South Plains Fair Great Success

The Panhandle-South Plains Fair at Lubbock last week was a distinct success, according to the Avalanche-Journal.

The attendance was not quite as large as in the years 1935 and 1937 but it was more sustained and was most satisfactory to the board of directors. The exhibits of all kinds were good, as usual.

Considerable improvements on the grounds have been made since last year. The new brick merchants building is most substantial and spacious and gives an air of permanence and stability to the improvements on the grounds. It is hoped that other substantial buildings will be constructed from time to time as the finances may warrant.

S. R. Kemp Has Fine Farm Home

S. R. Kemp is one former Tahoka business man who a few years ago turned farmer. He and family reside at Garlynn on the line of this and Garza counties.

The editor and better half—far better—were driving out in his community the other day and stopped by to see the family.

The Kemps had a more or less hard time operating a variety store here but they are literally surrounded with a variety and an abundance of farm products. Cotton that looked as if it might produce a half to three quarters of a bale per acre! And feed crops that were a delight to the eye! Mr. Kemp had just "buried" fifty tons of feed, he said—in a trench silo. He had a big pen full of hogs and chickens too numerous to count. It really looked like prosperity to us.

At the Kemp home we found also our old boyhood friend, Zach Kemp, now a citizen of Post. There is no telling how long ago it was but it was somewhere away back in the dim past that Zach and this editor pondered "Caesar" together and learned for the first time that "All Gaul is divided into three parts." That was on the classic banks of the old Salado, and a chance meeting with one of these old Thomas Arnold boys always arouses so many tender memories, that we can hardly refrain from becoming sentimental. But Zach is thoroughly practical, and he has gathered together and enjoyed his share of good things in this world since we watched the water run under the old suspension bridge at Salado.

The above paragraph has no news value and probably it has little interest for our readers; if must be merely evidence that the senior editor is growing—well, not as young as he used to be.

Spanish "Flavor" Given Tahoka

With the cotton season in full blast, Tahoka was swarming with Mexican cotton pickers last Saturday, and merchants report that business from them is good through the week.

Several Mexican stores have opened up here, including three or four cafes, a barber shop, and a dance hall. Les Senors and Las Senoritas will wait to "La Golandrina" and Senoritas will do the fandango to other Spanish tunes at the dance hall each Saturday night.

A bit of Old Mexico has come to town.

Garza Stays Dry; Nolan Votes Wet

For the first time in 28 years Garza county voted last Saturday on the proposed sale of liquor in the county.

With the exception of one box not heard from, Justiceburg, every box in the county voted dry, the total vote reported being 279 for liquor and 614 votes against. By this vote, the sale of all kinds of liquor is prohibited, as has been the case heretofore.

A different story comes from Nolan county, however.

An election was held there on Thursday of last week on the sale of beer. The results were: 1,498 votes for the sale, 1352 votes against it. Of the thirteen voting boxes in the county, however, only the two Sweetwater boxes voted wet. The wet majority there was so heavy as to overcome the dry majorities in the other eleven boxes. Sweetwater is the only town in the county in which beer is legally sold.

Start Construction On New Warehouse

The Lynn County Warehouse Company under the management of Buster Fenton on Thursday morning began the construction of another cotton warehouse in Tahoka. This company already has two large warehouses, constructed last year, a couple of blocks west of the Farmers' Cooperative Oins.

The new structure is being built immediately east of the northernmost of the old buildings. Its dimensions are 60x166 feet, about the size of the other structures. This makes five cotton warehouses in Tahoka.

FORMER CITIZEN VISITS IN TAHOKA

Mr. and Mrs. Plimley B. Coughran, of Abilene, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee R. Baldridge. Mr. Coughran spent his boyhood in Tahoka, moving away with his family about 20 years ago and later becoming one of Abilene's outstanding building contractors. He was amazed at the changes that had taken place in Tahoka since his last visit 12 years ago, and spent considerable time reminiscing with boyhood friends and renewing old acquaintanceships.

Mrs. Coughran is a sister of Mrs. Baldridge.

LOYD NOWLIN MOVES GARAGE

Lloyd Nowlin has moved his garage from the Gulf filling station building north of the Hotel Tahoka to the workshop room adjoining the Phillips Service Station at the intersection of Highways 9 and 84.

Mrs. Emma Thomas of Fort Worth, sister of the late Ford Ingram, who had been here since the day of Mr. Ingram's death, returned to her home Thursday.

Mrs. A. W. Fuquay accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Fuquay to Plainview Sunday night for a few days' visit in their home.

Local Ginnings Reach 1,902

The coming of October found the cotton harvesting season on in full blast. Practically all the gins of the county are now running, some of them day and night.

In Tahoka, nearly 1,500 bales have been ginned since our report last week. The total number ginned here up to an early hour Thursday morning was 1,902.

We have no reports from O'Donnell nor Wilson and many of the other gins in the county, but at Grassland 1,839 bales had been ginned, at New Home 1,179, and at Draw 434.

Mexicans have been pouring into the county to assist in gathering the crop. Many groups of them can be seen camped in Tahoka and other places any day. If they succeed in getting jobs, the crop should be gathered very rapidly. The weather for gathering the crop thus far has been ideal.

The price remains about the same as last week. Cotton seed are now selling for $25.00 per ton.

Big Spring Hospital Nears Completion

The West Texas Hospital (for the insane) at Big Spring is nearing completion, according to the Big Spring Weekly News.

The state board of control visited and inspected the new building Monday afternoon and a banquet was tendered the members Monday night. Other invited guests included Congressman George Mahon, State Senator G. H. Nelson, State Representative Dorsey Hardeman, J. H. Goodman of Midland, Penrose Metcalf of San Angelo, and a number of others.

Dr. George T. McMahan is superintendent of the new institution.

Rotary Club Meets With School Men

No Rotary Club meeting was held at noon Thursday, the Rotarians dismissed to meet Thursday night with the visiting South Plains school men at the grade school building.

Gene Lawson of Grassland, who recently returned from service in the Pacific fleet, was to have been the speaker, but will probably appear on the program at a future meeting.

Big Spring Votes Water Bonds

In an election held Tuesday of last week, the citizens of Big Spring authorized the issuance of bonds in the sum of $275,000 for the extension of their water system. The Federal Government has agreed to supplement this with a grant of $225,000, making the sum of $500,000 available for the purpose.

A 200,000-gallon steel water tower is already under construction and a huge surface lake from 9 to 15 miles from the city is planned.

Ceremonies Held Celebrating Installation Of Lights On Tahoka High Gridiron

As The News goes to press late Thursday afternoon, visiting school officials, bands, and spectators are arriving for the formal dedication tonight of the Tahoka High School lighted football field.

The principal act in the show will be the football game between Tahoka Bulldogs and Post Antelopes. Post is said to have the best team in a number of years, while Tahoka has an inexperienced but hustling team.

At 6:15 the visiting school men and bands will be guests of Tahoka business men and the Tahoka Rotary Club at a barbecue dinner. Food has been prepared for about 400. Vocational agriculture students under Leslie Browning, teacher killed and cut the beef, and home economics students, under Mrs. Fred B. Hegl, cooked the meal.

Beginning at 7:15, bands from Lamesa, Slaton, Littlefield, Level-

Many Plead Guilty In District Court During Past Few Days

Oscar Sumner Is Not Guilty Of Cattle Theft

A jury in the district court early Wednesday night brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of the State of Texas vs. Oscar Sumners, who was charged with the theft of a cow from A. M. Brownfield in December, 1935.

Sumners had been tried here once before and convicted, his punishment at that time being assessed at two years in the penitentiary. The case was appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals and the judgment was reversed and remanded for a new trial.

The trial of this case occupied most of the first three days of this week, and was hotly contested. The State was represented by District Attorney Truett Smith, County Attorney Rollin McCord, and John Morison of Fort Worth, special prosecutor employed by the Texas Cattle Raisers Association. The defendant was represented by Judge G. E. Lockhart, Franklin D. Brown, and Senator G. H. Nelson, all of Lubbock.

Cotton Warehouse Open For Business

The cotton warehouse near the cemetery owned by the Underwood interests was reopened to receive cotton for storage the first of this week.

T. M. Sparkman of Littlefield is in charge of the warehouse, which is being operated this year by the Union Compress and Warehouse Co. Last year the house was operated under the name South Plains Warehouse Co.

The warehouse is one of the largest in this section.

Fred Grider Goes Back To Hospital

Fred Grider son, of Judge and Mrs. G. C. Grider, was taken back to the Masonic Hospital at Dallas Wednesday for further treatment.

Fred has been there several times receiving treatment to an injured leg and ankle. Photographs of the injured parts are taken periodically and sent to the hospital. When the last one was sent a few days ago, the hospital authorities wrote immediately for Fred to come on back to the hospital at once.

It is feared that an amputation of the foot may become necessary yet.

ERNESTINE STORY HONORED AT TECH

Lubbock, Sept. 29. — Ernestine Story, home economics student from Tahoka, has been elected sophomore representative to the Association of Women Students of Texas Technological college.

Ernestine is a member of the Home Economics club.

Compliance Checks Total $208,000

Lynn county farmers up to Tuesday afternoon had received compliance checks on last year's program amounting to about $208,000 or $209,000, according to County Agent V. F. Jones.

Checks are still coming and Mr. Jones estimates that the total will reach $300,000 or more. About 1890 Lynn county farmers are participating in these payments.

That is quite a neat sum of money to be placed in circulation in this county in two of three weeks time and it should prove to be quite a stimulant to business.

Servant House Burned Sunday

The servant house at the Bart Cowan place together with all furnishings and clothing was destroyed by fire Sunday shortly after noon.

The house was occupied by Charley and Geneva Phillips, the latter being employed by the Cowans.

Since the servant house had no stove in it, it is believed that the fire caught from the wiring.

The house and contents, most of which belonged to the Cowans, were completely destroyed and some slight damage was done to the Jake Leedy barn. Except for the effective work one by the Tahoka Fire Department, other houses on the block probably would have been destroyed or greatly damaged.

There was no insurance on the building or its contents.

Brunk's Comedians Here This Week

Fred G. Brunk's Comedians, making their 21st annual tour through the Southwest, are being sponsored for a two night appearance in Tahoka Friday and Saturday of this week by the local American Legion. The show will present plays, vaudeville, and music.

