PATRIOTIC PLANE — This T38, painted red, white and blue, is one of the many airplanes that will be on display from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday during the Webb Air Force Base open house. The open house is the climax of Armed Services Week observances here. The plane is named the "City of Big Spring." The public is invited.

Senate moves to study Webb

The U. S. Senate took a step Thursday to block the closing of Webb Air Force Base without congressional review, Senator John Tower's office announced Friday morning.

The Senate subcommittee on military construction, chaired by Sen. Tower, voted unanimously to add an amendment to the military construction bill which would prohibit the Pentagon from closing military bases or cutting them back by more than 50 per cent without submitting reasons and justification to Congress.

The Senate subcommittee action is similar to a vote in the House of Representatives last Friday.

Both Senate and House amendments would require the Pentagon to wait a year before closing a base to give Congress time to study the proposal.

The action, if it becomes law, would mean that the earliest Webb could close would be spring of 1977.

In a reaction to the latest development, Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate said Friday that the movement in Congress is a hopeful sign for Webb. The mayor, who also heads the Legislative Affairs Committee which is spearheading the drive to save Webb, added he thinks this gives Big Spring more room to maneuver concerning Webb's future.

An aide from Senator Tower's office said that the amendment which cleared subcommittee Thursday would prevent money being spent to effect or implement a base closure, or reduction of either military or civilian personnel at a base by 50 per cent, without the Pentagon:

1) Giving a year's notice to Congress.

2) Providing reasons and detailed justification to the Armed Services Committees for their review.

3) Allowing at least three months for the Armed Services Committees to review the proposed action and study the justification.

The Tower aide said that it was his interpretation that "effect or implement" would mean that there could be no draw-down by the military of a proposed base until the review by Congress had been completed.

He said the action would make the earliest possible Webb closing date, should it occur, March 1977, and perhaps even much later.

The bill will go through the Armed Services Committee of the Senate to a vote by the full Senate, probably in late May or June. Any differences between the House and Senate versions would be resolved by a conference committee before being sent to the White House.

The aide said he felt that President Gerald Ford would sign the bill since support for it in both the House and the Senate appears strong and since it is tied to military construction.

Last week's House amendment was aimed at delaying and providing congressional study of the proposed closing of 13 major military bases which have been announced by the Ford Administration.

Webb was among these, as was the cutback at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

One congressman described the action as giving Congress new ability to veto base reductions, arguing that since the Pentagon asks Congress for money to build and maintain bases, the lawmakers should have some review before the government gives up base assets.

In Webb's case, $128 million in assets are involved with construction either under way or approved on several million dollars more.

The aide from Senator Tower's office said the amendment would inject Congress into the base closure decision-making process.

He said Senator Tower remains committed to saving Webb and that the senator had discussed Webb with an assistant secretary of the Air Force only Thursday.

The Air Force is said to be "still reviewing" the future of Webb, including suggestions for alternate missions.

The aide said he thought that the Senate and House actions would not affect the announced timetable for the environmental impact study which is due to be printed in the Federal Register in mid-June, followed by a public hearing in Big Spring during July.

No final decision on base closing would be made, according to law, until sometime after these steps are carried out.

Public works bill advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is trying a second time to pass legislation designed to generate a quarter-million jobs by allocating $2.5 billion for public works projects.

The bill passed the House Thursday, 339-57, and sponsors predict an easy victory in the Senate.

President Ford vetoed a similar bill earlier this year, calling it inflationary and excessive federal spending at a time when the economy is recovering on its own.

Neither the House Republican leadership nor the White House lobbyists worked against the bill, but a White House domestic affairs spokeswoman said, "it looks like more of the same. I wouldn't place any bets on its being signed."

Banker slain in Paris

PARIS (AP) — A 22-year-old man described as an anarchist shot and killed the president of France's second largest bank today, wounded the victim's wife and then committed suicide, police said.

Jacques Chaine, 61, president and general director of the Credit Lyonnais, was shot as he stepped from his car at the entrance to the bank's main office in Paris. He died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Chaine's wife was wounded in the neck and jaw by a second bullet. Her condition was described as not serious.

The killer was identified as Jean Bilski, a native of Auch in southwestern France. Police said he had been questioned in the past about an incident in Toulon, which they did not clarify, and a note in his file said he was an anarchist.

Bank officials said Bilski had never been a bank employe and they knew no personal motive for the attack on Chaine.

Police said they found a grenade in a bag that Bilski was carrying.

The Credit Lyonnais is owned by the state. Chaine had been its president since 1974. Before that he was president of the French Bank for Foreign Commerce.

Briscoe releases millions for care of delinquents

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's release of half of $4 million appropriated by the 1975 legislature for community care of juvenile delinquents meant that he had no power to withhold the rest, Atty. Gen. John Hill said Thursday.

Briscoe based his power to withhold the $2 million on a special provision that said the Texas Youth Council could spend the money only after the governor was satisfied that the agency had a proper plan for allocating the funds among various community-level programs.

A key factor of such a plan was to be its full use of existing facilities in an area before any new ones were built.

"The legislature delegated to the governor the power to determine whether or not a particular fact exists. It has not given him the power to determine whether the appropriated funds should be released in whole or in part," Hill's opinion said.

Hill issued the opinion to Rep. Lane Denton, D-Waco, chairman of the House Social Services Committee.

During a hearing before a subcommittee of Denton's panel, spokesmen for the governor said he was withholding approval of the rest of the money until he could be sure it was to be spent wisely.

The "alternate care" program provides money for communities and private groups to deal with both delinquents and children on the verge of becoming delinquent. This would be an alternative to the present options of reform school, parole and unsupervised return to the streets.

"The special provision—or 'rider'—gives the governor only the option of releasing all of the funds or none of them. Since the governor is presumed to have acted within his authority, the fact finding which he characterized as being sufficient to permit the release of $1 million (on two different occasions) probably would be construed by the courts to permit the release and utilization of the entire appropriation item," Hill's opinion said.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Why no lights

Q. Why is there no traffic light on Gregg Street between 6th and 15th Street? It is nearly impossible to cross Gregg between the two distant traffic signals.

A. There are many "ifs" in the answer to this question given by Susan Thomas, Big Spring traffic engineer: If the Big Spring Traffic Commission requests a traffic light from the city; if the city requests a light from the State Highway Department; if the department will conduct a traffic count on Gregg; if the extension of 11th street increases traffic onto Gregg; and if the department has the funds, a light may be installed.

There has not been a traffic count in Big Spring since 1970, according to Thomas.

"But the highway department discourages counts because they cost $200 to $300 apiece," said Thomas. "I think that with the extension of 11th Street, the increased traffic may make a light in the vicinity a necessity," she added.

Offbeat: Peanut butter crunched

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you think peanut butter and jelly sandwiches are your kids' favorite lunch-time treat, you may be in for a surprise.

A city survey says there is a good chance they'd rather have ham and cheese.

The Recreation and Parks Division took an unscientific poll to see what to feed the kids this summer under a federal lunch program. The division in the summer of 1975 surveyed 59 meal sites that serve 6,000 youths 17 and younger.

After ham and cheese, kids said they liked bologna and cheese, plain bologna, spiced lucheon loaf and cheese.

Peanut butter and jelly was last, and sliced turkey and sliced chicken didn't make the list. They won't be served this summer.

Jobs available for youth in summer programs

Official registration for the annual Summer Youth Program for low-income young people between the ages of 14 and 21 will get under way 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Municipal Auditorium. Sponsored by the Federal Department of Labor through its Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), the program will attempt to make a large variety of jobs available to Big Spring youth.

"The thrust of the program is to make jobs available to kids who need them, and, in turn, generate jobs in the community. The money these kids make will be spent mostly in stores and businesses right here in the downtown area," said Nabar Martinez, program director for the city's Human Resource Center.

Martinez said that 95 jobs slots would be available at Saturday's meeting. The jobs will cover a variety of areas within private and public nonprofit organizations.

"We are also looking for a special project director to put together jobs that would originate from the city, itself," said Martinez. "For example, if a kid's special interest is history, we may be able to come up with a project that would serve that interest and the community at the same time," he added.

Martinez urges applicants to bring their social security cards or numbers to Saturday's sign-up.

Man charged with engineering jailbreak posts $5,000 bail

DALLAS (AP) — Don Fielden posted a $5,000 bond Thursday after he was arraigned on charges of engineering a jail break in Mexico that freed 14 U.S. citizens.

The 31-year-old ex-Marine sergeant strolled into the U.S. Marshal's office here in the company of his attorney, Ernest Kuehne Jr. shortly before noon. Arraignment was before U.S. Magistrate Bailey Rankin.

"I just want to get it all behind me," Fielden said.

A warrant was issued in Houston Wednesday alleging Fielden violated U.S. neutrality laws by taking arms from Eagle Pass across the Rio Grande March 12 to free the prisoners at Piedras Negras.

Fielden said he was hired by Dallas psychologist Sterling Davis to free Davis' son from the jail where he was held on drug charges.

Davis said he paid Fielden $5,000 to stage the breakout because he had been unable to free his son through other means.

Fielden told the Dallas Times Herald he burst ito the jail armed with a sawed-off shotgun and freed all of the U.S. prisoners, all of them held on drug charges.

"I'm prepared to face whatever I have to face. It's been on my conscience and I just want to get it all behind me," he said.

Authorities said it is likely—if the case comes to trial—that Fielden will be tried in Del Rio, Tex.

Mexican authorities have made no effort to ask for extradition.

A group calling iself U.S. Citizens for Don Fielden has scheduled a news conference for today in Dallas. The group announced Thursday night that it will seek to "raise funds and sway public opinion" for Fielding.

Chairperson Sally Thompson said her group has only a skeletal membership at present, but that interest has been shown by several individuals and groups, including the National Rifle Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Reagan playing for Democratic crossover vote in Michigan

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan is playing for the Democratic crossover vote in Michigan's key presidential primary, saying that America's problems cross party lines and so should the voters.

It could be an important factor in his challenge in President Ford's home state, where Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall are wooing those same voters as they square-off next Tuesday in the Democratic primary.

Reagan, who already had won 18 Oklahoma delegates in district convention votes, appeared to be headed for a sweep of the 36-member Oklahoma delegation. The state Republican Executive Committee today voted to nominate a slate of 18 Reagan supporters to the national convention.

The final decision comes at the state convention Saturday, but the nomination is expected to be approved.

Ford today began a swing through Tennessee and Kentucky with his first stop in Johnson City, Tenn. Then he heads for Michigan where he begins his whistle-stop train tour through the state on Saturday.

Carter today is meeting AFL-CIO President George Meany for the first time — a session that could be the key to winning enthusiastic support from organized labor if he captures the Democratic nomination.

Both Ford and Reagan hope a victory in Michigan will send their campaign on the road to victory at the GOP convention. Carter wants a victory to consolidate his position as Democratic front-runner following this week's loss in Nebraska and to stymie Udall's bid.

"We have to win a state like Michigan," Ford has said. Most observers agree that a loss to Reagan in his home state could cripple Ford's campaign effort.

Four of Reagan's victories over Ford have come in states that do not register voters by party and — like Michigan — permit voters to choose candidates from either party during primary election balloting.

The President, too, has invited Democratic voters to cast Republican ballots for his cause. But the odds are that Democrats who choose to vote Republican in Michigan will do more for Reagan than for Ford. "I don't think it will hurt us," Reagan said in Battle Creek Thursday.

Reagan and Ford seek the votes of past supporters of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who won Michigan's Democratic primary in 1972 but has been all but eliminated as a factor in the 1976 campaign.

Reagan campaigned today in Flint and Detroit, winding up his 25-hour mission in Ford's home state. His effort is built around personal appearances and $50,000 worth of weekend television broadcasts.

Meanwhile, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., demanded that the Ford campaign stop using tapes of Goldwater criticizing Reagan's position on the Panama Canal, it was learned. The Ford campaign complied.

Goldwater told a news conference 10 days ago that Reagan's statements opposing the administration's Panama Canal negotiations "reflect a suprisingly dangerous state of mind."

Tapes of the news conference were broadcast on Ford's behalf in Nebraska, where Reagan defeated Ford last Tuesday.

During the presentation of 10, 15, 20 and 25-year service pins, Dr. E. H. McKenzie Jr., superintendent, noted that he was "recognizing a total of 815 years of teaching service." Roy E. Watkins, school board president, also helped with the awards.

In addition to the presentation of service pins, 11 retiring teachers received corsages or boutonnieres in honor of their years spent in the Big Spring school system.

Following the awards ceremony, Mrs. Lynn Calvert, new president of the local TSTA chapter, and incoming officers were introduced by outgoing president, Mrs. Janice Rosson.

Tax appraisers to check property improvements

Carlton Harry, senior tax appraiser, Thursday afternoon told the tax appraisal board he would check tax values in the northwest quarter of Howard County for the 1977 tax rolls.

Other appraisers will be updating information on property in a rectangle roughly bounded by Eleventh Place and Farm Road 700, Harry said.

In checking property, appraisers will make changes only for "improvements of the property and depreciation," Harry said.

Field appraisal work for boards of equalization meeting this year has been completed, Harry said before the meeting. But work continues in the office on the 1976 tax rolls.

Harry suggested the board consider having property mapped in several areas which are developing quickly. He mentioned Sand Springs, areas by U.S. 87 south of Big Spring and residential property around U.S. 87 north and Texas 350.

"We're looking at about 25 sections," Harry said.

"Without maps, it is sometimes next to impossible to make sure we have all the accounts accounted for," Harry said. He added that they could appraise, at less than peak effectiveness, without the expensive maps.

C. R. Crim, the county surveyor, wanted $25 per hour for field work and $15 per hour for office time spent mapping the areas, Harry said.

How long the work would take, the surveyor could not estimate, Harry said.

The senior appraiser mentioned a less expensive alternative: "Possibly we could find a good drafting student, and he could draw it for us."

Once a section has been mapped for property ownership, it won't be hard to keep the map current, Harry said.

"We have never had proper maps," Zirah L. Bednar, county tax assessor-collector, said.

J. F. Poynor, superintendent of Forsan schools, suggested mapping property owned along lines dividing taxing jurisdictions.

The tax appraisal board, which consists of representatives of local governments, could ask member governments to participate in the cost. Local governments could obtain a copy of the map for the expenses, Poynor proposed.

Don Crockett, chairman of the tax appraisal board and assistant superintendent for business of Big Spring schools, instructed Harry to continue investigating the idea.

In other business, the court:

Amended the budget, taking $1,250 from the allocation for part-time salaries and increasing the office and supplies allocation by an equal amount to $3,250. "The total budget is the same," Crockett explained.

Accepted a financial report on tax appraisal operations.

And made approval of vouchers at the monthly board meeting a policy.

DR. WEST

While in Big Spring Thursday, Dr. Rodney T. West, president of the American Academy of Medical Directors, revealed the possible direction that medical care will take in the near future. He and his wife, Mary Ann, were the guests of Mrs. John E. Hogan, 509 Westover.

"The small local clinic is undergoing the same transition across the country that the corner grocery store did. The practice of medicine will go to systems of local groups working in association with a larger hospital," said Dr. West.

Under this system, an area would be divided into regional centers with a base at a large hospital or university center. Within the region, smaller clinics would be set up in low population areas as "satellites" to the base center.

The clinics would be manned by local doctors or even trained physician's assistants (PAs) or nurses. The work of a PA or nurse would be monitored through direct communication with the larger facility. Dr. West believes that televised monitoring may become commonplace.

"This is the most sensible way to practice medicine, and it is feasible right now," said Dr. West.

"Practicing medicine is an ongoing process now. There is so much new information cropping up every day that it is almost impossible to keep up with it. Under this new system, medical personnel would be able to stay on top of advances through educational programs at a larger hospital," he added.

