Governments warns of 'tragic period'

Polish strike talks collapse

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Talks between union and government leaders aimed at averting nationwide strikes in Poland were postponed today, officials announced. It was not immediately clear why the talks were delayed until Friday or what effect it would have on the crisis atmosphere in Poland.

Panicky food shoppers formed the biggest lines in memory as they tried to prepare for a four-hour warning strike Friday and a general strike Tuesday that the government said could only be averted only if Solidarity officials compromised and curbed their lust for "holy war."

The lines outside Warsaw food shops snaked for blocks. Signs in liquor store windows said no spirits, wine and beer would be sold for the fourth consecutive day so that the already explosive atmosphere surrounding the union-government talks would not be further charged.

After 90 minutes of inconclusive talks Wednesday with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, the government's chief negotiator, Deputy Premier Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, said elements of the union of want "holy war," and that "without compromise we shall sink into chaos or even perhaps fratricidal fighting."

He said union agitation may "open a new, this time really tragic period in the history of post-war Poland," apparently a veiled warning that Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces currently on maneuvers might have to step in to end nine months of sporadic labor turmoil.

Solidarity wants the government to fire officials responsible for the police beating of union activists in Bydgoszcz last Thursday. One of the officials quit today and was replaced by a general, but Solidarity wants at least three more people dismissed, and is demanding other concessions.

The man who resigned was Edward Berger, the provincial council chairman in Bydgoszcz.

Haig puts aside differences with Reagan over crisis role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said today "the time has now come to get on" with the conducting of American foreign policy, apparently putting aside his differences with the Reagan White House over management of foreign policy crises.

"I have always been and remain in full agreement with President Reagan's substantive approach to foreign policy," Haig told a congressional subcommittee.

He testified amid uncertainty whether he would remain in office following Reagan's decision to put Vice President George Bush in charge of a new crisis management team, a position Haig wanted.

Members of his own staff were understood Wednesday night to be unsure whether the strong-willed Haig, described as "very upset," would stay on the job despite Reagan's assurances of support.

But Haig told the subcommittee it is "important that we all recognize it is the substance of American foreign policy that must be the focus of our attention."

He said that "sometimes form, organization and structure affect that substance."

"With respect to the so-called crisis-management situation, that form has been established and the time has now come to get on with the substance, the formulation of American foreign policy."

He said, "My energies will be dedicated in the period ahead to the substance of American foreign policy."

Haig's testimony before the Senate Appropriations subcomittee on foreign operations seemed to indicate some reservations about the structure of the crisis-management team. Nevertheless, he said the substance of foreign policy is what counts and declared he would back Reagan completely in his foreign policy actions.

During his testimony on the administration's foreign aid program, Haig called for support for the $4.3 billion the president is asking for security assistance to friendly nations, and also for $1.9 billion in development assistance and $1.4 billion in contributions to international foreign-aid institutions.

At the outset of the hearing, the subcommittee chairman, Sen. Robert W. Kasten Jr., R-Wis., addressed the crowded hearing room, saying, "I'm pleased so many people are interested in foreign aid issues."

It clearly was a tongue-in-cheek remark since most members of the crowd, which included a large number of reporters, were there to hear Haig's comments on his problems with the Reagan White House.

It was not only because Bush was given the key role Tuesday in responding to foreign crises, the official said, but also because Haig felt Reagan didn't go far enough in his statement of support earlier in the day Wednesday.

TIME TO GET ON — Secretary of State Alexander Haig appears before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Thursday on Capitol Hill where he stated "the time has now come to get on" with the conducting of American foreign policy apparently putting aside his differences with the White House over management of foreign policy crises.

Man shoots officer, kills self

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A man who wounded a police officer, then barricaded himself inside a house for nine hours died this morning after he shot himself in the head with a shotgun when a SWAT team rushed the house, police said.

Robert Veach, 33, died about 7 a.m. today after being taken to Bexar County Hospital. Police said they found a shotgun lying next to his body when they entered his home about 45 minutes earlier.

Officers surrounded the man's house about 10 p.m. Wednesday after officer Fernando C. Gonzales, 26, was shot in the abdomen as he answered a disturbance call at the home of Leach's mother.

Gonzales was in fair condition early today at Baptist Memorial Hospital.

Police said Gonzales was shot with a .38-caliber pistol as he stood in the doorway of the home, waiting for other officers to arrive. He managed to crawl out into the yard and was dragged to safety by another officer.

Police surrounded the home and, about 6 a.m. today, fired tear gas into it and then kicked a garage door. Officers said Veach apparently shot himself when he heard police entering the house.

Bill raising drinking age hits major snag in House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill raising Texas' legal drinking age from 18 to 19 hit a major snag today as the House refused to accept a compromise worked out with the Senate.

House members voted 96-42 to reject the report of a House-Senate conference committee and call for additional negotiations.

The stumbling block was a House amendment saying a merchant or bar owner would be presumed to have "knowingly" sold alcoholic beverages to a minor if he failed to ask for a driver's license or other proof of age.

It is a crime to sell to minors only if done "knowingly," and the House amendment was designed to make the provision more enforceable.

Senators, however, refused to accept the House change.

The conference committee worked out a compromise giving beer and liquor sellers a defense if an underage person looked 19 or older.

"You are going to see a lot more kids carded than you do under present law. I know that," said Rep. Henry Allen, D-Houston, sponsor of the bill.

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said, however, the change made the bill "totally unenforceable" and would create disrespect for law.

School organizations sought the bill as a remedy to what teachers said was a big increase in drunkeness in the schools. Since many high school seniors are 18, raising the drinking age would do away with a lot of peer pressure — and accessibility of alcohol — for younger students, they said.

ONE OR T'OTHER — If you tend to backpedal when you see this creature making its way across the West Texas terrain, chances are you belong to the vast majority of people who are repelled by the idea of associating with snakes. If you are in that select minority who likes to close in and capture it, odds are good you'll be one of the hunters in this weekend's Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup, scheduled to start Friday in the Howard County Fairbarn and continue through Sunday. The serpeant is a Texas rattler. He and others like him will be on display during the roundup. The Big Spring Jaycees are sponsoring the roundup and plans to pay good money to those who bring in the snakes.

Children cried when taken from mother

Daniel trial attorneys argue over controversial telecast

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A television broadcast that showed Price Daniel Jr.'s children crying as they were taken from their mother and charges by Vickie Daniel that an attorney threatened her sent attorneys for both sides in the custody trial into a meeting this morning.

The bizarre series of events began Wednesday night when two Houston television stations broadcast videotapes of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, crying, "I don't want to go, I don't want to go," as he was being taken from his aunt's home in Houston.

The tapes earlier showed Franklin and his brother, 1-year-old Marion Price IV, hugging and kissing their mother.

Vickie Daniel is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of her husband, a former Texas House Speaker.

Daniel's sister, Mrs. Jean Daniel Murph is asking for custody of the two children.

The videotapes showed the children crying as Mrs. Murph came to the home of Rita Steadham, Mrs. Daniel's sister, for a court-ordered two-day visit.

The two television crews apparently had followed Mrs. Daniel to the home and, according to Mark Morefield, the tape did not show what really happened.

"Mrs. Murph would try to take the children and Vickie would not let go of them," Morefield said. "Vickie was playing it for all it was worth."

Morefield said he and Mrs. Murph were taken totally by surprised by the presence of newsmen and cameras at the residence. He said they did not know television cameras were present until Mrs. Murph went inside the home.

"They asked me to stay outside while Mrs. Murph went in to get the children," Morefield said. "I thought the request was only for a smooth exchange of the children."

Mrs. Daniel got into the car with the two children and left with Mrs. Murph and later told reporters she was forced to walk back to her house and had been threatened by Morefield.

"That is total nonsense," Morefield said. "I dropped her off two houses down from where we picked up the children to avoid another encounter with the cameras, and I did not threaten her."

The incident occurred after a Liberty County Sheriff's Department investigator testified Wednesday said a box thought to contain marijuana and a white plastic bag found in the Daniel's home following the shooting.

Marvin Powell, the sheriff's investigator, testified Wednesday that Howard Oldham, a former Daniel business associate, told him of the box several days after Daniel was fatally shot.

Powell, who spent the entire day on the witness stand, said the box contained "very small pieces of a green substance." He said he was looking for marijuana because Oldham had told him some of the weed was located in the Daniel attic.

Baker predicts Reagan will win budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is beginning consideration of a $36.4 billion budget-cutting blueprint with a prediction from Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. that President Reagan will win most of the reductions he has recommended.

Reagan won one and lost one on his economic program Wednesday.

The Senate gave him his first victory on spending cuts by approving a measure to scrap an April 1 boost in dairy subsidies.

But the chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee said the three-year tax cut that the president wants to go along with the budget cuts is all but dead.

Democrats were holding another caucus today prior to action on the Senate floor to continue their three-day review of the cuts approved by the Senate Budget Committee.

"We will have a sort of a consensus package, but it will be presented by separate amendments," Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California said Wednesday.

But he acknowledged that the Democrats' alternate package would "probably be voted down on a party-line" vote by the Republicans, who have a slim majority in the Senate.

Baker's confidence reflected Cranston's pessimism.

"The president is going to get most of what he wants — a high percentage of his package," the GOP leader said.

Baker has said previously he hopes to complete action on the package this week — including a Saturday session, if necessary.

Reagan is recommending $48.6 billion in cuts for the 1982 fiscal year which begins Oct. 1. The package up for floor action is smaller than that because some additional savings are to be made through separate legislation and others through administration actions that don't require congressional action.

The Democrats reportedly have agreed to seek more money than the administration wants for some social programs in the areas of education, health and assistance for low-income families in buying heating fuel.

One of the Budget Committee's proposed cuts that many Democrats and the Reagan administration do not want would save more than $3 billion by financing the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve with private funds.

Centennial executives mull progress, events

The executive committee of the Big Spring Centennial, Inc., held a meeting Wednesday at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main for purpose of discussing the progress of the various committees and events that would be taking place in the near future.

John Taylor, general chairman of the Big Spring Centennial, Inc., called a meeting of the general and division chairmen to discuss their impending plans for the centennial and events for the next week.

Morris Rhodes, treasurer of the centennial committee, said that the financial condition of the local committee was in good shape and that he would like to receive a copy of the finalized budget to put it on computers. He said the Southwest Computer Services would start running the budget on their computers and felt it would be a better way to keep track of the various expenses within the various divisions and committees.

Dene Sheppard said things were going well at the Centennial Store-Headquarters, even though it continued to stay busy. She said that a good group of volunteers had agreed to help work the various schedules at the store, but that there was still a need for "on call" volunteers to fill in when other people were unable to work for one reason or another. Sheppard said individuals who would be willing to put in a few hours at the store every now and then should contact her at 267-3641, or drop by the store at 900 Main.

Taylor said he realized that the store continued to stay busy and that the committee would look at longer hours in a few weeks. He said they might need to keep the store open longer one night a week and consider longer hours on Saturday. At the present time, the store is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday thru Friday, and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Hayes Stripling, Jr., chairman of the revenue division, said that people would be out in the community during the next few days to get businesses and groups to sponsor pages in the commemorative booklet. The booklet will be approximately 100 pages in length and the cost to sponsor a page will be $150.

Stripling also said that individuals who purchased the stock certificates for $5 would also be listed in the booklet as stockholders. He said only 1,000 of these certificates would be printed and that framed certificates, as well as a supply of unframed stock certificates, would be placed in the various financial institutions in the area for people to see. He said the certificates would be nonredeemable, but felt they could be kept as a lasting tribute to the local centennial celebration.

Taylor said that the lead profits for the commemorative coins had not arrived yet and that he would be calling Pittsburgh Thursday if they had not arrived by then. He said progress on the two commemorative plates was going well and that they should be in within the next few weeks.

Stripling also said that the limited number of signed and number prints of the centennial train were selling quickly and that they would keep the remaining copies of the print at the Centennial Store-Headquarters. Interested individuals were asked to purchase the copies of the train logo at the store at 900 Main.

The peddlers permits will be going out in the near future and will officially go on sale April 1. These permits are to be used by retail merchants and apply to out-of-town salespersons who contact local retailers during the next two months. Merchants will either receive these permits in the mail, or can pick them up at the centennial store. The cost for the permits is $2 each.

Taylor said there had been some misunderstanding about the concession rights. He said that groups interested in selling either food or drink during the centennial should contact Harold Davis as soon as possible. Once the concession requests have been submitted to Davis, his committee will review the requests to see if the groups submitting the recommendations can adequately handle the concession they have requested, and to see how many concessions will be needed for various events.

Johnnie Lou Avery, chairperson of the speakers bureau, said that she had speakers who were willing to speak to the various groups and organizations in the area concerning the centennial and events that are being planned to celebrate the local festivities. Groups interested in obtaining a speaker for their program are asked to contact Avery at Avery & Associated 263-1451.

Taylor said that the first full-time employee from the Rogers Company of Pittsburgh would be arriving Monday and would work with business related matters. He said his name was Don Dalton and that the executive committee would need to meet again at 4 p.m. Monday to bring Dalton up to date on what was happening in Big Spring and Howard County concerning the centennial celebration and activities.

Two local women, aged 17 and 21, were arrested in the parking lot of Gibson's Discount Store, 2300 S. Gregg, for possession of marijuana. The amount was under two ounces; a misdemeanor offense.

A neighbor reported that burglars had broken through a window at the home of Eloisa Correa, 600 N.W. 7th, sometime Wednesday. Ms. Correa was out of town, and it is not known if anything was stolen.

Two people were treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital and released following vehicle accidents, Wednesday.

Cooperative training for roughnecks shape

A new concept in training has been developed by an oil industry committee and Petroleum Extension Service, The University of Texas at Austin (PETEX), a concept dubbed "co-operative training."

The first session will be Cooperative Training for Roughnecks and will be held at the PETEX Training Center at Odessa College, Odessa, beginning June 1. The curriculum will be taught by PETEX staff members Paul Hudson, who has over 15 years' experience in the oil field and teaching petroleum-related courses, and Bill Culpepper, who has 33 years experience in the oil patch.

Goal of this program as established by an industry committee chaired by Frank Pool, vice-president of Sharp Drilling Company of Midland, and vice-chairman, Mike Mueller, director of training of Santa Fe Drilling Company of Odessa, will be to train people to be potential supervisors in much less time than would be required with only rig training. This six-month program has been developed in such a way that the student will receive 20 days of classroom training followed by 28 days of working on a rig until the program is completed.

The concept of cooperative training relies heavily on the support of the drilling industry in that they will be asked to support the training by offering the students employment on a rig for 28 days. The company would only have to pay the student for time spent actually working on the rig. When the student returns to classroom lectures, another student takes his place; thus there would never be a short crew.

Each student will be responsible for his $600 tuition. Odessa College has agreed to support the program and has set aside a 50 x 75 foot space for outdoor training. Contractors will also be asked to support the program with any equipment that might be helpful in this training.

Cooperative Training for Roughnecks will be held twice a year. Each session will be composed of two classes with 25 persons per class.

For information on applying for this school or for enrollment, one contact Petroleum Extension Service, P.O. Box 9390, Odessa 79762, telephone (915) 337-8042 or (915) 337-5182.

Blood donor day scheduled Friday at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital

The Mobile Blood Unit of United Blood Service of San Angelo, will be stationed at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital Friday, for the purpose of receiving blood donors. The hours will be from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Big Spring invariably uses more blood than it donates and this is not a very good image for the city. The record can be improved by donating blood and by people recognizing their friends to also drop by the hospital and donate blood.

People unable to donate Friday will be accepted any Monday at 201 Lancaster from 1 to 6 p.m.

Stenholm supports legal services for the poor

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Supporters of federally funded legal services for the poor, faced with administration and congressional proposals to abolish the Legal Services Corp., have begun searching for changes in LSC that could satisfy complaints the corporation has become a zealous liberal foundation at taxpayer expense.

Chief among those potential changes appears to be an end to class action suits aimed chiefly at local governments.

"If that change were made, I don't think we would see any opposition. Not even downtown," said Rep. Harold Sawyer of Michigan, referring to the White House, which turned President Reagan's longstanding emnity toward legal aid for the poor into a proposal to eliminate the $321 million program.

As governor of California in 1970, Reagan veined a $1.8 million federal grant to California Rural Legal Services after its lawyers helped block cuts in state social and medical services.

The latest proposal has appeared on Capitol Hill in a bill sponsored by Rep. Sam Hall, a Marshall Democrat and co-sponsored by 12 others including Reps. Jim Collins, Phil Gramm, Marvin Leath, and Charles Stenholm.

Sawyer's prediction came as he and colleagues on a Judiciary subcommittee, whose Republican minority has urged Reagan to back off his proposal, completed a fourth day of hearings on the LSC.

Arnold Torres, congressional liaison of the Corpus Christi-based League of United Latin American Citizens, told the courts subcommittee Wednesday his group could support a restriction on the lobbying activities of LSC.

But Torres said without LSC, the poor including many Hispanics, would be forced to rely on United States attorneys, who have "done nothing to protect the poor.

"(The federal lawyers) don't do much in the important areas of consumer law or family law," he told a House Judiciary subcommittee chaired by Rep. Bob Kastenmeier, D-Wisc. "They don't do much of anything unless it's a case they know they can win."

Through Texas Rual Legal Aid, the LSC is expected to spend $17.3 million this year on legal services to some 50,000 low-income Texans. The program involves about 277 attorneys working out of a dozen local offices, mostly in South Texas.

Legal assistance to farmworkers in their dispute with Panhandle onion growers and class action suits against municipal governments have given the organization high visibility and low support among most Texas congressmen.

"The concepts of the Texas delegation are the concerns of the local governments," Torres told the panel. "They don't want Legal Services involved in class action suits."

Last week, J. Chrys Dougherty, past president of the State Bar of Texas, told the subcommittee state funding for legal services is an improbable alternative to LSC and the shifting of the program to private attorneys is impossible.

"Some small portion of poor people could be served but the scale would be greatly reduced. Many people would inevitably be deprived protection of their rights," said Dougherty.

A later witness, Conservative Caucus chief Howard Phillips, tried to head off any moderation of the Reagan plan, suggesting what committee members dubbed a "supply-side" approach that private attorneys be granted tax credits for legal help to the poor.

The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, led by conservative LSC opponent Republican Orrin Hatch of Utah who complains of LSC's "lawyer activism for liberal social programs," has proposed cutting that figure by more than two-thirds in an effort to restrict the corporation.

House Judiciary Chairman Peter Bodino, D-N.J. has a bill to continue the corporation for three years with another $321 million for the first year.

"I'm looking for some kind of ground to save this thing if in fact it's survivable," said Sawyer of Michigan, one of three Republicans on the House Judiciary subcommittee in charge of LSC's money. "We might have a chance on the floor, but at this point, we couldn't override a veto."

But it is early in the LSC fight. A corporation spokesman predicted a "long hot summer" of debate over a slew of amendments expected later this spring, including a ban on environmental suits and mandatory negotiation of all disputes.

Money, court decisions pose woes for police

From money to court decisions, police are facing difficult problems, Police Chief Elwood Hoherz told the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

Among the top problems are the drug culture, juvenile delinquency, jail standards, dwindling applicants for top administrative posts, and budget pressures due to rising gasoline and other prices.