The opening play, "Watch Your Darling Daughter," is said by the advance man to be as thrilling as today's headlines and as modern as the styles of Hollywood.

Children Give Table To Park

To dedicate a table with seats for children to the City Park, the third year Juniors of the Methodist Sunday School, with their teacher, Mrs. W. T. Clinton, held a picnic in the Park last Friday evening. This class saved their money and bought this equipment for the Park, and in dedicating it entertained the Sunday School class that is to succeed them on Promotion Day.

The host class includes the following: Elbert Boullion, Jr., G. W. White, Edward Bartley, Peggy Fenton, Joan Edwards, Myrna Dean Gagnat, Jane Jones, and Jean Slover.

Albuquerque News Man Visits City

Earl Watson of the editorial staff of the Albuquerque Journal, who is visiting relatives here has been an interesting visitor at The News office two or three times this week.

He and Mrs. Watson are visiting in the home of his brother-in-law, Lee Baldridge.

IMPROVING BUILDING

J. K. Applewhite Company is remodeling the interior of its building on the east side of the square this week. New office space is being provided, a larger parts department built, and the interior of the building being completely rearranged and improved.

Sentences in "Pen" Given For Arson Theft, Burglary

Many pleas of guilty have been entered by defendants in the district court convened on Monday of last week, according to Miss Hattie Server, district clerk. The offenses include arson, theft, burglary, forgery, drunken driving, and others.

Elmer Brooks entered pleas of guilty in two cases of arson. He was given seven years in one case and seven and a half in the other. Luther Frazier was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years for the theft of a cow.

Henry B. Lewis and John Clark both colored found a chicken house too tempting, and so they confessed to stealing a bunch of chickens. They got a trip to Huntsville for one year each.

M. B. Walls was given a two years suspended sentence for drunken driving. He is said to be a resident of Lubbock.

B. T. Washington, colored, likewise drew a suspended sentence of two years for driving with too much liquor under his belt.

Clyde Brown was brought from the penitentiary and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of unlawfully passing a forged check. He got an additional sentence of four years.

Wesley and Monroe Owens each were sentenced to the pen for two years for burglary, to which they pleaded guilty.

Paul Tomlin and R. E. Palnard were sent to the pen for a period of four years each for forgery.

Charles Tuttle received a two years suspended sentence for forgery.

Alva Holland, Odell Cochran, and Billie White drew two years each of two cases of burglary. The sentences run concurrently.

J. C. Miller and Elmo Miller were indicted and tried jointly for the burglary of R. M. Cade's residence near Slaton last spring. When the evidence was all in, District Attorney Truett Smith moved to dismiss the case against Elmo Miller, which was done, and the jury found J. C. guilty and fixed his punishment at two years in the pen.

A number of these defendants have already been taken to Huntsville, including Elmo Brooks, Luther Frazier, Henry Lewis and John Clark, Clyde Brown, Wesley and Monroe Owens, Paul Tomlin, R. E. Palnard, and Charles Tuttle.

Two New Homes Near Grassland

Considering the size of the village, there are perhaps more beautiful homes at Grassland than at any similar village in West Texas.

We drove out there Monday and found that two new residences are under construction. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Thomas are having a house built a half mile west of the town proper which will be modern in almost every respect. It consists of five rooms and a bath room, a near-by garage, and a roofed in walk from the house to the garage. The house will receive a beautiful white stucco finish with blue window blinds and trimmings, and it will be elegantly finished inside. It will be equipped with electric lights, running water, and other conveniences.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ferguson are also building a neat four-room residence with a bath a short distance southeast of the town. It will also be nicely finished and will be an attractive little home.

CHURCH BEING BUILT AT WELLS

Construction of a Baptist Church was begun at Wells Tuesday morning, according to John Etter of that community, who was here that day.

Mr. Etter says that his understanding is that the structure will cost from $1,600 to $2,000.

A church organization was effected there several years ago.

California, Home of Pensions,
Tries Another Plan This Year

By Joseph W. La Bine

Politics

Choice haven for U. S. old people is sunny California, which annually beckons retiring farmers who want escape from midwestern winters. Before Depression, many farmers leased or sold their homesteads and went to California expecting to enjoy old age on this income. Not expected were drought and low prices which wiped out this revenue, making California a paradox in whose Utopian climate men were going hungry.

Since Utopian climates may produce Utopian ideas, 1934 found Upton Sinclair barely missing gubernatorial election with an elaborate pension plan called EPIC (End Poverty in California). Later came Dr. Francis E. Townsend whose old age revolving pension of $200 a month went into eclipse last year when business got better, has since come back with new vigor.

Townsendism's chief onetime supporter was 54-year-old Sheridan Downey, who wrote a book called "Why I Believe in the Townsend Plan." But a month ago Sheridan Downey won Democratic senatorial nomination on a new plan that gives California's orthodox financiers a bad case of jitters, that has far greater implications than either EPIC or Townsendism.

The Man: Soft-voiced Sheridan Downey attended the University of Wyoming, entered politics at 24 by winning the county attorneyship at Laramie while his wife worked for women's suffrage. Now living in San Francisco's exclusive, suburban Atherton, Pensioneer Downey garnered enough votes to beat Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo in the primary last month.

The Plan: "$30-every-Thursday" springs from a seed transplanted last year from far-away Austria. Original sponsor was one Robert Noble, whose radio lectures urged $25 every Monday for each Californian over 50. Later sponsor was Hollywood Attorney Lawrence Allen who changed payday from Monday to Thursday, boosted payments from $25 to $30. To each, every Thursday, would go 30 state warrants valued at $1 apiece. On the back of each warrant would be spaces for 52 two-cent state stamps to be purchased in cash. Once each week, Californians would dig out all warrants in their possession, affixing a stamp to each. Thus at year's end each warrant would have $1.04 in two-cent stamps, would be traded by the state for $1 in cash. Extra four cents would cover costs.

Though "$30-every-Thursday" dares not infringe on the U. S. right to coin money, pension warrants would nevertheless be valid for intra-state taxes and debts (except gasoline tax and pension stamps). Private business need not accept warrants, but 50 per cent of all state purchases must be paid with them.

Biggest stumbling block is that pension warrants would largely eliminate California's use of U. S. legal tender, yet the state must dig up about $600,000,000 in Uncle Sam's cash on January 1, 1940, to redeem warrants which would be issued next year to at least 500,000 pensioners. To make matters worse, 1939's state revenue from stamp sales would be only $322,750,000, since only a small part of the year's warrants will be completely stamped. Example: A warrant issued the last Thursday in 1939 would carry only two cents in stamps at year's end.

But this technicality does not worry the 800,000 signers on whose petition California will decide next November. Required are 1,300,000 votes, since a majority ballot gives approval. Automatically, Pensioneer Roy G. Owens of Los Angeles would be named administrator at $7,800 a year (payable in warrants). Probable immediate result of easy money would be rising prices and inflation, a possibility the amendment would solve by increasing pensions. Where such a vicious circle might end, pension opponents are trying to figure out.

By last week, as California politicians were arguing hotly over "$30-every-Thursday," the idea began spreading throughout the U. S. In Ohio, where two rival groups planned to introduce an initiative petition in November's election, chief battle was whether $30 shall be paid on Wednesday or Thursday.

Foreign

Since he became German chancellor in 1933, Adolf Hitler has held an unknown quantity in his mailed fist, has scared the world with threats that may only be bluffs. A master of psychology, he renounced Versailles when France and Britain were worried about Italy's invasion of Ethiopia. In 1936 his Rhineland coup was staged under similar circumstances. By last spring, when he marched into Austria, the bluff had been so successful that none arose to challenge him.

But two months ago when Reichsfuehrer Hitler began bluffing his way into annexation of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten frontierland, Britain and France were ready to bluff in turn. Franco-British bluff was a promise to defend Czechoslovakia. Germany's return bluff was defiance, delivered at September's Nazi congress in Nuremberg. Then, weary of whistling to keep up their courage, Paris and London offered peace via capitulation. Terms: (1) Berlin's annexation of Sudeten areas 75 per cent German; (2) plebiscite in Sudeten areas from 50 to 75 per cent German; (3) German promise to guarantee Czechoslovakia's independence.

Fortnight ago, when British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain delivered these terms at Godesberg, democracies called it a "sell-out." But to Adolf Hitler even this was not enough. He wanted more land, moreover refused to guarantee Czechoslovakia's future. His deadline for Czech agreement: October 1.

If Der Fuehrer had bluffed too far, if Democracies had scored a point and made Germans wonder about their chancellor's wisdom, it was no stroke of genius on Neville Chamberlain's part. Upshot of Godesberg was a vindication of the British prime minister and swift turning of world sentiment against Germany. But greater upshots were Czechoslovakia's amazingly fast mobilization, France's decision to fight, and London's offer to follow suit.

To London, where only a week before he had helped draft the first proposal, went French Premier Edouard Daladier. Still anxious to keep peace, Europe's last two great democracies offered a new agreement. Terms: Transfer without plebiscite of areas over 50 per cent German; (2) exchange of populations in other areas; (3) international guarantee of Czechoslovakia's independence.

But Adolf Hitler was still ready to bluff. Facing rising anti-war sentiment, forced to show his hand, he summoned countrymen to Berlin's vast Sportsplatz, told them his Godesberg terms were final, that Germany's bluff has been backed all along by real strength.

Excerpts: "I can tell you now that I have spent billions for armaments. . . . We have created an unparalleled air force and tank force. I want to declare regarding the Sudeten problem, that my patience is exhausted. . . . The Sudeten Germans will now take the liberty denied them for 20 years."

