TWO KILLED IN OKLA. PLANE CRASH

Political Interest Centers in Democratic Meet Monday

QUANAH COMMITTEEMAN WILL URGE THAT PARTY LOYALTY BE REQUIRED OF ALL CANDIDATES

AUSTIN, June 7. (AP)—Some members of the state Democratic executive committee, which will meet here Monday to make up the official ballot for the July 26 primary, still are hopeful of exacting some kind of fealty expression from those who would be candidates, it was revealed today.

While several committeemen were favorable to letting down the bars to all comers in view of the state supreme court's recent decision holding Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, one of the leading bolters of the party presidential electors in 1928, qualified as candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, J. C. Marshall of Quanah, representing the 23rd senatorial district, was hopeful of arranging a way to bar from the primaries all except those embued with undefined democracy.

"I am in favor of requiring as strong a test as we can under the supreme court ruling," Marshall told the Associated Press. "I believe we ought to devise a test that would show the candidate affiliated with the Democratic party and that he would support the nominees of the primary election.

Will Introduce Resolution

"I shall introduce a resolution requiring all candidates to satisfy the committee they are duly affiliated with the party, and that they agree to support the nominees. In fact, I want to make it as strong as we

FEDERAL CHARGES EXPECTED RESULT CHICKASHA 'RIOT'

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 7. (AP)—Seventeen men, accused as rioters who wrecked the interior of the Grady county jail and killed a negro suspect a week ago, faced arrest today on federal warrants. Nine of the men had been released from jail on bond following their arrests on state rioting charges after a coroner's jury had implicated them "on hearsay testimony."

The federal complaint was filed against the men last night at Muskogee. It resulted from the burning of a government army truck during the rioting.

Deputy U. S. marshals went to Chickasha with warrants for the 17 men. They will be arraigned and Ed Frye, district attorney's aid, said he would ask bonds of $5,000 each.

Four of the accused men have not been apprehended.

DECISION PROMISED MONDAY ON DRILLING IN OKLAHOMA CITY

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (UP)—Tiers of oil derricks stood sentinel duty at the city limits tonight and others will be built within the municipal area should the district court ruling, expected Monday, allow property owners to drill for the oil they believe is under their lots.

A suit filed by the Plains Petroleum company attacking validity of city drilling regulations was studied today by District Judge Tom G. Chambers who will give a decision.

The city was faced with the loss of its major playground because it was reported that operators would exercise their lease to drill in Lincoln park.

Drilling was expected to be started immediately by the Cromwell-Franklin company as its lease on the park, center of outdoor recreation for Oklahoma City residents, expires June 22 unless the test is spudded in.

Members of the park board had previously announced they intended to spend $100,000 for improvement on the play grounds during the next fiscal year.

Property owners crowded the corridors of the city hall today in a futile effort to learn if they may drill on their lots.

Possibility that insurance may be canceled on considerable property should drilling be permitted within the city appeared probable when executives of major fire insurance companies met to discuss the situation.

'SOUTHERN CROSS' FLIGHT INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 7. (UP)—The start of the airplane Southern Cross over the Atlantic to New York was postponed indefinitely tonight because of unfavorable weather.

Kingsford-Smith hopes to reach New York in about 36 hours. He had planned to start early tomorrow until the adverse weather reports were received.

DENVER, June 7. (AP)—Maj. Charles A. Sheppard, charged by the federal government with murder of his second wife, will ask for a delay in the exhumation of the body of his first wife, Mrs. Clara Elizabeth Sheppard, his attorneys said today.

The announcement that Coroner Frank Nance of Los Angeles would grant the request of investigators for the department of justice to have the body disinterred brought Major Sheppard's statement. The first wife is buried at Inglewood cemetery in Los Angeles county.

Major Sheppard said he had no objection to the exhumation of the body but wished it delayed 10 days to enable his attorney to be present with a poison expert to examine the body for the defense.

BAILEY TAKES EARLY LEAD FOR SENATOR IN NORTH CAROLINA VOTE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 7. (AP)—Six hundred and sixty-five precincts out of 1,799 give for the Democratic nomination for United States senator: Bailey 78,499; Estep 318; Simmons 46,954.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 7. (AP)—United States Senator Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, who in 1928 refused to support his party's candidate for president, was running far behind Josiah W. Bailey, Raleigh attorney, in the race for the Democratic nomination to the senate when 332 of the state's 1,799 precincts had been tabulated at 10:30 tonight.

The senator was leading Bailey, who entered the primary with the avowed intention of "punishing" Simmons for his defection in only eight of the 48 counties from which returns had been received. Seven counties, all in the western part of the state, had reported complete and in each instance, Bailey had a good majority.

In the Republican primary, the first statewide primary ever held by the party in the state, George M. Pritchard of Asheville, congressman from the 10th district, was slightly ahead of George Butler on the face of returns from 157 precincts. The vote was Butler 756; H. Grady Dorsett 22; Pritchard 804; Irvin Tucker 222.

SPEECH BY REED IS INTERRUPTED

NEW YORK, June 7. (UP)—Radio broadcasting was halted temporarily tonight when the Tuckerton, N. J., station of the Radio Marine corporation reported it had intercepted an S. O. S. signal.

When no further messages were reported, broadcasting was resumed.

It was learned the interruption caused a break in the broadcast of former Senator James A. Reed's speech at Sedalia, Mo. That part of his speech concerned with what he called the "radio trust" was missed by the stations which were shut down.

New Einstein Theory May Throw Light on Mysteries of Space

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Einstein's announcement in London that "space is eating up matter" is another break into a new field of investigation, one not so incomprehensible as it sounds.

He has found another method of measuring space of a particular kind, the tangible space in which man lives, which is not empty but is known to be filled with gravitation, light, electrical forces, possibly with the ether and perhaps other unknowns. Einstein's figures have shown for some time that space having these properties may be limited in extent.

His theories do not say what is outside the kind of light-electricity-gravitation-filled space that telescopes can see and human brains figure mathematically. His theories do not deny the common sense of imagination which thinks of space as going on forever. They simply postulate that the mind of space visible either to the eye or imagination is probably not only limited, but likely in the end to prove different from what is expected.

MILK AND ICE FUND MOUNTING SLOWLY—TOTAL SATURDAY $237

It was serious enough with a new baby in the family, since there were two other youngsters besides the baby and mother who needed milk every day, but the old adage that it never is so bad that it can't be worse was forcibly proved when the father was taken to the hospital with a burst appendix. Gangrene had already set in. For days there was no certainty as to whether he would recover.

Today he is back with his wife and three babies—all five of them practically helpless. Through the Times and Record News Milk and Ice fund, this family has been supplied with what it needed most—cool, sweet milk every day. It isn't an exaggerated story, and it didn't come out of a book, but happened here in Wichita Falls only a few days ago.

Contributions to the Milk and Ice fund have reached a total of $237, with an additional donation of $25 from T. J. Waggoner. Those wishing to help the babies, invalids and helpless old people who are dependent on this fund may do so by sending cash or check with the following coupon:

JEALOUSY BLAMED IN DUAL SHOOTING IN CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—Apparently inflamed by jealousy, Thomas Gallagher, 40, Astra hotel night clerk, wrote a note of apology to the management and then shot and killed Mrs. Ethel Pope of Dallas, in their hotel room, this morning. This done, he killed himself.

Police at first believed the couple had married in Texas last fall, although the woman had arrived in Chicago only three weeks ago.

A verdict of murder and suicide committed while Gallagher was despondent was returned by a coroner's jury, after an inquest this afternoon.

Mrs. Pope's identity was established through letters found among her belongings. From these, police learned that she was the mother of two children, George, 10, and Vernon, 7, now in the care of Z. D. Barber of Dallas.

Other letters revealed that she had a sister, Mrs. Time Brown of Redfield, Okla., and another, Mary, employed by the Pantex Pressing company of Houston, and indicated that her parents live in New Jersey.

AMARILLO, Texas, June 7. (AP)—Unusual weather was encountered late today when U. S. highway 66 traffic was hopelessly stalled both east and west of the city by a blanket of small hailstones eight inches deep, which left the wheat fields bare over two small areas.

Automobiles attempting to plow through the hail on the pavement were hung up on high centers or were forced sideways off the road, as the hail packed up in furrows or ruts a foot deep. Each of the strips pelted by the hail was about three miles across and the extent of the fall north and south could not be ascertained. Motorists traveled from the midst of a heavy rain suddenly to a vista of fields white as though with snowfall.

Precipitation here was .60 of an inch within an hour but no damage was reported in the city. Rainfall was scattered over the Panhandle but was not heavy.

Newark Merchant and His Sister Give $5,000,000 for an Institution To Be Devoted to Higher Learning

NEWARK, N. J., June 7. (US)—An initial gift of $5,000,000 for establishment of an institute devoted purely to higher learning has been made by Louis Bamberger, retired Newark merchant, and his sister, Mrs. Felix Fuld.

Application for incorporation will be filed at Trenton in a few days. It is expected that temporary quarters may be found without using any of the initial $5,000,000 endowment. This sum will be augmented from time to time. For the present there will be no medical department.

Walton in Race as Independent Oklahoma Candidate for Senator Owens for Lieutenant Governor

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (UP)—Former Gov. J. C. (Jack) Walton filed late tonight as independent candidate for U. S. senator.

Once probably the state's most popular citizen, Walton has been embroiled in many fights, including the political maelstroms for which Oklahoma has become famous.

O. O. Owens, recently granted a pardon by Gov. W. J. Holloway on his one-year sentence and $5,000 fine for contempt of the state supreme court, filed as a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

POLITICAL INTEREST CENTERS AT AUSTIN

can under the ruling of the supreme court in the Love case."

D. W. Wilcox of Georgetown, chairman of the committee, was not optimistic. Although refusing to be quoted, he intimated that powers of the committee were few under the supreme court's order; that the committee exceeded its lawful authority at its Austin meeting of Feb. 1, when it adopted resolutions barring as state candidates all persons who failed to vote for former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York for president in 1928.

Senator Love appealed to the supreme court for the committee's action and it—the court of last resort in Texas—found that while Mr. Love had taken the statutory pledge to support the nominees of the Democratic party in 1928, he was not bound in conscience to do so. Love contended he had taken the pledge with the reservation that were Governor Smith the presidential nominee he would not vote for him. The court found that Love was not bound to go any further than his conscience would permit, and that the Democratic executive machinery had no legal right to refuse his name for a place on the party ballots as a candidate for governor because he had not supported the presidential electors.

Result Problematical

How much support Marshall would get in his move to obtain a pledge from the candidates that would hold water under the Love holding was problematical, with some of the committee inclined to certify the names of all applicants irrespective of their party affiliations—even to R. B Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman from Texas, whose application as a candidate for governor in the Democratic primaries was filed by the required number of petitioners.

Ben L. Smith of Fort Worth, representing the 28th senatorial district on the committee, was one of these. He said he was in favor of "letting down the bars and certifying every one, including Creager."

"There isn't anything we can do when we meet to pass on qualifications of the state candidate, except smoke some cigars and brag on one another," he said.

Usual Pledge Expected

The committee was expected to order printed at the head of the ballot the usual statutory pledge for voters: "I am a Democrat and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary."

Second in interest to what method the committee would adopt in an effort to make its primaries Democratic vehicles of picking party candidates for the general election next November, was the attitude Governor Moody would take toward action of his East Texas friends who "drafted" him as a candidate for a third term, and if Lynch Davidson of Houston would let stand the application for a place on the ticket as a gubernatorial contender sent in in his behalf of his Greenville admirers.

Friends of the governor were unanimous in forecasting his withdrawal. They believed he would either send a letter to the committee or appear before it personally requesting his name not to be certified as a candidate. However, he remained noncommittal, refusing to add to or take from his declaration of a week ago that he "would not like to run against" his friend, R. S. Sterling of Houston, chairman of the state highway commission.

WASHINGTON, June 7. (US)—Postal receipts for May will not be made public, it was announced at the postoffice department today. No explanation as to why the figures, issued monthly with comparisons of the same month in the preceding year, are withheld.

POPULATION OF 210 COUNTIES IN TEXAS PASS STATE TOTAL

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7. (AP)—The population of the first 210 counties in Texas reported complete for 1930 by The Associated Press is greater, by 12,000 than the population of the entire state of Texas was in 1920, The Austin Sunday American-Statesman will say Sunday.

The population of the 210 counties has been computed by The Sunday American-Statesman at 4,765,233.

The population of the state of Texas in 1920 was 4,663,228.

The net gain in population in the 210 counties as compared to their totals of 1920, is computed at 1,014,660. The total population of these counties in 1920 was 3,661,573.

From this The American-Statesman deduces that the total population of Texas has passed 5,676,818. This is computed by adding the net gain to the 1920 figures assuming that the remaining 44 counties will equal their 1920 figure.

The assumption is regarded by the paper as justifiable inasmuch as Tarrant county, one of the largest in point of population increase, Jefferson, and 16 other counties having more than 20,000 population each in 1920, have not been reported.

Inspector's Report

Insufficient speed for gliding after engine trouble had made an attempt at a forced landing necessary was ascribed by Federal Inspector Montague of Dallas as the probable cause of the biplane crash which cost the lives of Cratus Douthitt and Warren Fannin near here Friday afternoon.

Mr. Montague, after an investigation lasting most of the day, left for his headquarters late Saturday afternoon.

A plane, it was explained, requires a certain speed when the engine is cut off or goes "dead" to make a landing. If it falls short of that speed, it was added, the ship is likely to go out of control and make a nose dive. Presumably, it was continued, Mr. Douthitt and Mr. Fannin experienced engine trouble and lacked the speed necessary to hold the ship in control.

Eight Wichita Falls pilots paid their final respects to Mr. Fannin Saturday afternoon when they flew over the train in which the body of the dead airman was being taken to Kentucky. Mrs. Mary Priest was one of the pilots. The fliers dropped flowers upon the departing train.

Those who participated in the ceremony were L. P. (Pink) Hammond, Gene Graham, Burton L. Walker, Dudley Rider, Charles Smoot, Tex Logan, Ben Branson and Mrs. Priest.

Charles Parker, who has charge of the automobile registration division of the county tax collector's office, has returned with his family from a vacation trip spent in the Rio Grande valley.

James Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Harvey who has been a student at the state university at Austin, the past term, has arrived to spend the vacation with his parents.

Mrs. L. C. Robertson, Mrs. J. C. Burks, Mrs. E. L. Buelow, Weldon Buelow and Olin Harvey will leave by automobile Sunday morning for Austin, where they will attend the commencement exercises of the University of Texas. Olin Harvey, Roscoe Burks and Marvin Robertson will be among the students who will receive B. A. degrees. All three majored in business administration.

Elmer Parish, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Parish, left Thursday for Austin to enter the university for the summer session.

Billy Burgess of Los Angeles, Calif., the small grandson of Mrs. S. J. Naylor, 1310 Fillmore street, who has been visiting with his grandmother and relatives here for the past two weeks, left Saturday afternoon for Fort Worth, where he will visit other relatives before returning home to Los Angeles.

EINSTEIN THEORY MAY THROW LIGHT

relativity theory and not as well known. Under Einstein's cosmology the dimensions of space are determined by the amount of matter it contains.

More Matter Less Space

"The more matter there is, the smaller space must be," says Sir James Jeans, English astronomer explaining this Einstein cosmology in the universe around us. "And conversely space could only be of literally infinite extent if it contained no matter at all. The problem of determining the extent of space accordingly reduces to that of determining how much matter space contains."

The size of this Einstein "space," provided it exists, has been computed by astronomers. They have been able to figure the weight of all the stars and matter in sight of telescopes, and from these weights to derive the size.

They found that the outer edge of this "space" is about 600 times as far as the present limit of vision in telescopes, which can now see the distance traveled by light in 140 or 150 million years.

Einstein also holds that this space is curved, which means that owing to some still unsolved property, space is able to bend light, and make it travel in a circle, like circumnavigating the earth. So mathematicians have figured that light would travel completely around this Einstein space in 500,000 million light years. Therefore, after that long lapse, we ought to be able to look in the opposite direction in the sky from our sun, and if our telescopes are powerful enough, to see the sun's rays coming faintly from the other way around.

Einstein's words "space is eating up matter" mean that his intricate mathematics have hit upon something that may further elucidate the mysteries of limited "space."

Kaiser's Family Gathers at Doorn For Anniversary

DOORN, June 7. (AP)—A dozen or more happy-faced strangers, with their children, today came to Doorn and made their way to an old estate on the edge of this quaint Dutch village.

They wore no court regalia or military trappings, yet they comprised the remaining members of the house of Hohenzollern and formed the most notable gathering of that historic line since the brilliant pre-war days of Potsdam's splendor.

They came to celebrate with the former kaiser and war lord of Germany the silver wedding jubilee of his son, the erstwhile Frederich Wilhelm, crown prince of Germany and his wife Cecelie.

In the group were heads of the house of Mecklenburg, whose line dates back beyond its conquest by the Germans in 1160, as well as the later Hohenzollerns who ruled Brandenburg in 1415 and all Germany until 1918.

The crown prince, after observing the actual anniversary date at Hamburg yesterday, with his wife and two sons, Wilhelm and Hubert, and two daughters, Alexandrine and Cecelie will join his relatives here.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE MAY HAVE WOMAN DRY AS OPPONENT

WASHINGTON, June 7. (UP)—Maryland may have a woman dry candidate for governor in the coming campaign.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie is a candidate for his fourth consecutive term. He is a Democrat and an asknowledged liberal wet.

Women's Democratic law enforcement clubs all over the state have endorsed an extremely dry woman Democrat to oppose Ritchie —Mrs. O. Jessie Nicholson of Chevy Chase, Md., just across the line from the District of Columbia.

Her course, it is learned, will depend partly on whether the Republicans nominate a dry candidate for governor to oppose Ritchie. The only announced candidate is Mayor William F. Broening of Baltimore, who has not revealed his attitude on prohibition.

MOVE TO END INDIAN REVOLT

Stern Measures Taken by British Government

BOMBAY, June 7. (US)—The British government today took stern measures to suppress revolutionary movements in three widely separated sectors of the Indian front.

Reports reaching here from Sholapur declared that four of the leaders in last month's bloody rioting have been sentenced to death.

A detachment of 100 heavily armed troops are reported on their way from Calcutta tonight to Midnapore, western Bengal, where censored dispatches indicate serious rioting is in progress. The reinforcements were dispatched in a special train.

Terse dispatches reaching bombay from the threatened frontier city of Peshawar, in the North, indicated tonight that the Afridi tribesmen were in retreat following an engagement with British troops. The advices said that four British soldiers had been killed, but failed to mention the number of casualties among the tribesmen.

The British are reported following the Afridis in their route toward Tirah. Airplanes are said to be bombing the fleeing natives.

In this city, the local congress committee decided to intensify the boycot of British goods. It created a new "war council" headed by Mrs. Perin Captain, a parsee woman, and authorized the volunteers to picket every British store in town.

Police Fire on Crowd

CALCUTTA, India, June 7. (UP)—Police fired on a crowd of 1,500 rioters in the Midnapore district of Bengal today, injuring 17 persons.

The demonstrators were independence volunteers who were attempting to manufacture contraband salt.

They refused to disperse despite commands of police. Police charged them with batons, but they continued to resist until fired upon.

Luxury in Air

LONDON—The monoplane air yacht recently finished for the Hon. A. E. Guinness is the latest word in air luxury. It has accommodations for six passengers, and these include: Wardrobes, dressing tables, bookcases, and a bathroom. The ship has a cruising radius of 650 miles and a normal speed of 100 miles an hour. With full tank and crew it can cover 2,000 miles.

FORMER PRINCE TO BE CROWNED KING

tion of Premier Juliu Maniu and his cabinet, the chamber of deputies and the senate called a special session for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, (4 a. m. eastern standard time), when they will place the dashing prince upon the throne that was his birthright.

Thus will occur a royal shift unique in the history of dynasties, and the present boy king of Rumania, Carol's son, Michael, will become once more just a little fellow without cares other than that some day he probably will succeed his father as king.

Dramatic Return

The dramatic return of Carol by airplane made feverish a political situation that already was troubled. Premier Maniu presented the resignation of his cabinet this afternoon because the government could not agree on the proper way of handling the new development. Mironescu, the foreign minister, thereupon was charged with forming a new ministry.

But Carol's friends—and he has many of them in parliament—were busy, and their activity resulted in the call for the Sunday session, which will make a king of an ordinary citizen.

A majority of the deputies clamored today for the proclamation of Carol as king, but it was found impossible to hold a sitting of parliament before tomorrow, hence the call for 11 o'clock. He is strongly opposed by the Liberal party, but the other parties, the army officers and the people in general appear to be overwhelmingly in favor of his taking the throne of his fathers.

Says Return Demanded

In an interview the prince indicated that he returned because the political condition of his country demanded it.

"I have come to conciliate and to calm the minds of the people," he said. "I have no thought of hate or vengeance; on the contrary, I have come to facilitate union in the interests of the country."

It was one of the most astonishing coups in history which dropped the elder son of Queen Marie back to the land from which, under the dethronement law, he was supposed to absent himself for five more years.

He set out last night from Munich in a French airplane and was delayed somewhat by two forced landings en route—one near Grosswardein and the other near Koroesfor, due to a shortage of gasoline. Eventually he reached the Rumanian military airdrome at Kalusenburg and donned the uniform of a Rumanian general before taking off on the flight to Bucharest, which he reached late at night.

Through the intervention of Prince Nicholas with Princess Helen, Prince Carol this afternoon spoke to his little son for the first time in several years. Both showed emotion.

The boy king always had believed his father was on a long trip. When he viewed a film showing a shipwreck recently, he asked tearfully if his father had gone down with the ship.

Dickens looked upon Friday as his lucky day.

LOCAL LEGION POST SELLING BOOK FOR BENEFIT DISABLED

One of the most astounding episodes of the world war, the fight of the lost battalion in the Argonne, is glorified in a book of verse, "History and Rhymes of the Lost Battalion" by L. C. McCollum, which is being sold by the Pat Carrigan post of the American Legion.

Through the efforts of Post Commander C. C. Kirby the local post has produced copies of this well-known book and the sale will be conducted in a telephone campaign for the purpose of securing additional money for the disabled veterans fund.

The "History and Rhymes of the Lost Battalion" is one of the few books of the war which was written practically in the heat of battle. McCollum, a survivor of the lost battalion fight, gained his vivid impressions and jotted down words and phrases during lulls in the battle. Later they were worked into enduring war verse. The book has already enjoyed a nation-wide sale of approximately 800,000 copies. The poems reveal the humorous as well as the grim side of the late conflict and the collection, beautifully bound and embellished, makes one of the finest mementoes of the world war.

The local campaign will be conducted entirely over the telephone by ladies who have been appointed to assist the post in the work of raising funds. They will call only residents, explaining the reason for calling and describe the book. In the event the party called wishes to cooperate, he or she will be visited by a representative of the post who will deliver the book.

AUTHORITIES SEEK TO PREVENT STARVATION SUICIDE IN VIRGINIA

DANVILLE, Va., June 7. (INS)—Prompted by public opinion that the authorities should prevent Frank Davis, 58, retired farmer, from carrying out his plan to kill himself by starvation, Commonwealth Attorney P. J. Hundley today instructed Sheriff Charles Murply to visit the recluse and submit a report on his self-imposed hunger strike.

Today is the 26th since Davis has eaten any food and he honestly believed and prayed that death would come to him today, figuring man could not live longer than 26 days without nourishment.

He told callers who are trying to persuade him to take another outlook on life and agree to live, that he is just as determined to "end it all" today as he was when he conceived his novel plan of suicide. He has a shotgun, fully loaded, among his possessions, but would not dare to shoot himself, he said, because he believes this would be "morally wrong."

WICHITA WINNER AND HIS TROPHY

Joe Witherspoon, Jr., 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Witherspoon, brought home another trophy to add to his collection last week when he advertised Wichita Falls to the rest of West Texas at the annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, winning first place in the "My Home Town" contest.

Since he began to talk, Joe has had enough experience on the stage and platform to be termed a veteran in spite of his youth. As a small boy, he was used in several high school and college dramatic productions with his little sister, also a talented speaker. Both have been included on various programs almost since infancy.

Joe won the city championship in senior boys' declamation not long ago in the interscholastic league contest, and topped this victory by carrying Wichita Falls' colors to triumph in the contest at Abilene a few days ago. His prize-winning talk, which brought him $100 cash, a beautiful silver loving cup and a two-year scholarship in his choice of 12 different Texas schools, is an original composition about the history, resources and spirit of Wichita Falls.

SAN ANGELO CITIZENS GET FAST BUS SERVICE

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 7.—Inauguration of 20-minute bus service to all parts of the business section of San Angelo with the routes touching all principal residential sections of the city, has just been made by the San Angelo Bus company, of which T. P. Cheney is manager.

Plans announced by Mr. Cheney at the close of the first day of operation call for the use of five buses of 21-passenger capacity each, the last of which will be placed in operation within 30 days. The company operates lines at Albuquerque, N. M., and Casper, Wyo., in addition to the new San Angelo line.

BROTHERS TO PLEAD GUILTY

Jesse and John Cunningham Arraigned Duncan

DUNCAN, Okla., June 7. (UP)—Jesse and John Cunningham, two of the four brothers who engaged in the fatal gun fight with officers near here the night of May 12, waived preliminary hearing today and were bound over the district court.

Both of the men intimated they would plead guilty and ask for a life sentence.

The hearing was held in the county jail. Spectators were barred. Following the hearing in the jail county officers adjourned to the hospital and arraigned Manuel, who has been partially paralyzed since he was shot by officers during the fight in which Sheriff W. A. Williams, Stephens county, was killed.

H. H. Brown, Ardmore attorney, representing the Cunninghams, said Manual would plead guilty if the death penalty would not be considered. He declared that Forrest, the fourth brother, was the leader of the gang, and pointed out Forrest was dead, Manual paralyzed and the other two brothers were held in connection with the crime.

Whether County Attorney S. H. Singleton will permit the trio to plead Guilty and be given the life sentence depends on the decision of Mrs. W. A. Williams, who has been sheriff since her husband's death. Mrs. Williams indicated she had no objection to such a procedure, but did not give a final answer.

No date was set for the appearance of the three brothers in district court.

LIONEL ATWILL TO WED MRS. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR

BALTIMORE, June 7. (AP)—A marriage license was issued today at Towson, near here to Lionel Atwill, the actor, and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur and it was announced they would be married later at Mrs. MacArthur's home at Eccleston. The application gave his age as 45 and Mrs. MacArthur's as 36 and stated both had been divorced twice.

Atwill's first wife was Phyllis Relp and the second Elsie Mackay, the latter appearing in several productions with him. They were divorced in 1928. Mrs. MacArthur's first husband was Walter B. Brooks Jr., Baltimore, and her second Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, now in the Philippines.

Capture Last of Stephens County Jail Fugitives

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, June 7.—The last member of the band of five Stephens county jail inmates who made a sensational jail delivery here almost two years ago was captured Wednesday night at Ranger and placed in his old cell again Thursday. The last of the five to be captured is Marshall Rose, charged with theft. Bud Deason, county sheriff, made the arrest, going to Ranger on a tip given him Wednesday night.

Rose made his successful escape with four other prisoners by sawing their way through the back of a cell, digging their way out through the roof and then letting themselves drop to the ground with an improvised rope made from bed clothing.

Other members of the party, later captured, were Tischmaker, now in the penitentiary; Jim Voncent, Hill and Nobles. Vincent is still in jail here. The others were long since tried and convicted.

It is hardly likely that Rose will make good another attempt to escape in the jail here, since all of the cells have been rebuilt with absolute break proof steel.

HILL PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGES OF FORGERY

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, June 7.—A. L. Hill, who was brought here Wednesday from McKinney on a bench warrant to face charges of forgery, is scheduled to make the sojourn with local county officers very short.

After being lodged in jail late Wednesday by Sheriff Walker Sayle, who went after the man, Hill went before Judge C. O. Hamlin Thursday morning in 90th district court and plead guilty to the forgery charges. He was immediately given a two-year penitentiary sentence. Hill offered no alibi and accepted his sentence.

Officers said Thursday morning that Hill would not be returned to McKinney at this time, but would be immediately turned over to authorities at Seminole, Texas. Peace officers from that place are expected to come after their man at once.

OKLAHOMA'S LONG LIST OF STATE CANDIDATES COMPLETE

Last Day for Filing Names Finds Many Seek Office in Sooner State Twelve Candidates for Governor

By FRANK O. HALL
United Press Staff Correspondent

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7.—Official entrants in Oklahoma's 1930 political races increased rapidly today during the final hours of the filing period.

Although the 1,000 mark, predicted early in the campaign, was not reached, hundreds of candidates for state offices filed with the state election board.

The governor's race attracted 12 candidates, 10 Democrats and two Republicans, while the lieutenant governor's race drew a larger number. More Republicans filed for this office than any other.

Interest in the U. S. senatorial race was stimulated with the late filing of former Senator T. P. Gore. The former blind senator issued his official announcement today after completing his political survey of the state.

Six other Democrats filed for this office. W. B. Pine, incumbent, was the only Republican senatorial aspirant to file.

TWO FIREMEN HURT IN $100,000 CHICAGO FIRE

CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—Fire that lighted the loop at 1 a. m. today and for a time threatened nearby department stores, was brought under control only after it had destroyed the seven-story building formerly occupied by the American Express company.

The interior of the building, which is on Monroe street between Dearborn and State, was ruined by fire last Christmas day. Flames today completed the destruction.

Two firemen were injured, not seriously, by falling debris. Windows in the Fair Department store, Bedell's, and other business places nearby were broke, but the fire itself was confined to the express company building—one of the oldest in the loop. Cause of the fire was undetermined. Fire insurance adjusters estimated the loss at $100,000.

JUDGMENT OF $860,745 RETURNED IN INDIANA

GREENFIELD, Ind., June 7. (UNS)—A judgment of $860,745, said to be the largest ever returned in any Indiana court, was rendered by Circuit Judge A. C. Vandyke in Hancock circuit court here today in favor of Arthur B. Ayres and other stockholders of the defunct old National City bank of Indianapolis, against five former directors of the bank.

The National City Bank of Indianapolis, a $10,000,000 institution, closed its doors on March 1, 1924, and its affairs later were taken over by the Fletcher American National bank.

Need Not Fear

LISBON—The recent fad of cigaret lighters has cut the revenue Portugal has been receiving from the sale of matches considerably. Consequently, in order to protect the match industry, the government has decided that a person must own a license to operate a cigaret lighter. This license costs $1.50, which would buy enough matches to last one man nearly a year.

GORE IN RACE AFTER SURVEY

Blind Former Senator of Oklahoma Announces

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (UP)—A triple demand for "less taxes, more trade and no trusts" was made today by former Senator Thomas P. Gore in his formal announcement that he would be a Democrat candidate for the U. S. senate, seeking the toga now held by W. B. Pine.

Gore's announcement followed his political survey of the state.

"My hat's in the ring; my heart's in the race," he said.

He said he believed the saloon as "dead as human slavery."

His announcement follows:

"With the help of my friends I can win without the help of finances. To take the public into my confidence, I won my first race for the senate on an expenditure of only $1,020. For reasons too delicate to mention, I did not spend more. I mortgaged my home to raise the money. The senatorship came to me as an unpurchased gift from an unpurchasable people. I mention this because it reflects as much credit upon the state as upon myself. That was before the day of senatorial scandal; before the day when Vare, Smith and Newberry sought to purchase seats in the senate as the worst Roman emperors purchased the Imperial Purple.

"I shall make this race as an experiment and a test. I wish to see whether a man can still win a seat in the United States senate from Oklahoma on the expenditure of $1,000. As I have often said, I was born poor and have held my own ever since. The prevailing prosperity has stricken me as it has stricken others. I shall put $1,000 in this race and shall ask my friends to make small contributions. Any contribution after the $3,000 limit allowed by law would be returned. I shall arrange with the bank to allow anyone concerned to check and doublecheck my account.

"In the United States senate experience counts. I have had 14 years experience. I am still in the fighting 50's.

"If elected, I will fight for economic equality and justice to all.

"For less taxes, more trade, no trusts, no monopoly crushing individual and local enterprise like a boa constrictor whose full embrace is death.

"I am opposed to a concentration of wealth and deadly to economic freedom. I am opposed to the centralization of power as dangerous to civil and religious liberty.

"I shall seek relief for the farmer whose strength has shrunk while his burdens have swollen; employment for the laborer without government by injunction—the revival of business for the business man—the resurrection of prosperity for all.

"I need hardly say that I favor the enforcement of the law. I voted for the 18th amendment; I voted to pass the Volstead act over President Wilson's veto. As I have already said, the saloon is as dead as human slavery.

"I have a 19-year-old boy and I share the anxiety which every father and mother must feel over existing conditions and tendencies. We must 'give every child a chance.'

"As for our soldiers, something more than the sentiment 'Cheers for the living, tears for the dead'—cheer for the living, good cheer for the mutilated images of their Maker.

"These are the general principles and policies that would guide my course. I shall discuss my program in detail as the campaign progresses."

BODY OF FRANK GIBSON KILLED IN AUTO CRASH FORWARDED TO NORMAN

NORMAN, Okla., June 7. (UP)—The body of Frank Gibson, 19, Norman, was brought here today from Sweetwater, Texas, where he was killed late yesterday in an automobile accident. He will be buried here Sunday afternoon. Rev. F. O. Seamons, Henryetta, will conduct the funeral services.

Gibson was killed near Sweetwater Friday when the car on which he was riding collided with another. He was standing on the running board. Three other occupants of the car, all from Quinlan, Texas, escaped uninjured.

Gibson graduated from Norman High school last spring and planned to enter the University of Oklahoma this fall. He was hitch-hiking to El Paso, where he was to enter the citizens military training camp, when the accident occurred.

Gibson's parents were en route to Arkansas, where they planned to spend their vacation, when notified of their son's death. They returned here from Henryetta last night.

ALLEGED COMMUNISTS AT MEMPHIS ARE RELEASED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 7. (AP)—Police Commissioner Clifford Davis announced today that he had decided to release Prof. Horace B. Davis, his wife and Tom Johnson, alleged Communists, who have been held in prison since yesterday on charges of threatening the peace of the city.

He said Johnson, whose home is at Cleveland, Ohio, would be liberated today on condition that he leave Memphis. The release of Professor Davis, teacher of economics at Southwestern college, and his wife will take place later, the commissioner said.

The announcement was made after a conference Commissioner Davis held with other city officials and representatives of the American legion, who had protested against a communistic meeting Professor Davis, his wife and Johnson sought to hold her last night.

"Horace and Marion Davis seem to have been dupes of this man Johnson, who is a paid spellbinder for the Communist party," Commissioner Davis said.

Joe Norvell, a grocer, was arrested today because he was suspected of possessing "dangerous literature."

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR GETS LEAD RECEPTION

Kempson, local newspaper editor, advertised his campaign by a large balloon which he raised over his office. Two weeks ago the balloon was shot down. He repaired it and raised it. It came down again, full of buckshot holes. After it was shot down the third time he put a longer rope on it.

For two weeks the balloon stayed up, and Kempson's campaign progressed nicely. Last night he looked up for the balloon and didn't see it. The rope had been cut.

Safeway Lines Plan to Purchase 1,000 Ford Tri-Motored Planes in Next Seven Years Says Halliburton

FRISCO RAILROAD SUED FOR $25,000 DAMAGES

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (UP)—Damages of $25,000 are sought in a suit filed against the Frisco railroad today in federal court for injuries allegedly suffered by Clarence A. Brewer, 11, Chandler, on March 9, 1929, when his pony was frightened by a locomotive whistle.

The boy's father, L. D. Brewer, brought the suit. He alleged the locomotive whistle was "tooted" at a crossing and frightened the boy's pony. The pony ran in front of the train and was killed while the boy lost a foot.

The time for the Atlantic crossing by steamer has been lowered by 21 days 44 minutes since the Savannah made the first Atlantic voyage.

TULSA, Okla., June 7. (UP)—An expansion program that calls for delivery of 1,000 tri-motored planes and the placing of them in service over a period of seven years is planned by the S. A. F. E. lines, Erle Halliburton, president of the Southwest Air Fast Express, said today.

The Southwest, which is now served by 11 ships on Safeway lines, will be the first to feel the expansion, Halliburton said. Headquarters for the Southwestern division will be maintained in Tulsa.

Another conference with officials of the Ford company, relative to securing the planes, will be held next Wednesday.

Robertson, former governor of Oklahoma, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States senator today. Mr. Robertson lives in Oklahoma City.

"In order to give the progressive Democrats of Oklahoma a chance to, at least, voice their protest against conditions in the United States, I have filed for United States senator," the former governor's announcement states.

'MA' FERGUSON FIRES OPENING CAMPAIGN GUN

BELTON, Texas, June 7. (UP)—Among the home folks, James E. and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson—just "Pa" and "Ma" to the neighbors—today launched their campaign to seat Mrs. Ferguson, a second time in the governor's chair from which her husband was once ousted.

Both spoke in the initial movement for a comeback to the power both knew in Texas' most turbulent political era. Their addresses were mixtures of reminisences, explanations of former political activity and campaign pledges.

"Farmer Jim" revived again the spirit of the dirt farmer platform which well over a decade ago swept him to political affluence, while his wife promised to "bring peace to our state household where a grave condition exists and do something for the people."

Ferguson, twice governor and once impeached, threw his support to his wife, first woman ever to be elected governor of a state, when a supreme court ruling that an amnesty act passed during her tenure was invalid, barred him this year.

Platform Revised

In but one instance was his intended platform revised for her use. "Ma" today said she would seek a law to prohibit anyone from holding office who drinks liquor "unlawfully obtained." Ferguson is an anti-prohibitionist, but today conceded that his wife was justified in her stand.

"I am sick and tired of office-holders kicking and cuffing our citizens around and sending people to prison for use of bootleg liquor which they are drinking every day," "Ma" told her audience. "We will never get anywhere with this kind of law enforcement. I want the law enforcement officers to be required at least to set a good example to our boys and girls, by not drinking unlawfully themselves."

