Baker slams Saddam

■ As three Britons escape from Iraq, U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III comments on the ongoing crisis in the Persian Gulf.

By Laura King
Associated Press Writer

Three British men made a dramatic desert escape from Iraq, diplomats reported Wednesday, and Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Saddam Hussein "must fail if peace is to succeed" in the Persian Gulf.

The escape by the three Britons was the first reported by Westerners since three Britons and two Frenchmen made their way out of Iraq by sea earlier this month.

Thousands of Westerners are being held by the Iraqi president in Iraq and Kuwait, with some of them serving as "human shields" against potential attacks on key installations by the multinational force assembled in the gulf region.

Western diplomatic sources in Saudi Arabia, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the three Britons arrived near the Saudi town of Arar late Monday. In order to avoid endangering others who might try to get out the same way, they did not say how the men evaded Iraqi patrols or provide details about their route.

In Baghdad, Iraqi officials conceded Wednesday that global sanctions, imposed to punish Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait, were beginning to have an effect.

"There is not enough milk for the newborn babies and the blockade has affected nourishment of expectant mothers," Hamad Saleh al-Rawi, president of the Iraqi Bar Association, said in a statement released in Baghdad Wednesday.

The government has listed milk along with rice, wheat, sugar, cooking oil, tea, soap, detergent and beans as items in short supply and subject to rationing.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, meanwhile, held a closed-door meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, and their discussion reportedly touched on the 12-week-old gulf conflict.

The talks came as Moscow was calling for redoubled efforts to find a diplomatic solution to the crisis.

A Soviet envoy was to travel to Washington on Thursday for a meeting with President Bush, after talks in France and Italy on the crisis. Soviet officials have said the envoy, Yevgeny Primakov, was stressing Gorbachev's hopes for a peaceful settlement.

In another development, Britain made an angry new protest to Iraq over treatment of its diplomats. Its Foreign Office said Wednesday that Iraq had withdrawn diplomatic accreditation from eight British diplomats evacuated from Britain's embassy in Kuwait to Baghdad.

After the takeover of Kuwait, Iraq ordered all foreign missions in the emirate to close. Most diplomats have been forced to leave because Iraqi occupation forces cut off food, water and electricity to their embassies.

The only Western embassies still open are the British, American, Canadian and French missions.

The Foreign Office summoned Iraq's ambassador to protest what it called a "flagrant disregard for international law" in withdrawing the envoys' accreditation, it said.

Bush letter opens Basin Oil Show

■ Education is a major function of the Permian Basin Oil Show, which was opened Wednesday with a letter from President George Bush.

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

The opening of the Permian Basin Oil Show took a patriotic turn today as show officials read a letter of greetings and a salute from President George Bush, congratulating the oil show on its 50th anniversary and its role in the oil business.

"The oil show is playing a major educational role in promoting the energy industry on which the country relies for economic growth and national security," said the president in his letter.

Senate blocking effort to raise tax on wealthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate blocked a rank-and-file Democratic effort Wednesday to re-aim the pain of a bipartisan deficit-cutting bill more heavily at the wealthy and less sharply at the middle class.

In the first test of the budget written by leaders of both parties, lawmakers turned down the hit-the-rich proposal by 67-32.

The vote left intact a compromise $250 billion deficit-reduction plan that would double gasoline taxes, cut Medicare benefits and mildly boost income taxes on the rich. The measure includes a broader-based tax increase than the soak-the-rich House version that President Bush has said he will veto.

The action also left Senate leaders staring at what they said was an even more threatening killer amendment. That proposal, offered by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, would strip the entire gasoline tax boost from the measure, costing it nearly $43 billion.

"If we can't win this one, we may as well wrap it up," warned Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. "If this amendment passes, count me out."

The defeated effort to tax the rich, proposed by Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., sought to capitalize on what legislators say is growing public disenchantment with the tax code. It would have imposed higher income-tax boosts on the wealthiest Americans, cut the gasoline tax increase in half, and ease cuts in Medicare and agriculture.

But leaders of both parties stuck by their middle-of-the-road package. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, warned that the amendment would never be enacted into law.

Major civil rights bill facing veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved on Wednesday a major civil rights bill designed to combat job discrimination and sent it to President Bush who promised a veto on grounds that it would lead to hiring quotas.

The 273-154 margin of approval in the House was just short of what sponsors would need to override the veto and pass the bill despite the objections of the president.

The Senate a day earlier approved the bill but also fell short of the support needed for a veto override. Somber civil rights forces planned a final campaign to persuade Bush to relent and sign the bill.

"Give us these measly crumbs from the table," Rep. Craig Washington, D-Texas, said as the House debated the measure, which had been nine months in the making and softened repeatedly in efforts to woo Bush's support.

The bill represents the civil rights movement's top priority on Capitol Hill this year and would overturn six decisions on job discrimination that created a furor when the Supreme Court handed them down last year.

Provisions range from a ban on racial harassment in the workplace to punitive damages in extreme discrimination cases.

The greatest controversy, however, came over complex changes in rules on how job discrimination cases are decided. They would make it easier for minor-

Benson better

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Ezra Taft Benson was discharged from the hospital Wednesday, nearly a month after he was admitted for treatment of blood clots on the brain, a church spokesman said.

Benson, 91, underwent two operations at LDS hospital for the blood clots and later was treated for unrelated gastrointestinal bleeding.

Benson was hospitalized Sept. 18 after complaining of severe headaches and difficulty swallowing.

He has been president of the 7.5 million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints since 1985.

IRAQ: Baker says Saddam 'must fail'

(From 1A)

"The decision not to accord them diplomatic status means they are seen as ordinary British male citizens, who are not allowed to leave," said a spokesman.

U.N. officials said Wednesday that Iraq had refused permission for a Kuwaiti flight to the conquered emirate to bring medicine for Kuwaitis and stranded foreigners.

Kuwait's government-in-exile had asked Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to seek permission for the flight to land. U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the request was rebuffed Tuesday via Iraq's mission to the U.N.

The United Nations has taken an unprecedented series of steps against Iraq since the Aug. 2 invasion, including the approval of a global economic embargo.

Baker, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, denounced Iraqi aggression for a second day running.

"We cannot allow this violent way to become the wave of the future in the Middle East," he told the panel. "Saddam Hussein, Mr. Chairman, must fail if peace is to succeed. The prospects for a just and lasting peace ... will be shattered if he prevails."

A day earlier, Baker rejected any concession to Baghdad, saying the United States will settle for nothing less than a complete Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Baker told the committee that President Bush would consult with Congress about military moves in the gulf, but resisted calls for what he called a more "formal mechanism."

■ The State Department has set up a hotline for people seeking information about the safety of relatives and friends in Kuwait and Iraq. The number for the 24-hour telephone bank is (202) 647-0900.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said military action against Iraq was more likely now and that Congress, which has a recess upcoming, should come back into session to authorize a declaration of war if one were needed.

In Moscow, Cheney told Soviet lawmakers that U.S. and Soviet military strategy now calls for a reduction in the forces once arrayed against one another, and a focus on "regional contingencies" such as the gulf conflict.

U.S. and Soviet sources said the content of Cheney's closed-door talks with Gorbachev was similar.

Also Wednesday, the Tehran Times reported that Iran has appointed an ambassador to Iraq. The move came three days after the two countries announced the reopening of embassies closed during their eight-year war.

Saddam moved to make peace with Iran after the invasion of Kuwait. Although the fighting had stopped two years earlier, Iraq had thousands of troops tied up along its border with Iran and in Iranian territory before its peace initiative.

High in mid-70s anticipated

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies, a high in the mid-70s with northeast to east winds at 5 to 15 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be clear with a low in the mid-40s.

Friday is expected to be sunny with a high in the lower 80s.

Wednesday's high was 87 compared with the record high for that date of 95, set in 1964. The overnight low was 63. The record low for that date was 37 in 1989.

STATE

Partly cloudy skies and a mild Thursday are predicted for most of the state following thunderstorm activity Wednesday night in North Texas.

Temperatures on Wednesday ranged from the 60s in parts of West Texas to the 90s in South Texas and West Texas. For most of the state, it was a mild day with highs in the 70s.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect Wednesday night for North Central and Northeast Texas.

A cold front pushed into northwestern sections of North Texas while an upper level disturbance moved northeast over the area Wednesday.

Low pressure areas ahead of the front triggered thunderstorms in the northeast counties of North Texas. Temperatures were generally in the upper 70s to middle 80s across North Texas.

A cold front moved southward Wednesday through the Permian Basin with cooler air filtering into West Texas on the heels of the front. Afternoon temperatures were reported in the 60s, 70s and 80s, ranging from 62 in Dalhart to 71 in Childress and 87 in Sanderson.

Wednesday's high was 94 degrees at McAllen and Beeville.

NATION

A low-pressure system moving across the upper Mississippi Valley brought snow to Minnesota and the Dakotas on Wednesday, and showers and thunderstorms to northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Snow fell over northern and western Minnesota and the Dakotas, with snowfall totals of 4 to 8 inches expected, and up to 12 inches of snow possible near Lake Superior.

Strong wind circulated around the storm system crossing the upper Mississippi Valley, reducing visibility in blowing snow.

Barnes County authorities advised no travel in the Valley City area when gusty north wind and snow kept visibility near zero.

"We've had about four semi accidents and three or four car accidents, and numerous cars in the ditch with no damage so we really didn't count those," said Dan Anderson, Barnes County Sheriff's dispatcher.

In South Dakota, some meetings were canceled in the Mobridge area, and two schools closed early. Classes offered by Standing Rock College of Fort Yates, N.D., were called off in Mobridge.

Thunderstorms over northern Wisconsin produced dime-size hail south of Berlin during the morning. And before the snow moved in, thunderstorms over northeastern Minnesota that produced hail an inch in diameter at Cloquet.

BUDGET: Democratic bid blocked

(From 1A)

"Adoption of this amendment would make a very strong statement," conceded Mitchell. "It will result in no law."

As debate began, Democratic Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., said, "We tell the American people that there will be some sacrifice in this package. But we tell them at the same time that it will be fair."

And the White House said the Senate version could form the basis for ending the government's long budget stalemate.

"The White House is ready to receive the bipartisan package similar to the Senate package," said Bush's chief of staff, John Sununu. "Get it to the president's desk and he'll sign it."

The administration also said Bush might not shut down the government Saturday if lawmakers show good faith progress toward a deficit-reduction package. Sununu said Bush might sign legislation keeping the government operating if it included budget-cutting provisions that "show Congress meant business about it."

Until now, the president has tried to keep the pressure on by threatening to shut the government down unless Congress sends him a full budget he can accept. Without emergency legislation, federal authority to spend money expires at 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

Acting one day after the Democrats pushed a bill much tougher on the rich through the House, Senate leaders chose to face Election Day just three weeks off with a proposal bearing all the marks of a political compromise.

There would be limits on deductions for people with incomes exceeding $100,000, but no boost in tax rates for the rich as the House approved. The 9-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax would be doubled, but the earned-income tax credit for the poor would increase, too.

The package would shave about $250 billion from the federal deficit over the next five years by raising $142 billion in new taxes and paring Medicare, farm support and other benefit programs. Savings in other bills — mainly defense cuts — would bring total deficit-reduction to about $500 billion, including $40 billion in the budget year that started Oct. 1.

Bush had threatened to veto the House bill because of its increase in the upper bracket income tax rate. Though administration officials objected to some provisions in the Senate version, Sununu said in an interview on NBC-TV the president liked the compromise.

Despite the plan's powerful supporters, the Senate's Democratic and Republican leaders spent the day defending their plan from lawmakers unhappy for regional or philosophical reasons.

Western senators complained that the higher gasoline tax would be a severe blow to states such as theirs, where people routinely drive long distances. Others insisted that the bill's overall tax package was unnecessary, that spending should have been cut more deeply instead.

"Grab your wallets and run for cover because Congress is getting up a head of steam to raise your taxes," said Symms.

Party leaders replied that with the economy teetering, everyone had to pull together.

"I believe the deficit of the United States is so serious that it isn't a Democratic issue or a Republican issue or the president's issue," said Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, the budget panel's ranking Republican. "The people want us to do something."

The starkest contrast between the Senate and House bills was in how their pain would be distributed.

The Senate measure would increase taxes on people earning more than $200,000 by 3.7 percent, exactly half the burden the House would impose. Those with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000 would see their tax bills jump by nearly 3 percent under the Senate plan but only about 1 percent with the House version.

The Senate omitted the income tax increase from 28 percent to 33 percent that the House would impose on the wealthiest people. It also excluded the moderate break in capital gains taxes that the House would grant to middle-income people.

Like the House-passed bill, the Senate version would increase taxes on alcohol, tobacco, fancy cars, private airplanes and boats, furs and jewelry.

The Senate bill would gradually hoist the monthly premium Medicare recipients pay for doctors' coverage from $28.60 this year to $47 by 1995 — 80 cents higher than the House. The Senate would increase the annual deductible beneficiaries pay, now $75, to $150 next year, compared with the House's $100.

The Senate would also raise the wage cap from which the 1.45 percent Medicare tax is deducted from all paychecks from $51,300 to $89,000. The House would push the cap to $100,000.

Both bills would also reduce Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals, the Senate's cuts totaling $34 billion. And both would reduce support payments for farmers, student loans, and veterans' benefits. They would increase the 8 percent airline ticket tax by 25 percent.

Lawmakers would also raise fees for federal services ranging from emissions testing of cars to bank insurance.

OIL: Show centers on education

(From 1A)

President Bush, who once worked in an oilfield supply store in Odessa and lived in a duplex in southeast Odessa, saluted the oil show as being the largest inland display of drilling and production and equipment in the U.S.

Gary D. Nicholson, president and chief executive officer of LTV Energy Products, warned that the nation was facing a shortage of drilling and production equipment as it tried to become active again.

"Our industry is now about 25 percent of what it was in 1981," Nicholson said. "The infrastructure of the equipment suppliers has been hard hit, and will have to be rebuilt if we are to meet new equipment demand. We have lost a lot of engineers, machinists and skilled labor."

He warned that much of the equipment in the field was now ready to be replaced, because it was old, but that contractors had not had sufficient profit margins to replace equipment. He said that when demand by the contractors went down, it put the suppliers on hold.

Nicholson noted that what the nation needed to get the oil industry moving again was not volatile oil prices, even if they did hit $40 a barrel, but a stable $25 per barrel price.

The Heritage Foundation of Odessa also presented a plaque to the oil show on the occasion of its 50th anniversary, which was unveiled by A.R. "Happy" Dyer, the last surviving member of the executive board of the first oil show, which was founded in 1940.

More than 200,000 people are expected to attend the oil show during its four-day run.

The show is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today for oil-industry personnel; 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, when the show will be opened to the general public.

BILL: Bush pledges veto of measure

ities filing suit to win and harder for employers to defend themselves.

President Bush said in a letter delivered to Capitol Hill on Tuesday that the changes would "have the effect of forcing businesses to adopt quotas in hiring and promotion." He said that if the bill reached his desk, he would "be compelled to veto it."

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday morning that Bush planned to veto the measure and send it back to lawmakers with an alternative version attached. Civil rights leaders, however, have been saying the chances of passing an alternative this year are virtually nil.

In recent months, they had been holding out hope that Bush would relent and sign the bill. After weighing Tuesday's missive from the president, however, civil rights leaders sharpened their rhetoric.

"His announced intention to veto the Civil Rights Act of 1990 shows that on issues of race and sex discrimination, George Bush is a Ronald Reagan in sheep's clothing," said Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

"While his style and rhetoric may differ, his substantive civil rights policies are just as deadly to those who are victims of job discrimination," Neas said. Indeed, with respect to key parts of the Civil Rights Act of 1990, President Bush's positions are even more extreme than Ronald Reagan's."

"Regrettably, President Bush has capitulated to the right wing," he said.

There is nothing in the bill that would require employers to hire by quota. In fact, the measure contains a disclaimer specifically saying that it would not "encourage" the use of quotas.

Business groups and Bush administration officials say, however, that the bill would make employers so vulnerable to discrimination suits that they would turn to quotas to provide themselves with a ready-made defense in case they were taken to court.

Civil rights forces tried in vain for months to dispel this notion, saying the measure would do no more than restore the law to what it was before last year's decision in a case called Wards Cove versus Atonio, involving employment practices at a salmon cannery in Alaska.

Supporters also said strong support for a civil rights bill was needed to show congressional disapproval of an upsurge in acts of bigotry by neo-Nazi groups and others. They cited a surprising showing in recent Louisiana primary voting for former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke.

"David Duke was not a fluke," Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said.

Hoover died in '72

After serving 48 years as head of the FBI under eight presidents, J. Edgar Hoover died in 1972 in Washington at the age of 77.

Critics blast market economy plan

By Alan Cooperman
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — Critics attacked President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's toned-down economic reform plan on Wednesday, and an architect of a more radical transition program protested the retreat by offering his resignation.

The reaction came two days after Gorbachev won the Nobel Peace Prize and the day after he unveiled his comparatively slow plan for building a Western-style market economy in the Soviet Union.

Grigory Yavlinsky, co-author of the original 500-day plan, offered his resignation as deputy prime minister of Russia, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics.

In a speech to the Russian parliament, which adopted the 500-day plan on Sept. 11, Yavlinsky predicted the president's reforms would set off disastrous price increases.

Boris Yeltsin, president of Russia and Gorbachev's main political rival, on Tuesday criticized the president's plan, calling it a "catastrophe" that is "doomed to fail" within months.

Leaders in the Baltic republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia have shown little willingness to go along with the national reform plan. They have announced their desire both for political independence and rapid moves toward free enterprise.

Approval of Gorbachev's plan is not even certain in the national legislature, which is scheduled to begin debating it Friday.

"It's not detailed enough. It doesn't go far enough," said one lawmaker, who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

Gorbachev's plan is an attempt to merge the radical 500-day plan — drafted by economists headed by Yavlinsky and economist Stanislav Shatalin — with several other proposals, including a far more conservative plan presented by Prime Minister Nikolai I. Ryzhkov.

Yavlinsky, 38, formally tendered his resignation to the Russian lawmakers, but they postponed acting on it.

Gorbachev is scheduled to defend his plan in a speech to the national legislature on Friday. The 542-member Supreme Soviet could vote on it as early as Saturday, although some lawmakers said a longer debate was likely.

Unlike the 500-day plan, Gorbachev's proposal contains no time schedule.

The four-stage Gorbachev plan would begin by reducing the national budget deficit and cutting the money supply.

Efforts also would be made in the first stage to improve production of consumer goods, now in short supply, and to boost agricultural output through land reform.

Each republic would be allowed to decide whether to break collective farms into private plots. In the second stage, at an unspecified date, prices on roughly 70 percent of all goods and services would be freed to respond to market forces. The central government would continue to set prices on fuel, key raw materials and necessities such as bread, milk and sugar.

The third stage would emphasize establishing a free market for housing, a modern banking system and entrepreneurship.

The final stage would end government monopolies in many industries and allow the ruble to be freely traded against other world currencies.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed an application with the Texas Public Utility Commission to introduce two experimental services called Call Forwarding - Busy Line and Call Forwarding - Don't Answer.

Call Forwarding - Busy Line and Call Forwarding - Don't Answer are optional call management services that will automatically forward a customer's incoming calls to a pre-designated number whenever that incoming call encounters a busy or don't answer condition. These services are for both business and residence customers. The company proposes that the services be available beginning November 19, 1990.

The monthly rates for Call Forwarding - Busy Line and Call Forwarding - Don't Answer are $1.00 for residence customers and $3.00 for business customers. The monthly rate for subscribing to both services is $1.75 for residence customers and $4.00 for business customers. During this experimental offering period the installation charges will be waived.

Call Forwarding - Busy Line and Call Forwarding - Don't Answer are expected to generate first-year revenues of approximately $752,000.

Call Forwarding - Busy Line and Call Forwarding - Don't Answer will be offered on an experimental basis in selected areas throughout the state for 12 months. The availability of these services after that time will depend on Southwestern Bell's decision of whether to offer the services on a permanent basis.

Persons wishing to comment on these services should notify the commission by November 9, 1990. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

WORLD IN BRIEF

British official criticizes Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Britain's foreign secretary said Wednesday that Israel was playing into Iraqi hands by rebuffing a U.N. inquiry into the Temple Mount killings.

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said he has not succeeded in persuading Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister David Levy to accept the U.N. delegation.

"I think that Saddam Hussein would be very pleased if the (U.N.) Security Council now stopped concentrating on Kuwait and began to concentrate on Arab-Israel," Hurd told reporters, referring to Iraq's 12-week-long occupation of Kuwait.

"And that is why I'm anxious that the government of Israel should find some way of receiving ... the secretary-general's mission," he said.

Victims might have lived

DUMFRIES, Scotland (AP) — Two passengers might have survived the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 had they received the best medical care immediately, a Scottish pathologist testified Wednesday.

The other 259 people aboard the aircraft died when the bomb blew apart the jetliner Dec. 21, 1988 or were killed by the 30,000-foot fall to earth, said Dr. Anthony Busuttil, professor of Forensic Medicine at Edinburgh University.

"It is possible that (these two) may have survived for a short time," Busuttil said. "The chances are that, even if they had survived, they would have been deeply unconscious after sustaining their injuries."

The pathologist did not identify the two or say where their bodies were found.

Whites nabbed in killings

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police arrested three white men Wednesday in connection with an attack on a bus in which six blacks died, and a news report said two of the suspects belonged to an extreme right-wing group.

The Oct. 9 bus attack near Durban in eastern Natal Province also left 27 blacks injured. It followed a rampage by about 20 blacks earlier in the day in Durban in which eight whites were stabbed.

Government-run South African Broadcasting Co. reported the right-wing Afrikaner Resistance Movement said the names of two of the men arrested Wednesday appeared on its registration list for northern Natal.

The group, known by its Afrikaans initials AWB, calls for separate nations for blacks and whites.

Police said the men were arrested in a raid in Durban and AK-47 assault rifles and other weapons were seized. Police Col. R. Reynolds said the men would appear in court, but gave no other details.

Communists surrender

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The last group of communist guerrillas in Sarawak state signed a peace accord Wednesday and laid down their arms, the national news agency Bernama reported.

Some of the 51 guerrillas brought their children, including a month-old infant, to the ceremony in Kuching, 540 miles southeast of Kuala Lumpur, Bernama reported.

The North Kalimantan Communist Party operated in Sarawak state, on Borneo Island, for 30 years. A first group of 569 guerrillas made peace in 1973. Last December, 1,100 more communist guerrillas laid down their arms.

Hunter cleared of manslaughter in shooting of Maine woman

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — A hunter who mistook a woman for a deer as she walked behind her home was found innocent of manslaughter Wednesday in a shooting death that stirred bitter debate about the responsibilities of hunters.

Donald Rogerson, 47, a supermarket produce manager, was acquitted after nine hours of deliberations by a Penobscot County Superior Court jury.

Rogerson was charged in the death of Karen Wood, a 37-year-old mother of twin 1-year-old girls. Mrs. Wood was shot once in the chest on Nov. 15, 1988, while she stood about 130 feet behind her home in suburban Hermon.

Rogerson's family jumped up and hugged each other after the verdict was announced. Mrs. Wood's husband, Kevin, walked out in silence, his head down.

"I'm very overwhelmed at this time," Rogerson said. "I hope and pray the Lord will give Mr. Wood the strength he has given me through this whole ordeal."

Wood said he was "stunned" by the verdict.

"I'm shocked that at least one of the 12 jury members couldn't, after hearing all of the evidence, come to the conclusion that Donald Rogerson was guilty," he said.

Americans share science prizes

By Michael Wallin
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Two Americans and a Canadian captured the Nobel Prize in physics Wednesday for finding nature's smallest known particle. An American won the Nobel in chemistry for developing simpler ways to make complex chemicals.

Americans Jerome I. Friedman and Henry W. Kendall and Canadian Richard E. Taylor showed that protons and neutrons, once thought to be fundamental particles, were made up of smaller components called quarks. Quarks are now believed to be basic building blocks of matter.

American Elias James Corey won the prize in chemistry for research that simplified the production of plastics and other artificial fibers, paints and dyes, pesticides and drugs.

"This is a statistically improbable event," Corey said of winning the award. "There are so many scientists who are so deserving."

He found out he had won when a student congratulated him in the hallway.

The Swedish Academy of Sciences, which awards both prizes, said Corey's work has "contributed to the high standards of living and health and the longevity enjoyed ... in the Western world."

Each prize is worth about $700,000.

"Here was a repetition, although at a deeper level, of one of the most dramatic events in the history of physics, the discovery of the nucleus of the atom," the academy said of the physics laureates' work.

"Their experiments showed definitively that there were smaller nuclear particles than protons and neutrons," said Professor Cecelia Jareskog of the academy.

In the future, she said, "we will be able to see even finer details. Maybe there is something inside the quark."

Friedman, 60, of Chicago, and Kendall, 63, of Boston are professors at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Taylor, 60, born in Medicine Hat, Alberta, is a professor at Stanford University.

The discovery was made during research begun in 1967 at MIT and Stanford using Stanford's linear accelerator, an "atom smasher" that produces high-speed collisions of sub-atomic particles in an effort to discern their properties and structure.

Friedman, reached in Fort Worth, Texas, said he was "very, very overwhelmed" at winning the Nobel.

He said the research began with a study of protons.

"To our surprise, we found that the scattering of electrons from protons behaved in a way that suggested that there were point-like objects inside, little nuggets inside. They were later identified ... as being compatible with there being quarks," he said.

It was the first experimental evidence that quarks existed and confirmed earlier theories, Friedman said.

