QUINN TO CONTINUE TO READ SUCCESS

As further evidence of the fact that he is not going to forget Eldorado and her people, Rev. A. J. Quinn handed us his renewal to the Success before leaving for Bowie, Texas, this week. In recognition of the work they are doing, the Success is sent complimentary to all pastors of Eldorado each week, but when Quinn moved into another field he wanted news of Eldorado to come to his new address.

The Quinn's left many, many friends when they depated for their new field of labor last Wednesday, and we know that news of these friends will be welcomed into their home each week. We are glad to keep the Success going to them.

Others whose subscriptions have been received recently are: Mrs. Frank Spencer, W. H. Joiner, J. H. O'Harrow, Jim Dan Hill of Superior, Wisconsin, and J. F. Webster of Ft. McKavett.

HIGHWAY NEWS ITEM

According to the latest available report from the Highway Planning Survey, 31 car owners of Schleicher County have mailed the post cards which were handed to them at the time they paid their 1937 automobile license fees at the office of Mr. O. E. Conner, Tax Assessor and Collector. Since the number or cards thus far returned from this County are insufficient to give complete proof of the real needs of the County, every car owner should request one of these self-addressed, postage-free cards and should fill it in and mail it at once because information so collected, together with information compiled by other branches of the survey, will be used by the State Highway Department and the U. S. Bueau of Public Roads in allocating federal funds which will soon be spent in improving the secondary road system and in planning the future construction and maintenance of the roads and highways.

Throughout the State the car owners have been returning these cards in a highly satisfactory way. This county, in order to furnish information which places it on a comparable basis with other counties, should return these post cards from as high a percentage of its car owners as its neighboring counties.

Mexican Indicted For Slaying Of Gene Booth In November

GRAND JURY RETURNS BILL OF INDICTMENT AT SESSION MONDAY

A bill of indctment against Benito Urista, Mexican, for the murder of Gene Booth, his employer, last November was returned by members of the grand-jury last Monday. The grand jury began its investigations at ten-thirty last Monday morning after being impanelled and after having received its charge from District Judge John F. Sutton, who opened the spring term of 51st District Court here.

In his charge to the grand jury Judge Sutton said, in part:

"There are three steps which the grand jury must take in returning a bill of indictment. The first step is to determine that a law has ben violated; the second is to determine who violated the law. But the grand jury must go even further than that, and the third step which I have in mind is to determine whether or not your district attorney can get a conviction on your indictment.

"I do not believe that a bill of indictment should be returned unless the grand jury is reasonably certain that a conviction can be obtained. In my opinion, the best example which the court can set before the public is to have fewer indictments and more convictions on the indictments which are made by the grand jury."

Members of the grand jury are J. E. Spencer, foreman; W. R. Nicks, Ford Oglesby, J. W. Lawhon, Jr., Horace B. Rees, Ed M. Reynolds, Jas. B. Sammons, J. F. Webster, Sam Williams, W. F. Meador, H. M. Freund and J. F. Ramsel.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF COUNTY ROADS AND LOCAL RESPONSIBILITIES

The challenge being faced by the county as an administrative unit of government must be met with prompt readjustments of methods in line with the progress of the present day, if local government is to survive as a vital part of our national democracy. County officials must recognize that present trends are toward a closely coordinating system of federal, state and local participation. Without this plan, a variance of methods has the result that our activities are loosely connected and ineffective. We can no longer administer county government without relation to state and national policy. County officials must be in a position to benefit by the best methods that have been developed through the experience with county government over the entire country.

On the other hand, state and federal officials must continue to recognize that local government is imperative to our democratic system and must not be submerged in obedience to the wishes of those who would super-impose centralized authority to the extent of eliminating local participation. We have the two extremes—some local officials, on the one hand, who are unfriendly to state and federal regulation, and some administrative heads on the other, who are unsympathetic to local government and would prefer to attempt to carry on entirely independent of it.