Thrusts at Moody

Mrs. Ferguson took several thrusts at Gov. Dan Moody, attorney general during her administration, whose exposure of highway department irregularities was largely responsible for his election. Referring obviously to difficulties the present administration has encountered, she said:

"When I was governor I had peace with the legislature and its labors were finished in one term. There was only one special session. There were no lynchings and the prison system was self-sustaining."

The former governor who canned peaches in the capitol mansion kitchen while her political enemies said "Farmer Jim" waved the administration baton, defended at length her exercises of pardon power. So great was the exodus from the penitentiary that "pardon me—Ma did" became a facetious by-word during her administration.

Fergnson Pledges

Ferguson promised that in the event of his wife's election "we will reform more convicts, extend more forgiveness and do more for the state than has been done since Texas made the mistake of sending "a boy, youthful Governor Moody—" to the mill.

Mrs. Ferguson promised a "business administration" with efficiency in office and abolishment of duplication of officers. She would combine the office of county tax assessor and collector. Application of business principles to the state prison system, favor of a luxury tax on tobacco, opposition to a state road bond issue and equalization of the tenant farmer with the landlord were among the planks of her platform.

Ferguson's address was in the nature of an intimate chat with the rural gentry with whom he was reared, a glorification of the "good old days," and expansion of his wife's issues.

LEWIS FREED BRIBERY CASE

Former Head of Julian Company Acquitted

LOS ANGELES, June 7. (UP)—S. C. Lewis, former president of the Julian Petroleum corporation, today was acquitted by a jury of charges that he attempted to bribe a jury in the 1928 Julian conspiracy trial.

The jury received the case shortly before noon. The verdict was returned at 3:25 p. m.

Lewis burst into tears and, walking over to the jury box, shook each juror by the hand. He attempted to express his gratitude but overcome by emoiton, he was unable to speak.

Lewis' trial opened two weeks ago, after he was brought back here on a writ of habeas corpus from McNeil Island penitentiary where he had surrendered on a mail fraud conviction to escape the state charges growing out of the Julian trials.

He was indicted recently on charges that he offered, through J. H. Weaver, 73-year-old hotel man, to pay Mrs. Caroline Love, San Pedro society matron, $20,000 to vote for the acquittal of himself and other Julian defendants in 1928.

Mrs. Love was a member of the jury which in 1928 heard the trial of Lewis and others on charges of wrecking the Julian Petroleum corporation through an asserted conspiracy to over-issue stock.

Lewis may be returned to McNeil island where he is under sentence to serve five years, either tomorrow or Monday.

ST. LOUIS BANKER ADMITS SHORTAGE IN HIS ACCOUNTS

ST. LOUIS, June 7. (INS)—Frank L. Berryhill, 39, sales manager of the First National company, the investment division of the First National bank, has admitted a shortage of $300,000 in his accounts bank officials had revealed today.

It is the opinion of Berryhill's attorney, Sigmund Bass that because of securities which he says were hypothecated by the sales manager in some of his dealings to cover margins, that the total shortage will reach nearly $400,000.

Berryhill himself could not be reached but Bass attributed the shortage in the salesmanager's accounts to his efforts to recover stock market losses in the crash last fall by using securities of customers of the First National company as collateral to cover margins.

Bass declared that his client was willing to plead guilty to any charge which might come out of his activities, and said that he would produce him whenever he was wanted, but would not reveal his present whereabouts.

WOMEN'S CLUBS REAFFIRM STAND ON ENFORCEMENT

DENVER, June 7. (AP)—With barely a ripple of dissension, the General Federation of Women's clubs today reaffirmed its stand for rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws and voted down an amendment to the resolution which would have deleted the word "sinister" in describing the "influences seeking to undermine the efficacy of the 18th amendment."

Eleven women out of a total delegate registration of almost 800 voted against the adoption of the resolution on a standing poll of the convention representing approximately 3,000,000 club women of the United States and foreign countries.

A move initiated by Miss Florence Dibert of Johnstown, Pa.,—for the sole purpose of getting the question before the convention, she explained—to strike the word "sinister" was blocked by what appeared to be a solid chorus of negative voices.

Introduction of a substitute resolution for the one read initially Friday which would indorse the principles of a bill now before congress which would virtually eliminate the children's bureau (sponsored by the federation) and transfer its duties to the public health service precipitated prolonged discussion and a fight is expected when the resolution comes up again next Thursday, to which date consideration was postponed today, against some slight opposition.

GRAYSON COUNTY MAN UNDER $500 BOND IN DEATH OF SON-IN-LAW

SHERMAN, Texas, June 7. (AP)—John Stinson, 60, farmer living near Dripping Springs, was under $500 bond tonight in the slaying last night of his son-in-law, Ray Nelson.

Stinson's examining trial on a charge of murder was held today. Stinson's daughter testified she had separated from Nelson and had since resided with her father.

Nelson, who had been living in Dallas, came to her father's home last night, she said. The ensuing quarrel ended in the shooting, she testified.

JOHNSON INSISTS ON SEEING SECRET TREATY DOCUMENTS

Replies to President's Refusal to Make Papers Public

WILL NOT ATTEMPT TO DELAY ACTION ON PACT

Borah Says Committee Has All Necessary Information

WASHINGTON, June 7. (AP)—Standing by his demand for the exchange of notes leading up to the London naval conference, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, today replied in a formal statement to President Hoover's refusal with the declaration that "it cannot be avoided by any pretense of safeguarding delicate international secrets."

Senator Johnson quoted the treaty-making powers granted by the constitution and asserted "the duty of the senate is as important and solemn as that of the president" in treaty negotiations. He said the senate foreign relations committee, had always "jealously guarded" confidential information and there "was no intention of making public the documents.

Borah Satisfied

The Californian, leading the opposition to the agreement, challenged the contention made yesterday by Secretary Stimson that President Hoover had adopted a course similar to that pursued by George Washington when the first president declined to give some foreign notes to the house.

He said Mr. Stimson had not quoted all of George Washington's statement and had failed to show that the first president did turn over the papers in question to the senate which alone has the right to pass upon treaties.

He said part of the papers were already made public and "it is silly and worse" to withhold the others.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, said he believed the committee had all the information necessary to pass upon the treaty and he would call it together on Monday to consider action.

Senator Johnson did not indicate he would seek to defer committee action pending another attempt to get the notes, but he was vigorous in his reply to Secretary Stimson who conveyed to the senate foreign relations committee the administration objections to Johnson's request.

PART OF GEMS STOLEN HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED BY CHICAGO JEWELER

NEW YORK, June 7. (US)—A part of the jewelry worth $1,000,000 police have recovered in their last two weeks was identified today. It consisted of 24 rings, worth $4,000, stolen from a jewelry salesman in Chicago last September.

The jewelry was identified by Lewis Masur, jeweler. He said one of his salesmen was riding on a trolley car in Chicago when a pair of robbers snatched his satchel, containing many valuable gems, and leaped from the car. The rings identified were the least valuable part of the jewelry that was lost.

TWO NEGROES ARRESTED IN ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

TULSA, Okla., June 7. (UP)—Melvin Webber, 37, negro, was arrested here today after Henry Bewely, night watchman, had fired upon three men while they were attempting to pick a lock on a rear door of the C. J. Wrightsman home here early today. Webber was wounded.

Another negro, giving his name as Murphy Reynolds, also was held.

SEVENTH CHINESE SHOT BEFORE INK DRYS ON TREATY

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Scarcely was the ink dry on the peace treaty signed today between the Hip Sing and On Leong tongs when another Chinese, the seventh to meet violent death in the last three days, was shot and killed in his Harlem laundry tonight.

Tong officials failed to identify the body as that of one of their members, and Police Commissioner Mulrooney believed the killing might be an act of private vengeance.

The victim was Charles Wong, 25, who operated a laundry on West 124th street. Neighbors said they saw a Chinese wearing a brown suit and a straw hat run down out of the laundry after the shooting. There were five bullets in Wong's body.

Tong warfare in the last three days had taken six other lives in Chicago, Everett, Mass., Newark and New York, and was believed by some to have ended with the signing of a peace treaty today by the leaders of the On Leong and Hip Sing tongs.

Summoned into conference by District Attorney Crain and Police Commissioner Mulrooney and warned that further out-breaks would lead to wholesale deportations, the tong leaders agreed to end the disturbances for which they disclaimed responsibility.

The leaders pledged themselves to notify the tong headquarters in other cities of the agreement.

Just Couldn't Wait

NEW YORK—John Santanella must be an impatient fellow. With only 55 days of a prison term to serve at Sing Sing, he walked out one morning and escaped. He was captured shortly after, about a mile from the prison. For his impatience he now faces the probability of another sentence ranging from 7 to 15 years.

TWO-LEGGED DOG BORN HERE

The puppy was less than 10 weeks old when the above photograph was made, but is already able to stand up and hop about with agility on its hind legs, which are beginning to over-develop sufficiently to support the unnatural strain.

One of a litter of five born in this city, Sunshine was the only one of the quintet that was not perfectly normal. With the exception of the missing forelegs, this puppy has no defects.

The puppy is friendly and follows its master about his dog kennels on the Henrietta road. Dr. Lucey believes that as the dog grows older and the hindlegs develop more strength and the canine's sense of balance gets better Sunshine will be able to hop about like a kangaroo and will never miss the absent legs.

Death Reopens Card Scandal Which Shook England 40 Years Ago

LONDON, June 7. (US)—Discussion of what is probably the greatest card scandal of all time has been re-opened by the recent death of Sir William Gordon-Cumming, Bt., at the age of 81.

Central figure in a suit for slander that aroused England and had its repercussions in America, Sir William died on the estate in Scotland, where he had lived in retirement since June, 1891.

The suit brought for slander by Sir William against those who accused him of cheating at Baccarat at a house party attended by King Edward VII when Prince of Wales in 1890 was the cause celebre of the late victorian era.

Those concerned incurred the displeasure of Queen Victoria, who had a daily summary of the proceedings telegraphed her.

When the accusations were first made against him, Sir William, in order to shield the prince from notoriety signed a document promising to refrain from card games in return for the promise that the accusations would not be made public.

Society Gossip

When the charges became society gossip, however, Sir William was forced to bring suit for slander against his five accusers. A feature of the trial was the prince's testimony on behalf of the defendants. When the jury after 13 minutes found a verdict in favor of the defendants, their finding was greeted with loud hisses from the crowded court room.

Sir William left the court room a ruined man socially. He resigned from his clubs and gave up his commission in the army. The woman to whom he was betrothed, however, refused to desert him, although he offered to release her from her promise.

On the day following the verdict, Sir William was married to Miss Florence Josephine Garner of New York. She died in 1922.

Upon Sir William's death, Sir George Arthur, his comrade in two campaigns, said:

"After the scandal Sir William retired with dignity. He was never seen in society again. His seclusion was absolute, but on his estate in Scotland he was beloved.

"It was remarkable, too, the way his fiancee stood by him, and I remember that immediately the verdict was returned General George Vesey Dawson offered to act as best man."

LONDON, June 7. (INS)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, American star of many international tournaments, Saturday won the North London tennis championships at Stamford Hill by defeating Miss Sarah Palfrey of the American Wightman cup team, 6-1, 8-6.

Miss Ryan had little difficulty in taking the first set from the young Wightman cup player, but Miss Palfrey staged a rally in the second and pushed the set to deuce before dropping it to her more experienced rival.

DIXIE LAD VICTOR IN RICH CLEVELAND RACE

CLEVELAND, June 7. (AP)—Dixie Lad, with Jockey C. Meyer up, won the $15,000 added Cleveland Derby at Thistledown track here Saturday. The race, a mile and a quarter, was run in the mud in 2:08. He paid $30 to win.

More than 6,000 fans huddled in the stands in a drizzle of rain as the race was run.

ASSASSIN HAS AVOWED HATRED FOR DIPLOMATS

LISBON, Portugal, June 7. (AP)—An assassin with an avowed hatred of diplomatic officials today shot and killed Dr. Von Baligand, German minister to Lisbon.

The assassin, who was arrested, came from Danzig with a German passport. He gave the name of Franz Piechowski, 39, and said he had at one time taken out first naturalization papers at New York.

Piechowski fired two shots at Von Baligad as the envoy was making an official call upon Admiral Gladish on the flagship Koenigsbuerg, of the German fleet now in Lisbon harbor.

One of the bullets pierced Dr. Von Baligand's head. The other smashed his jaw. The envoy was taken to the German hospital unconscious. He died in about two hours.

The assasin came to Lisbon a month ago, he said, and according to his statement to the police, he tried vainly to kill the German ambassador. Police surveillance about the embassy frustrated his plans, it was declared. The police said the man had developed a strong persecution complex, which led to today's killing. They said he had told them the German government had denounced him as a dangerous criminal to the police of all Europe and that he had had trouble also with the American authorities.

The man was cross-examined by the police, who said he came to Lisbon for the express purpose of killing the British, American or German minister and that it was only a matter of chance that the actual victim crossed his path today. He expressed no regret, the police said.

The prisoner will be examined by alienists, before proceedings begin for his extradition to Germany to face trial for murder.

MARTIN DIES IN RACE FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

GARRISON, Texas, June 7. (UP)—Bitterly attacking the alleged laxity of Mexican immigration laws, Martin Dies of Orange opened his campaign for United States congressman to represent the second Texas district here this afternoon.

He estimated that of 2,000,000 Mexicans in this country, more than half gained entry illegally. The great majority of them would have been excluded under an act of 1917 which keeps out certain classes of aliens such as illiterates, idiots, paupers and persons mentally or physically defective, he said.

Dies set forth four things necessary to prevent such entries:

1.—The number to be legally admitted must be strictly limited, preferably by a quota such as is contemplated by the Harris-Johnson bill.

2.—There must be a sufficient patrol at the border to prevent Mexicans and all other aliens from crossing the border unless they have a right to do so.

3.—There must be sufficient immigration service force to seize and deport illegal aliens.

4.—All aliens must be required to register on a public book and have a certificate proving their legal entry so that a systematic check can be kept.

REFLECTION IN MIRROR RESULTS IN ARREST OF MAN VERY MUCH WANTED

HOUSTON, June 7. (UP)—His reflection in a mirror proved the undoing of George McLaurine McKinsie, 30, with police records in several states, here today.

Three weeks ago Mrs. F. S. Cross while working in her garden here glanced through a window and saw reflected in a mirror a man in the house. When she went in, he had retreated to the door and feigned to have just arrived. She called police and he fled, but not before she noted his automobile license number.

Acting on the information, police today arrested McKinsie and charged him with burglary of the home. He was listed as a parole violator from San Quentin prison and records showed he had been arrested as a burglary suspect in Los Angeles, Dallas, Denver, Fort Worth and Springfield, Ill.; also that he was now wanted in Los Angeles for robbery with firearms.

ATTORNEY GENERAL AIDS IN PROBE OF RIOTS AT SHERMAN

SHERMAN, Texas, June 7. (AP)—The attorney general's department today took a hand in the investigation of mob disturbances here May 9 with the appearance of R. L. Bobbitt, attorney general, and William A. Wade, assistant.

Bobbitt and Wade aided in the inquiry which was being conducted by a special grand jury and conferred with county officers. After its morning session, the grand jury was recessed subject to call.

Bobbitt said "every power and resource possessed by the attorney general" would be used to vindicate the law. He added that county officers were cooperating to the fullest extent.

Fourteen persons already had been indicted in connection with the rioting and charges had been filed against nearly that many others.

SUPPORTERS CLAIM TWO-VOTE MARGIN IN TARIFF BATTLE

G. O. P. Leaders Figure Bill Will Pass by 49 to 47

KEYSTONE SENATORS WORRY REPUBLICANS

Grundy and Reed May Tie Vote Administration Leaders Admit

WASHINGTON, June 7. (AP)—Conceding the opposition the majority of doubtful votes, senate Republican leaders today figured, with all senators accounted for, the tariff bill would pass the senate late next week by 49 to 47.

This will not be the actual vote because at least half a dozen senators are expected to be absent and paired, but whatever it may be, the bill's proponents calculated two ballots would carry the long pending legislation over its biggest hurdle and obviate the necessity of Vice President Curtis breaking a tie to pass it.

In making individual polls the Republican chieftains, noted with no little curiosity the paradox of the two senators from Pennsylvania holding open minds on the bill.

Senator Grundy, of Bristol, whose name has been pinned to the bill by the Democrats, was regarded as the most doubtful although Senator Reed of Pittsburgh, has said he will not announce his decision until Tuesday or Wednesday. Loss of either of these two Keystone state senators might mean a tie vote.

Senator Grundy has not announced definitely he will vote against the bill but sometime back he indicated plainly he was displeased with it. Senator Reed on many occasions has predicted the bill would die and indicated he would not weep if it did.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, chairman of the senate conference committee, reiterated the firm belief today that the bill would pass. He hopes to complete the correction of the watch paragraphs Monday in time to report the measure back to the senate that day.

Although an attempt will be made to begin debate immediately after it is reported back, it was felt today that the new report would have to lay over a day, under the rules, before the last senate contest of the year and half old tariff measure could begin.

RECENT TONG WAR IN NEW YORK ENDED AND PEACE TREATY SIGNED

NEW YORK, June 7. (US)—The recent Tong war which has taken five lives ended today when leaders of Hip Sing and On Leong Tongs signed another "permanent" peace treaty.

The treaty was signed in the office of District Attorney Crain with Police Commissioner Mulroony and other police officials present. It read in part:

"We, representing the above named Tongs, hereby unqualifiedly pledge our respective Tongs to maintain peace and quiet and to indulge in no acts of lawlessness from this day on."

Pioneer Cattlemen Will Meet at Graham Thursday To Dedicate Tablet Erected at Giant Old Oak Tree

GRAHAM, Texas, June 7.—A giant old oak tree that threw its welcome shade over a group of ranchmen when they gathered under its branches on Feb. 15, 1877, to organize the Texas Cattlemen's association, will again witness a meeting of the officers of this society when officials of the association come together here Thursday, June 12, to dedicate a tablet bearing the names of the first board of directors.

No one knows just how old the tree really is. It was a large tree when the first settlers arrived to colonize what later became Young county. The old oak stands just off the public square in front of a hotel that has been host to ranchmen and cowboys for more than 50 years.

When the cattlemen's association was formed Graham marked the end of western civilization. Beyond that point the country was still in the hands of Indians and outlaws.

Organize for Protection

The ranchmen who gathered under the old tree 53 years ago met to form an organization that was not intended to fulfill any social functions but which was to band stockmen together for the purpose of mutual cooperation against the depredations of Indians and cattle thieves.

Like the tree, the cattlemen's association has withstood the test of time. Its first members were knit closely together by the most binding of all ties among men—they battled shoulder to shoulder to protect their means of livelihood from human and animal foes.

Since the barbed wire fence and the settlement of the state have done away with the open range they have stood together to obtain favorable legislation and better marketing facilities.

Perpetuate Memory

Now the second and third generations of those pioneers are planning to erect a memorial that will perpetuate the memory of the old tree and the men who met under its protecting branches to launch an organization that numbers more than 4,000 members at the present time.

The society was a large one in the beginning, however, for some 300 ranchers gathered in Graham on that February day in 1877 and in those times that was a large crowd for a border cowtown such as Graham was.

Officials of the organization, members of the executive committee and members from nearby counties will meet together for the dedication ceremony.

Man Wanted in Score of States for Million Dollars in Forgeries to Be Brought U. S. by Oklahoma Deputy

By JOHN R. MORRIS
United Press Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, June 7. (UP)—Joy P. Harper, alleged forger of millions of dollars worth negotiable documents for whom a score of states are clamoring, will be extradited from Mexico to the United States under a treaty now more than two decades old.

This promise is made with an ominous air of sincerity by Deputy Sheriff D. C. Kean, who came from Oklahoma county, Oklahoma, with a trunk full of documents and an overpowering desire to escort Harper to Oklahoma City. He brought also the customary reputation for always "getting his man," with the difference that in this case it appears to be justified by a long record of successful pursuit of lawbreakers.

The imposing array of legal papers—more than an Oklahoma sheriff of other days could have carried on two pack horses—is headed by a warrant for Harper signed personally by President Hoover. This is the first presidential warrant ever sent to Mexico by a president of the United States, and one of the few ever to be received from Washington. It is a true indicator of the importance which the United States government, and sheriffs in half the states of the union, attach to the return of the alleged forger.

Million Interested

At least equally interested with President Hoover is an influential member of the cabinet, Secretary Mellon. The Mellon National bank of Pittsburgh in recent months has made good almost $200,000 worth of bogus travelers checks which Harper is alleged to have produced by an ingenious photostatic process. These he scattered over more than a dozen states, including the Southwest and Pacific coast, according to warrants issued for his arrest.

For this reason Deputy Sheriff Kean is accompanied during his long sojourn in Mexico City by C. D. Rule of Los Angeles, a Burns detective agency operative who is acting for the American Bankers Protective association and the Mellon bank. Through all the three months Sheriff Kean has been watching Harper and waiting for his extradition to be approved, Detective Rule has been watching Sheriff Kean and reporting to Pittsburgh the slow progress of the case.

Despite the fact that Harper is wanted in many other cities to answer charges far more serious, President Hoover has urgently requested his extradition to Oklahoma City because the charge of larceny by embezzlement awaiting him there is one of those specifically mentioned in the United States-Mexico treaty of tradition. In the event of conviction, Harper's sentence in Oklahoma will be light compared with those implied by the warants of a full platoon of sheriffs who will greet him on the expiration of his Oklahoma term. Officers from Pennsylvania will be members of the welcoming committee at the Oklahoma prison gate, according to well laid plans of indignant Mellon stockholders.

Evades Officers

The wisdom of selecting for extradition purposes charges mentioned in the treaty has been proved by the delays Harper has been able to bring about. Arrested March 16 at the Mexico City bull ring, he has been able ever since to hold the waiting officers at bay while he continues to enjoy the hospitality of Mexican prisons. He is aware, of course, that no fugitive has ever been extradited from Mexico to the United States and his discovered attempts to bribe his way to liberty have indicated he cherished the hope of escaping a compulsory visit to Oklahoma.

His chance of winning freedom by this method, never good, went glimmering, however, when it was discovered that four $1,000 bonds he had concealed in his shoes for this purpose were as worthless as the similar bond with which he purchased a motor car in Wichita, Kan., last year. One of the other 12 warrants filed against him at local police headquarters for use in case the Oklahoma extradition should fail was sworn out by the seller of the car in Wichita as soon as he tried to cash the bond. It was of a New York street railway issue redeemed and cancelled several years ago.

It is believed unlikely, however, that any warrant other than that from Oklahoma and the imposing documents bearing the signature and seal of the president of the United States will be necessary to obtain extradition.

Meanwhile, Deputy Sheriff Kean, with an abundance of warrants and patience continues to wait.

LOS ANGELES PHYSICIAN FACES LIFE IN PRISON RESULT 'TORSO' MURDER

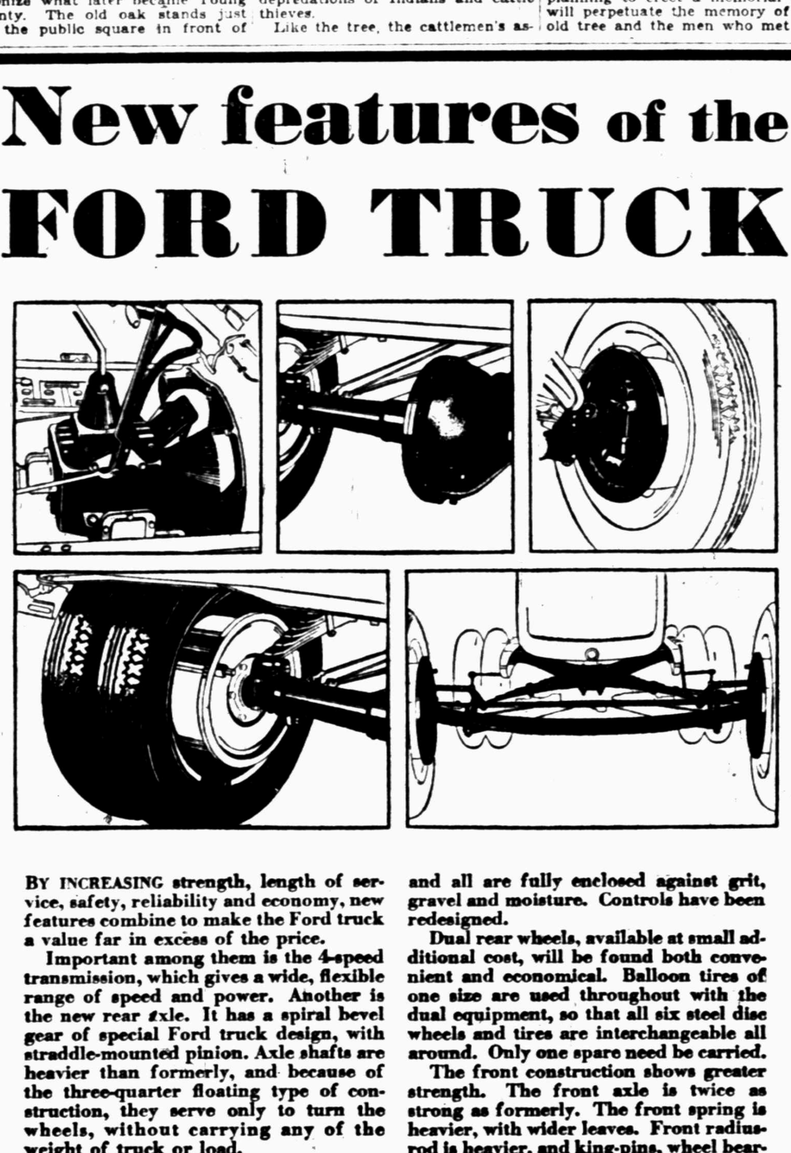

LOS ANGELES, June 7. (UP)—Dr. Frank P. Westlake, Los Angeles physician convicted of the "torso" murder of Mrs. Laura B. Sutton, today faced life imprisonment as a result of a decision of the district court of appeals.

The court held that the evidence upon which the doctor was convicted was sufficient to prove the woman had been murdered and the prisoner's connection with the crime.

New features of the FORD TRUCK

BY INCREASING strength, length of service, safety, reliability and economy, new features combine to make the Ford truck a value far in excess of the price.

Important among them is the 4-speed transmission, which gives a wide, flexible range of speed and power. Another is the new rear axle. It has a spiral bevel gear of special Ford truck design, with straddle-mounted pinion. Axle shafts are heavier than formerly, and because of the three-quarter floating type of construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of truck or load.

Brakes on the front wheels have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety. Brakes are of the mechanical type, internal expanding and all are fully enclosed against grit, gravel and moisture. Controls have been redesigned.

Dual rear wheels, available at small additional cost, will be found both convenient and economical. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout with the dual equipment, so that all six steel disc wheels and tires are interchangeable all around. Only one spare need be carried.

The front construction shows greater strength. The front axle is twice as strong as formerly. The front spring is heavier, with wider leaves. Front radius rod is heavier, and king-pins, wheel bearings and thrust bearings are larger.

Many other features add to the quality and length of service you may expect from the Ford truck. Come in and let us show them to you.

SPUDDERS GAIN FULL GAME WITH VICTORY OVER CUBS, 14-8

With the guiding lights of the Texas league and the Spudder club out of the city, things are pretty dull these days around the "Texas league baseball capital." J. Alvin Gardner, president of the league, has taken his family to California for the summer, but he planned to be gone no more than a week. Prexy William E. Huff and Secretary Guy Airey are in St. Louis hobnobbing with the St. Louis Browns. But don't get excited. They didn't go to St. Louis to get players for the Spudders. They don't think it's necessary and we don't know of anybody who does. Huff declared it was simply a social call on the Browns, and if any deals developed, they probably would concern the distant future. Milton E. Price, Texas league secretary, is in charge of the Texas league offices and A. B. Huff is the reigning power at Spudder headquarters.

There are not so many trick plays in baseball, but a few can be employed by a team in the field to register important putouts. A favorite of the Spudders that has been worked successfully at least once this season is a snap throw from Burns to Levey that nails a careless runner off second base. The most favorable spot to negotiate the play is when a runner on first is sacrificed to second. About half the time the runner from first overruns the bag at second, particularly if the bunt has been so good that he is sure there will be no play for him at second. Burns turns loose his throw to Levey the second the ball hits his glove and the runner who has not glued himself to the bag is likely to be caught napping. It's a play that will not work often, but it might easily mean the difference between winning and losing.

Buddy Tanner used to have one that he worked successfully two or three times a season, and it was worth the money to watch the procedure when he did get by with it. With a runner speeding from first to third on a single, Buddy would stand idly by his base, his hands dropped to his sides and to all intents and purposes thinking about almost anything but a play at third base. The outfielder in the meantime would hustle his throw to third and Buddy would snap into action just in time to tag out the unwary runner. We have seen other third basemen and other outfielders "play possum" at their posts in the hope that none too ambitious baserunners would take it for granted that no play was being made on them, but none could act the part as well as this Spudder favorite of the past.

James Lightnin' Spider Levey, Esq., is a tough, wiry young man. If not, he would spend half his time on the bench nursing injuries. The way this Spudder plays the game he has to be tough to stand the wear and tear. When he's on the bases he's continually running and sliding, taking chances that call for close plays and more or less dangerous slides. He has come close to getting crippled on numerous occasions, but his closest scrape came in the Beaumont series from the least expected source. He was spiked by an umpire! Levey had stretched a single into a double in the seventh inning of the first game of Wednesday's double-header. He slid safely into the base, with one toe hooked into the cushion and his long arms outstretched. Umpire Floyd Kroh was right behind him, forced to put on full speed to get to the play. He didn't stop in time and came down on one of the Spider's fingers. Fortunately no material damage was done. It could have been far worse. Levey was retired on the play, for he naturally jerked loose from the bag when the spikes of the umpire's shoe dug into the side of his finger. From the stands it looked as though he simply had over slid the bag. The umpire was right on top of that play!

Our old friend Walter Swenson is performing these days for his third Eastern league club since his departure from Wichita Falls in midseason of 1929. The Swede was transferred by the Spudders to Bridgeport in the famous Hermann-Taber trade. Bridgeport moved him to New Haven last year and just a few days ago New Haven passed him on to Hartford. Incidentally, the player received by the New Haven club was none other than Shep Cannon, a former Wichita Falls boy who saw a year or two of service with the Waco club and was graduated by the Cubs to the New York Yankees. Cannon's gain happened to be Swenson's loss in this case, for New Haven is far out in front in the Eastern league race and Hartford is down in fifth place. Hermann, by the way, is playing third base for Allentown in the Eastern league.

The Milwaukee club of the American association possesses no less than three former Texas league shortstops. Besides Rabbit Benton, Wayne Windle and Danny Bloxsom are drawing their pay from the Brewer coffers. Windle has seen little action since his purchase from the Dallas Steers, but Marty Berghammer has been using him in preference to Benton against left-handed pitchers. Evidently Berghammer has some things to learn about Br'er Rabbit. Windle will never see the day when he can hit left-handers as well as Benton, even if he is a right-handed hitter and Benton a southside clubber. Bloxsom, who is a product of Rice institute, had trials with Houston and one or two other Texas clubs, but could never make the grade. The Brewers are using him in the outfield.

Wichita Falls sent two women golfers into the trans-Mississippi championship flight last week at Tulsa. They are Mrs. R. R. Fisk and Mrs. F. C. Rochon. The former is the Wichita Falls city champion and both are Weeks park players. When it is considered that both went to the second round before being defeated by two great opponents, their showings were decidedly impressive. In a field of 200 starters they were among the last 16. Mrs. Fisk lost to Miss Virginia Pepp, St. Louis city champion, while Mrs. Rochon was eliminated by Mrs. George Hipple, four times Kansas champion. Both Mrs. Hipple and Miss Pepp are rated among the best of the Middle West's players.

Mrs. Rochon shot one of her greatest rounds of golf in losing to Mrs. Hipple, two down. She certainly had nothing of which to be ashamed in losing that match. Her medal score for the 18 holes was 85, just two more than won the medal in the qualifying round Monday. At the end of 10 holes Mrs. Rochon was three down, but she not only overcame that handicap, but won four of the next five holes with a burst of speed that was good for four fours and a three to become one up through No. 15. Mrs. Hipple squared it on 16 and to all intents and purposes won the match when Mrs. Rochon two-putted the seventeenth green.

Out—
Mrs. Rochon .....565 644 535—43
Mrs. Hipple .....465 545 525—41

In—
Mrs. Rochon ...644 434 656—42—85

Five Homers, Two By Kloza, Subdue Trio of Chunkers

Wiltse and Caldwell Likely Tossers in Sunday Double-Header

Pennant winners usually have just what is needed to win ball games, and the Spudders had it Saturday in the nature of numerous and lengthy hits to defeat the Waco Cubs, 14 to 8, for two straight in the series and 11 out of 12 for the home stay thus far. Milt Steengrafe couldn't stop the Cubs, but he didn't need to, for an attack led by no less than five home runs, two by Kloza and one each by Bettencourt, Burns and Storti, were enough to make up for a multitude of pitching sins. Thirty-five total bases couldn't go wrong!

Warfare with the Waconans will be concluded Sunday with a double-header at Athletic park, starting at 2:30 o'clock. Hal Wiltse and Earl Caldwell were the prospective Spudder mound selections, these two having registered a double victory no later than last Wednesday.

Saturday's victory was particularly opportune in view of Shreveport's victory over Houston. The Spudders now are leading the league by five and one-half games.

Three Waco pitchers bore the shock of Spudder distance hitting Saturday, Ralph Stein, Preacher Thurman and Joe Giard, and each gave up two or more runs, Kloza's two homers, one a freak wallop inside the park, and double gave him leadership among the Spudders, with Storti continuing his murderous campaign with a homer, a double and single. Bill Stuvengen was poison to Steengrafe to the extent of a home run, double and two singles.

Fail to Score Twice

The home gang scored in all innings except the first and sixth.

Gottlieber opened the game by bouncing one off the plate so high that he was on first when the ball descended into Steengrafe's glove. He was promptly nailed attempting to steal, Crouch to Storti, and the next two were easy. Singles by Storti and Fitzgerald in the home half were wasted when Kloza lined to center and Burns whiffed.

Stuvengen's single with two away failed to help the Cubs when Steengrafe hooked a third strike past Molesworth. The Spudders chased around three. Bettencourt beat out a slow one to third and advanced on a wild pitch after Crouch had fouled out. Euller walked and Steengrafe fanned. Levey singled to left, scoring Bettencourt. Storti placed a double into right center to count Euller and Levey. Fitzgerald ended it by sending Munson to the fence.

The foe put one over in the third in spite of the old familiar double play. Piet and Stein opened the inning with singles and the former took an extra base on Fitzgerald's boot, to score a moment later as Gottlieber was hitting into a double play, Euller to Storti to Burns. Bettencourt's homer got it back in the last half, but it wasn't enough to offset a similar blow by Stuvengen in the fourth, for Munson was on base by virtue of a walk. The hostile homer brought the count to 4 and 3 for the Spudders. When Euller opened the home half with a single, Stein departed in favor of Thurman. Steengrafe sacrificed and Levey fanned. Storti, hitting left-handed this time, lifted one over the scoreboard to bring the count to 6 and 3.

Two More Homers

The Cubs' only riffle in the fifth was Gottlieber's walk and for the second time he was out stealing by the Crouch to Storti route. Kloza and Burns joined the home run parade in the last half for two runs, the latter's drive carrying the center field fence close to the screen. The next three were easy for Thurman.

Speer's infield single and Stuvengen's double off Euller's glove put Steengrafe in the hole in the next round, but Munson popped out and Robbins and Molesworth were strikeout victims. For the first time in the game three Spudders went down in order, Steengrafe rolling to short and Levey and Storti hoisting to left.

Piet's double started the seventh and a two-run splurge by the Cubs. Thurman promptly drove him home with a single. Passes to Gottlieber and Munson, with Bischoff fanning in between, filled the bases. Thurman scored on Speer's infield out and the Spudder pitcher again was out of trouble when Robbins rolled to Burns. If there was any doubt about the outcome, it was dispelled by four Spudder counters, the result of doubles by Fitzgerald and Kloza, Crouch's single, Euler's double and Steengrafe's single.

Cubs Finish Strong

The eighth was uneventful for the Cubs, except for Stuvengen's fourth hit of the day, while Kloza's second home run accounted for two Spudder runs off Giard. The drive, following a pass to Storti and Fitzgerald's sacrifice, bounced to the ledge between the two decks of the center field fence and Jack made the circuit while Speer fought to retrieve the ball. It was his third homer in two days.

The Cubs all but chased Steengrafe in the ninth when three runs were scored. A pass to Bischoff and singles by Speer and Robbins filled the bases with two out. Stuvengen walked to force in a run and Molesworth scored two with a single against the center field fence. Milt finally retired Piet after getting into a three and one hole, with Dick Florrid warmed up in the bull pen and undoubtedly ready to step to the mound if Piet had not been retired.

Giants 9, Cardinals 7

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Melvin Ott's two home runs, which drove in six tallies, were the leading factors in the Giants' 9 to 7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. It was the seventh straight win for the Giants and their second over St. Louis. It put New York in third place, as Pittsburgh lost to Boston.

The Cards got off to a two-run lead on Mitchell, but lost it when Ott hit his 11th homer of the season in the first inning. A four-bagger by Douthit in the fifth put St. Louis ahead again, only to have Ott hit another homer and aid in a five-run Giant rally in the seventh, which decided the game.