He had words of praise for Lions, and other clubs, who helped in the recent drug rally here, saying that attendance outstripped Odessa, San Angelo and a number of other larger places. Texas catches a disproportionate part of the over-all program because it is on route to markets in the Midwest and Northeast especially since heat is on Florida. The going price of about $75 an ounce for marijuana (20 to 25 cigarettes) splashes over into other crime areas, he noted.

Hoherz also scored the recent decision that drug-sniffing dogs were an invasion of student privacy in schools.

Juvenile crime has rocketed from above 15 percent a decade or two ago to nearly 50 percent now. Court decisions are making it increasingly difficult to pick up and prosecute offenders under 17 years of age, he said. He attributed some of the young crime were to broken homes, summer-time boredom and a highly mobile society.

Taxpayers may feel the effect of rulings requiring jails to have such items as a sun-dayroom, library, and one-third of the total in single cells. Also, gasoline budgeted at one figure may mump 20-25 percent before the year is gone, and equipment, cars and maintenance is jumping almost as rapidly. Still, there is not enough manpower or money, he added. He was alarmed that best personnel in departments often will not apply for chief openings because of pressures.

Dub Martin, president, said that William C. Chandler, president of Lions International, will address the District 2A-1 in San Angelo April 24-25.

ADOLFO ODNOPOSOFF
Concert cellist to be featured

DR. THOMAS HOHSTADT
Conductor of Midland-Odessa Symphony

Symphony series debuts tonight in Big Spring

The Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale under the direction of Dr. Thomas Hohstadt needs no introduction to the Big Spring area community.

A tour concert to Big Spring last May was followed by a pair of children's concerts in January with puppeteer Kelly Draper in a production of "Peter and the Wolf".

Tonight's concert, the first in a series of three subscription concerts, will feature Concert Cellist Adolfo Odnoposoff in a performance of the Lalo 'Cello Concerto in D Minor.

The orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, will open the concert with the Brahms "Academic Festival Overture", followed by the Stravinsky Suite from the Ballet, "Petrouchka". The "Russian Sailors' Dance" by Gliere will close the concert.

Dr. Hohstadt, for seven years the Musical Director and Conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, is rapidly developing an international reputation as a fine conductor. His most recent foreign appearance carried him to Xalapa, Mexico. He will conduct the Orquesta Filarmonica in Seville, Spain this May.

After an appearance with the Oradia Philharmonic Orchestra in Romania, critics wrote... "Thomas Hohstadt is a musician of remarkable musical sensitivity and compelling musical and intellectual-artistic development. He is a leader of the orchestra who, at the conductor's stand of an unknown company, managed to become convincing and eloquent. (He) ... brought into relief his ample dramatic-symphonic conception, one of fresh unrestricted style and expressed by a burning artistic temperament."

Dr. Hohstadt continues to represent the United States in outstanding international events. His tour to Romania followed not long after a highly successful tour to Vienna. Conducting in the famed Grossen Musik-vereinssaal, Dr. Hohstadt was a featured artist for Vienna's "Music of the Masters" series. A former conductor of the Honolulu and Amarillo Symphonies, Dr. Hohstadt also served on the conducting staff of the Eastman School of Music. He is a graduate of the Vienna "Akademie fur Musik" and a pupil of Pierre Monteux. He holds four advanced degrees and has conducted over 700 compositions.

Dr. Hohstadt is a composer with performances by major orchestras and an author with award-winning books. The national Conductor's Guild recently published one of his articles in their prestigious Journal. A speech given to the UCLA Conference for Professional Arts Managers has also been published.

Some of his recent appointments are: musical advisor to the United Nations, board of directors of the Conductor's Guild, founding member of the Texas Committee for the Humanities, and consultant to the National Endowment for the Humanities. He continues his support of music education for young people and recently conducted the Oklahoma and Kansas All-State Orchestras.

He was the first artist to receive the "Five Outstanding Young Texans" award. In recognition for his contributions to state culture, Texas International Airlines also recognized him as one of their "High Flyers".

Thomas Hohstadt has helped to build the Midland-Odessa Symphony into one of the nation's leading metropolitan orchestras. Its annual budget has grown from about $80,000 to $463,000. It has one of the highest per capita season ticket sales of any orchestra in the nation and leading guest artists consistently praise its unusually high standards of musical excellence. Most significantly, its musicians are no longer imported, but live and work for the betterment of musical life in the Permian Basin.

Tonight's concert at 7:30 in Big Spring High School is sponsored by the Big Spring Symphony Association and the Greater Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce—Arts Council, and is made possible in part by grants from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation and the Texas Commission on the Arts.

Subscription tickets at $15 for adults, and $7.50 for students and senior citizens will be available at the door. Individual concert tickets also will be sold at $7.50 for adult single concert tickets and $5 for students and senior citizen single concert tickets.

Daniels wanted better marriage; letters list improvements needed

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — He didn't like the way his wife cooked, the way she greeted him when he returned from work, or her sweet tooth.

She didn't like being treated "like a peasant with no sense" and warned him that his throne "will crumble one of these days and you're going to need someone who loves you."

It looked like a marriage doomed to divorce — but worse happened.

On Jan. 19, Price Daniel Jr., former speaker of the Texas House of representatives and scion of one of Texas' most powerful families, was shot to death. His second wife, Vickie, was charged with murder.

She says it was an accident, says she remembers firing a warning shot at Price but doesn't remember shooting him.

Details of their stormy marriage are revealed in letters written by the couple to each other. The letters were submitted as evidence in a lawsuit that Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, filed in an attempt to gain custody of Vickie's and Price's two sons.

Daniel met Vickie while she was working as a waitress at Dairy Queen to support her two children by a former marriage.

The couple was married Nov. 1, 1976 in New Orleans by the Rev. David Murph, husband of Daniel's sister.

During one of the many separations during the marriage, the Daniels each wrote the other a list of items for self-improvement and another list of items for improvement they wanted in their mate.

The letters are undated but were written in 1979.

"Always have a pleasant greeting when I come home from work (even if it has to be faked)," Daniel listed as his No. 1 request of Mrs. Daniel.

"I don't mean that you have to be especially dressed, standing in the doorway with a smile from ear-to-ear, but I do expect more than to walk in and find you intently glued to the TV lying on the couch.

"And occasionally, when you see me drive in, come and open the door. If you try to do these things, and don't particularly like them, you will do them anyhow out of habit, not just for me but for anyone."

Daniel apparently was quite meticulous about his meals, asking Mrs. Daniel to make weekends special.

"I would like a good, hot meal Saturday noon and a hamburger with two pieces of cheese Saturday night, or vice versa," Daniel wrote.

Daniel chided Mrs. Daniel for spending too much of her grocery budget on sweets.

"Try to go to the store without buying any candy, cake mix, jelly rolls, pie mix, popsicles, etc.," he said. "Instead, buy more carrots, raisins, celery, apples, grapefruits, etc.

"Similarly, quit completely, stop absolutely forever and ever, stopping at Sonics, Dairy Queens, etc. for Cokes and ice cream. It's not only a waste of money, it's a bad habit."

By contrast, Mrs. Daniel admitted she could do better as a cook.

"I could possibly learn to cook the way you would like to, but with children around, I'm not sure I could ever give you as much attention as you would like," Mrs. Daniel wrote.

Mrs. Daniel also had a complaint about Daniel's eating habits.

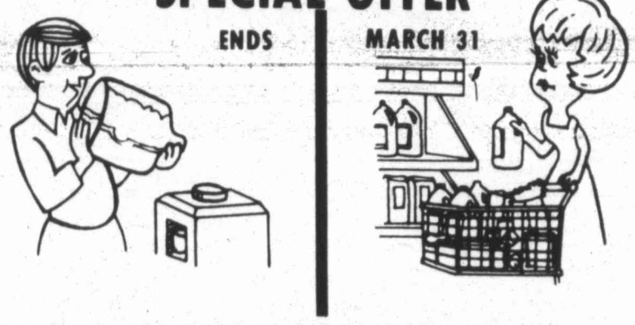

"I think you should eat at the table, and not have me serve you in the playroom," Mrs. Daniel wrote. "I'm not a waitress anymore, I'm your wife."

Mrs. Daniel's No. 1 complaint about her husband was that he belittled her.

"Never make fun of, or put me down," she admonished. "Kid, yes, joke, yes, but no snipes."

Here's a tip for the wise; be alert

Tornadoes are never 'out of season' in the Southwest but more of them occur in the spring than at any other time of the year.

Since 1975, no fewer than 312 people have been killed in the United States by twisters. In 1979 alone 852 tornadoes killed 84 persons, injured 3,077 and caused property damage in excess of $1 billion, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

HALF OF ALL tornadoes are spawned between March and May, when moist air from the Gulf of Mexico collides with cold, gray Canadian air. The resulting mass of rotating air spins between 150 and 500 miles per hour, depending upon the tornado's intensity.

When conditions are conclusive to tornadoes, the National Weather Service issues a tornado watch. A warning is issued once a tornado has been spotted, often giving residents only minutes to seek safety.

The Kemper Insurance Group suggests familiarizing every member of the family with the following tips, given by the National Weather Service:

— Stay inside.

— If there is time, open all windows and doors to your home to equalize air pressure and keep the house from exploding. However, stay clear of all windows as the tornado nears.

— Go to a basement or storm shelter if possible. Open any basement windows and take shelter away from them under heavy furniture.

— In apartments, houses or offices without basements or storm shelters, go to a first floor inner hallway, closet, doorwell or windowless bathroom, lying in the bathtub under a mattress is relatively safe shelter.

— Keep a tornado kit at your predetermined shelter. The kit should include a flashlight, portable radio, supply of batteries, blankets and first aid supplies.

— Don't attempt to pick up children from school. Most school buildings are safer than homes.

— Usually, it's unwise to try to outrun a tornado by car. Get out of your car and lie in the ditch with hands protecting your head. However, if you feel you must attempt an escape by car, drive away from the tornado's path at a right angle.

— If you live in a mobile home, seek other shelter immediately. (Even ditches are safer). Damage can be lessened by securing the mobile home with cables anchored in concrete.

OUR COMMUNITY HAS had its share of big winds but has never suffered the colossal damage some cities have. Some insist the nature of its terrain lengthens the odds that it will ever be hit. Only a fool would think that we all lead charmed lives, however, it could happen, and the best time to learn the safety tips is before the threat arises. It may save your life and the ones you love.

Cleaning out kitchen

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The "kitchen cabinet," whose members financed Ronald Reagan's long road to the White House and want to continue advising him now that he is there, are being evicted in the latest battle for the administration's soul.

After weeks of an artillery duel of conflicting legal opinions between him and the kitchen cabinet, presidential counselor Edwin Meese II issued this decree last week: Out! The law is clear; this privately-funded band of private citizens can no longer occupy government quarters; the modest offices in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House must be vacated.

"Getting us out of the White House is not the same as getting us out of town," a defiant kitchen cabineteer told us. But removal from the president's proximity will not help the millionaire kitchen cabinet conservatives promote Reganite loyalists for high office.

Even before Meese delivered his eviction notice, that effort had been flagging. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger last week told a conservative personnel aide: I will not accept any more recommendations from the White House, so don't bother sending them. Weinberger and other officials who place pragmatism and administrative competence above loyalty and ideology were advancing on all fronts, causing this question to be repeated: Can Reaganite policy be maintained by non-Reaganite officials?

In the heady days following his election, Ronnie Reagan's old California kitchen cabinet cronies thought they were picking the entire official Cabinet. Their comeuppance came early when Meese helped thwart the nomination of their East Coast colleague, William Simon as secretary of the Treasury.

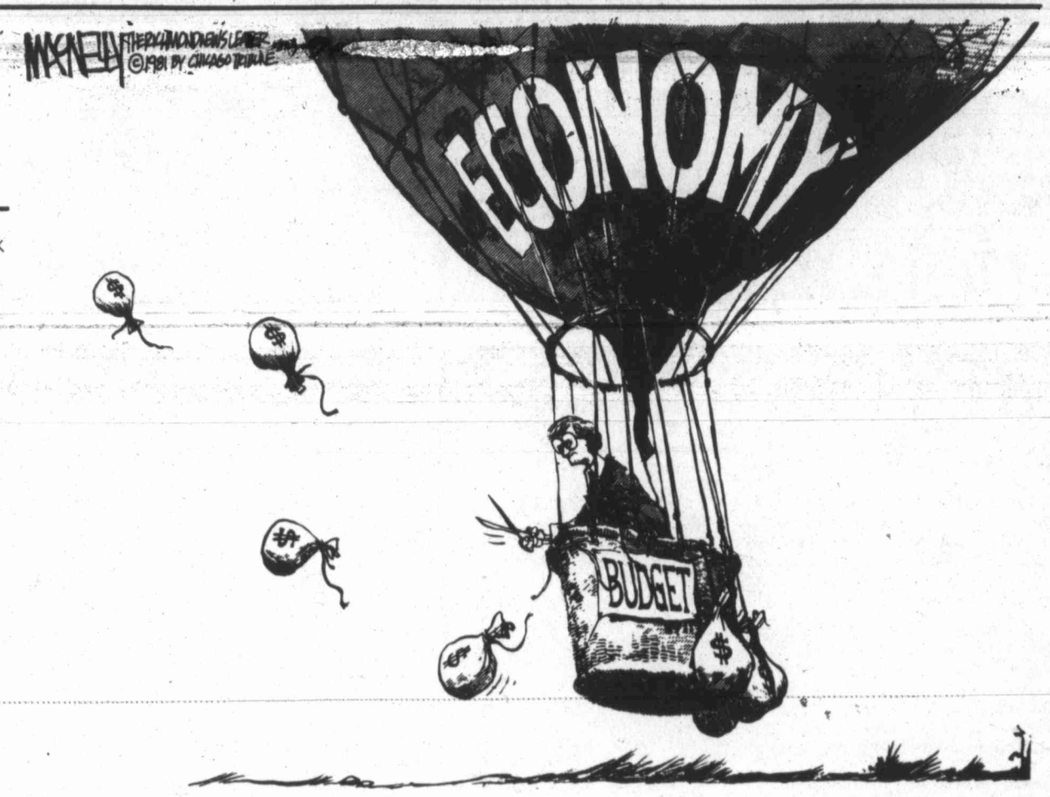

By the time they came east after the inauguration, kitchen cabineteers had switched from offense to defense. They were attempting to veto non-Reaganites regularly selected for high government posts by the White House personnel office, headed by Meese's close friend, E. Pendleton James.

Longtime Reagan aide Lyn Nofziger, who was performing much the same function as White House political aide, provided the kitchen cabinet office space adjoining his own. "You can't imagine," one Reagan aide told us, "how much trouble Lyn got himself into doing that. This was not a popular decision with the White House staff."

"The kitchen cabinet has been treated shabbily, disgracefully," said another insider. Reagan's oldest supporters were denied the convenience of a regular White House pass (except for Southern California tycoon William Wilson, who got his by virtue of being the president's envoy of the Vatican). They were often treated with condescension.

Meese and his second-in-command, Mike Deaver, marshalled legal opinions holding that the kitchen cabinet was an illegal occupant of government property. Kitchen cabineteer Joseph Coors, the Golden, Colo., brewer who long has dreamed of a Reagan presidency, produced conflicting legal opinions. He lost, and now Reagan's oldest buddies must move, possibly to Republican National Headquarters on Capitol Hill.

The loss of proximity will further reduce kitchen cabinet successes (such as appointment of Donald Devine to run the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) over the objections of Meese and James). What's more, it coincided with a serious setback for James' deputy, Willa Johnson, placed there by conservatives to safeguard ideological purity in national security posts.

Blood count needed

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: About 15 years ago during an examination I was told I had an enlarged spleen. Again, about seven years ago the same thing. Then several months ago after another physical I was told again that I had an enlarged spleen. Recently, I have had quite a bit of bowel problem on and off — loose stool. Could this be caused by the enlarged spleen, which I have had for these many years? — C.H.

A word, first, about the spleen in general. In an adult, the spleen has a dual role. It removes worn out red blood cells from circulation and it is part of the body's general defense against infection. Now, if an illness were the cause of your enlarged spleen, it should have made itself known by now through other symptoms or in laboratory blood tests which you undoubtedly had in the course of one of your physical examinations.

The only way to tell for sure if an enlarged spleen has any real significance is with a complete blood count. A scan of the spleen is another useful test in evaluating large spleens and their causes.

I cannot find a direct relationship between your present bowel problem and your enlarged spleen. Inflammations of the bowel might cause a spleen to enlarge. But I doubt that you can relate your current problem to a spleen that has been enlarged for so long without previous symptoms. Your enlarged spleen has apparently served you well. If the enlargement were a threat your doctor would have ordered further tests.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am told by my internist that I have what is known as irritable colon. I thought you might be able to help me in understanding this. If you have material on the subject send it along to me. — Miss E.E.

The colon (lower intestine) is not just a hollow tube. It's a complicated organ with many functions. One of its functions is to remove fluid from the residue of food digested earlier in the stomach and small intestine. It must push this residue downward to the rectum. The muscular colon wall is continually contracting, providing the pushing motion called peristalsis.

In people with irritable colon the muscular movements are disturbed. These people suffer from constipation alternating with diarrhea, and often they have crampy abdominal pain in various locations. The pain is usually relieved by elimination.

Treatments have to be on an individual trial basis because no single approach helps every person with irritable colon. I can give you a few general thoughts. First, consider dietary sources that might be contributing to your problem — milk, caffeinated beverages, beans, cabbage, as examples. Add some high-fiber foods to your diet, like bran. That is often helpful.

Finally, if you cannot find a certain food that aggravates matters, or if extra fiber doesn't help, then a trial of drugs like propantheline can be made. The booklet "Colitis and Kindred Complaints" will help in further understanding. Other readers can order a copy by writing to me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You recently answered a question concerning anorexia nervosa. The woman asked where she could receive information. The National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders is a national nonprofit educational and self-help organization dedicated to alleviating the problems of anorexia and related disorders. By printing our name and referring people to us, you will be helping overcome this dangerous illness. — J.G.

The address listed is: National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders (ANAD), Suite 2020, 550 Frontage Road, Northfield, Ill. 60093.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have an unusual question — about my nostrils. They are so very itchy inside. It is devastating, like a swarm of mosquitoes biting. I can't stand it any longer. Please help. — Mrs. T.J.

Allergies certainly can be a factor in nose itch. I suppose even an infection could cause it. If no cause can be found for the itching, often application of a steroid ointment brings relief.

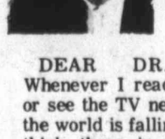

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Whenever I read the newspaper or see the TV news, it looks like the world is falling apart. Do you think there is any reason for optimism about the future? — M.L.

DEAR M.L.: Yes, there is reason to be optimistic about the future — but not because of the headlines we see every day. In fact the headlines would give us every reason to be pessimistic; they proclaim clearly that man is incapable of solving the problems we face in any lasting way.

I have hope for the future not because of what any program of man may accomplish, or because of any political leader. Instead, I have hope for the future because of God. The Bible teaches that some day Jesus Christ will come again. Unlike his first coming, his second coming will be with glory and power to conquer evil and sin, and rule in righteousness and justice. There may be some things we do not fully understand about his second coming, but it is clear that when he comes he will reverse the downward slide of our world. Some day we will sing, "The kingdom of thw orld has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he will reign for ever and ever" (Revelation 11:15). As the Bible says, "We are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth, the home of righteousness" (II Peter 3:13).