Applied to the Administration of roads, and highways, we find situations representing both extremes prevalent in many parts of th country. In other parts we find county and state officials coordinating to the fullest extent, with a common understanding of the problems of the entire road and highway system. The chief factors in the tendancy to centralize all road administration in some states are first, the general policy of the governor and his staff, and second, the apparent willingness of a few highway departments to support legislation detrimental to local road administration, including control of appropriations. The reaction developing from such policies comes only after they are carried to the extreme.

Another factor is the apparent inefficiency of some local officials, and their inability to cope with the demands of present-day progress. Roadbuilding requires competent engineering, proper supervision and accurate cost accounting, Sound planning and budgeting are further requisites, as well as making use of the most modern methods. Federal and state assistance must be evaluated and used where advisable. Uuless county agencies meet these demands, state highway departmnts will be reluctant to cooperate, and people will trend to sympathize with efforts to establish full state control.

County Road Administration is an entirely different operation from that of managing a state highway system. A centralized agency by its very nature is not fitted to cope with the many intricate problems of county road administration with the degree of service and satisfaction required by local communities. The relation of the county roads to mail deliveries, school-bus operations, milk routes, community centers and farm and industrial development is entirely too intricate to be bound by a long-distance administration. County officials must serve as a real factor in the federal, state and local coordinating program, complying with the demands for modern methods and efficiency, in order to preserve local administration and retain for the people the participation, interest and representation that are indispensable to the preservation of good government. The public should be kept informed of the issues, so that sound road and highway legislation will prevail.

Many of the ideas expressed in the above editorial, which is taken from the Better Roads Magazine, March issue, can very well be applied to this county. Because of the fact that our commissioners court has been urged by some to vote a special tax for building county roads, we believe the above outlines pretty well the situation of our present court

County Judge C. S. McKinney has expressed his disapproval of a special road tax, stating that he did not believe that the county organization is ready for such a tax.

The organization, he believes as do many others, is not capable, under its present setup, of spending any large amount of money in road building. Lots of money has ben squandered by counties that didn't know how to go about building roads, or other projects which have been undertaken.

"When we get a county road administration which is capable of carrying out this work, I will be for it," McKinney said, "but with a large amount of money thrown into our laps now, without proper administrative organizations, would offer a likelihood of wastage before our organizations could be set up and be made to function properly.

"I believe the Commissioners Court is capable of using all money available at the present time to an advantage, but our present setup is not sufficient to carry on a real large program. Every effort is being made to build and maintain roads more efficiently than ever before under our present setup, and the Commissioners court is going to continue to see that every dollar of our present road money is spent wisely, efficiently and economically."

LEADING CANDIDATE

Interest in the present race to fill the vacancy made by the recent death of Representative Buchanan is not limited to the 10th Congressional District only, but is of intense interest throughout the entire state. —On most any street corner candidates and their platforms are being discussed.—And justly so. The man to fill this important position will vitally effect the entire state as well as the 10th District.

Lyndon B. Johnson, former State Director of the National Youth Administration, who is running on a platform of "Openly and Actively Supporting the President," seems to be gaining momentum and is believed by many political observers to be the leading candidate for the April 10th election. He is in favor of the President's Farm program, higher prices for farm products—to a parity with industrial prices, crop control soil conservation, better marketing, lower interest rates and fewer tenant farmers.

Mr. Johnson is a clean and sincere young man. He has had four years experience in Washington as a Texas Congressman's secretary; knows departmental routine and Congressional procedure and already has many friends at the National Capitol. Possessing a brilliant mind; a magnetic personality, and a determined spirit, he is a natural leader; an organizer, and is a true friend of "Youth".

"Now is the Time For All Good Men to Come to the Aid of Their Party," the often quoted motto, is especially fitting at this time. President Roosevelt's constructive program has brought the people of our nation from depression to prosperity and well being. The splendid measures Roosevelt has carried through have been of incalcualable benefit to our state.—He wants to continue.