The game got off to a late start and the first six innings were played in rain. Score:

Spudders Lead in Five Offensive Departments and Tie in Sixth

TEAM'S STEADY GAIN IN FLAG RACE REFLECTED IN RECORDS; BOASTS INDIVIDUAL LEADERS

Reflecting the winning pace the club has maintained, the Wichita Falls Spudders have taken the Texas league lead in five departments of offensive play and tied San Antonio in a sixth, base hits. Carl Williams' young men top the loop in batting with .290, runs, doubles, homers and runs batted in, leaving Fort Worth to take the honors in triples and Shreveport in stolen bases.

Eckhardt Has Rival

By converting Gene Moore into a regular outfielder, Dallas has given Oscar Eckhardt a serious rival for final individual batting honors, since the young southpaw has been the high bat since the start of the campaign. Beaumont's swatters, playing three times as much as young Moore, is still the real leader with his average of .394 to the closest .380 of Joe Munson, Waco. A week of good hitting should carry some Texas leaguer to the first century in base hits for 1930, now threatened by Schinkel, San Antonio, with 80, Bonowitz, Fort Worth, with 78, and Rye, Waco, 75. Other Texas league leaders: Runs, Levey, Wichita Falls, and Hock, Houston, 47, Rye, Waco, 46, Stewart, Shreveport, and Stufengen, Waco, 45; doubles, Bonowitz, Fort Worth, 21, Fitzgerald, Wichita Falls and Burns, Wichita Falls, 20, Stewart, Shreveport, 19; triples, Joe Moore, San Antonio, 6, Schinkel, San Antonio, and Tavener, Fort Worth, 5; home runs, Bettencourt, Wichita Falls, 15, Kelly, Fort Worth, 13, Holman, Shreveport, 11; stolen bases, Hunt, Houston, 21, Holly, Beaumont, 15, Whelan, Shreveport, Stewart, Shreveport, and Easterling, Beaumont, 13; runs batted in, Bettencourt, Wichita Falls, 52, Hunt, Houston, 49, Cashion, Shreveport 42.

Tuero Takes Lead

Tuero, Shreveport, took the leading pitching average below a scattering of undefeated fractional workers, from Stout, Houston, while Thermahlen, just purchased by Fort Worth from Waco, is leading winner with 10 victories. Stout tops in strikeouts with 67. Club batting, pitchers credited either with victory or defeat, and individual players batting .200 or better, follow:

TWO YOUNG AMERICAN EAGLES ARE CAPTURED IN NEST NEAR RALLS

RALLS, Texas, June 7.—J. D. Anthony, who lives several miles northeast of Ralls captured two young American eagles in Blanco canyon, about 15 miles from Ralls last week.

Anthony said the young eagles were found in a nest in the rocks and as they were too young to fly were easily caught. The eaglets had a six foot wing spread and weighed 30 pounds each.

HOLM SOON RETURNS TO HOUSTON LINEUP

HOUSTON, June 7. (AP)—President Fred Ankenman of the Houston Buffs Saturday announced Watty Holm, star outfielder, would leave here Saturday night for Shreveport, where Sunday he will join the Bisons.

For more than a month Holm, one of the greatest outfielders ever to perform in the Texas league, has been out of harness due to a leg injury suffered at Fort Worth in early May. When Holm pulled the tendon in his leg he was batting around .340 and playing sensationally in centerfield.

It was expected Holm would not don a uniform until Saturday, June 14, when Houston will open a long home stay.

Rice Slumps but Remains at Peak Of Batting List

Ruth Shows Way in Departments Other Than Home Runs

CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—Sam Rice, Washington's veteran outfielder, found American league pitching more difficult last week, but not enough to keep him from pacing the junior circuit's batsmen for the third consecutive week, according to unofficial figures which include Wednesday's games.

Rice hit a .375 clip for the week and finished with an average of .404, seven points shy of his last week's mark. Al Simmons of Philadelphia added six points to his mark and remained in second place with an average of .386, and Babe Ruth retained third place at .377, one point better than last week. Along with leading batsmen Rice topped the field in stolen bases, getting two during the week to bring his total to 10. He also led in total hits with 74 in 183 times at bat.

Ruth was in his familiar spot as head man of the home run brigade, with 18, four more than he had a week ago. He also had driven in 50 runs, scored 52 personally and his hitting was good for 124 total bases. Other leaders among the regulars were Hodapp, Cleveland, .373; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .361; Burnett, Cleveland, .359; McManus, Detroit, .358; Foxx, Philadelphia, .356; Dickey, New York, .355; Combs, New York, .345; Jolley, Chicago, .345.

Cleveland lost two points from its team batting average during the week, but moved into a tie with Washington for first place when the Senators' average fell off four points to .299. The Yankees picked up six points and went into second place at .296. Philadelphia had scored 289 runs to lead the league, while Washington had the best defensive mark, holding opponents to 197 trips across its plate.

Bob Grove, Athletic southpaw, gained credit for one victory and led the pitchers with seven straight triumphs

WYKOFF SETS WORLD RECORD AS TEXANS LOSE IN CENTURY

Bracey Is Fifth And Leland Sixth In National Meet

Californian Speeds to New Mark in Hundred Yards, 9.4 Seconds

CHICAGO, June 7. (UP)—Frank Wykoff, bushy-haired runner from the University of Southern California, broke the world's record for the 100-yard dash Saturday at the ninth annual National Collegiate Athletic association track and field meet at Stagg field.

Wykoff's time was :09.4 seconds, one-tenth better than the record of Eddie Tolan, negro dash man from the University of Michigan, which was recognized in Berlin recently. Tolan ran fourth Saturday.

While the Californian was taking the laurels, his teammates won the meet with 57 27-70 points. Another coast team, Washington, was second with 40 points. The next 10 were: University of Iowa, 30 1-7; Ohio State, 29 1-10; Stanford, 28; Illinois, 27 17-70; Michigan 20-17; Northwestern 20; Indiana 20; Oregon 12; Wisconsin 11 1-10 and Chicago 11.

To set a new world mark, Wykoff beat a brilliant field of runners, including Tolan, George Simpson, Eddie Toppino, Claude Bracey and Cy Leland. Simpson, who got a bad start, was second and only two feet behind at the finish. Toppino was third and Tolan fourth. Bracey and Leland followed in order.

In addition to the broken world's record in the 100-yard dash, the world mark in the 120-yard high hurdles was equalled and national Collegiate association marks were broken in the 220-yard dash, the half mile run, the two mile run, the shot put and the discus throw. The meet record in the 220-yard low hurdles also was tied.

Steve Anderson, University of Washington, equalled the world's record in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of :14.4 and like Wykoff ran without starting blocks. Only E. J. Thompson of Dartmouth college has covered the distance in that time before.

Simpson came back to win first place in the 220-yard dash, with Leland running second.

OTTO VON PORAT BACK IN GOOD STANDING AS RESULT OF AGREEMENT

CHICAGO, June 7. (INS)—Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight contender, Saturday was back in good standing in the eyes of the Illinois Athletic commission. Von Porat's agreement Friday to meet W. L. "Young" Stribling in a 10-round bout on June 18 caused the commission to cancel Von Porat's suspension.

Von Porat and his manager, Ed Stevenson, made a verbal agreement with the stadium for the match, but refused to sign Thursday, whereupon they were suspended for a period of six months.

Sixth Largest Gate Assured For Thursday Night's Title Match

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 7. (AP)—Max Sigfrid Adolph Otto Schmeling is an engaging young man without a complex, inhibition or sign of unruly temperament to his lengthy name.

As he sits in the living room of his well guarded cottage, playing over and over German phonograph records, he doesn't even talk a good fight. Yet Thursday night in the Yankee stadium, this 24-year-old Teuton who has scaled the heavyweight heights in two short years will battle Jack Sharkey for the highest prize fistiana has to offer. He will fight the best he knows how, calmly, carefully, evenly but at a terrific pace, and if his best is not enough—well, he is still 24 years old and life even in a fistic sense still leads long before him. Max may lose to a better man. He frankly admits that may happen, but he doesn't think that man is Sharkey.

Hopes Chance

Colored an Indian brown by the sun in his outdoor workouts, the young German is a picture of superb condition as he lolls in his easy chair, happy to talk of fights in his halting English liberally sprinkled with German phrases when the subject gets complicated and thoughts come too fast. His high cheek bones, shaggy black eye brows, deep color, and animation leave an indelible impression of Jack Dempsey when the old manmauler weighed 187 pounds and was eager to tear the world apart with his iron fists.

"I hope I beat Sharkey," he said with a smile and a wave of both hands. "I do not know. No one knows. If I get my chance, I win. If not I lose."

To Schmeling, almost a fatalist in his attitude toward the coming contest for ringdom's highest stakes, this statement covers the entire situation. By "chance," which he pronounces "shenks," Schmeling means the opening or situation that will give him the upper hand and pave the way to victory. The breaks may come his way—or they may go to Sharkey.

Battle Plan Uncertain

"If Sharkey wins, I congratulate him. The same way I would congratulate myself if I win. But why should I lose?" he asked.

"Sharkey is a good boxer, yes? He hits, punches good with left hand, no; well, maybe it make him discouraged if he can't hit me with his best punch. That is important.

"I do not know how I fight Sharkey. In my training camp I have 20 sparring partners. I fight them all. They have different styles. No matter what style Sharkey fights, I am ready for him.

"Sharkey is a good boxer, yes? They say I can't hit a good boxer with my right hand. They say he will defend against my right all the time with his left and I never hit him. That is foolishness.

"He must punch at me some nicht wahr? Then I can punch.

time, no? When he punch at me he moves his hands, yes? When he does that he leaves an opening. Then I will hurt Sharkey. Maybe my shenks come then.

Not His Last Bout

"Only have I seen Sharkey box in a gymnasium and then he—what you call it—clown around with his sparring partners. Even so I know he is a good fighter. But maybe I am a better fighter. Who knows?"

By this time the even tempered, unexcitable German was on his feet, waving his hands, showing how he would move his head to evade a left and counter with the famous right hand that knocked out Johnny Risko and battered Paulino Uscudun into helplessness.

"There is another thing, Sharkey, he say, 'how will Schmeling feel fighting a man like me who has met everyone and licked the men I have?' I tell you.

"I will feel better about it than Sharkey. He is the American fighting before his own countrymen to keep the title in his country. He is getting old. He has missed two shenks to fight for the championship. Maybe he will not get another.

"But me it is different. I am the foreigner, the under-dog. I am 24 years old. If I lose I fight again some other time for the championship. I have nothing to worry about. He has everything. Maybe that does not bother him, no?"

Vets Crowd Robin Slugger for Lead In National Loop

Herman Gets Race From Hogan, Heilmann and Frank Frisch

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Babe Herman, the Brooklyn slugger, still is the whole story of the National league batting averages, but the stars of former years are moving up into threatening positions. Herman, with an average of .419 holds a commanding lead in the batting list, which includes Wednesday's games.

Frank Hogan, the man-mountain catcher of the New York Giants, and Paul Waner of Pittsburgh continue to hold their places behind the Brooklyn Babe, but Harry Heilmann, of Cincinnati, long a leading figure in the American league averages, has climbed up to share third place with Waner at the .398 mark, while the old reliable Frank Frisch of St. Louis has appeared among the first 10 regulars on the list. Hogan has a clear hold on second place with a .402 average.

Other Robins High

Herman has gathered several other batting honors in addition to that of leading the league percentages. He also has made the highest totals of runs and hits, getting 72 safe blows and scoring 49 times, and is second to Hack Wilson of Chicago in runs batted in with 46. Another Brooklyn batter Johnny Hendrick, is giving Herman a close race in hits and runs. He has scored 47 times and has made 71 hits. Sixteen of his blows have been doubles, giving him a tie for second place with Adam Comorosky of Pittsburgh.

Frisch is the leading hitter of doubles with a total of 21, while Wilson, in addition to topping the list of run producers by batting in 49, holds the home run lead at 16. Walter Berger of the Boston Braves is only one behind in homers. Kiki Cuyler of the Cubs has hit eight triples, outdistancing another Chicagoan, Woody English, by one. Cuyler also holds the lead in base stealing, having committed 13 of these legitimate thefts.

Luque Tops Tossers

Behind the first four regular batters, Bill Terry of New York has taken fifth place at .389 and following him come Grantham, Pittsburgh, .388; O'Doul, Philadelphia, .386; Klein, Philadelphia, .384; Frisch, St. Louis, .368, and Bissonnette, Brooklyn, .365.

Adolfo Luque continues to hold the league pitching lead for Brooklyn with five victories and no defeats, while Bob Osborn of Chicago has captured second place by winning his third straight game. Brooklyn has taken first place in club batting at .327, while Cincinnati holds the fielding lead at .978.

NEW YORK, June 7.—An $800,000 "gate," the sixth largest in the history of boxing, is indicated for next Thursday night's 15-round world championship fight at Yankee stadium between Jack Sharkey of Boston and Max Schmeling of Germany.

From all parts of the United States, and from persons of all walks of life, including many millionaires, reservations are pouring into the Madison Square garden box office. The attendance will total about 80,000, and had prices been scaled as high as they were in some of the battles in which the glamorous Jack Dempsey participated a "million dollar gate" would no doubt be assured.

Two-Dollar Tickets

The advance sale up to Saturday had reached $400,000. Half of this sum is actually in the till. Reserved seats are selling at $26.25, $13.65 and $5.25. Twenty-two thousand general admission seats at $2 each will be placed on sale on the afternoon of the bout, and if the weather is propitious they are expected to be quickly gobbled up.

Box office officials refer to the forthcoming Sharkey-Schmeling go as "the biggest natural since the Dempsey-Carpentier bout." They say billions of dollars will be represented at the ringside, as well as the cream of society, and also a tremendous German contingent. The aftermath of the stock market crash had no effect on the advance sale.

Dempsey Uncertain

Page one personalities will be scattered all over the premises next Thursday night. Three former champions of the world—Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett, and Jack Johnson—are listed among the expected guests. It is reported, however, that Jack Dempsey will be unable to attend. Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York will be there with a party of 50. William F. Carey, president of Madison Square garden, will "throw a dinner for 200 millionaires on the evening of the fight, and afterwards they will converge on the ringside in a body.

San Angelo Coach Is Due Credit for Showing of Relay Teams

DALLAS, June 7. —Setting a new world's track record should be an ideal way to celebrate one's birthday. It has cakes and candles beat 40 ways.

Charley Casper, the 162-pound Harlandale (San Antonio) hurdler, chose that means of observing his natal day. Casper was 18 on May 31, the day he topped the high timbers in 15.1 at Chicago to lead the country's crack interscholastic athletes to the tape and set a new mark. It was, he observed, a birthday party to his taste.

Casper, who graduated this term, has not yet decided what university or college he will attend, but he has his mind set on the Olympic meet at Los Angeles in 1932. Ben Bertie, a former star dash man at Southwest Texas Teachers college, who taught Casper the hurdling racket, believes his protege will be one of the world's best in two more years.

It's a long, long Trail from SUNDAY

THURSDAY...FRIDAY...SATURDAY

There's not very much doubt about it—Sunday is not only the most thoroughly ENJOYABLE day of the week—to the family, at least, it's also the most IMPORTANT!

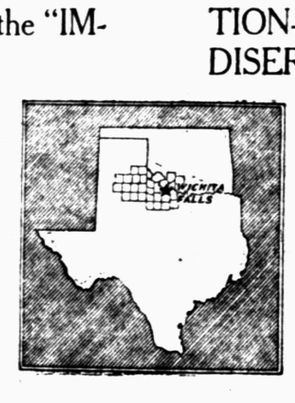

When you stop to think about it, Sunday is the ONLY day that really belongs to you and your family! So many people—a veritable multitude of distractions—claim the other six. Business . . . guests . . . your social obligations . . . all those activities that crowd your week—really, what would you do if it were not for this pleasant "IMPRESSION INTERVAL" that's Yours to do with as you please! AND Sunday IS, you know, such a very PERSONAL day.

How good it is to ignore the clock . . . to lazily linger over breakfast, and The Times, this morning. How very pleasant to shut out business and all the cares of the work-day world and open your mind to the wealth of new impressions and plans that Sunday brings!

THE IMPRESSION INTERVAL

Many of the intimate family discussions that are such an interesting part of Sunday, are, of course, suggested by the news you read in The Times. But, more often, it's the advertisements that bring up such matters as a new car . . . new furniture for the home . . . new summer clothes for the whole family. And it's the fact that these purchases and plans are so thoroughly discussed during the "IMPRESSION INTERVAL" that makes the Sunday Times so valuable to the advertiser . . . as well as to the reader.

It's interesting, too—and perhaps INSTRUCTIVE—to follow the trail of these plans from Sunday, through to their realization. For, although many of Sunday's purchase plans become SALES on MONDAY, many, many others that do not appear on the advertiser's records until late in the week, are directly traceable back to Sunday's discussions.

MONDAY...TUESDAY...WEDNESDAY

You see, the Sunday Times is a REPUTATION-BUILDER as well as a MERCHANDISER. And, in this sense, the Sunday Times is DOUBLY valuable to those merchants who know how to use it.

Yes, it's a long, long trail from Sunday . . . and the Sunday Times follows it to the end . . . WORKS EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK!

POWDERED MILK PLANT HERE BUYING 60,000 POUNDS DAILY

NEW INDUSTRY PAYS FARMERS $30,000 MONTH

NEW EQUIPMENT COSTS DAIRY FIRM $60,000

Product of Company Here Meets Ready Sale Over Nation

Wichita Falls has a new manufacturing industry which is using approximately 60,000 pounds of whole milk daily from this and surrounding communities, is paying producers of that supply about $30,000 monthly in cash and is marketing the finished product almost before it can be packed for shipment. Receipts at the plant are at the highest peak in its history.

This new medium for converting raw products of the Wichita Falls area into cash from all parts of the Southwest is the powdered-milk plant of the Southwest Dairy Products company, located in the building formerly occupied by the Kraft Cheese company. New machinery and plant alterations costing more than $60,000 were required to convert the cheese-manufacturing unit into a milk powdering factory. Work had been under way on the plant for six months prior to its opening two weeks ago.

Big Production Area

The 30 tons of whole milk which passes over the buying scales at the plant daily comes from territory surrounding Wichita Falls to a distance of almost 100 miles. Montague, Young and Archer counties are heavy contributors to this bulk. At present the plant is operating from 12 to 14 hours daily, and affords employment to about 14 persons. Its payroll will amount to approximately $20,000 annually.

Not all of the milk volume poured daily into the factory's vats is reduced to powder. The first process to which it is subjected is heating to about 120 degrees to expedite separation of milk and cream, the latter being transferred immediately to the Producers' creamery for butter-making purposes, or shipped for ice cream manufacturing purposes elsewhere. Last week one full carload of sweet cream was shipped by this concern to New York, and was reported as arriving in excellent condition.

After removal of the cream, processing of the milk for dehydration requires a large amount of bulky equipment but is remarkable for its simplicity. There are two processes between the vat and the shipping barrel. One consists of lifting the milk to the third story of the plant, to spray it as atomized vapor into a huge circular oven. The other consists of forcing a flow of 220 degree air through this oven, from bottom to top, so that the moisture element in the vapor goes out as steam, leaving the solid particles of the milk to fall slowly to the floor of the oven.

After separation, the milk is brought to near-boiling temperature, and is then run through a vacuum tank which removes approximately one-third of the water content through evaporation. Such preliminary dehydration is not necessary to powdering, it was explained, but facilitates the separation of moisture and solids in the oven. Trap doors in the floor of the powdering oven provide passage for the powdered milk to chutes through which it gravitates to the packing room on the ground floor.

After the heated air has completed its function of removing atomized moisture from the oven's interior, it passes out at the top, thence downward and upward alternately over a series of partitions which serve as "strippers," eventually passing out through a flue as cool air.

The oven is about 20 feet in diameter, of about the same height, and receives the sprayed milk through six small atomizers which extend through the oven-wall near its top.

Dried Buttermilk

Two-hundred-pound-capacity barrels receive the finished powder, representing 9 per cent of the original milk bulk. It is used largely in the manufacture of ice cream and candy, and in various baking processes.

A new department will be installed in the plant within the next few days for the purpose of producing dried buttermilk for stock feed, it was announced. This equipment, to be mounted on a concrete base now under construction, will consist primarily of two large steel rollers, maintained at a high temperature by steam coils. The two rollers are separated by almost an invisible clearance. Drying of buttermilk consists of allowing the liquid to dry slowly upon the face of the rollers just before their revolutions bring them together. Contact with the hot surface immediately vaporizes all moisture, leaving the solid content to be rolled into a thin flake. Just beyond the point of contact, the rollers pass sharp blades adjusted to remove the adhering flakes of milk-solids.

According to P. R. Freeman, manager of the Southwest Dairy Products company's plants here, there is a great demand for dried buttermilk as a nutritive food for pigs, chickens, calves, etc. The new equipment will enable the plant, he said, to accept all milk which may arrive at the plant in a sourod condition.

Milk for powdering is not graded, but must be at a temperature of 60 degrees or lower, it was said. Producers in this area are able by the use of meager amounts of ice to make deliveries at this temperature, Mr. Freeman said, the water from wells in this community maintaining a temperature near that figure, even in hot weather.

MY HOME TOWN - - - - By JOE WITHERSPOON JR.

I STAND BEFORE YOU this evening, happy in the privilege of representing my home town, Wichita Falls, known as "The City That Faith Built." To you this may be merely a lovely phrase, but to me it means the daring of those hardy pioneers who risked their all on their belief that in Wichita Falls there was an opportunity second to none in the world; those men and women who, inspired by lofty ideals and with a firm faith in themselves and their God, entered upon the task of establishing a city which would stand the test of time.

It is not my purpose this evening to tell you of the many industries and the advantages which are common to my home town and every other town of its size, but I ask you what other representative can boast of there being in the vicinity of his home town 24,500 producing oil wells, 17 refineries sending their products to every corner of the globe, a truck factory supplying 80 foreign countries with its product, the largest flour mill in Northwest Texas. Not one, honorable judges, because all of these are located in my home town, Wichita Falls.

Twenty years ago there were many towns in the radius of 60 miles, equal to Wichita Falls in population and opportunity. Of the group, Wichita Falls alone, in spite of passing through the most severe test a city can have, namely, an oil boom, has risen to the distinction of being one of the largest cities in Texas.

Wichita Falls, you see, was not content with oil alone, but set herself to developing her other natural resources. Why, last year 229 millions of dollars poured into the city in the form of crops and livestock. To my home town representatives come from all over the world to buy cotton to clothe the Chinese coolie, the Italian gondolier, and the Prince of Wales. Why, we export cotton all the way from the Sudan up to Greenland. Biblical authorities tell us that the angels will all be clothed in white, and I maintain that enough cotton is grown in the vicinity of Wichita Falls to clothe in white all the vast number of Texans who will pass through the pearly gates.

Wichita Falls is today one of the leaders in the parade of the air. Not content with 17 passenger trains and 86 buses daily, she holds second rank among the cities of the entire nation for the number of commercial air passengers originated per capita. Eight tri-motor airplanes arrive in and depart from the city daily. From the establishment of the first bank in 1883 to the present year, 1930, no depositor has ever lost one red cent in any local bank, state or national.

I, as a citizen of Wichita Falls, am justly proud of all these achievements, yet there is something more that I must say. Such accomplishments could not have been brought about had it not been for those sturdy pioneers who invested more than money in the home which they had chosen for their own, who invested their faith in the little village and made it the thriving city it is today.

More than the financial status, I am proud of her educational, moral and cultural development as evidenced by her 26 schools, her 54 churches, and her thousands of happy homes. Let me cite one example of the citizenship of my home town—W. B. Hamilton, retiring president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is proud to make his home in Wichita Falls, and Wichita Falls is proud of him. It was Abraham Lincoln who said, "I like to see a man who is proud of his city and lives so that his city is proud of him." The citizens of Wichita Falls, proud of their home town and filled with faith in its future, strive to live so that their home town will be proud of them.

For these and a thousand other reasons, I am proud to call Wichita Falls "The City That Faith Built," My Home Town!

A TRIBUTE TO WICHITA FALLS

This article, entitled "My Home Town," is the oration delivered by Joe Witherspoon Jr. to win first place at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Abilene. The Daily Times is reproducing the speech in full as it was given at Abilene, in the belief that it should prove an inspiration to every Wichitan.

Wichita Falls' young orator, enthusiastic at having won honors for his city, in addition to a university scholarship and $100 in gold, was even more enthusiastic in according credit to Miss Juanita Kinsey, head of the public speaking department of the Junior college and high school. Joe has been a private pupil of Miss Kinsey in public speaking for more than six years, and plans to continue in her classes at high school. He bows to his teacher for much of the credit for the winning elements in the delivery of his oration.

GOLD MEDAL PLANT JOINS ANNIVERSARY

Famous Brand of Flour Originated 50 Years Ago Today

GROWTH OF MILLING INDUSTRY IS RECALLED

Wichita Mill Only One in Texas to Manufacture Noted Product

Manufacture of Gold Medal flour in this city since last March, and the recent addition of more than $300,000 worth of grain storage bins to the local mill by its manufacturers will awake real interest of Wichita Falls' citizenship in the nation-wide Gold Medal golden anniversary observation on Sunday, June 8.

From the standpoint of outstanding growth and accomplishment in a period which has witnessed world-revolutionizing industrial development, the manufacture and distribution of this brand of flour has gained unusual distinction. The trade-marked phrase which for a generation has been a household synonym for this product is quite as unique as the first notable recognition won by Gold Medal flour.

The inauguration of the brand of wheat flour which is being celebrated on June 8 dates back just 50 years from that day, and marks the transition from one district era in manufacturing to another. Prior to 1880, the flour milling industry had been a semi-rural trade. Mill stones, grinding one upon the other to crush the grain, still were the common machinery of the industry. Emergence from that period, which had extended over centuries, was indicated in the late 70's by the introduction of a machine known as a middlings purifier. It served to remove much dirt, specks, etc., thus greatly improving the appearance and quality of the flour. That step was significant in that it opened the markets of the world to spring wheat, which theretofore had been materially handicapped by a dark and spotty appearance.

Millers' Exhibition

Development of machinery for milling was amazingly rapid from that time on to the present. New machines and new processes became the chief interest of mill owners. Steel and porcelain rolls, rapidly driven by motor power, greatly amplified speed of production. The result of wide-spread interest was an exposition held by the Millers National association at Cincinnati in June, 1880. Seven complete flour mills were in operation, and more than 1,000 different machines in motion, at that exposition. It was sponsored by thousands of American millers, and attended by numerous visitors from other countries.

The association offered gold, silver and bronze medals for the best flour shown in the exposition, and all three awards went to the display of the Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis. That company at that time was engaged in completing what was known as the most modern milling plant in the country. The company's best flour, originated before the Cincinnati exposition of 1880, took and retained the name from the honors awarded it there.

Sale of the mill holdings of Frank Kell and associates more than a year ago to General Mills, Inc., brought about the establishment of Gold Medal flour production in this city. The Gold Medal Flour company of Texas was incorporated in March, 1929, as an associate company of the Wichita Mill and Elevator company of Wichita Falls. The manufacture of Gold Medal kitchen-tested flour and well-known Gold Medal brands for use of bakers was begun here at that time. It is not being made in any other mill in the state of Texas at this time. The milling plant at Wichita Falls being one of the most modern and largest capacity in the entire Southwest, and also having ready access to the highest quality of wheat produced in Texas and Western Oklahoma made this city the logical location for the addition of this industry.

Plant Enlarged

The Gold Medal Flour company of Texas now employs a large force of traveling salesmen, as well as an office organization, contributing a heavy payroll to the assets of the Wichita Falls community.

Faith of the men who direct the country's largest flour milling organization in the future of Wichita Falls and Texas is materially evidenced by the expenditure of more than $300,000 recently for enlargement of the Wichita Falls mill. In order to take care of the growing needs of this plant a large concrete elevator with a capacity of 1,200,000 bushels of wheat is now nearing completion. This storage space is being provided in addition to that maintained prior to this year. The older units consisted of 36 concrete bins each 90 feet in height. The addition consists of 76 bins, 18 feet inside diameter and 100 feet in height, plus 18 bins in the headhouse, making a total of 94 compartments. Those located in the headhouse rise to a height of 186 feet. With the new units, Wichita Falls has the largest grain storage capacity of all Texas mills, it was said.

Great interest was taken in the building of the new concrete bins at the local plant. After all materials had been assembled, machinery put in place, and forms set up, pouring of concrete began. The

COUNTY SPENDS OVER MILLION ON NEW AUTOS

Motorists of Wichita county have invested approximately $1,025,000 in new automobiles since Jan. 1 this year, according to an estimate on the basis of three price-range averages as made from the records of the automobile registration division of the county tax collector's department. The new car lists used in the compilation were furnished by the Central Multigraphing company.

Basing the figures for the first five months of this year on the averages for the past four years, residents of the county will have spent more than $3,000,000 on new cars by the end of the year. The past year was the high-point period in automobiles sales, a total of 3,740 new passenger cars having been registered in Wichita county, while 1928 sales stood at 3,387 and those for 1927, still lower, showed 3,099. While the number of registrations during the first five months of this year is lower than that of the corresponding period in 1929, sales have shown a steady increase each month since January and officials of the county tax collector's department pointed out the summer months invariably show an increase in the purchase of cars.

Sales Increase

From Jan. 1 to May 31 a total of 1,025 new automobiles were registered here. Beginning with 195 in January, the monthly totals have shown a steady increase and the total for last month stood at 223, with indications of a further increase during June.

By making rough divisions of all makes of cars into three classes—those selling for less than $1,000 those selling at between $1,000 and $2,000, and those selling for more than $2,000—the compilations show that during the past five-months period a total of 819 machines were sold in the lower division, 187 in the middle class and 20 in the top division.

Estimates based on an average price of $800 for cars in the less-than-$1,000 class place the amount spent in the county on cars of this class at $655,200 since January.

Taking $1,700 as the average for cars of the middle price range, the total investment here in automobiles of that type has been about $317,900 in the past five months.

With machines of the upper range averaging $2,500 in price, those sold in the county this year represent a value of $50,000, bringing the grand total for all types to approximately $1,023,100. The total investment in new machines during 1929 approximated $3,740,000 and the amount for this year gives promise of comparing favorably with that figure.

Seven Cars a Day

The registrations for the past five months, since Jan. 1, show an average of seven new cars a day, representing an investment of more than $7,000 daily by residents of the county. Officials of the tax collector's department interpreted this figure is indicative of more favorable economic conditions in Wichita Falls and the county than have been expressed in the opinions of many.

In the light car class, Ford has retained its lead since January this year with Chevrolet a close second. In the middle range, Chrysler, Dodge and Buick contend for first place and in the upper division, Cadillac and LaSalle are even for the lead position.

Sure, It's a Sin

LONDON—One London barber wants it known that he refuses to cut the curly locks of females. He claims it's a sin. On the wall of his shop he has a sign quoting from Corinthians, "If a woman have long hair it is a glory to her." Despite his lack of woman patronage, he is doing a good business because males flock to his establishment to escape the association with women in other shops.

DEEP OIL TEST WILL START IN NEXT 20 DAYS

Actual drilling of the first well of the Deep Oil Development company probably will be started within the next 20 days on the site selected some time ago on the edge of the Hirschi farm northwest of Clara, according to the announcement Saturday of Harry Hines, general manager of the company.

Mr. Hines announced also some of the detailed plans of the proposed operation.

A combination rotary and standard rig will be used and a 14-inch hole will be drilled with the rotary to a depth of 3100 feet, he said. Then 11¾-inch casing will be set, to provide one of the longest strings of big pipe in the history of Northwest Texas oil operations. The drilling then will be continued with standard tools in the search for deep oil.

It is expected, Mr. Hines said, that several oil bearing sands will be encountered both above and below the 3100-foot level, and all production encountered will be utilized.

The derrick, it was announced, will be 122 feet in height and will be of special construction for deep drilling. The machine will have a 600,000-pound load weight capacity it was added.

ARRAY LEGAL TALENT TO DEFEND ROYALTY OWNERS IN SEMINOLE OIL FIELD

TULSA, Okla., June 7. (UP)—The greatest army of legal talent ever mobilized for any oil lawsuits is being rallied to defend the royalty owners in the Seminole field against the suit brought last week by former Senator Robert L. Owen, on behalf of Seminole Indians.

The suit attempts to nullify all mineral leases sold with the land by the Seminoles to the whites, and to create common trust of royalty money for Indians.

FIND BODY OF GANGSTER CHICAGO DRAINAGE CANAL

CHICAGO, June 7. (US)—A body found floating in the drainage canal today, at first thought to be that of "P. E. Bradley" of Miami Beach, Fla., was positively identified tonight as that of "Red" McLaughlin, a west side gangster.

He had been dead two weeks. His hands were wired behind his back and heavy weights were bound to his body by his gangster assassins.

Air Traffic Over Lines Serving Wichita Falls Continues to Show Steady Increase, Reports Reveal

A steady increase in the air traveling population of Wichita Falls was shown in the report of the S.A.F.E. and W.A.E. air lines for the months of March, April and May.

Five hundred and nine passengers left Wichita Falls over the two lines during the month of March, making the average daily traveling population per capita 1.17 per cent. The number of passengers leaving here for the month of April reached 561 which brought the air traveling population per capita to 1.21 per cent. During the month of May the daily average departing over the lines was 18.09 which brought the traveling per capita population to 1.30, the highest of any month.

With the establishment of the Western Air Express recently, there are now eight planes arriving and departing daily. Wichita Falls should feel proud of the constantly increasing number of air travelers coming from its small population as compared to other air centers of greater density of population, Municipal airport officials said.

Hall County Census

MEMPHIS, Texas, June 7.—Owen M. Unger, supervisor of the census, district No. 2, with headquarters in Plainview announced this week the returns of the fifteenth census for justice precinct No. 2 of Hall county as of April 1, 1930, is 4,576, as compared with 3,468 on Jan. 1, 1920, an increase of 1,108. There were 795 farms enumerated in this area.

MEXICAN FLIER LANDS AT NEW YORK AIRPORT

NEW YORK, June 7. (UP)—Col. Robert Fierro, Mexican ace, landed at the Barren Island Municipal airport here late today after a flight from Montgomery, Ala. His original point of departure was Los Angeles. From here, he proposes to make a flight to Mexico City.

The fog prevented his making Roosevelt field. He said he would make the Mexico leg as soon as proper weather prevails, subsequently proceeding to Panama and Brazil, and thence across the Atlantic to Africa and England.

Mexican Law Confirmed

CUERNAVACA, State of Morelos, Mexico, June 7. (UP)—A decree confirming all laws of the previous provisional government of this state was approved by a constitutional convention here today.

The decree covered the divorce law, under which many Americans were divorced, and which was held illegal recently by the supreme court.

1930 BUILDING HAS $421,000 LEAD OVER '29

Building permits for the first five months in 1930 show an increase of $421,727 over that for the same period in 1929, according to F. M. Rugeley, city engineer.

This year's total is $957,967, while that of last was only $536,240. Although the permits for the first two months of last year exceeded those of this year, the number of permits issued in March this year, approximately four times as much as for the same month in 1929, made it possible for this year's total to greatly exceed that of last. Permits for April and May also exceeded those for the preceding year.

Building permits issued last week totaled $28,646, bringing the total for the current month to $113,462.

New Ford Truck Distinguished by Mechanical Helps

Many mechanical improvements have been built into the new Ford model AA truck chassis, according to W. S. Langford, local Ford dealer.

"One of the Ford's new advantages is the three-quarters floating rear axle," Mr. Langford said. "With an axle housing of exceptionally strong construction to take up the weight of the truck and load, the axle shaft is left practically free of this weight with only its primary job of turning the rear wheels to perform. This with the spiral bevel gear with straddle-mounted pinion insures longer life for the rear end.

"Another improvement is the four-speed transmission of the selective sliding gear type. Drivers who have operated trucks with the new chassis report it has on the one hand ample road speed for rapid, efficient transportation and on the other an improved low-speed pulling power sufficient for moving capacity loads out of pits or on soft ground.

"The Ford chassis has been improved throughout. The front axle is nearly twice as strong as formerly and the front spring is heavier with wider leaves. Front radius rods are heavier and king pins, thrust bearings and wheel bearings are larger. The center cross member of the frame, which takes the driving thrust transmitted from the rear wheels also has been made stronger.

"To accommodate a dump body, the chassis frame may be shortened as much as 27 inches, a leeway provided by ending the two rear cantilever springs at the axle.

"Dual rear wheels are offered as optional equipment as small extra cost. With them 20 by 6 six-ply balloon tires are used on both front and rear. Therefore the tires are interchangeable throughout. When rear wheels are used singly, heavier tires—32 by 6 high pressure eight-ply—are required."

WALSH CONTENDS BISHOP CANNON IS GUILTY CONTEMPT

SAYS HE WILL NOT ENTER NEWSPAPER CONTROVERSY

Three Courses Can Be Pursued by Investigating Committee

WASHINGTON June 7. (US)—Despite the attitude of Chairman Caraway, other members of the senate lobby committee today were disposed to bring Bishop James Cannon Jr. to account for defying its authority last week.

The bishop's explanation to the press that no contempt was committed because the committee lacked a quorum when he walked off the witness stand, apparently fell upon deaf ears. Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, said:

"Bishop Cannon is exactly in the same position as witness before a court who has been sworn and then leaves the stand without permission.

"I do not intend to enter into a newspaper controversy with Bishop Cannon, but I consider that quorum or no quorum, he is in contempt."

Upon the return of Senator Caraway, who has been issuing statements from far of Arkansas in defense of Cannon, the committee will have three courses which it may pursue:

Three Possible Courses

It may issue a formal subpoena to compel Cannon's presence as a witness; it may ask the senate for specific authority to probe political expenditures; or it may let the case drop and allow the bishop to go his way.

So far as Senator Walsh is concerned, and it appears he will have the support of Senators Blaine and Borah, the bishop will be made to answer for his defiance.

The probability is that he will favor introduction of a resolution asking the senate for definite powers to investigate the political activities of lobbyists. Passage of such a resolution would waive all legal difficulties and make it possible to question Cannon about the $48,300 which he got from E. J. Jameson of New York, for the fight against Al Smith.

