'SECRET' FLAWS BLAMED FOR AIRSHIP DISASTER

Rambling Jess Haines Pitches Cardinals Into World Series Tie With A's

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Everybody, Talker supposes, has read Mirabeau B. Lamar's statement that "cultivated mind is the guardian genius of Democracy," but there are not so many who know there was more of the same sentence in Lamar's statement. The abbreviated form has been used as a foreword to all publications of the University of Texas. The statement will be printed in full hereafter, the university regents have decided. The quotation is as follows, with the formerly omitted clause in capital letters: "Cultivated mind is the guardian genius of democracy AND, WHILE GUIDED AND CONTROLLED BY VIRTUE, IS THE NOBLEST ATTRIBUTE OF MEN. It is the only dictator that freemen acknowledge and the only security that freemen desire." The insertion of this clause was made at the recommendation of President H. Y. Benedict.

With his further acquaintance with what Lamar said, Talker is glad to learn that he didn't qualify the most familiar part of it: "Cultivated mind is the guardian of democracy" and that the rest of his statement is an amplification of his thought.

Talker knows a man who sometimes writes for publication who qualifies his statements so much that it is almost impossible to tell what he is trying to say. He will start out with a direct and challenging statement of fact but before he finishes his sentence will bring in so many qualifications that he has nullified what he started out with and in the end has said nothing. Lamar didn't do this in his statement. We can guess that the abbreviated form of the quotation was used on account of its brevity and not because of any disagreement with the thought in the rest of the sentence.

The drouth is broken at last. That is a statement that can be made without any qualification. The rainfall has been general and the precipitation has been heavy. The earth is soaked, tanks and ponds are filling, streams that have been dry for many months are flowing and dirt roads are almost impassable. Of course, the rain is too late to help cotton but it will make fall pasturage and give wheat a fine start. There will be fat for livestock on the wheatfields of West Texas this winter.

There is no country that can recover more quickly from the effects of drouth than West Texas. That is because of the diversity of crops that can be grown and the comparative mildness of the winters which favors the growing of grain and of small grains through the winter months.

Talker has always maintained that one of the satisfactions in living in Wichita Falls was because there was so much to be done. He has said that most Wichitans would not like to live in a city, no matter how pleasant otherwise, where all the needs of the community had been met. Well, if that is the measure for enjoyment, Wichita Falls now offers more than it ever has. There was never a time when the community had so many needs. Let's go to it this winter and meet a few of those needs.

There isn't much satisfaction in knowing that so many things are being done unless we are doing something to lessen the number.

About 1,500 spectators attended a district conference football game between the Wichita Falls and Lubbock high school teams Saturday in Wichita Falls. The weather was bad and this cut down attendance somewhat, but if the game had been played in Lubbock or Amarillo or a number of other West Texas towns there would have been at least twice the attendance even if there had been hail and snow and sleet added to the drizzle.

What the American people need is "a psychological shake-up that will cause them to resume their normal buying habits," according to Dr. Stephen L. Miller, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men. This view of the current business situation is expressed in the October bulletin of the association.

Our great purchasing power is now static, rather than dynamic," Dr. Miller says. "We have a fine lot of logs, but they are still in a jam. The lumberjack who can spot the key log and pry it loose with his 'peavy' will be a real hero."

When a conservative like former President Coolidge advises everybody who has money to spend, spend, spend, we have real hopes that some lumberjack is going to get into the jam and break something loose.

Drinking Party Host Kills Guest and Self

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5. (AP)—As the climax to what police described as an all-night drinking party, Adolph Palmer, 38, the host, shot to death Frank Ignatius Sullivan, 38, then fatally wounded himself today.

Mrs. Corrine Sullivan, widow of the victim, told police the shooting was without provocation. She said Sullivan went to the kitchen to pour some home brew. As he returned Palmer picked up a shotgun and fired point blank. She insisted there had been no quarreling.

Athletic Third Baseman Throws Wildly After Blades' Rap

SPORTSMAN PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 5.—Dayton, Saginaw, Detroit, Springfield, Denver, Topeka, Hutchinson, Cincinnati, Tulsa, Kansas City, St. Louis—No. no, this isn't the train caller gargling—it is merely your correspondent reciting the baseball itinerary of Ol' Jess Haines, who today pitched the Cardinals to their second victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, and to a tie in the world's series of 1930.

Over the baseball land Ol' Jess has rambled since first he ventured forth from the town of Clayton, Ohio, some 18 years back, picking up scraps of pitching knowledge here and there, until he has accumulated quite a store, most of which he bunched together and unloaded on Cornelius McGillicuddy's American leaguers this afternoon, in leading the Cardinals to a 3 to 1 triumph.

Anniversary of '24 Feat

It has been four years to a day since Ol' Jess, now rising thutty-seven years of age, held the New York Yankees to four hits, and a big goose egg in the world's series of 1926, but he was no better on that occasion than he was on this memorable anniversary of his famous feat. He allowed the A's four hits today, only one of which was really a clean lick, and not one of which came after the first frame, and most of the time he was making the sluggers from Quakertown strain their back muscles lunging at a slow ball.

Fourth Game Figures

Attendance, 20,946; receipts, $165,... 20%; players' share, $66,220.43; each clubs' share, $16,620.90; commissioner's share, $16,502.86.

Series Totals

Attendance, 140,680; receipts, $925,... 60%; players' share $325,963.50; each clubs' share, $20,961.75; each league's share, $20,961.75; commissioner's share, $66,396.50.

As the game ended, Ol' Jess' team mates clustered about him and escorted him off the field, hammering his broad shoulders with the calloused palms of their ham-like hands, while a mob that filled Sportsman's park almost to a panic point, shrieked ecstatically. The attendance today was announced at 20,946, a new record for St. Louis, and the management oversold the standing space until there were nervous squeals from the women jammed into the runways with the excited male baseball bugs.

Error Costs Game

If it hadn't been for a bad little throw by Jimmy Dykes, the pudgy third baseman of the A's in the fourth frame, the game might have gone into the twilight with Ol' Jess and Lefty Grove, the star side-winder of the Philadelphians, still pumping the ball at the batsmen. In fact, Jimmy will probably be nominated, and unanimously elected as the William G. Goat of this particular game and perhaps he deserves the office.

Two were out in the Cardinals' batting side of that fourth, when Hafey doubled. Ray Blades knocked an easy bouncer at Dykes, and Dykes' throw to Jimmy Foxx at first was so wide and low that James had a hard time stopping the ball at all. Now Hafey had left second at the crack of the bat, and was right on top of Dykes when the third baseman fired. All Dykes had to do to make the third out, was to hold still and tag the plunging Hafey, who was so far advanced toward third that he could not possibly have regained second.

But it is customary in such cases for the fielder to make the throw to first as a cinch play, rather than take a chance on missing out on the runner, so Dykes threw. As Foxx struggled with the ball, Hafey kept racing for home. Finally

Cheats Chair 22 Years

Tiny Cell Holds Happiness Enough for Slayer Who 'Beat' Law When Judge's Death Precluded Possibility Of 'Further Orders' in Strange Case

Archibald Herron, at 71, is content in the seclusion of his tiny cell, his pipe, and his memories of having cheated the electric chair, to which he was condemned 22 years ago. This sketch by George Clark, NEA Service and The Record News artist, shows how Herron looks today.

By PAUL HARRISON
Record News Special Writer

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 5.—This is the story of Archibald Herron, who for 22 years has lived happily in the valley of the shadow of death. All that time, in the state prison here, he has awaited electrocution for a murder committed when he was 49. Now, at 71, he knows that he has cheated the chair, and is proud of his unprecedented victory.

Since Herron went to the bleak little death house, 91 others have passed through it to oblivion. Several times it seemed that the calm little man, who had boasted that he'd "beat the rap," would have to join them. But, alone and penniless, he squirmed through a maze of technicalities, finally to have the trial judge delay his execution "until further orders."

Then the judge died.

So Archie lives, and smokes, and thinks about the one great triumph of his drab career. He has been for-

Eight Hurt as Express Strikes Stock Train

AURORA, Ill., Oct. 5. (AP)—Eight men were injured today when the Empire Builder express of the Burlington railroad, carrying a number of passengers and the Vanderbilt university football squad, plowed into the rear end of a long stock train near here.

The engineer and fireman of the flier and six drovers riding with the livestock were injured slightly, but none of the passengers on the express was hurt.

The football squad was homeward bound from Minneapolis, where Vanderbilt defeated Minnesota university yesterday.

Body of Centenarian Found in Texas Field

HOUSTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—A badly decomposed body, identified as Samuel D. Stull, aged farmer who has been missing the past three months, was found in a pasture several miles from here by boy hunters today.

The body was identified by Mrs. Stull by means of a watch and fragments of clothes she said her husband wore when he disappeared from home. She placed his age at 100. Mrs. Stull is 70.

Widely Known Texas Educator Dies in Georgia

HENDERSON, Texas, Oct. 5. (AP)—Dr. J. E. Watkins of Henderson received word today of the death of his brother, Prof. G. L. Watkins, at Indian Springs, Ga. Professor Watkins was widely known as an educator in East Texas some years ago.

BRAZIL REBELS PLAN ADVANCE

March on City of Sao Paulo Mobilized

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 5. (AP)—Frontier dispatches tonight reported that the Brazilian federal government had offered to open peace negotiations with the triumphant insurgents in Rio Grande Do Sul, but that the insurgent leaders had refused to accept them.

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 5. (AP)—The insurgent leaders defying the Brazilian federal government in the state of Rio Grande do Sul tonight were reported to have mobilized all men between the ages of 21 and 35 for a northward drive upon the great southern city of Sao Paulo.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 5. (AP)—Virtually the entire state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, was in revolt tonight against the Rio de Janerio government.

Advices reaching here by way of frontier towns said federal troops in the cities of Uruguayana, Bage, Santa Maria, Alegrete and Santa Ana have joined the revolution and it was considered assured that the federal army in the state, numbering 10,000, would act against the government.

The revolters have captured all national offices in the state, the reports state, and have established a censorship on all outgoing and incoming cable and telegraph matter.

Saturday the revolutionists attempted to capture all the public funds held in the national bank at Uruguayana, but employes succeeded in diverting the funds to the English bank of London, a branch of the bank in Rivera, Uruguay.

Rivera, Artigas and Rio Branco, other Uruguayan border towns, were nearly filled with Brazilian families fleeing from the revolution and expected fighting.

Dispatches from Rivera, on the frontier of Brazil and Uruguay, state a revolutionary movement in sympathy with the Rio Grande leaders has broken out also in the state of Santa Catharina, immediately north of Rio Grande do Sul.

The insurgents there were marching on the state capital, Desterro.

Hoover Charged With Throwing Tariff Power to G. O. P. Members

AUSTIN, Oct. 5. (AP)—Charges that President Hoover delayed the appointment of a third Democrat to the tariff commission and allowed a commission composed of three Republicans and two Democrats to reorganize the commission, with the resultant organization on a political and partisan basis, were made here today by United States Senator Tom Connally.

"Through the selection of men to be appointed to key positions, it is believed the commission has been reorganized at the dictation of tariff beneficiaries and industrial favorites," Senator Connally stated. "After the reorganization, the remaining Democratic position was filled, enabling the majority members to reorganize the commission.

Connally predicted that Democratic gains of six or seven seats in the senate and 40 to 50 seats in the house, with a possible Democratic majority, would be the outcome of the coming elections.

He characterized "Hoover prosperity" as a myth and declared the record of the Republican administration during the past two years "is most certainly not one to commend itself to the people of the United States." Connally stated that so long as the stock market was skyrocketing it was acclaimed as a "Hoover market" but that when the financial crash came, the political boomers began to put forth alibis and excuses and attributed the causes of the crash to other influences.

RAINFALL OVER AREA TOTALS FOUR INCHES

Wichita Falls Precipitation Reaches 3.76 at 5 P. M. Sunday

LONG DROUTH ENDS

Fields and Pastures in Fine Condition Over Entire Section

The gentle, persistent rainfall which Saturday definitely ended the summer's long drouth, continued in Wichita Falls and Northwest Texas Sunday, adding almost two inches to the precipitation within the city where 3.76 inches were recorded late Sunday afternoon. Similar saturating downpours drenched the entire section from Texline to Fort Worth along the Denver, spread to include Plainview, and reached as far as Altus in southern Oklahoma. Other Oklahoma sections still lay under clouds and mists but no added rains were reported Sunday.

The continuous fall in Wichita Falls measured 1.99 inches for the 24-hour period ending at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon and promised to go on through the entire night. The temperature here dropped to a minimum of 55 degrees from the 65-degree high point.

The four-inch precipitation was the first of consequence in the section since the early summer floods and was haled as a belated salvation to winter grain crops and a guarantee for the livestock water and pasturage during the months to come. Cotton picking in some sections will suffer a brief delay, offset by the tremendous general benefit of the slow, soaking rains.

SHEEP COUNTRY "SITTING ON TOP"

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 5. (AP)—With the falling of the heaviest rain over all of the West Texas sheep and goat country in 18 months, the wool and mohair men today were "sitting on top of the world."

Yearling ewes which were being sold last week at $4.50 each were marked up to $5.50 and $6.00 and lamb prices over all this territory were advanced a cent a pound.

Some of the big sheep and goat counties had not had more than 1½ inches of rain in 18 months and there had been some forced selling and shipping of both classes of animals. This was all ended last night and today sheep men and goat raisers were predicting an increased valuation for their flocks and herds amounting to a good many million dollars.

Cuban Revolutionists Ordered Under Arrest

HAVANA, Oct. 5. (US)—Seventeen revolutionists, including student leaders of the young Intelligentsia, were ordered arrested today for complicity in what authorities say was purported to be a nationwide demonstration against the Cuban government.