Dr. West has recently attended a two-day national meeting of the American Academy of Medical Directors in San Francisco, Calif. There he was involved in discussions regarding the attempt to combine business skills with medical skills among medical directors.

"There is a growing need for directors to develop managerial, financial, and computer techniques along with their medical skills, to better administer health care," said Dr. West.

Dr. Westalso commented on the rising cost of health care.

"To begin with, the cost is 70 per cent labor. Hospital staffs have been working for less than their counterparts in the business world for years. They are just beginning to catch up," said Dr. West. "I believe, though, that the sharp incline in costs will begin to level off in the near future," he added.

The Wests are natives of Hawaii, and Dr. West is currently the director of the Straub Clinic in Honolulu. The clinic is staffed with 85 doctors. This is his third trip to the continental United States this year.

Cotton producers rebounding in '76

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some weather problems, cotton producers have made excellent progress in planting this year's crop and government experts say that the 1976 harvest could be the largest in three years if growers get above-normal yields.

The anticipated rebound in cotton production is a result primarily of improved domestic and world demand for the fiber, higher prices and a decline in prices for competing crops such as soybeans, rice and corn.

Last year, faced with depressed market prices, cotton farmers reduced their acreages 29 per cent from 1974 and poor weather and other problems reduced yields on what was planted. As a result, last year's crop was 8.3 million bales, the smallest since 1967 when 7.4 million were produced.

But in 1967 there was a large reserve of cotton left over from previous crops, more than 12.3 million bales when the crop year began on Aug. 1. Last Aug. 1 the reserve was 5.7 million bales and this Aug. 1 when the 1976 crop is ready the stockpile is expected to decline to about 3.4 million bales.

Based on an April 1 survey, farmers have indicated they intended to plant 11.3 million acres of cotton this spring, up 16 per cent from 1975 plantings but 18 per cent below what they planted in 1974. Department officials, however, say that the April 1 survey may have been conservative and that producers may wind up planting more cotton than it showed.

The department said this week that by May 9 farmers had planted 51 per cent of this year's cotton crop, well ahead of a 34 per cent pace on the same date last year and a normal rate of 36 per cent on May 9.

But the report, a weekly weather review, said that some replanting was being done in parts of the southern cotton belt because of rain and chilly temperatures.

In another report prepared by the department's Economic Research Service, officials said that 1976 production could range between 9.5 million and 11.5 million bales or more, depending on whether yields were below or above normal.

"This year's early spring has enhanced chances for normal or above normal yields during 1976," the agency said. By law, USDA is prohibited from officially estimating cotton production until after the crop year begins on Aug. 1 Thus, the department talks about cotton production in terms of ranges based on various sets of circumstances such as "average" or "above normal" yields.

One flaw in USDA's optimism that growers might plant more cotton than they indicated last month is that production expenses have continued to climb, thus offsetting much of the incentive derived from higher market prices for the fiber.

Even so, experts indicate that given good weather and the improved outlook for demand and prices growrs will push ahead with larger cotton acreages, particularly in the Mississippi delta states and the Southeast where farmers turned sharply to alternate crops last year.

Farm prices for upland cotton (which makes up more than 99 per cent of the total supply) have averaged nearly 50 cents a pound during the 1975 crop season, up from 42.7 cents in the 1974 season and the most in more than 100 years, the agency said. As of April 15, for example, upland cotton prices at the farm averaged 50.2 cents a pound against 35.4 cents a year earlier.

The department has projected cotton exports this season at 3.5 million bales for the current year, which will end July 31, down from 3.9 million in 1974-75. Cotton use by domestic mills, however, is expected to climb to 7.3 million bales from 5.9 million last season.

Exports and mill use could increase further in the 1967-77 season, if this year's crop is large enough to build up U.S. cotton stocks, and result in prices being more competitive on the world market, according to department officials.

"In addition, tight supplies could be damaging to U.S. mill use prospects and result in larger cotton textile imports," the report said.

★★★

WASHINGTON (AP) — One way to tell whether the country's economy is improving or failing is to watch the prices and demand for mushrooms used to garnish steaks and other fine foods, according to the Agriculture Department.

By early April, the department said Thursday, growers were receiving 62 to 64 cents a pound for mushrooms destined for the fresh vegetable market. That was up about 46 per cent from the range of 42 to 44 cents a pound received a year ago, the department's Economic Research Service said Thursday. Similar increases were reported for mushrooms sold for canning.

Officials said the increase in prices "reflects the improved retail demand, which in substantial part is the result of economic recovery which has stimulated demand for mushrooms in all forms."

★★★

WASHINGTON (AP) — Honey imports in the first three months of this year totaled nearly 15.2 million pounds, up more than 27 per cent from the first quarter of 1975, says the Agriculture Department.

Argentina, Mexico, Australia and Canada are the largest foreign suppliers but more than 20 other countries also ship honey to the U.S. market.

Domestic honey production has been declining for some years and beekeepers say that imports have contributed by keeping prices from rising as much as they otherwise might. During the five-year period of 1971-75, for example, U.S. honey output averaged about 206 million pounds against about 250 million pounds annually back in the early 1960s. Prior to 1966, according to the department, the United States was a net exporter of honey.

Earlier this year the U.S. International Trade Commission announced it would investigate honey imports to see if they have harmed the domestic industry. Hearings have been held and the commission is expected to report its findings to the White House by June 29.

HAPPY OFFERS A HAND — Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, left, offers condolences to an unidentified grief-stricken victim of last week's massive earthquake in Northern Italy. The meeting came Thursday as Mrs. Rockefeller and her husband, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, toured a tent city where the survivors of the earthquake-devastated town of Caoppo are now living.

Rains flood tent camps

Hundreds of railcars roll to quake victims

UDINE, Italy (AP) — The Italian government has rushed hundreds of railway cars to Friuli province to house earthquake victims driven from their tent camps by flooding rains.

Police warned the homeless in five camps that they might have to move.

Rescue squads stopped digging through the debris for bodies and dug drainage ditches around the tent camps. But officials said there was no health hazard yet.

The storms caused more landslides along roads of the devastated region in northeastern Italy, isolating several communities. Clearance operations were hampered by darkness and the threat of more slides.

Another threatened village was evacuated Thursday night, adding more than 3,000 persons to more than 100,000 persons made homeless by the first severe quake May 6. It was the fifth village evacuated in two days.

Strong north winds blew over some tents and brought somewhat colder weather. Authorities tried to speed up deliveries of cots and blankets to the tent cities.

The government set up a court in one tent to try four men accused of possessing goods stolen from damaged houses.

Nine more bodies were found in Gemona, raising the total to 923 bodies recovered. A police spokesman estimated that 400 to 500 more persons were missing and probably dead, an increase of 100 to 200 over previous estimates.

More than 2,000 injured still were hospitalized.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, after a visit to one of the tent camps and a hospital on Thursday and a meeting with Italian officials, told reporters the government had done a "splendid job."

The vice president said he was certain the House of Representatives would approve the Ford administration's legislation to allocate $24 million to the Italian government for relief and reconstruction. The Senate has already passed the bill.

American officials said the United States already has sent more than $600,000 worth of tents, supplies, food and medicine to the quake area.

Soviet 'spy' arrested in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police have arrested a Soviet journalist and charged him with trying to buy U.S. Navy secrets from a chief petty officer stationed on the aircraft carrier Midway, the police said today.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman declined to comment on the announcement. U.S. military authorities said they still were checking on the case. The Japanese police would not say whether the American had voluntarily reported his contacts with the Russian to the Navy.

Police said Alexandre Matchekhine, a 38-year-old correspondent of the Soviet press agency Novosti, tried to buy information on radar, aircraft electronic apparatus and military codes used by U.S. forces in Japan and by the U.S. 7th Fleet.

He was arrested Wednesday as he was walking with the chief petty officer in Ikebukuro, a nightlife district in northern Tokyo, the police said.

The Russian faces charges of violating a special criminal law based on the Japanese-American mutual security agreement, police said. It preseribes imprisonment of up to 10 years for persons collecting information on U.S. forces in Japan for "purposes injurious to the mutual security treaty." Persons who "attempt to commit such offenses" are subject to imprisonment of up to five years.

Matchekhine has been stationed in Tokyo since October 1974.

Bikecentennial lures aged man

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Clarence Pickard, who will be 86 on May 28, has arrived from Des Moines, Iowa, to take part in Bikecentennial, a 4,250-mile, 82-day bicycle ride from Jamestown, Va., to Astoria, Ore.

The 117-pound Iowan achieved a kind of fame in 1973 when he completed a six-day bicycle ride across his home state at age 83.

The pedaling starts today, with 13 bicyclists representing the original 13 states, plus Pickard and maybe a few others.

Says lawyers 'fail poor'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — U.S. Transportation Secretary William Coleman, Jr. says America's lawyers concentrate on corporate, financial and interstate law and fail to represent the poor and the disadvantaged properly.

"I think we are on the wrong track," Coleman told the 8th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association on Thursday. "As the demand for legal expertise has multiplied, our profession has moved completely away from its public responsibilities and social obligations."

Volunteers correct a problem

The recent news article about the cleaning of the Big Spring in Comanche Trail Park by the Webb Air Force Base Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School class brought back memories of another cleaning five years earlier.

I WAS chatting with Mrs. John Hogan, widow of the late doctor, and we began discussing cleaning our city in general and the cleaning of the historic Big Spring in particular.

Some five years ago the Big Spring around which our city was founded was just a spot that was ideal for catching trash.

When visitors came to the city, Mrs. Hogan said, they would inquire about the Big Spring, but residents were too ashamed to take guests to see it.

Through a community effort, the Big Spring was cleaned. Mrs. Hogan said that spot stories were run in the Herald asking volunteers to bring their hoes and work one Saturday.

She said that no one could have imagined that 250 persons would show up ready to work, and the main difficulty was putting them all to the task.

Within an hour, the Big Spring looked much better. Coffee and doughnuts were served on this cold day to those who could be persuaded to stop working long enough, Mrs. Hogan said.

Following that all-volunteer effort, the spring looked much better.

But the improvements did not stop with just a cleaning. The City of Big Spring kept the ball rolling by adding lights, railing and making the spot a nice little tourist attraction.

RARELY DO I pass by the Big Spring that I do not see three or four cars there looking at the wellspring of our prairie city.

Trash still has a tendency to gather there, however, and the effort by the Webb NCO Leadership School Class 76-H and other volunteers was much appreciated.

The class hauled off two pickup loads of junk. They found everything — even a bathroom sink.

The city keeps the Big Spring and the entire Comanche Trail Park in good shape, but nothing can replace the efforts of civic-minded volunteers when it comes to making things really stand tall.

The Big Spring is now a spot that combines history and beauty so pleasantly that no local resident should let visitors come to our town without seeing it.

—J. TOM GRAHAM

ONE OF THE hardest assignments I ever had in a journalism class was to mimic the styles of writing in several distinctive magazines.

First, you had to know the style of the magazine. If you can pass that test, which follows, you'll have something as useful as a finished crossword puzzle.

Nebraska surge

Robert Novak

OMAHA — At the moment Ronald Reagan's resourceful Nebraska manager mailed the last of 215,000 cards last week instructing voters how to vote for Reagan delegates slates in the May 11 primary, President Ford's operatives had not yet even picked their own slates of Ford delegates in the three congressional districts.

SUCH GIDDY mismanagement by Mr. Ford's Nebraska agents, in large part a direct result of political obtuseness in the Oval Office, is one reason why surging Ronald Reagan is a solid favorite to elect more of Nebraska's 25 Republican convention delegates than sagging Gerald Ford.

The other reason is the stark mismatch in performance of the competing candidates: Mr. Ford and his campaign, seemingly blind to political reality and giving little evidence of having any basic political strategy; Reagan and his campaign finely honed, with Ronald Reagan glibly spreading his calculated gospel with maximum impact (thunderous applause, for example, when he said at Kearney State College last Wednesday that Wasington "is a kind of closed shop" inaccessible to mere people like the voters of Kearney).

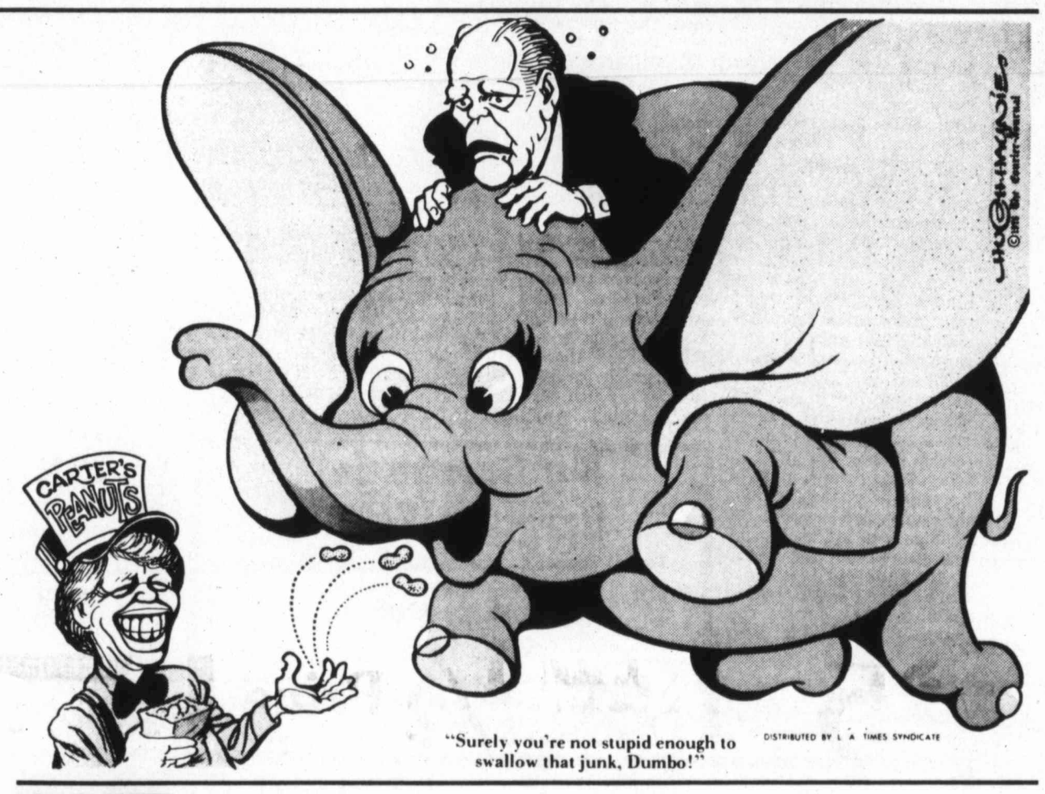

Indeed, some adrenalized Reaganites privately forecast that a probable Reagan plurality in the super-conservative 3rd (western-most) District, coupled with Reagan's surge from last week's stunning Indiana victory, could produce an outright majority in the Ford-Reagan popularity contest (strictly limited to registered Republicans with no crossovers).

But the better opportunity awaits Reagan on balloting for the 25 convention delegates. With Reagan now having established himself as perhaps a 50-50 shot for the nomination, the all-important delegate contest is the business end of this primary more than in any previous Ford-Reagan election, when Reagan's status as underdog needed popular-vote victories.

Reagan's manager, former state party chairman Milan Bish, correctly decided in March that with well over 100 delegate candidates running pledged to Reagan, 25 "target" delegates would have to be picked to avoid scatter-shot voting and assure concentrating the full force of Reagan voters on the "target" delegates.

FORD CAMPAIGN manager William Barrett, also a former state chairman, reacted in a way he now acknowledges was "just plain wrong." Thought Barrett: with Watergate so close, Nebraska Republicans will not accept back-room deals that arbitrarily choose 25 delegate-candidates at the expense of all the others.

So certain was Barrett that he wrote a letter to all Reagan delegates not slated, or targeted, crying crocodile tears over their misfortune and calling on Reagan "to let the voters exercise their franchise without direction from anyone."

