Council considers $120,000 Airpark fence

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Motorcycles and other recreational vehicles may soon be prevented from entering the aviation section of the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

The city's staff is to prepare specifications for a 32,000-foot long fence around the section, with electronic gates allowing entrance to those who rent hangar space.

The proposal comes after a Big Spring woman was killed in a motorcycle accident on an airpark runway last month.

Kathleene Joyce "Katie" Mings, 19, was a passenger on a motorcycle driven on a paved runway. When the motorcycle hit one of the concrete pads that supports landing lights to guide planes, she was thrown off.

She hit her head, sustaining a broken neck and internal head bleeding, according to her uncle, Al Aken. Police reports said she was pronounced dead at the scene.

Hal Boyd, airpark manager, asked Council for permission to develop the fence specifications during Council's work session Monday afternoon.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the Council's consensus was to proceed with the project.

Boyd said the plan calls for a five-strand smooth wire fence around the section, with a chain-link fence around the hangars area.

The project will cost an estimated $120,000, he said, adding that the funds would come from the airpark budget.

Boyd said people often use the airpark for recreation, and staff members often must clean the area after weekend beer parties.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford said the fence also may help direct drivers confused by the pattern of roads and runways, especially at night.

Councilman D.D. Johnston noted his concern over the city's liability as a result of airpark accidents.

Councilman Gary Don Carey said he opposes the plan.

"That much fence is ridiculous. We're talking about fencing a very big area to keep the public out," he said, adding that warning signs would be more appropriate.

"It makes me furious that a small amount of the population (abusing the airpark) is going to cost the city $120,000," he said.

The Council also gave permission to Howard County West Texas Opportunities to use Dora Roberts Community Center to distribute government food commodities to the poor.

Pat Lawlis, director of the opportunities organization, requested the building's use two days per month, and to use the center's walk-in freezer to store leftover commodities.

The organization had been using the National Guard Armory, but the armory recently eliminated most of its refrigeration space, Lawlis said.

Rutherford asked whether people using the center might eat the

City reviewing proposed zoning ordinance changes

Herald staff report

City Council members were given a summary of proposed zoning ordinance revision at its work session Monday afternoon.

City Manager Mack Wofford described the changes as minor and said they would affect very few Big Spring residents.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the proposed revision updates the 1969 ordinance with changes that have been made since then and are already in effect.

It also addresses zoning for flea and farmer's markets and outdoor arts and crafts sales, mini-storage warehouses, new subdivision street width and handicapped parking spaces.

Existing businesses would fall under the grandfather clause, and would not be forced to move or make major changes, said Sidney Clark of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

"We're trying to see that we weren't crucifying anybody and at the same time trying to be fair," he said.

Citizens can view the zoning map and ordinance at City Hall during business hours. A public hearing will be conducted Aug. 27.

City Parks Board supporting plan

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Parks and Recreation Board unanimously agreed to support maintenance proposals from the Big Spring Tennis Association for the Figure 7 Tennis Center, but warned the association that its recommendations wouldn't have much impact with City Council.

Eunice Choate, a tennis association spokesperson, and several of her fellow members requested the board's advice and recommendations on maintenance of the tennis center and reported the association has several concerns.

Choate said the group wanted the board's recommendations before appearing at tonight's City Council meeting.

She first listed the goals of the organization: To play tennis; to have tournaments; to train junior players; and to ensure the center's maintenance.

In citing the association's concerns, Choate noted the first is the playing surfaces. Because of cracks, several of the courts are in need of resurfacing, she said.

She listed two possible solutions — resurfacing, at an approximate cost of $2,000 for each of the nine courts, or patching at an estimated average of $200 per court.

She warned, however, that the patching probably wouldn't last very long — in some cases less than a year.

The association also is concerned about general grounds maintenance, Choate said, noting that the windscreens are torn, and light standards and court benches need repainting.

She said her association will volunteer to do some of the repair work if the city is unable to, but believes that the city should maintain city property — without relying on voluntary efforts.

Choate said the association also is worried about who will staff the center as a result of scheduled budget cuts there.

The association suggested that groups such as the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, or representatives from the Federal Prison Camp might be persuaded to provide staffing until a permanent solution is developed.

Parks and Recreation Director David McGhghy said the city tentatively plans to hire a part-time

Firefighters to be trained for EMT staff

Herald staff report

Fire department personnel have until Friday evening to enroll in an emergency medical technician course to provide staff for a fourth Big Spring ambulance, Fire Chief Carl Dorton said.

Rural/Metro ambulance company has a contract to supply three staffed ambulances and a fourth ambulance unit to be staffed by firefighters.

Firefighters who earn EMT certification will receive $25 per month extra pay, he said. In addition, three from each shift will receive $50 per month for being on standby for ambulance runs, he said.

Dorton said about 14 employees have expressed interest in the course.

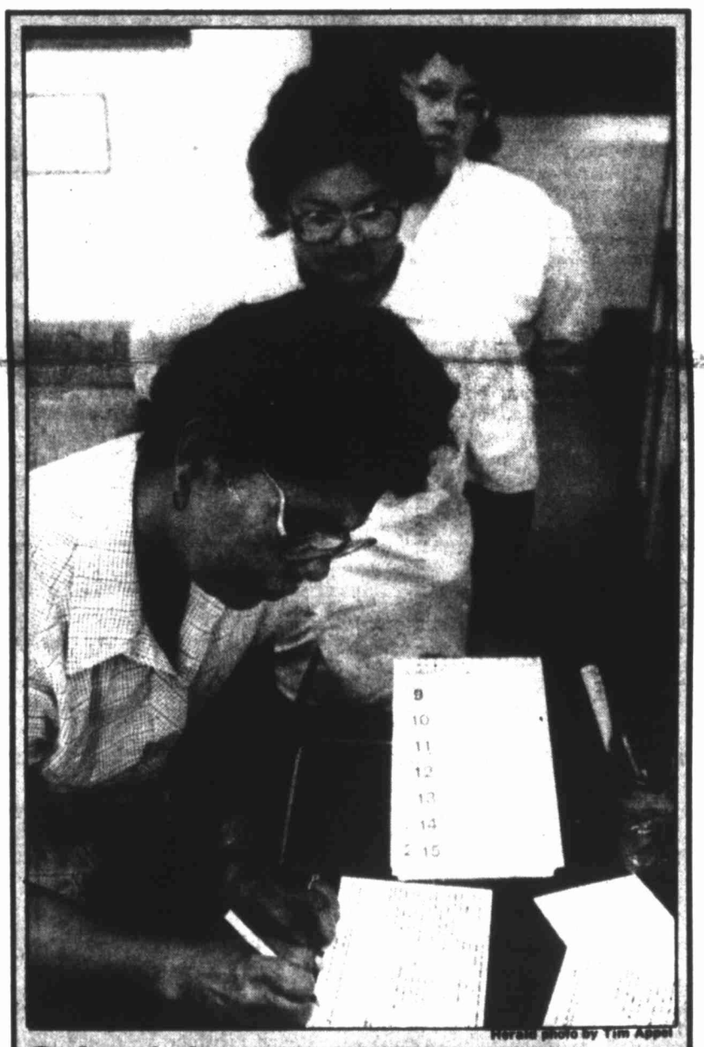

The course will be conducted from September through December, with classes on city time and city facilities, he said. Firefighters will pay for study materials.

City officials are examining the possibility of the city paying the $65 per EMT liability insurance policy to guard against malpractice lawsuits. Councilman Russ McEwen suggested at the Council work session Monday the city, rather than employees, pay the fee.

The ambulance program will be evaluated in July 1988 to determine if the fourth ambulance is necessary, Dorton said.

If it is judged necessary, each EMT will receive $50 per month, he said; however, if the ambulance is not considered necessary, each EMT will recieve only the current $25 per month.

Dorton said the program will cost about $5,000 through July 1988.

Board members vent frustrations

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Parks and Recreation Board member Michael Russell described his experiences dealing with Big Spring City Council as "... the three Ds — Disillusioned, disenchanted and disgusted."

Russell and other board members voiced their frustration at dealing with a council they describe as unreceptive to their ideas and recommendations after a presentation by Eunice Choate and fellow members of the Big Spring Tennis Association.

Choate's group approached the board for ideas and recommendations concerning possible loss of revenue at the Figure 7 Tennis Center.

Board member Bill Battle voiced his own recommendation to the association — "You're in trouble," he said.

He also advised the organization to "... follow up, follow up, and follow up your proposals with the council. If you don't, they'll forget it by the time they get home."

Battle's disappointment with the council was echoed by several of other board members.

"We're very frustrated with the situation," said Mamie Lee Dodds. "When they do follow our recommendations, they don't notify us."

"We're not sure about what's happening over there," she added.

Member Rick McKinney said, "I'm fed up. They've turned their back on us."

At the core of the board's disenchantment with Council is the general perception by members that they don't receive any feedback from the city on park matters, and therefore are powerless.

"We are an advisory board, and we aren't supposed to have authority to do anything but make recommendations," said member Tina Arguello. "That's fine. I can live with that. But it's gotten to the point that we make recommendations — and that's the last we hear about it."

Russell amplified Arguello's comments by saying, "We get all this input from people, and we pass some of it on (to the council). But we never receive any feedback."

Battle said another sore point for

Services pending for Mary Cowper

Community activist and former school board member Mary Joy Cowper, 71, 111 Cedar, died Monday after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Cowper was elected to serve four terms on the Big Spring Independent School Board of Trustees in 1958, retiring in 1971. She was active in the West Texas Republican Women's Club, editing and publishing its paper, the Trumpet for six years.

Mrs. Cowper received the Woman of the Year award at the Chamber of Commerce banquet in 1982.

She married Dr. Roscoe Cowper, who owns Cowper Clinic and Hospital, 1500 Gregg St., in June 1937.

She was a long-time member of the 1930 Hyperion Club, serving as president twice as well as in other offices and duties. She was also a book reviewer for local groups and occasionally in Midland, Sweetwater, Lamesa, Rotan, Dallas, Colorado City and Forsan.

Mrs. Cowper was a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, where she served as president of the Women of the Church and St. Mary's Guild.