In the meantime, we are not to give in to dispair or pessimism. Nor are we to live as if this life were all there is. Instead, we are to live for Christ and be faithful to him. Yes, our world seems to be falling apart — and each day many lives all around us fall apart as well. But all this underlines one thing: Christ alone is the hope of the world, and we must do all we can to make the Gospel known.

Do you believe this? Are you ready for whatever the future holds because you have committed your life to Jesus Christ and trust him? If so, determine by God's grace that you will serve him and witness for him. "As long as it is day, we must do the work of him who sent me. Night is coming, when no one can work" (John 9:4).

Just desserts

Around the rim

Carol Hart

Comedienne Carol Burnett had the right idea in taking the publishers of the National Enquirer to court. Miss Burnett is suing the publication for $10 million as a result of an article which insinuated that she was drunk in a restaurant.

Miss Burnett maintains that she is against heavy drinking and drugs, because of several things in her past, and that she was not drunk or boisterous, as the article leads us to believe.

THE EDITOR OF the Enquirer, who was called to the stand in the case, said he estimated that 16 million people read the Enquirer.

That's a lot of people reading and believing a collection of unsubstantiated garbage. The publishers of the Enquirer defended their scandal sheet as the truth as it can best be told, but in actuality it's a slur on the world of journalism. Trash sheets aren't good for readers, or for people in the media who play the game fairly.

Johnny Carson recently did his bit to blast the National Enquirer, but he probably went about it the wrong way. Recently, on his television show, he took an issue of the magazine with his picture sprawled across the front and the indication that he and his wife were divorcing typed across the picture. Carson publically denied that he and his wife were divorcing, and called the man who wrote the article "a creep."

Carson hurt Miss Burnett's efforts, though, by causing two jurors to be disqualified for watching the show. But both personalities had the right idea. The kind of journalism practiced by the National Enquirer should be curbed.

The Enquirer bases its articles on inneuendos, and not with hard sought out facts which can be backed with reliable sources. Too many times they have been allowed to get away with printing something which is not true.

EVERYONE IN THE media game is guilty of making mistakes. Articles and the facts in them sometimes are wrong, but for reputable publications, the mistakes are really mistakes, and when discovered, most reputable publications make an effort to correct the errors.

Scandal sheets such as the Enquirer base their articles on heresay and gossip. They know what they are printing has a good chance of being wrong. They don't do exhaustive research on their stories. If someone, anyone, makes a juicy accusation, then a scandal sheet makes the most of it, true or not.

What it boils down to is that repeated falsehoods hurt the media's creditability. Honest journalists trying to present the truth are hurt when dishonest ones try for sensationalism no matter what the cost, and no matter who they hurt.

Someone needs to put a damper on scandal sheets, and I'm glad to see them in court, creating a little scandal of their own.

Memoirs planned

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Paula Parkinson, the beguiling seductress in Washington's latest sex scandal, "likes to target particularly interesting men — mostly those with titles — and then stalk them until she scores."

This intriguing appraisal was written by her husband, lobbyist Hank Parkinson, in a confidential book proposal he has prepared for publishers. It has been reviewed by my associate Jack Mitchell.

Apparently, she scored with startling frequency. At "truth sessions" with her husband, she blithely confessed "intimate details about dozens of sexual experiences she had with some of America's biggest names" — conquests that sometimes were recorded on videotapes that would make the FBI's ABSCAM tapes look like Sunday school material.

HANK DESCRIBES HIS wife as a vivacious "live-for-the-moment girl," with a "stunningly beautiful face," who "can make 'please pass the butter' sound like an exciting proposition."

Three years ago he instructed her in the delicate art of lobbying and let her loose on the nation's capital. She would be expected, he explained, to "nail down commitments from lawmakers."

"Oh," she said sweetly, "I'm super at getting commitments." Her unique lobbying methods, as it happened, won the hearts if not the votes of an impressive host of lawmakers. These unhappy dignitaries are now waiting in a cold sweat for the memoirs she has threatened to publish.

A rueful Hank Parkinson has misgivings over what he has wrought. "I unwittingly created a sexual Frankenstein on Capitol Hill ... " he writes. "It's hard to believe a woman who couldn't give a basic definition of lobbying just three short years ago could not only have extracted commitments from some of our top congressmen but could lay claim to video-taping some of them in various sexual antics as well."

In his proposed book, Parkinson will apologize to the congressmen for his wife's SEXSCAM. "Gentlemen of the Congress," he plans to write, "I'm sorry. I should have been more alert, kept the antennae up, got her out of the scene."

But he insists it was their fault, too, for not telling him about Paula's peculiar lobbying activities. "I didn't know the extent of the damage," he will say to them, "because none of the guys would tell me. So there's blame both ways."

AS HANK RECOUNTS the events, he had no part in springing the love trap on the unsuspecting lawmakers. He and Paula had made pledges of undying love to one another — symbolized by her gold waistband, with two dangling A's that had a secret, obscene meaning to them.

But in the fullness of time their ardor dampened. The cooling-off period was attended by screaming quarrels, tender reconciliations and truth sessions. He realized it was all over between them when she "swung a heavy, 25-inch glass decanter of brandy at the back of my head because of a remark I made about her being drunk."

Only a warning cry from a guest averted a homicide. "Without that warning to duck," he writes, "it would have been permanent lights out for me." There followed those mundanities that apparently attend the paling of tempestuous love affairs; they now speak to one another through their lawyers.

As the estranged Hank remembers Paula, she was a "sex symbol" who on Saturday mornings in bed "would watch cartoon show after cartoon show while I thumbed through the daily papers. "The action of television, he said, set the pace for her life. "Every day of Paula's existence must brim with thrill, sex and occasional violence."

The idea of videotaping dignitaries in pornographic poses apparently began with a fantasy. Hank recalls: "She fantasized frequently about a particular congressman and a certain senator she would love to get on tape. 'They both have no class,' she once said, 'and the world deserves to see them with their pants down.' "

Apparently the world may get this unflattering view of some members of Congress if the stories are true about Paula Parkinson's videotapes.

Footnote: Parkinson admitted he prepared the manuscript, but insisted he wasn't writing a "kiss-and-tell book." "I'm doing a broader book about how Congress has become an elitist class and how a woman like Paula could come in and shake things up in a few months."

WAR OF THE WORDS: A true revolutionary has surfaced in the Reagan administration in the unlikely perrson of Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldridge. He has decalred war on wordiness, cliches, government jargon and the kind of bafflegab so beloved by Washington bureaucrats.

A memo sent to everyone who prepares official letters for Baldridge's signature orders the writes to use "no more words than effective expression requires." That is shocking enough. But Baldridge, a Nebraska-born Yale graduate and successful businessman, proceeds to train his verbal guns on a whole string of misused and overused words and non-words.

On the secretary's proscription list are such longtime favoties as "hopefully," "interface," "finalize," "impact (as a verb)," "input," "prioritize," "parameter," "ongoing" and "viable." He also takes aim at spliting infinitives and "the bottom line."

Summing up, Baldridge describes the writing style he wants as "halfway between Ernest Hemingway and Zane Grey with no bureaucratese."

UNDER THE DOME: Republicans are unhappy with the appointment of yet another Democrat, Rep. Don Bailey, D-Pa., to the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee. Nothing personal against Bailey; but it puts the ratio of Democrats to Republicans on the committee at almost 2 to 1, instead of the 3-to-2 ratio in the House at large. Committee member Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., noting that President Reagan has already backed off his campaign promise of a personal tax cut effective Jan. 1, explains: "I concluded that we need a good healthy ratio of Democrats on my committee to keep the president's promise to the American people."

More than Mickey Mouse

NEW YORK (AP) — As soon as he saw his first paycheck, composer Marvin Hamlisch figured that working for Walt Disney Studios would be different than working for other studios.

Instead of the basic business check issued by such straightforward companies as Warner Bros. or Columbia Pictures, the Disney check had "a little picture of Mickey Mouse with three circles around it," Hamlisch said.

"I felt guilty about cashing it."

Hamlisch, addressing a recent seminar at the New School for Social Research, remembered a particularly wearing day on the set of "The Devil and Max Devlin."

"Everything went wrong, everyone was irritable, the air-conditioning wasn't working, nothing jelled.

"Arriving home late and frazzled, I was ready to vow I'd never work for Disney again. At the door was a messenger, bearing a framed caricature of me at the piano, sweat pouring off my forehead, with that famous mouse leaning on the piano bench and saying, 'Hey it's not so bad — appreciate all your hard work.'"

It worked, the Academy Award-winning composer said. "Now, how can you walk out on Mickey Mouse?"

Frisbee diplomacy

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ever since cartoonist Garry Trudeau was spotted playing Frisbee on the Great Wall, the Chinese have been curious about the sport.

So in June, a group of 25 Americans devoted to tossing the plastic disks will make a five-city tour of China.

Laney College cooking instructor Al Finkelstein, who put together the offbeat cultural exchange with the help of the China Youth Federation and the city of Shanghai, predicts the visit will be a great success.

The group, which includes several world champions and the Bay Area Flying Circus, also plans to visit Suzhou, Wuxi, Nanjing and Peking.

The American Continental Circus, which appeared here March 3, attracted one of the largest paid crowds in the history of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

In afternoon and evening performances, the circus played to 5,500 customers. Coliseum rental for the two shows amounted to $1,100. Howard College concessions sales came to $1,300 for the two shows, bringing the total amount realized by the college to $2,400.

From Feb. 2 through March 16, eight events staged in the coliseum drew crowds totaling 14,159. Coliseum rental amounted to $3,863.50 for the events. College concessions sales brought in another $4,939.82, making a total of $8,803.32 realized by the school.

Dry lake bed in New Mexico ready for backup space shuttle landing

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — The desert here is laced with history. Billy the Kid, the outlaw, and Geronimo, the Indian leader, roamed the sands, the rocket age was born nearby and the atomic era dawned with a roar at a site dubbed Trinity.

Now the U.S. Army's huge desert missile range is ready and able to witness the first "runway" landing of a spaceship. Millions of dollars have been spent, and Very Important People have been invited.

Trouble is, if all goes well, the shuttle will land 800 miles away from the white gypsum sands of New Mexico, at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The space shuttle Columbia is scheduled to be launched around April 10 from Cape Canaveral, Fla., and return to earth 54 hours later at Edwards.

However, if weather conditions or technical problems make the Edwards landing impossible, touchdown could take place on one of two seven-mile runways smoothed out on a dry lake bed called Northrup Strip.

Although Northrup Strip is only an alternate site, preparations continue at a steady pace — both at the strip and at the headquarters for the missile range, 45 miles to the south.

Directed from a yellow control tower dwarfed by the great bed of white sand, hundreds of training missions have been conducted at Northrup Strip, lately averaging nine a week.

Flying Gulfstream II executive jets, modified to handle like a gliding shuttle, the training astronauts — including John Young and Robert Crippen, the Columbia crew — fly to within 10 feet of the sand, the point where touchdown would occur if they were flying the shuttle. Then they fly off to make another approach, and then another.

White Sands is the primary landing site for an "abort once around mission," which would occur if the shuttle fails to reach the orbiting stage and the astronauts are forced to circle the earth once before landing.

Northrup could also be designated as the "end of mission" landing site if Edwards does not dry sufficiently from recent heavy rains to withstand the weight of the 150,000-pound shuttle.

Al Paczynski, NASA project engineer at White Sands, said he personally would be disappointed if the shuttle didn't land there, but "for program reasons, I guess I would prefer it land at Edwards. They have more capabilities there." NASA spokesman Ken Senstad candidly described White Sands as "minimally equipped."

Paczynski estimates that construction and training at White Sands has cost $2 million. He calls the expenditure "good insurance," explaining that each day's delay in the shuttle launch date costs several hundred thousand dollars.

"If you land here as opposed to waiting a month for Edwards to dry out, that's a considerable savings," he said. "Time is money, especially in the space program."

The first three shuttle flights are to terminate in a lake-bed landing, Paczynski said. White Sands is scheduled to back up the first four shuttle missions, with an option on two more. "We have a very good chance that at least one" of the landings will be at Northrup Strip, he said.

This land was prime ranching country until the Army opened White Sands Proving Ground on July 9, 1945. One week later, the world's first atomic bomb was exploded on the range at an area now known as Trinity Site, about 40 miles north of Northrup Strip.

Just west of the range, near Roswell, Dr. Robert Goddard developed the first gyro-controlled rocket guidance system. Goddard, who in 1926 flew the first liquid-fueled rocket, was eventually flying rockets faster than the speed of sound and at altitudes up to 7,500 feet.

Today, the range is a multi-service facility used for testing missiles, weapons components and energy projects related to defense. It employs about 8,000 military and civilian personnel.

If the shuttle does land at Northrup Strip, there will be plenty of witnesses.

A group of 300 area leaders, including Gov. Bruce King, the state's congressional delegation and the mayors of Las Cruces, Alamogordo and El Paso, is being invited to Northrup Strip if the landing takes place there.

(AP LASERPHOTO)

DISCUSSES THE SHUTTLE — Al Paczynski, NASA project engineer at White Sands, N.M., says he would be disappointed if the space shuttle lands in California, but for program reasons prefers it lands there. Panczynski estimated that $2 million has been spent at White Sands preparing for a possible landing much of it for the stiff leg derrick in the background that would lift the shuttle to the back of a 747.

Lopez gets life sentence

DALLAS (AP) — David Pecina Lopez thanked the state district judge who sentenced him to life in prison after a jury found him guilty of murdering a 6-year-old boy.

Lopez, 25, who had pleaded self-defense, said, "Thank you" to State District Judge R.T. Scales when the judge assessed the maximum sentence Wednesday.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Wilson had asked for the life sentence, saying Lopez was "the personification of evil" and had "forfeited all rights to live in a free society" because of the brutal way he killed young Ralph Luna.

The boy was found Jan. 6 in his west Dallas home with 15 stab wounds in his chest. A pathologist who performed the autopsy had testified there were also signs that a blunt object had been forced into the boy's rectum.

Lopez did not testify but jurors were read a statement he gave police. In the statement, Lopez said he killed the boy after sniffing paint and engaging in sex with the child.

He said he stabbed the 40-pound youngster in self-defense after the child became frightened and came at Lopez with a kitchen knife.

Lopez called the killing, "a horrible accident."

Chopper crash in Freeport

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — A helicopter, carrying six offshore oil rig workers home, developed engine trouble and plunged into the the Gulf of Mexico, authorities said. All six were rescued safely.

Felton Baker, a spokesman for Houston Helicopters Inco. in Pearland, said the mishap occurred during a crew change Wednesday morning about 33 miles southwest of Freeport.

Chagra takes lie detector test

New grand jury opens investigation into Wood assassination

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A new federal grand jury has opened its investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. by calling several associates of convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions empaneled the new 23-member grand jury Wednesday. It heard two witnesses in a five-hour session, then recessed until today when several others, including Harrelson's stepdaughter, have been subpoenaed to testify.

Meanwhile, in Dallas, El Paso attorney Joe Chagra took a second lie detector test to try to prove his innocence in the Wood killing, his lawyer said.

The new San Antonio grand jury replaced a former special grand jury amid published reports that federal agents are close to solving the May 29, 1979, assassination of Wood, outside his San Antonio apartment.

Reports in Dallas, El Paso and San Antonio said that the investigation was focusing on Harrelson, 42, and El Paso brothers Joe and Jimmy Chagra.

Dallas lawyer William Ravkind said Joe Chagra was given a polygraph test Wednesday by a former Dallas Police Department examiners and it "showed there was no problem," that Joe Chagra had no part in Wood's death or "in a conspiracy to commit murder.

After a Feb. 27 raid on his El Paso home, Joe Chagra told reporters he had been informed by FBI agents that he, his brother and Harrelson were considered "key suspects" in the Wood case.

Called to testify today were Theresa Starr Jasper, Harrelson's stepdaughter; George Edward "Pete" Kay of Huntsville, a longtime associate of Harrelson; Virginia Farah of El Paso, who employed Harrelson last year while he was a fugitive; and Hampton and Joanna Robinson of Houston, described as acquaintances of the convicted hit man.

Kay was seen at the federal courthouse Wednesday, but apparently did not enter the grand jury room on the third floor.

Called briefly Wednesday were Mike Jasper, identified as the former husband of Theresa Jasper; and an unidentified long-haired young man who made vulgar hand gestures and refused to identify himself to news reporters.

Neither the young man, dressed in blue jeans and a black sweater, nor his attorney, Solomon Casseb, would comment on his identity or connection to the investigation.

The grand jury was empaneled for a regular 18-month term and became the third panel in two years to hear evidence in Wood's death and the attempted killing of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr in San Antonio six months before on Nov. 21, 1978.

Kerr, who escaped without serious injury when a barrage of .30-caliber bullets were fired at his automobile, often prosecuted narcotics traffickers in Wood's court. Both men had reputations as being tough on drug distributors.

Federal prosecutors have speculated Wood and Kerr were attacked on orders of high-level narcotics dealers.

Jimmy Chagra, who was to have been tried before Wood, is serving a 30-year federal prison sentence on a drug-related conviction for continuing criminal enterprise. Harrelson is held without bond at Houston on state firearms and narcotics charges.

Joe Chagra, an attorney for Harrelson and for his brother, has repeatedly denied any involvement in the Wood killing.

VA requesting help in collecting debts

The Veterans Administration have sent letters to the heads of 50 federal agencies requesting their help in collecting almost $37 million from more than 66,000 of their employees who owe that amount to VA.

The agencies, ranging from the largest to some of the smallest in the federal government, were asked to "appoint a senior agency official to coordinate the collection activity" with VA.

The names of the debtors and the amounts they owe the Veterans Administration will be furnished each agency in the near future.

The agencies notified of their employees' indebtedness to VA include the General Accounting Office, the Department of Education, the Civil Rights Commission, Federal Election, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the National Science Foundation and the Office of Personnel Management.

They range in size from the Defense Department to the Railroad Retirement Board and include the Postal Service, and the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Energy, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Justice, Labor, State, Transportation and Treasury.

VA began collecting the list of government employed debtors early this year by matching its computer records with those maintained by the Office of Personnel Management.

The result is a list of civilian employees with outstanding debts from overpayments of VA benefits and defaulted education and home loans.

The VA letter to agency heads said, "In compliance with standard federal collection practices we have reminded debtors ... of the outstanding debt owed the Veterans Administration, the basis for the indebtedness and their appeal rights."

It said, "VA is willing to work with employees who dispute the amount of the debt or need to establish a repayment plan," but, "your support is needed to assure that debtors who fail to cooperate are counseled on the need to meet their obligations."

VA's government-wide collection effort is patterned on the agency's continuing surveillance of debts owed by its own employees, a campaign kept current by periodic computer checks.

Measure moves to Senate

House tentatively approves bill raising interest rates ceilings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislation raising maximum legal interest rates on just about any kind of credit you can name is a step closer to passage.

The House tentatively approved the bill, 91-54, Wednesday night after laboring over it for six hours and is expected to pass it on to the Senate today.

If the bill passes, interest rates can rise for auto loans, credit card balances, department store installment loans, home improvements, business loans and credit union loans.

Bankers, auto dealers, credit unions, savings and loan associations, retailers and other lenders who pushed the bill received only one setback Wednesday, but it was a big one.

Liberals and conservatives banded together to drop the limit on the "floating ceiling" proposed by the bill from 30 percent to 24 percent.