"Surely you're not stupid enough to swallow that junk, Dumbo!"

Fallen bladder brings urination problem

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor tells me I have a fallen bladder. He said if it bothers me I could have it put back in place. It gives me no discomfort, except that I tend not to hold my water. If I have it corrected will I improve in this?

Is it much of an operation? Will an incision have to be made? I am 65 years old. — Mrs. B. C.

Many women who have borne children have a sagging of the pelvic organs — in your case of the bladder. It's called a "cystocele" (SIS-toe-seal). Some older women can develop this without having borne children. The cause is a loss of tissue tone in the fibers that hold things in place normally.

The surgery is a major one requiring anesthesia. An incision is made in the wall of the vagina so that the surgeon can shorten or tighten the supporting tissue. That should improve your urination.

Surgery isn't necessary if pessaries to hold the bladder in place will correct matters.

A cystocele can cause you to urinate often and sometimes incompletely. That is the chief problem, because incomplete urination can produce a puddling of the remaining urine, which can in turn lead to bladder infection.

The decision to operate depends on the extent of bladder drop and the degree of troubles (as infections) it is giving you. The condition should be reevaluated from time to time to note any changes, whether you decide on surgery or not.

Of course, age and general health are other considerations in surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For the past two years I've noticed that almost every night my husband's legs, feet, arms, sometimes his whole body, twitch in his sleep. This doesn't bother him, but it does me. I'm a light sleeper anyway.

He is 53 years old. I love him and I'm worried about him. — L. Z.

This is common in middle and old age when certain bone and muscle changes begin. It is also found in nervous persons, or in others following heavy physical exercise. It can also result from a sleep disorder in which there are periods of irregular breathing. That could cause a mild oxygen "starvation" in the muscles.

If no underlying ailment can be found, the answer may lie in relaxation, perhaps a hot bath before he retires. He may just need a good vacation if he has been overworking himself.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you give me the address of the nearest organ bank? — M. L. R.

If you want to donate an organ upon your death, contact the nearest large hospital and ask how to do it locally. Or you can obtain a donor card from the National Kidney Foundation. There should be a local branch near you.

The term "organ bank" may be misleading. Organs are not "banked" for long periods to be drawn on as needed. They must be used rather quickly after death.

The commonest transplants are of the kidneys and of the corneas of the eyes. The chief of a kidney unit in one of our large university hospitals tells me there is a woeful shortage of donors to meet demand.

Certain glands (the pituitary, for example) are valuable long after death, but only two extract valuable hormones produced in them.

Special procedures have to be followed to donate an organ after death. A simple will may lead to legal tangles. Your local medical associations should be helpful to you in this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if it is true that, if you breast-feed, the uterus will shrink faster than if you don't — Mrs. R. D.

Yes, breast-feeding stimulates production of a certain hormone, which can speed up the shrinkage a bit. But the uterus will return to its normal size anyway with or without breast-feeding. The difference isn't enough to worry about.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Please tell me how I can get my girlfriend to believe in the Lord. —P. L.

DEAR P. L.: I'm glad you are concerned that other people should come to know Jesus Christ. This is especially important for the person you call your girlfriend. The Bible makes it clear that you should consider marrying her only if she shares your faith in Jesus Christ.

First, let me suggest that you pray for her regularly. You can't bring her to Christ; only the Holy Spirit can open her eyes to see the truth of the Gospel and draw her to Christ. Pray that God will do this, and pray also that God will give you opportunities to share your faith with her.

In addition, be sure that she understands clearly what the Gospel is. You may want to encourage her to read parts of the Bible, such as the Gospel of John. I would also urge you to take her regularly to a church where Christ is preached.

Finally, remember that your life should be a consistent witness to her. She should see Christ in your life every day. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 5:16).

Economic myths

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, in obiter dicta on the annual report of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, has omitted a few thoughts calculated to make Americans feel better about federal spending. In doing so, he ran into the buzzsaw of economist Alan Reynolds (writing in National Review). Indeed, the senator manages to create a few myths of his own, in his venture in overcoming economic myths.

"THE FIRST and most damaging misconception," Sen. Kennedy wrote, "is the myth of the mushrooming Federal Government . . . The only valid comparison is the ratio of (federal) spending to GNP. And that proportion has remained almost precisely constant at about 20 per cent ever since the early 1950s." Get that at about.

For one thing, raw federal spending is an imprecise index of federal control, neglecting off-budget and regulatory agencies, and the role of matching grants and revenue sharing in fostering the explosion of state and local spending. For instance, it doesn't cost the taxpayers very much to finance the CAB, but the CAB costs taxpayers a lot of money, as anyone knows who has commuted from San Francisco to Los Angeles, which is twice the distance from Washington to New York, and paid half the fare — because CAB is out of the picture.

"But a comparison of current federal spending with the level of 'the early 1950s' — i. e., the Korean War." Reynolds points out, "is just dirty pool. Defense was more than half of the budget back then, and only a fourth now. Still, federal spending was 14 per cent of GNP in 1951, 17.1 per cent in 1956, 19.1 per cent in 1966, and 23.6 per cent in 1976. That may sound like 'about 20 per cent'. But federal spending in 1977 would be about $265 million if it were still 14 per cent of GNP, rather than the $413 billion figure Congress is now shooting for."

"The second myth," writes Kennedy, "is the so-called crushing burden of federal debt. In 1950, when the country emerged from World War II, the federal debt was an incredible 32 per cent of the nation's GNP. In 1974, the level was a modest 26 per cent."

BUT AS Reynolds points out, savings bonds are fixed in dollar terms, while GNP has been wildly bloated by inflation. Bonds inevitably shrink in relation to the GNP, which means simply that the government has swindled the bondholders. But even then, federal debt rose from 35 to 38.5 per cent of GNP between 1974 and 1975, and Mr. Kennedy's wild misunderstanding evolves: the "crushing burden" isn't the percentage of the GNP of the federal debt, it is the taxes required merely to pay the interest on that debt — a burden close, now, to fifty billion dollars per year — about half of the cost of our national defense.

Sen. Kennedy has a solution for all this pother. It is, as you would suspect, tax reform. He trots out the usual figure: "In 1973, over 3,000 people with adjusted gross incomes in excess of $50,000 paid no federal income tax at all. This privileged group represents the wealthiest one-half of one per cent of all families in the United States. Yet they paid not one dime in federal income tax. What do these data . . . mean to the average wage earner in real every-day terms? The data mean that average working class families making $7,500 to $15,000 must pay higher taxes."

AS A MATTER of fact, that is the least of the meaning of the data. All these data mean is that federal income taxes, whether you are rich or poor, aren't paid on adjusted gross income (though I myself believe they should be) but on taxable income — i. e., net income after specified deductions neither Senator Kennedy nor Congress nor the average working families wants to do without.

The three thousand red herrings don't constitute the wealthiest one half of one per cent of all families. All studies show that high income families pay substantially higher tax rates than low incomes families. As for the matter of tax relief, if the federal government took $25,000 apiece from each of those 3,000 people, that would raise a whopping $75 million. Is that enough to make a dent in the cost to average taxpayers of a $413 billion government? "The government probably misplaces $75 million every minute or so," is Reynolds' wry remark.

Sen. Kennedy isn't particularly interested in taking more money from the affluent for the sake of accumulating more money for the government. There isn't enough around among the rich to make much difference.

Federal court rejects desegregation proposal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Austin School Board had an emergency executive session scheduled today to study the second rejection by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals of the school district's desegregation plan.

The court rejected the Austin plan Thursday, remanding it to the U.S. District Court in Austin to implement one that will eliminate all discriminatory segregation of Mexican-American and black students in the district's 74 schools to meet federal standards.

The court order in effect did away with a three-year-old plan that the district had implemented while it was still being appealed. The court said the plan is not good enough and may be continued only as a stopgap.

"The constitutional duty of the school authorities is to establish a unitary system, not a unitary grade," the decision said aiming at the main feature of the plan that apparently displeased the appeals court.

The Austin plan had been set up to avoid massive busing and concentrated ly in the sixth grade. It set up six sixth grade centers and estimated it would require the busing of about 1,900 students, 62 per cent of them Anglo.

The 5th said the plan approved for the AISD "leaves untouched the students in grades K-5 (kindergarten through fifth) and 7-12."

"The district court should consider appointing a master to prepare a comprehensive desegregation plan," the 5th added in remanding the case back to U.S. District court in Austin.

The AISD encompasses the city and some outlying areas of Travis County. It has some 55,000 students, 62 per cent of them Anglo, 23 per cent Mexican-American, 15 per cent black.

Of the two minority classes, the 5th said 42 per cent of the blacks and 45 per cent of the Mexican-Americans still attend schools where the enrollment is over three-fifths minority.

Austin School Board president Carole McClellan called the meeting after being told of the court's decision.

School District Supt. Jack L. Davidson said he would work with the board "step by step" to implement whatever the federal court orders.

Sam Biscoe, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said of the court's decision: "Excellent, excellent."

It was the second time the appeals court had rejected the Austin school desegregation plan. A plan submitted in 1972 also was rejected.

Austin now assigns students in grades kindergarten through the fifth to schools closest to their homes. The 5th said this will not do.

"It is apparent that assignment on a strict neighborhood basis will not suffice in the AISD although it may suffice as to some schools. To the extent that it does not suffice, the district court will proceed to employ other methods of desegregation."

Two all-black schools, Anderson High and Kealing Junior High, were closed under AISD's present system.

Kealing must be reopened, the 5th said. It's too late to reopen Anderson; it already has been converted into a community college.

"The AISD concedes, as it must, that a primary reason for the school closings was the fear that whites would flee the school system rather than send their children to these East Austin schools," the 5th said.

"It is hardly a new principle of constitutional law that this fear is an impermissible basis for closing public schools."

A new desegregation plan should be similar to a proposal drawn up for Mexican-American intervenors in the suit by John A. Finger, a professor of education at Rhode Island College, the 5th said.

Finger proposed a 4-4-4 system. Elementary schools would contain grades kindergarten through 4, middle schools would handle grades 5 to 8, high schools, 9 to 12.

'All students in grades K-4 in elementary schools which are over 50 per cent minority would be bused to elementary schools that are over 90 per cent Anglo. Fifth to eighth grade students in schools that are over 90 per cent Anglo would be bused to schools that are over 50 per cent minority.

"The practical effect of the plan is that K-4 students in East Austn would be bused to West Austin, and 5-8 students in West Austin would be bused to East Austin.

"Elementary and junior high scools that are between 50 and 90 per cent Anglo are defined as naturally desegregated and would remain unchanged."

White supremacist regime

President being pulled in opposite directions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is being pulled in opposite directions over attempts to repeal a law that exempts imports of chrome from a trade embargo against the white supremacist regime that runs Rhodesia.

The eventual outcome of efforts to repeal the amendment could have profound effects on U.S. relations with black African nations.

Authored by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind-Va., the exemption has become a symbol in black Africa of a test of U.S. willingness to match policy statements favoring majority rule with concrete action.

Pulling Ford in one direction is the conservative Byrd, who maintains his only concern in the issue is that the world has only two major sources of chrome, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union.

Pulling the other way — toward repeal — are most members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who say ending the exemption is needed to restore U.S. credibility in Africa.

And Ford is faced with political pressure from his GOP challenger, Ronald Reagan, who has taken a dim view of efforts to "dictate" settlements to African nations.

But Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has been building an African policy out of the concept of U.S. support for efforts of African blacks to obtain majority rule in nations where a white minority holds political power.

Kissinger made repeal of the amendment allowing U.S. chrome purchases from white-ruled Rhodesia one of the major elements of a 10-point African policy he announced in a speech in Lusaka, Zambia, earlier this month. And repeal may be seen as a signal to Africans that the Ford administration intends to follow through on that policy.

But within days of Kissinger's statement, criticism of his support of black majority rule was injected into the presidential primary campaign by former California Gov. Reagan.

Reagan, challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, said during a campaign swing through Texas in the last week of April that Kissinger's pushing for black majority rule in Rhodesia "has literally undercut the possibility for a just and orderly settlement."

Kissinger, in the midst of his African trip at the time, labeled Reagan's statements "totally irresponsible."

Boss campaigning for Ford

Tower's press secretary moonlighted for Reagan

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex. says no disciplinary action is planned against Tower's press secretary who confirmed he gave off-hours help to the Ronald Reagan camp while his boss campaigned for President Ford.

The Washington Bureau of the Houston Post quoted Mike Kelly Thursday as saying he has written one speech on education for the National "Citizens for Reagan" office, has advised Reagan's staff on some issues and he has been elected as a Reagan delegate to the state GOP convention in Virginia.

Kelly denied being a "pipeline" from the Ford camp to the Reagan camp.

After being questioned about it by the Post, Kelly said he informed Tower, who was chairman of Ford's Texas campaign and who is scheduled to be the President's floor manager at the Republican National Convention in August.

Kelly said he had "never made a secret around the (Tower) office of my feelings about Reagan" but had not previously told his boss about his active work for the former California governor.

Edwin Skiles, Tower's administrative assistant, told the Post Kelly made a "judgment error" in not fully informing Tower. However, Skiles said no disciplinary action will be taken.

"Tower does not try to monitor our lives," Skiles said. "The rule around here is no politicking on the job. Whatever Mike wants to do in his own free time is his own business."

Skiles said he would feel differently is he thought any Tower "confidences had been betrayed" by Kelly.

"Granted, I would prefer that everyone on the staff have a great deal of zeal for President Ford," Skiles said. "It would make life easier. But so long as it doesn't affect his work, I'm not troubled by it."

The Post said a source in the Reagan's Texas campaign referred to Kelly as "our pipeline" into the Ford camp.

Both Kelly and Jeffrey Bell, an issues coordinator on Reagan's national staff, denied it.

"My conscience is clear about that," he said. "I have not violated my loyalty to the senator in any way."

Bell called the remark by the Reagan source "a bum rap."

"That's absolutely false," Bell said. "All Kelly's work has been in the issues area. Reagan has used material from the speech. It's been revised and used pretty frequently.

"But I don't know of any confidential or sensitive information Kelly ever gave us. That's just absolutely false. I have no knowledge of anything like that. I'm convinced he did nothing unethical."

Kelly, a former Washington correspondent for the Dallas Times Herald, was an unsuccessful Republican Congressional candidate in his native Wisconsin in 1972. He became Tower's press secretary Jan. 20, 1975.

Widow of Texan killed in ammonia crash sues

HOUSTON (AP) — The widow of a man killed when an ammonia tank truck exploded has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit in state district court against the owner of the truck.

Sadie Bell McAdams of Conroe filed the suit Thursday against Transport Co. of Texas in Corpus Christi.

Gordon McAdams, 40, was one of five persons killed Tuesday when the tank truck crashed through an overpass rail and exploded on a freeway.

The suit filed by Mrs. McAdams alleges negligence on the part of the tank truck's driver, William Gregory Schmidt, 20, of Corpus Christi, one of the five killed.

Others dead at the scene were David R. Whiteman, 48, of Houston and George H. Pearson, 33, of Sugar Land.

Mrs. Grace Gillebaard, 33, of Houston died Wednesday night in a Houston hospital.

Authorities said nearly 200 persons, most of them overcome by fumes, were injured in the accident. Most of them have been released although three persons remained in critical condition in area hospitals Thursday night.

Federal, state and local agencies continued investigations to determine the cause of the accident.

WEIGHT INCHING UP AGAIN — Mrs. Shirley Turner of Nottingham, England is shown in 1974 after she had a dentist wire her jaws together in an effort to lose weight. After dropping from 252 pounds to 140 in six months by limiting her diet to liquids, Mrs. Turner found out Thursday she is tipping the scale at 170 pounds. Mrs. Turner told her husband of the setback: "Even when I stick to lettuce leaves and other foods supposed to be slimming, I keep getting fatter."