It is alleged the insurgents were preparing a manifestation of their allegiance to Enrique Jose Verona, held to be a symbol of "Nemesis" in Cuban government. Officials were of the opinion, however, that the planned demonstration was an act to assemble people to promote further disturbances.

The situation was entirely dominated by the government, and no further uprisings were expected tonight.

Flier Ends 22-Day Cross Country Flight

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5. (AP)—Al Wilson, stunt aviator, flying a 1910 type Curtiss Pusher plane, arrived at the municipal airport here today from Chicago after a 22-day trip. Airport officials said the trip was the longest ever made in a plane of the type.

Wilson made 36 stops en route, 32 voluntarily for refueling, as the gasoline capacity was but an hour and a half. His most dangerous forced landing, he said, occurred 60 miles northeast of El Paso, Texas, when engine trouble made it necessary to land in a creek bed.

The aviator flew here today from Palm Springs.

Guards Protect Lingle 'Squealer' From Prisoners

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. (AP)—Fearing he would be slain by aroused prisoners officials today provided a special guard and an isolated cell for Frank H. Bell, who Friday implicated two companions in the murder of Alfred Lingle.

At the same time instructions were issued to prepare his food separately and give it careful supervision as a precaution against poisoning.

Los Angeles, Sweltering, Buffeted by Sand Storm

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5. (US)—A temperature of 91 degrees, brush fires and a sandstorm marked today's weather here.

Coming from the desert, the storm banked sand high on roads in the San Fernando valley and in several places blew down telephone wires.

Ten brush fires were reported.

Earlier Near-Disaster Revealed After Tragic Crash Stuns Londoners

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Did Air Minister Lord Thomson and his 53 companions, including the best aeronautical brains of Britain, sail on the R-101 for India last night in a valorous spirit of chivalry, knowing they were undergoing a grave risk in order to make a gesture linking the empire?

On June 28, the occasion of the royal air force pageant at Hendon, Universal Service learns that the R-101 sailed from Cardington to Hendon, circled Hendon and barely managed to return to Cardington because of serious leakage in the supporting hydrogen balloonettes.

Leaks Revealed

An investigation, which has since been kept carefully secret, is said to have revealed 60 leaks in the balloonettes due to their rubbing against the supports on the hundred mile flight to Hendon and return. Since then the airship was cut in half and put together with a 45-foot insertion.

Perhaps an official investigation in connection with the flight to Beauvais by Major Cooper and Squadron Leader Booth will reveal if a recurrence of the defect caused the R-101 to crash. Perhaps the secret will be sealed by the flash of flame which snuffed out the lives of 46 of the 54 on board.

Unofficial speculation in the absence of an official communique by the air ministry, all indicate that the R-101 was dangerously low over Beauvais before crashing, when prudence should have dictated a high altitude.

London Stunned

Official and civilian London alike are mortally stunned by the disaster which has destroyed nearly the whole of the air force and airship higher personnel, and which has probably marked Britain's retirement from the lighter than air field.

That the crew of the R-101 was unaware of the approaching catastrophe was revealed by the last wireless message which the air ministry gave out. Dated at 1:20 a. m., little more than an hour before the

Iowa School Boy Strangled to Death

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Oct. 5. (UP)—Finding of the badly lacerated body of a 12-year-old school boy, strangled with a 12-inch wire in willows near the Mississippi river caused great excitement in Dubuque today.

The youthful victim, Earl Robert Fuller, was known to have played football with companions until 9:30 p. m. He failed to return home.

Henry Waltz, a workman, discovered the body today. A post mortem was held this afternoon while police sought apparently without success, for clues to the murder.

Guards were placed to search all trains and automobiles leaving Dubuque, in the belief some moron or tramp might have been guilty.

Wholesale Men Gather For Lubbock Display

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 5.—Fifty-seven wholesale merchants and manufacturers from Dallas, Fort Worth, St. Louis, San Antonio, Chicago and other markets have displays of their merchandise set up in sample rooms in Lubbock hotel and Hilton hotel here today, preparatory to opening tomorrow of the second semi-annual West Texas wholesale market week, sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Seventeen of the distributors are cooperating in a style show that is to be held Monday evening. Seats for 2,000 retail merchants who will come from all over West Texas and eastern New Mexico have been provided.

The market event will close Wednesday evening.

Two Men Mentioned For Labor Secretary

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—Selection of a new secretary of labor is receiving considerable attention from President Hoover who has several names before him, including John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and W. N. Doak of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Many observers believe the choice lies between these two although other names frequently crop up in the discussions.

DRAINAGE AREA VOTES BONDS

District No. 2 Formed In Election

Formation of Wichita Falls drainage district No. 2 and the issuance of $26,000 in bonds to pay for the construction of ditches was approved by voters of the district at an election held Saturday. Eighteen votes were cast in the election, 16 being polled for the proposed district and only two against.

The area embraced in the district lies between Lake Wichita and the city limits. Plans for the drainage program, which will reclaim valuable land and prevent other land from waterlogging, have already been drawn. The Ballew store on the Lake Wichita road was used as the polling place in the Saturday vote. The official canvass of the results of the election will be made Monday by the county commissioners court.

Doomed Man Escapes Prison at Matamoros

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 5. (UP)—Doomed to die before a firing squad for his confessed slaying of Samuel Shong, Chinese banker, Nicolas Moran scaled the high wall which surrounds the prison in Matamoros, Mexico, late Saturday, and made his escape.

Jose Ramos, condemned to die for the same crime, did not attempt to leave the prison.

Laura Ingalls Lands At St. Louis on Flight

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5. (AP)—Laura Ingalls, attempting to set a new women's record for a flight from Roosevelt field, New York, to Los Angeles, landed at Lambert-St. Louis field at about 5:25 p. m. central standard time. She left Roosevelt field at 6:30 a. m. eastern standard time today.

R-101 DEFECTS HINTED AFTER 46 LOSE LIVES

World's Largest Dirigible Plunges to Earth At Beauvais, France

Engineer Relates Graphic Account of Explosion And Death

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

BEAUVAIS, France, Oct. 5.—Eight tons of rain on an overloaded airship, leaking gas from many "balloonettes"—that may be the solution of the disaster that overtook the R-101 near here shortly after 3 o'clock this morning.

Soaked and soggy with water after wallowing through a deluge of rain over France, the world's greatest airship carried 46 persons to a doom by flames and spread her own great hulk across a turnip field to bury her aluminum nose in the trees on a hillside.

Already the finger of suspicion has pointed at grave defects known but not publicly acknowledged for months past. And to give color to these tales is the word of the man at the controls when the fatal plunge came.

Engineer's Account

Engineer Aifred J. Cook, one of the survivors, and who was in charge of the engine room at the moment of the disaster, told Universal Service tonight:

"I was in the motor gondola on the port side and had been on duty about two minutes when the order came through to slow down.

"I tried to do it but I couldn't, as the crash came almost immediately.

"I climbed out through the top of the engine car, pushed away a girder and was nearly choked with the smoke and heat that met me. That is why my face and hands are so burned."

Practically the entire complement of passengers and crew, including those of Lord Thomson, British air minister, and others whose names are written large in the history of aviation, were burned to death in

Pilot Hurt in Forced Landing As Mountains Block Passage

EL PASO, Oct. 5. (AP)—Rescued after a well nigh fatal attempt to scale a passage of the Sacramento mountains in a light training plane, Clifford Henderson of Chicago was brought here to a hospital by airplane today, after he crashed in the mountains near Alamogordo, N. M., late yesterday. Although gravely injured, he was expected to live.

Henderson was unconscious nine hours and for nearly 24 hours was without adequate surgical attention for two severe gashes suffered in his neck when the plane crashed.

He took off from Amarillo at noon yesterday, flying alone in the light, open cockpit training plane.

When Henderson reached the canyon of the Penasco river near Alamogordo, he attempted to follow the gap of the canyon across the mountain range, which at that point has an elevation of 10,000 feet. Henderson's plane had a flying ceiling of 7,000 feet.

Seeing he would not be able to turn about or to gain more altitude Henderson attempted to set the plane down on the abandoned track of an old logging railroad in a lumber camp near Marcia. The rough landing nearly demolished the plane, which halted on the brink of a precipice.

Henderson was thrown against the cowling in the cockpit and was knocked unconscious by the force of the blow.

Henderson was returning to Los Angeles from the national air races at Chicago, of which he was manager.

Avery Neill, superintendent of the logging camp, said he saw the plane would not be able to clear the mountains and set out immediately in his car, reaching the scene soon after the ship crashed. Physicians said Henderson probably would have died from exposure and loss of blood if Neill had not reached him.

FLAWS BLAMED FOR DISASTER

46 Lose Lives in Crash Of Huge Dirigible

a gigantic funeral pyre set by an explosion immediately after the great ship crashed nose-first to the ground. Heart-stirring details of the tragedy unfolded today as charred bodies were removed from the debris.

Seven Survive

Eight were miraculously saved from destruction but one of these was expected to die.

Among the notable dead, besides, Lord Thomson, are Sir Sefton Brancker, director of civil aviation; Squadron Leader W. Palstra, of the royal Australian air force; Squadron Leader W. H. L. O'Neill, representing the secretary of state for India; Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, director of airship development, and who was aboard the R-100 on its recent flight to Canada, Lieut. Col. V. C. Richmond, designer of the R-101, and assistant director of airship development; Major G. H. Scott, who commanded the R-34 during the flight to America in 1919; Squadron Leader F. M. Hope, assistant to Colonel Richmond; and Flight Lieutenant H. C. Irwin. Only 16 of the entire number aboard had had no previous flying experience.

A violent storm, a loggy ship, faltering engines—one, two or all three of the elements seem responsible for the untoward tragic interruption of the widely heralded voyage to India which had begun so happily only a few hours before from Cardington airdrome in England.

The great twisted mass of aluminum that was flung in the fields barely four miles southeast of this historic town, and 46 blackened bodies lying in flag draped and flower strewn pine casets in Beauvais' Hotel de Ville, hold the answer that will never be given except on the basis of fragmentary stories told by a handful of survivors and two or three of the simple country folk who chanced to see the ship crash.

"Shut down your motor."

Pair Nearly Drowned

These were the last words from Flight Lieutenant H. C. Irwin, the ill-starred ship's captain, as quoted by survivor Bell, who was in the port engine gondola near the stern. He owes his life to being nearly drowned when the monster water tank overhead burst, drenching him and his fortunate companion J. H. Binks, another mechanic.

One villager who witnessed the disaster, gave this account:

"I was awakened by the loud roaring of the airship's motors. I saw the dirigible only about 500 feet up. It was tilted to one side and it gave me the impression it was seeking a place to land. (There is an airfield at Beauvais). In a few minutes it fell suddenly and struck the ground.

"There was a terrific explosion which illuminated the whole town and the cathedral tower. After about 10 minutes there came another, but less violent explosion.

"The flames burned high for a good 15 minutes before they gave even any sign of subsiding."

Crew Member's Story

Victor Savory, one of the surviving members of the crew, told Universal Service:

"I had just left the control car and was amidships when she tilted, as she has frequently done. I leaned against the wall. Then came the bump and explosion."

The general impression of the survivors seems to be that the ship was heavy with rain and acted loggy.

The scene of the tragedy itself gave a graphic story of its own. With its nose pointed roughly at 45 degrees off its normal course and buried in a forest of brush and brambles, the once proud ship lies stretched from a gully in which is a turnip field, into the adjoining woods. So massive is the structure that while the portside is in the brush, the starboard side is away out in the open field.

Colors Afloat

High on the rudder structure at the stern today still fluttered the colors of the British airforce—the blue field with the circular red bull's eye, with St. George's cross, sign of Britain's empire, in the upper corner against the staff. The flames which still flash from various parts of the craft, have almost burnt the flag away, but still it flies.

Amidship in the wreckage, the ornate dining salon stands an open portable typewriter of American make, its red and black ribbon fluttering in the breeze despite the soaking rains. Perhaps somebody was writing at that very machine a story which now will never be told. Whatever paper was in the charred machine was destroyed by the flames.

In and out through the wreckage work soldiers, gendarmes, physicians and others seeking the bodies of victims. As fast as one was found it was placed in a plain pine casket and taken to rest at the city hall at Allone, three miles away.

A short distance from the city hall where the unfortunate dead are now resting, is the Hotel Dieu, the hospital of Beauvais, where are the eight survivors. Shocked as they are by the disaster, their one thought is of home.

"When will we be back in England?" is the question on the lips of all but one. Those are the lips of V. G. Radcliffe, who lies unconscious, or semi-conscious, with an anxious sister nurse watching over him.

To Return Bodies

But he will return to England, as will his 46 compahions who lie, black and silent, within the historic walls of the city hall at Allone, three miles away.

With the passing hours an increasing number of persons reached the scene. Among the first was Laurent Eynac, French minister of the air. Other officials followed and just before noon there came from England an airplane bringing notables.

Another airplane brought airship experts to begin an immediate inquiry, while by motor from Paris came the air attache of the British embassy.

From the countryside about and even from distant points by motor, horseback, bicycle and afoot, came a vast throng of French men, women and children to look on the scene with sad amazement.

Gendarmes and soldiers quickly formed a cordon through which only those having special duties to perform, were permitted to pass. But the size of the broken airship, with its great metal structure rising higher than any house in Beauvais except the cathedral, gave the onlookers plenty to see.

AN EXCEPTION

Court Asked to Stop Foreclosing of Home Mortgages

DETROIT, Oct. 5. (AP)—The circuit court here has been asked to stop the processes of law in order to save the homes of unemployed persons who cannot meet their mortgage and land contract payments.

