Bullock says oil payments to go into school fund

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Texas State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday he has decided what to do with the $415 million expected April 15 from the federal government as part of the settlement of a long-running dispute over division of offshore oil revenues.

"It will go to the permanent school fund, with some interest going to the available school fund," said Bullock's press secretary, Tony Proffitt.

"If and when the check comes in, that's where it will be deposited," Proffitt said.

Last October, when Rep. John Breaux, D-Crowley, La., proposed that Congress decide how to divide revenues from offshore oil activities that straddle federal-state boundaries, Bullock asked Attorney General Jim Maddox for an opinion on where Texas' share should go.

Friday, Bullock withdrew his request for the opinion, after being convinced by Land Commissioner Gary Mauro that it should be dedicated to public education and should not be placed in the general fund or in a special trust fund.

The state's oil lands are, by law, dedicated to public education. Mauro contends it was the permanent school fund's management of the state's oil lands that "enhanced" their value and the value of leases in adjoining federal waters.

Top Texas officials have been politely quarreling over how to spend the money — a matter that takes on special urgency as oil tax revenues drop and the state Treasury is depleted. Bullock has predicted that by next January, when the legislature reconvenes, the state will be $1.3 billion in the red.

Gov. Mark White, who as former attorney general and as governor has persistently battled the federal government in court and Congress for a bigger share of the oil money, suggested that it be placed in a trust fund with the interest benefitting research and development.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby preferred for the money to be deposited in the general fund, to be appropriated by the state legislature for education.

State employees saw the windfall as a means of winning a pay raise.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and who helped draft the congressional compromise, wanted to build prisons to relieve overcrowding.

The decision on where to deposit the money appears to be Bullock's to make, unless someone with different ideas challenges him in court.

In the 1978 Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act amendments, Congress said only that a "fair and equitable" division should be made of oil and gas receipts from common-pool wells in the three-to-six mile "8(g)" zone beyond state waters. Congress did not, however, define the term "fair and equitable."

Seven coastal states, including those off the Gulf of Mexico, California and Alaska have been arguing with the federal governmment since that time over division of the money. Congress spelled out that $4 billion would be released from escrow to settle the legal dispute between the federal government and the coastal states. Congress agreed to pay states 27 perent of all 8(g) revenues, including escrowded royalties, and provide the same federal-state split for all future bonuses, rents and royalties.

In addition, both houses included a "recoupment" provision that would pay the seven coastal states about $500 million as their 27 percent share of some $1.8 billion that the state's proponents claim should have been, but was not, placed in escrow in the 1978-85 period. Some of that money was to be held back and distributed over 15 years.

The Senate's amendments, in the legislation that ping-ponged between the Senate and House nine times since December, deleted conferees' agreements that strengthened states' roles in granting offshore drilling leases, required offshore drilling rights to be made in America, and set up a new block grant program to share drilling revenues.

Students to view government close up

By JULIE HILLRICHS

Many Midland students and their families agree that spring break is a time for sunbathing on the beach, skiing the slopes or just loafing about town.

But a handful of Lee High School juniors and seniors will take advantage of the annual spring vacation next week to join more than 18,000 students nationwide on a visit to Washington D.C. for a probing look at the issues, institutions and personalities of contemporary American government.

As participants of the federal government's Close Up program, the youth will take part in daily seminars with key Washington personalities representing both major political parties and a broad spectrum of viewpoints.

Students also will have an opportunity to ask senators, representatives, administration officials, journalists, lobbyists and other Washington notables about domestic issues, foreign policy and defense, Congress and the legislative process, justice and the judicial branch, the presidency and the executive branch, and the news media.

According to James Bradford, chairman of the LHS Social Studies Department, the students not only will develop a deeper understanding of government, the political process and current issues, they'll exercise their skills of communication analysis, inquiry and public speaking.

Bradford, who will accompany the students on their trip, said daily visits will take them to the halls and committee rooms where the business of government is happening.

Wright believes true community college serves diverse needs

EDITOR' NOTE: This is the seventh in a 10-part series looking at local candidates in the April 5 election. Today's story focuses on Place 2 of the Midland Junior College District Board of Trustees.

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Wright

Fred Wright interprets the meaning of a true community college to be one that serves the diverse educational needs of the entire city even in times of economic crisis.

That philosophy will take on an entirely new meaning when Wright — unopposed for Place 2 on the Midland Junior College District Board of Trustees — takes the oath of office in May and begins another six-year term representing the Midland College community.

"Many people don't understand the role of a community college," Wright said. "A community college offers a wide variety of programs. There's something out there for every age group be it academic, vocational or continuing education programs."

A retired Mobil Oil Co. executive, Wright was appointed to the board in 1972 when the Midland Junior College District was established and has served as president, vice president, secretary and on several of the board's appointed committees.

He's seen Midland College prosper during periods of growth and survive the challenge during periods of depression. "Midland College has made great strides in serving the many educational needs of this community and I cherish the time I have devoted to the growth of the college since its formation."

Wright said he now looks forward to a new challenge as the institution forges ahead in the midst of an uncertain economic future.

Instead of spending time campaigning against other candidates, Wright has concentrated on examining the college's financial situation and searching for ways to cut spending in light of an estimated $1.3 billion shortfall in state revenues.

Despite the fact that junior colleges are local units of government rather than state agencies and were not included in the governor's request to trim 13 percent from agency budgets, Wright said, "We're going to have to look at it and see where we can save."

ELECTION '86

Wright said the board will have to take a conservative attitude in approving the budget this summer and consider lower oil prices and fewer revenues. In addition, it must maintain its commitment to excellence.

"We must continue to do what we've been trying to do and that is to maintain one of the finest community colleges in the country," said Wright, "but we also must look for savings if there is a shortfall."

Without forcing taxpayers to pay higher taxes, Wright is looking to save money in other areas including raising tuition and building use fees.

Salary and hiring freezes, travel restrictions and fewer program offerings are among the other options, but Wright noted he would oppose cuts in salaries or staff reductions. "It's taken us so long to build the faculty we have. We're real proud of them out there."

Wright said the college's Foundation Board also will play an important role in raising money through private sources.

"If there is a real need, there's always been a way to get it," he said. "Midland College is fortunate to have widespread acceptance and support in this community.

"I would welcome the opportunity to serve on the board for another term to assure that Midland College continues to fulfill its role of providing educational facilities and programs for the residents of Midland and this area," he added.

A graduate of Midland High School and New Mexico Military Institute, Wright earned his bachelor's degree in petroleum engineering from the University of California-Berkley.

Wright has served as director of Midland Junior Achievement, Midland Symphony, Midland Petroleum Club and Midland Racquet Club. Wright also served as western regional chairman of the Oil Information Committee.

He and wife, Elizabeth, have eight children.

Khadafy: 'We will impose sovereignty with blood'

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — "We will impose sovereignty on the Gulf of Sidra with our blood!" Moammar Khadafy shouted Friday to throngs dancing around an ox with 'Reagan' written on it. When he finished his speech they killed the ox.

The Libyan leader gave his scorecard for the confrontation with the U.S. 6th Fleet in the gulf, which he called a Libyan ambush:

Libya: Three U.S. warplanes shot down.

U.S. Navy: One fishing boat attacked.

He also claimed one American missile had not exploded and said it would be given to the Soviet Union for inspection.

American officials said the Libyans fired at least six missiles soon after 6th Fleet vessels entered the gulf Monday and U.S. warplanes responded with attacks on Libyan patrol boats that sank at least two, and two raids on a shorline missile base, with no damage to American aircraft.

Ships of the three-carrier Navy force that entered the gulf with the avowed purpose of asserting international navigation rights, pulled out of the zone Thursday. Khadafy claims the gulf as national territory, but the United States insists it is international waters beyond the generally recognized 12-mile limit.

The Pentagon said it ended the exercise several days early. The version Khadafy gave the crowd was that he sent a message to the 6th Fleet demanding its departure, and "they left in 72 hours."

Khadafy delivered his fiery message Friday evening from a balcony of his heavily fortified bunker in downtown Tripoli, shouting at the top of his lungs to thousands of people who intoned anti-American slogans and tormented the ox.

The cannons of two Soviet-built T-72 tanks jutted out on either side of Khadafy.

After the 90-minute speech, members of Khadafy's audience whirled around the black-and-white ox, waving their fists in the air. Someone slit its throat and others danced in the blood that gushed from the wound.

About 100 foreign journalists escorted to the site witnessed the spectacle.

"We will impose our sovereignty on the Gulf of Sidra with our blood!" Khadafy told the crowd, and issued a warning to Italy, Spain other countries in which U.S. bases are located.

"If this confrontation continues, Libya will attack the U.S. forces stationed in those forign countries," Khadafy said. "We'll hit anywhere there is an American base."

He repeated Libya's initial claim of downing three American jets during what his media have called a "glittering victory over the imperialist invaders."

"The Americans deny the planes were shot down," he shouted. "They are lying. They ask how can three planes be shot down by a small country? But their planes were shot down and they know it.

"America has gone mad in the last two days. They attacked a fishing boat and claimed it was a gunboat. An American helicopter was allowed to cross the 'line of death' to collect one body and one dying man," crew members of the downed aircraft.

Khadafy claimed the American ships never crossed the 32nd parallel, the 'line of death' he defines as the outer limit of Libyan rights in the gulf.

Libya has said little or nothing of its casualties, but the Madrid newspaper Diario 16 quoted Capt. Luis Asiain of the tanker Castillo de Ricote on Friday as saying his vessels rescued 16 Libyan sailors and "12 (Libyan) crewmen were killed when their patrol boat was hit by a U.S. missile."

"The war with America will increase," Khadafy said, and told the admiring crowd: "We allowed the Americans to come into our airspace so we could ambush them."

Mubarak faces economic crisis

By ROBERT H. REID

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Hosni Mubarak's government faces an acute crisis as it struggles to provide for a burgeoning population while revenues fall and the threat of social ferment grows.

Because of the sharp drop in world oil prices, the bottom has fallen out of Egypt's major sources of convertible currency — remittances from Egyptian workers in the oil-rich Persian Gulf, petroleum exports and tolls from tankers using the Suez Canal.

Tourism, the fourth major revenue source, was dealt yet another blow by February's police conscript riots, hard on the heels of an upsurge of Middle East terrorism which had already frightened many visitors away.

The police mutiny, put down by the army, erupted within a poorly paid force whose members come from the poorest class of Egyptian society, raising questions about the government's ability to control a population facing further economic hardship.

As financial resources are strained, Egypt's population, now estimated at 49 million, is mushrooming at the rate of a million every nine months. A land that once was the breadbasket of the Roman Empire now imports about half its food and by the end of the century will have to feed 20 million more people.

At the same time, a growing number of Egyptians, especially intellectuals, fear their pro-Western government's policies have created a consumer society plagued by greed and social injustice, drifting away from its moral, spiritual and cultural base.

MORE THAN A generation after Gamal Abdel-Nasser and his fellow officers overthrew the monarchy and promised social progress, millions still live in filthy mud villages or in the teeming slums of Cairo and Alexandria near families of great wealth.

Along the canals that weave through the Nile Delta and amid the rich farmland of southern Egypt, peasants still bathe in fetid waters infested with parasitic snails that enter the body and bring lingering, painful death.

One of the most popular television serials, "The Journey of Abul-Eila el-Bishry," depicts the struggle of a conservative Egyptian to rescue his young kinsmen from the corrupt ways learned in Westernized Cairo.

The series is a thinly veiled attack on Western consumerism and the decline in traditional family values which some intellectuals associate with President Anwar Sadat's policy shift to the West. Sadat was assassinated in 1981.

"If we get through the next few years without trouble, it will be nothing short of a miracle," said the Rev. George Assad, a prominent Protestant clergyman in the southern city of Assiut.

Efforts by Mubarak to liberalize political life have led not only to greater democracy but to open dissent by leftists and Islamic fundamentalists dissatisfied with the economy, the political system and relations with Israel.

LEFTISTS preach national salvation through a return to Nasser's doctrines of pan-Arab socialism. Fundamentalists demand the imposition of Islamic law and an end to Western cultural influence. Both agree that Egypt's future lies in moving away from the United States and Israel.

"We want Islamic government as a complete idea in all aspects of Egyptian life, and we will push the government toward this," vowed Osama Rushdy, a leader of the Islamic Student Association, which last year won control of the student government at the University of Assiut. "We see that the first helper of Israel is America, and our enemy's friend is our enemy."

Mubarak's success in coping with his problems is vital to the United States, which gave Egypt more than $2.3 billion in economic and military aid last year.

Egypt's 1979 peace treaty with Israel ranks among the greatest U.S. foreign policy triumphs in a region notorious as a graveyard of diplomatic initiatives. Prime Minister Shimon Peres of Israel called Mubarak's administration "the guarantee of peace in the Middle East."

Conservative Arab states such as Saudi Arabia are also watching developments in Egypt, the largest Arab country, with deep concern.

Egypt has survived major crises in its 5,000-year history and its people have often confounded predictions of doom with a remarkable resilience.

IN THE 14TH Century, the Italian traveler Leonardo Frescobaldi wrote that 100,000 people were sleeping at the gates of Cairo because there was no room for them in the city. Today, nearly a quarter million squatters unable to afford apartments live in tombs in Cairo's cemetery, and the nation survives.

Foreign diplomats and economists, however, describe Egypt's economic crisis as acute. Solutions threaten to bring social and political upheaval to a country that has been among the most stable in the Middle East.

The International Monetary Fund estimates Egypt's debt at $32.5 billion; its sources of cash to pay it off are fast dwindling.

With the decline in oil prices, Egypt has cut petroleum production by at least 200,000 barrels a day, leaving little for export. Petroleum sales had accounted for 60 percent of Egypt's exports, and the cutbacks are expected to cost the government $700 million this year.

The respected Middle East Economic Digest reported that last June, Britain's Export Credits Guarantee Department placed Egypt in its highest-risk category for loans. Egypt's poor credit rating adds to the cost of borrowing money to pay off an estimated $7 billion in short term debts.

In addition, U.S. economic aid, on which Egypt has relied heavily for development and for upgrading its military, is being trimmed by $99 million this year under the U.S. Gramm-Rudman Amendment, which requires the United States to balance its budget by 1991.

Manila's 'garbage people' look to new Philippine president

BY DENIS D. GRAY

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Manila's poorest of the poor — the "garbage people" — are counting on President Corazon Aquino to lead them off a mountain of refuse where they live, scouring the trash for a livelihood.

"We pray she can give us permanent jobs, not for ourselves but for the sake of our children," said Purita Perol, whose tiny, fly-infested shanty sits near the summit of Manila's largest garbage dump.

The five-member Perol family, living with some 5,000 other squatters atop the reeking pile, earns about 15 pesos (75 cents) a day, barely enough for the meagerest of meals, water they must buy from vendors and a daily 1.5 pesos for school expenses.

Day-to-day survival appears paramount, but there is also considerable hope among the garbage people and in other quarters of a depressed stretch along Manila harbor known as the Tondo Foreshore. Mrs. Aquino has vowed that aid to the urban and rural poor would be given the highest priority.

Articulate residents talk of the new Aquino government turning around an economy that has been plummeting in recent years and eliminating injustices of the toppled regime of President Ferdinand E. Marcos. Tondo has suffered from both.

Once dubbed "little Vietnam" for its violence and notorious as Southeast Asia's largest slum, Tondo Foreshore today is home for about a quarter million people, many of them one-time squatters from the impoverished countryside. They live along narrow, crowded alleys where jerry-built, wooden shacks stand wall-to-wall with small concrete houses built by Filipinos who earned petrodollars in the Middle East or shipped out as seamen.

Community organizer Resty de Leon hopes foreign companies scared off by recent political turbulence will now set up factories on a vacant Tondo Foreshore industrial estate.

Unemployment would also be alleviated, he said, if the adjacent port was spurred into greater activity by a revived economy.

De Leon, a political prisoner for three years, said Tondo activists will urge the Aquino government to revise terms under which residents can own land.

A Marcos decree in 1977 allowed thousands of squatters to buy government plots but De Leon said 9 out of 10 people could not cope with the 25-year loan repayment schedules. Only a three-month grace period is allowed and under Marcos many were summarily locked out of their homes.

"Yes, Marcos did some good things here but we must also consider the methods — cheating, lying, corruption and force," said the Rev. Manuel Fraile. "I think the poor, simple people are identifying quickly with the gentleness of Mrs. Aquino."

The Roman Catholic priest, who administers the Don Bosco Youth Center in Tondo, credits the fallen government with improving what was once a swampland shantytown through a World Bank-financed renewal project. But Fraile, a Spaniard who has worked in Tondo for more than a decade, also described massive election cheating, small handouts to buy loyalty of the poor and inefficient, graft-tainted work by the government's National Housing Authority which was run by Imelda Marcos, the ex-president's wife.