It now behooves the people of the entire State to rally to the cause by urging the people of the 10th Congressional District to support the candidate who "whole-heartedly" supports President Roosevelt. Everyone should write all friends and relatives in the 10th district, Bastrop, Blanco, Burnet, Burleson, Caldwell, Hays, Lee, Travis, Washington, and Williamson counties.

And They Let George Do It!

GEORGE RECTOR, internationally famous cooking authority, knows how important time is to modern housewives. That's why he likes to tell them about recipes which take but a few minutes. In the above photograph he is making a luncheon egg dish in jig time and using a modern automatic gas range to do the trick.

Eggs must be cooked with gentle heat, so he fries three in one-half tablespoon butter, adjusting the burner valve to simmer. In a jiffy the eggs are done and transferred to a hot platter, seasoned with salt and pepper, and sprinkled with one tablespoon chopped chives.

Adding one tablespoon butter to that remaining in the skillet, he quickens the gas flame, lets the butter bubble to a hazelnut brown, adds one-half tablespoon vinegar and pours the sauce over the eggs. There you have Eggs Au Beurre Noir.

Mr. Rector, familiar to radio listeners, is now heard thrice weekly in the "Dining With George Rector" program over WABC—the Columbia network.

Mrs. Chas. Baker and Mrs. Kate Good of Bronte visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Kennedy last week.

Mrs. J. E. Tisdale of Denton, and daughter, Miss Celeste, who is attending C. I. A., spent the Easter holidays with friends and relatives here.

Jack Shugart, who is attending Randolph College at Cisco, visited relatives here over the week-end.

IN MCCLATCHEY HOME

Miss Mabel McClatchey of Junction, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McClatchey of Hobbs, New Mexico, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight McClatchey and children of Dallas, spent the week-end here in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McClatchey.

Bill McWhorter and Eli McAngus, who are attending Texas Tech at Lubbock, spent the week-end with home folks in Eldorado.

County Agent W. G. Godwin was a visitor at the Extension Service headquarters in College Station during the latter part of last week.

Jack Meador was home from Texas Tech during the Easter holidays, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Meador.

Miss Roberta Milligan, who is in Texas Uuniversity, spent the holidays here with home folks.

Austin.—Repeal of race-track gambling in Texas moved a step nearer enactment when the senate's committee on criminaljurisprudence voted 3 to 6 to report the Bradbury bill favorably, after a lengthy public hearing in which Sen. G. H. Nelson, of Tahoka, staged a pretty bit of legislative dramatics as Austin has seen in many a moon. Nelson neatly outmaneuvered the race gamblers' spokesman, the astute Sen. Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth. The action puts the bill already passed 107 to 24 by the house, on the senate calendar and makes it pretty certain another record vote will be taken by the whole senate. Packed galleries applauded vociferously as the vote was taken, after Nelson climaxed his case by an old-fashioned country courthouse plea and capped the climax by leading to the stand a widowed mother of seven children—accompanied by five of the children—and told how her husband, ruined by race track gambling, had put a gun to his temple and blown his brains out. This was Nelson's answer to the opposition's charge that stories of lives ruined by track gambling were "hearsay" and demanded specific instances. Those voting for track gambling on the committee were Brownlee of Austin, Moore of Houston, Rawlings of Fort Worth, Spears of San Antonio, Stone of Brenham and Weinert of Seguin. Voting against were Collie of Eastland, Cotten of Palestine, Davis of Brownwood, Hill of Henderson, Isbell of Rockwell, Lemens of Rainbow, Small of Amarillo and Woodruff of Decatur. Unless the bill is prevented from coming to a vote on the senate floor, it is virtually certain to pass in the senate. Gov. Allred, strong advocate of repeal, was an interested spectator at the hearing.