But at the very moment Der Fuehrer spoke, a world moving swiftly to war knew the eventual lineup of European power would place Germany at disadvantage. Prague, virtually shut off from the world since her mobilization, heard that Russia's lumbering, untested military giant was poised to bring aid. Thoroughly scared, France called almost every reservist to the colors, had 1,500,000 troops along her Maginot line, advised Parisians to evacuate. Also scared, Britain called Parliament, inspected ARP (air raid precautions) equipment, finally ordered partial mobilization. With October 1 but a few hours away, Europe wondered whether her No. 1 bluffer would be outbluffed by rank amateurs.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Co-Operation of Business Sought
By Wage-Hour Law Administrator

Andrews Pictures Industry of Country as Mainly Decent; Will Depend on Citizens, Not Inspectors, to Make Law Work; Warns Against Chiselers.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Elmer F. Andrews hasn't been in Washington long enough yet to become either widely praised or cordially hated, but he has started on his job as administrator of the new wage and hour law, and so it will not be long until the country knows him. He has a tough job; one of the toughest, indeed, since Gen. Hugh Johnson tried to run NRA. Thus, it seems proper to review and examine some of Mr. Andrews' pronouncements since he came into the administration.

His main theory of proceeding with a new and wholly untried policy of law is to gain co-operation of business, the business which the law is to effect. He pictures the industry of the country as mainly decent, as willing to do the right thing, and to that extent certainly he is entitled to commendation. For, all too often in the last five years, all business has been grouped by first one New Dealer and then another, as being crooked. Mr. Andrews feels apparently that business is honest until its records show it to be dishonest, and then to apply the lash to the individuals, and not the whole industry, as wrongdoers.

"We are going to depend upon the citizens of the United States, not an army of inspectors from Washington, to make this law work," Mr. Andrews said in a recent speech.

The administrator further espoused the policy of giving the states the job of enforcement within their jurisdictions as far as that can be done. To this, he added that the law enables a worker to sue for double the amount due if any employer fails to pay the minimum wage, explaining that this provision takes one enforcement phase out of the hands of the federal government and creates watchmen of every worker. Since the law, with its minimum of 25 cents an hour becomes effective October 24, (where interstate shipments of products are concerned) Mr. Andrews obviously believes that individual workers will get pretty well acquainted with their rights before the effective date.

Asks for Co-Operation
To Minimize Crookedness

Mr. Andrews warned against chiselers. He took the position in an interview that chiseling was to be expected and added that "chiselers will get rich and fair employers will go broke in the short run" of things, but he seems to believe that there can and will be sufficient co-operation to insure the minimum of crookedness, undercutting and cheapness. At least, it is hoped the condition will work out that way. Although I never have believed that a federal wage and hour law would prove satisfactory, it is entitled to a fair chance to show whether it can or cannot be worthwhile as national policy. And Mr. Andrews is surely entitled to the co-operation for which he has asked unless he develops like so many other New Dealers to whom extraordinary power suddenly has been entrusted.

From a quarter of a century of observation, I am inclined to the belief that the great majority of business concerns will "come clean" in their relations with the new federal office. Obviously, some will not, but the bulk will try to abide by the law as they understand it. So, I think it is not from the bulk of business interests that Mr. Andrews will get his load of trouble. There will be cheap skates who try to take advantage of any and every situation to gain an advantage on their competitors. That will be one kind of trouble that can be traced home rather quickly. Then, there will be another kind of trouble that will not be so easily untangled. It will come from "reports" of alleged violations—some from the "watchmen," some from the chiselers who will seek to cause trouble for or suspicion of violation by competitors. There will be some labor racketeers who will try to force union organization by threats of "reports" of violations which reports obviously would be damaging even though they may not be true. All of these things are due to come, and it is under this test that we can best judge Mr. Andrews as a public official.

Doubts Value of 'Watchmen'
In Enforcement of Law

As to the sources of information upon which the staff of the administrator may subsequently act, there is some reason for doubt. I mentioned some of them above. My doubt as to the value of a "watchman" in enforcement is based upon what we all saw during the early days of prohibition. "Stool pigeons," they were called then. And stool pigeons operated everywhere; some were just plain busybodies, and others were fanatics. The result was that gradually a disrespect for law grew up, and this disrespect was blamable to a considerable extent upon the fact the early provisions of the law encouraged "squealing" and "squealing" more times than not is used as a means of vengeance, of "getting even" with someone who is disliked.

It has been many years since business, generally, was said to have a policy of "the public be damned." There can be no doubt that business conscience has changed immeasurably since those days. It is apparent, for example, that two of the really great sins of employers, namely, oppression of labor and defrauding of labor, have largely passed out of existence. Competitors seem to be watching each other in that regard and union labor officials have lent a hand. An employer no longer is received among decent people once it is learned that he has cheated his workers of their wages.

Now, Mr. Andrews says that one of the things he hopes to accomplish is to "clean out dark corners." That is to say, to finish the job of helping industry get rid of that low level of humanity which, by virtue of its momentary power as an employer, oppresses labor or refuses to pay wages earned. Surely, the co-operation of employers and workers alike is required in this effort. Honest employers have much to gain by having the "dark corners" cleaned out and disinfected with a good grade of roach powder. But again, it is being pointed out in many conversations, the administrator must be on guard as to the sources of his information. Irreparable harm can come from missteps in filing charges of violation because of the trend in public consciousness towards general fairness—of which the wage and hour labor is an evidence.

Job May Make Andrews
Either a Hero or Villain

Summed up, then, it seems to me that Mr. Andrews has a job in which he can turn out to be either a hero or a villain. A very great deal will depend upon the type of individuals with which he surrounds himself in administrative work. An illustration of what I am trying to say is to be found in the setup of the national labor relations board. I have watched that outfit through many of the cases it has handled and I simply can not believe it intends to do otherwise than play the game of the C. I. O. and John L. Lewis as against the American Federation of Labor. Time after time, the A. F. of L. has charged discrimination and, to an outsider, most of the claims and protests seem to have been justified. The board's staff is full of radicals and quacks and individuals whose government salaries are larger than they ever before drew in their lives.

The question of federal supervision of wages and hours takes the federal government quite closely into the lives of millions of workers, just as many other new activities of the government under President Roosevelt has done. One of these instances has just come to fruition and is worthy of reporting because it shows the fallacy of a national government interfering everywhere.

This story relates to the effort of the farm security administration, (which was once the resettlement administration that was founded by the former Braintruster Rexford Tugwell) to reform the lives of some of the residents of the Appalachian mountains. These people were moved out to a model town to clear the Shenandoah National park. They were to have nicer homes and enjoy greater opportunities in life. The trek started three years ago.

Bought Liquor Instead
Of Paying Grocery Bill

Only lately, however, it has come to public notice that the governmental agency in charge had evicted one of the families—moved them out on the sidewalk, so to speak. "Ida Valley," the community's name, was shocked. They were all "hill billy" families, and they could not understand such treatment.

Well, the crime the man committed was that he had used his WPA check to buy liquor instead of paying his grocery bill. He had been warned, of course. But the warnings went unheeded, and finally, the government, like a private landlord, moved him and his family outside.

Obviously, no person is going to condone the failure of this man to pay his debts. But there is something more to the incident. What I am wondering is why a government, anybody's government, should attempt to "make over" a person who does not want to be reformed in his living conditions. This family had lived, its ancestors had lived in the Appalachians for years. It had its habits, its traditions. It got along pretty well and from what I have seen in many trips through those mountains, they do not care much about the "more abundant life." They want to be left alone, and I think that is a pretty sound philosophy of life—just to be left alone as far as government is concerned and as long no harm is done.

IF YOU'RE interested in writing—or learning to write—for the movies, take a tip from Hal Roach, who certainly ought to know what he is talking about.

He recently conducted a survey, as a result of which he announces that 72 per cent of the themes of current films have been taken directly from newspaper clippings. Here is his report: General news (including aviation, maritime disasters, divorce court proceedings, depression stories and natural catastrophes) 46 per cent; crime news, 9 per cent; letters to editor, 4 per cent; love-lorn columns, 3 per cent; editorial columns, 2 per cent; sports, 2 per cent; comic strips, 1 per cent.

Mr. Roach, at present, is filming a story called "There Goes My Heart," which concerns an heiress, (played by Virginia Bruce) who runs away from the Riviera in her grandfather's yacht, arrives in this country and goes to work in her own department store; Fredric March is the reporter assigned to cover her story.

Here you have, says Mr. Roach, a romantic comedy, not a straight drama, and it combines general news, society news and love-lorn column material. Better study it with that in mind, if you're interested in seeing how film stories are put together.

Remember Corinne Griffith, you old-timers? Not that your memories need go so very far back; it's not so long since she was a popular star. Corinne is one of the really happy retired stars. Her husband, George Marshall, owns one of the big professional football teams, and he and she travel with the team during the season.

And she has those two little girls whom she adopted a few years ago, taking them from an orphan asylum, and taking two when she'd meant to adopt just one because they were sisters. Needless to say, she's bringing them up beautifully—or thought she was, until she discovered that their favorite game is "G-man"; that, when left to themselves, they make the nursery ring with "You won't talk, then—you rat! Take that—and that!"

Another young devotee of gangster life is Sabu; remember him in "The Elephant Boy"? This young Indian arrived in New York from London for the opening of his latest picture, "Drums," the new Alexander Korda release. When Robert Flaherty discovered him in India, while searching for a youngster to play the title role in "Elephant Boy," he was just one more young Indian, an orphan, poor; you should see him now!

He loves American slang, which he picked up from the Hollywood technicians in the English movie studio where he worked. And he is wild about the movies, especially American gangster pictures. His enthusiasm also includes war films and any method of traveling fast, particularly planes. And three years ago he was riding elephants and liking it!

Seth Parker, with "Ma" and their Jonesport neighbors, is back on the air on Sunday evenings; people all over the country feel as if old friends had returned to them. Phillips Lord, who is "Seth," plans to revive many of his first successes—the old-fashioned singing school among them. And, of course, there are the Sunday night gatherings in which the Parkers and the neighbors sing hymns.

Fathers all over the country are turning the radio on late in the afternoon so that their sons can listen to "Dick Tracy"—and not admitting that they did it because they wanted to listen themselves. For "Dick" has returned to the air, more energetic than ever in his battle against criminal activities.

