TORNADO WARNING—This was the scene around 2 a.m. Monday as hundreds of Snyder residents crowded into available civil defense shelters in wake of a tornado warning issued by the national weather service at 1:25 a.m. The basement of the Snyder police station filled up first and local civil defense officials opened the courthouse, Snyder Savings and Loan, the First Baptist Church, Southwestern Bell, Snyder National Bank, First Presbyterian Church,

Cogdell Hospital and the Scurry County Museum to accommodate those seeking shelter. The warning was issued and sirens were sounded when units of the Snyder police department reported sighting a funnel on the ground in an open field northeast of the city at 1:22 a.m. All of the downtown shelters were reported full or nearly full by the time the warning was lifted at 2:30 a.m. No injuries or property damages were reported. ## Area Menaced By Funnels, Floods

Jittery Snyder area residents converged on storm shelters in the downtown area early today, as vicious clouds produced a menacing funnel cloud and then followed up with deluges of rain that added a flood threat.

Mike Smith, city engineer, said Deep Creek was expected to crest shortly before noon today following heavy rains northwest and north of Snyder. It was not expected to rise above flood stage of 11 feet at the police station, based on reports from spotters and soil conditions, said Smith.

Up to 4½ inches fell in three hours at Fluvanna as the heavy rains appeared to be concentrated in the north half of the county. Other hard rains fell in the Loyd Mountain area, with up to 2½ inches reported in one 20-minute period.

The rains averaged three inches or more across the county north of Snyder, according to reports to the Civil Defense headquarters in Snyder.

Hundreds of Snyder residents sought shelter at the police station and Civil Defense headquarters, the courthouse, Snyder Savings and Loan Building, the Southwestern Bell Building and First Baptist Church when warning sirens sounded shortly before 1:30 a.m. A tornado was reported northeast of the Northeast Elementary School, and several visual sightings confirmed the funnel. However, the funnel touched down in an open area and no damage was reported before it lifted.

Some flooding of streets was reported in the north and northeast parts of town.

Rainfall reports were lighter to the southeast, with only 1.25 to 1.50 reported in the Hermleigh area. Lake J. B. Thomas had only a sprinkle, which was the case over the southwest area across to the Dunn, China Grove area.

Over the state, flooding, high winds and hail were reported.

Police were searching for a woman whose pickup was washed over a bridge in west Bexar County. Officers recovered the body of 27-year-old Michael Murray of San Antonio, who was trying to help the woman start her truck when both were swept away in rising waters.

Also killed was 17-year-old Sandra Bustamante, whose car was swept away after it stalled in high water in San Antonio, where 5 inches of rain fell overnight.

Heavy rains caused more flooding in the Wichita Falls area during the night. Residents along Holliday Creek were evacuated, some for the second time in less than a week after the drenching. See Floods, Page 9

In Puerto Rico...

Navy Man Gunned Down

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Police are hunting the gunman who killed a U.S. Navy sailor and wounded three others returning to their ship after a night on the town, but they don't know whether it was a political attack or an attempted robbery.

Authorities said the four young enlisted men were wearing civilian clothes early Sunday when an automobile pulled to the curb and those inside opened fire on the sailors walking back to the pier where the USS Pensacola was tied up.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Darryl T. Phillips, 22, of Dublin, Ga., was killed while Petty Officer 3rd Class Larry S. Skowronski, 21, of Erie, Pa., Petty Officer 3rd Class Randall L. Keyte, 23, of Adrian, Mich., and Seaman Anthony L. Phaneuf, 20, of Ashville, Maine, were wounded, the Navy reported.

Skowronski, wounded in the abdomen, was reported in stable condition in the Veterans Administration Hospital with a good prognosis.

Lt. Drew Malcolm, a spokesman at the Navy's Roosevelt Roads Base, said the other two were in the intensive care unit at the Puerto Rico Medical Center's University Hospital, in San Juan, with guarded prognoses.

Keyte reportedly had gunshot wounds in the right arm and the abdomen and Phaneuf had a bullet wound in the right side of his body that might have hit his liver.

It was the bloodiest attack on U.S. military personnel in Puerto Rico since pro-independence terrorists attacked a Navy bus in December 1979, killing two sailors and wounding 10 others in an attack on a Navy bus in December 1979.

The same extremist organization that claimed responsibility for that attack acknowledged shooting at ROTC officers a few months later and claimed it destroyed nine jet fighters worth $45 million belonging to the Puerto Rico Air National Guard last year.

But nobody had claimed responsibility for Sunday's attack 24 hours after it took place. That and the fact that the sailors were in civilian clothes indicated political terrorists may not have been involved, said one federal official who asked that his name not be used.

Malcolm said authorities had no motive for the attack and could rule out neither an attempted robbery nor a terrorist attack.

The FBI, the Naval Investigative Service and the Puerto Rican police were all investigating the shooting.

Malcolm said the "unprovoked attack" occurred between 1 and 1:30 a.m. The four sailors had left a nightclub in an area of clubs and restaurants frequented by sailors in the Miramar area of San Juan and were walking along Fernandez Juncos Avenue toward their ship, police sources said.

They were gunned down just after crossing a bridge from which the lights of the port and Old San Juan were visible to the west and the nearby towers of the Condado Beach tourist area could be seen to the east. There were large bloodstains on the sidewalk and trails of blood left as the young men had tried to run from their attackers.

In Falklands Crisis...

Thatcher To Decide If Diplomacy Will Be Out

By The Associated Press

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is expected to decide within the next 48 hours whether to abandon U.N. efforts to solve the Falkland Islands crisis and order a British invasion, Britain's domestic news agency said today.

"Unless there is an unexpected breakthrough at the United Nations... the invasion now appears certain," the Press Association said.

On Sunday, Britain's defense minister said Argentina had a week to reach a settlement at the United Nations or face an invasion of the South Atlantic islands by troops aboard the Royal Navy fleet of 82-plus ships.

Press Association said Mrs. Thatcher and her advisers "are convinced that Argentina will never agree to withdraw" its forces from the Falklands until Britain agrees to surrender sovereignty over the islands. Britain has refused to discuss sovereignty as a precondition for withdrawal.

The news agency did not identify sources for the report by political and defense correspondents. But they are regularly briefed by the Defense Ministry, Foreign Office and other government officials on a non-attributable basis.

The Argentines "are acting like someone playing a game of tennis and giving a precondition before the game that it is being played on the understanding that they win," Britain's U.N. Ambassador Anthony Parsons told reporters at London's Heathrow airport today.

"It is not an acceptable basis to start a game and it is not an acceptable way to start negotiations. We should not prejudice the outcome of the talks," Parsons said before boarding a Concorde flight back to New York to resume bargaining at the United Nations.

Parsons was recalled over the weekend to brief Mrs. Thatcher and her "War Cabinet." British press reports said Parsons was instructed to give Argentina another 48 hours to reach agreement. After that, the papers said, Mrs. Thatcher would give British fleet commander Rear Adm. John Woodward, the go-ahead to retake the Falklands.

Britain tightened its blockade Sunday with air raids on the Stanley airfield and two Argentine ships, forcing the crew of one to abandon it.

In Luxembourg, Britain pressured its European Economic Community partners to renew the one-month boycott of Argentine goods scheduled to expire tonight, warning that a show of weakness would encourage Argentina to stall a negotiated settlement. The 10-member bloc scheduled an evening meeting to decide.

In Buenos Aires, the U.S. Embassy strongly denied Ambassador Harry W. Schlaudeman was consorting with government dissidents in what newspapers called an effort to destabilize the ruling junta. The press accusations were seen as further indications of Argentine anger over U.S. support for the British.

Military sources reported today that Britain planned to step up its attacks on Argentine-held airfields, radar installations and communications facilities on the islands in advance of an invasion.

Argentina accused Britain of mounting "indiscriminate attacks" on unarmed freighters carrying food, medicine and fuel to the people of the Falklands and said it would take "appropriate steps to protect the residents' legitimate rights."

Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez accused Britain of delaying talks held by U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to arrange a cease-fire and negotiations on the future of the islands. Costa Mendez said this would be a "difficult week" at the United Nations.

One of the reporters with the British fleet, Michael Nicholson of Independent Television News, said in a report passed by British naval censors that the 8,364-ton freighter Rio Carcarana was hit Sunday with bombs and 30mm cannon fire in Port King Bay on the east-central shore of East Falkland Island.

