.The whole incident illustrates the helplessness of the average citizen where a quasi-public body of this kind is concerned.The law-abiding Chicagoan, asked to contribute to this concern, had no way of knowing whether or not it was worth his money to be of not. There was no way he could find out. He had to take things on faith.That is what the conditions of modern life require us to do increasingly. Our world is so complex, and the general scale on which things are run is so huge, that we never can find out for ourselves whether the people and the organizations we deal with are exactly what they pretend to be or not.So we simply take it for granted that most people are on the level. Most of the time we are not let down. The arrangement works. Most people are sore.It is only when something like this Chicago affair happens that we realize how greatly we depend on the honesty of the other fellow.

READING BY PROXY

The most accomplished way of using books is to serve them to some people do lords. Learn their titles and then brag of their acquaintance, once wrote Lawrence Sterne, man of letters.Sterne died in 1768 but what he said is as true today as it was then. It is a popular thing to brag of one's acquaintance with the titles of books. It is a popular thing to brag of one's acquaintance with the titles of books. It is a popular thing to brag of one's acquaintance with the titles of books.The American public is buying more and more books. It is buying more books than any other people in the world. The American public is buying more books. It is buying more books than any other people in the world. The American public is buying more books. It is buying more books than any other people in the world.Everywhere you go, however, you can hear people talking about the deep reading they are doing and reviewing for their friends the latest novel or book on the far sciences. And they talk about them as though from first hand knowledge. If they aren't doing a tremendous amount of reading where do they get all of their information, somebody asks.
The answer lies in the new popularity of the book review. There are several in magazine form and scores in Sunday supplement and newspaper column form. The supply is evidence by the demand.So it has come to pass that we are a nation of synthetic and second-hand readers. But better than no reader at all. And then the contributors to the better book reviews are many of them as capable literary men as those whose works they write about so the lazy reader in a measure derives from the review something more than the privilege to brag of the acquaintance of the books he has read in review.

"WILLFUL OBSTRUCTIONISTS"

It is somewhat hard to understand the argument set up by John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, that "the strangulation of the whole congress by a handful of willful obstructionists" is doing "more than anything else to stifle business confidence throughout the country."Congress is considering a tariff bill which, it is true, proposes to change import rates on a great many articles, but there is absolutely no uncertainty about how it proposes to change 99 per cent of them. It proposes to change them upward. Why, then, should business be uncertain? It is high tariffs that cause prosperity, the future under a new tariff bill is rosy; and if the bill does not pass, conditions can be no worse than they have been since 1922, when the Fordney-McCumber schedules became effective.Who are the "willful obstructionists" to whom Mr. Edgerton refers? Most of them are Democrats who were excluded from the tariff discussions of the Republican section of the finance committee, and were called in later to receive the verdict of the majority. The rest are Republicans from the great agricultural states who find that the finance committee's bill does not carry out the pledges of the party platform. If every obstruction was justifified, that of the present senate majority is justified, since it is for the protection of the vast majority of the citizens—the consumers.On the Firing Line at the Nation's CapitalIT TAKES COURAGEOUS SENATOR TO SMUGGLE COCKTAIL SHAKER FROM UPPER CHAMBER NOWADAYS

BY CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The sure fact that a few cigar stubs, tossed smoldering into a powder magazine, have done out harmlessly, by extraordinary good luck does not make the tossing of smoldering cigar stubs into powder magazines a safe practice.Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, began it recently—the careless flipping of lighted cigar stubs into the prohibition powder magazine.No one was surprised to see Senator Smith W.
Brookhart, of Iowa, begin imitating him immediately.
Members of congress always did consider the Iowa downright criminally reckless with his cigar stubs, not only in the prohibition powder magazine but wherever political high explosives are kept.Brookhart actually wants an explosion; there is no doubt about that.Howell is a speaker of rather, as thoughtless. He is blamed for it, to be sure. Still, he is not as bad as Brookhart. The latter is positively malicious. A probhibition explosion probably cannot hurt him; Iowa appears to be thoroughly dry. It may very easily hurt others, in more uncertain states; cigar stubs tossed in that magazine score them nearly to death.However, what better can one expect from a couple of progressives? Their progressive-ism, in itself, marks them as without the slightest sense of responsibility.It was when the venerable Senator Frederick H.
Gillett, of Massachusetts, started stub-tossing, too, that the "horrid" onlookers fairly turned pale and quaked in every limb.True, Gillett is perhaps an explosion-proof as Brookhart or Howell. For one thing, maybe he intends to retire at his term's end; if so, what does he care for personal consequences? Besides, his state is supposed to be as wet as Iowa and Nebraska are dry.Wets in wet states and dries in dry states can equally afford to defy the lightning, because they know which side of the mouth to defy it on.Nevertheless, hitherto Gillett has had the reputation of one of the most discreet of statesmen; not discreet for himself alone, but discreet also in behalf of his fellow politicians.Senator Howell's charge that Washington is as wet as a spot as any in the country (meaning mighty wet) was a risky enough cigar stub.Senator Brookhart's story of a very wet dinner he had attended, with several more senators, was potentially an even worse cigar stub—but fortunately there are indications that it had gone out when Brookhart flipped it. In other words, it seems unlikely that Brookhart will be able to prove the dinner's wetness. No one disputes the moral certainty of his wetness, but proving it legally is a different matter.The worst cigar stub of all (one of the worst ever tossed into the prohibition magazine) was Senator Gillett's.When Gillett stated, on the senate floor, that he frequently had been members of the house of representatives, ever since he was formerly president of a cigar stub, transacting business under the influence of liquor—Is it possible he did not realize that he was liable to start an investigation?A congressional investigation is not like a trial in a law court—where accusations must be established beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt—where embarassing questions can be headed off—where there is a higher tribunal to appeal to—where an acquittal settles everything.Anything under heaven can be brought out during a congressional investigation. There are no rules, no jury to hushwaggle, no mercy—nothing but diabolical publicity.And right after the capture, too, of a bootlegger, his wares in his possession, in the senate office building.

Diet and Health

Medical Adviser for Central Press and The Avalanche-Journal.USE OF HOT WATER BOTTLE FOR COLD FEET
IS NOT WEAKENING, DECLARES DR. PETERS

Sleeping in the Cold

Not long ago I had a letter from a reader who wanted to know my opinion of the idea that it is harmful to sleep in cold air. She had read in some article that it was.No it isn't. Most of us find that we have a much more refreshing sleep when the air is cold than when warmed artificially. Personally, I find I cannot sleep at all if I leave the radiator on during the night, no matter how cold it is (and it gets pretty cold here in New York).But you must not sleep cold—that is harmful. You must have warm night clothes, and sufficient bed coverings to keep warm. Woolen blankets and an eiderdown quilt, of course, are the best. And wear a night cap if it is very cold, or pull your sheet over the back of your head. Then, if necessary, a hot water bag or two, or three. I often take two with me, especially when I read in bed, for my hands get cold, so I have one for my feet and one for my hands.After my hands get warm, I slip it down to my shoulders or the small of my back. Comfy! I love my h. w. b.Now I'm smashing a common belief that it is weakening to take a hot water bag to bed to warm the feet. It isn't. It is almost impossible to go to sleep with cold feet, and the time you take from your needed sleep is certainly much more apt to be harmful. Naturally, I advise exercise, so that one has a good circulation but no matter how good a circulation some people have, their feet don't seem to recognize it.About the warm air again. Remember that cheap types of gas stoves to warm the room may be dangerous also can fire and oil lamps that have incomplete combustion.Outdoor air, even in the coldest of weather, has distinctly stimulating and healing properties, and the longer you stay in it the better. Many convalescents improve markedly when placed in the open. At the Battle Creek sanitarium you will find the lawns and porches (appropriated for the purpose) filled with patients in reclining chairs and cots. They are put out in the morning, and are required to stay all day, only going in for their treatments. Their meals are brought to them.In the New York Lying-in hospital (and probably in many other hospitals) they have a solarium for their serious cases, and these patients stay out in the open night and day, even in the coldest weather, and are only taken in for treatments and when it storms.I should say that all our experience points to the fact that cold air is not harmful, but decidedly beneficial, if the person is kept comfortably warm.Miss S.—Persons can't help the wrong impressions and the wrong things that they do through lack of knowledge. In their early lives, and probably everyone has experienced some disagreeable things of a similar nature to yours. Realizing that you are not to blame, and that you are not alone in such psychic injuries, stop their hurting. Stop concentrating on them Miss S. When you begin to pity yourself, say to yourself: "This is a fine thing I'm doing! Self-pity! The most despicable of emotions. I'll snap out of it!" Get yourself as much interested in some work or hobby as you possible can, and get interested in and be as helpful and kind to other people as you can. This will help you forget your own little ego and bring you happiness.Naturally, you must have the right diet so that your nervous system is nourished properly, and you should have some exercise and lots of outdoor life.If you find it too difficult, better consult a physician who specializes in psychoanalysis, or some other well qualified practitioner of that art.