It appeared today that Senator Caraway's return from his Arkansas speech-making tour will be delayed until next week. No action will be taken, however, in his absence as the other members are determined that he must face the issue.

Senators Walsh and Blaine take the position that while they did not force the issue, the honor of the senate would be involved if they allowed the bishop to escape answering the same questions propounded to other witnesses before the committee.

Proud Papa

SEATTLE, Wash.—When the offspring of George Muir had a birthday, its father thought his child should have beer. And when police found 84 bottles in his possession he told them that story. But the judge didn't think young Muir should celebrate with beer, so the liquor was confiscated and Muir fined $100.

COMPLETIONS IN SHALLOW FIELD FEATURE OIL ACTIVITIES

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The week's oil news in the Wichita Falls district was featured by the completion of a number of good producers, many locations made, and an increase in the number and importance of the tests in actual operation.

The outstanding feature for the week was the completion of a number of remarkable shallow wells in the Riggs pool a short distance north of Newcastle in Young county. This field, which was uncovered several months ago, has 11 wells producing from a shallow sand encountered at 690 feet, and the wells average from 200 to 900 barrels per day with a natural flow.

In the past few days this pool furnished two record wells, both by Dr. Riggs, his Nos. 4 and 5 Larimore in section 2247, T. E. & L. survey No. 4, flowing 850 barrels, and No. 5, making 45 barrels hourly each, finished in this wonderful 690-foot pay. The bringing in of these wells has created considerable excitement and in the last day or so 18 spudder locations have been staked out on the sections surrounding these and other producers.

In the Graham area of the county, the usual amount of activity is underway, the greater portion being on the tests adjacent to the Nash & Windfohr McCloud producer. To the north of the gusher Nash & Windfohr's No. 2 John Ware missed the sand from which the McCloud well is producing and is drilling ahead at 3840 feet. To the east, James E. McKanna's No. 1 John Ware in the Manning survey has resumed drilling at 3500 feet after a successful fishing job for a rock bit.

Northwest of the gusher, Nash & Windfohr's No. A-3 Morrison, in the Paul Pier survey, is making 150 barrels per day from the upper sand at 3393-3410 feet. This producer is between the McCloud well and the Pitzer-West No. 1 Callaham, which is drilling at 3900 feet in lime.

The territory adjoining the Bo Minnich well in Archer City townsite added three new locations during the week. Minnich & Carter's No. 1 Covington is in the west 33 acres of J. Richards survey and is spudding in. George Pace and others in center of north half of block 125, lot 6, Richards survey, is drilling.

Other Counties

King & Hays No. 1 Morehead in the southeast corner of the M. Covington land, a south offset to the Minnich well, is spudded and drilling at 350 feet.

Development of the Jack county pools resulted in the completion of the Republic Production company No. 1 Kinder in Veal survey, southeast of Bryson, as a gasser making 5,000,000 feet of gas, and the same company's No. 3 Ezell in the pool north of Bryson as a 125-barreler from the pay at 3197-3200 feet. Five miles southeast of Bryson in the vicinity of the Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 1 Munson producer, three deep tests are rigging up.

Progress in the Baylor pools was marked by the completion of two wells in the Portwood pool and the staking out of a couple of new locations.

Clay county added two new locations to its number, one the Merrick & Goldsmith in block 49, townsite of Petrolia, and the other by the Mid-Continent Holding company on the Boddy farm northeast of Henrietta.

The usual activities were reported in the proven pools throughout Montague, Cooke, Wichita and Wilbarger counties, but nothing bordering on a sensation was brought forth.

Pipe line runs dropped approximately 642 barrels per day. The entire week's run averaged 104,520 barrels as compared with the preceding seven-day output of 105,162 barrels. Practically no changes in the pools were noted since the previous week's figures.

WILDCAT TESTS BEING MADE IN CARTER COUNTY

Magnolia Stakes Location For New Test Near Pooleville

PRODUCTION SOUGHT IN TATUMS DISTRICT

Madill District of Marshall County Active Shallow Field

ARDMORE, Okla., June 7.—The west side of Carter county is still being played with wildcat tests and another was added during the week when the Magnolia Petroleum company staked location for No. 1 I. H. Harmon in the northwest corner of the southwest of 28-1s-2w, about one mile northwest of Pooleville, and three miles southeast of production in the Tatums district. It is completing a rotary rig and will probably be drilling in a few days.

J. E. McCarty and son and K. W. B. Drilling company's No. 1 Hattie and Eva Noble in the southwest of the northwest of the southeast of 14-2s-2w, about one mile east of the Ed Cox field, is drilling at 690 feet in blue shale.

DRILLING WITHIN STONE'S THROW OF OKLAHOMA CAPITOL

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (UP)—Oil development was brought within a stone's throw of the state capitol today when the Cromwell-Franklin Oil company announced a location would be staked soon on the Harn tract.

This tract was the center of controversy several months ago when first plans for the test were announced.

City authorities prepared to oppose drilling there and a bitter court fight was predicted.

At the same time Wirt Franklin of the company sent employes to Lincoln park, the city's chief playground, to stake a location and city officials discussed whether to extend the lease on the city's land that expires June 22, to delay drilling in the park as long as possible.

Latest developments in the city oil situation were:

1. Blowing in of the No. 1 Trosper-Hughes well of I. T. I. O. company in the South City field, for an estimated flow of 15,000 barrels of oil and 40,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

2. Announcement that District Judge Tom G. Chambers will hand down his opinion in the Plains Petroleum company fight for city drilling Monday.

3. Announcement that the city planning commission will contest drilling on the Harn tract.

The Harn farm, owned by W. F. Harn, was recently taken into the city limits and is surrounded by developed residential sections. It contains about 100 acres.

Operators claimed the Lincoln park well could be located so it would not interfere with playground activities.

"If the park is drilled out as an oil field, oil companies will be liable for all damages done to improvements and must reimburse the city," City Manager E. M. Fry said.

The park board had planned to spend more than $100,000 on improvements for the park during the next fiscal year.

While oil development was moving in on the city from the north, City Attorney McKenzie planned to file two court suits to force halting of work on two wells on the edge of the warehouse district, just a few blocks from the business sections. No permits have been issued for the wells.

Arguments have been completed in the suit filed by the Plains company testing the validity of the city's zoning ordinance and an opinion is expected Monday.

YOUNG, ARCHER AND WICHITA COUNTIES LEAD MAY DRILLING

AUSTIN, June 7. (AP)—May was the most active month so far this year in Texas oil fields, with 888 permits to drill issued and 442 producer wells brought in, according to the oil and gas division of the railroad commission. Two hundred and eighty dry holes were reported. Young county led all fields with 44 producers and Archer county was second with 34, one less than Wichita county's 33. Eastland had 28 producers for the month and Gray county 24.

REAGAN COUNTY PRODUCER SETS DEPTH RECORD

Drilling Continues in Two Important Wildcats of Permian Basin

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 7.—Big Lake Oil company's No. 1-C University in Reagan county obtained oil production at a new world's record depth of 8658 feet and Deep Rock Oil company and others' No. 1 A. R. King, Andrews county's second producer, was given further tests that indicated a daily yield of 400 barrels or more, to furnish the high lights this week in West Texas oil development.

The Penn pool in southeastern Ector county added four inside wells, increasing its total number to 33, and daily production passed the 16,000-barrel mark. Shooting of Texas-Cosden's No. 7 Connell, one mile west of the main production, doubled its production the first 12 hours thereafter, the well flowing 250 barrels in that period. Simms-Phillips offset No. 7 Connell during the week with their No. 3 University. Gulf and Cosden now are drilling north and diagonal northeast offsets, respectively.

Sinclair Oil and Gas company broke into the list of producers with its No. 1 Dodge estate in eastern Howard county only about a mile and a half southwest of California company's producing Foster lease in Mitchell county, but passed up broken pay from 2536-60 feet which was estimated variously to be good from 40 to 75 barrels daily. Eight-inch pipe was being underreamed for drilling to an expected better pay around 2670 to 2800 feet. No. 1 Dodge is in the southeast corner of the northwest quarter of section 11, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Two of the Permian basin's most important and interesting wildcats developed nothing new during the week. Phillips-Interstate's No. 1 Whitten in section 35, block LL, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, in Schleicher county, five miles northwest of Eldorado, had drilled Thursday to 6660 feet in sandy shale without further pay. Since Sunday, May 24, it has been making around 750,000 cubic feet of sweet, wet gas and one-fourth to one-third bailer of oil of higher than 50 gravity from sand at 6300-36 feet. At 6550 feet the test logged black slate, which, some geologists pointed out, was found about 200 feet above the Ordovician in Reagan county wells that produce from the Ordovician at depths exceeding 8200 feet. Accordingly, No. 1 Whitten soon may have its third chance to make a producer. Its first was last August when it headed oil at intervals for three days from pay at 4910-25 feet.

Well Makes Gas

Cranfill brothers No. 1 Tubb in west central Crane county, section 8, block B-27, public school land, was scheduled to resume drilling late in the week at 2885 feet in brown lime, after landing 8⅝-inch casing slightly below 2800 feet. The test was making a gauged 3,566,000 cubic feet of dry, sulphur gas, the first struck at 2655 feet and the last increase and the greatest coming at 2665 feet last week-end. The wildcat is attracting much attention by reason of running high both on the top of the salt and the top of the lime and on account of the gas. In the event production is not developed from the present horizon, it is understood that the 8-inch casing will be drawn and the hole reamed in order to maintain a 10-inch hole to 3500 feet, thereby permitting drilling to 8500 if desired.

Sun Oil company began moving in material this week for No. 1 First State bank in Crane county near the Upton county line, about two miles east of C. C. Duffy's production on the Cowden ranch and about three and one-half miles south of Gulf's production on the McElroy ranch. The Sun location is in the center of section 6, J. H. Gibson survey. Pure Oil company will drill in approximately the center of a 36-section block in southwestern Pecos county, 20 miles southwest of Fort Stockton and one mile north of the Santa Fe (formerly Orient) railroad. Its No. 1 Harrison will be 330 feet from the south and west lines of the northwest quarter of section 203, block 3, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. Pure and Humble control a structure that extends northeast and southwest and on the surface is said to be one of the most promising in West Texas.

Big Lake Oil company's No. 1-C University in Reagan county began flowing 15 barrels of high gravity oil hourly with around 7,000,000 cubic feet of gas when the hole was unloaded at 8658 feet in lime. Whether or not the well would be deepened had not been decided. It is a west offset to Group No. 1 Oil corporation's (Texon) No. 1-B University, discovery deep producer in the area, 8525 feet deep, and is 2376 feet south and 250 feet west of the northeast corner of section 1, block 2. No. 1-C is the sixth producer in the Big Lake pool from a depth of below 8200 feet. Big Lake now has four such wells and Texon two. Texon's No. 2-B University increased to around 1625

R. A. CLAMPITT

In the five years R. A. (Bob) Clampitt has played the oil game in the Wichita Falls district he has found the state's foremost shallow field kind to him and in return he has been kind to the district, furthering the development of a rich natural resource largely responsible for the prosperity of the area.

Mr. Clampitt, president of the Clampitt Drilling company of Wichita Falls, came here after engaging in the oil business in the Ruston and Homer fields of Louisiana, a state which has furnished many of the successful operators in Texas fields. Mr. Clampitt took charge of the Prairie Oil and Gas company's purchasing and material department in 1925, remaining in that position until September, 1929, when he resigned to enter the ranks of independent operators.

His knowledge of the tricky shallow pools of north Young and Archer counties brought gratifying results almost immediately, and his first venture as an independent operator was successful. Completing his No. 1 J. D. Lowe as a producer, Mr. Young opened a new field, south of Orth in Young county. Later he sold his holdings around this important discovery for $40,000.

The Lowe producer, located in section 250, T. E. & L. survey, was followed by the completion of several other shallow wells, all commercially profitable to their owners, and the development in the pool is still under way.

Heartened by this initial "killing" Mr. Clampitt within a few weeks had a rig running on the J. T. Richardson farm in block 14, South Anderson ranch subdivision, in southwest Archer county. This test, near the old Swastika pool, a bonanza in Archer county's petroleum heyday, may not have been looked upon favorably by some field men but its completion as a 250-barrel well was no great surprise to Mr. Clampitt and his associates. This producer extended the limits of the Swastika field appreciably, proving valuable a large area of half-condemned land, and precipitated another drilling play to keep the oil industry in Archer county active.

Again Mr. Clampitt realized upon his successful operating methods when he sold his Richardson property for $55,000 in cash and oil.

Still owning much valuable acreage in Young and Archer counties, Mr. Clampitt is constantly expanding his holdings and recently he has been negotiating for properties in the Newcastle field of Young county.

The Clampitt Drilling company, organized with a capital stock of $100,000, has made application with the secretary of state at Austin for a charter and will begin at once upon a thorough development of the properties acquired during Mr. Clampitt's comparatively brief but highly successful career as an independent operator.

Not only have the district and Mr. Clampitt himself benefited from his ventures, but his sagacious trading and keen foresight have brought almost spectacular dividends to the men who have been associated with him in development projects.

Few oil men have builded such records in so short a time.

Mid-Continent Oil Activities

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 7. (AP)—Three producers were completed in the south Oklahoma City field today.

I. T. I. O. No. 1 Trosper-Hughes, SE NW SE 11-11-3w, total depth 6469 feet in sand, was estimated good for more than 5000 barrels of oil a day.

Wirt Franklin Petroleum No. 3 Ben Theimer, SE NE SE 2-11-3w, was estimated good for 10,000 to 15,000 barrels of oil and 35,000,000 feet of gas from sand at 6511 feet.

The 17th producer on the Trosper park property was the third well to hit. The No. 17 well, SE SW NW 12-11-3w, which appeared to have a huge gas volume and around 15,000 barrels of oil, was producing from the sand horizon. It is located in the extreme north end of the lease.

Three other wells were drilling for completion early Saturday with indications good for breaking of a record for this type of work during the day.

TULSA, Okla., June 7. (AP)—Although Oklahoma county had only 14 first reports this week as compared to 34 last week, it continued to lead the state in new work. Muskogee county was second with eight and Marshall county third with seven. Pottawatomie and Cotton counties had six each and Seminole, Hughes and Creek counties three each. The total for the state was 79, two less than the number for last week.

A preliminary conference of attorneys representing oil companies and royalty holders involved in the federal court suit filed at Muskogee, which attacks titles to oil lands in Seminole county, was held here late yesterday. Another conference will be held Tuesday to outline a definite course of defense. Representatives of oil purchasing units made it plain they had no intention of withdrawing royalty payments. J. Monte Hayner, president of the Kansas-Oklahoma division of the Mid-Continent Royalty Owners association, announced the organization was pledged to oppose the unit.

W. F. Russell and others No. 1 Robertson-Jones is a location 275 feet from the north and 150 feet from the west line of L. C. Robinson survey, abstract 855, Cooke county.

FOUR WELLS IN WALTERS FIELD INCREASE YIELD

WALTERS, Okla., June 7.—Four new completions have added an initial 24-hour production of 206 barrels to the northeast side of the Walters field of Cotton county. Three new locations were staked and one dry hole added in the area during the last week.

Wirt Franklin Petroleum company is rigging up No. 2 School Land, in the southwest corner of 36-1s-10w, on the east edge of the field.

Cullum and Perkins abandoned the No. 3 Chambers, in the northwest, southwest, southwest of 1-2s-10w, as dry at 2219 feet.

Jenkins and Arrington are drilling at 2200 feet after failing to get production from sand at 2003-09 feet on the No. 1 McLeod, in the northeast, northeast, southwest of 14-2s-11w, a wildcat test a mile north of Walters.

Cole and Calvert are drilling at 500 feet on the No. 1 Grossman, in the southwest, northeast, southeast of 27-2s-11w, wildcat southwest of Walters.

Harris and McNeil have casing set on oil sand at 2165-70 feet on the No. 1 Shackelford, in the northeast, northeast, southwest of 34-1s-10w. They are shut down at 2180 feet on the No. 6 Chambers, in the southeast, northeast, northwest, southwest of 1-2s-10w.

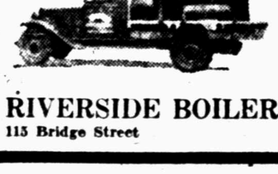

Peckham and Peterson are cleaning out the No. 1 Moore, in the southwest, northwest, southwest of 2-2s-10w. Total depth is 2198 feet.

Baldwin and Sultan are rigging up the No. 5 Patterson, in the northwest corner of 1-2s-10w.

Perkins & Cullum No. 1 C. A. Mangold, located in block 5, Mangold subdivision, north Archer county, is a dry hole at a depth of 1850 feet. A small show of oil was encountered at 1778-84 feet.

W. Vandervirt staked out location for his No. 2 Larrimore test, to be drilled 300 feet west of his No. 1 300-barreler, in section 2247, T. E. L. survey, to the north of Newcastle, in Young county.

STOCK MARKET SCENE SHARPEST DECLINE SINCE EARLY MAY

UPSET IN STOCKS CARRIES WHEAT ON DOWNWARD COURSE

CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—A bear market developed in grain today owing largely to securities breaking to new low quotations for the year. The upset in stock exchange prices caught the wheat market at a time when holidays abroad had temporarily blocked export demand. In addition, weather conditions today were auspicious for maturing and harvesting domestic winter wheat, and indications pointed to only a moderate reduction in the visible wheat supply on Monday.

With rallying power at a low ebb, wheat prices closed unsteady, ¾@1c a bushel under yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾@⅞c off, oats ⅛@⅛c down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15c.

Corn and oats receded with wheat and as a result beneficial rains. There were also indications of larger receipts of corn next week.

Provisions declined, responsive to setbacks in the value of hogs.

Dry Goods Market

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—Reports now confirmed show that some large purchases of raw silk have been made for future delivery at the lowest price quoted for 20 years on more. Silk goods selling moderately. There have been some lower offerings of printed and woven wash fabrics with sales active on sheer lines. Other cotton goods ended the week quiet. More business is coming forward on men's suitings fabrics for fall cutting. Additional business was done on tropical suitings which have been benefited by hot weather. Burlap shipments for May were substantially higher than in April. The market is quiet.

FURTHER DECLINES IN COTTON MARKET DEMAND IS LIGHT

NEW YORK, June 7. (AP)—The favorable view of present weather conditions in the South and the progress now being made by the crop over most of the belt were reflected in a further decline in cotton prices here today. The selling was not particularly active or aggressive but the relatively light demand was attributed chiefly to covering and closing quotations were at about the lowest. The new October contract sold off to 14.03 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at new declines of 14 to 18 points.

There was enough week-end covering to absorb the initial offerings, but the demand was supplied on slight bulges and prices soon eased again under continued selling and liquidation by commission houses ad local sources. Some trade buying of July developed around 15.00 which helped to steady the late market and check the decline around 14.34. For the old October and 14.14 for the new December contract.

Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, the Liverpool market was closed today, not to reopen until next Tuesday morning. Other markets abroad were closed so there were no cables to influence sentiment either way. Weather reports indicated general showers or rains in the eastern belt with considerable precipitation in some stations.

A private crop report was published pointing to a decrease of 3.7 per cent in acreage and estimating that 90 per cent had been planted with about 73 per cent up, without apparent effect on the immediate market. Today's decline carried prices back to about the previous low levels, with new January selling at 14.15 making a new low for the life of the contract. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 66,000 bales against 97,000 last year.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, June 7. (AP)—Cotton was nervous and easier in today's short session.

The market opened 1 to 7 points down in the absence of cables and eased during the first hour on long liquidation and selling on the weather. July traded down to 15.32, October to 14.09 and December to 14.19, or 9 to 10 points below the previous close.

The market eased during the second hour on a weak stock market, making new lows at the end with July at 15.25, October at 14.03 and December at 14.13. It closed at the lowest, or 16 points on those deferred months and 7 lower for the day. January closed 15 points net lower.

Port receipts, 6,024, for season 8,490,755, last season 9,362,531. Exports 9,000, for season 6,356,678, last season 7,486,277. Port stock 1,272,984, last year 1,062,198. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 87,605, last year 92,160. Spot sales at southern markets 957, last year 4,705.

Liverpool Cotton

LIVERPOOL, June 7. (INS)—On account of continental holiday, the Liverpool cotton market will be closed today and Monday.

Chicago Cotton

CHICAGO, June 7. (AP)—Cotton closed 12 to 19 points lower, July contracts showing the most net loss. The decline was attributed to favorable weather over the belt, rain over the Southeast and clear over the central and western areas. Opening prices were 5 to 10 points down on weakness in outside domestic markets. Today was a holiday at Liverpool. Complaints of boll weevil infestation were received from central Alabama.

Boston Wool Market

BOSTON, June 7. (AP)—A fairly large business in wool continued the last week. The distribution of the demand over the various grades did not vary to any great extent from the previous week. Retirement for two years apparently had not dampened the ardor or tempered the expressions of the Missouri ex-senator. He reviewed the current state of the nation's policies and politics, in a 6,000-word speech that was reminiscent of other days when he fought "special privilege" and demanded that "the country be returned to the people."

Reed opened by saying: "I do not presume to speak for the Democrats of the nation. I only ask the privilege of speaking to them." He redefined the Democrat barrels daily although back pressure was raised from 175 to 250 pounds to conserve as much of the 31,500,000 cubic feet of gas daily as possible until the Signal Gasoline company complete a second casinghead gasoline plant. It began flowing on Saturday morning, May 24, at 8489 feet. Texon's No. 1-B University continued to produce around 2885 barrels of oil daily with gas again rising above the 27,300,000 cubic feet mark. This well since Dec. 1, 1928, has produced over 1,375,000 barrels of 56.3 gravity crude.

REAGAN PRODUCER SETS DEPTH MARK

Andrews Gets Producer

Deep Rock and others' No. 1 A. R. King, Andrews county's second producer, was estimated good for at least 400 barrels daily after it swabbed steadily for 18 hours, to the bottom of the six-inch pipe at 4100 feet, and filled up 3500 feet in five hours. Several days earlier, before deepening from 4380 feet, the well swabbed 476 barrels of oil in 18 hours without lowering the column past 2500 feet and filled up to 3500 feet in 12 hours. The first oil was struck at 4290 feet, 15 feet higher than in Deep Rock and others' No. 1 Ogden, the discovery well, surface elevations being flat, 3206 feet. In drilling from 4380 to 4421 feet there has been no noticeable increase in oil or gas. No. 1 Ogden encountered water at 4428 and it was thought that No. 1 King would not be drilled much deeper. It is 330 feet from the north line and 2310 feet from the east line of section 11, block A-46, public school land.

Whether the field extends south and east was expected to be determined shortly. Deep Rock and others' No. 1 Hayden Miles, one and one-half miles south of the discovery well and 990 feet south and 1650 feet east of the northwest corner of section 22, block A-46, drilled ahead from 4270 feet after recovering tools which were blown up the hole when the plug was drilled. An estimated 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas was struck at 4163 feet and a showing of oil from 4240-70. Deep Rock and others' No. 1 Mathis, one and three-quarters mile east of No. 1 Ogden and 990 feet north and east of the southwest corner of section 4, block A-46, public school land, had drilled Thursday to 4230 feet in lime without increase. It obtained oil shows at 4166 and 4175 feet and an estimated 500,000 cubic feet of gas at 4185. Six-inch pipe was cemented at 4188.

Six miles south of the Andrews discovery producer, Fuhrman Petroleum corporation's No. 1 W. T. Ford, 440 feet north and 2200 feet east of the southwest corner of section 16, block A-43, recovered tools blown 500 feet up the hole by gas, estimated from 750,000 to several million cubic feet, struck on May 30 at 2955 feet in anhydrite. It drilled ahead and was scheduled to begin running 8¼-inch casing Friday morning.

One of the Penn pool's latest producers (Ector county) was Humble and others' No. 7 York, 1650 feet from the south line and 440 feet from the west line of section 16, block 44, township 3 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, an east offset to Gulf's No. 2-A University, a producer. It had a showing of oil at 3635 feet, topped the pay at 3655 and produced 273 barrels of oil the first five hours. Drilling in midweek had reached 3710 feet in grey lime. Humble and others' No. 8-D Kloh, 980 feet from the south line and 440 feet from the west line of section 7, block 44, township 3 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, an east offset to Gulf's No. 2 University, topped the pay at 3620 feet and when drilled to 3660 feet had 1500 feet of oil in the hole.

Gulf's No. 2-A University, which topped pay at 3650-70 feet and produced approximately 127 barrels of oil the first eight hours, made 360 barrels of oil the first 11 hours after being shot with 140 quarts from 3631 to 3695 feet, total depth being 3700. It was being flowed with Gulf's No. 1-A University. No. 2-A University is 330 feet from the south line and 440 feet from the east line of the north half of the south half of section 2, block 35, Cosden's No. 2-B University topped the pay at 3635 feet, obtained an increase from 3650-55 feet and produced around 550 barrels of oil by heads in 19 hours. It was turned into the tanks with Cosden's No. 1-B, the two gauging 1,647⅓ barrels Tuesday. No. 2-B is 1650 feet from the north line and 440 feet from the east line of section 2, block 35, a north offset to Gulf No. 1 University.

Landreth's No. 2-T University, on the south end of the pool and 440 feet from the east line and 330 feet from the north line of section 3, block 35, produced only 105 barrels of oil the first day after being shot with 330 quarts from 3574 to 3697 feet. It topped pay at 3662 feet and drilled to 3700. Humble's No. 2-D Kloh, which more than doubled its production after being shot 10 days ago, continued to produce in excess of 1,100 barrels daily.

Texas-Cosden's No. 7 Connell, indicating a mile western extension and located in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 1, block B-16, public school land, was shot Wednesday evening with 240 quarts from 3475 to 3600 feet and during the first 12 hours flowed 250 barrels. Its highest previous gauge had been 120 barrels in 24 hours, swabbing. The well topped the pay at 3475 feet, only 280 feet in the grey lime, and around 100 feet higher than the nearest producers to the east. In view of this it had proved disappointing. Gulf's No. 1-B Connell, north offset, had drilled to 3285 feet in hard lime. Cosden's No. 1-C University, east offset to Gulf's No. 1-B Connell, had drilled to 2630 feet. Sunray-Llano's No. 1 Jones, in section 6, one-half mile north of main production, had drilled to 2530 feet in anhydrite. Independent-Tidal's No. 1 Scharbauer & Edson, in the northwest quarter of section 6, loosened a bit at 3765 feet and was fishing for it at the total depth 3800.

Phillips Petroleum company added a producer on the southwestern edge of the Yates pool in Pecos county in its No. 6 Ramsey. It was shot twice from 1602 to 1652 feet, first with 50 quarts and next with 120 quarts, and flowed 107 barrels of oil the first 12 hours. Pay was topped at 1540 feet, 40 feet in the lime. The well is 2722 feet from the north line and 1540 feet from the west line of section 17, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey.

concrete wall rose 10 feet each day, with the forms being slipped up daily to shape the current day's run. The 100-foot walls were built in 10 days. Large crowds of visitors, by day and night, watched the astonishing progress of the building.

National broadcast of programs through the NBC and CBS chains relative to the 50th birthday of the Gold Medal brand of flour was included during the past week in the anniversary observance. Attention also has been called to the event by both newspapers and radio locally, while retail dealers have featured special Gold Medal displays in keeping with the national Golden Jubilee of "Eventually, Why Not Now?"

Doings of Scouts in Wichita Falls Area

Camp is the main topic of interest for the scouts of this area at the present time. Lots of work has been done at the camp grounds and things will look better and boys will have a better time than ever before. The program has been changed somewhat and instead of an early morning dip, the boys will have a 30-minute swim at 10:30. Two hours a day will be devoted to handicraft and to passing of tests. Some of the handicraft subjects to be taught by expert instructors are leather tooling, leather lacing, leather thong plaiting, fancy bird houses, bows and arrows, boomerangs, bead work, whittling and carving, celluloid and tin can work.

A special surprise is promised for each afternoon with a special play period every day, ball games every day and volley balls and horseshoe pitching. Heavy registrations from out of town scouts indicate about 80 boys for each one of the two periods. Joe Stewart, who has cooked for the past three years will again have charge of the kitchen—no dish washing and dishes will be furnished as they were last year.

Several arbors have been erected and plenty of shade will be provided. A long bench has been built the full length of the porch and the boys can do all their handicraft at the bench, as seats have been provided for each space for boys to work. Lots of fun will be had at the council ring each night with a different program each night. The scout executive from Altus, Okla., will visit in camp one day, as will also the scout executive from Memphis, Texas, two scout executives from Denison, Texas, and the Katy railroad scout executive, who will spend several days in camp.

The field day last Saturday was not as well attended as it should have been, but over 350 boys were in attendance for different parts of the program. Troop 16 won the first place with a score of 56 points, troop two second place with a score of 50 and Valley View third with a score of 31 points. Geraldine scored 19 points. Byers 17 points and Iowa Park and Newcastle each 13 points.

Troop two won the prize offered for the troop having the first 20 first class scouts and each one will be entitled to a week's encampment, starting June 16, free of charge. The following boys will be entitled to go: Billie Bancroft, John Bone, Nathan Chenault, Hub Cheshire, P. B. Cox, Tom Durkan, Godfrey Engel, George Frazier, Clifton Jones, Ross Curlee, Vernon McDaniel, Eugene Napier, George Nelson, Edward Peterson, Marvin Pierce, Preston Thompson and Harold Wentz. Both prizes were awarded about six months ago and troop two was the only troop to get as many as 20 boys to first class rank. This was won by steady, consistent test passing. It might be noted that two other troops are now passing tests, getting all their boys to the second class rank to be eligible in case any other prizes shall be offered for advancement.

Arrangements are going forward steadily for the Rocky mountain trip and the Wichita Falls Bus company, who is planning to furnish us with the large bus, advises that 30 boys can travel comfortably, and without crowding. Instead of only 24 going, 30 boys can now be taken. Three blankets and a real scout suit will be necessary, as snow will most likely be encountered on top of the mountains and plenty of bedding will be necessary. Stops will be made at three cities along the way and the three evenings will be spent in the town where camp will be made. Camp will be made every night not later than 4 o'clock and the bus will start every morning at 8 o'clock. Lunch will be eaten along the road. A large truck will be taken to carry the duffle and the bedding. Three boys will sleep in a pup tent. One entire day will be spent in Denver, before going to the Outpost camp, which is 60 miles due west of Denver. For six days and nights the boys will sleep on the Great Divide. The Denver Boy Scouts have extended the use of their Outpost camp to the Scouts, and a competent guide will also be given them. Each day a special trip into the mountains will be taken.

The camp is 10 miles from the nearest city, which is called Silver Plume. It is planned to visit some deserted mining town on the trip. The approximate cost will be $28 for 14 days, which will cover transportation and meals and sleeping. Spending money is extra. To go on this trip it is necessary that the boy spend at least one period in camp.

Miss Theressa Kaufman, who was for three years office secretary, has moved to Oklahoma City and the scouts of this city and of this area will certainly miss her. They wish her success in her new home. Miss Phyllis Creighton will be in the office taking care of the wants of the boys.

Troop 30, the troop of colored scouts, spent three days camping this week. The scoutmaster, Professor Lea, and the scout executive were with the boys, and as this was the first time many of these boys were ever in camp many stunts were conducted. The boys especially enjoyed the swimming. Thanks are extended to Mr. Stroud for the use of the plot of land about four miles out on the Iowa Park road. The boys hiked most of the way back to town on the return trip. The boys have asked their scoutmaster for another trip like this before school opens. This troop is being sponsored and backed by the Negro Community club.

The Boy Rangers, organization for younger boys, are meeting regularly and in the area there are lodges at Megargel, Burkburnett, Highland Heights Christian church, First Methodist church, Scotland and one lodge at Graham. There are over 150 boys under 12 now being definitely reached with a program that will help them be better men. This Ranger program leads the boy into scout work when he becomes of scout age. Thursday a group of the rangers went to Week's park and cooked their dinner and played a few games. Their leader, Patrick Henry Jr., was out of the city, and the scout executive had the boys in charge. Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the Highland Heights Christian church a father and son banquet will be given the rangers, all rangers in the city and the rangers in Burkburnett are invited. The ranger must be accompanied by his dad or some man. The charge is 35 cents per plate. Reservation should be in the scout office not later than Monday afternoon. Plans are being made to take the rangers to the Boy Scout camp at diversion dam for two days. The boys will sleep at the camp one night. Plenty of older scouts will be provided as leaders.

Maynard Creighton, Eagle scout of troop 15 and son of the scout executive, leaves Sunday morning for Kerrville to enter the American Red Cross life saving school. The Red Cross is conducting three of these schools in the United States this year. A complete course in aquatics, life saving and water front activities are given. Maynard will be back to take charge of all water activities here by Wednesday, June 18. The school is being directed by Mr. Cantwell, head of all life saving in the United States.

Troop 12, with Don Ross as scoutmaster, met in regular session at the Grace Methodist church. The meeting was opened by raising the flag and the pledge of allegiance to same. The troop sang a few songs. An overnight hike was planned for next Saturday night. Regular routine business was conducted. The meeting closed with the lowering of the flag and the scout oath.

Troop 20 met at the First Southern Presbyterian church with W. F. Newberry, scoutmaster, in charge. Colors were blown by Woody McFadden, and the scout oath and laws were given next. On check-up it was found that 90 per cent of the scouts had done their good turn that day. The troop has asked for the scout camp for an early date in July for a week-end camp. The meeting closed with allegiance to flag and scout benediction.

Troop 10 met at the First Presbyterian church with Paul Woodward, scout master in charge. Carl Oglesby led the opening with the scout oath and laws. Regular patrol meetings were held. The troop closed the meeting early to attend the closing exercises of the summer vacation Bible school of the church. The scouts returned to scout hall and played a few games and were dismissed.

About 4:15 Friday Sheriff Bralley called the scout office and asked for help in locating a boy that was drowned four miles from town. Within 20 minutes Bob Tinsley, scoutmaster, and Paul Woodward, scoutmaster, and Charles Aston, Eugene Cope, Maynard Creighton, Don Williams and the scout executive were on the road to the place where the boy was drowned. The scouts had no more than got in the water than Homer Bentley, motorcycle officer, discovered the body.

Newcastle scouts who attended the field day last week assured the Wichita Falls boys that they would be pleased to renew acquaintances at camp this summer. Mr. Tune, scoutmaster, advised that the boys could come to camp or go to Calsbad and it seems that the boys would rather put the week in with the other fellows at camp.

Troop 16, the "Straight Shooters," with Kenneth Erwin as scoutmaster, met in regular session at the First Baptist church. The meeting was opened with Jimmie Smith, senior patrol leader, in charge, and the group gave the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Roll call was answered by each scout telling what he liked best about the field day. Regular announcements were made. F. E. Albritton presented merit badges and gave a short talk on "Enthusiasm." Kenneth Erwin presented Roy Crocker with the camp award for being the most worthy scout in troop 16. Patrols held their regular meeting and after return to meeting each one put on a stunt. Several games were played. Several new members were voted into the troop. The standing in the inter-troop contest as follows: Black Bears, 3353; Cuckoo, 2783; Gorillas, 2128; Roaming Buffaloes, 1780. The meeting closed with the scoutmasters benediction.

Troop 23, which will be located at Pleasant Valley school on the Iowa Park road, met Thursday night to register and to formally apply for a charter. Quite a few of these new boys have signified their intention to attend camp. Mrs. Shields will be the scoutmaster.

The regular monthly board of review will be held Monday, June 30, at 8:30 p. m. at the scout office with Sam Hord in charge. Two boards of review will be held at camp, one in each period, so that the scouts will have three chances to come before examining boards this month.

Troop One held "Parents Night" at Floral Heights Methodist church with J. T. Hamilton, scoutmaster, in charge. Milton Brand, assistant scoutmaster, presided at the meeting. Regular opening of the troop was demonstrated for the benefit of the parents. Several patrols put on very amusing stunts. A tenderfoot investiture service was given. The troop held a patrol knot-tying contest after which the boys introduced their parents. R. E. Shepherd, scout president, and Scout Executive Creighton were present. Each made a short talk on scouting. Refreshments were served. Demonstration of signaling was also given.

Troop two met in regular session at the First Methodist church with Bill McClure, scoutmaster, in charge. The meeting opened with the scout oath and laws. Events of field day were discussed. Attendance at camp was discussed. Several boys who did not make first class are planning to attend with the troop while they are in camp. After the business session games were played. The meeting did not close until 10 o'clock. Over 20 were present.

Each year different firms send samples for first aid at camp, and so far, the Mentholatum company has sent a small box of Mentholatum for sunbun, etc. The Hynson, Westcott and Dunning company has sent enough mercurochrome for injuries. The Seeck and Kade company has sent enough pertussin to care for colds. The Merck company has sent enough iodabs for small bruises. The Kellogg company has sent special menus for overnight hiking, etc.

PLANS EFFORT TO BREAK WORLD ALTITUDE MARK

WASHINGTON, June 7. (US)—With only seven more days in which to make the world's record for altitude, Lieutenant Apollo Soucek, the navy's record ace was today tuning up his Wright Apache plane for a final assault at the mark of 41,793 feet next week.

Orders were issued by the navy department today detaching the crack airman from the naval air station at Anacostia and sending him to the Pacific coast for ship duty. He will leave here on June 16.

Soucek will make another assault on the record Monday. Weather conditions prevented the attempt today.

Free Lessons Offered Here as Learn to Swim Campaign Launched

Continuing their "Learn-to-Swim" campaign, the city park department and the management of Westmoreland pool will again offer free lessons to Wichitans this summer, it was announced this week by Tom McCarty, of the city recreational staff, and Otto Lazenby, Westmoreland pool manager.

Tom Beaty, life guard at Westmoreland for the past several years and high school athlete, will again be an instructor in free lessons. He will be assisted this year by Leonard Rice of Denton, an expert diver and swimmer who has several medals to his credit for his proficiency in the water.