The move was initiated yesterday by attorneys for radio station WMBC, through which the slain Jerry Buckley conducted an employment bureau. On a petition filed in behalf of the station, Judge Alfred J. Murphy issued an order, returnable Oct. 9, requiring the circuit court commissioners to show cause why they should not be enjoined from acting in land contract forfeiture and ejection cases until further order of the court.

The petition states that 30,000 home owners in Wayne county have invested their savings in homes but are unable to continue their payments because of unemployment "through no fault of their own."

BAPTISTS END CHURCH SCHOOL

Commencement Exercises Held for 1,045 Pupils

Commencement exercises for 1,045 pupils, who had attended classes in the County Associational Sunday School Training campaign which was conducted at the First Baptist church during the past week, were held at the church Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

The principal address was given by Dr. O. L. Powers who talked on "Launching Out Into the Deep." Special music for the program included a vocal duet by Misses Mary Clare and Clarice Burton who were accompanied at the piano by Miss Elizabeth Cole.

The efficiency banner was awarded to the Magnolia Baptist church by Andrew Allen, assistant state Sunday school superintendent.

crash, the message from the airship said:

"Thanks for valuable assistance. Will not require further aid tonight."

But at 2:44 the airship wirelessed asking for position. Croydon station replied that the R-101 was one kilometer south of Beauvais. At 3:15 Le Bourget broadcast to Croyden that the ship was afire after the crash.

With Lord Thomson, the flower of Britain's small staff of technical experts on lighter than air machines were wiped out in the disaster.

Air Leaders Killed

Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, was director of airship development under air ministry, supervising research, design, flying organization, construction and maintenance with headquarters at the Royal Airship works at Cardington. Colmore was born in 1887. He joined the royal navy in 1907 and was transferred to the airship section of the navy in 1916. He was aboard the R-100 on the recent Canadian flight.

Major G. H. Scott, assistant director of airship control, was born in 1888. He joined the royal navy air force at the outbreak of the world war and became captain of the R-9, the first British rigid dirigible. He commanded the R-34 on its flight to the United States in 1919 and was awarded the C. B. E. In 1920 he was appointed to the techincal staff at the Cardington works where he invented the air ministry's mooring tower. He was aboard the R-100 on the Canadian flight.

Lieutenant V. C. Richmond, assistant director of airship development was born in 1893 and joined the naval air service in 1915. He was engaged until the end of the war in the construction of non-rigid dirigibles. He joined the air ministry's airship research department in 1921 and designed the R-101.

Flight Lieutenant H. C. Irwin, captain of the R-101, was born in 1894. He joined the airship section of the navy in 1915. He commanded the R-33 and 4-36 in 1920. He was transferred to the Royal Airship works at Cardington in 1925 where he gathered technical data in connection with the designing of the R-100 and the R-101. He was a member of Britain's Olympic team at the Antwerp games.

'DOOMED' MAN DEFEATS LAW

gotten by society, and by the state. Even in the prison here, a voluntary hermit in his tiny cell, he is almost a mythical figure.

No Ruling Sought

Archie is grateful for this obscurity. It remains his assurance of safety. If anyone sought a supreme court ruling on his status, it might reveal that the door to the death house and its electrode chair still stands open for him.

Herron is a murderer. There never was any questioin of his guilt. In July, 1908, he had been haled before the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickett, retired minister and acting justice of the peace in Metuchen, near New Brunswick. The charge was disorderly conduct, and Herron was jailed. Immediately after his release, he went to Dr. Prickett's home and shot him dead.

On July 28, 1908, Justice James J. Bergen, in Middlesex county court, sentenced Herron to die during the week of Sept. 7. Five days later a writ of error brought a stay of execution, and Justice Bergen then named the week of Jan. 25, 1909.

At this time there arose a question of Herron's sanity, and a 30-day reprieve came from Governor Fort, who later extended it another month. On March 26, however, the governor ordered that the electrocution take place within 11 days.

Questioned His Sanity

But the records show that shortly after this order was issued, another came from Justice Bergen directing an inquiry into Herron's sanity. Prominent alienists were brought from New York and Philadelphia, and because their findings were inconclusive, the trial judge, on June 2, suspended the execution "until further orders."

This was the loophole through which Herron escaped death. For Justice Bergen died in 1923 without issuing any "further orders." And according to New Jersey law, the sentencing jurist must set the week of an electrocution.

"Archie used to tell me that he'd beat the death sentence," said Irving C. Bleam, who has been prison clerk for 29 years. "I remember him well, from the time I checked him in. I'd talk to him, sometimes, before the doctor arrived, and he always seemed perfectly rational.

"But as soon as the alienists came he'd start acting queer. He'd scream and cuss like a crazy man. The hearings dragged on for five years and ended in a deadlock. But I never could see but that Archie was as natural as anyone else.

"Star Boarder" Now

"Pretty soon everybody lost interest. The doctors wouldn't agree, and nobody felt like stirring up another long investigation. Archie didn't give a bit of trouble. I guess he'll be our star boarder as long as he lives."

Never Leaves Cell

His cell is on the second tier of one of the wings, and Herron never stirs from it. Col. Edward B. Stone, kindly but "non-coddling" warden, has offered him all the recreational privileges of a "lifer," but he scorns them. They say that the only time in 12 years that Archie descended to the ground floor was when his son came to visit him. His wife never came.

Center Keeper Joseph McChesney brought word that Herron did not care about having a visitor, but that the reporter could see him in his cell. This was about half way up the long block of little barred doors. From it, through the big outer windows, Archie can get a few minutes of sunshine, and perhaps an occasional glimpse of a bird, or even an airplane.

SOCIAL ITEMS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Mrs. L. N. Cason

Inspiring Program Follows Autumn D.A.R. Luncheon

Patriotism was the theme stressed in a beautiful original program given by Mrs. R. H. King following the first autumn monthly luncheon and business meeting of the Major Francis Grice D. A. R. chapter at the Country club Saturday. She was assisted by Mrs. Luke McCrory at the piano, Mrs. J. E. Hall with the violin and Mrs. W. M. Priddy as vocalist.

Sheets of drawing paper were thumbtacked on the wall of the mezzanine and as Mesdames McCrory and Hall played "The Sidewalks of New York," Mrs. King donned an artist's smock and drew in vivid outline the skyline and the gleaming lights dotting the New York streets and buildings. Removing the sheet she tacked it to the East, remarking as she did so, "It would not be fair to remember New York by her night lights," and drew on the picture, the Statue of Liberty, holding the gleaming torch aloft.

Mrs. Priddy sang softly "The Little Gray Home in the West," while on another sheet Mrs. King's lightning artist fingers produced the western sunset and mountains and a little gray home; this lovely pastel she placed on the West. Remarking that one of her earliest memories was of a farmer's red barn, built to pay for a farm, she drew the barn while the musicians played "Iowa the Beautiful Land," and finished a landscape that held corn shocks and brilliant yellow pumpkins during the strains of the "Iowa Corn Song." And this sketch, that seemed to touch each member's heart with a memory of her own childhood's sunset, she placed to the North.

Mrs. King remarking "But I live in Texas now," sketched while Mrs. Priddy sang "Have You Ever Been in Texas in the Spring?" Spring in Texas which she called the land of "sunshine, flowers and opportunity."

Only one sheet was left and remarking that June 17, was national flag day, Mrs. King recited as she sketched, Drake's lovely "American Flag." The blue began to touch the sheet with the lines "When freedom from her mountain heights"—and as the stars stood revealed, she said "she tore the azure robe of night" then "striped the pure celestial white," just as she drew the stripes of red across the American flag. Just as she finished the poem, Mrs. King loosened the cords that held a great silk American flag and it fell over North, South, East and West. The salute to the flag was given.

Mrs. King's program was closed with an unusually interesting talk on conservation and thrift which she deems a particular objective of the descendants of men who fought in the revolutionary war. She stressed the fact that the inner fineness of the nature lover cannot be destroyed by humble circumstances nor imitated by surface sham and pretense. "Trees and flowers, shrubs and green grass, these things are inseparably interwoven with the character of fine people," she said. A point was made of the fact that the woman who loved flowers, the man who wore one in his buttonhole, must in some way respond to that "breath from God."

Asking what was the most important thing on earth, Mrs. King said that with Drummond "we had thought love was the greatest thing," but in the material world, she stressed the importance of the leaf. "Not just the leaves of the trees," she said, "but the leaves of all vegetation." Besides water and salt, everything man eats and nearly everything he wears comes directly or indirectly from the leaves of vegetation. "Never burn them," she urged. Trees she stressed as actually vital to the continued existence of man and all other forms of life. And all who love trees must love the native birds that are so invaluable in the work they do. A general movement on the part of all the people of the country, not only to protect the insect eating birds but to nurture them was recommended. Mrs. King's talk was inspirational in the highest quality and ended with a lovely verse.

Beautiful Luncheon Table

Golden cosmos and lantana in many lovely shades with golden candles and tulle bows made the table where a delightful luncheon was served, a lovely place. There was a beautiful simplicity about the decorations.

Mrs. E. C. de Montel, regent, presided and called for the minutes and for reports from committees after Mrs. Walter Bachman had led in the salute to the flag and Mrs. C. W. Beavers had given the invocation.

Letters were read concerning the state congress to meet in Waco, and delegates elected were the regent, Mrs. de Montel, Mesdames Charles E. Borland, J. E. Hall and E. B. Bailey with Mesdames Wayland Sanford, Fred T. Couper, John Waggoner, Carrie Joline, E. T. Duff, Luke McCrory, G. K. Wilson, A. H. Carrigan, C. E. Deaton and Walter Bachman as alternates.

Mrs. E. T. Duff, state chairman of patriotic education, made a short talk on the educational work recommended and named the races who had been given educational help by D. A. R. chapters. She also told of the suggestions for changes in the bylaws that will be presented at the state congress.

Mrs. Fred T. Couper reported on the five girls who have taken advantage of the D. A. R. scholarship loan and in every report made, one fact was especially stressed, that Americanization and patriotic education cannot be separated.

The committee of hostesses for the day was as follows: Mrs. Wayland Sanford, chairman; Mesdames J. E. H. Railey, Louis Gould, Walter Cline, C. W. Beavers, N. H. Martin, Wm. McGregor, and Miss Mary Dean Smith.

Before the program, a lovely devotional was given with Mrs. R. H. King reading the Scripture and the members saying the Lord's prayer in unison.

Those present were Mesdames Eleanor D. Pace, V. C. Calvin, Clarence Apple, Walter Bachman, E. B. Bailey, C. W. Beavers, Charles E. Borland, Lula Bristol, G. T. Buchanan, Ruth S. Cain, Walter Cline, D. C. Copelin, Carrie Joline, Fred T. Couper, Sterling Crumpler, Clifford Deaton, E. C. de Montel, E. T. Duff, S. Y. Ferguson, W. E. Parshall, F. W. Fischer, J. E. Hall, Roy King, Luke McCrory, Paul Pond, Walter M. Priddy, J. E. H. Railey, Charles H. Reid, Winthrop Rogers, Guy Rogers, Wayland Sanford, John L. Waggoner, James P. Waggener, D. C. Whitney, Carrie Wilcox, Clark Wilcox, G. K. Wilson, Mary K. Hartson and Misses Mary Ann Denney, Sara Sue Denny, Nell Gibbs, Frances Smith and Mary Dean Smith.

Guests were Mesdames Arch Collins, John Prewett, W. E. Huff, W. M. Cason, Kirby Naylor, H. G. Demon, C. J. Tucker and Misses Lenore Shaw, Edith Denton and Josephine Blake.

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal Speaks at Annual Stamford Dinner

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, president of the first district of the State Federation of Women's clubs, was honor guest and principal speaker at the dinner at the Stamford Inn Thursday evening, formally opening the Pierian club year.

An informal reception was held on the mezzanine floor preceding the four-course dinner to enable all club members to meet Mrs. Oneal. Mesdames R. B. Hills, R. F. Townsend, Arnold Douthit and E. V. Hardwick, members of the entertaining committee, greeted the guests at the door, while Mrs. George Zachary, incoming president, and Mrs. Oneal headed the receiving line. Other officers composing the line were Mesdames J. M. Carter, C. F. Upshaw, George Pryor, G. C. Carothers, Allen Wimbish, J. W. Puckett and Mrs. W. B. Tayman, soloist for the evening.

"A Bird's Eye View of Texas Culture" being the course selected for the year's study, the Texas motif was stressed in this meeting. The members came to the banquet room to the strains of "Texas, Our Texas" with Mrs. J. P. Booth at the piano, and sang this stirring number led by Miss Maurine Couch. Mrs. R. L. Haynie, an associate member of the club led the club woman's prayer. Greetings were extended to the guests and new club members in a most charming way by Mrs. Zachary. Mrs. W. B. Tayman sang "The Slave Song" by Teresa Del Riego, accompanied by Mrs. J. P. Booth.

At the conclusion of the dinner Mrs. Oneal was introduced by Mrs. E. V. Hardwick, and gave a most inspirational address on the privilege of being a club woman and the work to be accomplished. Mrs. Oneal said in part: "Our lives are interwoven in the web of humanity—curiosity has led us to our new condition—as citizens of the world. Objectives for clubs and club workers were held in an interesting light as practical working ambitions."

In a final tribute to Mrs. M. P. Bewley of Fort Worth, Mrs. Oneal likened life to the golden strand woven in the web of humanity.