During her tenure she led in the founding of the Bargain Box, one of the church's outreaches to the poor. She served on the Vestry, the first woman to hold the position in the local church, and was a member of the choir for several years.

She also served on the school board and was Senior Warden for St. Mary's School.

She participated in drives for such agencies as the YMCA and United Fund and served on the Rehab Center Board and the Parks and Recreation Board.

Commissioners approve $5 vehicle fee increase

Herald staff report

Howard County Commissioners voted unanimously Monday to increase the vehicle registration fee by $5 after they were given a second chance to do so by the legislature, said Howard County Tax Collector Dorothy Moore.

Moore explained that in 1985 the commissioners voted against making Howard County drivers pay the $5 road and bridge fee. She said approximately 70 Texas counties didn't charge the fee, and that by law commissioners wouldn't be able to reconsider instituting the fee for another five years.

She said, however, that the legislature recently allowed those counties to reconsider the fee before waiting the five years. That's what the commissioners did Monday.

Moore said the fee will be instituted with January notices. She said a portion of the $5 — 50 cents or less — would go toward the paperwork, and the rest would be used to maintain and improve the county's roads and bridges.

Approximately 33,000 vehicles are registered in Howard County, Moore said, and the $5 increase should raise approximately $160,000-$165,000, she estimated.

Hazardous waste group to be formed

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners may meet in special session this week to appoint members to a hazardous waste committee, County Judge Milton Kirby said.

The committee is required under Title III of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 and must be formed by Aug. 17.

Title III also is known as the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act.

The Act establishes federal, state and local government and industry requirements regarding emergency planning and the reporting of hazardous and toxic chemicals.

Fina Oil & Chemical Co. Safety Supervisor Jimmie Wood told county commissioners Monday that Fina Oil has received notice that it is subject to the Act's requirements.

The company is preparing material safety data sheets to submit to the local group, the state commission and the local fire department, Wood said.

The community right-to-know provisions of the law will help increase the public's knowledge and access to information on the presence of hazardous chemicals and their releases into the environment, according to an Environmental Protection Agency fact sheet about the emergency plan.

Kirby said the local committee must include elected local officials, and police, sheriff, fire, public health, and hospital representatives. It also will include a Fina Oil & Chemical Co. delegate, he said.

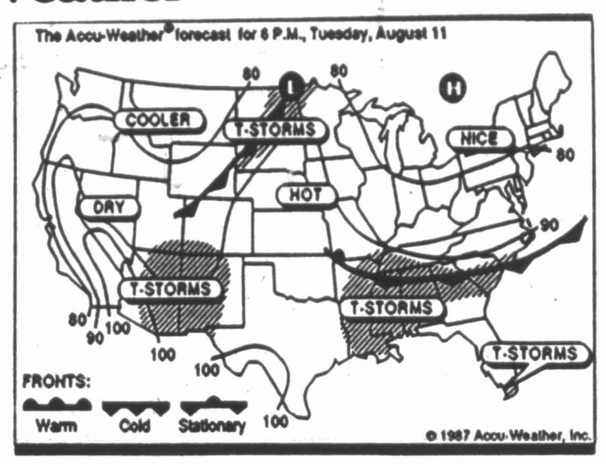

The committee's primary responsibility will be to develop an emergency response plan by Oct. 17, according to the EPA fact sheet.

The plan must include several requirements, according to the EPA:

- Identification of facilities and extremely hazardous substances transportation routes.
- Emergency response procedures, on-site and off-site.
- Designation of a community coordinator and industry coordinators to implement the plan.
- Emergency notification procedures.
- Methods for determining the occurrence of a release of hazardous material and the probable affected area and population.
- Description of community and industry emergency equipment and facilities and the identity of people responsible for them.
- Evacuation plans.
- Description and schedules of a training program for emergency response personnel.
- Methods and schedules for exercising emergency response plans.

The community awareness provisions of the law were adopted, in part, in response to a 1984 Union Carbide chemical disaster in Bhopal, India that killed hundreds of people, according to Robert A. Lansford, coordinator of the Texas Division of Emergency Management.

commodities, not realizing they're not for public consumption.

Lawlis said the food is in labeled cases and that she never has had a problem with thievery. The center's freezers usually are kept locked, she said.

On another matter, Mayor Cotton Mize said city officials will consider a request by Health Inspector James Luck for an additional $7,000 to continue the second full-time nurse position.

Under the 1987-88 budget, the health center has enough funds to employ one full-time and one part-time nurse, rather than the current two full-time nurses.

Luck said the center is understaffed even with two nurses and would face a severe hardship with the cut.

Council member Pat DeAnda said she favors granting the money.

"It's a service we can't do without," she said.

Among the center's services are innoculations for $5, Luck said, adding that the private sector charges much more for the service.

Councilman Russ McEwen agreed the need is genuine, but said every city department "could make the same plea and it would be legitimate."

Councilman Carey said he would rather the money go to the police or fire department.

"We're looking at a small minority of the city (who uses the health center), and we're trying to cut down on the entire city," he said. "I'd rather our money would go to the police and fire department, covering the entire city."

Luck said the center serves about 10 percent of the population.

staffer for the center, but he didn't know how many hours that person would work.

The final concern, Choate said, is the fear that cuts at the center will force cancellation of several high school tennis tournaments.

She noted that the school pays the city $2,000 annually for use of the courts, and wondered if a portion of that money could be designated for maintaining the grounds.

Board member Tina Arguello said that money went to the city's general operating fund, and not toward maintenance of the center. She added that she sympathized with the association, but doubted that City Council would appropriate any additional money for the complex.

Choate completed her presentation by asking board members if they had any recommendations for her before the association took its requests to City Council.

Board member Michael Russell said the board only can make recommendations, and can't guarantee that City Council will listen to them.

Choate replied, "We know; we just want to have your input so we can have our ducks in line before we go before the Council."

On Arguello's motion, the board unanimously agreed to recommend full adoption of the association's requests, but warned Choate that positive action from the city is doubtful.

Vietnam vet attempts fire rescue

Dallas Times Herald Bureau

ARLINGTON — Doug Hall compared a raging apartment fire Monday that claimed the lives of four Arlington children to his worst experiences as a combat infantryman in Vietnam.

"Devastation to the max I've seen, but this was worse," said Hall, a 40-year-old Arlington machinist who tried to rescue the children but was driven back by the flames.

"When you see four little babies in front of you and you can't do anything for them, it really tears at you."

The blaze was reportedly started by a child playing with matches. The four children who died were found in a back bedroom of the two-story apartment, where they were being watched by a 14-year-old babysitter.

The babysitter, who was five-months pregnant, escaped by jumping out of a second-story bedroom window.

A 4-year-old girl was critically burned, but survived.

The fire was discovered by a fire company driving past the apartment and was under control in about 15 minutes. It is the first fatal residential fire in Arlington this year and the deadliest in Arlington history, said Billy Amis, a fire department spokesman.

Hall, who lived down the street, rushed to the scene of the fire about 10:30 a.m. minutes after he saw smoke rising above the treetops in the modest, central Arlington neighborhood. After covering his head with a wet towel supplied by a neighbor, he tried to climb the stairs to the second-story.

"I couldn't make it," he said. "I couldn't even touch the metal, it was so hot."

Firefighters arrived seconds after Hall's rescue attempt and broke into the apartment, pulling five children, ages eight months to four years, from the flames. Hall assisted with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until more firefighters arrived.

Coahoma council to meet

COAHOMA — The City Council will consider payment of overtime compensation for city employees at its regular meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Community Center.

In other business, the council will:

- Hear a request from James Gill that the ballpark be used for a softball tournament to benefit the Saragosa disaster victims.
- Discuss use of the ballpark by the church league.
- Discuss replacing the water line from the city water well to city park.
- Consider replacing water lines in the south part of Coahoma.
- Consider the resignation of Arnulfo Hernandez.
- Consider making repairs on Water Superintendent Robert Helms' pick-up truck.
- Consider replacing 4" discharge sewer line from pumps to cemetery across to Powell's property.
- Consider hiring city employee to look after water and sewer operations.
- Consider purchasing pump, motor, base and coupling for sewer treatment plant.

Ranch breakfast scheduled

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will have a Scurry County Ranch Breakfast at 7 a.m. Wednesday, at the W.C. Hart Ranch five miles south of Snyder on the State Highway 208 (Colorado City Highway).

Ezell-Key Grain Co. of Snyder will again be providing the breakfast.

Speakers for this breakfast will give talks on the subject of grazing stocker cattle on small grain pastures. The sponsors invite anyone interested in agri-business to attend the breakfast.

Activities should be over by 9 a.m. to let everyone continue with their workday.

Beginning the program for the Ranch Breakfast will be Charles Durham, manager of Cactus Farms in Benjamin. His presentation will be on how Cactus Farms has used fertilization and tillage practices to improve profits from stocker cattle.

Cactus Farms operates several thousand acres of small grain pastures in the Benjamin area each year. Dr. Charles Church of Snyder will discuss a good health program for stockers to minimize sickness and get the calves gaining as soon as possible.

Scott Porter, a Pfizer representative from Lubbock, will give information as to the benefits of worming stocker calves with Pfizer's products Rumatel and Paratech.

Finishing the program will be Pam Harper with Monsanto, and Tom Blanchette with Dupont, who will discuss some new techniques in controlling weeds in both small grain pastures and the Conservation Reserve Acreages.

Anyone wishing further information can contact Rickey Linex at the Soil Conservation Service office in Snyder, 573-1268, or Kent Mills, at Ezell-Key Grain Co., 573-9373.

Officer's wife shot accidentally

MIDLAND — The Midland County sheriff said Monday a police officer's wife was killed when a large-caliber gun held by her husband misfired.

Colleen Rene O'Bryant, 33, the wife of police Sgt. Milton O'Bryant, died instantly when she was accidentally shot in the head about 2 p.m. Sunday with a .44-caliber Magnum revolver, Sheriff Gary Painter said.

The shooting occurred at a shooting range where the O'Bryants were practicing, Painter said.