The Perol family, squatters in Tondo since 1972, recalled being trucked out to an outlying province with promises of a better life. A house was provided by the government. But with no jobs, clinics or schools available in the remote rural area, the Perols sneaked back to the garbage heap.

"Some of the same corrupt policemen are still walking around outside my door, but maybe they will change," said Amador Ayonon, an unemployed college graduate who spent three years in the Middle East in order to build a house and start a family.

Ayonon, 32, charged that police were involved in extortion, drug pushing and the gambling protection racket.

Ulster police now facing attacks from Protestants

By EDITH M. LEDERER

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — In 17 years of sectarian violence, the overwhelmingly Protestant police force in Northern Ireland has rarely found itself the butt of Protestant anger.

But that is the case now as the 8,000-member Royal Ulster Constabulary has become a focal point of the hard-line Protestant campaign against the the British-Irish accord that gives the Roman Catholic Republic of Ireland to the south a voice in the administration of this British-ruled province.

The Rev. Ian Paisley and James Molyneaux, leaders of the province's two main Protestant parties, claimed in a full-page newspaper advertisement that the role of the police had been altered radically by the accord because they were being asked "to serve a second master" — the Irish Republic.

Sir John Hermon, the force's chief constable, responded immediately, saying: "The RUC is not and will not be political in any way. The RUC is and will continue to be an impartial police force committed to give service to the community as a whole."

In half-page newspaper advertisements, the Northern Ireland Police Authority has accused Molyneaux and Paisley of trying to use political pressure to persuade police officers not to perform their duties.

The authority, which oversees police activity, said officers were not being asked to impose the agreement, only to uphold the law as enacted by the British Parliament.

A key objective of the Nov. 15 accord is to reduce violence in Northern Ireland, mainly by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic and is fighting to end British rule in the province.

The Irish government in Dublin has been given a say in Northern Ireland's affairs in an attempt to address the grievances of the province's Catholics, who are outnumbered about 3-2 by Protestants. One of the key complaints of the Catholics is that the RUC and other security forces are partial to the Protestants.

The impartiality of the RUC was put to a key test during a March 3 strike called by Paisley and Molyneaux. In many instances, police tore down strikers' roadblocks and tried to stop a barrage of fire-bomb, arson and gunfire attacks. But in others, they stood by, unwilling or unable to curb the violence.

Official statistics reflected a mixed performance. Police suffered 47 injuries and cleared 441 roadblocks but 214 other barricades were left standing and a dozen towns were completely blockaded. The RUC received 132 allegations of police inactivity, 43 complaints arising from police action and 237 reports of intimidation by strikers.

Chief Constable Hermon said there were undoubtedly "some isolated shortcomings" but described the overall performance of his force as "sterling police work done impartially on behalf of the whole community."

But Catholic politicians led by Seamus Mallon, of the moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party, said it had been a "day of shame" because many police officers had stood by while the law was broken.

Danny Morrison, an assemblyman for Sinn Fein, the IRA's legal political wing, said: "A combination of RUC sympathy with the loyalist (Protestant) cause and loyalist threats against some RUC personnel effectively neutralized the force with regard to the strike."

On the day of the strike, the homes of four RUC officers were attacked and two police families were forced to flee. Because of intimidation, more and more members of the RUC are being forced to live in all-police communities.

Such pressure coming from Protestants is ironic viewed against the casualties the RUC has taken: 147 police officers and 79 police reservists killed since 1969, all but a handful at the hands of the IRA.

John Cushnahan, leader of the non-sectarian Alliance Party and a supporter of the police, said he had some question about the police handling of events on March 3.

But he added: "The police were in a no-win situation, trying to hold the line with meager resources...They were on the receiving end of a lot of brutality."

Board agrees to raise fees paid by polluters

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Air Control Board agreed Tuesday to increase fees paid by air polluters even though the agency's fine-imposing power faces a legal challenge.

The Legislature ordered the Air Control Board to recover about $5 million of its cost through fees. The agency's executive director, Bill Stewart, said without approving additional fees, the agency would fall short of the $5 million figure by about $1 million.

Under the newly approved fee, air polluters must pay a surcharge to the board based on the amount of fines they pay for pollution violations. The surcharge should bring in the additional $1 million the agency needs, Stewart said.

The agency hands out fines under powers the Legislature gave the board last legislative session. These administrative penalties have fallen under attack by the Texas Business Association, which filed suit against the Air Control Board March 3.

The lawsuit claims administrative penalties handed down without court approval deprive companies of due process, violate separation of powers and deny companies a right to a jury trial. Before the Legislature gave the Air Control Board and other agencies administrative penalty power, courts imposed fines on violators.

The board unanimously agreed to stand behind its administrative penalty power and aggressively fight the lawsuit. Board Chairman John Blair said he spoke out against administrative penalties as a private citizen but backs the board in the lawsuit. Although Blair said he remains uncertain about administrative penalties, "I certainly want to protect our right to do it."

John Turney, a board legal counsel, briefed the board on the suit. He said a similar case is pending against the Texas Railroad Commission, which imposes administrative penalties. Turney also said the federal government won a similar case filed against the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Friday the board ordered nine companies to pay $161,225 in administrative penalties.

It's easy to move through the years acquiring this, buying that — thinking that the more we possess, the happier we'll be. That's not necessarily so!
Very often what happens is that instead of having possessions, they have us! The grip can get so tight we may feel, not just pinched, but overwhelmed and dangerously caught in a hold that won't let go.

Cheers arose, and he devoted a few comments to Americans who live in Libya: "They live in peace. We are not killing them. They like it here."

After terrorist attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports Dec. 27, in which 20 people were killed, Reagan ordered all Americans to leave Libya by Feb. 1. The United States blames the airport assaults on renegade Palestinian guerrilla Abu Nidal, whom it accuses Libya of harboring.

Diplomatic sources in Tripoli say at least 300 Americans still are in Libya.

Earlier in the day, the state radio said it was the duty of all Arabs to make "everything American...a military target."

It said the United States has "declared war" on Arabs and they should attack "every American presence in the region...be it an interest, goods, a ship, a plane or a person."

Official Libyan media also have exhorted Arabs to become "human bombs" and "suicide squads" to attack U.S. embassies and other American targets.

Friday is the weekly Moslem holiday, and the seaside capital was quiet except for the Khadafy rally. The only military activity seen was a convoy of 10 army trucks loaded with communications equipment and supplies that drove along the sea-front boulevard.

Fire destroys storage house, contents

From Staff Reports

A storage house and its contents were destroyed after a Friday morning fire at 1900 Cloverdale, the Midland fire department reports.

Steve Tucker, 1900 Cloverdale, reported the fire that started from a burning tree stump about 9:30 a.m. Friday. The fire was extinguished with 850 gallons of water.

In other law enforcement reports, about $700 in damage occurred to a car on the shoulder of a south Interstate 20 service road. Bill Lamb, 1901 S. Midkiff, told sheriff's officers he ran out of gas and left his car about 9:30 p.m. Thursday at that spot on County Road 60 east, about one-fourth of a mile west of Midkiff Road. When Lamb returned to the car about 8 a.m. Friday all the windows of his 1972 brown Chevrolet Impala had been broken out with a hammer causing about $450 in damage. Dents and other damages resulted in about $250 loss to the car.

Light planes collide

McKINNEY (AP) — One person was seriously hurt when two light planes, one taking off and the other landing, collided about 100 feet in the air near the end of an airport runway Friday, officials said.

The collision occurred when a Cessna L-19, towing a glider, was trying to take off and a stunt plane was landing, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

After its left wing broke off, the stunt plane nose-dived into the runway after the collision, the spokesman said.

The pilot of the landing plane, Kenneth J. Krebaum, 35, was taken to a McKinney hospital..

Participants visit the House and Senate, the Capitol and the Supreme Court. Independent activity time on Capitol Hill provides students with additional opportunities to go to congressional offices, sit in on government hearings, and see the Library of Congress and other sites.

"They'll experience government as insiders," Bradford said.

Though the visit is intended to be an intense one-week government experience, Bradford said the youth also will explore Washington's historical and cultural resources including the Smithsonian Institute, the Vietnam War Memorial and Georgetown.

The students also will experience a broad overview of Washington D.C. — seat of the federal government, cosmopolitan center for the arts, international capital and historic city of neighborhoods and monuments, Bradford said.

Austin hospital plans to drop program for mental health patients

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin State Hospital officials say they will drop a program that helps small groups of mental patients live together and earn a living, a move that has angered some professionals in the mental health field.

The program has been praised as "one of the better programs we have in the state" by Dr. Gary Miller, commissioner of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Miller last year testified before U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas that the program "has been demonstrated to reduce the incidents of hospitalization." Sanders is overseeing a court case against state mental hospitals.

Austin State Hospital officials have proposed to close the unit, which is called Capital Lodge, in an effort to save money and department officials plan to vote on the proposal next week, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

The proposal is being criticized by mental health professionals in Austin, the newspaper said.

The coordinator of the Austin-based panel assigned by Sanders to monitor mental hospitals has asked the department for "an explanation of what is going on."

"I have no reason to want it permanently dropped," said David Pharis, coordinator of the monitoring panel. "Any program that has demonstrated its effectiveness is useful, and I think that this program has."

Capital Lodge "is the most effective program for the chronically mentally ill that the system has right now," said Sam Shore, director of the community program that supervises the Capital Lodge patients after their discharge from Austin State Hospital.

"I have yet to see any documentation on any program that is as effective," said Shore, who works for the Austin-Travis County community mental health center. "To close it down doesn't make much sense when you know you're doing a good job. I'm for expanding this kind of activity instead of reducing it."

Mental patients in the Capital Lodge program live in a building that is isolated from the general adult psychiatric wards. Being away from acutely psychotic patients allows Capital Lodge patients to learn more quickly and to form lasting personal bonds that will continue after they leave the hospital.

Death row inmate says she's new woman

GATESVILLE (AP) — Death row inmate Karla Faye Tucker says she's a new woman.

She says she's not the same drugged-out immature person who three years ago buried a pickax into the body of a woman she didn't know and then bragged that the action gave her sexual pleasure.

Today, Ms. Tucker, one of three women on Texas' death row, says she's off drugs, has found God and is pursuing an education — all behind bars.

The detective and prosecutor who put her there agree.

"I think everything about me was bad — the way I was living, definitely the way I was thinking," the 26-year-old inmate told the Houston Chronicle in a Friday copyright story.

She was sentenced to die for the June 13, 1983, slaying of Deborah Thornton, 32. During the trial, Ms. Tucker testified she was drugged-out when she drove the pickax more than a dozen times into Ms. Thornton and boasted that the murder gave her sexual gratification.

She told jurors how the pickax slaying culminated a life that began with marijuana at age 8, heroin at 10 and prostitution at 14.

"It is such a horrible crime, it goes beyond the pale of the ordinary crime," says Rusty Hardin, who prosecuted her case. "And yet I've gotten to know her enough that I personally see — if I'm any judge — a person who has changed. I like her and I hope she doesn't die."

Ms. Tucker says she's off drugs, has found God, is enthusiastic about life and is pursuing her education from prison.

"I have a better grasp on things, maybe because I want to, maybe because my mind's free of drugs, and it allows me to," she said.

"I've changed, definitely. I care about things and people, the way I act. I care about what people think of me where before I didn't care, except I wanted them to think I was big and bad and mean and didn't care."

Sgt. J.C. Mosier, who arrested her, says the punishment is deserved for the crime, but he would prefer she not die.

"I feel more empathy toward Karla because at least she had the guts in the trial to admit she was guilty," Mosier says. "I believe in the death penalty and she's not the only person that I've ever sent to death row. But in most cases, they're bad people, period. She never had a chance from the start. There was no way for her to go but bad."

Karla Faye Tucker

Ms. Tucker quit school in the eighth grade after failing the seventh grade three times. Since arriving at the Mountain View Prison Unit, home of the women's death row, she has earned a high school equivalency certificate and now is taking college courses.

"I knew there were things I could do and achieve, and I hadn't done it," she said. "The more little things I did, the better I felt about myself, and the better I felt, the more I felt I needed to do to feel better, and on and on."

Her statements are not unlike other death row inmates who find "jail house religion."

"What makes it different for me is that if I got out today, I would not drop my religion, my beliefs," she said. "I would pick them up out in the world and do more."

Ms. Tucker says she thinks about dying and is ready for it.

"I don't think anybody wants to die," she said. "Although, if I do, I feel like I'm ready in my heart and in my head for whatever happens. I can accept it as much as anybody could accept that fact. But I don't want to die."

Border patrol to be on look out for terrorists

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Unrest in the Middle East will have a federal agency on alert this weekend for travelers who fit the profile of terrorists as border traffic increases for Holy Week celebrations.

Easter week festivities have increased the flow of Mexican vacationers, U.S. students on spring break and local shoppers on the Gateway International Bridge.

But this year, Silvester Reyes, U.S. Border Patrol district supervisor in McAllen, said his agency is on the alert for anybody illegally crossing who fits the profile of a terrorist or who could be associated with terrorist activity.

"We have had communications from our central office in Washington, D.C. to exercise particular caution during this period because of the events that have occurred in the Middle East," Reyes said.

Although the Border Patrol office was put on alert for potential terrorist activity twice this year, Reyes said the Tuesday directive was the first to refer to the nationality of the potential terrorists.

He said his office was directed to be on the alert for individuals from the Middle East, particularly Libyans.

"(We're) on increased alert for any Middle Eastern national or anybody who fits the profile of someone who would enter to commit a terrorist act," Reyes said.

Although he wouldn't comment on any precautionary measures his agency is taking for the alert, Reyes said no extra agents have been called in to assist the local Border Patrol office.

He said Border Patrol agents have apprehended five Israelis, four Egyptians, three Iranians, three Pakistanis, two Italians, a Lebanese, a Jordanian and a Turk so far this year.

He said the last Middle Eastern apprehended was either a Jordanian or Iranian caught illegally crossing the border earlier this month.

Meanwhile, the local U.S. Customs office says it is handling the heavier traffic routinely.

"During Easter week...there are a lot of people from the interior of Mexico coming across on their vacations," said Francis Legere, U.S. Customs chief in Brownsville.

Pedestrian traffic across the bridge this week had increased to more than 15,000 people a day by mid-week, Legere said. More than 9,000 vehicles crossed the bridge on Wednesday, he said.

Dead sea turtleswash up along gulf coast

HOUSTON (AP) — About 20 dead sea turtles have washed ashore along the Texas Gulf Coast this month and wildlife officials suspect the turtles died needlessly in shrimpers' nets.

Some of the dead turtles, including the endangered Kemp's Ridleys, were mutilated with their heads and flippers chopped off by machetes, officials said Thursday.

Jack B. Woody, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service specialist on sea turtles, said some commercial fishermen and shrimpers mutilate the turtles so they won't get caught in nets again, especially now that it's the peak period for catching white shrimp.

He said an estimated 50,000 threatened or endangered sea turtles end up trapped in shrimpers' nets each year.

Gary Matlock, a fishery specialist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said five dead turtles were spotted Wednesday on beaches between Galveston and Port O'Connor.

Ed Klima, director of the National Marine Fisheries Service laboratories in Galveston, said there is no real evidence of how some of the turtles died, but there is a possibility they drowned in shrimp nets.

"It's very hard to look at a dead turtle and determine what killed him or even to make a determination that he drowned," Klima said. He said about 10 dead porpoises have washed ashore with the turtles in Texas and Louisiana.

"We do know that turtles get caught in shrimp nets," he said. "But we also have these dead porpoises, and porpoises never get caught in shrimp nets. They just swim out of them."

Woody, the Fish and Wildlife Service's national sea turtle coordinator, has been a leader in an eight-year-old joint program of the United States and Mexico to save the endangered Kemp's Ridley turtles.

As part of the same program, Klima directs a project to raise the young turtles and release them when they're a year old with the hope that they start a new nesting ground on Padre Island.

More than 2,200 drivers ticketed during DPS' Operation Plain View

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 2,200 Texas drivers know now that the Department of Public Safety covers the state from border to border.

That's how many traffic tickets were written Friday after more than 158 DPS troopers in as many patrol cars conducted Operation Plain View II on Interstate Highways 20 and 10.

"We did it for the same reason we did the first Operation Plain View in December," said Mike Cox, spokesman for DPS. "We wanted to make a big show of visibility and to concentrate on writing tickets on speeding and no seat belts.

"For a lot of the way on Interstate 20, there was a black and white patrol car about every 10 miles," Cox said.