In addition to those mentioned, artistic hand-painted cards bearing the blue bonnet design marked places for the following club members: Mesdames W. F. J. Bailey, David Bennett, P. P. Berthelot, C. M. Francis, W. M. Hart, Floyd Johnson, W. V. Keith, E. L. Louder, W. P. Lyles, R. F. Mahood, R. E. McDonald, D. O. McRimmon, Louis F. Metz, H. H. Pennington, W. T. Phillips, Clay Randel, L. STRANGE FLUID CHARGES BATTERIES INSTANTLY

A simple, harmless fluid which automatically recharges Automobile, radio and other wet batteries instantly, is being offered on trial to users by Harry Elliott, suite 422 Eighth and Park Sts., Des Moines, Iowa. This remarkable fluid also increases the life of batteries and enables them to hold their charge indefinitely. Dead batteries charge themselves as if by magic. Old batteries act like new. No trouble—no battery expense—can be used instantly by anyone. Mr. Elliott wants agents and is making a free offer. Write him today—Adv.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

A little woman sitting next to us at the D. A. R. luncheon Saturday picked up one of the red leaves that lay along the table to see if it was one of this year's products. When she saw that we were interested, she told us of the leaves of her own southern state.

There was nothing lovelier, she said than the maple all aglow. Her face was all aglow as she told of it. "They shine like gold," she said, "and you know the side the sun touches, turns gold first."

Then we spoke of the sweetgum with its deep rich maroon which, when you see it against the sun is like a tree of fire in the distance. And she spoke of the sweetgum burr, which we had forgotten for many years.

As if it were yesterday, pictures come back to us of those little whatnots made from the sweetgum burrs. One hung in the corner of our grandmother's room and held things that we were warned never to touch.

Housewives of yesteryear were prone to make "pretties" for their homes of rather utilitarian things; but they were pretty. And in the years before whatnots were manufactured by the thousands and daubed with a little red or black and gold paint, so much the better.

The little lady to whom we talked was making a whatnot out of great spools. "You cannot use the small ones like you used to," she told us. "They are not so deep."

That is it; the spools do not hold so much thread and are not so deep. Fifty yard spools serve now where sewing the yards and yards of our grandmothers' time took the 100 yards spools and many of them. And in that day, the ready-to-wear stores were unusual mercantile establishments.

We remember in a home where two "reduced gentlewomen" lived and where we used to live in our girlhood, another manufactured product that we looked upon as a work of art. It was a chair made from a barrel and it was—up to the day of overstuffed furniture—the most comfortable thing we ever sat in. It was upholstered with calico. And by the way, we saw a chair upholstered with calico not so long ago and the price was $100.

They had little hassocks they made from clusters of cans covered with pretty colors in the same material, calico. But the barrel chair was the greatest work of art.

All things to their time. We heard a woman say at the same occasion at which we began this column, that she lived on a farm where they did not have silos and did not have cars and they never lost money and never heard of "farm relief."

Birthday Dance Honors Sam Jones Saturday Eve

With a color scheme of pink, white and green which had a pretty carnival air added by 100 balloons hanging from the lights, Mr. and Mrs. H. Duff Jones entertained with a dance honoring their son, Sam Wallace Jones, on his 16th birthday, at the Episcopal parish house Saturday night.

Mrs. Kenneth Bebb was surprised at the end of the festivities by the presentation of a small cake with a pretty question mark instead of candles. Saturday was also her birthday.

The table on the stage held the birthday cakes and pretty candles in pink while on another stood the punch bowl and mints.

Favors were vari-colored dolls, caps and balls on strings for the boys and caps and lovely sachets for the girls. No group has seemed to enjoy a dance more.

Punch and the delicious cake was served to Frances Marye Krauss, Jayne Smith, Nita Ayers, Alice Philo, Jean Hunter, Jane Clayton, Winnie Godfrey, Maurine Adams, Jean Bowie, Laura Godfrey, Lorraine Mathis, Lucile Snyder, Helen Green, Betty Ann Taylor, Helen Clayton, Kay Cason, Florence Cole, Barbara Martin, Mabel Green, Sue Cole, Mary Kate Ard and Joe Guggenheim, Edwin Bebb, Sam Jones, George Allison, Edward Silk, Theodore Bratton, Marvin Pierce, Thaxton McGregor, Dick Ackerman, Don Bowie, Bruce Benton, Randolph McCauley, Harry Ayers, Hamlin Rugeley, Weldon Guest, Ted Norwood, T. Former Wichitan Honored Saturday At Pretty Bridge

Complimenting Mrs. Man Reeme of Oklahoma City, a former resident of this city, Mesdames J. Earle Kuntz and Mike Anglin entertained with a bridge party at the home of Mrs. Kuntz, 1902 Tilden, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Four tables were arranged for bridge and in the games, Mrs. Paul Landis was presented with a hand-painted mirror as the favor for ladies high score. Temple Shell was awarded a smoking set as high score among the men and Buddy Bunch received a carton of cigarets as the low score favor.

The Halloween motif was noted in the refreshment plates, and novelty cloths, carrying out the color scheme of black and gold, were used. Paper caps were given as favors.

Those present included Messrs. and Mesdames Sam B. Spence, Buddy Bunch, Paul Landis, Bill Cook, Messrs. Walter Friberg, Temple Shell, Miss Lucille Whitman, Mrs. Man Reeme, Messrs. and Mesdames Kuntz and Anglin.

FOR ANY CHILD

CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just what is wrong but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it is constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood, Castoria is a mother's standby, and wise mothers do not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the youngster's stomach sweet and the bowels in good order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature: Chas. H. Fletcher

Three Bottles Helped Her

"I cannot praise your good medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any other mother has those tired feelings like I had, I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane Street, Fitchburg, Massachusetts.

CHURCH GROUPS MEET OCT. 9

Seymour to Entertain State Synod

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Oct. 5.—The conventions of the Synod and Synodical of Texas, with representatives from each of the 13 Presbyterials of the state will begin here next Thursday, Oct. 9. The first session will be an executive meeting of the Synodical, to be held at the manse with Mrs. C. E. Cargill. At that time plans for the Synodical will be arranged.

The first meeting of the Synod will be the opening sermon at 7:30 Thursday evening, preached by Dr. Burma, president of Trinity university, retiring moderator. Organization of the Synod will be held afterwards, and a new moderator will be elected.

Synodical meetings will be held at the Methodist church, starting at 9:30 Friday morning, Oct. 10. Mrs. B. A. Hodges of Waxahachie, president, will preside at all meetings. Friday evening there will be a popular meeting at which addresses will be delivered by Miss Sara Cochrane, Crosby, Tenn.; Miss Ann T. Reid, St. Louis, and Dr. W. P. Shriver, New York.

The presidents and secretaries of all the 13 Presbyterials will be in attendance, and due to the fact that this is an annual and a statewide meeting, many prominent people from this and other states will attend.

Kiwanis Club To Hear Fire Chief

J. L. McClure, fire chief, will be the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon Monday noon at the Kemp hotel, according to Ro Haynes, secretary. Chief McClure is to give a brief history of the Wichita Falls fire department as a part of the fire prevention week program.

Several other "oldtimers" will be present and will probably be called on for talks, it was announced.

Musical numbers for the luncheon will be furnished by G. W. McReynolds, cornetist, accompanied by Miss Mary Dollard.

G. W. Pond will be chairman of the day.

'Unreality' Is Subject Of Science Sermon

The subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, was "Unreality."

Psalms 80:7 furnished the golden text: "Turn us again, O God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved."

Included in the service was the following passage from the Bible: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things"—Philippians 4:8.

The following citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, was also read: "We must form perfect models in thought and look at them continually, or we shall never carve them out in grand and noble lives. Let unselfishness, goodness, mercy, justice, health, holiness, love—the kingdom of heaven—reign within us, and sin, disease, and death will diminish until they finally disappear." (Page 248).

John Made Fatal Mistake in His Political Preaching, Says Barron

Many Modern Rulers Would Like to Follow Herod's Example, Kay Bible Class Told

In a study of the life of John presented before the Kay Bible class Sunday morning, John Daniel Barron declared that the prophet made his "fatal mistake" in becoming a "political preacher."

"The good ruler retaliated by putting the preacher in jail," the speaker continued, "the place where many, many modern rulers would like to put some preachers whom they call political preachers."

The address was concluded with the story of John's decapitation by Herod, an act which the speaker declared was ordered because of Herod's desire to "vote the ticket straight though it offended his conscience to do so."

The complete address is as follows:

"At the beginning of the Christian era there lived in Judea a certain priest by the name of Zacharias, whose wife was called Elisabeth; to whom was born a son, who was destined to serve as a prelude to the life and work of Jesus. Their lives, as briefly recorded in the Gospels, are full of beauty, goodness and truth. It is to a consideration of this winsome family that we shall devote our time this morning.

"The good man and his wife were in the evening of their lives and were childless. Their childlessness was a dark cloud that hung over their home and shut out the sunshine and joy they so much craved. Then, to their surprise and unspeakable joy, a son was born. He came in answer to years of prayer, in fulfillment of their hearts desires. They interpreted his arrival as the gift of God and called him by a name which meant 'Jehovah's gift.' And who does not so interpret the arrival of a child? They sang, joy to the world, to us this day is born a son!

Birth of John

"When they came to name their 'gift' the neighbors and kinsfolk said: 'Let us call him Junior Zacharias.' But it so happened that Mrs. Zacharias had a head of her own and was disposed to use it on this important occasion; so she said: 'No, there will be none of that Junior business in this family. We shall call him just plain John.' The mother is usually the one that selects the final name from the imposing list of possible ones. I once heard a husband say that when their 13th baby came his wife said: 'Now, dear, you may name this one.' The proud father said: 'Very well, we shall call him Sam.' The mother firmly replied: 'We shall do no such thing. We shall call him Henry.' And Henry it stood. Those who were voting for the name Junior pointed out the fact that no one else in the family was named John. I never have seen the value of naming a helpless baby after some sorry relative. The meddlers followed up their 'straight-party-ticket' objective by appealing to the father for his vote on the question. But dear old daddy 'Zac' had learned how to act; so he called for a writing tablet and wrote down: 'His name is John.' And John it stood.

"He grew to manhood in a religious home. His parents were good people. The author of Luke says of them: 'And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.' From all the records we gather that they were simple-hearted, religious-minded folk. We infer from the character of the son who came from that home more than the records tell us in so many words. The rule is that you can tell what the nature of a home is by the nature of the children it gives to the world. There are exceptions, to be sure, but the rule is that you can tell a home by its fruits. And what fruit came from this one!

"John had a wonderful heritage. Contrary to the American conception of success and enterprise, our greatest possessions are ours by heritage rather than by any endeavor of our own. That is to say, the things that bless us most are those things which in the ultimate sense are given to us, rather than won by us. For instance, how much conscious effort have we put forth to make possible the Christian church, its music, and the religion that is expressed through it? Very little. How about the government of our nation? We have done precious little to make it possible. The great literature of the world is a gift to us. So is your radio, your automobile, your knife and fork! Our active work is the appropriation of the rich heritage and the use we make of it. John's heritage was a godly home, the richest heritage a man can have.

"A godly home is a man's greatest heritage because it is here that his personality for all time is given its direction. It is well understood by those who give study to the subject that a child is not a little adult, but a personality in the process of being made. Childhood is a period of growth in which the most important things happen that influence each individual throughout his life. None of has got away from the good and bad influence of childhood. From the very beginning the contacts we have been making have been forming the personalities we now have. The home is the earliest scene of these character-forming contacts. It furnishes the most intimate and continuous contacts. That is the reason it is the greatest of all the character forming agencies. In the home is where the child gets his start for good or bad. When we meet John late in life we infer from his character that he had a good start in a good home; that he had a rich religious heritage which he appropriated and made use. The function of religion, as I understand it, is to create and maintain in us great ideals, attitudes and motives. At least that is a part of its function. When religion functions in the home, then, it creates an atmosphere which is wholesome for the child. It is the greatest source from which the child draws the contents of his life. A miserable home gives the child a miserable start in life, and a happy, wholesome one gives him a running start. John had a running start which his parents gave him and when he got his own legs he kept running till 'he lost his head.' Every child born into the world has a right to claim such a start, and it is our business to do all we can to see that they get it.

"As in the case of Jesus, we know little of the childhood of John. In fact, we know comparatively little about him at all. The authors of the Gospels were not interested in giving the details of his life. They looked upon his as an introduction, or prelude, to the life and teachings of their main character, Jesus. So they tell us little about him. But when we piece their accounts together we get a fairly good picture of the man.

Preaches Repentance

"They tell us that during the reign of Tiberius Caesar, when Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, and Herod tetrarch of Galilee, John came from the wilderness into the Jordan region preaching repentance. What a striking figure he presented! His garment was made of camel's hair. He ate only locusts and wild honey. That is to say, he was an ascetic type of man. He came thundering his message of repentance. His message, simply put, was to the effect that men must feel sincerely sorry for their evil and turn to a life of righteousness. He emphasized the sublime and sensible necessity of producing fruits of repentance; that is, a life which shows by its works that it has changed from evil to good. A mere confession was not enough, it must be accompanied by good works. That is the ultimate test of the value and sincerity of a man's religion. He exhorted the people to share their possessions with one another. That could be done in the simple life of his day much more easily than it can be done today. I do not want, ever so pleasant as it would be, some man in this city to share with me his millions. I do not expect it. But I do hope that some of them will help me a little. That is what John would say now, no doubt. He also managed that man deaf fairly and squarely with man. What we have of his message sounds much like the preaching of Amos in the eighth century. He went straight to the point in a blunt manner, and was a most effective preacher, for he won a large following and initiated a religious movement with which Jesus later identified himself.