Authorities said Mrs. O'Bryant had fired what she believed to be a full six rounds from the .44 Magnum.

Painter said Mrs. O'Bryant then handed the weapon, which she apparently thought was unloaded, to her husband. As the police officer took the gun in his left hand, it discharged and killed the woman.

School budgets total $12.2 billion

AUSTIN — Last year trustees in 1,061 local school trustees adopted budgets totaling $12.2 billion and levied $5 billion in property taxes to cover the cost, according to the Texas Research League.

The state provided $4.8 billion in aid, and the remainder was financed by school lunch and other fees, the league said in a report.

The tax levy for the average school district was up 8.2 percent from the previous year.

School budgets adopted last year called for spending an average of $3,088 per student for current operations plus $281 for interest and repayment of debt and $464 per student for capital outlay.

The average salary for classroom teachers among all school districts was $24,487.

Four education dollars in five were spent for salaries, the report said.

It said the average school district imposed a property tax at the rate of 79.3 cents per $100 of appraised value, and the value averaged 93.8 percent of market value.

Revenue lost from exemptions exceeded $1 billion, the report said. To balance school budgets, the revenue loss from exemptions was imposed upon other taxpayers in the school district.

North Texas crude oil prices hit $20

WICHITA FALLS — After the recent climb in prices for West Texas intermediate crude oil, the price of its North Texas counterpart hit $20 for the first time in a year and a half.

Despite a dip in the futures markets, Conoco Inc., one of the area's biggest purchasers of crude, announced Monday it was increasing its posted price for North Texas intermediate crude from $19.75 a barrel.

Robert K. Pace, president of the North Texas Oil & Gas Association, said he thinks many of the other 16 major area purchasers, which have been posting $19.75 a barrel, will follow Conoco's lead within a few days.

Gray said the price increase makes his company's postings for North Texas and West Texas crude equal.

$1.5 million awarded in malpractice

FORT WORTH — A Tarrant County jury awarded more than $1.5 million to an Arlington woman who lost her hearing and suffers from a roaring in her ears as a result of a treatment for an infected shoulder.

In making the award to Alberta Wells, 66, the jury yesterday found the Upjohn Company, Medical Plaza Hospital, two Fort Worth doctors and a pharmacist liable for malpractice.

The jury found Wells was left deaf by a huge overdose of the antibiotic Neomycin, which was used to internally wash her infected shoulder after surgery for an abcess.

Wells, responding to questions written out by her daughter, said she was grateful to the jury for the $1,525,000 award and thought the decision was fair.

Wells said the constant noise she hears, a condition called tinnitus, is sometimes like a mournful bell, sometimes like a loud motor and sometimes like a stereo out of control.

Killed suspect had plastic weapon

GEORGETOWN — The Texas Rangers are investigating the shooting of a man suspected of robbing a convenience store, who was armed only with a plastic gun when he was killed by Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell.

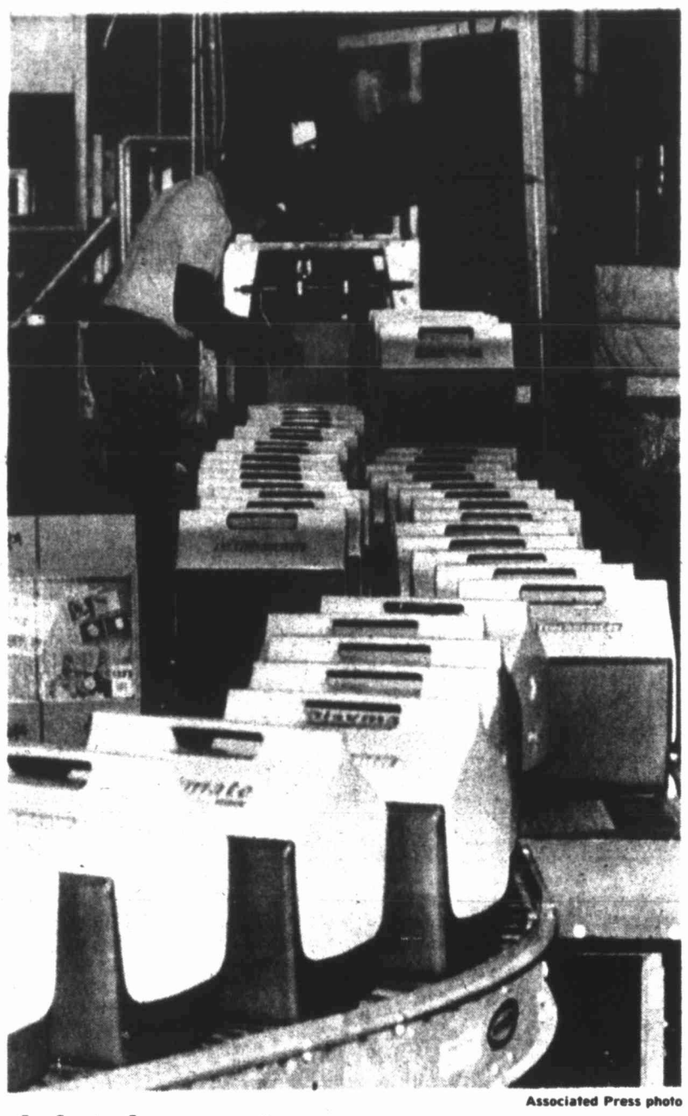

District Attorney Ken Anderson said Monday the investigation is conducted at Boutwell's request. Anderson said any evidence will be turned over to him for presentation to a grand jury, possibly by Aug. 20.

Tony G. Pina, 25, of Liberty Hill, was fatally shot Friday night as he fled through the brush north of Cedar Park. An hour earlier, a man fitting Pina's description held up a Cedar Park convenience store.

Gabriel Pina Jr., the dead man's brother, said the family plans to meet with the Texas Rangers investigating the shooting today.

In the meantime, he said family members, on the advice of their attorney, would have no comment on the shooting.

The plastic gun was found at the scene of the shooting, Boutwell said Monday. Police also found $32, the amount of money reported stolen in the robbery, in Pina's pocket. One of the recovered bills had been marked by the convenience store.

Igloo buy-out

An Igloo Corp. employee looks over the production line at the company's headquarters in Houston. From beaches to construction sites, the colorful plastic ice chests and water coolers bearing the Igloo name have been building a reputation for 40 years for keeping things cold.

The Texas company has been sold in a leveraged buyout to an investor group that includes the company's senior management. The newly-formed Igloo Holdings Corp. will include First Boston Inc., senior management of the two companies and a group of four Houston investors identified only as Iceman Associates, according to the announcement Monday.

500 volunteers to show for Saragosa rebuilding

SARAGOSA (AP) — When about 500 church volunteers arrive on Labor Day weekend to help rebuild this tornado-struck town, they will be performing a type of ministry, the director of the volunteers says.

"Jesus did two things in all of his life on Earth," said John LaNoue, associate director of the Dallas-based Texas Baptist Men. "He met human needs where he found them and he introduced them to God."

Plenty of human needs must be met in Saragosa, a town of 300 that lost 30 residents when a tornado struck May 22. Some victims were children who died when the tornado struck the community center during a kindergarten graduation ceremony. The twister destroyed 61 houses.

On Labor Day weekend, volunteers will work in shifts 24 hours a day to replace the destroyed houses. Floodlights and building materials, bought with money from the American Red Cross and the Federal Emergency Management Agency, are to be on site by Aug. 24.

The workers plan to rebuild the 24 owner-occupied houses that were destroyed. The other houses were not owner-occupied, so tenants were not eligible for building grants, LaNoue said. But grants to build the remaining houses might be forthcoming from the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

"It could be that we are going to build back 61 houses instead of 24," LaNoue said.

Two houses already have been replaced, and two more are being worked on. A group of Kansas Mennonites has built a two-bedroom, 960-square-foot house just across the highway from the community center.

Last week, the Mennonites began work on two one-bedroom houses in Saragosa.

"We feel that we can help our fellow man," said Vern Miller, 47, a Mennonite and carpenter from Hutchinson, Kan. "We can put our faith into action by helping people who are in need. We're not here for any big show or big to-do. We're here to meet the needs of the people."

Mental health a concern among Saragosa survivors

AUSTIN (AP) — A child psychiatrist says it could take a long time to restore mental health in Saragosa, where a May 22 tornado killed 30 of the town's 350 residents and injured 160.

Dr. Robert Dobyns of Austin said people in disasters routinely "walk around wondering what to do next. And, the last thing they're worrying about is mental health."

Dobyns is helping the Catholic Church in the area to train lay ministers "who can help the community heal from the inside out," according to Texas Medicine.

"People need to be aware of this for the next 10 to 15 years," Dobyns said. "There is going to be a school of thought that says I'm making a mountain out of a molehill. ... People who play like it never happened will pay a terrible price."

Teresa Gonzales, a coordinator with the Reeves County Mental Health Center, agrees the "coming down period has not happened yet."

Reform needed before disaster

When at least one near-collision of two big airliners occurs every day, it's impossible to wave away warnings about air safety. Must we wait for a major disaster to force reforms?

James Burnett, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, said in late July that the number of near collisions is double the pace of 1985.

Burnett called for reducing air traffic, increasing the air traffic controller staff and improving weather warning systems. He also noted that airlines are making questionable cuts in their safety departments to reduce expenses.