The DPS operation covered I-20 from the Louisiana line west through Dallas-Fort Worth, Abilene, Midland and Odessa. It covered I-10 from Beaumont to El Paso.

More than 800 miles of Texas interstate was covered by the troopers, Cox said.

The DPS reported a total of 1,836 tickets written for passenger cars and pickup trucks and 440 issued to heavy trucks. By far, the bulk of the tickets were for speeding, Cox said.

"There was this one guy who admitted that in one day he had been given speeding tickets in California, where he started, and then in Arizona, New Mexico and finally Texas," Cox said.

Another 1,369 warning tickets were issued.

"We think the operation was successful if for no other reason, there was not a single fatal accident while the operation was in force," Cox said.

Austin municipal court raises fines for traffic violations

AUSTIN (AP) — Running red lights or illegally passing school buses will cost Austin motorists a lot more in the future.

New traffic fines have become effective, with increases for all moving violations.

"The fines hadn't been revised in four or five years," presiding Municipal Court Judge J. David Phillips said Thursday. Judges hope to curb violations with the penalties, he said.

The fine for running a red light went up to $60 from $37. Police issued thousands of tickets for the violation during a crackdown in 1983, but it remains one of the most frequent causes of traffic accidents, Phillips said.

The fine for illegally passing a school bus has been raised to $115 from $67. Cars are prohibited from passing a school bus that is stopped, with its lights flashing, when schoolchildren are getting on and off the bus, according to the state motor vehicle code.

Fines for fictitious or altered license plates or inspection stickers were increased to $65 from $49. The fine for driving without a license was increased to $60 from $22. If the driver obtains a license or renews an expired license within 12 days of getting the ticket, the fine is reduced to $11.

Phillips and four other Municipal Court judges approved the revisions in December, but new tickets were not issued until Wednesday after the old tickets had been used up, Phillips said.

State employees union lists cost-cutting ideas

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas State Employees Union, looking for ways to save state money and jobs, Friday released a list of cost-cutting ideas submitted by its members.

At the top of the list is a recommendation to require only one license plate — instead of the current two — per vehicle.

Texas could save $3.5 million a year by going to one plate, according to the TSEU report.

TSEU legislative chairman Wayne Smith said the money-saving ideas proposed to state leaders are just "stop-gap" measures.

TSEU's other money-saving ideas:

— Refurbish furniture instead of buying new items.

— Reduce the number of agency board meetings.

— Hold agency meetings at state facilities.

— Conduct energy use audits.

— Lease or sell unused equipment.

New guidelines developed to help finacially ailing banks

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators took coordinated action Friday to help banks that have been hard hit because of problems with agriculture and energy loans.

Regulators said the proposals are intended to help "basically sound, well-managed banks during a difficult but transitional period."

New guidelines to help financially pressed energy and farm banks over the hump were issued by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Reserve Board, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The action came as Congress adjourned for a week-long Easter break without passing legislation farm groups had sought to achieve the same regulatory changes in time for the spring farm lending season.

The changes, endorsed earlier in the week by the Senate Banking Committee, became bogged down as senators sought to load the legislation up with unrelated riders on other banking issues.

Worried about the delay that would result if action awaited Congress' April 8 return, 30 senators, led by William Armstrong, R-Colo., wrote the three banking agencies Thursday asking them to use their administrative authority to accomplish the same policy changes.

Comptroller Robert L. Clarke said the new guidelines include information on how the OCC "intends to implement capital forbearance for banks experiencing serious problems because of loans to agricultural and energy borrowers." Energy loans are concentrated in the Southwest, where approximately 370 of 1,490 national banks regulated by the OCC require special federal supervision.

FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney said letters were being sent to 8,500 banks spelling out details of relief measures and how banks can qualify to take advantage of them. While there are some 4,000 banks with heavy agricultural lending and 500 with large energy loan portfolios, only a small proportion will need to apply for the relief measures, Whitney said.

"Lending decisions are now being made for the 1986 growing season and agricultural lenders need the flexibility that the new regulatory climate would afford if they are to be able to avoid unnecessary foreclosures," the senators wrote in their letter encouraging the regulatory relief.

The American Farm Bureau Federation endorsed the action, saying credit relief for farmers struggling to arrange money for spring planting had become bogged down in election-year politics.

The nation's 4,000 agricultural banks, many of which are feeling the same financial pinch as their farm borrowers, have said they need regulatory allowances if they are to continue making farm loans and to work out restructuring plans with problem borrowers.

Agricultural banks accounted for 68 of the 118 commercial bank failures in 1985, and such banks on the "problem" list have grown to 302 from just one-third that number three years ago.

The regulatory relief package generally includes permission for qualifying banks to allow their capital temporarily to fall below the currently required 6 percent of assets. Qualifying banks would be able to let their capital — their cushion against losses — fall as low as 3 percent without being subject to regulatory sanctions.

Also included in the relief packages is use of an accounting rule that permits restructuring of delinquent debt, so long as the original principal amount ultimately will be repaid, and an easing of the requirement that restructured loans be counted as non-performing assets.

The looser standards would apply only to banks that have been weakened by problems in the farm and energy sectors. Banks would qualify only if they also could show they could return to meeting the normal standards in five to seven years.

Congress' call to cancel weapon bothers Reagan

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The White House said Friday that President Reagan is deeply concerned about a congressional demand for cancellation of an anti-satellite weapon that was successfully tested last summer.

On Tuesday, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, joined Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., in opposing further tests of the weapon, a two-stage rocket designed to be fired from under an F-15 fighter plane.

In an operational test of the weapon last summer, it destoryed an old scientific satellite over the Pacific. The administration maintains the weapon is needed to counteract a corresponding Soviet system.

Critics in Congress, however, maintain the weapon is too expensive and that the cost of deploying it has risen from an originally estimated $3.5 billion to $5.3 billion.

In December, Congress wrote into the budget for the current fiscal year a prohibition against any further testing. The administration has been seeking to reverse this in the budget for the next fiscal year.

Volcano continues to spew ash, gases

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Augustine Volcano spewed ash and gases for a second day Friday as health alerts continued throughout south-central Alaska, gritty dust grounded airplanes, and windborne debris spread as far as 600 miles to the north.

The ash from Friday's periodic blasts, part of the 4,025-foot peak's first eruption in 10 years, was expected to circle the Earth several times before settling out of the atmosphere, but no appreciable effect on climate was foreseen.

Since Thursday, the mountain and the remote uninhabited island upon which it sits have shaken with a series of gaseous blasts that sent ash rocketing 10,000 feet skyward in about 30 seconds, with debris eventually reaching more than nine miles into the air.

"That's what we expect to continue for several more days — periodic bursts of ash," said Betsy Yount, a U.S. Geological Survey volcano expert. "In between the ash bursts, there is still a plume, but it's mostly gases and very fine ash."

In Kenai, an eighth of an inch of volcanic dust covered the ground. The air was heavy with the stench of sulfur and visibility was less than a mile.

The Kenai airport closed Friday morning because of the ash buildup, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Paul Steucke.

Most flights were canceled Thursday to and from Anchorage International Airport, but a half-dozen airliners made it in Friday morning, airport officials said.

Steady winds Friday blew ash and debris north, but the National Weather Service predicted a shift in winds late Friday or early Saturday would start blowing ash to the east, over the southern tip of the Kenai Peninsula and into Prince William Sound.

As the clouds rotate to the east, Alaska's major population center around Anchorage probably will receive its largest dose, meteorologists said.

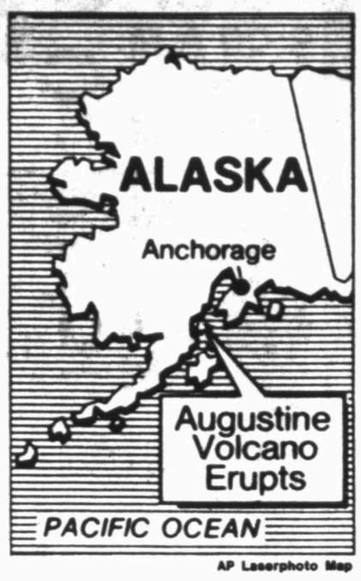
By Friday morning, Anchorage, 175 miles northeast of Augustine, had been spared all but a dusting of ash, though emergency officials reported that the concentration of particles in the air had been climbing rapidly.

Anchorage authorities have issued a health alert urging people to stay home and avoid exercise, and the Chugach Electric Association warned people on life-support systems to be prepared to go to the hospital.

The utility, which provides power to most of south-central Alaska, shut down some of its generators for about an hour Thursday, fearing the ash would damage the turbines. The utility asked non-essential businesses to close and requested customers to cut power consumption immediately.

Some ash has been carried high aloft. Yount said an ash layer was observed at 17,000 feet over the Brooks Range, about 600 miles north of the volcano.

Ash at that altitude probably would continue to travel around the world several times before falling to Earth, she said. She said at this point the amount of ash isn't enough to have an impact on the world's climate.



AP Laserphoto Map

"At any one time in the world, several volcanoes are erupting," Yount said. "The atmosphere is continously receiving this type of material."

In Homer, 70 miles east of the volcano, emergency officials waited anxiously Friday. If the volcano were to blow out violently, as it did in 1883, debris sliding into the inlet could generate a tsunami, or huge wave, that would reach Homer in about 30 minutes.

Part of the dome that formed in 1976 during Augustine's last eruption still remains, leaving open the possibility of a violent explosion, said Yount.

The mountain's historic eruptive pattern is to blow apart its dome, calm down, then build another dome, she said. "Once the vent area is clear, the eruptions may calm down a bit."

An eruption shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday was particularly spectacular, a witness said.

"There was an upswelling of cindery red, sort of like a blast furnace at a foundry," said Curt Harris, an off-duty Alaska State Trooper who flew his small airplane near the volcano. "Then boom, in just a matter of seconds it was up above 10,000 feet, with lightning bolts shooting all around and over that vertical dust column," he said.

In addition to the plumes of smoke and ash, the eruptions have produced pyroclastic flows — clouds of hot ash and gases that barrel down the mountainside at speeds in excess of 100 mph.

"It runs all the way down the north side of the mountain and terminates just about at the shoreline," Harris said. "It looks like a freight train, just boiling dust behind it. If you didn't know better, it would appear the whole side of the mountain is blowing out."

Five major eruptions have been recorded since Augustine was discovered in 1778 by Capt. James Cook. The eruptions came in 1812, 1883, 1935, 1963, and 1976. The 1883 eruption generated a tsunami that sent a 30-foot wave into Port Graham, flooding houses and destroying boats.

There are about 60 active volcanoes in the so-called Aleutian Arc, stretching 1,500 miles from near Anchorage to the end of the chain of Aleutian Islands.

Government sued over regulations of welfare program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-six states, the District of Columbia and three California counties sued the federal government Friday to block proposed regulations that would impose $200 million in penalties in connection with two major welfare programs.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court here, is the latest action in an on-going fight between the states and the federal government on reducing errors in the two basic programs — Aid to Families with Dependent Children, or AFDC, and Medicaid.

What was intended by Congress as a "quality control" system to encourage states to reduce program errors "has become an illogical and cumbersome process that neither produces quality nor reduces errors," Sidney Johnson, executive director of the American Public Welfare Association, said in a statement.

The regulations challenged in the lawsuit authorize penalties based on federal calculations of the percentage of funds spent in the programs on ineligible persons, or on over-payment of benefits.

The penalties are based on 1980 Health and Human Services Department regulations carrying out the Michel amendment, named for House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., which required each state to bring its error rates for the federal-state ADFC and Medicaid programs to 4 percent in 1983. The regulations required each state to progress one-third of the way toward that goal in fiscal year 1981, another third in 1982 and reach the goal by 1983.

Attorney Charles A. Miller said, "States have consistently opposed this penalty approach because the federal calculations do not fairly or accurately measure actual misspending, because some mistakes are unavoidable in the AFDC and Medicaid programs, and because much of the responsibility for spending mistakes belongs to the federal government, which mandates highly complex program requirements and then constantly changes them."

The states filing the suit: Alabama, Alaska, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Maryland, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Charge dropped against ex-governor's daughter

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The daughter and son-in-law of former West Virginia Gov. W.W. Barron were released from jail Friday after a West Virgina court withdrew murder warrants against them.

"I'm just so thankful to be here. I'm so happy I can't believe it," said Jane Barron Anderson, 34, as she and her husband, 38-year-old Jerry Artor Anderson, emerged from the Mecklenburg County Jail on Friday to embrace attorney Joe Dozier.

The Andersons had been charged with the 1983 beating death of their landlady in West Virginia.

The decision to drop the warrants was made "after consultation with the Kanawha County (W.Va.) prosecutor's office and in light of information developed subsequent to the issuance of arrest warrants," said West Virginia State Police Superintendent W.F. Donohue.

The department declined to elaborate on its statement, although Donohoe said the investigation would continue.

"I'm assuming they decided what I knew 10 days ago — that my clients are clearly not guilty," Dozier said. "This is definitely a Good Friday."

The Andersons were arrested March 17 at their Matthews home and charged in the slaying of Barbara Kay White of Dunbar, W.Va. They had since been held in the Mecklenburg County Jail because of different interpretations of extradition laws.

North Carolina officials said they wouldn't allow the Andersons to leave until West Virginia officials arrived to pick them up. West Virginia officials said they wouldn't leave for North Carolina until the Andersons waived their extradition hearing.

"This has been a shocking experience for anyone," Dozier said. "I'm sure the first thing they want to do is make sure their (three) children are OK, and want to make sure their employers know they've been released. I think they're relieved the nightmare is over."

Anderson is a car salesman, and Mrs. Anderson works as a hospital clerk.

Mrs. Anderson is the youngest daughter of Barron, who was governor of West Virginia from 1961 to 1965.

Barron, 74, was indicted in 1968 on a charge of accepting bribes from a coal operator. He was acquitted, but later was convicted of bribing the jury foreman. Barron served three years in a federal prison.

Iraq says forces rout Iranians from mountain outposts

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq announced its commandos led tank columns and infantry in a battle that routed Iranian forces Friday from 14 northern Iraqi mountain outposts they had occupied since 1983.

An Iraqi military spokesman read a communique over Radio Baghdad announcing the "crucial victory" in the northern sector of the 730-mile warfront.

The Iraqis launched the battle after sunset Thursday, according to the broadcast monitored in Bahrain.

It said commandos led the two-pronged onslaught of four infantry and two tank columns backed by artillery with jet fighters providing air cover.

Kurdish militias helped prepare for the onslaught with "diversionary attack tactics," said the Iraqi spokesman.

"The sweeping attack by daybreak left corpses of Iranian aggressors, their weapons and equipment being consumed by flames about the battlefield," said the spokesman. "Large numbers of Iranian prisoners of war were meanwhile being taken to (Iraqi) rear lines."

Brigadier Nizar al-Khasraj, commander of the 1st army who supervised the northern operation, told Baghdad Radio the victory meant the the border cities of Penjwin and Chwarta "have now been linked."

The two cities are northeast of the northern Iraqi provincial capital of Sulaymaniyah.

On Feb. 24, Iranian forces launched assaults in the zone and claimed they advanced to within 11 miles of Sulaymaniyah.

In another war communique, Iraq reported it jet fighters struck an Iranian air base at Redaeiyeh, destroying a "very large military transport plane."

Redaeiyeh is on the Iranian-Turkish border in West Azerbaijan province.

The communique also said Iraqi warplanes raided a "very large maritime target" off Iran's coast and crippled an Iranian navy vessel carrying reinforcements to Iraq's Faw peninsula in the southern front.

In Iraqi military terms "very large maritime targets" generally refer to oil supertankers.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said Iran's navy destroyed two Iraqi warships near the Faw peninsula, which Iran captured in an offensive Feb. 9.

It said its ships damaged three other Iraqi vessels and shot down an Iraqi helicopter as it tried to rescue crewmen on the damaged ships.

Official: No evidence Waldeim involved

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A West German prosecutor and Nazi hunter was quoted Friday as saying he had no evidence to support allegations that former U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was involved in Nazi war crimes.

The World Jewish Congress has said documents from World War II archives indicate Waldheim was a member of the Nazi SA, or storm troopers, and played a role in atrocities against partisans and civilians while he was a German army officer in the Balkans and Greece.

Waldheim, who was U.N. secretary-general from 1972-82, has denied the allegations.

The mass-circulation Kronenzeitung of Vienna quoted prosecutor Alfred Streim of Ludwigsburg, described as West Germany's top Nazi hunter, as saying in an interview that Waldheim's name does not show up in any proceedings on the deportation of Jews from Greece.

Streim was quoted as saying his files also did not show that Waldheim was involved in war crimes in Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile, Waldheim's accusers in the World Jewish Congress were the objects Friday of a bitter counterattack by the conservative Volksblatt newspaper.