At the same time, jets strafed another ship, identified by the Argentines as the Bahia Buen Suceso, tied up to the jetty near Fox Bay Settlement on West Falkland but "the Harrier pilots did not drop their bombs because it was too close to the village," Nicholson said.

The pilots said "the ship did return fire, hitting one of the Harriers in the tail," Nicholson reported. He said the plane made it back safely to the carrier Hermes and the pilot was not hurt.

The Argentine military command said the Rio Carcarana was set afire and the other ship was damaged. A British communiqué said one of the crews, presumably of the Rio Carcarana, abandoned the ship. The Argentines said each ship carried a crew of 30 to 50 men, and there was no loss of life on the Rio Carcarana.

Argentina also reported that the supply ship Isla de los Estados, reported missing Friday with a crew of 30 to 40 men, apparently was "sunk by British ships." It said parts of the ship had been found.

Monday update

Want To Arrest Crewmen

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The United States has asked the Panamanian government for permission to arrest five men suspected of killing the first officer of their ship and plotting to kill seven others in a mutiny, authorities say.

The motor vessel Evergreen was expected to arrive at the Houston city docks today after the Coast Guard and FBI collaborated Saturday night to quell the uprising at sea.

Admissions Plan Expected

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — State officials who suspended admissions to Texas prisons and paroled about 600 inmates to ease overcrowding prepared to unveil their plan to accept new inmates.

However, the officials said they don't expect to admit many prisoners immediately.

"The plan for controlled admissions hasn't been totally worked out yet," said Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley. "But we hope to be getting in touch with the sheriffs Monday and letting them know what the situation is."

"But I don't see a big flood of prisoners coming in, because we have to evaluate our space, look at the numbers and see what's available," Hartley said.

Cryts Temporarily Freed

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Farmer Wayne Cryts is to testify in Washington D.C. on Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee studying bankruptcy laws.

Bankruptcy Judge Charles Baker gave Cryts a three-day pass from the Pope County Jail on Sunday so he could attend the hearing. Baker jailed Cryts on April 28 for refusing to say who helped him move 31,000 bushels of soybeans tied up in a bankruptcy case.

Edie Deal, Pope County warrant officer, said the U.S. Marshall's office notified the jail at 1:30 p.m. Sunday that Cryts was to be freed.

Cryts, 36, of Puxico, Mo., left the jail with his wife, Sandra, on his own recognizance. He is to return by noon Wednesday. "He was very excited," Ms. Deal said in a telephone interview. Cryts was unavailable for comment Sunday.

Ask Us

Q.—What are the chances of getting another emergency warning siren installed in the southwest part of town which can be heard more easily by people living south of Towle Park?

A.—The chances are good. In fact, the city already is planning at least two more of the sirens, and one of them is due to go in the southwest area. The seven original sirens are dispersed as recommended by consultants nearly two years ago, but local officials have already seen a need for at least two more.

Opera Star...

Beverly Sills Sings New Tune

NEW YORK (AP) — What Beverly Sills wants most these days is for the opera company she heads, the New York City Opera, to be America's national opera company.

"Most every country in Europe has it," she says.

"We certainly have our great international company, the Met. I think we should also acknowledge the fact we have now a great national opera company."

"I just want some recognition for the American artist. That really is my goal. I'm determined to turn this company into the American national opera. If it means a name change, it'll have a name change."

"I want the youngster in Davenport who wants to be an opera singer to feel it is a possible goal and the culmination would be to appear with the American National Opera in New York City."

The New York City Opera now has fall and spring seasons in New York, Los Angeles and near Washington. "I don't see why we can't expand our touring activities," Miss Sills says.

"We'd do different repertoire. We manage to exist 20 yards from the most formidable competition in the world, the Met. I don't think it is necessary for anybody to be the only game in town.

"We're called the New York City Opera because our theater happens to be in the city of New York. The singers come from almost every state in the union. We had eight singers from eight states on that concert from the White House in December, each one extraordinary, young and as handsome as the other."

"Nobody else is employing the number of American singers, conductors, set and costume designers. Probably about 98 percent of our people are American. If we got government acknowledgement we were the national opera, we probably would go the other 2 percent."

Miss Sills, it is well known, is an American who became an opera superstar in America. She made her debut at the New York City Opera as Rosalinda in "Die Fledermaus" and, 25 years later, in the fall of 1980, sang her farewell appearance — the same role in the second act of the same opera — in a gala evening titled "Beverly!"

Half the evening had singing by other stars, including Leontyne Price, Ethel Merman and Carol Burnett, and raised $1 million for the opera company. Miss Sills had become company director the year before.

Running the New York City Opera, Miss Sills says, "is more rewarding and harder than I expected. I didn't expect to be spending 15 and 16 hours in the place. I didn't think it would be a piece of cake, that's for sure."

"I try to come to every performance. In California, in December, I think I missed three out of 28 performances."

"The most exciting aspect for me is the singer. We're being robbed blind by all the other companies. I want them to go on to other houses. But I'm glad I've got some of our young singers in chains for part of each year through 1985."

"I went on to La Scala and the Met and I allotted a certain portion of my life to this company. I couldn't get the same satisfaction or excitement I got out of working here."

Miss Sills has faced criticism on her performance as an opera company director. Thor Eckert Jr., writing after the 1981 fall season, said, "While I have no wish to rain on Miss Sills' parade, it must be said that the level of performance at the City is not better than it was before she took over, and in some cases, it is actually worse."

"Overall, what is lacking is a firm sense of guidance. There is no look to the productions, just a hodgepodge of styles and approaches and a very uneven lineup of directorial talent. The casting is erratic, not particularly gauged to show off the young singers to best advantage."

paul harvey

If you are feeling depressed, you may be somebody special.

Sir Winston Churchill suffered depression. He called his dark moods his "black dog," said sometimes "desperate thoughts" came into his head.

Astronaut Buzz Aldrin, the second man on the moon, suffered severe episodes of depression.

Nor is it a malady peculiar to our century. Depressive illness contributed to the classic literature of Dostoevski and Poe, Hawthorne and Darwin, Hemingway and Plath.

But for Hemingway and Plath, the depression led to suicide.

If you are feeling depressed, so are 4 to 8 million other Americans. One-and-a-half million Americans are presently being treated for depression, perhaps five times that many should be.

But while our nation donates and spends generously on research and treatment for other ailments, we are strangely stingy when it comes to mental health even though the tenth leading cause of death in the United States is suicide.

We are spending $200 per person per year seeking a cure for cancer, $100 per person per year on heart research — but only $6 on mental health.

And where there is some national organization fund-raising in behalf of cancer, heart disease, muscular dystrophy and an assortment of comparatively rare ailments, no national organization is fund-raising for mental health.

Yet, despite the scandalous frugality of our investment, much has been accomplished. Individuals heretofore institutionalized for years or for life are responding to drug therapy — frequently within days.

Tricyclic antidepressants now most effective in treating depression are Elavil, Tofranil and Nopramin.

Eighty percent of depressive patients respond to these drugs.

But since the phenomenal 30-year success with drugs our mental hospitals, virtually emptied, have been closing.

This frequently leaves the chronically disabled, with no sanctuary, back out on the street, to become criminals or victims of crime.

For anybody chronically mentally ill, the street is no less cruel than the snakepit.

At least one foundation with which I am acquainted has initiated a coordinated study of mental illness. The objective is to combine the efforts of many researchers, compare patient populations, hopefully to accelerate our understanding of the "unhelpable."

If their number could be reduced from 5 to 15 percent — down to 1 percent — it would redeem millions of people.

And, from a purely pragmatic point of view, it would materially reduce the $30 billion a year we now pay for health care and lost productivity and the incalculable cost of crime traceable to this cause.

Medicine made negligible progress against leprosy, TB and cancer until those diseases came "out of the closet."

Hopefully, mental illness is next.

Employees Should Seek Other Jobs...

President Says Braniff Is Dead

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International is dead and hopeful employees should face facts and find new jobs, the airline's chairman says.

Howard D. Putnam says he's worried some former workers believe Braniff will "rise like the phoenix."

"We need to get across our employees that even we fly again, the airline will be too small to hire them all back," Putnam told The Dallas Morning News.

"I talked with one of our flight attendants last night, and she was all smiles. She said, 'I'm not even going to go out and look for unemployment or another job, because I know you will have this thing flying again soon.'"

But Putnam said he told her: "Go out and find another job."