"A bunch of us just decided 24 percent was all they needed," said Rep. George Pierce, D-San Antonio, a conservative.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, led the fight for the amendment dropping the outside limit on interest rates. He said lenders who are squeezed between current money market rates on one side and Texas' existing ceilings on the other do need relief.

"I think we need some relief for the needy but not a windfall for the greedy," Salinas said.

Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, the sponsor of the bill, said Salinas' amendment would hurt "high risk" borrowers who can only obtain credit at very high interest rates.

"There's not but one high risk business I know that can pay 30 percent interest, and that is the drug pushers and the marijuana smugglers," said Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

As the bill stands, it imposes a three-layered ceiling on interest rates for just about all loans but home mortgages. When the rate on six-month U.S. Treasury bills is 9 percent or below, the ceiling would be 18 percent. But when the T-bill rate is higher, the maximum legal interest rate in Texas would be twice the T-bill rate but could float no higher than 24 percent.

The T-bill rate is about 12 percent now, meaning lenders could charge 24 percent if the bill were in effect.

Lenders could raise interest rates at any time during the life of a loan to take advantage of changes in the money market.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, tried but was outvoted, 91-48, to eliminate these "variable rate" loans, saying there was no justification to change the rate on a one- or two-year consumer loan.

"It is impossible to plan a family budget, not knowing what the maarket is going to do, but that is what you are calling on the consumer to do," he said.

Messer replied that consumers might benefit, that a variable-rate loan might turn out to be cheaper than one at a fixed rate of interest.

Curriculum bill debated in committee

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Fort Worth teacher who had "serious reservations" about a public school curriculum bill said, with changes, it could be a "springboard for excellence" in the classroom.

Dorothy Rosson, history teacher at Dunbar High School, also told a Senate committee Wednesday the bill "could be the beginning of curriculum sanity for the state of Texas."

Ms. Rosson suggested local districts should determine curriculum on the advice of teachers and administrators, and the Legislature should stay out of the process.

The Education Committee was so impressed with the teacher's comments, even though it was critical of the Legislature's role in education, that an aide was told to make copies of her written testimony.

Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, testified the bill to establish a "well-balanced" curriculum results from a "hue and cry" for a return to basics.

Haley, a teacher for 12½ years, said the bill would make it state policy that curriculum "belongs in the hands of local school districts and the State Board of Education."

A "well-balanced curriculum" would include courses in 11 areas — English language arts; other languages; mathematics; science; health; physical education; fine arts; social studies; economics; business education and vocational education.

Ms. Rosson said if the Legislature was concerned about teaching the three R's — reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic — it should allow teachers to focus entirely on those subjects through the third grade.

She said teachers in grades one through three now spend part of their time teaching fire safety, drug education and career education.

"It should be stressed that legislative-mandated curriculum has eaten away time for the three R's in the early grades," she said.

Haley and Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland, are sponsoring the same curriculum bill in each house.

Haley said there had been a "virtual hodge-podge" in curriculum since 1907. As an example he cited 12 bills pending before the Legislature which would add such courses as "how to be a parent," "racial tolerance" and "cardiovascular-pulmonary resuscitation."

"I don't necessarily agree with a lot of people who have total disdain for the State Board of Education," said Haley. "A lot of people are saying they are a horrible group of people. I disagree with that."

Officer thinks children should be taken from 'criminal family'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Wilson" family is a poor, sprawling clan with a record of more than 150 arrests over three generations. Now a police officer determined to "break the cycle of crime" is trying to take at least four of the family's youngsters away from their parents in a case that could set a startling legal precedent.

"My judgment was based on the parents being criminal role models," said officer Tom Corey. "Extrapolated to its extreme, this case could mean that the government has the authority to drive up and down the street and say, 'You're not an appropriate role model, so we'll take your kids.'

"But at some point, there's got to be a way to break the cycle. It's up to the judge to decide that."

The case began last fall when Corey, assigned to the Pasadena Youth Services Division, noted a report that two cousins — aged 8 and 9 — had been caught shoplifting $3.97 worth of toys. The report said the children had no prior record and required "no further counseling."

Then Corey noticed the children came from the "Wilson" family. Wilson is not the family's real name.

"These minors," the 35-year-old former teacher wrote in a report, "spent their formative years in a family environment in which it was the norm for family members to be arrested and incarcerated — their fathers in prison, their mothers both serving 90-day jail terms this year, nearly all the adult members of their immediate family have double-digit arrest figures, and even their great-aunt was arrested twice this year."

Corey has placed three of the children in protective custody. Next month, the county Juvenile Dependency Court will determine whether at least one other child in the third generation of Wilsons — a family led by a 46-year-old woman and her 14 children — should be removed from their homes.

Court observers say Corey's action could break new legal ground and could redefine what constitutes an unfit home.

"It's possible the county will try to keep chipping away until finally, any parent with a criminal background can have his kids taken away," said one of the Wilsons' court-appointed attorneys, Ron Marks.

One member of the Wilson family — 23-year-old Billy — says police helped him "a lot." He became involved in a petty theft 10 years ago, and officers got him tutoring, counseling and a place in a scouting progam. Now he runs a janitorial business that employs three of his brothers.

But he said the department is prejudiced against his family.

"They can't say the Wilson family ever hurt anyone," he said.

FAMILY'S ARREST RECORDS — Police officer Tom Corey sits among a stack of arrest records belonging to members of the same family recently in his Pasadena, Calif., office. Corey, an ex-teacher and eight-year veteran on the force says he is determined to "break the cycle of crime" in the family and has begun to do so through court proceedings and an 18-page report on the three generations of criminal records.

Coal miners begin strike at midnight

By the Associated Press

Union miners were digging their last loads of coal today before going on strike, while their leader was barnstorming the coalfields in an attempt to sell a new contract and keep the walkout short.

The shift that ends at midnight will be the last until a contract is ratified by the 160,000 members of the United Mine Workers.

The union reached tentative agreement Monday on a new three-year contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association that provides for a 36 percent wage increase. Approval of the pact by the union's bargaining council Tuesday set the stage for a ratification vote by the rank and file.

The current contract expires at 12:01 a.m. EST Friday, and miners are honoring their no-contract no-work tradition. So the mines will be empty until after a vote is taken — and then the miners will go back only if the contract is approved. Most locals will vote Tuesday, and definitive results are expected by Wednesday.

UMW President Sam Church today begins a four-day tour to brief miners before they vote. He planned to be at a western Pennsylvania mine at midnight to greet workers as they came off the last shift.

"I'm rolling now," Church said. "It's a good contract, a good contract."

Church began his sales effort Wednesday, speaking to about 200 regional officials of the union in Washington.

The bargaining council approved the contract 21-14, but some of its provisions already have come under heavy criticism from the rank and file, which rejected a contract proposal in a ratification vote during a record 111-day nationwide strike in 1977-78.

Nevertheless, Church says the pact has a good chance. Besides the increase in wages, it includes better benefits, a dental plan and improved pensions.

There is considerable opposition to a union concession that gives the companies the right to process non-union coal in UMW plants without having to pay a $1.90-a-ton royalty into the UMW pension fund.

Church acknowledged "there will be a lot of controversy. But when you realize what we got for it — a lot of money. I never thought we would get the pensions for the 1950 widows."

He said the union traded away the royalties on non-union coal — which are worth about $1 million a month — in exchange for $100-a-month pensions for widows of miners covered under the union's 1950 pension plan. Until now, those women received nothing after their husbands died.

A spokesman for the union's Health and Retirement Fund said there are about 40,000 such widows and 67,000 other 1950-plan pensioners.

Coal companies were reluctant to talk Wednesday about the effects of the royalty concession and how much of a competitive advantage it would give non-union coal.

Bell appeals interim rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. wants to keep in effect current statewide rates that are about $3 million more a month than the rates authorized by the Public Utility Commission.

The company asked the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here Wednesday for an order that would continue present telephone charges while the PUC's decision on new rates is appealed.

Last Friday an Austin district court judge upheld the commission in granting Bell a statewide rate increase of $114.3 million. Bell had asked for $150 million in increased revenue.

At the same time, District Judge Harley Clark denied a Bell request that it be allowed to continue charging the interim rates that bring the company about $3 million more a month than the rates approved Jan. 29.

The company said in its petition to the Austin appellate court that it should be allowed to continue collecting the interim rates in effect since last November.

Dear Abby

Man Has Rude Landing After Falling in Love

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old man in the process of being divorced. I recently met a very bright and attractive businesswoman. Joyce is 29, divorced and in real estate. She's very money-oriented, lives well, and I think she's much better off financially than I am.

We fell in love, and Joyce agreed to marry me as soon as my divorce is final. Then she asked me to sign a premarital agreement stating that I had no legal right to her present assets or anything she earns or inherits in the future. (Her family has money.)

I was stunned and refused to sign the agreement. I walked out, and that's the last time I saw Joyce.

Abby, if two people love and trust each other, why do they need a written agreement to protect themselves against being taken advantage of?

I still care for her, but I just can't see myself signing that agreement. If the situation were reversed, I would never ask her to sign one.

Am I wrong? Should I reconsider? Or should I try to find a woman who doesn't demand a premarital agreement to protect her from a man who is after her money?

SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: With one out of every two marriages ending in divorce, a premarital agreement makes sense — particularly when one of the partners is much better off financially than the other. It matters not who has what. The time to worry about what happens should the marriage end is before it begins. (P.S. But don't sign anything until your lawyer sees it.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: To the man who switched to boxer shorts and begat four children, I would like to point out some figures:

So far he has nine grandchildren, but if his four each have four offspring as he did, it will be 16. Adding this up we have 20 more people on earth. To carry it further, if the 16 each have four, that is 64. If they have four, that is 256; and if they have four, that is 1,024 more persons.

If we go around one more time, we reach 4,096! Adding up the figures, we now have 5,460 more people on earth. All that humanity just because one man dropped his drawers!

PRO JOCKEY SHORTS IN OREGON

DEAR PRO: Before we drop the subject, can you stand one more letter?

DEAR ABBY: Your boxer shorts letters intrigued my wife and me because we had been trying to conceive a child for some time. After reading a number of your articles about boxer shorts, we also decided to give it a try. A number of months prior, we had also put our name with an adoption agency.

The next time my wife went shopping, she purchased three pair of boxer shorts for me. On the third day of the third pair of shorts, we received a telephone call from the adoption agency informing us that they had a 1-day-old baby girl for us. We were ecstatic!

I don't think anyone's boxer shorts ever worked so fast. All three of us want to thank you and your readers for such a fast-working idea.

Choate discusses child programming at ABWA

The regular meeting of Cactus Chapter, American Business Woman's Association was held at Furrs Cafeteria, March 16. Marie Eason gave the invocation, and led the pledge of allegiance.

"Where Are You Coming From" was a provocative topic given by John M. (Sonny) Choate. He discussed how adults and children are programed in their formative years. Most children 8-10 years try to emulate after someone, whether it be father, mother, uncle or T.V. personality, which affects their values, religious training, music appreciation, etc.

At ages 11-12 they begin to think on their own, but are influenced greatly by T.V. and the media. He compared how people coming up in the 20s, 30s, 40s, 50s and 60s then in the 70s, have a much different set of values than those coming up in the 80s. T.V. has such a different impact on people than just hearing or reading about an event. Seeing the devastation of the atom bomb, and actual pictures of the slain people in the Vietnam War, gives one a different impact than reading about wars that happened before T.V.

Hence we must ference, and we must have an open mind to the happenings of the world today.

open mind to the happenings of the world today.

Marie Eason was the vocational speaker. She is the owner and manager of the Tom Boy Shop. She has been in the business 14 years and is still very active in the business.

April 21 is the date for the Torchbearer meeting in Lamesa to organize that chapter, at the Flame Room at 7:30 p.m.

Memberships in the Centenial Belles were sold to form a chapter from Cactus Chapter members.

New members installed into Cactus Chapter were Betty Riley and a transfer, Vicky Morrow. Meeting closed with the benediction in unison.

Spring tea held by Cactus ABWA

Signs of Spring Tea, Cactus Chapter, A.B.W.A., was held March 15 in the home of the tea chairman, Laveta Speck, 1504 Johnson St.

A skit in the form of a style show was given, explaining the purposes and advantages of belonging to the American Business Women's Association.

A Spring tea table with various colors of spring flowers, cookies, mints and colorful punch was set to serve the members and guests.

Miss Ivie honored by shower

A bridal shower honoring Nancy Ivie, Dallas, formerly of Big Spring was held March 23 in the home of Mrs. David Elrod, 2404 Birdwell Lane.

Pink carnation corsages were presented to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. O.H. Ivie.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of silk pink and white spring flowers graced with pink candles on a white linen covered table. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

The hostess gift was an electric food mixer. Cohostesses were Mrs. James Cave, Mrs. Dee Elrod, Mrs. Avery Falkner, Mrs. Lee Herndon, Mrs. Carlos Humphrey, Mrs. J.D. Mitchell, Mrs. Jimmy Morehead, Mrs. H.B. Perry, Mrs. Kenneth Stephens, Mrs. Walter Stroup and Mrs. Thomas Vick.

Miss Ivie is the bride-elect of David Stringfellow, Plano. The couple will be married April 18 in the Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ.

Jessica's great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Overton, Garden City Rt. and Preston and Mae Ward, 506 E. 15.

The infant is welcomed home by her brother, Jeramy, 3.

Girl Scouts will experience handicap awareness at Tawari

The annual Six Council Senior Girl Scout event, Tawasi, will be held at Camp Boothe Oaks Friday through Sunday. The West Texas Girl Scout Council will be the host Council.

Tawasi is an Indian word meaning friendship. The event offers each girl an opportunity to make new Girl Scout friends, share program ideas, learn about wider opportunities and develop outdoor skills.

This year a special emphasis is Handicap Awareness. Senior and Cadette girls will experience some of the physical and emotional feelings of a handicapped person.

The Tawasi Planning Board, which met in Lubbock Jan. 11, included Pam Caudill, Big Spring Troop 360 and Tina Walker, Roscoe Troop 293. They served with Polly Jordon, El Camino Council; Maureen McKelvey, Permian Council; Laura Drake and Claribel Gil, NorCenTex Council; Becky Morris, Caprock Council; and Shawna Bell and Jerri Sword of Zia Council to make plans for this weekend.

Out of Council guests include girls from Senior Troop 15 Alamogordo, Troop 81 and 58; Wichita Falls, Troop 70; Burkburnett, Troop 394; Plainview, and Troops 114 and 132 and Lubbock.

Welcoming the girls to Camp Boothe Oaks for Tawasi will be Linda Walker, camp director; Dorrie Cook, Tawasi coordinator; and Peggy Sturrock, executive director, West Texas Council.

CowBelles sponsor contest

Texas cooks vie for prizes at Texas Beef Cook-off

Texans have the opportunity to parade their "beef know-how" at the annual Texas Beef Cook-off May 14-15 at El Paso.

Five finalists are chosen each spring to compete for a $300 first prize and the opportunity to represent Texas at the National Beef Cook-off in the fall. The Texas CowBelles sponsor the contest.

Contestants must be at least 18 years old and a resident of Texas with a non-professional food status.

Any beef recipe using chuck, round, rump or fresh brisket cuts of beef in any form may be entered in the cook-off. The dish must contain at least two pounds and not more than five pounds of pure beef.

Garnishes are permitted and should be included in the recipe.

The recipe must be specific with no use of brand names, no commercial tenderizers and prepared according to the recipe submitted. State the number of servings and approximate cost per serving.

Contestants are responsible for furnishing all ingredients, garnishes and cooking utensils. Ranges will be provided. The contest doesn't include outdoor cookery.

For preliminary recipe judging, a contestant must submit an entry form and his or her recipe, postmarked no later than April 1, to the State Chairman at the following address:

Texas CowBelles Beef Cook-off
5501 Interstate 40 West
Amarillo, Texas 79106

A team of judges will select the top five recipes from the recipes submitted. The decision of the judges is final.

The finalists' expenses will be paid to El Paso to prepare their dishes for judging at the Texas Beef Cook-off May 14-15.

The beef dishes will be judged on: Taste - 40 points; Appearance - 20 points; Originality - 20 points and Ease of Preparation-Practicality - 20 points.

All recipes submitted become the property of the Texas CowBelles.

Prizes are, $300 first place and $200 to second place. The first place winner of the Beef Cook-off will advance to the National Beef Cook-off to be held in Sioux Falls, S.D., Sept. 23-25.

Further information may be obtained from Ellen Jane Anderson, 2100 Woodfin, El Paso, Texas 79925, ((915) 591-9024).

Beverly Sebastian of Fort Worth was named the winner of the 1980 Texas Beef Cook-off, for her Beef and Broccoli Dinner Bells, which was held in Amarillo. Mrs. Herschel Thompson of Tulia was runner-up with her Oriental Beef Ring. Alice Landru Edwards, Houston; Rhonda Fowler, Woodville and Susan K. Falter, Valentine, were finalists.

A cookbook that includes the recipes of the above winners is Beef Recipes for Today. This book was written to help consumers buy beef wisely and prepare it well. It includes a variety of recipes, including some Texas favorites and adaptations of foreign dishes, chosen because people in other countries manage to eat well without consuming as much meat as Americans. There are recipes using variety meats and some for leftovers.

Most Americans find meals more satisfying when they include meat, and beef remains the most popular meat in America. An average 3½-ounce serving provides 52 percent of the daily protein requirements of an average adult male. Beef contains 11 B vitamins, six of which are phosphorus and magnesium. Don't pass it up. If the prime rib in the butcher's case is too expensive for you, just move on down the aisle. There are plenty of cuts to choose from.

Though consumers are cutting back on food spending, beef still deserves a place on the shopping list. The rising cost of living may require substituting chuck for sirloin, subtracting a little ground beef from the casserole and devoting more time to meal planning and preparation. It does not mean eliminating beef from the diet.

Less expensive cuts are delicious when they are prepared well, but they take more time to cook than a tender filet. These cuts are also more abundant, which can mean considerable savings to buyers.

HAMBURGER — Nothing is more American than a hamburger. Fry it, broil it, charcoal grill it. Any way you cook it, a hamburger is great for lunch or supper.

CHEESEBURGER DELUXE

1 pound ground beef
½ cup shredded Gruyere cheese
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1 clove pressed garlic
4 toasted English muffins

Mix ingredients lightly with a fork. Shape into 4 patties. Place on broiler pan ¾ inches from heat. Cook 5-6 minutes on each side. Serve on toasted English muffins. Serves 4.

¼ teaspoon oregano
⅛ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Add water to oregano and thyme. Let stand 5 minutes. Sprinkle salt and pepper over meat; add liquid and mix lightly. Shape into 4 patties. Place in broiler pan 3-4 inches from heat. Cook 5-6 minutes on each side. Serves 4.

STRETCHING GROUND BEEF

Add to 1 pound beef
½ cup soft bread crumbs soaked briefly in 1-3 cup milk
½ cup chopped raw mushrooms or bean sprouts

Mix into 1 pound beef
2 teaspoons chili sauce
3 tablespoons sauteed mushrooms
2 tablespoons fresh parsley

IT'S A WINNER — The Beef and Broccoli Dinner Bells above won the $300 prize for Beverly Sebastian of Fort Worth in the 1980 Texas Beef Cook-off. The winner also was awarded a free trip to Amarillo where the cook-off was held.