COUNSEL

If thou shouldst bid thy friend farewell,
But for one night though that farewell may be,
Press thou his hand in thine; thou canst not tell How far from theeFate or caprice may lead his feet
— Ere that tomorrow comes Men have been known Lightly to turn the corner of a

And days have grownTo months, and months to lagging years.
Before they look on loving eyes again.
Parting, at best, is underlaid with tears.
With tears and pain,Therefore, lest sudden death should come between,
Or time, or distance, clasp with pressure true
The palm of him who goeth forth;
Fare thee well!Yea, find thou always time to say Some earnest word betwixt the idle talk.Lest with thee henceforth ever, Night and day,
Regret should walk.

Wichita Officials May Join

Wichita county may be aided in its fight on the gasoline tax by the city of Wichita Falls. Wayne Somerville, county attorney, has obtained authority to bring injunction proceedings asking that the state be restrained from collecting the four-cent levy on gasoline intended for county use and has asked city officials to join him.R. L. Bobbitt, attorney general, said while here recently that constitutionality of the tax probably would have to be decided in the courts, revealing that he had been asked to hand down a ruling on the law.Somerville contends the law is unconstitutional since it takes a political subdivision of the state.

boarding house, is strangled to death, BONNIE DUNDEE, "cub" detective, assisting Lieut. STRAWN, attaches significance to the ulterance "Bad Penny!" made by CAPT. Mrs. Hogarth's parrot.Suspicion falls at once on EMIL SEVIER, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth has accused of trying to rob her and who left town hurriedly. Dundee, behind a screen, takes notes as STRAWN quizzes DOWD, newcomer out of work, who insists he was asleep in his room next to Mrs. Hogarth's.CORA BARKER, theater pianist, tells of her date with another boarder, BERT MAGNES, amateur scenario writer, of his failure to appear and of her return to the house to hear him typing in his room at 12:15. She denies being Sevier's accomplice. Norma Paige the latest housemaid under Mrs. Ho-garth's will, admits calling on her late that night and of accusing him of confessing her engagement to WALTER STYLES, another boarder.Styles corroborates Norma's admission that she came to his room to tell him of the interview and confesses he was angry. Magness says he typed until 12:15. DAISY SHEPHERD explains her absence from her room at the murder hour by saying she was in the kitchen robbing the ice box. Dundee finds in Mrs. Hogarth's file references to a mysterious "D." of whom she lived in dread.NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX"GOOD MORNING, Mrs. Rhodes!
Am I the first one down?" Bonnie Dundee greeted his landlady cheerfully as he entered the dining room.Although he had had only two hours' sleep, the young detective lived up gloriously to his nickname.
He was "bonnie" certainly, with his shining black hair, still damp from the shower, and his brilliant blue eyes, and the fresh color of youth disclosed in his smiling eyes brightened at sight of him. "You look as if you'd slept like a baby," she told him, as she poured his coffee and then offered him cream for his raspberries. "I didn't sleep a wink myself, what with waiting on the account of Dundee—sick as a pup he was, when he finally woke up—and worrying over what happened here last night.""I'm awfully sorry," the boy sympathized sincerely. "What does the paper say? Have they caught Sevier?""No, but I hope to the Lord they do," Mrs. Rhodes sighed. "If this thing isn't cleared up in a hurry, my business will be ruined. The reporters have been here since daybreak, taking pictures of the house and trying to interview me. Cold comfort, I gave them!" she added, with gloomy satisfaction."That's right!" Dundee said.
"Let them get their news from the police.""Asking me where poor Mrs. Hogarth came from, and who her relatives were, and—""I'm afraid I'm going to bother you with just the same questions," Dundee interrupted, apologetically.
"You see, Mrs. Rhodes, I read Mrs.
Hogarth's diary after I went to bed this morning. And on the first of the month she invariably recorded the receipt of a letter from 'S.' Can you tell me who S. is, Mrs. Rhodes?
She must be a daughter or a near relative. She must be notified of Mrs. Hogarth's death, of course, but I have no clue to her full name."Dundee was about to ask an other question when Daisy Shepherd entered the dining room. She was dressed in a light summer silk ensemble, topped with a modish little hat that made her broad, pleasant face seem even larger than it was."Going to Sunday school, Daisy?" Mrs. Rhodes inquired with an effort to appear her normal, hospitable self. "I suppose church would do us all good today—Here's an extra big helping of raspberries, honey—look at you, you don't deserve them," and she smiled affectionately."Now, why bring that up?" Daisy laughed, flushing. "But, believe me, Mrs. Rhodes, that was one time when crime was justified. I guess I'm one of the few people in this house last night who had a perfect alibi. . . . No, I'm not going to church. I'm going to a hotel until I can find another boarding place.
Honestly, I'd rather be whipped than to tell you that, Mrs. Rhodes, because you've been so motherly to cause you wouldn't be able to sleep
a wink in this house—Oh, hello,
Norma! How do you feel, baby?
You look as if you'd been crying all night.""—I have," Norma Paige answered, I suppose," Dundee concluded regretfully. "But what about swerved in a low voice, as she slipped into her chair. "Good morning, everybody." She tried to smile, but the childish little mouth quivered, and fresh tears filled the wood-violet eyes. "Thanks, Mrs. Rhodes. . . . May I have the cream, please?"

Bonnie Dundee, eager to be of service to the girl he had lost his heart to, passed the cream pitcher so quickly that their hands touched. To his startled amazement the girl's hand flinched from his, as if—as if he were a murderer!

But as the rest of the boarders drifted into the dining room, all of them showing the effect of the strain of the tragic night, his keen eyes told him that he was not alone in being a temporary pariah. Every hand that accidentally touched another shrank from the fact that the morning papers had played up the news that the police were hunting Emil Sevier, every boarder here—unless, of course, the real murderer was among them—looked with sick suspicion and horror upon every other boarder.

Dundee made a sudden resolution. He had not missed the stricken look in Mrs. Rhodes' eyes as she heard Daisy Shepherd's decision to quit the house of horror. And it was vitally necessary to certain plans of his own that those questioned last night by Lieutenant Strawn remained in this house. He rose to his feet, smiling his friendliness, disarming smile:

"I know you will all think it's none of my business, and that this speech, if made by anyone, should come from one of the older inhabitants of the Rhodes House. . . . I'll be brief, folks: I realize it will not be very pleasant for any of us to go on living in this house of tragedy, but I, personally, intend to stay. I've paid two weeks' board in advance, and I can't afford to lose it, and I wouldn't have the nerve to ask Mrs. Rhodes to refund any part of it. I imagine most of you have paid in advance."

He paused, noted the reluctant nods of his fellow boarders, then went on: "But there is another angle to be considered. I hate like the devil to point it out, but I'm including myself, too, you know. The fact is, that every inmate of this house is bound to be more or less under suspicion, since the police have undoubtedly decided upon greed as the motive for the murder."

every one of us could use more money. In view of these circumstances, I move that we all stick by Mrs. Rhodes, and show the police that we have nothing to run away from."

Mrs. Rhodes gasped then dropped her quivering face into her hands. Dundee sat down, and over the edge of his coffee cup observed the effect of his speech upon his fellow boarders. They eyed each other furtively, suspiciously, but slowly came their assent, led pompously by Mr. Lawrence Sharp, "speaking for myself and the wife." Walter Styles and Nana Paige said, "All right," in unison, and Cora Baker, whose haggard face was the color of old linen, nodded mutely. Henry Dowd and Bert Magnus agreed promptly and cheerfully. But Daisy Shepherd shook her head vigorously:

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Rhodes, but honest, I'd go nuts if I stayed here. I've got a perfect alibi, and the police can suspect me all they want to."

Her defiance was interrupted by the ringing of the doorbell. Mrs. Rhodes excused herself to answer it, then reappeared almost immediately in the doorway:

"You're wanted, Mr. Dundee." Bonnie Dundee sprang to his feet grinning cheerfully at his startled table-mates. He found Lieutenant Strawn in the hall and, after asking Mrs. Rhodes, in a low voice, to set aside the dishes used by both Dowd and Magnus, for examination by the fingerprint expert, followed his chief upstairs to the murdered woman's room.

BEAUTY REST CONTENTMENT

The frontiers of our country have been pushed to their extreme. The pioneer is a character blending into the mists of the past. With their passing goes the idea that a cemetery is a mere burying ground . . . a spot at which to pause and leave behind, with a tear and a prayer, a loved one passed away.

Today, just as the wiser man considers insurance a matter of course, so he considers the selection of a final resting place an obligation to be fulfilled as quickly as his circumstances permit. Amid the agony of bereavement there is neither the time nor inclination to exercise the care and judgment this duty evolves.

"I need only to visit the cemetery of any community to learn the character of its people."

Norris Plan To Limit Import Gain Probably Won't Become A Law, Says Dutcher After Surveying Question

But At Least Senator From Nebraska Has Proved His Contention That Public Is Being Socked

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Seldom is any legislation enacted which results in cheaper prices for consumers, so no one ever has much hope for a measure such as the Norris tariff bill amendment designed to limit profits on imports to 15 per cent.