Last week Braniff suspended all flights and asked for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

The Wednesday suspension of operations came a day before payday for most of Braniff's 9,500 workers. Employees also learned that the company had not paid health, life and disability insurance premiums for more than a month before it closed, and the insurance carrier retroactively canceled the policies.

The airline delivered a check Wednesday to Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. for the premiums that had been withheld from employees' pay through May 13, so claims made through May 1 would be honored.

The company could reorganize and fly again, but Putnam told The Dallas Morning News that any airline that emerges from bankruptcy would be much smaller than Braniff, have a different name, and make no international flights.

"The truth is Braniff died at 12:01 a.m. last Thursday," Putnam said.

"The airline is dead."

"Braniff will never fly again," said Thomas Donovan, chief corporate lending officer at Marine Midland Bank in New York, a major Braniff creditor. "The world would be better off without Braniff."

Donovan said any plans to revive the airline were "poppycock."

Braniff officials have said the company's debts could exceed $1 billion. Braniff, the nation's 10th largest airline, incurred net losses of more than $300 million during the three years ended Dec. 31, and lost another $43 million in the first quarter of 1982.

"The Braniff name cannot be used again, if we succeed in organizing another airline," Putnam said. "I know it is going to hurt some feelings, what I am saying. But with the things we have done — grounding airplanes, the bankruptcy, leaving passengers stranded — I don't see any way we could sell the name Braniff again."

M. Philip Guthrie, Braniff's chief financial officer, said it will be at least 90 days before all the paperwork can be filed and an operating plan for a new airline can be developed.

But Putnam said success might still elude the company.

"We will also have to file a plan with the court that has an extremely high probability of making money or the court won't approve it. And we don't know if we can."

"No airline has been in bankruptcy before, and we don't know if it is possible," Putnam added. "We may have to come back in a few months and say, 'We couldn't do it, folks.'"

Finds Name On Memorial

SOUTH PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Bob Barry, who heads a consulting and management engineering company, had a bit of a shock when he attended a reunion for alumni of South Pasadena High School.

Barry, class of '33, found his name on a bronze plaque to honor graduates who died in World War II.

"Just one of those mistakes," said Barry, not too perturbed.

The reunion had a more pleasant surprise for 94-year-old Emma Faye Munger Goldman. She was named homecoming queen at the festivities.

"I never dreamed of such a thing," said Mrs. Goldman, a member of the school's first graduating class in 1907, now living in Phoenix, Ariz. "We didn't even have homecoming in my day."

Mrs. Goldman was the only person out of her six-member class to attend, so, "there was no competition," she stated modestly, a bouquet of red and white flowers on her lap.

"I'm never going to be the same again," she said.

The reunion Saturday, attended by about 5,000 South Pasadena graduates, was the brainchild of Mary Ida Phair, class of '38, who became the school's librarian in 1963. Graduates came from as far away as Indonesia to honor the old school, gossip and sing the fight song.

John Nevill Maskeyne, born in England in 1839, was the first magician to levitate a person in his stage act.

Mechanic Speaks About Time He Killed Friend

(AP) — A 20-year-old mechanic who was behind the wheel in a crash that killed his best friend has been recruited to discourage teen-agers from drinking and driving during this season of high school proms and graduation parties.

Carl Dawson was the perfect case for county officials who wanted a spokesman to warn teens against drinking and driving. His accident followed a night of partying. It ended with death on a country road where Dawson had tried to take a curve at 50 mph.

Dawson says he was like hundreds of other youths who drink and cruise in their cars, until the Dec. 12 accident that killed Brian Forrestall, 19.

"I killed him," Dawson says, reading from a roughly typed speech he has been delivering to high school students.

Dawson is making the rounds of nine Hampshire County public high schools under an agreement with court officials.

Massachusetts' legal drinking age is 20.

Hampshire County assistant district attorney Charlotte Guyer had asked probation officers last year to come up with someone to talk to students about the dangers of drinking and driving. Dawson's case was just what she was looking for.

Last Dec. 12, he was behind the wheel of his family's 1975 station wagon. Forrestall was by his side. A buddy, home on leave from the Army, and a woman friend were in the back.

The car went off a curve, rolled over a stop sign and two trees, snapped a telephone pole and flipped over. Dawson and the two passengers walked away from the wreck. Forrestall was hurled out of the car.

In his speech, Dawson describes walking up to Forrestall's body and turning it over.

"His eyes were open and they seemed like they were looking right at me," Dawson says.

Dawson pleaded guilty to vehicular homicide in Hampshire District Court, where Judge George Keady approved Ms. Guyer's idea. Dawson also lost his license for four years and was placed on probation for three years. An 18-month suspended jail sentence hangs over his head.

"It may be boring to you, but I'm glad to come around," he told a group of students. "It might help somebody else."

"There's times you think that you're not drunk and you really are. Some people get busted for drinking and driving and some don't. The people who don't, think, 'Wow, the cops didn't catch me, and they think they're cool. They're not,' Dawson says in his speech.

"Parents are calling me, asking me to let their child hear him," said Assistant Principal John Naumowicz, who had 100 juniors and seniors from psychology and justice classes attend the speech.

Naumowicz said the school of 640 loses at least one student at year in an accident involving drunken driving or speeding.

Police Report Theft, Mishaps

Snyder police officers investigated one reported theft, one major accident and wrote reports of two minor accidents over the weekend.

Julia Luera reported the theft of wire wheel covers valued at $240 from her 1981 Chevrolet around 8 a.m. Saturday. The wheel covers were thought to have been taken while the car was parked at her residence at 405 34th St. Friday night.

Local police worked a major traffic mishap at the intersection of 28th St. and Ave. O around 7 p.m. Sunday. Involved in the mishap were a 1972 Pontiac driven by Rosemary Hernandez of Rt. 2, and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Douglas Max Horsley of 2611 Ave. K.

Hernandez and two passengers in her car were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Scurry County EMS where they were treated for minor injuries and released. A passenger from the Horsley vehicle was also treated and released at the hospital emergency room.

Extensive damages were reported to both vehicles in the accident.

Police are investigating a minor hit and run mishap at the intersection of 33rd St. and Beaumont Ave. reported at 12:31 a.m. Sunday. Involved in the accident were a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Byron Kirk Herley and a blue pickup truck which fled the scene of the mishap. Only minor damages were reported to the Herley vehicle.

The second minor mishap of the weekend occurred in Towle Park around 7:10 p.m. Sunday. A 1974 Chevrolet driven by Kenneth Dean Breedlove was reported to have been in collision with a fence post and a utility pole in the park. Minor damages were reported to the Breedlove vehicle while damages to the fence and pole were listed at $25.

In other action, police made four arrests for public intoxication and two for disorderly conduct over the weekend. One woman was also arrested for DWI and unlawfully carrying a weapon Sunday evening. One male subject was arrested for possession of marijuana in a quantity less than two ounces around 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Floods Threaten

rains struck Wichita Falls. A flood warning was in effect today for Wichita Falls. A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for much of North Texas and flash flood watches covered most of North Texas and South Texas.

Other severe weather reported around the state Sunday night and early today.

A tornado was sighted near Silverton. Baseball-size hail pelted an area south of Matador on the South Plains.

Golf ball-size hail fell at San Antonio, where heavy rains caused some creek flooding in northern and western sections of the city.

A tornado was sighted on radar near Justiceburg. Baseball-size hail was reported near Grassland.

A home was destroyed by an apparent tornado on the Waggoner Ranch in Wilbarger County. There were no reports of injury.

Heavy rain caused flooding of some low-water crossings and farm roads in the Laredo area.

Winds gusted to 80 mph at Sherman as a line of heavy thunderstorms passed through the area.

The Texas Highway Department reported water up to 10 inches deep across Texas 380 between Swenson and Aspermont in West Texas.

Skies were clear in extreme western and eastern sections of the state early today and partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere.

Early morning temperatures were in the 40s and 50s in the Panhandle and in the 60s and 70s elsewhere.

Forecasts called for scattered thunderstorms over most of the state with some expected to be severe.

Highs were to be mostly in the 80s, ranging from the 70s in the Panhandle to the 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. Lows tonight will be in the 40s and 50s in the Panhandle and the 60s and 70s over the rest of the state. Highs Tuesday will be in the 70s in the Panhandle and the 80s elsewhere.