ODDS AND ENDS—When Fred Waring finished making "Varsity Show" in Hollywood with his band and returned east he had practically no band left; his singers (Priscilla and Rosemary Lane), his arranger and his hot trumpet, Johnny "Scat" Davis, had abandoned him for movie-making, and others just dropped out on the way home. . . . Bert Lahr is spending his spare time trying to look like a lion; has to play the Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz" without benefit of animal skins or heavy make-up.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied. He tells Hale of his wife's death while insane, invites him for the summer to Halcyon Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises him he will be "useful" as his secretary there. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Ainsworth, an unpopular college mate, also at Halcyon, who leaves him with a feeling of unpleasant mystery. He is met at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, whom he questions about the menage, and experiences a disturbing premonition. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna, Kneeland's elderly sister, and her friend, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a soiled paper, printed, "This place dangerous." Hale meets the rest of the strange group—Dr. Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Kneeland, nervous young son of Casper, and beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, niece of the house. Ainsworth drops in at his room, questions him about his reactions, and tells him of Bert's hopeless love for his heiress cousin, and that Mrs. Forbes is down and out. The whole group seems to get on each other's nerves. Later, Hale sees Hosanna furtively meeting a shabby man in the woods. The maid tells of the recent poisoning of a cat and dog.

Under the stare of Craig, Joan flushed and then spoke quickly, as if reaching for a verbal life-line.

"I've promised Mr. Hale a race with you," she said. "Why not have it now? From here to the shore. I'll be referee."

"All right," Craig spoke without much interest, but he took in the young man with one of his X-ray glances, as Hale mentally classed them. Both men rose and stood ready for the start.

"Dive when I say go," Joan directed. "Swim any way you like so that you reach the shore." Suddenly her voice was full of vitality and the exuberance of youth. "One, two, three. Go!"

Hale and Craig went into the sea on the last word. A second later they were shooting through the water side by side. Hale had not expected an easy victory. Now he was disconcerted to see Craig's dark head already a trifle in advance of his own. No reserve in the doctor's kit, so far. He was plainly putting in his best efforts from the take-off, and counting on the shortness of the race to hold them to the finish. Hale quickened his stroke, came abreast of Craig, and held his place there. To his deep disgust he could not pass his rival. Craig was plainly having a good time. He had even sent Rex a flashing smile as he passed him. The smile seemed a strange phenomenon on that dark, rather dour face. It lingered, too, as Craig again gained a few inches of headway. Hale could see it as he set his own teeth and called on all his reserve strength.

Craig, apparently, was out to beat him and to break all records from float to shore. The sleek dark head gained a few inches more. That would not do. It would not do at all with Joan Kneeland looking on. Desperately Hale called on the fighting heart that wins victory when hope is gone. The shore was close now—a matter of a hundred feet away, of fifty, of twenty. The two heads, his and Craig's, were on a line again. He saw Miss Hosanna and Mrs. Spencer Forbes, motionless on shore, watching them. That infernal head was still on a line...

His heart seemed to fill his chest. His lungs were bursting. His eyes were starting from his head. For an instant he saw nothing. In the next instant the firm sand of the beach was under his feet. He staggered through a few yards of water, fell, rose again, fell once more, and finally cast himself flat on the dry sand, breathless and gasping. Simultaneously something flopped beside him, gasping also. Miss Hosanna and Mrs. Spencer Forbes hurried toward the two prone figures, then tactfully stopped and hesitated. Hale expelled a few mouthfuls of water, and feebly turned his head to meet Craig's eyes. Both young men grinned sheepishly. On a common impulse each waved away the hovering women who again tentatively approached.

"Apologies, Hale," Craig brought out the words with difficulty when he had caught his breath. "I forgot that pneumonia of yours. It wasn't a fair contest, but you won."

"Nothing like it. I'm sure you were here when I landed."

"It was a tie, if I ever saw one—the prettiest tie you can imagine."

The irrepressible Mrs. Spencer Forbes had joined them at last. "My thanks, kind sirs," she drawled. "You gave us a real thrill."

Both men sat up. Both were wobbly, but both were still grinning. Craig became professional.

"Any brandy in the bath-houses? Hale is looking a bit blue."

Miss Hosanna produced a small flask. It was her excellent habit to carry this to the beach in case of chills, she explained. Her friend supplied congratulations and tributes. Craig handed the flask to Hale, and ordered him to take a stiff drink. He also took one himself.

"Lie flat on the sand," he ordered, "and let the sun beat on you. Oh, yes, I'll be mighty glad to lie down again, too. That wasn't a fair proposition," he amplified.

Hale laughed that off. The two lay down in perfect communion of spirit, while Mrs. Spencer Forbes prattled on, and Miss Hosanna offered more brandy.

"Ainsworth of me to set that pace," Craig muttered. He seemed really concerned. Hale found himself rather liking the man. It had been a fine race. Mrs. Wilbur Nash strolled up, looking flamboyant in a scarlet bathing suit and cap. The Nash cub, in the background, revealed his meager frame in a one-piece garment of somber black. Joan appeared from the water and congratulated the swimmers. Ainsworth and Herbert added themselves to the little group, which began to take on the character of an assemblage. Craig ordered Hale to lie still a bit longer. He himself also sprawled contentedly on the sand, making no effort to contribute to the brisk conversation of the spectators.

"I'll back Hale to best you in the same match within two weeks," Ainsworth told Craig. Hale shook

"What I really want to know," Mrs. Nash admitted, "is how you like the people you're with."

"I like very much the person I'm with now."

"All right. But you can't carry on with me as you do with Mrs. Spencer Forbes. I'm a respectable widow with a son who has high standards for his mother's conduct."

"Has a scandal started in 18 hours?" Hale was amused.

"If it had, it wouldn't be anything new. The people in this lonely neck of the woods haven't much to interest them. They're talking their heads off about Halcyon Camp."

"What are they saying?"

"You're asking me?" Mrs. Nash smiled. "Well, they're saying for one thing that everyone in the house hates everyone else. I suppose we must except Hosanna. She's a good old soul, and of course she's fond of her brother and her nephew and niece. But as for the others—I've watched these people ever since they came here the first of May. I'm in and out all the time. There's something queer about them. I don't know yet what it is, but I don't like

CHAPTER III

At the house Miss Hosanna soothed him with hot oyster stew and womanly sympathy. He had done a foolish thing, she told him. She sat beside him before the fire in the living-room and watched him enjoy the stew. Hale gulped down the stew, kissed Miss Hosanna's plump hand, which wriggled in surprise under such attention, and went up to his room. Rose had been there. It was in perfect order. But as he approached the davenport between the windows, to stretch himself out and take the recommended nap, something caught his eye. It was something white, tucked partly under the davenport's silk-covered pillow.

He drew it out. It was a square white card. He looked at it frowningly. This time there was no writing on it, but it held its message nevertheless. In the center of the card, drawn with pen and ink, was an elaborate skull with cross-bones. It was a more literate offering than the one of the night before. The a languid head and advised Ainsworth not to waste his money. Then he forgot Ainsworth and all the rest of them. Joan had sat down beside him.

"I'm ashamed of myself," she confessed. "I forgot completely."

"It was great fun. Did me no end of good."

Hale sat up, and steadied his swimming head. With a strong effort of will he grinned at the concerned look in her vivid eyes.

"He'll brighten our lives a little longer," Mrs. Spencer Forbes predicted. "I assume you weren't really trying to kill him off, Joan. One with a less trusting nature than mine would certainly think you were doing that. Has she anything to gain by your death, my lad?" she asked Hale.

"Only the removal of an obstruction from her path," Rex admitted. "I expect to be there a good deal."

Miss Hosanna did not like such jokes and told her Ruth so. The party began to disintegrate. Joan returned to the water with Herbert and Craig. Ainsworth and Mrs. Spencer Forbes watched them from the shore. Ainsworth, Rex suspected, did not like water much more than the cat he resembled. Mrs. Spencer Forbes believed in keeping her blue bathing suit dry till the last possible moment. She strolled along the water's edge with Ainsworth, looking remote. Ainsworth's unpopularity with every member of the family was increasingly noticeable.

Hale wondered why the devil the fellow continued to hang around. Miss Hosanna, with surprisingly white plump legs in ample view, was walking along the beach apparently investigating seaweed. Out on the float the Nash cub flocked by himself, practicing dives. His mother joined Hale and sat down beside him.

"Well," she asked alertly, "how do you like it?"

"It's great—and not too cold for one fresh from sunny climes."

"I don't mean the water. I mean life at Halcyon Camp?" Before he could reply she added, "Everybody's wondering how you will like it."

"Who's everybody?" Hale asked lazily.

"My son and I. No one else counts," the lady added.

"I'm having a great time," Rex testified. "Look at me. Yesterday I was a lonely orphan. Today I'm a guest at Halcyon Camp. There's contrast for you—and you ask me how I like it!"

it. That man Ainsworth, for example. He has some hold over them—some power. It sounds melodramatic, but it's true. They all hate him like poison, yet they let him stay on. Why? It worries me. I'm afraid of him. I'm afraid for Joan. She's awfully changed from what she was last year. She was the gayest young thing!"

She turned toward him and laid her brown hand on his arm. Her face was very serious.

"Mr. Hale, I'm hoping you will be a sort of guardian angel to her," Hale laughed.

"That's a large order."

A sudden memory shot into Hale's mind. "There's work for you," Kneeland had said. He hadn't said what work it would be. Hale had no chance to say more now. Miss Hosanna suddenly appeared with hospitable words and gestures. She insisted that it was time for him to go into the house and have a nap before luncheon. He must admit his recent exhaustion and take care of himself. Hale got up willingly, staged an impressive parting with his companion, and left for the bath-house. Mrs. Nash's conversation had been a trifle heady.

card was clean. The sketch was well done—was, in fact, quite dashing. It could hardly have been made or left by the same hand that had written and conveyed the first message. Or could it? Hale didn't know. It irritated him. It wasn't funny. It wasn't disturbing. It was merely annoyingly childish nonsense. He wished whoever was back of it would let up. He tore it in two, dropped the pieces into the wastebasket, and simultaneously dropped the card from his mind.

He slept till he was awakened by the luncheon gong. He brushed his hair, shook the sand out of his new tan shoes, and went down to the dining-room. To his relief no one asked him how he felt. They had some tact, then. He was not to be regarded as a semi-invalid. He found Miss Hosanna, Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Joan alone at the table. Craig, Miss Hosanna said, was in his laboratory—a little room which had been fitted up or him at the top of the house. A tray had been sent to him there. He often worked in his laboratory from the bathing hour till tea time.