With equal infrequency does the consumer have set before him in black and white an analysis of the prices he pays, showing the percentage of cost and the percentage of profit. But it happened the other day when the Senate was shown that profits 10 times as large as Norris proposes seemed to be the rule rather than the exception on imported goods sold in American stores.

Norris Showed 'Em

The evidence was toted into the Senate in the form of 103 exhibits of articles purchased at retail in New York, including everything from a clarinet to a dog muzzle.
It was this exhibit which caused Senator Barkley of Kentucky to arise and demand of Vice President Curtis as a parliamentary inquiry:

"By what authority have Kresge and Woolworth moved into the Senate chamber?"

Ashurst of Arizona had the floor at the time and purely for the benefit of readers of the Congressional Record, who might have thought Barkley was calling him a five-and-ten-cent senator, pointed out that there was an exhibit piled up on the tables in the rear. Republican members of the Finance Committee had arranged it to show the percentage of difference between the landed valuation of imported merchandise and its retail sale price.

In one case appeared a difference of 3,225 per cent between the landed selling price—that is, the value in country of origin plus duty, transportation and other costs of importation—and the price in a shop off Fifth Avenue. This was Exhibit
No. 21, a pair of alleged antique metal vases, which cost 98 cents in France and 48 cents for duty and transportation, but which were being retailed for $50.

A human hair-net showed a profit of 995 per cent. These imported nets from China only retail for 10 cents each, but they cost less than a cent to buy and bring to New York. A wig whose landed cost was $7.14 sold in a big New York department store for $35.

A dozen glass buttons which cost seven cents in Czechoslovakia sold for 79 cents at another department store. A French briar-wood pipe selling in American chain stores for 50 cents cost but 7 1/2 cents in France. Here are some other examples, the figures in order being the landed cost, the retail price in New York and the percentage of difference:

German bird cage $4.80, $16.50,
337 per cent. Danish pewter bowl,
$8, $29, 262 per cent. German thumb tacks, 5 1/2 mills, 5 cents, 871 per cent. Swedish vacuum cleaner, $20.51, $77, 275 per cent. Alencon lace $2.50, $9.50, 280 per cent.
French incense burner 29 cents, $1, 247 per cent. English military buttons 29 cents, $2.50, 771 per cent.
French cut-glass bottle $4.29, $15,
250 per cent. Austrian painting,
$8.99, $70, 679 per cent. German box of stationery 65 cents, $2, 208 per cent. German violin resin 5 1/2 cents, 25 cents, 339 per cent. French clarinet $16.90, $55, 225 per cent. Czechoslovakian dress class $1.02, $5, 388 per cent. Japanese tooth brush, 6 1/2 cents, 35 cents, 300 per cent.
Vienna caramels 23 cents, 70 cents, 302 per cent. Swiss self-winding watch $8.75, $55, 529 per cent. German spark plug 15 cents, $1, 455 per cent. German tea jar set $4.43 cents, 45 cents, 276 per cent. German razor $1.30, $5, 283 per cent.
Dutch spinach seed 11.22 cents, 75 cents, 543 per cent. French curling iron 23.44 cents, $1.75, 423 per cent.

High tariff senators pointed to these exhibits as showing that importers were making enormous profits despite duties on the articles. Norris, introducing his amendment, said such profits were being made apparently by means of a "gentlemen's agreement" between importers and makers of similar goods in this country.

The conference will be held in 800 Rotarians of the district should

Costs Less Now Thanksgiving Feast Cost Lower Now

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—A family of five can get a Thanksgiving dinner and $1.50 change from a $10 bill this year, the Mercantile Exchange estimated today. Last year one got only 50 cents change.

The menu includes oyster cocktail, celery and olives, roast turkey, sweet and mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, turnips or peas, rolls and butter, pumpkin pie and coffee.

The reason the cost is $1 less than last year, the exchange explained, is due mostly to the fact that turkey is approximately 12 cents a pound cheaper. Oysters are a fraction lower and the other commodities are about the same price as last season.

New Oil Town Has Municipal Control

VAN ZANDT, Nov. 23.—(AP)—This lusty infant oil town, from whose four corners comes the sullen roar of rapid, preoccupied building, now is a quasi-municipality.

The citizens banded together, formed a temporary government and elected officials—J. M. Davenport, a Dallas attorney, city manager; Harry Ungerman, another Dallas lawyer, city attorney; and Dr. A. Wright, health officer.
Judge E. R. Tunnell, E. T. Swift,
H. P. Stone, Verner L. Cole, R.
Russell, C. T. Pettus and E. B.
Tunnell were selected members of an advisory committee somewhat similar to a city commission.

The new government's first concern was the employment of a firm to dispose of rubbish and trash.
Next the health officer was empowered to enforce sanitary rules.
Dr. Wright likewise will attempt to see that all water used for drinking purposes until the new water plant is installed is fit for consumption.

Meanwhile "Soury" Ward, new nightwatchman, has begun his patroles.
As far as was learned no particular campaign against crime was invoked. Van has been congratulated by state officers on the dearth of criminals within its bounds.

The first Thanksgiving Day was observed by the Pilgrims in 1621 when they met to sum up the results of their labors for the year and give thanks to God for the bounteous harvest. It was then a time of feasting and worship as it is today. Later, at the time when the Constitution of the United States was adopted, Washington issued a decree that a day of Thanksgiving be set aside for the Nation to give thanks for both advancement in business and government. Since that time both State and National governments consider the last Thursday of November as the day to give thanks for life, liberty, pursuit of happiness and the kindness of nature.

The growth of Lubbock and the Plains has been great during the last year. For the part the Texas Utilities has shared in our prosperity, we are duly thankful—and on Thursday shall pay homage to our Forefathers who established the precedent by giving thanks to God.

"Woman Trap" Headlines Theater Program This Week

Film Taken From Stage Play Still Showing To Crowd

Evelyn Brent Star
Of Production
At Palace

THANK the talkies, if you must, for bringing us a more powerful form of entertainment than their predecessor the silent drama. One of the really fine things which have come to us out of this talking age is "Woman Trap," the Paramount all-talking attraction at the Palace theater for four days, starting today.

"Woman Trap" is from the stage play "Brothers" which is still showing to capacity houses wherever presented and it is very easy to see why. The conflict of brother against brother started with the first two brothers on the face of the earth. But it remained for Paramount to give to the stage play that added life which is impossible to encompass on any stage.

It is a sensational, daring picture with a theme that moves audiences to perfect rhythm to its action. The theme touches your heart. The action moves so swiftly you gasp for breath, fearful of breathing lest you lose a single movement. And the smashing climax brings you right out of your seat, for the unusual happens.

The cast is as nearly perfect as it is possible to make them, they do not appear as actors, but more like the real puppets in the hands of life. Hal Skelly, who did such a neat bit in "The Dance of Life" again adds to his laurels. Evelyn Brent adds vividness to the picture and Chester Morris as the younger brother is superb.

Jameson Thomas, who plays the leading role in "Piccadilly," a World Wide imported sound picture which is shown at the Lyric Theatre today, is a clever artist with the pen as well as on the screen.

In a certain scene of the picture it is necessary for Thomas to make several sketches of Anna May Wong, who plays the part of a Chinese dancer. Usually an outside artist is engaged to duplicate in such a role, but much to the surprise of E. A. Dupont, the director of the picture, Mr. Thomas declared that he could carry out the role himself.

Sketches Exceptional
The sketches the actor made in the scene proved of exceptional excellence. It subsequently turned out that Mr. Thomas was an artist before he went on the stage. In fact sketching is his hobby and he spends most of his spare time in drawing portraits of noted film stars and directors.

Mr. Thomas is one of the most accomplished actors of the English film industry. He was born in 1892 in London and made his stage debut in "The White Man." His first film play was "Chu Chin Chow." He has since had leading roles in many British International pictures, including "A Woman in the Night," where he played opposite Greta Cordis, "Week-end Wives," "The White Shiel," and "Poppies of Flanders."

He is as handsome a leading man as could be found, tall and dark, and served in the Royal Horse Artillery during the war.

The oldest date palm in the country was planted near San Diego by the Spanish missionary, Santero, in 1773.

All-Talkie "Divorce Made Easy" To Show Here

Al Christie has lined up a high-powered cast for the Douglas MacLean all-talking feature production "Divorce Made Easy" which is to be seen at the Lindsey theater the last half of the week.

Marie Prevost carries the part of the feminine lead, that of a young married woman whose husband gets her to agree to a divorce so that he can pacify a wealthy maiden aunt who threatens to cut him off in her will. The plotters decide to get married again as soon as the aunt provides the husband with an income. The divorce scheme which Douglas MacLean tries to help them make perfect, fails, but the farce situations materialize abundantly.

Johnny Arthur, Jack Duffy, Frances Lee, and Lou Parley have supporting roles in the production. Jack Duffy and Frances Lee have both been starring in Christie short pictures this season, while Johnny Arthur was an Educational star and made his talking debut in Warner's "On Trial" with an outstanding comedy part.

Dot Parley recently appeared in one of the Christie talking short plays, "A Bird in the Hand" with Lois Wilson. Frances Lee played opposite MacLean in "The Carnation Kid," a talking picture which was recently released by Paramount.