Children under 14 years of age may get their swimming lessons from 8 to 9 o'clock on Monday and Thursday mornings of each week throughout the summer, when Beaty and Rice will be on hand to instruct the swimmers. Adults may come for their lessons at 5 o'clock on Monday and Thursday afternoons.

Since the inauguration of the "Learn-to-Swim" campaigns a few years ago, water accidents have almost ceased to happen, according to Westmoreland officials. During the first year of the pool, life guards had to rescue three or four persons every day. Today a call for help is a rare occurrence.

To Promote Safety

It is for the promotion of safety that the city park department and the pool management are especially desirous of continuing the swimming lessons, it was announced. Attention was called by city officials and others to the drowning here Friday of a young man who would probably have had no trouble if he had learned to swim.

The idea received the hearty endorsement of safety officials here.

"It's the best safety measure we could take," said J. W. Lyle, president of the Wichita Falls Safety council, in speaking of the free lessons. "If we are to keep down the number of drownings, our best method is to teach the children to swim, rather than try to keep them out of the water."

In addition to the free lessons, Westmoreland pool will offer another unusual opportunity—that of becoming a member of Wichita Falls' swimming team which is to represent the city at the state swimming meet late this summer. Frank J. "Jack" Dempsey, holder of several records in swimming will be the coach for the team, and practice will begin immediately. Those wishing to begin practicing now for places on the team will probably meet at the pool each evening with Mr. Dempsey, according to present plans.

The arrangement with the city park department was made through Mr. McCarty and City Park Superintendent C. C. Bunnenberg.

DR. ECKENER PLEASED WTH FLIGHT OF GRAF

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 7. (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener today expressed keen satisfaction that the Graf Zeppelin had stood the severest tests of thunder storms, gales and rain equally well upon her historic voyage to the Americas which ended yesterday.

The veteran commander said the worst part of the whole trip was in the 60 miles northward from Lyons, where, he said, he ran into a veritable witch's cauldron.

MORROW SAYS UNFAIR TO HOLD GERMANY FULLY RESPONSIBLE FOR WAR

PATERSON, N. J., June 7. (AP)—Dwight W. Morrow, candidate for the United States senate, in a campaign address here last night said it was unfair to hold Germany fully responsible for the world war.

"It was the popular thought," he said, "to place the blame on Germany for all the responsibility for the world war. This is an unfair attitude for the war started by the fear and pressure of naval competition. Everyone was running around in circles telling what the other nations were doing in preparations for war."

He expressed regret that Germany was not represented at the London naval conference and said he hoped she would be invited to the next conference to be held in 1935.

K. C. SPELL EXPANDS BUSINESS TO TAKE IN FLETCHER SHOP

K. C. Spell, resident of Wichita Falls for the past eight years, will be probably the largest individual barber shop owner in this section of the state Monday morning when his two downtown shops here are opened to the public.

Mr. Spell's purchase of the Fletcher Barber shop, 719 Eighth street, a few days ago, adds 14 chairs to the facilities he now has for nine chairs, making a 23-chair combination in the two shops, one at 719 Eighth and the other at 815 Eighth.

Eight years ago Mr. Spell came here from Beaumont to operate a one-chair shop at 615 Seventh street. Before long, he had a five-chair shop, and soon moved from that location to 815 Eighth, where he has gradually increased his capacity to nine chairs. Expansion of his business in his latest purchase is evidence of unusual success in the barber business.

The new shop will be operated on the same principles as is the other Spell shop on Eighth street, with Mr. Spell retaining the active management of both establishments.

The new location, damaged by fire not long ago, is expected to be ready for its customers Monday morning, Mr. Spell said Saturday.

A device that removes strings from beans has been invented that can be clamped to a table edge.

SIX TRIBES OF INDIANS CHARGE PALEFACE HAVE STOLEN MILLION ACRES

SPOKANE, Wash., June 7. (AP)—Six tribes of Indians in this region today were preparing papers to show "the great white father at Washington" how his paleface children had stolen a million acres of land from them and to ask that it be returned to them.

The tribes, the Colvilles, Lakes, Sanpoil, Nespelem, Ofanogan and Methows, represented by "talk men" have employed attorneys to press their claims for a strip extending from the crest of the Cascades on the west to the Rockies on the east. Some of the "talk men" were graduates of Carlisle and others were blanket Indians who pressed their fingers to the documents giving the attorneys power to act for them.

The Indians pointed out that since America was discovered it has been necessary for the whites to purchase land from the Indians, but that their parents and grandparents were driven from the land in question by the whites without compensation.

RICH CALIFORNIAN NAMED IN $200,000 SUIT EX-CONVICT

LOS ANGELES, June 7. (AP)—The Examiner today says that Charles T. Davis, wealthy Los Angeles resident recently named defendant in a $200,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Cano Morris, former show girl, last night was revealed to be "Charlie" Davis, millionaire ex-convict from the Dannemora, New York, prison.

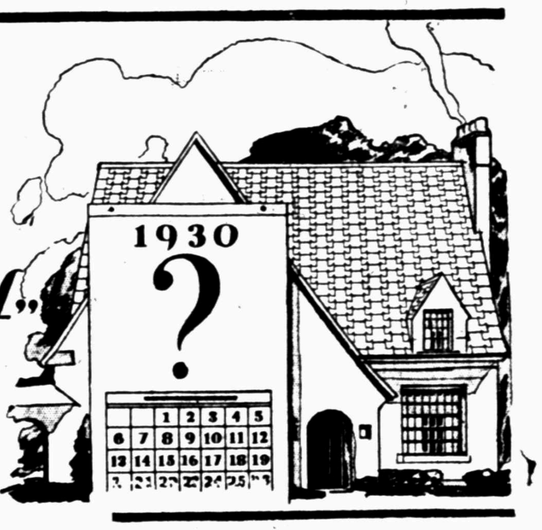

Austin Davis, son of the man who last March dropped from sight after being released from the New York penitentiary, admitted to the newspaper that his father was the same "Charlie" Davis who had gone to Dannemora prison after shooting to death a detective who allegedly was attempting to blackmail him. Since coming to California, Davis has been living here with his son and the son's wife.

Wedding of Unusual Interest Solemnized at First Methodist Church on Thursday Afternoon

Heralded by the lovely chimes in the First Methodist church, the wedding of Miss Emma Frances McFall, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McFall, and H. E. Martin Jr. was solemnized at the church Thursday afternoon. The ring ceremony was read by Dr. C. M. Simpson, assisted by Rev. J. D. Barron. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with gladioli and greenery, carrying out a color scheme of pink and beige. Pews for the family were marked with bows of ribbon in the chosen colors, which were also featured in the gowns of the bridal party.

Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. presided at the organ and played a prelude, after which Miss Ruby Evans of Bowie, sang for the pre-nuptial numbers, "Beloved, It Is Morn," and "At Dawning." For the entrance of the wedding party she played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her to be married, and was charming in a gown of peach colored lace with hat to harmonize. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley tinted in the shade of her dress. Miss Margaret McDonald was maid of honor and wore a gown of beige and gold lace with pink lace hat. Her bouquet was of pink rosebuds. Mrs. H. E. Pretty Open-Air Recital Given At Chenault Home Friday Evening

On a rose garlanded platform set amidst a fairy land of vari-colored lights, 45 small artists, the expression and dancing pupils of Ella Merla Mathis Bristol, Friday evening entertained 300 of their admirers in an open air recital staged on the grounds of the N. B. Chenault home in Indian Heights. Miss Katherine Sue Ralston, assistant, was associated with Mrs. Bristol in the recital. Mrs. J. I. Harvey and Miss Jewell Thompson were the accompanists.

One after another the diminutive entertainers delighted their hearers with readings, sketches, and dance numbers, the sprightly and well-balanced program moving quickly toward its climax in two ensemble numbers.

In one of these, the young actors portrayed in pantomime, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" as sung by little Miss Cleo Wilson. To the delightful strains of the whimsical music, tiny little Martha Lou Harvey was wedded in make-believe to Bruce Steward, the stalwart groom. Peggy Jo Pond, Eloise Curtis, Martha Ann Medders, and Johnny Sue Barclay made a charming quartet of bridesmaids. Gordon Jones was the officiating minister, and Patricia Pond and George Mytinger were appropriate wedding guests as Red Riding Hood and Buster Brown. Red Riding Hood added a piquant solo dance to the nuptial festivities.

The evening's entertainment was brought to a close when five little girls in pink and five little girls in green twined colorful streamers about a May pole set in the center of the spacious grounds.

Mrs. Bristol presented five awards. To Martha Clark and George Mytinger she gave prizes for their high positions on the honor roll. Eloise Curtis and Patricia Pond were rewarded for attractive notebooks. Martha Ann Medders, a student for five consecutive years, was honored for perfect attendance and excellent work.

The teacher announced before the close of the program that she and Miss Ralston plan to leave on June 26 for New York City where they will take a six-week course in the Theodora Irwin School of the Theater. They expect to sail from Galveston, making the trip to New York by way of Havana, Cuba.

Mrs. Bristol also announced that during the term to open next fall she will work in conjunction with Charles Doran, instructor in tap dancing, formerly with the Academy of Fine Arts.

G. W. Jr., solo cornet player for the Wichita Falls Playground band, not only helped the band win first place at the recent contest held in connection with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Abilene, but won a first place for himself in the cornet contest, receiving a medal from the Texas Band Teachers association.

FRENCH STEEL MAGNATE WEDS AMERICAN WOMAN

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7. (INS)—As the result of a fairy tale romance M. Maurice Fould, wealthy steel magnate of France and a relative of the famous Rothschilds, was married here today to Mrs. Muriel Wright Allen, at the home of Mrs. Walter D. Douglas, local society matron.

M. Fould, who is one of the richest men in France, is a widower with three children. Mrs. Allen is a divorcee and has a son aged 10.

Fould and Mrs. Allen met last summer when the latter was in Paris as the guest of Mrs. B. G. Dahlberg of Chicago. M. Fould recalled that on a recent visit to the Eiffel tower he had chanced to note that the name "Muriel Wright" was written immediately under his own which he had placed there years ago. It developed that when a girl of 13 Mrs. Allen had written her name in the tower under Foulds. At that time she had never heard of him and in fact had not until they met. The incident led to a courtship which resulted in the bridegroom calling her on the telephone from Paris twice a week and cabling daily. After a brief honeymoon in the States the couple will sail for France on the Lafayette and make their summer residence at Fould's summer chateau which was formerly one of the palaces of King Louis XIII.

BROCKTON, Mass.—William T. P. Nelson had been without his glass eye for some time. Walking down a street here recently he stopped to watch a group of boys playing marbles. One boy he noticed was the constant winner, under closer observation Nelson found the boy was using his glass eye as a marble.

Glorify your frock with the right Shoe

There is a sudden distinction between the soft glamour of a June night and the warm freshness of the day. A sudden distinction interpreted by a frock as it is worn on those occasions . . . and by the shoe that glorifies each and every June frock. A shoe that makes the foot a perfect complement to the occasion.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The summer city-wide activities will open with a swim at Westmoreland park on Friday, June 13. The swim will be from 7 to 8 o'clock and breakfast as soon after as possible. All girls who wish to remain for the breakfast will bring their own dishes, an egg, bacon, bread, fruit and five cents for cocoa. Each guardian should report to headquarters as to the number who will be out for breakfast.

Plans are under way for weekly swims for Camp Fire Girls where they may have special instruction in swimming. We hope to have some of our girls ready to compete in the state swimming meet at San Antonio.

Mary Jo Groves passed her wood gatherer rank and Mary Elizabeth Largin her fire maker rank before the committee of awards on Saturday.

The guardian association met at local headquarters on Tuesday afternoon, for the monthly meeting. After the business session. Members learned how to make comb cases with Indian bead stitch.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Frank W. Michaux, chairman, W. J. Willis, C. E. Rhoads; Misses Thelma Bridges, Clarice Clark, Edith McClure, Florence Frazer and Mary McIlheran.

Bernice Goff, member of the Oawakiya group of Alamo school has moved to Oklahoma City. We are sorry to loose Bernice and hope she will continue her camp fire work in her new home.

The Camp Fire Girls had a happy time on their "Star Adventure" on Saturday night. There was considerable competition with the hazy atmosphere, new moon, and lights from town, but in spite of it all each girl had a new experience in looking at the moon and stars through the telescope, and listening to the interesting things Judge Kay had to say about the planets and stars. Songs around the camp fire and roasting of marshmallows was fun that will long be remembered. The next adventure on June 28 will be a visit to the Coca-Cola bottling works.

Mankilo Group

The Mankilo group of Crockett school met at the home of Ruth Loughridge, 2108 Taft street, on Thursday afternoon. In the absence of other officers, Louise Rhoads, the secretary, presided at the business meeting. The following officers were elected: President, Louise Rhoads; vice president, Gussie Mae Martin; secretary and scribe, Ruth Loughridge; treasurer Virginia Lee Pyle.

Meetings were planned for the summer months to be held in the different homes of the members. The next meeting is to be at the home of Elizabeth Gay, 1708 Fillmore, at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon (when smoke printing will be taught by Miss McIlheran). Each member present decided on her porject for the treasure chest to be filled by the group to be sent to the Philippine islands.

After the adjournment of the business session the girls practiced Camp Fire songs with motions. Those attending were Mrs. C. E. Rhoads, Mrs. G. O. Loughridge, Mary Jane Brown, Louise Rhoads, Gussie Mae Martin, Nadene Stewart, Ruth Loughridge, Madelane Hokett, Mary Jo Groves, Patricia Hankerson, Elizabeth McGee, Virginia Lee Pyle, Elizabeth Gay, and Dorothy McGown.

On Monday afternoon the group met at the home of Louise Rhoads, 1711 Kemp boulevard, where they surprised Mrs. Maude Bartholomew, who has been acting as temporary guardian, with a surprise shower of miscellaneous gifts. Mrs. Bartholomew and her 3½-year-old son, Billie, left for Denver, Colo., where they will be for some time. Mrs. C. E. Rhoads and Mrs. G. O. Loughridge will serve as temporary guardians through the summer.

Wenonah Group

The Wenonah group held an enthusiastic meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Ora Adelle Hagerman. Miss McIlheran gave instruction in smoke printing, making it possible for the girls to earn the nature lore honor bead for making smoke prints of 10 leaves.

During the business session the girls decided to have a family picnic on Monday, June 16. Details will be worked out at the next meeting, to be held at Veneece Lyons on Monday, June 9. Mrs. Hagerman served a delightful ice course to Bonnie Pearl and Mrs. F. L. West, Wyvonne Bussey, Edith Tillman, Mary McGaughey, Iona Swift, and Miss McIlheran.

Oawakiya Group

The Oawakiya group of Alamo school met Thursday morning at the home of Dorothea Whitehead, 2012 Pearl street. The members present voted to hold their meetings on Tuesday mornings of each week at the homes of different members. The next meeting will be at Ina Jo Ogle's, 1206 Taylor street, Tuesday, June 10, when the girls will make the little felt comb cases with the Indian bead stitch around the edge. On June 17, a council fire will be held and on June 24, the members will work on articles for the treasure chest.

Several girls took coupon books for securing club subscriptions for the Woman's Home Companion and Everygirls Magazine in order to earn money for camp fire equipment. Those attending were Louise Bailey, Margaret Hutchison, Ina Jo Ogle, Alpha Lee Gambill, Catherine Ulzz, Dorothea Whitehead and Miss McIlheran.

Adi-Iwah Group

Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock several girls from Adi-Iwah group met at Bellevue park for tennis practice. Those attending the meeting were Eleanor Weiler, Frances Hyland, Margaret Davis, Clarice Clark, Thelma Bridges and Mrs. Hyland. Next week the group will have a swimming meet at Cedar park pool with June Houston as hostess.

Ahsonzong Group

The Ahsonzong group met at Lucile Murchison's, 1630 McGregor, Thursday afternoon. Each girl decided what she would contribute to the treasure chest project. The group planned a hike for next week. Those present were Dorothy Eubanks, Pauline and Irene West, Lucille Willis, Mrs. Willis, Gladys Young, Lucile Murchison and Mrs. Murchison.

Wokonna Group

The Wokonna group of Zundelowitz Junior high held an outdoor meeting at Cedar park pool on Wednesday. The girls enjoyed an early morning swim after which they cooked their breakfast over the camp fire. During the day the girls made plaster casts of prints, toward the earning of the handicraft honor for making three successful plaster casts. The girls at Cedar park pool were Thelma Simmons, Billie Ralph Hyer, Bernice Bryan, Nell Ground, Ruth Packard, Ida Weaver, Alice Marrs, Grace Mowry, Barbara Jo Ann Simmons, Mrs. J. A. Simmons and Miss McIlheran.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR NEW LUBBOCK AIRPORT

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 7.—Architect's plans for the new Lubbock municipal airport are scheduled to be completed today for preliminary inspection and approval of the city commission, according to announcement yesterday.

With completion of the plans bids probably will be asked on construction immediately and actual work started within the near future.

During the past two weeks commissioners, together with architects, the Butler company, have visited airports in this section of the state in an effort to better work out plans for the Lubbock port. Though bonds for the improvement work have not been sold commissioners are confident that these can be disposed of at short notice.

Coleman Soaked

COLEMAN, Texas, June 7.—Coleman had 2.38 inches of rain Thursday night that was general over the county. Creeks were running Friday morning and water went over the spillway at Lake Scarborough. The rain followed several days of high wind. The sun is shining bright and cotton, up to a good stand, will grow off rapidly. All parts of the county now have ample moisture for growing crops.

First Coleman Oats

COLEMAN, Texas, June 7.—First oats marketed in Coleman from the 1930 crop were sold yesterday by Hugh Wheat to the Wilson Grain company. The price paid was 50 cents per bushel. The oats tested 27 pounds. The yield on the Wheat farm will be between 25 and 27 bushels per acre, Mr. Wilson said. The oats were gathered with a combine and sold in bulk. The crop in the county this year will be short.

DANIEL ANNOUNCES PLATFORM IN RACE FOR STATE SENATE

A platform of 11 planks was announced here Saturday by Roy J. Daniel, Wichita Falls attorney, as containing the principles on which he is seeking the Democratic nomination next July to the state senate for this district.

Changes in the judicial system, regulation of public utilities which disregard public interests, opposition to any "huge" state highway bond issue and opposition to increasing taxes on oil property were included among other planks.

The platform announced by Mr. Daniel follows:

"1—Favors necessary changes in judicial system that will bring about prompt determination of both civil and criminal cases.

"2—Favors state expression of deepest gratitude to veterans of the world war and to the veterans of all wars.

"3—Favors regulation of those public utilities that selfishly disregard the interests of the people of Texas.

"4—Believes in the right of the laboring man to organize.

"5—Favors a public school system with such financial support that every child of school age in Texas will receive nine months of schooling each year. Favors aid to junior colleges.

"6—Favors concentration of prison system on present owned state lands.

"7—Favors a correlated system of highways at the lowest cost and opposes an enormous bond issue, and believes that the people would defeat the proposed bond issue of $350,000,000.

"8—Favors strict enforcement of the 18th amendment as long as it is part of the federal constitution, and favors the cooperation of state and federal officers in the enforcement of all laws.

"9—Opposes strenuously any further tax on any phase of the oil business because the oil business pays now more than 50 per cent of the expense of state government. Opposes any increase in taxes of farm lands and real estate.

"10—Opposes huge combines whether of foreign chain stores or major oil companies because such combines are monopolies which are the age-old enemies of liberty and freedom.

11—Favors the turning of weary steps of the farmers of Texas toward Austin for agricultural relief rather than to Washington. Believes that Texas has Texan brains to solve Texas' problems, both economical and governmental."

Scanties fashions the figure to perfection—yet with such freedom. So quick to put on, so easy to launder, so luxuriously comfortable, is this modern mode that every woman should have at least one Scanties in her wardrobe.

A wide variety of styles and sizes of this new luxurious freedom is being displayed in our brassiere department.

"There is a KEY TO BEAUTY!"

LESSON No. 1. This is the first of a series of "lessons" prepared by Elizabeth Arden that all women who use her preparations may follow the methods evolved by Miss Arden. This is just one more example of Elizabeth Arden's personal contact with her clients

Cleanliness: THE FIRST LESSON

TWO things only are necessary to assure the clear loveliness of your skin—a wise selection of preparations—a perfect understanding of the way to use them. The contents of a hundred jars and bottles will not yield their loveliness to you unless each cream and lotion is used exactly as it was meant to be. It is like a locked treasure that can be opened only with the right key. The key is Understanding.

In every one of my preparations there is beauty—waiting to be released by you. Every preparation has some unique, carefully developed property to bring definite benefit to the skin. The more closely you adhere to the prescribed treatment, the more confident you may be of results.

Your skin should be cleansed at least as tenderly as a fine piece of kid . . . never with scrubbing, never with harsh handling . . . but gently and thoroughly with the finest of oils. Only in this way can the tiny pores be rid of accumulated impurities. It is for this reason that I have formulated my Cleansing Cream to be of feathery lightness, and to liquefy quickly with the warmth of the skin. Swiftly it penetrates the depth of the pores. Night and morning—and during the day, when you wish to refreshen your face you should follow this little program of cleansing:

VENETIAN ARDENA SKIN TONIC

With a towel or band, secure the hair firmly away from the face so that hairline and ears are completely exposed. Squeeze a piece of absorbent cotton out of cold water. Moisten with Skin Tonic and dip in Cleansing Cream. Cleanse from the chin upward paying special attention to either side of the nose and around the mouth and chin; work gently around the eyes. Do not overlook the neck. Remove cleansing cream with Cleansing Tissues carefully so as not to stretch the skin.

Squeeze a fresh pad of cotton out of cold water, saturate with Skin Tonic and commence patting on the neck. Pat from the center around to the back on either side. Then, from the chin upward to the forehead. Continue patting for about five minutes, going over the same movements. Dry with Cleansing Tissues.

If this is your morning clean-up, your skin is now ready for your make-up which should be applied according to the method I will describe in a later lesson.

THE PREPARATIONS REQUIRED IN THIS LESSON ARE:

VENETIAN CLEANSING CREAM
A light, feathery cream that liquefies quickly with the warmth of the skin and dislodges impurities. It rids the skin of dust, powder and excretions, and leaves the skin soft and receptive. $1.00, $2.00, $3.00, $6.00

VENETIAN ARDENA SKIN TONIC
A mild astringent which firms, tones and whitens the skin and brings new life to every cell. Use with and after cleansing cream to stimulate circulation and bring a glow of natural color to the cheeks. 85c, $2.00, $3.75, $9.00

VENETIAN CLEANSING TISSUES
Softest silky tissues. The sanitary and convenient way of removing cream. Roll 40 cents. Large box of four rolls $1.50; large package $2.25.

THE HELPFUL CADDIE

Mr. Petty telephoned he wouldn't be here this morning. You've seen him play, ain't you? Of course you don't play with him, but there ain't many that can. When he got on this here first green in two the other day and just missed a putt for a three. Some playin'. I was pretty sure that shot would go into the rough, but I didn't like to say nothin'. You should have held your eye onto it and not dropped your shoulder.

The last time I carried for Mr. Petty he got about four times as far as that. It ain't no trouble carryin' for him because he don't never get into the rough. Just keeps 'em straight all the time—an' far, gee, you ought to see 'em go.

Well I looked here, an' that ball ain't here. On them short drives you never can tell where they go. Yes I followed it with my eye, but it was over the hill. But I'll find it all right. You gotta let these people go through, though, if you ain't gonna drop another one. They're playin' a match, an' a match has rights over a onesome. Don't be scared of losin' the ball. I'll find it for you all right. Mr. Petty says I can just smell 'em out. You gotta stand out of their way while they're goin' through. Here's the ball for you. No, it's an old one. It went up this way, didn't it? Well, I did kep my eye on it, but it was over the hill. I can't see through hills, can I?

You found it, did you? Well, that's good. Now we wont have to hunt no longer. I hate to lose a lot of time huntin' for balls. That's why I like to carry for Mr. Petty. No, you better not shoot yet. Sure they're a long way ahead, but you never can tell. You might make a fluke shot an' drive into 'em, an' I'd get the blame.

You see that pond over there. A lot of 'em gets into it if they don't remember where it is. If you hadn't got so far over here you wouldn't have to drive over it. Now if you won't drop your shoulder, and keep your head down you won't have no trouble. I wasn't talkin' while you was shootin'. I wasn't sayin' a word. Now, the water in that pond's pretty deep, and I hear there's snakes in it. You gotta drop another with a penalty. Wait a minute, wait a minute. They ain't off the green yet. All right, now you can shoot. Gee, that was a lucky one. Right up to the pin. Now keep your eye on the putt and you'll be all right. You oughn't hit it so hard, now it will take you a couple more prob'ly to get down. Another lucky one. Now we gotta wait till they tee off.

I don't s'pose you ever see Mr. Petty play this one. He got half way down the fairway in one the last time I carried for him, and was right up to the pin in two, and down in three. Some playin'. Too bad he couldn't have got out here today. Nobody ever gets though him on this hole.

All right, I'll get it before it goes too far down stream.

I don't need to go out ahead. It's a short shot, and you ought to get it out into the fairway. No you won't drive into them people. I can't see 'em, but they must be on the green by this time, an' you'll never shoot the green, not with that club anyway. Golly, that was a long one—one of them accidental shots. Right over their heads. Gee, they'll be mad. I guess you better stay here till they go on. No use in gettin' reported, an' they can't see you from here.

Well, if you want to go up an' apologize you can. You might of known they was down there. They was pretty good natured about it, wasn't they? But they probably knew you was a beginner. We gotta hurry along now. They let us go through, an' they ain't gonna wait very long. Too bad you hadda get into the rough again. Don't use that number four, take a niblick. Then you can get out. Don't you think maybe you better wave to them to go through? You've had three in the rough already, and they're probably playin' a match an' want to get on. Well, you're out now anyway. Now you gotta hit a screamer if you want to get over that brook.

All right, I'll get it before it goes too far down stream. But my mother told me to be sure not to get my feet wet, an' this stick will stop it. Couldn't help it, it went into the drain pipe. All it'll cost you is a penalty to drive another one. Wait a minute ther's a feller cuttin' that green, an' I gotta warn him. Go ahead now. Gee, you hit him, didn't you. I told you you better be careful. He ain't hurt much, but you might give him a dollar, just to keep him from reportin' you to the greens committee. People have been fired out of the club for hittin' the help.

Don't take that mashie here. Better take the spoon. It ain't so far, but its better to be safe than sorry. I seen Mr. Petty make this hole in one once, an' he got a free club sent him an' his name was in the papers. But you don't get holes in one unless you're good. You have to be shootin' straight to do that, no matter how good you are. Mr. Petty has had holes in one three times. Maybe you seen his picture in the paper for doin' it.

Don't you want to wait till this twosome goes through. You been holdin' 'em back quite a while now. Anyway you won't be so fussed if they ain't waitin' for you all the time. There's two women ahead of you huntin' for a ball. Women is always in the rough, but you gotta wait for them. They wouldn't let you through on a bet. An' anyway a onesome ain't got no rights.

Well, here we are at the end of it. You done pretty well to make a hundred an' sixteen playin' the way you done. Yes, that was what you made. I kep' track of 'em all in my head. Next time I go out with you you lemme play along with you an' I'll show you how that shots ought to be made. I could of showed you how to cut down your score about six or seven strokes if you'd watched me. Mr. Petty says that I'll be a pro some day, and just eat 'em all up. He says I got a natural swing, and never make no mistakes by pressin'. Sometime you may be watchin' me lick this here now Bobby Jones. I started young like him, an' there ain't no reason why I shouldn't be just as good.

Mr. Petty says—say Mister, you oughtn't to talk that way about Mr. Petty. He's a nice man an' a swell golf player. What, don't I get no tip, with all I done for you. Golly I'm sorry Mr. Petty didn't come out today. But I guess my luck's gone sour on me. Still if you come out some time when him or nobody else ain't here just ask for me, an' I'll learn you some more about the game.

Judge Huff Favors Seventh Street Location for New Federal Building—Readers Invited to Submit Views

As the national government will probably soon select a site for the new federal building, our people should take some thought on the situation and make known their choice to the government authorities having the matter in charge. As I understand the situation, three locations have been submitted for consideration as follows:

First—The east half (½) of block 167 (150 feet by 350 feet) fronting Travis street and lying between Seventh and Eighth streets. This property is diagonally across from the courthouse block.

Second—Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), block 168 (150 feet by 200 feet). This property corners on Seventh and Lamar, immediately in front of the courthouse block.

Third—Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and part of four (4), block 192 (150 feet by 260 feet). This property corners at Lamar and Tenth.

In selecting a site, the government will naturally take into consideration the values of sites submitted. However, in case the price is not out of line, a site should be selected that would be advantageous from all standpoints. In my opinion this federal building should be located in close proximity to the leading hotels, office buildings, courthouse and also in line with the civic development of the city. The county courthouse and the city hall auditorium both being on Seventh street, makes Seventh street the most logical location for this postoffice and federal building and will save the general public much inconvenience, especially when it is necessary for anyone to make a trip to all three places. Either location on Seventh street is more accessible to the business district, and would serve the general public, mail carriers, attorneys, litigants, witnesses and the government itself to better advantage as the courthouse records and county jail would be near by and used extensively during federal court.

Seventh street could also be made a great wide boulevard from Lamar to Brook avenue at much less expense and trouble than any other business street running west to the residence section of the city, and this the city should do. The way I view the matter the government would make a serious mistake in selecting the site at Tenth and Lamar, as it is out of line with the development of our business district and there would be a continual traffic jam on account of street cars and the down hill slope of Tenth street. In the selection of this important building, I think the government should take in consideration the wishes of the general public. For these reasons I believe the public sentiment is largely favorable to the Seventh street location.

Yours truly,

R. E. HUFF.

(Editor's Note: Readers are invited to write their views regarding the best site for the new federal building to The Times and Record News for publication).

'All-Weather Tread' Considered Safety Feature for Tires

It is almost unbelievable that any mechanical device, style or custom should survive the last quarter of a century without marked change or improvement, but such is the record of the All-Weather tread, standard design for Goodyear tires which are distributed locally by Vic Wisely, whose super service station is located at Eighth and Travis streets.

"Just 22 years ago the All-Weather diamond shaped tread for automobile tires was introduced by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron," said Mr. Wisely. "Yet this tread still is the standard of the Goodyear company, which enjoys the distinction of producing more than one-fourth of all the tires used in the United States.

"The All-Weather tread has prevailed in spite of 22 years of constant experiment and development.

"The reasons for this tread's popularity are obvious," continued Mr. Wisely. "The efficiency of the All-Weather tread in extra traction and less skid is written on the face of it. It doesn't take an expert to see that the sharp edged diamond blocks are placed so as to check the skidding tendency in all directions.

"Many persons have watched the diamond blocks digging through soft mud or wet snow like plow points to solid footing below to get fullest advantage of the forward pressure, like the cleats that a sprinter uses on his track shoes.

"But the All-Weather tread will make a creditable showing regardless of conditions under which it serves. Whether it be on water covered asphalt or in hub deep mud, it will give maximum possible traction," Mr. Wisely said.

UNUSUAL RECORD IS MADE BY GRADUATE LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Elta Rose Franklin, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Franklin, was not only one of the youngest graduates in the class of 1930 at the local high school a few days ago, but finished school with one of the most remarkable records yet found by those in the office of the registrar at the school.

Miss Franklin, completing the 11 years of school in nine years, has never been absent from nor tardy at any class. She had 18 units for her graduation in addition to the fractional units for gymnasium and choral club work, although only 16 are required for graduation.

She has been prominent in student activities, especially in musical circles at the school, and has also been an exceptional student, her teachers say.

Wichita Valley Railroad Train Change Is Made

Night passenger trains Nos. 5 and 8 to Abilene will be discontinued and day trains Nos. 1 and 2 substituted on the Wichita Valley railroad, as authorized by the railroad commission several weeks ago, effective Sunday, June 8. Trains Nos 9 and 10 to and from Waurika will retain their regular schedule, railway officials stated Saturday.

Running on the new schedule No. 2 will arrive from Abilene at 11:55 a. m. and No. 1 will depart at 2:25 p. m. daily.

Protest to the change may be made by the traffic department of the chamber of commerce. No definite move will be made until it is learned to what extent delivery of freight will be delayed by the change, chamber of commerce officials stated.

BEAUTY PREPARATIONS SUBJECT SERIES OF ADS BY PERKINS-TIMBERLAKE

Believing that the selection of the right preparations is only half of the task of the woman who wishes to achieve skin beauty and the other half is knowing exactly how to use these preparations, the Perkins-Timberlake company is carrying a series of three advertisements on Elizabeth Arden beauty lessons. The advertisements will appear for three Sundays, starting today. The lessons will be on toning and tightening, proper use of creams, and the discussion of blemishes, protective treatments and the art of makeup.

Cross of Gold

LONDON.—The huge cross and ball atop St. Paul's cathedral here has just been refinished in gold. With 30,000 leaves of pure gold, workmen, high above the heads of Londoners, stuck the precious metal to the cross and ball. The leaves were about three inches long and of incredible thinness.

HONOR GRADUATES SEYMOUR SCHOOL

For each of their four years in high school these girls have a brilliant record, Miss McDavid having a general average for the four years of 96.2 and Miss Alford of 96.84. In addition to the honors which they have won in their studies they have distinguished themselves as representatives of their school in its extra-curricular contests. The two composed a team that for two years in succession won first place for the district in the state Latin tournament at Abilene, winning both the first year and the second-year contests. This year they composed the team that won the girls' debate for the Wichita Falls district, this team, in the state meet at Austin, defeating Brownwood and Uvalde and losing to Sherman by a two to three decision. Sherman being the team that lost to Temple in the finals. In the "My Home Town" speaking contest of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce recently held at Abilene, in which a representative from each of 45 high schools representing as many towns participated, Miss McDavid won third place, receiving the $25 cash prize given by Judge C. M. Caldwell of Abilene.

On commencement day for the Seymour High school, Miss Alford received notice from Dr. H. T. Parlin, dean of the college of arts and sciences of the University of Texas, that she was the unanimous choice of the committee of award for the Prather scholarship for freshmen girls for the year 1930-1931.

The Prather scholarship was established and endowed by the children of ex-President Prather of the university in honor of his memory, and pays the holder $300 a year in cash. The selection is made on the basis of good character and intellectual promise. This is the second time within the past three years that the Prather scholarship for freshman girls has been awarded to a Seymour girl. Mary Grace Milam of Seymour, who has made such a distinguished record at the university, received this honor for the year 1928-1929.

Iowa Park Man Marries Sherman Girl Saturday

IOWA PARK, Texas, June 7.—Miss Betty Louise Noble of Sherman, Texas, and Jack Ralston of Iowa Park were married at the home of the bride's parents in Sherman Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Paul E. Martin, pastor of the First Methodist church of Iowa Park, read an impressive ring ceremony.

Miss Noble is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. A. S. Noble of Sherman, who are pioneer citizens of that city. She has lived in Sherman since girlhood, and is a graduate of the local high school, and also of Austin college at Sherman. For the past four years she has been engaged in teaching, having been a member of the faculty at the senior high school in Greenville, in the Latin and Spanish department since 1927.

Mr. Ralston is the son of James Ralston of Iowa Park. He was reared here, is a graduate of the Iowa Park High school, and since 1911 has been engaged in various kinds of business in Iowa Park. At present he is local manager of the Northern Texas Utilities office located here.

After a short honeymoon trip to various Texas points, they will be at home in Iowa Park.

Over 3,000 souls were added on that day, and the Church of Jesus was established, records show. It will be 100 more before another birthday will be celebrated.

The charge against Kennedy grew out of testimony given in the county court at law at a trial of Martin on a charge of barratry. It was charged that Martin had solicited employment as an attorney in an accident case.

Other settings for the week, with names of defendants and charges, follow: M. S. Grout, assault with intent to murder; Walter Wallace, statutory offense; H. C. Gracy, theft; Frank Walden, forgery; A. C. Varner, swindling; and W. S. Kelley, forgery.

CONCERNING COURT, MORROW, AND TEXAS

By WILL ROGERS

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. I just been reading in the news about the Presentation of some of our Americans at the Court of St. James. I remember Ambassador Dawes telling me about what a time he was having picking out the ones that were to be presented. He wanted to turn it over to the senate to decide which ones to present. Well they had it and as usual wealth won out.

You have often seen the ad "Campbells Soup." Well that ad has netted dividends, for offspring Charlote bent the knee to the King and Queen. It just shows you what advertising will do for you.

The Thermos Bottle people have got into the Social heat by producing an client to courtesy to their Majestys. Everybody that has ever taken a Bottle on a picnic contributed to her social success. The Radio people entered a Daughter, Elizabeth. While the World has been listening in they have themselves had their ear to the Society ground and when the time come they tuned in with Lizzie.

But while all these National advertised ingredients were "going Social" don't think the Cigarette was idle. No Sir, Old Gold had a tea and sent their fair daughter, Doris Duke "walked a mile" through Buckingham Palace to get a peek at George and Mary. Campbells soup had nothing on Campbells Cigaretts. Old Chesterfield was there in all its debutante finery. The Stotesburys entered a fair maid for the test in the person of Miss Francis Hutchison.

Atlanta come through and it wasent Coca Cola either. It was some of the Hoke Smith troop. So it looks like the whole thing run pretty near to form. I kinder thought Dawes would pick out a bunch of Girls in our land who had accomplished something. You know last year America got a lot of favorable publicity by Helen Wills crashing into what up to then had been "Who's Who in Debutantville." Helen made it on backline drive. She could stand in Buckingham Palace and place one in Windsor Castle. So it was thought well maby they will start to introduce Girls who have swum a Chanell, spelled all the words right, stuck to the phone during a fire, or done some noteworthy thing. But, no it was the same old racket. The bank book got you in. Achievement couldent hurdle a flock of credit slips. The whole thing is the prize "Hooey" thing of all time. They dont get to say a word. The Queen dont say a word to them. They just come by, do a little bum courtesy and then they are through for the day. It compares in importance about like voting the Democratic Ticket at a Presidential Election. You vote but it dont mean anything.