Charcoal of Ancient Trees May Date Culture of Indians of the Midwest

Indian culture of the Midwest and of Illinois, which University of Chicago anthropologists have shown to have been in existence at least 2,000 years ago, may be dated definitely to the exact year by study of charcoal from old campfires and burned village sites, Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, chairman of the university's department of anthropology, said in announcing a novel research project.

The usefulness of the tree-ring method is now being determined by Dr. Florence Hawley, recently appointed research associate in anthropology. Doctor Hawley, who has proved that the tree-ring dating method is workable by using charcoal found in mounds and camp-sites, this week began field activities in Wisconsin.

Doctor Hawley's demonstration that charcoal remains of trees is as useful for dating purposes as are timbers and stumps, opened up the possibility of dating the middlewestern cultures. In the Southwest the dry climate has preserved timbers in buildings for centuries, but the moister climates of this section has rotted all early timber and tree stumps except those which have been burned into charcoal.

Doctor Hawley is gathering specimens of tree cuttings and borings from standing trees and stumps. These specimens, with the charcoal found by university expeditions will be used to compile a "master chart" of the region.

The Name Doris

The name Doris is of Greek origin. Two authorities agree on it. But when it comes to the meaning of the name, these same authorities disagree widely and strangely, for one says that Doris means "a sacrificial knife" and the other that it means "of the sea." No reason is given for the first meaning. The second is explained by the fact that in Greek mythology Doris was a sea goddess, daughter of Oceanus and Thetis and mother of the sea nymphs.

Doris is also the name of a small mountainous district of Greece and of a genus of mollusks. So it may likewise be a Greek word for a sacrificial knife. But as a name, it would seem that "of the sea" is the more logical meaning.

Lesson for October 9

SPIRITUAL WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:4-6; 32:1-6;
John 4:19-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.—John 4:24.

"The First Commandment bids us to worship God exclusively; the Second bids us to worship Him spiritually. The First Commandment forbids us to worship false gods; the Second forbids us to worship the true God under false forms" (Far-raw). Israel had lived among the Egyptians, a people known for their worship of images, and was about to enter into Canaan where there were many false gods. The Lord was therefore careful not only to forbid the worship of other gods, but also to forbid the making of images of any kind; whether they represented the many gods of heathendom, or were attempts to symbolize the true God. In studying this lesson we need to exercise care lest we miss the point by talking only of the gods of wood and stone which the heathen worship, and fail to apply the truth to any improper use of images which may prevail in our land and in the present day. Let us lay aside any preconceived notions and face the facts in the light of God's Word.

I. True Worship Required (Exod. 20:4-6).

This commandment expressly forbids idolatry in any form. The injunction is twofold. (1) Men are forbidden to make any material likeness which to them represents a being to be worshiped. It matters not whether it be an image of what men believe God to be like, or the image of an angelic being, a heavenly body, in fact "anything that is in the heaven above," or on the earth—such as a man or animal; or under the water—such as a fish. (2) If such objects have been made either by ourselves or others we may not bow down to them, nor render any service to them. Let us all examine our religious ceremonies and practices in the light of God's commandment.

Observe that obedience to this commandment brings rich blessing to "thousands" (v. 6), whereas disobedience is a curse not only to the man who disobeys, but also to his descendants. Spiritual blight so often runs through whole families, while spiritual life just as often blesses those who follow us. Blessed is the man who gives his children and his children's children a true spiritual heritage, but woe be unto that man who passes on the darkness and spiritual death of unbelief to his children!

II. False Worship Established (Exod. 32:1-6).

It comes to us as a real shock that at people so highly privileged, so well-instructed and so ably led as Israel should turn to idolatry. The story reveals the depravity of the human heart. Their excuse that Moses was gone was only an excuse without foundation. They did what their hearts wanted to do, and they used his absence to put forward their wicked desires.

Let us be careful lest we be misled or indeed, mislead ourselves into creating a God after the concept of our own heart and mind. We, like Israel, may be tempted to "make us gods" to which we will bow down and worship. It may not be out of place at this point to warn against a folly which seems to have laid hold of the church, that of almost deifying our Christian leaders. A man who is called to speak for God is a highly privileged man, worthy of our support and our respect. But let us remember that he is only a servant, an instrument in God's hand, and let us never be guilty of worshipping and serving "the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever" (Rom. 1:25).

III. True Worship Defined (John 4:19-24).

One would suppose that a truth so vital and fundamental as that stated in these verses would long since have completely saturated the life of the church as well as of the individual believer. "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." Even in this year of our Lord 1938, countless men and women still believe that worship has something to do with place (vv. 20, 21) or race (v. 22) or some other external device or formula. What a pity that this should be true when the gracious and delightful way to worship is through personal spiritual communion between God and man.

Deadening formalism is not our only enemy. There is the powerless preaching of modernism—and in all honesty must we not admit that even some so-called fundamentalism has in many respects lost the true spirit of the faith for which it rightly contends. We who cherish the truth of God's Word will shun modern liberalism. We may not be tempted to obscure the worship of God by formalism. But we may be in danger of a dead orthodoxy, being as someone said "orthodox about everything except I Corinthians 13"—or failing to worship God in spirit and in truth and not living out that spirit in loving service to our brethren.

Practical and Pretty At-Home Wearables

YOU'LL be indoors more from now on—busy at your own fire-side. So it's time to make yourself some pretty new work clothes. Here are some that combine comfort and practicality, and they are so easy to make that even if this is your first sewing venture, you'll succeed beautifully.

Slenderizing House Dress. Everything about this dress is designed for working comfort. The waistline, although it looks slim because it's drawn in by darts, is unhampering and easy. The skirt gives enough leeway to stoop and climb and stretch. The armholes are ample, the sleeves short and loose. This dress is easy to do up, too, because it fastens in the front, and can be laid out flat on the board. Its utter simplicity, long lines and deep v-neck make you look slimmer than you are. Make it of calico, percale, linen or ging-ham.

Three Pretty Aprons. Any of the three of them will be mighty handy to have all fresh and ready, when you want to prepare afternoon tea or a hasty pick-up supper for unexpected guests. Each of them protects the front of you efficiently, and looks so crisp, feminine and attractive. Make several sets—you'll want some for yourself, and also to put away for gifts. They're so pretty for bridge prizes, and for engagement remembrances. Choose batiste, dotted Swiss, lawn or dimity.

The Patterns. 1615 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. Contrasting cuffs would take 1/2 yard.

1595 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires, for apron No. 1, 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch material and 6 yards of ricrac braid; for apron No. 2, 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch material with 5 1/4 yards braid; for apron No. 3, 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch material, with 11 yards of braid.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book. The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents) You can order the book separately for 15 cents. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

CONSTIPATED?

Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up the bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This nerve pressure causes headaches, a dull, lazy feeling, bilious spells, loss of appetite, and distress. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach, acid indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes stop for breath. Then you can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is sour. You feel tired, out, grouchy and miserable. Adierka gives you the DOUBLE ACTION you need. This efficient eliminative cathartic relieves that awful GAS almost at once. It usually clears the bowels in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight relief. Sold at all drug stores.

Offending Manners. Virtue itself often offends when coupled with bad manners.—Holmes.

More Houses Are Improved

Earl Brock, electrician for the Texas Utilities Company, is having a neat three-room residence constructed in southwest Tahoka near the J. W. Minor residence. It will be ready for occupancy within a few days.

Dr. J. R. Singleton has recently had some improvements made on his home and has had the residence repainted.

Harvey Freeman in south Tahoka has likewise had some improvements made on his residence.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Gagnat are constantly making improvements on the interior of their furniture and hardware store. Recently they extended the balcony in the rear of their original store more than thirty feet, which gives them more floor space for the display of their furniture. In addition to the lower floor, which is about 120 feet long and 30 feet wide, the balcony is about 60x30 feet, and the entire interior has been redecorated as has also the adjoining building in which they carry a stock of hardware.

D. B. English has recently made improvements also on both the English and Ada theatres. The front of the English has been redecorated, and at the Ada the

Mrs. Bonnie Stokes recently had the roof of her house re-shingled and other improvements made.

There are many other improvements being made in town.

Brown Family Reunion Is Held

P. G. Brown, son and daughter, Ralph and Maurita of Amarillo visited relatives in Tahoka Sunday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Brown, who had been visiting there the past two weeks, having been called by the serious illness of Mr. Brown's wife. The wife died and was buried Tuesday of last week. Mrs. Chester Connolly, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sherrod, and Miss Floyce Sherrod of Tahoka also attended the funeral.

The Browns came down from Amarillo Sunday and attended a regular family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Connolly, nearly all local members of the connection being present. P. G. Brown is a nephew of Uncle Will Brown and a brother of the late Charley Brown of this city.

A. M. Fuquay of Winnsboro, who is visiting in Brownfield, was here Sunday to visit his cousin, A. W. Fuquay and family.

REALTORS SPONSOR LICENSE BILL

Members of the Texas Real Estate Association and approximately two thousand independent real estate dealers who are not affiliated with this group will sponsor a real estate license bill during the forty-sixth session of the Texas legislature, according to Mr. Dean Nowlin, official of the Texas Real Estate Association.

Mr. Nowlin states, "For many years the responsible real estate dealers of Texas have endeavored to enact into law, legislation to protect the citizens of this state against unfair, unethical, and dishonest practices which occur constantly in realty transactions. For various reasons such legislation has not been passed; principally because of lack of understanding on the part of some real estate dealers and many property owners.

There are several points which should be made clear in the minds of all Texas real estate dealers and laymen regarding the proposed legislation.

(a) The enforcement of a real estate license act will cost the taxpayers of Texas nothing, but all expenses of the enforcement of the act will be paid by real estate dealers who come under the purview of the law, in the form of a small fee;

(b) The suggested real estate license bill will not interfere in any respect with honest dealers and will not restrict any honest citizen from engaging in the real estate business;

(c) That property owners who engage in the real estate business strictly from an investment standpoint do not come under the purview of the proposed act;

(d) That the proposed legislation is designed strictly for the protection of Texas citizens against unethical realty practices and is calculated to strengthen materially the responsibility and integrity of professional real estate dealers."