¾ cup chopped onion
¼ cup cooking oil
2 teaspoons garlic salt
1 teaspoon lemon-pepper seasoning
1 cup chopped tomatoes

Bentsen: Immigration reform cannot be enacted this year

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Immigration reform cannot be enacted this year because Congress must first face pressing economic issues, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Wednesday.

Bentsen, who called the recent surge in immigrants to the U.S. "one of our most serious problems," also said immigration change has no bread-based support in Congress.

"One of your big problems (about immigration reform) is you don't find a constituency for it," said Bentsen. "Where is the great force to get it through (Congress)?"

On Tuesday, Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Tex., sponsored a bill that would put a 350,000 person cap on legal immigration per year, issue identification cards is all Americans and provide amnesty for undocumented workers who came to the U.S. prior to 1978.

(Bentsen, speaking at a news conference, said he had not studied the bill).

"But I think we are going to be so tied up in budgetary problems and tax legislation it (an immigration bill) won't pass this year." Bentsen said. "It has a reasonable chance next year."

Citing an estimated 1 million immigrants in 1990, Bentsen said the U.S. cannot withstand that kind of continuous immigration.

"There are four and one-half billion people out there in the world and half of them go to bed either hungry or suffer from malnutrition and would move here tomorrow if they could," he said. "We just can't take them all. So we have to address that problem."

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has estimated there are currently two and one-half million illegal immigrants — mostly Mexican — in Texas.

Bentsen predicted any immigration bill would be a longshot despite recent action on Capitol Hill, including the naming of a presidential task force on immigration to report by May.

The Select Commission in Immigration and Refugee Policy issued its final report March 1 recommending a 450,000 ceiling on immigrants and amnesty for workers here before 1980.

Bentsen estimated there are millions of people in Cuba and Haiti who would like to come to the U.S.

"You've got the Caribbean that would empty into our country if we don't have some limitations," he said.

"I don't think we can continue to take in at the levels we have."

Bentsen said any effective immigration bill would need to include requirements for:

—noncounterfeitable social security cards

—work permits for people to in jobs certified as unable to be filled by U.S. citizens

—some penalty against employers for hiring someone who does not have a card.

"You have to put that whole package together or it won't work," he said.

Bentsen said he could support an amnesty provision in an immigration bill because "traditionally we do that."

Huddleston's Immigration bill has cosponsors from Southern states like Florida, Mississippi and Georgia where many of the Cuban and Haitian immigrants have settled.

"But, in general, across the nation there is not that kind of force for an immigration change," Bentsen said.

Right-to-work debate hits Senate defeat

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Walter Mengden, staunch supporter of right-to-work laws, says he has had his run this year and will not try to revive the controversial issue.

"There is no need to try again," the Houston Republican said Wednesday after the senate refushed to take up and debate one of three right-to-work proposals he had on the calendar. "I thought I had enough votes before today but I know where they stand now."

He added: "From this key vote we can see who is in the hip pocket of labor."

By a 18-12 tally, Mengden failed to achieve discussion of his bill that would outlaw the so-called "agency shop," so that an employee cannot be required to pay dues to a union in order to hold a job. State law already prohibits the "union shop," in which an employee must join a labor union as well as pay dues.

The vote was three short of the two-thirds needed to allow consideration of the matter.

"I had counted on Sen. Peyton McKnight (D-Tyler) and John Wilson (D-La Grange) and I thouhgt maybe Sen. Kent Caperton (D-Bryan), who has been 'iffy' on the subject," Mengden said later.

McKnight and Caperton voted against the debate and Wilson was listed as absent at the time of the vote.

Lobbyists in T-shirts score points in Austin

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An unlikely band of lobbyists gathered at the State Capitol last week to urge the Senate Human Resources Committee to approve Senate Bill 630.

Scarcely a three-piece suit could be seen. Instead, the dress of the day included red T-shirts proclaiming "Handicapped Infants Need SB 630."

Some of the T-shirts were worn by children who couldn't read the words — who perhaps never will be able to read any words.

Also present were their mothers and fathers, and normal brothers and sisters, and a few social workers and others just interested in helping.

If everyone there had emptied their pockets and purses, they might not have scraped up enough to take the 11 committee members to dinner at one of those fancy clubs where the regular lobbyists hang out.

But this group had its own way of successful lobbying. The children and adults pushed into the large committee room until a Senate sergeant had to be posted at the door to limit their number.

Those who made it inside let the committee know through their words and emotions how they felt about SB 630, and their effort has as effective as a sizeable campaign contribution at getting the lawmakers' attention.

Unknowingly, the children themselves were part of the lobbying effort. The most hard-hearted politician would have been moved by the misshapened bodies and the unintelligible crys.

Some of the adults told painful stories about their children. One mother said her child — now in an institution — might have led an almost normal life if help had been available at an earlier age.

SB 630 would mandate the state to find and help handicapped children from newborn infants on up. Currently, except for special cases such as the blind or deaf, state aid programs don't begin until age 3.

Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, the Sneate sponsor of the bill, told the committee of studies that proved that those first three years can be the most critical.

The chances of helping a severely handicapped child significantly decrease as age increases, he said.

The Midland Democrat, proud of his reputation as a fiscal conservative, said a system of early childhood intervention could save money in the long run. Early help could reduce the number of people receiving costly care in institutions, he said.

"It will reduce institutionalizing," Snelson told the committee.

If there were any doubts about the feelings of the committee, they disappeared when a motion to recommend the bill to the Senate passed unanimously, with liberal Democrats joining votes with conservative Republicans.

The way may be rougher for SB 630 in the future. It's harder to lobby the Senate and House in the Emotional way the group did with the committee.

When the proposal comes down to a final vote, the legislators will have to look harder at its almost $75.5 million price tag for the biennium. They will have to decide whether the state will best be served by Snelson's proposal or some other costly one.

But Snelson said he was happy with the first small victory and he thinks he can win Senate approval. Then the job falls to the House sponsor of the bill, Republican Bill Blanton of Dallas.

Snelson said he is pleased that his pet bill has drawn support from those with all shades of liberalism or conservatism.

As he was leaving the committee meeting last week, the Midland conservative was met by A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, with whom he often had been on opposite sides of issues in the Senate.

Schwartz, a Galveston liberal who would have been dean of the Senate if he hadn't lost a re-election bid in the Ronald Reagan landslide, grabbed Snelson by the arm.

"I'm so proud of you," he said.

THE NIT MVP — University of Tulsa's Greg Stewart holds his trophy high for all to see after he was named Most Valuable Player in the final game of the National Invitational Tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. The 6-foot-9 junior center had 23 points as his team defeated Syracuse University 86-84 in overtime.

WTC exes help Tulsa win crown

NEW YORK (AP) — They were refugees from junior college — some called them outlaws — but Tulsa basketball Coach Nolan Richardson, himself a refugee, molded his players into winners of the National Invitation Tournament.

"If I have a chance to shoot, I shoot. They say junior college players are outlaws," said Golden Hurricane forward Greg Stewart, "but I don't believe it. Junior college players might be quicker; they're usually smaller."

Stewart, a 6-foot-9 junior center, is one of four players Richardson brought from his national junior college championship team at Western Texas Community College when he departed after last season for Tulsa. The others were guards Phil Spradling and Paul Pressey and forward David Brown, all starters this season for Tulsa.

Western Texas went 37-0 last season, and Richardson's transplanted team compiled a 22-7 season record with a second-place finish in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. Still, the Golden Hurricane was ignored by the NCAA tournament's selection committee, but Richardson hopes Wednesday night's 86-84 overtime victory over Syracuse for the NIT title is a sample of great things to come.

"This is one of the highest points in Tulsa basketball history," Richardson said. "In the dressing room, I told the guys if we can win one more game, it would be a grand slam of sorts. If we can win the junior college title, the NIT and the NCAA next year, I quit."

Stewart, named the NIT's most valuable player, scored a team-high 23 points. He capped off a 12-point run that started midway in the second half with seven straight points, giving Tulsa a 69-65 lead with 7:03 to play, and he hit the winning basket with 30 seconds left in overtime. The Golden Hurricane finished the season with a 26-7 record.

Syracuse, winner of the Big East Conference tournament, battled back behind Tony "Red" Bruin and Erich Santifer, taking a two-point lead, 71-69, with 5:53 to play on a tip-in by freshman Sean Kerins. After again falling behind, however, Syracuse sent the game into overtime when Santifer hit a short jumper at the buzzer.

The Orangemen, 22-12, went into the overtime, however, without any of their starting front line. Center Dan Schayes had scored just four points when he fouled out with 7:03 to go, giving Stewart a three-point play that capped his run of seven points. Then, with 2:17 to play, Bruin fouled out with 25 points, and Leo Rautins, Syracuse's other forward, exited 1:01 later.

Mavericks make coach proud in 126-115 win

DENVER (AP) — Despite getting both of their centers in foul trouble, the Dallas Mavericks capitalized on some defensive lapses on the part of Denver and earned their 15th victory of the season, tying the National Basketball Association record for an expansion team.

Dallas' 126-115 victory Wednesday night gave the Mavericks three victories this year over the Nuggets for a break-even record in the season series.

"This was a great win," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "I thought we were in trouble when our two centers got in foul trouble. (Bill) Robinzine has played there before, but not much.

"We didn't start (Tom) LaGarde in the second half in order to protect ourselves. When (Scott) Lloyd went out of the game, they (Denver) missed about three layups, and we went down and scored from there. We came through every time we had to. We're on top of our game now."

The Mavericks, behind the floor leadership and 25 points of Brad Davis, moved to a 61-56 halftime lead and never trailed in the second half.

The Nuggets reduced a 15-point deficit to six at 102-96 with 7:13 remaining, but Dallas then ran off the next six points. Denver, which received sub-par performances from both David Thompson and Dan Issel, never got closer than nine points after that.

Alex English, who had 29 points, hit a three-pointer with 1:49 to play, pulling Denver within 120-111, but Dallas' Abdul Jeelani hit two free throws to reassert the Mavericks.

"When you play at a slow trot or a walk the way we did, and when you don't guard anyone defensively, you're going to finish the way we did tonight," said Denver Coach Doug Moe.

Louisiana Draw golf tourney set Sunday

The Big Spring Golf Association, which now boasts more than 80 members, will stage its second of eight tournaments over the Comanche Trail acres Sunday.

Registrations will be accepted up to 12:30 p.m. Tee-off time will be 1:30 p.m. Play will be over 18 holes.

A Louisiana Draw format will be used for Sunday's tournament. Entry fee will be $5. Those who haven't yet joined can qualify by paying the $3 membership fee.

BSGA players must take part in at least four of the eight association tournaments in order to become eligible for the Grand Tournament, which will be held in September.

Houston is still 'alive'

By the Associated Press

Under the National Basketball Association's new math, 3 goes into 2 twice.

Translated, that means that of the three teams in contention for the remaining Western Conference playoff berths, only two will make it.

The Kansas City Kings, Golden State Warriors and Houston Rockets all won Wednesday night and remained in an exact tie with two games remaining.

Scott Wedman poured in 34 points and Ernie Grunfeld added 25 as the Kings held off a Phoenix rally for a 110-101 victory over the Suns. Lloyd Free sent Golden State ahead with a driving layup in the final minutes, leading the Warriors past San Diego 120-114. And Moses Malone scored 32 points and grabbed 17 rebounds to lead the Rockets to a 117-111 victory over San Antonio.

Meanwhile, Boston and Philadelphia remained deadlocked atop the Atlantic Division. The Celtics defeated the New Jersey Nets 111-105 while the 76ers crushed the Detroit Pistons 114-75.

Elsewhere, the Dallas Mavericks downed the Denver Nuggets 126-115, the Washington Bullets trounced the New York Knicks 105-84 and the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Seattle SuperSonics 112-103.

Kansas City's victory not only kept the Kings tied with Golden State and Houston but trimmed the Suns' Pacific Division lead over idle Los Angeles to 1½ games. Phoenix' magic number is still one.

Phoenix battled back from an 18-point third-quarter deficit, closing the gap to 91-90 on a drive by Walter Davis, who had 27 points, with 4:44 to play. Two jumpers by KC's Grunfeld put the game out of reach with three minutes remaining.

Warriors 120, Clippers 114

The loss ended San Diego's playoff hopes. Swen Nater of the Clippers tied the score at 114 on two free throws with 1:13 remaining. Free drove for the game-winning basket nine seconds later and Golden State's Joe Barry Carroll added two baskets in the final 31 seconds. Bernard King scored 25 points for the Warriors and Purvis Short added 24.

Rockets 117, Spurs 111

Robert Reid aided Malone with 29 points and Billy Paultz 20 for Houston. San Antonio's James Silas scored 34 and teammate George Gervin 30 for the Midwest Division champion Spurs. Houston led by as many as 12 points during the third quarter until Gervin scored 15 points in the period to pull the Spurs within 89-88 as the final period started.

Meyer advances in Milan play

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Gene Mayer advanced to the quarterfinals of the $200,000 Milan leg of the World Championship Tennis circuit, beating Peter Rennert 6-4, 6-2 in a second-round match.

In other action, Sweden's Bjorn Borg downed Bill Scanlon, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3; Stan Smith edged Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil, 6-2, 7-6 and Italy's Gianni Ocleppo advanced when Victor Amaya sprained his right shoulder during the first set of their second-round match and withdrew.

LEADING THE WAY — University of Virginia's head basketball coach, Terry Holland, leads the way for Ralph Sampson during practice for the upcoming NCAA basketball finals. The team has been practicing in Charlottesville, Va., and will leave for Philadelphia, Friday.

Tarheels' Dean Smith still on Cloud Nine

By the Associated Press

It's been well documented that teams coached by Dean Smith have lost each of the five times they've appeared in the finals of the NCAA basketball tournament. But the veteran coach of North Carolina remains excited about making the Final Four for the sixth time.

"I wish all coaches had this opportunity," Smith says "All four of us are on top of the mountain."

North Carolina's Tar Heels, 28-7, play Atlantic Coast Conference rival Virginia, 28-3, in the semifinals Saturday at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. Indiana, 24-9, takes on Louisiana State 31-3, in the other matchup, with the winners meeting Monday night for the national championship.

The battle between North Carolina and Virginia will be their third of the season, with the Cavaliers roaring from behind in the second half of each game to win both of the previous meetings.

"We're playing with more confidence now," Smith says. "But Virginia also is playing better."

Smith made no reference to Ralph Sampson, Virginia's all-everything 7-foot-4 sophomore center. But the Tar Heels very likely will try to neutralize the big man.

"This will be another game, a different place," said Sampson, who had a total of 46 points and 24 rebounds in the two previous contests. He expects North Carolina to try denying him the ball, but says, "I've got to keep on playing. I'm just trying to get to the basket, trying to rebound a little bit more."

It will be the first meeting of the year for Indiana and LSU. Both teams expect to stick with the formula that got them to Philadelphia.

"To counter Indiana's size, we must rely on our quickness, and that is the best attack we can use," says LSU Coach Dale Brown. "Defense will dictate the course of the game. Whether it will be up-beat or laid back depends on what happens.

"We've played both styles, and we've been able to win both ways. Our best style of play, obviously, is the up-beat style."

Indiana's Hoosiers rely heavily on an intense man-to-man defense that often eats up fast-break offenses. And their own scoring machine, led by sophomore guard Isiah Thomas, appears capable of staying with LSU.

"Things have really turned around in our last five or six games," explains Indiana junior guard Randy Wittman. "We're not going to Philadelphia to play, we're going to win two games.

"Going there is everyone's dream, but we won't be satisfied unless we win."

Indiana and Coach Bobby Knight won the school's third NCAA title on the same court in 1976, but there is no clear-cut favorite in the Final Four this year.

"Underdog or favorite, it's what you make it," Brown says. "It depends on how you use it."

Youth will be served, Jaeger foes concede

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrea Jaeger has found her game is good enough. Others on the women's tennis tour have found it usually is more than good enough.

"I just try to put everyone in the same viewpoint (no matter what age)... and not think, 'yeah, she's close to my age, I should get nervous' or 'she's so much older she should win,'" Jaeger said Wednesday after defeating West Germany's Bettina Bunge 6-4, 6-3 in the opening round of the $300,000 Avon Championships.

"I just try to play the same — my game — against everyone."

At 15, Jaeger is the youngest player in the select eight-woman field in the Avon Tour finale here. But she's the No. 2 seed behind 24-year-old Martina Navratilova.

Jaeger exploded onto the international tennis scene last year, making it into the quarterfinals at Wimbledon and the semifinals at the U.S. Open. She was the youngest to crack the top 10 on the Women's Tennis Association computer ranking, the youngest ever to be seeded at Wimbledon and the youngest to have turned pro.

After disposing of Navratilova to win the opening 1981 Avon event in Kansas City, the Lincolnshire, Ill., right-hander said: "It (the tournament championship) means that whatever happens from now on, I've already done better than last year."

With her pigtails flying behind her, Jaeger suffered only three service breaks against Bunge, 17. In the second set, Jaeger was down 0-2 before she captured six of the next seven games to advance to today's match against another West German, 21-year-old Sylvia Hanika.

Hanika crushed Barbara Potter 6-0, 6-2 in the opening round. In other matches Wednesday, Leslie Allen defeated Hana Mandlikova 7-5, 6-1 and Navratilova stopped Pam Shriver 3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Only Navratilova has played in this prestigious event before, winning it in 1978 and 1979 before dropping last year's final to Tracy Austin. The winner takes home $100,000, while the runner-up gets $52,000.

Following the Jaeger-Hanika match tonight, Navratilova takes on Allen, Mandlikova meets Shriver and Bunge plays Potter.

Allen, the first black woman to win a major tournament since Althea Gibson captured both Wimbledon and the U.S. Nationals (now the U.S. Open) 23 years ago, used her strong serve to defeat Mandlikova, of Czechoslovakia, for the third time in four meetings.

Navratilova had the toughest time in the opening round. Shriver took the only service break in the opening set. But Martina dominated the final two sets to win.

Shriver, Navratilova's doubles partner, said Martina "is not quite as consistent as she was two ago, but she can still put it together."

Hanika breezed by Potter in 54 minutes before a crowd of 9,722. Potter failed to find the court on any of her shots, committing 24 unforced errors and holding serve only in the first and seventh games of the second set.

Sugar Ray to fight L. Bonds

By the Associated Press

As a logical extension of its star-studded movie programming, Home Box Office has stepped into the boxing business with a galaxy of glittery headliners. This Saturday night, instead of seeing Hollywood's prettiest faces, HBO will be offering boxing's most attractive mug: Sugar Ray Leonard.

Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, will meet Larry Bonds, the sixth-ranked contender, at Syracuse, N.Y. For Leonard, the fight is little more than a tuneup. For fight fans, it's a tune-in, the first time a Leonard match has been live on home TV since he toyed with Davey "Boy" Green nearly a year ago.

In the interim, Leonard, who grew up on the commercial networks, took his act to the closed circuit theaters for two historic bouts against Roberto Duran. The home TV fight fan was blacked out while Leonard made a fortune.

Other upcoming live fights for HBO subscribers only will be: Larry Holmes-Trevor Berbick, Gerry Cooney-Ken Norton and Marvin Hagler-Vito Antuofermo. The HBO-connection is the latest twist to boxing's on-again, off-again romance with the small screen.

"They're getting our rejects and some pretty good fights for money the networks won't spend," said Mort Sharnik, who oversees quality control for CBS' boxing matchups. "HBO has become the third world in boxing. Now there's CBS, ABC and HBO. NBC just doesn't compete any more with the same kind of money."