Miss Couto Speaks At Final AAUW Meeting

The American Association of University Women held their final meeting of the 1981-82 year on May 11 in the home of Bernice Parker. Monica Couto, the foreign exchange student from Brazil gave an informative talk on the differences between the cultures and school systems of the United States and Brazil.

The scholarship committee announced that the recipient of the scholarship to Western Texas College is Judy Irwin, a senior at Snyder High School.

The following officers were installed for the 1982-83 year: second vice president, Brenda Otto; recording secretary, Alta Lynch; and treasurer, Janie Carter. Donna Fowler, installing officer, presented each new officer pink rose buds following her oath of office. The theme of the installation service was "Finding the Pot of Gold at the End of the Rainbow."

Four members will attend the Bi-Regional Conference in El Paso on June 4-6. They are Brenda Otto, Alta Lynch, Peggy English, and Sue Cates. The theme of the conference is "Back on Campus."

Oswald: "South's hand was a maximum since he used a 15-17 point no-trump. Hence, he was fully justified in accepting the game invitation."

Alan: "North might well have passed the 15-17 no-trump opening bid. Once he did use Stayman he felt justified in raising hearts, and of course, South continued to game."

Oswald: "South was unlucky in that his queen-jack of diamonds were worthless. Then, after East took the first two diamond tricks the four heart contract looked hopeless. Off hand, South had to find East with the ace of hearts and king of clubs. If East held those cards he would have opened the bidding."

Alan: "Anyway, East led a spade at trick three and South saw a slight chance to make his contract. It was just possible that East would hold the J-10 of trumps and the king of clubs."

Oswald: "When you see a chance, no matter how slight, you should take it. South won the spade in dummy, led a trump and finessed his eight. West took his ace and the first hurdle was past. Later on, two club finesses brought the game home."

Alan: "East could have beaten the hand if he had played a trump honor the first time trumps were led. South would then have to get to dummy three more times to take a second trump finesse and two club finesses and would have been one entry short."

Working wives, you are doing your husbands a "favor" in most cases. Recent studies on nearly 300 urban men ages 25-54 indicate that those with working wives seem to take life easier, in subtle ways, such as working fewer weekends and nights, says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Republican Women To Meet

You'd better believe it - Pat Walker's is a totally different, personal way. I went from a size 12 to a size 6 and have maintained my figure for 2 years with no problem. It's a sensible way to lose weight with relaxed passive exercise and a common-sense approach to food.

I wear my diploma everyday and so can you! It doesn't cost anything to go and find out more about it!

Foster Parent Plan To Aid Eagle Population

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two large eagles, shrieking disapproval, hover overhead as Dennis Case places a fuzzy eaglet into a nest of sticks high up in a cottonwood tree along Lake Erie.

With an offering of a fish and just the right timing, Case hopes the male and female bald eagles will accept the little bird as their own. The eaglet was born about a month before in a Maryland laboratory and brought to Ohio under the state's bald eagle preservation program, designed to bolster depleted ranks of the majestic bird. Since the 1970s, America's national bird has been an endangered species.

"We were losing nesting pairs and not getting replacements. So we try to increase production in nests by taking young eaglets and putting them in," said Case, a field biologist for the Ohio division of wildlife and head of the state's eagle program.

The program, started in 1975, helps eagles do what should be a natural process — reproduce and fledge healthy eaglets. Many have not been able to because pesticides, particularly DDT, have become concentrated in eagles through their principal source of food — fish. That has caused females to lay eggs with thin shells.

"The shells would break as the eagles were hatching them or else the levels (of pesticides) would be so high they would cause the embryo to die," Case said.

DDT has been banned since 1972, but it takes a long time for the chemical to work its way out of the food chain and out of the eagle's system, Case said. So the problem remains.

Loss of forest land also has driven the eagle away and many are killed in collisions with high-voltage power lines.

"We've had a steady decline in nesting pairs in Ohio since the late 1950s," said Case. "In 1959, the first year accurate records were kept, 15 pairs of eagles were nesting in the state. That declined to only four pairs in 1979."

Fostering was begun in Ohio in 1979 and so far, four eaglets have been successfully adopted by adult pairs. That accounts for 4 percent of eagle production in the state, said Case, who reports no failures.

Case said his efforts appear to be working. But for now, he's "cautiously optimistic."

The number of Ohio's nesting pairs — a male and female who mate for life and produce eggs each spring — was five in 1980, six in 1981 and seven in 1982.

"The result of the program and the general trend nationally is to see improvement in productivity in bald eagles as a result of the banning of pesticides and the environment getting cleaner," Case said.

Case estimates Ohio's total bald eagle population at 29, most of them along the western shore of Lake Erie or near other bodies of water. There are believed to have been 250,000 eagles in the country at the turn of the century. The National Wildlife Federation, which began counting eagles four years ago, says there now are about 13,400.

Other states are actively trying to protect eagles, including New York, Maine, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Case spent his first several years in the program locating and studying eagles. The large white-headed birds nest only when ready to reproduce. Two eaglets are usually fledged per nest. Eggs incubate for 35 days with the male and female sharing responsibility for keeping it warm.

"When you foster a young eagle into a nest, you're either dealing with a situation in which the eggs are infertile and don't hatch, or only one young is hatched in the nest," Case said.

Because fostering is such a delicate procedure, understanding the eagles' behavior through observation is crucial.

Case scouts the nests from a helicopter and observes the birds from the ground through binoculars or a spotting scope.

"Starting in late

February, we watch all breeding territory to see when they're incubating eggs," Case said. "If they're disturbed during late February or during early stages of incubation, they're likely to abandon their nests."

"The parents will either be taking care of existing young or incubating bad eggs," Case explained.

"We climb the tree, put the eaglet in, remove the eggs and just get out of the area as quickly as possible."

Often, the parents perch nearby and watch. They become agitated and make a noise Case describes as "rapid, high-pitched clucks." But they will not attack humans, he said.

One recent attempt in Sandusky was called off because Case discovered after climbing the tree that the eaglet already in the nest was too old to have a month-old sibling. When there is an age gap between the young birds, the smaller ones lose the competition for food.

Ohio's eagle preservation program currently is financed through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses. That provides about $50,000 a year and wildlife officials are trying to establish an income tax check-off procedure aimed at generating $1.2 million annually.

All Savers Certificate: Great Economic Boon That Went Bust

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans waited in line last October to buy the new "All Savers Certificate," jumping at the chance to make a tax-free investment advertised as a boon to the economy.

But after that $32.6-billion start in October, monthly sales of All Savers plunged a low of $1.6 billion, in February. And latest figures from the Federal Reserve Board show that sales in October through March totaled $49.1 billion — far below the forecast.

Average monthly sales for the six months were $8.18 billion. But excluding October, sales have averaged $3.3 billion a month — a rate that if sustained would result in less than $80 billion in total sales over the 15-month life of the program. That's less than one-third the volume predicted by backers when All Savers was approved.

Economists blame competition from liberalized tax-deferred Individual Retirement Accounts and the drop in All Savers' yields. An All Savers Certificate purchased in early October brought tax-free interest of 12.61 percent. In less than two months, the payoff dropped to 8.34 percent; it is back up to 9.87 percent starting today.

All Savers is attractive mainly to taxpayers in the 30-percent or higher brackets (single persons with taxable income above about $15,000 and couples above $25,000). Those paying a lower rate of tax are better off with taxable investments.

A congressional economist, who asked not to be named, offered this explanation for All Savers' problems:

"The program was written to lure the high-bracket saver, but then they put a limit on how much such a saver could invest. There just aren't enough people in the 30-percent bracket or higher to buy the number of All Savers Certificates that would be required to make the program a success."

An individual is limited to a one-time exemption for $1,000 of All Savers interest; a couple gets $2,000. Depending on the interest rate at the time, that limits a person's investment to about $8,000 ($16,000 for a couple). Congress approved All

Savers principally to prop up the savings and loan industry, which was being squeezed by paying record-high interest to get funds while holding a portfolio of old low-rate mortgages. Helping the savings and loan industry would also yield dividends for the economy by creating a new pool of mortgage money, Congress contended.

The government now doubts either of those goals is being reached.

Senate Calls For Reforms

HOUSTON (AP) — Senate Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole says the number of people refusing to pay taxes is growing faster than the gross national product and almost as rapidly as the national debt.

Dole, R-Kansas, called for sweeping reforms to halt "the retreat from responsibility" that costs the nation billions of dollars in uncollected taxes and preferential tax policies.