Dawes added the only Democratic touch to the whole thing by having on breeches of a decent length. The Ambassador from Russia, "Comrade" somebody or other, he wore knee breeches but he had a Sweater on. So that squared him with the Proletariot.

Old New Jersey is all excited over the coming election. Mr. Morrow was practically all set, as he should have been, to go in the United States Senate. He is not only the class of the race but of all their races for some time. It takes a Statician to name any of New Jerseys Senators in the past years. So this little fellow would have given them a dignity and importance that they have been sadly lacking in. Plus an ability that is unusual in any one running for the Senate. Because he announced himself on the Prohibition question, and give the best straight forward explanation of his stand, why up jumps a Dry. He has the same chance being elected as I have to supplant Charley Chaplin as the Worlds greatest Comedian. But this old Boy just saw a chance to get back into print, so he announced that he would run, not by popular demand, but by personal inclination. So that splits the thing all up. Now he could be in the Senate ten years and nobody would ever know what State he was from, while Morrow would be a power in there. His ability would stand out like a traffic light in that body.

Dividing Texas

Been interested in the scheme of my old friend Jack Garner of Texas. Jack wants to divide up the great State of Texas into five States. Why he wants to stop at five nobody knows. If he is going to split the old open range up, why not make a job of it.

The papers state that Texas would make 220 States the size of Rhode Island, and 54 the size of Connecticut, and six times bigger than the whole of New England. Jack wants more Senators to offset that mess from the East. Well lets make some Rhode Island out of it, and that will give us (220 times as big). Thats 440 Senators. Now that ought to satisfy anybody, even if you are fond of Senators, 440 ought to get us about what Pennsylvania has been getting with their two.

Spoke a Palate Full

Our old friend Mussolin broke a silence last week. When all the rest of the World was talking on dissarmament he remarked as per such, "Though words are beautiful things, Ships and Aeroplanes are much more beautiful." That old Lad spoke a palate full. He knows the Nations that are great are the ones that have something in the way of side arms. He knows that without an Army and Navy they will never be able to find room for his growing population.

That fellow has kept Italy on the up-grade for all these years, and all the time everybody says, "Oh, he cant last." I have said ever since I met him in 26, that he was by far the greatest Guy I had ever met, and there has never been a day since then that I have changed. He has done more for his Country than any man ever did for one in a like time. You dont see em shooting at him any more do you? He is a Whiz, that baby is. I have never yet seen him propose a fool thing.

OPPOSITION LOOMS HERE TO PROPSED CANDIDATES' TOUR

Opposition to the proposal that candidates for Democratic nominations follow the plan of previous campaign years of traveling together in making a series of speeches at various points in the county was indicated Saturday following the call for a meeting to be held at the courthouse Monday night, starting at 7 o'clock.

Heretofore, meetings have been held at 10 to 20 places so situated as to be convenient to every citizen of the county. The meeting of Monday night is called for the purpose of making arrangements for a similar tour this year.

Some of the candidates declared Saturday that they will object to continuing the plan, contending that audiences are made up almost entirely of henchmen who follow their candidate for the purpose of making a demonstration when it is his turn to speak.

G. Bralley, according to information given Saturday by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney.

John Ward was arrested and the car recovered there earlier in the week. Ward, who also is charged with theft, was returned to Wichita Falls Thursday, Mr. Bralley said.

NEGRESS ARRESTED HERE ON CHARGE OF WRECKING INSTALLMENT PURCHASES

A negro woman who forestalled an attempt on the part of a concern here to repossess furniture purchased on the installment plan by burning or wrecking the property Saturday faced a charge in the county court at law of malicious mischief as a result, according to information given by L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney.

Frank Morgan, constable, went to the woman's house Friday to serve a court order directing him to take possession of the property. The woman, he said, requested him to return later. When he returned, he said, he found that some of the property had been burned and other furniture had been wrecked. The complaint followed.

LOS ANGELES' POPULATION

Citizens of Los Angeles are probably disappointed that their city did not show a population of a million and a half, but the rest of the country is amazed at its showing in the census returns. Los Angeles is shown to have a population of 1,231,730 in the new census, compared with 576,673 in the 1920 census. In percentage the gain is 114 per cent, probably greater than that of any other large city of more than half a million population in the country. Los Angeles now becomes the fifth city in population in the United States.

Other cities in southern California are also showing great gains. Pasadena is given a population of 76,875, a gain of 67 per cent, and Long Beach has 141,390, a gain of 154 per cent.

The tremendous gains in California and Texas ought to have the effect of pulling the center of population of the country westward and southward.

THE WHEAT HARVEST IS ON

The harvest of the wheat crop is well under way in North Texas and within a few days will start in the Panhandle section.

Around Wichita Falls the crop is very light and in the Panhandle the estimate of the crop has been cut in half within the last six weeks.

Formerly wheat harvest brought calls for thousands of workers. The general use of combines which cut and thresh the grain at one operation have greatly reduced the number of workers required to harvest the crops, and no longer do great hordes of workers follow the harvest from the prairies of Texas in late May and early June to the plains of Manitoba in September.

The use of combines and of motor trucks in hauling the grain to shipping points has brought changes also in the marketing of the crop. Within a few weeks the grain is threshed and hauled to shipping points whereas formerly months were required to get the grain to these points. The railroads must now be on the job with a concentration of cars in the wheat areas ready to haul it to storage points as quickly as possible. Any delay means a piling up of grain at shipping points that brings criticism against the railroads.

Then, too, the quick shipment of grain brings new problems to the millers outside the big storage centers. Formerly the grain was many months in being marketed by the growers and in getting through the country elevators. The miller could buy his grain along as he needed it. Now the crop is rushed to the big storage centers within a few weeks and if the miller has not sufficient storage he is compelled to go to these centers and buy his grain and have it shipped back to him, often over the same route it traveled from the shipping point to the big storage elevator. That is one of the reasons why mills which have the resources to do so are increasing their storage capacity, to enable them to buy and store some of the grain as it comes from the shipping points in the grain areas.

MR. CREAGER AS A DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

Probably those persons who filed the name of R. B. Creager, Republican committeeman in Texas, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor did so as a practical joke, but the fact that Mr. Creager, if he desired, might force the Democratic state executive committee, under the ruling in the Love case, to certify his name as a candidate will show how far the direct primary system has gone toward breaking down party responsibility in Texas.

Mr. Creager could force his name on the Democratic ticket while at the same time refusing to support the nominees of the primary and refusing to pay any attention to the platform the party might adopt.

Of course, Mr. Creager has no intention of becoming a candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket and he is much too wise to become a candidate on the Republican ticket, and besides he has an important job as patronage umpire for President Hoover in the province of Texas.

Under the direct primary system we have seen a steady attraction of party responsibility in our state government and the same thing is happening in our federal government.

"Under the present primary law as interpreted by the supreme court," Peter Molyneaux in his Texas Weekly points out, "party organization becomes merely the machinery to hold primary elections, and the nominee of a party is merely the individual who obtains the most votes in a primary. The party platform cannot be binding on him, unless it embodies his personal views, and consequently there cannot be anything like a composite expression of party opinion, or a body of party principles. Every man can make his own party principles, and so long as he is willing to label them as Democratic or Republican, as the case may be, neither party can keep him out either as a voter or a candidate. The truth is that we have carried the direct primary very nearly to its ultimate of absurdity. The next step would be to abolish party organization altogether and hold a free-for-all, under state auspices, in November, thereby eliminating the summer primaries. If party adherence and party organization are really no more important than they are ruled to be under the present laws, why may not everybody vote in the same election? What principles or what interests would be sacrificed?"

If the present tendency continues there will be nothing unusual about Republicans running in Democratic primaries and Democrats running in Republican primaries and party platform will be held in contempt and derision. It is almost at that point now.

GOVERNOR COX ON PROHIBITION

Remembering that James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and Democratic candidate for president in 1920, was not originally in favor of prohibition, there will be some who will discount his statement of Thursday night at a Democratic meeting at Columbus, Ohio, urging repeal of the prohibition amendment. But whatever discount is made on that account it should be remembered that Governor Cox was one of those who accepted prohibition and hoped for its success. Governor Cox now believes that prohibition has had a trial and has proven a failure and that our present situation can be improved.

"As between the old saloon order, with its brewery controlled politics and what-not and the present set-up, I would prefer the latter," Governor Cox is quoted as saying. "But we all prefer not being compelled to choose between these two extremes. Both are impossible."

Governor Cox went on to express preference for government manufacture and control of liquor and that it be divested entirely from private or corporate interests.

We believe that Governor Cox does speak for a growing number of people who do not want to have to choose between Volstead prohibition, with its failures and abuses, and the old liquor traffic that outraged decency. What a great many people are wanting is temperance and the welfare and benefits that come from it regardless of how it may best be promoted.

RUNNING FOR SENATOR WITHOUT MONEY

Thomas P. Gore, former Oklahoma senator, announces that he will make the race for the Democratic nomination for that office in Oklahoma, limiting his expenses to $1,000. Doubtless Senator Gore will keep his expenses within the $1,000, for he probably will not have more than that amount to spend. It is well known that Senator Gore neither in his public service nor in his private life has accumulated material wealth.

We hear various amounts estimated as necessary for conducting a campaign for senator or governor in Texas, few estimates being less than $50,000. Oklahoma being a smaller state, the estimates would probably be smaller for that state. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were recently expended by a candidate for the senatorial nomination in Illinois and several years ago the expenditures for a successful candidate in Pennsylvania went into the millions. But here is Senator Gore starting out to conduct a campaign on less than a thousand dollars, and probably his campaign will not be handicapped because of lack of funds.

The legitimate purpose of campaign expenditures is to fairly present a candidacy to the people. A candidate with a striking personality does not need money for this purpose. An appearance here and there over the state of Oklahoma, an occasional speech, or a statement from Senator Gore is certain to receive widespread publicity. Senator Gore doesn't need money to get before the people. Money might be a handicap, and nobody appreciates this fact so well as Senator Gore himself.

But while the setting is right and Senator Gore's personality is favorable for a campaign without money, most senatorial candidates need large sums of money to fairly present their candidacies. Only the exceptional candidate can make a campaign without it.

New Education—Law Six

By GLENN FRANK
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

This week I have discussed some of the laws that seem to me to underlie a thoroughly modern education, discussing one of these laws each day.

The first law, discussed Monday, is that we learn by action rather than by absorption; the second law, discussed Tuesday, is that learning is specific rather than general; the third law, discussed Wednesday, is that the best things to study at any given time are the things that are most important to our life and work at that particular period; the fourth law, discussed Thursday, is that the best time to study anything is when we fully realize that we need to learn it; the fifth law, discussed Friday, is that students are not alike.

The sixth law is that, since both college life and human life are short and it is impossible to learn everything, we should study the things that will most directly minister to our efficiency and happiness.

The college curriculum has grown through the generations by accident, accretion, and accommodation.

I doube that any group of intelligent men would, if they had a clean slate before them and their memory of the existing college curriculum were wiped out, create anew, the college curriculum as we now know it.

A study may be good without being good enough to spend our college years in mastering.

Now that we know we cannot get training for life by some magically automatic transfer of training from the study of just anything—whether Latin, Greek, mathematics, or what not—we realize that it is important to select for study in college things intimately related to the efficiency and happiness of our lives.

We cannot prove that the study of just anything gives us training for effective and happy living.

We cannot prove that a college education guarantees a big income.

We cannot prove that a conventional education will make us happier men and women.

Most of the old arguments for college education are in the ash can.

And so the new education faces the fact that what we study in college must be justified by its rather direct relation to our needs.

Golf and Gunmen

In Chicago gunmen now employ "caddies." The other day the police found a gangster carrying a shotgun concealed in a golf bag. If the gunmen shoot no better than the average golfer this may mean an end of the crime wave.

Mere association with a golf bag means indecision and inaccuracy.

"What's the next shot?" a gunman will inquire as he "plays" a difficult and unfamiliar course.

"There he is!" the crime caddy will say, pointing to the next victim.

"I wonder if I should use my No. 5 or No. 6 for this distance?"

"The No. 6 should be okay, boss."

"It looks to me a little far for a No. 6," the gunman will mutter, irresolutely.

"You can reach him all right," the caddy will insist.

"I had a shot just like this yesterday and I was too short."

"Well, if you feel more confident with a No. 5 use it, but a good player would do it with a six," the caddy will still insist.

The gunman will, of course, through his indecision, miss the shot and throw down his gun with a good golf oath and a cry of "What did I do?"

"You lifted your head," the caddy will say. "And anyhow, I told you to use a No. 6."

Possible Rules

1—A singleton gunman shall have no rights on any course and shall allow all twosomes and foursomes to go through whenever signalled.

2—In twosomes and foursomes the gunman farthest from the target in his shot shall be the first to shoot again.

3—Citizens shall be shot as they lie, and may not be teed up on fairways.

4—When a gunman misses a victim he shall take a penalty of one stroke.

5—In a case where a gunman shoots at one man and hits an innocent bystander the gunman shall lose distance only.

6—When a victim is knocked behind a fence, tree, rock or other obstacle by a first shot, his assailant may move him a gun's length away before playing him again.

7—Citizens who drop in roadways may be tossed back onto the fairway over either shoulder, and shooting resumed.

8—Playing victims out of traps with machine guns is forbidden.

9—Any citizen taking refuge behind a stone wall, police officer or district attorney shall constitute an unplayable lie.

10—The purchasing of cartridges, new or used, from caddies is forbidden.

The other day, I dropped in on the convention of American Booksellers and Booksellers. And I met a dapper, well groomed, intelligent high-powered salesman for one of the big publishing firms. He can talk to you in rapid fire fashion about all the latest books and their authors. He can amuse you with humerous tales of the road.

And also, on a moment's notice, he can unwind his memory and look back on the days of "the gas house belt" when, as a lad, he was thrown amids' the most picturesque gangsters New York has ever known.

He grew up with Monk Eastman and Humpty Jackson and all the rest of the ill cast gun guys of another era. He can tell you about city officials who hold respected positions and lead the most conservative lives who "have three bullets in their back" to remind them of their bowhood days.

You'll hear of feuds that started outside the church doors among young gang-guys and of gang wars that wiped out a dozen lives before they were ended. The narrator comes in and out of the plots and counter-plots, sometimes participating and sometimes looking on. But always familiar with the actors.

Funny—isn't it, that a gang-kid from the gas house should wind up that way!

Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to introduce John S. Winters!

At this same convention I heard about quite another New York personality. One Max Solob.

Max, it seems, doesn't bother himself much about literature per se. Yet when you get one of those "$5 books marked down to $1.79" in the chain drug stores and cigar stands, just credit Max.

Max may or may not know just what service he is doing to the world by letting it peep in on books that it might not otherwise be able to afford.

For Max is the gent who takes the unsold copies off a publisher's hands at a very low price and turns them loose upon the world at a great bargain. And it's an innovation which is having more than a light effect on the nation's reading.

As for Max himself, he is not to be inipressed by important names and well known titles. Max finds that the great public wants to get its money's worth in bulk if not in art. When a book is thick and big in appearance and has a flashy jacket, then the turnover is better.

What of the content? Max may not know all about his book, but he knows a lot about his public. Which, of course, has caused many an earnest young publisher to sigh.

Few of the fans of Mons. Flo Ziegfeld—now of Hollywood and way points—know that he has a very private box in his own theater. It is privately entered from a private suite he maintains. It is high above the balcony and the orchestra seats, built in a rear wall, like a cave. There it is possible to see and hear what is going on upon the stage, but also to watch the reactions of the audience. It is never occupied by any persons other than Ziegfeld and his immediate circle.

Hay Fever Unnecessary

Now that the summer and fall are coming, over a million hay fever patients are looking forward with dread to the new-mown hay, or rag weed, or goldenrod, or any of the pollens which seem to cause their attacks to descend on them.

With hay fever the attacks are usually seasonable, that is, the patient has times when he is usually free from them. During the attack the nose itches, the eyes water and smart, patient sneezes and its extremely restless at night. The mucous membranes of the nasal passages swell, causing a constricted feeling and an excess of mucus is secreted.

It should be remembered that a disease of this kind is really constitutional and the patient already has a congested mucous membrane which only needs the invasion of bacteria, or the breathing of dust or flower polien to bring on an acute attack because of the congestion and serum already there.

Many kinds of foolish advice are given these sufferers for curing their hay fever, but the cure is really very simple and depends entirely on dietetic treatment. The first thing to do if you have this disease is to take a short fast to cleanse the blood stream of excess accumulation of toxins and relieve the congestion in the mucous membranes. Water should be taken copiously to drink, and one enema should be used daily of one quart of warm water.

The congestion in the mucous membranes can be relieved by stimulating the skin by using two sponge or shower baths daily, using a rough towel afterwards to rub down the body vigorously until the entire skin surface is glowing. This treatment will increase the activity of the millions of pores and increase elimination of body poisons. You will find that the hay fever symptoms disappear in a very short time with this method of treatment, but if the condition is chronic you must persist faithfully with your diet for some time in order that your mucous membranes which have become virtually eliminating organs may be restored to normal. This change is necessarily slow, but it can be hastened with the use of local actinic rays directed into the nose where the membranes are irritated.

The diet should be free for a considerable length of time of all starch and sugar foods. In most cases it is also advisable to discontinue milk and cream for a time. A little butter may be used, but not over two or three ounces daily.

Keep up the skin elimination and try to sweat each day through exercising and follow this with a cold shower. The sweats are best produced by exercising and are more beneficial than by artificial means.

These rules are very easily followed and they will bring about a very satisfactory cure so that all of the hay fields and pollens in the world would no longer affect you.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Mind of the Diabetic

Question: R. H. asks—"Does diabetes affect the mind? Should allowance be made for a diabetic who is addicted to the very reprehensible habit of lying?"

Answer—Every cell and function of the body is affected in the disorder called diabetes, but this is also true of every disease of faulty metabolism. The diabetic is liable to forget easily, and so your friend may not remember what you think to be the truth.

Vitamins and Calories

Question: K. F. writes—"One hears so much about vitamins and calories, and the difference between them is not quite clear to me. Perhaps there are others who are likewise puzzled."

Answer—Vitamins and calories are entirely different. A calory is a unit of energy indicating the amount of heat generated when food is oxidized or burned. A vitamin is a substance of unknown composition which exists in minute quantities in natural foods but which is necessary for growth since its absence will produce deficiency diseases. A detailed account would be too long to give in this column. However, I have special articles on vitamins and calories which I will be pleased to send you if you will send me a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

MEMORY

By Edgar A. Guest

Scenes there are of every kind
Which are treasured in the mind;
Little visions we recall
When the evening shadows fall
Of the roadways we have fared
And the joys which we have shared
And the friends who lined the ways
Of our by-gone yesterdays.

Friends in memory do not stay
Garbed in fashion's bright array,
Conquerors bold and shrewd and wise,
But they live in tenderer guise;
In their gardens, at their play,
Laughter loving day by day,
Doing all the kindly deeds
Which this old world sorely needs.

I would not remembered be
For the fame which came to me.
When I leave this world behind
May the ones who know me find
Little pictures stored away
Of a grown-up boy at play.
May a rose bush or a tree
Rouse a memory of me.

May the pictures that I make
Be the sort that kodaks take,
May the friends I've known recall
That I loved them, one and all;
Played with children on the floor,
Planted lilacs at the door,
And shared all the merry scenes
Which a glad existence means.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Sheppard-Towner maternity and infancy act, a piece of legislation which always seemed to interest the women of the country more than any other, is likely to stay dead indefinitely as the result of a misunderstanding or something between congress and the White House.

That is the law under which the government appropriated more than a million dollars a year to cooperate with the states in welfare and hygiene work for mothers and babies, under the administration of the children's bureau. The act ran for seven years and everyone seemed to agree that the work was a great success, striking at the mother and infant mortality rates, but it stopped on July 1 of last year when congress failed to appropriate the money to keep it going.

Women's organizations thought it was fine business to have a "child welfare president" like Mr. Hoover. Now some of their officers are complaining privately that the president has taken such an active interest in the problem that things are getting all balled up without any progress.

After he had announced his White House conference on child health and child protection the word went to Capitol hill that the president didn't want any action on the Sheppard-Towner measure before the conference made a report, which would take a year or more.

Nevertheless, in his message to the regular session of congress Mr. Hoover declared himself in favor of continuing the Sheppard-Towner act under the children's bureau for a limited period of years and Congressman Cooper of Ohio and Senator Jones of Washington introduced bills which would provide money to start the thing going again.

But Cooper says Mr. Hoover made subsequent demands concerning the legislation and he introduced a second bill to square with the presidential ideas. This bill would transfer maternity and infant hygiene work to the U. S. public health service. The women complain, however, that it gives no assurance that real practical work would be carried on. The public health service has never done any maternity work, whereas the children's bureau has been engaged in it for many years. And the theory of those who will have none of the second Cooper bill is that in order to reduce the baby death rate the mothers who need education must receive it.

During the flood relief work the president became very fond of the county health units and his idea lately has been that these should be used in future administration of the Sheppard-Towner act. There are, however, goodness knows, how many counties which have no such units. Minnesota, for instance, is said to have but one county health unit.

Under the second Cooper bill the children's bureau would have money to carry on welfare work, but the nature of such work is not defined.

Besides representatives of women's organizations, those of organized labor and the American Farm Bureau Federation have joined in opposing the bill which was inspired by the president. They are all supporting a bill recently submitted by Congressman Goodwin of Minnesota which would simply re-enact the Sheppard-Towner law and provide some money.

Delay in the House

Leaders in the house of representatives have been consistently complaining that the house had nothing to do. The baby measure is only one of various welfare or reform measures which it has held up. The committee on interstate and foreign commerce, of which Congressman Parker of New York is chairman, gets credit for holding up the Cooper and Goodwin bills. In the senate the Jones bill was reported favorably without amendment and has been on the senate calendar since April 9. Either house could pass a bill in a day or two, as there is little opposition.

Mr. Hoover has been telling visitors that there would have to be a compromise, but that some kind of a maternity bill will come out of this session. It appears that he doesn't want anything but the second Cooper bill. Meanwhile the session draws to its close and it looks as if the mothers and babies were again going to be out of luck.

The Story of Sue

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Harry looked up as Sue looked at him. Crimson color crept into his face, and then receded. He smiled and spoke and said something to Corrinne. Her piquant face glanced quickly at Sue. Then her eyes grew too dark and her lips curled.

She was off her stool like a whirlwind in a minute and over across the counter.

"Sue, I think it was horrid of you to follow us. But you're too late. We're married." Sue held out her hand and showed her wedding ring. A new diamond ring with the jewels set horizontally sparkled carlessly at the world. Above it a slender band of rubies made red fire and beneath it another ruby band, patterned like the first, added to the setting. "I'm free, white, and . . . married," Corrinne said, but her voice was shaky. "Nobody can tell me what to do now except Harry." And there was love and adoration in that voice.

"I wasn't trailing you, honeychild," Sue answered. Her voice shook a little. "I was working on a case, with Jack, for his father. You're married?"

Harry came over at once and Jack started to wring his hand. "Congratulations, old fellow. But why in the deuce didn't you let us in on the secret?"

"We didn't decide until tonight before the courthouse closed," Harry answered. "We got a license told Corrinne's parents . . . it's all O. K. there, Sue . . . Corrinne told me it was or we would have held off; found a minister and here we are."

The crowds pressed on. The lights in the railroad restaurant were a gaudy yellow that made too much light. The ham sandwiches were plump and the coffee hot in thick cups.

Sue felt Corrinne's hand pulling at her arm while the bill was being paid. "Sue, I didn't tell the folks," she whispered. "I just pretended to Harry that I did because he was too sporting to go through with it if I didn't. Will you fix things up?"

Sue nodded dumbly. "But you shouldn't have lied!"

Corrinne laughed lightly, but Sue thought that the laughter would have broken if it had fallen on the marble floor. "Everybody does except you, and look where you're getting. You're gone on Jack but you won't play love's game love's way to get him. You could. He'd tumble. But you're going to let that cotton-headed dumbell steal him away. Well, it's your wedding. I've had mine."

Sue understood Corrinne well enough to know that the sting in her remarks had been put there merely because she was nervous and excited, and she pretended to examine the rings while they waited.

"When you get home, sometime tomorrow, will you call June Walton for me and tell her? She said that any girl who couldn't get the man to whom she was engaged to marry her when she wanted him to, was a dimwit. I had to prove that I wasn't."

For a second the ghosts of all the little-girl dreams that belonged to Corrinne hovered in her eyes. "And . . . would you please tell Bob before he sees it in the papers?"

"I'll tell him," Sue promised. So Corrinne was stepping into the Becker millions, with a request that a girl be told she was clever enough to get what she wanted and a boy be warned before somebody showed him a paper.

Harry and Corrinne's train was being called, so they said goodbye.

Sue watched them go through the gate, while a tight lump came into her throat and the glaring lights swung in the tear-mist. She winked her eyes quickly to drive the tears away and turned to Jack. He was watching her with tenderness and understanding on his face.

"My Future Just Passed" is the big hit song of Charles "Buddy" Rogers' latest starring picture, "Safety in Numbers," tuneful and merry musicalove confection at the Strand theater.

But in spite of the paradoxical title of the song, Mr. Rogers is so engaging and "It"-ful in this picture that there isn't anyone who would deny that he still has a most distinguished future which will probably take a long time in passing.

He does things in this picture which are right down his alley. Sings several songs, plays the trombone, battles his love-rival in a whirlwind fistic encounter and makes love—to five different girls, three of them the most bewitching of Hollywood's younger blond contingent, Josephine Dunn, Virginia Bruce and Carol Lombard.

"Buddy" is seen as the young American boy with music in his veins and an inheritance of 350 million dollars in store for his approaching 21st birthday. But his uncle and guardian, deciding to discipline "Buddy" and to accustom him to the wiles of the world, entrusts him to the custody of three Follies girls in New York. Of course "Buddy" falls in love with the girls and many complications ensue—principally of a highly hilarious nature. But the youngster proves his worth as a business man before the film ends, by writing a hit for a musical show.

"Journey's End"

"Journey's End," R. C. Sheriff's courageous war play, has come to the audible screen. It features Colin Clive, the original creator of Captain Stanhope on the London legitimate stage. This monumental, human play concerned with the lives of nearly one dozen English officers and men before the St. Quentin drive of 1918, will be presented at the Strand theater entire week opening Friday.

In the history of the drama few, if any, plays created the sensation throughout the world that greeted "Journey's End" when first produced. Critics outdid themselves in attempts to convey by means of a word picture the heartbreak and the humor that are so movingly contrasted in "Journey's End." For here is a play that dared to say that war is not adventure, not glorious, not inspiring . . . but that it is grim, ghastly and more than anything else, futile, hopeless, needless. Human character, instead of battle, is glorified.

In addition to Colin Clive's magnificent performance as Captain Stanhope, the leading character, there is Ian MacLaren as the lovable "Uncle" Osborn, David Manners as the youthful Lieutenant Raleigh, Anthony Bushell as Hibbett and Billy Bevan as Trotter. All of them are well known actors of the New York and London legitimate stage and lend to their portrayals the deep sympathy and sincerity that make their characterizations unforgettable.

Next—Sue examines her heart.

An Honest Man

SALT LAKE CITY—G. E. Seal is giving thanks that there are still honest men in the world. He recently gave a friend his bank book and $100 to deposit for him. The friend lost the book and money and told Seal about it. Shortly after Seal had given up hopes of ever finding the money, he received a telephone call. The caller said he had found the money and book and had made the deposit in the bank for Seal.

Greta Garbo in 'Anna Christie' at Majestic Theater Through Tuesday Richard Arlen Picture Wednesday

Greta Garbo's long heralded first all-talking picture, "Anna Christie," adapted from the celebrated play by Eugene O'Neill, opened at the Majestic theater Saturday. Miss Garbo's voice is not only suited admirably to the role of the Swedish farm girl but gives every indication of being rich and pliant enough to be adequate for any role which she may be called upon to play in the future. The much-discussed Garbo accent is so slight as to only make her speech the more interesting.

In "Anna Christie," Miss Garbo gives a brilliant performance as the simple and tragic heroine of O'Neill's moving drama, who has erred and seeks a new life on a fishing barge with her father.

George Marion plays the father role with the same fervor and intensity with which he created the original stage role and later played the part in the silent picture made several years ago; Marie Dressler, as the tippler Marthy, gives a superb characterization far removed from her previous comedy roles; Charles Bickford, hero of "Dynamite," plays opposite Garbo, and gives a sterling performance.

Another feature of the Majestic program which reserves mention is the Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Berth Marks."

"Burning Up"

Richard Arlen, the loveable young hero of "Wings," "Manhattan Cocktail," "The Man I Love," and "The Virginian," will be the attraction at the Majestic starting Wednesday for three days.

In "Burning Up," Mary Brian is his sweetheart and an able supporting cast including four of the most popular character actors on the screen, Sam Hardy, Tully Marshall, Francis McDonald and Charles Sellon, carry the colorful subordinate parts.

"Burning Up" is a fact action-romance with Arlen as a youthful automobile racing demon. Mixed up with a gang of crooked race promoters and in love with Mary Brian whose father is marked as a victim by the gang, Arlen defends his reputation, defeats the gang and wins the girl in one of the most thrilling climaxes ever seen in either a silent or talking moving picture.

In addition to the feature picture there will be a selected program of short subjects which will include a George Le Maire comedy, "Gentlemen of the Evening," a screen novelty and the latest events in sight and sound in Paramount talking news.

"The Arizona Kid"

Warner Baxter created a role ("The Cisco Kid") in "In Old Arizona" that will always be remembered. This picture was very popular throughout the country and now comes the continuation of the adventures of "The Cisco Kid" in "The Arizona Kid," starting at the Majestic next Saturday. Warner Baxter will be supported by Mona Maris, Carol Lombard, Theodor von Eltz, Arthur Stone and many others. The story is that of a reckless, love-making bandit and two of his sweethearts, painted with sweeping strokes against the brilliant background of the old West.

TIMES BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

After spending hours—so many hours that I can't remember when I did begin—reading Maxim Gorki's latest work, "Bystander," I find myself in the predicament of one who is tempted to say the novel is a great achievement but cannot, because if I were to describe it so, I might be called upon to give a clear explanation of what it all means and of what Gorki was attempting to say in writing it.

I liked the book and I did not like it. I can put my impressions of "Bystander" in no other words Carl Van Doren wrote of it: "It has the same splendid scope, the same richness and variety of characters, the same clarity as are to be found in the older masterpieces of Russian fiction." I am forced to admit it has a splendid scope, a scope so large as to preclude the possibility of grasping it clearly in one thought or even many thoughts. It does have richness, a typically Russian richness and vividness of expression and description which hold the reader with more allure than does the unfolding of the plot—if there be any plot. It does have variety of characters, such a great variety of them as almost to drive the reader to distraction. But it does not have clarity.

In saying this I realize I am placing myself in a position to be criticized. Someone will say of me, "He is bored by the book while all the time it is not the book which bores him but only the density of his brain which cannot grasp the meaning of it." Very well, I admit I could grasp the meaning of but scattered portions of the novel and I admit that I could not find the slightest connection between the various meanings I did grasp and I admit that I cannot fabricate a single good reason for Gorki's having written the book, either as entertainment, as a picture of Russia during the time in which the action takes place or as a work of deep, significant thought.

Vague Inconsistency

It contains at the same time a sharpness of description bordering on the impressionistic and an irrelevancy of detail which dulls the senses. It is so full of the utterly unnecessary as to create the desire to fling the book away, and yet, when the book has been laid aside for a time, one picks it up again with at least a semblance of desire to read on. Why, I do not know, unless it is a subconscious idea that somewhere in the book, somehow the reader will come upon something which will make it all clear. That something does not appear. I believe a person becomes angry with himself when he finds something he should but cannot understand. That sort of unexpressed anger drove me on to finish Gorki's novel, but it could not compare with my anger at finding myself still vague and uncertain at the end.

The end itself is as uselessly irrelevant as a great many of the novel's other parts. Shortly before the end Gorki has pictured Czar Nicholas the Second, the ruler and embodiment of enormous, rich Russia, as a rather small, ordinary looking person with a guilty, apologetic smile. The story suddenly drops off at that point and begins a description of the Master of the House, Li-Hung-Chang, mysterious Mongolian and famous man of Cathay. He is pictured as a man of distinction, immobile, fearful, a man before whom even the Russians bowed and spoke in a low voice to one another. In the Czar's presence the day, which had been bright since morning, turned pensive and the sun's dispersed light fatigued the eyes. But with the appearance of the strange figure of the Chinaman, the wind dashed about uneasily, clouds scurried over the sky and even the sun seemed solicitous as to how it might best illumine his imperious presence. Obviously, there is intended contrast between the Czar and Li-Hung-Chang, beautifully done and richly contrasted. But what of it? Why is a description of the Czar, or of the Chinaman, or a contrast of the two necessary to the novel? What has either of them or their differences to do with the story of Clim Samghin?

Good as Units

Such questions apply also to a great many other parts of the book. One cannot deny that, taking each part separately, Gorki has written powerfully. His ideas, characters, thoughts are presented masterfully if one takes each of these as a unit, valuing each according to its merits as a separate segment. But the conglomeration of all of them in one complete whole has the effect of destroying the value of each unit. Any attempt to condone or clarify the connection between those parts upon which the novel rests and those which are entirely unnecessary is without rime or reason.

The book deals with and obtains its name from the life and characteristics of a young Russian student of the intelligentsia, Clim Samghin. Beginning with his birth, it takes him through childhood and adolescence into young manhood, leaving him at that stage without having given a single reason of any value to justify his selection as a basis for a novel. Clim goes through life never quite understanding himself or anything about him. People irritated him if for no other reason than the fact that they existed, moved, gazed and talked. He noticed everything ugly and ridiculous and repulsive about men and women and was thus enabled to regard everyone with contempt and dislike while at the same time he was perhaps one of the most contemptible and unlikeable characters in the book. He spoke but rarely and when he did speak, always said the wrong thing or uttered some senseless, simple, irrelevent bit of nothingness. He thought a great deal, but never with clarity, and his ideas were always vague, indefinite, originating from things of no importance and leading to nothing. He was a bystander in all conversations, listening always with a deceptive attitude of one who knew more than all the others and could stand off and pity the futility of those who expressed their ideas and beliefs. He was an unresponsive mannequin, but not because he was modest or niggardly, a slippery sort of person of whom it is difficult to say anything definite. I get the impression that if Clim should appear in the flesh and could summon the energy actually to do something besides think meaningless thoughts, he would seat me on his knee, look at me and fail to questioning me: "What are you?" And he would straightway become bored with any answer I could make to such a question and would wander away, pondering over his ennui.

It was to be expected, since the novel was written by a Russian, that there would be conversations concerning psychology, philosophy, socialism, Marxism, political economy and scores of other abstract subjects which seem to infest the minds of Slavic writers, but from Gorki such enormous amounts of this type of conversation as are put forth in "Bystander" were not to be expected. He displayed no tendency to overdo these subjects in his "Twenty-six Men and a Girl," "Lower Depths," "My Childhood" or "Fragments From My Diary," to choose at random from several of his various types of books. One does not read Gorki for entertainment or to obtain pleasant ideas, of course. But at least he touches the very depths of drabness and human filth in such as "Outcasts," "Creatures That Once Were Men" and "Lower Depths" with the obvious intention of creating the atmosphere of the scum of society. In "Bystander" he creates simply boredom.

However—!

If one simply must read Russian literature, it is interesting to know that two of the writers of Gorki's group, called the Znanie group, are pleasant and alive in their works. They are Kuprin and Bunin, both still living and the latter, perhaps, alone of this group still fresh in his writings. Bunin's "Dreams of Chang," "The Gentleman From San Francisco" and "The Village" are among the most beautifully written works in any language. His delicate descriptions are so pleasing in themselves and so perfect as to make one almost believe that one is actually seeing or smelling or hearing the things about which he writes. Kuprin's philosophy that "life is worth living because you are alive" in itself makes him worth reading. Of the others of the group, Veresayev is extremely analytical; Gusev-Orenburgsky, while not pleasant, presents an honest view of the revolution; Sologub presents a realism of the modern type, combining preciseness and correctness with impressionism; and Ropshin is full of two extremes, deep introspection—the Russian malady—and self-analyzation, presenting in his works the starkness of the revolution and terrorism.—Reviewd by W. P. Hood.

Safer Operations

NEW YORK—Dr. Ernst P. Boas of Mount Sinai hospital, and Dr. Ernst Goldschmidt of New Haven, Conn., have perfected a machine which is said to make operations under anaesthetic safer. The apparatus enables the surgeon to hear the heart of his patient beating thump by thump while he is operating and enables him to take emergency measures in case of threatened heart failure.

Scanning New Books

By RICHARD MASSOCK

NEW YORK—America's most distinguished family, in the estimation of one who bears its name but is not of it, is the Adamses of Massachusetts.

And its biography—"The Adams Family"—has just been written by that other Adams, the historian, James Truslow Adams, whose Virginia ancestry was unrelated to illustrious stock that gave the United States two of its early presidents and even now is in the cabinet of President Hoover.

It is, says Biographer Adams, the only American family that generation after generation has consistently made contributions of the highest order to our history and civilization.

Beginning with John Adams of Braintree, Mass., descendent of an English yoeman farmer who settled in Boston about 1636, he traces personalities and contributions of these successive generations.

In the continental congress, as envoys to the courts of Europe at trying times, as presidents in the White House twice, as incessant writers, the Adamses, John, John Quincy, Charles Francis and then the fourth generation, John Quincy, Charles Francis, Henry and Brooks, have left footprints of varying depths in the sands of their times.

The present head of the family is a third Charles Francis Adams, Harvard graduate and lawyer like the rest, who is secretary of the navy that the original John founded when the United States were newly born.