Walter Graham directed "Divorce Made Easy." He was the megaphone wielder for the Octavus Roy Cohen, story, "Music Hath Harms."

"Divorce Made Easy" is one of the first farce comedies to be made into an all-talking feature production.

The expression "sell it to the marines" arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs and would believe almost anything that was told them.

William Powell, as the "other" man and Mary Nolan in the role of the infringer, are strong supporters of the two well-known leads. Miss Nolan carries the part of a frothy, light-headed, but altogether charming husband, but of flirtatious womanhood with consummate skill. Laura Hope Crews, Florence Eldridge, of "The Studio Murder Mystery" cast, and Montagu Love are in the group of players.

Robert Milton, for years one of the biggest stage show producers on Broadway and recently appointed director of talking pictures by Paramount, directed "Charming Sinners." The dialog sparkles with fun, the situations over-run with amusing incidents and the pantomime, especially that of Clive Brook, will bring many a hearty laugh.

Novels May Have Disclosures Too

Charles Ferguson
Has "Pigskin," Marks Writes

HARD upon the Carnegie Foundation report on college athletics come two novels that profess to make similar disclosures.

One is "Pigskin," by Charles W. Ferguson. The other is "The Unwilling God," by that veteran interpreter of college life, Percy Marks. Charles W. Ferguson is a former Lubbock boy, the son of the late C. N. Ferguson, pastor of the First Methodist church here. He is a graduate of Clarendon college and Southern Methodist university.

"Pigskin" is not an epic of the gridiron but a grim, satirical display of an American college president who comes to realize that pigskin is today's substitute for the sheepskin.

Dr. Horace Ethelmore Dickey dreamed of a great university and poured his dream, at last, into concrete forms. But it was not without ruthlessness and without suffering. Ferguson, in his first novel, does present a picture as devastating as the foundation's report, with additional scenes of the badged alumni.

Percy Marks says these alumni are "the worst offenders."

"They are," he says, "far more hysterical about football than the undergraduates are."

"The Unwilling God" describes the struggle of a campus hero against the accepted rules for such a role. He went to college to get an education, but he finally gets the old college spirit, dashes through an opposing team for a touchdown and wins the inevitable girl.

U.S. And Canada Lead World In Radio Broadcasting

Survey Shows Air Not Freely Used In Other Nations

Americans Are Lucky In Getting Service; Governments And Private Concerns Rote Air Elsewhere

By NEA Service
LONDON, Nov. 23.—There are few countries in the world where broadcasting is carried on as freely as in the United States and Canada.

A recent survey shows that most countries have some form of monopoly control of broadcasting and large government subsidies. On this continent broadcasting is a business striving to make a profit in the same way that any manufacturer endeavors to make his business pay. Hardly so elsewhere. To consider first a few of the British dominions. In Australia there are 24 broadcasting stations. They are divided into two classes, the higher powered stations being known as Class A. These are being taken over by the Postoffice Department, while a private company supplies the programs. The Class B stations are to remain under private ownership for some time. Listeners have to pay a license fee of 24 shillings, approximately six dollars. India has had considerable trouble to make a go of broadcasting due to the many disloyal elements of the country. A scheme was tried some years ago where one company was given a monopoly, similar to Great Britain. This did not work out well and now there are six stations under private ownership in the country.

Must Pay to Listen In.
A license fee of $3.65 is charged to every set owner, which is considerably better than under the system in vogue before, whereby the purchaser had to pay extra fees for various parts used in the receiver, on account of the monopoly. The Irish Free State has strictly state control of broadcasting with two stations in operation at Dublin and Cork. Here the system used some years ago in India is now being used, a tax being imposed on all imported radio apparatus in addition to an annual license fee of $2.50.

South Africa has an elaborate system of control, though it has but four stations. Each of these stations has a monopoly. No other station can be erected for five years in the region assigned to the existing station. This gives the owners of the stations exclusive rights in their region. To cover the costs of this service the listener is expected to pay not only a license fee of five shillings every year, but in addition an annual subscription for the station in his region. The rates of these subscriptions vary with the distance the listener lives from the station, varying between approximately $1.60 and $6.75.

And if the radio dealer wants to use a loudspeaker for advertising, he has to pay an even higher subscription fee.

Governments Step In.
Turning to Europe, government ownership seems to have its finger in radio broadcasting in one way or another in every country. In the United Kingdom the postoffice has granted the British Broadcasting company a monopoly for ten years. This organization is government operated, running 21 stations. Its revenue comes from annual license fees of $2.50 and from publications.

Germany has a strictly government owned system with associations in each state to carry on broadcasting in their own locality. It is a complex system in that the state broadcasting companies have to pay a fee to the government holding company for the use of the station. Then the state company has to provide programs which must meet with the approval of the government, pay for these programs as well as the upkeep of the station and its personnel and the interest on the capital invested in the station.

The state companies receive their revenue from the listener license fees which amount to six dollars a year, from 50 to 60 per cent being turned over to the companies by the government. It being compulsory to have a license, more than 2,600,000 listeners are licensed in the country.

More Monopolies.
Austria has a monopoly through a private organization. Belgium is arranging for a government monopoly. Czechoslovakia, with five stations, has a largely government owned broadcasting. Denmark is run in the same way, except that the people have an advisory council to say what kind of programs they want.

France has both private and government owned stations, while Holland's stations are owned by private, religious and political organizations. Mussolini, with dictatorial tastes, has created government monopoly in Italy with an advisory council composed of the leading lights in art, politics, literature and science to arrange programs. An interesting part of this control in Italy is that after three public performances the broadcasting body can place musical or literary performances on the air for which the producer is to be paid a mutually agreeable price.

CHAINS ARE FAVORED.
More than 70 percent of the radio listeners on the Pacific coast prefer chain releases to those of local stations according to the Pacific states of the NEC.

Gold probably was the first metal to be employed by man; it was used for ornaments before any other metal was discovered.

WTAM Unites Old Friends

It was back in 1917, in Cincinnati, that Frank Crumit met Johanna Grose. And not until WTAM, Cleveland opened its new $50,000-watt superstation did they meet again. Crumit, known as radio's "One-Man Glee Club," walked into the studio to take part in the opening program and saw Miss Grose. Johanna plays the new $40,000 WTAM organ and is able to play 9000 selections without repetition.

BEFORE The MIKE

RADIO is drawing talent nearly as fast as the would-be-movie stars flock to Hollywood. The NEC reports that it is now giving on an average of 40 dramatic troupe each week. Thirty-five of each 40 applicants are professional actors and actresses, it is said.

"Stop it! Stop it!" is the cry of Tom "Red" Manning these days. This flaming haired youth of WTAM, Cleveland, recently received a letter from a fair female asking for one of his flaming locks. "I'd be bald if that kept up," Manning says.

In charge of the first army broadcasting studio in the United States at Fort Snelling, Minn., is Captain M. Dyer, army announcer. The studio is under the direction of officials of KSTP, St. Paul. Captain Dyer will act as announcer during some of the programs.

He has been in radio for four years, and has announced the post's band programs at KSTP for the past year.

Having broadcast through nearly 70 stations in the country, Uncle Jack and Little Boy Blue ought to be well known to most of us. They are at KMBC, Kansas City, now. Little Boy Blue, by the way, is only four years old, and a clever little singer already.

ENGLISH TELEVISION.
England is planning an extensive broadcast of television shortly. Heretofore regular hours have been assigned to this broadcast, but the new schedule will be outside the regular band.

Nearly 300, or about one-half of the radio stations in the United States, broadcast special agricultural programs for benefit of farmers throughout the country.

Prize Broadcaster Tells How To Become An Announcer; List Of Qualifications Needed To Address Mike Given

By NEA Service.
NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A well-dressed voice, a share of the "breaks," a willingness to start at the bottom and a resolve to "be natural," are the essential requirements of a radio announcer, says Milton J. Cross, NBC announcer and winner of the national dictation award early this year.

In answer to thousands of requests from men and women for pointers on how to be an announcer, Cross asks, "Why become a radio announcer?" But if you must, here's what advice he has to offer:

"The first step is to form a connection with some small station," he says. "Such a connection is not difficult to form if the candidate for the job has a pleasant and cultured speaking voice, can play the piano or some other musical instrument, has a good singing voice and is willing to work long hours for little pay."

"While the big stations do not expect one-man vaudeville show in their announcers, smaller stations necessarily must have announcers who can fill in for 15 minutes of music and entertainment or accompany some visiting soloist if an emergency arises. Despite the hard work, it is excellent training."

Scouts Have Eyes On Him.
While working hard, the announcer at the smaller station is "scouted," much in the same manner as ball players in minor leagues are scouted by major league representatives. If he shows talent, he receives an offer from a big station and on arriving there is kept on probation for a month or six weeks before he is considered a full-fledged member of the staff.

"An announcer's voice is his whole personality," Cross continues. "He must keep his voice healthy, well-dressed and cheerful, or in a few minutes he can badly damage a career that has taken years to build. A voice made unnaturally husky by too much alcohol or by too much tobacco is not a healthy voice and its quality is ruined."