Under the headline, "The Blood on the Fingers of Israeli Politicians," the newspaper said, "Many Israeli leading politicians were simply terrorists" 40 years ago. It said the World Jewish Congress should investigate Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and former Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Both were leaders of Jewish underground groups that attacked the British and Palestinians before the modern state of Israel was established in 1948.

Despite criticism that he was allegedly involved with Nazis during WWII, Kurt Waldheim continues campaign as presidential candidate of Austrian People Party.

WORLD

Volksblatt is the newspaper of the opposition Austrian People's Party, which backs Waldheim in his campaign for the May 4 presidential election.

In a telephone interview, Waldheim's campaign manager, Heribert Steinbauer, said of the Volksblatt article, "I don't think it is expedient."

Three prominent members of the People's Party issued a statement warning against a resurgence of the "anti-Semitic evil spirit." The three, all former concentration camp inmates, were former Trade Minister Fritz Bock; Alfred Maleta, the former president of Parliament; and Ludwig Steiner, a parliamentary deputy.

Austrian President Rudolf Kirchschlaeger issued a similar warning Thursday night in a rare television interview.

Waldheim's former military superior in Greece, Lt. Col. Herbert Warnstorff, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Moenchengladbach, West Germany, that the allegations against Waldheim were "completely absurd."

Warnstorff, 73, said Waldheim had nothing to do with shooting hostages and had not been aware of the deportation of Greek Jews. He said Waldheim's job was to prepare reports based on messages from the field.

The Yugoslav newspaper Vecernje Novosti on Friday published what it said was the photocopy of an April 1948 U.N. document that alleged Waldheim put hostages to death in April-May 1945.

The newspaper said the document was titled "79th List of War Criminals, Suspects and Material Witnesses" and was issued by the U.N. War Crimes Commission.

On Wednesday, the same newspaper published what it said was a document from the Yugoslav government archives indicating the government had sought Waldheim's extradition in 1947 for alleged war crimes.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav government, Aleksandar Stanic, said in the capital, Belgrade, late Friday that Yugoslavia had no new information on the documents. His statement, distributed by the official Tanjug news agency, did not make clear whether the government believed Waldheim committed war crimes.

Malta leader: Khadafy prepared to hit NATO bases

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Malta's prime minister was quoted Friday as saying Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy is prepared to attack NATO bases in Italy if the United States holds more military maneuvers off the Libyan coast.

"I told (Italian Premier) Craxi two months ago...Khadafy has repeated this many times: all NATO facilities are hostile to Libya. And yesterday the colonel repeated that. Categorically," Mifsud Bonnici was quoted as telling the Milan newspaper Corriere Della Sera in Malta during an interview Thursday.

Bonnici met Khadafy in Tripoli, Libya, on Wednesday.

"Khadafy is willing to negotiate, but he is also ready to fight if the Americans recommence their incursions" into the Gulf of Sidra, the newspaper quoted Bonnici as saying.

U.S. Navy vessels entered the gulf Monday to assert international navigation rights.

The Pentagon announced that U.S. warplanes from the 6th Fleet attacked four Libyan ships and a missile radar site Monday and Tuesday after Libya fired anti-aircraft missiles at U.S. jets Monday.

Bonnici, whose island nation lies 200 miles off the Libyan coast, was asked what he said to Khadafy.

"I told him the Americans wanted to provoke him, and I told him he mustn't play their game. It's so clear that the American action is a provocation," the Maltese leader was quoted as saying in the interview.

Black officer killed, set afire; Another black shot to death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A black policeman was killed and set afire and another black man was shot dead in anti-apartheid unrest reported Friday, the beginning of a four-day Easter holiday.

Meanwhile, a special Easter weekend passenger train derailed near Pretoria Friday, killing 16 blacks and injuring about 40 others, railways police and hospital officials said.

The railways police said three locomotives and five passenger coaches left the tracks as the train carried blacks to their rural homes in northern Transvaal province.

Hundreds of thousands of blacks travel from urban centers to their homes in rural areas for the holiday.

Brig. Adriaan Jacobs, assistant railways police security commissioner, at first said sabotage could not be ruled out but later said the results of preliminary investigations "exclude sabotage as a possibility."

The black policeman was killed Friday and his body burned in Tembisa, a black township east of Johannesburg. National police headquarters in Pretoria said 31 people were arrested in connection with the killing.

Two other policemen, one white and one black, were killed at the Crossroads shantytown near Cape Town this week.

About 15 black policemen have been killed by crowds since violence broke out 19 months ago against apartheid, the system under which 5 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

More than 1,250 people have died during the unrest, nearly all of them blacks. Records show about one-third were killed by other blacks and two-thirds were shot by police in rioting in the townships.

Most of the blacks killed by fellow blacks were suspected of collaborating with the white authorities.

Police also reported a black man was shot to death Friday and his body was found in his house after a crowd burned the building in Chesterville, near Durban.

In the same area, police said, another black man was shot dead but it was not determined whether the slaying was related to unrest.

Stores and cinemas closed on Good Friday, and radio and television carried special Easter programs. Hundreds of thousands of whites and blacks attended special prayer services.

More than 1 million blacks were expected over the weekend at Moria City, near Pietersburg in northern Transvaal, for the annual gathering of the Zionist Christian Church.

The Easter weekend follows one of the bloodiest weeks since anti-apartheid flared in September 1984. Police said 30 blacks were killed from Tuesday night to Thursday morning, 27 by police gunfire and three in fighting among blacks.

Meanwhile, black delegates gathered in Durban for two conferences which could help determine the course of the anti-apartheid campaign this year.

About 900 delegates to the National Forum, a loose coalition of black groups opposing a significant role for whites in the struggle for equal rights, met in a hotel to discuss labor strikes and withholding rent for government housing in the townships.

The conference, by acclamation, committed itself to boycotts and protest marches from May Day on May 1 to June 16, the 10th anniversary of the Soweto anti-apartheid riots. The official death toll was 140 in those riots, which were prompted by a government decree that Afrikaans be used as the language of instruction in some black high schools.

Anti-apartheid activists return home after months in hiding

LEANDRA, South Africa (AP) — About 70 young anti-apartheid activists returned to this black township for Easter weekend after two months in hiding, but said they were forced to leave Friday after being set upon.

The youths, most in their mid-teens, fled Leandra in January. They claim they were beaten and harassed by local men known as "vigilantes" who were encouraged by local police.

The activists, who were given refuge near Johannesburg by church leaders, said the vigilantes attacked them when they returned home Thursday night. They said five of the young people were hurt and an adult trying to help them into town was stabbed near the eye and taken to a hospital.

On Friday, reporters coming from Johannesburg, 60 miles to the west, were directed to a house where 50 youths were hiding. One of their leaders, Sphiwe Thebethe, said the rest of the group, about 15 to 20 youths, had disappeared.

An Anglican Church worker came to the house and agreed that it was not safe for the youths to stay in Leandra.

A flat-bed truck arrived and the activists climbed aboard, chanting anti-apartheid slogans and saluting their friends and families with clenched fists.

The loaded truck ran out of gasoline soon after it started up. The youths climbed out and pushed the vehicle to a main street where gasoline was siphoned from a car into the truck.

When the truck moved out of the township of 25,000 people, a group of about six men, some carrying machetes, ran toward it but could not catch up.

Once the truck left the township, a police officer questioned the driver and sprayed a small canister of tear gas at two black reporters who pulled up alongside to ask what was happening.

When a second carload of reporters arrived, the policeman ordered them to leave immediately, saying, "Leave our blacks alone." The truck was allowed to continue.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Party revising policies

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Labor Party is revising its peace policies to encourage Jordan's King Hussein to start negotiations, a party leader said Friday.

The policy guidelines, drawn up for a Labor Party convention opening April 8, dropped some of the language from earlier policy papers that Jordan found objectionable, said Micha Harish, chairman of the 90-member drafting committee.

The guidelines "are different in structure and more flexible than in the past," Harish told The Associated Press in an interview.

He said the revisions make no major departures from Labor's long-standing policies but were designed to create "a different mood. There is a sense of the possibility of negotiating with Jordan, and we are preparing for that."

If approved as expected, the guidelines will dictate the platform of Israel's largest party but will not determine government policy. No party in Israel has ever governed on its own, and Israel's positions have always been determined by coalition agreements.

Most aid cut off to Sudan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most U.S. aid to the Sudan has been cut off since February because that country has not been able to meet its loan repayment commitments to the United States, it was disclosed Friday.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said planned aid for 1986 totaled $152.8 million. Of that, $50 million in food aid has not been suspended because it is considered emergency assistance and is exempted from U.S. regulations governing aid cutoffs, Redman said.

Redman also said it was "most unwise" for the Sudanese government to have called on Libya to assist the government in putting down in rebel movement in southern Sudan.

After several recent reversals, he said, Sudan asked Libya to bomb the rebel units, who receive support from neighboring Ethiopia.

Redman expressed hope that the new government that will take power after national elections next month in Sudan "will weigh carefully the implications of its predecessor's request for direct Libyan assistance in the civil war."

Afghan troops kill rebels

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan troops killed an unspecified number of anti-communist rebels and captured large amounts of weapons and explosives in fierce fighting around the Afghan capital of Kabul, the government said Friday.

The Afghan government's official Radio Kabul said in a broadcast monitored in Islamabad that soldiers killed the guerrillas in the Char-asyab and Paghman districts around Kabul, but did not say when the fighting occurred.

Government forces captured about two dozen ground-to-ground rockets and anti-aircraft missiles, an artillery piece, a mortar, a rocket launcher, 25 U.S.-made hand grenades and boxes of ammunition and explosives, it said.

Guerrilla forces frequently launch rocket and mortar attacks on Kabul from outlying districts.

Europe clocks to change

PARIS (AP) — Clocks go forward an hour in Europe early Sunday to provide an extra hour of evening daylight, a switch applauded by tourists but disliked by farmers and other early risers.

At 1 a.m. Sunday in Britain, clocks are moved ahead to read 2 a.m., which will be six hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

The rest of Western Europe and all of Eastern Europe except the Soviet Union move to summer time at 2 a.m. Sunday, which will be seven hours ahead of EST. Clocks in the Soviet Union advance an hour at 2:30 a.m., putting Moscow nine hours ahead of EST.

Satellite to help banks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The nation's banking system will be completely hooked up to the Morelos communications satellite network by the end of the year, the government newspaper said Friday.

El Nacional reported that the satellite system will enable the nationalized banks to have better links with businesses nationwide and internationally.

Ideal weekend weather forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

An ideal Easter weekend is in store for Midlanders with highs in the low 80s predicted by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Today is expected to be fair with a high in the low 80s. Winds will be south and gusty at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight will be fair with a low in the low 50s.

Sunday is expected to be sunny with a high in the mid 80s.

Friday's high of 81 degrees missed the record mark for that date by 11 degrees. The record high for Friday's date is 92 degrees set in 1963. The overnight low missed the record low by 28 degrees. The record low of 18 degrees was set in 1944.

STATE

Fair to partly cloudy skies and balmy temperatures in the middle 70s and lower 80s were the rule for all of Texas Friday as a high-pressure system dominated the state.

Partly cloudy skies covered much of the area from the upper Texas coast north into north Central Texas and near Del Rio, the National Weather Service said. Elsewhere, skies were generally clear.

The late-afternoon temperature extremes ranged from 77 degrees at Amarillo to 83 degrees in Laredo.

Winds were mostly southerly between 10 and 15 mph, except over parts of West Texas and the lower coast, where occasional gusts to around 20 mph were noted.

The forecast for North Texas calls for fair skies with warm days and mild night through Sunday. Highs should be in the 80s and lows in the upper 50s and lower 60s.

West Texas should have isolated afternoon thunderstorms in the far west Saturday but otherwise should see sunny to partly cloudy skies through Sunday. Highs should be in the 80s and 90s, with lows in the 40s and 50s.

South Texas should be mostly clear through Sunday with lows in the 50s and 60s and highs in the 80s.

NATION

Fair skies and mild temperatures prevailed across the nation Friday, with rain falling only in southern Florida and parts of the Pacific Northwest coast.

Record high temperatures were recorded in seven cities from Wyoming to Michigan, with readings mostly in the 70s and 80s. Similar temperatures prevailed across the rest of the nation, except in the Northeast, where afternoon readings climbed into the 40s and 50s.

Today's forecast called for scattered showers from western and northern New York to northern New England and across southern Florida. Rain is likely across western Washington.

Louisville, Tigers still wonder wha' hoppen

By BRUCE LOWITT

Dale Brown

DALLAS (AP) — As the season progressed, it was clear neither Louisiana State nor Louisville was going to be a championship team. Good, perhaps, but not great.

Even before their season began, the Tigers lost well-traveled Tito Horford, their 7-foot freshman center. Other players fell by the wayside as midseason passed.

At the start of their season, th Cardinals were, well, struggling. After 17 games, they had already lost six.

So what went right — right enough that LSU and Louisville are one victory away from a shot at the NCAA basketball championship?

What went right is that LSU Coach Dale Brown and Cardinals Coach Denny Crum convinced their players that things didn't have to be as they seemed.

"What these kids have done," Brown said following the Tigers' workout Friday at Reunion Arena "is a testimony to the human spirit. In an age when it's not fashionable, they have believed, they've hung together. ... They stayed together when it really didn't look like we had a chance."

As a result, LSU recovered from a late-season slump by staging four tournament upsets to set up Saturday's semifinal meeting with Louisville, which rebounded from that shaky start — including losses to Kansas and St. John's in the Big Apple NIT in December — to win all but one of its remaining 20 games.

Nos. 1, 2 lack legit centers

By DICK JOYCE

Amaker Ferry Dreiling Hunter

DALLAS (AP) — Stars aside, Saturday's NCAA Tournament semifinal showdown between No. 1 Duke and No. 2 Kansas would seem to hinge on opposing journeyman centers Jay Bilas and Greg Dreiling.

Duke, 36-2, has built a 20-game winning streak despite the rap that it lacks a legitimate center. It is a team of veterans, led by All-American guard Johnny Dawkins, who have found ways to win.

"People say, 'We can beat Duke, they don't have height,' " Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said Friday. "But actually beating us has been a problem. We just show up and pay attention to detail."

KANSAS, 35-3, also is on a roll, carrying a 16-game winning streak into the second game of Saturday's semifinal. No. 7 Louisville, 30-7, faces unranked Louisiana State, 26-11, in the 2:42 p.m. CST opener at Reunion Arena.

The Jayhawks got a boost Friday when 6-5 forward Ron Kellogg, their No. 2 scorer who had been hampered by a strained arch in his left foot, practiced and show no difficulty in running. It was his first running since Sunday's Midwest Regional championship game.

Danny Manning, a 6-foot-11 sophomore forward, is the star of the Kansas team because of his all-around ability, but Dreiling, a 7-1, 250-pound senior, could be the key.

"We cannot beat Duke if he plays 16 minutes and fouls out," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "Greg is going to have to be part of the game."

Dreiling has been plagued by foul trouble throughout his career, including Duke's 92-86 triumph over the Jayhawks for the Big Apple National Invitation Tournament title in December. He played only 16 minutes before fouling out with 12 points and 11 rebounds.

BILAS, Duke's 6-8, 225-pound center is the least regarded of Duke's starters. He has the task of playing Dreiling. Danny Ferry, a 6-10 freshman who played against Dreiling in the first meeting when Bilas was injured, will come off the bench.

Dreiling had 19 points and 12 rebounds in the Jayhawks' 75-67 Midwest Regional win over North Carolina State. He averages 11.7 points and 6.7 rebounds.

"Kansas has a much taller lineup," said Dawkins, a 6-2 senior who leds the Blue Devils in scoring with a 20-point average, "but I think people put too much emphasis on height. It has haunted us since we've been here. Height doesn't have much to do with matchups."

Dreiling said, "I don't go out to avoid foul trouble. I will need to establish a physical type of game early on. If you start out passive and then get more physical, the officials are more likely to call it."

He admitted that Ferry was a problem for him in their first meeting because of his ability to move quickly outside and shoot the jumper.

"Bilas plays a little closer to the basket and he likes to bang," Dreiling said. "That's my kind of game."

"Dreiling's got good offensive moves, so it's going to take a good effort on my part," said Bilas, who averages 6.9 points and 4.9 rebounds.

KRZYZEWSKI says the Blue Devils are ready.

"We've also been fortunate to find a lot of different ways to win," he said. "When our shooting is off, as it has been in the NCAA's, our rebounding has been strong."

Pressure defense, led by backcourtmen Tommy Amaker and Dawkins, also has been a key to the Atlantic Coast Conference champions' success. The Blue Devils have forced 19 turnovers a game.