One of first questions to face proposed new unit

Why did Oswald kill Kennedy?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why did Lee Harvey Oswald kill President John F. Kennedy more than a dozen years ago?

That will be one of the first questions to face a proposed new Senate commitee that would watch over the workings of U. S. intelligence agencies.

The Senate intelligence committee voted Thursday to recommend that the proposed new panel conduct an investigation into the never-answered question of why Oswald shot Kennedy as the President rode in a motorcade through Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22, 1963.

But the creation of the new committee remains in doubt.

The compromise measure to create the new panel ran into some unexpected trouble Thursday when members of the Armed Services Committee, which currently monitors the CIA and other spy agencies, raised the possibility of a filibuster.

Majority leader Mike Mansfield immediately filed a petition to invoke the Senate's debate-ending cloture rule.

Several hours earlier, the intelligence committee voted without objection to recommend that the proposed panel conduct the investigation into Oswald's motives.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., member of a two-man subcommittee that has been investigating the performance of U.S. intelligence agencies in connection with the Kennedy killing, said he had seen no evidence to contradict the Warren Commission finding that Oswald was the lone assassin. But he added that "the unanswered question is why."

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., the other member of the subcommittee, disagreed, saying, "I have always questioned the Warren Commission finding about who did it and about how it was done. My six months on this subcommittee have reinforced and strengthened that doubt."

Schweiker said his limited probe of the assassination found the Warren report to be based on a faulty investigation in which leads either were ignored or not followed up.

He cited as examples the CIA's failure to inform the commission of its schemes to kill Cuba's Fidel Castro and the FBI's destruction of a threatening note delivered by Oswald to FBI offices in Dallas just days before the assassination.

Newly released CIA documents concede that the Warren Commission was not told about the plots against Castro but maintain there is no convincing evidence that the Cuban premier was aware of CIA attempts to kill him or that they prompted him to retaliate against Kennedy.

But an April, 1975 memo says Castro undoubtedly knew about some of the assassination plots mounted by Cuban exile groups and speculates that some of these plots may have been falsely attributed to the CIA.

Mansfield's debate-ending cloture petition is scheduled to come to a vote next Tuesday and will need at least 60 votes to succeed.

The majority leader, who is one of the chief backers of a new permanent intelligence committee, tried to get unanimous consent for a final vote on Tuesday or Wednesday, but Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio, a member of the Armed Services Committee objected, saying members needed time to study the proposal.

Severe weather pops Mississippi Valley

By The Associated Press

Warm humid air from the Gulf of Mexico continued to set off scattered thundershowers from the Gulf into the Ohio Valley early today with some showers extending north into the western Great Lakes.

Severe weather struck the lower Mississippi Valley Thursday afternoon. One of several tornadoes caused considerable damage and one injury at Kilmichael, Miss. There also was damage to buildings and boat docks near the Mississippi-Tennessee border.

A cold front brought showers and thundershowers to Idaho and western Montana. In Idaho, strong winds damaged power lines near Boise.

Hot weather continued Thursday in the southwestern deserts and the California interior for a second day. Bakersfield, Calif., and Gila Bend, Ariz., both reached 107 degrees — the nation's high.

Cooler air moving into the Pacific Northwest was expected to reach northern portions of California today.

Nighttime skies were mostly clear from California into the northern Plains and partly cloudy along the Atlantic Coast and in the southern Plains.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 82 at Needles and Bakersfield, Calif., to 34 at Greenville, Maine.

Today's forecast: showers and thundershowers will be scattered over most of the nation east of the Mississippi River, except in New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, New York and most of Florida. Scattered showers will cover the mountains of extreme eastern Oregon and Washington and Idaho, Montana and the mountains of northeast Nevada. Outside of the precipitation areas, skies will be sunny. It will be windy from southern Nevada into central Arizona.

Cool temperatures will prevail over the mid-Mississippi Valley and in the Pacific Northwest. It will be warm over Florida and hot in the desert Southwest. The rest of the nation will be seasonably mild.

'Kickback' scheme flops

DALLAS (AP) — Former Mesquite assistant street Supt. James Umberger has been sentenced to five years in prison for official misconduct in connection with a kickback scheme involving payment of unearned overtime.

A jury Thursday took less than 30 minutes to find Umberger guilty of the offense before District Court Judge Ed Gossett pronounced sentence.

Several former Mesquite street department employes testified they received pay for overtime they didn't work and split the extra money with Umberger, who denied the kickbacks.

Former street Supt. Frank Copeland and former foreman Joe Lee Warren also have been indicted in the case and their trials are scheduled for the next few weeks.

Keeping mob from spreading

DALLAS (AP) — Crime syndicates have gained a foothold in Dallas, but law enforcement agencies have "done a darn good job" in keeping organized crime from spreading, Dist. Atty. Henry Wade says.

"I'm not going to say Dallas is free of organized crime because it isn't," Wade said Thursday. "Crime syndicates have been trying for 20 years to get a foothold here and they've succeeded to some extent. But I believe that Dallas is about as clean as a major city can be."

Wade's comment followed a report this week by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council which quotes Dallas police as saying representatives of at least five Mafia "families" have been seen in Dallas.

The report by the state agency said police believe the Mafia has not gained a significant grip on criminal activity in Dallas, which syndicates reportedly regard as "up for grabs."

Crime syndicates "would like to infiltrate activities where there is an opportunity for big profits—gambling, pornography, prostitution, fencing of stolen goods, narcotics and loan sharking," Wade said.

Ford, Congress may spend summer in budget battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Congress apparently will spend the summer at each other's throats in what could be an historic confrontation over the federal budget.

Acting under a new budget procedure, Congress has for the first time approved its own federal budget. In the past, Congress has worked on a budget submitted by the president.

Under the new procedures, Congress has approved its own spending ceiling of $413.3 billion for fiscal 1977.

But Ford said Thursday he is determined that it will be his budget of $395.8 billion that will regulate government spending and not the congressional budget.

"The Congress should be on notice that it is my intention to hold federal spending to the lower limit I proposed," Ford announced after the House gave Congress' budget ceiling final approval on Thursday. "I will not be a willing partner to the risk of another round of double-digit inflation."

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, had warned when the Senate approved its spending ceiling on Wednesday that if Ford tries to cut the congressional budget figure by veto it would mean "a long summer of futile confrontation between Congress and the White House."

Democratic leaders say Congress' higher spending is the way to keep the nation's economic recovery going, largely by creating an extra one million jobs and continuing Congress' $17 billion tax cut through 1977, rather than granting a $28 million tax cut Ford proposed.

Democrats, including House Budget Committee Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash., contend it is Congress' tax cut and extra money for federally aided jobs that have started economic recovery, not Ford's efforts to cut federal spending.

The $413.3-billion congressional budget ceiling envisions a $50.8 billion deficit compared to Ford's $44.6 billion.

The essential differences in Ford's and Congress' budget approaches to economic recovery rest on taxes and jobs.

Congress' $17 billion tax cut is focused on low-and middle-income Americans and assumes they will spend the money and stimulate the economy. Congress also wants to spend some $6 billion to create a million new federally aided jobs.

Congress' economists say that will cut unemployment to 6 per cent by the end of 1977, compared to 7 per cent under Ford's budget proposal.

Ford's budget would grant an additional $11 billion in tax cuts to middle-income taxpayers and corporations.

Cultivated marijuana discovered

A small patch of marijuana, some of it almost knee high, was pulled up from a secluded rural draw, the sheriff's office reported Thursday.

"It wasn't growing wild," Bill Whitton, chief deputy sheriff, said. "That's for sure."

An individual, who asked not to be named, discovered the illegal weeds about one week ago seven miles south and three miles east of Big Spring, Whitton said.

No one was seen returning to the patch about the size of two desk tops, Whitton said, and the sherrif's office has no suspects.

The land is in an area subdivided into 20-acre tracts but not developed, Whitton said.

DESK GUEST — Jeffrey Nelson, 11, opened his desk in the fifth grade at Racine, Wis., grade school and found this Ceoropia moth. The moth came from a cocoon he had placed inside a cap during the past winter.

Tons of pot blacken sky

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss. (AP) — Fifteen tons of high quality Colombian marijuana were destroyed in a bonfire by police here Thursday, a day after it was brought ashore from a boat off the Gulf of Mexico.

"It burned real good," said Sheriff Sylvan Ladner of Hancock County. The smoke at first "blackened the sky. then when it got down to really burning, the smoke turned blue."

Some 100 federal and state agents stacked dozens of bags of the marijuana and doused it with 400 gallons of diesel fuel, then ignited it.

Seven persons have been arrested so far in connection with the shipment of the grass, valued by police at $10 million. All have been charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver, and held on bonds of $100,000 each.

An 80-foot boat brought the shipment to an abandoned port on the Pearl River at Pearlington, about six miles inland from the Gulf, between Bay St. Louis and New Orleans. It was transferred to a truck and taken to a nearby farm.

Officers arrested three persons at the boat after the transfer Wednesday, picked up three more at the farm and the seventh at a Gulf Coast motel.

A spokesman for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration at New Orleans said it appeared the grass was to be taken to Cincinnati for distribution.

Victim of tank blast is reported improving

The ambulance which carried a victim of Wednesday night's explosion in Colorado City was diverted to Malone-Hogan Hospital so temporary medical help could be given until the plane from Dyess Air Force Base arrived, Col. Robert F. Brodman said Friday.

Col. Brodman, base commander at Webb Air Force Base, said that as the ambulance carrying 20-year-old Johnny Lee McKinney arrived at the city limits of Big Spring, the plane which was to rush the youth to Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio was still on the runway at Dyess.

The colonel said that the plane was not able to reach Big Spring for another 30 minutes behind the Mitchell County ambulance.

In Thursday's Herald, it was reported that the plane landed at Webb about the same time that the ambulance reached Malone-Hogan.

McKinney and his father, John McKinney, 49, were dismantling an oil tank on the Col-Tex Refinery Tank Farm one mile southwest of Colorado City when the explosion occurred. The youth died at 9:20 p.m. Wednesday at Malone-Hogan. His father was taken to Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City where his conditon was reported as stable today.

Men have been watching the fire 24-hours daily to make sure it is contained.

Church blasted by John Connally

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally, who was wounded during the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, says he knows of no new evidence that warrants a reopening of the investigation of the 1963 slaying.

Connally also took a swipe Thursday at Sen. Frank Church, whose Senate Intelligence Committee voted to recommend a congressional probe of the assassination.

The former Texas governor said he deplored congressmen "using committee chairmanships purely as a vehicle to promote presidential ambitions."

Church, D-Idaho, is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Speaking at an Emory University forum, Connally called the Republican presidential race a tossup between President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

He said he has no interest in being on the ticket.

"I have no plans to throw my hat into any ring," Connally said. "I would really prefer not to hold any elective or appointive office, to tell you the truth."

In his speech, Connally said the terms of presidents, congressmen and federal judges should be limited to help remove politics from governmental decisions.

He suggested that presidents be limited to a single six-year term, senators to a single eight-year term, House members to two four-year terms, and judges be forced to retire at age 70 and made subject to Senate reconfirmation every 10 years.

At present, presidents may serve two four-year terms, judges are appointed for life and congressmen may serve without limit.

Academy cheating review disclosed

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Academy has begun an administrative review of an alleged cheating case that could lead to the expulsion of six cadets who have refused to resign, an academy spokesman says.

Lt. Van Shields, deputy information officer at the academy, said Thursday the cadets, all sophomores, were found guilty by a cadet honor committee of collaborating on a physics laboratory problem. They have spurned a request from the eight-man committee to resign, Shields said.

A seventh student was cleared of the cheating charges, he said.

Shields said an investigating officer has been appointed from the academy staff by Brig. Gen. Stanley C. Beck, commandant of cadets, but Shields said he had been told not to release the investigator's name.

He said the officer would make a recommendation to the commandant on whether to convene a special panel of officers to formally investigate the case.

The Air Force case follows on the heels of a scandal at the Army's academy at West Point, where 49 cadets are being investigated on charges they cheated on a take-home assignment in an engineering course.

Shields refused to identify any of the cadets involved because the case remains under investigation. Lt. Col. John Price, director of information, said he would "check with our legal people" on whether to release the name of the cadet who was found innocent.

Shields said he did not know why the cadets refused to resign.

In previous cheating scandals at the Air Force Academy, cadets found guilty by the honor committee resigned.

Texas open meetings rule

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general told the Texas Optometry Board today that it must hold open sessions of its investigation-enforcement subcommittee that investigates complaints filed against licensees.

The opinion was requested by E. Richard Friedman, chairman of the board, who said that the board has three investigation-enforcement subcommittees, each covering a third of the state. Each subcommittee hires an investigator who reports on complaints filed.

"So long as the board conducts it investigations by committees or subcommittees the meetings of those will be required to be open as provided by the Open Meetings Act," the opinion said.

Showers wet central Texas

By The Associated Press

Low pressure extending across Central Texas to the Trans-Pecos area brought partly cloudy skies and a few light showers to the state today, while clear skies prevailed elsewhere.

Early morning showers fell on a line from near Bonham in Northeast Texas to near Lufkin in Southeast Texas, in West Texas northwest of Sonora and from northwest of Austin to north of Rocksprings.

Temperatures before dawn varied from 39 degrees at Dalhart and Amarillo to 70 at El Paso. Most readings were in the 50s.

SCRAPBOOK REVIEW — Democratic Presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter, left, and underwater explorer Captain Jacques Cousteau, look over a scrapbook belonging to Cousteau during a conference at the United Nations in New York Thursday on nuclear energy and world order. During the conference, Carter called for a five-year U. S.-Soviet agreement to halt nuclear testing for all purposes, including peaceful development. The conference was not an official U. N. function.

Carter, Meany heading for face-to-face talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is heading for his first face-to-face meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany — a meeting that could be the key to winning enthusiastic support from organized labor if he captures the Democratic presidential nomination.

Aides to both men described today's meeting in Meany's office across Lafayette Park from the White House as a chance for them to get to know one another. No endorsement was expected to come from the session.

Carter headed into the session fully aware that labor leaders generally preferred Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey or Henry M. Jackson. But he also knew that with his candidacy gaining momentum, labor may need him more than he needs them.

The former Georgia governor's stunning victory in the Pennsylvania primary showed that he could win the "lunchbucket" vote, despite the opposition of several important union leaders who endorsed Jackson.

Carter has had help from a coalition of liberal unions and in recent weeks has stepped up his efforts at wooing new labor support.

Democratic presidential candidates have traditionally benefitted from the AFL-CIO's support in terms of money and manpower. A rare exception was in 1972 when the candidate, Sen. George McGovern, incurred Meany's wrath and the labor federation sat out the election.

Meany, who at one time or another has met with all of the Democratic candidates except Carter, has said any of them would be acceptable with the exception of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Although known to be cool to Carter, he told his political strategists last month to stay out of any stop-Carter drives.

An AFL-CIO official said today's meeting would give Meany a chance to study Carter and find out where he stands on issues concerning labor, such as jobs and the economy.

"If Meany sees that Carter can level with him while sitting across the table, it will help," the official said.

Some labor leaders are weighing individual endorsements for Carter and there has been some talk that the AFL-CIO ought to abandon its preconvention neutrality. But officials of the giant labor federation insist that no endorsements would be made until after the conventions.

FBI arrests 'drowned man'

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Agents of the FBI have arrested a man here who was reported by his "widow" to have drowned near Corpus Christi, Tex.

Roger Sullins, the reportedly drowned man whose government life insurance policy his wife was trying to collect in Corpus Christi, was arrested at his parents' home.

Sullins, his wife Kimberly and a friend, Jim Turner, were charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of $20,000. Mrs. Sullins posted bond and Turner was held in the Nueces County jail after both were arraigned Thursday.