"Keep up a voice well-dressed is another thing. Language like clothing changes in style and while the use of slang is not considered the best form of speech, occasionally use of idiomatic phrases helps. There is nothing that falls so flat on the listener's ears as a bit of slang or idiom that is out of date. The announcer must use the speech of 1929 if he is speaking in that year and not the speech of 1919."

"Be Natural" Is Slogan.
"The announcer who affects a superior attitude in his remarks to his invisible audience won't hold the affection and regard of that invisible audience over night. Announcers haven't a slogan, but if they ever decide to adopt one, I hope it will be a phrase of two words: 'Be Natural.'" able attribute. Accents help to dress the voice, and an extensive knowledge of human events, both past and present, is invaluable, he says.

"I do not think announcing is the greatest thing in radio," is a surprise statement from the dean of announcers. "But the work of an announcer, like the work of a reporter on a newspaper, can be a stepping-stone to something else. From the ranks of its announcers a station has made production directors, continuity writers and studio executives."

"I am an announcer because I believe it is the thing I do best. I should advise any young man who is seriously interested in a career in radio to start as an announcer if it is possible."

The 'Browns' Have It' At The Tech

Smiths and Davises Trail Behind Here As Check Made On Student Directory Shows; Colors Predominate

"Eenie-meenie-miny-mo, how many students do I know?" It's a cliché that Tech students know quite a few if they are acquainted with the Browns, Davises, Joneses and Smiths that are enrolled in the institution.

A check on these old family names shows that the Browns tribe is the most representative in Tech. Trailing right along after them, in fact only two behind, are the Smiths and Davis crowd. There are 22 each of this name, while there only 13 Joneses.

Other Colors Seen.
Brown is not the only color represented, for there are seven Greens, ten Whites, two Blacks, two Grays and one Hazel. To cap the climax one of the Greens is popularly known as "Red" from his cherry colored hair.

Lubbock has the largest number of students enrolled with a total of 671. Lamesa is second with 27 students, followed by Amarillo with 26. Station with 23 and Waco and Dallas with 22 each. All in all there is a total of 364 Texas towns represented, 174 of which sent one student apiece.

Many States Represented.
Missouri, Indiana, Montana, Virginia, West Virginia, South Dakota,

South Carolina, Ohio, Iowa and Tennessee are the homes of students who are the sole representatives of their states. Some of these seem to be pretty far away but not quite as far as the students whose home is in Guatemala. New Mexico has a quota of 36 and Oklahoma 20. California and Alabama have three students and Arkansas four who attend the college. Mexico has one.

The longest name in the student directory is Margaret Elizabeth Underwood, and contains 26 letters. The girl's home is in Andrews, boy, H. G. Key, has the distinction of having the shortest name in the directory. It is one letter shorter than that of Ina Igo, from Hall Key is from Mineral Wells.

Among the alphabet the letter 'E' is encountered more often than any other. It is listed 188 times in the student directory. B is second with 181; W has 178 and R 163. Q is U only letter which begins only one name. Gail Quinlan of Lubbock, the student who keeps Q on the college alphabet, X is not represented at all. All other letters start five or more names in the director.

Dieting Popular C. I. A. Girls Have Reducing Clubs

DENTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Slim figures still are desired at C. I. A. even though fashion magazines may decree that curves are stylish. Evening gowns which were a trim fit in September are now inches too tight to be worn for the Thanksgiving dance and sport suits have been outgrown.

Reducing clubs, with rules prohibiting more than one meal a day, are still being formed by would-be featherweights. One club places a fine of a $3 pair of chiffon hose for each member on any girl whose appetite leads her astray. The Hollywood eight-day diet, although taboos by the college dining halls and cafeteria, has faithful devotees.

New Coupe Added To Chrysler 70's

Convertible Model Announced By Sales Manager Of Chrysler Corporation: Seven Styles Included

The addition of a convertible coupe on the Chrysler 70 chassis was announced today by J. W. Frazer, General Sales Manager of the Chrysler sales corporation, at Detroit.

With this model now in production, the line includes seven body styles.

The new Chrysler is long low and graceful with smart body lines. It is a dignified coupe with the top up, and with the top lowered has the appearance and dash of the street roadster.

Radiator High

The radiator is high and wide and enhances the impressiveness of the front area, where the vertical-ventilating radiator shell, bowl-shaped headlamps and other bright work. The hood is distinguished further by a band of chromium across the cowl. The hood appears longer than it actually is because of the subtle effect produced by the narrow vertical louvers on the sides. The entire length of the car is emphasized by sweeping curves and streamlining, the gracefully contoured rear deck reflecting the arcs of the fenders.

The smartly tailored top, covered with heavy and durable gray-toned Burbank, is suggestive of the custom creation, and is in harmony with the cobalt blue and lustrous white-striped black finish of the body. Heavy bows and stanchion pillars of hardwood insure quietness and rigidity. When lowered the top fits closely and compactly to the body.

Kelvinator Puts Out New Machines

The Kelvinator Corporation, Detroit, Michigan, announces a new line of domestic electric refrigerators. The line consists of twelve self-contained models in sizes and capacities to meet the needs of every modern home. There are five De Luxe, four standard and three utility models. All of the new models will be equipped with the new Ice-O-Thermic tubes.

These tubes are an exclusive Kelvinator feature, fully protected by pending application for patents. The Super-Automatic Ice-O-Thermic tube is a simple device which automatically changes the load as it rises up and down inside the refrigerator. It is really a governor, and is to the Kelvinator what the governor is to a steam engine.

All of the cabinets of the De Luxe, Standard and Utility models are of new design, and are of massive, sturdy appearance with heavy door construction, artistically designed hardware in modernistic style.

Women Buy Hupps Because Of Lamp

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 23.—The two women seated themselves in the front seat of a 1929 Hupp mobile. The occasion was a pre-showing of the new model "C" Hupp mobile in a Chicago salesroom. "It's a beautiful car," said one. "And the front seat is certainly comfortable. Let's try the rear seat."

The two ladies started to change seats. One of them stopped suddenly. "Look," she cried, "Isn't that the most fascinating light you ever saw? That is truly beautiful and so modern; just the type I'd like to have in my living room. See how it matches all these other things." And she pointed to the instrument panel and other decorative details.

Fifteen minutes later the two ladies departed—both having signed orders for two new coupes.

"That's the first time I ever saw a motor car sell itself to a woman purely because of a design feature," commented the salesman.

ON AUTO ROW

SALES PICKING UP

Although weather conditions have shown no signs of moderation, automobile sales in Lubbock during the past week have experienced a considerable pick-up, thanks to unusual records of several outstanding firms. Florida, Chevrolet and Chrysler set the pace during the week with the Hudson-Essex concern close in behind.

LIGHT CARS LEAD

In actual sales the Ford and Chevrolet are leading the field by a wide margin. So far this month the Lubbock Auto company has delivered 37 new Ford cars and Kuykendall Motor company has sold 23 new machines.

NEW MECHANICS HERE

Three new Chevrolet mechanics were employed by Kuykendall Motor company last week. These are: Lynn Preter, A. R. Finkles and Bill Moore.

CAR SOLD AT RAILS

West Texas Motor company announces the sale of a new Hupp mobile to J. W. Gillon of Falls. In addition to the new car sale, the local Hupp mobile agency has delivered two used cars during the week. Several more sales are pending delivery.

CHRYSLER IS BUSY

A flock of new cars, including sales outside the county, were delivered by the Joe Hilton company last week. Sheriff Elmer Reed of Crockett purchased a Chrysler "75" Roadster; Pete Hackley of Crockett was delivered a Chrysler "70" Sedan; George Gillespie, a Plymouth sedan; G. T. Howell, of Lubbock, a Chrysler "66" sedan; and Jake Mabe, of Levelland, a "66" sedan.

One Sultan, One Auto, One Road--And One Tough Job Getting There

By NEA SERVICE

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Aba Jiffar, portly and aged Sultan of Djibouti, a small state of Abyssinia, has bought a car and thereby hangs a tale of a feat of automobile salesmanship and how one car caused the highway system of Djibouti to change from mule tracks to modern roads.

Aba, according to Motor, British automotive magazine, was wise in handling the empire's goods. He bargained shrewdly and garnered much wealth—in addition to several wives. One day, after a somewhat jarring mule trip of 230 miles from Djibouti, the capital of his state, to Addis Ababa, the capital of Abyssinia, he saw an automobile at a local dealer's in that city.

Sultan Jiffar reasoned that it would be much easier on his portly form to ride the cushions of a luxurious sedan than the bony back of a mule. So he bought the car—never figuring that he'd have an awful time driving it around trees and across the rivers of his roadless realm.

The dealer guaranteed to de-

Warn Of Running Motor In Garage

Warnings of the danger attending the operation of any automobile in a closed garage owing to the ever-present peril of carbon-monoxide poisoning are being sent all Oldsmobile and Viking owners by Oldsmobile-Viking service officials. The warning is timely, inasmuch as the advent of cold weather increases the likelihood of owners starting their cars and warming them up before opening their garage doors.