"Duke is probably the best defensive team in the country in terms of consistent pressure," Brown said.

Either Dawkins, 6-8 forward Mark Alarie (17.4 points) or 6-6 forward David Henderson (14.2), all seniors, have been Duke's scoring leader this season, accounting for 63 percent of the Blue Devils' points.

Henderson took advantage of Dreiling's absence in the first meeting and scored 30 points.

Manning, criticized for his lack of aggressiveness earlier this season, won the Big Eight Conference's regular-season and tournament MVP awards and was chosen the outstanding player of the Midwest Regional.

In the first meeting against Duke, Manning broke loose in the second half and finished with 24 points.

He averages 17.1 points and 6.3 rebounds and leads the team in steals with 79. Kellogg averages 15.8 points, 6-6 guard Calvin Thompson 13.4 and Dreiling 11.7.

Cedric Hunter is the Jaywhawks point guard.

"They have the most outstanding starting five in the tournament, five very complementary players," Krzyzewski said. "They are the most explosive team in the tournament. Kellogg, Thompson or Manning is capable of having a 30-point night."

Rebels wallop OHS, 19-4

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA — It's amazing what a few runs will do for a team.

Witness the Midland Lee Rebels.

A week ago, the Rebels opened their Saturday paper and saw themselves in the basement of the District 4-5A standings. Forty-seven runs and 44 hits later, the Rebels have found themselves with three straight wins and a more satisfactory 3-3 mark.

After a pair of lopsided victories this week, concluding with a 19-4 walloping of Odessa High Friday afternoon, the Rebels have leapfrogged toward the first division of the 4-5A standings. And with preseason favorite Abilene Cooper already tagged with a pair of losses, the Rebels still entertain more than a whisper of hope at a playoff spot.

LEE brought its week's total of runs up to 37 with the one-sided victory as the Rebs banged out 13 hits for 34 in two games.

The way coach Ernie Johnson's club has been blasting the ball around this week, three opening season losses are nearly forgotten. But the two-game trip through fantasyland will soon end for the Rebels as they turn the corner into the second half of the season with games next week with Midland High and San Angelo.

JASON LOGI led Friday's hit brigade with three hits in three tries with four runs batted in, including his first homer of the year — a three run shot to left centerfield long after the game had turned to a rout.

"We really are hitting a lot better than we were earlier in the year," Johnson said. "But we have to hit

Permian slaughters Bulldogs

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

In Midland High coach Tim Whalen's most horrible nightmare, he could never have envisioned what happened to his Bulldogs Friday against Odessa Permian at Angels Stadium, a 23-3 District 4-5A loss.

At no time through the first five innings was there any indication of a rout. The score was 2-2 and Kenny De La Garza — considered by many the best pitcher in the district — was on the mound. All was under control.

However, like a dam on a river about to break, cracks were undermining the mound. Defense, a foundation of Bulldog success, was about to collapse and the pitching staff had little left in its arms.

It all started when Panther Mike Adams led off the seventh inning with a fly to deep left field. Midland's Anthony Deande casually moved under the hit, gauged everything perfectly and proceeded to drop the ball. Adams went to second.

Jeff Mudd followed with a free pass to first when Midland's Tommy Yorkman was called for catcher's interference. Rich Fletcher dealt the death blow, an RBI single to right field to snap the tie, 3-2.

The Panthers ended up batting the order plus two in the six-run, sixth inning, but it was only the beginning of disaster. The dream was a full-fledged nightmare and the screaming was about to start.

After getting back one run in the bottom of the sixth, the Bulldog pitching staff started throwing like it was batting practice.

Permian again went through the order with 10 consecutive batters scoring. In all, 20 Panthers went to the plate in the seventh inning for 15

Stone's annual spri ng ritual

The season is over and Midland College basketball Coach Jerry Stone is engaged in his annual spring ritual, job-hunting.

That's not surprising. Stone has never kept it a secret that he'd like to move up to a four-year college. What's surprising is that he is still in Midland after a national championship and a run of scrapbook filling kind of years.

Of course, it's partly Stone's fault that he's still around. Before he moves on to a four-year institution, he wants to be sure they are serious enough about their basketball program to make it worth his while. He has gone the other route before, which is one reason he came to Midland in the first place.

STILL, it's strange that the "right" kind of offer hasn't come along. After a "dismal" Midland beginning, 16-15 in 1977-78, Stone's Chaparrals have reeled off 21-12, 27-6, 30-3, 34-4, 21-12, 31-6 and 33-1 seasons. MC has finished first four times out of the last five years in Region I and won five WJCAC titles in the last six years.

You'd think four-year colleges would come hunting a coach with those figures, but apparently that's not the way it works.

Connections are more important than achievements in trying to jump from one level to another.

So why is Jerry so eager to leave a good thing? Midland junior college ball, once an intimate gathering for close friends of the participants and junkies of the sport, has made great strides since his arrival.

BUT JC ball has its drawbacks. Perhaps, most aggravating is recruiting a group of kids and then having them for only two years...and then there is the recruiting itself.

"Reggie Franklin does most of the actual recruiting," says Stone. "He makes the preliminary contacts and I follow later. I have pretty much turned the recruiting over to Reggie, though."

Finding the players is a chore, but a few phone calls to the right coaches will steer the recruiters in the right direction. "You might call Dallas and they'll tell you 'The best players are down in Houston this year.'"

After that, it takes patience, lots of patience. The four-year colleges pick over the crop and it is not until the prospect is convinced that no one is going to recruit him or his grades just won't make it, that he commits to the junior college.

"We never know until they get here who we have and even then we aren't sure," says Stone. "Some take one look and go home. Others leave in a week or two and still others just don't work out, so you've always got to recruit more players than you can really keep."

"You recruit 12 to 16 and you are down to 12 after a few weeks and 10 at the Christmas break," if you are lucky.

But that's a part of it that Stone lives with and accepts.

"It isn't until the second semester as sophomores that last year's freshmen decide the coach knows what he's talking about and you get their trust and loyalty....that's just when you lose 'em."

STONE goes on, "Four-year colleges don't realize what it's like to coach on the junior college level. You've gotta sell the school to the high school coaches as well as the players. You'll call one and ask about a player and he'll ask 'How long have you been there? Have you ever won anything?"

"This year we recruited guards. We lacked the big man in the middle, but it worked out. Four-year colleges need only three or four players a year and have specific qualities they are looking for. In juco ball, we have to build our team, depending on the type player we recruit."

Stone notes, "We get a Spud or Ricky and they are gone after two years."

So Stone, pursues his annual spring ritual. It doesn't mean he'll move on, however, unless it's what he feels is the right opportunity.

Still, you've got to wonder. A guy wins 30 games or more in five of the last six years...it would seem the right job would come hunting for Stone.

MISL approves pact with Players' group

CHICAGO (AP) — The 12 team owners of the Major Indoor Soccer Leauge unanimously approved a three-year contract with the MISL Players Association Friday, formally avoiding a possible walkout by the union, the league announced.

The deal, which was completed Thursday night, includes a $1.275 million per team salary cap, increased career injury insurance, improved medical and pension benefits for the players, and limitations on new foreign players.

The compromise warded off the theat of a strike at 12:01 a.m. Friday morning, which in effect, would have affected only one game Friday night, Kansas City at Wichita.

MISL Players Association Director of Operations John Kerr said Thursday night after the agreement was reached that the strike date had been postponed until 12:01 a.m. Saturday pending the ratification by the onwers.

He said the MISLPA would present the contract to its members for a vote early next week. He was not available for comment Friday. Kerr did not return telephone messages left at his Washington office.

"My personal feeling is this contract will add stability to the MISL," said league commissioner Francis Dale in a release. "It's the longest in the history of the league and will allow us time to enact long-range plans."

Teams over the $1.275 cap will not have to immediately comply with it. The teams will gradually reduce their payrolls by being restricted to replacing high-priced players, who are either cut, traded or retire, with others who can be signed for only 50 percent of the departing player's salary or the average salary on that club.

That provision will remain in effect until the club comes under the ceiling.

The other major section of the contract will limit the number of new foreign players who will be admitted to the MISL to 18 next year, 15 during the 1987-88 season and 12 during the final year of the contract.

Additionally, six Canadians with "H-1" visas, or players of star quality, will be also be allowed to enter the league during each year of the pact.

Texas, USC gain women's finals

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Freshman Clarissa Davis came off the bench to score 32 points and Fran Harris added 20 as top-ranked Texas downed No. 5 Western Kentucky 90-65 Friday to reach the title game of the NCAA Division I women's basketball tournament.

The victory sends Coach Jody Conradt's 33-0 team into Sunday's championship game at Rupp Arena against Southern California, an 83-59 winner over Tennessee.

Cheryl Miller led the No. 3 ranked Trojans with 17 points to surpass the 3,000-point career mark.

Texas squandered a 13-point first-half lead, allowing Western Kentucky to tie the game 39-39 early in the second half. Davis then hit a jumper with 16:56 to go, and Texas began to pull away.

Harris, a 6-foot senior forward, scored eight consecutive points to cap a 10-4 surge that gave Texas a 58-47 lead with 9:49 to play.

The game was only seconds old when Harris hit her first basket. She scored eight points as Texas built a 10-4 lead on the way to a 35-22 advantage with three minutes left in the first half.

But Western Kentucky, plagued by 14 first-half turnovers to just three by Texas, rallied to cut the deficit to five at halftime. Lillie Mason, the Hilltoppers' All-American senior forward, scored six unanswered points and Clemette Haskins scored twice in the final 38 seconds to reduce the Texas lead to 39-34.

The Lady Toppers, 92-90 winners over top-ranked Texas in regional play last season, scored the first five points after the break to pull even. But they were powerless thereafter to stave off elimination in the semifinals for the second consecutive year.

Mason, who led her team in scoring and rebounding for the season, was in foul trouble throughout. The game was only 3½ minutes old when she picked up her second foul and she went to the bench a few minutes later.

these weaker pitching staffs before we hit the stronger ones. We've got to build our confidence up so we we face those better pitchers later on we'll be able to hit 'em."

Nearly everyone was in on the carnage of the riddled Broncho pitching staff. Starter Rodney Roman bore the brunt of Lee's attack, allowing 15 runs, eight earned, in six innings of work.

Reliever Shane Lunceford was not spared, however, yielding four runs in his one-inning stint. The Broncho pitchers weren't the only sore spots for coach Ronnie White's club. OHS glove men contributed nine errors, and without some liberal scoring decisions, the Bronchos would have been well into double figures on miscues.

AMONG THE highlights for the Rebels:

•Logi's 3-for-3 performance at the plate, throw in pair of free passes and he was on base five straight times. His four RBI surpassed his district total and his 4-5A average jumped to .600.

•Third baseman Jay McCarty collected a pair of hits, three runs and three RBI, two with a first inning double to right field.

•Chad Jordan's two hits, three runs and an RBI.

•Joe Eldridge, making the most of his recent chances to play, scored three times with one hit and two RBI, giving him five batted in this week. He also swiped a pair of bases, including home on the back end of a double steal in the second inning.

•Terry Baxter, resting a tired arm at designated hitter, did not get a hit, but stole three bases and scored three runs.

•Tuey Rankin added a pair of hits, a pair of runs, a pair of RBI, a pair of stolen bases and a pair of diving catches in center field.

•And, oh yeah, Durian Jenkins went the distance allowing only four hits for his third win against one loss.

IN THE three-game span, Lee is hitting .455 and averaging almost 16 runs per game, an astounding statistic that no one expects to continue. On the way, the Rebels have made a shambles of three pitching staffs and turned a few heads around the league.

Jackson belts lead TCU over UT

FORT WORTH (AP) — Bubba Jackson hit two homeruns to lead Texas Christian to a 7-2 Southwest Conference baseball victory over Texas on Friday.

Texas Christian took the first lead when Brent Barker drove in Fred Benavides with a sacrifice bunt in the second inning.

But Texas shortstop Coby Kerlin tied the score 1-1 in the third inning when he singled in Todd Haney. Kerlin again singled in Haney to give Texas a 2-1 the lead in the top of the fifth.

Texas Christian came back with three points in the bottom of the fifth on RBI singles by Lew Williams, Chris Cauley and Tony Wilmot.

Jackson provided the other points, blasting a two-run homer off Greg Swindell in the sixth and a solo shot off Longhorn reliever Wade Phillips in the eighth.

Toney, the team's top outside shooter, has missed most of the season with stress fractures in both feet. Doctors said this week that despite pain Toney is ready to play again. Toney, under vigorous protest, was activated Wednesday night for the Atlanta game but was not used by Coach Matt Guokas. Katz protests he been made the "heavy" in the dispute and the media has been almost unanimous in support of Toney, portraying Katz as heartless...

Yanks, Bosox swap DHs

Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox swapped designated hitters Friday, with the Yankees getting Mike Easier and the Red Sox getting Don Baylor in a trade that puts each player in a home park tailored for him.

"We feel that Don Baylor's right-handed bat in our ballpark will help us tremendously and ought to offset our left-handed overstrength," said Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman.

The 35-year-old Easier, a left-handed hitter, hit .262 for Boston last season with 16 homers and 74 RBI and had three of the Red Sox' 10 homers this spring, including one Friday off National League Cy Young Award winner Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets. The Yankees plan to platoon him at DH with Gary Roenicke, but he will be playing in Yankee Stadium, which favors left-handed hitters.

Baylor, 36, hit .231 in 142 games for the Yankees last season, but hit 23 homers and knocked in 91 runs. Gorman said that Baylor, who had balked earlier at a trade to the White Sox, will play regularly in Fenway Park, where the left field wall is 315 feet away.

"We feel we're more balanced now," Gorman said of the Red Sox, whose starting lineup includes left-handed hitters Wade Boggs, Steve Lyons, Bill Buckner and Rich Gedman.

MIDLAND Berg TEXAS

Here's an incredible fact...Do you realize that when auto race drivers go as fast as 200 miles-per-hour, as some do in qualifying for races, that is equivalent to driving THE LENGTH OF A FOOTBALL FIELD IN JUST OVER ONE SECOND!...A Car traveling 200 miles-per-hour is going 275 feet a second, and a football field is 100 yards, or 300 feet long, so a car at that speed would go from goal line to goal line in just over one second!

. . . . .

Anybody who ever had trouble getting a golf ball into the hole might be interested in knowing just how wide a golf hole is...It may seem smaller when you're putting, but the exact width is 4 ½ inches.

. . . . .

Here's an oddity...Only once in big league baseball history has a team finished first one year, then last the next...That strange fate befell the Philadelphia A's of 1914-15...And what makes their tumble even more unbelievable is this...In 1914, when the A's won the pennant they finished 8 ½ games ahead...in 1915 they not only landed in last place, but they finished 58 ½ games behind!

. . . . .

I bet you didn't know...that if you buy a new Oldsmobile, Cadillac, GMC Truck, or 1982-1986 Pre-Owned Vehicle from Berg Motor Company now thru April the 1st, you will receive a RCA Video Cassette Recorder absolutely FREE As a gift of appreciation. Time to quit asking machines to make media decisions

Computers don't have all the answers. Cost per thousand is not a magic talisman. You have to factor in some imponderables, because what do machines know about human emotions like trust and believability? Asked in which medium they found the advertising most believable, more consumers said "newspapers" than the other four major media combined.*

Believe in newspapers. They can work marketing magic.

Boston's Easler in parting shot

Associated Press

Mike Easler had a parting shot for the Boston Red Sox with his bat. Phil Niekro's parting shot for the New York Yankees was verbal.

Easler, Boston's designated hitter, hit a two-run homer off Dwight Gooden as the Red Sox defeated the New York Mets 6-5 in a 10-inning exhibition game Friday, shortly before he was traded to the Yankees for another DH, Don Baylor.

In another move, the Yankees requested waivers on 300-game winner Phil Niekro for the purpose of giving the veteran pitcher, who turns 47 next Tuesday, his unconditional release.

Baylor, 36, hit .231 in 142 games last season, but hit 23 homers and drove in 91 runs. The right-handed slugger gets to shoot regularly at the friendly left field wall in Fenway Park, where he has hit 17 home runs, more than any active player except left-hander Reggie Jackson.

The 35-year-old Easler, a left-handed batter, hit .262 last season with 16 homers and 74 RBI, and had three of the Red Sox' 10 homers this spring, including the one Friday. He gets to shoot at Yankee Stadium's right field fence, which favors left-handed hitters.

Exhibitions

Astros 6, Reds 3

Jose Cruz and Denny Walling drove in two runs apiece and five pitchers held the Reds scoreless over the last seven innings as Houston recorded its fifth consecutive victory. Cruz's fifth-inning sacrifice fly off John Denny snapped a 3-3 tie.