Fatal Mistake

"In his devotion and loyalty to Jesus, John shows his greatness. For centuries his people had been looking for Christ to come and deliver them from their enemies, sometimes interpreted politically and sometimes religiously. When John brought his message and won a large following the people begin to hint that he was Christ. In other words, they begin to mention him for the place. John had a wonderful opportunity to assume and play the role of Christ. It would have been short and tragic, no doubt, but it would have put him in a prominent position and given him an opportunity to play 'the head man' for a brief time. But he chose not to run. He said the Christ was so much bigger and better than him that he was not worthy to do him the most menial service. The author of the Fourth Gospel reports John as saying of Jesus whom he acknowledged to be the Christ: 'He must wax, I must wane.' This reveals so much of the greatness of his character. To submerge one's own interests to the lowerests of others; to subordinate oneself to another person, is one of the most difficult things to do, and sometimes one of the most worthwhile. John submerged his interests and subordinated himself to Jesus. That was an act which showed a great man behind it. Many a church division could have been averted had just one man in the congregation done this in the interest of Jesus. By subtracting from himself he added to himself; by humbling himself he was exalted; by losing his life he saved it. And in so doing was his true greatness revealed.

"But John made a fatal mistake; he became a 'political' preacher and denounced Herod for his sins. The good ruler retaliated by putting the preacher in jail, the place where many modern rulers and would-be rulers would like to put some preachers whom they call political preachers. While John was in prison Herod saw a girl dance and went crazy. In his fit of insanity he promised her anything she should request of him. Her fool mother tipped her off to request the head of poor John. When she did so the silly old Herod hesitated, but finally decided for his oath's sake to vote the ticket straight, though it offended his conscience to do so. The outcome was that John's head was clipped off and handed to the dancing damsel. What a spectacle! What a spectacle, indeed! Thus endeth the story of this noble and impressive character who blessed the world with his life at the beginning of the Christian era."

"Monte Carlo" is a good example of the way a musical comedy should be transferred to the screen, just as "Follow Thru" was a bad example . . . due, perhaps, to the fact that Ernst Lubitsch was the director of the former.

The plot in "Follow Thru" was invested with an importance it never dared assume in the stage production. There should have been more of Zelma O'Neal in her "I Want to Be Bad" number and less of the eternal golf story that kept bobbing up when least wanted. Who ever heard of a musical comedy with a plot anyhow?

"Monte Carlo" makes no such pretenses for its plot. It is treated with the most indifferent nonchalance. The most important things are obviously a beautiful blonde soprano named Jeanette MacDonald and a charming brown-eyed Englishman known as Jack Buchanan.

Miss MacDonald inspires her hearers with the feeling that she can reach any note on the scale and could sing the roof off the Chrysler building. Even the peasants in the fields and the train whistle help her out (another evidence of happy-go-lucky nonsense which is essential for a good musical comedy talkie.)

The employment of a bit of "Monsieur Beaucaire" for the ingenous though happy ending is a clever touch. Donald Novis, incidentally, is a good Beaucaire, and the He-Is-The-Prince chorus is well handled.

Zasu Pitts is good for a third of the laughs in anybody's show, and the very English Allister is a fairly good chuckle collector himself. What Miss MacDonald and Mr. Buchanan leave undone is very well handled by their comedy leads.

The Hitler Menace
"Scrap of Paper" Man
Another Opera Voice
White Seals

By EMILE GAUVREAU

"We do not regard the international agreements as law, but as something forced upon us. Germany is gagged by the peace treaties. We do not acknowledge our guilt in the war. We shall oppose these treaties by every possible means."

Thus speaks Adolf Hitler, Fascist chief of Germany, who claims he will have 40,000,000 adherents.

If Hitlerism triumphs, there is an end to all hope of international peace. Hitler will tear up the Versailles treaty as another scrap of paper, and defy the world to another war. He says he is prepared for bloodshed, at home and on the battlefield.

It cannot be too often emphasized and reiterated that Europe is historically and constitutionally opposed to peace, that all talk in favor of it is a scheme to inveigle the United States into a compromising stand. The pursuit of world federation is the pursuit of an ignis fatuus. The real American is the one who will work to keep his country out of such a mess.

A "small" person will usually scorn a small job. A "big" man will tackle anything, using it always as a ladder to climb to higher things. It is the same with ham actors. They refuse haughtily a role in a mob scene. A true talent on the other hand plays the chorus, watches his chance, and emerges at the head of his show.

Beatrice Belkin, a soprano of Roxy's Gang, knew she had a great voice. But she knew that she had to avail herself of every opportunity, great and small, to prove it. Vaudeville was no place for her, but it was a via media, a way of getting somewhere else. Today, as announced by Gatti-Casazza, she is a member of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Miss Belkin's case should be an object lesson for half the unemployed singers, virtuosos, and actors who would "rather starve," as they say, than take a job they consider beneath them.

The sighting of white seals (whose existence was never credited) by the San Diego Zoological society, on an inaccessible rock island off the Mexican coast, should interest weary globe-trotters who tell you they have seen all there is to see (including Naples) and are prepared to die.

There will always be the lament of these pseudo-romanticists over the fact that the remotest places on earth have been visited, the last paradises ruined, and that there are no more worlds to conquer. Alexander the Great, 20 centuries ago, had the same complaint to make, and wept over it!

As a matter of fact, there are plenty of inhabited islands, rivers, valleys, villages and even kingdoms, that have not known the sight or sound of civilized man. Africa, alone, still has millions of square miles as primeval as the day when Adam ate the apple.

The interior of Madagascar is practically unexplored. Whole regions in South America and Australia await the footstep of the first man. So, too, vast domains in the polar regions, as virgin as their snows.

After a search coverin' four counties, Mrs. Lafe Bud, missin' fer almost a week, returned home today from a contract bridge game fagged an' bedraggled, but $1.75 to the good. Whatever becomes o' Ex-President Irigoyen, of Argentina, his name 'll never be on ever' tongue.

Scientists, we read, are trying to split the atom. After all, this is rather a small matter to fuss about.

A Battle of Long Ago

THERE is something extremely interesting about the impending celebration of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Kings Mountain, in South Carolina.

Anything connected with the revolution is interesting, to begin with. Despite the efforts of the de-bunking school of historians, most of us persist in looking on that era as a sort of golden age, when men and issues were sketched in clear colors, either definitely white or unmistakably black. We enjoy any kind of public celebration that takes us back to those days.

Even more appealing, though, is that queer, inexplicable sense of quaintness, of story-book pageantry, that an affair like this at Kings Mountain brings to us. Going back to that far-off battle is like looking at something through the wrong end of a pair of field glasses. Everything seems reduced. The colors are clear, but the figures are tiny.

Kings Mountain was one of the decisive combats of the revolution. It altered Lord Cornwallis' southern campaign so materially that his final capture at Yorktown was its logical corollary. In its way, it was as important to the colonial cause as Saratoga. But what a small scale it was pitched on!

Colonel Ferguson, the British commander, had only a little better than 1,000 soldiers in his command. The mountaineer levies that swarmed down on him were about equal in number. At the end of the battle the British had suffered 334 casualties, exclusive of prisoners; the Americans had lost 90 men.

It is hard to realize that such a diminutive conflict could have helped settle the destinies of the two greatest nations on earth today. In the civil war a fight of that size would have been little more than a skirmish; in the world war it would have passed utterly unnoticed. Yet few American armies have fought to better effect than that army at Kings Mountain.

Consider, too, the old-fashioned picturesqueness of the thing. The British, in their red coats with white facings, were on the summit of the mountain; the colonials, in buckskin shirts and coonskin caps, came up in a long, steady line. Everything was quiet in the old, colored-lithograph manner, with officers waving their swords and platoons going into action in solid, shoulder-to-shoulder ranks. Try comparing that with a modern battle scene!

Yet the fighting that day was quite as bitter as anything in 1918. The man who got killed by a round bullet from a revolutionary flintlock became quite as dead as the doughboy of the world war who was blown to bits by a high-explosive shell. The battle looks quaint, at this distance, but it had no quaintness for the men who took part in it.

Today, though, it is interesting to look back on. The ceremonies at Kings Mountain attract us because they re-create for us the image of a vanquished day. And it may be that it is good for us to realize that some of the foundation stones of modern bigness were very tiny.

Buy It

ONCE more a familiar note has been sounded convincingly in the chorus of recommendations which purpose to restore more general prosperity in the United States.

C. C. Hanch of Chicago, general manager of the National Asso- of Finance Companies, in an address before more than 100 business men of this section Thursday night stressed the thought on which many authoritative opinions have agreed recently: Improvement of business which is now beginning is due to a resumption of willingness to buy, and will increase rapidly in the ensuing few months.

A stagnation of commercial exchange which resulted from overproduction, Mr. Hanch pointed out, has been overcome, and a normal flow of business requires only that people purchase commodities according to their capacities. There is no shortage of wealth, nor any shortage of labor, nor any shortage of raw or finished products—but the dams of fearful restraint which were thrown across the stream of economic exchange in 1929 resulted in a financial drouth. Those dams are now being lowered, Mr. Hanch declared, and soon will be removed.

In concrete terms, the speaker asserted, the man who wants a $4,000 automobile and is able to own and operate it will resume his use of that car in place of the $700 one which he felt constrained to utilize during the past 18 months. Enhancement of prosperity in the next six months will then require not an increase of supply, but movement of that which we have.

Traffic and Health

ZARO AGHÀ found conditions for life in his native Turkey highly favorable, and reached the age of 156 years without trouble; or so, at least, his press agents insist. However, visiting America to see and be seen, he promptly falls victim to modern traffic congestion and gets hit by an automobile before he can even get past New York.

It doesn't do to inspect each incident of daily life too closely, in the hope of finding a moral. Nevertheless, there is something rather apt about Zaro Agha's mishap. The ordinary conditions of health, sanitation and medical care in this country are almost infinitely better than they are in Turkey; but a centenarian is likely to find that we have raised up new perils to counterbalance things. Zaro Agha may be freer from the menace of disease here than at home—but if he had stayed at home he at least would not have been endangered by automobiles.

A New "Snyder-Gray Case"

ONE is compelled to wonder, sometimes, just how much of a deterrent punishment for crime is, even when it is swift and drastic.

It has been several years since Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray, infatuated with one another, conspired to kill Mrs. Snyder's husband and clear the path for their solid armours. The two were promptly arrested and convicted and in due time they were put to death. It should have been a warning.

But since then we have read of many, many replicas of that crime. The latest comes from Ohio, paralleling the Long Island case almost exactly.

Strange, how perverse human nature can be! People see the crime and imitate it. The swift and dreadful penalty that is exacted seems to worry them not at all.

The AGE of YOUTH

The Announcement

Through the remainder of the evening Donna played bridge mechanically—and badly. And it was Mrs. Cameron Colt who voiced the inevitable comment, "Lucky at love, unlucky at cards." But some one, Donna knew, must make the remark at least once in every evening, especially on an evening such as this.

She smiled—mechanically also—at every clumsy jest on the part of Mr. Curlew; she tried to respond in kind to the badinage of Freddie Fairleigh; she tried to look grateful for everything and to everybody, and yet endeavored to avoid mixing humility with her gratitude.

But to the fire in Frank's gaze she could not respond. And when, as cards were cut, or they changed places at the tables, his hand found hers, she did not return the quick pressure of his fingers.

And in the car, on the way home, she evaded his amorous advances.

"Please, Frank," she pleaded.

He desisted instantly, and she felt qualms of conscience at his quick yielding. This was the man who, in jealous rage, had stopped barely short of murder last night. This was the man who, frantic with jealousy, had made a disgraceful scene at a night club. Everything she knew about him was proof of his willfulness, his lack of restraint, his self-indulgence in whatever violent whim possessed him.

And now he was gentle, quick to grasp her mood and make his own coincide with hers. She felt, queerly, that she was infinitely older and wiser than Gardner, and that it was unfair of her to take any advantage whatsoever of him. For a man in love is more helpless, in the hands of his beloved, than a baby in the arms of his nurse. A sudden weakness swept over her, even as she pushed away his grasping hands, a weakness that made her long to give herself utterly and completely.

But the moment of weakness passed as suddenly as it had arrived. Because she regretted the necessity for hurting Gardner was no reason for her to abandon her intention. There could be only one reason for such abandonment, and that was love.

And she didn't love him, she kept assuring herself. It was all very well for a man to fall instantly, headlong, into love, but women were different. At least, she was different, and she believed that this difference was common to her sex. Men loved utterly with their hearts, but women loved with their brains. Oh, the heart came into it, but only after the brain had indicated the direction the heart should travel.

Her brain told her that she was not in love with Gardner. But the mere fact that she must reason the matter out, that logic should be advanced by some inner self to inform some outer self that she didn't care for him, raised doubts. She ought to know. Or was love, despite all the romances, something formless, something unrecognizable at its beginning, and perhaps gaining recognition only after it had died?

Gardner, sensitive as a man in love ought to be and so seldom is, forbore persuasion. He contented himself with the lightest kiss on her cheek as they parted at the entrance to her apartment.

"I'm going to let the papers know, Donna," he said. "Right away."

It was an opportunity to withdraw from hurting him. A public announcement, followed by an equally public breaking of the engagement, would hurt him so irrevocably. * * * But he had hurt her, injured her. * * * Word of mouth was not enough. The fact of their engagement was something that must be given formality.

She nodded mutely.

"And our marriage, Donna? You won't make me wait too long?"

She nodded again, not trusting herself to speech, lest he read in her quavering tones something of the emotion that possessed her, and guess—though this was incredible—at its cause.

The light in his eyes, the exultation in his voice as he bade her good night, the very assurance of his stride as he wheeled and walked away, hurt painfully. If there was such a thing as a female cad, then she was it, she told herself ruefully as she let herself into her apartment.

Jennie was waiting up for her. Her dour countenance was alight with joy. Gone was the repression of the earlier evening.

"He's a fine young man," said the maid, helping Donna off with her frock.

Donna stared at her.

Jannie nodded wisely. "I couldn't help overhearing you talking over the telephone. Congratulations, ma'am."

"Thank you, Jennie," said Donna.

"Poor Miss Libby. When she rented her apartment little she guessed that her man went along with it," said Jennie.

"Whatever do you mean?" asked Donna.