Asked the meaning of the research, he said it contributed to the understanding of "how nature works."

He added: "One never knows what the application of basic research will be. Knowing what the structure of matter is, ultimately has to have some effect on how you model the entire structure of things."

Taylor, contacted at home in Stanford, Calif., said he was surprised to learn he had won the prize. "It's a great honor," he said.

Taylor said he was most influenced by W.K.H. Panofsky, former director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center. "It was his vision and hard work that generated the accelerator to do the experiment," he said. "I think of him as directly responsible."

Kendall said of winning the Nobel: "I think the prize means recognition for what has been an important experiment in physics. It was done 20 years ago, so I found it delightful and unexpected."

Kendall has been chairman of the Union of Concerned Scientists since 1973.

Corey, 62, of Harvard University, has synthesized about 100 important drugs and other natural products, the academy said.

Bay area remembers quake

By Elisabeth Dunham
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Grief and celebration mixed Wednesday as people headed for the sites of the worst devastation caused by the Bay area quake for first anniversary memorials, barbecues and beer bashes.

"A few people left, but for the rest of us who stayed it's become a real part of our lives. It's sort of a cathartic thing to get together and say 'We made it,'" said Santa Cruz businessman Bruce Bratton.

The Oct. 17 quake, which measured at 7.1 on the Richter scale, struck at 5:04 p.m. It killed 67 people.

People across the nation knew something was wrong when the television signal from the World Series was lost. The quake halted the third game of the series between the Oakland Athletics and the San Francisco Giants. On Wednesday, the A's faced another series contest — in Cincinnati.

Marilyn Quayle, the vice president's wife, and Gov. George Deukmejian came to address a national earthquake conference in San Francisco. Mrs. Quayle serves on an advisory board of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which came under fire for its handling of the disaster.

Residents of the impoverished West Oakland neighborhood where a section of highway collapsed planned to fall silent in memory of the 42 people who died in their cars, and in honor of the rescuers who scaled the rubble to save lives.

The remaining roadway that bisects the drug-infested neighborhood of Oakland was renamed Mandela Parkway.

"There's been a very demonstrable renewal of hope in West Oakland," said event organizer Jack Atkin. "The earthquake was staggering in its destructive power. God knows, there's enough problems in West Oakland with or without an earthquake. But people pulling together will get them solved much quicker."

Some community leaders said Wednesday, when six oak trees were planted as a memorial, that the tragedy spawned a renewed spirit in the impoverished area.

"It (the freeway) divided West Oakland, but now people have begun to pull their different communities together," said Mattie Holiday, adding that the neighborhood is beginning to feel like it did in the 1950s, before the imposing roadway was built.

A French restaurant, L'Entrecote de Paris, organized a "A Celebration of Survival" to recreate last year's impromptu after-quake soiree that started when regulars begged the restaurant not to close like others on the block.

"Some were frightened, some were laughing," said owner Alexander Mortazavi. "They were singing songs together. This whole place became a party."

House, Senate compromise on defense bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators agreed Wednesday to a 1991 defense bill that barely keeps alive the B-2 stealth bomber and slashes President Bush's request for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The $288 billion military budget blueprint for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 — $19 billion less than Bush had sought — would cut 100,000 troops and sharply reduce the president's request for land-based nuclear missiles.

The legislation provides $2.9 billion for SDI, well below Bush's proposal of $4.7 billion and $900 million less than Congress spent in the last fiscal year on the Star Wars program.

Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services panel, and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. and the committee's chairman, said they were optimistic Defense Secretary Dick Cheney will recommend the president sign the bill despite the drastic cut in SDI funds.

But Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis. and the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Cheney "is not going to be happy."

Cheney, in Moscow, was unavailable for comment. Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall said there was no official reaction.

The House and the Senate were expected to pass the bill next week.

The most contentious issue of the year — continuing production of the radar-evading B-2 bomber at nearly $865 million a copy — produced a compromise that prompted vastly different interpretations between the House and the Senate.

Jurors listen to concert tape

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jurors in the 2 Live Crew obscenity trial Wednesday heard a tape of the concert that got the rappers arrested. The recording was so poor a sheriff's deputy had to explain it — and he blushed.

Three of the group's four members are on trial for obscenity for a performance June 10 at a Hollywood nightclub. The fourth band member didn't perform the rap.

Group leader Luther Campbell, Mark "Brother Marquis" Ross and Chris "Kid Ice" Wongwon face misdemeanor obscenity charges that could bring up to a year in prison and $1,000 in fines.

In Broward County Circuit Court Wednesday, sheriff's Deputy Eugene McCloud translated parts of badly distorted tapes of the concert.

The detective appeared to be uncomfortable describing the "Me So Horny" girls, who danced on stage with the rappers.

"The way they were dancing, it was ... I'm embarrassed," McCloud said.

"Eugene, we're all grown-up adults here," Assistant State Attorney Leslie Robson prompted.

The detective continued. "They were dancing as though ... as though they were having sex," McCloud said.

Tribe awarded money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill directing the government to pay $35 million to the Seneca Indians, admitting that Congress wrongly forced the tribe to lease its land for 115 years to the city of Salamanca, N.Y.

"We took advantage of the Seneca Nation and now we ought to correct this injustice," said Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., who introduced the bill in the Senate along with Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y.

The Senate passed the measure by voice vote late Tuesday. The bill, originally sponsored by Rep. Amo Houghton, R-N.Y., passed the House on Oct. 10.

Administration officials, however, have said the government is not financially liable for the low rents paid to the Senecas and they oppose the measure because of its cost. President Bush has 10 days in which to sign it, veto it or simply allow it to pass into law unsigned.

The bill would ratify an agreement reached by Salamanca, three nearby villages and the Seneca Nation to replace a 99-year lease accord expiring Feb. 19, 1991.

Paint warnings issued

BOSTON (AP) — Walls painted with latex paint that was manufactured before August can give off enough mercury to be potentially harmful, especially to children, a federal report concludes.

A study found relatively high levels of mercury in the bodies of people whose homes were painted inside with latex paint that contained mercury as a preservative.

Because of the problem, the Environmental Protection Agency prohibited adding mercury to paint after Aug. 20. However, paint manufactured before the ban can still be sold.

Experts estimate that until recently, about one-third of all interior latex paint contained varying levels of mercury. It was added to paint to prevent fungal and bacterial growth and prolong shelf life. Oil-based paint does not contain mercury.

Farm bill 'complicated'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agricultural organizations and members of Congress agreed Wednesday that the 1990 farm bill approved by a House-Senate conference committee will make farming more complicated, but that was about their only consensus.

The American Farm Bureau Federation hadn't decided whether to endorse the negotiated version of the massive five-year measure that dictates the government's agricultural programs. The National Farmers Union was urging Congress to vote no when the bill that came out of the committee reaches the floor.

Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., who was on the conference committee, called the legislation "a blueprint to dismantle farm programs" and said it "cuts support, increases regulation, red tape and the number of federal employees to carry it out."

"It's definitely a step down that road," Robert Denman of the Farmers Union, said of Marlenee's comments.

Amtrak dumping to end

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Amtrak would have six years to stop dumping human waste on railroad tracks under legislation adopted by the Senate.

An amendment sponsored by Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Col., gave Amtrak six years to install sewage holding tanks — similar to those used by commercial airlines — on all railroad cars manufactured since 1971.

The passenger service plans to retrofit 534 of its fleet of 1,409 cars and retire 348 cars made prior to 1971 which are of a design that cannot be retrofitted to include the holding tanks. The remaining cars already have storage tanks, Cliff Black, Amtrak manager of public affairs, said Wednesday.

The legislation also would require manufacturers of new, intercity rail passenger cars to equip them so that they discharge human waste only at proper servicing facilities.

Tribal leader convicted

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — Suspended Navajo Chairman Peter MacDonald was convicted Wednesday of 41 counts of bribery and other crimes for taking money and favors from business people operating on the reservation.

The same six-member tribal District Court jury convicted Peter "Rocky" MacDonald Jr., MacDonald's son and codefendant, of 23 similar counts.

The prosecution contended MacDonald illegally asked for and accepted cash payments, loans, airplane rides and use of an automobile from businessmen seeking to curry favor.

Suicide victim blamed self for woman's death

By Laura Myers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some say prosecutor Collier Vale blamed himself for the slaying of a police informant in a tragic mix-up and believed his career was over at age 39. But no one thought he would kill himself.

Vale

Perhaps not even Vale thought that — until the last moment.

"It appears to have been a spontaneous event," Monterey County's chief deputy coroner, Glen Brown, said of the self-inflicted gunshot.

Authorities are still investigating Vale's apparent suicide Oct. 5 at his apartment. He didn't leave a note. And although colleagues say he seemed to linger with goodbyes the day before he died, he didn't appear suicidal.

"I don't know why this happened," said Vale's boss, District Attorney Mike Bartram.

Friends say Vale felt tremendous guilt when an informant was killed Aug. 8, 1989, after information got out that she was helping police investigate a double killing in Seaside, 115 miles south of San Francisco.

Through a mix-up of similar telephone numbers, Vale called Songia Petite Johnson, 20, instead of Sonjii Yvette Johnson, 23, who was a witness in the July 16 double killing. Both women lived in the same high-crime neighborhood and both their names were pronounced "Sonya."

While trying to interview the wrong woman, Vale said enough for her to figure out that the other woman was an informant.

Authorities speculate that, largely to protect herself from drug dealers, Songia Petite Johnson spread the word that the other woman was the "snitch." Three weeks later, Sonjii Yvette Johnson was shot to death. Authorities would not say where Songia Petite Johnson could be located for comment.

After the mix-up was discovered, the Johnson slaying was assigned to the state attorney general's office. Vale was widely blamed in press reports for the young woman's death. The story also was televised nationally on "A Current Affair" about a week before Vale's death.

"When you have so many fingers pointing at you and saying you caused another person's death it's going to have an effect on you," said Monterey Police Sgt. Fred Ragghianti.

Vale claimed he was given incorrect information.

The foods you eat may make quitting cigarettes easier

By Jean Carper

Carper

Dr. Jack E. Henningfield, at the National Institute on Drug Abuse, warns nicotine-gum users to avoid all food and particularly highly acidic beverages, like colas, coffee, fruit juices and beer for at least 15 minutes before using the gum.

His new study found that men who rinsed their mouths with coffee or cola before chewing the gum absorbed virtually none of the gum's nicotine. This defeats the gum's purpose of weaning smokers off cigarettes by giving them small nicotine doses.

Generally foods that acidify the urine flush away nicotine, increasing cravings for cigarettes, agrees David Daughton, a nicotine researcher at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

However, alkaline foods, such as vegetables like spinach and beet greens, tend to "recirculate the nicotine, keeping high levels in the system," he says, thus decreasing the need for a nicotine fix. Thus eating more alkaline foods and fewer acid-type foods may help you cut down on cigarettes gradually, he adds. But if you quit cold turkey, it makes no difference.

Double-edged fish oil

If you take fish-oil capsules, be sure to take vitamin E also. Fish-oil capsules increase the need for vitamin E, and may lead to a vitamin E deficiency, especially in older people, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers at Tufts University.

Companies do add vitamin E to their fish oil capsules, but it may not be enough, says U.S.D.A. researcher Mohsen Meydani. In a recent study he had 35 women take 3 grams of fish oil daily for three months. The capsules were typical of those on the market and contained 60 percent of the recommended dietary allowance (RDA) of vitamin E. Still, the women's blood showed evidence of insufficient vitamin E.

A critical function of vitamin E is to protect body fat from oxidation, known as lipid peroxidation. When this happens, cells can be seriously damaged.

In the women taking the fish-oil capsules, dangerous lipid peroxidation jumped an average 30 percent in younger women and 50 percent in older women, indicating a lack of vitamin E.

Dr. Meydani advises users of fish-oil capsules to take at least 200 IU (international units) of vitamin E daily "as a safety cap."

Spicy disease fighters

There's new evidence that many common spices have strong biological activity that may help curtail disease.

Recently, Danish researchers screened 10 spices for their anti-platelet or "blood thinning" properties. Seven were effective, including clove, ginger, cumin and turmeric. "Cloves are stronger than aspirin in this respect," says Dr. Krishna Srivastava, Odense University.

He also found that ginger — at a dose of one-sixth of an ounce of fresh ginger root per day — thinned the blood in humans. The National Cancer Institute puts turmeric, often used in curry spices, on its list of potential anti-cancer foods. The spice contains the compound curcumin that blocks cancer processes in lab studies.

In a recent study in India, spices were fed to animals with tumors. Black pepper prolonged the animals' lives by 65 percent. And sesame extract reduced their tumor growth by 39 percent.

However, experts warn against overdosing on spices. Low doses, common in food, could be beneficial, they say, but high doses might be detrimental.

Study clears coffee's bad name

By Daniel Q. Haney

BOSTON (AP) — Sit back and enjoy another cup of full-powered, extra-kick caffeinated coffee. A major new study concludes your morning brew is almost certainly harmless to your heart. Decaf, though, may be another story.

Contrary to the fears of many doctors and coffee lovers, coffee with a get-you-going jolt of caffeine seems to be perfectly safe, as far as the heart is concerned. However, the study found troubling hints that people who drink lots of decaffeinated coffee may somewhat increase their risk of heart trouble.

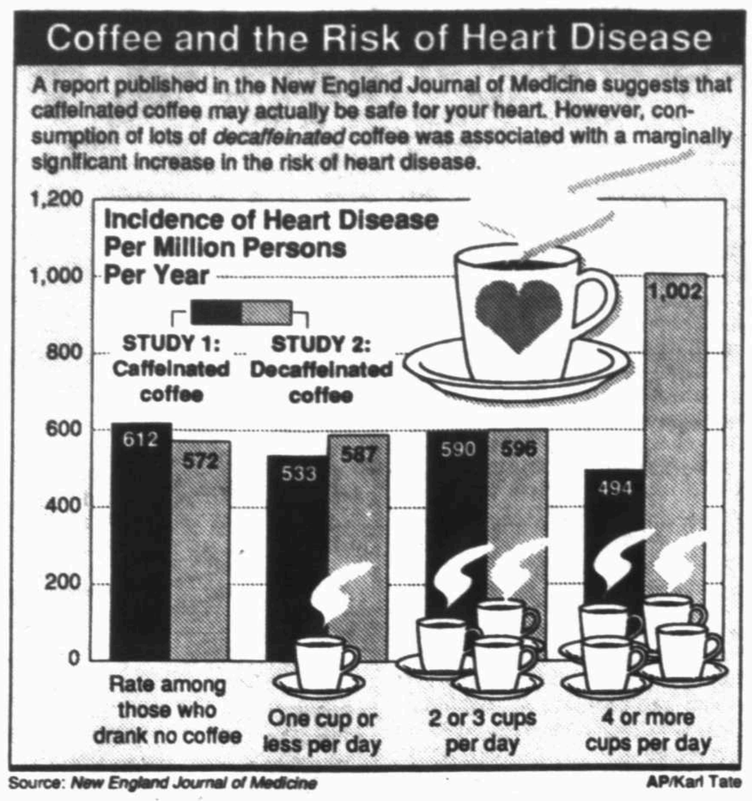
"This study means that if there is a hazard with drinking caffeinated coffee, it's going to be very small, and there may be none at all," said Dr. Walter Willett, who directed the study at the Harvard School of Public Health.

While the wisdom of very high coffee consumption is questionable, several experts agree that three or four cups a day of typical American coffee are safe for virtually everybody, even those with heart disease.

Despite the wide public acceptance of a link between coffee and heart trouble, this association has always been murky at best. While a few reports have turned up signs that coffee may be hard on the heart, others have found no reason to think coffee is harmful.

"It's amazing how coffee has a bad name, when the harder one looks at health hazards, the more difficult it is to find adverse effects," said Willett.

The latest research, called the Health Professionals Follow-up Study, was based on a survey of the coffee-drinking habits of 45,589 men. It was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.



Those who suspected coffee was bad for the heart usually assumed that caffeine, the chemical that gives coffee its punch, was to blame. But the new research suggests just the opposite: Those who drink more than four cups of decaf a day have about 60 percent more risk of heart disease than do those who never drink it.

However, the researchers cautioned that the link they found between decaf and heart trouble is statistically weak, and it's too soon to conclude that this kind of coffee is harmful.

Even if decaf turns out to be perfectly safe, however, Willett said, "There is no particular reason to switch from caffeinated to decaffeinated coffee from the point of view of preventing heart disease."

Another recent study also raised doubts about decaffeinated coffee. Stanford University researchers found that people who switch from regular coffee to decaf increased their levels of low-density lipoprotein — the so-called bad cholesterol — an average of 7 percent.

No one knows why decaffeinated coffee might do this. Some speculate that it could result from differences in the type of beans used to make decaf or in the way they are processed.

The participants in the Harvard study, all doctors, dentists and other health professionals, filled out questionnaires about their coffee habits. After two years, 221 of them had suffered heart attacks or died of heart disease, and 136 had undergone coronary bypass surgery or angioplasty.

The risk among those who drank four or more cups of all kinds of coffee or just caffeinated coffee was about the same as for non-users.

Dr. Harvey Wolinsky of Mount Sinai Hospital in New York and an adviser to the National Coffee Association, said some previous research may have linked coffee and heart disease because heavy coffee drinkers are also more likely to smoke, and smoking is clearly bad for the heart.

Dr. Peter Wilson of the long-running Framingham Heart Study in suburban Boston said his group reached conclusions similar to the Harvard team's last year.

He said that some doctors advise people to stop drinking caffeinated coffee if they have heart palpitations, although there is no clear evidence that caffeine causes them.

American diet 'still has a way to go,' USDA reports

DENVER (AP) — Americans may be getting closer to the ideal diet, but they still eat too much fat, cholesterol and sodium, according to a federal report discussed here Monday.

The Department of Agriculture report on the nation's eating habits — which includes the USDA's revised dietary guidelines — was the focus of the 73rd annual American Dietetic Association meeting. Participants discussed a draft of the report, which is scheduled for release in its final form Nov. 5.

As in the past, the USDA will appeal to Americans to consume less saturated fat, sodium and cholesterol, try a variety of foods that include plenty of vegetables, fruits and grain products, and maintain a healthy weight.

Current diets contribute to high rates of heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes, the report says. But Americans are coming closer to reaching USDA guidelines for a healthy diet, it said.

"Americans are doing pretty well," said Susan Welsh, the USDA's director of human nutrition information services. "We're definitely moving in the right direction, but we still have a ways to go."

Americans are meeting the USDA's recommended daily allowances for nine of 15 essential vitamins and minerals, Welsh said.

But while fat intake has decreased over the past four years from 40 percent to 36 percent of the average American's calories, that level still is too high.

"The USDA has been recommending 30 percent of calories from fat, so we have some work to do in that area," Welsh says.

Health officials attending the meeting described how they are attempting to persuade Americans to improve their diet.

USDA representative Betty Peterkin said the revised dietary guidelines are expected to be similar to earlier guidelines, but be "more positive, not prohibitive" in tone.

The guidelines are expected to factor a person's body mass, waist and hip size and medical status in determining an ideal weight, Peterkin said.

Previously, insurance industry tables used a person's height to determine the ideal weight.

The report said the guidelines will call for moderation, cautioning Americans to avoid extremes in their diets.

Federal prisoners now must make the grade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prison inmates soon will be required to attend classes until they can read at the 12th-grade level and complete a high-school equivalency degree, the Justice Department said Wednesday.

If they refuse to do so, they will be consigned to the lowest-paying prison jobs and they could be subjected to disciplinary actions, the department said.

Federal prisoners are currently required to attend classes if they cannot read or perform math problems at the eighth-grade level. Under the higher standards, inmates will be required to master 12th-grade academic skills by attending prison classes, the department said.

Tougher literacy standards are intended to raise the chance that inmates will not return to crime once they are released from prison.

"For most who cannot read, competing in the legitimate work world is impossible," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in remarks prepared for delivery to an international conference on prison literacy in Ottawa.

"We live in a complex world, and the pressure of competition for good-paying jobs, and indeed success in virtually every aspect of modern life, hinges on literacy," Thornburgh said.

The higher standards are being imposed at a time when 20 percent of the 58,000 federal inmates cannot read at the eighth-grade level and 40 percent have a history of drug or alcohol abuse. The Education Department says up to 30 million U.S. adults are illiterate.

> 'For most who cannot read, competing in the legitimate work world is impossible.'
> — Dick Thornburgh, Attorney General

"We believe there is a straight-line relationship between literacy levels and an individual's likelihood of involvement in substance abuse," Thornburgh said.

Many former inmates who cannot read "turn to drug abuse as an escape, or else come to rely on selling drugs to survive," Thornburgh said.

The Bureau of Prisons began the mandatory literacy program in the early 1980s. Inmates who did not pass tests of sixth-grade reading and math skills were required to attend classes. The standard was raised later to mastery of eighth-grade skills.

The 12th-grade standard, now being enforced as part of a pilot program at 10 facilities, will take effect throughout the federal prison system early next year, said Gregory L. Bogdan, a Bureau of Prisons spokesman.

Under the old policy, all federal prisoners must take the reading and math skills tests, no matter what degrees they may have earned, Bogdan said. Under the new policy, inmates who can document that they have at least a high school diploma will not have to take any tests and will be exempt from the class requirement, he said.

Inmates are required to attend classes for 90 days. Those who refuse to do so could face disciplinary action such as loss of privileges, additional work hours and possible transfer to an institution with a higher level of security, Bogdan said, although he added, "I'm not aware of anyone that's ever refused to that extent."

Inmates who attend classes for 90 days but refuse to continue after that will be consigned to earning the lowest wages in prison jobs, said Bogdan, who once worked as a teacher and principal of the school at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary.

"Our job in the education department was to motivate these guys, force the exposure" to academic subjects, Bogdan said.

Inmates also are required to work while in prison, either as clerks and orderlies or in the Federal Prison Industries Program. Inmates earn between 11 cents and 36 cents an hour doing ordinary prison jobs but can earn as much as $1.05 an hour in prison industry jobs.

But prisoners who refuse to attend school classes can't earn more than 11 cents an hour in menial jobs or 44 cents an hour in prison industry, Bogdan said.

There are also other incentives for completing the program, he said.

An inmate who becomes eligible for parole would not want any comments about disciplinary actions to be seen by the parole board, he said.

Class attendance also would enhance an inmate's chances to be placed in a halfway house toward the end of a prison sentence, Bogdan said.

Last year, 10,546 federal inmates completed eighth-grade requirements and 3,100 finished high-school equivalency programs, Thornburgh said. Another 1,781 finished programs that taught English as a second language.

A total of 15,000 federal inmates were enrolled last year in continuing education classes, the attorney general said.

Bush to allow measure limiting television ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Wednesday he will allow a bill limiting commercials on children's TV shows to become law without his signature. He said he supports goals of the bill even though he objects to what he said were restrictions on freedom of speech.

Bush said he would not veto the "Children's Television Act of 1990."

"This bill is intended to increase the amount and quality of children's television programming and to diminish the commercialization of programming for children," the president wrote in a statement announcing his decision.

"I wholeheartedly suuport these goals, but regret that the Congress has chosen inappropriate means of serving them."

The legislation will reinstate limits on commercial advertising on children's television shows, allowing 10½ minutes of ads for each hour of children's programming on weekends an 12 minutes an hour on weekdays.

Under the legislation, each television licensee for the first time also must provide educational programming specifically designed for children. A station must serve children's educational and informational needs and in doing so must provide programs devised with children's special learning needs and capabilities in mind.

Bush, in stating his objections on Wednesday, said that the First Amendment "does not contemplate that government will dictate the quality of quantity of what Americans should hear — rather it leaves this to be decided by free media responding to the free choices of individual consumers."

Appeals court races are vital

While it doesn't get the attention that the Supreme Court does, the Court of Criminal Appeals' rulings can have as dramatic an impact on the lives of Texas residents.

On Nov. 6, voters will be choosing five of the nine justices on the court, an effective majority that could shape the future of criminal justice in the state. Without a doubt the court's actions over the next few years will be essential to determining the course of justice in Texas on such vital questions as the death penalty.

Maloney best choice

One of the candidates for Place 1 is Frank Maloney — an Austin lawyer who has been a prosecutor, a noted defense attorney, and a law professor. He's not now a sitting judge, but due to his breadth of experience should be.

Long-time Texas residents will recall Maloney as the assistant Travis County District Attorney and chief of the law enforcement division of the Texas attorney general's office appointed during the 1960's to prosecute famed Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes in Pecos and Tyler.

Maloney's legal expertise will benefit the Court of Criminal Appeals. We urge voters to cast their ballots for him.

Votes urge for Kitzman

A former district attorney, Oliver S. Kitzman is a well-respected judge for Waller County's 155th District Court and should bring that same degree of respect to the Court of Criminal Appeals.

The incumbent, Sam Houston Clinton, has been roundly criticized in legal circles for his judicial approach in ruling on cases.

It's time for a change, a new approach to fair and equitable justice on the court, and Kitzman offers just such a judicial philosophy. We urge voters to vote for Oliver Kitzman.

Keep White on court

Justice Bill White has served on the Court of Criminal Appeals since 1985 and gets good marks from such groups as Texas People Against Crime (TPAC) and Texas Bipartisan Justice Committee (TBJC), which monitor rulings by those sitting on the court.

A native of Abilene, White spent 20 years as a criminal prosecutor including service as criminal district attorney of Bexar County (San Antonio).

White should be returned to the court for another term.

Berchelmann needed

Appointed to the Court of Criminal Appeals in 1989 by Gov. Bill Clements, David A. Berchelmann Jr. has already exhibited the expertise and professional conduct needed on the court.