Braves 6, Expos 1

Pascual Perez pitched five strong innings. After giving up a leadoff triple to Tim Raines and allowing him to score on a wild pitch, Perez retired the next 12 batters and gave up only one more hit in his five innings. Perez also drove in the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly in the second inning.

Dodgers 9, Rangers 6

Mariano Duncan snapped a 6-6 tie with a two-run triple that capped a six-run ninth inning at the expense of Mickey Mahler, who opened the gates when he threw away a potentially game-ending double-play grounder. The Dodgers' rally stole the spotlight from Texas starter Mike Mason, who hurled five hitless innings. Pete O'Brien and Darrell Porter homered for Texas.

Phillies 8, Cardinals 3

Gary Redus drove in five runs with four hits, including a pair of homers. Redus led off the game with a home run, then added a two-run shot in the third. Both came off Rick Horton. Redus later added a two-run single as the Phillies broke the game open with five runs in the last two innings. Kevin Gross pitched seven strong innings for the Phillies, allowing one run and four hits.

In a 'B' game, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton pitched six shutout innings, giving up three hits, in a 9-1 loss to the Cardinals. John Tudor started for St. Louis and allowed one run and three hits in six innings.

Pirates 9, Royals 6

Johnny Ray had three hits and drove in six runs. The Pirates trailed 5-4 in the bottom of the seventh when they scored five times on RBI singles by Sam Khalifa and R.J. Reynolds, and Ray's three-run homer. Ray had a two-run double in the first inning. Ray also had an RBI single in the fourth. Lonnie Smith, Darryl Motley and Steve Balboni homered for Kansas City.

Brewers 12, Indians 10

Billy Joe Robidoux hit a bases-loaded, two-run single in the eighth inning. Milwaukee bombed four Cleveland pitchers for 20 hits, including a solo home run by Rob Deer. Cleveland had 14 hits, including home runs by Joe Carter, Brook Jacoby and Joe Carter off Bob Gibson in the seventh inning.

Giants 4, Cubs 2

Pitcher Vida Blue and Dan Gladden hit consecutive home runs in the third inning. The homers tied the score off Scott Sanderson, who gave up all the Giants' runs. Chicago's Ron Cey, batting .097 before Friday, hit his first spring homer, a two-run shot off Blue.

A's 5, Angels 4

Dave Kingman drove in the winning run with a 10th-inning single. Donnie Hill tripled off Doug Corbett with one out in the 10th when California right fielder Devon White lost his drive in the sun. After Bruce Bochte was walked intentionally, Kingman came through with his single. It was Oakland's fifth consecutive victory.

Mariners 9, Padres 2

Dave Henderson's two-run triple highlighted a four-run fourth inning that broke a scoreless tie. Seattle put the game away by scoring four runs in the top of the ninth off Lance McCullers, including a two-run double by Domingo Ramos.

White Sox 6, Twins 1

Tom Seaver outdueled Bert Blyleven in a battle of veteran right-handers. Seaver, 41, struck out four and allowed three hits in seven innings, including a home run by Chris Pittaro. Blyleven, who turns 35 next month, allowed one single through four innings before the White Sox scored two runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings.

runs on 14 hits and two MHS errors. In the final two frames, 31 batted for 21 runs on 20 hits and five errors.

"This was a classic example of young men showing up about half ready to play because they've been reading newspaper clippings about how good they are," said Whalen, referring to coverage his team received since Tuesday's 2-1 victory over No. 2 ranked Abilene Cooper. "You can't do that against a team that's got something going for them."

WHAT PERMIAN has going is the lead in the 4-5A race. The Panthers, Bulldogs and Cooper Cougars came out of Tuesday's play in a three-way tie for first place.

San Angelo took care of Cooper Thursday, posting a 9-8, nine inning error-plagued victory over the Cougars. With Permian's victory, that leaves the Panthers alone at 5-1, MHS and Cooper in second at 4-2.

For Whalen, it's been a week hard to understand.

"In one week I had the best game I've ever coached and, in the same week, the worst game I've ever coached," said Whalen. "It's disgusting. We couldn't beat the bat girls playing like that."

Midland's downfall can be traced back to the top of the fourth inning when starting pitcher Ricky Castaneda was replaced by De La Garza, who went the distance against Cooper in four-hit fashion.

De La Garza was strong for two innings, seven up and six down with two strikeouts and a double. His effectiveness ended in the sixth after Deande and Yorkman put runners on first and second.

Why did Whalen pull Castaneda after the two-run, three-hit third inning?

"He said his arm, it wasn't hurt, but was about dead," said Whalen. "They were hitting some balls hard and it was just a matter of time before they got to him. Kenny, I can't fault him. He pitched seven strong innings on Tuesday."

Murphy, Mize tie for first

TPA Golf

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - Bob Murphy set a course record — which stood up for only an hour and 15 minutes — Friday before Larry Mize tied him for the 36-hole lead in the Tournament Players Championship.

Each reached the halfway point of this annual championship of golf's touring pros in 134.

That's 10 under par on the tourists' home course, the Players Club at Sawgrass, and one better than the record Fred Couples set in 1984.

Mize did it with a second round 68 and the 43-year-old Murphy, the first man off the tee Friday, shot a 66.

"It was still dark when we teed off and I guess we caught the course when it was still asleep," said Murphy, who completed 36 holes without a bogey.

He was not alone in taking advantage of ideal playing conditions — balmy weather, mild temperatures, gentle breezes — that prevailed in the morning.

Rookie Dave Rummells and Brett Upper also recorded 66s early in the day and moved into a position among the leaders in the event that offers $900,000 in total prizes, with $162,000 to the winner.

But, in the afternoon, the familiar winds began to gust and bluster, restoring the course's defenses and adding to the frustrations of some of golf's grander names.

Jack Nicklaus, the only three-time winner of this title, could do no better than a 73 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 147, two over par. It marked the fourth time in seven starts this season that the 46-year-old Nicklaus had failed to finish a tournament.

Among the other casualties were Johnny Miller, David Graham, Larry Nelson, Fuzzy Zoeller, PGA titleholder Hubert Green, Hale Irwin and current U.S. Open champion Andy North, all of whom are multiple winners in golf's Big Four events.

Also missing the cut were defending champion Calvin Peete, the only 2-time winner on the Tour this season; Curtis Strange, last year's leading money-winner; British Open champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland, and 56-year-old Arnold Palmer, who was given a special invitation.

Tom Watson, trying to fight his way out of a long non-winning string, just made it, struggling to a 74 and a 144 total, par and the cut-off figure.

Watson, who played in the same group with Nicklaus and Zoeller, said "we had a N.P. threesome — no putts."

While those familiar figures were packing their bags, some lesser known names moved into contending positions.

Immediately behind Murphy and Mize was the rookie Rummells, who scored nine birdies — including six in a row — and finished 36 holes at 135, one off the pace.

He was followed by Upper, David Edwards and Doug Tewell at 136. Tewell had a second consecutive 68 and Edwards shot 69.

Jim Thorpe and Mike Hulbert were next at 137. Each had a 68 in the chilly afternoon winds.

Murphy, bothered by a pinched nerve in his neck, withdrew from last week's tournament in New Orleans and "wasn't at all sure I'd be able to play when I got here Sunday.

"But it kept getting better and better and I was putting so good I thought I'd give it a try."

The chunky veteran, who scored the last of his four career victories 11 years ago, required only 25 strokes on the greens, only 11 on the front side.

He made a pair of 20-footers on the front, dropped another from about 15 feet, chipped to tap-in distance on both par 5s and played the front in 31.

Douglass leads Senior on 67

Senior Golf

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dale Douglass, a winner and runnerup in his only two prior Senior Tour events, shot a 5-under-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead Friday after the first round in the $250,000 Johnny Mathis Seniors Classic.

Douglass raced to the lead almost from the start, posting four birdies in the first five holes of the par-72, 6,361-yard Mountain-Gate Country Club course. The 54-hole tournament runs through Sunday.

One shot back at 68 was Ben Smith and Mike Souchak. Souchak had a chance to finish in a tie with Douglass but three-putted the 18th for a bogey.

Defending champion Peter Thomson shot a 69 and is tied with fellow Australian Bruce Crampton two shots off the lead.

Tied at 70 was a group of eight golfers, including Lee Elder, Chi Chi Rodriguez and former professional quarterback John Brodie.

His instant success has been a surprise for Douglass.

"I never expected to start like this," said Douglass, who became eligible for the Senior Tour on March 6, his 50th birthday. "I expected to play well, but nothing like this."

Douglass, who played a couple of events on the regular PGA Tour earlier this year, lost a playoff to Charles Owens in his first start, then won the Vintage last week.

"In Hawaii (on the PGA Tour), I was the oldest player on the tour," said Douglass. "When I played my first tournament with the Seniors, I was the youngest, just a baby."

With his success against the Seniors, Douglass has no desire to play the regular tour anymore.

"I don't need to beat my head against the wall anymore," said Douglass.

LSU

"When we got to the Final Four of the Big Apple NIT in New York, I told my players we'd be playing some of the best teams in the country," Crum said. "Even though they beat us, we were in those games down to the last few minutes.

"I told them it was no disgrace to be beat by teams that good early in the year, that it was a way to learn what we could and could not do. It was a measuring stick of what to shoot for. If it had been January or February before we played them, we wouldn't have had the time to learn how to overcome the things we couldn't do against them."

Saturday's LSU-Louisville winner will go against one of the top two teams in the nation in Monday night's championship game. No. 1-ranked Duke plays second-ranked Kansas in Saturday's second semifinal.

Along with the departure of Horford, dismissed from the team by Brown after missing a practice and an exhibition, poor grades knocked off 6-7 Nikita Wilson, the team's top scorer and rebounder a year ago.

Brown shifted 6-6 Ricky Blanton from guard to center.

"I don't match up physically. I do mentally," he said. "I knew I was going to get dunked on some and get my shot blocked, but Coach Brown and the rest of the guys never said anything but good things to me."

Brown moved 6-6 Don Redden to small forward. And he put 6-5 Anthony Wilson at shooting guard.

"We've lost three centers," Brown said. "I have nine guards on this team."

And John Williams, a 6-8 sophomore forward and "one of the most unique people I've ever met in my life," according to Brown. "He's totally unselfish, to the point that until we lost Nikita I couldn't get him to shoot more than 13 or 14 times a game.

UT probes Akers' finances

DALLAS (AP) — A University of Texas internal inquiry into football coach Fred Akers' financial affairs last year was prompted by a small but influential group of Houston-area alumni who threatened to sue, accusing the him of fiscal improprieties, the Dallas Times Herald reported Friday.

But school officials said the university's inquiry uncovered no evidence on which to base further action.

However, some financial supporters are so dissatisfied that they vow to withhold further contributions as long as Akers remains football coach, the Dallas newspaper said in a copyright story.

Howard Terry, a director of the Texas Longhorn Education Foundation, had contributed more than $1.3 million in five years before his disappointment in the outcome of the inquiry.

"They've (UT) lost me," he said.

Terry called the inquiry inadequate because it didn't include examining Akers' fiscal records and tax returns and taking sworn testimony, as he and five other Houston-area supporters had intended to do through litigation.

The inquiry, conducted by John Fainter Jr. of Austin, an outside counsel hired by the university, is one of several involving the school's athletic program in recent years. But it is the first that has focused exclusively on Akers' personal financial affairs, university officials said.

Although allegations that Akers asked assistants to pay back some bonus money he paid to them were made eight years ago, they just recently were included in the UT inquiry.

University officials declined to discuss the details of its findings.

Akers told the Times Herald nothing has been improper in his financial dealings and the matter surfaced only because certain boosters want to "discredit" him.

"I tell you there's no story there, and I don't know what it's going to take (to stop questions about his handling of funds)," Akers said.

He said Terry and other boosters were upset "10 hours before I took the (UT) job" in 1976 because of their allegiance to former coach Darrell Royal.

UH audit won't alter bright red balance sheet

HOUSTON (AP) — An audit of the University of Houston's Athletic Department should be complete in a month and school officials hope the findings will help them build better financial controls in the athletic program.

University Chancellor Richard Van Horn said the department is $3.1 million in the red, with that figure expected to grow this year by $900,000. The decrease in television revenue and legislative changes in rules governing athletic spending were responsible for revenue losses of about $1 million a year, he said.

"It's not an investigation. It's a consulting activity," Van Horn said of the audit.

"Probably for the past 10 years, there has been concern about the financial structure and financial base of athletics — how much money the university should provide for athletics," he told the Houston Chronicle Friday. "What is coming out is not really a report but a whole series of recommendations and suggestions."

The review has been going on for at least five months under the direction of Peter Fitzgerald, the school's vice chancellor for administration, and James Bishop.

Hepburn old enough to do whatever she wants

Katherine Hepburn

ENTERTAINMENT

By RICHARD LAURENCE
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Every good picture offers something you haven't seen before.

"Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry" shows you Katharine Hepburn necking in the front seat of a 1955 Chevy.

When that orange Chevy was new, Ms. Hepburn was long since a grand dame of the cinema, not the sort of girl who would neck in a Chevy.

But now she's old enough to do whatever she wants, and I've seldom witnessed love scenes as tenderly romantic as those in "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry." The CBS movie airs Sunday at 7 p.m. CST Sunday.

This is a boy-meets-girl story, about a boy and a girl who fall in love and cause their families all sorts of consternation. The problem is that they are quite old, and their families are quite intolerant.

Ms. Hepburn, naturally, gets all the good lines in the title role, and writer James Prideaux has given her some dandies. More than that, Prideaux has created a rich, literate script.

It's also an anachronistic one, and a troubling one in ways Prideaux may not have intended.

If these were two madcap, rebellious young people falling in love despite the objections of their stuffy, intolerant families, this could easily be a story of the 1930s. In fact, Mrs. Delafield is really another character Ms. Hepburn played in 1940, Tracy Lord, the feisty but romantic society girl from "The Philadelphia Story." "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry" is the story of what might happen toward the end of Tracy's life, when she's a wealthy, respected widow, but no less spirited than she ever was.

The story opens with Ms. Hepburn, as society matron Margaret Delafield, being carried out of the family manse on a stretcher. She is suffering from some grave but ill-defined malaise.

While she's lying in the hospital breathing through tubes, the vultures begin to circle. Her son, Horton, played by David Ogden Stiers, is calculating the inheritance with his siblings and preparing to move his own family into the ancestral home.

But the old lady recovers. She arrives home in that Chevrolet, driven by her doctor, Marvin Elias, played by Harold Gould. She plainly likes that doctor, who also likes her.

Her family doesn't like what's going on. They're worried about their inheritance, their social standing, and the doctor's religion.

"It's just like her to have a Jewish doctor," snipes Stiers, playing a more sinister version of his "M*A*S*H" character, the snobbish Charles Emerson Winchester.

With that line, Stiers brings up the trouble with "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry." Wanting to make Mrs. Delafield's family comically snobbish, Prideaux has also made them virulently anti-semitic.

Joining them in the consternation is a busybody neighbor, George, played with English public-school-tone by Denholm Elliott.

Some of Ms. Hepburn's best lines, by the way, are with Elliott as straight man. Trying to broach the subject of the doctor's religion, he tells her a cautionary tale, about the daughter of a mutual friend who brought home a black singer.

"What in the world does he see in her?" Ms. Hepburn impishly inquires.

But she's also fallen happily in love. When the doctor kissed her, she relates, "a 14-year-old girl materialized and returned his kiss. She must have been there all the time."

Soon she and the doctor are spending their evenings together, evenings at the symphony or in front of the fireplace, trading stories of their youths and utterly enjoying each other's company.

But her family isn't the only obstacle to love. The doctor's children also dislike their prospective new society stepmother. "I have the right to say no to a goy stepmother from Ashmore." one of them declares.

This is supposed to be a romantic comedy, but religious prejudice is not funny. Too many of the remarks made by the families of Mrs. Delafield and Dr. Elias are frankly vicious, and they confuse the theme of "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry."

Too frivolous to be a serious social statement, too heavily weighted to remain a light comedy, it suffers from an identity crisis that keeps it from the success it should have reached.

Mary Tyler Moore

Moore puts parts of self in characters

By SUSAN PAYNTER
Hearst News Service

Seventy-five percent of Mary Brenner, centerpiece of the CBS series "Mary," comes from the core of Mary Tyler Moore.

The same was true of Dick Van Dyke's TV wife, Laura Petrie, and of Lou Grant's Mary Richards. Ms. Moore says her TV characters change, tenderize or assume harder edges as life has those effects on her.

That's why, although she hates to admit it, Ms. Moore will be hurt if her new CBS series suffers ratings rejection. The show made its debut Dec. 11 to tepid response, then was pulled from the schedule for rejuvenation. The plan now seems to be to punch up the sexual tension and potential romance between Mary and her boss, played by James Farentino.