Sustained Character

The biographer has endeavored to avoid hero worshipping on one hand and "debunking" on the other, but lauds the remarkable strain of intellect and character to which the record is attributed.

"No Adams has ever been a party man," the historian writes. Persistently they have refused to sacrifice integrity of their own intellectual and moral standards and values for the sake of winning public office or popular favor.

Only one weakness seems to have have marked them. That was a belief in the jealousy and malice of others and of the world being against an Adams," working much harm, the biographer says, to the family's own mental outlook and to the world's opinion of its members.

The author has made the record more than ordinarily readable by keeping out the mass of dull detail he must have found in their diaries.

Freedom's Slump

The intellectual and moral integrity of the Adamses now is old fashioned, the biographer comments, and Everett Dean Martin indicates the same thing in his book, "Liberty."

The latter is an attempt to call attention to a decline of the boasted liberty in America and to point ou the cultural roots of liberty in the past.

The author, a liberal New York educator, sees the future of freedom threatened by intolerance, fundamentalism and prejudice and vulgarity in the appeals of minorities to the mob, a menace that must be overcome by more individual intelligence.

War and Love

For entertainment mixed with peace propaganda (the latter term used without opprobrious intent), A. Hamilton Gibbs, of perhaps the most distinguished literary family of the moment, remains a reliable novelist in his "Chances."

Here he tells the story of two devoted English brothers who love the same girl, a situation that is solved on the battlefield.

THE LITERARY LANTERN

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

Of recent weeks we have been thinking much about the current poetry in the South. We have read piles of manuscripts and tables full of books, counted lines, pages, tabulated subjects, images and verse schemes. And now as we pause to record our judgments laboriously arrived at we must confess to a feeling somewhat akin to sadness. But not entire sadness. For with the sadness there is a feeling of pride—pride in the fact that no longer do we have to agree with the Algonquinites that the South is inactive so far as poetry is concerned. In fact its activity is so great that it looks almost like a new southern industry in the making. Ten years ago it was hard to find a poet from Hatteras to Waco. And now three or four live in every hamlet. They have in these immediate years sprung up all over the land—have formed themselves into groups, into flourishing poetry societies, have founded magazines, even publishing houses, they give prizes in gold yearly, collect themselves into anthologies, and yearly write thousands of poems for the Literary Lantern, their own, and northern magazines. In short the South is at the present moment a hum of poetic endeavor.

Now concerning these numerous poets some of our caustic critics mumble "small-fry" and with a gesture and a phrase annihilate a thousand dreams. This reviewer begs leave to differ from such. All is not frothy and empty pantomime in this poetic activity. The urge to do, the compulsion to be poetic either from within or without, has some sort of value in it, however small—or why the truth of little hands that help raise greater ones. It is true that the amount of genuine poetry from so much turmoil is small. We have ample proof of that. It is truer still that many of the adherents—as in any cause and more so in that of the arts—are darkeners of counsel, as witness the following characteristic quotation from a mass of printed matter which has come to this office of late (quoted verbatim):

My Dear Author:

To encourage literature and art in the different states, especially the fine art of poetry, each month we offer a prize in gold for the pride and honor of being able to say to the rest of the states and the world: "Behold this state as the poetry center of the world." It is solely a matter of state pride and honor. In the month of April Florida won the distinction of being the poetry center of the United States and the world.

This month it is the hope of this league that the great state of North Carolina, made up largely of the same blood that coursed the veins of Robert Burns and Victor Hugo—it is the prayer of this league that June the fifth we shall be able to announce that the great state of North Carolina is the Poetry center of the United States and the world. It can only be done by you and your poet friends cooperating with your state editor. . . . The states of Illinois and Ohio are fighting your states for the honor. Write . . . today.

I thank you.

But in spite of this, in spite of the artistic organization now selling lots to poets for a communal home in the heart of the Cumberlands where one can live on Aphrodite way or in Narcissus hollow or on Apollo hill, the poetry movement in the South seems to be amounting to something. But—and that's what makes us sad—not amounting to as much as it should. It still claims too much for the quality of what it does, and there's one rub. We now and then get a poem with a fine line in it maybe, or a book with one fine poem, or a sheaf of manuscript with one living image in it. We rarely get more, but for that little we are thankful. What we do get most often is the claim either by the author or his friends, that this poet is among the great, his work will endure the years, and so on and so on. All of which seems as true as that a minnow is a whale, which of course he is in a pan of water. But it's the pan of water still.

Room for Criticism

No, even granting our great poetic activity, our thankfulness for gifts of whatever size, there still remains room for strict criticism. Southern poetry, like poetry everywhere else in the United States, has more racket to its mill than grinding, more labels and handles than the apothecary can use, even so many conveniences in the kitchen that overwork is killing the cook. Such matters as these, however, are the concern and product usually of well wishers and sideliners in the cause. The producers themselves are more modest, certainly in what they produce.

Take for example some of the representative books recently published by more serious southern poets: "Anthology of Verse" (The Poetry Society of Georgia), "Dipped in Aloes" by Benjamin Musser (The Bozart Press, Atlanta), "Newry" by John Richard Moreland (James T. White and Company, New York), "Released" by Anne Blackwell Payne (University of North Carolina Press), and "Unison," a selection of poems edited by Ellen M. Carroll (The Bozart Press). These are samples of what is being done in the South, and through them specific statements about Southern poetry can be made, statements which show some of the errors into which our poets have fallen, with a suggestion as to how those who are able may escape out of them.

First, southern poets are still too much concerned with secondhand subject matter and phraseology which belongs to an earlier chapter in the art, namely the Victorian way of dealing with God, nature, fate, destiny, immortality, etc. We suggest that for a long season such subjects be foresworn in favor of others.

Second, southern poets are still too much concerned with themselves. They take their poetry thermometer readings on their own fevered and variable complexes. Every little feeling, every little thought is not worth recording as art. We suggest that for a while they forget about themselves.

The Lazy South

Third, southern poets are lacking in stamina. Compared to the staying power of the southern athlete the southern poet is nowhere. His average poem runs about twelve lines and falls dead. He does it before breakfast and calls it a day's work. Most often it is a conceit. High accomplishments demand more. In a word, the southern poet is lazy. We suggest that he work harder.

To repeat, let the southern poet forget the Victorian way of saying things, let him forget himself, let him set himself to hard tasks. Let him, for instance, write about the characters and deeds that have made the South—the pioneers, the great politicians, builders, explorers, pirates, farmers, preachers—let him write narrative poetry, let him tell the story of peoples and things and forget his own self and its temporary maladjustments for a while. Do we all remember how we liked Masefield's "Dauber" or his "Everlasting Mercy?" Or the Scottish Ballads we have liked? And so we conclude with this song.

One Day

By Charlotte Young

Come, Sundown,
On your purple-slippered feet;
Faun-colored Dusk,
Fly swift on soundless wing;
Take this amazing day,
Resplendently,
Incredibly complete—
Fold it,
Tie it with a string of golden stars,
And hand it softly to Eternity
Before some envious horn-footed thing
Stalks over it and mars
Its fragrant tints, its singing symmetry.

Hanging Houses in Near Future

LONDON—The scientific home of the near future, as designed by Buckminster Fuller, will be a hanging affair, turned out in production along the lines of automobiles, and will be a product of scientific endeavor rather than that of a carpenter, mason and plumber. Fuller's Dymaxion house models are hung from a pole run through the center of the house. They have transparent walls of casein, floors of inflated rubberoid unit, while heat, light, and refrigeration are supplied by a Diesel engine. Fuller claims that by hanging houses in the air more sunlight and ventilation can be had and that loss from floods and fires will be eliminated.

The BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

As a small boy, the average American decides that the wild West must have been a very ripsnorting, untamed sort of place in its hey-day—a place for wild deeds, brave men and daring exploits. Then, as he grows older, he is taught that the West's wildness was terribly exaggerated, and that it is quite thoroughly tamed now, anyway. So a cherished dream has to die.

But it is beginning to develop, now, that the wild west was not exaggerated. It may be safe and sane today, but time was when it was quite as gaudy, rough and tumultuous as the dizziest novelist or movie scenarist ever imagined it. The plain facts on its unemotional records are better than the romances of childhood. There was an untamed west, and it was wild enough for anyone.

All of this is by way of telling you to read J. Frank Dobie's "A Vaquero of the Brush Country."

In this book Mr. Dobie tells the tale of the old-time Texas—the lawless, incredibly colorful Texas that was born when Santa Ana was chased over the Rio Grande, and that still manages an occasional flare-up along the border. If a reading of this book does not convince you that the dime novels never told the half of it, you are hopeless and nothing can be done for you.

Mr. Dobie wrote his book partly from historical records and partly from the reminiscences of an old-time cowboy, or vaquero. He begins at the beginning and comes down to the present; and what a dazzling array of facts, anecdotes and characters move across his pages! Cattle rustlers, gunmen, smugglers, bandits, vigilantes, rangers, cowboys, adventurers, gamblers—they are all there, in all their glory.

"A Vaquero of the Brush Country" is one of the most absorbing books you can find. But it is more than that. It is, I think, an extremely important bit of history. Mr. Dobie hands you a chunk of America in the making—raw, crude, bloody and tumultuous—and reminds you that this, along with Plymouth Rock and Bunker Hill, is part of your heritage as an American. The book is worth a tale of the "important" novels of the day, and it will live after nine-tenths of them have been properly forgotten.

The book is published by the Southwest Press, and sells at $3.50.

Bum's-Eye View of United States

Visiting foreigners have written books without number to tell of their impressions of the United States; but Lennox Kerr, a young Britisher, has done the job from a new angle. He entered America as a sailor and became a hobo, bumming his way all over the country and putting in a couple of years at it; and his "Back Door Guest" is both decidedly unusual and decidedly entertaining.

The average traveler tells how a country looks when viewed from the top; Mr. Kerr tells how it looks when viewed from the bottom. His report, consequently, is a bit different. He speaks of prohibition, prosperity, hospitality and the American city as no other foreigner has spoken of them. He discusses flop houses, Great Lakes steamers, freight trains and lumber camps in the manner of one who knows.

Incidentally, he gives a very fair picture of the degeneration of a young man. You can see the disease of the wanderer—restlessness, laziness, irresponsibility—slowly growing on him, taking hold and finally nearly ruining him for good. The picture, in places, isn't pretty, but it's effective.

Lucas' Latest Book Unexciting

In "Winfall's Eve," E. V. Lucas has written a very amiable, lazily-charming book that will probably please you but that will never arouse in you any deep emotions, pleasant or otherwise.

"Windfall's Eve" tells how a 60-year-old curator in a London museum suddenly wins first prize in the Calcutta sweepstakes. Becoming, thus, very rich, he retires to a country retreat and proceeds to divert himself mildly for the rest of his life. He has sundry adventures, including the rescuing of a worthless nephew from the arms of an actress who turns out to be far too good for him—and the setting up of a niece in the antique business; and while the whole story moves very slowly and is devoid of excitement, it is told with a quiet charm that is rather appealing.

I think you'll find "Windfall's Eve" good for a hammock in the shade on a warm summer afternoon. It is published by the J. B. Lippincott Co. and sells at $2.50.

Attack Mob's Struggle for Culture

"King Mob" is another of the whither-are-we-drifting things. Written by an author who hides behind the pseudonym of Frank K. Notch, it undertakes to show that our culture is rapidly deteriorating because it is being pulled down to the level of the mob.

Culture, says the author, is not something you can "get"; you have to grow into it. The book clubs, the high-pressure publishers, are doing a great disservice by trying to popularize culture. It can't be done. The mob cannot, possibly, become cultured; it can only lower culture to its own plane.

All of this may be very true, but it is hard to get excited about it. Mr. Notch sounds like a snob, worried lest the culture he possesses become, suddenly, a possession that is not exclusive. His book is published by Harcourt, Brace & Co. and sells at $2.

A new astronomical observatory will be built in Sweden about 10 miles from Stockholm.

Glimpses Into the Magazines

By ROBERTA CLAY

The Atlantic Monthly this month carries the cleverest story we've seen in weeks and months, by one Claudia Cranston, whose name was unknown to us. The story is "Rosika the Rose," a tale of a Hungarian girl growing up in a cosmopolitan America with the idea that the word "Greek" should be spat and not said. But when Rosika met one handsome Greek named Mr. Xenophon, her attitude was changed—and how.

The third of Kathryne Mary Frick's articles about her education in spite of the handicaps of deafness and blindnes is equally as interesting as the first two installments, or perhaps more interesting. "Light at Last" is the title. A graphic description is given by Leland Hall in an article whose title is self-explanatory, "Toothache." Ralph Arthur Reynolds asks and more or less answers a vital question in an article entitled "How Necessary Is Illness."

"The Daughter of a Princess," by Charles Caldwell Dobie, one of the stories in the June Harper's, is a bit of character portrayal exceedingly well done—a study in character and psychology, and withal an interesting tale in spite of our description. Harry Emerson Fosdick, whose spiritual followers number many readers as well as many hearers, writes of the question, "Are Religious People Fooling Themselves?" All of us are pretty much interested in politics and aviation these days, if we may judge by the headlines of the papers and the books and magazines that are turned off the press. Fitting it is, then, that Francis D. Watton should write on aviation, and that Walter Lippman should discuss "The Peculiar Weakness of Mr. Hoover," in Harper's. The latter article is given first place in the June issue.

All of us business women will probably echo, to some extent, the cry of Elizabeth Onativia in Scribner's. "Give Us Our Privileges" is the title under which Miss or Mrs. Onativia writes; the substance of the article presents the fact that a lot of us are getting tired of being good fellows, and would rather have a man get up and give us a seat on the street car than to give us a vote at the polls. Those with a decided bent for literary criticism will enjoy Mary M. Colum's article entitled "Literature, Ethics, and the Knights of Good Sense." Oliver La Farge has written a rather ugly but, the editors claim, true story of the Indian under the title of "Dangerous Man." "The Land of Juan de Dios" is another story in this issue, the author being one Stark Young; the thing is beautifully done. John W. Thomason's biography, "J. E. B. Stuart," which is running in Scribner's, is intensely interesting; get the back issues to read the story from the beginning, if you can.

In one way, the contents of Nature Magazine are pretty much the same from month to month. But this month's issue contains an unusually good story on "Nature's Precocious Babies," by Hamilton M. Laing. The pictures show these precocious bird babies, some of which can run about when they are only a few hours old. The title "Billboardless Hawaii" will bring a sigh from some of us who loathe the ugly signs that strike us in the face along the highways. Arthur Newton Pack has contributed an article on the Grand Canyon, and Gayle Pickwell a dissertation on "Some Forest Sprites," namely, chipmunks.

Paul de Kruif, Dorothy Speare and Mary Garden are among the Home Journal contributors for the month. A beautifully illustrated article about Mrs. Henry Ford's rose garden is also included in The Journal.

If I were in any way interested in the theater, either amateur or professional, I think I should not be without the Drama, published eight times a year from October to May. From Broadway to the most out-of-the-way Little Theater, the news of America's drama is given here. And every now and then—well, usually about once a month—there is a discussion of the theater in some foreign country. Pictures of recent productions, of prominent actors and of other things of theatric interest are printed. The puppet theater, the Little Theater and the church drama, each has a section to itself. The April issue discusses most interestingly some of the problems facing actors and theater managers in Paris, gives a full-page picture of Eva LeGallienne, and shows scenes from several Broadway and Little Theater productions.

COLOR TELEVISION IN NEAR FUTURE SAY ENGINEERS

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
(Associated Press Radio Editor)

BOSTON, June 7. (AP)—Television transmission in colors within two months is the hope of engineers tackling the problem of radio sight in laboratories here.

So successful do they feel they have been in their experimentation that the engineers said they would be able to reproduce colored pictures eight inches square. Included in their development work has been the design of a receiver house in a console no larger than the ordinary sound set.

If the attempt at color transmission succeeds, it will mark a climax in three years of television work by the Short Wave and Television laboratories, which are operating W1XAV on 137 meters of 2180 kilocycles. The transmitter, designed and built for television work by Hollis S. Baird, chief engineer, has a power of 500 watts.

As one of its accomplishments the laboratory points to its development of horizontal transmission against the former method of vertical transmission. The engineers explained that with vertical transmission a straight line always appears as a curved line with resultant distortion in the received picture. In horizontal transmission a straight line remains a straight line when it is received.

The receiver used is rather novel in that the scanning disk is really not a disk. It consists of a band of metal having a series of holes and is fastened around a drum-like frame which revolves in front of the neon lamp. The band is removable, making it possible to change it to receive either a 48-line or a 60-line picture.

The receiver has a framing device which keeps the picture in the correct position for viewing, and which somewhat simplifies synchronization. The framer is controlled by a knob at the front of the receiver. The viewing lens is located just above the tuning and framing controls on a level with the operators' eyes.

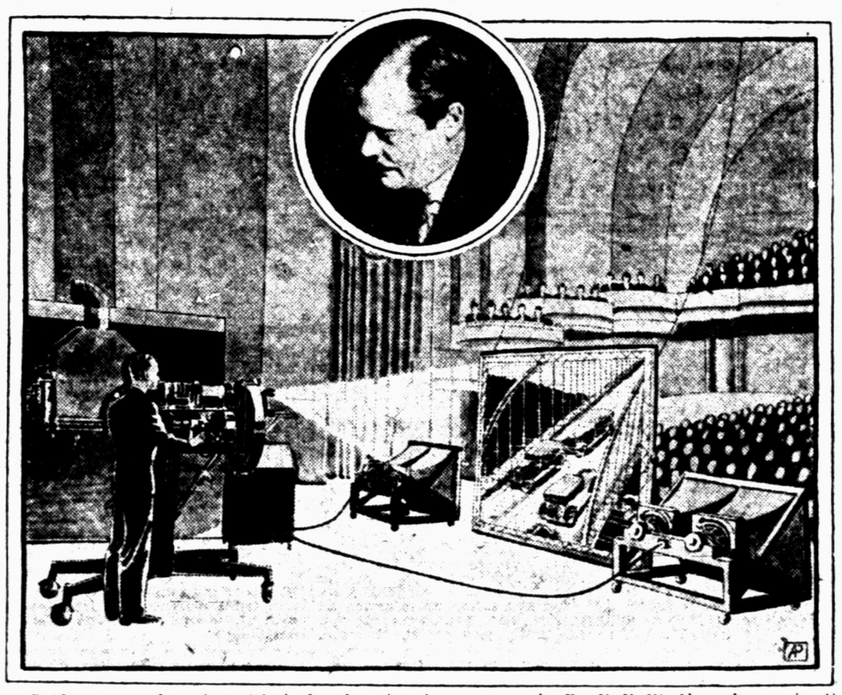

This outfit, the engineers explained, was for television only, and would not reproduce sound, for which a separate set would be required where sound and sight were being received together from the same studio.

Although the picture at present is only four inches square, a process has been developed whereby it can be enlarged to from eight to 12 inches square. Under this method, the engineers said, the picture would be seen on a ground glass rather than through a magnifying lens. They also said that it would be possible for a room full of persons to see the picture at the same time.

In cooperation with WEEI, Boston, W1XAV began sending synchronized voice and vision of the Big Brother club on Feb. 5. Short waves were used for the television signals, and the sound went on WEEI's regular wave length.

TELEVISION OF OUTSIDE SCENES NEXT RADIO IMPROVEMENT

Outdoor scenes have been televised and projected on a screen by Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson (inset), who also has demonstrated the practicability of vision transmission for reproduction in theaters. The artist, in delving into the future, hints at a possible use of Alexanderson television projector.

SCHENECTADY, June 7. (AP)—Television of tomorrow—outdoor scenes flashed upon a six-foot screen in the theater—is a possibility in the laboratories of today.

Experiments are under way here in which it has been possible to televise, without artificial lighting aid, events transpiring in the open and reproducing in a nearby laboratory radio pictures of traffic going over a bridge in addition to other scenes.

Success in development of the apparatus which may considerably extend the scope of television, even to the possibility of glimpses of a baseball or a football game via radio transmission, was indicated by the projection upon a screen six feet square in a local theater of action taking place in a studio a mile away.

While only head and shoulder views of the images could be seen, there was no contradiction of the fact that entire scenes could be transmitted.

The theater demonstration gave the public an insight into the progress that has been made by Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, pioneer television research engineer of the General Electric company staff, in his efforts to overcome the obstacles of practical vision by radio. The showing included the playing of orchestra in the theater under the baton of its leader standing before the distant televisor whose image was projected upon the large screen on the stage.

It was made possible through the development of a light source in the combination receiver-projector which permitted the showing of lights and shadows with considerable detail despite the fact that the picture was life size, Dr. Alexanderson explained.

Dr. Alexanderson does not feel that ultimate television will be restricted to mere heads and shoulders, with his laboratory work cited as an example of what the future may bring. He his designed an outdoor televisor whose photo-electric eye would look over anything within its range and reproduce with considerable fidelity what was taking place.

While this instrument is considerably in the experimental stage, the engineer has used it in the transmission for reproduction upon a large screen views of the Great Western Gateway bridge spanning the Mohawk river near the laboratory, showing plainly the movement of vehicular traffic. Other pictures have included scenes visible from the laboratory windows. The daylight pickup device in outward appearance resembles a large studio photograph camera.

"Television today is in the same state as radio telephony in 1915," Dr. Alexanderson said. "We may derive some comfort from the experience of the past, but on the other hand we are not sure that the analogy is justifiable and that television will repeat the history of radio telephony."

The projection of a six-foot picture has been another milestone in the progress of which he has been an important factor. Three years ago Dr. Alexanderson produced a picture only three inches square. Last fall it had grown to 14 inches square, and now it has taken a considerable leap in size.

Early Rising Artists

NEW YORK. (AP)—Radio gets the three Landt brothers and Howard White out of bed at 5 a. m. daily. The four must crawl out that early for their daily program. Their schedule calls for arrival at the NBC studios at 6:45 so that they will have an hour to rehearse before their Morning Showers program is broadcast.

Gets Radio Job by Phone

CHICAGO. (AP)—Parker Wheatley, announcer on the KYW staff, got his present job by long distance telephone. Homer Hogan, station manager, first heard of Wheatley when he tuned in an Indianapolis station. He immediately got on the telephone, talked to Wheatley, and the conversation and how it was handled at the Indianapolis end resulted in a new KYW announcer.

Better Memories

PEKING.—Chinese children have better memories than Caucasians, according to Miss E. T. Chen, native of China who received scientific training in America. She has been conducting a series of tests in the psychology laboratories of Amoy university and says that the average Chinese youth can look at a printed page for a minute and, without being it again, be able to recite the whole page word for word the next day.

scheduled to be the speaker on Bill Schudt's "Going to Press" series, at 4 p. m. C. S. T., Wednesday, June 11.

Swan has had years of experience as a newspaper man and has collected a fund of good inside stories about his profession. His years in New York and his thorough knowledge of this city has also resulted in many personal experiences of deep human interest. The job of collecting these stories for his daily column will be told for the first time when Swan faces the microphone.

Bill Schudt's series of talks by New York newspaper men, which he calls "Going to Press," is broadcast from the studio of WABC over 20 stations of the Columbia Broadcasting system, which includes KRLD at Dallas.

FEATURES BROADWAY STAR

MISS LORENA WALCOTT

Lorena Walcott, Texas girl who has been featured in three recent Broadway operettas and is now visiting in Texas, will be the guest artist of the Texas Electric Service company radio program to be broadcast at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, June 10, over WBAP, Fort Worth. Radio programs of this company are broadcast each Tuesday night for the entertainment of its customers in 55 West Texas cities and towns.

Miss Walcott was the prima donna in two Shubert productions, "A Night in Venice" and "Music in May," while her latest success was in "Sweet Adeline," produced by Hammerstein. During the radio program Miss Walcott will sing "Here Am I," one of her song successes from "Sweet Adeline."

BETWEEN the WAVELENGTHS

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

Musical smoke is filling the lanes of the air in ever thickening clouds, for radio has turned to cigarets in earnest.

Four nights a week the imaginary puffs of an invisible smoker now trickle over the networks of the National Broadcasting company in the form of musical trimmings by popular orchestras.

Whether the latest recruit to join in broadcasting for smokers means that there has been intensification in the campaign, once referred to as a "cigaret war on the radio," there is no gainsaying the fact that such activity is not of a minor quality.

Starting on Wednesday night, the time picked by the latest broadcaster, there now can be turned in five hours of cigaret music. Each program is for an hour, one sponsor setting up three of them, two broadcasts via the WJZ network on Thursday night, each to a different chain of stations, and another over the WEAF hookup on Saturday. The fifth hour is by a third sponsor on the WEAF group Friday night.

That Vee Lawnhurst, NBC and CBS pianist and vocalist, never took a music lesson?

That most of radio's bass fiddlers must also be qualified to play the tuba, the 'cello's brother in the horn class?

That Freddie Rich does not carry a watch and is never late for the 16 rehearsals and programs calling for his orchestra.

That Hugo Mariani has an almost noiseless violin for use in practicing?

Senate Censorship Over Pennsylvania Primaries Marks Radical Departure And Is Viewed With Alarm by Some

By MARK SULLIVAN
(Copyright, 1930, by New York Herald Tribune)

There are two events that, combined, cast a political shadow, though what the shadow portends does not seem to be recognized by many whom it will most concern. One event is the defeat of the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, to the supreme court, which defeat was accomplished more than by any other one agency by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The other event was the presence at the Pennsylvania senatorial primary of agents of the United States, together with the expected and authorized presence of the same agents at other future senatorial primaries—Republican or Democratic.

SULLIVAN

The success of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in the matter of Judge Parker has brought about a result described in a convincing and thoughtful article in the Washington Sunday Post recently.

"Negro political consciousness . . . has been much stirred by the senate's rejection of Judge Parker. . . . The case may stimulate a revival in parts of the South of the race question as an acute political issue. One of the most significant aspects of the struggle is the prestige boost given the national association. This defeat of Judge Parker probably establishes for that organization a place in the negro world comparable to that long exercised by the Anti-Saloon league in the organized prohibitionists' sphere . . . No user of pressure tactics in politics ever demonstrated finer generalship than that displayed . . . in opposing the Parker nomination."

One phrase in the quotation above needs amplification. The fight against Judge Parker was not made wholly or even mildly by, and did not wholly or even mainly reflect negro thought. It particularly did not reflect the negro in the South. So far as the negro in the South took part in or took notice of what was going on, it was because he was stimulated from New York and Chicago. And the organization that conducted the fight is not apparently wholly or even mainly negro. According to the article already quoted, whose accuracy I accept without investigation:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is a close organization . . . In its membership and among its officers are prominent white as well as outstanding colored men and women. Control of its operations is concentrated in a small board, on which are whites like Clarence Darrow, William English Walling, Senator Arthur Capper, Charles Edward Russell, Herbert H. Lehman, lieutenant governor of New York, and Florence Kelly, together with leading negroes. There are branches in the form of local auxiliary committees in most northern and some southern states. Permanent headquarters are in New York and continuous operations are carried on by a paid staff of skilled workers. Its work is non-partisan and in much part non-political, consisting in the main of combating what are construed as discriminations against negroes as such."

Already, since the defeat of Judge Parker, and as a result of the impetus of prestige and energy arising from success in that episode, the national association announces that it has carried out successful discriminations against one Republican senator, Grundy, of Pennsylvania, who failed to unite with the senatorial forces opposing Judge Parker. According to a statement and tabulation given out by the national association, election districts in Philadelphia that are preponderantly colored, discriminated strongly in favor of his opponent, James J. Davis.

That the national association will focus its energies on conditions affecting negro participation in Democratic primaries in southern states can be taken for granted. Again, as in the case of Judge Parker, the pressure will come, not from southern negroes, but from the North, and rather more from whites in the North than from negroes. Some of the whites—though decidedly not all—in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People belong to the strain of thought which we call "liberal" when we approve it and "radical" when we do not. Their "liberalism" or "radicalism," which ever word you choose, is, of course, much broader than isolated concern about the negro. Their disapproval of conventional and accepted ways of doing things, their distaste for accepted traditions, covers prohibition and a multitude of other fields. (It must be emphasized most clearly that what is said here applies to some, and only some of the white members of the national association or sympathizers with its aims; many of the members of the association are persons of the greatest fineness of temper, great tolerance and complete generosity of mind. Some of them are as strongly "dry" as others are trenchantly "wet.")

As respects those of the white members of the national association who are frequently called radical, some of them, certainly, have an attitude of rebellion toward the conventional and the accepted that amounts to a curious kind of hate. Some of this type of leaders of thought have an attitude of especial disapproval of the South. It is this type of person who invented, as a derisive epithet, the term "Bible belt" for the South, and Clarence Darrow, who is mentioned as one of the association, was the leader of the first against fundamentalism in Tennessee, and is an outstanding opponent of prohibition. Nearly all the "liberals" or "radicals" in the northern cities visualize the South as the heart of an attitude toward prohibition that they detest.

If a means of stirring up the matter of negro suffrage in the South were not at hand the national association would be likely to find it or invent it. As a matter of fact, they can find a present means. Certainly, at least, they can find in something just now being done, a precedent for what they want.

Once in so often a step is taken in politics which entails pretty infallibly a further step later on. Rather frequently, lately, these things occur in the senate, for the senate has become both careless in its processes and reckless in its innovations. But the persons who can anticipate the future consequences of present steps are comparatively few.

On April 10 insurgent Republican Senator Norris, of Nebraska, introduced a resolution creating a special committee of five senators, which committee was "hereby authorized and directed to investigate the campaign expenditures of the various candidates for the United States senate."

But the resolution did not stop with campaign expenditures. It provided further, that this committee should carry on its investigations on the widest possible scale; they were directed to investigate "the use of any other means or influence . . . which would not only be of public interest, but which would aid the senate in . . . deciding any contest which might be instituted involving the right to a seat in the United States senate."

The resolution—and this is a strange thing—was adopted without roll call. Senator Nye, of North Dakota, was appointed as its chairman; it was given $100,000 for expenses, and it went to work.

That resolution, in its plain actuality and its implications, was an innovation in several far-reaching aspects. For one, it was the first occasion upon which the senate has appointed such a committee in advance of the primaries. The senate, in effect, created this committee, not to investigate any past primary election, not to pass upon any charges already made, but, in essence, to watch on behalf of the senate, every one of the thirty-odd senatorial primaries that will have occurred between the date of the creation of the committee, April 10, and about the end of September next.

In this spirit of supervision, censorship, or call-it-what-you-will, Chairman Nye went to work. According to newspaper announcements emanating from his office, he himself went into Pennsylvania preceding the recent primary between Grundy and Davis. He sent telegrams to local county prosecuting attorneys, local state officials of the government of Pennsylvania, calling on them to send to him certain facts about the primary. On the day of the election, according to similar announcements from Chairman Nye's office, investigators employed by the committee were on hand at polling places in Pennsylvania.

This is the first time anything like this has taken place. It is unprecedented, absolutely. In years past, proposals to take such a step as this, proposals that the senate or the federal government should have representatives on hand at elections for United States senator in the states, have provoked passionate resistance—resistance which everybody understood would go as far as violence if necessary; resistance which, if necessary, would have taken the form of armed force against intruders from Washington attempting to supervise, censor or otherwise affect the choice of senators in states.

Not so many years ago, when Massachusetts Republican Senator Lodge and others used to propose "force bills," providing for federal soldiers or other federal agencies to be present at southern elections and prevent any interference with negro suffrage, southern Democratic senators resisted such proposals with a determination which made state control of state elections the first article of their political creed.

The mandate that Chairman Nye has from the senate gives him the right to investigate "the use of any means or influence" affecting a primary in any state in which any senator is being selected. That mandate—so some southerners are just beginning to realize—would seem to be broad enough to include authorization to consider the conditions affecting Democratic primaries in southern states.

And if the language which Senator Norris wrote into this particular resolution should not be broad enough, nevertheless, as surely as parties and factions rotate in power, will some day lead to northern senators taking this resolution and this present activity of Senator Nye's committee as a precedent, upon which such northern senators will bring about the creation of a committee directed specifically to investigate the conditions affecting primaries in some southern states.

I use the phrase "northern senators" rather than "Republican senators" because the time is past when the disposition to scrutinize suffrage conditions in the South was confined to northern Republicans. Several northern Democratic senators are now as responsive to the political potentiality of negro voters as are any Republicans. During the last 15 years great migrations of southern negroes have settled in such northern cities as New York and Chicago. In those cities the negro vote is as much appealed to by Democratic leaders as by Republican ones. Some northern Democrats have almost as strong a feeling about having the negro exercise suffrage as any of the most earnest old-time anti-slavery Republicans, such as William Lloyd Garrison had. In the senate fight over Judge Parker one of the most earnest and obviously sincere pleas in behalf of unrestricted participation of the negro in politics was made by Democratic Senator Wagner, of New York.

It should be made clear at once that the election laws in southern states—as distinguished from the laws and rules governing party primaries—are not unconstitutional nor subject to attack. Every election law in any southern state (again as distinguished from the laws and rules affecting party primaries) has been found constitutional by the supreme court. But the laws and party rules under which primaries are conducted in some southern states have not (save in one case, Texas), been brought before the supreme court. And without going into detail it is clear that in Democratic primaries in southern states, negroes, for whatever reason or condition, do not generally vote.

And it is primaries, not elections, that the senate is now asserting its power to supervise. Whether the senate has a right to inquire into primaries is seriously doubted. Many senators doubt it. Just about half the supreme court doubts it, half at least. But the senate is doing it. The senate has already inquired into party primaries, and because of what it found has denied seats in the senate to men nominated in party primaries. It has denied seats to Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania, and in effect it compelled Newberry of Michigan to retire from the senate. In two of these cases the charge was excessive expenditure of money; in one case only did the charge include the use of money improperly contributed.

While expenditures have been the occasion of the rejections already made by the senate, the principle that the senate can reject covers any practice that the senate may choose to condemn. As it has been put, the senate, under the power it now asserts, can reject a senator because too many red-haired men voted in his primary.

It will be asked at once why are southern senators not aware of the implication of what the senate is doing? The answer is, that several of them are, and for some time have been gravely concerned about the fact that a series of steps which the senate has taken points plainly toward a condition in which the senate may question the long exercised and generally accepted right of the southern states to name their United States senators at Democratic party primaries, according to such laws, under such rules and under such conditions as the states themselves see fit.

During the course of the debate about Smith and Vare, in which the senate undertook to deprive a duly elected senator of his seat because of conditions attending the party primary in which he was nominated, a writer in "The Baltimore Sun," obviously a lawyer and obviously familiar with the subject of which he wrote, addressed to southern Democratic senators, a query, asking:

"May not southern Democratic senators consider it wise to let sleeping dogs lie? . . . The greatest service which the Democratic party can render to the country is to fight to the death the fatal enlargement of the powers of the central government. . . . Before Democrats commit themselves to a hard and fast alliance with so-called progressive Republicans, they may well ask whether they themselves may not eventually be the victims of their own political strategy. Are their own titles to senatorial seats beyond question? Who knows what political exigency may not arise in which they may be called on to prove their right to sit there? Is it any worse to spend money to get into congress than it is to nullify systematically and deliberately the fifteenth amendment?"

Let it be said again that the writer of that question is wrong when he implies that the fifteenth amendment to the constitution, adopted to protect negroes in the exercise of their suffrage, is being nullified in any southern state. All that was fought out long ago, and every law in every southern state affecting the general elections has been found to be not in violation of the amendment.

But in most of the southern states senators are really selected, not in the general election, but in the primary of the Democratic party. And it is party primaries, as distinct from elections, that the senate has now asserted its right to supervise—that a senate committee is now actually supervising.

Incidentally, when and if northern senators determine to inquire into negro suffrage at southern Democratic primaries, it will be found that the first to support the inquiry will be precisely those insurgent Republicans whose leadership the Democrats are following in the movement which inquires into the use of money in Pennsylvania.

Early Struggles.

To use a slang expression, the thing most folks need in this day an' age is nerve, plain out an' our nerve. I wonder how many of us are familiar with the early existence o' John Rockefeller, the billionaire gasoline wizard an' philanthropist, how he had to cut out all the sports an' pastimes so dear to boys an' clerk in a general store in his bare feet? We hear very, very little about anybuddy's early struggles till they succeed, but jest the same there's no phase o' poverty John D. hain't seen. He didn' even have a velocipede or an Indian pony, or a dinner suit. He'd never seen an elephant till he wuz well over 19. One thing that gave Rockefeller a big lift wuz dyspepsia. He couldn' eat much o' anything so he began to save money at an early age. I suppose too that dyspepsia curbed his inclination to step out, an' that saved him many a dime. But John D. had nerve too, as well as dyspepsia an' his climb wuz rapid. Mrs. Leghorn Tharp has an uncle well along in years, a Mr. Selam Wingate, whose life story is enough to make a big educated loafer jump in a lake. Selam Wingate's parents fought an' threw things so his aunt took him over at a sticky tender age. After the usual few fitfull years o' schoolin', interspersed with jobs which dwarfed him an' ruined his contour, he entered a livery stable at 15 an' studied Greek durin' the dull intervals. At 17 he'd lifted two mortgages fer his aunt an' had given her a Paisley shawl. At 19 he took the agency fer a rubber collar. At 20 his aunt located him at Urbana, Ohio, an' took him in till the Grover Cleveland "panic" brightened up. His energy an' optimism wuz on ever' tongue. He believed that what wuz wuz an' what's to be would be postponed. He tried sellin' life insurance, an' would come home in the evenin' whistlin' jest as if he'd sold some. Joinin' the Republican party he became a candidate fer the Bloom Center postmastership. No arctic explorer, no lumber jack in the fever stricken Brazilian jungles, no Democratic editur, no reformer, no married man, ever went through such a tortuous ordeal. Hounded, bribed, persecuted, double-crossed, shot an' wounded, poisoned an' kidnaped, he wuz finally victorious. At the end o' his term o' office he'd saved $116. This he invested in a rubber plantation an' returned to the study o' Greek. Today, with his gall bladder an' heart both good as new, he's immensely rich, an' after givin' all o' his wives all the money they kin ever hope to spend, he's cruisin' in the Orient. Mrs. Leghorn Tharp got a pust card from him today sayin', "Hindo wives begin to fade at seven."