Speaker Is Scrapper, Too

Capitol corridors were buzzing this week with an unpublished story of a fistic encounter betwen Speaker Bob Calvert and an East Txas freshman house member, nearly twice Calvert's size. The brush occured in an anteroom, with the East Texan the aggressor, according to the story. Calvert, attacked, not only proved capable of taking care of himself, but did the job so well that the East Texan yelled "enough" in short order.

Tribute To Thompson

Tribute to the part Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson, father and chairman of the Interstate Oil compact has played in the conservation of Texas oil is contained in a bulletin of the National Petroleum association, before which Thompson will speak on the compact plan at Cleveland, O., April 15. The bulletin says: "A few years ago, there were those who advocated federal control of the oil industry on the ground that state control in the interest of conservation and prevention of waste, could not succeed. The states were given their opportunity under the Interstate Oil compact. Texas became the battleground for this effort and the struggle to bring economic order out of chaos has been beset with great difficulties. Col. Thompson has been thru it all and has had a large part in the results which have been accomplished. What has been done has been of immediate and vital interest to oil producers everywhere."

Prison Bill Vetoed

The task of writing a law to effectuate the provision of the constitutional amendment adopted last year by Texas voters to reform the system of pardons and paroles must be started all over again, following Gov. Allred's veto of the compromise bill written by a free conference committee. Allred specified about 10 objections to the bill, including the one requiring all three members of the paroles board to spend at least half the time at state prisons or on prison farms, and providing criminal punishment for failure to do so. He also critized leniency toward prisioners, and detailed duties imposed by the legislature upon parole board members. A bitter fight between Austin and Huntsville for the board's headquarters location raged thruout the time it was under consideration. Sen. Gordon Burns of Huntsville gave notice of an attempt to pass the bill over the governor's veto, something that hasn't happened since Dan Moody was governor.

Tax Remission Battle

Widening the breach between governor and solons, the house passed the Harris-co tax remission bill without debate, in the face of a warning by Allred he would veto it. The bill remits 50 per cent of state ad valorem taxes to Harris for 10 years for flood control and had already passed the senate, Meanwhile the Senate state affairs committee favorably reported the Mauritz bill, passed by the house, remitting all state ad valorem taxes (except the constitutional school levies) to all counties for five years, to use as they see fit. This raid of about $45,000,000 of state revenue would, if enacted and signed, precipitate another sales tax crisis. The senate may pass it, too, but Allred is virtually certain to veto it.

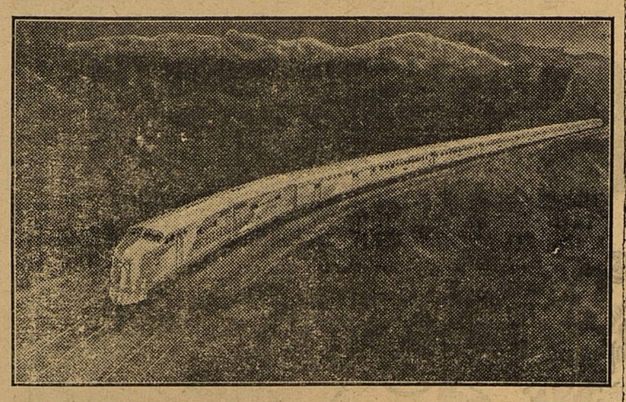

Talk Follows Farley Visit

The speech of Jim Farley before the legislature, urging support of the president's court plan stirred much political talk here. Friends of Sen. Tom Connally, who opposes the plan, but has suggested a compromise, resented Farley's reference to Democrats who oppose it is "lending aid and comfort to the enemy," and felt Farley was unduly hard upon Connally, one of the president's closest friends in the national senate. In the campaign now under way to elect a successor to the late Congressman Buchanan of the Austin district, Lyndon Johnson's supporters were heartened by Farley's talk, since Johnson is pledging full support to the Roosevelt court plan in his campaign speeches.

