Record rain in Northeast takes 17 lives

By RON SIRAK
Associated Press Writer

A week of record rain that has claimed 17 lives and forced thousands of people from their homes caused the worst flooding in almost 30 years today in parts of the Northeast, where some communities were under 6 feet of water.

Highways were impassable, schools were closed, and volunteers hustled to build sandbag dikes to protect many communities from North Carolina to New Hampshire, but the most serious flooding was reported in New England.

Up to 8 inches of rain have fallen on parts of the Northeast and rivers across New England were as high as 7 feet above flood stage and still climbing today, pouring water 6 feet deep through some communities. In some areas it was the worst flooding since the deluge of 1955 killed 100 people in Connecticut.

Meanwhile, forecasters predicted a repeat of Wednesday's record-breaking 90-degree heat in the Rockies and warned that snowmelt coupled with rain today could trigger flash flooding.

In the East, however, it was another record cool morning. The 34 degree reading at Asheville, N.C., at 5 a.m. was the lowest reading there ever so late in the season, as was the 51 at Charleston, S.C.

At least 17 people have died nationwide in flood-related accidents since Sunday, when water swirled chest-deep through Tulsa, Okla. Two teen-age sisters drowned Wednesday in upstate New York when one fell in a rain-swollen creek and the other tried to save her.

"It just seems Mother Nature doesn't want to move," Bill Sammler of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today as rain poured for a fourth day on the soggy Northeast.

Sammler said "it appears the slow-moving system will thankfully move into the Atlantic today." But officials in many areas say the worst flooding is yet to come.

Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill activated 1,600 National Guard troops today to help local officials, Maj. Gen. John F. Gore said.

The National Weather Service said the Housatonic and outlying Connecticut rivers would rise to their highest levels since 1955.

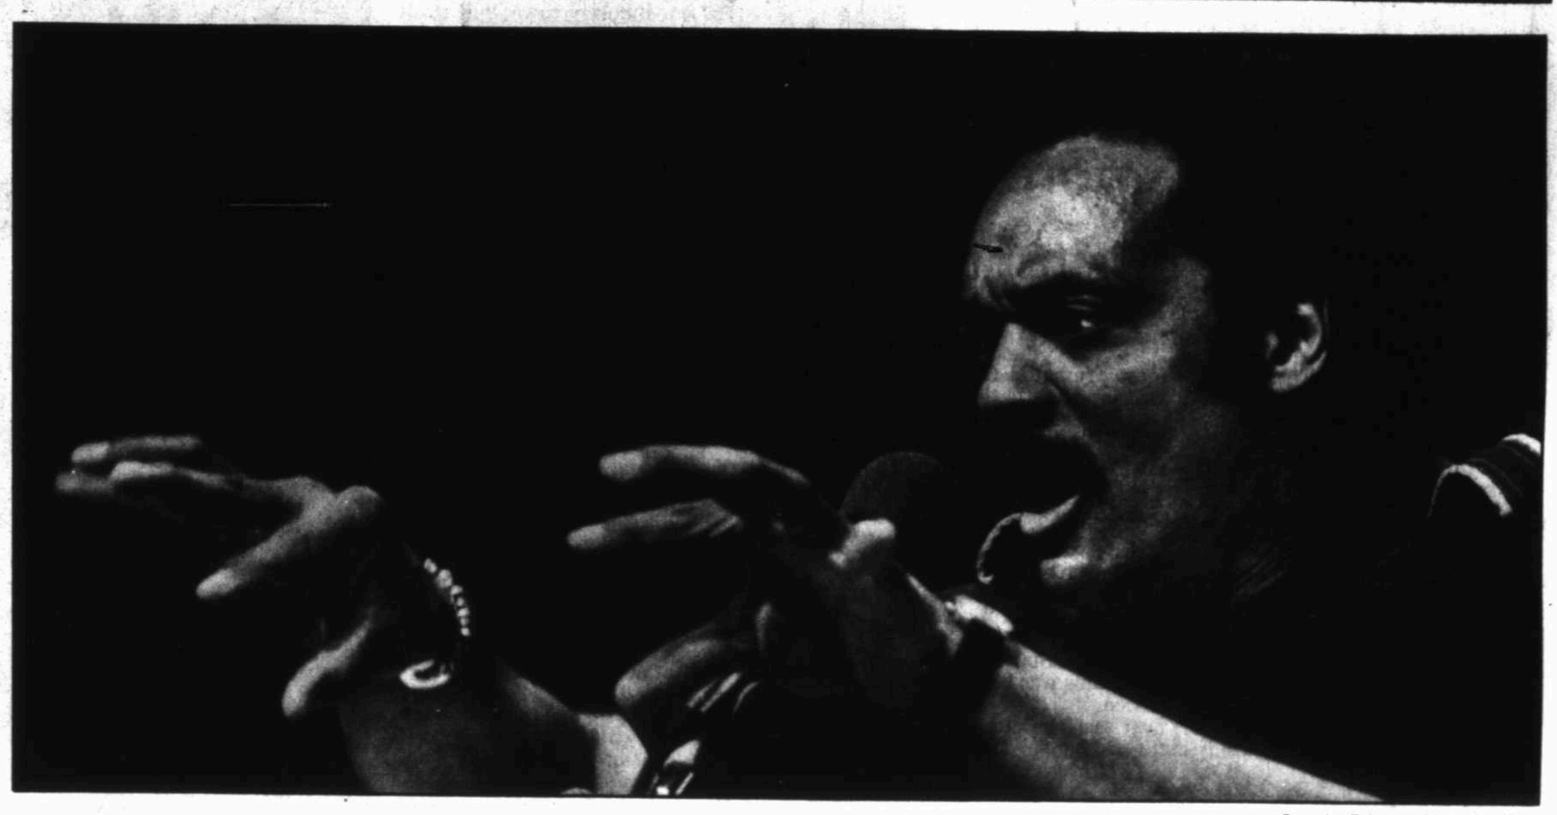

"There'll be widespread flooding — a lot more severe than we originally expected,' said Bruce A. Whyte, a hydrologist for the Northeast River Forecast Center in Bloomfield. "If they're in doubt, get out," he warned residents.

Whyte said the rivers will probably continue rising until Friday.

About 45 families along the Housatonic were evacuated Wednesday and an additional 40 were targeted for removal, officials said. From 5 to 8 inches of rain has fallen across Connecticut since Monday, the weather service said.

National Guard troops were also called out to help volunteers build sandbag dikes to protect government buildings in Franklin, N.H, a city of 8,000 where the entire downtown area had been evacuated

In Winchester, in the southwestern part of the state, about 100 households were evacuated.

"I AM somebody," the Rev. Jesse Jackson encourages the crowd in Hobbs High School Auditorium Wednesday evening. Hobbs was his last campaign stop in New Mexico prior to the June 5 primary.

Jackson creates stir in Hobbs

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

HOBBS, N.M. — From the moment he stepped off the plane here with arms raised in his trademark fashion, the Rev. Jesse Jackson lifted the spirits of the citizens, leaving them an hour later in an excited frenzy and craving more.

"Jes-se Jack-son. Jes-se Jack-son," chanted the more than 1,000 citizens of all colors inside the Hobbs High School Auditorium as Jackson entered. The 2,000 seat auditorium was almost filled, although Jackson was more than an hour late, "running on Jesse Jackson time" as someone had remarked at the Hobbs Airport.

Why Hobbs? he was asked at the airport. "There are votes here," he said. "We're reaching out to every region of the Rainbow Coalition." He already had garnered 15 out of 40 delegates going from Lea County to the Democratic State Convention, according to Barbara Irwin, who organized the Coalition here.

Jackson is the first presidential candidate in years to visit Hobbs, a one-industry (petroleum) and one-sport (basketball) town in the southeastern corner of the state.

IN A CITY of about 30,000 where the sound of pumpjacks and smell of sour gas pervade the air, excitement of this caliber is relegated to close games for the high school's championship basketball teams. But Jackson placed his hands on the followers' heartbeats and thumped their usually complacent political feelings into a rapid pulse.

He talked of sharing the wealth of the oil and gas industry, he talked of getting medical care for the poor from the city's privately owned hospital, he talked of rising from the edges of poverty into glory. And the crowd roared.

Jackson echoed the theme of the Hobbs rally: "Come Alive, June Five," in referring to New Mexico's primary. But he applied it to their personal lives.

"Ah AM ... Somebody," Jackson began, the audience repeating his words.

"Red and yellow
"Brown and black and white"
"We're all precious
"In God's eyes
"Give peace a chance
"Come Alive, June Five
"Our time has come."

As Jackson recited each line, the audience repeated it, ending on a crescendo.

"If hope is in your heart, then help is on the way," Jackson said in a quieter tone. "Our mission is to defend the poor and deliver the needy. Our mission is to reach out for the locked out, to deliver votes stuck at the bottom."

Nicaraguan rebel leader injured in jungle bombing

The Associated Press

LA PENCA, Nicaragua — A bomb intended for Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora exploded during a news conference at his jungle headquarters, killing an American journalist and four other people. Pastora was hospitalized for his wounds.

The explosion, which Red Cross officials in Costa Rica said injured at least 28 people and killed five, occurred Wednesday night about one mile from the Costa Rican border. Pastora's guerrilla forces have been fighting in the region against troops of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Among those killed was Linda Frazier, 38, a reporter for the Tico Times newspaper in San Jose, Costa Rica, and wife of AP Central American correspondent Joseph B. Frazier, according to Miguel Carmona, general director of the Costa Rican Red Cross.

Mrs. Frazier, who had also worked as a stringer for the AP in Costa Rica, was from Portland, Ore., and formerly worked for The Oregonian newspaper there. Mrs. Frazier and her husband had a 10-year-old son. She was the 14th foreign journalist to be killed in Central America.

Carmona said Red Cross workers evacuated 20 injured people and that there were more to be moved to hospitals. Other Red Cross officials put the number of injured at 28.

Also killed was Jorge Quiroz, a Costa Rican television cameraman in San Jose; a guerrilla woman only known as "Rosita," who was in charge of the camp; and two other people who remained unidentified.

Pastora, 48, was wounded in the heel, according to his nephew, Leonel Pastora, a member of his uncle's Costa Rican-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, known by its Spanish initials ARDE.

But Pastora was taken to the Hospital Mexico in San Jose. His condition was not immediately known.

This correspondent was among those injured and was being treated for shrapnel wounds and burns at a hospital in Quesada, Costa Rica. Another journalist reported seriously injured was Susan Morgan, a Briton who is a stringer for Newsweek magazine.

Sixteen of the injured were hospitalized in Quesada.

About 16 journalists were gathered on the second floor of Pastora's headquarters when the bomb went off at about 7:30 p.m. (9:30 p.m. EDT).

After the blast, there was an immediate burst of automatic rifle fire.

Pastora's news conference was held in a warehouse-type building in a jungle area that has been controlled by ARDE rebels, and Pastora's headquarters had been in that area.

Radio Havana, in a broadcast monitored in Miami, said "unconfirmed reports indicate that the explosive was set by a couple pretending to be journalists." The broadcast did not give the source of its report.

Wounded witness recalls scene at Pastora's press conference

LA PENCA, Nicaragua — Eden Pastora, the famed "Commander Zero" who leads an anti-Sandinista rebel band in southern Nicaragua, called a press conference Wednesday.

For some journalists, it was to be the last.

About 15 or 16 of us gathered Wednesday at a hotel in San Jose, Costa Rica, and were driven north by Pastora's men to the San Juan River that marks the border between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

We boarded two long dugout canoes powered by outboard motors and rode up river for two hours to Pastora's camp on the Nicaraguan shore.

Disembarking, we were led up a steep muddy slope to a two-story frame house that had no wall on the front riverside — a not untypical style of building in the tropics.

We found Pastora on the second floor and after a round of jovial greetings we began to gather around him for an informal question-and-answer session.

Pastora stood at the head of a high narrow table with most of the journalists crowding around the table's edges two or three deep in places. I was on the edge of the circle, trying to get my tape recorder to work. It had gotten wet during the boat ride.

I had just given up on the tape recorder and was starting to step into the tight circle to take notes when there was a blinding explosion that knocked me back about 10 feet into a wall.

The explosion seemed to come from the middle of the circle of journalists. It was 7:30 p.m. I crawled into an adjoining room and found myself at the open front of the building.

I slid down a two by four brace to the ground, then rolled into a shallow slit trench that had been dug nearby.

Many of Pastora's men stood with their rifles slung, offering no help to the injured and seemingly stunned.

Many of the wounded, like myself, had crawled or stumbled from the building and were sitting or lying on the muddy riverbank.

Teen pleads guilty, gets 25-year sentence

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

The last of three young defendants in last fall's abduction, rape and death of a 35-year-old southside woman pleaded guilty in a court hearing Wednesday and was sentenced to 25 years in prison on a plea-bargain arrangement.

Alfredo Sanchez, 16, 1511 S. Baird, initially pleaded innocent to the charges. He switched his plea to guilty, however, during a pre-trial hearing before State District Judge Pat Baskin Wednesday afternoon.

The change came after Baskin denied motions by court-appointed attorney Robin Smith to suppress Sanchez' confession to sheriff's investigators.

Sanchez, who has a lengthy juvenile record, was certified to stand trial as an adult in the case following a hearing earlier this year in county court.

His two co-defendants, Midland brothers Jesse and Pete Sosa — both in their early 20s — changed their pleas to guilty after losing a motion to suppress their confessions during a jury trial last week.

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

Clear skies are forecast through Friday for most of the country, according to the National Weather Service. Warm weather is expected in most areas.

More clouds, more heat forecast for Basin Friday

From Staff and Wire Reports

In spite of the increasing cloudiness predicted for Friday, temperatures will be going up into the mid 90s, according to the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Airport. Tonight will be fair with a low in the mid 60s and winds from the south at 5-15 mph. On Friday, winds will be from the southwest at 15-20 mph and gusting.

Wednesday's high of 81 fell 20 degrees short of the record 101 set in 1977, and the overnight low of 56 didn't approach the 1939 record of 45.

STATE

A high-pressure ridge kept skies clear and temperatures mild across texas today, and forecasters predicted a warming trend through the beginning of the weekend.

Little rainfall was expected over the Lone Star State, since the ridge located over East Texas and the Coastal Plains was blocking moisture from entering the coast from the Gulf of Mexico.

A low-pressure trough developing over eastern Colorado and New Mexico was kicking up southerly winds at 10 to 20 mph. Elsewhere, winds were light and variable.

NATION

Drenching rains from a four-day-old storm that forced the evacuation of more than 1,000 people continued to soak the soggy Northeast today, while temperatures fell to record levels in eastern Tennessee.

Flooding was expected later today in Connecticut and Massachusetts, with some rivers expected to reach their highest levels in nearly 30 years, the National Weather Service said.

JACKSON

POVERTY ISN'T defined by color, said Jackson, radiating a charisma that reached to the far edges of the auditorium. It is defined by destitution and pain. He saw that pain in New Mexico among the Indians and Hispanics in the northern part of the state. Hobbs was the final stop before departing later that evening for California, he noted.

New Mexico isn't the Land of Enchantment for all people, Jackson said in referring to the state motto. "We've also seen the disenchantment side. The Indian peoples unemployed. The treaties violated with full knowledge of the government." His voice quavering, Jackson added, "The proclamation came down, but emancipation never did."

"We've seen Hispanics who make up 37 percent of the population continue to be under-represented in the halls of government and over-represented in the halls of prison."

The one-industry town "has made great profits here but has not been shared," he said to the applauding group. "Men injured in the oilfields can't find work. Single mothers can't find work. You don't have a public hospital here. People are living in shacks. We see oil companies and ranchers taking advantage of undocumented workers.

"THIS OIL and gas...is God's oil and gas. The earth is the Lord's. All of God's children will benefit from the earth's resources," he said. Earlier, at the airport Jackson had talked of pulling out the oil and gas to share with the people and to do it in such a manner that it doesn't ruin the environment.

Explaining his trip to Mexico earlier this week, Jackson said he went because of his growing concern with that country's national debt crisis. As human needs are cut back, he said, there are planted the seeds of revolution.

He criticized Hobbs for not electing its city commissioners on a single member district basis. "They don't want you to go to school at-large. They don't want you to go to church at-large. They don't want you to marry at-large."

The one lesson to be learned, Jackson said, was that Jesus was born in a slum but he did not stay there. "Just because you're born in the slum doesn't mean the slum is born in you. You CAN rise above it.

"It's time for a new direction," said Jackson as several members of the audience shouted, "Oh, yea!"

HE CRITICIZED President Reagan's "unbalanced" budget and lashed out at "corporations who made a profit and paid no taxes. It's a reverse Robin Hood process. They take our jobs to the slave market in Taiwan."

He called for cutting the budget by eliminating MX missiles and B-1 bombers. Instead, the money should be used for building bridges, schools, mass transit systems and giving scholarships.

He supported amnesty for illegal aliens, saying that if these people left the country en masse the agriculture industry would collapse.

"I've been living for a long time on God's promises...leaning on the everlasting arms," Jackson continued. During the Great Flood God said he would send a sign when it was over, and that sign was a dove, said the candidate. Then came the sign of the rainbow, a combination of sunshine, rain, time and temperature, tears and joy, Jackson said in drawing a correlation to the symbol of his own campaign.

Sixteen years ago, Dr. Martin Luther King was crucified, said Jackson.

"Yes, he was," said a woman in the audience.

"Robert Kennedy was shot down in cold blood," said Jackson. "Did not our hearts bleed?"

"Yes!" shouted several in the crowd.

"If you hold on, joy is coming in the morning. The Lord is my light and my salvation," said Jackson, getting louder with each sentence and the crowd responding in a proportionately intense thundering roar.

"I WALK...through the valleys and shadows of death. Our time has come," he said, coming to a crescendo.

"Ah AM...somebody!" And the opening lines were again recited, the crown again repeating them.

The chanting continued on a frenzied note, erupting like a volcano and spewing forth.

"Hobbs has a special meaning in my heart," said Jackson. "You are SO alive. Don't you ever get hung up on the size of a town. Jesus was born in Bethlehem, a small town."

After touching their hearts and souls and minds, Jackson then walked to the edge of the stage and touched their hands as dozens surged past the line of Secret Service men for a handshake.

Then Jackson had vanished, but his spirit still hung in the air as the crowd slowly disbanded and walked out the front doors, some still chanting "I am somebody" and others raising their arms in Jesse Jackson fashion.

Hawaii may soon force land sales

The Associated Press

HONOLULU — Bolstered by a favorable U.S Supreme court decision, Hawaii will move quickly to force big landowners to sell property to thousands of renters even though some legal questions remain, a state official said.

The high court, in an 8-0 decision, said the state can use its powers of condemnation to break up a 200-year-old system of concentrated land ownership as long as the aim is a broad public benefit.

Still to be resolved is a case in which the Hawaii Supreme Court must determine what constitutes "public use" of land, a lawyer for one large landowner said.

But state Deputy Attorney General Michael Lilly said, "There is nothing" to preclude the filing of condemnations and pursuing the condemnations already filed. Everything can go forward."

Wednesday's decision settled a lawsuit brought in 1979 by the estate of Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop, challenging the state's Land Reform Act. The ruling could affect as much as 40 percent of the land on Oahu, the heavily populated island which includes Honolulu, Lilly said.

The Land Reform Act, passed by the state Legislature in 1967, contended that concentrated land ownership dating back to King Kamehameha 200 years ago was causing a critical shortage of residential land for sale to a growing population.

However, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last year ruled the legislation was unconstitutional because the property was to be transferred from one private owner to another, and not to be held for use by the general public.

Wednesday's Supreme Court ruling overturned that decision.

"In this case the Supreme Court said the state Legislature had a problem of landed monopolies in Hawaii and came up with a rational solution for the problem," Lilly said. "It's a classic state's rights case."

Panel warns against escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of counter-insurgency experts, headed by retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, has warned the Pentagon against escalating and Americanizing the war in El Salvador, sources familiar with their report say.

In a classified report submitted last week, the eight-member advisory group opposed sending sophisticated military hardware, aerial bombs, napalm or American combat troops, according to several sources who insisted on anonymity.

The group also said the U.S. government should avoid setting timetables for victory, recognizing that an "unconventional" war against a guerrilla army can last for decades. And the panel advised against use of covert operations that circumvent the law or could prove embarrassing if discovered, according to the sources.

While critical of a recent U.S. trend toward providing more sophisticated conventional weapons to the Salvadoran army, the group's recommendations were intended primarily as a warning against escalating the war into a Vietnam-style conflict involving U.S. combat forces, the sources said.

"There's always an underlying tendency to Americanize the conflict," said Sam Sarkesian, a political science professor at Loyola University in Chicago and a panel member. "All of us felt that the Duarte government (in El Salvador) is quite capable of doing what's necessary with our help if given enough time."

Pentagon officials declined to release the report or discuss its contents but confirmed they had talked with Singlaub and others recently about U.S. military aid to Central America. "The suggestions made by these individuals are being considered," said Col. Richard Lake, a Pentagon spokesman.

Singlaub, the panel's chairman, retired from the Army in 1978 after twice angering then-President Carter with public criticism of his military policies. Singlaub, in Paris for a reunion of veterans of the Office of Strategic Services, forerunner of today's CIA, could not be reached for comment.

Also on the panel, selected by the Defense Department, was retired Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale.

WITNESS

Not for about a half hour did there seem to be any organized effort to remove the more seriously injured from the building's interior.

Linda Frazier, wife of AP Central American Correspondent Joe Frazier and a reporter for the English-language weekly Tico Times in San Jose, was pulled from the house almost an hour after the explosion and laid on a blanket nearby.

Mortally wounded, she was to lie there another two hours before help came — a doctor and two nurses dressed in the green fatigues of Pastora's Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, known as ARDE.

She and all of the other wounded received an injection of antibiotic but little else.

At one point I crawled over to her, unable to walk because of shrapnel wounds in my right leg.

She took my hand and I could see she was talking to me but I could not hear her words because the explosion had left me temporarily deaf. I learned later that she had died.

Finally, Pastora's men began to move the wounded back downstream by boat, a journey that in my case took more than an hour before I was helped off the boat on a muddy flat.

Whether or not the wounded were taken to the same pickup point I do not know. I saw four others there when I arrived. A Red Cross team bandaged our wounds and we were loaded onto four-wheel drive vehicles for another hour and a half ride on muddy, bumpy dirt roads to the nearest major hospital some 120 miles away from La Penca.

Before being loaded into a camper truck for the ride to the hospital, one of the Costa Rican Red Cross workers stuck a note in my face that he had scrawled on a piece of scrap paper.

It said, "Good luck."

Correction

It was incorrectly stated in a headline in Tuesday's Business/Oil Section that MGF Oil had losses of $90 million in the first quarter.

The losses were actually for the year ending Dec. 31, 1983.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Have we made an error? Call us at 682-5311, Ext. 130, and a correction will be published.

PLEA

The Sosas are cousins to Sanchez. They also received 25-year sentences in a plea bargain agreement with prosecutors.