A depiction of carbon monoxide and the warning prepared by the Oldsmobile-Viking service officials follow:

Gas Formed

"Carbon monoxide gas is formed as one of the products of combustion of fuel in an engine. Engines which are operated in a closed garage send out a considerable quantity of this gas through the exhaust system in a short period of time, particularly if the engine is cold. Unfortunately this gas gives no warning whatsoever to its victim for the reason that it is colorless as well as odorless, and its presence cannot be detected by any of the senses of smell, or sight. Many people, although having some knowledge of this gas, mistakenly confuse it with the blue or black smoke seen issuing from the exhaust pipe. This black smoke, in addition to being visible, has a pungent odor, producing an irritation to the throat and respiratory organs, as well as frequently causing a slight headache."

Nash Head States Business Is Good

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 23.—The country is fundamentally sound and business in all lines will continue, for not everyone is governed nor affected by the stock market.

This comfortable assurance of "business as usual" was issued by C. W. Bliss, sales manager of the Nash Motors company today following receipt of final reports on Nash shipments to November 1 and the strong national demand which at the close of October left 3,200 unfilled orders on hand for the popular cars of the new 1930 Nash "400" series. It amply backed up with facts and figures the statements of banking officials, businessmen and international business leaders who have pitted common sense and economic facts against the hysteria resulting from the deflation of stock market values.

Complete sales reports show that Nash completed total shipments of 20,116 new Twin-Ignition Eight, Twin-Ignition Sixes and Single Sixes of the "400" Series for 1930 on October 31, and that despite every effort on the part of the production department to build sufficient cars to fill the demand, the shipments lacked thirty-three hundred cars of the orders on hand.

"70" Sedan; George Gillespie, a Plymouth sedan; G. T. Howell, of Lubbock, a Chrysler "66" sedan; and Jake Mabe, of Levelland, a "66" sedan.

HUB SELLS THREE

After an extended period of inactivity, Hub Motor company, local Hudson-Essex distributors, burst forth last week with three new cars—two Hudson and one Essex. A Hudson sedan was delivered to A. B. Short of this city. Ben Fritson of the Phoenix Drug on Avenue O purchased an Essex coach and A. L. Kling an Essex sedan.

Pred Brewster, formerly of Stamford, has joined the retail sales force of the Hub Motor company. It was announced by Hub Jones, manager of the concern.

USED CARS MOVING

Ray Dickey of Scoggin-Dickey Motor company has announced the sale of two new machines during the past week. H. O. Shannon, 1315 Avenue P, purchased a Pontiac coupe and John Wilkins of Hale Center, a Pontiac four-door sedan. Used cars have been moving rapidly at the local Oakland-Pontiac agency. Twenty used machines have been delivered to date this month.

Travel Deluxe New Light Motor Coaches Grand

DETROIT, Nov. 23.—A new light motor coach, recently on display at Grand Circus Park here, is the latest word in luxurious bus travel.

The bus has accommodations for 26 passengers, day or night. The berth air sits feet four inches long, an dard equipped with air mattresses covered with silk floss pads. Each compartment contains a wash bowl with hot and cold running water.

The first day out Michel had to construct a bridge over the Aouche river. He and his assistants felled trees, bound them with cord, nailed cross pieces and laid the bridge. The car was safely transported across and continued.

The next day the party encountered another river, down to which they had to cut runways because of the steep banks, and then ford the low water. The third day out he had to construct another bridge and the fourth another.

On the fifth day, Michel and his party encountered a number of dried-up river beds strewn with huge boulders which barred passage. Most of these had to be broken up, others removed, and the river bed leveled to permit the car's passage. The car had to be unloaded, before each crossing and reloaded on the other side. This part of the trip took two days.

Then they encountered a descent so steep that gasoline flowed by gravity from the tank into the vacuum tank. It took them a day and a half to accomplish this descent. At the bottom they hit another ford, the bed of the river being full of stones which had to be removed. Nine days after starting the trip, and after having built a special elbow from the exhaust and a funnel around the carburetor to prevent water from stopping the engine, the party made the ford.

After crossing the river, they entered the territory of Sultan Aba Jiffar and here they were met by an exulting delegation sent by Aba to offer them aid. Recited by the aiding party, Michel and his four assistants came within sight of Jiffen 15 days after they had started on the trip of only 230 miles!

Naturally, after Sultan Aba got his car, he wanted to use it. He had a paralyzed brother in another city, but couldn't visit him in the car because there were no traversable roads. So he hired Michel to build him a few.

After Michel constructed the roads, the sultan's gasoline supply ran out. He sent back to Addis Ababa for some more and at various spots along the nation's new highway system he set up caches of gasoline and spare parts.

And now the mighty Aba rides with dignity befitting a sultan.

SAN ANTONIO, November 23. (AP)—Contract for construction of a new golf course at Riverside park here is to be awarded to John Bredemus on a bid of $11,500, according to Jacob Rudolph, park commissioner. Bredemus at present is constructing a course in Houston.

Chevrolet Fleet Used By Infantry

Traveling In Trucks And Cars Replacing Former Method Of Hiking With Military Tread

Motorization of infantry is being effected generally at this time in the armies of the world and the United States army is at present conducting its first experiment along this line at Camp Eustis, Lee Hall, Va.

It is the 34th infantry that no longer has to hike with the slow military tread, riding instead in a fleet of 56 Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks. Extensive maneuvers which have been conducted since last August have proved so successful that indications point to complete motorization of the army within the next few years.

Average 15 Miles

It is a far cry from the modern days to the time when Hannibal led his army over the Alps, and yet a comparison seems appropriate at this time. The chief handicaps that Hannibal and all other great military leaders had to overcome was the lack of speed in moving their forces. Formerly an army on the march considered two miles an hour a good average speed. "The Camp Eustis experiments with the Chevrolet caravan have shown that it is possible to move a regiment with all its necessary supplies at an average speed of 15 miles an hour."

Another advantage that has been discovered is that cross country travel has been found practical anywhere that the ground is hard. A tractor, harnessed in the equipment, carries a lead horse for emergency purposes.

Today several regiments of British troops are being moved by motor cars. Through British and American experiments it has been definitely

R. Milner, Oakland And Pontiac Body Engineer Reports On Trends At European Auto Shows

A trend toward American body design, cars tinted in a rainbow of colors, and increasing use of the sliding or 'sunshine' type of roof on closed models are among the European automotive developments noted by R. Milner, body engineer for the Oakland Motor Car company who has just returned from the Paris and London auto shows.

Both the British and Continental manufacturers appear to be adopting American ideas—and in many cases American methods—in the building of automobile bodies, said Mr. Milner. "From our viewpoint, this trend naturally results in greatly improved appearance and performance."

"Ding, Dong!" Wrecks Look New Now; Repairing Smashed Cars Is Important Branch Of Automobile Industry Now; Repair Man Has Greatest Of Worries

BY JAMES F. DONAHUE
NEA Service Writer.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—One branch of the automotive industry, the auto body repair shop, probably does more for unfortunate motorists than any other division.

An automobiler can or telephone has a comparatively easy time making a new car. Each part is made to fit, and does. But the repair men have a lot of trouble in straightening fenders that are dented and torn, bodies that are crushed in and frames that are knocked out of line.

"If they must wreck their cars, there must be someone who can fix them," this statement, from R. L. Marble, body repair man of this city is the reason for the springing up throughout the country of thousands of auto body repair shops.

A new car looks nice. But let it get a damaged fender, a smashed rear end or a torn top, and the nice look is gone, says Marble.

Cars Can Be Rebuilt. "Naturally, a man with any pride wants to get his car to looking as near new as possible. He can't send it all the way back to the factory for repairs, so the body shops have sprung up. Here he can get any repair done, from straightening and repainting an entire job."

The process of repairing wrecked cars is an art itself. Here the worker gets nothing like the perfect-cut panels, smooth surfaces and correctly-shaped parts to work with. Instead there are bodies twisted out of shape from the force of an impact with another car or telephone pole. The frame may be bent, and if so the entire body must come off the chassis before it can be straightened.

In the case of a bad wreck in which the frame is bent, the body is removed and while the frame is straightened by means of heating with an acetylene torch, the body is worked on.

Removing the dents from the body is called "dinging" and the dents are sometimes called "dings." A tool used in this process is a "dolly," a shaped piece of steel which the "diner" man holds underneath the metal to be reshaped by his hammer blows from above. After the fender or body is straightened in this manner, it is filed and smoothed down with an emery wheel and then sanded and made ready for the paint shop.

Welding and Soldering. Where dents can't possibly be dinged out a solder is used as filler. When the metal is torn in places, the acetylene torch is used and the tear is welded together.

In the paint shop, a car is prepared for painting by sanding, or, if the paint is old and cracked, it is removed with a paint remover and the new coat of paint is built up from the bare metal.