Highway Racket Halted

An end to a racket, under which certain unnamed county commissioners' courts have been mulcting the state highway funds by buying road equipment with scrip or warrants, was promised by the highway department. The equipment dealers have been peddling the county scrip to owners of large truck fleets, at a discount, urging them to register their vehicles in the affected counties, paying with the discounted scrip. A state law prohibits the registration of motor vehicles in counties other than the residence of the owners, and the highway department, which gets part of the registration fees, means to see that law is enforced

New "Super-Chief" for Western Run

THIS gleaming train, of light-weight, stainless steel will become the famous "Super Chief" of the Santa Fe railroad when it goes into service early in the spring.

The train, nine cars in length, now is under construction by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia.

Traversing the picturesque lands of the Navajo, it will take over the weekly run between Chicago and Los Angeles — a distance of 2,225 miles—and will cover the route on a schedule of 39 hours, 45 minutes.

Through use of light-weight construction principles, the new train will weigh only half as much as the train it will supersede and will be a radical departure from the conventional design of railway equipment.

The train will be Diesel powered. New features for comfort and convenience have been built into it and it will have a striking decorative design. The nine cars include five sleepers, cocktail and lounge car baggage and postoffice car, dining car and an observation car.

Roll call was answered with a helpful hint on fly control by nine members and Mrs. Ed Ratliff, Mrs. L. T. Wilson and Mrs. Mildred Deaton, visitors.

Fifty boys who are working on a National Youth Administration work project at Vernon are enrolled in the NYA Boys' Club there. They are enjoying a recreational and educational program which includes various games and athletic contests, classes in manual training, academic classes, and a weekly talk by a Vernon business man on some current topic, H. A. Ziegler, assistant district supervisor, has reported to J. C. Kellam, acting state director.

Letter Emphasizes Importance Of Conservation Program

C. A. Cobb Urges Co-Operation Of All Texas Farmers

Says Price Levels Of 1933 Possible If Farmers Do Not Co-Operate

The following letter, giving the present status of farm problems over the United States, has been received by local committeemen and the county agent. It represents the views of C. A Cobb, director Southern division, Washington, D. C., regarding the present crisis in the government's effort to maintain balanced production of major cash crops, and is being reprinted for whatever value it may have to local farmers.

"Reports reaching this office from States in the Southern Region indicate a crises has been reached in our effort to maintain a balanced production in our major cash crops. Farmers are evidencing a marked tendancy to increase the acreage planted to cotton, tobacco, and peanuts. Fertilizer sales have shown a sharp increase.

"I am afraid advancing prices for some of our commodities, particularly cotton, have caused Southern farmers to forget the situation which brought about 5-cent cotton, $8.00 a ton cottonseed, and prices for other commodities on the same low starvation scale. Because of the seriousness of the situation, I am convinced we must make a further special effort to let every farmer in the belt undersatnd that a material increase in cotton acreage this season could easily place cotton producers in a position similar to that in which they found themselves in 1933. Despite the fact that the burdensome surplus of American cotton has been reduced, our carry-over of approximately 7 million bales is still 2 million bales above normal.

"The estimated world supply of all cotton for the present season was over 42 million bales. In only one other year, 1933, has the supply equaled or exceeded this. The world supply and world demand for cotton largely determine the price that American growers receive. The world consumption of all cotton during 1935-1936 was 27.4 million bales, and of this amounr mill consumption accounted for 26.8 million bales. This total world consumption exceeded that of any single year, but was about 2 3-4 million bales less than the world production of cotton in 1936. It is evident at this time that world consumption of all cotton during 1936-1937 will not equal the production of 1936, which means a larger world carry-over of all cotton into the 1937-1938 season. This carry-over and the 1937 crop will determine supply and price.

"The only way we can avoid another season of excessive supplies and low prices is through the wholehearted cooperation of all cotton producers in the Agricultural Conservation Program. Unless farmers help themselves by diverting cotton acreage to soil-conserving crops, there is nothing the Government can do to maintain the balanced production necessary to obtain reasonable prices.