Sullins, meanwhile, was in the Mobile city jail pending arraignment before a U.S. magistrate Friday.

Police officials in Corpus Christi said it all started last month when Sullins was reported to have drowned while swimming off Padre Island near Corpus Christi.

Police theorized that Sullins swam ashore at another point on the island, hitchhiked to Corpus Christi and then took a bus to Mobile.

FBI spokesmen said Mrs. Sullins already had received $3,000 in "shock" benefits given to her as part of the policy her husband had while assigned as a Navy air controller at Beeville.

Police Chief Bill McConnell of Beeville said he became suspicious when Mrs. Sullins failed to show the proper grief for a widow.

"We had only her say-so that Sullins was dead," McConnell said. "We were suspicious too when a week went by and the body didn't float."

Turner had been arrested a day after the alleged drowning when reportedly a group of friends of the Sullins from the naval base came to the Sullins home. Turner allegedly fired several shots from a .25 caliber pistol and was disarmed by Daniel Rash, an insurance agent who had come to the home to talk to Mrs. Sullins about a second policy held by her husband.

Meat probe package drafting under way

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel will follow up its disclosures of a massive military meat scandal by drafting legislation to revise the Pentagon food procurement system.

Chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said his Senate government operations subcommittee will prepare a "reform package." The subcommittee has completed three days of hearings at which Army meat inspectors testified they were paid bribes to look the other way while meat packers sold the military cheap ungraded beef at sirloin prices.

Chiles said his panel would wait for the conclusion of a Defense Department study of the meat scandal before deciding on legislation, but he said the transcript of the panel's hearing would be made quickly available to the Justice Department.

A charge of price fixing between two Boston meat packing firms was added Thursday to disclosures of payoffs and fraud made in previous testimony by Army meat inspectors.

Ferdinand Romano, former general manager of G & G Packing Co. of Boston, testified "there was some price fixing between G & G and State Beef," also of Boston.

Abe Cohen, owner of State Beef, denied the allegation under oath at the conclusion of the hearing.

Romano said he arranged and attended a meeting in June 1974 at which Cohen and Harry Goldberg, a co-owner of G & G, agreed to quit competing and tailor their bids for military diced beef orders so each would get a proportionate share.

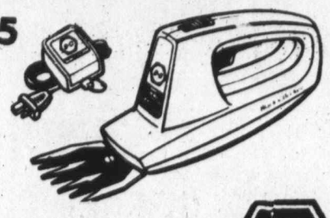

Earlier witnesses said G & G officials supplied them with money and other favors, including the services of prostitutes, in exchange for their failure to notice the low-grade beef being shipped to military mess halls.

Paul H. Riley, deputy assistant secretary of defense, told the subcommittee he was "not yet convinced that the Boston situation is typical of our entire meat inspection system nationwide."

Thumb wrestling costs Ag Department $44,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has spent $44,000 so far for a series of "assertive awareness" seminars in which women employes learn to cope with their jobs and male bosses by engaging in Danish thumb wrestling contests.

The department's Animal and Health Inspection Service began the sessions about 18 months ago. The three-day seminars involve lectures and discussions, in addition to the Danish thumb wrestling.

R.M. Gurley, the agency's training officer, calls the program "a leveling process" and says it is recommended highly by activist women's groups throughout the country. About 220 women employes of the department have participated in 11 of the sessions held so far in Washington and in various locations, including Philadelphia, Atlanta and Ames, Iowa, he said.

"For the women who are a little bit on the super-aggressive, super-hostile side, it has a leveling process," Gurley said Thursday. "For the ones that are a little shy and timid and reticent, it brings them up to a level where they can communicate with ... male supervisors."

About Danish thumb wrestling, Gurley admits "I'm really not sure what it is, but it involves touching."

However, another Agriculture Department spokesman described Danish thumb wrestling as "two people interlocking fingers and then trying to pin each other's thumbs."

Gurley said the sessions have averaged about 20 women each. He said the cost to the government for paying salaries and other expenses of qualified outside instructors has been $44,000, or about $200 per employe.

Tamale sale to benefit Ismael Chavez

A tamale sale will be held 11 a.m. Saturday at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, 1009 Hearn, with proceeds going for the benefit of Ismael Chavez, victim of a brain tumor.

According to relatives, doctors report that Chavez's condition is improving. He is currently under treatment at Odessa Memorial Hospital, and will probably be able to return to his home in about three weeks.

Food prices jump expected

NEW YORK (AP) — America's grocery bill is expected to jump as much as 8 per cent to nearly $200 billion in 1976, up from last year's $184.6 billion, a food industry publication says.

Industry Surveys, published by Standard and Poor Corp., said in its most recent edition the spending increase will be the result of people eating 1 to 2 per cent more, prices rising 3 to 5 per cent and consumers having 10 per cent more disposable income.

If the forecast of a 10 per cent increase in disposable income proves correct, food expenditure as a percentage of disposable income would decline in 1976 for the first time in two years, the report said.

High waves could never have toppled capsule?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An engineer for the California firm that built a rescue capsule in which 13 offshore oil workers died has testified that high waves alone could never have toppled the capsule.

The workers were drowned when the craft overturned in high seas as it was being brought alongside a tugboat.

"We don't think there's a sea state that could turn the boat over," Jerry Laidson told a Coast Guard board of inquiry Thursday.

The board may recess Friday until it can hear testimony from the man who might be able to settle a key issue. The man, Thomas Loftin, was in the hatch of the capsule as tow lines were passed back and forth with the tugboat. Loftin is recovering in a hospital.

The key issue is whether or not the last of the tow lines was still attached when the capsule flipped.

Laidson said his firm, Whittaker Corp. Survival Systems Division, La Mesa, Calif., feels certain that tension on the towlines caused the craft to go over.

But crew members of the tug have said that the last line between the two already had been lost overboard.

Laidson said the fiberglass rescue craft had survived hurricane winds and seas without tipping. But he said tests had determined that if it were forcibly turned upside-down, the capsule could take on 200 gallons of water in two minutes.

The craft was floating upside down in the water with 13 bodies inside when it was retrieved the morning after the April 15 disaster.

The capsule was not designed to be self-righting, Laidson said, although similar craft made by Whittaker were self-righting to meet British safety laws.

Rash of 'wills' ire authorities

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Authorities have let it be known they are not amused by the rash of "wills" that has descended on the courthouse here to cash in on the billion dollar plus estate of the late Howard Hughes.

In fact, Clark County Dist. Atty. George Holt finds the whole situation so unamusing, he is considering an investigation into felony complaints of forgery, fraud or perjury that could land the authors of the "wills" in prison for 1-to-10 years.

"At this time we don't have any investigation," Holt said Thursday. But the county clerk's office has received four wills — three this week — and, he said, "we're looking into it very seriously now."

In a news release, Holt said his office would "vigorously prosecute criminally any such person or combination of persons who fradulently claim heirship."

Holt said he would announce shortly whether a formal investigation would be launched.

He warned against looking at the situation as some kind of joke.

"For somebody to prepare a false will knowingly is forgery, filing a false document in any official proceeding is fraud, and persons who falsely testify at any court hearings about the will would be guilty of perjury," he said.

According to Holt, the key issue is whether a person knows the document is phoney. Anyone who comes into possession of an apparent will must file the document with the clerk, he said, even if the will turns out to be forged. But a person filing such a document without knowing it was forged would not be subject to prosecution.

The late, eccentric billionaire left an estate estimated at between $1.5 billion and $2.5 billion.

In Austin, Tex., State Comptroller Bob Bullock said he had "fairly conclusive proof" that Hughes was a Texas resident. Bullock said other states were attempting to claim Hughes as a resident, "But I think we've got them beat. Once a Texan, always a Texan."

Hughes was born and died in Houston. The inheritance tax could add as much as $335 million to Texas state coffers if Bullock is right.

And in Salt Lake City, Salt Lake County Atty. Paul Van Dam said he has forwarded information to Las Vegas that alleges several persons were involved in a hoax relating to the first purported Hughes' will. He would not elaborate.

The first document was found at Mormon church headquarters in Salt Lake City. Much of the Hughes' estate was left to the church in the "will."

"We have no legal basis on which to get into the thing," Van Dam said, explaining his decision to send the evidence to Nevada authorities.

$1 million suit filed by waitress

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court suit asking $1 million in damages has been filed by a cocktail waitress who claims she suffered burns when a bottle of 190-proof grain alcohol being used to make flaming drinks exploded.

Attorneys for Charlotte Green, 23, of Houston, filed the suit against American Distilling Co. Inc., makers of Everclear.

The suit alleged the bottle exploded into flames April 10 at a club where the woman worked, igniting her clothing and causing her to suffer permanent burns to her neck, face, chest, stomach and hands.

The suit alleges American Distilling was negligent in failing to "provide adequate warnings of the dangerous propensities and characteristics of Everclear."

Raymond Hutner, regional manager of the distilling company, said bottles and cases of the liquor bear labels cautining that contents are flammable.

A SPLASE OF THE BUBBLY — New York Nets John Williamson, left, douses Nets president Roy Boe with celebration champagne in the Nets locker room Thursday night. Nets forward Tim Bassett, right, joins in the jubilation following the Nets victory over the Denver Nuggests 112-106 to clinch the ABA Championship title at the Nassau Coliseum.

Novice Nuggets fall apart

Nets comeback wins title

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets were struggling.

They had fallen 22 points behind the Denver Nuggets with 5:07 remaining in the third quarter of the sixth game of their American Basketball Association championship series.

Their shooting was off-target. Their offense was disorganized. The Nuggets, particularly David Thompson and Dan Issel, were destroying their defense.

The situation appeared hopeless ... and it seemed a seventh and deciding game would have to be played in Denver Sunday.

Then, suddenly, the game turned.

The Nets, the best defensive team in the league throughout the regular season, began playing the defense that had distinguished them during that time. And because of it, their offense prospered.

They forced the Nuggets into costly mistakes, turnovers that resulted in Nets points or missed shots.

They began to close the gap. And they were gathering momentum.

The Nuggets, in the championship series for the first time, were coming apart at the seams.

By the end of the third quarter, Denver's lead was down to 92-78. And one period later, the Nets had completed their incredible surge from behind, beating the shocked and frustrated Nuggets 112-106 Thursday night.

The victory gave the Nets the series 4-2 and was their second championship in three years.

"You can only make a comeback like that when you have the guys who can play pressure defense," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery, his clothes dripping with champagne. "And we had them."

Loughery, who also led the Nets to their first league championship in 1974 in his rookie season as coach, ordered the Nets into a full-court press in the opening minute of the fourth quarter with Denver ahead 92-79. It was the turning point of the game.

For the entire last quarter, the Nuggets made only four field goals, two of them layups, after having connected for a total of 38 in the first three periods. Thompson, who had bombed the Nets for 38 points during the opening three quarters, was held to four foul shots in the final period.

Meanwhile, John Williamson got the Nets offense in high gear. He fired in 11 straight New York points, cutting the Nuggets' lead to 96-92 with just over eight minutes remaining.

Then, with about four minutes left, and the Nuggets still ahead 104-97, New York finally charged ahead for the first time since the opening period. Eleven straight points put the Nets in front 108-104 with 1:46 to go, and Denver couldn't recover.

Williamson, with 16 points in the fourth quarter, finished with 28. Julius Erving, the series' Most Valuable Player, scored 31, including 18 in the third period, and wound up with two championship records — 226 total points for a 37.7 average. He also had a game-high 19 rebounds.

Brian Taylor contributed 24 points and Jim Eakins, playng in place of starting center Kim Hughes, who was on crutches after suffering a severe sprain and a muscle tear in his left ankle during Game Five, had 15 points and 13 rebounds.

From minor leagues to toast of Anaheim

Big Spring Herald

FRIDAY, MAY 14, 1976

SECTION B SECTION B

ANAHEIM (AP) — Wednesday, Orlando Alvarez was on the Salt Lake City roster.

Thursday night, he was the toast of Anaheim.

Summoned earlier in the day from the minors by the California Angels, Alvarez was immediately inserted into the lineup by Manager Dick Williams and the 23-year-old made the most of his first big league start.

He slugged a three-run homer in the fifth inning to provide the margin of victory as the Angels defeated the Texas Rangers 7-5.

"That has to be the number one moment of my baseball career," Alvarez, a native of Puerto Rico beamed. "It feels great to get off to a start like that."

Alvarez was acquired by the Angels in March from the Los Angeles Dodgers in exchange for catcher Ellie Rodriguez, but after a brief look in the spring he was returned to the minors.

He was hitting .330 with 17 RBI in 22 games when he was recalled.

"I was a little bit surprised," he admitted. "I wasn't going that good. I got off to a good start and nothing happened. But I'm here now and all I want is a chance.

"I never got a break with the Dodgers but that's all in the past. It's forgotten."

Alvarez will be in the Angel lineup again tonight when the team begins a four-game weekend series with the Minnesota Twins.

"If it takes new faces to win, then that's what we'll do," said Angel Manager Dick Williams, who unveiled a remodeled lineup that featured Adrian Garrett getting his first start behind the plate and Dave Chalk, normally a third baseman, at shortstop.

Garrett responded well, too, with a double and single — his first hits of the season.

Frank Tanana had to weather two-run homers by Jeff Burroughs and Toby Harrah to level his record at 3-3. Burrough's sixth home run capped a three-run Ranger outburst in the third when all the runs were unearned because of a two-out throwing error by third baseman Ron Jackson.

Colonial National Golf

Duel of swashbucklers

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Talking like a pair of Las Vegas high-rollers, Hubert Green and Dave Stockton resume their swashbuckling duel today in the second round of the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"Yeah, I'm a gambler," Stockton said after dropping a clutch 10-foot par putt on the final hole Thursday for a 67 and a share of the lead with Green.

"I think most good players are gamblers. There are very few who sit back and wait for something to happen. I think the definition of a positive person would be one who takes sensible gambles.

"So I attack."

Green, bidding for his fourth title of the year, recorded his three-under-par 67 hours beore Stockton toured the 7,190-yard Colonial course, but the script was similar.

DAVE STOCKTON

Tied for lead

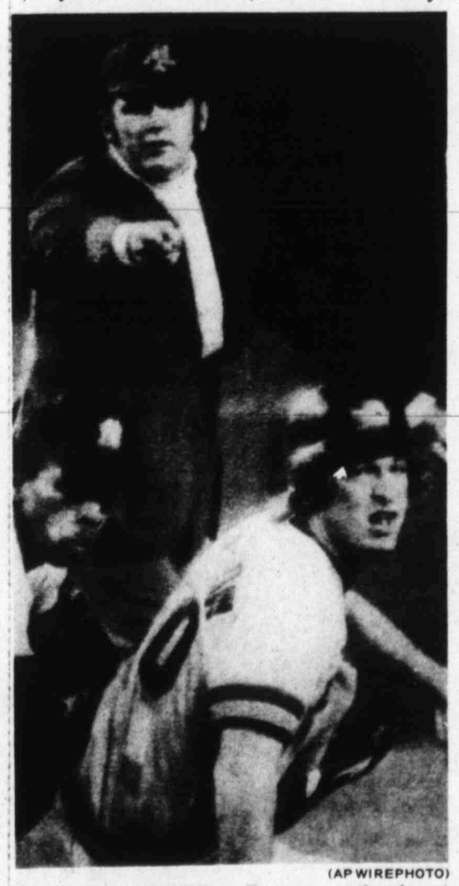

"I'm not going to hit every green, because I don't play safe," said Green. "I go for the pin. If I'm under par it's not my game to lay back and play it safe.

"I attack the golf course."

Then, with a smile and a shrug, he added:

"You migt as well attack this golf course because it's going to bite you one way or another. It's better to get bitten going aftr it instead of it going after you."