Thirty-one states in the United States have passed similar legislation and in every case realty conditions have been materially improved and in no case has this nature of legislation been repealed. The Texas Real Estate Association with the close cooperation of other real estate dealers who are not members of this group, have prepared a suggested license bill, a copy of which may be obtained by writing the Texas Real Estate Association, 1608 First National Bank Building, Dallas, Texas.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Any erroneous reflection upon the reputation or standing of any individual, firm or corporation, that may appear in the columns of The News will be gladly corrected when called to our attention.

The United States has ten times as much population as its neighbor to the north, Canada, or its neighbor to the south, Mexico. Yet neither of these countries has ever deemed it necessary to build a fort or place a gun on its border to protect itself against the United States. Neither has the United States felt it necessary to fortify itself against either of these countries. Why? Because the United States has never been dominated largely by the spirit of Christianity and has sought to do justice to its neighbors. They do not fear us because they are convinced that we seek only to do right and have no purpose to destroy or injure either of them. If this spirit could dominate the nations of Europe, they could tear down their forts and throw all their war machinery into the ocean and still feel perfectly safe. What this world needs is the spirit of Christianity.

The more we learn about dictators the more we love our own country. The fact that one man has it in his power to compel a great nation of 70,000,000 people to go to war, and chooses to do so just to satisfy his own ambition and to satiate his own war-mind spirit, is something terrible. No Hitler can arise in America until the spirit of our people completely changes, and if he should arise he would hardly last fifteen minutes.

It looks good to see highway No. 84 east of Tahoka being improved. The work is progressing slowly, it is true, but it is progressing. In the course of time the work will be completed and the present indications are that the completed road will be a dandy. One hundred and twenty feet wide! We will confess we can not understand why the State needs that much land for a right of way, but it looks fine just the same. When it is completed, and a section in Yoakum county is likewise completed, there will be a hard-surfaced highway from Post and hundreds of other points further east directly through Tahoka, Brownfield, and Plains to the New Mexico line, from which point a hard-surfaced highway will take one on to Roswell and the mountains. We are grateful that the state highway commission has at last awoke to the importance of this highway.

Our well-meaning governor-nominate, W. Lee O'Daniel, reiterated at the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo a few days ago his purpose to provide $30.00 per month—$15.00 of state funds—to every eligible person in Texas over 65 years of age and at the same time to reduce expenses of the state government. But he has never explained where he the old folks. He may have it all expected to get the money to pay figured out, but nobody else in Texas has been able to figure it out except by resort to a sales tax. O'Daniel has never indicated that he would support a sales tax. It may be that the flour salesman and hill-billy king will also prove to be a great magician.

Adolph Hitler's controlled newspapers report that when he arrived back in Berlin the other day following the entry of the German army into the Sudetan region of Czechoslovakia, 500,000 Germans turned out to acclaim him as a conquering hero. Of course there was nothing else for them to do. Nevertheless, we had read from various sources that the masses of Germans were delighted as much as anybody else when it became certain that a great war had been averted. While there is a strong military faction in Germany, we are constrained to believe that the great masses of the people did not really want war.

The Democrats of New York have again named Herbert H. Lehman as their candidate for governor. He is serving his third term. The Republicans have nominated Thomas E. Dewey, dynamic district attorney of New York City. Lehman has the blessing of President Roosevelt notwithstanding the fact that Lehman vigorously opposed the President's supreme court "packing" proposal. Both Lehman and Dewey have their eyes on the Presidency in 1940 if elected governor, Lehman as a Democrat and Dewey as a Republican. The chances would seem to greatly favor Lehman in the November election.

Governor-nominate Lee O'Daniel was going to run all the professional politicians out of the Capitol. But we surmise that when he gets to Austin in January he will find it full of politicians. Some of them will be fine patriotic citizens working only for the good of the people, while others will have all kinds of axes to grind. They will refuse to be chased out of town, and they will probably be a thorn in the flesh of the good-natured governor. Mr. O'Daniel evidently has a rocky road ahead of him.

And so Jimmie did not choose to resign. Not till January 17 will it be Judge James V. Allred. It must be most satisfying for a governor to step out of office into a life-long job with a good salary attached. We don't know how Jimmy will manage to remain a quiet and sedate judge for the rest of his life, however in a world seething and buzzing with politics. But then there will be possible promotions at frequent intervals worth striving for.

Mr. Business Man, if you feel a bit discouraged you should take a drive over the eastern half of this county. Fields of fine cotton on almost every farm! Great crops of feed just harvested or still standing in the fields. Not as bountiful crops as we had last year by any means but good crops just the same. Lynn county should be thankful to a kind Providence who has showered it with these material blessings.

We believe that what the preachers are telling us is true: that Christianity is the only force that can save this world from turmoil, war and chaos. If the rulers and the peoples of Europe were imbued with the spirit of the golden rule, and if they loved their neighbors one-tenth as well as they love themselves, the shadows of war would vanish in an hour.

What we need is water conservation in the West and flood control in other portions of Texas. It is all right, too, for us to harness our water power in places for the generation of electricity for power and light, but we doubt if the same project anywhere can serve both as a means of flood control and power generation. The two are inconsistent.

Poland also wants a slice of Czechoslovakia, and so the Poles too have gotten a sharp pole after the Czechs.

Kaiser Bill's big boast used to be "Me undt God." Adolph Hitler's is merely "Me!"

Hungary too is hungry for a slice of the rich lands of the Czechs.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis and son Joe Ed returned to Tahoka last Thursday night from a trip to California. They are here temporarily but do not yet know whether they will be permanently located here or elsewhere. They have been residing in Austin the past few months. Prior to that time they were engaged in the grocery business here for several years. Many friends in Tahoka are hoping that they may locate here again, permanently.

Now is the time to renew that subscription to The Lynn County News.

EUZELIAN CLASS

The Euzelian class of the Baptist Church is now at home in its new class room and wishes to invite others to join the class.

Officers for 1938-39 have been elected as follows: President, Mrs. George A. Dale; First Vice-President, Mrs. E. I. Hill; Second Vice-President, Mrs. R. C. Forrester; Third Vice-President, Mrs. J. K. Applewhite; Secretary, Mrs. W. T. Hanes; Teacher, Mrs. Carl Owens.

One of the activities of the class is a business and social meeting held once a month. The September meeting was a "wiener Roast" honoring the class husbands and was held on the lovely lawn of Mrs. R. C. Forrester's home. This attractive and well lighted lawn with its large rock furnace for out-door cooking and its borders of beautiful shrubs and flowers made an ideal setting for the picnic. Husband Dye distinguished himself by roasting all the "wieners" to a "Queen's taste", according to all who enjoyed the feast.

Mesdames Dale, Dye, Cooper, Snowden and Holland made up the entertainment committee and after the feast all enjoyed playing Chinese checkers.

Those attending included: Rev. and Mrs. Geo. A. Dale, and Mrs. W. T. Hanes and Billie, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dye, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Roddy, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Owens, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Reese, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Snowden, Mr. A. L. Smith, Mesdames Wiley Fortenberry, H. B. Howell, A. N. Hughes and Misses O'Bera Forester, Julia Snowden, Mildred and Vinita Cooper.

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES

The rushing, crowded harvest season is here. What is saved or conserved from the farm this year, all must be about it. Partial crops in spots and barren fields in other places all over the country, remind us that harvesting is ever in keeping with our production. It is so religiously. There are crops in spots, barren wastes in other places, and spiritual droughts all over our land. The need is spiritual showers and more workmen, in every season, preparing for a greater and more enduring harvest.

What we lose in the passing years is not to undo or unmake us but to stimulate us to greater endeavor, courage, faith, and hopefulness in the Lord. There is a sowing time, a working time, and a harvest season in every life. What the outside does to us during these trying times depends upon the faith it finds in us.

Be in our preaching services at 11 A. M. Sunday, Fine S. S. hour and good fellowship.

Representatives will be elected to attend Presbytery at Colorado next week.

Women's Auxiliary meets Monday afternoon as usual.

We have no pews to rent. We want them all filled Sunday for reasons most scriptural. Always glad to have all our members and visitors with us. Everybody cordially invited.—K. K. Johnston, Minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Neely Brooks are the parents of a son born at a hospital in Lubbock Sunday afternoon. The little fellow weighed 7 pounds and 19 ounces.

MOTHER SINGERS TO MEET WITH MRS. FRANK P. HILL

The Tahoka Mothers Singers will meet with Mrs. Frank Hill at 2:30 P. M. Thursday, October 13. A full attendance is urged.

This organization under the direction of Mrs. Claude Donaldson consists of about twelve members who meet for practice every two weeks, and all are enjoying the work.

WALKER CIRCLE MEETS

The Blanche Rose Walker Circle met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dale with ten members present.

Circle officers were elected for the coming year.

Donations were taken for the orphan's home.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

(Ben Hardy, Pastor)

Quite an increase in our church school attendance last Sunday, with a good congregation for the 11 o'clock hour.

Just six weeks till our annual conference at Memphis. It will be home-coming for the pastor and wife, as they spent four happy years there.

Our committees and stewards are busy trying to bring up the finances in full, as it is Tahoka's custom to do. With every one doing his part the good record of the past will be kept up.

Let each one be in his or her place next Sunday. We miss you when you are absent.

YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT backs up his personal assurance of easy winter starting and oil economy by OIL-PLATING YOUR ENGINE—more than an oil change!

JUST because this is in print instead of coming direct from Your Mileage Merchant's lips doesn't change the fact that he backs every word personally. How does he go through with that? By giving your engine the only OIL-PLATING. That's not mere words; it's what patented Conoco Germ Processed oil does.

Activated by an added man-made compound—added to oil's best natural qualities—added to the best refining—this exclusive Germ Processed oil adds itself direct to the inner engine surfaces... unites so thoroughly that every working part stays constantly OIL-PLATED.

Does the chrome plating on the bumpers drain down every time your car stops? Neither does OIL-PLATING in your engine. When you want to start up again, after hours of wintry parking—after nights or even weeks in the coldest garage—you've got ready lubrication faster than instantly!—in advance of the fastest oil-circulation. For drain-proof OIL-PLATING has stayed lastingly plated all the way up, to make things slide lightly and swiftly for your starter and battery. That also tells you why you're rid of costly starting wear. And OIL-PLATING stays in as long as you use Germ Processed oil. The gauge-stick backs Your Mileage Merchant!

What The Editor Thinks

The editor has heard considerable discussion on the student council.