The trio was charged in the Nov. 29 death of Teresa Yharte, a 3-foot, 7-inch dwarf whose nude body was found lying near a small lake in an isolated field east of town on Dec. 2.

According to the state, she was kidnapped from a Lamesa Road bar and taken to the field, where she died of exposure after clothes were thrown in high reeds where she could not reach them.

All three defendants waived their right to appeal and could have been sentenced to a maximum of life in prison had the cases gone to jurors for sentencing, according to District Attorney Vern Martin.

State Sen. Lloyd Doggett said Wednesday in Bellmead that his opponent, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, is seeking to "hang a liberal label around my neck" by tying Doggett to U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy. State Agricultural Commissioner Jim Hightower stands behind Doggett.

Senate candidates square off in debate

EDINBURG (AP) — Democratic Senate hopefuls Lloyd Doggett and Kent Hance prepared for their final campaign jaunts following a debate during which they traded barbs and appealed for crucial last-minute support.

Like the run-off campaign, Wednesday night's debate was marked by each candidate charging the other with dirty politics and lying.

The debate was the first time the candidates had met face to face since the May 5 primary in which Hance beat Doggett by only 273 votes, one of the closest primary races in Texas history.

Both candidates have run intense, media-oriented campaigns to win a majority of the 500,000 to 800,000 Texans expected to go to the polls Saturday.

Doggett hammered away at Hance's voting record on traditional Democratic social programs, like Social Security and Medicaid. Hance attacked Doggett for being "too liberal for Texas" and playing dirty politics.

The only surprise of the debate came from Hance responding to Doggett's charge that he had voted to cut Social Security benefits to the elderly.

Hance read a letter from Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, congratulating the Lubbock congressman for being "solid as an oak" on a 1983 vote rescuing Social Security.

Doggett said Hance's voting "record speaks louder than any letter from a friend and colleague in Washington."

After the debate, a Doggett staff member said the letter dealt with only a single vote and not the pattern of anti-Social Security votes Doggett had been criticizing.

Hance opened the debate by thanking former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger for his endorsement earlier in the day.

Krueger, who won the Democratic nomination in 1978 before narrowly losing to incumbent Republican John Tower, came in third, 1,300 votes behind front-runner Hance in the primary.

Krueger had a great deal of support from Hispanic voters and his endorsement was considered a major coup by the Hance camp.

During the primary race, Doggett called Krueger spineless, carrying a plastic spine to news conferences as a gimmick to enhance his point.

In making his endorsement, Krueger said Hance displayed a higher moral character than Doggett during the campaign.

Doggett said he did not regret using the spine, adding that it is "essential the senator from the state of Texas have a backbone to stand up to selfish interests in Washington. That's what this contest is all about."

The winner Saturday will face U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, a former Democrat and the Republican nominee, in the November election. The Senate seat is being vacated by Tower, who retiring after 23 years.

Doggett, a 37-year-old Travis County lawyer who has served in the state senate 11 years, is known as an uncompromising, consumer advocate and champion of the State Sunset Act.

He has received support from organized labor, teachers, urban voters and ethnic minorities and has been particularly popular in the Rio Grande Valley and in his home district.

Hance, a 41-year-old attorney, garnered much of his support from voters in the state's rural areas, particularly in his West Texas congressional district and in East Texas.

Krueger endorses Hance in Democratic Senate race

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying Kent Hance has demonstrated more character than Lloyd Doggett, defeated Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Bob Krueger has endorsed Hance for the nomination.

Krueger, who was the subject of several bitter attacks from Doggett before the May 5 primary, also said he would campaign with Hance for Saturday's run-off election.

"I have made my decision on the basis of the character I think they have displayed during the course of the campaign. I think character ultimately is your largest and best test of how a person will perform in office," Krueger said Wednesday.

The Dallas Times Herald today quoted sources inside the Krueger campaign as saying a tacit agreement was reached with Hance for repaying Krueger's estimated campaign debt of $900,000.

The newspaper said reports of the tacit agreement began circulating in political circles after Krueger's chief financier, Jess Hay, consulted with Krueger over a weekend in Acapulco. Hay, who has switched his support to Hance, told the Times Herald he did discuss the possibility of endorsing Hance with Krueger, but insisted he did not pressure Krueger.

A Krueger confidant, who asked not to be named, told the newspaper it was common for defeated candidates, who later endorse an opponent, to get help with campaign debts.

"I can't imagine Kent not telling him he would help out," the Krueger supporter said. "But I can tell you, that's not the reason Krueger did it; it's all personal."

Hay, Hance and Krueger all denied that as a reward for the endorsement, Hance's financial supporters would help retire Krueger's massive debt.

Krueger said he never heard from Doggett after finishing third in the primary. At one point before that election, Doggett brandished a plastic spine and accused Krueger, a former congressman, of lacking the backbone to serve in the Senate.

While declining to specify that incident or any other as pivotal to his picking Hance, Krueger said Hance had "focused on issues, not personalities."

Informant in De Lorean case contradicts himself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's chief accuser, showing the strain of eight days on the witness stand, contradicted himself in mid-testimony by first saying he had threatened the automaker and then insisting minutes later, "I didn't threaten him."

James Timothy Hoffman, a convicted drug smuggler turned government informant, made the quick change in his testimony in De Lorean's drug trafficking trial Wednesday during intense cross-examination by defense attorney Howard Weitzman.

The two men traded barbs as Weitzman disputed Hoffman's version of how the automaker became involved in an alleged drug deal.

De Lorean, 59, is charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine in a bid to save his Northern Ireland car company. He faces up to 72 years in prison if convicted on all counts.

Weitzman pointed out for jurors Hoffman's warning to De Lorean in a Sept. 4, 1982, videotaped meeting that failure to come through on the proposed drug deal "had better have an excellent reason."

Hoffman said he was merely responding to De Lorean's claim that he had backing from the Irish Republican Army, adding that he took the claim as "an implied threat" and responded in kind.

"If this had been a true dope deal, and if someone had threatened me, I'd have threatened him right back," Hoffman said.

Asked if he believed De Lorean's claim of IRA ties, Hoffman smiled and said it was as unbelievable as De Lorean's alleged claim that he trafficked in drugs with "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson.

"It was the same type of statement as when he talked about Carson as when he talked abut the Irish," Hoffman said. "It was a futile threat or implied threat."

After a brief recess during which he conferred with prosecutors, Hoffman returned to the stand and said he never threatened De Lorean.

"Why do you believe John De Lorean told you he was getting his money from the IRA?" asked Weitzman.

"I have no idea," said Hoffman.

"Yet you say you threatened him after that statement," Weitzman said.

"I didn't say I threatened him," Hoffman growled. "He made what I construed to be a threat to me. My response was to say something rather than nothing."

"So you responded with a veiled threat?" asked Weitzman.

"Not a threat," Hoffman said. "Just a response to what he said."

The response, heard on a videotape played in court earlier, was Hoffman saying: "Any type of noncompliance to a program had better have an excellent reason and the remedy attached to it."

Seconds later, the tape shows, Hoffman offered De Lorean a chance to get out of the proposed drug deal, an offer the automaker rejected.

The defense contends De Lorean raised the specter of the IRA because he believed he was talking with drug dealers who had underworld connections. The men were actually government agents.

Mondale criticizes opponents on rules

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale is accusing his Democratic presidential rivals of trying to change party rules "so they can win even though they lost," while the Rev. Jesse Jackson is shunning a fund-raiser with the other candidates and saying talk of party unity is premature.

With the final primaries less than a week away, Jackson ended a New Mexico swing and joined his opponents, Mondale and Sen. Gary Hart, in California, where the major delegate prize awaits in Tuesday's voting.

Hart and Mondale planned to attend a Los Angeles fund-raiser to help pay off the debt of a dropout candidate, George McGovern, this evening. But Jackson declined to attend, saying he couldn't go along at a time when he is being denied delegates he deserves.

In Shiprock, N.M., Wednesday night, Jackson said it is "too premature for a celebration of party unity. I believe that real party unity can only be founded on party justice."

Jackson credited the former South Dakota senator with opening the party door to equal representation and other issues he supports. But he wrote to McGovern, "I am extremely disappointed that you call for party unity at a time when the issues you raised with your campaign are still completely unresolved."

In San Francisco, Mondale dismissed challenges by Hart and Jackson to party rules as efforts by the trailing candidates "to change the situation so they can win even though they lost."

Jackson has complained that party rules have denied him a share of delegates commensurate with the percentage of popular vote he has been winning. Hart has complained that Mondale received "tainted" delegates through victories in some state primaries in which he benefitted from the support of independent delegate committees that took political action committee contributions. Mondale has promised to pay back that money.

"When some one gets far enough ahead — and I'm 700 or so delegates ahead — the people who are clear behind want to change the situation so they can win even though they lost," Mondale said in dismissing such challenges.

Mondale continues to predict he will clinch the Democratic presidential nomination the day after Tuesday's primaries in California, New Jersey, New Mexico, South Dakota and West Virginia.

Mondale now has 1,682.05 delegates, with 1,967 needed for the nomination. Hart has 991.75 and Jackson 311.2.

Mondale's campaign manager, James A. Johnson, said Wednesday that Mondale will have more than 1,750 delegates in his corner by Monday and will "go over the top" in Tuesday's final round of primaries or by the following weekend, when several states finish selecting their delegations.

Mondale attacked his opponents for cutting deals in some states to pool their strength to gain more delegates and to deny them to Mondale.

The Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday that Jackson and Hart aides had struck deals in various states to pool their strength and thus increase the number of delegates they win in the later stages of delegate selection.

Hart held a celebrity fund-raiser in Los Angeles Wednesday night, where backers expected to raise $100,000 from entertainers there.

Hart courted nuclear freeze activists and environmentalists in New Jersey before heading West. He renewed his support for a mutual, verifiable, negotiated freeze on nuclear weapons.

Hart also rode a fishing boat a mile out to sea in rough weather and said New Jersey's "tourism and fishing are ... being undermined if not destroyed by the callous, indifferent dumping of toxic materials and hazardous materials and untreated sewage into the ocean."

He also unveiled new commercials designed to remind New Jersey voters that Mondale was part of a Carter administration that produced high interest rates and inflation.

Eleven youngsters remain in National Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven youngsters remained in the National Spelling Bee at midday today after a record field of entrants spelled or misspelled their way through 583 words in the search for the nation's champion young speller.

Thirty-seven participants dropped by the wayside in the fifth and sixth rounds of the two-day spelldown, dropping before such words as "nosocomial" and "epergne."

"Oh, my God," exclaimed Jennifer Langan, 13, of Kodiak, Alaska, when she heard the word "aralia" directed at her. She misspelled it.

At the start, a record 151 participants were in the competition.

Some contestants gasped, some clenched their fists, and one made the sign of the cross as they took their turns at the center of the stage before a crowded ballroom to hear what word they had drawn.

"I don't believe it," exclaimed Michele Ferus, 13, of Lowell, Mass., when the judges told her she had correctly spelled "guitguit," a tropical American bird.

"I think it's a very strong group. I think they've shown that they've studied very diligently," Leroy C. Dillard, one of the judges, told a reporter as the field narrowed late in the afternoon.

The audience applauded each contestant who went down, but gave a prolonged hand to Michelle N. Abadia, 12, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, who has been blind since before she entered first grade. She lasted through three rounds but fell to "offal" in the fourth round.

The contestants represent 147 newspaper sponsors around the country, with four newspapers sending two contestants.

Heavenly show

While any number of Midland youngsters may claim that Wednesday's darkening sky was special effects ordered up in honor of the final day of school this year, we all know better.

Regardless, the annular eclipse was well worth the wait anyway as all those who took a few minutes the view the not-too-frequent moon-eating-sun routine will attest. It's one of those seldomly seen heavenly occurrences that mankind has been seeing for centuries but which still attracts a crowd — although not striking fear in too many hearts.

That attraction can be attributed to the infrequency of eclipses. If you missed Wednesday's annular eclipse, for example, you'll be 28 years older next time you get the opportunity to see another.

Don't despair, though. The eclipse isn't the only heavenly show on tap for your entertainment in coming months. Halley's Comet is scheduled to make a return visit to this vicinity about 1985 and the scientific community and star-gazers the world over are readying for what is expected to be a close-encounter.

That spectacular comet, first sighted about 240 B.C., returns to this part of the solar system only once every 76 to 79 years. The next visit will provide the scientific community a golden opportunity to study the comet.

It'll also provide people in Midland and the world over a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to witness an aerial extravaganza at remarkably close range. But that's no reason to worry.

When the sun disappeared — in part — Wednesday it wasn't being consumed by a dragon and when Halley's Comet last passed near the earth — in May of 1910 — it was still 14 million miles away, scientists say.

Relax and enjoy the heavenly show!

Onward and upward

This commencement season provides excellent opportunites for graduation speakers to tell capped and gowned collegians what to expect in the future.

It happened at New York's Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute the other day. The speaker was Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, a member of the United States Air Force and former director of the NASA space-shuttle program. He said:

"I believe that space shuttles will be coming in daily from many countries around the world. We will definitely have an international space station that will start small in the early '90s ...

"We will most likely have a semi-permanent base on the moon .... Perhaps we will be assembling a manned expedition to Mars."

Then General Abrahamson left the Rensselaer graduates with the following intriguing thought:

"And if you think about it very carefully, perhaps in this graduating class we have either the father or mother of the first Martian."

Another View:

Puffin' smoke junkies

Once again, in his annual report, the surgeon general of the United States has reminded Americans that smoking is their most self-destructive practice. Each year smoking-related coronary disease, cancer and obstructive lung diseases take more than 350,000 lives. This annual toll exceeds the total number of American battle deaths in all of World War II. Smoking-related diseases claim eight times as many lives each year as do auto accidents. The economic costs of smoking, in health expenses and lost productivity, have been calculated at $40 billion a year. The human costs, in premature deaths and disabilities, cannot be measured.

It seems to us beyond argument that everything possible ought to be done to discourage smoking. Life doesn't always provide clear-cut choices. The decision not to start smoking or to stop presents a clear choice. Smoking not only is harmful to smokers but, as is now known, it can affect those around them as well. Smoking is one of those rare self-chosen activities that are utterly contrary to self-interest. The only pitiable reward that smokers can expect is the transient and constantly recurring one that comes from feeding their addiction once it develops. Junkies have the same experience.

For all this — and the surgeon general's office has been telling us officially for 20 years now how dangerous smoking is — tens of millions continue to smoke, and millions more start each year. It's true that many smokers have been able to quit, and only those who have tried and failed to match their example can appreciate how much credit is due them for that. Quitting is possible, though it is also painfully hard. All the more reason, then, why particular emphasis has to be put on dissuading people from ever starting to smoke in the first place.

That is no easy thing, as experience has shown. Many young people, the particular targets of the phony-glamour images so favored in tobacco advertising, are uninformed or uncaring about the real nature of the long-term health risks associated with smoking. The tougher health warnings that Congress wants to put on cigarette packages aren't likely to help much. People don't buy cigarettes to read warnings. They buy them to satisfy an addiction. Maybe it's time to try something a little more drastic, and perhaps a lot more effective.

Explicitness, in the name of realism, is culturally in vogue these days. Maybe a much more explicit education campaign is needed now to show the terrible realism of what smoking can do to the human body. Maybe, in classrooms and on television, the diseases that smoking can lead to ought to be depicted in full color and in all their ravaging detail. No doubt a lot of people would be repelled by what they saw. So they should be. Smokers and potential smokers ought to be made graphically aware that there's more to the tobacco habit than the sexy girl in the bathing suit or the manly fellow on the horse would have them think. There's disease and death, too, and the better that's understood the better off people will be.

Radiation leaks killing Russians

WASHINGTON — Aside from the residents of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the Russians have been subjected to more nuclear radiation than any people on earth — because of their government's callous disregard of safety procedures.

Jack Anderson

Intelligence sources say that thousands of Soviet citizens have died as the result of accidents on nuclear submarines and at Soviet nuclear power plants and weapons complexes. Many more have been exposed to heavy doses of radiation because of irresponsible nuclear waste-disposal methods.

The appalling story of the irradiated Russians has leaked out only in bits and pieces. But much of it is contained in secret and top-secret CIA and Pentagon documents seen by my associate Dale Van Atta.

For instance, one report mentions many "hairless" sailors in Soviet veterans' homes, suggesting that they had been overexposed to radiation from faulty nuclear reactors on submarines. Another report cites a group of 200 political prisoners suffering from radiation sickness after cleaning nuclear subs at a base near Paldiski, Estonia.

There have been at least three major accidents involving Soviet nuclear subs. The latest occurred when one sank in the northern Pacific with most of its 90-man crew aboard. In 1980, a Soviet sub caught fire about 60 miles off Okinawa and at least nine crewmen died. The bodies were laid out on the deck by men wearing strange, ankle-length white cloaks. Another Soviet sub sank off Britain in 1970.

On land, the Soviet nuclear power industry is "plagued with manufacturing deficiencies and poor workmanship," according to a secret CIA report. It said the Soviets often cut corners on safety "to eliminate delays in their trouble-plagued nuclear program."

Intelligence reports suggest that there may have been nearly a dozen plant shutdowns. A reactor at Rovno in the Ukraine is known to have gone "critical" in December 1981, while one at Shevchenko was shut down after faults developed in pipes and turbines.

A Soviet official confided to a visiting congressman that at least two other "incidents" had occurred — one was the rupture of a coolant line and the other an explosion that spread radioactive steam outside the power plant.

The CIA has catalogued at least three major nuclear accidents in the Soviet Union since the 1950s. One happened in 1960 or 1961, another in the early 1970s.

But the worst occurred in the winter of 1957-58 near Kasli, Chelyabinsk province, in the Urals. A chemical explosion in tanks of radioactive wastes released Strontium 90 and other dangerous elements. The resulting radioactivity was about 1,000 times higher than bomb fallout.

The accident contaminated several hundred square miles, forcing the evacuation of 30 villages. It is today probably the most radioactive spot on earth. Three lakes, one 20 square kilometers (about 12.4 square miles) in size, were poisoned for 300 years. The Soviets tried to reduce the spread of contaminated water with a system of dams and canals.

Hundreds of Russians are believed to have perished in the explosion; many others died from long-term effects. The victims included "death squads" of prisoners sent into the area on futile cleanup missions in the early 1960s. The Soviets finally gave up, razed the villages and now use the area to train soldiers for nuclear war.

Soviet disposal methods for nuclear wastes often look good on paper, but apparently are carelessly followed. And some of their methods — injecting waste into water-bearing geologic strata deep underground, and solidifying it into blocks stored in bunkers — are frowned on by U.S. safety experts.

Even more alarming is the Soviet propensity to simply classify inadequately treated low-level nuclear waste as "non-radioactive" and dump it into the nearest river. This is what's done with waste from the Moscow nuclear power plant on the Moscow River.

CITIZENS WATCH: Five months ago, the Environmental Protection Agency congratulated itself on winning a consent decree covering 12 major corporations that had been dumping toxic wastes at the Petro Processors site on the Mississippi River near Baton Rouge, La. The companies, including Shell, Exxon, Dow, U.S. Steel and Uniroyal, agreed to spend up to $60 million to clean up what the EPA called an "imminent and substantial endangerment to health and the environment."

But Dave Ewell, whose property adjoins the dump, has no reason to celebrate. The Mississippi is flooding again, as usual, and is covering the polluted land. "That terrible looking water is going to wash right into the swamp and down the river," Ewell told my reporter Pamela Wilson.

He knows from bitter experience. Ewell's property was left covered with poisonous chemical sludge after a flood in 1969. Plants and wildlife died, as did 100 head of cattle. He sued, but settled for only $30,000 — not even enough to cover his legal costs. Ewell's property, which was once a hunting and fishing paradise, is now posted with skull-and-crossbone signs because of the polluted soil.

One thing that bothers Ewell, Louisiana officials and environmentalists about the recent consent decree: While it sets deadlines for studying the problem, it sets no date by which the actual cleanup must begin. Furthermore, the decree requires removal of "all visible waste plus 1 foot of soil" — even though a scientific study showed the soil to be polluted 50 feet down.

GEORGE F. WILL

'Indy' Jones goes a step too far

WASHINGTON — I well remember my first adventure with Indy. Indiana Jones, that is. I am, I feel, on a first-name basis with him, we have been through so much together.

George F. Will

Our first adventure was three summers ago and I had a seven-year-old on my lap. I was ready to steady and comfort him during the assault of what I had been warned were jolting scenes in "Raiders of the Lost Ark," such as the Early-scene where gobs of tarantulas fall on Indy's back. That scene even though anticipated, was a turn-the-bones-to-jelly shocker, for father. The seven-year-old sighed contentedly and said in the measured cadence of that season's sophistication: "Ex-cel-lent!"

Parents are pleased to believe, against all evidence, that their children's souls are sensitive flowers — orchids, not marigolds — and that, therefore, care must be taken lest the little creatures be traumatized by exposure to this or that cultural excess. Actually, they are more durable — perhaps "impervious" is a better word — than we think. But there are limits to what they should experience, and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" oversteps those limits.

I have now had my second adventure with Indy, the Archaeologist with the bull whip and the thirst for excitement. "Raiders" are stimulating enough, thank you, with pits of vipers, villains diced by airpLane propellers, faces melting and corpses perforated by arrows, like San Sabastian. But "The Temple of Doom" sets a standard for violent action at which subsequent movies will shoot, in vain, I hope.

A football game is approximately 9 minutes of action and a couple of hours of standing around and sorting things out. This movie is about 9 minutes of relative calm, and 109 minutes of violent action punctuated by intervals of mere repulsiveness.

I saw it with an exacting Critic, a 12-year-old who was impatient for the snakes to slither on stage, the snake motif being strong in this genre. He was soon satisfied because the eating of live little snakes is part of a meal that includes beetles, eyeball soup and chilled monkey's brains served from staring skulls. That meal was comic relief from giant roaches and other creepy crawly things, and from children-flogging sadists who are led by a live-wire who with his bare hands plucks the hearts from the chests of victims.

The frolicsome movie proceeds without undue expenditure of nuance, which is fine, but suddenly it becomes ugly. There is salacious cruelty in the torture scene where a fellow is roasted alive. But then, that is sort of the way it is apt to be with your basic torture scene.

The flogging, roasting, and heart-plucking are not suitable for children. The movie concedes as much by warning that some scenes may be too "intense" for young children. The adjective "intense" is the sort of mushy word that committees settle on when they are groping for a way to circle the truth without barging into it.

The truth is that this movie as fare for children, is unsuitable, and as a cultural symptom is depressing. It is not just another example of the inexorable tendency toward excess, like half-time shows at Super Bowls. It is an example of the upward ratchet effect of shocking extremism in popular entertainment. This march toward the shocking is producing a generation that would yawn through the parting of the Red Sea. We who, when children, considered Hopalong Cassidy and Randolph Scott the last words in excitement now know better, but we doubt that our children are more fortunate.