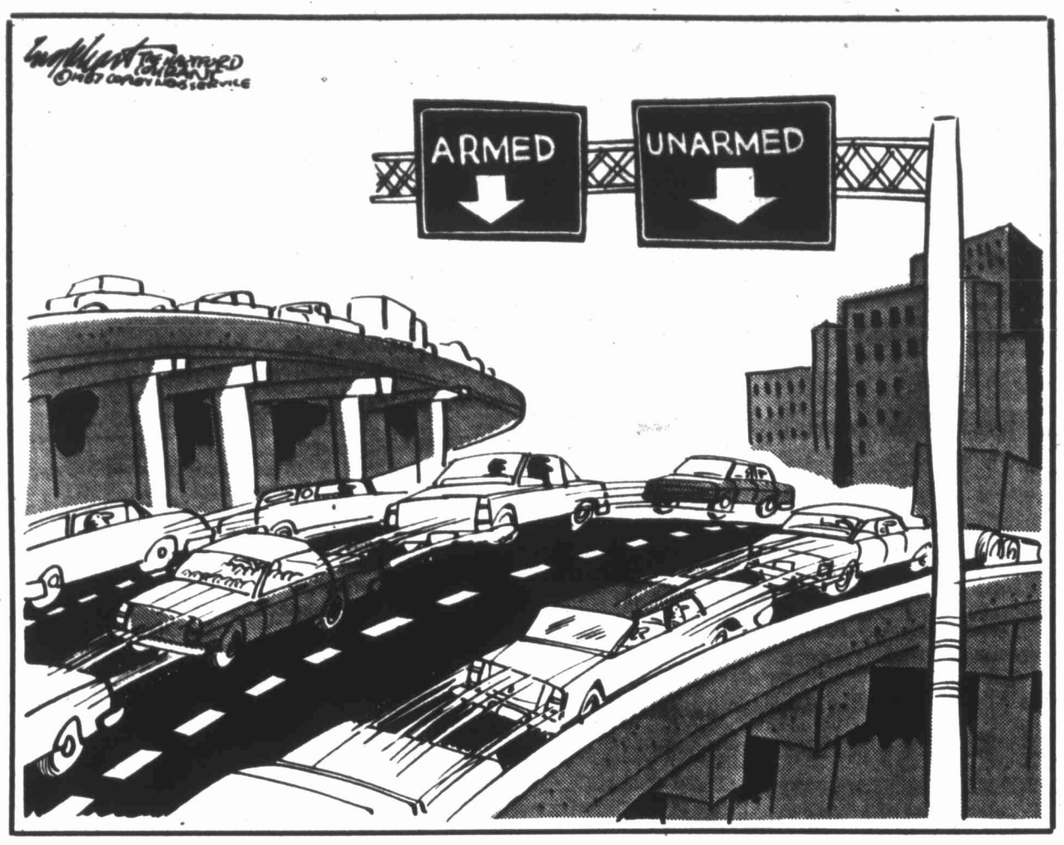

The Federal Aviation Administration has asked Congress to expand the air traffic controller staff, which hasn't fully recovered from mass firings ordered by President Reagan in 1981.

But Burnett says more must be done, and he noted that errors by overworked controllers in June were 50 percent more than in June 1986.

Both Burnett and Donald Engen, former director of the FAA, attended the pilots' conference at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Engen said air safety problems are being exaggerated by the media, but he did concede that the skies are a little more dangerous today.

It's true, as Engen notes, that service deficiencies in the deregulated airline industry sometimes are confused with safety. But more than perceptual confusion is involved when the agency charged with guarding our safety reports the frightening facts about near collisions.

Congress, the regulatory agencies and the airlines must do something about safety — and soon.

H²O makes swimming enjoyable

By ART BUCHWALD

(While on vacation Art Buchwald received limited immunity, and the special prosecutor has allowed him to reprint some of his favorite columns.)

As part of my war on poverty, I decided to install a swimming pool at our new house. I didn't realize how complicated the purchase of a swimming pool can be. Next to used-car dealers, swimming pool salesmen are the most sincere of all businessmen, and one tends to believe everything they tell you.

I interviewed a swimming pool salesman the other day.

After looking over the property he said, "I can put in a pool — complete for $25,000."

"Does this include everything?" I asked.

"Of course. That's my price — complete."

"Well, it's a little high," I said, "but perhaps I can make it. I'd like a rectangular pool."

"A rectangular pool? I wish you had told me that before. That's $8,000 extra. It's very difficult to dig a rectangle in the ground."

"That brings it up to $33,000," I said.

"Yes, but that will be complete with everything. Now I'd like to ask you a few questions."

"Yes, sir."

"Did you plan on putting water in the pool?" he asked.

"I thought it would be fun."

"That will be an extra $7,500. If we add water we have to get a permit and that takes a great deal of time."

"I knew I shouldn't have asked for water," I said.

"Did you want concrete in the pool?"

"I think so. Why do you ask?"

"Well, the pool gets so muddy otherwise. The concrete will be $3,000 extra. If you want Gunite, it will be $4,500."

"What's the difference?"

"If you use regular concrete, the pool will leak."

He wrote everything down in his book.

"Let me ask you this," he continued. "Had you planned on filtering the water?"

"What are the advantages?"

"Well, if you filter the water, there is less chance of the children catching typhoid or yellow fever. We can give you an excellent filter for $1,900."

"I guess in the long run it would be cheaper," I said.

"Now what about a ladder to get out of the pool?"

"Couldn't people just climb over the side?" I inquired.

"They could, but that would mean we'd have to install coping. The steps cost $700, and the coping $1,200."

"You better give us the ladder."

"What had you planned to put around the pool?" he asked.

"I don't know. What do you usually put around a pool?"

"We could give you a concrete walk for $3,000."

"It sounds as if you're losing money on the job," I said.

"That's our problem," he replied. "Now what about leaves in the pool?"

"I don't want any leaves in the pool," I said, hoping to save some money.

"We don't put leaves in the pool," he said. "We take them out. You'll want a skimmer for $1,100. Did you plan on a diving board?"

"Sure, why not?"

"That will be $10,000."

"Ten thousand dollars for a diving board?" I asked, incredulously.

"Not just for a diving board," he said. "If you're going to have a diving board, you'll need deep water. The price I gave you was for a shallow pool. I thought you understood that. Why don't you get anything I say straight?"

"I'm sorry," I apologized.

He wrote down $10,000 in his notebook. "OK, but no more jokes. Pool-building is a serious business."

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

James Barr wrote from Philadelphia on behalf of Stuart and Barr to John Gray Blount in Washington, N.C., sending Blount a power of attorney by Capt. Horton to try and recover damages for the wreck of the brig Hazzard.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Virginia delegate Edward Carrington wrote from New York to James Madison, keeping him current on what Congress was not doing.

"The departure of No. Carolina and Georgia left us only seven states, and the day before yesterday we lost another in the decampment of Doctor Holton, whose declining state of health obliged him to retrogade. The doctor is tolerably free from localities (less partial to New England interests), and I am sorry to lose him.... all the Indian affairs still remain to be acted upon, and many other things of great consequence. ..."

CONVENTION TODAY

The Convention considered Article VI, Section 7:

"The House of Representatives, and the Senate, when it shall be acting in a legislative capacity, shall keep a Journal of their proceedings, and shall, from time to time, publish them: and the yeas and nays of the members of each House, on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth part of the members present, be entered on the journal."

Section 8:

"Neither House, without the consent of the other, shall adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that at which the two Houses are sitting. But this regulation shall not extend to the Senate, when it shall exercise the powers mentioned in the article 1."

Rufus King (Mass.) and James Madison (Va.) noted that this section authorized the two houses to adjourn to a new place. They thought too frequent moves had hurt the Confederation Congress, and that a law should be required to move it. (Less that four months earlier, King had successfully fought off a group led by Madison which was trying to move Congress from New York to Philadelphia.) Gouverneur Morris (Pa.) made a motion to that effect. Richard Spaight (N.C.) feared this would forever fix New York as the capital. Elbridge Gerry (Mass.), Hugh Williamson (N.C.) and Daniel Carroll (Md.) agreed. The delegates disagreed with King and Madison, but did agree to delete the last sentence.

LOOKING BACK

William Blount, Entrepreneur

William Blount was not a literary stylist, but his letter of this day is so evocative of American society and the American economy in 1787 as to be worth reprinting.

"Nail Rod is to be had (any quantity) of Mr. Haselhurst who has the Selling of all that is slit at Morris's Works near Trenton at 33 pounds per Ton that is for 2240 lb put up generally in what the Workmen called Faggots of 56 lb each. — Stewart & Barr a few days past purchased of a Nailer here 3 Casks of 10d. 3 d. 20d and 3 of 30d. Nails at the average price of 9 pence. per lb. They say that the Task of a Journey man is per day 12 lb 10d. 16 lb of 20d & 18 lb of 30d. Hence the average is 15 1-3 lb per day. — Gentlemen from Massachusetts of the first Information (say that Offenders) against the Public who are to be punished with Labour are generally chained and sat to making Nails whether they ever had a Hammer in hand before or not and that they generally will make good Nails some in a Week and others in a Month. ...

"Yesterday I went to see a Nail Factory in this City in which there were four boys at Work, the younger of which was about 12 years of Age, he was making 4d. Nails. He made them fast and well. He had been at it about six Months another about 14 Years of Age who had been at it seven Months was making 10d. ...

"It has appeared to me that this Business of Nail making is a Business better calculated than any others for the Employment of Negroes and that it is among the most profitable of Businesses, your man Pollypus and my man Will I suppose would readily make as good Nails as any body ... and if you should think it profitable to go largely into it I should suppose many white boys might be had prenticed (to us?) for seven years or more as their age might happen to be when bound by the Court — If Nails should be made more than would vend in Carolina they are an Article that would bear an Exportation from thence as well as from here — Addressed:

Fight beginning to brew over official monopolies

By JACK ANDERSON
and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The "beer bill" keeps rolling, just like the Andrews Sisters' famous barrel, but some past supporters have decided not to polka.

Beer wholesalers have been trying for six years to get congressional permission to assign distribution monopolies in geographical areas.

Consumer groups claim the monopolies would cause the retail price of beer to skyrocket, and they have enlisted opposition to the beer bill from the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission and the American Bar Association, among others.

One of the sturdiest roadblocks to the beer lobby's bill was a study last year by the Consumer Federation of America, which concluded that prices would rise if the bill passed.

So the beer barons have studies of their own to present at today's hearing on the bill before Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chairman of the Judiciary antitrust subcommittee and a fierce opponent of the bill.

Not surprisingly, the studies gathered by the National Beer Wholesalers Association conclude that distribution monopolies do not increase the price of beer. An association spokesman said that competition among the different brands keeps six-pack prices down.

One study the beer wholesalers have in hand is described in the association's "Washington Update" newsletter and by an industry spokesman as the "Auburn University Study."