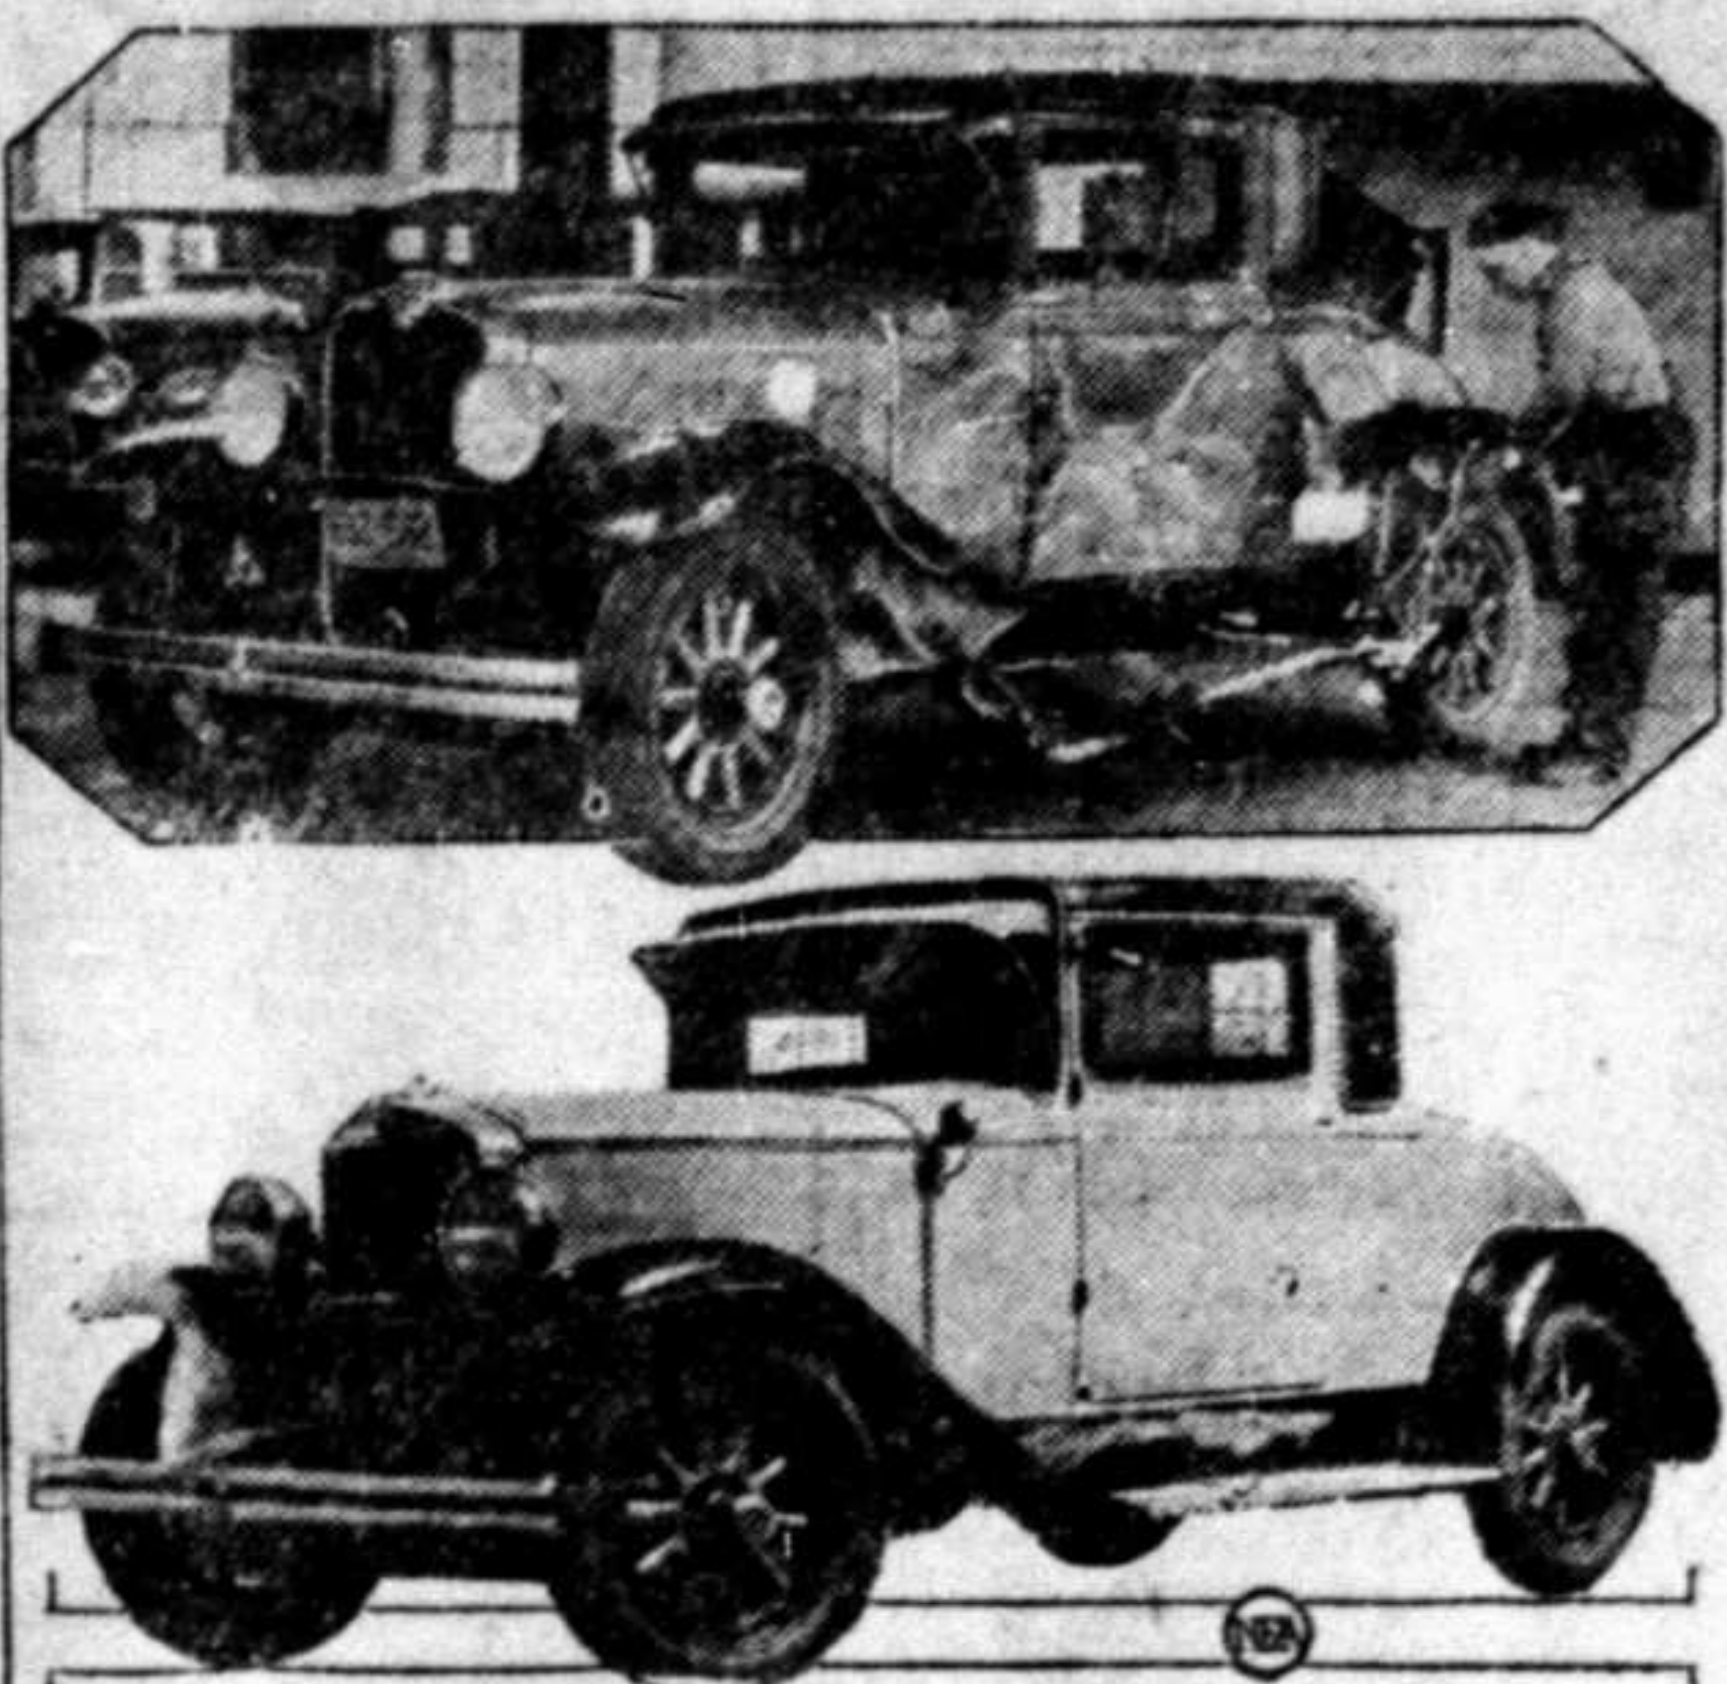

With the modern spray gun and fast drying paints, however, it is possible, where the place repaired is small, to paint that spot to such a degree of perfection that a difference between the new and old paint can hardly be detected.