"A few years ago, it was said that computers had taken the place of taxpayers' consciences, but now, even the computers can't stem the tide of under-reporting, fraudulent exemptions and just plain concealment that undermines tax collection," Dole said in a speech Sunday to the 2,000 delegates attending the League of Women Voters' biennial convention.

Dole estimated non-compliance now costs the nation $75 billion. He predicted the number would nearly double by 1985 if "the retreat from responsibility is allowed to go unchecked."

Recently, Dole said, the Senate Budget Committee adopted a proposal calling for $95 billion in additional revenue over the next three years. Unpaid taxes during that same period will exceed $200 billion, he said.

"We could collect the taxes proposed by the budget committee, drastically cut the deficit and in a stroke eliminate the fears now inhibiting the fall of interest rates simply by collecting taxes already owed but illegally withheld," he said.

Dole said reforms were needed to simplify the complex tax system and "to even the odds."

He said a simpler system with less paperwork and confusion would reduce concerns that the wealthy or privileged get special tax breaks unavailable to the average worker.

"The trend now is to work, step by step, to weed out those tax incentives and preferences in the code that narrow the tax base and force us to increase the general tax burden," Dole said. "This will be a slow effort ... but political and economic facts of life dictate that it must be done."

Thinks Koch Is A Pixie

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Mary Martin thinks New York Mayor Edward Koch is "a pixie" like Peter Pan and says she'd even enjoy teaching him how to crow like the boy who refused to grow up.

"I think of Mayor Koch in flight," the 67-year-old star said Sunday on WNBC-TV's News Forum.

Miss Martin, who has played Peter Pan on Broadway and television, praised the mayor's theatrical talent, saying he has "magic" and "rapport with people."

When she compared Koch to "a pixie," an interviewer asked if that meant he was "like Peter Pan."

"Yeah, I think he is," Miss Martin answered.

In ancient Arabia, people who bathed regularly were tax exempt.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Sounds like hypoglycemia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About two to four hours after I eat a high-carbohydrate, low-protein breakfast such as pancakes I break out in a sweat and get weak in the knees and feel somewhat dizzy. This lasts for about 30 minutes to an hour and I must sit down and just wait it out, at which time I go about my business.

Am I suffering from diabetes? I am 53 years old and have been an addict to running since 1973. I run 40 to 70 miles a week, running almost every morning, ending up with a good breakfast, but no pancakes anymore. I quit smoking in 1975 after 30 years of two packs a day. My running reduced my weight from a high of 210 to my present weight of about 170 pounds. I'm 6 feet tall and my pulse rate is 50.

DEAR READER — I doubt very much that your symptoms are related to diabetes in any way. They sound like hypoglycemia. If so you probably have reactive hypoglycemia, the form that occurs as a rebound reaction to carbohydrate loading. The large intake of concentrated sweets and starches stimulates an overproduction of insulin, or a release of the insulin at the wrong time.

The symptoms are those we see with the outpouring of adrenaline in response to a fall in blood glucose levels. That causes sweating, weakness and a tendency to dizziness or faintness.

The exercise helps to deplete your body of its glucose. Even diabetics who take insulin have to regulate their exercise because the exercise can decrease the insulin requirements causing a hypoglycemic reaction. Then you add to the problem by consuming a breakfast high in starches and sweets.

I think having changed your breakfast you may avoid symptoms. If not, try taking some sweet liquids during your runs, such as orange juice. Or switch your program so you eat a light breakfast before running. And if you have any more of these reactions try to duplicate the situation so you can have a blood glucose level taken when the symptoms occur.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-8, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The doctor said I have a thoracic outlet syndrome in the left shoulder area and I should have an arteriogram of that section. It may mean cutting away part of the top rib to relieve a pinched artery.

Is that serious or common? Is there any other treatment alternative? What causes it?

DEAR READER — The nerve trunks to your arm pass under the clavicle (collar bone) and so do the large arteries to your arm. Behind these structures is the rib cage.

In some cases the clavicle can be pulled back against the rib cage, literally trapping the blood vessels and nerves. This can affect the arm and hand. In extreme cases atrophy may follow. We see this in people carrying a back pack that pulls the shoulders back.

If a person has an extra rib it may compress the space. And in some people muscles in the neck area may compress arteries or nerves. It is not common but it is not rare either. If it is caused by a back pack, eliminating the pack may help. But in many cases the best approach is to relieve the mechanical pressure by surgery.

Students Correspond With Keeper Of Flame

HOUSTON (AP) — A man known as the "keeper of the flame" at the Statue of Liberty has become a hero to a group of fourth graders at Ed White Elementary School.

A textbook essay about the Statue of Liberty sparked the interest of students in Room 14 recently. Later classmate Meredith Francis found a magazine article about Charles DeLeo, a maintenance worker in the torch for the past 10 years.

Students began corresponding with DeLeo to get to know more about him.

"How is the Statue of Liberty?" asked 10-year-old Scott Grissom. "I'm glad you are taking care of it. Is it ok to send a donation?"

Another student, Fang-Yi Liao, wrote, "I wish I had seen you when I visited the Statue of Liberty. I want to know how it looks up in the torch."

To the children's delight, DeLeo answered each letter and included a post card and a booklet about the statue.

The students thanked DeLeo by sending him a class photograph and a tape recording in which they sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

In the next package from New York came a flag flown at the Statue of Liberty.

"I raised the flag on the 100-foot flag pole on 80 different mornings. There are not too many schools who have a real Statue of Liberty flag," DeLeo said.

Later DeLeo sent a piece of glass from the torch after it was struck by lightning recently. DeLeo said he often received letters from school children but he was "deeply moved" by the fourth-graders' interest.

"As the children look at the flag, I hope they feel the same pride in America that I do," he said.

Executive Says...

Dirty Tricks Aided Braniff Fall

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Braniff International executive predicts a grand jury investigation will show that senior officials at American Airlines instructed their workers to sabotage Braniff's reservations system.

Braniff Vice President Sam Coats said Sunday that because such dirty tricks were among the factors leading to the airline's demise Braniff's creditors might be able to win some compensation for their losses by suing American.

"In my view, one of the largest potential claims that the shareholders, employees and creditors have is a potential claim against American Airlines for violation of the criminal antitrust laws," Coats said.

American has denied past allegations of dirty tricks and on Sunday spokesman Al Becker said Coats' comments were "unworthy of comment."

A federal grand jury in Fort Worth is investigating allegations that American employed dirty tricks in its fierce competition against Braniff. The two Dallas-area airlines shared many of the same routes until Braniff suspended all flights last Wednesday.

On Thursday, Braniff filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act. Its chairman, Howard Putnam, said then that Braniff might reorganize and renew operations later. In an interview published Sunday in The Dallas Morning News, Putnam said that if operations are resumed, it would be a much smaller airline and would not carry the Braniff name.

Coats said he based his comments on "statements that have been made to me, documents that have been brought to me and turned over to the Justice Department, and various conversations that have been held during the past seven months." He refused to say who made the statements and provided the documents.

In a telephone interview from his Austin home, Coats stressed that no suit has been filed against American and none is being prepared. He also said he was talking about his personal opinions as an officer of Braniff, adding, "Braniff as an entity has made no allegations."

"I feel there will be evidence developed that American talked to some of Braniff's bankers and convinced them not to restructure Braniff's debts," Coats said.

He said he also believes it will be shown that American:

- Tried to persuade travel agents not to use Braniff.
- Discriminated against Braniff through a computer reservation system, which is owned by American but also used by other airlines.

Restored Truck Victory Symbol

SEATTLE (AP) — Friends of two people who perished in the cab of a pickup truck during Mount St. Helens' gigantic eruption have adopted the truck as a symbol of remembrance, and the shiny vehicle is ready to roll.

Once the snow clears from the high country around the volcano, the truck, which rose from the volcanic ash like a mechanical phoenix, will be driven back to the spot where the bodies of William and Jean Parker were found two years ago in the aftermath of the May 18, 1980, eruption. The truck shows few signs of the blast aside from a melted steering wheel and signal lights.

"It's defying Mount St. Helens and her strength... Maybe it will prove the old mountain didn't really win," said Donna Parker of Canby, Ore., Parker's sister.

The 1971 GMC pickup, its green paint mottled where a sandblaster removed rust, will ramble back to the ridge 8½ miles from Mount St. Helens, where Parker, 46, and his wife were killed in the eruption that flattened 150 square miles of tall timber.