The man who carries the moneybags is Seth Abraham, vice president of sports for HBO. The soft-spoken Abraham, who used to work for major league baseball, smokes an occasional cigar, his only outward link to the smoke-filled rooms that decide boxing's big business.

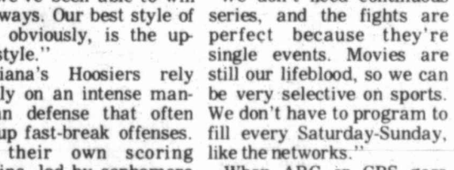

"We're into boxing because of our policy that HBO Sports should be event-oriented," said Abraham. "We don't need continuous series, and the fights are perfect because they're single events. Movies are still our lifeblood, so we can be very selective on sports. We don't have to program to fill every Saturday-Sunday, like the networks."

When ABC or CBS goes after a prime time fight, HBO can't compete. But for a quality fight, which the networks offer to show in the afternoon, HBO is a real alternative. "We pay $50-75,000 more than the networks do for weekend fights," said Abraham.

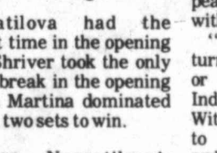

HBO offers several other advantages to any promoter. HBO's fights are at night, which is prime time for watching TV and a better time for some fans to go to the arena. If the fight is good, the promoter can sell rebroadcast rights to a commercial network, as was the case when HBO did the Holmes-Mike Weaver heavyweight title fight live in 1979 and ABC aired it nine days later.

Red wrestling team triumphs

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Soviet Union's powerful wrestling team, which included five 1980 Olympic gold medal winners, defeated a U.S. team, 7-2, in a dual meet competition.

The only Americans winners were Rick Dellagatta of the University of Kentucky and Bruce Baumgartner of Indiana State. Dellagatta pinned Sergei Beloglazov, the 1980 Olympic gold medal champion in the 125-pound division. Baumgartner won on a disqualification over Soslan Andiev, another gold medalist, in the super heavyweight division.

In scramble for playoff berth

Rockets decision Spurs

HOUSTON (AP) — Thanks to the scoring and rebounding of the Houston front line, anchored by center Moses Malone, the Rockets are still alive in the mad scramble for a Western Conference NBA playoff position.

Malone had 32 points and 17 rebounds, forward Ron Reid added 29 points and forward Billy Paultz had 20 more to lead the Rockets by Midwest Division Champion San Antonio, 117-111, Wednesday night.

"Houston won the game because we couldn't contain their front line," admitted San Antonio coach Stan Albeck.

Houston, 39-41, remains in a dogfight with Kansas City and Golden State for the two remaining post-season playoff berths, and the Rockets have only two games left on the regular-season schedule.

"You can tell them they'd better be ready to play if it comes down to the last game in San Antonio," warned Albeck. "I will not rest my starters."

James Silas scored 34 points, 22 of them in the first half, for the Spurs and teammate George Gervin threw in 30.

"I told the team at halftime that we would have to hold him (Silas) to 14 points or less if we were to win," said Houston coach Del Harris. Silas got 12 points in the last two quarters.

"We had good movement tonight and played defense when we had to," said Reid. "The key thing down the stretch is to play hard but loose — take your shot and don't worry about it."

1701 EAST FM 700, BIG SPRING

Now batting .390

Evans Rampages

Dwight Evans has made a big jump in Boston's batting order...and so has his average.

A lifetime .262 batter, mostly from the lower part of the lineup, the power-hitting right fielder raised his spring average to .390 Wednesday with a home run, double and single in the Red Sox' 8-4 exhibition victory over the Montreal Expos.

While Evans kept pounding the baseball, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers took turns pounding each other...literally. Before Tim Corcoran's ninth-inning homer gave the Tigers a 4-2 victory, the game was marred by beanballs and a bench-clearing brawl.

Pittsburgh's Bill Robinson suffered chipped and loosened teeth and a cut lip when he was hit in the mouth by the first pitch from Detroit's Howard Bailey in the fourth inning. Both benches cleared as Robinson staggered to the mound. Pittsburgh's John Candelaria had thrown a pitch over John Wockenfuss' head in the top of the inning.

Meanwhile, Phil Niekro and Gene Garber combined on a seven-hitter as the Atlanta Braves blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0. Niekro worked the first six innings, allowing three hits.

After the game, the teams finally completed a trade that sent Atlanta outfielder Gary Matthews to Philadelphia for pitcher Bob Walk.

Rick Manning and Von Hayes drove in three runs apiece to pace a 24-hit attack and lead the Cleveland Indians to a 14-5 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Silvio Martinez pitched five scoreless innings as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the New York Yankees 3-1 while the Minnesota Twins scored all their runs off rookie Billy Smith in the sixth inning to defeat the New York Mets 5-3. The Mets' completed a triple play in the first inning.

Mike Caldwell, Chuck Porter, Balor Moore and Rollie Fingers combined on a six-hitter and Don Money tripled home the only run as the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Oakland A's 1-0.

Mario Soto pitched six no-hit innings to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Soto, who struck out eight and walked two, has not allowed a run in 14 innings this spring.

Mike Tyson and Steve Henderson collected three hits apiece in the Chicago Cubs' 6-5 victory over the San Diego Padres.

SLOW RETURN — New York Yankees Dave Winfield gets up slowly Wednesday after going to one knee to avoid a close pitch during game with the Cardinals in St. Petersburg. Winfield went 0 for 3 as the Cardinals won, 3-1.

Goodell bids for record

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)- Southern Methodist sophomore Steve Lundquist may wrest the individual spotlight from UCLA senior Brian Goodell and the Texas Longhorns might grab California-Berkeley's team title in the 58th annual NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships beginning today.

Goodell, the defending 500 and 1650 freestyle and 400 individual medley champion, could become the first swimmer to win 12 NCAA events. He has nine total individual titles and needs one more to tie John Naber's record.

But Goodell's one-man show could be stolen by another Olympian, Lundquist, who is the American record holder in the 100 and 200 breaststroke.

Should Goodell or Lundquist not perform up to standards over the three-day meet which ends Saturday night then Auburn's Rowdy Gaines, the defending 100 and 200 freestyle champion, California's Par Arvidsson, the defending 100 and 200 butterfly champion, backstroke star Jamie Fowler of Southern California, or UCLA's William Barrett, defending champion in the 200 individual medley and 200 breast stroke, could dominate.

However, the 6-foot-2, 185-pound Lundquist is at peak form after a November motorcycle incident in which he suffered a separated shoulder and lost a month of training.

"I feel fine now and I've trained extra hard since the accident," said Lundquist, a former schoolboy football star from Jonesboro, Ga. "My strength is back where it should be."

Lundquist's biggest fan, aside from Coach George McMillan, is Texas Coach Eddie Reese, who says, "I think Lundquist is the best ever to get in the water. There's no telling how great he is going to be."

McMillan is more reserved, saying, "When Steve is healthy he is one of the best in the world."

Lundquist's American record in the 200 yard breastroke came just two weeks ago in the Southwest Conference meet.

Barrett and Lundquist will be big rivals in the breastroke events.

Barrett said, "Lundquist has the potential to break the American record everytime he races.

Floyd eyeing third in row

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Ray Floyd, riding the hottest streak in golf, fully anticipates winning his third consecutive tournament this week in the $300,000 Sea Pines-Heritage Classic.

"My confidence is at such a high point, I'm doing so many things so well, I can honestly say I expect to win this week," Floyd said before teeing off in the first round today.

"If you ask me that five months from now when I'm not playing well, I'll tell you 'no, I don't expect to win.' There have been times I expected to win and didn't, but I've won a lot of touraments when I expected to."

The 38-year-old veteran, now in his 19th season on the PGA Tour, won the last two tournaments, Doral and the Tournament Players Championship, and collected a total of $367,000 in doing so, including a $250,000 bonus.

"I think the streak has been misinterpreted," Floyd said. "It's not just two weeks. I've played awfully well all year, with the exception of Phoenix. I lost once in a playoff. In another one I was two shots back. I've been in contention almost every time I've played. It's not a two-week thing. It's more like 2½ or three months.

"My game is very good right now. I'm putting well."

He paused to smile, then continued:

"I just hope the train stays right on the track."

And, in Wednesday's pro-am, he gave every indication the train is, indeed, still on track. He shot a 69.

"I expected to shoot a good round. If I'm going out to practice, I expect to practice well.

"I'm very, very confident in what I'm doing with my olf swing. If a situation arises, I feel capable of performing the shot required."

And Floyd, winner of 14 career titles including the Masters and PGA, even has a little something extra going for him this week.

"This is my favorite course in the world," he said of the deceptively difficult, 6,650-yard, par-71 Harbour Town Golf Links.

"It is the best test of golf in the world," he said. "It is the best, fairest hard test of golf you're going to find in the world."

He'll be facing an elite, invitational field of 120 that has a strong foreign flavor with Masters champ Seve Ballesteros of Spain, South African Gary Player, Isao Aoki of Japan and David Graham of Australia.

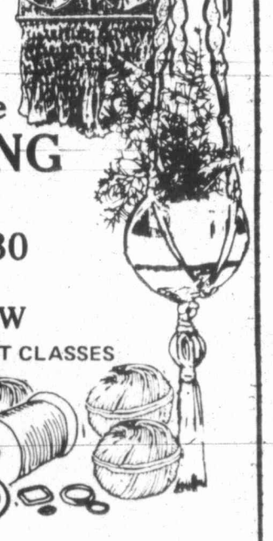

Tom Watson, a former winner here and the outstanding player in the game for the past four seasons, will try to turn around a thus-far disappointing season.

LEGS HAVE LADIES UP IN ARMS — Ever since Jan Stephenson, a touring golfer, a golfer on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour posed for this photo in Fairway Magazine sex exploitation has become a raging issue among female golfers. It was denounced as "quasi-pornography" by Jane Blalock. Photo shows Stephenson in a dress by Criscione in a People and Properties Inc., picture by Robert Gardner.

Over golfer's sexy pose

Controversy is raging

By the Associated Press

Sex exploitation has become a raging issue among female golfers with Jan Stephenson and Jane Blalock firing barbed shots at each other across the continent while their contemporaries are choosing up sides.

It's the most intriguing controversy over women's attire since Gorgeous Gussy Moran's lace panties were barred from Wimbledon's sacred Centre Court back in 1949.

"Quasi-pornography," fumed Blalock after seeing Stephenson photographed in Fairway Magazine, an organ of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, reclining on a bed in a slinky, revealing white dress.

"Is our organization so unaware of the real glamor and attraction staring it in the face that it must resort to such trash?" she complained in a signed article for the Miami Herald.

Stephenson responded sharply, using the Los Angeles Times as the vehicle to defend her provocative — if not risque — pose as a means "to add a new dimension to the public's image of women golfers.

"In one of the three pictures of me," she said, "I am relaxing on a bed, reading a book, in a beautiful white dress which, admittedly, is doing a somewhat incomplete job of covering all of the outside of my left thigh.

"The galleries can see a lot more of my legs, however, anytime I play in shorts."

Blalock, a 13-year veteran with 27 tournament victories, acknowledged that the addition of such beauties as Stephenson and Laura Baugh had contributed to the tremendous growth of women's golf. But she also said that a new breed had emerged "not indoctrinated in the glamor-sex appeal selling points...Sweat, work, sore muscles, callouses, elation and disappointment took precedence."

"Maybe next year we should drop the fashion feature and do a photo series on callouses," snapped back the Australian-born Stephenson, adding that the tour prospered through sponsors promoting femininity: Colgate, Sarah Coventry and Mary Kay.

"Maybe we can interest Mack Truck, Caterpillar Tractor and Bull Durham," she said. "I am afraid this controversy has split the tour."

Man shoots wife, self as Tyler police watch

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two Tyler police officers say they had never seen anything like it before — a man shot and killed his wife then turned the gun on himself while the patrolmen looked on.

Oneta Nipp, 40, was dead on arrival at a Tyler hospital and her estranged husband, 47-year-old Charles Nipp of Van, died there about two hours after the incident Wednesday afternoon, police said.

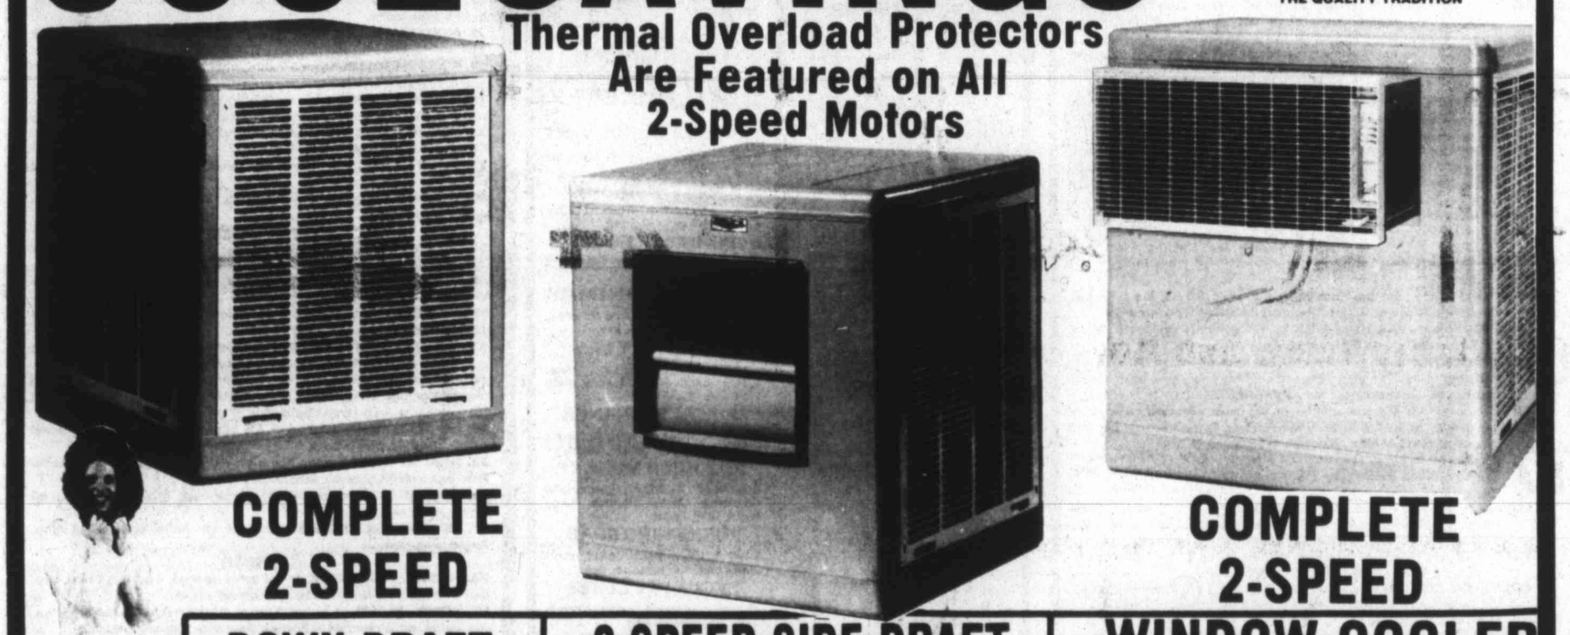

The two Tyler officers involved, patrolmen Jackie Ray and Robert Sprague, said they were driving to the police station when they noticed a woman slumped over the steering wheel of a car traveling in the opposite direction.

The officers said they saw the auto weave from one lane to another and pursued it, thinking the woman was possibly ill. However, as they pulled up behind the car, Sprague said he noticed a man in the passenger's seat shouted, "He's got a gun."

Ray told authorities he looked up and saw the man point a pistol at the female driver, and shots were fired.

Justice of the Peace Ray Day withheld ruling on the deaths pending autopsies.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Bringing stability to the Middle East must be one of the highest priority goals of all peace-loving peoples of the world. This is true not only because of the vast reserves of oil which lie under the soil in that region, but also because of its strategic location.

The chronic instability that continues to plague the Middle East provides the Soviets with targets of opportunity for its policies of aggression and undermining the stability of nations not under its sphere of influence.

The underlying assumption in U.S. Middle East policy in recent years seems to have been that [illegible] Israeli disputes would achieve stability throughout the region. However, that myth has been exploded by other major clashes — war in Afghanistan, the Iran-Iraq war, tension between Syria and Jordan, Libyan intervention in Chad and other major regional rivalries.

We cannot and will not abandon our search for a peaceful solution to Arab-Israeli tensions, particularly the emotion-charged problem of dealing with the Palestinian issue. Yet, we cannot ignore the broader range of threats, if we are to achieve a lasting peace there.

I recently visited five Middle Eastern nations friendly to the United States, and was reassured to find that officials in those nations agree that the Soviet Union is the most serious threat to the region.

There is no doubt in my mind or in the minds of most of the high-level officials with whom I met that the Soviets are looking for opportunities to exploit tensions in that area for their own benefit. These nations — which include Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Oman and Tunisia — do not seek or desire large numbers of U.S. troops or even U.S. bases on their soil. All they ask is that we help them develop their ability to defend themselves.

In recent years, we have forgotten the important role that security assistance can play in our defense strategies. But not properly equipping our allies, we have placed ourselves in a position where in too many cases only the projection of American military power could meet security challenges that could and should be handled by the threatened nations themselves.

If nations friendly to the West have strong defense systems to go with their already strong national will to resist outside pressure, the risk to the Soviets in any contemplated aggression would rise significantly.

This need is so vital that I believe we must make up for past inattention by resurrecting outright military assistance grants to go with our major loan programs to provide our friends with the arms they need to meet their real defense requirements. It clearly is in our own national interest to do so.

The current situation is serious, but the balance is not yet against us. I am convinced past assessments of our power relative to that of the Soviet Union in the Middle East have been too pessimistic. Our own ability to rapidly deploy military force in the region, along with the role which could be played by regional and non-regional powers which share our interests is sufficient to keep the Soviets from being certain of the success of any attempt at aggression.

I do not believe the Soviets are now willing to directly engage our forces.

Therefore, we have time — if we begin to act now — to pursue military, diplomatic and economic initiatives to bring real and lasting stability to this troubled but vital area of the world.

Symphony, three one-act plays, rattlesnakes to grab spotlight

Tonight is the opening of the first concert in the Symphony Season in Big Spring. Sponsored by the Big Spring Symphony Association, the Midland-Odessa Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, will be featuring the internationally acclaimed concert cellist, Adolfo Donoposoff.

The Community Concert Association is getting ready for its next season and it holds great promises. This year will bring four concerts to Big Spring along with the concerts available in Midland.

The Concert Association strives to bring a wide variety of shows to Big Spring. Unlike other Big Spring cultural organizations, the Community Concert Association cannot sell tickets at the door as it must know in advance how much money it will have in order to secure its artists.

The Big Spring High School Drama Department will be presenting three one-act plays Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. A drama department group has been on tour the past two weeks with its first offering, "An American Sampler".

Spring City Theatre is gearing up for the Centennial Pageant and officers say they expect all of it's old and new members to be involved in one way or another. SCT is currently sponsoring Dallas Theatre Center's "To Kill A Mockingbird" in April. More details will be released later.