It focuses on Alabama's 1984 version of the proposed nationwide beer law — and concludes that beer prices didn't rise under the law, but actually dropped in some cases.

Our associate Stewart Harris obtained a copy of the study. Although the three authors taught at Auburn University at Montgomery, Ala., a disclaimer on the inside states clearly: "This study constitutes the research efforts and judgment solely of the authors and should not be taken to represent the views of Auburn University at Montgomery."

Jack Anderson

Above the disclaimer is the address of the Alabama Wholesale Beer and Wine Association. In fact, the association paid for this study, according to Dr. A. Wayne Lacy, one of the researchrs.

But Lacy insisted that the research was conducted independently, according to academic standards.

Meanwhile, support for the national beer bill appears to be eroding among past adherents to the cause.

Sources tell us that a squabble erupted earlier this year when brewers represented by the Beer Institute warned the wholesalers that their campaign for the distribution-monopoly bill could be counterproductive to the industry as a whole.

In a statement given to Modern Brewery Age, a trade publication, the institute pointed out that the beer industry faces some serious threats — including suggested health warning labels on containers, a possible hike in the federal excise tax, and a proposed ban on radio and television advertising.

Beer Institute strategists are afraid that lobbying for the beer bill might alienate members of Congress whose help is needed on the other issues — and could drive a deeper wedge between wholesalers and the retailers, who oppose the beer bill.

Two Democratic presidential hopefuls who have supported the beer bill in the past proved strangely shy when we asked about their current position on the legislation.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, was out campaigning, and his staff could not reach him for comment. A committee colleague and rival, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., was also unavailable for comment.

Footnote: A spokesman for the Pennsylvania attorney general said that the state brought an antitrust suit against PepsiCo and two of its bottlers.

But the suit was thrown out of federal court this summer because the companies' activities were protected by an existing federal law, allowing soft-drink distribution monopolies, similar to the bill proposed for the beer industry.

JUDGMENT CALLS — The outcry over Joe Biden's delay on the confirmation hearings for Supreme Court Justice-designate Robert Bork is only the latest skirmish in a battle over judges between the Justice Department and the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Officials at the department charge that Chairman Biden is sitting on 22 judgeship nominations because he's too busy running for president to tend to committee business.

Two confirmation hearings were recently canceled at the last minute, Justice Department sources say, while two more are awaiting action by the full Senate.

Surveys best with grain of salt

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

I got a letter this week from a college buddy who now works for a newspaper in Nashua, N.H.

"Did you see Money magazine's ranking of cities saying Nashua is No. 1? It's a lie," he wrote.

He didn't mention that a West Texas city also made the list — as one of the 10 worst places to live.

Nashua and Odessa were among 300 named as the best and worst U.S. cities in which to live in Money's August issue.

If you're not familiar with the survey, Odessa was No. 295 on the list, Nashua was No. 1, and a few hundred cities from throughout the nation were in between.

Since I've only lived in West Texas a short time, I don't know Odessa well enough to defend it.

But does it actually need defending? Does anyone really take these surveys seriously?

The city where I went to college, Eau Claire, Wis., was No. 40 on the list, and my hometown, Green Bay, was No. 51. Pretty impressive, I thought.

Actually, I was wondering what knuckleheads picked those towns. Five other Wisconsin cities also were named in the top 100.

Practically a day didn't go by that students weren't complaining about how boring Eau Claire was.

Around the rim

Rarely was there any form of entertainment available other than tipping a glass of beer at one of the local watering holes — located on a street appropriately named Water Street.

The city is famous in more ways than one.

It's been recorded as the city with the most bars per capita in the United States, and Johnny Carson has said the footbridge across Eau Claire's Chippewa River is one of the coldest spots on earth during the winter months.

I guess we never realized how good we had it.

And I left city No. 41 to live in unranked Big Spring.

What does that mean?

Would I have been happier in Eau Claire, Nashua or maybe No. 2 city Norwalk, Conn?

Do people in Flint, Mich. feel any different about their city after being listed at the bottom of the heap?

And, would anyone not familar with Nashua really consider moving there because Money magazine says it's the best place to live?

I have two friends living there — they were being socked with snowstorms in March and April, while we in West Texas were basking in 70 degree sunshine.

Poor things.

Another group of people probably would give the cities a completely different ranking.

In fact, I seem to remember a survey from a few years back that ranked my hometown of Green Bay on the bottom of the list.

It all goes to show — you can't believe every survey you see in print.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Lives ruined by death

HONESDALE, Pa. — A jury convicted a 21-year-old carpenter of shooting to death a former high school classmate who had killed his teen-age sister in a car accident, but found the killing was not premeditated.

The Wayne County Common Pleas Court jury deliberated 4½ hours before convicting Travis Umstadter, of Honesdale, of third-degree murder Monday.

The prosecution had sought a verdict of first-degree murder in the Jan. 28 killing of Glenn Evans, 20, arguing that Umstadter wanted revenge and planned the killing.

But the defense said Umstadter, drunk and overcome with grief, went to Evans' apartment to talk about the accident and ended up firing in self-defense when Evans attacked with forceps which he mistook for scissors.

Kristen Umstadter, a 17-year-old senior class president and homecoming queen, was riding in Evans' car on Aug. 16, 1986, when he lost control of the car and slammed into another vehicle. The teen-ager bled to death.

Americans love to sue

SAN FRANCISCO — Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca told the nation's legal establishment that Americans are lawsuit-happy and that U.S. industry will someday conclude it's just too risky to compete.

"We've been going a little crazy and we have to stop, even if we have to compromise some of our rights to do it," Iacocca said in a speech Monday at an American Bar Association convention.

On the agenda today for the ABA's House of Delegates, its policy-making body, were discrimination against AIDS sufferers, the constitutionality of the independent counsel law and proposals to weaken or abolish the ABA's 1985 cooperative agreement with a group of Soviet lawyers.

Vance put in hospital

NEW YORK — Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was resting comfortably early today after being admitted to Mount Sinai Hospital with chest pains, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Carolyn Yordan said the 70-year-old Vance was admitted to the cardiac unit Monday for tests and observation. She said doctors do not believe he suffered a heart attack and expect to release him in a day or so.

"He had some discomfort in his chest," she said. "That's really all he had."

At the time he felt the pain, Vance was in the hospital visiting his wife, Grace, who is recovering from orthopedic surgery done last Friday, Ms. Yordan said. Mrs. Vance is doing well, she said.

Gabor talks to lawyers

SAN FRANCISCO — Zsa Zsa Gabor fired off a series of one-liners to a roomful of lawyers about their mutual area of expertise: divorce.

"Thank you, dahlings — you guys made me rich and famous," the actress, who has been married eight times, told the American Bar Association's convention Monday.

Gabor, the luncheon speaker at a standing-room-only gathering of divorce lawyers meeting to talk about family law, had a rapt audience for her observations.

"Lawyers make good husbands," she said. "They know everything and suspect nothing."

"Mr. Hilton was very generous in his divorce settlement," she said. "He left me 5,000 Gideon Bibles."

Rescue workers tend to victims at the scene of a bus accident near Winter Park, Colo., Monday after the bus was struck by a falling rock on U.S. 40 near Berthoud Pass. Seven people were killed and 15 injured in the mishap. The boulder was apparently dislodged by a highway crew working in the area.

Bus tragedy

Seven die, 15 injured by boulder

WINTER PARK, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Roy Romer says the state accepts responsibility for the deaths of seven sightseers after a two-ton boulder dislodged by a state highway crew tumbled out of the Rockies and smashed into their bus, crushing its right side.

"It's a terrible accident. Quite frankly, it's our responsibility to make it right," the governor said.

The tour bus was carrying 28 people along a Rocky Mountain road.

"It looked like an explosion ripped the side of the bus apart," said Sgt. Larry Tolar of the Colorado State Patrol. He said the boulder "came out of a treeline and bang, there it was."

Six people died at the scene and a seventh person died at a Denver hospital Monday evening. Fifteen others on the bus were injured in the accident 60 miles northwest of Denver. Eight remained hospitalized today, two in critical condition.

"It was just dead eerie, no sound," said Ken Aicardi, a retired Boston policeman visiting Colorado who was the first on the scene. "People who were seriously injured ... were sitting there calmly in a state of shock."

"The passengers were still in the bus and staring straight ahead. No crying or screaming," said Grand County sheriff's deputy Bob Bodermann. One woman kept asking him to find her camera so she could take a picture of her husband, who was dead, he said.

A highway crew using a front-end loader dislodged the six-foot boulder while clearing rock above U.S. Highway 40, which runs near the bottom of the 11,314-foot Berthoud Pass, officials said.

The boulder was pushed onto a large flat area, and "the crew was operating under the plan that the rock would hit and stay there," said Dan Hopkins, spokesman for the Colorado Highway Department.

Instead, the boulder tumbled through trees into the side of the bus, which carried American and foreign tourists on a one-day sightseeing tour. The driver had no chance to avoid the rock, Tolar said.

Ivy Shaffer, a nurse aboard one of two helicopters that landed on the narrow, two-lane road about eight miles south of here, said the dead already had been laid alongside the road and covered when she arrived.

"The first words I uttered to myself were, 'Oh my God, there must be more than six people dead,'" she said. "The right-hand side of the bus had been totally filleted open. The seats were crushed, and metal was all over the road."

'I am lucky to be alive," said Urs Frei of Switzerland, who was sitting on the left side of the bus and suffered minor cuts. "I feel sorry for everybody who is hurt. I could be dead, too."

"I saw this big rock falling at us. It was half the size of the bus, and it just jumped out and hit us," he said.

"There was blood coming down everywhere. The lady beside me fell to the floor dead ... People were screaming. We were stepping over the dead to get out of the bus. It was a terrible thing to see."

Blood dripped from the bus and trickled into a stream alongside the road.

The governor declared the accident an emergency, freeing state money to assist victims and their families with hospital costs, counseling and travel expenses.

Hyundai shuts down

SEOUL, South Korea — Hyundai Motor Co. said today that strikes at its 20 parts factories have forced it to shut down indefinitely, part of the widespread labor protests battering the South Korean economy.