"Listen, I always take very much to heart any kind of negativism. I take it very personally," Ms. Moore said. But she insists she wasn't stung when her new show didn't get a standing ovation.

Neither "The Dick Van Dyke Show" nor "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" scored immediate hits. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" always hovered in the 20s (a survival-level rating). The Van Dyke show was nearly canceled at the end of the first year.

But those were gentler times. Today's so-called "soft" shows are often swiftly flattened on TV's fast track.

"We have no razzle-dazzle in our show," Ms. Moore said. "I expected it to be slow — but sure, in the innermost back pocket of your mind, you hope by some miracle it will be No. 1 right away."

This Mary has a thicker skin and sharper tongue than did Mary Richards. That, Ms. Moore said, is because life has honed her a little sharper, too. Since her last series left the air, Ms. Moore has been divorced, her sister died of a drug overdose, her son died from a fatal, self-inflicted gunshot (officially ruled accidental), and Ms. Moore did a stint at the Betty Ford Center for alcohol and drug abuse.

"I'm able to laugh more at life and at myself now," she said. "In TV comedy, you have to be very close to the character you're playing because you don't have time to create a whole new character, such as you do in movies. But it's important Mary Brenner still be vulnerable, not so hard or world-weary she can't be deeply fazed and a little unsure of herself."

Ms. Moore said doing another TV comedy is like having another baby. In between the last one and the next one, you forget how painful it was.

Despite more emphasis on office romance, Moore wants to resist consummating her relationship with her boss as long as possible.

Easter

It is now three days after that terrible Dark Friday when God said unto them, "Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day, and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached among all nations." The weighty stones are being rolled away from the grave doors and the Spirit is becoming triumphant over death. The Old Rugged Cross and Christ's tomb are both being snatched, forever, from their association with death.

Now,—just then, Heavenly love turned the gloomiest Dark Friday in the annals of human history into a very Good Friday. All that Christmas ever meant to the world is now wholly sanctified in Easter. Christ's promise that, He would build the Temple again in three days, has been fulfilled.

Easter is the springtime of the soul and Crucifixion has more radiant beauty and deep meaning when we see it through the fragrant glory of the snow white lily. Easter symbolizes the Crucifixion, Burial and Resurrection of our True Leader. The event is packed with all the drama of human emotion we can withstand.

Hallelujah, it is Easter.
Amen.

Easter drama presented

"Easter Triumphant" will be presented by First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley, from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. Sunday. The program is a dramatization, with music, of the last week of Christ's life.

Easter Sunday the church services will feature guest speaker, Dwight Thompson. The services will be at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Thompson will speak again on Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Thompson, whose ministry began in 1963 at Faith Temple in Fort Worth, was associate pastor with his father, James Curtis Thompson, before becoming an evangelist. He has lead evangelical crusades in the United States and overseas. According to a spokesman for Dwight Thompson World Outreach Ministries, 22 churches had their beginnings at a Thompson crusade in Bombay, India.

Said the spokesman, "The elements which make his message unforgetable include humor, compassison, deeply rooted biblical convictions, and unique ways of illustrating the meaning of scriptural phrases, parable, and promises."

"Correlaries will be drawn from other teachings and other religions including the Science of Mind textbook, the 'Course in Miracles,' 'The Aquarian Gospel of Jesus Christ,' the 'Bhadavad-Gita,' the 'Holy Science' and the 'Science of Religion.'

"These meetings will be used to introduce the concepts contained in the teachings and cover ways of making them effective in one's own personal life. While aimed at the newcomer to metaphysical teachings, the information will be of sufficient depth to enhance the understanding of all."

The sessions start Thursday. For more information call the Rev. Frank McFarlin, 694-5485.

Cross central to paradox of Christianity

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

He had tried to warn them, but they wouldn't accept it. So the big letdown came. It wrecked Jesus' men, crushed them. He was seized, beaten, prodded across town to the hill, and hung there, dying.

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

Only one apostle, John, had the nerve to watch. The rest had scattered in frightened despair, broken men. It wasn't what they had counted on. It contradicted all their hopes and dreams.

Thus was the wrenching paradox of that first-century afternoon, called Good Friday because of what it later came to signify in Christian understanding.

But to Jesus' followers, it was sheer disaster, an utter, horrible defeat. How else consider it? What other point could there be than that absolute, awful end?

Something strange was going on there, and he had tried to prepare them for it, repeatedly admonishing them about what was coming, but they wouldn't hear of it.

Even back when the apostle Peter first affirmed his conviction that Jesus was "the Christ," Jesus had told them that he "must suffer many things, and be rejected...and be killed, and on the third day be raised."

Peter promptly rejected any such a grim prospect, rebuking Jesus for even mentioning it. But Jesus flared up, distressed that his chief apostle wouldn't face the facts.

"Get behind me, Satan!" Jesus snapped. "For you are not on the side of God, but of men."

An odd note, there. What was going on?

For one thing, the episode points up the "radical discontinuity between God's purposes and humanity's purposes," says theologian Ronald Goetz of Elmhurst College in Illinois.

At "the very moment when we are most convinced that we are 'on the side of God,' we may be opposing him," Goetz writes in the ecumenical weekly, The Christian Century.

He says the whole biblical story is that of "God's dragging his people, kicking and screaming, toward the kingdom," with them resisting all the way.

"It is inevitable that there will be a vast gap in intelligence and perspective between the respective sides when God and people stand in relationship," Goetz says. "God's thoughts are not our thoughts."

Then, as now, those closest to Jesus and who had given up everything to follow him, looked for some tangible satisfactions for it, some triumph. Two apostles even vied over who eventually would get the highest positions.

Beyond them, and beyond many since, has been what Goetz calls "Jesus' steel logic" — that any total commitment ultimately implies giving all, that it cannot stop short of the cross.

"If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me," Jesus said. "For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it."

On that first Good Friday, Jesus hung there until his life expired, giving his all, and the wind rose, thunder roared and tremors shook the Earth. "It is finished."

A strange and crucial transaction is seen there in Christian belief — a keystone of faith — that Jesus, as God personified in humanity, suffered and gave all of himself as the cost of human wrongs.

Flowing from that event is an encompassing breadth of forgiveness that God effects for people and which is offered to them.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son," he once said. "For God sent the Son into the world, not to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him."

The late Anglican writer C.S. Lewis says:

"The central Christian belief is that Christ's death has somehow put us right with God and given us a fresh start...A good many different theories have been held as to how it works; what all Christians are agreed on is that it does work."

The ensuing Easter resurrection cast an illuminating light on the whole affair, promising that the cross borne is, indeed, a way to fuller life.

The shattered apostles couldn't believe the resurrection either at first, until repeatedly confronted with it, until they no longer could doubt that further, shocking occurrence.

Goetz observes that "Peter's blindness," with all his closeness to Jesus, "underscores how deeply God's tactics remain hidden by the blinding brilliance of his self-disclosure."

On the basis of scripture, Goetz says that "in freedom, the living God comes to a humanity that is always surprised by that coming."

Holm concert scheduled

"On record or live, I want to challenge people with my music to strip them of their cultural Christianity," said Dallas Holm.

Dallas Holm and Praise will be in concert with special guest artist Billy Crockett at 7:30 p.m. April 5 at Chaparral Center.

"Ask just about any expert in the field of contemporary Christian music and he or she will tell you that few artists have a sound which is truly their own, one virtually unparalleled in secular or gospel music, one others have patterned their sound after," said a spokesman for Holm. "Those same experts would most likely list Dallas Holm as one of the few."

Holm started his career with David Wilkerson, author of "The Cross and the Switchblade." It has just been in the past five years that Holm has branched out on his own.

"Our approach to concerts has changed along with the musical style," Holm said. "Five years ago, after I left the Dave Wilkerson organization, where I had served for over 10 years, to put together our own crusade-style organization based to a large degree on what we had learned.

"It reached a point a little over a couple of years ago, that we became concerned that maybe our crowd was composed of too many of the faithful Christian concert-goers and not enough 'new blood' was being exposed to this ministry. After much prayer, we decided to begin doing free concerts with an offering and our audience changed. Now we have an influx of younger and newer Christians who are more receptive to our new direction."

Throughout his career, Holm has cut 16 albums. Since leaving Wilkerson, he has released "I Saw the Lord" and another song, one which he has become well-known for, "Rise Again."

A freewill offering will be taken up during the Dallas Holm and Praise concert. In addition, those attending will be asked to donate $1 at the door to help defray the concert cost. People attending the concert are asked to bring canned goods to the performance to help support the ministry of Teen Challenge.

Concert time is 7:30 p.m.

Center examines ties between religion, science

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — "Man is incurably religious." So concluded the late great psychologist William James in his probing study, "The Varieties of Religious Experience." A core of belief, even if unplanted, still shows up.

That peculiar, natural streak, with or without any teaching of it, also engrossed noted psychiatrist Carl Jung, and it is a puzzle pursued by a new Princeton, N.J., research center led by theologian-educator James I. McCord.

"The phenomenon of religious consciousness," he calls that elemental quality in the human makeup.

In probing that dimension and other interconnections of science, culture and religion, McCord is enlisting scholars of various fields in research at the recently established Center for Theological Inquiry.

McCord, whose founding of it after 24 years as president of Princeton Theological Seminary figured in his winning of this year's $253,000 Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion, says:

"Today's widespread skepticism regarding matters of faith and the crisis of Western culture, characterized by a loss of direction and a breakdown of public and private mortality, is not a coincidence.

"It is instead an inevitable consequence of the ever-widening gulf between faith and reason, religion and modern science...This gulf must be closed...Theological advance and scientific advance can march together."

It was on that proposition that he launched the new center, formally opened in 1984, its main Henry Robinson Luce Hall built with a gift from the founder of Time Magazine. An initial 12 resident scholars have begun work.

The aim is "rigorous exploration of all dimensions of faith and reason," McCord says. Integrating the two, he adds, "is not only possible, but, in fact, already exists in the very nature of truth.

"Faith and reason are compatible and complementary."

McCord, 66, a 6-foot-1-inch native of Texas who has been an influential figure in national and international church affairs as well as Presbyterianism's top educator, says science and theology need each other.

"A one-sidedness has characterized both camps," he said in an interview. But together "they can bring a better understanding of the world in which we live" — of humanity, its purposes, culture, the cosmos and God.

"In every enterprise, research is a vital element," he said. "Yet the church has been reluctant to go into research, especially in the area of theology and science."

In a period of revolution in scientific concepts, he said, "the church has been largely innocent of all of it. We theologians have worn 'blind bridles.' The time has come to take off the 'blind bridles.'"

He said "scientists today are more open to theological dialogue than any time I can remember. The more they explore, the more they realize the beyond. Scientists today are willing to talk about the beyond."

Concerning that natural religious core in human beings — what noted thinker Paul Tillich saw as human awareness of finitude along with an innate reaching for the infinite — McCord said it's "part of nature."

Odessan's painting hangs inside office of notorious wheeler-dealer

By HARRIETTE GRAVES

BROWNWOOD (AP) — At first glance it's only a painting of an oil rig, but there's more.

The work that hangs inside the office of "J.R. Ewing" on the television series "Dallas" brought instant fame to Gorden Bankston of Odessa.

Bankston, 54, painted the work, "The Producer," in 1969 when he worked as an oilfield pumper for Chevron Oil Co. He is also the creator of the cartoon strip, "The Oil Patch," which celebrates its 20th anniversary this year.

Bankston recently spent hours walking around the Richard Mayfield ranch west of Brownwood, photographing oil rigs which are used in a scene from the upcoming television miniseries "Dallas: The Early Years."

The Fort Worth Spudder Cable tool rigs were temporarily moved to McKinney where the "Dallas" segment was filmed. The Mayfield and R.L Michael families of Brownwood also appear in the miniseries.

Bankston's painting in J.R. Ewing's fictitious office joined the Dallas set five years ago. "The first time I ever saw it hanging there while I was watching 'Dallas,' I felt chills down my back. It's hard to explain the feeling. You know for the first time in your life that you are going to get some recognition. It's better to get recognition before you die than after," Bankston said.

Bankston calls it the break he needed. "If the painting had never been shown in 'Dallas,' I would have never been known as an oilfield artist during my lifetime."

He likes to tell the story of "The Producer," and what led to the selection of the painting for the hit series.

He says he was first inspired to paint oil field scenes after seeing a Charles Russell painting reproduced on a True West magazine cover.

The work that hangs inside the office of "J.R. Ewing" on "Dallas" brought instant fame to Gorden Bankston of Odessa.

"I got so turned on by Russell's painting that I just had to paint a Western scene," he said. All he had going was talent and determination. Bankston had never taken a single painting lesson. But nothing stopped him. He purchased a canvas and some paints and set out to do his Western painting.

As a child he dabbled in drawing of Western art but never seriously. He was actually 7 years old when he drew his first oil rig. He had been a roughneck growing up on an oilfield lease in Arkansas and liked to occasionally sketch what he saw.

As a child of 6, in Columbia, Ark., he saw his first gusher and from that day, he has sketched oil well after oil well. Pictures of boom towns; old wells, wagons hauling pipe and other familiar scences have been in the inspirations for many of his paintings.

The first scene he attempted after being inspired to seriously paint became the now famous picture, "The Producer." After looking for just the right Western scene during those early days, Bankston rediscovered The McFarland No. 5.

The McFarland was the first well Bankston checked daily while employed by Chevron.

The finished painting, "The Producer," soon hung in the office of the president of Lufkin Oil Co. Years later, when the oil company president died, Bankston bought the painting back.

Woman 'worked like crazy' to relearn words

NORTON, Mass. (AP) — More than six years after a stroke erased all words from her mind, Dorothea Wender has relearned enough English and Greek to keep teaching college, and to publish a murder mystery and a book on the Greek philosopher Plato.

"I was the 'miracle.' I wasn't supposed to get better," she said in a recent interview. "It was no miracle. I worked like crazy to get back. I had to learn English all over again."

Even now names of places and people come hard to Ms. Wender, 51, who teaches at Wheaton College, a women's school south of Boston.

She still can't multiply or divide, but she has come a long way since a broken artery flooded her brain with blood, wiping out all memory of how to read, write, add or subtract, let alone translate Hesiod's poetry or write a mystery.

The stroke came without warning just before Thanksgiving 1979. She saw dots while driving home and her living room looked upside down. She couldn't remember the word "ambulance." Then she blacked out.

The stroke had left her with aphasia, an inability to understand or recall words. She was amused to realize she didn't know her own name, but when she tried to explain to nurses, her words made no sense.

"Neurologists told me to be patient. They said I'd either get better or I wouldn't. Horse manure," she said. "You've got to do it yourself. You've got to talk to people."

At home she labored at learning simple words from English-language handbooks for foreigners. Her three teen-age children pinned labels on furniture in the house. She tape-recorded her speech to catch mistakes and kept a diary.

"Sometimes all I could write was a few words, like 'I hated life yesterday' or 'The sun was out,'" she said.

She cried when her book "Roman Poetry from the Republic to the Silver Age" arrived from the publisher and when doctors reduced the medication that kept her unnaturally cheerful during her recovery.

Most depressing of all was her speech therapist's warning to relearn how to read and write within the first year of her stroke or risk losing the ability forever.

"Two days before the year was over, I still couldn't read or write," she said.

Elite's trash is professor's treasure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Yes, there is a sequel to the smash hit, "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," but it's not a movie. It's a college course called Modern Material Culture — better known to its students as garbology.

The sight of Nick Nolte rummaging through trash bins in Beverly Hills gave anthropologist Luanne Hudson the idea.

"The rich are the elite, and aren't studied that much," she said. "You don't have access to them. You might, however, have access to their garbage. If so, is their garbage that much different?"

Ms. Hudson, an assistant professor of anthropology at Occidental College, decided to apply her professional skills to the glittering town.

"What I did was analogous to an archaeologist digging a trench through part of an ancient site, to see if anything is there that would warrant going in later and excavating, so to speak," she explained.

Ms. Hudson set up a course in the science of rubbish and Occidental went for it.

On a recent morning, four Occidental anthropology students set out through the wastes of five plush homes located on different streets.

They found out that Beverly Hills folk discard name-brand items almost exclusively and that they eat out more than in — preferably at Chinese or health food restaurants.

Their kids live elsewhere, shown by the absence of trashed toys or school accessories, and they drink juices from genuine glass bottles.

Falling prices threaten Latin America

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A drop in prices of Latin America's export commodities to their lowest overall level in decades has imposed new debt-payment difficulties on most countries in the region.

Falling prices also hold out the prospect of new domestic economic problems and resulting political and social instability in countries where new civilian governments are struggling in the aftermath of military dictatorships.