The Sports Car Club of America is having a race this Saturday and Sunday at the Industrial Park. This event is being co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Big Spring Jaycees. Rattlesnake Roundup time is here again. It starts Friday and continues through Sunday.

For those traveling the state this week, Austin is offering "An Evening of Dance" at UT March 30 through April 4. At the Center Stage Theatre in Austin is "Who's Happening Now?" scheduled March 30 - April 19. Beaumont Art museum has a Children's Art and Film Festival now through April 12. Those heading east can see Dallas Theatre Center's "The Incredible Murder of Cardinal Tosca" playing March 31 to May 2.

The talented mime, Marcel Marceau, is booked at SMU's Theatre Three on March 29. Houston is holding its own festivals at various places in Houston the last two weeks in March. Midland Community Theatre has two offerings this weekend, Erick Hawkins Dance Company and "Same Time Next Year". In Odessa, one can see "Guys and Dolls" at the Odessa College Theater. "Chapter Two" will be at the Permian Playhouse for the next three weekends. San Antonio's Institute of Texan Cultures is hosting "The Irish Come to Texas" March through July.

Attorney claims Klan, Iran held Constitution hostage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan and the Iranian government were allowed to "hold the Constitution hostage" when the city of San Antonio denied students a parade permit, a San Antonio lawyer told the Texas Supreme Court.

Five Iranians students were denied a permit in December 1979 to demonstrate peacefully against the presence in San Antonio of the deposed Shah of Iran. The city manager refused to give permission after the Klan applied for a permit to demonstrate against the students at the same time and place.

When the students appealed the denial to city council, the council passed a motion banning all demonstrations "either pro or con" Iran.

A state district court and an appeals court in San Antonio upheld the denials. The case was argued before the Texas Supreme Court Wednesday.

"Essentially, the city of San Antonio said there are some subjects that are so sensitive they can't be discussed in public," said Louis Linden, attorney for the students. "Can the Iranian government hold the American Constitution hostage? What if the Ayatollah said he wanted all Catholic churches closed or he would shoot the hostages?"

"I think the city abdicated its responsibility," he said. "If this is allowed, any time the Klan doesn't like something, it can keep the rest of San Antonio from discussing it or hearing about it."

Crawford Reeder, representing the city, said the parade permit was not issued because city officials feared that if the students demonstrated, they would be hurt.

"The question was whether we should let them (the students) march down the street and be attacked by a mob," he said. "It wasn't what the Iranians were going to say, it was that they were Iranians. I know that sounds horrible, but that's what happened."

"We weren't overly concerned about the Iranians, but we were worried something might happen to our hostages being held over there," he said.

He added, however, that after the hostages were released and tensions had eased, he suggested a permit be given to the students and the city manager's office still refused.

Reeder pointed out that although the students were not allowed to march, they gathered peacefully on the city hall steps the day of the city council hearing on the permit application.

"A couple of disc jockeys told their listeners to go remove them and about 300 people showed up," he said. The city council meeting that followed was "boisterous, very noisy," and the motion banning demonstrations was "a message to the audience to 'cool it.'"

The five students were arrested and charged with blocking a passageway when they returned to the city hall steps the next day. Under questioning, Reeder admitted that "the peaceful ones (the Iranians) ended up in jail" and "the ones who were causing the problem got off."

The court took the case under advisement.

Elvis' doctor still charged

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Lawyers for Dr. George Nichopoulos have failed to convince a Criminal Court judge that criminal charges against Elvis Presley's former physician should be dismissed.

Nichopoulos is charged in a 14-count indictment with illegally prescribing dangerous drugs for Presley, entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis and other patients.

Lawyer James F. Neal argued unsuccessfuly before Judge Bernie Weinman Friday that the state law under which Nichopoulos was indicted is unconstitutionally vague.

Nichopoulos goes on trial May 4.

Block settles into new job

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new official car parked at the Agriculture Department these days and it's a bit larger than the other vehicles used to cart the agency's senior bureacrats around town.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, who complained his previous automobile was too small, now has a black Olds 98 "Regency" model that comfortably handles four people and their briefcases, including the driver, and maybe a couple more in a real pinch.

The new automobile was delivered Wednesday and was personally inspected by Block in front of the department's administration building.

Block had been using a Mercury Cougar made by Ford but said it didn't provide enough room for him and his aides. So the larger and much more expensive Olds 98 was ordered.

Frank Gearde, deputy director of administrative services in the department's Office of Operations and Finance, said the Olds is leased — as are the six Cougars used to carry other Agriculture officials around.

The Olds costs $537 a month to rent, compared to about $160 a month for each of the six Cougars. But Gearde said Ford Motor Co. subsidizes the leases of the Cougars, probably around 50 percent. That would make the full lease price of a Cougar around $320 a month, he said.

Block, Gearde said, felt he needed a larger car "because of the need to carry large numbers of staff people" to hearings and other meetings around town.

But Gearde hastened to explain that the larger and more expensive Olds does not use a lot of gasoline. Block and other government officials are required to have cars that meet minimum mileage requirements, a combined 23 miles per gallon for city and country driving.

He said the Olds is rated at 25 mpg, compared to 23 mpg for the Cougars. And the Olds uses diesel fuel.

Gearde said Block is assigned one car and Deputy Secretary Richard E. Lyng another, a Cougar. The other five Cougars are pooled for use by 38 other people that make up senior officialdom at the Agriculture Department and their staffs.

The total number of government-leased cars assigned to Block and his aides is unchanged from the Carter administration, Gearde said.

Actually, he added, the Olds brings the department's car allocation up to its full strength of seven executive cars because until now only the six Cougars were on hand.

Block's predecessor at Agriculture, Bob Bergland, was a veteran of the Washington scene — including three terms as a Minnesota congressman — and often was driven around alone or with only one or two aides. He used a Cougar.

According to one source, who asked not to be identified because "it might cause a flap," said Block is still a relative greenhorn when it comes to congressional hearings and some other functions and likes to have "plenty of backup" from his experts.

The National Cattlemen's Association is barnstorming the country to let consumers know there's plenty of beef and that it's still a good food buy.

Cattle prices have been in a slump for months, partly because of relatively weak demand and the uncertainty in the national economy.

The Agriculture Department says meat prices will start going up again this spring as market prices for cattle and hogs improve. But the cattlemen say the short-term outlook still is for a glut of beef in retail stores which needs to be eaten.

Merlyn Carlson, of Lodgepole, Neb., said here Wednesday that the association's effort this week is directed primarily at top officials of leading supermarkets in more than 50 cities.

"We need to keep the lines of supplies moving," Carlson told a reporter. "So we've been asking the retail outlets to feature and to 'special' beef, even more than they've been doing."

Carlson said cattle producers have had "a very positive response" from the grocery executives but "we'd have to admit that there have not been any commitments" from them so far.

A recent government report showing larger cutbacks in hog production than had been expected has helped trigger market price gains this week. And the Agriculture Department is sticking by its guns that some hefty increases are still to come this spring.

"We would hope there's some light at the end of the tunnel, but we have to recognize that we have record meat supplies again," Carlson said.

He noted that producers reduced the U.S. cattle herd from a record level of 132 million head Jan. 1, 1975 to about 115 million this year.

"We should be in a profitable position as we rebuild, but we only find that the vacuum (of meat production) has been filled by our competition — pork and poultry," Carlson said.

Morever, Carlson said the industry is "probably suffering from those who said as late as December that we're going to have $75 or $80 (per 100 pounds) cattle in the second quarter" of this year.

Those experts, including economists in the Agriculture Department, have since scaled down the second-quarter forecast and most recentlfy have indicated slaughter cattle prices may average in the range of $71 to $75 per 100 pounds in April-June. That would be $10 to $15 above most current prices.

Suspect jailed, gun recovered

Woman slain, sister's neck broken

By JAMES WERRELL

A local woman was shot and killed, and her sister seriously wounded by the same assailant, 10:22 p.m. Monday.

Linda Garcia, 26, 1510 Mesa, was pronounced dead inside her home as a result of four gunshot wounds to the left side of her body. Her sister, Martha Esquibel, 19, also of 1510 Mesa, is in stable condition at Odessa Medical Center with a head wound thought to have been caused by a blow from a blunt instrument, and a broken neck suffered at the hands of her assailant.

Miss Esquibel was first taken to the emergency room of Malone-Hogan Hospital, and was then transferred to the Odessa facility for treatment by specialists. An autopsy on Miss Garcia will be performed at Malone-Hogan later today.

Arrested near his home, 11:30 p.m. Monday, on suspicion of homicide and aggravated assault was Eduardo Maidique, 33, 104½ Washington. His bond has been set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin at $100,000 for the homicide charge and $75,000 for the charge of aggravated assault.

Investigators believe that the assailant broke through the front door of the residence, threatening the two women inside. Miss Garcia is thought to have fired one shot from a .22 caliber revolver at the man before she herself was felled by shots from the assailant's pistol.

A total of seven shots were exchanged, one from Miss Garcia's gun, and the rest from the assailant's. Two bullets were later found lodged in the wall of the home.

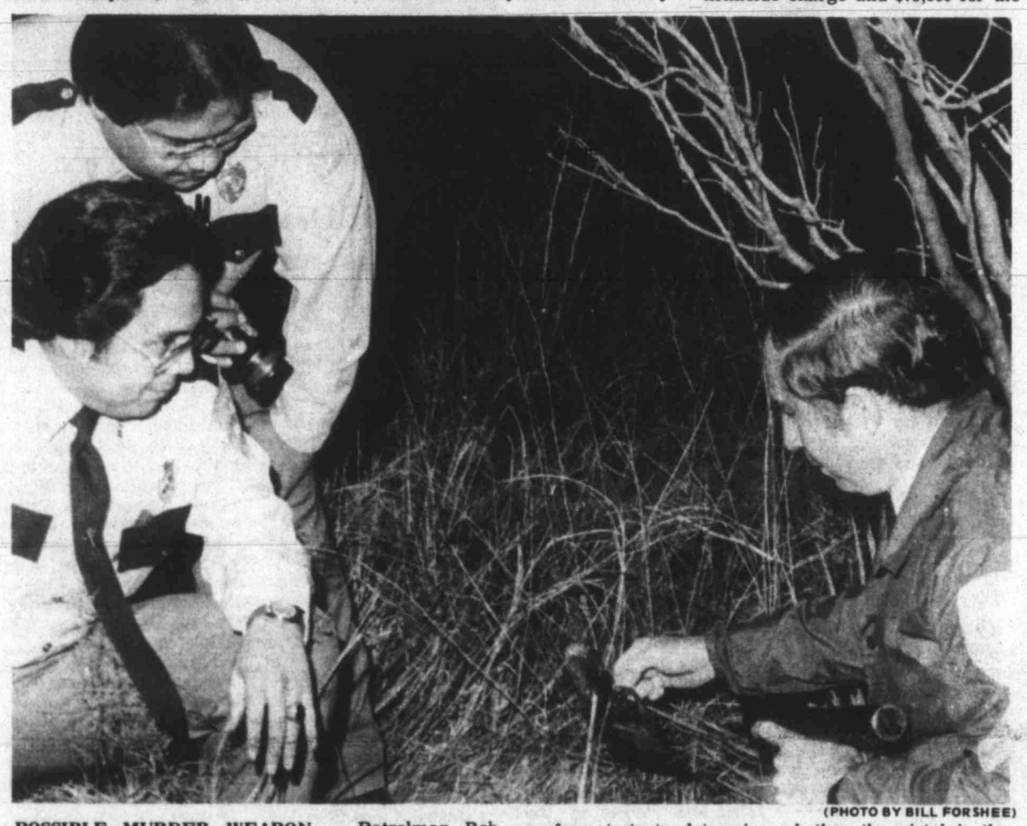

After shooting Miss Garcia, the intruder turned his attentions to Miss Esquibel. According to investigators, she attempted to flee, but was struck on the head with a blunt instrument, possibly the murder weapon, and fiercely struck by the man's fist, a blow which broke her neck.

Two daughters of Miss Garcia, ages two and four, were present in the bedroom of the home at the time of the shooting, but neither was injured. Both have been placed under the custody of child welfare agents.

After the assailant had fled, Miss Esquibel managed to call police. Officers received a description of the intruder, and Detectives Roy Osborne and Lonnie Smith, and Patrolmen Frank Gonzales and Dean Boyd arrested Maidique on the 100 block of Washington.

Eduardo Maidique and his twin-brother Alberto entered the United States for the first time during the height of Cuban immigration in early May of 1980. Both claimed to have been weightlifters in the Cub athletic program, and told reporte that they hoped to compete in amateur competition here with the aim of possibly competing in the 1984 Olympic Games for the United States.

Eduardo, said police investigators, was an ex-boyfriend of Linda Garcia. Whatever the involvement between the two had been, it apparently ceased before Feb. 9, 1981.

POSSIBLE MURDER WEAPON — Patrolman Bob Lester gingerly handles a .38 caliber pistol found approximately two blocks from the scene of the murder of Linda Garcia, 1510 Mesa, 10:22 p.m. Monday. Officers will perform tests to determine whether the pistol is the weapon used in the shooting. Looking on are Officers Frank Gonzales (kneeling) and Todd DeLaGarza.

Funds for north side improvements denied

Cleanup crew chief to be hired

By JAMES WERRELL

The city decided, Tuesday night, to start the ball rolling on an intensive cleanup program for the upcoming Big Spring Centennial celebration.

Scott McLaughlin, chairman of the beautification committee for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, has asked both city and Howard County officials for a contribution totaling $32,500 for the project. Money will also be sought from the Industrial Foundation.

The funds would be used to finance a coordinator for the project, a three-man cleanup crew, equipment maintenance, fuel, supplies and contract help.

During its regular meeting, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, the council agreed to hire a coordinator immediately for five months at a salary of approximately $700 a month. Members also committed the city to a contribution to match whatever the county contributes up to $17,500.

City Manager Don Davis informed the council that the city's preapplication for a Community Development Block Grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been denied. The grant was to have been used to rejuvenate streets, homes and other property on the north side of the city.

A letter giving the reasons for turning down the preapplication from Jane Russell, director of community planning for HUD, states that "it was determined that insufficient progress had been made in completing previously approved Community Development Block Grant activities."

"What that essentially means is that we have not spent the previous two years' grants fast enough," said Davis. "The irony is that Bill Hall (local director of community development) did an excellent job with careful delivery of services. We were not frivolous and therefore we were penalized."

Davis added that the upshot of the denial from HUD is that all local community development money will be used up by July or August, and the local department will be shut down.

Councilmen passed on first reading a resolution calling for City Secretary Tom Ferguson to execute a note with the First National Bank. The note will total $384,670 to cover the purchase of a variety of heavy equipment.

Members agreed to lease the former Webb Air Force Base laundromat to Hydrocarbon Detection Service, Inc., an oilfield service company based in Oklahoma. The building will be used as an office.

Also approved on first reading was an ordinance transferring the g distribution system located on the B Spring Industrial Park to Pione Natural Gas Company. The on portion of the system to be retained by the city is that serving the Big Spring Federal Prison.

In other business, councilmen:

—Awarded a bid for the purchase 2,800 feet of fire hose to the Pon Fire Hose Manufacturing Company for $5,200. Pon was the lowest of five bidders.

—Passed on final reading a resolution to execute an agreement with the firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper for engineering services.

—Approved a list of bills now before the State House of Representatives showing the consensus of the council's opinion on each.

Local candidates outline views at Demo meeting

By ANDREA COHEN

Seventy-one persons turned out for a meeting for local Democrats to hear the candidates for the Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees and city council Tuesday night in the District courtroom.

With the exception of Fern Alexander, who was represented by Jane Ray, and Donna Fish, who was represented by Linda Arsiaga, all the candidates were present.

"Many problems are facing the community," said David Huff, a candidate for one of the two vacant school board seats. "With higher technology, we have to instill a lot more education in a shorter period of time. We need qualified teachers, and we have to retain them with a just and living salary. We have to attract good teachers and give them a just compensation."

Grady Cunningham told the crowd that "we have to equip our most valuable asset, our children." He believes in supporting the school staff, operating on a budget and feels teachers should be effective. "I believe education comes first," he said.

In a statement sent by Fern Alexander, she said, "I am extremely interested in the education and the future of the students, as I see evidence of our schools placing more and more emphasis in quality education, one of the demands of today."

Dwayne Fraser said "Education will be important later because they will be our leaders."

He added that the Big Spring school system's education "is excellent for our youth."

Charles Beil, the only incumbent among the school board candidates, told the group, "We need to offer residents quality education for our young people so they will be leading citizens of the community and the nation."

A return to the three R's is important to candidate Curt Strong.

"There was tremendous technology in the 70s," he said. "We need a return to the three R's."

He also wants programs for gifted students who he said have been forgotten, to prevent them from becoming bored. He wants teachers to have board support in disciplining "or we will have anarchy" and wants some monetary controls through local levels.

For the Place Four seat of the Big Spring City Council which is being vacated by Larry Miller, candidate Robert "Russ" McEwen said "getting the most from every single dollar is important, because that will be the name of the game. I've been involved in many budgetary-type matters. I have experience in budgets. I will be allocating income to the best of my ability," said the local insurance agent.

His opponent, Jerry Myrick, a traffic engineer for O.I.L., told the crowd the city needs more industry with higher pay scales in order for the city to grow.

Donna Fish, who sent a prepared statement, said she first became involved with the city council over a traffic problem and has waited two years to run for the seat because "now I have time."

For the Place Three seat, incumbent Jack Y. Smith said, "There is a lot of money that has to be spent. I'm a conservative. I like to spend the money but I like to know where it's being spent."

City Council candidate, H.V. "Burr" Crocker, retired Big Spring fire chief said, "I feel I owe whatever service I can give to my city."

Michael W. Randle, a teacher and assistant basketball coach is running for office because "I'm involved with the youth of Big Spring. My first priorities are the Big Spring children. We need to build up recreation parks. This might be because of my interest in basketball, but we need basketball courts. They're free recreation for the kids. It will prevent them from hanging out on Gregg Street. And we need to bring in industries that will hire youth and keep them off the streets in the summer."

JOHN B. LITTLER HOME HAS BEEN MOVED
It's now in Silver Heels addition

Bit of history included

Magazine eyes BS homes

By MICKIE DICKSON

Big Spring has the distinction of having five of its turn of the century homes featured in Texas Homes' April issue.

Anita Creamer Lund, assistant editor of the magazine, is author of the article which includes considerable of Big Spring early history along with excellent pictures of the Potton House, the B. Reagan house, John Roberts, Baird-Cushing and Judge Littler homes.

Mrs. Lund traces history from its earliest evident beginnings as early as 13,000 B.C. through the discovery of the spring by Capt. Randolph Marcy, establishment of the overland Mail Route, arrival of the railroad in 1881 to the establishment of the seat of Howard County on to the first permanent building built to the Earl of Aylesford, a butcher shop at 121 Main St., in 1883.

The Potton House, which is in the National Historical records, is featured first, followed by the B. Reagan home at 310 W. 5 then the John Roberts home at 700 Aylesford.

The other two houses featured, the Baird-Cushing and Judge Littler homes, have been moved to the Silver Heels addition, but still retain their classic beauty and simplicity.

The Baird-Cushing home, originally located at 701 Main St., was moved by B.W. Walker to the Country Club Rd. in 1972 and remodeled.

The Judge Littler house, originally located in the 600 block on Scurry, was moved by Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, to the Silver Heels area and remodeled.