Berchelmann has been endorsed by the Texas Municipal Police Association (TMPA), which based its approval of his "tough judicial philosophy."

Before his appointment to the court, Berchelmann was a state criminal district judge in San Antonio and also has served as a criminal district attorney.

Berchelmann's experience and tough-minded justice is needed on the court. Voters should cast their ballots for him.

Sturns a good choice

Louis Sturns brought an exemplary record as judge of Tarrant County's Criminal District Court No. 1 to the Court of Criminal Appeals when Gov. Bill Clements appointed him.

He is the first black to hold statewide office in Texas and that is an important step, but Sturns' record indicates that the appointment was fully deserved.

We encourage voters to cast their ballots for Louis Sturns.

Was it 'Mojo Magic' behind all the wins?

There are many people in Odessa who believe the players are the ones hurt by rules violations of the Permian football team. I agree, but the players I feel sorry for are the ones who played by the rules and were beaten by the Panthers. I'm not against Permian being in the playoffs, but they should compete in a separate league. Not a super league, but a league comprised of all the teams who that cheated and were caught. For there should be absolutely no way Permian should play against teams who played fairly and respected the rules and spirit of the game.

How many instances have the Panthers "pulled one out" in a close game with their famous "Mojo magic?" Is it really "Mojo magic" or just much more practice that gives Permian an advantage in close games? Next year when the Panthers make the playoffs, and the announcer says, as always, "They don't have a lot of size or speed, but they are well coached and don't make mistakes," we can all chuckle inside. A more talented team meanwhile, that played by the rules by not practicing early or recruiting players is sent packing.

If Odessans are worried about the Permian players, where is their concern over the message that is being sent by coaches and the community? They are telling the players, and the students in general, that cheating is okay as long as you win. This message of action rings clearly to Odessa's youth. But, instead of parents and booster club members being concerned about their kids values, they consider suing the UIL. It's a sad, almost tragic situation that scars not only Odessa Permian, but all of 4-5A.

So, if a tear is shed for the players, let it be for the ones who competed with vigor and honesty and were beaten by a team that chose to cheat and gain unfair advantages. It makes a mockery out of what West Texans used to refer to as a football "game."

Soviets share intelligence with U.S.

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union, which funded and trained the Iraqi military for two decades, is starting to share with the United States what it learned during those years. The clandestine cooperation may even lead to deployment of Soviet troops to the Persian Gulf in November if the stalemate continues that long with no armed conflict.

Anderson

So far, the intelligence shared by the Soviets has not been as good as that gleaned from Iraqi defectors, including a brigadier general who brought with him war plans and order-of-battle information. But our sources say that the Defense Intelligence Agency is excited about the first tidbits of information from the Soviets. They see it as a vein leading to a mother lode.

The Soviets have yet to give what the DIA and the Central Intelligence Agency want most — profiles of the top Iraqi military officials, how their minds work and whether they would support a coup against Saddam Hussein. At this point in the stalemate, U.S. officials think Saddam's ouster by more levelheaded Iraqis is the best way out of the crisis.

The Soviets also are holding back crucial information about which Iraqi divisions are the most battle-tested after their long war with Iran. Some intelligence reports suggest that only a dozen of Saddam's armored and infantry units have significant battle experience, and the rest are virtually green. DIA sources are confident the Soviets will share some of the details before armed conflict begins.

In the meantime, the Soviets are talking about the weapons they gave to Iraq and the ability of the Iraqis to use them. U.S. intelligence agencies have been able to pinpoint weaknesses in the Iraqi machine, particularly in the air force, which was never fully tested against Iran.

In sharing the data, the Soviets have had to weigh the morale of Soviet military advisers still in Iraq. These advisers have come close to mutiny as Mikhail Gorbachev has quietly asked them to come home. The contingent in Iraq includes the most militant hard-liners in the Soviet army. They have secretly opposed Gorbachev's stand against Iraq and are angry at being forced to abandon one of their most loyal allies in its time of need.

Behind the scenes, the debate is being carried out between Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov and Foreign Minister Edward Shevardnadze. Gorbachev and Shevardnadze think they need stronger ties with the West to rebuild the Soviet economy. They have already been rewarded for their support in the conflict with Iraq.

Saudi Arabia, with its vast wealth and resources, opened diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union for the first time in 52 years. But Yazov and the hard-liners in the military don't believe the economic rewards compensate for the loss of Soviet prestige at home and aboard.

Soviet armed forces Chief of Staff Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev, on a recent U.S. tour, publicly opposed U.S. military action in the Gulf unless it was sanctioned by the United Nations. But behind the scenes, U.S. officials are being told that the Kremlin would not oppose military action even if the United Nations didn't authorize it.

The latest tantalizing hints, according to our sources, suggest that the Soviets might even send their own troops in November. Why? Because the Kremlin fears U.S. and other foreign forces will become a semi-permanent fixture in the Gulf, and the Soviets want to get on board before it's too late.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The reason for the oil crisis that again confronts America is non-performance at the top. Beginning with Richard Nixon, every president has ignored the warnings against continued dependence on Persian Gulf oil. They have refused to take political risks, or even take ordinary precautions, if it meant tangling with entrenched special-interest groups. It is appropriate that George Bush, an oil man, must now pay the price.

GEORGE WILL

Incomprehensible explanations astonish

WASHINGTON — Evidence that Washington is, strictly speaking, deranged — literally disconnected from reality — includes Richard Darman's statement on Sunday television that President Bush did not do what the nation saw him do. Darman, the budget director, said the President, in his television speech concerning the budget deal, "wasn't actually asking the public to support this."

Will

This is what Bush said: "Tell your congressman and senators you support this....Urge them to stand with the President....Urge them to do what the bipartisan leadership has done....Urge them to stand with their congressional leaders....Ask them to fight for the future of your kids by supporting this budget agreement...."

Darman insists the President actually said "in effect, to congressmen, not the American people, to congressmen, 'I'm telling your constituents this is a hard vote for you.'" Oh. The President goes on three networks to address 535 people 16 blocks away? Apparently even when using the mass media, Washington talks only to itself. This is Washington solipsism: Nothing but us exists.

Trying to trigger public support, the President on TV triggered the public's opposition, and this question: How can a President so popular be so powerless? The answer is lurking in the question: He is popular because he makes minimal use of power.

He ran a blue-skies campaign and even just eight and a half months ago said he saw in the sky a deficit (now projected at about $300 billion) of only $64 billion. After the polarizing conflicts of the Reagan years, the country wanted to be left alone and elected just the President to perform that nonfunction, a President who believes in bipartisanship, domestic summits, the blurring of party differences.

But now, out of the blue, as it were, he tells the nation that if we go on piling up deficits as we have done during the 10 Reagan-Bush years, we will not "survive" because deficits are like "cancer." However, this life-threatening disease calls for nothing radical — no political equivalent of surgery, chemotherapy, radiation. More like half an aspirin.

The rejected summit package was a pastiche of cooked assumptions (about growth and interest rates), dribs and drabs of little taxes (a tax code painted by Jackson Pollock); spending "caps" that may be only as binding as the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction requirements; a Dukakis campaign plank (assuming billions to be gained from improved enforcement of the revenue code); and some Republican socialism (tax shelters, called "incentives," to subsidize investment in certain supposedly private enterprises).

The proposed 1991 tax increases and spending cuts amounted to only 0.7 percent of GNP; all the taxes would have reduced Americans' after-tax income about 1 percent. And the stumbling block in the budget negotiations has been the Republican insistence on a capital-gains cut which the President's own economists predict would increase the annual growth rate just 0.06 percent. That amount is too tiny to forecast meaningfully.

When numbers, supposedly instruments of precision, are instead used for propaganda, then the cavalier use of words, as in Darman's gloss on Bush's speech, is unsurprising. If all this were purely cynical, it would be less alarming than the weird sincerity of people who have been striking deals with each other for so long they really think deals determine reality. They think the meaning of numbers and words is "on the table," part of the "package." Partisan meanings are asserted, differences get split, and reality is expected to conform to the "deal."

Participants in the budget marathon are exhausted and genuinely indignant when it is suggested that the numbers they are dealing with are small compared to the problem as it already is, before recession. The best face that can be put on all this is put by Sen. Phil Gramm (R-Texas), who says this:

The day Gramm-Rudman was passed, federal spending was 23.9 percent of GNP. Today it is 22.6 percent. If something with the net configuration of the deal just rejected is finally adopted and enforced, then five years from now spending will be 18.3 percent of GNP. The only new entitlement enacted in the Gramm-Rudman era was the catastrophic health insurance program, which was a political catastrophe because people hate socialism that comes with a price tag.

So, chuckleheaded as everyone here may seem to everyone out there, it is possible to believe that progress is being made. But the way it is being made is deepening the public's misanthropic mood.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

What does government know about brothels?

Six months from now; Storey County, Nev., near Reno, at the famed Mustang Ranch, the legal brothel that filed for bankruptcy and was turned over to the federal government to run:

The man has been hot on the craps tables all week, so he decides he'll splurge a bit at the Mustang Ranch.

Grizzard

He steps into the front door and spots a woman sitting behind a desk marked "Information."

She is quite attractive, he thinks, if he ignores the fact that she is popping her gum and has a run in her left black-mesh stocking — and appears bored.

"Excuse me," he says to the woman, "I came here yesterday, but you were closed."

"But we don't have a holiday for Harry Reems's birthday," contests the man.

"We do now, toots," says the woman. "Since Uncle Sam got into the sex game."

"I see," the man continues, "but two days ago I called, but all I got was either a busy signal or a recording that said, 'Press one for straight sex; two for kinky; three if perverted, but you must furnish your own chicken.'

"I'm not into chickens, so I pressed two but nobody ever came on the line."

"Sorry," the woman replies. "That's not my department. So what is it you want?"

"I want to know where the girls are? Don't they come out in their underpants and I get to pick the one I want?"

"Not anymore," says the woman. "First, fill out these forms and then stand in that line over there to register.

"Then, you come back here and I'll stamp your forms and then you can go stand in that other line to pay the cashier."

"This is ridiculous," says the man. "I just want a girl and take her to a room."

"You don't pick out a girl anymore. After you see the cashier, you will be assigned a caseworker, and she'll give you an appointment to come back another time. We're currently booking a year from next January."

The man stands in line for two hours and completes all his forms. He meets with a government caseworker, who also appears bored, and gets an appointment for early 1992.

Desperate, he turns back to the woman at the information desk, just back from her break, and pleads, "Look, why can't you and I just go to a room and..."

"Are you kidding?" she answers. "That's not my job description. I'm an Administrative Clerk 4. I don't want to jeopardize my retirement."

"That's it for me," says the man. "It's obvious the government is new to this sort of thing."

"Not so fast, Sweetcakes," the woman says, "the government has been in this sort of thing, so to speak, for a long, long time.

"Next."

'Killer' bees enter U.S., scientist says

WESLACO (AP) — The first known swarm of Africanized "killer" bees has entered the United States from Mexico, and the bees were trapped and destroyed, officials said Wednesday.

A quarantine was imposed on bees in the area.

The swarm was trapped Monday east of the border city of Hidalgo in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, said Anita Collins, head researcher with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Honey Bee Research Lab in Weslaco.

"It has been confirmed Africanized," Ms. Collins said. To the unaided eye, Africanized bees look like other honeybees, the USDA says; the only way to tell is through microscopic examination.

Hundreds of traps have been placed in southern Texas to detect bees crossing the border. Scientists have expected them since a swarm was trapped last November about 150 miles south of Brownsville in the northern Mexican border state of Tamaulipas.

Ms. Collins said the swarm caught Monday was taken alive in a trap baited with a natural chemical sex lure known as a pheromone. They were killed after their identify was confirmed at the laboratory in Weslaco.

Several stowaway swarms have been trapped at U.S. ports aboard ships from Latin America, and one swarm arrived in California aboard a truck loaded with oil drilling equipment.

On Wednesday, officials put into effect the emergency Texas Africanized Honey Bee Management Plan, said John G. Thomas, extension entomologist with the Texas Agricultral Extension Service.

Poll shows Richards closing in on Williams

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrat Ann Richards' gubernatorial campaign was buoyed Wednesday by a new opinion poll showing her narrowing what had been a double-digit gap with Republican Clayton Williams.

"It means that Clayton Williams is in a free-fall situation, and there doesn't seem to be a bottom to the fall," said Richards press secretary Bill Cryer.

Several newspapers Wednesday published results of a Gallup organization telephone poll of 1,006 registered voters, conducted Friday through Saturday. Among all registered voters, it showed 45 percent for Williams and 40 percent supporting Richards. Fifteen percent said they were undecided.

Gordon Hensley, spokesman for Williams, said the campaign believes a more accurate measure was the poll's findings among "most likely" voters. In that category, the poll had Williams ahead by a 49 percent to 39 percent margin.

"The accurate characterization here is that Ann Richards is in a total stall," Hensley said. "The Gallup numbers of most likely voters shows Williams with a 10-point lead."

Richards' spokesman said the race is getting close.

"He spent $15 million, a substantial portion of that on television, so people have seen him so many times that he has worn thin. They haven't particularly liked him, and they like him less every time they see him," Cryer said.

In addition, the Richards aide said, Williams' verbal gaffes about women have weighed heavily, and the Republican's refusal to shake Richards' hand at a joint appearance last week "was the proverbial straw that broke the camel's back."

Hensley said the GOP camp believes Richards' support has peaked.

"She was at 40 (percent) a month ago; she's at 40 today. No matter what she spends on TV (advertising), she has been stuck there for weeks," Hensley said.

Get ready for fall, winter driving with handy tips

The National Institute for Automotive Service (ASE), a non-profit organization which administers national certification tests to automotive technicians, offers the following tips to help you get ready for fall and winter driving. Some are a cinch; others require the skilled hands of a professional auto technician.

1. Getting started. All drivers, even those who never turn a wrench, should start by reading the owner's manual and becoming familiar with the basic vehicular systems. Motorists will be happily surprised to learn that the manufacturer has provided numerous useful tips on driving, safety and maintenance. The recommended service schedules should be followed.

2. General cleaning/maintenance. Autumn is the perfect time to apply a protective coat of wax or polish. Inspect all lights and replace burned out bulbs. Replace worn wiper blades - summer's dust and insects are tough on them - and make certain you have plenty of washer fluid to fight road salts and grime. Carry emergency gear such as gloves, boots, blankets, flares, a flashlight, etc.

3. Battery. The battery is called on to work very hard in cold weather (hard starts in the mornings, increased use of headlights and the heater blower, etc.) but as temperatures drop so does the cranking power of most batteries. Battery failure is a typical cold-weather problem. The only accurate way to detect a weak battery is with the professional equipment available at good repair shops. Most people, though, can perform routine care.

Scrape away corrosion from posts and cable connections; clean all surfaces; re-tighten all connections. Wear eye protection and rubber gloves to avoid contact with the corrosive deposits and acid.

4. Engine oil. The oil change is one of the most vital maintenance tasks, yet it is one of the most neglected. The oil and filter should be changed as specified in your owner's manual - more often (every 3,000 miles) if you do a lot of stop-and-go-driving, carry heavy loads or drive long distances.

5. Cooling system. To help prevent radiator freeze-ups and/or overheating, the cooling system should be completely flushed and refilled about every 24 months. The level, condition and concentration of the coolant should be checked periodically. Never remove the radiator cap until the engine has cooled down. A 50/50 mix of anti-freeze and water is usually recommended. The tightness and condition of drive belts, clamps and hoses should be checked by a pro.

6. Engine performance. If you noticed engine driveability problems such as rough idling, hard starts, stalling and diminished power during the summer, by all means get them corrected now before harsh weather sets in. The air, fuel and PCV filters should be replaced according to the manufacturers' recommendations.

7. Heater/defroster. For your comfort and safety, the heater and defroster should be in good working condition. To prevent potentially deadly fumes from entering your vehicle, have your exhaust system examined for leaks and the underbody (and trunk) inspected for small holes.

8. Tires. Balding tires are a safety hazard and of little use in snow and slush. Tires should be rotated about every 5,000 miles. The air pressure should be checked once a month; let the tires "cool down" first. Check the sidewalls for nicks and cuts. Examine tires for tread life, uneven wearing and cupping.

9. Brakes. Regular maintenance will extend the life of your brakes and will prevent more costly repairs due to neglect. Brakes should be inspected as recommended by your manual, so sooner if you notice pulsations, grabbing, noises or longer stopping distances.

10. Finding good auto service. A repair shop is only as good as the technicians who work there. An increasingly popular way to judge the technical know-how of individual technicians is to look for certification. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) conducts the only national, industry-wide competency testing program for working technicians.

FALL CAR CARE

Jack Sherman Chevrolet Geo Saab employs skilled service staff

You can trust the care of your car with professionals like Jerry Griffith, shop foreman at Jack Sherman Chevrolet Geo and Saab. Griffith has the distinction of having attained Chevrolet Master Technician status for the last three years.

Griffith assists in the diagnosis of difficult, intermittent and hard to isolate car problems. As shop foreman, he also teaches the Jack Sherman technical staff the skills he has learned in 23 years in the auto industry. He has been associated with Jack Sherman for eight years.

Over the years, Griffith has completed more than 100 training courses at four different colleges. His expertise is a great contribution to the success of the Jack Sherman service department.

Jack Sherman Chevrolet Geo and Saab offers the finest service and parts available to repair your General Motors and Saab vehicles. In addition to original equipment replacement parts, Jack Sherman offers factory trained specialists — each certified by GM in their repair specialty.

Plus, each technician holds Automotive Service Excellence certification, which is recognized throughout the automotive industry as a tool for gauging their ability. ASE is nationwide skill level testing in areas including body, brakes, electrical, transmission, engine, front end, heating and air conditioning.

Each technician attends several forms of extensive training throughout the year. One is training conducted by the General Motors training center in Garland or at several remote training facilities. The latest round of training is based on electronics and their application to the automobile. This requires from two to eight days to complete prior to training in areas of driveability, transmission, ABS brake systems and supplemental inflatable systems or air bags.

In addition to the GM training center, Jack Sherman technicians also receive satellite training from the GM Dealer Satellite Network, which is taped and utilized along with videos sent by GM for weekly in house training.

Jack Sherman's dedication to customer satisfaction is backed by the best trained people offering full service to your vehicle at competitive prices in the shortest time needed to perform quality repairs.

Jack Sherman Chevrolet Geo and Saab is located at 4100 West Wall and is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Also offered is free courtesy car pickup and delivery between 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Most major credit cards are accepted. Call 694-9601 for more information.

Village Lincoln Mercury Dodge is at your service, literally. The new commitment campaign, "At Your Service," was created especially for each customer who purchases a new vehicle at Village.

"At Your Service" offers the following benefits: A bumper-to-bumper 100 percent maintenance-free warranty for 12 months or 12,000 miles.

The Village service department will perform all required maintenance including an oil and filter change every 3000 miles. Village literally warranties your warranty.

Also included in the new campaign is the call back program to ensure your complete satisfaction after any repairs are performed in our shop.

As always Village offers a free shuttle service. You can be dropped off or picked up at your door. Your service experience is designed to be hassle free.

Service department manager Jim Connell is proud of the Village service department, where highly qualified technicians are employed to ensure your vehicle is repaired right the first time.

"Our goal is to maintain high quality service," explained Connell. "Customer satisfaction is very important to us. Our customer satisfaction index with Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corporation are among the highest in our industry."

In a hurry for quick maintenance? Village offers while you wait service for oil and filter changes, as well as state inspections.

Turn to Sloan Brothers Buick Mazda Daihatsu for great service

For quality body work and service on your car, trust the experts at Sloan Brothers Buick Mazda Daihatsu, 2625 West Wall.

Pat Patterson, body shop manager, has been associated with Sloan Brothers for 19 years. Tony Mayfield is assistant manager.

"We have really good relations with insurance companies," assessed Patterson. "Our body shop is well known with them. We believe we are the largest body shop operation between Ft. Worth and El Paso. Our service is your service."

The dependable employees who make up the Sloan Brothers body shop are specialists in GM, Ford, Chrysler, AMC and foreign models. Trained personnel offer fast, quality service on autos, pickups and light trucks. In fact, you can rely on the expertise of these specialists who have many years of combined body shop experience.

Free estimates, pick up, delivery and free in-town wrecker services are all available.

Call Pat Patterson or Tony Mayfield at 683-2761 or 563-0573 for more information. Body shop hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturdays when necessary.

Another important Sloan Brothers asset is the service department, which has been managed by Travis Kendrick for 19 years. He and his staff work with the CAMS machine, a computerized diagnostic machine for GM cars, and a special front end machine.

Front end alignments are a specialty at this shop. Sloan Brothers technicians can perform four wheel alignments on front wheel drive cars. "We work on just about all lines," stressed Kendrick. "All types of general automotive jobs are welcome."

All Sloan Brothers mechanics are certified by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence.

Parts manager Don Kennedy has eight years of experience in the automotive parts business. Sloan Brothers offers a complete parts department with a large inventory of GM parts. He is happy to serve you with your parts needs.

Service department hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 683-2761 for more information.

Fuel-efficient driving combines common sense, time, effort

Associated Press

DETROIT — The days of wild swings in gasoline prices are just a Mideast crisis away. During the first three weeks of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, gasoline prices rose an average of a penny a day.

Consumers who can't reduce their driving and plan to keep their current car for a while still can cut fuel costs by using a little common sense and spending a little time on their vehicle.

One of the best ways to conserve gasoline is to organize a driving route before starting out. If planned carefully, a driver can avoid backtracking which wastes gasoline and time.

Also choose a time of day when traffic is lightest to avoid getting involved in any fuel-wasting traffic jams.

The United States Auto Club of Dallas says trips of five miles or less make up 15 percent of the driving in the United States and consume 30 percent of all fuel.

Planning also pays off when getting ready for a trip. The less packed into the trunk, the less weight the car has to haul. Try to avoid rooftop loads which increase wind resistance and gobble fuel.

Proper maintenance of a vehicle also can save gallons of gasoline. Keep tires inflated to recommended pressures, be sure the air filter is clean, keep the engine tuned and change oil according to the manufacturer's recommendations.

"When a car needs maintenance, it typically will use 5 percent) to 25 percent more gas than when it's well-cared for," says Ken Lehman, chairman of the Car Care Council in Port Clinton, Ohio.

Once on the road, motorists can get more miles per gallon by driving sensibly. The U.S. Auto Club and vehicle manufacturers offer these fuel-efficient driving tips:

- After starting the car in cold weather, let it warm up no longer than 30 seconds. When driving with a cold or cool engine, avoid sudden accelerations if possible.
- Allow the car to idle for no more than a minute or two. Waiting in a drive-in bank line or at a railroad crossing with a long train crawling by can eat fuel needlessly.
- Avoid quick accelerating or braking.
- Use the same foot to control the accelerator and the brake, which would eliminate the possibility of "riding the brake."
- Drive at steady speeds whenever possible.
- Use the air conditioner for highway driving but turn it off and open the windows at lower speeds. According to General Motors Corp., air drag created by open windows at 50 mph or more can cause more fuel consumption than the extra gas used when an air conditioner is on and windows are closed.

Jerry Acosta knows automotive body work inside and out. The July 1990 Berg Motors Body Technician of the Month is one of the many reasons customers continue to trust the Berg Motors body shop with the repairs of their crash damaged vehicles.

Acosta, a Berg technician since 1978, is talented in all areas of body work and refinishing. The Automotive Service Excellence Award and the I-Car Certificate of Achievement (completion of an eight part unibody repair course) are among his many professional accomplishments.

Acosta also has the distinction, along with body shop manager Sam Rivera, of belonging to the Cadillac Craftsmen League. Both have scored in the top five percent nationwide each time they have taken the examination.

Because of his extensive training, Acosta can repair the new Olds Silhouette, the all-plastic vehicle which calls for innovative repair techniques.

Sam Rivera, body shop manager, said of Acosta, "Jerry is an extremely talented professional who takes his work seriously and is committed to customer service and satisfaction."

This dedication to service is apparent throughout the Berg Motors body shop. Berg customers demand and receive long-lasting repairs on their crash damaged vehicles.

All of the Berg technicians are trained in the proper repair procedures, including rust proofing and undercoating repairs to their pre-accident condition.

Two car-o-liner bench systems allow Rivera and his staff to repair vehicles back to factory specifications when they have unistructure damage. Berg's skilled technicians are all trained in the proper fitting and alignment of sheet metal.

An in-house paint mixing system allows Berg specialists to mix paint for any vehicle on the spot and assures a color match on every job, either by tinting or blending.

"We know that the appearance of our office, shop and high tech equipment is enough to impress most customers," concluded Rivera.

"But the real test of success is in the product that we turn out. A special thanks to all Berg Motor customers. We appreciate your patronage."

Berg Body Shop, located behind Midas Muffler at 3208 Henderson, is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Call 699-4618 for more information.

Rogers Ford-Volvo joins ASSET program

Rogers Ford-Volvo is participating in an innovative training program which will benefit car owners for years to come. The ASSET (Automotive Student Service Educational Training) program is a joint effort between Ford Motor Company, Lincoln-Mercury dealers and Ford dealers such as Rogers Ford-Volvo and New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs, New Mexico.

Midlander and recently retired U.S. Navy veteran Jeff Atkinson is the first area student to be selected for the two-year work/study program.

The purpose of ASSET is to upgrade the technical competency and professional level of the incoming Ford/Lincoln-Mercury dealership service technicians. It will also train Ford ASSET program students to analytically diagnose, service and maintain Ford automotive products using recommended procedures, special tools and Ford service publications.

Additionally, ASSET's purpose includes providing course content which will enable graduates to advance with a dealer's service department after additional experience and to understand new systems and components as they are introduced.