The spray gun used in these shops is an exact duplicate of those used by manufacturers. The paint is placed in a cup and the gun fitted into it. A hose connected to a compressed air tank is then attached, and by means of a trigger, a fine spray of paint is "shot" on the job with a motion similar to that used with a brush.

After the Elusive Squeak. Other divisions of body repairing enter into a bad wreck which makes lots of work for the repairmen. If a top has leaked for a time, the wood rots and the woodwork has to be replaced. Upholstery has to be repaired in some cases and squeaks taken out.

"Removing squeaks," says Marble, "is probably one of the smallest yet most difficult jobs we encounter. A squeak is elusive. To find the source of one sometimes means hours of driving and working. In some cases it is impossible to charge a customer full time for such a job because it takes so long to locate the squeak and it seems so simple to the average motorist to find."

"Many things enter into fixing a job which a customer doesn't realize when he brings a wreck in to

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

The most important part of the automobile to prepare for the winter is the cooling system. If proper attention is paid to this at this time, there should be no trouble with it throughout the cold months.

Whatever the anti-freeze used, practically the same preparations should be made. This includes the thorough cleansing of the cooling system and tightening of all connections from motor to radiator.

If a glycerine is to be used as anti-freeze, instead of alcohol, however, a little more thought must be given to the various connections. It is essential that every link be tight and in perfect condition, or the solution will find an opening through which to leak.

The rubber hose couplings must be in good order and the links that hold them should be tight. Every nut on the cylinder head should be tightened when the motor is warm. The plates at the side of the cooling system on the motor should also be tightened and even the lock nut at the bottom of the radiator should be firm.

One of the first places where a leakage might occur is at the water pump. Here the packing should be renewed and the large nut at the side of the pump well tightened to avoid a leak through here.

Tightening of these essential points may be done after the cooling system has been cleaned out. The cleansing is worth the trouble, whether alcohol or glycerine is used.

First the old water in the cooling system should be drained out. Then fresh water should be poured into the radiator, mixed with about two tablespoonfuls of baking soda or sal soda. The lock-nut at the bottom of the radiator should be closed and the motor run for a while with this solution in the cooling system.

After the motor has been well warmed up and the solution has circulated thoroughly through the system, it should be drained again and then fresh water should be flushed through. This flushing operation should be done while the motor is running slowly and should be kept up for some time. It is necessary to flush out every vestige of the baking soda solution, for while it cleans out the rust in the system, the baking soda will also eat into the metal if left in for any length of time.

Upon thoroughly flushing the cooling system and tightening up all connections, the proper mixture of water and anti-freeze may be poured into the radiator.

If there happens to be a leak in the radiator after it has been cleaned out, no matter how tiny that leak, it should be soldered up or otherwise repaired by a competent radiator repair man, or the cooling solution will gradually be lost.

As an important part of the cooling system, the fan must also be checked up and the belt tightened. Although it may be cold outside and the engine should be kept going at quite a warm temperature, cooling of the solution that keeps this motor temperature steady is essential. With an anti-freeze like glycerine or alcohol in the system, the possibility of the solution's getting too hot is increased. The fan's part in avoiding this is important, and it should therefore be in good working order.

Radio Equipment Of Dodge Popular

American Family Life Is Entering Upon Complete "Home On Wheels" Era With New Improvements

With the announcement of radio equipment on Dodge Brothers Senior Six models, American family life is entering upon the complete "home on wheels" era, judging from the enthusiastic reception accorded the introduction of these cars by local Dodge dealers.

Built harmoniously into the instrument panel with the dials within easy reach, the radio installed in the Dodge Senior literally brings the world to the windshield. An aerial, designed especially for this equipment, is concealed in the roof of the car, and a small loud speaker is installed just above the windshield. Experiments have proved that it is impossible to be outside the broadcasting range of a wide choice of stations with the same reception volume and clarity afforded by the most expensive home radios.

Demonstrations Successful. Demonstrations of the Senior Six radio equipment in the dealers' showrooms and in traffic have proved its successful operation under all conditions and at various engine speeds. Local and distant stations are available with varied programs with a twist of the dials.

Early Thanksgivings Recalled As City Lays Plans For Observance This Year

Union Church Service Is Planned In City On Thursday

"OUR HARVESTING being gotten in, our government sent four men on foot, so that we might after a more special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They found in one day killed as much fowls as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week."

And thus the first American harvest festival, October, 1621, was celebrated, the first autumn of the exiles in their new home. Many of the Indians joined in the three days' feasting. No record, however, shows that this was a day set aside for giving thanks.

Bad Year, Comes.

The year following the harvest festival was filled with misfortune and the colonists had no autumn feast. With empty larders they were counting the days until the spring sown crops should furnish them with supplies. Then a terrible drought withered the corn in the fields and burned the gardens brown. A special prayer was followed by a long refreshing rain, and at the same time a ship loaded with friends and supplies was sighted. So the governor appointed a day for "public thanksgiving." But this was also different from the present Thanksgiving day, for we find no account that tells of feasting following the long church service.

Although we read of feast, of fast, and of "thanksgiving days" being observed during each year, it is not until 10 years later, 1630, that we find record of a celebration such as we now keep. The colonists gathered for psalm-singing, prayer and sermon.

Washington Starts It.

President Washington, his first year in office, issued a proclamation recommending Nov. 26, 1789, to be kept as a day of "national thanksgiving" for the establishment of a form of government that made for safety and happiness.

For years the festival was almost exclusively a New England institution, celebrated by religious services in the churches. The day gradually became a custom in the western and some of the southern states, appointing its own day. In 1864 President Lincoln issued a proclamation in which he "appointed and set aside" the last Thursday in November as the day of national thanksgiving.

Regular Since Lincoln.

Since Lincoln's time, each president has set aside the last Thursday of November for a like festival, so that Thanksgiving day is now as firmly fixed a national festival as the Fourth of July. The proclamation of the president is usually followed by one issued by the governor of each state. The religious significance of the occasion is now largely overshadowed by the feasting and "making merry of the occasion" which began with the old Pilgrims.

There are few people who think of Thanksgiving day as a day for thankfulness to God. Most view it as a holiday and a day for amusement. The tired business man wants to rest or plans an excursion for himself and his family. The school children take this opportunity to decide the champion football team in the neighborhood. The college students aboard the special train to see their home team defeat their rival of long standing. Everyone has his own idea of how to spend Thanksgiving, and so the original religious significance of the occasion seems almost to be forgotten.

However, the many people realize the full significance of the day and give thankfulness for all things, which God has done for them. Special programs are planned in keeping with the occasion in Lubbock and the day spent in the way it was first intended that it should be.

Churches To Unite.

In observance of Thanksgiving day the local churches have planned a union service to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday morning at 8:30. Reverend G. P. McCollum, pastor of the Asbury Methodist church, will deliver a special sermon on "What Shall I Render Unto The Lord for All His Benefits Toward Me?" with a practical Thanksgiving as the theme.

Special music for the occasion will be furnished by the choir of the First Presbyterian church.

Members of the choir are: soprano, Mesdames J. M. Lewis, A. W. McKee, Willie Smith, Josephine Ballinger, I. E. Dunbar, G. M. Shaw, and C. C. Galbraith; alto, Mesdames H. E. Blocker, J. H. Howe, L. J. Von Tungen, O. K. Peters, and Miss Nannie Rush Cooper; tenor, H. E. Blocker, J. H. Murdough, and C. C. Galbraith; bass, S. C. Wilson and L. C. Ellis.

Music Is Planned.

The First Christian church has planned a musical program to be rendered the Sunday night after Thanksgiving. A special program is to be conducted during the Sunday school hour. No special program has been planned for the Sunday before Thanksgiving but the regular services will be in keeping with the occasion.

Members of St. Paul's-on-the-Plains Episcopal church are to hold a communion service about 10:00, after the union service at the First Presbyterian church. A national program is to be rendered and special Thanksgiving music.

In keeping with other Episcopal churches throughout the land the local church will be decorated with cotton, pumpkins, corn, potatoes and all kinds of fruits and vegetables. After the services the fruits and vegetables will be given to the poor.

Efficiency Marks New Plymouth Car

To meet the demands of the public for exceptional performance in motor cars, automobile engineers have had to solve a very interesting problem. That problem was to build an engine from which could be secured the greatest possible power output for every cubic inch of piston displacement and at the same time so construct it that it would run smoothly at all times and would not be prone to detonate or knock.

In a great measure, the criterion of performance in a motor car as far as the public is concerned, is "get-away" or acceleration. From a mathematical standpoint, the ability of a car to accelerate is definitely measured by its power-weight ratio. In other words, the accelerative ability of a car at any engine speed, is its power at that speed divided by its weight.

The engineer has two factors, therefore, with which to work in producing a car of great accelerative ability. He can cut down on the weight and he can go up with the power.

Twice the same day riot squads from the police station sped through the downtown streets. Two banks sent out distress signals. In both instances it was found that workmen accidentally had touched off the burglar systems.