The two persons responsible for "Temple of Doom," Steven Spielberg and George Lucas, are commercial geniuses. The noun is right but it is severely limited and devalued by the adjective, which also is right. Their obsession with juvenile obsessions (repulsive creatures and foods) may be evidence of their arrested development, which is their problem. But the sensory blitzkrieg they have produced to coin money is apt to stunt the imaginations of children, and that is our problem. This movie is perfectly made for perfectly passive children — for children raised on electronic images rather than on reading, which requires imaginative involvement.

Movies can engage the imagination but doing so requires art. And whatever else art involves, it involves proportionality and subtlety — the ability to approach the edge of excess without falling in. This movie leaps in exuberantly, and that is why there may not be a third Indy epic. What is left to happen to him? If the future takes such revenge for today's excess, well, excellent.

Failed bank no robber's dream!

It was the legendary Willie Sutton who, when asked why he robbed banks, said, "That's where the the money is."

Willie's reason may no longer be valid. Recently a well-dressed robber walked into the Heritage Bank in Anaheim, Calif., and handed a note to a woman supervisor which read, "Give me all your money or I'll start shooting."

Art Buchwald

The supervisor indignantly informed the robber that Heritage had no money and had gone bankrupt in March. The man walked out in disgust.

What the newspaper story could not report was what happened when the robber got in his getaway car and drove off.

"So how much did you get?" his partner asked.

"Nothing," was the reply. "They have no money."

"What do you mean they have no money? All banks have money. The Heritage Bank is the largest one in Orange County."

"What are you yelling at me for? They're insolvent. The depositors have been paid off and the Feds are now liquidating the place."

"Why didn't you know that when you decided to pull the heist in the first place?"

"I cased the joint for three days. The reason I picked it was there weren't any guards around. I thought they were just being careless. It turned out there was nothing to guard. I should have been suspicious when nobody bothered to lock the doors at night."

"But how can a bank go busted?"

"I guess they made a lot of bad loans and couldn't collect them. It's going on all over the country. If it's a big bank like Chicago Continental the Feds get nervous and put more money in, so there won't be a run on it. But in this case they decided to let it go out of business. Don't drive so fast. Nobody is chasing us."

"Why should they chase us? We came away dry."

"Don't get sore at me. It isn't my fault the bank screwed up. I wasn't the only one in there that didn't know they were out of money. Three people were trying to get loans, and one lady wanted to know what happened to an electric blanket they promised her when she opened her account."

"Banks should put signs up when they run out of funds. We could have been killed or gotten 20 years for trying to stick up a place that went under because of bad management."

"You just went through a red light."

"I always go through red lights after a bank robbery."

"But we didn't rob the bank. Technically we have nothing to fear. If they didn't have money it's their fault, not ours. I wouldn't be surprised if they failed to report it. The lady I gave the note to wasn't even frightened. She was just mad I hadn't read the papers."

"You didn't by chance ask her what bank in the neighborhood might have some money in it, did you?"

"She was so rude to me, I just walked out. If she was typical of all the Heritage Bank employees it's no wonder they went belly up."

"So what do we do now?"

"I don't know. I guess we're going to have to read the newspapers more closely and find out which banks are still in business and which ones are in liquidation."

"Do you still have the note you gave her?"

"Yeh, she handed it back to me and told me not to come in again. I assured her she had nothing to worry about on that score. I also told her I was going to pass the word to all my friends about robbing Heritage branches."

"What are you doing now?"

"I'm rewriting the note. I'm going to say, 'If by any chance you have any money in the bank, give it to me or I will start shooting. Otherwise, disregard this message.'"

Representative suing senator for alleged affair with husband

CUMBERLAND, R.I. (AP) — One neighbor calls it "Peyton Place Revisited."

State Rep. Theresa J. Melvin and state Sen. Rita K. Misek used to be neighbors in this small town. Several hundred feet of grass separated the Melvins' back yard from Mrs. Misek's home.

Mrs. Melvin claims her husband, James, made that short trip many times and even spent the night at Mrs. Misek's house. And she's suing Mrs. Misek, a widow, for $2 million for the damage the alleged affair has caused her.

Coincidentally, the attorney representing Mrs. Misek was found guilty on May 8 of having an affair with a former friend's wife and was ordered to pay the friend $840,000. The judgment against lawyer Henry J. Blais III was the largest alienation of affection award ever in Rhode Island.

Walter Pulawski, a former Cumberland resident, brought the suit against Blais, who is now married to Pulawski's former wife.

The publicity generated by the two suits made the suburban town of 27,000 sound like the home of vindictive spouses, a resident of Mrs. Melvin's middle-class neighborhood said.

Both suits were filed under Rhode Island's alienation of affection law, which allows a husband or wife to sue someone who allegedly ruined the marriage by winning the love of the other mate.

Several dozen similar suits were filed in Rhode Island in 1983, court officials said. Rhode Island is one of nine states that still have alienation of affection laws, which originated in English common law.

Blais did not return a reporter's phone call and a secretary said he would not comment on Mrs. Melvin's case. Neither Mrs. Misek, 39, nor Mrs. Melvin, 37, returned a reporter's calls; Melvin, 38, said he would not comment on the suit.

Gerald C. DeMaria, Mrs. Melvin's lawyer, said the suit involves "a case where a woman's husband was taken away from her. People can't be fooling around. This is a very close, family-oriented, religious state."

Mrs. Melvin's Superior Court suit, filed Jan. 24, claims that Mrs. Misek sent Melvin, a tire dealer, notes saying things such as: "Darling, I love you and miss you ... . I can't think of one place, one activity, one day that I don't want to be with you. I'm not sure how I will ever allow you to go to work."

The suit also claims that Melvin had sex with Mrs. Misek in Mrs. Misek's house. Mrs. Misek has since moved to another home in Cumberland.

Mrs. Melvin entered her recollections about the alleged affair in court documents:

"Dec 18, 1983: I found a receipt from 'Frederick's of Hollywood.'

"Dec 24, 1983: I confronted Jim about the gift for Rita and he said he was still in contact with her."

The complaint says Mrs. Misek "has induced and unlawfully enticed" Melvin "to effectively, emotionally, abandon his wife." Mrs. Melvin, it states, "has suffered humiliation within her community."

On Dec. 29, Mrs. Melvin filed for divorce on grounds of adultery, gross misbehavior, extreme cruelty and irreconcilable differences.

In a Jan. 18 reply to the divorce filing, her husband admitted there were irreconcilable differences but denied the other allegations.

The Melvins have a 15-year-old daughter and a 16-year-old son. Mrs. Misek, who was widowed about two years ago, has a 10-year-old son.

On Feb. 17, Mrs. Misek filed with the court a denial of the alienation of affection charge but neither denied nor admited having sexual relations with Melvin. She said she would leave it to Mrs. Melvin to prove the specifics.

A pre-trial hearing is scheduled June 14.

The women, both Republicans, are in their first terms in the Legislature.

John A. Holmes Jr., chairman of the state's small Republican party, said the case is a private matter and has not been a political issue.

Florida killer wins reprieve

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — A federal appeal court granted a reprieve to convicted killer Alvin Bernard Ford just 12 hours before he was scheduled to die today in Florida's electric chair for the murder of a policeman.

But the state of Florida is contesting the stay of execution, ordered by a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Ford, 30, had been scheduled to die at 7 a.m. today for the July 21, 1974, slaying of Fort Lauderdale policeman Dimitri Walter Ilyankoff, gunned down while answering a robbery call at a restaurant.

The death warrant, the second for Ford signed by Gov. Bob Graham, expires at noon Friday. Ford's first death warrant was blocked by the Atlanta appeals court in December 1981, just 13 hours before he was to die in the electric chair.

Russell Bohn, an assistant attorney general in West Palm Beach, said the state had filed a challenge to the stay with the U.S. Supreme Court in advance of the appeal court's latest decision.

The appeals court granted the stay of execution shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Ford waited quietly in his "death watch" cell only 50 steps from the electric chair Wednesday night and learned of the stay in a telephone call from one of his attorneys.

The Atlanta court's majority opinion cited two grounds for staying the execution — Ford's insanity clam and his challenge to the constitutionality of the Florida death penalty law.

The court said Ford was entitled to a hearing to determine whether he is insane. Defense lawyers claim the black inmate has delusions that the Ku Klux Klan infiltrated the guard corps at Florida State Prison and tortured people in his cell to drive him crazy.

The court opinion also said Ford should have a chance to present his challenge to the Florida death penalty law. Ford contends the law is applied arbitrarily and discriminatorily on the basis of race and other factors.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to make end user common line charges associated with Centrex CO service equal to those to be billed to Private Branch Exchange service. The Commission has suspended the proposed tariff until October 1, 1984, or before, and assigned the matter to Docket No. 5686.

The equalization of end user common line charges for Centrex CO service is to be accomplished by a reduction in Centrex service charges. The net effect of the Centrex service charge adjustment and an interstate end user common line charge will be an increase in total billing.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Kuwait wants to buy Stingers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kuwait is seeking to buy Stinger anti-aircraft missiles from the United States as protection from attacks on Persian Gulf oil shipments, administration sources say.

The oil-rich Persian Gulf nation wants the short-range missiles, 400 of which already have been sent to Saudi Arabia, for defense against attacks generated by the Iran-Iraq war, the sources said Wednesday.

The sources, speaking on the condition that they not be identified, said the request was made by Kuwait on an informal basis. But they said they were unsure if a formal request also had been made.

A Defense Department spokeswoman acknowledged early today that "we are reviewing Kuwait's defensive requirements with them, but we are not proceeding with any other Stinger sale in the region at this time."

The hand-held missiles have a range of three miles and can be fired at low-flying warplanes. The Saudis are using the Stingers at their main oil depot of Ras Tanura, near Gulf tankers and around royal palaces, U.S. officials said.

In invoking emergency powers to send the Stingers to Saudi Arabia, President Reagan also despatched a KC-10 tanker plane for refueling the Saudi air force and American-operated AWACS radar planes in the oil kingdom.

Meanwhile, The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the Saudis also are buying from the United States more than 1,000 sophisticated A9L air-to-air missiles that allow an F-15 to fire head-on at an enemy plane and not have to maneuver behind it to aim a heat-seeking missile at its exhaust.

Duarte will name cabinet

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte has split the Defense Ministry into two separate departments as part of an effort to curb human rights abuses, officials of his Christian Democrat Party said.

Party officials also said Wednesday that Duarte had named most of the members of his Cabinet, choosing politicians from his own party, political independents and members of the moderate Democratic Action Party. The Cabinet is to be announced officially today and sworn in Friday.

Meanwhile, El Salvador's Communist Party claimed Wednesday it has assumed a bigger role in the 4½-year guerrilla was againt the U.S.-backed government.

Duarte, elected in the May 6 runoff election over ultra-rightist Roberto d'Aubuisson, is to be inaugurated Friday. U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz is scheduled to attend the ceremony.

Two top Christian Democratic officials and another authoritative source, who did not want to be identified for security reasons, said the Defense Ministry would be divided into one agency for defense and the other for security.

Defense Minister Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova will remain in his post as chief of both divisions.The defense branch will be headed by Gen. Rafael Flores Lima, now deputy defense minister. Heading the security branch will be Col. Carlos Reynaldo Lopez Nuila, now National Police director.

Salvador's three main security forces — the National Police, Treasury Police and National Guard — would apparently come under jurisdiction of the new security department, along with civil defense units. The security forces and civil defense units have been blamed for most of the human rights abuses committed by government forces.

In the past, the jurisdiction of the three separate security forces has been unclear, and the forces have in practice often been their own masters.

"The idea of this is to tighten the reins," the party source said.

Sources and party officials said those named for the Cabinet were a leader of the Democratic Action Party, Ricardo Gonzalez Camacho, as economics minister; lawyer Francisco Cardona as justice minister; Jorge Eduardo Tenorio, a political independent close to the military, as foreign minister; and Foreign Minister Fidel Chavez Mena as planning minister.

The statement from the Communist Party's central committee, read over the clandestine rebel Radio Farabundo Marti, said the Communist Party "has strengthened its ties to the popular cause and has been profoundly transformed" by the guerrilla war against government forces.

U.S. diplomats, who spoke on condition they not be named, agreed with that analysis. They said the Communist Party's armed wing, the Liberation Armed Forces, appeared to have increased its influence in the guerrilla front.

The diplomats said the Liberation Armed Forces are the fourth-largest of the five guerrilla organizations that make up the FMLN, but their leaders have the best ties with the Soviet Union and Cuba. Reagan administration officials claim the Soviets and Cuba secretly provide the guerrillas with weapons and training.

On the war front Wednesday, about 1,000 soldiers continued sweeping a large area east of the capital for guerrillas after a major clash between army patrols and rebels Tuesday in which eight troopers were killed, a military source said.

Shultz will be attending Duarte inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz is flying to El Salvador this afternoon to attend the inauguration Friday of President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Shultz's presence at the inaugural is seen as another demonstation of the importance the United States attaches to El Salvador's democratic development.

Shultz is expected to meet with other heads of visiting delegations during his visit, which is scheduled to last about 20 hours.

IOC makes last-minute bid

Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, still hoping to persuade the Soviets to send a team to the Los Angeles Games, apparently will have to make his last-minute plea to a deputy premier.

Samaranch had hoped to meet today with Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko, but a Soviet official said the Olympic delegation will be received by Nikolai Talyzin, one of 11 deputy premiers.

Samaranch was carrying a personal letter from himself and the IOC to the Soviet leaders in hopes of changing their minds about their boycott of the Games. He said, contrary to an earlier report, that he was presenting no new proposals.

There was not even a hint of optimism as he arrived in Moscow Wednesday.

"We promised to fight until the last minute and for this reason I am in Moscow," Samaranch said. "You know very well that it is very difficult, but we have to try."

Samaranch was accompanied by Mario Vasquez Rana, president of the Association of National Olympic Committees, IOC director Monique Berlioux and Primo Nebiolo of Italy, president of the Association of Olympic Summer Sports Federations, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Saturday is the deadline for entering the Games, which begin on July 28. Samaranch has said, though, the deadline is flexible as far as the Soviets are concerned.

"If the Soviets ask for an extension of the deadline, the answer will be yes," said Samaranch, no stranger to diplomacy in Moscow, where he has served as Spain's ambassador.

The number of nations in the Soviet-led boycott remains at 12, but Olympic officials have said that as many as 25 could be on the list by Saturday.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, has said that 132 nations have given written assurance they intend to take part in the Summer Games.The record is 122, set at the 1972 Summer Games in Munich, West Germany.

In its May 8 announcement that Soviet athletes would not participate, the Soviet Olympic Committee cited alleged U.S. violations of the Olympic charter and allegedly inadequate security arrangements.

The Soviets were joined in their withdrawal by Afghanistan, Bulgaria, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Laos, Mongolia, Poland, South Yemen and Vietnam. Iran said earlier that it would not send a team.

Celtics planning to get physical

NBA Finals

BOSTON (AP) — It's only the second game of a possible seven-game series, but Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley says the Boston Celtics "have to win" tonight and will use more physical contact to accomplish it.

"They're sending us a very subtle message" in their comments to reporters, Riley said Wednesday. "They're going to bump us and be more physical, and I hope our players are listening because that's the approach I think they're going to take."

After the Lakers won Sunday's first game of the National Basketball Association championship series, 115-109, Boston's Cedric Maxwell said, "We played L.A. with kid gloves. We did not really touch them or bump them early in the game. We let them do what they wanted."

Facing the prospect of a more brutal battle tonight, Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said Wednesday, "I hope they're not more physical. They'll probably bring brass knuckles if they are.

"Sunday's game was very physical. I think they want to make it count for something. We were able to deal with it except for brief stretches when they got a lot of offensive rebounds."

The Lakers rode their fast break to a 28-10 lead in the first eight minutes. Boston never caught up, although it outscored the Lakers 99-87 the rest of the game.

To win, the Celtics say, they must improve their outside shooting to keep Los Angeles from double-teaming their big men and must retreat quickly on defense to stop the Lakers from scoring easy baskets off the fast break.

"I haven't seen a fast break this good in years and years. They're the best I've seen in the last 10 or 15 years," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones.

"It's a necessity that we win," Maxwell said. "To be down 2-0 going to Los Angeles, we really don't want to do that . . . We won't play any bigger games this season except maybe the final one."

Only seven times in NBA history has a team lost its first two playoff games at home. And only once has that team come back to win the series. That was Los Angeles over San Francisco in the Western Division semifinals in 1969. In the championship series that year, Boston beat the Lakers, 4-3, in their most recent playoff meeting.

The home court "is a factor. I don't think it's a big factor but it's a factor," said Abdul-Jabbar. "It can be worth a couple of points at crucial times."

The Lakers, who had the NBA's 13th best home record during the regular season, will be hosts for Games 3 and 4 Sunday and Wednesday. Boston's 29-12 road record was the league's best.

The Celtics were tied for the league lead in home record at 33-8 and had won 15 games in a row here before the Lakers handed them on Sunday their first loss at home since March 23.

Riley said Los Angeles would continue to concentrate on Boston's strong frontline of Robert Parish, Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and Maxwell.

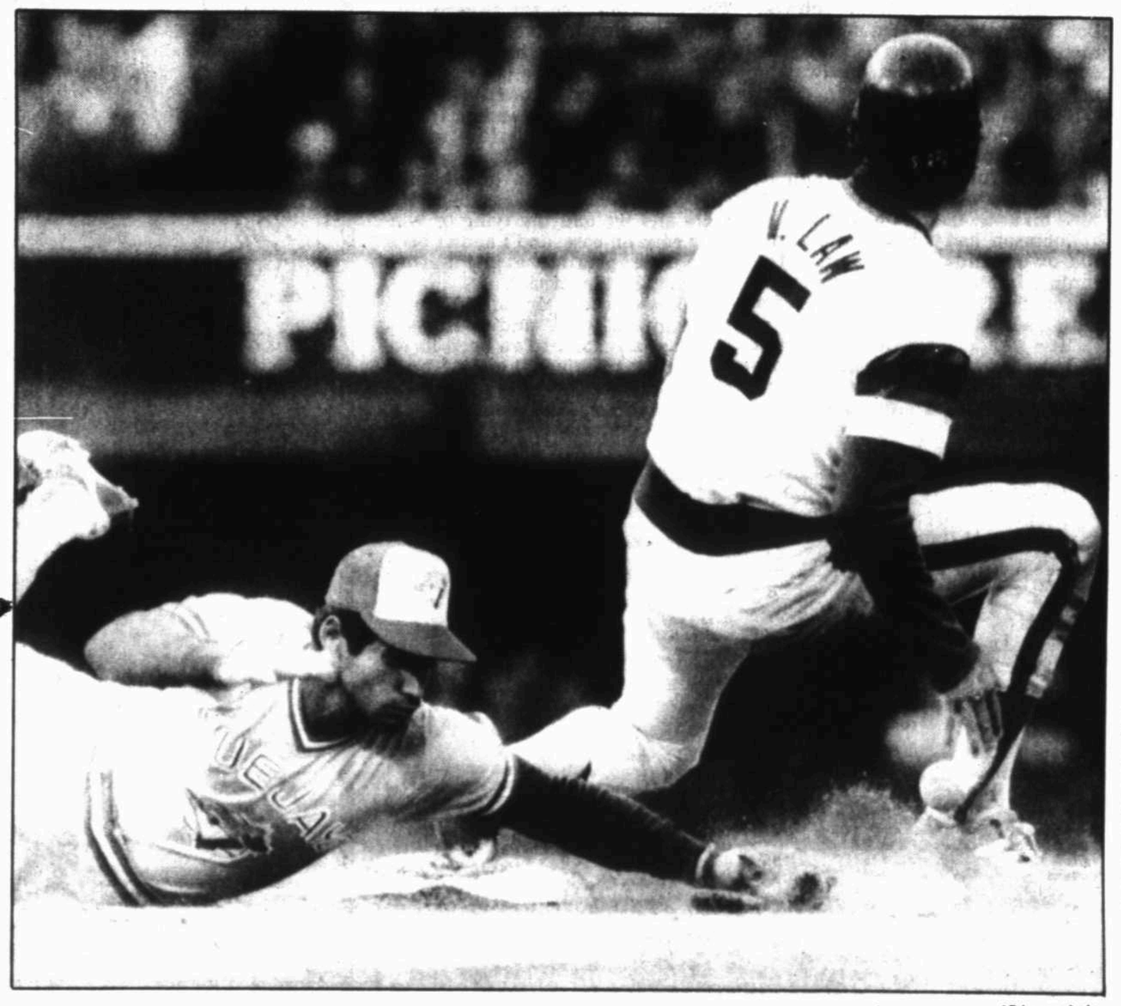

"We have to take care of that priority," he said. "We're going to contest inside and run down the outside."

The most important factor for the Celtics is "coming out strong and not being flat" as they were in the opener, Parish said.

Boston also hopes to contain Abdul-Jabbar, who had 32 points in the opener, and Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had 18 points and 10 assists.

"They'll probably double-team me and not give me the room to maneuver," said the Laker center, the NBA's all-time leading scorer.

On Sunday, the Celtics used 6-foot-2 Gerald Henderson instead of the 6-4 Dennis Johnson to guard 6-9 Johnson. Would Jones change that tonight?

Chisox owner gets USFL team

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie Einhorn, the new owner of the United States Football League's newest franchise, calls himself "a piker in a league that has some heavy, heavy hitters" as owners.

But he says he hopes to be at the forefront of sustaining the credibility the league has built since it began less than two years ago — and plans to start in Chicago.

Einhorn, president and co-owner of professional baseball's Chicago White Sox, said Wednesday he was awarded a new USFL franchise for Chicago that will "rise from the ashes" of the current Blitz team, which he described as a blight on the league and the city's sports community.

"It's been an embarrassment to the league because of its lack of credibility" Einhorn said of the Blitz. "But the league itself is good. And the football is very good."

At a news conference, Einhorn said he owns 100 percent of the new club. He added that he will seek investors, but one of them will not be White Sox co-owner Jerry Reinsdorf, who was involved with Einhorn in early discussions with the league about a new Chicago franchise. Reinsdorf bowed out of the deal for personal and business reasons.

"I will act as chairman of the board, but there will be a full-time president and separate staff," Einhorn said, emphasizing that the new USFL club will take a new nickname along with its new image.

"Come July 1, the old Blitz will be gone," Einhorn said.

Drillers sweep Cubs

From Staff and Wire Reports

TULSA, Okla.— The Midland Cubs apparently had their offense washed away with the rain that plagued Tulsa early this week. The Cubs were swept by the Drillers in a doubleheader for the second consecutive evening. Monday, Midland split another twinbill.

Midland lost the opener 2-1 in the bottom of the seventh, with Daryl Banks taking the loss for the Cubs. Tulsa bombed Midland 9-1 in the nightcap.

The Drillers' Randy Asadoor singled and advanced to third when Paul Noce threw the ball away in a pickoff attempt. Asadoor scored the winning run of the opener on a single by Oscar Mejia.

Bob Sebra, 4-3, allowed four hits, struck out 10 and walked one for Tulsa.

Ojeda, Stieb do numbers on foes

American League

By The Associated Press

Bobby Ojeda had Minnesota's number. Dave Stieb has Chicago's.