Atkinson is currently enrolled in the first semester of the program. The curriculum utilizes eight week periods of classroom work at the Hobbs campus, alternating with eight week periods of full-time experience at Rogers Ford-Volvo.

Rogers Ford-Volvo pays Atkinson a salary during his eight-week work periods and picks up for insurance and $1000 worth of tools as well. While working for Rogers Ford-Volvo, Atkinson applies, in a real world setting, what he has learned in the previous classroom session. In addition, he will become familiar with the dealership environment, its organizational structure and the competencies that are expected of a professional automotive technician.

All of this effort is just one of the many was Rogers Ford-Volvo works hard to serve its customers.

If your are ready to experience a "hassle free" repair, then bring your car to rogers Ford-Volvo. for 26 years, the qualified technicians have made a commitment to quality customer service.

Wiley Meador, Rogers Ford-Volvo service manager, has 20 experienced technicians who are all qualified to service anything which pertains to an automobile. All of the service technicians are trained to service any Ford or Volvo. And the service department will service any automobile, regardless of the make or model.

To back up the excellent service, the Rogers service department is involved in the Lifetime Service Guarantee program, a customer satisfaction plan that offers a free guarantee on eligible service repairs for the "Life" of the ownership cycle of the repaired vehicle. Customers pay for an eligible repair only once for as long as they own the vehicle.

Under Lifetime, if a covered repair ever fails, you simply return to the service department and your problem will be fixed free — free parts and labor. this is the most comprehensive car and light truck guarantee in the United States.

Rogers Ford-Volvo, located at 4200 W. Highway 80, has the reputation of 26 years of service, genuine Ford and Volvo parts and the staff to service or repair today's high tech cars. New Saturday hours for the parts and service department are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mechanics are on duty for most minor repairs. Call 694-8801 for an appointment or for more information.

Discount Tire to open store tomorrow

Discount Tire Company is scheduled to have its grand opening tomorrow morning at 8:30 a.m., said a store spokesman. It is located in front of Wal-Mart at 3100 North Loop 250. The bright, modern facility is the 216th in the nationwide chain, which now operates in 11 states.

The store carries Michelin, B.F. Goodrich, General, Lee, Pirelli and Yokohama tires, among other brands. Prices are guaranteed to be the lowest in town.

Discount Tire Company also specializes in the sale and installation of custom wheels. Manager Mark Norman said that in addition to the obvious cosmetic value of custom wheels, they are considerably lighter yet more sturdy than wheels that come as standard equipment on most vehicles.

Norman and his staff will offer several free services at Discount Tire Company. Included are free tire inspections, free tire rotation regardless of where the tires were purchased, and free tire repair. Flats will be fixed free of charge, regardless of where the tire was purchased.

Norman emphasised that he guarantees his prices to be the lowest in town. In fact, he said he will adjust his prices almost daily to beat the competition and to make sure his prices are the lowest.

Discount Tire Company is scheduled to open its doors tomorrow morning, according to a store spokesman. The store is scheduled to open at 8:30 a.m. Discount Tire Company is located at 3100 N. Loop 250, in front of Wal-Mart. It will be the 216th store in the company's chain.

In addition, he said that the National Tire and Rubber Retailers in America, in its magazine, Tire Review, rated Discount Tire as the number one tire retailer in North America for 1989.

The company was founded in 1960 in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Discount Tire's corporate officers realized that "people don't really want cheap tires. They want good tires they can afford." The company began selling more brand name tires, then it began promoting the most prestigious brands at good discounts. The result was that Discount Tire went from doing approximately $70 million in sales per year in the early 1980s to more than $350 million in annual sales today.

How did they do this? Put simply, they put a lot of emphasis on people as well as on quality products. All Discount Tire Company personnel are well trained, friendly and efficient. They offer outstanding service and all of their work is guaranteed. And the prices? As manager Norman said, "We won't be undersold."

Stop by the new Discount Tire Company store at 3100 N. Loop 250. Store hours are 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays. The store is closed on Sundays. Call 694-0098 for more information.

FALL CAR CARE

Littlefield Automotive specializes in service for European cars

Littlefield Automotive has served the needs of area European automobile drivers for more than 12 years.

Midland Reporter-Telegram readers named Littlefield Automotive the "Best independent import auto repair shop in Midland" earlier this year.

Owners Hayden and Ronnie Littlefield specialize in everything but body work for Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Audi, Volvo, Volkswagen, Porsche and Saab. They have undergone extensive training at Mercedes-Benz factory schools.

In addition, Hayden and Ronnie are Bosch auto parts specialists. With that distinction they receive up to date service bulletins and have access to Bosch technical and training schools.

The Littlefields invite you to come by the shop at 1810 West Front Street for any of your import auto needs.

For fall and winter driving, let the experts at Littlefield Automotive check your car over for proper preventive maintenance.

Be sure to compare their low prices before having your European-built car serviced or repaired elsewhere. For example, an oil change for a Mercedes-Benz is offered at an everyday low price of about $42.00.

"Under the Magnuson-Moss Act, all you have to do to keep your car's warranty in force is to have the car serviced at regular intervals specified in your owner's manual or warranty booklet and keep records of the services," said Hayden.

Also, all of the services performed at Littlefield Automotive are performed to comply with manufacturers' manuals and specifications and they conform with their high standards.

"We are the best equipped independent shop in the Permian Basin," noted Ronnie. "We have the latest equipment, such as a four wheel alignment machine for independent suspension, a computer tire balancer, sun diagnostic equipment and an exhaust gas analyzer. And we are a certified Texas state inspection station."

Littlefield Automotive has a large supply of european car parts in stock, and has access to parts for older cars, also.

As an example, it was no problem at all for the Littlefields to locate a clutch for a 1958 Mercedes-Benz,and the part was shipped to them overnight. Littlefield Automotive offers same day service on most repairs.

Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 683-8611 for an appointment or more information.

Littlefield Automotive, located at 1810 W. Front, offers complete service on European built cars. From left are owners Ronnie Littlefield and Hayden Littlefield.

The only exclusive Toyota dealer in the Permian Basin is Permian Toyota, located at 3110 West Wall. Owner Chuck Davis, who had a 23-year career with General Motors as a factory representative, takes pride in his dealership and staff, which offers quality sales, service and body repair.

Since opening in 1973, Permian Toyota has grown into a multi-million dollar business.

"We are one of the few, and I daresay perhaps the only independent foreign car business in the Permian Basin which has a complete facility for new and used parts, body and service," said Davis. "We maintain a body shop because foreign cars are so special."

Attention to service is evident at Permian Toyota where state of the art equipment and a qualified staff of technicians are ready to put your car in peak condition. "We have some of the newest repair equipment in the Permian Basin," Davis noted, "such as electronic wheel balancers and a six beam laser frame machine for body repairs."

You can trust your foreign car to Permian Toyota and its experienced staff. "We have an individual who is, in my opinion, not a parts replacer, but a mechanic's mechanic," assessed Davis. "He is almost an engineer and can fix anything."

"He specializes in foreign cars and is absolutely marvelous. He is completely certified with Toyota in all nine certification areas and is NAISE certified as well."

The 1991 Toyota Camry is one sleek package, and a superior choice in a contemporary car if there ever was one. Find out more information on the Camry from Permian Toyota, located at 3110 W. Wall in Midland.

Davis is extremely proud of the Permian Toyota parts department. "We maintain, for our size dealership, a rather large parts inventory. We are the only Toyota dealer in this part of the country with a body shop and good, quality service."

Not only does Permian Toyota specialize in service, but it is a leader among dealerships in helping to protect the environment. "We encourage people to bring us their used oil for recycling," said Davis. "We also have a freon recycling machine which will stop the emissions which are released into the atmosphere everytime an air-conditioner is serviced."

"Our freon recycling machine is one of the first at a Toyota dealer and one of the first in the Permian Basin," Davis added.

If you are looking for a fine car, turn to Chuck Davis and Permian Toyota. "Toyota is proud that it has kept up with the times and has become a style leader in the 1990s. Toyota is historically known for its quality and economy," he said. "We try to sell with an eye to future business. We sell the needs and are extremely careful not to oversell."

See today's ad in this section for fall and winter car care specials. Stop by soon and see the Toyota difference at Permian Toyota, 3110 W. Wall. The parts and service department is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and new and used sales operate from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The approach most car repair guarantees take to protect you.

The problem with most car repair guarantees is they give you only temporary coverage.

Many cover parts but not labor. And many of those that do cover both parts and labor don't do so for long. That's why there's the Lifetime Service Guarantee.

LIFETIME SERVICE GUARANTEE

Once you pay for a covered repair, it's guaranteed, with free parts and labor, for as long as you own your car or light truck.

In fact, nationwide, it covers more parts and labor longer than any other. That makes it America's best car repair guarantee.

Developed by Ford Motor Company, it's offered only by participating Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers. And only Ford, Lincoln and Mercury owners get it.

So ask your dealer for a copy of this limited warranty. The Lifetime Service Guarantee. Because Peace of Mind℠ is being wrapped in blanket coverage for life. Not a bandage that's sure to fall off before you know it.

FALL CAR CARE

Western Auto is open seven days a week to serve your automotive needs. From left are Robert Hulsey, store manager, Ron Stright, store president and Arthur Athens, store manager.

Western Auto bays open daily for quality car care

Western Auto is open seven days a week to service your car and to provide quality automotive aftermarket products at low prices.

Unlike most auto shops, Western Auto service bays are open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays. With these convenient hours, the Western Auto service staff is ready to prepare your car for spring driving.

"Our seven bay service department can handle anything it takes to get your car ready for fall and winter driving," assessed Ron Stright, store president. This includes an antifreeze check and a radiator flush. Be sure your car is in top shape for travel at all times with a Western Auto check of hoses and belts.

More than 2000 tires are in stock and Western Auto can fit almost any car on the road at an affordable price. Also, if you are looking for after market chrome wheels and accessories, make Western Auto your source.

The service department at Western Auto specializes in tires, brakes, front end work, suspension repair, complete front end work and alignments, such as two and four wheel alignments. For the do-it-yourselfer, Western Auto carries a full line of hoses and belts, and famous make batteries such as AC Delco and Die Hard and Western Auto batteries made by Delco. Batteries are installed free of charge. A full line of Monroe shocks are available for installation. These shocks have lifetime warranties.

Western Auto runs periodic specials on cooling system items, so check your Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Other items which Western Auto specializes in include a full line of rebuilt parts, such as alternators, starters and water pumps.

For your vehicle upkeep, Western Auto offers car care manuals, cleaning care products, custom accessory items, such as auto graphic decals and a large inventory of mail order accessories.

Western Auto warranties are honored at all Western Auto locations across the United States.

Stop by the corner of Andrews Highway and Midkiff today and see the service difference and the convenience which sets Western Auto apart from the rest. Call 697-1254 for more information.

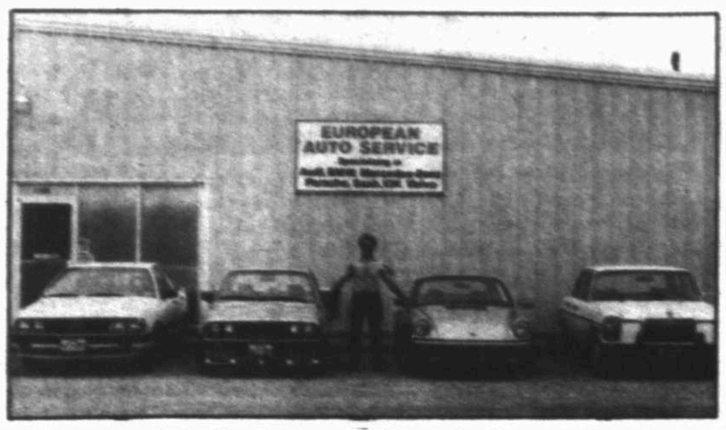
Alldata strengthens European Auto Service

For quality, dependable work on European cars, turn to Tony Smith and his experienced staff at European Auto Service, located at 3200 Commercial Drive. If you own a BMW, Porsche, Mercedes-Benz, Audi, Saab, Volvo, Volkswagen, Jaguar or MG, you will enjoy the personal service and price savings available with this five-year-old repair and service shop.

European Auto Service is "physically the largest independent import auto specialist in the area," said Tony Smith.

"We do everything the dealers do, with the same information and the same parts, and we guarantee our work for six months or 6,000 miles. In all cases of factory-required services, we can do whatever it takes. If it's a free service that you can get done at your own dealer, we'll tell you and send you there."

European Auto Service features Alldata, the most up to date computerized information available. It gives access to all manufacturer information, service bulletins and recall information, as well as helps with troubleshooting. "We are the only ones in Midland County to have Alldata," said Smith.



European Auto Service owner Tony Smith and his talented technical staff specialize in custom service and maintenance for European cars. European Auto Service is located at 3200 Commercial Drive.

The considerable investment involved in Alldata is a reflection of a sign of the times and the fact that people keep their cars longer than before. "And the longer the people keep their cars, the more things go wrong with them," said Smith. "The fact is that you can fix any car for less than you can buy a new car."

European Auto Service has a highly qualified staff on hand, with 60 years of cumulative experience to service your European built car. In addition, this shop has a large parts inventory in excess of $40,000. "Any parts we don't have we can generally get overnight," said Smith. Hard to find parts for old cars are no problem for the expests at European Auto Service.

The staff can perform oil changes, overhauls, fuel injection work, electrical work, air conditioning work and specialized work for race car preparation. European Auto Service is one of the only shops in the area which uses a carbon monoxide machine for adjusting fuel injection. "We also have a leak detection system to pinpoint oil, air conditioning and transmission leaks. We are one of the only shops in the area to have this," explained Smith.

The philosophy behind European Auto Service is a dedication to hard work and service. "An independent shop such as ours will work a little harder because we don't have a guaranteed audience," explained Smith. "The customers we have are the ones we work for. That's why we have the six month or 6,000 mile guarantee."

Depend on the staff of Ken Yates, service manager, Cary Stotts, assistant service manager, technicians Robert Powell, Phil Manners, parts manager Bruce Pullig, and trainee Steve McKinney.

All cars are locked inside overnight. Free estimates are available by calling 682-1593. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

'Frac' companies ex-manager testifies

■ Former manager of oil-well fracturing companies says he schemed, cheated and stole from oil companies.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The ex-manager of oil-well fracturing companies testified in Midland federal court Wednesday that he schemed, cheated and stole from independent and major oil companies to offset discounts on fracturing jobs and to make the "frac" companies profitable.

"We got as much back as we possibly could for the bottom-line profit," said Gary Gene "Zeke" Lancaster, the former district manager for the old Midland-based Cardinal Chemical Company, area operations manager for the Dallas-based Dresser Industries after Dresser bought out Cardinal in late 1979, and district manager of BJ-Titan Services.

Lancaster turned out to be the most dramatic of the score of witnesses called by Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co., which is waging a lawsuit of well over $120 million against Dresser; Dresser-Titan; BJ-Titan, a joint venture of Dresser and BJ-Services of Houston; and BJ-Hughes. In 1988, Dresser sold its fracturing interest to Hughes Tool Co., which by that time had merged with BJ-Services of Houston.

Parker & Parsley is charging that deficient fracturing materials, including sand, gels, surfactant, and acids injected into about 500 of its wells in the Spraberry Field east of Midland from 1983 to mid-1988 stymied optimum oil production. For that, the Midland company is seeking $100 million. Additionally, the company is seeking $20 million for shorted materials.

Prior to Lancaster's testimony Wednesday night, treaters — service engineers — who had mixed and pumped the hydraulic fracturing mix into Spraberry formations, testified that they were aware of the shortages. The workers suggested that the shortages were ordered by Lancaster, but they feared they would lose their jobs by challenging him about the shortages.

In his testimony, Lancaster, who was examined by Parker & Parsley's attorney, Jerry Jones of Dallas, implicated the former Cardinal owners in earlier shortages and Dresser and BJ-Hughes executives in the shortages in the 1980s.

The executives who testified Wednesday denied any knowledge of contrived shortages, which they called "material variances." Even so, they credited Lancaster for operating a profitable fracturing-service business during tough times in the oil field.

Gerald K. "Jerry" Staires, regional manager of BJ-Titan Services in Midland, said that Lancaster was being "investigated" by the company in 1988. Later, he was fired for theft from the company and not for cheating on materials ordered by Parker & Parsley's engineers.

But in a 1988 meeting at an Odessa Holiday Inn coffee shop between Lancaster's office in

MCAD may buy computerized mapping system

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

The board of the Midland Central Appraisal District (MCAD) discussed the pros and cons of buying a computerized mapping system for the appraisal district at its monthly meeting Wednesday.

It is considering Denver-based Prime Computer System's System 9, which would give the district the ability to plot tracts, ownership and property values on a computer and print out adjusted maps, said Chief Appraiser Ron Stegall.

He said the system is the same one used by the city of Midland's engineering department, and its adoption by MCAD would make the two entities computer-compatible.

Currently the tax district does its mapping by hand and indexes values on an AS 400 computer.

Gilbert Tompson, chairman of the board, estimated the cost of the System 9 hardware, software and start-up package at $90,000, two or three times as expensive as some other mapping systems. He said maintenance costs would increase by about $3,000 a year.

"The staff needs to look at this pretty closely to see if we can return that kind of dividend to the district or if we can do the job just as well without it," Tompson said. He added that a savings in personnel costs or an increase in efficiency would make the system worth the expense.

Stegall said the system's cost is comparable to the district's current map company contract, which cost $90,000 in its first year of operation.

He added that the district is in good financial shape for making the purchase, as it expects to rebate about $100,000 in administrative costs to the taxing entities in early 1991.

Board member Walter B. Holton supported the idea of the system because the district could borrow data already compiled by the city and build on it to include the whole county.

Stegall said several taxing entities served by the district could make use of the district's purchase, including the city and the county, which could see improved 911 service through thorough mapping.

Bunton denies retrial of GISD cafeteria workers' suit

By David Morris
Staff Writer

U.S. District Court Judge Lucius Bunton denied a motion Wednesday for a retrial of the lawsuit filed against the Greenwood Independent School District (GISD) by disgruntled cafeteria workers.

On Aug. 25, a jury in federal court awarded the five workers — who claimed they were fired after complaining about being forced to work without pay — more than $580,000 in damages.

Attorneys for GISD filed a motion for retrial on Aug. 31, claiming that one of the six jurors who heard the suit formed an opinion on the case before it came to trial.

According to the motion, juror Velda Keith told an acquaintance prior to the trial that she thought the workers had been fired. GISD officials maintained that the workers had quit.

George Smith, a Greenwood computer operator, testified Wednesday that he talked to Ms. Keith about the case last December, shortly after the workers lost their jobs.

"She...understood that they had been fired, not quit," said Smith, whose own wife has been a GISD cafeteria worker for five years.

Smith said he talked about the Greenwood situation with Ms. Keith during a visit to a Midland doctor's office where she worked as a receptionist.

But Ms. Keith, who has two grandchildren attending GISD schools, denied ever speaking with Smith about the cafeteria workers.

"Whenever he came in the office, I just pulled his chart and that was it," she said. "I didn't even know his wife worked there (at GISD)."

Ms. Keith also denied overhearing an office conversation about the workers' plight.

The five workers — Linda Hopper, Johnnie Knowlton, Frances Popham, Cheryl Casbeer and Terry Mansell — refused to comment on Bunton's decision. Their attorney, Melissa Hirsch, said she was not surprised by the ruling.

"The judge did what I expected him to do," she said. "I'm sure he felt the case had been tried and tried properly and that the judgment should stand."

Miles Nelson, an attorney for GISD, said another motion for retrial in the case is pending, along with motions to rescind the jury's award. If those motions fail, he said, GISD will have to decide whether to appeal the case to a higher court.

Vicky Moody, GISD school board president, said the district will appeal if the motions fail.

The cafeteria workers filed suit against GISD in February. They claimed that then-GISD Superintendent Hal Porter fired them after they complained about having to prepare meals for GISD trustees without being paid to do so.

The suit, which sought $1.5 million in damages, alleged that GISD violated the Fair Labor Standards Act and the state Whistle Blower's Statute.

Hightower's values made issue by Perry

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

The Rick Perry campaign took a ugly turn Wednesday when the Republican agriculture commissioner candidate questioned his opponent's values during a press conference.

Perry

"Jim Hightower said, 'You are who you walk with, your values are known by your associations,'" Perry began.

"With Willie Nelson as a major fund-raiser and (Nelson's) questionable values on legalizing marijuana who wants the people of Texas to have an elected official hobnobbing with someone like that?

"I don't think it's OK for children to do drugs."

Perry also referred to Hightower's chairmanship of Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign and an FBI investigation of the Texas Department of Agriculture as indicative of his "vastly different values."

Perry said he was beginning a

Alzheimer's victims' families encouraged by caregivers

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Watching a loved one die of Alzheimer's disease is a life changing experience, according to several Midlanders.

"It marks you somehow and makes you different," said Kathryn Nichols, whose mother died as a result of Alzheimer's disease several years ago. "In some way, you never get it off of your mind again," she added.

Because caring for someone with Alzheimer's disease is such a unique experience, caregivers say they are the best ones to provide support for those dealing with the disease.

"We know what to expect," said Susie Reid, whose late mother also had Alzheimer's. "The Midland support group really got me by," she said.

Alzheimer's disease assaults the brain. It causes deterioration of the brain, leaving mature adults with such traumatic living debilities that their existence has been labeled "a living funeral." The disease debilitates not only the patient but his or her caregiver. Caregivers often become trapped providing round-the-clock care to a loved one who can no longer function in society.

Alzheimer's patients initially experience forgetfulness, memory loss and disorientation, which makes it difficult to function in society. Hallucinations may cause them to exhibit bizarre behavior which frightens other people.

"Dealing with Alzheimer's is devastating to a family," Ms. Reid said. "Nobody can really understand how it feels until it happens to them."

Alzheimer's differs from other terminal illnesses in the respect that it may progress during the course of 20 years.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

People who want to do something for Alzheimer's victims and their families can raise funds simply by walking.

The Memory Walk, a fund-raiser for the Permian Basin Chapter of the national organization of Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association Inc., will be a one-day event Nov. 3.

Participants will walk approximately 10 kilometers, or six miles, according to Mariene Groce, member of the Permian Basin Alzheimer's organization. The 10-kilometer course is on the campus of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

"Walkers will have sponsors," Ms. Groce said. "The average sponsor may offer to pay $1 a kilometer, for a total of $10 for the 10 kilometers."

Those not able to participate in the walk may make a donation in honor of the Memory Walk.

Participants may register individually or as a group. Walkers can complete the course at their own pace and the walk will be staged rain or shine, according to organizers. In the case of inclement weather, walkers will be credited with

City wants to build training facility for airport firefighters

■ Midland will seek FAA funds for its proposal to build a regional facility for airport firefighters.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

City of Midland officials have planned to take a stab at landing federal dollars to build a regional training facility for airport firefighters, City Manager Fred Poe said Wednesday.

Though it is unlikely the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), which may not even approve the concept, would select Midland over larger cities as a site for the facility, the grant is worth pursuing, Poe said.

The project, he said, would cost from $2 million to $3 million, about 90 percent of which would be paid through an FAA grant.

"The FAA has expressed a desire to have a regional training facility for airport firefighters, but we don't think there's a big chance to get it," Poe said. "Somebody like Dallas, Houston or El Paso, which have bigger airports, would probably get it, but you never know."

The Midland proposal is lucrative because plenty of land is available for the drill site, which would be located just north of the Midland International Airport's north-south runway, he said.

In addition, Midland International's air traffic is not as congested as it is at larger cities' airports, he said. Drills here would have to be scheduled at least 30 minutes before aircraft landings, he added.

Midland Fire Department Chief James Roberts said the facility, which could have several full-time employees, could be an economic asset to the area.

"They're supposedly money makers," Roberts said. "But it may be a pipe dream to get one."

Poe said the facility probably would include mock aircrafts and buildings that would become infernos for firefighters to battle.

If the city fails to get an FAA grant for a regional facility, Poe said it is almost certain to get one for a proposed local training facility for "hot drills." The FAA re-

DEATHS

Fred L. Fisher

Fred L. Fisher, 79, father of Mardell Fryar of Midland, died Monday in Novato, Calif.

Services will be held today at the chapel of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Mill Valley, Calif. Burial will follow at the Valley Memorial Park in Novato, under the direction of Keaton Mortuary of Novato.

Fisher was born in rural Kansas on June 1, 1911. He graduated from high school in Muskogee, Okla., and earned his bachelor's of arts degree from the Oklahoma Baptist University in Shawnee, Okla. Fisher earned his master's and Ph.D. in theology from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth.

He was a minister and professor of New Testament interpretation and Greek studies, first at Northern Baptist Seminary in Chicago, Ill., then at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

In 1953, Fisher took the chair in New Testament interpretation at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary and in 1976, became the director of the southern California campus of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Orange County.

Fisher retired in January and returned to Novato. He was the author of 17 theological books.

Other survivors include his wife: Leah G. Fisher of Novato; another daughter, Jennie Lea Conboy of Clayton, Calif.; Louise Ann Sexton of Novato; and Lynn Powell of Lake County, Calif.; and six grandchildren.

Robert W. Stuart

SAN ANTONIO — Graveside services for former Midlander Robert W. Stuart, 81, were Friday at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery under the direction of Porter Loring Mortuary.

He died Oct. 10 at a San Antonio hospital.

Born in 1909 in Houston, he married Carolyn Luckett in Tulsa, Okla.

A graduate of Rice Institute (now Rice University) with a master's degree in engineering, Stuart was a Navy veteran of World War II.