Even before this year's collapse of world oil prices, which hurts Mexico and Venezuela, the sagging fortunes of sugar, tin, copper, beef and grain had stifled a recovery by other debtor nations from the deep recession of the early 1980s.

Economists blame the slump mostly on declining demand in the United States, which swallowed up billions of dollars of Latin American goods in 1984. As the U.S. economic boom lost vigor, protectionist measures shut some of the region's steel, textiles, shoes, rum and lemon oil out of its No. 1 market.

As a result, the combined trade income of 23 Latin countries, after growing $10 billion in 1984, fell last year by $5.6 billion, to $92 billion, according to the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America.

The loss far offset the estimated $1 billion the region saved because of easier repayment terms negotiated with its creditors, who still collected 36 percent of the 1985 trade income for debt interest alone, the commission reported.

LATIN AMERICA'S total foreign debt is $368 billion.

This year the trade slump can only get worse. Mexico and Venezuela stand to lose at least $10 billion in oil revenues, officials say, while two smaller oil exporters, Ecuador and Peru, could lose $900 million.

The oil price drop is likely to save Latin America's seven other major debtors no more than $2 billion, since most produce some oil for their own use.

So far, the most militant reaction has come from Peru. President Alan Garcia vowed at his inauguration in July to reduce debt repayments to 10 percent of the country's dwindling export earnings.

As of January, Peru had paid its creditors $173 million, more like 14 percent of its trade income but less than half the amount due. Garcia has stayed his defiant course despite the International Monetary Fund's threat to stop new lending to the country.

While not formally endorsing Garcia's unilateral action, the 10 other nations making up the Cartagena Group of Latin debtors proposed in December that Western banks accept some ceiling on capital outflow linked either to growth rates or export levels.

"The fall of our export prices and the high interest rates are absolutely unbearable," declared President Raul Alfonsin of Argentina, whose record grain harvest last year was more than offset by tumbling grain prices.

WHAT FRUSTRATES the region's statesmen and economists is the failure of a strategy they accepted from Western governments and creditor banks in 1982 to overcome what was then viewed as a short-term debt crisis.

According to that "locomotive" strategy, Latin Americans would tighten their belts until growth in the industrial nations pulled them out of debt by opening up markets for their exports. But the 1983-84 world recovery led by the United States and Japan was short lived.

"Latin America fulfilled its part and paid the price with austerity," commented Chilean economist Alejandro Foxley. "The same cannot be said of the creditor countries."

Last year, lagging demand depressed world prices for 15 of Latin America's principal 18 exports, according to the U.N. commission. In real terms, it reported in December, those prices had plunged 16.5 percent from their 1980 peak to the lowest overall level since the depression of the 1930s.

"For the rest of this decade, the recovery of our terms of trade will be slow and uncertain," the commission's executive secretary, Norberto Gonzalez, said in an interview at his Santiago headquarters. "The supposition that a brief bad period would be followed by spontaneous growth has been shattered."

Responding to the dim financial outlook, U.S. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker offered a new strategy last October. He called for an infusion of about $20 billion in new lending over a three-year period to 10 Latin nations if they worked out economic adjustments with the IMF.

NO CONCRETE action has yet resulted from the Baker Plan, which Latin American officials say involves resources far smaller than needed to cover their growing interest obligations and falling commodity fortunes.

This year only coffee's prospects are markedly improved, and this could help Brazil and Colombia repay major debts. But there is concern that high prices will undermine world production quota agreements, causing overproduction that will drive coffee back down.

Similar international agreements to stabilize falling prices of sugar and tin have collapsed since 1984, crippling the Dominican Republic, a Caribbean sugar grower, and Bolivia, an Andean mining nation.

U.S. and European subsidies for domestic beef and cattle production last year hauled down the world prices that can make or break agrarian-based economies in Argentina and Uruguay. Scrambling for new markets, Argentina met frustration when Egypt canceled a tentative contract for 50 million tons of beef.

Cameroon prospers, but reforms still slow to come

By RICHARD EVERETT

YAOUNDE, Cameroon (AP) — Cameroon is an economic rarity in Africa. It feeds itself, has a balanced budget and shows a trade surplus.

But some Cameroonians complain that government reforms and development have been slow despite the promises of President Paul Biya when he took over from an authoritarian leader four years ago.

The economic successes are largely due to the conservative handling of oil revenues, especially at a time when falling petroleum prices have left other producer-nations in economic difficulty.

"We learned from the experiences of others that made oil the mainstay of their economies," said Mines and Power Minister Michael Kima Tabong, who noted in an interview that agriculture remains the country's top development priority.

Oil production has increased from an annual 5 million barrels in 1978, to over 60 million barrels in 1984, or about 155,000 barrels a day. The country now is said to be producing as much as 185,000 barrels a day.

Biya's government, in power since the retirement of Ahmadou Ahidjo in 1982, has maintained his predecessor's policy of withholding most of the petroleum revenues from the annual budgets.

The funds, kept in offshore accounts, are used sparingly as supplements to the regular budget, and to fund transportation, communications, health and education projects, or to subsidize the development of agriculture.

Roughly 80 percent of Cameroon's 10 million people derive their support from agriculture, which continues from pre-oil days to be the economy's backbone, employing about 70 percent of the active labor force.

The varied climate and terrain of this central African country, which is slightly larger than California, allow for the production of a wide selection of grains, root crops, vegetables and cash crops such as cocoa, coffee, cotton, and rubber.

A study commissioned by a consortium of international banks said total export earnings figures for 1984, the latest available, were estimated at around $2.16 billion, with petroleum making up $1.4 billion, cocoa $246 million, coffee $147 million, and the rest derived from aluminum, timber, other cash crops, and manufactured goods. The country has a gross domestic product growth rate of about 7 percent a year.

Alaska residents recall town's destruction 22 years ago

AP Laserphoto

Rhea Knagin, 50, sitting in her Port Lions, Alaska, kitchen, describes the tidal wave that destroyed the town of Afognak, Alaska, in 1964.

By DAVID FOSTER

PORT LIONS, Alaska (AP) — Rhea Knagin still remembers what she wore 22 years ago, on the day she and other Afognak residents huddled high on a snowy hillside and watched a giant wave wash away their village.

That Good Friday, she had put on a fancy blue dress to see the movie "King of Kings" at the community hall. "That was the first building to go floating out of Afognak, and the movie went out with it," said Knagin, 50. "Never did see that movie."

Four houses and the village store also floated out of Afognak, a remote village on a remote island in the Gulf of Alaska. Many other houses were destroyed. The wave moved Knagin's house several feet, dropping it on a tree stump and cracking it like an egg.

The Alaska earthquake of March 27, 1964, was North America's greatest recorded quake, measuring 8.5 on the Richter scale. It killed at least 114 people, most of whom drowned in tsunamis, the huge waves generated by the shifting ocean floor.

Afognak's 190 residents were warned of the wave and escaped up the hillside. But their lives were changed forever. Rather than rebuild their seaside village, much of which sank five feet in the quake, they voted to move. Twenty-two years later, many still are trying to get used to the idea.

Villagers scouted the forested coastline of Afognak Island and neighboring Kodiak Island for a new home. They found a site by a protected cove, 12 miles away on Kodiak Island. There was good water and a place for a small boat harbor. And, like Afognak, it was remote, with no roads connecting it to the outside world. Access was by boat or airplane only — the way Afognak people liked it.

With help from charitable groups around the country, people quickly built a new village of 45 simple frame houses. They moved in Dec. 12, eight months after the big wave.

In honor of the Lions Club, one of the first groups to lend a hand, the villagers named their new home Port Lions.

Today, the population of Port Lions is 290 and slowly growing. Nestled on a wooded hill between the cove and high mountains are 99 houses, two general stores, a medical clinic, cafe, community hall and a corrugated metal fire station with one fire truck.

It's still a youngster, as towns go. Bleached stumps of Sitka spruce mark empty lots where the forest was cleared. The small cemetery at the edge of town has plenty of vacancies.

Frequent visitors say Port Lions is more reserved and quiet than other villages in the area — perhaps because its residents have learned that even the solid earth beneath them is not always a firm foundation.

On a recent winter day, the most noise in the village came from a gang of cackling crows riding the northerly breeze over rooftops. Beach gravel hushed the lapping waves, while a few yards up the hill, the cafe window framed a pair of eyes that followed two strangers dodging puddles along the dirt road.

But one does not stay a stranger long in Port Lions before the conversation and bottomless pots of coffee start flowing.

Bears are a favorite subject. Kodiak Island's huge brown bears wander through town at will. A party of nine dined at the dump one recent night, provoking considerable consternation among human inhabitants.

Another favorite topic, in a place soaked by nearly 60 inches of rain a year, is the weather. And the weather is linked to the all-consuming subject of Port Lions — fishing.

As they did in Afognak, villagers still fish all year, working the stormy Gulf of Alaska for salmon, crab, halibut, cod — whatever puts food on the table and pays the bills.

"Fishing was our livelihood," Knagin said. "That still hasn't changed, and it's never going to, I think."

Other things have changed. The move to Port Lions jolted the villagers into the 20th century. Afognak had no telephones, running water or indoor plumbing. Electricity was produced by small generators, and most homes did without.

Port Lions is crisscrossed by telephone and electric wires. Sewer and water mains run beneath the streets. Trash is picked up every Saturday, and the hilltop satellite dish picks up seven television stations.

"I've been here 22 years, and I'm still not used to it," grumbled Sergay Sheratine, 59, a janitor at the high school, another institution that Afognak never had. "We were freer in Afognak. We grew our own vegetables. We had our beef cattle, chickens, ducks. Here, the houses are so close together."

But a new generation has come to love Port Lions as home. Petie Nelson was 7 when the big wave hit. These days, he fishes, hunts and drives out twice a day to meet the mail plane at the Port Lions airstrip.

Soviet girl to visit Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Soviet schoolgirl Katerina Lycheva on Friday brought her message of peace to Texas where her tour coordinators were scrapping some public appearances so she could catch up on some rest and avoid the crush of the press.

The 11-year-old Katerina was making her fourth stop on a U.S. tour which began on March 20 in Chicago and included stays in New York and Washington, where she met briefly Thursday with President Reagan. She was scheduled to leave Houston on Sunday for Los Angeles.

Katerina's trip commemorates the 1983 visit to Moscow by Maine schoolgirl Samantha Smith, who died last year in a plane crash. She has been accompanied by her mother and by Star Rowe, 10, of San Francisco, who won an essay contest held by the trip's sponsoring group, Children as Peacemakers of San Francisco.

More than 150 Girl Scouts greeted Katerina's entourage at Houston Intercontinental Airport, presenting her with a Texas flag and yellow roses.

"I'm sure I'll like it very much here in Texas," she said.

She also was scheduled for a news conference, a mule-drawn wagon ride in downtown Houston and a fashion show at a department store, where she was to be given jeans, a Texas shirt, a pair of cowboy boots and a cowboy hat.

Tour spokeswoman Marian Slavin, however, said an ambitious weekend schedule was being curtailed at the request of Katerina's family.

"Her family has asked that she be given some time to rest," Ms. Slavin said. "She has only two days in Los Angeles and then it's a long flight back to Moscow."

As a result, a planned department store appearance this morning was cancelled, along with her attendance at an Easter Sunday church service and dinner Sunday with a family in Katy, west of Houston. Instead, the family which planned to host the Easter feast was being invited to the Houston hotel for brunch with her.

"Everything was too scattered," Ms. Slavin said. "We would be spending too much time getting to places. Some of the things scheduled were too far away from the hotel and she's gotten very tired."

Still on tap for the weekend was a tour of the Johnson Space Center and a visit to a Girl Scout camp in Seabrook. Both events, however, were being put off-limits to the press, Ms. Slavin said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dustin Hoffman's photograph reportedly is coming between him and Cannon Films, causing him to bow out of the movie "La Brava."

The actor ended a contract to star in the movie after unauthorized use of his photograph in trade publications to promote the film, according to a source quoted in Friday's editions of the Los Angeles Times.

"Dustin sent them a letter terminating the contract for their fundamental breach of contract," the source, who was not identified, was quoted as saying.

The source said the contract had given Hoffman the right to approve use of his picture.

A spokesman for Hoffman's Punch Productions in New York, also unidentified, told the newspaper the actor was out of the country and unavailable for comment, but said: "It's definitely, definitely off."

Yoram Globus, president of Cannon Films, denied the report and said "La Brava" is still on. He also denied that Hoffman had been given the right to approve use of his photo.

The film is based on an Elmore Leonard novel about a retired Secret Service agent caught in a blackmail scam.

The Times had reported earlier that Hoffman was to get $6.3 million and 22.5 percent of gross revenues on the film.

The source quoted in Friday's editions said the deal was even richer, and that it offered Hoffman more than the $12 million Cannon paid Sylvester Stallone for starring in the soon-to-be released "Over the Top."

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — Ryan White's mother says it takes a lot to excite the young AIDS victim, but a chance to meet actresses Elizabeth Taylor and Brooke Shields at an AIDS benefit has captured his enthusiasm.

Ryan, 14, has been invited to a gala benefit at the New York Convention Center's Crystal Palace, sponsored by the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

The event will launch the foundation's $1 million fund drive and national public education campaign on acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Ryan was invited to the April 29 event because "he is a very courageous man," according to the foundation's New York publicist, Susan Martin.

"I think that people everywhere are concerned about a child who contracts AIDS," Ms. Martin said this week.

Ryan was diagnosed as having AIDS in December 1984. He contracted the deadly disease from blood products used in the treatment of hemophilia.

He has been in the center of a battle by his mother to return him to the Western Middle School in Kokomo. A group of parents obtained a court order barring Ryan from the school, fearing his contact with their children.

Ryan has been monitoring classes via a telephone hookup at his home.

Kerwin

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Actors Brian Kerwin and Linda Hamilton don't necessarily have the leading roles sewn up in "King Kong Lives."

The latest King Kong movie by Dino DeLaurentiis will have a 60-foot leading lady for Kong, publicists for the movie say.

Production starts Monday in the East Tennessee countryside with Kerwin, whose recent credits include "Murphy's Romance," and Miss Hamilton from "The Terminator" in the leading roles.

Publicist Howard Berk said the movie will introduce a partner for the legendary Kong, who made hi film debut in the 1933 film "King Kong" starring Fay Wray.

DeLaurentiis filmed his own "King Kong" in 1977 starring Jessica Lange and Jeff Bridges. His North Carolina-based film company has not revealed what the latest Kong movie will be about.

Kong and his partner, still unnamed, each weigh 5 tons and were to be trucked to East Tennessee during the weekend.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A mixture of sunshine and fog marked the beginning of President Reagan's 10-day vacation at his 688-acre ranch north of here Friday.

The president and his wife, Nancy, went horseback riding after breakfast and he planned to chop wood and do other ranch chores later in the day, according to the White House press office.

Weather at the ranch in the Santa Ynez Mountains was sunny early in the day, but fog began to close in by mid-morning, the White House said.

The Reagans arrived at the ranch late Thursday and plan to return to Washington on April 6. White House spokesman Dale Petroskey said the Reagans do not plan to attend church on Easter Sunday.

A Santa Barbara-based peace group which opposes Reagan's policies on natural security issues plans a march to the gates of the ranch on Monday to present a petition.

The Reduced Payment Method Auto Loan...a Revolution in Auto Financing.

Imagine a revolutionary new car loan that requires a low down payment, that can drastically reduce your monthly payments, and can help you get a far better car for your money than you ever dreamed possible.

That car loan is available today at Subaru of Midland through Subaru Financial Services. It's the new RPM Loan...your first choice in loans to get your first choice in cars.

Here's how it works: We know your new car will still have value at the end of your loan term-say three to four years. So we determine that residual value when you arrange your loan.

We subtract that residual value from the purchase price, and calculate your principal payments on the difference. This means you pay only interest on the residual value, and principal and interest on the rest.

The result? You pay a lot less each month with our RPM Auto Loan than with a conventional car loan.

At the end of your loan term, you have a choice.

At the end of your loan term, there are four options open to you:

1. You can sell the car yourself, pay off the balance of the loan, and pocket the difference.
2. You can return the car, in good condition, to a designated drop-off point.
3. You can keep the car by simply paying back or refinancing the remaining residual value.
4. You can trade in the car and use the equity as a down payment on your next car.

Save on the car you budgeted for, or have more to spend on a better car.

RPM can lower your monthly paymets, with a low down payment. And RPM can help you buy, within your present budget, a far better car than you ever imagined. For complete details and an application, stop by Subaru of Midland, send in the coupon, or call 686-0226.

Please send me complete details and an application for the new Subaru Finance RPM Auto Loan.