The maid looked at her.

"Didn't you know about Mr. Gardner and Miss Prentiss? Why," said Jennie, the tides of gossip that had been pent up for months, that Donna had never suffered to be released, bursting the dam now, "she's been in love with Mr. Gardner for years. Since they were boy and girl together. And he—lots of people thought he cared for her, too, and that it was only his drinking and carrying on that made them not get married. But I guess they were all wrong."

"What are you telling me, Jennie?" cried Donna.

Jennie took quick alarm.

"Oh, I don't mean that they were ever engaged, or anything like that, ma'am, I'm sure they weren't. I couldn't be maid to a lady that was engaged without guessing it. Only—well, there's the way a young lady speaks over the phone, there's the way she dresses when a certain man is calling, there's—lots of things, ma'am. But probably she's forgotten all about him now. She'd hardly go abroad for months if she was still hankering after Mr. Gardner, now, would she, ma'am?"

"I'm sure you imagined it all, Jennie," said Donna rebukingly. She had refused countless opportunities to listen to golden gossip from the lips of Jennie and was angry with herself for having been surprised into listening now.

"Perhaps I did, ma'am," said Jennie sulkily, but instantly recognizing the warning that she had talked too much.

But after she had gone, after the light was out, Donna, lying in her bed, pondered the maid's utterances. But she owed no loyalty to Libby

"I'm sure you imagined it all, Jennie," said Donna rebukingly.

Q. Should a child be taught by an old teacher?—S. C.

A. Experience is more or a factor than age in the efficiency of a teacher, Dr. Clyde R. Miller, director of educational service at Teachers College, Columbia university, is quoted as condemning the practice of schools in engaging the recent graduates of teachers' training schools rather than teachers with long experience. He stated in a recent interview that one mature teacher, capable and experienced, who can be hired for $3,000 is worth more to a community than ten young ones who may be engaged for $1,000 each.

Q. When were calling cards first used?—J. H. G.

A. It is believed that something similar to the modern calling or visiting card was used by the Chinese or some other Oriental people in very early times. It was first used in the Western World by the Germans in the 16th century and was soon adopted in France and elsewhere. The French, under Louis XIV, used very elaborate and ornate cards. When England took up the use of the cards in the 18th century simplicity was made the standard.

Q. What does the term "vis major" mean?—H. J.

A. Vis Major is a civil law term used to denote an inevitable accident, that is, one that could not have been avoided by the exercise of care because it is the result of the operation of the forces of nature.

Q. Do many countries use a decimal system of coinage?—A. C. M.

A. Most of the leading countries use a decimal system with certain modifications. Great Britain and India are notable exceptions. The United States led the way when its coinage was adopted and France followed before 1800.

Q. What is disestablishmentarianism?—D. D.

A. It pertains to the annulling of the establishment of the church generally, including disendowment. The word disestablishmentarianism came into use when the Church of Ireland was disestablished.

Q. What countries are represented here by ambassadors?—J. E. G.

A. The following nations are represented in this country by ambassadors. They are given in the order of length of service. Mexico, Italy, Brazil, Spain, Cuba, France, Chile, Belgium, Turkey, Germany, Japan, Poland, Great Britain, Peru, and Argentina. Argentina is not at present represented by an ambassador, but by the Counselor of Embassy who is acting as charge d' affaires ad interim.

Q.—What was the date of the earthquake in Japan about seven years ago?—How many lives were lost?—J. F.

A.—The earthquake in Japan occurred on Sept. 1, 1923. The number of lives lost was 99,331.

Q.—What person has the most space devoted to him in the new Who's Who?—A. B.

A.—With 108 lines, Dr. William E. Barton ranks first in space in the 1930-31 edition of Who's Who in America. Next is Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler with 105 lines and Samuel Untermeyer is third with 102.

Q.—Was one of President Grant's sons his secretary while he was president?—A. C. C.

A.—Ulysses S. Grant Jr. was his father's secretary during his presidential term. Later he practiced law, dealt in real estate, and took a great interest in Republican politics. He died in California, Sept. 25, 1929.

Q.—Who started the Playground and Recreation association?—F. G.

A.—The association was organized in 1906 by Theodore Roosevelt, Luther Halsey Gulick, Jacob Riis, Jane Addams, and others. At that time only 41 cities had public play areas under leadership. The number has now increased to about 900 cities and towns.

Q.—How much money was spent in Europe by Americans last year? —L. A.

A.—In 1929, 282,702 American tourists went to Europe and the Levant. The estimate of the amount of money spent in Europe was $300,000,000.

Q.—Which state in Australia has the largest population?—A. M. T.

A.—New South Wales has the largest population—2,415,511. Sydney, its capital, has a population of 1,101,190. It is the largest city in Australia and one of the largest in the British empire.

MR. X TO END VISIT TODAY

Bowling Test Final Event On Schedule

Mr. X's Program for Monday

11 a. m.—Play a game of chess and checkers at the Marshall and Ryan Recreation parlor.

Noon—Luncheon.

3 p. m.—Dress a girl in ladies' hose at Montgomery Ward store.

4 p. m.—Wash and iron 100 one-dollar bills at the Sears-Roebuck store.

5 p. m.—Make a man in the display window of the Nathan Lynch store.

6 p. m.—Dinner.

7:30 p. m.—Lead the Caballeros band through a concert at Ninth and Brook streets.

8 p. m.—Model a head and bust out of a piece of electrified ice for the Wichita Ice company, at Ninth and Brook streets.

9 p. m.—Entertain at the I. O. O. F. meeting.

10 p. m.—Bowl against an unknown champion at the Spudder Bowling alleys.

Mr. X will finish his activities in this city at 10 o'clock Monday night when he will bowl a game against one of the city champions at the season opening night at the Spudder Bowling alleys.

Mr. X does not know who he will be matched against, but he insists that they both bowl left handed, just to make the game more interesting.

Prizes will be given to the best single game score between 9 and 10 o'clock. Mr. X is scheduled to start playing at 10 o'clock.

Owing to the heavy rain on Saturday, Mr. X was requested to postpone some of his demonstrations, and he obligingly did so, his program shows just what he will do and the hour of his appearance at each store.

His last talk to a gathering will be at the I. O. O. F. club, at 9 o'clock. At 7:30 o'clock in the evening, Mr. X will lead the Caballeros band through a concert at Ninth street and Brook avenue. This has been requested by the master of the band, Paul Seeds, who trained the boys at the Paul Seeds studio of band music. The boys have won two loving cups, and have recently been equipped with a new and attractive uniform, which they will wear on Monday night, if it does not rain.

Following the concert, Mr. X will be a sculptor for an hour, when he will attempt to carve the head of a prominent citizen out of a piece of electrified ice. This request came from the Wichita Ice company, and Mr. X asserts that it will be more difficult than carving out of stone, but he will attempt it, and probably succeed.

On the afternoon of Saturday, Mr. X painted a picture, not in oils, but in house paints, in the show window of the Wichita Hardware company. His subject, a scene from Egypt, depicted the Pyramids, with the Moslem mosque in the distance. Mr. X, who has traveled in Egypt knows this scene well, and he says that the colors in his picture are true to life.

At 11 o'clock this morning Mr. X will play a game of chess and checkers at the Marshall and John's Recreation parlor, 812 Scott avenue. Chess will be played against C. R. Fuller, and the game of checkers against a "dark horse."

Movies of Fellowship Camp Exhibited Here

The moving picture theaters in Wichita Falls had a new rival Sunday night when Miss Rachel Summers, executive secretary of young people's work in the Episcopal diocese of Dallas, brought the pictures of local girls and those from six parishes in the diocese taken at the Fellowship camp at Lake Worth last summer and had them shown in the Episcopal parish house.

Miss Summers was introduced by Miss Jean Hunter and made a short talk to more than 70 members and visitors present. She spoke of the splendid manner in which the local fellowship was starting the year's work and commended local girls who had given programs in camp in the past two years, on training at home.

Miss Summers is the guest of Mrs. Kenneth Bebb while in the city and will show the pictures which were first shown in Wichita Falls, in Electra, Fort Worth, Stephenville, and in three Dallas parishes. Mrs. Kenneth Bebb and the committee giving the evening's program, served refreshments to the group at the close of the picture show.

Church of Christ Has 'Home Coming' Services

The principal address at the annual homecoming at the First Church of Christ was delivered Sunday morning by Rev. L. S. White who this week is beginning his seventh year of work with that congregation.

The Rev. Mr. White recounted the various steps in the progress of the church during the past few years and dwelt on the bright prospects for the congregation at the present time. His sermon was on "Streams That Make Glad the City of God."

"Preparedness" was the theme of the address given at the church Sunday evening by G. H. P. Showalter of Austin, well known religious editor.

Immediately preceding the regular evening service, Mr. Showalter gave a short talk to 100 members of the young people's class. This address was the closing feature of the annual home-coming day for the First Church of Christ.

Dr. McKenney Gives Fourth Travel Talk

The fourth of a series of lectures on his travels in Europe and the Holy Land during the past summer was delivered at the First Methodist church Sunday night by Dr. S. S. McKenney. An unusually large crowd heard the talk on "Greece and Rome." The fifth of the series will be given by Dr. McKenney next Sunday night when he talks on the Passion Play and on his travels through Central Europe.

CHURCH DELAYS OPENING

The official opening of the new Wilson Memorial Methodist church, which was scheduled to take place Sunday, will be held next Sunday morning, it was announced by Rev. Ben M. Bell, pastor. The opening service was postponed due to bad weather.

Jews Open Eight-Day Celebration Of Harvest Festival Monday Night

Celebration of Sukkoth, the Jewish harvest festival, will be inaugurated with services at Temple Israel at 8 o'clock Monday evening. The festival, one of the most significant on the Jewish calendar, continues through eight days, ending on Oct. 14. The opening service Monday evening will include a sermon, "A Challenge and An Appeal" from Rabbi S. J. Schwab.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, the second service will be held. Morning celebrations are also scheduled for Friday and Saturday and for Monday and Tuesday of next week.

The festival is a continuance of an ancient celebration marking the world's first harvest festival, Rabbi Schwab explained, and is observed now with an emphasis on its meaning to the world at large as well as to the Jewish people.

Eight Hours of Entertainment On Marathon Bill for Cecil Bivins

Receipts at Dance Today to Go to Crippled Athlete; First Program to Start at 3 o'Clock

Six weary couples will dance to the health of Cecil Bivins at the Aztec roller rink Monday, and a score or more of the area's best known entertainers will sing, dance, wise-crack and make merry to give the crippled former football star a chance to regain the use of his limbs.

Under the expert direction of Billy Van, formerly with Al G. Fields minstrels, an entertainment program lasting eight hours has been prepared for the marathon dance for Monday and Monday night. The entire proceeds of the day's and night's entertainment will be turned into a fund which it is hoped will provide several weeks of special medical attention for the former Sherman athlete. Experts have expressed the belief that Bivins' health could be restored by the treatment. He was injured in a football game in 1919 and has been practically helpless since that time.

Six couples still remained in the marathon grind Sunday night in quest of the $1,000 in prizes offered by the promoters more than two weeks ago. The dancers had been at it steadily for more than 400 hours, each couple grimly determined to hang on for the division of money which goes to the last three couples to quit the floor.

The program by local artists will begin at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and will last until 6 o'clock. It will be resumed at 8 o'clock and last until 1 o'clock Tuesday morning. A telegram Sunday from Jimmy Rodgers, the "yodeling brakeman" who is in Houston, said he would be in Wichita Falls Monday to join the program unless prevented from doing so by his physicians.

Aged Father Faces Murder Trial Today

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Oct. 5. (AP)—A. J. Wimberley, 64, father of a large family, today awaited the opening of his trial tomorrow on murder charges in the fatal shooting of Riley W. Plant, who had been charged with a criminal attack on Wimberley's daughter.

Plant's case had been called in district court last fall and was continued. On the day the continuance was granted, Plant and Wimberley met in their automobiles on a street here and the shooting followed. The Wimberley case was set during the fall term of court in 1929 but was continued.

Aged Crash Victim Reported Resting Well

Henry Quebe, 74, of McGregor, Texas, who suffered a broken leg and two broken ribs in an automobile collision Saturday noon on the Henrietta road, was reported to be resting well Sunday by attendants at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, where he was taken following the accident.

The accident occurred, Mr. Quebe said, as he was on his way home from a business trip to Northwest Texas. Another car overtaking his machine did not leave space for both machines on the highway, he said.

Two Texas Youths Hurt In Train-Auto Crash

CAMERON, Texas, Oct. 5. (AP)—Oscar Kerns and Chester Hodson were critically injured this morning when the small coupe in which they were riding was struck by a freight train on the Southern Pacific railroad near here. It was supposed their failure to see or hear the train approaching was due to a heavy rain which was falling at the time.

Shake-Up Cuts Expenses For City of Breckenridge

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Oct. 5.—A saving of approximately $500 per month in the expenses of the city government will be the result of changes made recently by the city commissioners, according to Mayor Chas. BAPTIST MEET CALLED HERE

Laymen of District to Convene Oct. 14

Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, George J. Burnett, secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement of the Southern Baptist convention, of Memphis, Tenn., and Dr. W. R. White of Dallas will be the principal speakers at a conference for Baptist laymen, which is scheduled to be held at the First Baptist church here, Oct. 14, according to Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor. Doctor White, the secretary of the Baptist executive board for Texas, will speak in the afternoon; Mr. Burnett at the banquet, and Doctor Truett at 7:30 in the auditorium of the First Baptist church, in an open meeting.

Representative groups from churches in district 11, which embraces 13 counties and six Baptist associations, in central and north central Texas, are expected to attend this meeting.