Before the war he was employed by Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. in drilling research. After his discharge in 1946, he became president of Diamond Oil Well Drilling Co. in Midland, a post he held until 1960.

He worked as a consulting engineer in Dallas and Houston until his retirement in 1982, when he moved to San Antonio.

Survivors include: his wife Carolyn Stuart of San Antonio; two sons, Robert W. Stuart III of Dallas and Thomas Stuart of Austin; one sister, Mary Louise McCann of Corpus Christi; one grandson, one niece and four nephews.

Ralph B. Nash

ODESSA — Services for Ralph B. Nash, 72, are set for 2 p.m. Thursday at the Crescent Park Baptist Church. Burial will follow in Rose Hill Cemetery under the direction of Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

He died Tuesday at a Big Spring hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born Feb. 10, 1918, in Monroe, La., he has been an Odessa resident since 1933 and graduated from Odessa High, where he played on the basketball and volleyball teams.

He married Syble B. Thompson Dec. 7, 1951, in Lovington, N.M. She preceded him in death in 1957.

An Army veteran of World War II, he received the Purple Heart for wounds he received in the Po Valley of northern Italy in June 1944.

He was retired office manager for John Marks Trucking Co.

He was a Baptist.

Survivors include: one son, Burton Huey Nash; one brother, Robert H. Nash of Midland; one sister, Margaret Surratt of Midland; and several nieces and nephews.

Jane Thompson

KATY — Funeral services for former Midlander Jane Thompson, 47, were Sunday at Schmidt Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Charles Wisdom officiating.

A memorial service also was held at Calvary Baptist Church in Grand Prairie Monday. Burial followed in Southland Cemetery in Grand Prairie under the direction of Hughes-Southland Funeral Home.

She died Friday at a Katy hospital.

Born March 8, 1943, in Dallas. She was a longtime Houston resident and had lived in Katy for two years.

Survivors include: her husband, Grady F. Thompson of Katy; one son, Grady F "Trey" Thompson III of Lubbock; her mother, Lydia Jane Fenner of Midland; one brother, Dr. James Fenner of Las Vegas, Nev.; one aunt and one uncle.

Paul King

WICHITA FALLS — Graveside services for Paul King, 80, father of Paul G. King of Midland, will be 2 p.m. today at Holliday Cemetery in Holliday. The Rev. Randy Potter of First Baptist Church of Holliday and Gil Peters of the Holliday First Church of Christ will officiate. Services will be under the direction of Owens and Brumley Funeral Home in Wichita Falls.

King died Tuesday in a Wichita Falls hospital. He was born Sept. 9, 1910, in Buffalo Springs. He was an oil-field worker and had lived in the Holliday area since 1935. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Holliday.

Survivors include his daughter, Leta Fern Ledbetter of Holliday; another son, Don King of Wichita Falls; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife.

John F. McKnight

Funeral services for John Forrest McKnight of New Orleans, La., are scheduled for 1 p.m. today at the Ellis Funeral Home with Father Fred Nawarskas officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Pallbearers are Arley DeWitt Finley III, Robert C. Orson, Trueman Orson, Rufus C. Tom, Myrl D. Mitchell, Marv A. Tom, Alan Evans and Thomas Layman.

Honorary pallbearers are Phillip Wicklein, Frederick P. Schwarz, Joseph Giedriatis, Dr. Neil C. Clements, Dr. William J. McMahon, Richard Darland, Frank Nagore and A.J. "Joe" Erickson.

MC teacher to address writers' group

Staff Report

Larry Griffin will speak to the Writers' Society at 7 p.m. today in the Moody Room, upstairs at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Griffin is a member of the English faculty at Midland College and a published poet.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

FAA: City seeks training facility for firefighters

quires airport firefighters to conduct the drills at least once annually.

"A hot drill is a drill where they set a bunch of oil or gas or some kind of fuel on fire so that it resembles an airplane fire," Poe explained.

Firefighters based at Midland International have been conducting yearly hot drills in an earthen pit near where the Confederate Air Force plans to locate.

Because of the CAF move, the city will have to find another training site within a year, Poe said.

If the city does not win an FAA grant for a regional facility, a new pit for hot drills still must be built, he said. It would be constructed at the same location as the proposed regional project, he said.

The new pit, however, will have to be more than an inexpensive hole in the ground.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) requires that hot drill sites be lined with concrete, under which would be another lining of synthetic material to prevent flammable substances from seeping into soil.

Poe said the city, in conjunction with applying for the regional facility, will ask the FAA for a grant for 90 percent of the between $300,000 and $500,000 needed to build the hot drill pit.

But the city, he said, may not be able to wait on the grant.

"We don't think we'll get it approved in time to build a pit within the next 11 months," he said. "The FAA said we've got to have another fire pit within a year."

Roberts said the firefighters might temporarily get by if they conduct the annual hot drill at an existing training facility on Cloverdale Road southeast of downtown Midland.

But Roberts said that in the face of increasingly strict FAA and EPA regulations on firefighter drill sites, construction of a new pit is inevitable.

"The more you look at this, the worse it becomes," Roberts said of regulations that would affect the proposed hot drill site. "Whatever we do won't be right in 25 years."

ies," he added.

He did not see the Midland County Hospital District, Midland College or Greenwood Independent School District getting much additional use from the system, "but it would help us do a better job of collecting for them," Stegall said.

As an alternative to buying the system, Stegall said he could ask the city how much it would charge to do mapping on its system for the district.

Board member David Grimes suggested Stegall do a cost analysis on the dollars per parcel cost of buying the system versus sharing it with the city.

Stegall said he'd have a report for the Nov. 28 meeting.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

House fire

Staff Reports

Midland firefighters responded to a house fire Wednesday afternoon that caused heavy damage to the living room of the home, officials said.

No one was home at 1508 Scharbauer Drive about 1:55 p.m. when the fire broke out. The residence was home to George and Marisol Mancha and their two children.

The fire started on a couch in the living room and may have been caused by a cigarette, according to fire marshal officials.

Smoke and heat damage was sustained throughout the three-bedroom house.

Statue theft

ODESSA — An Odessa man was arrested Tuesday and charged with desecration of a venerable object in connection with the theft of a $2,200 marble statue of the Virgin Mary from a local cemetery, police officials said.

Richard David Tedford, 25, remained in jail under a $5,000 bond set by Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly.

Tedford was arrested on a warrant stemming from the theft of the statue on Sept. 22 at the Rosehill Cemetery, 300 S. Dixie Blvd.

According to police reports, Tedford also admitted to 12 other recent theft incidents at the graveyard.

Drug charge

A 26-year-old Midland man was arrested Tuesday and charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, police said.

Willie Earl Hutson remained in jail Wednesday under $15,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Hutson was arrested in the 200 block of Lee Street about 6:05 p.m. after police received information from a confidential informant about someone fitting Hutson's description selling drugs.

Upon arrival at the scene, police said they observed Hutson removing something from his shoe and tossing it aside. A matchbox containing 22 "rocks" of crack cocaine valued at $440 was recovered.

Bond posted

BIG SPRING — A 25-year-old man posted a $30,000 bond after being arrested Wednesday for delivery of a controlled substance, Howard County Sheriff's Office officials said.

Jason Rene Walker's arrest stemmed from 18 indictments for 15 Big Spring residents recently handed down by the Howard County grand jury.

On Tuesday, 13 others were arrested on various drug charges following a nine-month undercover operation by the Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

All have been released on bond.

Stolen cars on increase because thieves not afraid, lawman says

AUSTIN (AP) — The flow of stolen vehicles across the Texas-Mexico border is on the rise because thieves have no fear of the law, a state police officer said Wednesday.

"The bottom line is there is no deterrence anymore," Cmdr. Roy Newman of the Texas Department of Public Safety told a special House Committee on Auto Theft and Uninsured Motorists.

"There is no fear of getting caught and there is no fear of incarceration. The profit is so great it simply outweighs the risks," he said.

In 1989, 150,974 vehicles worth $835 million were stolen in Texas, which is about an 11 percent increase from 1988 and more than double than 1980, according to DPS figures.

Newman recommended increased penalties for auto theft, but admitted that would be of little help unless prison space is provided to incarcerate offenders.

Currently, the Texas prison system is at capacity under a federal court order to prevent prison overcrowding and thousands of state inmates are backed up in county jails awaiting transfer.

Texas' heavily trafficked border is the major route to Mexico and Guatemala for cars stolen in Texas and other states, Newman said.

"Vehicles leaving the country will continue to be a problem as long as the border is as wide open as it is now. Those poor people on the border almost feel like they are under siege," he said.

Jim Gimler, a public member of the committee from El Paso, said most car thieves caught there are released through plea bargain arrangements because there is no room for them in the prison system. "It's a joke," he said.

CARE: Victims' families encouraged

(From 1C)

"People need to know what to expect as the disease progresses," said support group member Marlene Groce.

"People also need to talk about their problems with a support group," Ms. Reid said. "It's not the kind of thing you want to unload on just anybody."

Ms. Groce said the financial burden of caring for someone with Alzheimer's is "tremendous."

"Then there is the emotional burden," she said. "I just found out today that there is a daughter who is trying to care for her mother with Alzheimer's, and the daughter is thinking of suicide."

"You feel so alone once the doctor tells you someone has Alzheimer's disease," Ms. Nichols said. "Doctors don't have the time to really discuss the situation with patients."

Ms. Reid said that doctors sometimes feel helpless when dealing with families of Alzheimer's patients, since there is no cure and the person with Alzheimer's "will only get worse anyway."

"You end up dealing with someone who is virtually someone you don't know," she added. "Everything you knew about them is gone and they become like a vegetable."

Ms. Reid said caregivers "have got to use everything we know about this disease to help others. We know more than anyone else."

"It's a shame for caregivers to become so shut off," Ms. Nichols said, "especially for a spouse of someone with Alzheimer's. There you are in the twilight years when finances are weak anyway."

Ms. Groce said caregivers need to get out into the public once in a while.

"They need to get help, get out and get involved in other things," she said. "Otherwise they will fall by the wayside and just exist until they die. We try to change that. People need to live, not just exist."

The Midland support group and the Permian Basin Chapter of the national Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association Inc., are planning a fund-raiser to keep their local outreach operations running.

About 85 percent of the funds raised will stay in the Permian Basin to cover the expenses of providing counseling, support groups and literature to local caregivers.

"We send 15 percent of the funds raised to the national organization," Ms. Groce said, "but they provide us with brochures and posters in return. So the money probably covers those costs."

Walkers will receive a gift bag, packet and visor. Participants will also be eligible to win prizes — provided by local merchants — during the event. Registration is at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 3. The walk will begin at 9 a.m.

To obtain registration forms and sponsor sheets, volunteer for the event or make a donation, contact: Alzheimer's Association, Permian Basin Chapter, c/o of Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, 1603 N. Grandview, Odessa, Texas, 79761, or call (915) 363-9960.

PERRY: Agriculture commissioner hopeful questions Hightower's values statewide ad campaign to inform voters about his and Hightower's values. He would not say if the ads would be negative.

Brigid Shea, Hightower's press secretary, refuted Perry's allegations, saying the Republican was "a political substance abuser — his campaign has no substance."

She provided proof that the Texas Farm Bureau, which backs Perry, asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to investigate the Hightower department's use of federal funds. No impropriety was found, she said.

"His are incredibly sleazy politics," Ms. Shea said of Perry.

"And I'd like to know how many real Texans like Willie Nelson for his music?" she asked, distancing Hightower from the drug issue.

Perry said Hightower has an "antagonistic" relationship with the USDA and was responsible for Texas losing $100 million a year in overseas cattle sales because he sided with European authorities concerned about producers' use of growth hormones.

"The Perry Department of Agriculture will be able to call the USDA and have an input," Perry said.

In response, Ms. Shea said, "We're proud of the fact that we're standing up to Clayton Yuetter (the USDA chief) and Bush and their GATT (General Agreement on Tarrifs and Trade) policies that would benefit international conglomerates at the expense of small farmers."

"He'd sell the American farmer down the drain," she said.

Perry also criticized Hightower's encouragement of diversified crops.

"We can grow blueberries 'til they cover the earth, but we don't have the markets for them," Perry said, adding that specialized crops make up one-half percent of the agriculture dollars in ghe state.

Perry favors value-added production — developing industries to create high value products from Texas-made raw goods — including tanneries, cotton mills and mohair processing systems.

"They may not be the sexiest things, like mushrooms and Chinese cabbage, but they work and I want to be a workhorse commissioner, not just a showhorse," he said.

Perry, who switched parties in 1989 after serving three terms as a Democratic state representative from Haskell, said the Republican party could help the small farmer and rancher.

"There are only a handful in production agriculture who want to make a living from a government check, but with the vagaries of the world market and subsidies and trade barriers, there must be some protection for those who clothe and feed this state.

"I'm not going to make any moves detrimental to those who make a daily living from agriculture."

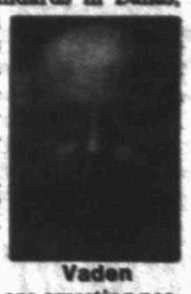
Motorists evade emission checks by buying fake stickers

DALLAS (AP) — Tougher emission control standards in Dallas, Tarrant and El Paso counties have sparked a booming business in counterfeit vehicle inspection stickers, the Department of Public Safety said Wednesday.



Vaden

"Our troopers are arresting people on a daily basis for displaying counterfeit stickers," said Sgt. Jerry Vaden with the motor vehicle inspection service at regional DPS headquarters in Garland.

Vaden said that motorists have been trying to evade idle emission checks that went into effect in April in Dallas and Tarrant counties and 1987 in El Paso County.

The bogus stickers are being bought by people whose cars cannot pass the test for one reason or another, Vaden said.

"Either the safety equipment is bad or they have removed a lot of the emission equipment," he said.

Displaying a counterfeit sticker is a misdemeanor that could result in a maximum fine of $200. The fake sticker is scraped from the windshield and the motorist is warned to get the car inspected. But Vaden doubts that happens.

"Probably as soon as we let them go they go buy another counterfeit because most of the cars cannot pass inspection," he said.

A recent raid in Fort Worth resulted in two arrests and the seizure of 3,500 counterfeit stickers and $17,000 in cash, Vaden said.

But that wasn't the only source, he said.

"I'm guessing we've got at least seven different types of counterfeit stickers floating around," he said.

Vaden said most of the operations are small-time with poor quality work and the same number on all stickers. But he said the larger operators change the numbers and do a pretty good job of copying the official stickers.

The counterfeits sell for $30-$50, he said.

An El Paso man was arrested twice for making fake stickers, said DPS Sgt. Glenn Wood.

"We've probably seized about 500 in El Paso," Wood said. "They're selling them in flea markets, bars and garages that aren't inspection stations."

The annual vehicle inspections are performed by DPS-certified mechanics at privately owned stations such as repair shops and gas stations. Checking the tailpipe requires a computer-controlled analyzer that can cost $15,000.

The tailpipe checks apply only to cars in the 1975 model year and newer. The maximum fee for the inspection is $17.25, but the inspector can waive or reduce the fee. The stickers cost the station $3.50 each, Vaden said.

Inspection stickers for Dallas, Tarrant and El Paso counties have a green month number. Those in most counties bordering Dallas and Tarrant counties are blue because they have slightly stricter inspections. The rest of the state uses black sticker numbers.

Thus, Vaden said, officers can tell at a glance whether the car was inspected in the proper county. The law requires a car to be inspected in its county of registration, he said.

A legal way to avoid inspection is to get a one-year waiver from the DPS, Vaden said. A motorist can obtain a waiver if he can show the vehicle still can't pass inspection after $250 worth of repairs.

In following years, the ceiling drops to $200, but the motorist must reapply annually for a waiver, Vaden said.

"They must spend monies on their car to bring it into compliance," Vaden said. "If they cannot do that (comply), then waivers are issued."

OIL: Ex-manager of fracturing companies says he cheated, stole

(From 1C)

Odessa and Staires' office in Midland, Staires said that Lancaster had told him he had "trouble mixing and pumping" 40-pound gel and that he had charged Parker & Parsley for "some materials" not used on fracturing jobs.

"I found it difficult to believe," admitted Staires, who said he "got a little hostile" toward his underling. "I told him to correct the problem." By 1988, Lancaster had been demoted from area to district manager.

George Cash, vice president of North American operations for BJ-Services of Houston, earlier said that if Lancaster had been shorting Parker & Parsley, "I don't know his motive." But he did say that BJ-Services' Odessa Division in 1987 was "making cash flow" in "the toughest time" for the oil industry.

Lancaster said Cash and Bill Stewart, president of BJ-Hughes in Houston, "most certainly did know" about the shortages.

Lancaster's treaters testified that he "ruled with an iron hand" and figured that he would fire them were they to question the shortages.

Lancaster said that Parker & Parsley was "absolutely" unaware of the cheating.

Even so, the defense, including BJ-Titan Services' Fulbright & Jaworski attorneys claimed that Parker & Parsley was "not interested in details of the frac job, only the results."

Charlie McMillan, who became acting area manager after Lancaster was fired, testified that the treaters in the field knew of the cheating, which, he said, Lancaster had ordered.

For example, Lancaster would send out 300,000 pounds of Brady sand when Parker & Parsley field engineers had ordered 450,000 pounds of sand. He would send out a third less gel than ordered and, in many cases, would not send out surfactant.

Lancaster said that the shortage practice was concealed from Parker & Parsley but that Cash, whom, he said, was aware of the practice told him that exposure of the shortages would "ruin and devastate this company."

And Lancaster said he told Staires of the practice "to make sure he knew about the Parker & Parsley deals."

Staires had joined the organization in 1987.

Additionally, the shorting practices were discussed at district-manager meetings, Lancaster said.

When he was working for Cardinal, Lancaster said he secured Parker & Parsley's fracturing work by offering a 27 percent discount in a competitive market. But even before "Parker & Parsley's day," Lancaster said, he would short major companies, such as Exxon, Shell, Mobil and Amoco, on fracturing materials.

The "frac" cheating, he said, also takes place around Brownfield, Hobbs, N.M., and Bakersfield, Calif.

Lancaster said he would make up for that shortfall by cheating the oil company on sand and chemicals. One ploy was for a driver of sand-hauling truck to "pretend" to make round-trips for more sand.

By 1983, said Lancaster, "the industry was beginning to slow down, and we had to give some pretty hefty discounts" to win jobs.

By 1985, "things were really tough," Lancaster said, so he offered BJ-Titan a 68 percent discount to get the work, "knowing we could get it back."

"We had always pre-planned what we were going to do" to make up for the discounts, he said. Lancaster said he and his workers would "cheat" on sand, gel, horsepower, acid and "right on down the road" even though the trusting Parker & Parsley engineers "told us what they expected."

"We got as much back as we possibly could for the bottom-line profit," he said.

Parker & Parsley "had confidence in us," Lancaster said. "They trusted us. Our price was competitive."

Power dressing has new meaning

By Nancy Miller Lewis
Copley News Service

Jeri Sedlar still can tick off three rules from two decades ago that a woman had to remember if she wanted to get ahead:

"Dress like a lady, act like a man, and work like a dog," Sedlar repeats.

"Then John Molloy (author of "Dress for Success") came along in 1976 and put women in navy-suit uniforms so men wouldn't recognize us as females," she says.

Today, however, the director of corporate affairs for Working Woman magazine observes that Molloy's strict rules of office attire nearly have been banished, and clothing confusion has filled the void they've left. Workplace dressing for professional women now spans a vast range that starts on one end with Miss Grundy's blue suit and ends on the other side just short of a Hawaiian muumuu.

But if professional women can't come to a unanimous conclusion about what is correct attire for the office in the '90s, it's probably because the stylemakers can't agree on one either.

Image consultant Kee Flynn is a diplomat in the fractured melee. During a recent seminar called "The New Power Dressing" Flynn divided working women into three profiles — determined by job function, workplace image and the industry — and gave each category its own set of parameters.

CNS Photo

'The corporate image stresses good taste. The creative image stresses personal style. The communicator image falls somewhere between the two.'

— Kee Flynn

CORPORATES, ACCORDING to Flynn, are women who work in positions involving law, finance, heavy industry, government and insurance. These women have to observe the strictest dressing codes so they can send out the perception that they are efficient and objective. These women — at their most outlandish — dress like Susan Dey on "L.A. Law," always in a demure-colored suit that emphasizes a strong jacket.

Communicators are women who work in the fields of education, real estate, advertising, sales and marketing, public relations, fund raising, psychology and sociology. While these women do have standards to observe, the guidelines are less stringent than those for the corporates. Looking sincere and friendly is the key to dressing successfully in this category. Talk show host Sally Jessy Raphael is a possible role model here. Raphael wears conservative-cut suits and dresses but looks "friendly" because of the bold patterns and bright colors she chooses; even her glasses are red.

CREATIVES — THOSE who work as artists, designers, editors, fashion retailers or entertainers — are given the broadest dressing spectrum. The correct image here says that the woman is imaginative and innovative. Actress Candice Bergen's TV character, Murphy Brown, often is pointed to as typical in this category. Brown bops into the TV studio in pants, short skirts, scarves, whatever; even so, the character's look is always pulled together.

And if the dressing experts can agree on anything, it's that image counts.

"Do you have an image? Do you like that image? Is your image sending out the message that you want it to?" Working Woman's Sedler asked rhetorically during a recent seminar.

"First impressions are formed in the first seven seconds you meet someone. A visual assessment is made, so you need to be sure your image is saying what you want it to say."

GETTING AN IMAGE may be as easy as dressing like a female executive you wish to emulate, or it can involve a more intense strategy, like a personal consultation with Flynn, who charges $60 an hour for her services. In between are reading fashion stories devoted to the professional woman, attending seminars on power dressing and even — as designer Paloma Picasso suggests — getting some opinions from friends whose style you respect.

"Women who've gotten there can break the rules, but younger women can't do that," Flynn said in a word of caution.

But no matter if you've arrived or are just breaking in, the experts agree there are four big no-nos for all working women:

Low-cut necklines are taboo.

Dangle earrings are verboten.

Stockings are a must.

Another area of agreement comes in how to shop. Buy less and buy better, Sedlar and Flynn agree.

"Why should you try to look more affluent? Because affluence looks successful," Flynn pointed out.

Both women insisted separates are the answer to better dressing; Flynn went even further: "Buy one new outfit each season that is totally coordinated — shoes, stockings, jewelry, belts. Details count."

THE RUDIMENTARY goal is to be able to make 10 outfits by combining the sportswear pieces in your wardrobe.

Also, Flynn added, wardrobes built on separates are easier to update. For instance, a new blouse may be all that's needed to pep up a suit that you've been wearing for a while. On the other hand, when a dress goes out of style, you've usually lost an entire outfit.

"Don't worry if you are wearing the same jacket once a week if it looks good on you and you feel good in it," Sedlar said.

"It's better to buy one $500 jacket that you wear one day a week for five years rather than five $100 jackets that you have to get rid of at the end of a season," Flynn agreed. "Wear your clothes to death. If they're quality, they still should hold up for three to five years."

Flynn cautioned, however, that even when you have your attire act down to a science, your problems might not be over.

"It can be a problem to be better dressed than your co-workers.... Secretaries, to get promoted, will dress like executives. They'll get shunned by the other secretaries, but they're more likely to get promoted," Flynn said.

"I say dress two job levels above where you are," Sedlar insisted. "Hey, somebody's got to get to the top — it might as well be you."

Flynn says the following are some of the questions she is asked most often.

Q: Should I shorten my skirts?

Flynn: That depends on your age and the shape of your legs.

If you are considering shortening your skirts, try shortening one to see if you like it. Corporates should have their hemlines no higher than above the kneecap. Communicators can go shorter and creatives shorter still.

Q: Can I wear pants and still look professional?

Flynn: For lawyers, it's probably OK if they aren't seeing a client or in court. The matched pantsuit is the most professional; next are unmatched separates with trousers. Only creatives can wear flowing pajamas or leggings.

And it depends on the shape of the woman.

Q: How can I change my look from day to evening without going home first?

Flynn: Wear dark colors to the office that day, then change your opaque stockings to sheers and put on a higher-heeled shoe. Take a smaller bag. Change your accessories — dangle earrings are OK here. Then, switch to a camisole or charmuese blouse instead of the one you wore to work. If the jacket is covered up enough, you can also remove the blouse entirely.

Q: Do I need to dress differently if I am going back East for business?

Flynn: Yes. Dark colors look more sophisticated, and don't take anything with prints. Take clothes made out of heavier-bodied materials, such as gabardine.

Q: What should I wear to an interview?

Flynn: About 90 percent of women wear suits; the remaining 10 percent wear coatdresses.

DEAR ABBY

Unblossoming love needs nipping in bud

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman with a male friend who is obsessed with me. I have been dating him for more than five years. Abby, this man is totally crazy in love with me, but for me there is no "spark" at all. He's kind, considerate and very generous. I have told him many times that I like him as a friend, but he won't accept it. He's hoping that in time it will blossom into love. Believe me, it never will.

Van Buren

Since I have been seeing so much of him, my social life is the pits; everyone thinks it's a love affair, and it's not.

Some of my friends have suggested that this could be a "fatal attraction" situation. I want to end this friendship, but I don't know how to handle it. Your advice, please. — NOT ATTRACTED

DEAR NOT ATTRACTED: This man is trying to wear you down with his persistence. He has nothing to lose and everything to gain by taking up as much of your time as you will give him.

Stop dating him; tell him you love him "like a brother," but he deserves someone who can love him like a lover.

Don't you have any friends you can fix him up with? One woman's leftovers can be another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for 28 years, but his behavior these past few months has me worried. He goes outside in the mornings to turn on the lawn sprinkler wearing only his boxer shorts. We live on a corner where he is visible from two angles.