The government threatened earlier today to crack down on labor protests if unions failed to negotiate setlements and purge radicals from their ranks.

Hyundai, South Korea's largest automaker and a recent front-runner in the U.S. subcompact market, resumed operations Monday after strikes last week, but said new strikes at parts plants brought its assembly lines in Ulsan to a halt.

Mines found in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain — Four mines were discovered today in the Gulf of Oman, fueling fears that mine attacks may spread beyond the Persian Gulf. The United States agreed to join an urgent search for the explosives, sources said.

A diplomatic source said the Sultanate of Oman had appealed for Washington's help in clearing the coastal waters just south of the Strait of Hormuz.

The Americans "have agreed, and are already helping," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. He offered no details of what actions were being taken.

In a related development, a convoy of three Kuwaiti tankers escorted by U.S. Navy warships resumed its voyage through the Persian Gulf following a 24-hour delay to allow mine-search teams to check its intended route. Barring any new delays, the convoy was expected to reach Kuwait later today, shipping sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Deserter shot to death

GENEVA — A former Iranian army pilot who deserted to Switzerland was shot and killed by two unknown assailants on a busy night-time street in Geneva, police said today.

Police said they were seeking two men "from a Persian Gulf country" who fled after firing two pistol shots at point-blank range at the Iranian's head.

The victim, whose name was not published, died at the scene shortly after the 9 p.m. attack.

Geneva police alerted the Swiss Federal Prosecutor's Office in Bern, which handles investigations into security matters and suspected terrorist or politically motivated crimes.

The 36-year-old former pilot was walking with his wife near his home in Geneva's Paquis nightlife district.

Pupils boycott exams

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — High school students launched a nationwide boycott of final exams to show opposition to the government, and businesses in the capital observed a general strike in support.

The exam boycott, endorsed by the National Federation of Haitian teachers, was called to protest the military-dominated government's use of violence to quell opposition.

Only about 10 percent of the estimated 19,000 graduating high school students in the capital showed up Monday at schools visited by reporters. The strike, organized by a group called Student Affairs, did not call for anti-government demonstrations, which the provisional government has virtually forbidden by decree.

Elvis fans recall trivia, do impersonations

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The name of the doctor who delivered the king of rock 'n' roll was good for a first-round victory in a trivia contest held by Elvis Presley fans gathered by the thousands to mark the 10th anniversary of his death.

"I just read everything I can about him," said first-round winner Jimmy Prince, who was awarded a silver belt buckle shaped like the front gates at Graceland, the white-columned mansion here where Presley lived.

"I'm just delighted to have it. It's beautiful," said the textile mill worker from Lexington, N.C.

The week-long trivia contest is part of Elvis International Tribute Week, a nine-day event expected to draw up to 50,000 fans to Graceland.

Elvis impersonators will square off in competition later in the week. So will Priscilla Presley look-alikes. Miss Presley, an actress on the TV series "Dallas," is the singer's former wife.

The celebration, which began Saturday, also includes concerts, dances, memorial services, a footrace and a karate tournament.

Prince and four other trivia buffs had no trouble naming the first song on Presley's first album ("Blue Suede Shoes") and the number of movies he made before going in the Army (four).

But only Prince knew the doctor's name, William Robert Hunt.

Winners of the preliminary contests will meet for the championship Friday, vying for hundreds of dollars' worth of Elvis memorabilia, including a 10th anniversary satin jacket and a framed replica of Presley's first gold record, "Heartbreak Hotel."

Prince said that he has been an Elvis fan since 1956 and that his house is full of Elvis posters, records and other Presley souvenirs.

"I'm really into autograph collecting from people who were associated with Elvis, everywhere from Tupelo right on through his movie career, his music career, his backup singers, right on to the funeral home," ge said.

He said he planned to look over an Elvis biography or two while awaiting the final round. "I'm going to relax for a few days and let my mind be calm and clear," he said.

Presley was born in Tupelo, Miss., on Jan. 8, 1935. He died in a bathroom at Graceland on Aug. 16, 1977, of heart disease. According to court testimony, traces of 14 prescription stimulants and depressants were found in his body.

Graceland, with its 36,000-square foot supermarket of Elvis memorabilia and trinkets, draws more than a half-million visitors a year and brings in $9 million annually to Presley's estate.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning confusion over which course of action is best will give way to an exceptional clarity of view. If you choose correctly, great success can be achieved today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't let the needling of a higher-up distract your morning routine. A valuable new contact should be encouraged.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put aside new ideas for the time being and attend to work which has been left on the "back burner" for far too long.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A close friend has some good ideas which can help you advance in the business world, if they're recognized.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Cooperation with co-workers will make a great impression on those higher ups who can give you success.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A change of attitude and a kind and thoughtful demeanor toward your mate will bring some truly fine results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An older family friend can be most helpful in any problematical affairs. If entertaining, invite only trustworthy friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Jot down notes this morning concerning your wishes and ideas, as your memory may be less than perfect later today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Give special attention to your financial situation. You may find that advice from an expert is in order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Recruit some good friends for a pleasurable outing. Give some attention to your appearance tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think less about pleasing yourself and more about helping those around you, especially your relatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A short trip with a good friend would be very good for your attitude, and would also be a boon to business.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some old friends who you haven't seen for some time would brighten up the mood around your home, so invite them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to easily combine modern advances with the tried and true methods of the past, but may not think very clearly at a young age. Be patient with your child and he or she will be very happy with life and well prepared to start his or her own family.

Hoopsters win second game

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. men's basketball will get a day off at the Pan American Games.

The United States improved its record to 2-0 Monday with an 85-58 victory over Argentina. The U.S. team returns to the floor Wednesday night against Mexico.

The Americans defeated Panama 91-63 on Sunday and they were back with the same pressing defense and up tempo game against Argentina, 0-1.

The United States got a balanced scoring effort as all 12 players scored at least four points, with Danny Manning of Kansas, Rex Chapman of Kentucky and Georgia's Willie Anderson each finishing with 11.

San Jose State forward Ricky Berry welcomes the day off, as he reinjured an ankle late in the first half and didn't return to the game.

"I think he should be fine with the day off," U.S. Coach Denny Crum of Louisville said of Berry, who started both games.

In other men's games Monday, Brazil crushed Uruguay 110-79; Panama beat Mexico 86-80; and Canada defeated Virgin Islands 92-78.

The women's competition was to get under way today as Cuba met Colombia and Mexico played Canada.

Pitcher Jim Abbott, the one-armed starter for the U.S. Pan American baseball team, is shown at a recent practice. Abbott says he feels comfortable playing on the field and looks forward to his ultimate dream, playing in the major leagues.

Louganis wins 5th gold medal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — One of Greg Louganis' record five Pan American Games gold medals in diving now belongs to Ryan White, a 15-year-old AIDS victim.

"He's a very special friend," Louganis said Monday night after winning the men's 3-meter springboard title with a Pan Am record 754.14 points.

After the meet, Louganis climbed into the stands at the Indiana University natatorium, presented Ryan's mother, Jeanne, with a bouquet, and gave Ryan the gold medal. Louganis will try for a sixth gold medal on Sunday in the platform dive.

"I met him here (at a meet) a couple years ago and invited him to be with me," Louganis said of Ryan, a hemophiliac, who was diagnosed with AIDS in December 1984 following a blood transfusion.

He drew national attention after he was temporarily barred from school in Kokomo, Ind. His family recently moved to nearby Cicero, Ind.

Louganis, the winner in both the springboard and platform events at each of the past two Pan Am Games, became the first three-time winner of a diving event in Pan Am history with his impressive victory over teammate Doug Shaffer Monday night.

"My overall performance, I was real pleased with it," Louganis said. "I did a good list of dives. I did some things better at the Olympic Festival, but here my performance was much more consistent.

"It's the consistency that wins competitions," he said.

His point total fell 1.35 points short of the world springboard mark of 755.49 he sat at the 1983 USA International meet in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"I knew I was nearing there," he said. "I just didn't know how much. I was just concentrating on doing a good dive, trying to be relaxed."

Louganis, who lives in Boca Raton, Fla., broke the former Pan Am record of 724.02 he set in 1983 at Caracas, Venezuela. Shaffer totaled 684.39 points, a personal best, and Mexican Jose Luis Rocha, the NCAA 1-meter champion from Auburn, was third at 659.07.

"I did my best 11 dives. Greg was hot," said Shaffer, whose parents live at nearby Franklin, Ind. "Now I'm going home to Franklin. I have a date with a five-pound bass."

No other diver besides Louganis scored a 10 on any dive. Louganis had seven perfect scores.

"I don't really look at individual scores," Louganis said. "I go by how I feel I'm performing. I don't concentrate on who's giving what score."

Americans dominating track and field competition

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. won five gold medals in track and field, with Lee McRae of the University of Pittsburgh taking the men's 100-meter dash in the absence of injured American champion Mark Witherspoon. Gail Devers of UCLA winning the women's 100; and Mike Conley of Fayetteville, Ark., capturing the triple jump over world record holder Willie Banks.

Jud Logan won the hammer throw with a Pan Am-record heave of 253 feet, 5 inches, and Cindy Greiner of Eugene, Ore., set a meet record of 6,184 points in the heptathlon.

"If I had lost the gold medal, I wouldn't have forgiven myself," said Logan, a three-time national champion from North Canton, Ohio. "I wanted the gold medal. I expected it."

BASEBALL

Cuba, which has won the last four Pan Am baseball titles, improved its record to 2-0 with a 1-0 shutout of Puerto Rico. Left-hander Pablo Abreu pitched a one-hitter and Antonio Pacheco hit a first-inning home run.

Nicaragua beat the Netherlands Antilles 5-0 and Canada defeated Venezuela 8-4 in other games.

WEIGHTLIFTING

Cuba continued its domination of weightlifting as featherweights Gabriel Ensenat and Julio Loscos each won three gold medals, sharing first-place in the 60-kilogram class because they lifted the same totals and had identical body weights before the competition began.

"I did not mind sharing the golds with someone from my country," said Ensenat. "The important thing is to win for your country."