"For four years farmers have effectively used Governmental measures in a cooperative effort which has resulted in a steady upward march of farm income. Now that we have partly obtained our objective of balanced production and fair prices it is even more important that farmers do not dessert the program that has meant so much to their welfare.

"Farmers should also realize that in the past when it has become necessary for the Government to give assistance beyond that offered in the agricultural programs themselves, that assistance has been extended only to those who have cooperated. For example, cotton loans have not been extended to non-cooperators.

"It would seem desirable to make available to county workers for distribution to farmers in your State a brief statement giving the facts about the cotton situation so that farmers may know just what to expect in the event they insist upon increaing acreage. Some of the things that should be called to their attention are:

(1) That we again face low-priced cotton unless we continue to maintain a balanced production; (2) conservation payments at 5 cents a pound for the average yield on the diverted acres are sure and certain; (3) the cost of producing cotton on diverted acres is saved; (4) cotton that is produced will cost less per pound to grow; (5) the diverted acres produce conserving crops some of which may be used for food and feedstuffs; (6) soil fertility is conserved; and (7) better price for cotton is assured if production is kept within reasonable limits.

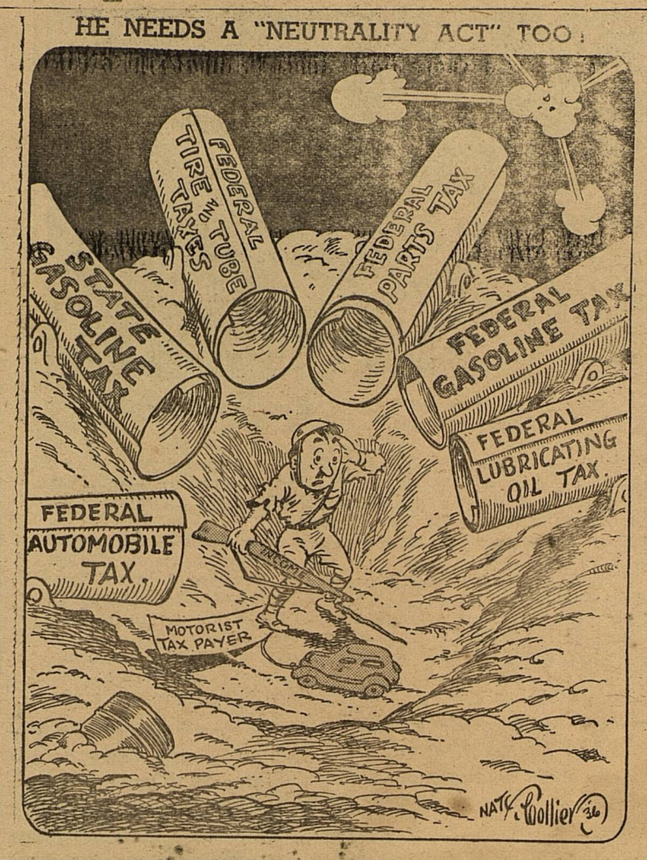

"It is our suggestion that a brief outline of these facts be made and copies distributed to every producer in your State before he actually plants his cotton."

CAVALCADE IN SEARCH OF VICTORIA CARRIAGE

Have you a Victoria Carriage?

"Cavalcade of the Americas", mammoth historical spectacle of the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition, is in need of one for its Bowie de Desamendi wedding scene. It will become fifteen in the group of horse-drawn conveyences to be used in the show to be presented on the world's largest stage.

Although the Victoria, a graceful four-wheeled carriage with a high driver's seat, was popular in the southwest, it seems to have disappeared with the coming of the automobile. "Harper Scivally, Rochester, N. Y., President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has a beautiful Victoria in his famous stables, said Bernie Meyer, property ma. "We may be able to work out deal with him for the use of t carriage".

The stage coach to be used Cavalcade was actually used i the early days on a route fro Corpus Christi to Kingsville Texas, and is now the propert of the famous King Ranch, i Kingsville. A good-as-new bug gy was found within two blocks of the Exposition grounds.