Daily, after he comes out of our sauna, he wraps a towel around his middle, then sits on the patio to cool off in full view of our neighbors. Last week, I was appalled when I came home from work to find him preparing supper with only a T-shirt on!

Tonight, I discovered him barbecuing in a long shirt. Abby, he had to walk up several stairs to come back into the house. I am totally disgusted with this kind of behavior and want your opinion of this 49-year-old man. — BAFFLED IN VANCOUVER

DEAR BAFFLED: Your husband could be careless, thoughtless, or just plain unconcerned about what the neighbors might see or think.

But if you suspect that his behavior has suddenly become exhibitionistic and totally out of character with his normal personality, I urge that you persuade him to see his physician for a complete examination from the neck both ways.

DEAR ABBY: Lately, you have had some letters in your column about rape. I have a suggestion that would put an end to the rape problem. We should pass a law making castration the punishment for rape! Then, and only then, could we make sure that the rapist would never rape again. — SICK OF RAPISTS

DEAR SICK: I would be opposed to such a law. Assume that a man was convicted of rape, was found guilty and was subsequently castrated. Then it was discovered that it had been a case of mistaken identity, and the "rapist" was innocent. Then what? Would the law say, "Oops! Sorry"?

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Bangles, cuffs are chic bracelets

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Slap-bracelets may be running into a safety snafu, but cuffs and bangles are high style.

One or two of these sizable bracelets clasped around each wrist adds immeasurable chic to any of the simple outfits of the day. They do, however, take some getting used to — and not every woman can wear them.

If the bangle is solid all the way around, the only way is to slide it on and off. Soap and water helps if the fit over the knuckles is tight. Cara Croninger, a designer, said, "I try to teach the customer to suffer just a little." After all, what's a red knuckle or two in the interest of fashion?

Parents' behavior stranger than children's

By Erma Bombeck

Scarcely a day goes by that we don't read a story about the sacrifices parents make on behalf of their children. They run the gamut from the mature mother who saw no other way for her daughter to have a compatible bone marrow transplant than for her to conceive a baby and give birth to a sibling ... to the woman who was nearly trampled to death in New Jersey over the last Cabbage Patch doll.

Bombeck

It's hard to explain why we do it, but we do. We buy cookies from children when we're on a diet, chaperone weekends that add years to our lives, plan our meals around their sports schedules, and sell our blood for the newest Nintendo game.

I once worked throughout the night with a flu virus putting together a term paper for my son on "The History of Soybeans." His sixth-grade teacher gave me a C and noted in the margin, "Shows no enthusiasm for topic."

A Los Angeles radio station recently asked parents how far they would go to get their kids free tickets to a New Kids on the Block concert. Among the finalists were a mother who would suck a dozen raw eggs through a funnel and eat 12 bananas without using her hands, a father who would shave all the hair off his body and dress as a woman, and a couple who vowed they would dodge ice-cream pies while hopping on pogo sticks and ride down Sunset Boulevard on tricycles. If that isn't love, I don't know what it is.

It reminds me of a father who appears in a recent book I wrote on kids surviving cancer. He won a trip for his child to Orlando, Fla., by entering a Jell-O gelatin jump contest. For this he had to jump into 400 gallons of strawberry Jell-O. His son said, "I never thought he'd do that."

I was not surprised. We fall heir to our children's shedding dogs when they go off to college. We store their bicycles and baseball cards. We loan them our new camera and our last dollar. We pick up their rooms and return their library books.

I am writing this as I watch over a dinner that is becoming more inedible with every minute. The kids I am waiting for are playing tennis. They may call at the last minute and say they are going out for pizza.

Why do we do this? It couldn't be the money.

Carter dethroned

DALLAS — Dallas Carter will be forced to surrender its 1988 Class 5A football title Thursday, according to University Interscholastic League president Bailey Marshall.

Marshall is also expected to announce that he is ordering Carter to return its championship trophy and state title medals awarded to the players.

Dallas school district attorney Don Hicks said he is considering whether to appeal a judge's ruling that the case is moot.

GREGORY (AP) — The Gregory-Portland school district is appealing a ruling that disqualifies the football team from the state playoffs because its players were given a pizza party and pancake breakfast.

School board members voted unanimously Tuesday night to appeal the decision by the District 30-4A executive committee.

The executive committee voted Oct. 10 to disqualify the Gregory-Portland high school team, saying pizza and pancakes given players during last year's playoffs violates the University Interscholastic League's amateur-status rules.

Gregory-Portland Superintendent Bob Jameson said after Tuesday night's school board action that the district will "pursue with all vigor" an appeal of the disqualification.

First Lady, first pitch

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barbara Bush pinch-hit for her husband Wednesday night by throwing out the first ball at Game 2 of the World Series, after President Bush scrubbed a planned trip to the game.

Mrs. Bush handled the duties of the ceremonial first pitch because the president decided to stay in Washington to remain close to negotiations aimed at reducing the federal budget deficit.

"This is to all the men and women in the Persian Gulf," Mrs. Bush said over the Riverfront Stadium public address system. "I hope I get this pitch over to the catcher."

Night of the living Reds

■ The World Series continues to take a nightmarish turn for the Oakland A's as former Midland Cub Billy Hatcher sets a Fall Classic record and leads Cincy to a 5-4 win in Game 2.

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Add Oakland's ace reliever to Cincinnati's hit list and give Billy Hatcher and the Reds a perfectly astonishing 2-0 lead in the World Series.

A day after the Reds rocked Dave Stewart, they rolled over Oakland's relievers. Joe Oliver got the third straight single off Dennis Eckersley with one out in the 10th inning for another improbable victory, this time 5-4 on Wednesday night.

"They know they're in for a battle now," said Hatcher, 7-for-7 with four doubles and a triple in the two games. "I'm just in a good groove."

So is Cincinnati. The Reds, who made their living with fast starts this season, are doing it again after winning the first extra-inning game in the World Series since Bill Buckner blew it for the Boston Red Sox in 1986.

Four relievers shut out Oakland for 7⅓ innings, with Rob Dibble going two innings for the victory.

"I think the key to the game was the bullpen," Reds manager Lou Piniella said. "It's something they've been doing all year."

The Athletics, meanwhile, are not accustomed to losing, especially when Stewart, a four-time 20-game winner, and Eckersley are involved.

"It was kind of disappointing the way we went about our business," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said. "I really don't want Eckersley pitching in a tie game on the road if I can avoid it."

Suddenly, from thoughts of sweeping their second straight Series, the A's now go home for Game 3 Friday trying to keep from being swept themselves.

Hatcher's triple off right fielder Jose Canseco's glove in the eighth inning gave him the Series record for consecutive hits and he then scored the tying run on Glenn Braggs' force play.

Boudreaux isn't asking for much

■ Midland College sophomore post man Carroll Boudreaux has had to endure more than most 20 year olds, and now all he asks for in return is a pro basketball career.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

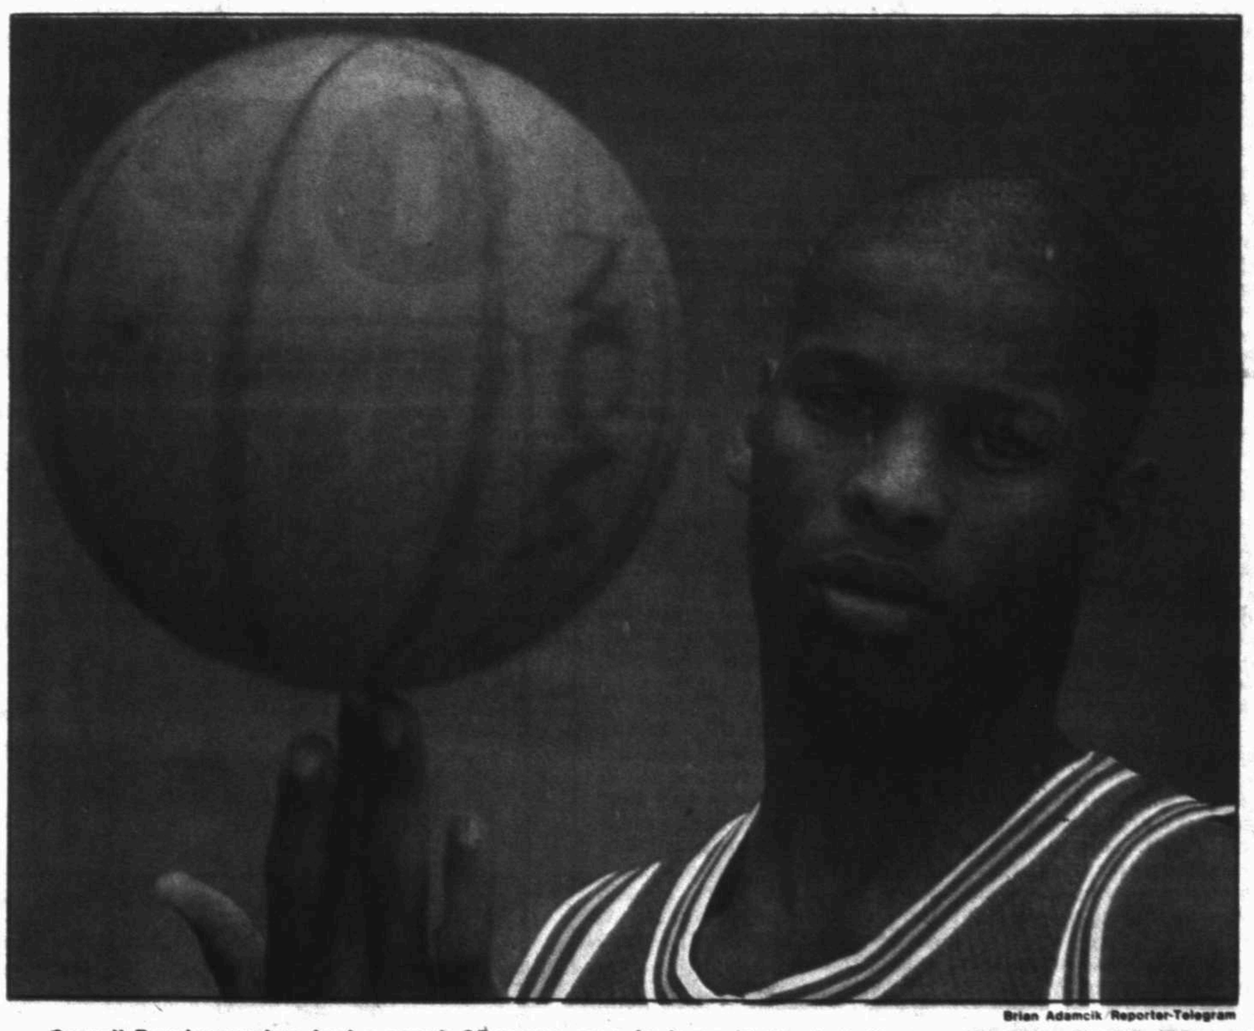
These days, most kids can't wait until they start collecting that first allowance. Do a few chores around the house, pick up five or ten bucks from mom or dad every week, go to a movie or play some video games.

Carroll Boudreaux remembers when he first started earning a little take-home pay. It was 1975. Carroll was five years old. He was picking okra and potatoes in a Louisiana field, earning $10 a week. But those wages weren't spent on movies or video games. They were used to help put food on the table for him, his seven brothers and sisters, and his mother.

Imagine putting your five-year-old to work and you can imagine just how poor the Boudreaux family of Arnauldville, La., really was. And, to a certain extent, still is.

But there is a future lying just down the road that appears brighter than the difficult past the family has been through.

Boudreaux is Midland College's latest sophomore sensation, a 6-9, 230 pounder who'll make playing underneath the basket highly undesirable for opponents. He has big plans for his life in basketball, and there are more than a handful that believe those plans could come about if the three-time All-Louisiana high school center plays up to that frightening word "potential."



Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Carroll Boudreaux has had a rough 20 years; now, he hopes to trade in the poor times for the big time.

And if that potential one day turns into a bountiful pro contract, that'll suit Boudreaux just fine. He's already made big plans for the first professional harvest he reaps.

Carter rules don't apply for Permian

Entries from the "Just In Case You Missed It" department:

■ Odessa Permian's football coaches are the plaintiffs in a suit trying to obtain a restraining order and reinstate the Panthers into the 1990 Texas high school playoffs.

Price

That's right, not the Ector County Independent School District or any official body at Permian High School, but the attorney of the coaches will make the opening arguments Oct. 26 when the case goes before State Dist. Judge Pete Lowry in Austin.

Eight Permian coaches have also filed a civil suit against the University Interscholastic League, which barred the Panthers from the playoffs in September, claiming the governing body of Texas high school athletics had defamed them and they were not allowed due process.

Now, I can't argue that the coaches have every right to file a civil suit to protect their reputations, but I do question their supposed representation of Permian in the playoff matter.

It seems to me that Judge Lowry ought to throw this thing out from the word go, because the ECISD is not involved. Many people point to the Dallas Carter case of 1988, when the Cowboys eventually won a state title after weeks of court decisions and restraining orders. But the Dallas Independent School District was a plaintiff in that case.

Then again, I have never excelled when it comes to predicting what the courts of our land will do. Suffice it to say that the coaches' entire argument will hinge on whether the judge deems them suitable representatives of Permian where the playoffs are concerned.

■ Back to the playing field, Midland Lee must still be basking in the glow of a 17-7 win over Permian Friday that really wasn't as close as the score indicated.

The Rebels (5-1 overall and in sole possession of the District 4-5A lead with a 3-0 loop mark) not only bumped off the defending state champions and handed the Panthers their second loss of the season, they also cracked the Associated Press Top 10 ranking this week.

After falling 10-3 to El Paso Andress in the season opener, the Rebs have improved every week and looked every bit a playoff-bound unit against Mojo, a fact that did not go unnoticed by the AP voters who put the Rebs in the No. 10 ranking this week.

After dropping then fifth-ranked Amarillo Palo Duro 25-21 on Sept. 21, Lee proceeded to down Permian when it was ranked 10th in the state.

But Palo Duro, which lost the services of star quarterback Donald Shanklin because of an injury against the Rebs, has gone on to lose 14-13 to lowly Plainview and squeaked past Amarillo Tascosa, not one of the state's powerhouses, 23-14.

Permian had only two returning starters from last season's 16-0 team, and its preseason No. 4 ranking was highly suspect. However, the Lee defense did hold the Panthers to four first downs in the game and just 11 offensive snaps in the second half.

So the question remains, can we trust state rankings and are the Rebels really as good as the AP poll indicates? Only time will tell, and the Rebs have plenty on their hands with this week's 4-5A open date before taking on Odessa High Oct. 26 in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

■ Midland High tailback James Lee just keeps on piling up the numbers, even with defense around the league coming up with various schemes to stop him.

He had 155 yards on 25 carries in a 17-10 loss to OHS last Friday, including a 51-yard scoring gem that saw him spin off what looked to be a sure tackle then outrun the fastest defense in the 4-5A to the end zone.

Lee, James that is, now has 886 yards for the 4-2 Bulldogs with three games to play in the regular season. That's an average of almost 147 a game and keeps him on a pace to run for just over 1,300 yards in MHS' nine regular season games. The James Lee watch continues.

UIL ordering Dallas Carter to step down

Associated Press

DALLAS — The University Interscholastic League on Thursday will order Dallas Carter High School to relinquish its 1988 Class 5A football title, an official said.

Bailey Marshall, UIL president, said he will order Carter to return the state championship trophy and the players' state title medals to his office.

Don Hicks, attorney for the Dallas school district, had said he was still considering whether to appeal a judge's ruling that the case is moot.

Hicks did not return phone calls from the Associated Press Wednesday.

On Oct. 3, Justice Jimmy Carroll, of the 3rd Court of Appeals, dismissed the case between the Dallas district and the University Interscholastic League and the Texas Education Agency.

Marshall said DISD officials have 15 days from Carroll's ruling to appeal the case or he would order the 1988 state championship trophy and the players' state title medals returned to his office. The 15-day period ends Thursday.

"If they don't appeal, after Thursday we'll sit down with the state executive committee to discuss all the ramifications of it," Marshall said. "

Marshall said Wednesday the committee actions could be as severe as disqualification and suspension, but he didn't think the committee would require more than the already levied championship forfeiture.

Converse Judson, which lost to Carter in 1988, has said it was beaten by Carter and view the Dallas school as the champions. Marshall said the issue is not about turning the championship over to Judson, only to force Carter to forfeit.

"Nobody said we were going to give the trophy to (Converse)," he said. "It's not a matter of giving (Converse Judson), the championship. It's a matter of (Carter) forfeiting the trophy, and the game, and the medals."

In November 1988, TEA Commissioner William Kirby disqualified Carter from the playoffs for using ineligible players. But Judge Paul Davis overturned Kirby's ruling the same day.

Davis filed a permanent injunction in the summer of 1989 against the TEA and UIL. The TEA and UIL appealed and both sides declared victory following Carroll's ruling.

Faldo top golfer

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Nick Faldo of England was named PGA Player of the Year on Wednesday, the first non-American ever to win the award, which goes back to 1948.

Faldo, winner of his second straight Masters championship as well as the British Open, clinched the title with 110 points, 40 ahead of his nearest challenger, Hale Irwin.

Scott not worried over Bronte game

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

Area Football

On the surface, it would appear that Friday's District 9-A game between Garden City and Bronte will be a showdown.

After all, Garden City is 4-1 with only a non-district loss to Rankin blemishing the otherwise perfect mark. Bronte is 6-0 overall and 2-0 in district play.

Both teams have beaten up on a young group of Roscoe Plowboys in early district action; Garden City winning 68-7 two weeks ago and Bronte scoring a 42-6 win last week.

Elsewhere in the area Friday, Greenwood hosts Crane in a key District 6-3A battle; Andrews hosts Pecos; Big Spring hosts Fort Stockton; Lamesa hosts state-ranked Lubbock Estacado; Iraan hosts Stanton; McCamey travels to Ozona, and Rankin visits Wink.

Saturday, Midland Christian travels to Victory Christian.

Garden City coach Sam Scott doesn't understand what all the fuss is about. The Bearkat mentor took advantage of his team's open date to see the Longhorns, and what he saw was a physically slow team with no player weighing over 200 pounds.

"They have some quickness, but they're not fast," Scott said. "And they're not a power team at all."

"You have to go back and see who they've played to see why they're 6-0."

Nonetheless, Scott realizes that Friday's game has been built up as a big one.

"The people who make the predictions say that Bronte and Rotan are supposed to be the toughest in the district for us to beat.

"But we know that there are a couple of other teams who will compete."

The Bearkats travel to Rotan next week.

Bronte has piled up 309 yards a game with its I-Formation attack. Quarterback Justin Phillips triggers the offense, while Bill Windham lines up at fullback and Brandon Marshall is the I-back.

Defensively, Windham and Darrell Lucas are standout defensive ends, while Sean Conway is a returning all-district tackle.

But the Bearkats have a few horses of their own, especially since all-everything candidate James Soles returned to his regular role at tailback after playing primarily defense the first few games. Soles had more than 200 yards against Roscoe two weeks ago.

Quarterback Shae Scott has come into his own as a sophomore, pushing 1989 starter Allen Hoelscher out to split end, where he has performed well.

But it's on defense where the 'Kats have really come around, Scott said.

"It's nothing you can pinpoint. I think we just have everybody healthy."

The 'Kats had a horrible time on defense in the first half against Grandfalls, before rebounding for a come-from-behind win. Then, Rankin got the better of its former district rival. But since losing to Rankin three weeks ago, the 'Kats have outscored foes 144-7.

While most observers picked Garden City as overwhelming favorites to win the 8-A crown, Scott said, in effect, it isn't over until it's over.

"Right now, everybody's goal here is to win Garden City's first 11-man district championship."

While the Bearkats have been district runners-up the past two seasons, they haven't won their district since starting 11-man ball in the mid-70s, Scott said.

IRAAN'S RILEY Malone passed the 1,000-yard mark last week when he carried the ball 37 times for 224 yards and four touchdowns in the Braves' come-from-behind 34-21 win over Eldorado in District 6-2A action. Malone, a 5-11, 185-pound junior fullback, has rushed for 1,090 yards on 153 carries going into Friday's game with Stanton.

It's easy to understand why stopping Malone might be top priority for Stanton coach Dale Ruth, whose team is winless in six games this season.

Elsewhere in 6-2A, McCamey coach Randy Adair says his Badgers still have a shot at the playoffs even with last week's 34-6 loss to Wall.

"We're glad we still have a chance to determine our own destiny," Adair said.

The Badgers, 2-1 in 6-2A play, can make a dent in Ozona's title hopes with a road win Friday. But first the Badgers have to stop Ozona quarterback Danny DeHoyos, who has paced the Lions to wins in their first three district games — after Coach Don Payne's team lost its first three contests to Class 3A schools.

"A 30.06 would work very well," Adair said in jest.

But seriously ...

"We feel like he's their best offensive threat. He has the speed to run on the option.

"We'll just have to give him a variety of looks," Adair said.

DeHoyos led the Lions to 324 yards total offense in a 29-15 win at Stanton last week. The senior was 6-of-10 passing with 134 yards and two touchdowns.

Pacers dump Mavs

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Chuck Person scored 24 points and five other Pacers were in double figures as Indiana beat the Dallas Mavericks 111-91 in an NBA exhibition game Wednesday night.

The Pacers (1-2) led all the way. Person had eight points in the first period as Indiana moved to a 31-23 lead.

ARKANSAS (2-3, 0-2 SWC) at TEXAS (3-1, 1-0 SWC), 12 Noon (CDT), Raycom Sports Telecast — The Longhorns lead the 96-year-old rivalry 53-18 and top the SWC contests' series with Arkansas 45-18. This is the longest SWC series (and one of the most-played nationally) never to have had a tie game as it enters its 72nd renewal. Arkansas has won the last two games played in Austin 27-24 in 1988 and 21-14 in 1986, though Texas repaid the favor with a 24-20 victory in Fayetteville last year and 16-14 in Little Rock in 1987. Razorbacks' chief Jack Crowe stands 7-16 (third season) overall, 2-3 (first year) at UA, 0-2 in SWC contests, and meets Texas for the first time as a head coach. Texas' David McWilliams is 26-23 (fifth season) overall, 19-19 (fourth year) at UT, 17-14 in SWC battles, and 3-1 against the Hogs. Arkansas has had to take the "learn-on-the-job" approach and gets a critical test in its first game outside the state this weekend. Texas, impressive in wins over Penn State 17-13 and Oklahoma 14-13 last week, has a physical defense but must find a way to stop productive Razorbacks' QB Quinn Grovey. Arkansas continues to feature big-play threats in the running game, with Aaron Jackson (67 carries, 306 yards) and soph Ron Dickerson (66 rushes, 308 yards, including 88 yards against Texas Tech last week) leading the way. Grovey is second nationally in passing efficiency (166.6 rating points) and has a sizzling career passing percentage of 58.3 percent (231-of-396). He's UA's all-time total offense leader with 5,156 net yards. Longhorns' DBs Willie Mack Garza (two interceptions) and Stanley Richard anchor a pass defense rated first in the SWC with 161.8 yards allowed per game. WR Johnny Walker (15 catches, 213 yards) of Texas poses a deep threat receiver similar to the Hogs' Derek Russell (26 grabs, 544 yards, six TDs). Texas RBs Phil Brown (sixth in SWC, 75 carries, 332 yards rushing) and Adrian Walker (326 all-purpose yards) also adds to defenders' woes.

HOUSTON (5-0, 4-0 SWC) at SMU (1-4, 0-2 SWC), 2 p.m. (CDT) — A relatively-recent one as SWC rivalries go, this series is one of the SWC's closest. SMU has a 7-6 all-time edge. In conference play, it's even at 6-6. The Cougars won last fall's meeting in a modern-SWC-record 95-21 count at the Astrodome. Houston mentor John Jenkins faces the Mustangs for the first time with a 5-0 overall mark (first year) and 4-0 SWC record. Jenkins has joined SMU's H.N. 'Rusty' Russell in 1950 as the only SWC coaches in their initial college head coaching assignments to win five straight games to begin their tenures. Texas ended Russell's streak with a 23-20 win. SMU coach Forrest Gregg is 3-13 (second season, both at SMU) overall, 0-10 in SWC contests and 0-1 against the Cougars. Gregg came to SMU after several All-Pro seasons with the Green Bay Packers and after NFL head coaching assignments at Cleveland, Cincinnati and Green Bay. Both squads rely on the pass as the primary weapon and have done well in their offensive schemes. The Cougars are second nationally with 414 yards passing per game. SMU is just 12 spots back in 14th place in NCAA Division I-A passing stats with 264 yards each contest. In Saturday's aerial-minded contest, UH QB David Klingler (national total offense leader with 404 yards per game) enters with 152-of-283 passes for 2,072 yards (already 17th on the SWC season passing yards' list after five games) to pace the Cougars. The Mustangs have equally-capable Mike Romo (129-of-217 for 1,245 yards, school-record six TDs in the 1990 opener against Vanderbilt). Prime receivers for the Cougars are Tracy Good (35 catches, 302 yards) and Patrick Cooper (22 grabs, seven TDs, 22 yards per reception). Jason Wolf (24 catches, 237 yards) and Michael Bowen (26 snares, five TDs) are Romo's favorite targets for SMU.