Ojeda, pitching in Boston's cozy Fenway Park, baffled Minnesota 2-0 with a seven-hitter Wednesday night while Stieb, hurling Toronto, ran his lifetime record against the White Sox to 9-3 as the Blue Jays held on for a 2-1 victory.

Ojeda needed only 102 pitches and 119 minutes to record his league-leading third shutout of the season. That, coupled with Bruce Hurt's 6-0 silencing of Kansas City (there were a couple of rainouts between the two) provided Fenway Park with its first successive shutouts since Sept. 29-30, 1916, when Babe Ruth and Dutch Leonard blanked the Yankees.

"It's among his best games," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said. "I've been after him to throw strikes because with his stuff he can get any hitter out. He said he would try — and he did."

The Twins nicked Ojeda for two hits in each of the first two innings before he settled down. "I was worried a little when they got those dinky hits, but Ojeda came through," Houk said.

"It was a fun night," the pitcher added. "We moved the ball around, changed our attack, started throwing different pitches, and it all worked."

Jim Rice drove in both runs, with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and his seventh homer of the year — and first in Boston — in the seventh.

"Today, I came out early and, with the field covered, I went to the batting cage under the centerfield bleachers about 3 o'clock," said Rice, who has been battling a slump. "I hit for about an hour and a half, just trying to relax and concentrate. Now I just hope this is the start of something for me."

Blue Jays 2, White Sox 1

"Every pitcher has a team he pitches well against. This is mine," Stieb said of the White Sox.

He came within two outs of a complete game before a walk and Ron Kittle's double brought Manager Bobby Cox to the mound. "He told me I'd thrown 150 pitches. That was enough," Stieb said.

Jimmy Key took over and gave up an RBI grounder to Marc Hill before nailing down his fourth save and Stieb's seventh win in eight decisions.

Buck Martinez and Alfredo Griffin had run-scoring singles as Toronto won for the eighth time in nine game. It also was the Blue Jays' 18th consecutive one-run victory.

"Our pitching's been good enough to keep us in the games," Cox said of all those one-run decisions. "We have some speed and some power and we can manufacture runs in different ways. We lost our first three (one-run games) . . . I just don't know how to explain it beyond that."

Rangers 7, Royals 3

Mickey Rivers added an unaccustomed long ball to his short game to lead Texas past the visiting Royals. In the third inning, he slugged a two-run homer, his first of the season to go with one each of the past two years. And his bunt single loaded the bases in the fifth to trigger a three-run burst.

"You never can tell about me. I might get 20 home runs this season," said Rivers, whose homer gave Texas a lead it never relinquished. "It feels good to hit a home run in that situation," he added. "I knew we needed two, so I didn't take any chances."

Yankees 10, Angels 1

The Yankees beat California for the first time in six games this year, pounding rookie Ron Romanick and Jim Slaton for 15 hits. Romanick blanked Ron Guidry and the Yanks 3-0 on three hits 10 days ago.

Orioles 8, Mariners 2

Eddie Murray sparked a four-run fourth inning in Seattle with a three-run homer, his 10th homer of the year, and Mike Boddicker pitched a four-hitter for his fourth complete game as the Orioles won their fifth in a row.

Indians 9-2, Brewers 1-3

Cleveland ended its five-game tailspin in the opener as Neal Heaton pitched a four-hitter and Mike Hargrove and Ron Hassey drove in two runs apiece. But in the nightcap, Bill Schroeder hit solo homers in the third and fifth innings and Cecil Cooper singled home Milwaukee's tie-breaking run in the 10th for the split.

Tigers 2, A's 1

Steve McCatty pitched a five-hitter for Oakland, but the fourth one was the killer — Kirk Gibson's ninth-inning homer for the Tigers, who boosted their record to 37-9.

Now that Judson's Chris Pryor, Texas' all-time leading Class 5A single season rushing leader, has failed to make a 2.00 grade point average, causing him to lose his football scholarship to Texas Tech, there will probably be more calls for H. Ross Perot to solve our academic inadequacies by downgrading high school athletics.

One rotten apple shouldn't condemn a system. What we really need is less blue ribbon committees on education and more local control of our own lives...

Tech fans seem to be confused over Pryor's loss of scholarship. An athlete must graduate with his class and own a 2.00 grade point average to be eligible for a scholarship under NCAA rules. So even if Pryor took (and passed) English this summer, he can't qualify for a scholarship.

STILL, PRYOR may one day play for the Red Raiders. He says he is going to enroll in Tech next fall. If he were to earn a 2.00 grade point at Tech, he would be eligible to play. That could amount to a red shirt season, but he will have to pick up his own tab until he can qualify for a scholarship again...

The upcoming fight between Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini and a relatively unknown Livingstone Bramble may be the fight of the year to miss. Since I'm not a big fight fan, the words coming out of this one runs pre-fight hype to the limit. Sickening is probably the right word.

Mancini has promised "to drop you (Bramble) like a bad habit," while Bramble is calling in a witch doctor to put a hex on Mancini. Bramble may be the only Rastafarian boxer on earth. His God is Jah, and like other Rastafarians, he believes the late Ethiopian emperor Hailie Selassie, was Jah's messenger. One wonders how boxing survives...

Everyone I talk with seems to think that the race in the American League East is over since Detroit never seems to lose. However, has anyone looked at the standings lately? Toronto is only 5½ games back as of Wednesday and that's not a big margin by any means in May...

Here's one who still believes that the Celtics will win it all in seven...

I wonder how many Midland Lee football fans have looked at next year's District 4-5A schedule? The Rebels open loop play against San Angelo and Abilene Cooper, two teams they lost to last year. It doesn't get any better. The following week, Lee catches Odessa Permian on the road. Lee better be a good team early in the season...

On the other hand, Midland High fans might consider throwing a party. For the first time in years, the Bulldogs don't open against Permian. They catch Big Spring and Abilene High the first two weeks of district play. How long has it been since MHS opened a season in this district with a 2-0 record?...

Two big stars of the spring football games were Lee's Walter Jones and Midland High's Darrell Davis. Just wait until the two get to practice. Both missed the major portion of spring training to participate at the state level in track...

CUB MANIA is running rampant in Chicago, but I'm looking for a June swoon. Maybe it's bacause I'm still mad over the fact that the Cubs continue to trade away its young players who we see play in Midland to other clubs...

Speaking of the Cubs, they don't seem to care much about its minor league system. But take heart, the Midland Cubs aren't the worst team in professional baseball with a 15-32 record. At one time, Quad Cities owned a 9-31 record. Oh yes, that's Chicago's Class A squad...

Trout loses no-hitter late

By The Associated Press

Nobody said anything about Steve Trout flirting with a no-hitter. As it turned out, it didn't matter.

Trout came within four outs of carving the masterpiece of his career, and then it was spoiled by Albert Hall's infield single.

"I was wound up and intense," Trout said after the Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak with a 6-2 victory over the Braves.

"At first I was upset when it was scored a hit," Trout said of the smash that second baseman Ryne Sandberg knocked down on the outfield grass, but couldn't find in time to make a throw.

When the hit sign was flashed on the scoreboard, Trout turned toward the press box and shouted at the official scorer, but later changed his mind after thinking about the play.

"It was a tough play. It was fair. It was a hit."

Trout also lost his shutout on Hall's hit. With two outs Alex Trevino walked and moved to third when Jerry Royster's grounder up the middle bounced off shortstop Larry Bowa's glove for an error.

Hall's hit scored Trevino and the next batter, Rafael Ramirez, lashed a clean RBI single to left to score Royster and chase Trout, 6-3. Lee Smith finished up for his ninth save of the year.

"I thought about it around the fourth inning," Trout said. "But nobody said anything to me about a no-hitter. You definitely don't mention that on the bench."

Chicago jumped on Len Barker, 4-5, in the first. Leon Durham lashed a two-run double, giving him 41 RBI.

Dodgers 4, Expos 1

Franklin Stubbs and Ken Landreaux hit two-run homers and Alejandro Pena pitched a five-hitter as the Dodgers moved into first place in the NL West.

"I'm getting one hit a game, but I just can't seem to get more than one," said Stubbs, who beat Bryn Smith with a home run for the second time in 10 days.

The Dodgers have only six homers in their last 22 games and Stubbs, brought up from the minors April 28, has four of them.

"I'm not quite used to the strike zone yet," said Stubbs, who is hitting just .211. "I'm going to strike out a few times, but I'm going to get hits that beat you a few times, too."

"He's got my number, I guess," said Smith, 5-4. "He hit a fastball, the same pitch he hit in Los Angeles. He's a pretty good guesser, he ought to go to Vegas."

Pena, 5-2, won for the first time since April 29, hurling the 15th complete game by the Dodgers' staff this year, tops in the league. Gary Carter ruined his shutout with his ninth homer.

Reds 6, Pirates 4

At Riverfront Stadium, reliever Don Robinson put on a spectacular hitting and pitching display, but with victory just one strike away he made a crucial mistake.

Robinson gave Brad Gulden a pitch too good to pass up in the bottom of the 14th inning, and he belted it for a three-run homer, snatching a victory and a game-winning hit away from Robinson, 0-1.

Robinson had taken matters into his own hands in the top of the inning, lashing a run-scoring single to center off Bob Owchinko, 2-1, for a 4-3 lead.

"It's very disappointing," said Robinson, who worked eight innings and struck out eight. "I haven't pitched like that since no telling when, and I end up getting beat by a home run."

Wayne Krenchicki belted a solo homer in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Phillies 3, Giants 2

The dreary Philadelphia weather didn't dampen Al Holland's spirits.

With the scored tied 2-2 in the top of the ninth, Holland was set to chalk up his third strikeout of the inning when rain precipitated a one hour, 50-minute interruption.

"He likes to sit in the dugout and watch the rain," said Manager Paul Owens. "He's like a bull. He doesn't know if it's raining or snowing."

"I changed sweat shirts, put a towel around my neck, put on my jacket and waited," said Holland, who has five saves and three wins in his last 10 games. "I was keyed up, ready to play. I wanted the ball."

He got it when play resumed and struck out the last man. Then pinch hitter Greg Gross lofted a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth off Greg Minton, 1-4, to win it.

Cardinals 6, Astros 4

In the Astrodome, pinch hitter Tito Landrum' two-out, two-run single in the eighth solved three problems — it gave him his first game-winning hit of the year and only the Cardinals' second come-from-behind victory in 50 games and provided Ricky Horton with his first major-league win.

"There have been a lot of times this year when I would come to the plate and we had the tying or winning runs on base, and I hadn't been able to capitalize at all before tonight," Landrum said.

"I knew sooner or later I would walk into a win," added Horton. "Most of the games I've been in we were always behind 7-1 or 8-1. This is the first game I've been involved in that was this close."

Oilers' Messier chosen MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Messier is having the time of his life, and he hopes the fun is just beginning.

Messier won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the National Hockey League's most valuable player in the Stanley Cup playoffs, and Sport Magazine honored him with its own trophy Wednesday, plus a new Pontiac Trans-Am sports coupe, for his key play in the Edmonton Oilers' victory over the New York Islanders in the finals.

"If someone told me that it was going to be this much fun winning, we would have tried to do it a lot earlier," said the 23-year-old Messier. "The first time was the toughest ever and that's true for anything you win.

"But I don't think it's going to be that tough to keep our intensity and our drive going. We have a young team that established all sorts of records during the season and we had fun doing it.

Tulsa's Bob Gergen scored in the third on a ground out by Greg Tabor. He reached first on a single, advanced to second on a single and went to third on a ground up.

Midland tied the second game in the second inning after Shawon Dunston led off with a double, advanced to third and scored on groundouts.

The Drillers' Oscar Mejia delivered a bases-loaded single to drive in two runs in the first inning.

A two-run homer by Frank Kneuer followed in the fourth for Tulsa. The Drillers scored four more in the fifth, and another in the sixth.

Velarde named All-American

From Staff Reports

Lubbock Christian College second baseman Randy Velarde, a 1981 graduate of Midland Lee, was named to the NAIA All-American second team for the second consecutive year.

Last year, Velarde received All-American honors at shortstop, the position where he was named All-State as a senior for Lee.

Velarde was the Chaparrals Most Valuable Player during a 51-14 year. He hit .408 for the season with 18 doubles, six triples and 15 home runs for 79 runs batted in. He also stole 27 bases in 19 attempts, had eight game winning hits and led the team with a slugging percentage of .761. He also had an on-base percentage of .561.

At one point in year Velarde had a 15-game hitting streak in the No. 3 batting slot.

On defense, Velarde made only 13 errors in 282 chances at second base.

LCC finished the year ranked No. 4 in the final NAIA poll, the lowest the team was ranked all year.

The Chaparrals were eliminated from a chance to defend their NAIA World Series title in the district tournament by Dallas Baptist. Dallas Baptist eventually advanced to the World Series only to be eliminated in the first two games.

Chaps sign Valdes

From Staff Reports

Although Midland College just completed its finest golf season ever, coach Delnor Poss has already begun planning for next year. Poss signed Del Rio's Eddie Valdes Tuesday to attend MC during the 1984-85 school year.

Valdes played at number one on the Del Rio golf team the past three years, winning the District 3-5A medalist title as a sophomore in addition to claiming area junior championships.

"Since a majority of our players were freshmen this year, we had very few openings for incoming freshmen this fall and I am seeking just two or three outstanding players," Poss said. "We feel that Eddie has the potential to earn a place on the team this fall. He could develop into one of the strongest players we've ever had at Midland College."

Midlanders win Cup

Wilson Ranch, a Midland polo team, recently won the Visitor's Cup at the Hurlingham Club in Argentina with three victories over La Sofia.

Wilson Ranch won the games by margins of 14-5, 11-9 and 14-9. Midland's Byron Wilson played on the Wilson Ranch team.

Soviet goalie Tretiak retires from hockey

HOCKEY - Goalie Vladislav Tretiak, who led the Soviet Union to three hockey gold medals in the Winter Olympics, announced his retirement at the age of 32, Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported.

Tretiak, captain of the Soviet team, previously had indicated he would retire at the end of last season after he avenged the Soviets' stunning defeat by the United States at the Lake Placid Olympics in 1980 by leading the Soviets to the gold medal at Sarajevo in February.

Tretiak also guided the Soviets to gold medals at the 1972 and 1976 Winter Games and was declared the best goalie at the world championships in 1974, '79, 1981 and '83...

Al Arbour, who guided the New York Islanders to four consecutive National Hockey League championships before falling to the high-powered Edmonton Oilers this season, is "90 percent" sure he will give up his coaching duties, according to published reports...

FOOTBALL - A confidential report to the NCAA Council said playoffs to determine the national championship football team could be feasible as early as January 1986.

A copy of the report obtained by The Advertiser, a Montgomery newspaper, said there are two options for a national playoff.

The first is a four-team bracket, to include two semifinal games to be played two Saturdays prior to the Super Bowl and a championship game to be played on the Saturday preceding the Super Bowl.

The second option is a two-team playoff to be played on the Saturday prior to the Super Bowl...

SOCCER - It wasn't a victory, but it was close enough to suit members of the U.S. National Team.

The U.S. team, led by defenders Dan Canter and Jeff Durgan, held World Cup champion Italy to a 0-0 tie Wednesday night in an exhibition soccer game.

"I guess you can call this a moral victory," Canter said. "It wasn't a win, but it was about the sweetest tie I've ever played."

Canter and Durgan, who play for the Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, helped the U.S. team turn aside numerous shots before a crowd of 31,210 at Giants Stadium.

Italy, the 1982 World Cup champions coming off a 2-0 victory over Canada Saturday night in Toronto, played without star striker Paolo Rossi and defender Antonio Cabrini.

Italy controlled play through most of the game, but the pace was slowed because the Giants Stadium field was rain soaked.

"The rain and wet turf helped slow the pace and take some of their skill away," Canter said...

BOWLING - Charlie Tapp, of South St. Paul, Minn., took a 76-pin lead into the third round of the $115,000 Tucson Open of the Pro Bowlers Association.

Tapp, who is trying for only his second Pro Bowlers Association title, averaged 238 for the first 12 games Wednesday and had a total pinfall of 2,861.

Ron Palombi, a second-year pro, was second with 2,785 after opening the second round with games of 260 and 279 to jump from 14th.

Thirteen-time PBA champion Wayne Webb moved into third position with 2,769, followed by Walter Ray Williams Jr. Calif., with 2,753.Alvin Lou, a two-time winner, rolled a 299 his final game to jump to fifth with 2,726...

OLYMPICS - The final three women's Olympic basketball team alternates have been named by the U.S. Amateur Basketball Association.

Named Wednesday as alternates were Patty Jo Hedges, Kentucky; La Taunya Pollard, Long Beach; and Joyce Walker, Louisiana State. Kamie Ethridge, Texas, and Tresa Spaulding, Brigham Young, previously were named alternates.

Coach Pat Head-Summitt and the Olympic team will depart June 1 for Taipei, Taiwan to compete in the William Jones Cup, June 5-18, as they continue to practice for the Summer Games in Los Angeles...

CYCLING - Italy's Paolo Rosola took the 12th stage of the Italian cycling tour, ending a string of non-Italian victories.

Rosola won a crowded sprint of the pack at the finish line after a 108-mile ride on an almost flat course from Rieti.

Rosola finished ahead of Belgian Roger De Vlaeminck, the runner-up for the second straight stage, and of Italy's Silvano Ricco, who placed third.

Swiss standout Urs Freuler, lagged in fourth...

THE BETTER HALF

"My electric toothbrush broke and I can't remember how to use the old one!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, June 1, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Mormon Church leader Brigham Young, explorer-missionary Jacques Marquette, poet John Masefield and Marilyn Monroe were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Pat Boone, Andy Griffith, former Chicago Cubs all-star catcher Randy Hundley, composer-conductor Nelson Riddle and evangelist Reverend Ike. Stop procrastinating and the sky is the limit! You need the cooperation of your associates to succeed. Curb your temper and hand out more compliments. A younger person is eager to win your approval. Choose your confidants with care.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid forcing an issue at work and everything will turn out fine. You may find it hard to understand mate or parter's motives. Count on learning more by nightfall.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Investments, insurance policies and legal matters are in the spotlight. An ambitious newcomer may try to take advantage of you. Keep your guard up. Get ready to take a quick trip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Use the element of surprise today and you create a highly profitable situation. Mate or partner has many good ideas. Listen carefully! Take advantage of an opportunity to make a quick profit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do everything you can to avoid direct confrontations. Postpone making a decision on an important project until more information is available. Loved one shares a delicious secret this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A recent mistake can be corrected, saving you both embarrassment and money. Avoid entering secret agreements. Keep your eyes peeled for bargains. An excellent day for tending to routine work matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Curb a tendency to make hasty decisions. Influential person will be cooperative if you need time off to tend to personal matters. Catch up on your letter writing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Arguments could arise if your relatives or co-workers are too demanding. Compromise! Higher-ups are impressed by your willingness to work overtime without extra pay. A promotion is a distinct possibility.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sign business agreements only after reading the fine print. You need to give more thought to increasing the value of your property. Stick to work projects you can handle alone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A wonderful day for dealing with those at a distance. Tact helps you avoid arguments with authority figure. Protect your reputation. Enter agreements with people and companies you have dealt with before.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use your creative and artistic talents wisely. Someone may try to pick your brain. Your original plan is probably better than any last-minute arrangements. Play a waiting game in romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Entertaining is the key to swifter business or social advancement. Do not go overboard, however. An agreement with an attractive member of the opposite sex turns our thoughts to romance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stay in the background today to make the greatest gains. Higher-ups could turn contrary if you ask for special favors. Put nervous energy to good use by tackling manual chores.

PBS airs valuable reruns

NEW YORK (AP) — Some worthwhile things you may have missed the first time around:

CALLIGRAPHY WITH KEN BROWN on public TV is a neighborly and eminently entertaining introduction to the ancient art of elegant writing.

Brown says it's easy to learn — "Calligraphy is an acquired skill," he explains, "that anybody can do, without artistic ability" — and he makes it look that way, too.

Brown's approach is classic how-to: describe an instrument or explain a pen stroke, then demonstrate its use or application.

His friendly, comfortable approach is what sets "Calligraphy with Ken Brown" apart; it's difficult to resist Brown's suggestion that you give the technique a try.

Each program in the series features a different project — how to design your own stationery letterhead, for example. In the course of a show, the instructor demonstrates various styles of lettering.

Though Brown now lives and works in Hugo, Okla., the television series was produced by KOCE, the PBS station in Huntington Beach, Calif.

The 13-week series, already shown in many parts of the country, will be available to all Public Broadcasting Service stations a second time starting June 6.

Part II of BALANCHINE, Monday night on public TV's "Great Performances," includes scenes from the 1929 film "Dark Red Roses" — the only known footage of George Balanchine as a young dancer. The film was discovered recently among several old nitrate prints in the attic of a farmhouse in Ireland.

It's an early look at the eventual founder of the New York City Ballet, who appears for the romantic role in braid and earring.

THAT TEEN SHOW, in syndication on 75 commercial-TV stations across the country, is a weekly series of half-hour programs dealing with topics of importance to young people that happily gives more attention to substance than set design.

Suzanne Peters and J.T. Smith, teen-agers themselves, talk with celebrities and guest experts on a variety of provocative topics — cults, for instance, or adoption, or drinking and driving, or dating. Interviews are separated by rock-video segments chosen to fit the theme of the particular program.

There is a relaxed, unrehearsed air to "That Teen Show" that suggests spontaneity rather than slick packaging: "Views on teen-age gambling?" Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder wonders, seemingly caught off-balance when asked for his opinion on an upcoming show on the subject.

Opening lead: Queen of ◇.

This hand was played in a team match, and the same contract was reached at both tables. The two opening leads were the same, yet one declarer went down and the other made his contract. Study the two lines of play and decide whether the successful declarer simply made an inspired guess or exhibited sound technique.

At both tables South chose a jump to two no trump for his rebid. Although he had only 18 HCP, his prime controls and good five-card suit increased the worth of his hand by a point or two.

Both Wests selected the queen of diamonds as the opening lead. At one table the play was soon over. Declarer covered with dummy's king, East won the ace and returned the suit and the defenders collected five fast diamond tricks. Down one.

At the other table South followed with a low diamond from dummy on the opening lead! West continued with a diamond to the king and ace, but East had no diamond return. Declarer won the spade return, crossed to the king of hearts and ran the ten of clubs. When that won, he repeated the club finesse and had nine tricks in the bank.

What's your verdict? Was South lucky or good when he opted to play a low diamond from the table at trick one?

There was a slender clue to suggest that East might have the ace of diamonds. Since East-West were not vulnerable, West might have overcalled one diamond, had he held A-Q-J-10-x in the suit, or even A-Q-J-x plus the king of clubs. That was enough to influence South into ducking the diamond lead at trick one, which was the odds-on play to prevent the defenders from running five diamond tricks.

Briton has been detained in Libya

LONDON (AP) — The Foreign Office says another British worker has been detained in Libya — the sixth since Britain broke diplomatic relations with Col. Moammar Khadafy's government last month.