Covered wagons, prairie schooners of the old West, are direct reproductions, as are the solid-wheeled Mexican ox-carts. The oxcarts were designed by John A. Hart.

Two Spanish Galleons, one a scale model, the other in miniature, will be built soon for the scene of Columbus' discovery of the Americas. They are a most difficult problem, Meyer said.

Sixty horses, six cannon, and a Gatling gun are also on the props list for the big show. The Gatling gun was the first development in rapid-fire artillery, and was first used in the Spanish-American war.

The gay nineties scene calls for 40 saddle horses, 20 harness horses, surreys, an open carriage, a fire-engine, ox-cart, highwheel bicycles, express wagons, and three ancient automobiles. A tandem, or two-seated bicycle, also will be used in this scene, which will produce the comedy angle for the show

"We are really concerned about the Victoria carriage," said A. L. Vollmann, producer-director. "We would like to contact anyone who may have one."

Jan Fortune wrote "Cavalcade of the Americas." Ed V. Goodwin will assist in the directing.

At Dealey Plaza in Dallas over 100 youths are working on a National Youth Administration work project constructing reflecting pools, landscaping, and erecting granite monuments C. P. Little, Jr., district supervisor, said.

RANCHMEN SHOW INTEREST IN RANGE CONSERVATION PROGRAM

West Texas ranchmen are manifesting considerable interest in the range conservation plan of the agicultural conservation program, and county agricultural agent report that many meetings have been held to discuss points in the program.

Two meetings in Real county attracted approximately 15 men and women and of this number 95 signed applications for range inspection.

Blanco county ranchmen ar enthusiastic over the provision in the range program which applies to rescuing land from cedar, and 54 have signed applications totaling 91,165 acres.

A meeting in Sutton county attracted 80 ranchmen, of which 55 signed applications coverin 67 ranches.

Applications covering a million and a half acres of rang land in Pecos county have been signed, and indications are that practically all the three million acres of eligible land will be included in the range conservation program.

Ranchmen in Kerr county have elected their committeemen and more than 100 were present at a meeting at which the progam was explained and discussed. Cedar eradication is the part of the program in which Kerr county ranchmen are most interested.

No. 2 Page will be approximately three-quarters of a mile southeast of and in the same section with Cooper No. 1 Page, a wet gasser since July, 1935. Before being shut in last summer No. 1 Page obtained around 20 barrels of 68-70 gravity oil daily from several million cubic feet of gas. The oil was sold at $3 per barrell to farmers and ranchmen for use as tractor feul. Shooting, then acidizing twice, increased the gas volume to a gauged 13,800,000 cubic feet daily in December, 1935. The well has blown out several times since being shut in until such time as the gas is used. It is bottomed at 5,535 feet, having been plugged back from 6,265.

hangs heavily over Texas and the nation in the wake of the New London School disaster, there comes the requests of many school children for permission to participate in a memorial for the victims.

It has been proposed that each school child in Texas be allowed to contribute one penny on Wednesday, April 7, 1937, in a simple memorial exercise conducted by the teacher and that such contribution be forwarded the Governor of Texas for proper use by the New London School Memorial Committee.

Such an expression of love and sympathy from the school children of Texas would be comforting to the grieving parents of those who so short a time ago shared joys of the classroom. Such an expression from the living would say of New London's heroic little victims "your sacrifice was not in vain"; that those who carry on in the classroom will do so under every protection known to state government.

Therefore, I, James V. Allred, Governor of the State of Texas, by virtue of the power invested in my office, do hereby proclaim in the public schools of Texas, the day of Wednesday, April 7, 1937, as and urge its observance by all the schools of Texas.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto signed my name officially and caused the Seal of State to be impressed hereon, at Austin, this the 27th day of March, A. D., 1937.

James V. Allred, Governor of Texas.