Parker was killed by a boulder smashing through the cab's back window and his wife died of ash suffocation. Authorities say 58 other people were left dead or missing in the eruption.

"The truck will never be in a roadside museum but will run until its springs fall out," Ms. Parker said.

Ms. Parker, George Gianopoulos, 47, his son, Steve, 21, and several other hunting and fishing friends of Parker towed the wrecked truck out of the ash on a trailer last May and vowed it would run again.

Steve Gianopoulos, a student at Portland State University, spent hundreds of hours sanding old paint down to the metal, taking off rust and restoring parts. Now the truck, missing only its battered camper top, is ready to roll and "really zooms right along," he says.

The engine was undamaged because it wasn't run until ash had been removed. The same motor oil is being used — Parker had changed it just before his trip to the mountain.

The only obvious reminders of disaster are the partially melted steering wheel and two melted amber blinker lights, which still work.

About 200 pounds of ash that filled the truck were used to fertilize the garden at the Gianopoulos' Portland home.

Parker's mother, Lea Helmig, 66, of Portland, who plans to ride along on the pilgrimage back to the mountain, said, "Billy'd be happy as anything. He loved that truck."

The volcano is still restless, two years after the big eruption.

A Billion Here and There Adds Up to Real Money

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our politicians toss the term "billions of dollars" around so casually that it might interest your readers to know how much a billion dollars really is. To illustrate:

A man gave his wife a million dollars and told her to spend $1000 every day and come back when she ran out of money. She did so, and returned, broke, after about three years.

He then gave her a billion dollars. After spending $1000 a day, she returned — after about 2,740 years!

FELIX IN L.A.

DEAR FELIX: Thanks for explaining in understandable terms how much a billion dollars really is. Now let me explain it in terms of today's economy: Let's say Mohammed Khalid Ibn Jamal (not his real name) gave his wife a billion dollars and told her to go shopping on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills and buy whatever she wanted. She started on Monday and came back on Friday. Broke.

***

DEAR ABBY: When Jack and I became engaged seven months ago, I asked Jack's mother to please start making up a guest list because I had to know how many people to plan on. I am paying for the reception myself. My father is dead and my mother has all she can do to support the family.

After waiting for three months, I asked Jack's mother for her guest list and she said there was plenty of time. Finally I told her that I could afford to have no more than 150 at the reception, which meant 75 from her side and 75 from ours.

Well, the invitations are ready to be mailed, the wedding is eight weeks away and Jack's mother now informs me that she must invite 85 guests or a lot of people will never speak to her again.

What can I do? I hate to start my marriage off with bad feelings between Jack's mother and me, but all I can afford is 75 from her side. Also, we are short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to order any more. Please help me.

BITING MY TONGUE

DEAR BITING: Tell your mother-in-law that if she needs 10 extra guests she will have to pay for them. And if you're short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to re-order, 10 guests (on Jack's side) will have to settle for handwritten invitations or a telephone call.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TEARS ON MY PILLOW IN CLEARWATER, FLA.: Regret is the cancer of life. Although it's too late for you to give your own mother pleasure, others can profit by your "sins of omission."

There are nursing homes filled with elderly people who would so enjoy a little regular attention. Drop in with a few flowers from your garden, magazines you would have thrown away, some homemade goodies, etc. One day a week take one or two or as many as you can for a little ride. Bring the children along on occasion. Old folks love children.

Do this, at first, in reparation, and in time it will become a labor of love. True, of course, we can only have one mother, but in the family of God we are all one: He loves us, he forgives us.

Cheer up by cheering others up. It is a beautiful prescription for sleep and peace.

Students Hold To 'Truce'

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Protesting students who had kept 15 million insects and their school director captive for five days say they may take action again if the government fails to negotiate with them.

The students held to their declared "truce" Sunday, but said they might take further action by tonight if the government does not contact them about a March agreement that would have provided financial help for the school.

"We can take drastic measures," student leader Fernando Reyes, 19, said through an interpreter. "But we haven't yet decided what to do next."

The students' threats carry less weight now that they have abandoned a laboratory where the larvae of 15 million beneficial insects are kept and have freed school director Rigoberto Delgado Perez.

"After all, there are no more pickup trucks," Reyes said with a grin. On Thursday, the students demolished and burned two government pickup trucks in protest.

But after the insect laboratory and three of-

Tigers Host Pecos Tonight

By BILL MCCLELLAN
Coach Albert Lewis was understandably cautious this morning when asked about the chances of tonight's ballgame with Pecos going on as scheduled, despite the effects to Moffett Field of heavy rains last night and this morning.

The game is scheduled for 7:30.

"Right now I don't plan to make any kind of decision until noon. I don't want to make an early decision at all," said the coach, who took some flack when he called off a game with the Eagles last week. In that instance, a downpour mixed with hail looked ominous, but skies were clear by gametime - almost ideal in fact. Apparently some people - including a contingent from Pecos - felt the postponement was too hasty.

"I think some people thought we were ducking Pecos, hoping they would get beat by somebody before we played them," said Lewis. "I really don't think...surely Pecos doesn't think we were ducking them. If we could have played them last week, we'd know where we stand right now."

The situation is this: Pecos must win both of its next two games to assure a second-round title and a berth into a district playoff. If Snyder wins over Pecos, the Tigers automatically win the district race. If Snyder loses to Pecos but the Eagles lose their remaining game to Andrews, the Tigers automatically win the race also.

The teams have already set aside Wednesday as another makeup date, if necessary. But another postponement could lead to major problems.

Tuesday, Snyder plays Fort Stockton and Pecos plays Andrews. If both teams win those games, then Wednesday's game - provided the teams do not play tonight, of course - would be for the second-round championship. Should Snyder lose that game, the teams would meet again on Saturday for a ONE-GAME playoff. According to UIL regulations, District 2-AAAA must have an overall champion by midnight Saturday. The problem is compounded because Snyder has graduation services Thursday and Pecos has services Friday. It's obvious that adverse weather Tuesday, Wednesday or Saturday could lead to paramount problems.

The odds on the game being played tonight were seemingly better as the morning wore on. By o'clock, the sun was trying to peek through.

Both Pecos and Snyder are 4-0 in second round play. The Tigers are 22 for the season and boast 14-game winning streak. Pecos is 13-10.

Pecos is expected to start Bobby Rayos, 7 while the Tigers are slated to go with John Wilson, 9.

The first-round meeting between the two produced a 3-1 victory for Snyder which scored all three its runs in the final inning. In that game, Wilson gave up three hits; Rayos four

It is the first time in the history of the school anyone has been chosen in track.

She joins Snyder's Kathy Northcott, who was chosen in volleyball. Unlike Northcott, who will play in the All-Star Volleyball Game, Anderson will not appear in any competition during the clinic.

Anderson advanced to the state shot put competition three straight years, while also taking top district honors in the triple jump and 100 meters. At state, she placed fifth as a sophomore, second as a junior and fifth as a senior.

She was also voted Female Athlete of the Year at Snyder High School for the 1981-82 season.

Arkansas Claims SWC Track And Field Title

HOUSTON (AP) - The rest of the field in the Southwest Conference 1500 and 800 meter finals didn't make it easy for the ironman performance of Arkansas' Randy Stephens.

Stephens, who won both events within a one-hour time span, had to kick at 300 meters and then fight off Rice freshman Gawnin Guy to win the 1500 meters in 3:44.10.

With barely enough time to get prepared to race again, Stephens came back in the 800 meters and was running fifth going into the final turn when he spurred to a 1:48.11 victory to help the Hogs clinch their first SWC track title ever.

The Hogs racked up most of their points in the mid-distance and distance races, especially the 5,000 meters where four of the top six finishers were Razorbacks.

Arkansas won the meet with 134 points with host University of Houston second with 115. Texas was third with 87 followed by Baylor and Texas A&M, 55 each, Rice 39, Texas Christian 28 and Texas Tech 18.

Houston sprinter Stanley Floyd led the Cougars, earning high individual honors with 20½ points. Floyd won the 100 meters in 10.32, anchored the winning 400 meter relay team and was second to a TCU's Phillip Epps in the 200 meters.

Four meet records were established in Saturday's finale.

Paul Montgomery of Baylor lowered his own record to 49.19 in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles; Southern Methodist's Keith Connor leaped 56-2¾ in the triple jump; Texas' Sam Sintonik won the 3,000 meter steeplechase in 8:44.99 and Rice's Paul Brattlof set a new standard of 17-2¼ in the pole vault.