Raul Mora also won three gold medals in the lightweight classification to hike Cuba's medal harvest in weightlifting to 16 gold, one silver and one bronze.

RHYTHMIC GYMNASTICS

The first gold medal in rhythmic gymnastics, a sport featuring athletes dancing and tumbling while handling small hand equipment, went to Lourdes Medina of Cuba. Medina scored 9.60 on ribbon, her final apparatus, to defeat Diane Simpson of Evanston, Ill.

Mary Fusezi of Canada won the bronze medal.

Kansas City gives NY Royal whipping

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Danny Tartabull was laughing inside when he hit a three-run homer after New York Yankees Manager ordered George Brett intentionally walked in the fourth inning of Kansas City's 10-1 victory Monday night.

But he didn't let his emotions show as he rounded the bases

"I didn't need to rub it in. He knew he messed up and it cost them the game," Tartabull said. "But it definitely felt good. And it makes you think that next time, he'll think about it twice."

Brett homered twice and Kevin Seitzer also homered for the Royals, who handed the Yankees their fourth loss in five games. They have been outscored 64-25 on the current road trip, but trail first-place Toronto by only a half-game.

Seitzer and Brett tagged rookie Brad Arnsberg, 1-1, for consecutive homers in a three-run third inning. Brett connected again in the eighth.

Danny Jackson, 6-13, allowed six hits, walked three and struck out five for the victory. The only run he allowed scored on a groundout by Dave Winfield in the first inning.

Red Sox 9, Blue Jays 1

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens pitched his 13th complete game and Sam Horn knocked in five runs with a grand slam and a double as the Boston Red Sox routed Toronto 9-1.

Beating Toronto for the first time in three decisions this year, Clemens, 12-7, scattered eight hits, struck out eight and didn't walk a batter.

White Sox 8, Tigers 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold Baines drove in three runs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly, leading the Chicago White Sox to an 8-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Baines hit his sacrifice fly in a six-run first inning that included a two-run double by Steve Lyons off loser Walt Terrell, 9-9. Terrell lasted until the sixth inning, when Baines doubled in two runs.

Orioles 4, Indians 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Larry Sheets blooped a two-run single in the eighth inning after a wild pitch by Cleveland reliever Ed Vande Berg, lifting the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Indians.

The Indians had gone ahead 3-2 in the eighth with the help of a double error on a sacrifice bunt, but the Orioles rallied in the bottom of the inning.

Fred Lynn singled with one out and Ray Knight walked. One out later, Vande Berg replaced loser Don Gordon, 0-1.

The runners advanced to scoring position on the wild pitch before Sheets collected his third hit of the game.

The winner was Mark Williamson, 6-8, who pitched 1 2-3 innings. Tom Niedenfuer got the last out for his seventh save.

Another scuffer discovered

By The Associated Press

Chicago Manager Gene Michael wasn't suspicious of the Phillies' bats after they hit two home runs in the first inning. He was busy spying on Kevin Gross' glove.

With Philadelphia leading 4-2 in the fifth inning Monday night, the Cubs had runners at first and second and one out when Gross was ejected for what umpire John Kibler said was an illegal sandpaper substance glued to the right-hander's glove.

Kibler acted after Michael protested to plate umpire Charlie Williams. The umpires checked Gross' glove and the ball, confiscated both and ejected Gross.

"There was a piece of emery paper or sandpaper glued to the heel of the glove," Kibler said. "We'll send the glove and ball to Mr. Giamatti (National League president Bartlett Giamatti)."

Todd Frohwirth, recalled Monday from Maine of the International League, relieved Gross, pitched out of the jam and earned the victory as the Phillies held on to win 4-2.

Michael said the Cubs knew that Gross scuffed the ball. The manager said he did it the last time the Phillies were in Chicago.

"We were waiting for the right time. I thought he'd have one scuffed for Andre (Dawson). Maybe if we had waited for a pitch or two he'd of scuffed one."

Michael admitted that the ball that was inspected was clean.

"I think he was trying to get rid of the thing before Andre came up. We already had a couple of scuffed balls. And we knew he was doing it. In Chicago we turned in 12 that were scuffed."

"There was no reason to come out and check the glove for anything," Gross said after the game. "I'm not saying anything."

Gross was told that Kibler said there was something in the glove.

"I don't know," the pitcher responded. "I don't need anything in my glove."

Phillies' Manager Lee Elia said, "It's hard for me to respond. ... I did see discoloration in the glove. It might sound funny, but without my glasses I can't see."

Philadelphia took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on a pair of home runs off Jamie Moyer, 9-9. Von Hayes made it 1-0 with his 18th homer, and after Chris James doubled, Lance Parrish hit his 12th homer.

New York Mets Keith Hernandez is out at home trying to score from first base on a double by Darryl Strawberry. Montreal Expos catcher Jeff Reed put the tag on Hernandez.

Giants 6, Astros 5

Candy Maldonado and Will Clark hit consecutive home runs leading off the bottom of the ninth to lift San Francisco over Houston for the Giants' fifth straight victory and ninth straight at home.

The Astros had taken a 5-4 lead in the eighth when Billy Hatcher doubled off the legs of reliever Scott Garrelts and scored on Bill Doran's single.

Last week in Houston, the Astros swept the Giants in a three-game series, getting the winning runs in their last at-bats in each game.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 0

Jim Lindeman hit a three-run homer and Bob Forsch pitched a seven-hitter for his first shutout in nearly two seasons as St. Louis beat host Pittsburgh.

Forsch's shutout, the 18th of his 14-year major-league career, improved his record to 10-3 and marked the 10th season he has reached double figures in victories. It was the right-hander's first shutout since he beat Philadelphia 7-0 on Sept. 18, 1985.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Dennis Martinez pitched seven-hit ball for seven innings and beat New York for the third time this season.

Martinez, 7-1, has yielded only four runs — two earned — to the Mets in 23 innings this year. Montreal is 11-1 in the 12 games started by Martinez since he was recalled from Indianapolis. Tim Burke pitched 1 1-3 innings for his 11th save.

The visiting Expos, who snapped a three-game losing streak, made it 2-1 in the third inning against John Mitchell, 3-4. Tim Raines and Mitch Webster had consecutive doubles to tie the score. One out later, Hubie Brooks singled to left sending Webster to third, and Tim Wallach followed with a sacrifice fly.

Padres 2, Braves 0

Rookie Jimmy Jones pitched a two-hitter and Benito Santiago hit two-run homer in the seventh inning as San Diego defeated visiting Atlanta for the Padres' sixth straight victory. The streak is the Padres' longest of the season.

Jones, 5-4, walked one and struck out four en route to his first complete game this season.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

Eric Davis set up the tie-breaking run by stealing second and third base in the seventh inning and then scored on Dave Parker's single, helping Cincinnati end a four-game losing streak.

Dodgers starter Fernando Valenzuela, 9-10, walked Davis with one out and the Cincinnati center fielder stole his 41st and 42nd bases of the season.

Tower returns to Alabama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Bill Curry hopes the late Bear Bryant's coaching tower becomes a catalyst for the Alabama football team and a symbol of a return to tradition for those fans who were unhappy over Curry's selection as the man who succeeded the man who succeeded Bryant.

"Coach Bryant's legacy is alive and well and I want to demand the same things he did," said Curry, whose first Crimson Tide team opens Sept. 5 at Birmingham against Southern Mississippi.

"I want that tower to be a symbol of what Alabama football stands for," Curry said.

Bryant used the tower while directing Alabama to five national titles in his 25 years. But his successor, Ray Perkins, ordered it removed from the practice field shortly after taking over. That bothered some people, who felt that anything connected with Bryant was close to sacred.

Curry said he and Athletic Director Steve Sloan, "at the suggestion of an elderly fan," directed that the tower be returned.

Curry, however, isn't climbing up and peering out from the tower as Bryant did. He's on the field trying to find replacements for the 25 lettermen lost from the 1986 team that went 10-3, defeated Washington 28-6 in the Sun Bowl and ranked ninth in the country.

"No one goes on that tower," Curry said.

"The Alabama tradition does not go away because someone serves in between," he said.

Elk hunting in Colorado

By H. BOYCE HALE

My elk was running from me with his lower jaw flopping. I had shot him precisely in the hinge of the jaw, but too low for a clean kill.

The next shot struck the right antler and it tumbled to the ground. The elk seemed to quicken his pace.

As I realized that my 1962 Model 70 Winchester 300 magnum held but 3 rounds, I knew I had to make sure the last shot killed the elk.

I placed the next shot squarely in his chest, but he kept running and disappeared into the forest.

I did my best to reload and run at the same time. As hard as I tried, I couldn't get a round into the magazine. Finally, I managed to jam one into the breach and slam the bolt home. Then I took off running after my elk.

It was October 1963 and I was hunting out of Highview Lodge on the Israel ranch near Ridgeway, Colo.

I learned that Lester and Glen Israel had operated the lodge for 34 years, and it was what Lester said to me that caused me to select their place.

When questioned about a guarantee on bagging an elk, he said, "Boyce, we guarantee nothing except a good safe place to hunt, plenty of good food and lots of fun. We will make sure that you are placed in an area where the game is. It will be up to you to kill them."

Those words sealed my fate. I would hunt this place for the next 20 years.

On this hunt, I drove from Big Spring to Ridgeway, where I met 17 other hunters at the ranch house. We then convoyed the 14 remaining miles on a two-rut road.

As we gained altitude, we experienced the change from the desert to the alpine. First came pinons, then oak, and finally aspen.

The aspen really were showing off that year. The golden leaves were the most brilliant I had ever seen, and as we neared the lodge, I discovered it to be nestled amoung a huge stand of them.

"This must be as good as Heaven," I thought to myself.

As I gazed at the trees, a gentle breeze jiggled the leaves and I could readily understand why these trees are called "quakies."

The lodge consisted of two boxcar-type buildings that were divided into rooms and mail-order shower. For our mess hall, we had an authentic log cabin build by an aunt of Lester and Glen in 1879.

By 3:30 a.m. we were awakened, and breakfast was ready by 4:30. Sharply at 5:30 a.m. we were loaded into jeeps and started the trek to the hunting grounds.