This convention will be preceded by a series of associational meetings at which Mr. Burnett will be the principal speaker. Such meetings will be held at Olney, Oct. 8; Seymour, Oct. 9; Vernon, Oct. 10; and Quanah, Oct. 13. Each of the entertaining churches will serve a banquet to the visitors from 6:30 to 7:00 p. m., according to the plans.

Mr. Burnett will speak at Paducah at 11 a. m. and at Chillicothe at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 12.

Dr. McKinley Norman, pastor of the Quanah church, is district organizer for the budget promotion campaign.

AMARILLO CHAMPS SLAP CHILDRESS BOBCATS FROM PERCH

SANDIES MEET PAMPA NEXT

Vernon Avenges Defeat By Whipping Quanah

The close of last week's mud-bespattered football race in the interscholastic league's district No. 1 resulted in a stiff set-back to the Childress Bobcats, late class B team which graduated into class A and almost immediately hung up two fat victories.

The author of the slap in the nose Childress received was the champion aggregation of undefeated Amarillo Sandies. Journeying to the home of last year's district monarchs, the Bobcats suffered their first defeat of the season by a score of 52 to 13, and, by this defeat, oozed down into third place in the district standings.

However, the Bobcats, who had previously defeated Quanah and Vernon, showed plenty of fight, and profited from an aerial attack, which scored both of their touchdowns.

Vernon Avenges Defeat

Vernon, playing its second game of the season, avenged the defeat they had suffered at the hands of Childress, and trounced the lowly Quanah tribe, 12 to 0 at Quanah. It was the third straight defeat in as many conference starts for the Quanah outfit, and again strengthened this team's clinch on the cellar position.

Sharing the darkened hole with Quanah were the Wichita Falls Coyotes, who did nobly in blocking punts and recovering fumbles to hold the hefty Lubbock Westerners to a 13 to 10 score at Athletic park here Saturday. If anything else need be said about that grimy battle, it should be this, that had the Westerners had the advantage of a dry field, they would have kept the scoreboard keepers plenty busy. The Coyotes did fairly well on the defense, managing to smash through the Lubbock line almost at will when the Westerners wished to punt, but that Westerener line somehow pulled up when Wichita Falls had the ball. Again, the Coyotes were no match for the Lubbock backfield, Smith, Watkins, and Lawson taking the ball for gains almost every time they received it, except when there were fumbles, and these due to the miserable grounds, were many.

Westerners Keep Promise

The victory for Lubbock made good a promise by the Westerners, that they would prove to their coaches, Henry Frnka and W. H. Keeling, that they could win. They made this promise on the eve of Saturday's game, and just one week after the Pampa team had defeated them, 12 to 9, at Lubbock. In keeping their promise they charged up into second place, sharing the berth with Vernon, and loomed as one of the strongest of the district one contenders. Indeed, at this writing, it appears the battle for the bunting will be centered around the Sandies and Lubbock, Childress being doubtful, and there having been no chance last week to see if Pampa indeed has such a powerful outfit, or whether they won from Lubbock by the good graces of lady luck. The Pampans were not engaged in league warrfare last week-end, playing the Canyon class B team at Pampa in a practice game. Needless to say, the Pampans won, and by the staggering score of 72 to 7.

Two other district teams engaged in practice games last week, Electra defeating the Grandfield, Okla., team, 19 to 0, Friday at Electra; and Plainview meeting the Ralls aggregation Saturday at Plainview in a night game. Plainview won, 13 to 0.

Race in Full Swing

The district race will indeed be underway this week-end, when the last two teams to enter league competition meet in conference games. Electra and Plainview are the teams referred to.

The Electra team will be up against the Wichita Falls Coyotes, who will journey to Electra to open the season for the Tigers Saturday. It will be the second league game for the Coyotes.

Plainview will meet Vernon at Vernon Friday.

Perhaps the most interesting game this week will be the Pampa-Amarillo game at Amarillo. This scuffle will be the acid test for the Pampans. The other league game will be between Lubbock and Childress at Childress.

Quanah will not play a conference game this week, but will meet Slaton in a non-conference game at Slaton.

The district standings including last week's results:

Clubs—	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Amarillo	2	2	0	1.000
Pampa	1	1	0	1.000
Childress	3	2	1	.667
Lubbock	2	1	1	.500
Vernon	2	1	1	.500
Wichita Falls	1	0	1	.000
Quanah	3	0	3	.000
Electra	0	0	0	.000
Plainview	0	0	0	.000

Last Week's Results

Lubbock 13, Wichita Falls 10.
Amarillo 52, Childress 13.
Vernon 12, Quanah 0.

This Week's Schedule

*Wichita Falls at Electra.
*Pampa at Amarillo.

Nocona to Open Struggle Friday

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, Texas, Oct. 5.—The Nocona Indians will start on their conference struggle next Friday by playing Bellevue here. They have played so far three practice games and only lost one by a small margin, to Ryan, Okla. The score was 2 to 0. It looked much like it would be a tie all the way through the game, but Ryan scored just about the time the shot was fired at the last of the second half.

A newly uniformed pep squad is ready and anxious for service and they bid fair to be noisy to the extreme.

The Indians have a large per cent of their squad of very new timber, but they are making good right along.

The full line-up of regulars follows: Cunningham, right end; Teague, right tackle; Reynolds, right guard; Williams, center; Saye, left guard; Hill, left tackle; Garriven, left end; Evans, quarter; Zachary, fullback; Cariker, left halfback; Goodspeed, right halfback. Subs are D. Saye and Walls, 7

Grizzled Gabby Now Confident His Cards Will Win World Title

BIRDS WHOOP OVER TRIUMPH

Merry Warriors Play Fifth Game Today

Foxx managed to get a clutch on the leather and he whipped it to Cochrane at the plate, with the nimble umpire "Beans" Reardon all spread out in an attitude of alertness to judge the play. It was only fairly close.

Lefty Grove was obviously upset by the incident. Jimmy Wilson, brisk catcher of the Cards, singled before Lefty could get settled down again, Blades taking second.

Now came Gelbert, the short fielder of the St. Louis club, one of the greatest young players of many a year. A son of a famous old time all-American football player—Gelbert of Pennsylvania—who sat in the stand watching his son today.

Gelbert Singles

Gelbert also singled, scoring Blades, and while this run proved unnecessary as far as the general result was concerned, it gave Haines just that much more confidence. Each club had a run going into that fourth, the A's nicking Haines for a tally at a moment when it didn't look as if Ol' Jess had any too much stuff. As a matter of fact, he pitched more with his head than with his arm, at that. Ol' Jess is a wise man on that mound, and he had apparently studied the Athletic sluggers with great care. He never gave them anything they favored. He was a master-hand and a master-mind, too, today.

Grove pitched baseball that would have won any ordinary game. He had his real speed today, and it was masked by an overcast sky. He allowed the Cardinals but five safe hits, and but for Dykes' error the clubs might still

"I TOLD YOU SO," SHOUT HAPPY CARDS

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. Louis, Oct. 5. (AP)—A happy chorus of "I told you so!" boomed to the rafters of the Cardinal clubhouse today after Gabby Street's cockey warriors trooped in, single file, after shellacking the Athletics, 3 to 1, in the fourth game of the world series thus squaring the fight.

The grizzled Street said it would be no surprise to him now if the Cardinals annexed the next two games and the world flag.

"That's just the way I feel about the way my boys are going now," he barked. His jaws snapped together as if he were certain he knew what he was talking about.

be tied up 1 to 1. As it is, the Athletics seem to be on the run, with Old Connie Mack's strength about exhausted. The clubs play here again tomorrow, and then move back to Philidelphia to finish out the series.

Had Poor Season

Ol' Jess has been with the St. Louis club since 1919, but he is getting into the sere and yellow of his pitching days, and the past season hasn't been so good for him. However, he was a curly wolf in the world's series of 1926 against the Yankees, and the memory of his glory returned today as he serenely rode to victory. Incidentally Ol' Jess did a little tricky stick work early in the game by way of helping his team mates overcome that early hop the Athletics got on him.

The Athletics had started out as though they would beat Haines before the game was fairly under way. Max Bishop, the first man up, rapped a hot single past Jim Bottomley. Jimmy Dykes dumped down a sacrifice. Mickey Cochrane fouled out but Haines cut loose with a wild pitch and Bishop scurried to third. Al Simmons slapped a single to right, scoring Dykes, and when Jimmy Foxx followed with an infield hit, it looked bad for the big right-hander from Ohio.

But Haines steadied down after that and the Mackmen got just one more scratch him, a single to deep short by Simmons in the third inning.

Grove Uses Speed

Lefty Grove, employing his dazzling speed to good advantage under a lowering sky, set the Cards down in order in the first two innings, and the fans who had whooped so joyously yesterday, looked on with lengthening faces.

But how those faces did break into smiles and yells of delight when Charley Gelbert, on his first trip to the plate, caught hold of a fast one and shot it down the first base line into right field. The ball caromed off two angles of the fence with Bing Miller hopping after it.

Jesse Haines came to bat and rapped a single through the box, much to the surprise of Lefty Grove, who made only a feeble effort to stop the ball. Gelbert dashed home with the tying run.

This seemed to be just the tonic Haines needed for his slight attack of wildness at the start, and that only three Philadelphia players reached first base, all on passes and in different innings.

Grove retired the first two men to face him in the fourth, and it looked as though he had settled down to a tidy little pitching duel with Jess. But Chick Hafey caught hold of another fast one and sent a long fly into right field.

Break Number One

This proved break number one for the Cards, as the ball fell down behind a wire netting guarding the front row fans, and counted as a two-base hit, with Bing Miller drumming his heels against the wall in impotent rage.

All might still have been well for Father Penn's young men, if Jimmy Dykes had been himself. But Dykes grabbed Ray Blades' easy roller and flung it past Foxx, Hafey scurrying all the way home from second. That was break number two.

This brought up Jimmy Wilson, who has been the inspiration of the winning St. Louis drive towards the championship. Jimmy executed a beautiful hit and run play, whipping a single into right field with Blades easily making third base on the hit.

Charley Gelbert rapped one straight at Grove, who knocked it down but couldn't pick it up in time for the putout, and Blades sped home with the third and last St. Louis run.

After that, only one Cardinal player reached first base. Gelbert drew a walk in the seventh, but Max Bishop came through with the greatest fielding play of the entire series on Taylor Douthit's Texas leaguer to right.

Bishop turned with the crack of the bat and racing into right field, leaped and brought down the ball over his shoulder, one of those freak Merriwell plays that deserved to come at a more important moment

Both pitchers settled down to turn back their opposition, and both succeeded in as good an exhibition of world series hurling as the most ardent student of the game could desire. But the Cardinals were fighting to maintain an advantage and did so, while the A's seemed to lack the stuff to come from behind. It may have been merely Big Jess was too good for them, or it may have been they have lost their pep.

Gelbert Scintillates

The finishing touch was put to a couple of likely looking Philadelphia rallies by Charley Gelbert's magnificent fielding this afternoon.

In the third inning, Blades had to make a great running catch of Mickey Cochrane's slam to right center to keep it from becoming a double. With one out, Simmons beat out a low bounder to deep short. Foxx came up swinging his heavy war club menacingly, and rapped one down to Gelbert's right on the first hop. Charley grabbed it, pivoted and threw to Frisch to start a snappy double play and end the inning.

Again in the sixth, Gelbert made a great stop and throw to nip Jimmy Foxx by a whisker at first, while in the eighth, with Dykes on first and one out, the St. Louis shortstop dashed over behind the pitchers' box and snapped up a wallop labeled "one base hit" and threw out Simmons to put the final quietus on Philadelphia ambitions for the day.

Tomorrow, if it doesn't rain, George Earnshaw will again face the Cards, with Burleigh Grimes back for duty on behalf of the National league champions.

OLNEY REPLACES BURK IN DEADLOCK FOR CLASS B SUPREMACY

How They Did It—The Story in Pictures

A news service has as one of a hundred odd mottos, "a picture is better than 50,000 words."

If that is true, then the accompanying photos can tell how the Cardinals evened the world series Sunday by whipping the Athletics better than 200,000 words, for between the four men shown here, the Athletics didn't have a chance.

First, consider old Jesse Haines, shown at the left, whose slow drifter had the Mack sluggers eating out of his hand in all except two innings.

Then take a good look at Shortstopper Gelbert, the fielding sensation of the day, and in addition the boy who slugged out two hits, one a triple, to come out with a perfect day at bat and supply a lion's share of the punch which started the Cards to scoring.

And in addition, Gelbert started one of those famous double plays, Gelbert to Frisch to Bottomley, early in the game to thwart an Athletic rally that otherwise probably would have resulted in one or more tallies. Bottomley and Frisch, shown above with Gelbert, couldn't come up to Gelbert's standard during the day, however, especially Frisch, who despite his fielding brilliance at times, showed raggedness in some of the pinches.

Women's Golf Association Tourney Opens on Dallas Links Tuesday

DALLAS, Oct. 5. (AP)—Women golfers from every section of Texas will gather at the Dallas Country club Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the first annual Dallas Women's Golf association invitation medal play tournament.

Invitations were mailed to each member of the Texas Women's Golf association and the largest field of competitors ever assembled in North Texas was expected.

Starting off the list were more than 60 women golfers of Dallas, including some of the leading players of the state. Among them was Mrs. C. C. Cary, twice city champion and present state title holder.

Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, San Antonio, Texarkana, Wichita Falls, Beaumont, Waco, San Angelo and several other Texas cities were expected to send entries.

The tournament will consist of 54 holes of medal play competition, one round of 18 holes to be played each day.