Dry Ice Enables Wichitan to Send Ice Cream to Ky.

Ice cream that traveled by rail from Wichita Falls to Bowling Green, Ky., made an unusual gift from a son to his mother last week, when Bob Davis of the Lehrack Ice Cream company sent some cream to his mother.

The ice cream was packed in dry ice, now used by large companies to send special molds or exclusively manufactured types of frozen desserts. The dry ice melts in a gaseous form rather than as water and is so much colder than ordinary ice that it will refrigerate for several days. It is frequently used on camping trips.

FINKELSTEIN'S FUNERAL

Great was the amazement of all when it was found that the millionaire could not force his way thru the crowd of mourners.

IT behooved Ringling, as the employer of Finkelstein for over a period of twenty-five years, to attend the funeral of one who had served him well. It was one of the things one did out of a sense of the fitness of things. For twenty-five years, the innocuous Finkelstein, patient, plodding, an old faithful in the bookkeeping department of the large cooperage concern of which Ringling was President, had been part and parcel of the daily routine; of the remunerative affairs which had made Ringling, at sixty, many times a millionaire.

Yes, it was with a sense of the appropriateness of such a gesture, that on the day of Finkelstein's funeral Ringling directed his chauffeur to drive him to the residence of the old employee who had delivered, through the years, such faithful service.

It was gratifying to come within sight of Finkelstein's home. It showed that here was a man whose living wage had been sufficient to enable him to dwell in the cleanliness and decency of the small but well kept brick dwelling, surrounded by its plot of garden which stood on a tree lined little side street of a small suburb outside the limits of the great city; here was a man whose employer, he, Ringling, had allowed a decent living wage.

Nothing remarkable about Finkelstein either, except his dog-like fidelity to routine. As a matter of fact, reflected Ringling to himself, riding along the modest neighborhoods which lay so outside his pale, of late years he might easily have replaced Finkelstein with a younger man. But no, it had not been his custom to employ such tactics of ingratitude with employees of long standing. True, Ringling knew little enough about the staff of his organization. He was not a gregarious man, nor a particularly benign one when it came to interesting himself in the lives of others. But in a general way, the employees of the cooperage concern were treated on the principle that good service entitled a man to consideration and, except on rare occasions, displacements and new faces were seldom introduced into the concern.

Then too, in the event of death or disaster of one sort or another, Ringling almost invariably appeared at the funeral or bedside of the employee. In the case of Strandermann, who had broken two legs in a fall from a ladder in the shops, Ringling had done the handsome thing and employed Strandermann's son in his father's place, even though the boy was inexperienced and caused difficulties.

And now Finkelstein, the next to oldest employee of the firm, was dead, and Ringling arriving at the funeral saw at least two-thirds of the cooperage organization standing about on the lawn as he drove up.

THEREUPON, surprises began to happen. They were standing about on the little lawn, for the reason that the house of Finkelstein was so crowded, on each of its two floors, that it was impossible for another human being to cram into its doorways. Actually, before that modest house on that modest street, were officers of the law, trying to regulate the demonstration that was taking place at the funeral of Finkelstein.

And that demonstration was prompted by nothing more than the hundreds of men, women and children who were bombarding the house to pay last tribute to this man who had lived humbly but apparently with such superb grace. Men and women, unable to jam their way into the house, were standing on the lawn and sidewalks weeping and holding their children in arms, for the moment when the bier of Finkelstein would appear at the threshold on its way to the hearse at the curb.

Riding up before this spectacle, Ringling was struck with amazement. Great was the embarrassment of all concerned when it was found that the great Ringling, the millionaire employer of the humble Finkelstein, could not even force entrance into the home to pay respect to the last of Finkelstein. But without effect was the attempt of those in charge to find entrance for the employer of Finkelstein.

Men, women and children crowded every doorway, youngsters with wilting bouquets in their hands, older folk exchanging low voiced reminiscences of the many kindnesses and acts of mercy of which they had been recipient at the apparently sainted hands of this man who had passed on.

A man of whom Ringling had never had the slightest conception! Why, Finkelstein had been just any unobtrusive faithful employee, courteous, obsequious, anxious to please, coming and going in the routine way of the rising and the setting of the sun. A man in no way to excite comment, just an ordinary everyday little man in the street. And now this! Men and women from towns a night's train ride away, came to pay him the rites of their last expressions of respect and love.

Finkelstein, it seemed, little old obscure Finkelstein, had been to these people and to hundreds more who sent messages and offerings of love, inspiration, solace and guidance. Children loved him for his mercy at their sick beds; men had been helped over bad, foul places by him, women had reason to bless the ground upon which he walked, and sobbed at his passing. School children bearing field flowers sang "Lead Kindly Light" as his flower-draped coffin was born out into the sunlight. The wife of Finkelstein, no more comely than he had been, twisted with years but walking proudly in her pain, followed him, the hundreds making way for her to pass.

IT was the most triumphant funeral Ringling had ever seen. It was a demonstration of love and gratitude such as he had never beheld. It was only in his death that Ringling was to learn how great a man Finkelstein had been in his life. A woman on the edge of the crowd related how funds out of his modest salary had been his monthly offering to her during the two year period of an illness. Another recited his many errands of mercy for her sick husband. A man on crutches was unashamed to utter aloud his blessings on the memory of Finkelstein and children who were old enough to understand, cried.

Such was the funeral of Finkelstein, and it awoke in Ringling a strange fear that for weeks thereafter made his face look gray and mask-like.

What about his own funeral? What about the funeral of Ringling?

Who would there be to mourn Ringling? How many children, carrying nosegays, would stand wet-eyed on the lawns of his country-estate at Rosylind. What about the funeral of Ringling?

He knew. It would be the icy, reserved funeral of a man who had lived in icy reserve. Men and women with cold, thin lips; business associates present for the looks of the thing; distant relatives; scenting legacies; curiosity mongers wanting to see the inside of a great house, would line up around his great bronze bier.

Ringling did not want that kind of a funeral. After beholding the funeral of Finkelstein, Ringling was afraid to go out in the cold. He wanted to die like Finkelstein.

Perhaps he may.

THE widow of Finkelstein is helping Ringling. There are youngsters who come daily now to the home of Ringling, puny ones who need the power of wealth to equip them with a strength for life; men and women who have been brought to his attention by the widow of Finkelstein are full of gratitude for Ringling's visits to their bedside and his alleviation of their poverty.

The widow of Finkelstein has not long to live. You can see it in her dimming eyes and frail heart-broken face, but Ringling, meanwhile, warming himself at the light of her spiritual radiance, is losing no time in learning some of the truths he hopes to inherit from the Finkelsteins.

THE WICHITA VALLEY FARMER

DRAINAGE PLAN DECLARED HELP TO EVERY ACRE

General Responsibility for Situation Considered In Financing

The recognition of general responsibility of benefits from drainage has caused the adoption of the plan proposed for financing the projected Wichita county water drainage district No. 2 according to the latest of a series of letters from Wichita county water improvement district No. 2 to interested persons.

The letter follows:

"Dear Sir:

"Our letter of of June 2nd discussed the plan of financing drainage work in Wichita county water improvement district No. 2 as recommended by the board of directors of the district. In this and the following letters of this series the reasons considered by the board in recommending this plan will be given.

"In a country where irrigation provides the only method of securing a sufficient supply of water for the growing of crops the question of who should pay for the cost of drainage works is seldom raised. It is recognized that irrigation and drainage must go hand in hand, that both are required to secure a balanced irrigation system and that the cost of both should be equally assessed against each acre alike. A questionnaire was sent by your general manager to all of the irrigation projects known to him and from 11 federal projects and 17 projects organized under state laws replies were received. The question was asked, 'Was the cost of drainage apportioned to each acre alike or was the seeped area charged more than the lands not seeped?' In 24 instances the reply was that both were charged alike or at the same rate per acre. In the four exceptions the assessment was made upon the basis of benefits received, which was compulsory under the laws of the states where these districts were located. A fourth district is now organized there is no provision in the Texas statute whereby the benefits accruing from drainage may be assessed otherwise than equally.

"In this particular region the direct connection between irrigation and drainage is not realized. We think of drainage as being a means of reclaiming swamp lands and making them fit for cultivation. The Texas statute providing for the creation of drainage districts is based upon this assumption. But here, before irrigation, there was no land of this character and only during periods of heavy rainfall was any seepage apparent. With irrigation, however, need for drainage has developed. The same agency which has insured a dependable water supply during periods of drouth to the district lands has at the same time been responsible for ruining some of the lands in the district. It matters little whether seepage conditions have been brought about by canal loses or from the irrigation of adjoining lands; the fact remains that without irrigation there would be no need for drainage. The element of general responsibility for the present conditions therefore enters into the solution of the problem.

"This problem of general responsibility has been excellently stated by Daniel W. Murphy, a consulting engineer on drainage problems. In his book 'Drainage Engineering' he states:

"'On irrigated lands the apportionment of drainage costs presents questions differing fundamentally from those of the humid areas. On the latter swamps and other wet lands have resulted from natural causes which, generally, have existed for long periods of time. The owners of such lands had an opportunity to know the condition before acquiring them. It is to be assumed that the price paid for swamps and other wet areas was less, generally, than those paid for areas that did not require drainage before they could be cultivated.

"'In the arid region, where irrigation is practiced on an extensive scale, seeped and wet lands are quite generally the result, directly or indirectly, of such irrigation. The bringing of an irrigation supply onto the land has resulted in filling the subsoils and caused a rise in ground water until portions of the irrigable area have become too wet for cultivation. The same agency that has made irrigation and development possible has contributed also to making some of the land unfit for use. It was not possible, in advance of irrigation, to determine definitely what, if any, areas would be affected by seepage, and no difference in the cost of lands or the bringing of water to them could be made on this account. In many instances, lands which gave the best returns and commanded the highest price for the first few years after irrigation was begun, have been the first to become water-logged and unfit for use. The owners of affected areas have contributed equally with others in acquiring lands and providing means for irrigation. They are entitled to protection against having their lands rendered worthless and others who enjoy the advantages of irrigation should share the responsibility of affording such protection. In other words, where an area is brought under irrigation, provision should be made to protect any portion of it becoming seeped and useless as a result of such irrigation, and the cost of the work should be borne by the entire area. The apportioning of drainage costs wholly on the basis of special benefits does not take into account the responsibility of an irrigated area to protect lands within it from becoming seeped and non-productive through canal losses and excess use of water in irrigation.'

"The foregoing presents one reason for the plan of organization presented to you from the basis of general responsibility for present conditions. This is simply a starting point. In following letters the question will be presented from other standpoints, it being our intention to show that the drainage construction proposed will benefit every acre in the district regardless of whether it now needs drainage or not.

"Yours very truly,

"C. H. Clark, president

"G. A. Remington, general manager."

Back Yard Orchard on Plot 50 Feet Square Promises Fruit Yield Large Enough to Supply Family for Year

The possibilities of a plot of ground 50 feet square as an orchard have been demonstrated by W. E. George, attorney, at his home at 1922 Speedway. Thirteen fruit trees, set out in the space back of his house, promises to bear enough fruit to last his family a year.

One plum tree is loaded to capacity and the fruit is ripening and beginning to drop. Mr. George judges that enough plum jelly can be made from the fruit to last his family during the year.

An apricot tree has a heavy yield and the fruit is just beginning to turn. Of 10 peach trees, three are an early variety and are ripening now. The other seven are of a later variety. All of them together will yield between 15 and 20 bushels of peaches, Mr. George believes. A pear tree set out the same time as the others promises a comparative light yield, however, due to the length of time required for the maturity, he said.

During the driest seasons, the trees were well watered. The ground around them has been cared for during the year and all weeds and grass kept cut.

The ground on which the trees are planted is not exceptional in any way, and it is Mr. George's belief that if the empty back yards and vacant lots in Wichita Falls were planted in small orchards of this sort, there would be less condemnation of the fertility of Texas soil and a great deal of satisfaction for the owners in growing their own fruit.

PULLETS NEED GOOD CARE TO INSURE PROFIT

EARLY CARE DETERMINES RETURN ON INVESTMENT

Proper Feeding and Housing for Chicks Important Factor

Next year a poultryman stands or falls on the flock of pullets he raises this year. They are to be his livelihood. A poultryman of vision realizes this and feeds and manages his pullets through the unproductive period so he can realize poultry dollars on his investment.

An old axiom is, "you can judge a poultry raiser by looking at his pullets on range." Here many men lose the vision of what they're trying to do, and how to do it. So many show less interest and attention at this period in the poultry business than at any other time and their pullets show it.

When warm weather comes on farm work takes more time—eggs from the old hens bring lower prices, the chicks are past the tender chick age—and the easiest attitude to take is to let the pullets shift for themselves.

The investment already made is forgotten. The foundation is in—let the house build itself! This worked fairly well when a dozen hens scurried all over the farm with the chicks, assuming the management and getting the food. But hen raising of chicks is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Today, chicks are raised in large numbers. The poultryman must assume the managerial duties—and food must be supplied.

Natural food is never plentiful enough to supply more than the needs of a few chicks. Besides, a chick doesn't know what it needs—it only knows what it likes best. That is the reason for feeding a mash mixture. Mash supplies the growth proteins and the minerals for the frame of the growing pullet.

The first thing to do as the birds enter the range period of their life is to separate the cockerels from the pullets. If the more promising males are to be raised for breeding purposes put them in small groups on separate ranges. Plenty of room allows fine individual development. The others should be marketed as they reach broiler weight.

Need Shelter and Shade

A shaded alfalfa or clover range or a field of half grown corn makes the ideal place to grow pullets. A good range of this sort is not swampy is next to desirable.

When the weeds do not need kept the Connecticut type of range shelter (state Connecticut experimental station #1 S coop for plans) is very practical. It is easy and cheap to build, easily disinfected and movable. The pullets are kept from their own droppings by wire netting. The usual practice is never to clean range houses from the start to the finish of the season. In this respect, the shelter is sanitary. The pullets get plenty of air; they have the shelter from the wind and weather, and protection from skunks and foxes. Practice finds many birds roosting in trees. This has the bad feature that the birds must stand the weather. Thunderstorms and windstorms too often take their toll of half-raised birds.

In using the brooder house for a range house, remove the windows to give them fresh air. A hundred pullets to a house is plenty. In crowded roosting, the birds "sweat." This saps their vitality and they soon lose that golden yellow pigment from their legs. Sallow pale-legged pullets are soft and low in vitality, and this can be often traced back to crowded quarters. If they prefer to roost in one or two houses, move the houses further apart and feed scratch and mash to each house separately. Spray for red mites at least twice during the season.

Provide plenty of mash hoppers filled with growing mash and sufficient drinking facilities for each range unit. The lack of sufficient feeding and drinking space along with crowded quarters starts the mean habit of cannibalism.

Hawks and crows take their toll every year. A shotgun is the answer many times. A "scare crow" is effective sometimes. Cloth streamers hanging from strings across the pullet range will keep crows away. Foxes, skunks and weasels do their work at night. Suitable protection must be provided. Shutting the birds in every night may be the only answer. Where this is done they must be released early in the morning, or cannibalism will start. —Purina Poultryman.

MUCH TERRACING IN WEST TEXAS AREAS DONE DURING YEAR

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 7. Once considered too dry or too level to need terrace protection, West Texas has now thoroughly succumbed to 'crooked row fever,' reports of county agents in that region leading to the announcement by M. R. Bentley, farm engineer in the extension service, that fully half of the 600,000 acres terraced in cooperation with agents last year was done in West Texas. Terracing there has a three-fold object he explains, (1) to prevent washing of top soil, (2) to hold rainfall on cultivated land, and (3) to check blowing soil. Most terraces in the West are built on the level with no fall allowed.

Among the characteristic county reports of terracing accomplishments is that of D. F. Eaton in Lubbock county where the commissioners' court employed an assistant to aid during the rush of the season. Working on the usual plan of training farmers to carry on the work with a minimum of help, 41,175 acres were terraced or contoured which brings the grand total in the county to about 70,000 acres.

R. W. Thomas, county agent in Hall county, states that 25,370 acres were terraced on 140 farms there last season. E. L. Patillo, agent in Wilbarger county reports 8,080 acres terraced on 69 farms, and James D. Prewit of McCulloch county writes that with the aid of two cooperators and several club boys 5,400 acres of land were put under terrace. These terraces, he says, were 25 feet wide and full 20 inches high, and the cost per acre from 75 cents to $1.

YARD BEAUTIFICATION CARRIED TO SUCCESS BY DALLAS 4-H GIRLS

DALLAS, June 7.—Farmsteads and rural school grounds in Dallas county have taken on added beauty because of one of the most extensive yard beautification programs ever undertaken in Texas. Working under the direction of Miss Ruth Clark, assistant home demonstration agent, 200 4-H club girls have set out 232 shade trees, 945 shrubs and 113 fruit trees; 99 girls planted flowers and 150 cleaned their yards in April.

Thirty-five special yard improvement demonstrators, all home demonstration club women, have reported to Miss Leone Wimberly, county home agent, the planting of 146 trees and 1,315 shrubs, as well as the transplanting of 338 native plants such as redbud and Indian currant. Out of 38 schools in the beautification program, 20 announced 263 trees, 2,400 shrubs, and 1,000 annuals, perennials and bulbs planted. Thirteen schools have leveled their yards, five improved walks and nine screened unsightly places and buildings. The work has been in cooperation with numerous civic bodies.

SAN ANGELO YOUTHS TO SEEK HONORS AGAIN IN CALF FEEDING CONTESTS

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 7. Efforts to again lead the southwest in calf feeding are being given an early start by members of the vocational agriculture class of San Angelo high school, of which Prof. T. D. White is head.

Having developed champions in both the fat calf and fat lamb divisions of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show at Fort Worth last March, Mr. White is now combing the ranches of the Southwest for calves that will be used by his class for their 1931 projects. Twenty calves are being sought and the school man is being given cooperation of prominent ranch owners of the San Angelo section in his quest for likely material. Already he has arranged to select individuals from the herds of Jim Henderson, D. E. Hughes, Abe Meyer Sr., S. E. McKnight, Ed Mertz, C. A. Broome, Pat and Wren Jackson, L. L. Farr and Jess Elrod.

SEEDED PASTURE LOWERS FEED BILL OF LIVESTOCK

WHARTON, Texas, June 7.—Without counting the increased production of cash per the increased potato yield from the land next year, four acres of pasture seeded in by Walter Matthys of Wharton county early in February has saved $32 in feed up to mid-April, and the pasture was expected to last until late in May. A mixture of oats, barley and white-blossom sweet clover gave rich pasture within a month's time to 14 head of grown cattle and mules and four calves. Planted as a demonstration in cooperation with J. O. Graham, county agent, the pasture has been grazed alternate weeks to give chance for recuperation. Mr. Matthys believing it better to put the maximum number of stock on for short periods rather than fewer head continuously. He plans to seed in another grain mixture with the clover this fall for grazing before plowing up for a spring crop of potatoes.

GRADE CALVES SELL FOR HIGH PRICE AT LONGVIEW

LONGVIEW, Texas, June 7.—Grade whiteface calves about six months of age and bred by a good Hereford bull sell for about twice the price of common calves, according to Lester Mackey of Judson community in Gregg county, who has had such a bull for two years. The county agent announces that six well bred Hereford bulls have recently been introduced into Gregg county.

YARD GARDEN HERE YIELD HUGE ONION

A white Bermuda onion measuring 15 inches in greatest diameter and weighing a pound and seven ounces was displayed by J. C. Owen, 2130 Avenue F, Saturday as evidence as to what can be done with a yard garden in Wichita Falls.

Mr. Owen planted 20 cents worth of slips last March and expects to harvest from three to four bushels of onions.

He planted a plot measuring 50 by 198 feet in almost every variety of truck which can be grown in this section last March, and more fresh vegetables than his family can use has been assured for the fall and summer.

WOMEN IN FLOYD COUNTY GAIN BY TEST IN POULTRY

FLOYDADA, Texas, June 7.—Ten poultry demonstrators in women's home demonstration clubs of Floyd county made a total of $3,312.77, from a total of 2,725 hens, over and above cost of the feed, in a six months' test just conducted by Miss Marie Strange, county home demonstration agent.

The 10 women, with 2,725 hens, produced 17,683 dozen eggs which cost an average of 10.5 cents per dozen to produce. The eggs were sold for an average of 26.1 cents per dozen, making a total of $4,629.31 realized from the sale of eggs. At the same time the sale of fowls brought the women $552.07, making a grand total of $5,181.44. Cost of feed amounted to $1,868.67, leaving a clear profit of $3,312.77.

The average number of hens per flock was 272½. However the smallest flock numbered 96 hens and is owned by Mrs. C. H. Huffman, of the Prairie Chapel club. The largest flock numbered 587 hens and is owned by Mrs. D. S. Battey of the Harmony club. The smallest average for any group is 60 eggs per hen, while Mrs. William Wood's flock of 434 hens have averaged 100½ eggs per hen for the past six months. Mrs. Wood's flock of 434 hens laid 44,114 eggs which brought $1,053.21, and netted $922.03 after the cost of $450.28 was deducted for feed. A complete record was kept by the women of the number of hens, the culling, those that died, feed costs and the like. Miss Strange uses the standard poultry calendar of the Texas A. & M. college in her testing work.

LARGE PRODUCTION NECESSARY TO GET PROFIT FROM FLOCK

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 7.—The time when the barnyard fowl could merely contribute pin money to the farm wife and then call it a day is over. Even if she belongs to only a one-harem flock, the modern Texas hen has to show speed in changing feed into eggs or painfully relinquish her position to a younger and more likely sister. One of the most potent factors in thus disturbing the tranquil contentment of the barnyard is the home demonstration agent who not only insists that large scale production can be applied to hens as well as factories, but who proves it by means of well distributed farm flock demonstrations.

This has been going on for years but just now it is assuming alarming proportions. There are 118 home demonstration agents in the state and practically everyone of them has from one to 10 such demonstrations, the records from which are furnishing such disquieting rumors as "a hen should lay 160 eggs yearly and make a net profit of more than $1." Nine demonstrations in Gregg county, for instance, show that 756 hens averaged a net profit of 17 cents in April. In Fisher county the home agent reports 10 flocks of 850 birds averaging 52 cents above food cost for the four months beginning November. From Washington county comes the report that 216 hens made a profit above feed cost in March of 37½ cents per bird.

It's true, the hen gets enough to eat now and it's more nourishing but she pays for it and for her improved living room, too. A nap in the middle of the day may cost her her life, even a mild illness may cause an easily excited farm wife to exact the death penalty on suspicion that it's catching, and a disgusting worming is certain at least twice a year. The drinking water is cleaner and cooler than it used to be but no telling when it will be doctored up with potassium permanganate or epsom salts.

No, the life of a hen isn't what it used to be, and all because farm wives have got the notion that hens ought to pay better than cotton.

HALF-ACRE GARDEN CUTS DOCTOR BILLS

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, June 7.—A half-acre garden has reduced doctor bills from "hundreds of dollars to $11 last year," in the family of Mrs. J. H. Neiderhofer of the Pine Valley Home Demonstration club in Walker county. With 700 containers of home grown fruits, vegetables and meats on her pantry shelf she has been able to serve well balanced meals in short order, and the saving in grocery bills and health is inestimable, she says.

"Nothing goes to waste," Mrs. Neiderhofer states, "and what isn't canned goes to market. With the help of three of my girls who are 4-H club members, I am carrying demonstrations in the 4-H pantry, poultry flock management and living room improvement. My 112 laying hens made me a net profit in a recent month of $35.70 after paying the feed bills."

COOPERATIVE SELLING OF EGGS BOOSTS PROFIT

ROBSTOWN, Texas, June 7.—By marketing his eggs cooperatively during April through the Robstown branch of the Poultry Producers association of Texas, Fred Felders of Concordia community, Nueces county, states that his receipts are $20 more than had he sold on the local market. He markets high quality, infertile eggs, 90 per cent of which grade special extra. Forty-five other farmers are delivering an average of 18 cases of eggs per day to the local cooperative branch.

FIRST AWARD IN BUTTER JUDGING TO MISS SWANSON

Miss Enie Swanson was winner of the butter judging contest for members of home demonstration clubs of the county, held last week at Iowa Park, according to the announcement here Saturday of Miss Ethel Louise Webb, county home demonstration agent.

Mrs. A. D. Butcher won second place and Mrs. W. C. Williams, third, while Mrs. Frank Davis and Mrs. W. E. Palmer were accorded honorable mention. J. C. Regels of the Southwest Dairy Products company was judge.

Each candidate was asked to judge eight pounds of butter after Mr. Regels had demonstrated the method of scoring two pounds.

Other contestants were Mrs. A. C. Arnold, Mrs. A. Bartell, Mrs. R. J. Bradley, Mrs. C. C. Burroms, Mrs. Claude Fox, Mrs. Henrietta Lalk, Mrs. M. T. Majors, Mrs. H. C. Obenhaus, Mrs. R. H. Russell, and Mrs. Boon Smith.

Fishing by Ear

LONDON.—Herring fishermen must have good ears, for on their hearing depends their catch. The lookout stands in the bow of a boat to locate a shoal of herring. He can do this by cupping his hand to his ear. When the fish are running they make a constant "swish" through the water just under the surface. When the lookout hears this sound the net is shot out and the fish gathered in.

Briand Plan of United States of Europe Meets Chilly Reception From Four European Countries

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The rather chilly reception which has followed the formal launching of M. Briand's project of a United States of Europe can hardly have taken any student of contemporary European conditions by surprise. The simple truth is that if some sort of combination has become economically necessary all forms of association remain politically impossible.

Moreover, at the very outset it is clear that three of the five great powers are certain to stand outside: Britain, because it is at the moment turning its attention again to the possibilities of imperial preference, which would be the basis of a United States of the British empire; Russia, because its rulers remain in a state of war against all the conceptions of the capitalistic world; and finally Italy, because it is in a state of super-nationalism.

Something considerable and useful might still be achieved, however, were Germany to return a favorable answer to the proposal of the French foreign minister. Politically and economically the possibilities of some form of European economic association based upon a Franco-German combination are patent. The allies of France, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania, together with Belgium, might easily be drawn in, while Holland, Switzerland and Austria would tend to gravitate in the same direction. Even Hungary, surrounded by states sharing in the association, would probably end by joining.

Will Germany Assent?

But will Germany assent to any such partnership with her ancient enemy? To be sure the major differences between France and Germany are rapidly being abolished. With the evacuation of the Rhineland soon to be accomplished no direct cause of difficulty aside from the Sarre basin remains. And it is a matter of common agreement that the Sarre problem will be settled amicably and shortly, the territory being returned to Germany and the French interests being liquidated by financial payments.

Since, too, the Germans have clearly and definitely abandoned any claim to Alsace-Lorraine, there is no political barrier to cooperation in a European association. But the immediate trouble is that both France and Germany would seek to be supreme in such a combination. France basing her claims upon her military strength, her alliances and her present prosperity, which would make her the chief source of capital.

Germany, on the other hand, has so far reconstructed and reorganized her industrial machinery as to be the most important single economic factor on the European continent. Her central position, too, gives her a great advantage. During the next decade or two Germany can with reasonable confidence look forward to recovering the economic and commercial position she occupied in Central Europe before the world war without any French partnership.

Such a French partnership, too, would impose certain political considerations. Germany would be bound to accept her present territorial status, to renounce all purpose to suppress the Polish corridor, to include Austria within her frontiers, in a word to resume her old dream of creating, even economically, a Mitteleuropa extending from the Baltic to the Adriatic.

One may well doubt if any such program as that of M. Briand will find wide acceptance in Germany at the present hour. The restoration of Germany's economic and industrial conditions has justly awakened German pride and ambition. If the old dream of political hegemony based upon military power has unmistakably lost ground, there is still room and reason for an aspiration for industrial supremacy based upon German industrial organization.

Ever since her military defeat and domestic revolution Germany has been under the shadow of the consequences of these disasters. Her territory has been occupied by foreign armies, her finances have been subject to foreign control, while domestic disorders followed by the inflation debacle have further crippled her. Only now she is at last emerging from the helpless state of the past decade. She is in all respects on the point of resuming her position as a great power, with complete freedom of action.

Why, then, should Germany now tie her hands by a partnership with France, which would obviously be the nucleus of any European union? And what, after all, would a United States of Europe really amount to, with Russia, Italy and Britain left out? Incidental arrangements with France, cartels over steel, potash and coal, certainly present obvious advantages, peaceful adjustments with France is patently desirable, but partnership in the larger sense, with a question as to which country would control 51 per cent of the stock, seems less appealing.

Advantages to France

For France, of course, the advantages would be incalculable. At the basis of all French policy lies the necessity to preserve the status quo created by the war. The independence of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugoslavia, with their present political frontiers, constitutes the single real guarantee of European security against eventual German hegemony. From the very close of the war all French statesmen have insisted that German acceptance of the status quo of the peace treaties must be the single guarantee of European peace.

But Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, Lithuania are equally unprepared to accept the status quo, while Italy, so far from favoring a United States of Europe, is proclaiming all the pre-war precepts of nationalism. Nor is there any country either among the victors or vanquished of the last war prepared to surrender any of its political independence. No common foe imposes unity on the political side. Unimpaired sovereignty is still the major principle of nationalism in all European states, big and little.

Politically, too, for Germany the old conception of an alliance with Russia to upset the peace treaties is now balanced by an unmistakable appeal coming from Rome to join in an Italo-German combination having as its purpose to abolish present French dominance. That Germany in any immediate future will adopt either of these ideas is very unlikely, but it is not less plain that the United States of Europe conception of Briand, with its inevitable French partnership, is hardly less unlikely.

It is conceivable that in the next few years a certain limited progress will be made in certain areas toward adjustments of tariff. In the Danube area and in the territory of the former Hapsburg monarchy the necessity for such adjustment is patent. France and Germany have already gone a long distance in the matter of iron and steel and Poland, Belgium and Luxemburg have joined in. Even Germany and Foland have quite recently reached promising if temporary tariff compromises. But it is easy to exaggerate the political significance of these relatively minor arrangements.

In the larger view, while the project has enlisted a certain number of visionaries in all countries, the conception of a United States of Europe is little more than one more French effort to insure the permanence of the existing territorial and political status of Europe. At the bottom of any such scheme would necessarily lie the necessity of all members mutually to guarantee each other's frontiers.

For France and all of her allies, Poland and the Little Entente states, this would be simple, for none desires any expansion. It would be satisfactory to the neutrals of the war—Scandinavian countries, Holland and Swizerland, together with Spain and Portugal—because their purposes are identical. It would satisfy British ideas, because what Britain most desires is peace on the continent.

But to the nations which feel themselves either mutilated or wrongfully restricted—Soviet Russia, Fascist Italy and partitioned Germany—the stabilization of Europe on present foundations would be inacceptable. And no economic advantage in the present state of mind in these countries would outweigh the political disadvantages. For all three governments, or more exactly for the Fascist and Soviet rulers and the German people, the Briand program would spell the ruin of most treasured aspirations and most firmly held purposes.

On the surface it seems a noble conception and Americans, with the analogy of their own union in mind, have found the project most appealing. Nor can any one mistake the fact that it would insure certain material advantages. Nevertheless it is clear upon examination that inevitably M. Briand has hit upon the program most advantageous to his own country as the formula for European peace and prosperity.

Fundamentally, the trouble with the Briand project, like the League of Nations, the Kellogg pact and the once famous and now forgotten protocol of Geneva, lies in the fact that it constitutes a formula for preserving peace without providing any remedy for past injustices—or what for various peoples appear injustices. It offers to certain peoples the promise of prosperity, but at the price of abandoning all hope of restoring what they conceive to be their national unity or racial solidarity.

Thus, despite the eminence of the statesman who has proposed it and the present influence of the country which he represents, the sensational proposal has fallen upon deaf ears. It has awakened a certain measure of academic interest and a degree of discussion in the public prints of Europe, but everywhere, even in M. Briand's own country, it has been treated as a counsel of perfection addressed to a continent of realities, a program of internationalism presented to a Europe in which nationalism is hardly less intransigeant than in that country which insists upon "100 per cent Americanism."

STEPHEN LEACOCK

THE PERFECT OPTIMIST—By Stephen Leacock

And then he steps back and says, "There, that will do nicely till Monday!"

Well, here we are again, seated in the big red plush chair, in for one of our jolly little mornings with our dentist. My! It certainly is cosy to settle back into this comfortable chair with a whole quiet morning in front of us—no work to do, no business to think of, just to lie in one of our comfortable day-dreams.

How pleasant it is in this chair anyway, with the bright sunshine of early June streaming in through the window upon us and illuminating every corner of the neat and immaculate little room in which we sit. For immaculate neatness and cleanliness, I repeat, give me a little up to date dental room every time. Talk of your cosy libraries or your dens, they won't compare with this little nook. Here we are, with everything we need around us, all within easy reach. Here on this revolving tray are our pleasant little nippers and forceps, some so small and cute and others so big and strong that we feel a real confidence in them. They'd never let go of anything! Here is our dainty little electric buzzer with our revolving gimlets at the end: out little hammer on the left; our brad-awl on the right—everything.

For the mement our dental friend is out the room—telephoning, we imagine. The merry fellow is so popular with all his friends that they seem to ring him up every few minutes. Little scraps of his conversation reach our ears as we lie half-buried in our white towel, in a sweet reverie of expectancy.

"Pretty bad in the night was it, eh? Well, perhaps you'd better come along down and we'll make a boring through that bicuspid and see what's there!"

Full of ideas, he is, always like that—never discouraged, something new to suggest all the time. And then we hear him say—"Well, let me see. I'm busy now for about a couple of hours—" Hurrah! That means us! We were so afraid he was going to say, "I'll be though here in about five minutes." But no, it's all right; we've got two long dreamy hours in front of us.

He comes back into the room and his cheery presence, as he searches among his instruments and gives a preliminary buzz to the buzzer, seems to make the spring sunshine even brighter. How pleasant life seems the dear old life; that is, the life we quitted ten minutes ago and to which, please Providence, we hope to return in two hours. We never felt till we sat here how full and pleasant life is. Think of it, the simple joy of being alive. That's all we ask—of going to work each day (without a toothache) and coming home each night to eat our dinner. If only people realized it—just to live in our world without a toothache. . .

So runs our pleasant reverie. But, meanwhile, our dental friend has taken up a little hammer and has tapped us, in his playful way, on the back teeth.

"Feel that?" he asks. And he's right, the merry dog! We do feel it. He guessed it right away. We are hoping so much that he will hit us again. Come on, let's have a little more fun like that. But no. He's laid aside his hammer and as nearly as we can see has rolled up his cuffs to the elbow and has started his good old electric buzzer into a roar. Ah, ha! Now we are going to get something—this is going to be the big fun, the real thing. That's the greatest thing about our little dental mornings, there's always something new. Always as we sit we have a pleasant expectancy that our dental friend is planning a new one.

Now, then, let us sit back tight, while he drives at our jaw with the buzzer. Of all the exhilirating feelings of hand-to-hand conflict, of man against man, of mind matched against mind, and intelligence pitted against intelligence, I know of none more stimulating than when we brace ourselves for this conflict of man and machinery. He has on his side the power of electricity and the force of machinery. But we are not without resource. We brace ourselves, laughingly, in our chair while he starts to bore. We need, in fact, our full strength; but on the other hand, if he tries to keep up at this pace his hands will get tired. We realize, with a sense of amusement, that if his machine slips, he may get a nasty thump on the hand against our jaw-bone.

He slacks off just a second—half withdraws his machine and says, "Were you at the hockey game last night?" and then starts his instrument again at full roar.

"Were we at the hockey game last night?" How strange it sounds! Why, yes, of course, we were! In that far-away long-ago world, where they play hockey and where there is no toothache—we were there only last night. Yes, we remember, it was just towards the end of that game that we felt those twinges in one of the—what does he call it, the lower molars? Anyway, one of those twinges which started the exultant idea racing through our minds, "Tomorrow we'll have to go to the dentist."

A female voice speaking into the room has called him to the telephone, and again we are alone. What if he never comes back! The awful thought leaps to our minds, what if he comes in and says, "I'm sorry to say that I have to take a train out of town at once." How terrible! Perhaps he'll come in and say, "Excuse me, I have to leave instantly for England!" or "I'll have to let your work go, they've sent for me to go to China!"

But no, how lucky! Back he comes again. We've not lost him.

And now what is he at! Stuffing cotton-wool up into our head, wool saturated with some kind of drugs and pounding it in with a little hammer.

And then—all of a sudden, so it seems—he steps back and says, "There, that will do nicely till Monday!" And we rise, half-dazed, from our chair to realize in our disappointment that it is over already. Somehow we had thought that our pleasant drowsy morning of pounding and boring and dreaming in the sunlight, while our dental friend mixed up something new, would last forever. And now, all of a sudden, it is over.

Never mind! After all, he said Monday! It won't seem so long till then! And meantime we can think about it all day and look forward to it and imagine how it is going to feel. Oh! It won't be long.

And so we step out into the spring sunshine of the street—full of cotton-wool and drugs and electricity and reverie—like a person returning to a forgotten world and dazed to find it there.

Pastor Reports On Presbyterian General Meeting

Rev. E. F. McGaughey, pastor of the East Side Presbyterian church who served as a commissioner of the Wichita Falls presbytery to the Presbyterian general assembly in Cincinnati, recently has returned and reports a very interesting meeting.

The group voted for definite steps for speedy organic union with the United Presbyterian and the Dutch Reformed denomination and sustained President Hoover in his campaign for law observance and his efforts for reduction of armament and the extension of world peace. Steps were also taken to strengthen the Presbyterian ministry educationally, to educate the ruling eldership of the church in its duties and to place the denominational colleges on a more secure footing for the promotion of Christian education.