BAYLOR (3-3, 2-1 SWC) at TEXAS A&M (4-2, 1-1 SWC), 2 p.m. (CDT) — The "Battle of the Brazos" began in 1899, with A&M copping a 33-0 victory. The Aggies extended that to a 49-29-8 series lead with a 14-11 win at Waco last season and take a 38-26-6 advantage into the 69th SWC battle between the teams Saturday. Baylor's Grant Teaff is 152-141-7 (28th year) overall as the nation's ninth-winningest active head coach, 110-95-5 (19th year, fifth-most wins ever by a SWC coach) at Baylor, 71-87-3 in SWC tilts, and 7-10-1 against the Aggies. Texas A&M mentor R.C. Slocum is 12-6 (second year, both in Aggieland) overall, 7-3 in SWC games, and 1-0 against the Bears. Between them, as both assistant and head coaches, this is the 38th time that the two current football bosses have coached against one another. Baylor has parlayed a bend-but-don't-break defense into two SWC wins in three games and has shown almost weekly improvement on offense. Texas A&M, moving into the heart of its SWC schedule, seeks its fourth SWC football title since 1985. Defensive standouts abound for both teams as the Bears' FS Mike Welch (five interceptions, 48 tackles this year, 14 career pass pilfers) and LB Curtis Hafford (56 stops) are among the SWC's finest. For the Aggies, LBs William Thomas and Anthony Williams have combined for 132 total hits in 1990 and team with CB Kevin Smith (16 career interceptions) as mainstays. A&M will test the Baylor defense with RB Darren Lewis (4,098 net rushing yards — third in SWC history, 747 rushing attempts, 33 TDs) while the Bears have kick return aces Trooper Taylor (16 kickoff returns, 340 yards) and Malcolm Frank (eight punt returns, 87 yards, 10.9 yards per return to pace the SWC) in their arsenal.

TEXAS TECH (2-4, 1-3 SWC) at RICE (2-4, 0-3 SWC), 2 p.m. (CDT) — The series originated in 1942, the series has a Texas Tech twist to the tune of 22-17-1 overall and 21-8-1 in SWC encounters. The Owls won nine of 10 non-SWC tussles between the schools from 1942-52. Tech brings a four-game winning streak against RU to Houston Saturday, and Rice last won 29-27 at Lubbock in 1985. The Red Raiders managed a six-game victory skein from 1965-70 over Rice for their longest domination after the Owls won 11 successive games between 1944 and 1963 against Tech. Tech's Spike Dykes is 22-18-1 (fifth season, all at Tech) overall, 13-12-1 in SWC games and 3-0 against the Owls. Rice's Fred Goldsmith is 8-19-1 (third year) overall, 4-12-1 (second season) with the Owls, 2-9 in SWC contests, and 0-1 against Tech after the Red Raiders downed RU 41-25 at Lubbock last year. Both Tech and Rice have been on the verge of putting together the "complete contest" after some close, early losses. The Red Raiders led Arkansas 49-20 early in the fourth quarter of last week's win in Fayetteville while Rice lost in the final 12 seconds to Houston and gave nationally-prominent Texas fits before falling at Rice Stadium. Tech's offense has grown up after returning just three starters from 1989 while the Owls' defense has been outstanding at times. The team which moves the ball most effectively through the air (Tech is second in SWC passing offense with 304 yards per game while the Owls are fifth) could emerge victorious. The Red Raiders rely on stellar CB Sammy Walker (44 tackles, missed part of the win over UA with a leg injury) and SS Brian Dubiski (two interceptions) to bolster the secondary. IB Anthony Lynn (152 carries, 805 yards, four 100-yard rushing games) is third in SWC rushing. Rice is aided by the return to full strength of second team (1989) All-SWC cornerback David Griffin and the run control of LB O.J. Brigance (65 tackles). Owls' QB Donald Hollas (108-of-188 for 1,279 yards) has averaged over 246 yards per game total offense in 17 starts while RB Trevor Cobb (635 yards rushing, 26 pass catches) is an multi-purpose threat.

CARROLL: Values shaped by past

From 1D

she's ever seen," Boudreaux said. "We want to give her the best."

"We" consists of all the Boudreaux kids — two more of whom play basketball. Twin brother Harold is a junior at Louisiana State University; younger brother Harry Lee is still in high school and quite possibly a future Chaparral.

MC's current Boudreaux doesn't jump into a lot of detail about his youth in Louisiana. He does, however, freely admit working hard from age five until his mother made him quit the fields so he could concentrate on basketball his eighth-grade year.

When Boudreaux was six, his father died, leaving the family even worse off financially than they had been, and forcing the Boudreaux boys to remain on the potato and okra fields on a daily basis.

"Mama raised eight kids and did a helluva job, I promise you," Boudreaux said.

Boudreaux has done pretty much the same type of job on the basketball floor. His senior year at Cecilia (La.) High School (just down the road from Arnauldville), Boudreaux averaged 28 points per game and 15 rebounds. His junior year, the numbers were even better: 31 ppg and 15 rpg. He was all-district all four of his high school years, all-state his last three. His athletic abilities, though, don't stop at basketball, having lettered in football, baseball and track.

As for his future, the word coming from Midland College head coach Reggie Franklin and the numerous calls from major colleges indicate that Boudreaux's dream may just come true after all.

"If he'd work hard all the time," Franklin said, "his mama would never have to work. He's got great ability. He's awesome one day, and the next day he just looks like one of the guys."

Franklin added what was perhaps the ultimate compliment, saying if MC would've had Boudreaux's services for last year's trouble-filled, 18-13 season, "a lot more things would've gone right."

Boudreaux was recruited by Louisana State out of high school. He has since turned the heads of scouts at Nevada-Las Vegas, St. John's, Nebraska and Oklahoma. And LSU is still drooling.

Boudreaux's road to MC was filled with more than the normal Proposition 48 twists and turns. He had failed to get his high school diploma upon enrolling in junior college, but JUCO requirements state a student can enroll — but not participate in extra-curricular activities — even if he or she hasn't yet earned a diploma. A student can become eligible for the extra-curriculars after completing 12 college credit hours, which Boudreaux did in the Fall of 1989, his first semester at Delgado (La.) Junior College.

During the fall of 1989, Boudreaux suited up and played in three games at Delgado after having told his coach he would be transferring to Midland. Because the Delgado coach played him in three games, Boudreaux lost a year of eligibility and will only be in a Chaparral uniform for one season.

He is still hurt that he has just three years of eligibility remaining, feeling that the former Delgado coach played him in those three games knowing full well Boudreaux would not return to the Louisiana school.

But he'll succeed here in the short time he'll be wowing 'em at Chaparral Center.

"I feel comfortable with Carroll's ability, said MC booster Bill Williams, who is also Boudreaux's adult sponsor.

Boudreaux, likewise, was comfortable with Midland and it's people, particularly MC assistant coach George Walker who recruited him heavily.

"I wanted to come to Midland College," Boudreaux said. "I like Midland. I think a lot of people were surprised when I got up and left. My family and friends wanted me to play for Delgado. I wanted to stay close but I wanted a school with recognition."

Boudreaux's stay in Midland got off to a less-than-happy start with last year's team discipline problems and numerous suspensions, which eventually led to Franklin inviting just three players back for this season from the '89-'90 squad. Boudreaux, who sat out his obligatory semester last spring after his transfer and concentrated solely on academics at MC, was forced to watch all the team trouble as more or less a third party. In retrospect, though, he said it was for the best.

"Last year's team was mostly individual players," he said. "They didn't play team basketball. I just sat and watched everything that happened and I'm glad I wasn't a part of that team."

"Everybody on this team wants to win. If we keep on working I promise you we can go a long way. We can play against everybody in the country."

Boudreaux spent last summer playing pick-up ball with LSU's Shaquille O'Neal and Stanley Roberts, two of the college game's more dominating players, and as the only JUCO member of the Score USA International team, a Goodwill Games-affiliated junior team which participated in a tournament in Argentina.

After his season in Midland, Boudreaux will be forced to choose from what will no doubt be an overflow of interested major colleges. Right now, LSU seems to be at the top of his list.

Boudreaux wants to play shoulder-to-shoulder with brother Harold, who he considers his role model not only on the court, but in life as well.

"Harold was a Prop 48, but has averaged a 3.0 grade point average in his last three semesters. I know I can go there and do the same thing. If my brother can do it, I can do it. I work at (academics) a little harder since Harold did it.

"I won't get anything for free. I'll work for whatever I get."

Basketball will continue to remain his No. 1 priority since that's his meal ticket, but Boudreaux, who's always been good with numbers and eventually desires a degree in economics, won't forget his studies despite the rough time he's had. "If you don't have an education," he says, "there's nothing in life you can get."

Boudreaux's 1990 values no doubt stem from his humble 1970s upbringing. Most five year olds go to kindergarten, come home and watch cartoons, not work in fields. But as horrible as conditions were for his family in the '70s, Boudreaux has a desire to relive a part of it.

"Sometimes I wish I can go back to those days," he said. "Working together in the field brought our family a lot closer together. And it brought us food.

"I learned a lot and matured a lot as a boy, but I've still got a long way to go."

REDS: 2-0 lead has been tough to overcome in history single to left by Chris Sabo and Oliver's hard single down the third-base line gave Cincinnati its seventh straight World Series victory.

From 1C

Canseco ended Oakland's home run drought in the postseason, but the Athletics stranded 10 runners, for a total of 21 in the two games.

Dibble pitched two shutout innings for the victory, including a brash versus bash showdown in the ninth when he got Canseco to hit into a double play and struck out Mark McGwire.

Of the 40 teams to take a 2-0 lead in the World Series, 30 went on to win. Tom Browning will start Game 3 for Cincinnati Friday night against Mike Moore.

The amazing Mr. Hatcher led off the eighth with a slicing drive to right that glanced off the tip of Canseco's glove and went for a triple. With Canseco cursing himself, Bob Welch walked Paul O'Neill on four pitches, but got a break when Hatcher stayed at third on Davis' medium-deep fly ball that Canseco caught but threw off line to the plate.

The game was played on the first anniversary of the earthquake in the Bay area; Welch did not get to pitch in the series because of that disaster — La Russa used Stewart and Moore twice each — and Welch also lost his new home in the rubble.

Simpson jumps to two-stroke lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Tim Simpson, who revamped his putting stroke overnight, cruised to an 8-under-par 64 Wednesday to take the first-round lead in the Disney Golf Classic.

Simpson, who has three PGA Tour victories in 13 years, made nine birdies and a lone bogey over the Lake Buena Vista Course, considered the easiest of the three layouts used in the $1 million event.

Montana, Rice share weekly player honors

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Quarterbacks Joe Montana of the San Francisco 49ers and Warren Moon of the Houston Oilers, who both set career passing records Sunday, were named offensive Players of the Week in the NFC and AFC Wednesday.

Sharing the NFC award with Montana was his favorite target, wide receiver Jerry Rice, who also set a club record in the 49ers' 45-35 victory over Atlanta. The defensive winners were Greg Jackson of the New York Giants and Bill Maas of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Montana passed for 475 yards and six touchdowns — the 11th best passing yardage game in NFL history.

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo Central threw a wrench into the District 4-5A volleyball standings with a 15-9, 15-9 win over Midland High here Tuesday.

MHS dropped to 7-3 in district play, but the Bulldogs didn't lose any ground on league-leading Odessa Permian after the Panthers dropped a 10-15, 15-6, 15-4 decision to Abilene High.

Permian, 7-3, leads the district race by one-half game over MHS and Abilene High. San Angelo is fourth, a full game behind Mojo.

In the other district match Tuesday, Abilene Cooper dumped Odessa High 17-15, 15-9. Midland Lee had an open date.

Midland High spotted their hostesses a 10-5 lead in the first set. Junior Sally Gibson led a brief comeback, but to no avail.

The Bulldogs pulled to within 10-9 in the second set on sloppy play by the Bobcats, but Central's Jeri Pederson put the game away with five straight service points.

In junior varsity action Tuesday, San Angelo knocked off MHS 15-13, 13-15, 15-11.

Midland High will try to switch places in the standings with Permian when the Bulldogs visit the Panthers Saturday. Elsewhere in district play, Lee hosts Odessa High while San Angelo travels to Abilene Cooper.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Great financial news next month will put you in a jolly mood for the winter holidays. Count on a new understanding with loved one to make January 1991 a banner month. A business venture could offer you a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity next March. Your workload may increase as summer approaches. Learn to delegate routine tasks. You have many more admirers and supporters than you think!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your compelling personality evokes admiration from less confident associates. Let your showmanship be your means to financial success. Open your mind to intriguing possibilities. Heed your ESP.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be counting on the wrong things. Review your priorities. Impulsive statements and actions could boomerang. The events of the next few days should leave you feeling optimistic about the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There may be more tension than usual between mates or business associates today. Easy does it! Do not try to force issues. Pay overdue bills and balance your checkbook. Romance sizzles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take a long-range view of your life and make some specific plans. You may have to travel or contact people at a distance today. Make phone calls and be very persistent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Projects and interviews will go well today. Do not despair if you encounter delays. Find time to contact your parents or grown offspring. A kind act will be richly rewarded.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Loans and financial backing can be arranged with less difficulty now. Seek favors from those in influential position. Count your blessings! Romance looks blissful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Keep a close eye on investing. Otherwise, you may get a lemon instead of a gem. Someone dear to you is under the weather, requiring a delicate touch. A wonderful evening for romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Smoother relations at work mean greater output, higher profits. You should be able to handle numerous tasks efficiently. You are truly visionary today and should trust your hunches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is possible to improve your position at home or work today. Meetings with important individuals may cement a new alliance. Travel and sparkling conversation bring fascinating insights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your powers of analysis are excellent, helping you make big strides in the right direction. Important papers need your attention. Resist an urge to gamble. A sibling offers to play Cupid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A pet project can be furthered through cooperation and team effort. A close emotional tie reaches a new plateau. A get-together at your home or a friend's could turn out surprisingly well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Temptations and distractions could pull you off-course if you let them. The details of a financial agreement need to be worked out. Loans are apt to be approved. Loved one issues a challenge!

They want to be surrounded by both beauty and happy, upbeat people. Well-organized and creative, these Libras are superb at masterminding dinner parties and social events. Their diplomacy and negotiating skills will be a big plus in business. A career in fashion, decorating, public relations or marriage counseling will hold special interest.

WASTE NOT, WANT NOT

Both vulnerable. North deals.

6 ♣	Pass	7 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇ Show this hand to your bridge-playing friends and, more often than not, they will ask: "What's the problem?" South, declarer in a heart grand slam, found out soon enough!

While South held only eight high-card points, the hand had enormous playing potential, so South essayed a five-club cue-bid over North's jump raise. Since North would hardly suppress cue-bidding an ace at the five-level, six clubs not only showed second-round club control, but first-round control of all the other suits as well. That convinced South to contract for all the tricks.

Declarer won the opening diamond lead in dummy and cashed the ace of trumps. Not yet aware that the contract had already been blown, declarer continued with the king and ace of clubs and ruffed a club. East overruffed—down one.

True, the contract was declarer-proof if trumps had broken 2-1 and clubs no worse than 4-2....South can simply draw two rounds of trumps and ruff two clubs in dummy. But even a 3-0 heart split can be overcome with careful play.

At trick two declarer should lead a low trump from the board to one of his honors. Should both defenders follow, all's well. If East shows out, there's no danger of an overruff. Declarer abandons trumps in favor of ruffing two clubs in dummy, if necessary, and subsequently draws the outstanding trumps.

If West shows out, declarer must be careful. After cashing the king-ace of clubs, declarer must ruff a club high. When East does not follow, declarer comes to hand by finessing the nine of trumps to ruff another club high. After ruffing himself back to hand with a diamond, declarer draws the last trump and claims the rest of the tricks.

Quayle will play himself on episode of 'Major Dad'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle will play himself in a guest appearance on the Nov. 5 episode of CBS' "Major Dad."

In the installment, which highlights the 215th birthday of the Marine Corps, the vice president is asked to be the guest of honor at the show's fictional Marine base.

Quayle

The vice president donated his TV salary to the United Service Organizations, Roth said Tuesday. Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Alfred M. Gray, who also appears in the episode, donated his fee to the Marine Corps Scholarship Fund.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Broadcaster Rick Dees has been sued by a newswoman who says he humiliated her by appearing on TV with a scantily clad woman he misrepresented as her.

Dees

Liz Fulton, 37, said in her sex discrimination lawsuit filed in Superior Court on Tuesday that Dees appeared on "The Wally George Show" in 1988 with a woman dressed in a bikini whom he identified as Ms. Fulton.

Dees, a KIIS-FM radio personality, recently became host of the late-night variety show "Into the Night Starring Rick Dees." Ms. Fulton was fired as Dees' radio sidekick in April.

Ms. Fulton, now a newswoman at KFI radio, believes she was fired because "she was perceived as too old and family oriented and not sufficiently sexy enough to satisfy Mr. Dees," the lawsuit said. It also said her TV impostor was led off the set in handcuffs.

The lawsuit accuses Dees of employment, sex and age discrimination; unauthorized commercial use of Ms. Fulton's name; invasion of privacy; intentional misrepresentation; and defamation. The amount of damages would be determined at trial.

Jack Silver, a spokesman for KIIS-FM, referred calls to Gannett Radio President Jay Cook, who was reviewing the lawsuit and said, "We will respond when appropriate."

Schwarzenegger

The marshal's float will be a replica of a school, complete with a jungle gym and school desks. The film's cast of young actors and director Ivan Reitman will accompany Schwarzenegger during the 59th parade Nov. 25.

"Arnold is the man of the hour," Hollywood honorary Mayor Johnny Grant said in making the announcement Tuesday. "We could not be happier."

Miller

The students marched through the aisles of the Vivian Beaumont Theater on Tuesday night in the culmination of an hourlong tribute marking the 75th birthday of Miller, a resident of nearby Roxbury.

The program celebrated Miller's career through reminiscences by friends and actors, as well as re-enactments of scenes from his plays.

Miller also was presented a copy of "Arthur Miller & Company," a collection of anecdotes by friends and colleagues, being released today.

The tribute's producer, Becky Browder, chose Naugatuck High School because she wanted a band from a town near Miller's home, band director Scott Friend said here Tuesday.

Gasoline prices fuel Midland inflation

■ Rising gasoline prices continue to fuel increases in Midland's cost of living, which rose 0.5 percent in September, according to ClayDesta National Bank.

Staff Report

For the sixth consecutive month, the cost of living in Midland rose, according to a survey released today by ClayDesta National Bank.

The survey indicates that Midland's cost of living rose .5 percent in September, led by sharp increases in transportation, food away from home and utility costs. In the past year, the city's cost of living has risen 3.4 percent, with a 3.6 percent increase coming in the last six months.

Odessa saw its cost of living rise 0.6 percent, the 13th consecutive increase.

Transportation costs surged 7.2 percent in September, due to a third month of higher gasoline prices. In the last year, transportation costs have risen 20.3 percent, with an increase of 18.5 percent coming in the last six months.

The sharpest drop in costs was in housing, which broke a four month trend and dropped 0.3 percent in September. Rental prices, which had caused the four-month increase, slipped in September.

Grocery costs also slipped 0.3 percent last month as decreases in alcoholic beverage prices offset higher prices for produce, meat and shelf items.

The cost of eating out in Midland climbed 3 percent September, reversing August's decline. Higher prices for main dishes made with chicken and for a cup of coffee were responsible for the increase.

After rising in August, clothing costs dropped 0.2 percent as higher prices for women's apparel were offset by lower prices for men's wear and children's clothing.

Utility costs rose for a second month, posting a 1 percent rise in September. Electric bills were up 1.8 percent and gas bills were up 1 percent while water rates were stable for a sixth month.

Lower prices for non-prescription medicine helped lower health care costs last month; they fell 0.1 percent.

Prices tumble

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices tumbled more than $2 a barrel Wednesday as the energy futures market, though still sensitive to developments out of the Middle East, temporarily ran out of steam.

Traders were preoccupied with supply-and-demand concerns.

The November contract for light sweet crude oil slumped $2.17 to $36.72 a 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Later contract months also fell sharply.

With no substantive developments from the Persian Gulf to influence trading, the market was swayed by reports that crude was going unsold in spot markets. The reports indicated low demand for oil from refineries, which are currently retooling to turn out more heating oil rather than gasoline for the winter months.

Technical factors also figured into Wednesday's session.

Analysts were quick to caution that despite declines like Wednesday's, the market retains most of its bullishness and it is still hypersensitive to any negative developments in the Persian Gulf.

TI layoffs

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments, Inc. has laid off 450 defense employees as part of the company's yearlong plan to reduce costs.

TI officials announced in June they would fire 1,000 of the 22,000 workers at the Defense Systems & Electronics Group over the next 12 months.

TI spokeswoman Terri West said Tuesday's layoffs bring the total to about 950 employees fired so far.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar fell sharply against the Japanese yen Wednesday and finished mixed against other major currencies in busy trading.

Gold prices inched higher after tumbling more than $25 an ounce earlier this week. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold for current delivery fetched $366.70 a troy ounce, up $4.70 from Tuesday.

The dollar fell sharply in Tokyo, where the U.S. currency settled at 125.80 Japanese yen.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.9650.

Other late dollar rates in New York: 1.5125 German marks; 1,2720 Swiss francs; 5.0680 French francs; 1,132.50 Italian lire, and 1.1683 Canadian dollars.

First City Bank loses $100 million

■ Troubled real estate loans continue to plague First City Bankcorp., which posted a $102 million loss for the third quarter.

By Wendy Benjaminson

HOUSTON (AP) — When A. Robert Abboud charged into Houston from Chicago with about $1 billion in federal funding he promised to save First City Bancorp. of Texas.

Abboud

And the retired chairman of First Chicago Corp. delivered eight straight profitable quarters, turning First City into the state's third-largest bank-holding company.

His successful run came in the wake of the largest investor-led bailout in U.S. history.

But troublesome real estate loans have continued to plague the bank and its subsidiary, Collecting Bank.

On Tuesday, First City announced third quarter losses of $101.9 million.

The bank's 227,700 shares were down 3/8 to 8 5/8 at the close Tuesday.

First City is the state's third-largest bank holding company with 20 banks operating in 74 Texas locations.

The third-quarter loss of $101.9 million, or $5.87 a share, follows reports last month that First City was working on a plan to secure upwards of $132 million in capital to finance the eventual redemption of a block of securities in a Houston banking company.

At that time, it announced cutbacks of 700 positions in Texas, mainly through attrition.

"Our capital position is sound," said Abboud, chairman and chief executive officer in Tuesday's announcement. "We have no need at present to refinance preferred stock or to seek new capital."

Day said the bank's capital ratios were sound — 6.5 percent for primary capital ratios and 6.8 percent for total capital ratios — above federal minimum guidelines of 5.5 percent and 6 percent, respectively.

In April 1988, First City underwent the largest investor-led bailout in U.S. history, with $970 million contributed from the federal government and $586 million from investors.

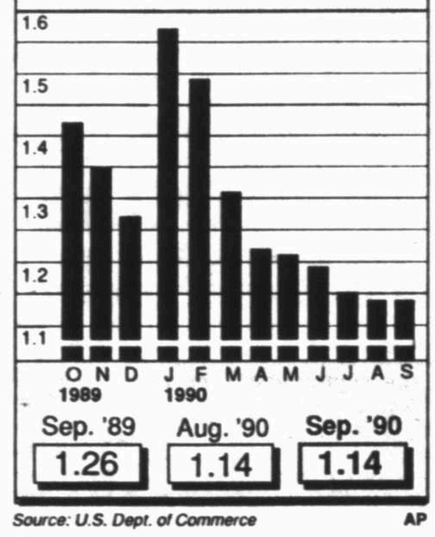
Two years later, First City was reporting its eighth straight profitable quarter, with earnings of $90.1 million.

But for the nine months ended Sept. 30, First City had a net income of $8 million. After preferred dividends, the amount available for common stock was a negative $8.6 million, or negative $0.47 per common share.

Net income for the first nine months of 1990 included a one-time pretax gain of $139.7 million on the sale of the credit card business and a one-time pretax gain of $9.5 million on the sale of the debit- and credit-card processing business.

One year ago, First City reported net income of $28.8 million, or $1.19 a share. For the first nine months of 1989, net income was $83.1 million, or $3.47 a share, after taxes at 30.8 percent.

As the third quarter ended, bad loans and other debts increased to $433 million, up from $199 million at the end of the second quarter in June.



OPEC leader criticizes oil consumers

Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia — A top official of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries strongly criticized oil consuming countries on Wednesday for failing to release oil reserves to help curb rising oil prices.

Subroto

OPEC Secretary General Subroto said consumer countries have been reminded that it might be too late to keep oil prices within reasonable bounds if they waited until the fourth quarter of the year to release their strategic stocks.

"Unfortunately, these appeals proved fruitless. This is a great pity, and a clear indication that ... The concept of real cooperation between producers and consumers for oil market stability still seems to fall on the deaf ears of the majority," Subroto said.

He said that OPEC has already acted to reduce the danger of an oil shortage by pumping out as much oil as it can.

"The ball is now in the consumers' court: it is now up to them to bolster the market's defense against an impending energy shortage by drawing down on their stocks," he told an international energy conference in Jakarta.

Paul Vlaanderen, representative of the International Energy Agency, told the conference earlier that its analysis showed that world crude oil markets are still adequately supplied and no product shortfalls have been experienced by its members.

Vlaanderen said the agency acknowledged that the oil markets are nervous in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, but the situation still is manageable.

He said prices are fluctuating based upon fears of war or hopes for peace in the Persian Gulf and the current strains on the oil system are unlikely to be remedied by a simple drawdown of IEA strategic stocks.

"It is a political phenomenon and not a supply-demand fundamental which drives the market. Physical shortages do not explain present price fluctuations," he said.