He has not formed an opinion as to whether or not this school really needs one, but he is sure a discussion will be in order.

The student council is made up of two representatives from each class. It is a governing body which represents the students in meeting with the administration of the school in which school legislation is proposed and passed.

The work of the student council is what matters though. When the classes have selected their two representatives, they are expected to back them as these representatives are to the school what the legislature is to the state. The councilors in turn are expected to carry clear, honest class opinions to the principal.

It is a very democratic way of governing a school. It is for greater unity of students and better understanding of administration. It helps prevent confusion. It is a great deal of work, but has many benefits. The council usually is allowed to decide on such questions as when and where socials are to be held. They occasionally try to have school parties every two weeks. It also advises the methods of discipline as demerits, point system, or simply removing the misused privileges. They may pass resolutions on house keeping, as keeping paper off the floor, etc. They also may regulate the traffic problems in front of the school where there is one, and regulate movement through the corridors.

As an example of their work in presenting student problems to the administration, we will say the students want an extra holiday the administration doesn't want to give. The best way to get it would be to ask the student council to propose it to the principal. If the council passed the resolution that the student body wanted the holiday, the school board would probably give it to them. They would not have to of course, but they would respect the students wishes more.

A friend of the editor says this will cause hard feelings if the council can not have its own way with the principal. Another believes in it. He thinks it will bring our school up with many other larger schools which have working councils. Another says the present system is good enough. A teacher says where there is no change there is no improvement, therefore give it a try.

Advice to the Lovelorn

T. W., I think you should be looking for your own girl friend instead of making a match for Finis with your cousin.

We'll advise you to be careful Eloise. We saw Sam with a cute little blonde.

To W. H. F. and G. H.—Why must you make these late trips to Lubbock alone, when there are so many girls who would like to go.

A White, you've found your long searched for mate. Now I think you should grab her before Curly Reid steps in and ruins your chance forever.

H. A. M. and E. A. Now won't you feel guilty letting down the football boys who explored the large woods out west of town. I think your football should come before the girl friend.

Students, if you don't want to buy a new pair of shoes or spend a nice cleaning a pair of them, then look out for the sewer line at the Park in Lubbock.

D. F. and F. M., you should know that after skating so hard that little girls are ready to go home—and to bed.

Girls next time you attend the fair, let the fair go 'round, not yourselves.

F. M., I think you need more advice. Lizzy is entirely too young for you.

Lynelle, you have a double now, so watch your step.

Grazing Control Aids Grass

Grass kept eaten down and constantly trampled by livestock has little chance of attaining a healthy growth and the bare soil soon becomes subject to wind erosion. Grazing has been permitted on the pasture at the left at intervals and the grass is healthy. Continued grazing of the pasture at the right of the fence has created an erosion hazard, Soil Conservation Service range examiners point out.

Stubble Checks Wind Erosion

Stubble of Sudan grass or any of the other sorghums, when protected from overgrazing by livestock, binds the soil and prevents erosion during the period of high winds, the Soil Conservation Service points out. This farmer, cooperating with one of the demonstration projects, is leaving stubble from 8 to 12 inches tall as he harvests his Sudan grass crop during the winter.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

We are glad for the increase in attendance in our services. We want you that do not attend Sunday School. We have a class for every age, with capable teachers for them. We want you to know that there is always a hearty welcome awaiting you.

It has been a privilege to be in the city of Tahoka the last six months. I have found some wonderful people who are very courteous in every way, that has made our stay very pleasant.

We want to take this opportunity to thank the editor of the local paper for helping us in advertising the work here. We feel it is a wonderful place to live and work for the Master. Let us work together to carry the gospel to every creature.

Come worship with us Sunday. Rev. Miss Betty Ellis, Pastor.

ELDER DRENNON'S NOTES (Delayed)

Another fine week of weather. It almost makes us forget the sandstorms. The fall is the most beautiful time of the year in this country.

As we hear the war talk across the water and then see our country in peace and prosperity, how thankful we should be, more so than we are!

Our church work here is very pleasant. Harmony and peace seems to prevail in our midst. One of the things we need is vision and action. Oh, that we had more people in the church with a greater passion for lost souls. We are not doing enough mission work. It is our intention to carry the gospel to the Newmoore community. I will preach there next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m.

I was glad to see the fine big issue of the News last week. We sure do miss the Senior Editor's fine good newsy paper, glad to see the good newsy paper, glad to see the merchants supporting it with such large ads.

We will be going to the fair this week, spending our money for red lemonade, canes, merry-go-round rides and such like and yet we say we are broke when a worthy cause comes up that needs money. If the church people would spend as much for preaching the gospel and helping the needy as they do for tobacco, chewing gum, cold drinks, picture shows and worldly pleasures, how much more we could do. Now don't think I am griping; it is just the truth. The most of us spend money for things we could do without and be better off, then come up at the end of the way broke. If the most of us would save what we waste in a life time, we would have enough to take care of us in old age. Now this is not a sermon on money; it is just stating cold hard facts. But it is hard to get people to face facts. When I see poor people go to the circus and pay $1.75 for seats I know that sooner or later I will hear them sing a hard luck song. Now you say it is none of my business how people spend their money and you are right; so I will ring off.

Yours for more people who will spend more money on having a good time hereafter than a good time here.—R. P. Drennon.

Tom Cloe returned to Tahoka last Saturday from Eagle Mountain Lake near Fort Worth, where he has been employed the past year or two, and has again accepted a position with Boullion's store.

Rug From Old Coat And Scraps of Felt

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE directions for making the rug in my book—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, have brought many letters from readers describing rugs that are new to me and very interesting. The reader who shares with us this idea for using pieces of heavy woolen and scraps of felt, tacked her rug to the side of the house and took a snapshot of it which she sent me.

(1) is made of the back width of a very heavy old coat. An allowance was made for a hem to add weight to the edge. The foundation may be pieced if a large section of heavy cloth is not available or felt purchased by the yard may be used for it.

Next, circles of felt in two colors, cut from old hats and discarded school pennants, are sewn together with heavy black thread as at A. These are then sewn in place as at B beginning at the center of the foundation. The large circles in the three center rows are two inches in diameter. Those in the next two rows are 2 1/2 inches. All the small circles are one inch.

You can make slipcovers, all types of curtains and many other things for the house with the help of Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. Just follow the pictures. Step by step you learn to make the lovely things you have been wanting for your home. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery—illustrates 90 stitches; also dozens of things you can make in your spare time to use or to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books leaflet on crazy-patch quilts will be included free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

New Farm Program

Radio promotion of Goodyear products for farm use began September 26 over a huge Blue network of 48 broadcasting stations of the National Broadcasting company. Fifteen-minute daily sectional programs will be broadcast each Monday to Friday, inclusive, from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. eastern standard time, 12:15 to 12:30 p. m. central standard time and 11:15 to 11:30 a. m. mountain standard time to farmers living between the Atlantic ocean and the Rocky mountains, and from Texas to Canada.

The new Goodyear broadcasts will supplement the National Farm and Home Hour, which for ten years has given American farmers up-to-the-minute news and expert counsel on rural problems. The new broadcast immediately follows the Farm and Home Hour program.

Information of vital local importance, including weather forecasts, shipping advice, commodity prices, sectional crop conditions and other such items will be featured in these regional broadcasts. Complete regional offices, competently staffed, and equipped to gather and make available the necessary regional news and information, will be set up and maintained. These will be in charge of farm experts who also will direct the program and see that they are keyed to local needs.—Adv.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Death From Aloft"

HELLO EVERYBODY:

I guess you'd call this a success story, because it's about a young lad of eighteen who made the grade. On the other hand, you can call it an adventure story, too. Because it's one of those yarns where success and adventure are all mixed up together. It's from John R. Mills of New York City and while I don't claim it was the adventure that made a man out of Jack Mills, I do think it convinced a lot of other fellows that he was one.

Jack's New Job Was Plenty Tough.

This story starts in the fall of 1927, when Jack was hired by a structural iron working firm as a rivet jack. And Jack sums up that job of his very neatly in two sentences. "My duties," says he, "were to supply four or five riveting gangs with rivets and with coal for their forges. The duties of the riveting gangs were to supply skyscrapers for New York city."

But it wasn't that easy. Structural iron work is one of the hardest trades in the world to break in on. You've got to get accustomed to walking like a cat along narrow steel girders only a few inches wide and hundreds of feet above the ground. The only way to do that is to get up there and walk those girders. There are no schools that teach a man to keep his head in a tight or dangerous spot. You can't acquire a steeplejack's courage out of a book, or learn it in some safe place on the ground.

"In the ironworkers' trade," Jack says, "you have to develop those iron nerves you hear about. Even the bravest man is nervous at first, walking along those narrow beams with arms and back loaded, and not even a semblance of a hand or foot grip to catch hold of if you lose your balance. My debut in the business was on a building that was an extra hazardous job because there was a double shift of ironworkers and that created a lot of confusion. The ironworkers ran up a framework of steel that was far in advance—eight stories at least—at all times, of the concrete floorlayers who worked below."

Jack was on the night shift, but somehow he couldn't feel that he was one of the gang. It wasn't that he was afraid. It wasn't that he didn't do his work. But somehow or other the veterans on the job made him feel like an outsider. To them he was just another rookie. They weren't unfriendly to him—but they weren't friendly either.

Things Went Haywire After Payday.

Jack didn't let that bother him. He went right on doing his work—and then came a night when everything went haywire!

It was the night after payday and the men on the job, with hardly an exception, had been celebrating their fat pay envelopes. A lot of that stuff out of the little brown jug had been imbibed and those boys were not quite up to par. The raising gang was having trouble holding onto the great iron beams they were lifting, and the riveters were dropping red hot rivets right and left. A couple of beams had been allowed to fall and a couple of men had had narrow squeaks.

"A 4 by 12 beam missed me by inches," says Jack, "and with the deafening chatter of innumerable riveting guns, the clang of beams against beams and the banging of hammers on steel, the scene was akin to pandemonium. It was no place for a man with a case of nerves, and I still had some, although a few weeks of work and a few narrow escapes had hardened my nervous system considerably. It seemed to me that the quietest of the lot were my fellow apprentices, the rivet jacks."