Sintonik, who placed second in Friday night's 10,000 meters, held off a pair of Arkansas runners, Harold Smith and David Barney, to break the steeplechase record of 9:02.45 set by Arkansas' Frank O'Mara in 1981.

Texas Crowned Baseball Champs

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas coach Cliff Gustafson points to a home run by Mike Livermore as a turning point in the Longhorns' 10-5 victory over Houston for their fourth straight Southwest Conference baseball championship.

"When Livermore hit the home run, it seemed to wake us up," Gustafson said after Sunday night's win. "I never dreamed we'd hit five home runs. I think the team is getting to the form they were in earlier in the year."

With Texas down 3-0 in the sixth, Livermore started things off with his solo blast. Randy Day added a three-run homer and Jeff Hearnson slammed a two-run homer before the inning was over. Texas never trailed again.

Spike Owen added a home run in the seventh and Randy Richards had one in the eighth.

Houston got a two-run homer from Wesley

Gregersen in the losing fort. But the Cougars did go away empty-handed. Earlier Sunday they avenged a first-round tournament loss to Arkansas by edging the Razorbacks 9-8. Then, after the championship game, Houston's Dale Oliver was named team's most outstanding player.

TIGERS PLAY - Snyder's Tigers are slated to battle Pecos here tonight, weather permitting, in a game which could amount to the second-round championship. In fact, a victory for Snyder

Rangers Nip Toronto But Are Not Thrilled

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - From the subdued voices and glum faces in the clubhouse, a visitor would have thought the Texas Rangers were still mired in a long losing streak.

The Rangers were not acting like a team that had just beaten Toronto three games out of four to close out a home stand. But veteran catcher Jim Sundberg said the Rangers were not celebrating because they know they played poorly, even though they won.

"We didn't play well in the whole series," Sundberg said after Sunday's 2-

1, 10-inning victory over Toronto, only Texas' 10th victory of the season against 20 losses. "If we don't play better than this we can't expect much against Chicago and Kansas City," teams Texas visits this week.

Texas starter Charlie Hough had baffled the Blue Jays with his knuckleball through eight innings, giving up four hits and no walks and striking out three. But he gave way to reliever Danny Darwin in the ninth.

Darwin took a 1-0 lead into the ninth, thanks to George Wright's eighth-inning triple that scored

Mark Wagner, who had walked. But Darwin gave up two walks, a single and a sacrifice fly by Dave Revering to let Toronto tie the score and, after the Rangers went down in order in their half of the ninth, send the game into extra innings.

It was Wright who finally provided the winning run. He singled sharply to center in the 10th to score Leon Roberts who had walked and moved to second on Doug Flynn's sacrifice bunt.

Wright's two hits overshadowed a stellar outing by Toronto rookie Jim Gott who made his first major-league start and held Texas scoreless through six innings. Gott yielded to Joey McLaughlin in the seventh after he gave up a hit and a walk to the first two batters.

Roy Lee Jackson, 2-4, gave up Wright's game-winning hit. Darwin, 4-1, got credit for the win but he walked three in addition to surrendering the game-tying run in the ninth.

T-Ball Signups This Week

Peewee T-ball signups will be held Monday through Friday of this week at the Scurry County Boy's Club, it has been reported.

Boys age eight, or those who will be eight by July 31, are eligible.

Boys need to bring a birth certificate and a parent or guardian.

Call 573-3344 for further details.

Cubs Top Astros, 2-1; Win Three Of Four

HOUSTON (AP) - Chicago Cubs Manager Lee Elia says new faces sometimes help when playing in old places like the Astrodome.

"Maybe it's good that we've got some new people who don't know our losing history here in the Astrodome," Elia said Sunday after the Cubs beat Houston 2-1 for their third victory in the four-game series.

Obviously, no one told winning pitcher Doug Bird, who ignored history and silenced Astros hitters on three hits through seven innings.

The Cubs had lost 12 in a row in the Astrodome prior to the current visit, in which they won three of the four games in the series.

Bird got relief help in the eighth from Bill Campbell and Willie Hernandez, who fanned pinchhitter Alan Knicely to end the game.

Bird got the victory in a pitching duel with Astros starter Nolan Ryan, who said he pitched some of the best innings of the season following a fourth inning Cubs uprising.

Chicago got both runs on three hits in the fourth inning.

Keith Moreland singled, went to third on former Astros outfielder Gary Woods' double and scored when Ryne Sandberg grounded out to second base as Woods advanced to third. Larry Bowa's screamer up the middle scored Woods.

Ryan, 3-6, won his last outing in a struggle.

Other Cubs newcomers Junior Kennedy and

Woods also didn't keep up with their history lessons.

Ruler Wins Race

BALTIMORE (AP) - Aloma's Ruler, ridden by 16-year-old Jack Kaenel, held off a stretch challenge by favored Linkage, ridden by 50-year-old Bill Shoemaker, to win the $279,900 Preakness, which was run without Kentucky Derby winner Gato Del Sol.

Aloma's Ruler ran the 13-16 miles in 1:55:2-5, one-half length in front of Linkage, who was 6¾-lengths ahead of Cut Away.

TIGERS PLAY - Snyder's Tigers are slated to battle Pecos here tonight, weather permitting, in a game which could amount to the second-round championship. In fact, a victory for Snyder

Tigers Host Pecos Tonight

By BILL MCCLELLAN
Coach Albert Lewis was understandably cautious this morning when asked about the chances of tonight's ballgame with Pecos going on as scheduled, despite the effects to Moffett Field of heavy rains last night and this morning.

The game is scheduled for 7:30.

"Right now I don't plan to make any kind of decision until noon. I don't want to make an early decision at all," said the coach, who took some flack when he called off a game with the Eagles last week. In that instance, a downpour mixed with hail looked ominous, but skies were clear by gametime - almost ideal in fact. Apparently some people - including a contingent from Pecos - felt the postponement was too hasty.

"I think some people thought we were ducking Pecos, hoping they would get beat by somebody before we played them," said Lewis. "I really don't think...surely Pecos doesn't think we were ducking them. If we could have played them last week, we'd know where we stand right now."

The situation is this: Pecos must win both of its next two games to assure a second-round title and a berth into a district playoff. If Snyder wins over Pecos, the Tigers automatically win the district race. If Snyder loses to Pecos but the Eagles lose their remaining game to Andrews, the Tigers automatically win the race also.

The teams have already set aside Wednesday as another makeup date, if necessary. But another postponement could lead to major problems.

Tuesday, Snyder plays Fort Stockton and Pecos plays Andrews. If both teams win those games, then Wednesday's game - provided the teams do not play tonight, of course - would be for the second-round championship. Should Snyder lose that game, the teams would meet again on Saturday for a ONE-GAME playoff. According to UIL regulations, District 2-AAAA must have an overall champion by midnight Saturday. The problem is compounded because Snyder has graduation services Thursday and Pecos has services Friday. It's obvious that adverse weather Tuesday, Wednesday or Saturday could lead to paramount problems.

The odds on the game being played tonight were seemingly better as the morning wore on. By 6 o'clock, the sun was trying to peek through.

Both Pecos and Snyder are 4-0 in second round play. The Tigers are 2-1 for the season and boast 14-game winning streak. Pecos is 13-10.

Pecos is expected to start Bobby Rayos, 7, while the Tigers are slated to go with John Wilson, 9.

The first-round meeting between the two produced a 3-1 victory for Snyder which scored all three runs in the final inning. In that game, Wilson gave up three hits; Rayos four

Rangers Nip Toronto But Are Not Thrilled

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - From the subdued voices and glum faces in the clubhouse, a visitor would have thought the Texas Rangers were still mired in a long losing streak.

The Rangers were not acting like a team that had just beaten Toronto three games out of four to close out a home stand. But veteran catcher Jim Sundberg said the Rangers were not celebrating because they know they played poorly, even though they won.

"We didn't play well in the whole series," Sundberg said after Sunday's 2-

1, 10-inning victory over Toronto, only Texas' 10th victory of the season against 20 losses. "If we don't play better than this we can't expect much against Chicago and Kansas City," teams Texas visits this week.

Texas starter Charlie Hough had baffled the Blue Jays with his knuckleball through eight innings, giving up four hits and no walks and striking out three. But he gave way to reliever Danny Darwin in the ninth.