"We found out through the Italians who represent us in Tripoli that he was detained on May 15 and we are pressing to know what charges, if any, are being considered and for consular access to all six," s Foreign Office spokeswoman said Wednesday.

Four Libyans are being detained in Britain on charges connected with bombings in London and Manchester in March which wounded 26 people but they will not be used as bargaining chips for the release of British detainees said Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe.

Crowd throws things at Kohl

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Demonstrators threw rotten eggs, firecrackers and paint-filled plastic bags at Chancellor Helmut Kohl during an outdoor speech in Hamburg.

The chancellor was not hit during the disturbance Wednesday but two demonstrators were injured and one was arrested, police said.

Police estimated some 4,000 people attended the rally, organized by Kohl's Christian Democratic Party to publicize elections to the European Parliament on June 17.

Alleged CIA spies convicted

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A military court has convicted two men of spying for the CIA and sentenced them to 12 and 15 years imprisonment, according to Poland's state-run media.

Polish citizen Jacek Jurzak and a Polish-born West German, Norbert Adamaschek, received "lenient sentences" because they "confessed" to accepting money for supplying the CIA with "regular reports on social, political, economic and defense questions in Poland," state-run television reported Wednesday.

Adamaschek, given a 12-year sentence, was accused of enlisting in the CIA two years after he emigrated from Poland in 1976. He allegedly recruited Jurzak, who was given a 15-year term.

Haiti will receive extra food aid

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The Reagan administration will send an extra $21 million worth of food to Haiti in the aftermath of rioting in two cities, U.S. officials in Port-au-Prince say.

A U.S. Embassy official said the assistance from the Agency for International Development is in addition to $54 million already allocated this year for the Western Hemisphere's poorest nation.

In the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti, President Salvador Jorge Blanco ordered a 25 percent cutback in government fuel use and imposed other austerity measures Wednesday. An earlier series of austerity steps sparked protest riots in April that claimed 54 lives.

In Haiti, President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier announced several changes in his so-called "Super Cabinet" late Wednesday, reducing the number of ministers from six to four. There was no indication whether the changes were linked to the rioting, which the government has refused to comment on.

The U.S. Embassy official in Haiti, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said AID was exploring the possibility that some of the aid can be used to alleviate unemployment problems and the impact of a drought in the northern cities of Gonaives and Cap Haitien.

U.S. officials in Haiti said misconceptions about the distribution of U.S.-donated food may have contributed to rioting in Cap Haitien, where soldiers fired on a mob Tuesday to prevent it from storming a food warehouse of the private agency CARE. At least three people died and several were wounded.

In Gonaives, soldiers on May 24 quelled disturbances during which rioters also attempted to break into a CARE warehouse.

Residents said the riots in Cap Haitien erupted after slum-dwellers allegedly saw spoiled food from the warehouse being given to livestock.

"We can't comment on an internal affair. But we can say that there was and apparently still is a misconception as to what U.S. food is here for," said a U.S. official. "It is not for random general distribution, but is for pregnant women, schoolchildren — we feed half a million a day — and as a food-for-work incentive."

Residents of Haiti's arid north, where drought occurs almost annually, often complain that they are short-changed in development efforts.

Officials of CARE, a New York-based private foundation, blamed drought and food shortages for the storming of the warehouses.

"Haiti is very disaster- and emergency-prone," said George Radcliffe, CARE's assistant executive director.

The food, usually surplus U.S. dairy products and grain, is allocated for such purposes as free school lunches and programs in which Haitians receive food for working on development projects. Most of it goes to rural areas, Radcliff said by telephone from New York.

Radcliffe said he hadn't heard about any food being wasted.

In the Dominican Republic, Jorge Blanco's government announced the austerity measures as a presidential delegation was in Washington trying to convince the Reagan administration to release more than $100 million in stalled aid.

Release of the funds had been tied to a successful conclusion of Dominican negotiations with the International Monetary Fund on the second installment of a three-year, $459.5 million loan.

Jorge Blanco broke off the talks a week ago, refusing to go along with an IMF stipulation on oil imports that would have tripled the prices of gasoline and other fuels in the nation.

A spokesman for the president said Jorge Blanco's new directives call for a 25 percent reduction in government fuel consumption and suspension of official travel abroad. Only Foreign Ministry and tourism officials were excluded from the travel ban.

The president banned weekend and off-duty use of official vehicles, and ordered public buildings left dark at night and street lights turned off in early morning. He ordered a study on creation of a nationwide energy conservation plan and named a committee to draft a cost-reducing plan.

Odessa mayor says police have him under surveillance

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Mayor John Minor suspects the Odessa police force has him under surveillance.

During an interview Tuesday relating to last weekend's altercation at a girlfriend's home, Minor said he was convinced the police force has been keeping tabs on his movements around town.

"That sounds like paranoia," Police Chief Alan Stewart said Wednesday.

But Minor insists police are following him.

He also explained the need for carrying a gun (a handgun was confiscated by police following the disturbance at the woman's home Friday night) by recalling warnings he received during a visit last week to Austin. Minor said he was "cautioned very strongly" about animosities that could develop from his formation of the Mayor's Task Force On Crime and Law Enforcement. He didn't indicate who cautioned him.

While Minor predicted "The task force will uncover some corruption of a significant nature," task force chairman Carl Rogers said Wednesday "I certainly cannot."

Stewart said that if the task force did uncover evidence of corruption within his department, "I suggest they turn it over to the proper investigative agency."

"It's not a legal authority to begin with," he said, adding that he was not aware of corruption in the department.

"We constantly investigate allegations made within the department," said Stewart, recommending that the group's findings be taken before a grand jury or another investigative agency "if they feel we can't take care of it."

"We're not ready to release anything at this point," said Rogers, who has lost one of the 13 members of the task force expected to report its findings to the City Council in mid-June.

Rev. Jerry Coffman, pastor of Westwood Baptist Church in Odessa, announced his intentions to resign in a May 23 letter. Reached at his church Wednesday, Coffman repeated a line from the letter: "It's just not me."

Noting it was his first experience in politics, Coffman said "I didn't feel I had anything to contribute."

"I'm in agreement with everything the committee does," he said, pointing to problems he had attending meetings because of other commitments.

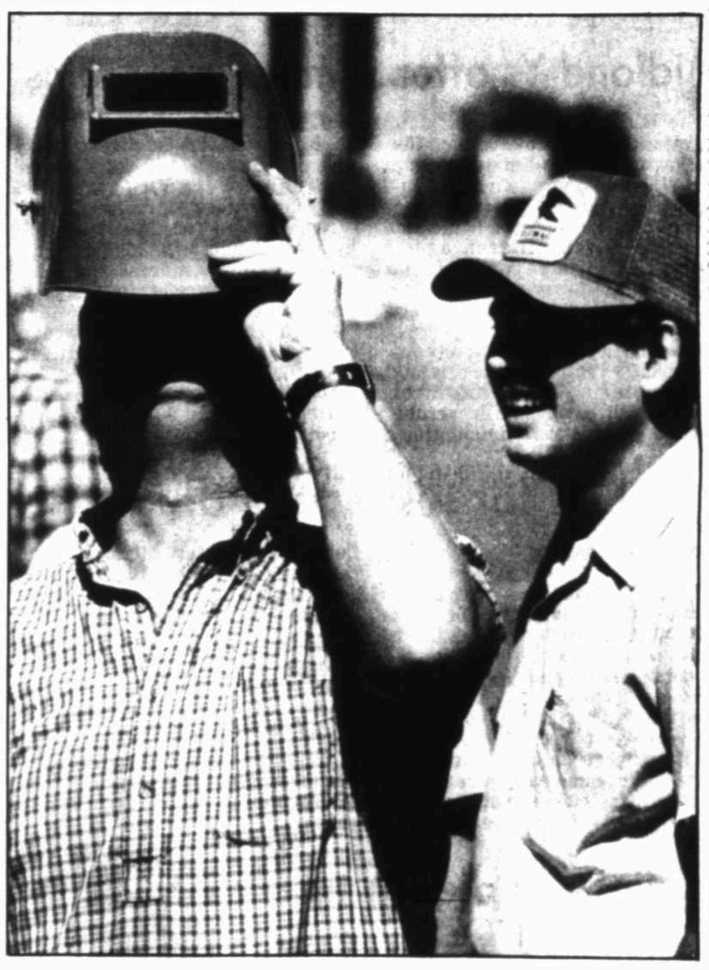

Minor and Rogers have denied the task force was part of a vendetta the mayor has retained after a struggle over supervision of the city's warrants division. The division was placed under the control of the police department, and Minor was fired after 10 years as municipal court administrator.

"I feel it's a headhunting group for the most part," said Stewart, adding he did not feel that all task force members fell in this category.

The media has been barred from all meetings held so far. Rogers explained this has been done to protect the anonymity of those presenting complaints to the group.

It must have been hard for a welder to get much work done Wednesday morning.

Odessan gets five years for third DWI conviction

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

In what is believed to be the stiffest punishment ever imposed in a Midland County DWI case, an Odessa man has been sentenced to five years in prison and fined $2,000 on his third conviction for driving while intoxicated.

An eight-man, four-woman jury imposed the maximum sentence possible on 53-year-old Cecil L. Richards after finding him guilty in a daylong trial Tuesday in State District Judge Pat M. Baskin's court.

A videotape of Richards being booked by city police was played for jurors after defense attorney Vernon Reichle contended his client was innocent of the charge, according to First Assistant District Michael Williams, who prosecuted the case along with Assistant DA Jim Frazier.

Richards was arrested about 2:30 p.m. on Feb. 23 by patrol officer Kay Therwanger. She testified that he cussed her and was "extremely belligerent" when she stopped his car after seeing him almost hit two vehicles in the 1200 block of Carter Street.

Richards refused to take breathalyzer and physical coordination tests, according to testimony. Williams said the trial marked "one of the first times" a videotape was used in a felony DWI case in Midland. Most DWIs are misdemeanors that are tried in county court.

Richards' driving record showed two prior DWI convictions. The first cost him three days in jail. The second, which occurred in 1981, resulted in a two-year prison sentence.

All three offenses were committed in Midland County, and none of them involved accidents or injuries.

Commenting on Richards' latest sentence, Williams said: "To my knowledge, it's the stiffest ever handed down by a Midland jury in a DWI case. I believe it represents the growing public sentiment against drunk drivers."

Reichle did not indicate if he would appeal the case, according to Williams.

State commission could close Culberson County jail

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

The Texas Commission on Jail Standards has issued an order that could close down the Culberson County jail at Van Horn because jail officials two weeks ago allegedly refused to allow a commission inspector to talk with inmates or look at jail records.

The inspector was to conduct a routine examination of the jail on May 15, according to commission Executive Director Robert Viterna.

But Viterna said Sheriff Richard Upchurch "declined to let (the inspector) have access to prisoners or jail records. He did what he could and came back and reported it to the commission."

Viterna noted that this is the first time an inspector had been denied such access during an inspection, and said county officials gave no reason for their actions.

He also said Upchurch and Culberson County Judge John Conaly were invited to appear at a regular commission meeting on May 23 to discuss the issue, but neither of them showed up.

Jail inspector Joe Slater attended the meeting and commission members — including Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith — voted to issue the order the same day. It gives Upchurch 15 days to comply with commission rules or face closure of the jail.

While Upchurch acknowledges receiving a certified letter from the commission on Tuesday, he says it dealt only with "some paperwork corrections they wanted. I never heard of that (the order to comply or close). But I may receive one tomorrow. You never know."

Upchurch also said, "There ain't no problems here. This jail is in compliance." And he denied that Slater was refused access to inmates or records:

"He stayed here all day and was all over the place. He's worse than the Orkin Man."

Commission Planner Jack Crump said the order is administrative in nature and not a court order. It can be appealed to the commission, and an unfavorable appeal ruling could be taken to district court.

Should the jail ultimately be closed, inmates would have to be housed in neighboring jails.

"It's rare to shut down a jail," said Crump. "Most of them come into compliance. To my knowledge, this is the first time a jail has refused to allow an inspector to do his job."

Crump also said jail problems in the state are handled on an individual basis and if officials show a willingness to correct the problems, the commission tries to work with them.

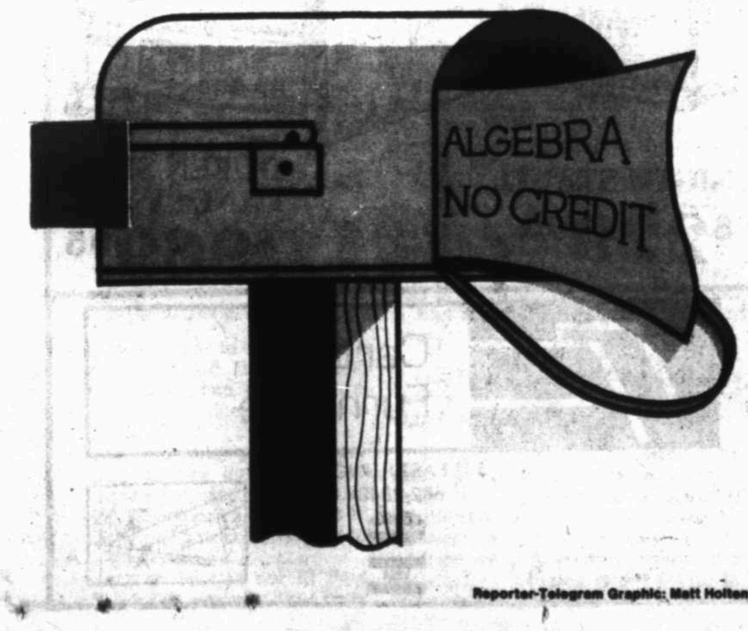

Noting that the Midland County jail has been cited in the past for overcrowding, Crump said, "They are taking strides to correct it."

Midland County Commissioners have hired an architect, selected a site and are proceeding with plans for a new jail to be located near the county exhibit building on East Highway 80.

"The jail commission takes the position that we're doing all we can to correct overcrowding," said Sheriff Smith. "But if we weren't, we'd be subject to closure, too."

At present, according to Crump, about 10 jails remain closed in Texas. "It's sometimes more economical to use other facilities in nearby counties" than it is to correct "structural problems" — including requirements that inmates be classified and separated according to sex and age.

Many graduates unprepared for college courses

Staff Writer

About 1,200 Midland students took the last step in a 12-year journey Wednesday when they received their high school diplomas.

Now their mortarboard tassles hang on rearview mirrors and about 75 percent are ready to face the challenges of post-secondary education.

Or are they?

According to Midland College administrators, half the incoming freshmen could not succesfully complete beginning college algebra and one-third are not capable of passing freshman English.

"We have students graduating from high school who are not prepared to do college work," said Dr. Jack Schneider, chairman of communications division at MC.

"We have a good many students with serious problems both in math and writing," echoed Dr. Perry Gragg, director of English at Angelo State University. About one in nine ASU freshmen score so low on college entrance exams they are required to take remedial English.

Percentages are probably higher at junior colleges, Gragg said, because they have no admission standards.

Dr. Len Ainsworth, assistant vice president of academic affairs at Texas Tech University, agreed there is a growing need for remediation.

"Even prestigious universities are increasingly in the remedial business, even though they get the cream of the crop," Schneider said.

"The University of Texas has 7,000 students who need remediation," Dr. Raymond Yell added, despite the fact UT only accepts students in the top 25 percent of their classes. "And Stanford has remediation problems. It's all over."

Schneider said there is no single reason many high school graduates are failing entry-level college courses.

"We have larger numbers of students going to college these days, and many of them are not your traditional college-bound students. Home environment also has something to do with it. There's too much television and not enough reading." And high school students are not required to do much homework, he added.

But he also feels educational standards in secondary schools have been watered down. "I think Ross Perot is exactly right. I think standards were lowered for a long period."

This has also affected the quality of beginning college courses to some extent, he said, because progress is hindered by unprepared students. "Probably standards are not quite as high as they were at one time."

Like many colleges, MC has never required students to take remedial courses, although they are strongly recommended to some students. But school officials were forced to address the fact that half the students enrolled in beginning algebra were not passing the course.

They found most students would not take introductory algebra when recommended because the credits don't count toward general education requirements and usually don't transfer to other colleges. "We need to get these students in the proper class and they're not always doing it on their own," explained Dr. Joe Blumentritt, division chairman of scientific study at MC.

So beginning this fall, students who fail to meet certain prerequisites will have to take remedial algebra.

Schneider said it was conceivable MC might begin a similar program in English.

Reforms must come before tax increase, House speaker says

AUSTIN (AP) — If lawmakers are to pass a tax increase, they'll have to see proposed educational reforms first, House Speaker Gib Lewis says.

Lewis, commenting Wednesday on the special legislative session that begins Monday, also said there are no guarantees lawmakers will approve the tax hike and school overhaul plan proposed by Gov. Mark White.

"I cannot promise you that it will succeed," Lewis said. "I can only promise you that we will approach our task in an orderly and judicious manner, a manner designed to give it the very best possible chance for success."

White, who called the session last week, has proposed a sweeping overhaul of the public education system and a $4.8 billion tax increase to fund the reforms and highway improvements.

Lewis said he will ask the House to consider both school reform and taxes — but not simultaneously.

First, he said, the House and Senate should consider the school reform legislation, "a bill which not only speaks to public education reform in Texas but fairly screams for it."

Then, he said, "Once that bill has cleared both houses and has gone to the governor — and only then — will the House begin consideration of revenue-producing measures to support it."

Lewis said he believes the bill should include the bulk of the recommendations made by the Select Committee on Public Education.

REMEDIAL

"This is a touchy situation because there are those proponents of the idea that a student has the right to fail, but that's not the business we're in. We're in the business of trying to help students succeed. Some take freshman-level English two or three times (rather than take the remedial course). It wastes their time, it wastes their money and may cause them to drop out completely because they get frustrated."

"Most four-year institutions now are...setting up remedial programs and writing labs because they also are encountering larger numbers of students who are not capable of taking freshman-level English. I think there is a movement under way to require incoming freshmen to take whatever courses the institution deems appropriate to correct any deficiencies...because they realize it's ultimately in the student's best interest. If they can't read and write and do basic computations then they're going to have trouble in college."

Dr. Duane Moore, assistant superintendent for Midland Independent School District, felt the statistics do not necessarily reflect a problem with Midland graduates. "They (MC) are drawing from a lot more than Midland public schools. I'd stand behind the students who go through our math sequence. All of our data indicates they have a sound basis for college mathematics. And our English students do very well. If a student goes through four years of English and receives credit they certainly should be" sufficiently prepared for college English.

Midland Ys offer summer programs

The Midland YMCAs are taking registration for their Summer Recreation and Kinder Kamp programs as well as summer swimming and gymnastics classes.

The 12-session Summer Recreation program is for children ages 6 through 12. Held at Alamo Junior High School, the program involves sport skills, movies, swimming, arts and crafts and more.

The Kinder Kamp program, designed for those ages 4 to 6, is held at the Alamo YMCA. Children enrolled will participate in aerobic exercise, gymnastics, swimming, arts and crafts, games and more.

Both programs begin Saturday and run through Aug. 24. Fees are $40 per week for YMCA members and $45 per week for non-members.

Registration for classes in both gymnastics and swimming for children ages three months and older also is taking place at the Alamo Y. The classes will be held Monday through Thursday for two weeks. Four sessions are scheduled throughout the summer.

For more information, contact the Alamo YMCA at 901 N. Midland Drive, 694-2528.

Bond set for suspects in drug case

From Staff Reports

Three suspects in the city's largest cocaine case remain jailed in lieu of $200,000 bond each set Tuesday by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Being held in the city jail are 23-year-old Debra Ann Thomas, 31-year-old Mark Jensen and and 25-year-old Victor Granico.

They were charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute after city narcotics agents and officers from the Midland County Constable's office and the Department of Public Safety raided a mobile home two miles east of the city early Monday afternoon.

Seized in the raid were 11 ounces of almost pure cocaine with an estimated street value of $154,000. Also confiscated were a loaded handgun and about $4,000 in cash.

The trio's arrest ended a three-day investigation that began with an informant's tip Friday, according to police.

Midlander dies in traffic accident

ORLA — A westside Midland oilfield worker died in a two-vehicle traffic accident 10 miles north of here on U.S. 285 early Wednesday afternoon.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Reeves County Justice of the Peace Cliff Preslar was 32-year-old James Michael Dunn of 3401 Park Lane.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Dunn suffered massive head and internal injuries when his 1983 model car was struck broadside by a Mack truck at the intersection of 285 and an unnamed lease road about 1:30 p.m.

The truck driver, Arron Leroy Simon of Monahans, was not injured. The DPS said the accident occurred when Simon failed to yield the right-of-way at the intersection.

Simon was westbound on the lease road and Dunn was northbound on 285 at the time. His body was initially taken to the Pecos Funeral Home and later was transferred to the Ellis Funeral Home in Midland.

Other survivors include another son, Curtis Higginbotham of Houston; three daughters, Yvonne Wheatley of Houston, Beverly Bell and Janette Jacobs, both of Robert Lee; a brother, J.B. Higginbotham of Bloomington; and 13 grandchildren.

House 'taking care of basics' in agriculture bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee says the fiscal 1985 agriculture bill will be "taking care of the basics" while Congress awaits a study that could reshape its thinking on agriculture policy.

The committee approved Wednesday by voice vote a $34.5 billion agriculture appropriations measure that is about $4 million less than requested by the Reagan administration.

Additional funding for fiscal 1984 programs are still pending, and if they are approved, the 1985 bill will end up about $1 billion below the 1984 appropriations level.

Chairman Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., said the bill transfers about $6 million from the Commodity Credit Corp. to the office of the sales manager for the corporation.

The sales manager's office is to supply the committee by the end of the summer with a report on international agricultural trade — especially embargoes — and how the policies affected a domestic agriculture industry he said is in "about the most trying situation we've ever had."

Whitten complained that farmers are forced to borrow against next year's crop to pay this year's debts and said farmers should not longer be forced "to pay for foreign policy."

He told the committee that farm debt is at $216 billion and 41 percent of farmers are delinquent on loan payments.

Nevertheless, Whitten said, the committee "held the line on spending" to await the study.

"We end up taking care of the basics and asking for information to help us help the farmer to start over again," Whitten said of the bill.

Virginia Smith of Nebraska, ranking minority member on the agriculture subcommittee, praised the "very trim" bill and said it was supported by Reagan budget director David Stockman.

Rep. Wes Watkins, D-Okla., said he supported the bill but complained that additional funding was not provided for rural development programs.

"I will go along because I know you're doing the right thing but I don't know how we can continue to cut and cut from the muscle of the survival of the little rural communities out there," Watkins said.

Man pleads guilty to defrauding Social Security Administration

From Staff Reports

A 54-year-old Andrews man, Demetrio E. Alaniz, has been placed on a five-year probated sentenced after he pleaded guilty in Midland federal court to defrauding the Social Security Administration.

In addition to the sentence, U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton ordered Alaniz to pay the government restitution of $3,692.02, which represents illegally-gained Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.