Here and there Lester would stop and place a hunter. That continued until I was the only one left. He said he was saving the best place for me.

The last half-mile was almost straight up and, at times, I was sure we would not make it.

As I stepped from the jeep, Lester said, "Boyce, just to the left, you'll find a trail, and if you will follow it up, you will probably see some elk. But let me warn you, don't get far from the trail, or you'll get lost."

The jeep roared away, and I was alone — standing in the middle of the Uncompaghre Forest. I found the trail and, as daylight came, I walked it.

By 8 a.m. I had not seen an elk, so I ventured away from the trail. Shortly thereafter, I found a small park with a lone spruce tree in the middle.

Shortly after I sat under the tree, I heard three shots. Within seconds, two cow elk came running through the park, and I did my best to look a set of horns on each of them.

As they moved away, one looked back at where they came. "Ah Ha," I talked to myself, "something is following them."

Tension was building, and within a minute, a bull elk came trotting into the park and stopped within 50 yards of my hiding place. That's when my first bullet hit him in the hinge of his jam.

After chasing the elk into the forest, I reloaded and started tracking him. I didn't go far before I jumped the elk and made the killing shot.

Later Lester told me that it was the largest spike elk that he had seen.

In swimming, Silvia Poll of Costa Rica and John Witchel of the United States became the first double-winners of the meet. Anthony Nesty of Surinam, a recent high school graduate in Jacksonville, Fla., twice broke a meet record in the men's 100-meter butterfly.

Poll, 16, won her second individual gold medal of the Games, chopping eight seconds off her qualification time to capture the women's 200-freestyle.

Witchel, of New York, anchored America's winning 800-freestyle relay team that also set a Pan Am record. He won his first gold in the 200-freestyle on Sunday.

Poll won the women's 100 on Sunday, giving Costa Rica its first-ever Pan Am gold medal. Nesty's victory was the first Pan Am medal of any kind for Surinam, a tiny country in northern South America competing in the quadrennial games since only 1971.

Americans Wade King and Duffy Dillon finished second and third after leading Nesty early in the race.

"It scared me a bit in the first 50 (meters)," Nesty said. "My coach told me they go out pretty fast. But coming back I got more confidence in myself."

Nesty, who has lived in the United States for two years and will attend the University of Florida in the fall, set a Pan Am record with a time of 54.06 seconds in Monday morning's trials. He bettered that in the championship heat with a time of 53.89.

King, of Saginaw, Mich., came in at 54.33, and Dillon, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., finished at 54.45.

The former record was 54.25 by American Matt Gribble in 1983.

Poll, the fourth-fastest qualifier in the women's 200 at 2:08.40, recorded a personal best 2:00.02 in the finals, more than two seconds ahead of runner-up Whitney Hedgepeth of Colonial Heights, Va.

Sara Linke of Walnut Creek, Calif., the silver medalist on Sunday in the women's 100 and a teammate of Hedgepeth on the winning 800-freestyle relay team, was the fastest qualifier in Monday's 200-free and finished third behind Poll and Hedgepeth.

Americans finished 1-2 in the men's 400-individual medley, with Jerry Frentsos of Cincinnati taking the gold medal with a time of 4:23.92. Jeff Prior of Philadelphia was second at 4:26.31, and Canada's Mike Meldrum was third at 4:29.63.

Dorsey Tierney of Louisville gave the United States another gold in the women's 200-breaststroke, winning at 2:36.87. Alicia Boscatto of Argentina was second, and Kathy Smith of Kirkland, Wash., finished third at 2:37.57.

The United States collected its seventh gold medal in two days of swimming with its victory in the men's 800-meter freestyle relay. The team of Paul Robinson, Richardson, Texas; Brian Jones, Concord, Calif; Mike O'Brien, Costa Mesa, Calif.; and Witchel was clocked at a record 7:23.29. The former record was 7:23.64 by the United States in 1983.

Problems for Sitters: What Would You Do?

Problems for Sitters: What Would You Do?

If you are interested in becoming a sitter someday, you might take a course to learn how to do a good job.

These courses are often for young people from 11 to 18.

They are sponsored by local hospitals, the Red Cross, 4-H Clubs, county extension services and other groups.

Pretend that you are taking one of these classes. How would you solve these problems?

What would you do if:

The telephone rings.

Answer: Don't let the caller know that the parents are not in. Tell the caller that they are busy and will call back later.

If someone knocks on the door, don't open it without the parents' exact instructions.

A child won't stay in bed.

A: Go into the bedroom and read to him. Try to calm him down.

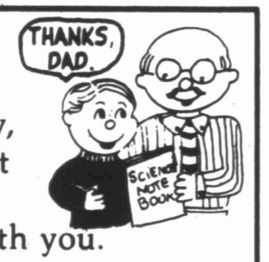

You are going to sit for a new family for the first time.

A: It's a good idea to ask your mom or dad to be at home, just in case you need some advice.

You are giving a child a bath and the phone rings.

A: Never leave a child alone in water. Let the phone ring.

You have an important test tomorrow, but you forgot to bring your homework with you.

A: Call home and ask someone to bring it to you. Never leave a child alone.

The children cry when the parents leave.

A: Don't worry. Entertain them and they will soon get over it.

Someone you or your family doesn't know asks you to sit for them.

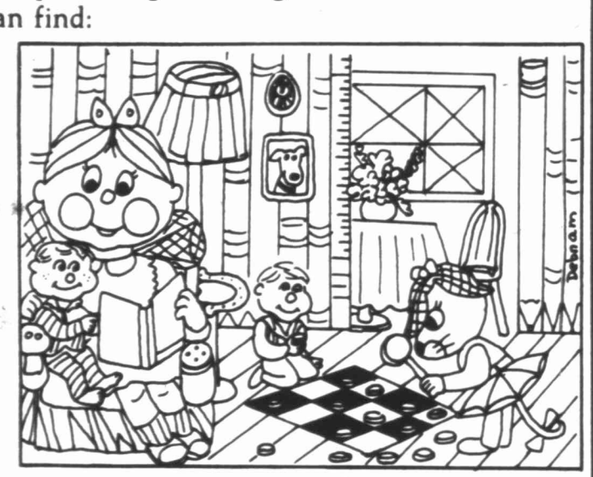

A: Never sit for strangers. Be certain that you know the families and the children before accepting a job.

A Report Card for Kidcare

Is Your Sitter Super?

Super sitters enjoy playing with kids.

A good sitter is responsible for the safety and well-being of kids. Below is a checklist for sitters. Check each one that describes yours.

My sitter:

- ☐ is dependable and on time.
- ☐ spends time with me and does not talk a lot on the phone to her friends.
- ☐ does not let me run all over her. I respect her.
- ☐ carries out my parents' instructions.
- ☐ sits with me because she likes kids and not just because she wants the money.
- ☐ can handle emergencies.
- ☐ is alert and keeps a careful watch over everything I do.
- ☐ stays awake and checks on me even after I'm asleep.
- ☐ never leaves me alone in the house.
- ☐ knows exactly how to get in touch with my parents, my doctor and a neighborhood friend.

Count the number of checks. You and your family would want your sitter to get a perfect 10!

Sitters have ideas, too. Below are some of the things they think about. What kind of grade would a sitter give your family?

Do the kids:

- ☐ make me feel at home?
- ☐ obey and realize that I am following the parents' instructions?

Do the parents:

- ☐ give me good instructions and the telephone number where they can be reached?
- ☐ return home on time?
- ☐ offer me a good place to study and a snack?
- ☐ offer me a safe ride home? Would I go back if asked?
  ☐ yes ☐ no

Meet Peter Cetera

For 18 years, Peter Cetera was the singer and songwriter and played bass for the popular rock group Chicago. The group has sold millions of records.

Last year, he quit the group to try a solo career. He is known for singing love ballads. His first two records, including a duet with Amy Grant, went to No. 1. He was also nominated for several music awards.

Peter, 42, grew up in Chicago.

Peter enjoys cross-country skiing, mountain climbing and cycling.

Before starting a musical career, he worked in construction and at an ice cream parlor. He practiced music at night. The Beatles were a big influence on him.

He lived in Los Angeles for a while but now lives in Sun Valley, Idaho, with his wife, Diane, and daughter. Diane helps him write some of his songs.

He has taken acting lessons and made several videos.

Cheetahs . . .

- are the fastest land animal over a short distance. They can run as fast as 60 mph for about 300 yards.
- can be tamed. Indian royalty used to train them to hunt.
- have dog-like bodies. They have long, thin legs, small heads and long tails. Their tan coats with black spots help them hide in the grass. They have excellent eyesight.
- are not able to pull in their claws like most cats. Instead of roaring, they yelp and growl like a dog. They also purr.
- usually live alone and hunt both day and night. Babies stay with their mothers for about two years.

Where found: grasslands of Africa and Middle East.

Size: bodies about 4 feet long, weighing about 100 pounds.

Diet: antelope, birds and small mammals.

Lifespan: about 11 years in the wild.

John Rutledge
1739-1800

John Rutledge

Signer of the Constitution from South Carolina

John Rutledge came from a large family that lived near Charleston, S.C. His brother, Edward, signed the Declaration of Independence.

Rutledge went to London to study law. He returned to South Carolina and became a successful lawyer. He and his wife, Elizabeth, had 10 children.

At 25, Rutledge became the attorney general for South Carolina.

Rutledge was a delegate to the first Continental Congress in 1774. As a member of the Second Continental Congress, he served on several committees.

He served as governor of South Carolina from 1779 to 1782. His nickname was "Dictator John" because he had so much power.

At the Constitutional Convention, he attended every meeting and served on five committees. He had much influence and spoke out often. He was chairman of the committee that wrote the first draft of the Constitution.

Washington named Rutledge as an associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1789. He served a very short time.

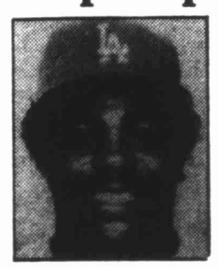

He died in Charleston at age 60.

This is the 34th in a mini series about the Constitution.