Decline in new housing sets record

By John D. McClain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts skidded 0.6 percent in September, continuing an eight-month slide that has become the longest decline on record, the government said Wednesday. Analysts foresee no improvement before next year.

"The expectation is, we will slide down gradually into the first quarter," which should be the low for the cycle, said David F. Seiders, chief economist with the National Association of Home Builders.

"The basic trend ... is declining levels of new construction" through the first quarter, agreed Richard Peach, deputy chief economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association.

Spending retirement resources on shelter

By Scott Burns

Q. I plan on retiring next year and the big question bugging us is whether it would make more sense to continue maintaining a home or rent a modest apartment instead. Here is our situation. We have $200,000 in CDs. Social Security and a retirement pension provide $13,000 a year. We own a home in Dallas with $55,000 equity but we will probably have to walk away from most of it, given the housing market. We also own a home in Las Vegas with an equity of $55,000 and outstanding debt of $100,000. We intended this as a retirement home. Given our financial circumstances, should we continue to live in the Las Vegas home or put our equity in Treasury bonds and rent an apartment for about $650 a month?

Burns

A. Let me ask your question another way. You are trying to decide which is better for retirement, living in a $155,000 home or living in a $55,000 apartment. The figure for the value of the apartment comes from subtracting estimated costs for insurance, maintenance, and taxes from the rent. This leaves an amount for debt service and profit. The answer comes from looking at two questions:

How much of your total resources are devoted to shelter?

How much of your total resources do you WANT to devote to shelter?

Your letter indicates that your total financial resources, including home equity, are about $255,000. Retaining your Las Vegas home would require devoting $155,000 of that figure to housing ($55,000 equity plus $100,000 mortgage) plus whatever it takes to support the house. If you figure that a typical house has total operating expenses equal to about 5 percent of its value, you'll need $7,750 a year to cover the cost of taxes, insurance, maintenance, and utilities. If your money earns 8 percent, that means you have to use the earnings from $97,000 of your assets to cover the remaining bills. In effect, with $255,000 in financial assets, owning your Las Vegas retirement home commits virtually everything you have to shelter — $155,000 plus $97,000. Only your pension and Social Security income would be available for supporting all your other expenses. I think that's unreasonable and dangerous. It may not, however, be necessary to reduce your shelter to a $650 a month apartment.

Q. Is there a mathematically verifiable benefit in buying either discount or premium municipal bonds? Income tax, of course, reduces the yield on discounts but is there something also at work to, in effect, reduce the yield on premium bonds?

A. Yes, there is. If your bond is called for redemption before maturity, you will lose the premium. The most important feature of a Muni, after its credit stability, is its call date. A bond that has an attractive "yield to maturity" in 10 years will have a much less attractive "yield to call" because you will lose the premium you paid over a shorter period of time, thereby reducing your effective yield. If you haven't already got one, I suggest you buy a financial calculator. This will help you make such calculations with ease.

Q. I'm retired, 73; and my own education as an accountant and experience as a corporate financial executive led me to a do-it-yourself approach to investment and income tax reporting. My wife has been unwilling to apply the effort to become knowledgable in these areas. I have arranged for a trust with a bank as trustee to take care of her financial affairs after I'm gone, but I hope there is a better way. The fees seem unbelievable, not at all related to the effort involved. Apparently, the banks employ only major accounting firms to prepare income tax returns for trusts in their care. In our

Jury selection begins in Vernon trial

By Jay Jorden

DALLAS (AP) — Jury selection began Wednesday in the trial of failed Vernon Savings & Loan executive Donald Ray Dixon.

Dixon faces a 38-count indictment charging him with conspiracy, misapplication of funds, making false statements and other crimes related to the institution's collapse.

The federal bailout will cost taxpayers an estimated $1.3 billion.

After explaining his plans for the jury selection process to attorneys, U.S. District Judge Joe A. Fish took the bench this morning for the selection, which is expected to take at least two days.

Attorneys are expected to make opening statements Friday. Testimony is set to begin Monday and continue three to four weeks. If convicted on all counts, Dixon could be sentenced to up to 190 years in prison and fined as much as $9.5 million.

"Perhaps when my day in court comes, if they'll listen, they'll find out what really happened and the blame can be properly assessed and properly assigned," Dixon said in July.

Seventy-five potential jurors appeared before Fish for the selection, his secretary said.

The large panel was called because of publicity in the case, said Jean Hiller, court coordinator for Fish.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Jarvis of Dallas said between 40 and 50 prosecution witnesses could testify. Included on that list is a convicted madam, who has confirmed that she supplied prostitutes for Vernon executives when they were in San Diego.

Before his arrest, Dixon's was a lavish lifestyle of gourmet parties across the world, trinkets such as a 17th Century castle door, Baccarat crystal, Remington sculptures, a silver-studded saddle and a posh beach house north of San Diego.

The government says Dixon, 50, spent several hundred thousand dollars of Vernon funds on hiring prostitutes, hunting trips, political contributions, yacht trips, antique cars and the beach house.

A dozen other Vernon executives and associates have preceded Dixon in court; 10 have been convicted and a guilty verdict against two others set aside because the jury discussed Dixon's indictment.

Defense and prosecution attorneys declined to discuss the case this week, citing an informal gag order from Fish. But in the past, Dixon has accused the government of trying to make him a scapegoat in the potential $500 billion collapse of the thrift industry.

Until the recent notoriety given Neil Bush and Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan, or Keating and Lincoln Savings and Loan, Dixon and Vernon were at or near the top of the list of abuses cited in the industry. Regulators have accused Bush and other Silverado directors of negligence; Keating faces multiple criminal and civil charges stemming from his involvement at Lincoln.

Dixon's trial is an effort "to bring to justice people who break the law, who use savings and loan associations as personal piggy banks, and who may have thought they could just walk away free and let the American taxpayer shoulder the cost of their greed," said Timothy Ryan, Office of Thrift Supervision director in Washington.

Dixon was indicted June 13 on 38 conspiracy and fraud counts in the 1987 collapse of Dallas-based Vernon, which had a luxury yacht and a fleet of five planes worth $6 million.

The S&L also paid the $22,000 tab for Dixon's gastronomic tour of European restaurants, the government said.

Dixon is also charged with illegal contributions to such politicians as former House Speaker Jim Wright and Jack Kemp, a former Republican congressman from New York who is now Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Economy blamed for lower NCNB earnings

By Paul Nowell

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp. said Wednesday sharply lower third-quarter earnings — down nearly $87 million — were the fault of problem loans and deterioration in the economy.

"NCNB's earnings this quarter reflect the difficult operating environment facing banks today," said Hugh McColl, NCNB chairman. McColl heads the nation's seventh-largest bank holding company with more than $69 billion in total assets.

"Continuing increases in problem loans and loan losses, combined with the continuing deterioration of the U.S. economy, dictate our cautious stance on credit quality issues," he said. "This caution was illustrated by our decision to strengthen our reserve for loan and lease losses by $67 million in the third quarter, to $593 million."

The bank reported net income for the quarter of $57 million, or 51 cents per common share. That compared with net income of $143.6 million, or $1.45 per common share, in the same period of 1989.

The $57 million also is less than half the $137.4 million the company reported in the second quarter of this year.

The troubles of NCNB, the largest bank in the Southeast, are viewed as indicative of an increase in problem loans that have plagued banks across the country.

The bank said the earnings for the current quarter were affected by its decision to place $146.4 million in reserve for loan and lease losses. That's more than twice the $66.3 million that was placed in reserve in the same quarter in 1989.

The additional $146.4 million represents a 35 percent increase in the previous total of $439 million that was in reserve for loan and lease losses at the same time last year, McColl said.

The bank said nonperforming loans totalled $659.8 million at the end of the quarter, which means all but 10 percent were covered by the $593 million in reserves.

Total nonperforming assets were $846.6 million, which included $186.8 million in foreclosed properties, the bank said. That compared with $695.2 million on June 30.

Net charge-offs — which are bad loans written off by the bank — were $79.1 million in the third quarter, which was about $15 million more than the total in the second quarter of 1990, the bank said.

McColl was not totally pessimistic, however.

"We continue to benefit from our broad franchise in the Carolinas, Florida and Texas, markets that are relatively stronger than the nation as a whole," he said.

NCNB Corp. has more than 900 banking offices in seven states.

STARTS: At eight-year low

(From 9D)

The Commerce Department said starts of new homes and apartments fell to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.14 million units on top of a 1 percent drop in August.

It was the first time starts had fallen for eight straight months since the department began recording them in 1959. And the September level was the lowest since construction fell to 1.05 million units in August 1982 during the last recession.

Seiders said the Home Builders are forecasting starts to total just 1.04 million this year, down from 1.38 million in 1989 and 1.49 million in 1988. Already, starts are off 10.4 percent from the first nine months of 1989.

Building permits, often a barometer of future construction activity, did not suggest improvement either. They were down 4.2 percent to an annual rate of 1.01 million applications on top of a 3.0 percent drop the previous month.

BURNS: Trusts can cost

case, the liquid assets in the trust would amount to about $300,000. I guess what I want is the same service and dependability as a bank at a more reasonable price. What do you suggest?

A. I wish there was a happy answer to this question but there isn't. While your net worth puts you in the top 5 to 10 percent of the population, it is a fact that our major trust institutions are geared to trusts with $1 million or more because the typical minimum fee now runs $10,000-$12,000 a year... and that doesn't include tax return preparation. I also know that this answer will produce protest letters from banks saying they DO serve less affluent clients. But 10 years of reader mail tells me it ain't so. Let me make two suggestions. The first is that you let your wife know she is a damned fool if she refuses to learn about the money that will provide for her future security. You don't need to be a rocket scientist to take care of your money. You only need to be able to add, subtract, and multiply small numbers. The second is that you seek a small investment advisory firm as a trustee/advisor. Some will provide all the services of a trustee and most have arrangements with accounting firms that have more reasonable professional fees than the major concerns.

ANALYSIS

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 14.35 to 2,395.54 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

But losers outnumbered slightly gainers in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 685 up, 725 down and 484 unchanged.

Analysts said investors were still preoccupied with trying to gauge how far and how deep the recession now presumed to be taking hold in the economy might go.

With a decline of more than 20 percent since midsummer, stock prices are widely believed to have anticipated the effects of at least a brief, shallow slump in business activity.

But many observers say they are not convinced the market has fully taken into account whatever possibility exists of a severer, longer-lasting downturn.

In today's economic news, the Commerce Department reported that housing starts declined 0.6 percent in September. Industrial production increased 0.2 percent in the same month, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Citicorp led the active list, down ¼ at 12¾. On Tuesday the company reported a 38 percent earnings decline for the third quarter.

MCI Communications, the volume leader in the over-the-counter market, dropped ¾ to 30. The company reported a 69-cents-a-share third-quarter loss, after a large one-time writeoff.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .72 to 164.36. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .70 at 289.62.

Volume on the Big Board came to 118.11 million shares with two hours to go.

MUTUAL FUNDS

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

Andrews draws horizontal project

Staff Report

A horizontal well staked in the Midland Farms field in Southeast Andrews County could bring new vitality to that field.

Amoco Production Co. has filed a permit to drill a horizontal well with a 300 foot lateral in the Midland Farms Ellenburger field. Location of the well is 510 feet from the north lines and 610 feet from the west lines of Section 46, Block 41, G&MMB&A survey, 17 miles north of Odessa. Total depth for the well will be 13,000 feet.

If the well is commercial it could mean a breakthrough for horizontal drilling in the Permian Basin. Approximately five other horizontal Ellenburger wells have been drilled in the Permian Basin with only marginal success.

The Midland Farms field was discovered September 1952 when the Anderson-Prichard Oil Corp. drilled the No. 1 David Fasken "24." The well pumped 562 barrels of oil daily.

Horizontal project

Amoco Production Co. plans to drill a 13,000 ft. horizontal well in the Midland Farms field in southeast Andrews County.

Concho recompletion yields Cook discovery

A recompletion in Concho County has yielded a Cook sand discovery for NEVTEX PETROLEUM INC. of Abilene.

The company reentered the No. 2 Choat, recompleting it to pump 40 barrels of 52 gravity crude and 10 barrels of water from perforations 1,810 to 1,816 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,000 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio is 250:1.

Total depth was 1,912 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 1,909 ft.

The well topped the Cook sand formation at 1,810 ft. on ground elevation of 2,132 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and east lines of Section 2, Block 2, J.A. Hall survey, Abst. 1928, six miles southwest of Eden.

DEVELOPMENT WELLS

■ DRILLING PROGRAM SET IN BORDEN. EP Operating Co., Dallas, plans to drill six wells in the Jo Mill (Spraberry) field of Borden County. Four are in the Canon-Whatley lease, and two on the Canon lease, all 11.5 miles southwest of Gail Proposed depth is 7,400 ft.

■ THREE STAKED IN HOCKLEY FIELD. Texaco Inc., has staked three wells in the Levelland field of Hockley County, three miles south of Petit. All three are on the Ira P. DeLoache lease, Labor 13 and 18, League 78, Reeves CSL. Proposed depth is 4,850 ft.

Catalyst Energy sells stake in United Thermal

N.Y. Times News Service

Catalyst Energy Corp., a privately owned power producer, hired Lehman Brothers to seek a buyer for its 83.5 percent stake in United Thermal Corp., a producer and distributor of steam and heat.

Catalyst was taken private in a 1988 leveraged buyout led by Thomas B. Pickens III, the youngest son of T. Boone Pickens.

The planned sale, disclosed Tuesday in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, is expected to help the company raise some of the cash it owes the Bronfman family of Toronto for financing the 1988 buyout.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

IRA contribution based on taxable income

By Bill Doyle

Q. My husband and I have each contributed $2,000 to our individual retirement accounts at the beginning of every year. I made my 1990 IRA contribution in January this year.

I was laid off from work in late 1989 and collected unemployment benefits for the remainder of that year and part of 1990. I received $2,100 in unemployment benefits in 1990. I have not yet gone back to work.

If I do not earn any wages other than unemployment benefits in 1990, is my 1990 IRA contribution legitimate? If not, how do I undo it?

Doyle

A. For openers, unemployment benefits are not wages. Nor are they any other kind of compensation for personal services in the form of earned income, such as salary, commissions, fees and tips, necessary to make an annual IRA contribution. Taxable alimony and separate maintenance payments also are counted as compensation.

Under the rules, your maximum annual IRA contribution is $2,000 or your total taxable compensation for the year, whichever is less. If you remain out of work and have no compensation this year, you are not entitled to make a 1990 IRA contribution.

As things now stand, the $2,000 you put into your IRA last January is an "excess contribution." You can undo it by withdrawing the $2,000 and whatever it has earned in interest, dividends and/or appreciation in value.

The withdrawal must be made by the due date for filing of your federal income tax return. That's April 15, 1991, unless you receive a filing extension.

If you don't pull that money out of your IRA, you will be socked with a penalty tax equal to 6 percent of the excess contribution each and every year until you do withdraw it. That could get mighty costly.

Leave things as they are for a while. If you don't land a job and start earning compensation before 1990 is out, remove that excess contribution from your IRA before you file your next income tax return.

Q. I have about $7,000 in an IRA at my bank and am considering investing this money in either zero-coupon U.S. Treasury bonds or Canadian government bonds.

I recently opened a new, small business and I would like to keep the IRA funds available for withdrawal, if that becomes absolutely necessary. Which of my two considered investments, if either, would be best suited to my situation?

A. Neither. In order to get money out of U.S. Treasury, Canadian government or any other "marketable" bonds — those bought and sold in the marketplace — you would have to sell the bonds. And relatively small amounts of bonds such as you are thinking about don't fetch good prices. Chances are, you would have to unload at a loss.

The same unhappy result could come about with any security, whose market price can fluctuate.

Given your desire to have your IRA money available, you had better keep it in either a bank money market deposit account or a money market mutual fund, both of which can provide cash the very day you need it.

Q. I have approximately $50,000 in a retirement savings plan at the company from which I retired five years ago. The plan is now paying 9.05 percent interest. I am 68, a recent widow and must start withdrawing money out from the plan by the time I reach age 70 1/2.

Would you suggest I start taking the money out now, or wait until the required time? I could use the interest each month. My yearly income is now $20,000.

A. My suggestion is to start receiving the interest from that plan now. On $50,000, 9.05 percent provides $4,525 annually or $377 monthly. If that's enough to ease your financial burden, leave the rest of your money in the retirement plan until you are required to withdraw it.

A 9.05 percent interest rate is quite favorable. You would have a difficult time getting that much, with safety, elsewhere.

BP quits oil lease acquisition

CLEVELAND (AP) — BP Oil Co. is leaving the crude oil lease acquisition business and will sell a six-state oil gathering pipeline network.

"This business no longer is strategic and would fit better with companies that see this activity as more central to their aims," BP Oil said Tuesday.

In the lease acquisition business, oil companies purchase crude oil from small leaseholders and ship it to refineries by way of company-owned gathering pipelines.

The company said it would solicit bids for the purchase of its pipeline gathering facilities in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

The decision will affect 108 employees based in Cleveland; Centralia and Carmi, Ill.; and Houston and Longview, Texas.

BP Oil produces about 700,000 barrels daily, including 22,000 barrels purchased through the lease acquisition system, said company spokesman John F. Andes.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Senate seeks larger role before troops go to war

By Barry Schweid
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — Key senators on Wednesday demanded the Bush administration seek the approval of Congress before sending U.S. troops into combat against Iraq, but Secretary of State James A. Baker III resisted.

Baker promised only further consultations as he confronted a bipartisan demand for decision-sharing from members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

"We should not have a constitutional argument over whether or not the President as commander-in-chief has authority to commit forces," Baker said in an effort to end the debate.

Besides, Baker said, a vote on Capitol Hill could tip off Iraqi President Saddam Hussein about a pending military operation or even cause the White House to abandon that option.

But only two members of the committee, Sens. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., and Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., supported the administration in its insistence that consultation with Congressional leaders was sufficient.

Typical of the demand was an assertion by Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., that "consultation is not enough."

"There is a difference between consultation and authorization," Sarbanes said. "The notion that the President alone would be able to commit American forces in a military assault in effect without receiving a shared decision by the Congress is contrary to the Constitution."

But Baker responded: "If you want us to agree to do nothing unless we get the approval of 535 members of Congress, we can't agree to that right now."

The disagreement, mostly under wraps until now, is rising to the surface as Congress prepares for a year-end adjournment, beginning possibly late next week.

In the meantime, Sen. Richard G. Lugar, D-Ind., said, "There is likely to be military activity in that area." He said Kuwait was disintegrating rapidly and the trade sanctions imposed by the United Nations Security Council on Iraq more than two months ago may not force Iraq to relinquish its hold on the Persian Gulf emirate.

Instead of the Bush administration making a decision on its own, Lugar said, "Congress ought to come back into session and authorize a declaration of war."

On the House side of the Capitol, meanwhile, Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said he was "favorably inclined" to provide for Congress to call itself back into session if military action began in the gulf.

The debate centers on the authority the Constitution gives Congress to declare war while designating the President as commander-in-chief. It also concerns the War Powers Act, which Congress passed over former President Richard M. Nixon's veto in 1973 after thousands of U.S. troops had died in Indochina without a declaration of war.

The law requires the President to withdraw troops from combat or from situations of "imminent involvement in hostilities" within 60 days unless Congress gives its approval.

Democrat Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, the committee chairman, proposed to Baker that "a formal mechanism should be developed for consultation with the Congress if and when military options are considered."

But Baker rejected the proposal: "I would have a little bit of reservation about a formal mechanism," he said.

Officials say Iraq now feeling effects of world trade embargo

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The world trade embargo on Iraq has begun to have an effect, officials said Wednesday, and some Iraqis said they would put President Bush on "trial" for denying their children milk.

"We are in a very bad shape so far as milk is concerned," one official said on condition of anonymity. "There is no way we can get it."

The government has listed milk along with rice, wheat, sugar, cooking oil, tea, soap, detergent and beans as items in short supply and subject to rationing.

Although Iraq has begun rationing some goods, reporters in Baghdad have seen no evidence of any shortages.

"There is not enough milk for the newborn babies and the blockade has affected nourishment of expectant mothers," Hamad Saleh al-Rawi, president of the Iraqi Bar Association, said in a statement released Wednesday.

He said about 50 expectant mothers planned to testify against Bush at a "trial" organized by the bar association and various women's and students' groups.

Al-Rawi said Bush will be charged with "imposing an economic blockade against the people of Iraq and depriving the same of food, medicine and children's milk."

Diplomatic sources in Baghad have called the trial a publicity stunt.

The trial was to have begun Tuesday in Baghdad, but al-Rawi said it was delayed because organizers want to move it to Algeria to avoid charges the proceedings were slanted in favor of Iraq. He did not say when the trial would start.

The United Nations imposed the trade embargo on Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and later annexation of the emirate. The measure is to pressure Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his troops.

Seventy Italians, most of them hostages, demonstrated on Wednesday outside Italy's embassy in Baghdad to demand a peaceful end to the crisis and freedom for all those detained, Italian state-owned RAI TV reported from Baghdad.

Many signed a letter to Italian authorities urging negotiations, and some began a hunger strike, it said.

Italy's Foreign Ministry issued a statement in Rome describing the demonstration. It said the hostages were "the object of constant attention on the part of the Foreign Ministry," that the ministry was providing aid to hostages and their families, and was working on a measure to guarantee that hostages' contractual and financial obligations were met during their detention.

Endangered art

"Sufi watching the poet Sadi in ecstacy," a tapestry in an exhibit from the Kuwaiti royal family, now is displayed at the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad, Soviet Union. The showing will tour the United State in December. Art experts are concerned about other pieces from the collection, hanging at the Kuwait National Museum when Iraq invaded.

British men cross desert to escape Iraqi patrols

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Three British men have escaped overland from Iraq to Saudi Arabia, Western diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

The diplomats said that to avoid cutting off the possible escape of others, they did not want to specify the lengthy route the men took across the desert.

The three arrived near the northern Saudi border town of Arar late Monday, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

No immediate details were available on how the men evaded Iraqi patrols and crossed the border.

Their identities were not disclosed, but the diplomats said two were hospital workers in Baghdad and the third a businessman, and that all three left from the Iraqi capital. The three Britons were in their 20s or 30s, and have families living in England.

One diplomat said the three asked not to meet the press and would be flown back to Britain shortly.

Three Britons and two Frenchmen escaped by Iraq by sea earlier this month. The five were rescued off the gulf coastal city of Khafji on Oct. 3 after spending 25 hours in a small fiberglass boat.

Thousands of Westerners remain in occupied Kuwait and Iraq, either in hiding or detained by the government of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Hundreds are being used as human shields at Iraqi military and other strategic installations to deter attack by the U.S.-led multinational force deployed against Iraq in the gulf and Saudi Arabia.

Troops get pretzels, cakes, near-beer

The treats are courtesy of American companies and individuals who have donated a wide variety of food, drinks, games, exercise equipment and other goods.

Among the food items donated: 20,000 three-ounce bags of pretzels from Atlanta; 400 bushels of apples from Albany, N.Y.; 150,000 boxes of cookies from Reading, Calif.; 50,000 cans of sardines from Prospect Harbor, Maine, and 12,500 pound cakes from Hileah, Fla.

U.S. now trying to get Soviets off the hook

By Stewart Powell
Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

MOSCOW — The United States inadvertantly put the Soviet Union on the spot last week by publicly asking for secret information about Soviet-built weapons in Iraq.

Baghdad then threatened to hold up the departure of some 5,000 Soviet citizens now in Iraq if the Soviets divulged any secrets on its military capabilities.

But U.S. officials declined to discuss the matter except to say that despite their requests, Soviet officials had not made available the kind of detail they wanted on Iraqi weaponry. The U.S. aides also refused to say whether their Soviet counterparts had complained about the risks that Soviet citizens in Iraq might face if the Kremlin complied with the Pentagon request.

In addition, Soviet presidential spokesman Vitaly N. Ignatenko denied reports that the Soviet government was prepared to give the United States military intelligence on Iraq. Last month, KGB Chairman Vladimir Kryuchkov told the Associated Press Board of Directors that his agency was prepared to share such information with the U.S. government.

Ignatenko told reporters, however, "We are not at war with Iraq and, of course, there can be no revealing of secrets."

The diplomatic snafu started last Thursday when a senior Pentagon official, briefing reporters on Cheney's planned trip to Moscow, said the Pentagon chief hoped to obtain "militarily significant" information about Soviet-made Iraqi weapons, how Iraq uses its armored forces and on where Soviet military experts think Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "is heading."

Iraq's formidable arsenal is predominantly of Soviet origin. Baghdad has bought more than $30 billion worth of arms from the Soviet bloc since the early 1970s.

U.S. commanders in Saudi Arabia have been eager to obtain up-to-date information about the Soviet-built weaponry they may encounter in any military operations to retake Kuwait.

The radar frequencies on anti-aircraft missiles, the capabilities of sophisticated Soviet aircraft including the state-of-the-art MiG-29 Fulcrum, the modifications possible in Iraq's arsenal of Scud-B missiles — all could be of enormous importance in a conflict with Iraq.

The Soviet Union, which has forged an unprecedented alliance with the United States to pressure Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, is constrained on sharing secrets, however, because of its 5,000 citizens in Iraq working on military, irrigation and construction projects.

What's it like to drive a Corvette?

. . . but you can find out at Jack Sherman Chevrolet now! Find out about the advanced technology like fully independent suspension, 4-wheel anti-lock brake system, driver's side air bag, optional electronic selective ride control and much more.

This latest generation of Corvette reveals much new including a "ZR-1-like" tail lamp appearance for all models.