Alaniz allegedly received SSI benefits illegally by falsely representing he was not working when he had been employed fulltime for more than a year

The benefits are paid to individuals who are blind, disabled or at least 65 years old and who have little or no other income or assets, according to Erven L. Fisher, manager of the Social Security Office in Odessa. SSI payments, he said, are made out of general federal tax revenues rather than from Social Security funds.

SSI recipients routinely are reminded to report any change in family income or living arrangement.

Midland College awards scholarships to students

Midland College has awarded several Top 5% Scholarships to area students planning to attend MC in the fall. The grant covers tuition, fees and books and may be renewed.

Recipients include Billy Cornelius, Lee High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cornelius of Midland; Ginger Rains, Midland High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louise Rains of Midland; Rosie Maria del Rosario Flores, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Flores of Stanton; Frank Acosta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Moreno of Stamford; Melanie Edge, Rankin High School, daughter of Dearl Edge of Midland and Elwana Heflin of Rankin; Kimberly Wilkinson, Wink High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilkinson of Orla; Hector Juarez, son of Socorro Juarez of Kermit; and Billie Lynn Tucker, Reagan County High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Tucker of Snyder.

MC offers short courses

Midland College Department of Community Services is offering Aerobic Dancing, Calligraphy I, Beginning Typing and Oil Painting beginning the week of June 4.

Aerobic Dancing meets from 6:30-8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday evenings for four weeks. Class emphasizes increasing cardiovascular endurance, decreasing body fat, increasing stamina and improving body tone. Exercise and dance movements accompanied by disco, ballroom and ballet music is included. Students should wear comfortable clothing and bring a towel. Fee is $36.

Calligraphy I is from 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday evenings for eight weeks, and is a beginning course in the art of fine writing using a broad edged pen. Supplies cost approximately $20. Fee is $30.

Beginning Typing is from 6-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday evenings for five weeks. Course is designed to teach the keyboard, machine parts, basic letter forms, copy placement and tabluation. Textbooks and typing paper are needed the first night of class and are available in the bookstore. Fee is $54.

Oil Painting I is from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday evenings for three weeks, and includes demonstration and participation in the field of painting, design and technique. Students furnish their own supplies, and cost varies. Fee is $27.

Further information on all Community Services Short Courses may be obtained by calling Midland College at 684-7851, ext. 147 or 216.

Study identifies suitable nuclear waste sites

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An analysis of 55 potential sites in the state suitable for a low-level nuclear waste disposal facility has revealed 25 areas in West and South Texas that are "highly ranked" in terms of environmental and engineering factors, a newly completed siting study shows.

The top 25 sites are in the West Texas counties of Borden, Crosby, Garza, Haskell, Hudspeth and Mitchell, and the South Texas counties of Atascosa, Dimmit, LaSalle and Zavala, according to the study for the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority. The authority was empowered by the Texas Legislature in 1981 to find a site for a waste disposal facility, but does not have the power of eminent domain.

Of the top sites, a tract in Dimmit County southeast of Asherton remains "the number one site because it's the only one for sale," TLLRWDA spokesman Tom Blackburn said. Negotiations for the tract have been continuing since last year.

Blackburn is quick to point out that landowners in most of the 25 counties listed in the study are not negotiating with the authority to sell any land for the disposal facility. Additionally, the authority in April withdrew its request to the University of Texas System for two parcels of land in Hudspeth County in far West Texas, citing economic reasons. Blackburn said at the time that tests "to prove the land is adequate would cost a lot of money."

UT System officials had never approved the use of university land for the facility. However, the authority continues to study other university land in the area, as well as land in 11 other counties, officials said.

The study by Dames & Moore, environmental consultants from Houston, lists seven sites in LaSalle County, three sites in Dimmit County, three sites in Garza county, two sites in Borden County, two sites in Haskell County, two sites in Hudspeth County, two sites in Mitchell County, two sites in Zavala County, one site in Atascosa County and one site in Crosby County.

The rankings were based on such environmental factors as dwellings within one mile of the site; distances to parks, churches, schools, cemeteries and archeological sites, and geological stability. Engineering factors considered were availability of land and mineral rights; earthwork and excavation difficulty; and upstream drainage.

The next study phase by Dames & Moore involves "site specific work," which includes a physical analysis of sites to determine hydrology, TLLRWDA general manager Rick Jacobi said. Such a study is in progress at the Dimmit county site near Asherton, he noted, and further studies will be conducted at other sites where serious negotiations are taking place.

Jacobi said no other site specific work has been scheduled yet, though talks with landowners are ongoing in Borden, Garza and McMullen counties.

"Depending on what you find, site specific work takes six to 10 weeks," said Jacobi, who added the authority still hopes to select two candidate sites by Aug. 31.

Texas faces a Jan. 1, 1986, federal deadline to construct a disposal facility, which would store radioactive waste from industry, hospitals and universities.

New chancellor says Texas can be top public university

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas System's new chancellor, Hans M. Mark, says he intends for Texas to become the nation's top public university.

"I am convinced that the University of Texas System has the clear potential to become the best public higher education system in the country during the coming decade," Mark said after his appointment Wednesday.

He said it was too early to tell what areas of the Texas system need improvement for the university to reach the top, but said he believes "the drive is here. The will is here."

Mark, 54, has been deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration since 1981. Before that, he served as secretary of the Air Force under President Carter.

The new chancellor said that his background as a nuclear physicist and No. 2 man in the space agency, doesn't mean the university will sacrifice liberal arts to technology.

"Both of these things are equally important. You can't put one above the other," he said.

He also said the system under his administration will not slight other campuses in favor of the main campus, the University of Texas at Austin.

"I have had a lot of experience running organizations with diverse operations," he said. "Every one has a place. No one (campus) is an also ran."

Regents Chairman Jon Newton said Mark was chosen from a field of 169 following a nine-month, nationwide search. The appointment is effective Sept. 1.

Mark will become the university's sixth chancellor. He succeeds E. Don Walker, who has headed the 14-campus system since 1978. The job currently pays $132,600 annually, but that is subject to change with next year's budget, officials said.

Newton said the search committee looked for a chancellor who would blend academic, administrative and political experience. Mark, who before entering the government was a faculty member at the University of California and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, fits the bill, Newton said.

"I believe Dr. Mark has the perfect blend of experience and talent to be the chief executive officer of the University of Texas System. He is a distinguished scientist and an experienced faculty member, academic, administrator and researcher," Newton said.

Mark takes over a system with 14 campuses statewide, 119,000 students, 50,000 faculty and staff members, an operating budget of $1.8 billion and an endowment of $2 billion.

A native of Mannheim, Germany, Mark emigrated to the United States with his family in 1940. He became a naturalized citizen at age 16.

Mark has a bachelor's degree in physics from the University of California at Berkeley and a doctor's degree in physics from MIT.

Conservation could resolve water disputes, Udall says

LAS CRUCES (AP) — Water disputes such as the one between the city of El Paso and the state of New Mexico could be avoided through an effective program of conservation, according to former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

Udall, Interior Secretary during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, was in Las Cruces Wednesday campaigning for Democratic presidential hopeful Gary Hart.

Udall also met with the Concerned Citizens for New Mexico Water Resources and discussed water issues, particularly El Paso's lawsuit against New Mexico.

The El Paso lawsuit contends the Texas city's growth depends on it being able to obtain water from southern Dona Ana County.

Udall said it's wrong to assume that agriculture must be sacrificed to provide for urban growth.

"Why do we want to drive agriculture out?" Udall said. "If we do that, we become an urban glob, a parasitic existence that does not produce any of its own food.

"We can and must preserve agriculture if we are going to have water conservation," Udall said. "You can have your cake and eat it, too, if you make this commitment to water conservation."

Neither New Mexico nor El Paso should take the position that they can continue to use water in the wasteful way it has been used, Udall said. Such conservation efforts as drip irrigation, reverting to desert landscaping instead of lawns and using efficient toilets and showerheads should be employed, he said.

Udall said that states should manage their own water supplies through water compacts.

John Salopek of the Elephant Butte Irrigation District said if El Paso succeeds in obtaining 296,000 acre-feet a year from the Mesilla and Hueco bolsons, the water table will be lowered so far that farming no longer will be feasible in the Mesilla Valley.

Udall said his home state of Arizona already has gone through the water problems New Mexico now faces. Tucson is the largest city living off a dwindling water supply and is still growing, he said, because it has implemented serious water conservation measures.

Udall also said elaborate plans such as piping in water from other states don't work.

"Forget all these big plans," he said. "We're going to have to learn to live with and make do with what's in our valleys."

Congress eventually may have to address western water problems if a satisfactory solution is not found in the courts, Udall said.

Four hopefuls vie for two seats on criminal appeals court

The Associated Press

The June 2 Democratic run-off races for two seats on the Court of Criminal Appeals, the state's highest criminal court, include one incumbent, a former court administrator, a former district attorney and a state district judge.

The battle for Place 2 pits Judge W.C. "Bill" Davis, who often has sided with prosecutors during his seven years on the high court bench, against Roy Greenwood.

The Place 3 race to replace retiring Judge Wendell Odom has narrowed from a seven-candidate field to a runoff between former Bexar County District Attorney Bill White and State District Judge Thomas Thorpe of Dallas.

Here are profiles of the four candidates:

W.C. DAVIS

Davis, 61, who agrees that he is one of the three judges lawyers generally view as conservative, was appointed by then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe in 1977 and won a six-year term in 1978.

"My philosophy is the defendant is entitled to a fair trial, but not entitled to a perfect trial. If a conviction can be upheld, it should be," he said.

Davis, a Bryan native, was elected Brazos County judge in 1958 and held the post until then-Gov. John Connally named him to the 85th District Court bench in 1967. After being appointed to the appellate court, Davis served 30 days before drawing an opponent in the 1978 Democratic primary, which he won.

ROY GREENWOOD

Greenwood, 39, has questioned Davis' work habits, saying a judge must "work hard and spend appropriately and efficiently the taxpayers' money."

Greenwood, a former administrative assistant to the court, complains that the present bench has a "serious quality control problem."

Greenwood describes himself as a moderate and noted that he has been on both sides of the courtroom, representing the Texas Department of Corrections for two years and practicing criminal law for 14 years.

BILL WHITE

White, 52, served as an assistant prosecutor in San Antonio before Briscoe appointed him district attorney in 1977. He won his 1978 race, but was defeated for re-election in 1982. White was an assistant attorney general from March 1983 until January, when he resigned to run for the court.

He has been endorsed by the AFL-CIO and a number of law enforcement officials statewide.

THOMAS THORPE

Thorpe, 55, has been a district judge since 1973 and was an assistant to Wade for seven years. He noted that White never has served as a judge.

Thorpe has been endorsed by the Dallas County Sheriff's Association and the Dallas Police and Firefighters associations.

Ship's owner destroys papers, caller claims

HOUSTON (AP) — The owner of a drilling ship which sank in the South China Sea has been destroying papers which relate to the ship's sinking, an attorney says he has been told.

Lawyer Frank M. Staggs Jr. said in an affidavit an anonymous employee of Global Marine Drilling Co. called him last week to say that six or eight of the firm's executives "have been engaged in a systematic process of destroying sensitive documents regarding the sinking," the Houston Chronicle reported today.

Staggs said he got the call Friday. The caller told him the destruction was being carried out "with the knowledge of, and under the direction of, Global Marine's attorneys," he said.

Joseph Cheavins, attorney for Global Marine, said the report is false.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black ordered the firm and all others involved to preserve all papers pertaining to the Glomar Java Sea. Black's order was apparently signed Friday but filed Wednesday, clerks said.

The Glomar Java Sea sank during a typhoon Oct. 25. The vessel, which carried a crew of 81, had been drilling for oil in the South China Sea.

Divers recovered 31 bodies from the wreck, which lies under 300 feet of water. They spotted three more which they were unable to recover. Forty-seven workers are still unaccounted for.

Relatives of at least 20 crewmen have sued Global Marine, claiming negligence caused the sinking of the ship between China and Vietnam. Global Marine denies the allegation.

As part of the legal discovery process, the judge has routinely ordered Global Marine and other parties in the case to share any documents about the ship in preparation for a trial of the lawsuits.

If the company has destroyed some of these documents, it could harm the efforts of the families to prove negligence by the company only if copies of the papers are not available from other sources, said Houston lawyer Fred Hagans, legal spokesman for the families.

The sharing of documents about the ship ground to a halt in early May, when Global Marine accused lawyers for the relatives of releasing pieces of evidence to the media.

The company cited an April 29 article in the Chronicle that included portions of internal company memos and letters. The article said the memos, written six weeks before the sinking, warned that supervisors and crew members were downplaying safety measures.

Dallas officials may redo budget for GOP meeting

DALLAS (AP) — City officials say they may have to revise the municipal budget for the Republican National Convention to make cuts in some areas because of cost overruns in others.

Assistant City Manager Levi Davis said Wednesday that the plan was being considered, but Mayor Starke Taylor said he hopes the city will get financial help from the GOP.

Officials said some items for which the city is paying under terms of a contract with the National Republican Committee are costing more than estimated, and some are less expensive than expected.

Davis told the city council that unanticipated security expenses are driving the budget up by about $457,000, raising the cost of the convention to nearly $3.7 million.

PUBLIC NOTICE
COUNTY OF MIDLAND
TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The County of Midland is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) for a Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) grant. The County's application will be submitted to TDCA on or before June 20,1984.

A second public hearing will be held at 6:30 P.M. on June 7, 1984, at the Ray DeLeon residence, 200 East Langview, Midland, Texas, to discuss the specific details of the application which the County of Midland will be submitting to TDCA.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views. Written comments will be accepted by the County up until the time that the application is submitted to TDCA.

The basic intent of the TCDP program is to eliminate slums, blighted housing and deteriorated neighborhoods by providing improved streets; parks and community centers; improved utility systems; better drainage; and other public facilities. TCDP funds may also be used to support economic development activities and public services including manpower training, crime prevention, health care, drug abuse and child care programs.

For further information on the TCDP program, contact Terry Louis at 682-9481. Handicapped individuals who might have trouble in attending these public hearings should contact the Midland County Commissioner's Court to arrange for special assistance.

U.S. Posts Record $12.2 Billion Trade Deficit

The foreign trade deficit hit a fourth consecutive monthly record in April, the Commerce Department has reported. Imports surpassed exports by $12.2 billion in April and stands at $42.01 billion for the first four months of 1984.

Saxon Oil has restructuring plan

From Staff Reports

DALLAS — Saxon Oil Co. has announced that it has signed definitive agreements to settle the company's debts to banks and certain other creditors, restructure its capitalization, raise additional funds and exchange common stock for its present Preferred Stock.

Settlement of the bank debt is pursuant to a definitive agreement with Interallianz Hallwood (Netherlands Antilles) N.V. ("Interallianz"), an affiliate of the Hallwood Group Inc. (NYSE) and Interallianz Bank Zurich, A.G.; InterFirst Bank Dallas, N.A.; Chemical Bank and Bill D. Saxon. The agreement calls for a December 17, 1984 closing but the company is hopeful that the closing will take place before then.

On signing of the agreements, Bill D. Saxon, chairman of the company, and present holder of 79.7 percent of its common stock, paid $10 million on the company's debt and relinquished the debt to him of approximately $6.5 million. Interallianz paid an additional $2 million earnest money deposit to the banks. InterFirst agreed not to pursue collection of the debt to the banks pending the closing. InterFirst also restored to the company $800,000 of the $1.6 million in company funds that it had previously set off against the company's debt and agreed to restore the remaining $800,000 after completion of a 30-day due diligence period provided to Interallianz to confirm the company's reserves and financial condition.

At the closing, Saxon will transfer to the banks 158,743 shares of new common stock plus the rights attached thereto to purchase additional shares of new common stock in the rights offering discussed below. Saxon will also surrender to the company 600,000 shares of the new common stock plus rights and the rights relating to an additional 400,000 shares of his stock. Also at the closing, the banks will receive from the firm:

Foreign trade deficit hits new record

By The Associated Press

The ability of the U.S. economy to expand at a faster pace than those of other nations helped lift the U.S. trade deficit to a monthly record of $12.19 billion in April, the Commerce Department reported.

It was the fourth straight month in which the trade deficit climbed to a new peak.

In a separate report, the department said sales of new houses fell 4.9 percent in April, and worried builders said high interest rates are curtailing the national housing recovery.

Economists said high interest rates also contribute to the trade deficit by lifting the dollar's value relative to other currencies. That increases U.S. purchasing power of foreign goods and makes American products more expensive to foreign buyers.

U.S. exporters' sales fell 1.2 percent in April to $17.52 billion, while imports jumped 6 percent to $29.71 billion.

However, Rob Wescott of Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia said, "I think we're going to see continued progress in exports as the rest of the world recovers."

The April drop in new-home sales — to an annual rate of 634,000 units — was the third decline in four months. It left the sales level 16 percent below the December 1983 peak of the housing recovery, which began in late 1982.

Industry spokesmen said problems in building and selling homes could mean trouble for the economy in general.

"Traffic has slowed down sharply; there are fewer people coming to look at the subdivisions. It's clearly a matter of interest rates," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

Home loans are edging close to 15 percent, a level many American families are unable or unwilling to pay, Sumichrast said. Also, banks' lending rates have risen in recent months, lifting builders' costs.

But Sumichrast said new home construction for all of 1984 probably will rise from 1983, partly because of a rapid construction pace earlier this year.

Robert Ortner, the Commerce Department's chief economist, expressed little worry about the sales drop.

Energy outlook has rosy forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief energy forecaster dismisses the notion that the Iran-Iraq war will raise gasoline prices this summer, saying oil prices will drop more in 1984 and double-digit increases in natural gas prices will stop.

"Energy prices, in general, should contribute to the stability of the overall price level of U.S. goods and services throughout the 1980s," says J. Erich Evered, head of the Energy Information Administration.

Evered on Wednesday released his agency's 300-page Annual Energy Outlook projecting supply, demand and pricing trends through 1995.

Despite recent attacks by Iraq and Iran on oil tankers in the Persian Gulf, the agency's outlook this year is the rosiest since the Egypt-Israeli war more than a decade ago triggered the first Arab oil embargo and plunged the world into an energy crisis.

"We don't expect any price impact in the United States this summer ... or this year from the Persian Gulf activities," Evered told reporters. "There is a tremendous excess of production capacity outside Iran and we are much better off as a nation to withstand a disruption."

Economic indicators resume upward trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic activity rose 0.5 percent in April, resuming its long upward trend after a single month's decline, the Commerce Department reported today.

The department also said the Index of Leading Indicators had declined only a tiny 0.1 percent in March rather than the relatively sharp 1.1 percent first estimated. The earlier, bigger version of the March decrease, the first in 19 months, had been interpreted by some analysts as a sign the nation's economic recovery was about to slow drastically.

The moderate April increase was likely to be seen as evidence that a slowdown, though still expected, was not likely to be abrupt or to turn into a recession anytime soon.

The index, pulling together a broad range of forward-pointing economic surveys, is designed to forecast the direction of the economy six to nine months in advance. Until March, a month in which many indicators apparently were affected by unusually bad weather, the leading indicators had been on a steady climb as the nation recovered from the 1981-82 recession.

In April, the new report said, the biggest factor pushing the index upward was an increase in Americans production workers' average workweek to 41.2 hours from 40.6 hours in March.

In April, the report said, the leading indicators index rose to 167.8 percent of the 1967 base level of 100.

PREMIER RESOURCES

Premier Resources Ltd. reported a nine percent increase in operating revenues to $4,695,000 for its six month period ended March 31, 1984, up from $4,297,000 in the first six months last year. The company's net loss was $1,537,000, or $.33 per share, in the same period last year.

Ninety-five percent of the net loss, or $1,783,000, was attributable to non-operating, non-cash expenses relating to the writedown of certain drilling rig equipment and to the writedown of marketable securities. He said that the company expects to sell this drilling rig equipment during this fiscal year and has reduced its book value to its estimated market value.

ENSTAR CORP.

ENSTAR Corp.'s board of directors declared quarterly cash dividends on the company's common and convertible preferred stocks.

Dividends of nine cents per common share and 69 cents per convertible preferred share will be paid June 21, 1984 to shareholders of record on June 8, 1984. Both dividends are unchanged from the first quarter of 1984 and the fourth quarter of 1983, when there was an effective six percent increase in ENSTAR's overall dividend rate.

OGLEBAY NORTON CO.

Oblebay Norton Co. incurred a net loss for the first quarter of 1984 of $248,000 or $.07 per share on sales and revenues of $22,385,000, as compared to a net loss of $1,041,000 or $.30 per share on sales and revenues of $19,708,000 for the same period in 1983.

First-quarter prformance typically reflects the seasonal nature of the business and is not indicative of the results anticipated for the full year.