Palmer stint 'flat' as Brewer mound

By The Associated Press

The mound was "flat" at Milwaukee's County Stadium — and so was Jim Palmer.

"It wasn't really one of my better games," said the Baltimore right-hander. "I kind of got a little tired in the end."

As Palmer lost his vitality, his fastballs lost their velocity and the Cy Young winner had to be content to struggle through an eight-hit, 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday.

Palmer's condition was not enhanced, either, by the condition of the Milwaukee mound — a situation that has bothered Palmer and other pitchers around the American League. Palmer has been the most vociferous critic of what he calls its "flat" surface.

"I got hit pretty hard in Kansas City last Sunday, so it was pretty hard to look forward to pitching in Milwaukee. But you can't do much about it. It's like throwing straight up in the air. You've got to make sure you release the ball from on top, or you'll throw a lot of high fastballs and they'll hit it out of the park on you all day."

Red Sox 7, Indians 5

Rick Miller drilled three hits and drove in three runs, sparking Boston over Cleveland. It was the second straight victory for the Red Sox after 10 straight losses.

Luis Tiant, 4-2, gave up nine hits and three of Cleveland's runs in 62-3 innings. Jim Willoughby, the second relief pitcher, pitched the last two innings for the Red Sox and gave up two runs in the ninth on sacrifice flies by Doug Howard and Ron Pruitt.

Tigers 3, Yanks 2

Rusty Staub's three-run homer with two out in the eighth inning following an intentional walk to Willie Horton lifted Detroit over New York. Chris Chambliss' home run in the bottom of the seventh had given the Yankees a 1-0 lead, snapping a scoreless duel between winner Vern Ruhle, 3-0, and loser Rudy May, 2-1.

Royals 13, White Sox 2

George Brett smashed three hits for the sixth straight game and John Maybery belted three hits and knocked in two runs to lead Kansas City past Chicago. Mayberry took a .182 batting average into the game, but pounded two singles and a triple. Also contributing to the 16-hit Kansas City attack was Cookie Rojas, who drove in three runs with an eighth-inning double.

Giants 9, Cubs 5

Willie Montanez tripled in the tying run in the ninth inning and scored on a single by Steve Ontiveros as San Francisco erupted for five runs to defeat Chicago. The Cubs had broken a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning of the rain-delayed game when they scored a run without a hit on walks to Jerry Morales and Manny Trillo, a sacrifice bunt by Steve Swisher and Dave Rosello's sacrifice fly.

As the worm turns
Area fishing news

By Danny Reagan

Having a brief hiatus . . . fish are taking a back seat at honeymoon time. So there won't be any area fishing reports this week.

However, before I left I did manage to dig up some very interesting items that would be of concern to any serious angler.

So in lieu of a weekly report, here they are:

●●●

FISHING LICENSE SLUMP

Sales of fishing licenses from September 1975 through March 1976 are lagging far behind figures for the same period a year ago.

License sales officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department report 463,006 sold so far this year, down 103,068 from the 566,074 sold during the seventh-month period last year.

Perhaps that partially accounts for the 1,097 citations filed by P&WD game wardens in March for fishing violations, 988 of which were for failure to have a fishing license.

The decline in sales represents a $410,000 decrease in income for the department.

Overall, the P&WD has taken in some $453,000 less in revenue from license sales in the periods as compared to last year.

Total income from the sales is $9.4 million in the 1975-76 seven-month period, versus $9.9 million in 1974-75.

●●●

Although Texas issued more than 1,600,000 fishing licenses last year, and attracted ardent fishermen from all over the United States, there are millions of Texans who still don't realize how much the fishing industry contributes to our state's economy.

Of equal concern to Bob Gray, publisher of The Texas Fisherman, is the fact that millions of Texas families haven't yet discovered how much fun it is to go fishing together, on weekends and at vacation time.

So, publisher Gray announced that he will send a free copy of The Texas Fisherman's July and August issues to anybody who writes for it. What's more, in June and July he will spend money to run advertisements in virtually every daily newspaper in Texas announcing that offer.

"In view of what they cost, it should be pretty obvious that we're not just trying to see how many magazines we can give away," said publisher Gray. "What we are trying to do is to make more people, and especially more Texas families, aware of what a fantastic fishing state Texas really is.

"For example, I bet that not one Texan in a thousand knows that we've got the second biggest total amount of both fresh water and salt water fishing available in the whole United States.

"They'll know it when they read our magazine. There's no reason why twice the number of people who fish now shouldn't enjoy the sport, in view of all the new inland impoundments, and the vast reaches of Texas shoreline.

"Building the fishing industry will help our economy and benefit every family in the state, so we hope that all newspapers, radio and TV stations in Texas will spread the good word about our free offer." To get a free copy of the June or July issue, just send your name and address to: The Texas Fisherman, Drawer E, Houston, Texas. 77018.

AUSTIN — Record numbers of striped bass fry, obtained from fish previously stocked in lakes by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, are on their way to state fish hatcheries.

The first of an expected 11 million fry are arriving at hatcheries, eight million of which are being spawned from Texas fish with another three million from South Carolina.

Since early March, P&WD fisheries technicians at Toledo Bend Reservoir in Sabine County and Spence Reservoir in Coke County have been sampling female stripers to determine the correct time for spawning from the development of eggs in the females they examine.

By mid-April the females were ripe and taken to hatching stations at intervals. Hatchery technicians are working around the clock stripping eggs and fertilizing them with milt from male bass. The fertilized eggs are hatched in jars and the fry sent to ponds when four days old for rearing to fingerling size.

From the time the adult fish are brought to hatching stations, it is seven to nine days before fry are sent to rearing ponds.

Some 25 per cent of the eggs are fertilized with milt from male white bass to produce a hybrid fish. Better rearing success has been reported with the hybrid stripers.

The hybrid will be stocked in lakes where there is no hope of natural reproduction by pure stripers. Striped bass require some 50 miles of flowing water to reproduce successfully.

The goal for Toledo Bend is three million fry, with another five million from Spence.

Fisheries crews are on schedule and expect to reach their goal of 11 million fry for rearing to fingerling size.

●●●

P.S. There is going to be a "Poor Boy Bass Association" tournament at Lake Spence, Sunday. I don't have any details but if you're interested, contact the West Texas Poor Boy Bass Association, Texas Division no. 2, P.O. Box 973, McCamey Tex., 79752. Look for the regular fishing report next week.

Bold Forbes' speed no secret

BALTIMORE (AP) — "It's no secret to anybody that my horse is one of the fastest in America," says trainer Laz Barrera of Kentucky Derby winner Bold Forbes, who will try to outrun five other 3-year-olds Saturday in the Preakness.

And that speed was much in evidence at Pimlico Thursday.

While Derby runner-up Honest Pleasure walked, Bold Forbes sizzled a half-mile in 45 2-5.

"He looks better now than he did in the Derby," said Barrera, who added that another horse on the track and the condition of the track were factors in the swift time.

"He saw the other horse in front of him and he just took off," said Barrera. "This track is lightning fast. You can hear a horse's feet on the ground. It's a bit too fast. It's like a concrete road."

But the trainer also saw a plus in the fast racing surface — "On a fast track, the speed will stay there.

Scorpions club Colts

The Scorpions acted the part as they swarmed all over the Colts with 9 big runs in the top half of the last inning to hand a stinging 14-11 defeat to the International League leaders.

Thirteen batters came to the plate in a wild 6th inning featured by two batters being hit by pitches, an error, doubles by Skip Hinman and Paul Kuepers, a triple by Robyn Chumley plus an inside-the-park home run to right field, by Dan Kaiser scoring David Patterson who had singled ahead of him. The Scorpions were 5 runs down before the outburst occurred.

The Colts had scored 5 runs in the 1st, 3 in the third and single runs in each of the last 3 innings mainly on the hitting of Tommy Gartman who had 2 doubles and Raymond Ford who had a double and a solo blast over the right field fence.

Hinman started the game and pitched three innings before Kaiser came on in the bottom of the 4th limiting the Colts to three runs and only one hit while picking up the win. Jimmy Claton pitched the entire game for the Colts and suffered the lost. It was the first defeat for the Colts and made their record 6 and 1.

200 golfers eye 64 spots

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — More than 200 players are trying to qualify today and Saturday in a 36-hole test for the 64 non-exempt places for the North and South amateur golf tournament.

They and 64 exempt players, including defending champion Curtis Strange of Virginia Beach, Va., and Wake Forest University, will open match play Monday.

Indianapolis 500

Running for the pole

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "There's no problem getting yourself up for running for the pole position here, the problem is settling yourself down enough to go out and do it," said Tom Sneva.

"You definitely lean on it a little harder than you normally would," added Sneva, who held the Indianapolis 500 pole through almost two hours of qualifying last year. "I'm glad we only have to do this once a year."

"From a competitive standpoint, it's very exciting to run for the pole," said Johnny Rutherford, the 1974 winner. "Or rather, it's exciting to be in a car that is capable of winning the pole."

Rutherford, Sneva, A.J. Foyt and Al Unser are among the favorites, and coincidentally the four fastest in practice so far, as preparations hit high gear today for Saturday's time trials that will determine the prestigious front row starting position for the May 30, $1 million race.

Rutherford said he doesn't put much stock in practice times so far, which peg him as fastest.

"I won't believe anything until I see it Saturday," he said. "You never know what A.J. or a lot of these other guys will do until they do it."

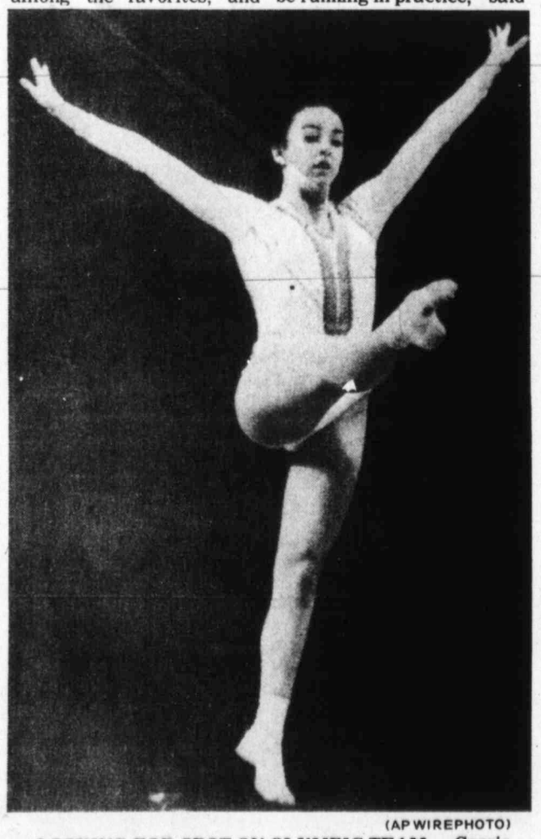

Al Unser is considered by many observers a real threat in qualifying, but he wasn't quite as optimistic.

"If we were satisfied with our speeds, we wouldn't still be running in practice," said the 1970-71 winner. "You never know where you stand."

Though their practice speeds haven't warranted too much notice, Rutherford and Unser both consider the George Bignotti-prepared cars of Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach potential fast qualifiers.

Foyt won a record-equalling fourth Indy 500 pole with an average of 193.976 m.p.h. last year. Speeds so far this season have been reduced by new power restrictions.

A late-afternoon rainstorm halted practice Thursday after 32 drivers had made it out onto the 2½-mile track.

Longhorn recruit a superman?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Johnny Jones' mother is a deputy sheriff in Oklahoma, but her son signed with the Texas Longhorns and orange-andwhite superfans swear he's faster than a speeding bullet.

Jones, a Lampasas senior who hopes to the make the U.S. Olympic squad in the 400-meters, has run the 100 in 9.05 seconds and the 220 in 20.7, and the Longhorn artificial track may give him extra acceleration.

The national high school records are 9.0 and 20.5.

Jones was one of hundreds of Texas schoolboy track stars who were here today for the 66th annual state meet.

Team championships will be determined Friday night in Class 2A and 3A and Saturday in B, A and 4A.

Jones was scheduled to run the 100 Friday at 8:05 p.m. and the 220 at 8:45 p.m., returning 30 minutes later to anchor Lampasas' 3A mile relay team.

He passed up the 440-yard dash—his best race—to give teammate Mike Perkins a chance to qualify for the state meet, which he did in 50.9 seconds, the slowest time of any of the eight finalists.

The main attractions Saturday should be Curtis Dickey's attempt to capture the 100 and 220 for Class 4A Bryan and Houston Madison's run at a national record in the 4A mile relay—the final event of the meet.

The record is 3:11.8, and Madison recently tied that time. Madison quartermiler Joe Johnson has run the 440 in 47.5 and Edwin Newsome in 47.6.

The meet's top individual scorer last year, Frank Pollard of Meridian in Class B, will display his multiple talents again. Pollard, who tallied 30 points last year, will run the 100, 220 and on the 440 relay team and throw the shot and discus.

In competition for the team titles, Abilene and Abilene Cooper are rated 1-2 in 4A, and Odessa Ector, Lubbock Dunbar and Lubbock Estacado are favored in 3A.

Columbus, Floydada, Freer and Hempstead appear to have the best chance to win 2A; Memphis, Karnack, DeLeon and Whitewright are the top contenders in A; and Meridian, Celina, Big Sandy and Jayton have the most point potential in B.

Princess back in the saddle

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Princess Anne is back horseriding, three weeks after a bad fall in which she injured her back.

She looked tense and cautious as she sat aboard her favorite horse, Goodwill, on Thursday. She finished 12th in the dressage competition at the Royal Windsor horse show.

It was the first time the 25-year-old princess, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, had ridden since the accident April 21 in a riding event at Blandford, Dorset. Her horse hit a fence, fell and rolled on top of her. She suffered a hairline crack in a bone near a vertebra and was hospitalized for three days.

NOTHING IMPROPER — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, left, testifies as Chairman Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., right, of a Senate Interior subcommittee, investigating Howard Callaway's role in a ski resort case, listens in Washington Thursday. Butz said he saw nothing improper with pressure Callaway applied on Forest Service officials.

Ford's former campaign manager faces more heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's former campaign manager, Howard H. Callaway, faces a new round of questioning before a Senate panel probing his efforts to expand his Colorado ski resort onto federal land.

Callaway was to testify today as the Senate interior subcommittee on the environment wraps up its hearings on the matter.

The former Army secretary began his testimony last month, but the hearings were recessed when he complained that three Colorado residents, whom he described as his original accusers, had not been called to testify.

On Thursday all three residents of Crested Butte, Colo. — Mayor Tom Glass, County Judge John Levin and newspaper editor Myles Arber — appeared.

Glass and Levin said they had gone to Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., last October to report allegations that Callaway was using his influence as a Ford administration official to try to persuade the Forest Service to approve expansion of his Crested Butte ski resort onto federal land.

Arber said he summarized Glass and Levin's information in a "confidential report" he delivered to Haskell in November. He said when it became clear that Haskell intended to launch a Senate probe into Callaway's conduct, he published a story on it in the March 11, 1976, issue of his weekly newspaper "The Crested Butte Chronicle."

All three denied that they had accused Callaway of wrongdoing, claiming they had just passed along their suspicions to Haskell.

Haskell, chairman of the panel, said he never regarded the three Coloradans as key witnesses. He said they only provided the preliminary information that allowed Senate investigators to begin their own independent probe.

Callaway resigned in March as President Ford's campaign manager after published reports that he had met last July 3 in his Pentagon office with top Agriculture Department and Forest Service officials, during which he argued for expansion of his ski resort.

Six months after that meeting, the Forest Service issued an environmental impact statement reversing an earlier recommendation by local forest rangers urging that the expansion be delayed.