EAGLES KNOCK BULLDOGS OUT

Cubs Start Off With Win Over Fairview

The Olney Cubs took Burkburnett's place in a three-way tie for first place in class B, district No. 3 of the interscholastic league last week when they smothered the Fairview team under a 65 to 0 score while the Eagles of Chillicothe decisively trounced Burkburnett, 53 to 0, thus relegating the Bulldogs into second place. Previous to the week-end encounters, Seymour, Chillicothe and Burkburnett were joint holders of first place in the district by virtue of victories in their opening games. The Olney Cubs, however, stormed through their first district game Friday when Fairview invaded the Cubs' stronghold, and as a result stepped right up among the leaders an action that was far from a surprise, since the Olney entry has stood head and shoulders above their foes in this section for several seasons.

Losses on Fumble

Seymour remained in the three-way tie easily, by the simple expedient of not playing a conference game. They engaged the strong Stamford team, however, and their showing was nothing to get gloomy over. In fact the husky Seymour crew held Stamford to a lone touchdown, and the fact that both teams made an even number of first downs, six each, indicates the district entry has plenty of punch. And Stamford's touchdown was scored on a Seymour fumble, the visitors winning, 6 to 0.

Tied with Burkburnett for second place is the Henrietta team, which staged one of the district's sensational battles Friday in holding Megargel to a scoreless tie. Henrietta, however, was adjudged the winner of the contest on first downs.

These were the only district matches played Friday, Archer City defeating the Alvord team, 25 to 13, in a practice affair.

In losing to Olney, the Fairview team, newcomers to the district, about lived up to the reputation of their predecessors, the Iowa Park Hawks, whose place in the conference the Fairview team took after the Hawks had withdrawn because of gloomy prospects for a winner.

However, it must be taken into consideration the Fairview team is in its first stages of growth, while the Olney outfit ranks no less than the Notre Dame of this class B circuit.

They Mean the Same

Incidentally, some confusion resulted in regard to news accounts of the Olney-Fairview game, in which the Fairview team was referred to as Thrift High school. As a matter of fact they are one and the same, Fairview being the name of the rural school in Thrift.

The Chillicothe Eagles looked powerful Friday when they calcimined the Burkburnett team. Whether Chillicothe or Seymour will be able to stand up to the charge of the Olney crew in future is a matter of doubt, however.

Next Friday will find the Fairview team in quest of vengeance at Archer City, Megargel at Burkburnett, and Henrietta at Chillicothe. The scheduled game between Seymour and Olney at Olney has been postponed to Thanksgiving day, B. C. Schulkey, district official at Olney, announced. There have been many changes in the district schedule, Mr. Schulkey said, and a revised schedule will be announced within a few days.

District standing, including games of last Friday:

Clubs—	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Chillicothe	2	2	0	1.000
Olney	1	1	0	1.000
Seymour	1	1	0	1.000
Burkburnett	2	1	1	.500
Henrietta	2	1	1	.500
Megargel	2	0	2	.000
Fairview	2	0	2	.000

Chillicothe 53, Burkburnett 0.
Henrietta 0, Megargel 0, tie.
Olney 65, Fairview 0.

Rice Owls Provide Conference With It's Only Victory Over Week-End

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 5.—The oldest inhabitant could not recollect today when the Southwest conference had come nearer drawing a complete blank than in Saturday's engagements, both foreign and domestic.

The tally showed four losses, two ties and one, lone victory. But for the Rice Owls, who came to life in the waning moments and bowled over the St. Edward's university Saints, 20 to 0, the day would have been a washout. There were, of course, a couple of "moral" victories, and the weather possibly deprived conference teams of two additional wins, but they are not paying off on that basis this season.

No Prestige Lost

All three of the section's envoys to the Mid-West came to grief after hard struggles, yet they detracted nothing from the Southwest's grid prestige. If anything, they enhanced it. The Mustangs of Southern Methodist, in particular, thrilled 25,000 fans before they submitted to the Notre Dame Ramblers, 20 to 14, in their stubbornly fought conflict at South Bend.

In scoring op the Irish in the first two minutes of play and then holding them even until late in the closing period, the pass-throwing Ponies eclipsed the fondest hopes of their followers. But for an unfortunate error by Kattman, Pony back, who interfered with a pass receiver and gave Notre Dame the ball on the Mustangs' four-yard line, that winning touchdown might not have been scored.

Almost equally spectacular was the scrap put up by the Baylor Bears against the Purdue Boilermakers at Lafayette. They went down, finally, 20 to 7, but only after they had forced the Big Ten champions to take to the air to score two touchdowns. Jake Wilson, brilliant little Baylor back, played one of the greatest games of his career, once returning a punt 55 yards for a touchdown, only to be called back because a teammate had been offside.

Baylor's strong showing, coming as a surprise even to their own section, caused Southwest conference rivals to sit up and take notice. It indicated that Coach Jennings at last has his collection of stars clicking. If so, the Bruins promise to be a real factor in the approaching race.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers' superior weight and reserve strength finally wore the Texas Aggies down, 13 to 0, in their melee at Lincoln. After being held even for the first half, the Huskers plowed down the field on straight football to score twice. Young and Paul ripping repeatedly through the Aggie line. The Aggies lost their only real opportunity to score when the half gun found them on Nebraska's four-yard line with two plays to go. Practically all the Farmers' gains were through the air.

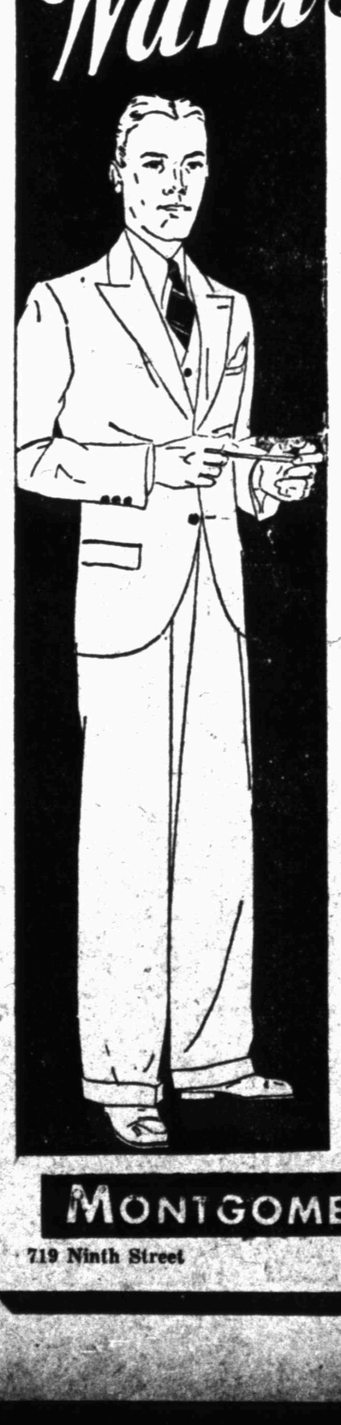

Arkansas's Razorbacks became the fourth conference club to catch a licking when a powerful Tulsa university eleven trampled them, 26 to 6, at Tulsa. The one-sided loss practically eliminated the Porkers as title contenders before they have met a conference foe. Tulsa scored a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage.

Both Texas Christian and University of Texas engaged in what might be termed "no contests," rain and boggy footing preventing their showing true form. The Frogs outplayed Simmons university in their scoreless fray at Breckenridge. The Longhorns were satisfied with their draw against the Centenary Gentlemen.

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the next day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Ads accepted for afternoon paper up until 11 a. m. same day.

Morning paper up to 6 p. m. for the following morning.

Sunday paper up to 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Same copy in both papers.

THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT IS OPEN ON SUNDAYS from 4 to 6 p. m. and telephone orders for classified ads to be inserted or to be discontinued will be accepted.

Exceptions: Want ads will be accepted over the telephone for all excepting the following classifications: Situations Wanted and Wanted to Rent. Ads for these classifications are cash with the order and will not be accepted over the telephone.

The Times reserves the right to classify all Classified Ads under the appropriate headlines and to revise or to withhold from publication any ads deemed objectionable.

Would You Plant A For Rent Sign In The Desert?

If you were the owner of a cozy home in a popular neighborhood and it was vacant, you wouldn't plant a sign in the desert telling folks about it.

You'd hardly put one in the window—because compared to the people you can reach through Want-Ads, it would be almost useless.

Certainly, then, when seeking a tenant for a flat, bungalow or apartment you'll do as other people, who save time and income, have done for years—

THE AGE Of YOUTH

Prentiss. She was merely the young woman whose apartment Donna had rented. Not by the farthest stretch of the imagination could it be charged that Donna had stolen Libby's lover from the absent girl. Sheerest accident had caused Gardner to stumble into Donna's life, and by no design of hers had the young man remained in that life.

Nevertheless, she would be hurting Libby Prentiss. * * * But this was too absurd! There would be no marriages in this world if every prospective bride and every prospective groom hesitated at the altar lest the vows about to be exchanged hurt another person. Moreover—and in the darkness her eyes were cynical—Libby's hurt soul would be salved when the engagement was broken.

If—and she tried to read her own heart—it ever were broken. She fell asleep pondering the question. And, because she was so utterly worn out, her tired brain did no shadowy maneuvering in dreams, but slept as soundly as her body.

At the first uneasy stirring that preceeds wakefulness Jennie was at Donna's bedside. She bore with her a copy of the morning paper, opened at an inner page, and her voice trembled and her hands shook as she showed the headline at the top of three columns, to her mistress: Frank Gardner Engaged.

"I knew you'd want to see it, first thing," said Jennie.

Donna greedily read the story beneath the black caption. The story was signed by Mr. Manhattan.

"Frank Gardner—Francis Albert Wiggam Gardner, to give the gentleman his due collection of names—is to wed. Crafty mammas, angling aunties, greedy grandmas, give up hope for your daughters, nieces and granddaughters. From out of the West has come a feminine Lochinvar and she has ridden away with the prize matrimonial catch of this or any recent season.

"Miss Donna Raynor is the lucky girl, and I trust she will not think Mr. Manhattan lacking in chivalry because he says that she is lucky. For we will cheerfully concede that Frank Gardner is also lucky. Which bow having been offered to courtesy, we will reiterate that any girl who has caught Frank Gardner is extremely fortunate.

"When Mr. Manhattan received the announcement last night—lest there be doubt as to the authenticity of this story let it be stated here that Mr. Gardner himself gave the news to Mr. Manhattan—he told the managing editor to hold up the press, to change the make-up of this page, and is now writing these lines in terrific haste. For love is mighty, but presses must not be delayed.

"Miss Raynor, who comes from an estimable family in the Middle West, is not very well known to New York society, but what few affairs she has graced with her presence have been thereby made more successful. Not that she is at all an outsider. Sue Philemon's most intimate friend can hardly be called that. She is a blonde, beautiful, and her charm has won her many friends.

"Frank Gardner's reputation as an heir to—"

Donna put the paper down as Jennie reappeared with coffee. She knew what Mr. Manhattan would write about Frank Gardner and was disinterested. Only idly, too, did she note that the paper had printed again a picture of Sue Philemon and herself.

The impossible had happened. Whoever had heard Frank's words at the night club would dismiss as incredible any idea that truth lay behind his charge. Men—of Frank Gardner's type—didn't marry girls who they even remotely suspected were not chaste. At worst, Frank would be put down as a young bounder who, mad with jealousy, had said whatever came into his head. Shoulders would be shrugged, of course, because she could love a man who had been guilty of such a scene, but—all would be forgotten.

The telephone rang in the next room. Jennie appeared.

"Miss Philemon," she said. "And newspapers have been ringing up, and—oh, Mr. Granby has telephoned three times."

Donna took up the receiver by her bed.

"Sue?"

"Darling!" ejaculated the ecstatic Sue Philemon. "It's too terribly wonderful. I'm so excited I can't wait to see you and tell you how delighted I am, and—can't we lunch together? And when did it happen? And have you a ring yet, and—"

"Of course, we can lunch together," said Donna.

"And bring Frank," suggested Sue.

"I'll try to. The Colony? One-thirty?"

No sooner had she hung up than the bell sounded again. Jennie, as always, took the call in the next room.

"The World," she announced.

Donna shook her head. "I'm out—to all newspapers," she said.

Snowly she sipped her orange juice, ate her toast, drank her coffee. She only showed mild interest when Jennie brought into the room a huge box of flowers from Gardner. She was thinking of Ran Granby.

What could she say to him? And back into her brain came last night's doubts and fears. Would Granby keep secret that knowledge which he possessed about her?

He was a gentleman, but gentility meant little, she had decided. Frank Gardner was a gentleman, his friends all thought, but he had acted, the other night, like a dock-worker, or as she supposed a dock-worker might act.

TILLMAN PROBE REACHES JURY

Federal Body to Study Liquor Charges

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 5.—Climaxing an investigation of more than two months into alleged crime conditions in Tillman county, the federal grand jury will convene in Oklahoma City Tuesday to consider charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws, that have been filed against five Tillman county citizens. Those accused are P. V. Ruch, county attorney; Charles Wages, county sheriff; R. S. Rogers, Frederick constable; Bill Benson, alleged bootlegger and Bud Walls, former peace officer, admitted bootlegger and admitted head of an alleged whisky ring.

The five are under bond to appear at the request of the federal court to answer to the charges pending against them.

More than 50 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify in the hearing before the grand jury. Several of those who will appear are prominent in this city and county. The list includes officials, attorneys, business men, farmers and alleged bootleggers.

Evidence will be presented by Roy St. Lewis, federal district attorney for Oklahoma, who has been working in conjunction with special investigators who have been in Frederick for the past 60 days.

In addition to the persons called as witnesses in the case many will go to Oklahoma City the first of the week in an attempt to get close to the inside of the case that has kept public interest at a fever heat during the past two months in this part of the state.

If true bills are voted against the quintet they will stand trial before a jury later in the federal court at Oklahoma City, and if bills are not voted against them will be freed of all charges in connection with the case.