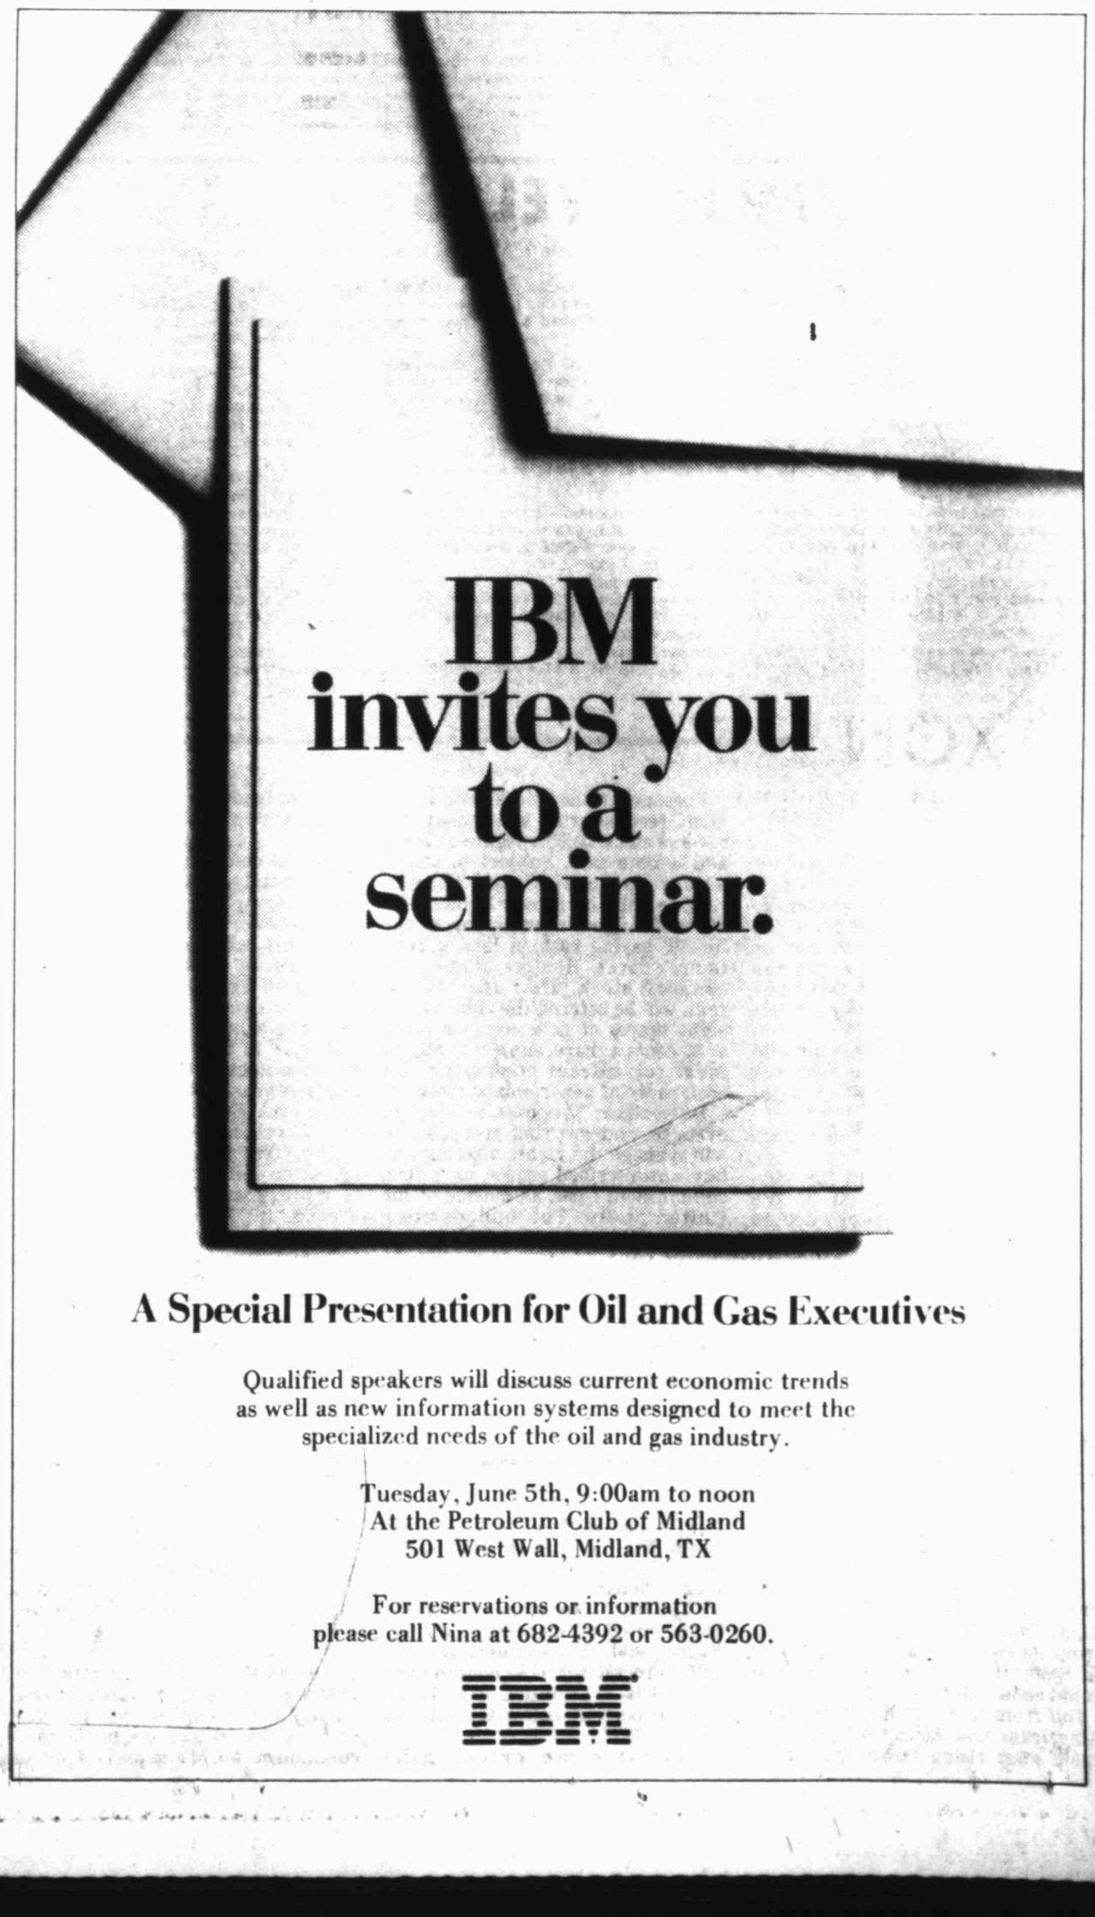

AIR MIDWEST

Passenger traffic grew 22.4 percent during April 1984 as compared to the same period of a year ago for Wichita, Kansas-based Air Midwest. The airline carried 37,317 passengers during April 1984 which is the second highest amount of monthly enplaned passengers in the company's history. Available Seat Miles and Revenue Passenger Miles grew 9.9 percent and 15.9 percent respectively during the same period. The Load Factor for April 1984 was 41.8 percent up 2.1 percentage points from April 1983.

Air Midwest also reported that enplaned passengers were up 28.5 percent during the first four months of 1984 over the first four months of 1983. Available Seat Miles, Revenue Passenger Miles and Load Factor were also higher than 1983's figures.

MIDCON CORP.

MidCon Corp. reported net income of $89.5 million or $3.00 per share for the six months ended March 31, 1984, compared with net income of $83.8 million and earnings per share of $2.84 for the comparable period in 1983. Net income for the quarter ended March 31, 1984, was $49.0 million or $1.64 per share, an increase of $3.4 million, or nine cents per share, from the 1983 second quarter.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Exxon's 24,900 ft., deep Ellenberger test pays off in Pecos County for 25.6 Mmcfd

Almost a quarter of a century after what was then the world's deepest well was abandoned as a dry hole, Exxon USA, Midland, has completed a prolific gas producer in the McComb field, eight miles east of Fort Stockton.

The Stroman Gas Unit No.1, Exxon's third well in the Pecos County field tested for 25.62 Mmcfd on a 27/64 in. choke from perforations in the Ellenberger at 22,652 ft. to 24,730 ft. following stimulation of the producing formation with 200,000 gal. acid.

The well was drilled to 24,900 ft. and plugged back to 24,811. Top of of the Ellenberger pay was 22,624. Bottom hole temperature at 23,600 ft. was 367 degrees Fahrenheit.

Location of the deep producer is 1,867 ft. from east line and 1,320 ft. from north line of Section 530, TI&M survey, eight miles east of Fort Stockton.

Dan Mendell III, Midcontinent Division manager for Exxon, said that success of the Stroman well removes the doubt that commercially attractive wells can be completed in the McComb area at depths of almost five miles.

Exxon has another well in the area at total depth and is preparing to test it.

The McComb field deep zones have a long history of failures and disappointment for both the area and Exxon.

Two miles east of the successful Stroman well, Phillips Petroleum University EE No.l, the world's deepest well for many years, was drilled to 25,340 ft. in the Ellenberger and abandoned in 1959.

Exxon's Stroman 'B' No.l, a scheduled Ellenberger test 2.5 miles northwest, was abandoned at 19,400 ft. because of adverse hole conditions in 1969. In 1972, the Ralph Lowe University 17-1, four miles southeast of the location, was abandoned at 28,500 ft. in the Ellenberger. The Exxon Stroman C-1, was drilled to 26,214 ft. in 1975 and tested non-commercial rates of gas from the Ellenberger.

The first success in the area was Exxon's 25,525 ft. McComb No.l discovery well in 1982. It was followed by the 25,735 ft. McComb B-1, which was a confirmation well drilled in 1983.

Initial testing of the McComb wells left doubt as to the viability of the continued field development in the deep, high-cost area. A dry hole at Exxon's other 1983 test, the 26,805 ft. Pryor Estate well four miles northeast, further clouded the outlook. But the Stroman success has put some sunshine into that clouded outlook,and a rightful reason for pride on the part of Exxon.

"We're extremely proud that our persistence and faith in the Permian Basin has once again paid off," said Mendell. "These wells, if relatively trouble-free, take about a year to drill and complete at costs approaching $10 million.

Mendell said that the industry must continue to take deep prospecting risks, because gas reserves in the United States have reached their lowest levels since 1953.

Enstar finals Strawn wildcat for 212 bopd

Enstar, Midland, has completed its No.4 Penrose Oldham flowing 212 bopd of 46.1 API, 536 mcfd, and no water on a 14/64 choke.

Located 1,980 ft. from south line and 2,180 ft. from east line of Section 27, Block 37, T-1-S, T&P survey, 15 miles east of Midland, the well was drilled to 11,850 ft. plugged back to 11,650 and completed in the Strawn through perforations at 10,262 to 10,326 ft.

The well was drilled as a Fusselman test on the east flank of the Midmar East (Fusselman) field which has five wells producing from the Fusselman.

When the well proved non productive in the Fusselman, it was completed in the Strawn.

The field was opened by the No.1 Midmar in July of 1982, when the 11,700 ft. well was completed in the Fusselman for 545 bopd on a 14/64 in. choke.

The nearest Strawn production is gas production three miles to the west, but Enstar was there was possible Strawn production in the area, and tested for it on the way to the Fusselman.

Possible additional Strawn production could be in the area and may percipitate some more drilling, although no major play is anticipated for the area. Also, some of the current Fusselman wells, may be recompleted in the Strawn, as Fusselman production depletes

SAXON:

— A new series of 8.5 percent Cumulative Preferred Stock with a total stated value of $12 million, to be secured by collateral from the company or Interallianz as may be later determined, and which the company may redeem at that value at any time and must redeem in five years;

— Five-year warrants to buy approximately 4.04 million shares of the company's new common stock at $1.77 a share; and — 2,352,941 shares of new common stock.

The banks will accept the payments, shares and warrants in full satisfaction of the company's debt to the banks, with principal and accrued interest now approximately $109 million. Saxon's guarantee of $16 million of the debt to the banks was reduced by his payment of $10 million at signing and the balance of $6 million to be released at the closing.

Pursuant to the Interallianz agreement, restructuring will consist of a reverse stock split, a rights offering and a note sale. Subject to shareholder approval, Saxon Oil will reverse split its presently outstanding 21.2 million common shares one for 10, paying cash in lieu of fractional shares. Holders of the new common stock, after the reverse split, will be offered the right to buy eight shares of new common stock at 85 cents a share, subject to adjustment for market conditions, for each share of new common stock.

Interallianz proposes to lead an overseas underwriting group which will manage the rights offering and buy unsubscribed shares, on a firm commitment basis, all outside of the United States. The underwriting group will receive for its services, shares equal to approximately 8.8 percent of the new common stock outstanding after the completion of the rights offered.

Additionally, Interallianz will buy from the company, and resell outside the United States, $10 million aggregate amount of senior notes on terms which remain to be determined.

The oil company expects to raise aproximately $31 million from the restructuring and the note sale.

Trustee for the unsecured creditors' trust, which now holds all the outstanding preferred stock, has agreed to exchange its preferred stock for two million shares of the new common stock, plus rights to purchase 16 million shares of new common stock in the rights offering; and five-year warrants to buy two million shares of new common stock at $1.77 a share.

The firm also said that it has agreed to settle its unsecured debts of approximately $5.5 million to L.R. French, Jr., Midland operator, and the FDIC for approximately $825,000 cash and five-year warrants to purchase 576,333 shares of new common stock at $1.77 per share.

Closing of the agreements are subject to numerous conditions, including the Saxon Oil filing of a combined proxy statement/prospectus with the Securities and Exchange Commission and approval of the restructuring by present shareholders.

If no existing shareholders exercise their rights to buy new common stock and no warrants are exercised, the new common stock will be held 2.76 percent by Saxon, 7.40 percent by the banks, 8.80 percent by Interallianz, 1.26 percent by existing public shareholders and 79.78 percent by the underwriters.

Pursuant to the agreement, Bill D. Saxon has given Interallianz an irrevocable proxy to vote his shares of common stock until the closing.

Saxon Oil also announced, pursuant to the agreement, that its Board of Directors was increased to six members and that Anthony J. Gumbiner, Chairman of the Board of the Hallwood Group Inc., Brian M. Troup, Managing Director of Interallianz Hallwood (Netherland Antilles) N.V., and Hans-Peter Holinger, Managing Director of Interallianz Bank Zurich, A.G., were appointed to the board of the company to fill the vacancies.

ENERGY:

Evered's agency says a continuing glut of oil on the world market will likely cause the price of oil to drop from its current $29 a barrel to $26 in 1986, discounting inflation, and could send it as low as $22.

But from then on, the agency said, Americans can expect oil prices to again start rising faster than inflation — just as they did throughout the 1970s — so that by 1995, oil will be costing about $50 a barrel in today's dollars.

"The price explosions of the 1970s have caused oil markets to shrink," Evered said. "For example, our current forecast for U.S. consumption in 1990 is 16.6 million barrels per day, 30 percent below the forecast made in 1977.

"These same prices have encouraged efforts to find and produce more oil," Evered said. "As a result, total demand for oil is significantly below the world production capacity, particularly in OPEC countries."

Statistics in the report show member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries producing 31.4 million barrels per day or more than 64 percent of the noncommunist world's supply of oil in 1973.

That OPEC share declined to 18.6 million barrels or 43 percent of the world's supply last year and is predicted in the report to rise back to 24.1 million barrels or roughly 46 percent of the supply by 1995.

Evered's dismissal of the Iran-Iraq war as a threat to oil supplies generally coincide with statements by most Reagan administration officials.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Application approved to revise gas unit

AUSTIN — The School Land Board has approved an application by Newport Petroleum Inc., for a revised gas unit in the Nine Mile Draw Field, Reeves County.

The Conoco-State 20-1 Unit consists of 697.805 acres, of which 350.24 acres are state-owned.

On Sept. 1, 1981, the School Land Board approved the gas unit as 691.81 acres which included the state lands.

The amendment is requested because of a survey on the private acreage, which had been approved as 341.57 acres.

The well continues to produce from the Fusselman Formation, the board reports.

UGI Union Supply open store in Eunice

ARTESIA, N.M. — E.L. "Ed" Nowell, president of UGI Union Supply Co., announces the opening of its latest store in Eunice, N.M., located at 1110 West Texas. The store isoperated by Dave Ancell, manager. It is a full line supply store, including a complete subsurface pump shop equipped with the very latest state of the art equipment.

UGI Union Supply Co. has been serving the oil and gas industry since 1939.

Construction begins on 6-mile pipeline

HOUSTON — Tejas Gas Corp. has announced the commencement of construction of a 6-mile 12-inch gas pipeline in Freestone County, Texas, to connect new gas supplies contracted for purchase and transportation. This is an expansion of the 48-mile 12-inch line Tejas placed in service in February of this year. The pipeline will have a capacity of 100,000 Mcfd. Tejas Gas Corp. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hamilton Oil Corp. of Denver, Colo.

Australian authorities approve sale

CHICAGO — Amoco Oil Co. has confirmed that it and the Queensland State Government Insurance Office have received approval from Australian authorities for the sale of Amoco Australia, Ltd., to BP Australia, Ltd.

Transfer of the 45,000 barrel-per-day refinery at Brisbane, seven product terminals, and more than 600 service stations will occur at a later date.

Amoco owns 80 percent of the Australian petroleum refining and marketing company. Queensland State Government Insurance Office owns the remaining 20 percent. No sale price has been announced.

Amoco Oil is a wholly-owned petroleum marketing, refining and transportation subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Firms to explore Humboldt Prospect

AMARILLO — Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co. and Kimbark Oil & Gas Co. have announced an agreement to explore Kimbark's Humboldt Prospect in Elko County, Nev.

Under terms of the agreement, Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co.'s subsidiary, AGM Corp., will operate the exploration programon the approximately 154,000 gross acre prospect. Drilling is expected to commence in June, 1984, on an initial exploratory well. The well is projected to test the Paleozoic section to a depth of 13,000 feet.

Stock sold in private transaction

DENVER — Presidio Oil Co. has reported that Mary L. Smith of Philadelphia, Pa., has acquired 80,590 shares of the company's common stock in a private transaction at a price of $4.25 per share. The seller was not disclosed.

Presidio president, L.A. Walstrom, Jr. said the purchaser has indicated that the position is for investment only. He noted that the transaction brings Smith's holdings in Presidio to 557,613 shares, or 10.2 percent of the outstanding stock.

Smith is represented on Presidio's board of directors by Peter H. Havens of Philadelphia.

She is a former major shareholder of Kewanee Industries, Inc. which was sold to Gulf Oil Corp. in 1977.

DO YOU WANT A NORMAL LENS!

We don't think so! In the past the so-called "normal lens" was far less expensive than lenses of other types, especially zoom lenses. Now for only $70 more than the price of a 50mm lens you can get a 35-70 f2.8 macro zoom lens. We call this lens a "super normal" because it drastically increases the versatility of your 35mm camera. You get 36 different lenses in one small package. Wide angles for scenery and groups, telephoto for sports and portraits plus the added bonus of macro for close-ups of flowers, etc. When you buy any of today's exceptional 35mm cameras, match it with the Sigma 35-70 f2.8 Macro "Super Normal".

Despite convenience, boxed juices no bargain

By LINDA ANDERSON

Orange juice has been a breakfast tradition for generations. It is delicious, nutritious, full of vitamin C and comes in several convenient forms, such as fresh, frozen, canned or bottled. How can anyone possibly improve orange juice?

Probably no one can. So some manufacturers have settled for trying to improve the container.

Borden Inc. and Minute Maid are some of the manufacturers who have recently begun marketing orange juice in boxes. Borden's label advertising says "100 percent pure," "no sugar or preservatives added," and "from concentrate." The Minute Maid label advertising claims are exactly the same. Almost word-for-word. These new packages are individual-serving boxes, complete with individual straws. Three single-serving boxes are sold together in a package.

We tested these two new style orange-juice-in-a-box against Minute Maid frozen orange juice in a can for taste, price and advertising accuracy. Taste-testers were adults, teenagers and a small child who l-o-v-e-s orange juice.

A 6-ounce can of Minute Maid frozen juice, by package directions, should be diluted with three cans full of water to make 24 ounces. Borden juice-in-a-box and Minute Maid boxed orange juice were available in three boxes of 8.45-ounces each, so both containers were comparable in amount of juice per package. However, Borden cost $1.19, Minute Maid juice-in-a-box cost $1.15 and Minute Maid frozen cost 65 cents. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Most of the taste testers agreed about the flavors — juices in both containers seemed identical. The adult male tester said Borden juice tasted slightly less acidic and slightly more flavorful, but no one else could taste any difference at all. (One teenage tester said the Minute Maid in the box tasted bitter, but she was chewing a wad of cinnamon gum at the time, so her vote was not counted.)

The 3-year-old tester was fascinated by the juice in the box. When she finished her share of Borden juice, she requested some Minute Maid frozen be poured in the Borden box so she could continue drinking out of a box.

Juices in both containers are advertised as pure orange juice — no strange sounding ingredients with un-pronounceable names are listed on the labels.

Minute Maid frozen orange juice has been available for many years and has developed a reputation as a high quality product. The concentrated juice must be mixed with water which makes the Minute Maid frozen variety slightly less convenient than boxed juices. (But how difficult is it to open a can and pour the juice and three cans full of water in a non-metal container?)

Borden and Minute Maid orange juices in the new packaging are convenient — just pop in the straw — each box has its own straw for added convenience — and drink. Of course, the labels on the boxes recommend the juice be served chilled, which takes time.

The three juices taste alike. The boxed juice is slightly more convenient than Minute Maid frozen.

But price-wise, Borden orange juice was almost twice as expensive as Minute Maid frozen orange juice, and Minute Maid boxed was only a few pennies less expensive than Borden.

In spite of boxed juices not having to be mixed with Midland water, I find it hard to believe the fun of drinking juice out of a box is worth the price.

DEAR ABBY

Wife resents treatment of disabled husband

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a handsome man in his 30s who is totally disabled due to an accident. He's a quadriplegic who has not regained his ability to speak and must be fed through a tube.

I know he understands what is being said to him because he smiles a lot and changes his facial expressions. He requires 24-hour care, but he is living at home because I want him here.

My problem: How can I protect him from well-meaning people who tickle his chin, pat him on the head and even kiss him and treat him like a child? It's always women who do this. Recently, a woman I met for the first time actually hugged and kissed him! (It did not occur to me to kiss HER husband.)

I want my husband to be treated like the man he still is, the man I am married to and dearly love. His children and I give him plenty of love and affection. I appreciate those people who care about him, but if he weren't in a wheelchair I'm sure they wouldn't do some of the things they do.

Am I being silly? What do other people with problems like this do? I know if I were in a wheelchair I wouldn't want people I hardly know patting me on the head or kissing me. — NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: You are not being silly. Your problem is one that many people must deal with. The solution is to educate the well-meaning public, and your letter is a giant step in the right direction. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my mid-30s, married and have children. Now that our family is complete, I've decided to have a very embarrassing medical problem taken care of.

I am incontinent! I've been referred by my family doctor to a urologist and am scheduled for surgery to correct that problem. I am facing a hospital stay of at least three days.

My problem? What on earth do I tell my family and friends? My problem is especially mortifying, and I have never confided it to anyone except my husband. I've heard my mother make unkind remarks about older women who were so "nasty" they wet their pants every time they coughed, sneezed or laughed. My cheeks would burn and my heart would beat faster at such comments, so I could never tell her that I was afflicted with that same "nasty" problem.

Please help me dream up a believable reason for being in the hospital for three days or more. I couldn't bring myself to tell the truth. — POSITIVELY ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: If you must offer an explanation, just say you're going in for minor surgery of a personal nature.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Home prices, trends differ across country

Copley News Service

On March 1, 1983, the Barber family purchased a home in a pleasant neighborhood in Louisville, Ky., for $52,065.

One year later — in March of this year — the Barbers sold their Kentucky home in preparation for a move to a New York City suburb. The selling price was $47,900 — reflecting a drop in value of 8 percent in just one year.

In the New York area, the Barbers purchased a home from the Coon family for $100,500. The Coons also had owned their home for just a year, purchasing it in March 1983 for $79,395. That's a value increase of 21 percent.

Those are not wild "off-the-wall" home prices. They precisely represent the median prices in these two major markets at these two points in time.

It shows dramatically and realistically the differences in home price levels and trends in varying geographic areas. We are a greatly diverse country, even in the prices paid for homes.

During the first quarter of this year, Louisville had the lowest median home price of any major market in the United States — $47,900. This area also experienced the greatest one-year drop in home prices — down 8 percent from the first quarter of 1983.

On the other hand, homes in metropolitan New York experienced the greatest value increases during the same one-year period — up 21 percent to a median price of $100,500.

Therefore, for the Barber family to maintain the same basic lifestyle in New York that they enjoyed in Louisville, they had to sell a home for $47,900 (losing over $4,000 on the investment) and purchase another home for $100,500.

Of course, if the Coon family moved from New York to Louisville, they would have financially gained as much as the Barbers lost.