Callaway owns a two-thirds interest in the ski resort company.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told the panel Thursday that he had forwarded to a subordinate last summer a memorandum from his then-undersecretary of agriculture, J. Philip Campbell, urging that the Forest Service be persuaded to issue an environmental impact statement favorable to the proposed expansion.

Butz insisted this was his only personal involvement. "As far as I can recall, I never even discussed this with Mr. Callaway," he said.

Butz said Callaway's efforts to influence the Forest Service were no different from requests made routinely by members of Congress.

Her knights to show up

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Two of her newly knighted "subjects" will be among these greeting Queen Margrethe II of Denmark when she visits Racine today.

Knud Hoffmeyer, 53, and Einar Damholt, 74, who came from Denmark and live in Racine, became Knights of the Order of Dannebrog Wednesday night in ceremonies in Milwaukee at the queen's decree, though the queen was not present.

The two men will be among 70 special guests attending a luncheon and reception for the 36-year-old queen and her 42-year-old husband, Prince Henrik.

The royal couple, after traveling here from Chicago, will then go to Eagle, Wis., where the queen will dedicate a restored home built by Christen Pedersen, a Danish emigrant, about 1872.

'THE INTERNATIONALS' TEAM

Church of God slates group Sunday

"The Internationals," a team of international students from Azusa Pacific College, is scheduled to appear at First Church of God, 2009 Main Street, Big Spring, on Sunday, May 16, at 9:45 a.m. and 10:45 a.m.

This inspiring group is comprised of four students of Azusa Pacific College from Taiwan, Hong Kong and India.

These students represent but a few of the many international students who have come to Azusa Pacific to earn a degree in preparation for a service and ministry among their people.

"The Internationals" present a varied program featuring each of the team members. They tell about their native countries and their experiences in the United States as students at Azusa Pacific College. Included in their program are several musical numbers which are frequently accompanied by unique and unusual instruments native to their homelands. Their presentation blends the charm of both Eastern and Western cultures to produce an inspiring evening with an international touch.

David Chang comes to Azusa Pacific from Calcutta, India. A senior, with a major in biology, David plans also to complete a master's program in business administration. This will enable him to work in hospital administration upon returning to his own country.

Rebecca Chan is from Hong Kong where her father is pastor of the Peniel Church. Miss Chan came to Azusa Pacific four years ago and is now a graduate student in music education. She plans to return to Hong Kong to serve through education and music.

Cindy Huang, a freshman majoring in music, is from Taiwan. Before coming to Azusa Pacific, she worked with Overseas Radio-TV as a vocalist. Upon returning to Taiwan, Cindy expects to minister in the field of church music.

Wesley Chen graduated from the Taiwan National Academy of Arts in 1970. He was associated with the Overseas Radio-TV Heavenly Melody musical group as a vocalist before coming to Azusa Pacific. Mr. Chen is a music major and after completing his graduate work he plans to return to Taiwan for a ministry in music.

David Good, a 1976 graduate of Azusa Pacific College, is from Glendora, California. He has been involved in various campus activities which include playing football and singing in the Male Chorale. Mr. Good is looking forward to serving in law enforcement.

The team will be accompanied by Jim McCready, member of the staff at Azusa Pacific College. He is a graduate of Westmont College and is currently enrolled in the masters program at Azusa Pacific in Student Development Services. He has been in commercial broadcast television engineering and spent two terms as a broadcast engineer with missionary broadcasting station HCJB in Quito, Ecuador. After graduation, he will be involved in student residence management.

Remedial Catholicism

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Rev. Kenneth Baker, concerned that many students entering Catholic colleges and universities have little knowledge of their religion, conducts an experimental class in "Remedial Catholicism" at Gonzaga University here.

Baker, a former president of Seattle University and current editor of the Homiletic & Pastoral Review, said initial reaction to the class was so great that it had to be shifted to larger facilities.

"The first assignment directed the students to write a letter telling me about their religious history," Baker said.

"Those letters make most interesting reading. It's too bad our bishops cannot see them. Of the 41 students, only one claims any basic knowledge of the faith, though most are graduates of Catholic schools."

Methodists slate meet at Baptist camp

GLORIETA, N. M. — In an unprecedented move the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Annual Conferences of the United Methodist Church will meet in joint session, May 25-28, at the Glorieta Baptist Conference Center.

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton, the bishop of both annual conferences, will preside over the four-day session which will carry a bicentennial emphasis on America and United Methodism.

United Methodists from more than 355 churches of both conferences will gather for the opening session Tuesday (May 25) at 9:00 a.m. in the Main Auditorium. "This is a natural time for a joint session of the two conferences," said Dr. Darris Egger, a member of the Northwest Texas Conference staff in Lubbock. "Both conferences have the same bishop and border on each other. In addition, we can celebrate the American Bicentennial and plan our bicentennial of United Methodism which will take place in 1984."

The giving and receiving of pastoral appointments is scheduled for Tuesday evening, immediately following a special historical presentation on the Northwest Texas Annual Conference by Dr. Robert Monk, professor of religion at McMurry College (Abilene, Tex.)

Each conference will furnish a "guest" preacher. Clifford Trotter, pastor of Polk Street UMC in Amarillo, will deliver the morning sermon on Wednesday, and Dr. Harry Vanderpool of Central United Methodist Church in Albuquerque, will preach Thursday morning.

Trotter is completing his first year in Amarillo and Dr. Vanderpool is finishing his sixth year in Albuquerque.

Dr. Bervin Caswell, District Superintendent of the Albuquerque District, is serving as host DS, and Rev. William McReynolds of Dumas (Tex.) First UMC will be the host pastor.

Dr. David Blackburn, Chairman Division of Fine and Applied Arts at McMurry College, will be the conference song leader.

Business sessions are scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday morning and afternoon and Thursday morning and afternoon.

Retiring ministers will be honored during Tuesday afternoon's business session.

Ordination services for deacons and elders will be held Wednesday evening, following the worship service which will feature the "History of New Mexico Conference."

The joint session will be climaxed by a special pageant entitled "A New Kind of Freedom" directed by Dr. Blackburn and Miss Donna Dorsett, also from McMurry. It will consist of music and drama groups from McMurry College. The pageant is slated for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Main Auditorium.

Membership in churches shows rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Membership in religious bodies in the United States has risen after losing ground in recent years, according to the National Council of Churches.

The council released a Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches that reported 132,287,450 persons are members of religious groups, a gain of 1,042,311, or less than 1 per cent, over 1974.

The yearbook also showed that the percentage of the U. S. population holding formal membership in churches in 1975, 62.3 per cent, was up from the 1974 total of 61.9 per cent.

Constant Jacquet Jr., editor of the yearbook, said 223 religious bodies in the United States were surveyed. He said a factor in church growth seemed to be "aggressive missionary activity, efforts by religious groups to reach people in many situations."

Teen talent show set at Hurst church Saturday

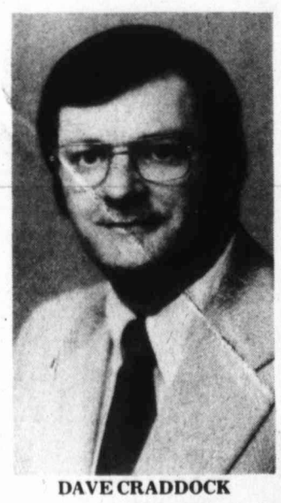

A memorable day for some of the youth of the Church of God, College Park, in Big Spring, was the recent day for the West Texas Regional Teen Talent Competition.

This was part of a worldwide competition among teens in the Church of God. The local church won in two divisions; vocal ensemble and vocal solo.

Members of the vocal ensemble are Lana Barber, Debbie Bowen, Peggy Coates, Diana Jones, Penny Nichols, Gina Robertson, Daniel Barber, Phil Barber, Ronnie Barber, Tim Decker, and Johnny Rodgers.

They are accompanied by Mrs. Ann Crawford. Rendering the vocal solo was Gina Robertson, accompanied by Mrs. June Robertson. Rev. and Mrs. J. Daryl Crawford are in charge of the training and arranging of the vocal ensemble.

Preparations are now being made for a trip to Hurst, May 15 to compete with winners of other regions for first place in the State Teen Talent Competition. Winners at state will then compete in national competition in August at the General Assembly in Dallas.

You may skip payment

Is your used car a lemon?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the new car you just bought is a lemon, federal regulations that take effect today mean you may not have to pay off the bank or loan company that financed it.

The regulations end the 200-year rule of a marketplace philosophy known as "holder-indue-course," which forced consumers to pay for products bought on credit even if the products were not delivered or broke down.

The new rules, promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission six months ago, make creditors just as liable for customer satisfaction as the original seller.

Under "holder-in-due-course," a consumer who sought to withhold payment for unsatisfactory goods or services was not able to do so if he or she owed the money to a creditor rather than the original seller.

"Many creditors are participants in the ... practice (and) it is unfair and deceptive," the FTC said in issuing the new rules last November. The new FTC regulations seek to remedy that situation.

If the new car you bought today breaks down tomorrow, you can now stop payment to the bank or credit agency which extended the loan for the car.

The rules allow the consumer to stop payment and demand a refund of previous installments in cases where he can reasonably demonstrate that the purchase was never delivered, was damaged or was fraudulently represented in the sale. Courts remain the final arbiter.

FTC spokesmen have said the new rules do not mean that a buyer cannot be sued for the unpaid balance of a bill, but that it gives a consumer a strong defense if the evidence shows the product was defective.

Installment sales purchases, beginning today, must include a conspicuous notice relating the consumer's right to assert legitimate complaints against any credit company which purchases a contract from the original seller.

The FTC has said it does not believe the new rules will cause interest rates to rise or reduce the availability of credit. "What is more likely," said FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection chief Joan Benstein, "is that this rule will make it more difficult for predators who rely on misrepresentation and highpressure tactics to sell inadequate products."

MAKING A POINT — Alabama Gov. George Wallace stresses a campaign point as he held a news conference in Louisville Thursday. Wallace, a Democratic presidential contender, is seeking delegate support in Kentucky's first presidential primary on May 25.

Tribute paid to Cronkite

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Gov. Hugh L. Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame were among more than 500 persons who paid tribute to CBS-TV's Walter Cronkite as the March of Dimes "1976 Man of The Year."

They and other speakers at the $125-a-plate Hotel Pierre dinner Thursday night praised Cronkite. Kissinger said Cronkite was "a newsman and not an entertainer," who "pays the ultimate compliment" to his audience by saying:

"Here are the facts; you must use your own judgment and draw your own conclusions."

'M-A-S-H' top rated

NEW YORK (AP) — A repeat episode of CBS' "M-A-S-H," the Korean war comedy where almost anything goes, was last week's top-rated show. But ABC's "Almost Anything Goes" suffered an opposite fate.

That program, featuring outlandish sports contests, was the nation's least-watched evening show, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings made public Thursday. The ratings were delayed two days by what a Nielsen spokesman called "processing problems."

In addition to "M-A-S-H," the programs the Nielsen audience estimates showed as the nation's most popular last week were "Starsky and Hutch," "Baretta," "Laverne and Shirley," "Happy Days" and "Bionic Woman" (all ABC); "All in the Family" and "One Day at a Time" (both CBS); "ABC Monday Movie;" "Switch" (CBS); "ABC Sunday Movie" and "Welcome Back, Kotter" (ABC); "Phyllis" and "Kojak" (CBS); "ABC Friday Movie."

Goldwater demanding Ford pros stop using his tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, apparently under increasing pressure from fellow conservatives, is demanding that the Ford campaign committee stop using tapes of his denunciation of Ronald Reagan's stand on the Panama Canal.

"He's getting a lot of heat," one Republican source said after it was learned Thursday that Goldwater had written to Rogers C.B. Morton, Ford's campaign manager, and demanded a halt to use of the tapes in Ford radio commercials. While criticizing Reagan on the canal issue, Goldwater has refused to endorse Ford.

A spokesman for the Ford committee said further use of the commercials featuring Goldwater was halted after receipt of his letter.

The tapes were of a Goldwater news confeence on May 4 in which he said Reagan's position on the Panama Canal reflected "a dangerous state of mind."

In confirming that the Arizona Republican had written the letter to the Ford campaign, a spokesman in his office said Goldwater was upset because he "doesn't want anything to look like an endorsement of one candidate or another."

The tapes first were used for radio commercials in Nebraska. They were broadcast extensively in the days before the May 11 primary, but Ford still lost to Reagan.

The Goldwater commercials also were run in West Virginia, which voted the same day as Nebraska and where Ford was the winner.

In addition, they have been broadcast in Oregon, Nevada and Michigan, which have primaries in upcoming weeks.

The Ford committee spokesman said the Goldwater letter objected to further use of either tapes or the text of the news conference but made no specific objection to Ford's referring to Goldwater's remarks in his campaign speeches.

The spokesman said no decision has been made whether the President would continue to refer to Goldwater's criticism of Reagan.

At his May 4 news conference, Goldwater said he would "have to support Ford's position" of attempting to renegotiate a canal treaty with Panama.

Goldwater said Reagan's statements "could needlessly lead this country into open military conflict."

Reagan has said he would go to the same lengths to protect U.S. interests in Panama as he would "to keep someone from taking Alaska away from us."

Asked whether he would go to war to keep the canal, Reagan said, "I don't think there has ever been a President who wouldn't have had to say yes."

'I knew I was dead,' man says

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — When the 22-year-old man pointed his pistol at Lindwood McCray's head, "I knew I was dead," McCray said. Four other persons already had been shot to death.

But instead, David McRae Jr. reloaded the pistol and killed himself.

When the shooting started, McCray said Thursday, "someone, I don't know who it was, threw me to the floor. I think he saved my life." McCray was shot in the foot, one of three persons wounded in the gunfire.

McRae had called the Club 304, a bar in a seedy area of Norfolk, Wednesday night and warned he was coming to clean out the pimps, prostitutes, homosexuals and dope pushers, a club employe told police.

Police said there was no evidence McRae knew any of the people he shot but that the four he killed had criminal records.

McRae's mother, Mrs. David McRae, said her son "wanted to be a policeman" and was a police cadet here before joining the Army in 1972.

McRae was treated for three months last year at Walter Reed Army Hospital after he tried to commit suicide, the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot said. It said McRae took an overdose of barbiturates while stationed in Germany with a Military Police unit.

He was honorably discharged in December and returned to his old job making deliveries for a wholesale drug firm.

Last week McRae seemed depressed and went to see a psychiatrist at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Portsmouth, his mother said.

She said her son was told at the hospital he was all right.

American Heart Association members active in region, state

The Howard County chapter of the American Heart Association met last Thursday for the annual meeting at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mrs. Dene Sheppard presided.

Special guests included Ms. Stephanie S. Fletcher, regional director from Midland; and Ms. Joyce Burkholder, council executive director from Lubbock.

Members voted to approve the proposed slate of officers. Gene Vallot was chairman of the nominating committee.

Officers approved were Mrs. Sheppard, president; Sgt. Kirby Owens, vice president; Mrs. Bobbie Thomas, secretary; and Mrs. Delores Vallot, treasurer.

Six members of the local association plan to attend the Region 13 meeting in Odessa on May 18. The meeting will be held from 5:30-9 p.m. Those planning to attend are Lenny Prudhomme, Ms. Nadine Lambright, Mrs. Sheppard, Owens, Mrs. Vallot and Ted Welander.

Mrs. Sheppard and Owens will attend the Texas AHA Affiliate state meeting in Houston June 19-20.

Mrs. Sheppard suggested that monthly meetings of the chapter be held alternately at noon and in the evening in order to provide opportunity for all board members to attend.

As a trial for this plan, the June 4 meeting will be held at 11:30 p.m. at the Western Sizzler Restaurant. Meetings will be held on the first Thursday of each month.

Mrs. Sheppard expressed that during the coming year, the Howard County chapter should attempt to publicize programs and activities available as well as involve a cross-section of the community, especially the miniority groups who have a great need for this type of information.