Darwin took a 1-0 lead into the ninth, thanks to George Wright's eighth-inning triple that scored

Mark Wagner, who had walked. But Darwin gave up two walks, a single and a sacrifice fly by Dave Revering to let Toronto tie the score and, after the Rangers went down in order in their half of the ninth, send the game into extra innings.

It was Wright who finally provided the winning run. He singled sharply to center in the 10th to score Leon Roberts who had walked and moved to second on Doug Flynn's sacrifice bunt.

Wright's two hits overshadowed a stellar outing by Toronto rookie Jim Gott who made his first major-league start and held Texas scoreless through six innings. Gott yielded to Joey McLaughlin in the seventh after he gave up a hit and a walk to the first two batters.

Roy Lee Jackson, 2-4, gave up Wright's game-winning hit. Darwin, 4-1, got credit for the win but he walked three in addition to surrendering the game-tying run in the ninth.

T-Ball Signups This Week

Peewee T-ball signups will be held Monday through Friday of this week at the Scurry County Boy's Club, it has been reported.

Boys age eight, or those who will be eight by July 31, are eligible. Boys need to bring a birth certificate and a parent or guardian.

Call 573-3344 for further details.

Cubs Top Astros, 2-1; Win Three Of Four

HOUSTON (AP) - Chicago Cubs Manager Lee Elia says new faces sometimes help when playing in old places like the Astrodome.

"Maybe it's good that we've got some new people who don't know our losing history here in the Astrodome," Elia said Sunday after the Cubs beat Houston 2-1 for their third victory in the four-game series.

Obviously, no one told winning pitcher Doug Bird, who ignored history and silenced Astros hitters on three hits through seven innings.

The Cubs had lost 12 in a row in the Astrodome prior to the current visit, in which they won three of the four games in the series.

Bird got relief help in the eighth from Bill Campbell and Willie Hernandez, who fanned pinchhitter Alan Knicely to end the game.

Bird got the victory in a pitching duel with Astros starter Nolan Ryan, who said he pitched some of the best innings of the season following a fourth inning Cubs uprising.

Chicago got both runs on three hits in the fourth inning.

Keith Moreland singled, went to third on former Astros outfielder Gary Woods' double and scored when Ryne Sandberg grounded out to second base as Woods advanced to third. Larry Bowa's screamer up the middle scored Woods.

Ryan, 3-6, won his last outing in a struggle.

Other Cubs newcomers Junior Kennedy and

Woods also didn't keep up with their history lessons.

Ruler Wins Race

BALTIMORE (AP) - Aloma's Ruler, ridden by 16-year-old Jack Kaelen, held off a stretch challenge by favored Linkage, ridden by 50-year-old Bill Shoemaker, to win the $279,900 Preakness, which was run without Kentucky Derby winner Gato Del Sol.

Aloma's Ruler ran the 13-16 miles in 1:55.2, one-half length in front of Linkage, who was 6 3/4-lengths ahead of Cut Away.

Arkansas Claims SWC Track And Field Title

HOUSTON (AP) - The rest of the field in the Southwest Conference 1500 and 800 meter finals didn't make it easy for the ironman performance of Arkansas' Randy Stephens.

Stephens, who won both events within a one-hour time span, had to kick at 300 meters and then fight off Rice freshman Gawain Guy to win the 1500 meters in 3:44.10.

With barely enough time to get prepared to race again, Stephens came back in the 800 meters and was running fifth going into the final turn when he sprinted to a 1:48.11 victory to help the Hogs clinch their first SWC track title ever.

The Hogs racked up most of their points in the mid-distance and distance races, especially the 5,000 meters where four of the top six finishers were Razorbacks.

Arkansas won the meet with 134 points with host University of Houston second with 115. Texas was third with 87 followed by Baylor and Texas A&M, 55 each, Rice 39, Texas Christian 28 and Texas Tech 18.

Houston sprinter Stanley Floyd led the Cougars, earning high individual honors with 20 1/2 points. Floyd won the 100 meters in 10.32, anchored the winning 400 meter relay team and was second to a TCU's Phillip Epps in the 200 meters.

Four meet records were established in Saturday's finale.

Paul Montgomery of Baylor lowered his own record to 49.19 in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles; Southern Methodist's Keith Connor leaped 56-2 3/4 in the triple jump; Texas' Sam Sintonik won the 3,000 meter steeplechase in 8:44.99 and Rice's Paul Brattlof set a new standard of 17-2 1/4 in the pole vault.

Sintonik, who placed second in Friday night's 10,000 meters, held off a pair of Arkansas runners, Harold Smith and David Barney, to break the steeplechase record of 9:02.45 set by Arkansas' Frank O'Mara in 1981.

Texas Crowned Baseball Champs

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas coach Cliff Gustafson points to a home run by Mike Livermore as a turning point in the Longhorns' 10-5 victory over Houston for their fourth straight Southwest Conference baseball championship.

"When Livermore hit the home run, it seemed to wake us up," Gustafson said after Sunday night's win. "I never dreamed we'd hit five home runs. I think the team is getting to the form they were in earlier in the year."

With Texas down 3-0 in the sixth, Livermore started things off with his solo blast. Randy Day added a three-run homer and Jeff Hearnor slammed a two-run homer before the inning was over. Texas never trailed again.

Spike Owen added a home run in the seventh and Randy Richards had one in the eighth.

Houston got a two-run homer from Wesley Gregersen in the losing effort.

But the Cougars did go away empty-handed. Earlier Sunday they avenged a first-round tournament loss to Arkansas by edging the Razorbacks 9-8. Then, after the championship game, Houston's Dale Oliver was named team's most outstanding player.

Snyder Leagues

May 14

GIRLS SOFTBALL

Andrews 16, Snyder Srs 10

Susie Lee rapped three singles and Bunny Roe knocked a double and two singles but the Snyder Seniors fell to Andrews' Assorted Nuts on Saturday. Also hitting for Snyder were pitcher Isabel Rios, a double and a single; Becky Hernandez, a double; Rosie Rios, two singles; and Laurie Allen, Andrea Hamilton, Johna Jackson and Carmen Rios, a single each.

Andrews' eight-hit attack was led by Patricia Thompson's two doubles, and a pair of singles each from Sandra Alaniz and Ivy Christian.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Cubs 8, Braves 2

Winning pitcher Brad Gartman rapped a double and teammates Wayne Ware, Skip Coward and Thomas Wesley hit a single apiece as the Cubs claimed their first win of the season Friday night.

The Braves, who are also 1-2, got a triple from Kevin Dollins and a single from Roy Gutierrez. Mike Wemken was the losing pitcher.

Athletics 10, Giants 5

The Athletics improved their record to 3-0 Friday. Joe Felan picked up the win with six strike-out help from Danny Gambol. Gambol hit a triple and two singles, while Jason West, Wade Spencer and Jeff Farmer added two singles apiece. Felan knocked a double and a single and Tommy Lane, Stacy Browning, Sipp Jones, Trey Wilson and Mike Ward added a single apiece.

For the Giants, Scott Oliver and Valentin Martinez rapped two singles apiece and pitcher Isreal Hinojos, Ralph Torres, Craig Watkins, Bryant Mitchell and Tim Beauchamp added a single apiece.

May 15

Yankees 12, White Sox 8

Winning pitcher Scott Lanier cracked one double and teammate David Martinez added another as the Yankees defeated the White Sox on Saturday.

Kevin Combest got two doubles for the Sox and pitcher Bert Otto and Jason Polk added one apiece. The Sox also got five walks.

Indians 13, Cardinals 11

Van Echols, winning pitcher, rapped two triples and a single to help aid the Indians past the Cards. Johnny Ray Ward added a triple and a single; Tony Ferard hit a triple; Randy Mallory knocked a double and Shannon Ward, Darren McCowan, Chad Welsh and Shawn Mallory cracked a single apiece for the winners.

Cardinal pitcher John Pena slammed a home run and a double and Terry Garza hit two doubles. Tracey Odom hit a triple and Harvey Guerrero slapped two singles.

May 7

Athletics 9, Yankees 0

Joe Felan took the win and Danny Gambol earned a save as the Athletics pitched one-hit ball to beat the Yankees on May 7, 9-0. Felan had five strikeouts in three innings and Gambol had eight.

Gambol also cracked a home run and Felan added two singles for the A's. Jason West, Tommy Lane, Trey Wilson and Skip Jones hit a single apiece.

Scott Lanier got the Yankees' only single. Joe Velasquez was the Yank pitcher.