It could be worse for the Barbers. If they relocated from Louisville to Santa Ana, Calif., they would have sold a $47,900 home and purchased a $133,500 home just to stay even. Those are the median home prices in those two areas.

The lesson to be learned is this: Home prices and trends (going up or down) vary greatly in different parts of the country. When you read about national averages, in this column or other writings, it doesn't necessarily apply directly to your community.

The national median price of resale homes during the first quarter of this year was $71,800. That's a 5 percent increase over the median home price one year earlier.

The above figures were determined from a recent survey, conducted by the National Association of Realtors (NAR). Such figures also can vary substantially from survey to survey.

For example, another survey was conducted at the same time by Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service — a national franchise organization of 450 member firms.

Columbus: Fast food capital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The restaurant meal you order in six months may be cooking away now in a test kitchen in this "test market" city.

"Columbus has become the fast food concept capital of the country, with 10 restaurant franchise and chain operations based here, most started in the last 20 years," said John Christie, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce president.

"One reason the area has become a restaurant chain center is that the ethnic, racial and socio-economic mix makes it a natural to become a favorite test market."

Competency crucial

WASHINGTON (AP) — When choosing a doctor, most people consider physician competence more crucial than cost, says the Health Insurance Association of America.

Number of Americans under five years old increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — After years of declining enrollments the nation's elementary schools are facing a rising tide of students, a new government study reveals.

The number of Americans under age 5 climbed to 17.8 million as of last July, up from 16.3 million in 1980 and the most in that age bracket in 15 years, the Census Bureau reported in a recently released study.

This sharp growth reverses a long-term trend of declining births as members of the huge post-war Baby Boom generation have families of their own, reported Louisa Miller, author of the report.

"This is the largest population under 5 since the 17.9 million recorded in 1968," Ms. Miller wrote.

The increase is almost entirely due to the rise in the number of women in their prime childbearing years, Ms. Miller pointed out, as the total fertility rate has changed very little since 1975.

Because the baby boom generation is so large it can produce an increase in births without increasing the rate per 1,000 women. The rate has remained at about 1,800 births per 1,000 women.

Many population experts refer to the current increase in births as an echo of the baby boom. Lower birth totals in the past few years have resulted from the smaller number of potential parents born during the Depression and World War II.

In the near future, Ms. Miller said, the 5-to-13 age group, which has been declining in recent years, will stabilize and then begin to grow as those under 5 today enter school.

The 5-to-13 group dropped 3.3 percent between 1980 and 1983, falling from 31.1 million to 30.1 million, she said.

A 10 percent decline was reported in the 14-to-17 age population with the advancement of the last of the baby boom generation into adulthood. This age group dropped from 16.2 million to 14.6 million in the same period.

The maturing of Americans born from 1946 through the early 1960s has also begun to affect the ranks of young adults. There was a small decline in the number of persons aged 18 to 24 between 1980 and 1983. The group fell from 30.3 million to 30.1 million.

This "signals a major departure from the enormous growth in the 18-to-24 age group experienced in the 1960s and 1970s," Ms. Miller wrote, and "the decline will become more significant in the years to come ..."

The population aged 25 to 34 grew significantly during the 1980-83, she said, from 37.3 million to 40.3 million.

In contrast, the number of Americans aged 45 to 54 dropped slightly, from 22.8 million to 22.3 million.

'Bloomies': No ordinary emporium

Hearst Feature Service

NEW YORK — Where else but Bloomingdale's would you find Rosalynn Carter autographing books, a television crew shooting a made-for-TV movie, a store-wide Portuguese promotion and a salute to the Olympics — all on the same day?

It's little wonder that when Hollywood wanted a stylish setting for Robin Williams' defection from the Soviet Union in "Moscow on the Hudson" or a place of utter fascination for Madison the mermaid in "Splash," the industry turned to Bloomingdale's.

The store's unabashed staging of merchandise makes it living theater.

Bloomie's — a trademarked nickname — is one of the stores under the Federated umbrella, which includes such other formidable merchants as Abraham and Straus, Bullock's, Burdine's, Foley's and Rich's.

In 1983, Bloomingdale's posted a $787.9 million volume for its 13 branches, up from $680.5 million the previous year. Today, Bloomingdale's stores range from Massachusetts to Texas.

The Bloomies lore is as rich as the $1,000 dresses that hang in the YSL/Rive Gauche boutique, one of the many high-fashion departments that have attracted the likes of Jacqueline Onassis, Arlene Dahl, Polly Bergen and other jet-setting clotheshorses.

The heavily-congested main aisle in the cosmetics area has become a sort of public lover's lane where couples can be seen handholding and kissing as salesgirls hawk hundreds of perfumes and colognes.

For an emporium that has come to symbolize the richest and the best, its beginnings are surprisingly modest.

In her 1980 book, "Bloomingdale's," Maxine Brady traced the store's climb from a dry-goods and notions shop that catered to maids of the well-to-do in 1872 through its transformation into the "world's most widely imitated and successful department store."

Bloomies was founded by Lyman and Joseph Bloomingdale during the Victorian age in a location three blocks from where the flagship store now stands at 59th Street and Lexington Avenue.

Even then, the Bloomingdales were determined that their "ladies" keep au courant. When Napoleon III's Empress Eugenie created a rage for the hoopskirt, they opened "Bloomingdale's Hoopskirt and Ladies' Notions Shop" so that New York women could follow suit.

The greatest growth followed World War II. In order to get customers used to the idea of an upscale image, a major collection called "Woman of 1947" was assembled. There were 26 outfits ranging from suits to hostess pajamas by such American designers as Claire McCardell, Pauline Trigere and Adele Simpson.

The catch was, the merchandise wasn't for sale. The purpose was to further "research, education, and artistic effort in the field of creative fashion design."

Simultaneously, Bloomingdale's transformed its furniture department. Six renowned furniture designers created life-size model rooms from designs selected from an architectural contest the store had sponsored. The store's intentions of trading up was apparent to the press and its customers.

Brady says that all of Bloomingdale's top executives have shared a similar merchandising philosophy through the years. And that is "merchandising presentation — the store as theater, as museum, as a center for entertainment.

One of the store's most lavish productions was a Chinese import fair; merchandise for the 1980 promotion was valued in excess of $10 million. In the works, says store spokesperson Fugi Ferguson, is a mammoth-scale Japanese extravaganza.

A pile of scripts with Bloomingdale's written into the plots sits on Ferguson's desk. "We're constantly turning projects down. Everybody wants to shoot something at Bloomingdale's."

Indeed, according to a spokesman for Mayor Koch's Office for Motion Picture and Television Production, "We get numerous inquiries about filming at Bloomingdale's, which we then refer to the store."

In "An Unmarried Woman," Jill Clayburgh's husband left her for another woman he met at the Bloomingdale's shirt counter. In Woody Allen's "Manhattan," Michael Murphy met his love interest in the store. Bloomingdale's had a cameo in "Willie and Phil."

The store also received mention in the films "Starting Over," "The Electric Horseman" and "California Suite."

As with some performers, Bloomingdale's continues to play the part, thriving on the theatrics. Some observers say that it is to the detriment of being a merchant. Still, you can't argue with a success story.

'Indiana Jones' makes $42.3 million in six days

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Swashbuckling "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" made off with a record $42.3 million in its first six days in the theaters, kicking off what Hollywood hopes will be a strong summer movie season, packed with escapist fare.

"Indiana Jones," the eagerly awaited sequel to "Raiders of the Lost Ark," smashed what had been considered unbeatable records set last Memorial Day by the final chapter in the "Star Wars" trilogy, "Return of the Jedi," Paramount Pictures said Tuesday.

From Wednesday through Monday, the $27.5 million yarn about a mild-mannered professor (Harrison Ford) who turns into a whip-cracking scourge of evil, surpassed the $41.1 million that "Jedi" collected in its first six days.

"Indiana Jones," a fantasy-adventure from "Jedi" creator George Lucas and Steven Spielberg, also established a new single-day mark on Sunday of $9.3 million while playing in 1,685 theaters. In comparison, "Jedi" gobbled up $8.4 million in one day last year in 1,002 theaters.

ENTERTAINMENT

No other major studio films were released over the holiday, a nod to the earnings potential of "Indiana Jones." Of the movies already in release, Robert Redford's "The Natural" from Tri-Star Pictures was a distant No. 2, taking in $6.9 million from Friday through Monday at 989 theaters.

"Indiana Jones" collected $33.9 million in the same four days.

The movie far surpassed the $12.7 million logged by "Raiders" in its first six days in 1981. "Raiders" went on to rank sixth in all-time box office receipts, while "Jedi" became third best ever.

The "Indiana Jones" grosses fueled hopes that this could be the biggest movie summer ever, with a lineup including a new "Star Trek" film, Spielberg's "Gremlins" and a Dan Aykroyd-Bill Murray comedy, "Ghostbusters."

"I think it's going to be a very strong summer for both distribution and exhibition," Paul Del Rossi, president of the nation's largest theater chain, CGG Theaters Inc., said Tuesday from his Boston headquarters.

Del Rossi said the lineup of summer films, which includes appearances by Dolly Parton, Sylvester Stallone, Burt Reynolds, Clint Eastwood — even Miss Piggy — was perfect hot-weather escapist fare.

"People want to be entertained in the summer," Del Rossi said.

"Star Trek III: The Search for Spock" goes out Friday in the largest release in movie history: 1,966 theaters in the United States and Canada.

Paramount will release "Top Secret!" — a new movie from the creators of the 1981 hit, "Airplane!" — on June 22.

On June 8, Spielberg's house-haunting "Gremlins" debuts at the same time Aykroyd and Murray begin exterminating poltergeists in "Ghostbusters."

The summer is so glutted with films that the major studios are elbowing one another for exhibition space. "Top Secret!" was postponed from June 8 to avoid the "Gremlins"-"Ghostbusters" crunch, and another summer release, "Supergirl," was kicked all the way back to Christmas.

Universal postponed a June 15 release of "The Last Starfighter," a teen-oriented adventure starring Robert Preston as an alien come to Earth. "The Last Starfighter" will go out July 13, where it will face off against Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and crew in "The Muppets Take Manhattan."

"We think it's a winner," Bob Selig, president of the Theater Association of California, said Tuesday of the summer lineup. "We're roiling along substantially ahead of last year" — which itself was a record summer in which more than $1 billion was spent at U.S. and Canadian box offices.

'Bells Are Ringing' will close Saturday

"Bells Are Ringing" closes Saturday in Theatre One at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The production is a special fund-raiser for Midland Community Theatre presented by ACT IX.

"Bells Are Ringing," which originally opened on Broadway in 1957 and ran for almost two and a half years, features a musical score by Jule Styne with book and lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

Styne's score contains 15 songs including such popular hits as "Just in Time," "Long Before I Knew You" and "The Party's Over." Among Styne's other credits are "Gypsy," "Funny Girl" and "Sugar," as well as the Oscar-winning score for "Three Coins in a Fountain."

Ms. Comden and Green, induced into the Songwriters Hall of Fame in 1979, are also responsible for such hits as "Peter Pan," "Wonderful Town" and the Tony Award winning "On the 20th Century."

For more information call Theatre Midland's box office, 682-4111.

Opree fans to meet at Globe

ODESSA — To celebrate the arrival of summer, Opree fans are invited to bring their lawn chairs and picnic blankets to the Globe Theatre for an "Open Air Opree" in the courtyard at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The West Texas Edition, featuring Les Goddard, Greg Smith, James Whitmire, Steve Estepp and Sherry Lawrence, is the house band for the show. One of the Opree's most popular bands, the group plays a variety of country and western music.

Lynn Alexander will host this week's Opree as well as perform. Other guests include Jimmy Gordon, KYXX air personality Shane Allen and gospel singer Jeannie Copeland.

This week's Opree is planned so fans may enjoy the parklike atmosphere of the Globe's inner court. Those wishing to bring a picnic dinner may come early and eat in the courtyard. A small stage has been built on the west end of the courtyard. Audience members may bring their lawn chairs or blankets and sit on the lawn.

Admission to the Opree is $4 for adults, $2 for students and senior citizens and $1.50 for children under 12. Tickets may be purchased at the Globe from 1 to 5 p.m. through Friday and beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday. In the event of bad weather, the Opree will be moved inside the theater.

For more information, call the Globe at 1-332-1586.

ABC takes back first place in Nielsen ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paced by the comedy movie "Love Thy Neighbor," ABC scored with the three highest-rated television shows for the week ended May 27 and ran off with an easy first place in the Nielsen ratings.

The movie starring John Ritter and Penny Marshall, plus four other shows in the Top 10, put ABC back on top for the fifth time in six weeks.

CBS, last week's winner, fell to second place, nearly three ratings points behind the leader. NBC was in third place. CBS won three places in the Top 10, and NBC had two.

The weekly A.C. Nielsen Co. survey had ABC with an average of 14.6. CBS was second with 11.7, and NBC was third with 11.5. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 14.6 percent of the TV homes were tuned to ABC.

The 11.7 rating was CBS' lowest average since the week ended July 29, 1980, when it scored 11.3 but still came in first.

The next two places after "Love Thy Neighbor" also went to ABC. The second and final chapter of "The Mystic Warrior" was second, and the special "Life's Most Embarrassing Moments" was third.

Completing the Top 10: CBS' "Cagney & Lacey," fourth; NBC's "No Man's Land," a pilot movie starring Stella Stevens as a Western sheriff, fifth; the final episode of CBS' "One Day at a Time," sixth; CBS' "Newhart," seventh; NBC's "The A-Team," eighth; the ABC special "The Funniest Jokes I Ever Heard," ninth; and the ABC magazine show "20-20," 10th.

The second segment of NBC's "First Olympics: Athens 1896," up against ABC's "Mystic Warrior," tied for 35th place. Another NBC movie pilot, "The Sheriff and the Astronaut," tied for 21st place. ABC's coverage of the Indianapolis 500 race was in 23rd place.

ABC kept its lead in the May sweeps. The Arbitron ratings for May 2-27: ABC 15.2, CBS 13.6, NBC 13. The Nielsen ratings for May 3-27: ABC 14.9, CBS 13.7 and NBC 13.0.

The sweeps, which occur three times a year, are a monthlong period during which Nielsen and Arbitron sample the ratings of every television station in the country to determine local advertising rates. While the networks are not directly involved, they do beef up their programming to increase ratings for their affiliate stations.

NBC's "Father Murphy" once again was at the bottom of the ratings. The show has not been out of last place since it replaced "First Camera." The five shows at the bottom, in descending order: NBC's "TV's Greatest Commercials," CBS' "Four Seasons," CBS' "What Have We Learned, Charlie Brown?," NBC's "College Bowl National Championships" and NBC's "Father Murphy."

CBS kept its lead among the evening news shows. ABC was second and NBC was third.

Here are the week's 20 top programs:

1. Movie-"Love Thy Neighbor," ABC, a rating of 20.0 or 16.7 million households.
2. Miniseries-"The Mystic Warrior," Part II, ABC, 18.9 or 15.8 million.
3. "Life's Most Embarrassing Moments," ABC, 18.6 or 15.5 million.
4. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 18.4 or 15.4 million.
5. Movie-"No Man's Land," NBC, 17.3 or 14.4 million.
6. "One Day at a Time," CBS, 17.0 or 14.2 million.
7. "Newhart," CBS, 16.9 or 14.1 million.
8. "The A-Team," NBC, 16.7 or 13.9 million.
9. "The Funniest Jokes I Ever Heard," ABC, 16.4 or 13.7 million.
10. "20-20," ABC, 16.2 or 13.5 million.
11. "Riptide," NBC, 15.9 or 13.3 million.
12. "Hart to Hart," ABC, 15.5 or 13.0 million.
13. Movie-"Invitation to Hell," ABC, 15.4 or 12.9 million.
14. "America's Funniest Foulups," ABC, 14.6 or 12.2 million.
15. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 14.5 or 12.1 million.
16. "60 Minutes," CBS, 14.1 or 11.8 million.
17. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 14.0 or 11.7 million.
18. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 13.9 or 11.6 million.
19. "Remington Steele," NBC, 13.5 or 11.3 million.
20. "The Love Boat," ABC, 13.2 or 11.0 million.

MacLaine receives honorary degree

Shirley MacLaine

NEW YORK (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Shirley MacLaine has another prize to hang on her wall — an honorary degree from Hunter College.

Hunter, part of the City University of New York, recognized Miss MacLaine on Wednesday for her "quest into philosphy and metaphysics ... extraordinary talent as an actress ... and forays into public affairs."

"I've always believed that if I went to college, which I didn't, I would have gone to Hunter. Or maybe I did in another life," said Miss MacLaine, who wrote a best-selling book about her belief in reincarnation.

Miss MacLaine, who won an Oscar this year for her role in "Terms of Endearment" and has a show currently on Broadway, said, "It took me 50 years of traveling and searching other cultures and diverse points of view to come to this understanding that I have today.

"This world was my university," she told the 2,005 recipients of degrees at graduation ceremonies in Madison Square Garden.

Princess Diana

CHESTER, England (AP) — Prince William, toddler son of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, has something in common with his grandfather, Earl Spencer, the princess says.

"... He's got my father's appetite. He is very boisterous and eats an awful lot," hospital patient Marjorie Simpson, 48, quoted Diana as saying Wednesday during a visit to West Cheshire Hospital in this northwest town.

The 22-year-old wife of the heir to the British throne sat on Mrs. Simpson's bed and chatted with her for several minutes after she and Prince Charles attended a ceremony to rename the facility the Countess of Chester Hospital, in honor of the princess who also holds that title.

Diana, who is five months pregnant with her second child, said she didn't mind whether she had a boy or girl "as long as it's healthy," according to Mrs. Simpson. William will be 2 years old next month.

Bob Dylan

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Dylan, the folk singer whose early works became anthems for a generation of protesters, says he no longer thinks world peace is worth working for.

"There is not going to be any peace," the composer said in an interview published in the June issue of Rolling Stone magazine.

Even if world peace were achieved, the songwriter said, "It would be a false peace. You can reload your rifle, and that moment you're reloading it, that's peace. It may last for a few years."

Dylan, 43, denied he is a "political songwriter" but said he thinks of "all my stuff" as "protest material in some kind of way."

"Protest is anything that goes against the ordinary and the established," he said. "And who's the founder of protest? Martin Luther."

Dylan, who wrote "Blowin' in the Wind," and "The Times They Are A-Changin'," says he has little interest in politics.

"I think politics is an instrument of the devil," he said. "I think politics is what kills; it doesn't bring anything alive. Politics is corrupt; I mean, anybody knows that."

Rep. Peter Rodino

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 10 years after U.S. Rep. Peter Rodino chaired the House Judiciary Committee that voted to impeach President Richard Nixon, the New Jersey Democrat found out that former presidents carry more weight than current congressmen.

Rodino, who was aboard a morning flight from Newark, N.J., to Washington, was forced Wednesday to surrender his customary second-row seat to Nixon and accompanying Secret Service agents.

High government officials are routinely given the first rows on commercial airline flights so they can be the last to board and first to disembark for security reasons.

Rodino, 74, said he did not speak to the former president.

"I didn't even see his face," said Rodino, who ended up in the plane's fifth row. "I saw the back of his head."

Back pain may be first indication of breast cancer

Solomon

Dear Dr. Solomon: I went to my doctor because I had a pain in my back and, as part of the examination, he checked my breasts. I'm no doctor and I never even took biology in school, but I know the difference between front and back. I would appreciate your advice as to whether you think the doctor acted unethically. — Ms. L.W., Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Ms. W.: I believe you are doing a disservice both to yourself and to your physician by questioning his ethics simply because he was thorough in his examination. Back pain may be caused by a number of conditions, one of which is metastasis. In other words, back pain may be the first indication of breast cancer.

It is obvious to me that your physician was performing the kind of examination called for in light of the reason you had gone to him.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw on television where a child with AIDS was going to live in a foster home. How do the foster parents and any other people that happen to be living in the home keep from being infected? Do these children have to be quarantined? — Mrs. T.P., Anchorage, Alaska

Dear Mrs. P.: Children with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) usually do not pose a threat to the health of other family members or, for that matter, to others who come into contact with them. This includes health professionals as well as other patients. Therefore, it is not necessary that these children be isolated, and they should not be, either in the hospital or while at home.

Dr. James Oleske, of the New Jersey Medical School in Newark, has reported on 10 children with AIDS; five other children and three foster mothers were involved with them. After two years, there was no evidence that any of these family contacts had been affected.

The transmission of AIDS appears to require close, prolonged exposure. That is probably why intravenous drug use and sexual contact have been implicated in its spread.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father has become very depressed and nervous and is easily upset. He is in his late sixties. Is this an indication that he is suffering from Alzheimer's disease? — Burton, Albuquerque, N.M.

Dear Burton: Older persons who are depressed and agitated may have Alzheimer's disease, but this definitely does not mean that every older person who is depressed and agitated has Alzheimer's disease. What these symptoms do mean is that your father should be under the care of a physician, and I trust that he is. I should add that even if your father is found to have Alzheimer's disease, the depression and agitation may still be subject to treatment even if the disease itself is not.

For Bruce, Bellingham, Washington: Dipping snuff or chewing tobacco can result in neuromuscular impairment. Such impairment may be reflected in muscular weakness and fatigue.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a syndicated columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Three women one-third through cross-country run

MUSCATINE, Iowa (AP) — Annabel Marsh has no special plans for her 61st birthday today — just a 30-mile run that will bring her and two friends that much closer to becoming the first women to run across the United States.

Today marks the 41st day that Ms. Marsh, Caroline Merrill, 42, and June Crowley Wydler, 48, have run westward from Boston. The San Francisco women hope to reach their hometown on Aug. 17, after 18 weeks and 3,161 miles on the road.

"Tired? No, I'm not tired. I'm amazed at how well I feel," Ms. Marsh said Wednesday, after a 30-mile day that brought her from western Illinois into southeastern Iowa.

"I don't place any physical limits on myself. I don't feel old and I don't consider myself as being old. I think I'm 32," she said with a wide grin.

The three women, dubbed "The Trio" by their sponsor, Greyhound Lines Inc., have prepared for their trip since 1982. They trained for more than a year in order to meet the challenges of 11 states and countless hills.

"I think people thought we would have to be carried out of the van at night, but that hasn't been the case," Ms. Merrill said. "We're not anxious to go out at night and roller-skate or whoop it up, but it's been going just fine during the day."

EXTRAORDINARY PERFORMANCE FOR THE ORDINARY BUDGET.

Do you ever wonder why so many people who seem to understand and appreciate high-performance cars wind up buying ordinary, undistinguished automobiles?

It might be easier to understand if you knew that the average price of a new car today is around $11,000. And if that's the price of an average new car, what does it cost to own an outstanding new car?

For example, take the Saab 900, one of Europe's most widely praised sports sedans. Here's a car that's justly famous for performance and handling; a car that couples a powerful two-liter, fuel-injected engine to one of the world's most fully developed front-wheel drive systems. It's a car that is far above average in comfort, strength and luggage capacity.

What does it cost to own an extraordinary car like this? About the same as it costs to own a just-average car.

SAAB
The most intelligent car ever built.