Blood pressure clinics and heart screening for children in the lower grades will be stressed as well as CPR training programs and clinics as much interest has been indicated by industry as well as civic clubs and other groups for these informational programs.

Mrs. Sheppard announced that the film "Pulse of Life" will be shown to the chapter at the next monthly meeting. She also stated that a training course for CPR instructors (10 hours) will be scheduled in the near future at the VA Hospital.

A campaign chairman for the chapter is being sought.

The meeting closed with each board member telling his expectations and interests for the coming year.

Parents Without Partners dinner slated tonight

Single parents are invited to join with the local chapter of Parents Without Partners for a dinner at 7 p.m. this evening.

PWP members planned the dinner during the Wednesday evening meeting held at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room. Members heard a tape on "Reality Therapy" by Dr. Glasson.

Mrs. Laura Boubek planned the program and hosted the event.

President LaRue DeViney reviewed the purposes of PWP. He also called a board of directors meeting to fill vacancies in staff.

Big Spring and Odessa chapters will be guests of the Midland chapter at a dance at the Midland Holiday Inn Saturday evening.

Other events scheduled for May include two game nights, two potluck suppers and a patio dance. All single parents are invited to visit any PWP activity.

Mrs. Cowper poses as Ben Franklin

Mrs. R. G. B. Cowper added a special touch to her review of the life of Benjamin Franklin by dressing in a costume as the colonial statesman.

She presented the review during the Saturday meeting of the 1930 Hyperion Club in the home of Mrs. Toots Mansfield.

Other hostesses were Mrs. Morris Patterson, Mrs. Malcolm Patterson and Mrs. Charles Weeg.

A salad luncheon was served to members and guests. Tables were decorated with silk flower arrangements in clay pots.

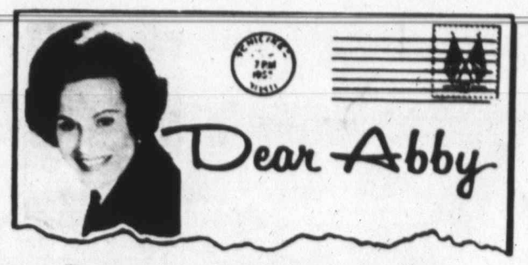

Mrs. R. V. Middleton was installed as new president. She announced committee membership for the next year.

Mrs. Adolph Swartz was appointed as representative to the Big Spring Alliance of Clubs.

Saturday meet set for auxiliary

Ladies of Veterans of World War I, Barracks 1474 auxiliary will hold a called meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Kentwood Senior Citizens Center, 2805 Lynn.

All elected and appointed officers are expected to attend. New officers will be installed and delegates will be elected to the state convention to be held in Fort Worth July 13-16.

Paper person calls for end to sexism

DEAR ABBY: I am a paperGIRL, and I deliver to approximately 80 households.

My problem is that I am constantly being called a paperBOY, and I hate it. There are a lot of girls who deliver newspapers, and it's time people realized it.

Our newspaper company had an awards banquet, and the invitation read: "Please wear a shirt and tie." Well, I turned down the invitation. When my adviser asked me why I didn't attend, I said, "Because I don't have a shirt and tie!"

He said I was silly because if I had been there, I might have been voted paperBOY of the year.

Abby, can you do something about my problem? All of us paperGIRLS will be very grateful.

PALM SPRINGS PAPERGIRL

DEAR PAPERGIRL: If the newspaper is delivered on time the boy or girl doing the job will be called "blessed." (P.S. I'm sending you a shirt and tie for the next awards banquet.)

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his girlfriend, who are both in their early 30s and divorced, live in California about 50 miles apart. They openly admit that they sleep together on weekends to find out if they are compatible for marriage.

They flew here last December to spend the holidays with Dad and me. When we showed them his bedroom for HER and the hideaway bed in the den for HIM, they decided to stay at a motel.

Dad and I were hurt because we see our son only once a year, but we didn't say anything, and off they went.

When our son returned to California, he phoned to tell us that his expenses for the trip, including the motel room, were $748, so we sent him a check but said this was the last time we would pay for a motel room since there was plenty of room at our house.

Do you think we were wrong in refusing to let them sleep together in our home? Even though we knew they had slept together elsewhere, it would have made us very uncomfortable.

SQUARE IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SQUARE: No. When children (of any age) visit their parents, they should live by the rules of the parents' home. You were far more generous than most parents would have been. Since your son preferred to stay at a motel, HE should have paid for it!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column about the daughter who is the only one in the family who visits her sometimes senile mother in a convalescent home. (Her sisters and brothers can't stand the smell, and they get too depressed seeing old people.)

I'll tell you a better one than that: My mother is 80, and lives in her own little house, which has no hospital odor. And she's not a bit senile. One of my brothers lives right next door to her, and he stops in to see her maybe once a month for a few minutes.

The other brother lives only 15 minutes away from her, and it's the same thing with him. Neither brother has ever offered to mow the lawn, rake the leaves, or do any painting or repairing for her. Do you know who looks after my mother? My husband—her 60-year-old son-in-law! (My brothers are not yet 50.)

By the way, my brothers run to the altar rail every week. Not that there's anything wrong with that, but it takes more than prayers to make people good Christians. Right, Abby?

DISGUSTED WITH KINFOLK

DEAR DISGUSTED: Right!

Bridal shower honors Miss Leigh Ann Kidd

Miss Leigh Ann Kidd, bride-elect of Stephen Franklin Fleming, was honored with a bridal shower at fellowship hall of Klondike Baptist Church on Thursday afternoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kidd of Lamesa and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Fleming of Ackerly.

Other honor guests were Mrs. M. C. Kidd, grandmother of Miss Kidd, and Mrs. S. A. Lawson, grandmother of Fleming.

White daisy corsages tied with blue ribbon were presented to the honoree and to the mothers.

The bride-elect's chosen colors of blue and white were also carried out at the serving table, which was laid with a floor-length cloth of white organdy with an underlay of blue. Blue satin ribbon spanned the table, suspending wedding bells at the four corners. The floral arrangement consisted of blue and white cut flowers.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. A. J. Beckmeyer, Mrs. Ronnie Cornett, Mrs. Robert Dennis, Mrs. Bud Foster, Mrs. Melvin Harris, Mrs. Earl Hightower, Mrs. Don Holcomb, Mrs. E. D. Holcomb, Mrs. J. W. Massengale, Mrs. Edward Richards, Mrs. Elbert Richards, Mrs. Donald Rawlings, Mrs. C. L. Simmons, and Mrs. Lawrence Vogler.

Music Night set Saturday

All interested persons are invited to attend Country-Western Music Night at the Kentwood Older Adult Acitivity Center at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

Appearing on the program will be Randal Morton, Tom Castle's String Band and the Joe Dunn Band from Brownfield.

Kenda Born elected to Rainbow office

Kenda Born was elected as faith officer for the Big Spring Assembly 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls during the Tuesday evening meeting held in the Masonic Temple.

Other officers approved by acclamation were Pam Parmenter, worthy advisor; Phyllis Hart, worthy associate advisor; Tracy Egan, charity; and Leilani Thomas, hope.

Beverly Beil presided at the meeting. She announced that a swim party will be held May 22 at her home at 502 Highland honoring the Rainbow girls who will graduate from high school this month.

CLASSIFIED ADS
THE PLACE TO LOOK

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today and tonight are likely to find you discontented and eager to make changes, but you would be wise to remain silent. Otherwise you could lose support by a complaining attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't fall for new-fangled ideas that are not practical. Be calm in the face of opposition, otherwise you could easily get in trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure to keep promises you have made. Your mate may be a bit difficult, so be patient. Atmospheric conditions are responsible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use tact in dealing with an associate who may not be doing what you think is best. You can get the best results through reasoning.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle all those duties ahead of you while you are in the mood. Use care with a co-worker who may be out of sorts.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Not a good day for amusements you had in mind, so postpone them to a better time. Show more devotion to mate. Be more practical-minded.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take time to make family life more ideal. Get rid of whatever may be causing tension at home. Show that you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. to Oct. 22) Much care must be exercised in motion of all kind today to avoid an accident. Listen to what a financial expert has to suggest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen carefully to what a business expert has to suggest for handling an important financial problem. Use practical methods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your reflection in the mirror and make improvements that are needed. Do not accept a social invitation where there's disharmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget those seeming limitations and go ahead with plans you have made and make them work to your advantage. Express confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you rely on your friends a lot, it is best you go after your aims alone today, be they of business or personal nature.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do nothing that could ruin your reputation by obeying rules that apply to you. New appliances could make your work easier.

Offshore drilling called 'essential'

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The United States must develop offshore oil and gas resources but also should prepare for environmental and industrial effects in areas where drilling is planned, says the chief of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Dr. Robert M. White told members of a conference on offshore oil drilling Thursday that drilling off the coast of Scotland in the North Sea has shown that it is "absolutely essential" to begin planning for the impact of drilling as early as possible.

White said, "In the Shetland Islands, for example, plans are being made to insure that the traditional industries are kept alive and healthy during the oil boom" so that they will remain stable when the oil is exhausted.

The conference, sponsored by the Georgia Coastal Zone Management Program and the Georgia Conservancy, ended today.

Attending were government officials, planners, oil industry representatives and conservationists from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

White also said bills have passed both houses of Congress to expand the Coastal Zone Management Act, a measure through which the federal government aids communities whose public facilities may be strained or whose environment may be damaged from petroleum exploration.

Among the proposed changes, White said, are federal loans for the expansion of roads and schools to accommodate population growth caused by oil exploration and grants to compensate communities for environmental damage caused by energy development.

Grace records excellent year

The largest number of Grace shareholders ever, nearly 2,000, attended the 1976 W. R. Grace & Co. annual meeting of shareholders recently at New England Life Hall in Boston with J. Peter Grace, president, presiding. Following the meeting, shareholders traveled to Lexington, Mass. for an "old-fashioned picnic" on the grounds of a company research facility, toured the laboratory and visited three sites in the historic Lexington-Concord area.

At the meeting Felix E. Larkin, chairman, in his report to shareholders, said: "For the fourth consecutive year, I am happy to repeat: The past year was an excellent year for Grace. In fact, it was the best year in the company's 121-year history."

As previously reported, Grace's 1975 sales and operating revenues were $3.53 billion, an increase of one per cent over 1974. Net income was $166.7 million, an increase of 40 per cent over the restated income for the previous year, while on a per share basis earnings increased 39 per cent to $5.31. 1976 first quarter earnings, announced last month, were down 17.5 per cent $28,384,000 or 80 cents a share versus $1.10 per share for the first quarter of 1975, wholly due to lower results from Grace's agricultural chemical operations.

Other major lines of business recorded significant advances but these were not sufficient to fully offset the decline in agricultural chemicals.

Larkin noted that "the cornerstone of Grace's chemical position" — specialty chemicals — accounted for 40.3 per cent of 1975 earnings on sales of $1.3 billion.

"Dollar sales of Grace industrial chemicals," Mr. Larkin said, "remained strong around the world last year. For example, we had record sales of catalysts, which are used in many industrial processes, including industrial cracking catalysts for petroleum refining." Other Grace specialty chemical businesses cited for their contributions were container sealing systems and flexible packaging.

Grace operates an agricultural chemicals plant on Interstate 10 East in Big Spring.

Oil patch

Dorchester Exploration, Inc. operating from Midland, has completed No. 6-A Spade as a third well and ¾-mile northeast extension to the Beal's Creek (Wichita-Albany) Field.

It gauged a 24-hour pumping potential of 41 barrels of 29-gravity oil and 37 barrels of water, through perforations at 3,674-94 feet, after treating the pay with 6,000 gallons of acid.

Location is 467 feet from north and west lines of Section 12, Block 8, SPRR Survey, 25 miles southwest of Colorado City.

Texas drills whirling

The number of oil wells making holes in Texas has been relatively stable for the month. The Texas total, as of May 10, was 599, as compared to 588 for a week earlier. The total for a month ago, April 12, was 600, and 615 for May 12, 1975.

The national total of producing rigs rose by 30, from 1,480 for May 3, to 1,510 for May 10. The total for April 12 was 1,485, and 1,608 for May 12, 1975.

Swine flu shots slated

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor College of Medicine Influenza Research Center officials say they will give swine flu vaccine to older persons next week.

Dr. Thomas R. Cate said Thursday about 500 persons 55 and older will get the shots.

It will be the second phase of the national tests to determine dosages for mass production.

Two weeks ago, a group from Baylor's influenza center administered the vaccine to 260 inmates at the Ramsey Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Her four separate lives

with Marj Carpenter

MARJ CARPENTER

Ola Karsteter came to Big Spring back in 1945. She was 59 years old at the time. And she had just completed two degrees at the University of Texas. Her husband had died five years before and she had decided to start over.

She taught in the Big Spring schools until 1957 when she was 72 years of age. The first day she arrived in town, she turned to Mrs. Arah Phillips and asked if she would help her find a place to live.

She ended up living in the Phillips home and practically becoming a member of the family. She and Arah and Mrs. Anna Smith, as well as Mrs. Twila Lomax became staunch friends.

Every Christmas during the holidays, they get together in Odessa where Mrs. Karsteter stays with a daughter.

Mrs. Karsteter was guest of honor recently at a 90th birthday party in Bowie, hosted by her two children, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Karsteter, Bowie and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Countryman, Odessa.

She has four grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren and had friends coming from all over Texas at the event.

In the middle of the gathering, she rose and gave the following toast, "If you and your folks, like we and our folks, love you and your folks, then there never were such folks since folks were folks."

Her father was an early businessman in the 1880s, running mercantile stores in Newport, Vashti, and Post Oak.

She made the dress she had on at the party and also covered her shoes to match.

At one time, after she finished teaching here at the age of 72, she worked a couple of years in the Archives Department of Texas University.

Mrs. Karsteter appears ageless. She is bound to have been a good educator while in Big Spring.

Certainly her choice of close friends here would make that true . . . Arah Phillips, Anna Smith, Twila Lomax . . .can you think of a better friend while living in Big Spring?

When they cut the cake and served the punch last week in Bowie, there were people there from Wichita Falls, Henrietta, Bellevue, Gainesville, Sherman, Fort Worth, Dallas, and Big Spring.

Sit down and think a minute about "If I reach the age of 90, who would come?"

Mrs. Karsteter has four separate lives to recall. She has her days of growing up in early General Mercantile Stores. She started a new life when she married and raised a family.

She began a third life when she went back to school and became an educator. Then she began her fourth life in retirement, where she sews a fine seam and enjoys her visiting friends.

Almost a century and still sparkling. That's the way it was out ridin' fence this week — via her close Big Spring friends who remember her with love.

AMPI blasts support prices

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI) says inflated costs of producing milk have not been adequately recognized under the price support program.

Irvin J. Elkin said it is time for Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to recognize his legal mandate to consider long-range prospects for adequate supplies of milk.

Elkin, a dairy farmer from Amery, Wis., addressed a meeting Wednesday of the AMPI board which represents the organization's 32,000 members.

"We think it is time for a national policy to encourage the maintenance of our amazingly productive family farm enterprises," he said. "The manufacturing milk price should be supported at 90 per cent of parity, an increase of more than $1 over the present $8.17 per hundred pounds."

Firefighters quota rapped

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Dallas Professional Firefighters Association says he will oppose any attempt to lower fire department standards so that more women can be hired.

"I would like to see some of those people in Washington come down here and do our jobs for awhile," fire department Lt. Don Greene said. "I seriously question whether they would ask us to lower our physical standards after they found ot what we have to do."

City Atty. Alex Bickley announced a court settlement this week with the U.S. Justice Department that included a 15 per cent quota of women on the department's work force.

"During my time with the fire department, I can only recall three women ever even applying for a job here," Greene said.