Jack was just a little bit nervous as he went about his work. To get coal for the riveters' forges he had to climb down through eight stories of open steel work. He was on his way back to the top with a bag of coal on his shoulder, and as he struggled up the ladder with his load he began envying a couple other rivet-jacks who had rigged up a make-shift hoist and were hauling their coal up by means of ropes.

Jack Sees Doom Dropping From Above.

At that moment Jack reached the beams of the third story below the top, and stood waiting while two other ironworkers climbed up the next ladder. Another ironworker was following him up the ladder he had just left and Jack watched him coming for a moment, and then turned his attention back to the rivet jacks who were hoisting bags of coal. He had just turned his gaze in that direction when he saw the bag of coal slip its noose and come hurtling toward him!

Jack was right under that descending bag. He dropped to a sitting position and wrapped his legs around the beam. He knew he was going to be hit, but with luck, he might keep his hold. Gripping the beam he waited. Then—CRASH! The bag hit him on the shoulder, tore off his shirt sleeve, and ripped a big patch of skin from his right arm!

He was numbed—bewildered. But his eye took in everything that happened. At that moment the ironworker who had followed him up the ladder had almost reached the top. His head was about even with Jack's waist. And the bag of coal, glancing off Jack's shoulder, hit the other fellow square on the head!

Like a flash, Jack swung out and caught him with his injured arm. And none too soon either. That fellow was out cold. His eyes were closed and he had let go his hold on the ladder. He was a dead weight, and Jack, hanging from the beam by one leg, now, was holding him by the fingertips of a numb and bleeding arm.

Five Stories Aloft and Concrete Below!

Says Jack: "We were five stories above the nearest floor and that was nice hard concrete. The weight was causing my left leg to slip, and that leg was holding me on the beam. I grew dizzy from the strain and began to feel sea-sick."

Meanwhile, another ironworker, coming up the ladder, began maneuvering himself into a position to straddle the injured man and hold him. But all that took time. And when, at last, other help arrived and many hands were assisting the man on the ladder, Jack was so far gone with dizziness and fatigue that he had to be helped himself before he could get back on the beam.

Both Jack and the other fellow were back on the job the following night, and that same night, other ironworkers began to speak to Jack. They didn't say much—just a remark or two about the weather. But it was enough to let Jack know that he had made the grade.

WEAK EGG SHELLS
LACK VITAMIN D

Requirements of Birds Are Of Great Importance.

By Prof. C. S. Platt, Associate Poultry Husbandman, Rutgers University, WNU Service.

A lack of sufficient vitamin D in rations for laying flocks can be determined far more readily by egg shell quality than in the number of eggs produced. Egg shells become weak before production is in any way impaired when vitamin D is deficient. With an adequate supply of the vitamin, the number of cracked and weak-shelled eggs produced in a day should not exceed 3 per cent. This means that with a collection of 400 eggs daily, there should not be more than about one dozen cracked or weak-shelled eggs. If the number exceeds this, the indications are that the vitamin D requirements of the birds are not being properly met.

To correct this condition, the cod liver oil content of the ration should be increased. Normally, the use of 2 per cent of a high grade, natural cod liver oil in the mash will provide a sufficient amount of the vitamin for good results. If this amount is being used and the number of cracked eggs still exceeds 3 per cent, it is possible that the quality of the oil is not up to standard.

Egg production alone is not a very good criterion of the needs of the birds for vitamin D, because under most conditions the birds obtain a sufficient amount through the ordinary open windows of a poultry house to meet their requirements for egg production.

Most Fires on Farms

From Common Causes

Farm fires in the United States take about 3,500 lives and destroy $100,000,000 worth of property each year, says a recent United States department of agriculture publication, "Fires on Farms."

Eighty-five per cent of this loss is from such commonplace causes as defective chimneys and flues; sparks on combustible roofs; lightning; spontaneous combustion; careless use of matches, smoking; careless use of gasoline and kerosene; defective and improperly installed stoves and furnaces; faulty wiring; and misuse of electric appliances.

Four simple precautions that the author, Harry E. Roethe, of the bureau of chemistry and soils, gives to reduce needless waste caused by farm fires are: Use fire-resistant roofing, dispose of waste and rubbish, never use gasoline or kerosene to start or revive a fire, and guard against overheating of stoves and furnaces and clean smoke pipes at least once a year. He also suggests that major buildings be equipped with lightning rods.

In addition to removing the fire hazards, Roethe suggests preparations to fight a fire should one occur, that is, fire-fighting equipment on every farm, kept in a handy place ready for instant use.

Many Eggs Do Not Hatch

About 300,000,000 good eggs a year, which would be enough to feed thousands of persons, are wasted every year because they will not hatch. Most of these can be saved in edible condition, according to the claims, by a device recently patented which will detect whether an incubated egg will produce a chicken or not before it has a chance to spoil. It is claimed that from 15 to 20 per cent of all the eggs set annually in the United States never hatch.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Relates the Romance of Wheat and Discusses Flour, the Basic Food

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THE story of wheat flour is the story of civilization. Before man learned to cultivate this golden grain, he was obliged to move from place to place, with the seasons, in search of food to sustain and nourish his body.

Then, on one happy and momentous occasion, perhaps 6,000 years ago, an inspired nomad plucked the kernels clustered at the top of some waving grasses, observed that they had a nut-like taste, and passed along the far-reaching discovery to his fellow-tribesmen.

The beginnings of wheat cultivation are lost in antiquity. But we do know that for thousands of years, it has been one of the most important crops in the world—so necessary to man's well being that the supplication, "Give us this day our daily bread," has summed up his most fervent desires.

Food for the World

Today, nearly three quarters of a billion people use wheat as food. And modern methods of milling have developed flours of such superlative quality that breads are more appetizing and more attractive than ever before; special flours make cakes and pastries light as the proverbial feather; and there are prepared mixes available for biscuits, waffles, muffins, griddle cakes, pie crust and gingerbread.

For Energy and Vitality

The form in which wheat flour makes its appearance on the table is of less importance than the fact that it is and should be an essential item in the family food supply. That is because it offers a rich supply of fuel value at little cost. The different types of flour contain from 61 to 76 per cent carbohydrates, from 11 to 15 per cent protein, and varying amounts of mineral salts and vitamins.

It is necessary to know something of the structure of the wheat kernel and to understand how the various flours differ, in order to select the flour best suited for each purpose. A kernel is made up of several outer layers of bran; a layer of cells high in phosphorus and protein, just inside the bran; the endosperm, composed of cells in which starch granules are held together by proteins; and the germ. The starch cells are so small that one kernel of wheat may contain as many as 20,000,000 granules.

White and Whole Wheat Flours

White flour is made chiefly from the endosperm. Whole-wheat, entire-wheat and graham flours are loosely applied terms which refer both to products made by grinding the wheat berry without the removal or addition of any ingredient, and also to a flour from which part of the bran has been removed or to which bran has been added.

One of the most prolonged discussions of the last two decades has involved arguments for and against the use of white or whole wheat flour in making various types of bread and muffins. As a result, many people have been confused and misled—often at the expense of their enjoyment in meals.

Here are the facts: White bread contains important energy values, proteins, some minerals, chiefly potassium and phosphorus, and when made with milk, it also supplies some calcium. It is easily and almost completely digested, tests indicating an average digestibility of 96 per cent.

Bread and other bakery products made from whole wheat flour also contain proteins and carbohydrates, plus good amounts of iron, copper, phosphorus and potassium; and vitamins A, B and G.

The whole grain products are less completely digested than those which are highly refined; however, so some of their nutrients may be lost to the body.

When the two types of flour are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as practically interchangeable. Whole wheat flour is conceded to be richer in minerals and vitamins, but where white bread is preferred, these elements easily can be supplied from other sources.

As a matter of fact, foods made from both types of flour belong in the well-balanced diet, where they add variety and splendid food values at minimum cost. And it goes without saying that for many purposes, only white flour is suitable.

Bread Versus Pastry Flour

Different types of wheat differ in their proportions of protein and carbohydrates, and that accounts for the difference between bread and pastry flours. Bread flour is made from wheat containing a large amount of gluten, which gives elasticity to a dough and helps to make a well-piled loaf. Pastry flour contains less gluten and more starch and has a lighter texture that produces fine-grained cakes. All-purpose flours, as their name implies, are usually a blend of different types of wheat and are designed for general household use.

A Symbol of Progress

It is a tribute to American enterprise that the world's largest flour mills are now to be found in this country, and that tremendous staffs of technicians and research chemists supervise every step in the preparation of the flour which may pass through as many as 17 grindings and be subjected to 180 separations.

Experts begin by checking the quality of the grain while it is in transit to the mill. But their work does not end when the flour emerges pure white in color and unbelievably fine in texture, after having passed through silk bolting cloths of 100 mesh or finer. After that, there are baking tests, day after day, to be sure that every sack which is sold is of uniformly high quality.

Self-Rising Flour

An interesting development of recent years has been the self-rising flour and other ready-to-use mixtures. Some of these contain only a leavener; others include dried milk and eggs; fat; and baking powder, so that only a liquid is needed. All are planned to save the homemaker's time and maintain her family's interest in their most important energy food—the products of wheat—the foremost cereal grain.

Lubbock Meter Row Settlement Soon

Lubbock should learn before very long the fate of its parking meters.

This was the opinion of city officials Tuesday after having been advised that the state court of criminal appeals has convened in Austin for its fall session after summer recess.

Pending before the court since early last summer is a test case filed on behalf of Homer Harrison of Tahoka by W. H. Evans, Lubbock attorney. Harrison was fined in corporation court for violation of the city parking meter ordinance.

He appealed to district court here and the conviction was upheld. The appeal to the court of criminal appeals on a writ of habeas corpus followed, attacking the constitutionality of the city's parking meter ordinance.

The appeal was argued before the higher court several weeks ago by Durwood H. Bradley, on behalf of the city, and by Evans.

Should the appeal be upheld, officials here believe, it would be the end of parking meters in Lubbock.

—Lubbock Avalanche.

Norvell Redwine of Amarillo, a member of the state highway patrol, formerly a deputy sheriff here, was here this week visiting his mother and other relatives and also attending court.

Mrs. N. M. Wyatt, who was in a Lubbock hospital last week seriously sick, was brought back home several days ago and is said to be making satisfactory improvement.