Polly Mays, chairman of the Historical Commission and Carol Hunter accompanied Mrs. Lund on her tour of Big Spring vintage homes, supplying pertinent information for the current article.

Than kids locked in cars

Pets have more rights

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texans have imposed laws against leaving pets in locked cars but are negligent in not extending the same courtesty to children, many of whom have died of heatstroke or burned to death, a House committee was told Wednesday.

The practice among errand-running parents is common and tantamount to child abuse, the committee was told.

"It is very bad when pets and animals have more rights than our children do," a Richardson mother told the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

"I find it strange our animals are so well protected and our children are not," said Pat Glover.

Two bills were sent to subcommittee, one by Rep. Anthony Polumbo of Houston and one by Rep. Gib Lewis of Fort Worth. The bills would make it against the law to leave children unattended in cars.

Polumbo's bill would make it a Class C misdemeanor for parents or guardians to leave children under 6 unattended in a vehicle for more than 10 minutes.

Lewis' bill parallels Polumbo's, but increases the age limit to 10 and does away with the time requirement. Prospective penalties under the Lewis bill would be classified first-degree felonies.

Similar legislation has failed the past three sessions, but Polumbo said the death of an unattended 2-year-old in Corpus Christi last summer highlights the need for such laws.

The child was left in the car while his father walked into a downtown post office to buy some stamps. The youth burned to death after apparently playing with some matches that ignited the vehicle's seatcovers.

Mrs. Glover outlined another incident in which two children were left in a car in a Grand Prarie shopping center parking lot and ignited the car's interior by playing with matches.

"Those boys burned to death in a car while people stood in a parking lot and watched," Mrs. Glover said.

In 80 degree weather, she said, the temperature in a car with the windows rolled up can escalate to 102 degrees in 10 minutes and to 120 degrees in 30 minutes.

A Dallas police officer testified the legislation was necessary not only to protect children, but also to protect innocent bystanders who often are injured when toddlers get the car moving.

Abandoning children in cars, even for short moments, "is only another form of child abuse," said Dick Hickman, a spokesman for the Texas Municipal Police Officers Association.

Texas House honors woman

A Texas House of Representatives Certificate of Citation, signed by House Speaker Bill Clayton and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, has been forwarded to Deloris Albert of Big Spring.

The certificate was in recognition of the Sunday School Teacher of the Year honor recently bestowed upon Mrs. Albert by the Southwestern headquarters of the Salvation Army.

Esparza is top winner in derby

John Esparza of Pack 113, which is chartered by the Garden City Lions Club, won first place and the judges selected his entry as the Best Made Car in the annual Pinewood Derby staged Saturday by the Lone Star District, Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the First United Methodist Church.

A total of 75 cub scouts were in competition for the honors. The boys built their cars from blocks of pine wood, with help from their fathers and other adults.

They then raced them within their packs to determine who would qualify for competition on the district level.

Matthew Christensen of Pack 187, chartered by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, claimed second place. In addition, his entry was adjudged Best Looking Car.

Christopher Pierce of Pack 305, chartered by the First Baptist Church, came in third. All three boys were awarded trophies.

A consolation race was conducted for all other cub scouts in attendance. Randy Ernest, Pack 179, chartered by the Elks Club, took first place. Donald Jones of Pack 187, was second and Tiger Chrane of Pack 305 was third. They were awarded medals.

Danny Ward of Pack 179 won the distinction of having the Most Original Car.

John Robinson and Steven Hurt judged cars in the different categories. Track judges for the races were Ken Sinclaire, Sam Ainsworth and Steven Hurt. Marshall Horn operated the bracket chart and Eunice Thixton registered entries and annoucned racers. Sam Ainsworth weighed all the cars in to make sure that none of them weighed over five ounces. Elaine Self of Pack 45 numbered the cars. Nancy and Bob Doolin, District Cub Scout activities Chairpersons, were in attendance.

Pack 29, chartered by the Elbow PTA, and Pack 45, chartered by the First Presbyterian Church of Coahoma, also participated.

Municipalities' water demands hit new high

On July 1-2 last year the Colorado River Municipal Water District pumped 80,891,000 gallons of water to its customers. This lacked by some 6,000,000 gallons being a record, but what made it remarkable was that this peak day volume went practically all to municipalities.

This is one of many statistic gleaned from the annual operating report of the district just off the press. Peak day for the various cities were: Odessa 41,920,000 gallons, Big Spring 14,553,000, Snyder 6,385,000, Stanton 746,000, Midland (which takes only part of its supply from the district) 15,363,000.

Other highlights include total deliveries of 16,754,000,000 gallons, of which 14.920 billion went to municipal customers. (Lake J.B. Thomas contributed 3.406 billion gallons of that, Lake E.V. Spence 8.120 billion gallons. The other major source was the Ward County well field with 3.039 billion gallons.

During the year two diversion works (one at Colorado City and one on Beals Creek) diverted about 4,200 acre feet of non-potable low-flow water which otherwise would have gone down to Lake Spence. Together, they diverted 22,462 tons of chlories, bringing to 228,000 tons of chlorides which have been kept from going into the Spence reservoir.

Another interesting statistic has to do with the cost of electric energy to boost water from one pump station to another. The lowest unit cost per thousand gallons at pump stations is 1.84 cents at Big Spring, the highest 5.48 at Martin County Station.

HONORED BY LEGION — Milton L. Kirby, deputy sheriff, was recently recognized as Outstanding Lawman of 1980 during an appreciation banquet held by the American Legion Post 355. The plaque, whichis awarded every year, reads "In sincere appreciation of outstanding service which has contributed to the law and order for the people of Howard County."

Special Easter service is planned in coliseum

The music department of First Baptist Church, under the direction of Joe Whitten, has announced a special early service with breakfast on Easter Sunday at 8 a.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Breakfast will be prepared and served by the food service at Howard College and the musical, "Then Came Sunday," will be presented by a 70 voice choir from First Baptist Church, with dramatization and special effects.

Tickets for the breakfast will go on sale at the coliseum box office and other locations on Monday, April 13 and continue through Friday, April 17. A full breakfast will be served for a cost of $3, or a continental breakfast for $1.

A similar production was presented two years ago at the coliseum by the musical group, "His Children" of the church. This year those not wishing to eat breakfast will be admitted to the upper seating level at no cost, said Whitten. No tickets will be sold at the door and must be purchased by April 17.

People of all faiths are invited to participate in this city-wide event, and the entire presentation will be over in time for Sunday School at various city churches, said Whitten.

Twenty cast early votes

Twenty persons have voted by absentee ballot for the city council election. One ballot has been mailed out, and five others have requested applications by mail.

Anyone wishing to cast an absentee ballot may do so between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., at City Hall, Fourth and Nolan.

According to County Clerk Margaret Ray, 28 people have voted absentee in the school board race. Five additional ballots have been mailed out in the election.

Voting in the race will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the County Clerk's office Monday through Friday until March 31.

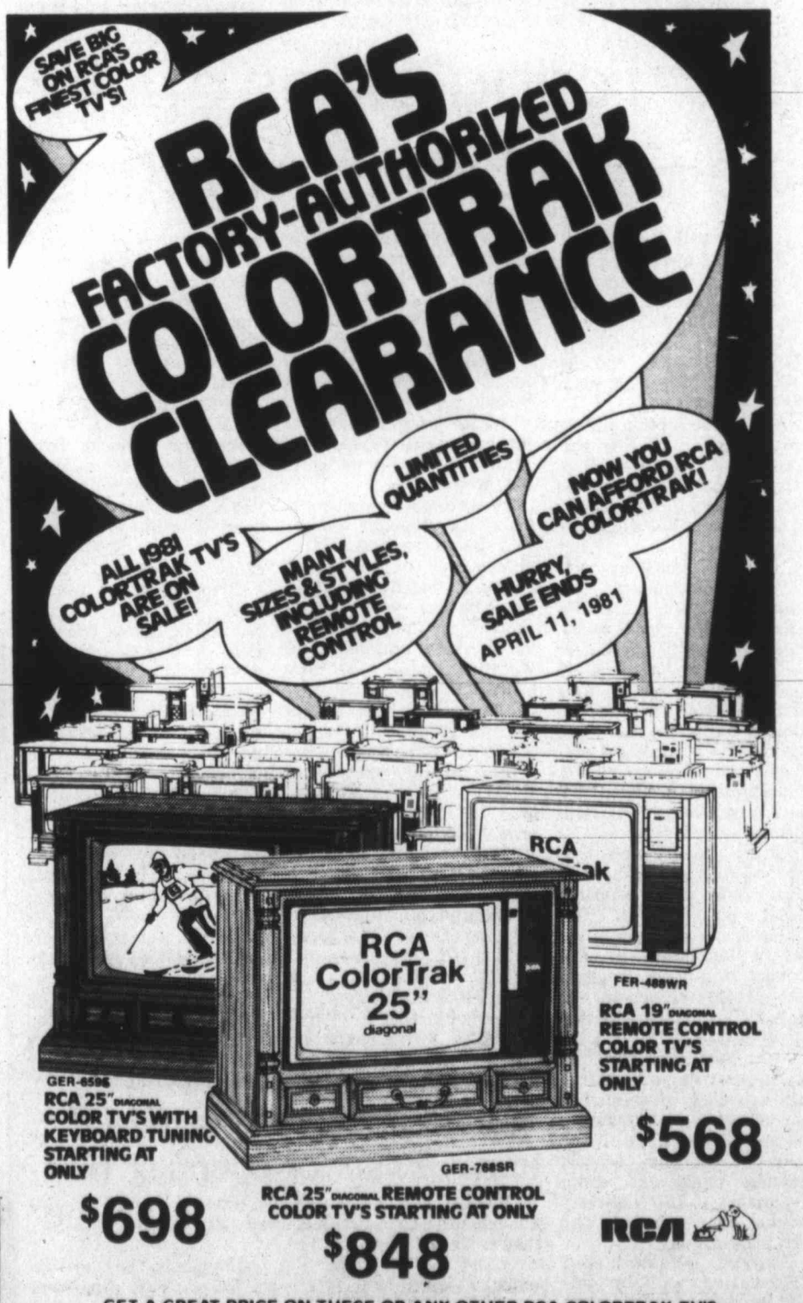

Plaintiffs each get $100,000

Following several hours of jury deliberation, plaintiffs Pablo Luna and Benito Delossantos were awarded $200,000 in damages from Custom Agriculture Services Inc., on Friday.

Judge Jim Gregg, who heard the case which was conducted in 118th District Court all last week, said he left the courthouse about 11:30 p.m. Friday following the settlement. Jim Edwards and Dub Bratcher were attorneys for the plaintiffs. Custom Ag was represented by Richard Palmer and Paul New.

A breakdown of money awarded in the case shows that each plaintiff will receive $100,000. The money was given for hospital expenses, loss of earnings, impairment of earning capacity, and physical impairment.

BUY, SELL, AND TRADE BABY ITEMS ... at Baby Things, owned and operated by Wanda Ford

Baby Things designed for your baby's needs

Most everyone knows that babies are pleasant, but often expensive little people. Not only do they need quite a few things, but no sooner do they have those things than they've outgrown them and need some more.

Baby Things, a new store located at 3103 W. Hwy. 80, is designed to meet the needs of new parents. Owned and managed by Wanda Ford, Baby Things sells new and used infant clothes, furniture, and a host of other infant needs. You can find beds, play pens, high chairs, bassinets, and car beds and car seats.

Baby Things also has a wide selection of diapers and clothes for infants up to size six. Toys are also available, as well as bottles and sterilizers.

Since most of the stock is second hand, prices are lower than at retail stores. and if you don't think that is important you've obviously never had a baby. Baby's items are quickly outgrown, but never worn out, so buying from Baby Things is indeed a wise investment.

Baby Things meets a need in Big Spring. Instead of buying all the items at one store at a high price, new or future parents can buy from a store at low resale prices, without time consuming garage sale hunts.

Baby Things is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Their number is 263-8291. Baby Things can offer just about everything you need for your baby, at a cost that will please you.

'It's rewarding, if you can help someone'

Judge relishes chance to work with people

By ANDREA COHEN

The Spanish speaking defendant is up before County Judge Bill Tune during his pretrial hearing. He is charged with driving while intoxicated and confers with his attorney in Spanish. He is pleading guilty.

The attorney tells Tune his client can pay the fine next week.

The defendant starts speaking to his attorney again in Spanish when the attorney replies, "It'll be better if you speak English."

The judge wants him to attend a two-night driving course. The defendant tells him he works late on a farm.

"Well, this will be just two nights at $25," Tune tells the attorney. "It's well worth it and I think it'll help him."

After thinking it over, the defendant agrees and leaves the courtroom. His time in front of the county judge amounted to approximately three minutes.

The next case is another DWI. The defendant tells the judge a police officer stopped him because the officers were told to look for a stolen car.

"This DWI charge shows it was quite apparent you were intoxicated," Tune says.

"I haven't had a drink since the day it occurred," he replies.

Tune calls the Lamesa resident to the bench to discuss the charges. They quietly discuss arrangements for payment and reporting for probation. His time before the judge is over.

The third case is also a DWI. Tune wants to send him to the school. The defendant argues.

"I usually don't get home unt l eight or nine o'clock."

"Everyday?"

"Just about."

"Could you make it on the 23rd and 25th at 6:30?"

"I ll talk to my boss and see."

We're requiring you to go to the school. It might help on your probation."

The man pleads guilty, is fined $200 plus court costs and 30 days in jail, probated for six months. He will attend the school.

A man in his mid 20s goes before the judge and stands politely while he answers questions about his DWI charge with a number of yes sirs and no sirs.

"Sit down," Tune says, smiling. "We're not going to bite, we're just going to punish you for a crime." His punishment is the same as the man before him.

It is a "very slow" morning for Bill Tune. "Sometimes these things run late into the afternoon," he says. He has a few DWI's and a speeding violation. A woman in her early 20s is charged with speeding 53 in a 40 m.p.h. zone, but she thinks the area she was in was a zone marked 55. Tune tells her he will check it and get back to her.

While waiting for the next case he turns to one of the two women who run the school and they begin to discuss a man who won't stop drinking.

"His father says his wife causes his problems," Tune says, sarcastically. "I'm sure she pours the liquor down his throat."

Turning to another person in the room, he says, "It's a true experience to sit through pretrials to hear the stories and tales. It's quite an experience."

Since 1975, Tune has served as county judge. "I love to work with people," he says. "I feel that I'm helping people in the community. Most people try to degrade you when you try to work with people. If you can work with them and get them back to being a citizen, it's rewarding. You can't do it in every case. They have counselors in these areas. But it's real rewarding if you can help someone."

The decisions in each case, he says, are tough. "It really is tough to make. Punishment and help can go parallel to each other. I don't know how I judge it. My willingness to listen and try to do something to help is a factor. And every case is different.

"I'm confident at the time of my rulings," he continues. "But the thing about being a judge, whether it be an administrative or judicial decision, one wrong decision is criticized and the right ones are never mentioned.

"Sure, I've made some mistakes. Those who don't make mistakes, don't do anything."

He says in his court, he ears "plain old problems. With some ofthe people who come in, it may not be major to me, but it's serious to them. And I listen. And if I can help....

Two years ago, a complaint was filed in Austin with the State Commission of Judicial Conduct. The complaint, signed by a Big Spring resident accused Tune of dismissing DWI charges and accepting a guilty plea for a lesser, unrelated charge. After a full scale investigation by the Commission, no charges were filed.

"I didn't feel like I did anything," he sais, reflecting back to that period. "Why should you be scared of doing your job? It's hell to go through when your name is degraded through the news. If I was sitting up here doing nothing, taking payola, I'd deserve to be blasted. But when I'm trying to do the best job — I don't do a perfect job, mind you, but the best job to the best of my ability, it's hard. I personally think I make a damn good county judge."

BILL TUNE
His duties with county are varied

Since the investigation, he says he does not trust anyone, then qualifies it. "I trust a lot of people," he says. But my windows were shot at, and a few other things."

One part of his job as county judge, is ruling at lunacy hearings which are held at Big Spring State Hospital.

"We did it in the court once and the court employees instructed me never to do it again," he says, smiling.

"There were six hearings with doctors and caseworkers that were to testify. You can have a courtroom full of people for six hearings. One lady kicked the gumball machine and there were gumballs from the second floor down to the basement. Since then, the lunacy hearings have been held at the state hsopital.

"I feel it's better for the patients and better for the staff. It's much easier for us to go out there. It's easier on the patients.

"I've been in office a little over six years," he continues, "and the rules on mental health have changed so much. You have to keep up on it. There was a time if you were committed, it was for life. Now it's changed, which is really good.

"With most mental patients I commit on weekends and nights, I observe mostly everyone before they go, unless I get information from a reliable source. I don't want some guy sending his wife to get rid of her for a weekend. But with treatment now, they've done phenomenal things. It's unbelievable the change in the people. I don't sign papers at random."

The county court system has been severely criticized in the past for the number of dismissals given to traffic violators who appeal their cases from the city.

But Tune explains they are dismissed on a motion by the county attorney.

"If he doesn't feel he has a case, he recommends it to me and I dismiss it. If the prosecutor doesn't want to take it, what can you do with it?"

Tune, who has been in the automobile business, the wrecking business and is an insurance agent, a profession he still works at, but admits he is not very active, now administers justice in Howard County.

Why did the one time county commissioner decide to run for county judge?

"Some people had suggested it and it sounded like a good idea. With politics, you get involved in it and over the years, you feel you can dedicate yourself to it. You get a lot of self-satisfaction.

"I think you get criticism [illegible] decisions you make," he adds. "But had the people known the circumstances, they might make the same decision. There's a little flutter, and a little compassion to try to help one more time.

"I admire anyone who is a public official. It takes a lot of stamina."

School's paper reaps honor

Importance of having good time at Centennial bash emphasized

Representatives and presidents of the various Centennial Belles chapters met Tuesday evening at the Centennial Store-Headquarters. Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the progress of the Centennial Belles program and the various activities the chapters could undertake to have fun during the upcoming centennial festivities.

Billye McLaughlin, chairman of the Centennial Belles committee, said that 51 chapters had already been chartered and that over 50 additional kits were out in the community. She said the committee initially made a total of 120 kits, but felt that number would grow once they received in the new supply of buttons later this week or the first of next week.

McLaughlin stressed the importance of having a good time during the centennial celebration. She said "you'll be able to let down your hair and have fun." McLaughlin compared it to a costume party where people are out of their regular clothes and can act the part of the costume they happen to have on.

She said that the response to the Centennial Belles had been excellent and that many of the chapters and businesses in town are coming into the store to have their employees outfitted with turn-of-the-century clothing. McLaughlin said the Centennial Store-Headquarters continued to be busy at all time, with the peak periods being from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and 4 to 5:30 p.m. As a result, she said they needed more volunteers to work at the store and hoped that chapters would take on certain hours of certain days of the week. For example, she said one chapter could work from 2 to 6 p.m. on each Thursday afternoon.

A program to be presented to the residents of Canterbury this Friday at 7 p.m. was briefly discussed. Mrs. Clyde Angel said it would be similar to the initial presentation held March 2. Angel said they wanted to get involved in the centennial and wanted to hear the proclamations of the Centennial Belles.

McLaughlin said that shipments of new items for the store were coming in daily and that it was taking an average of four days to receive items ordered from the clothing store in Rosebud, Tex. She went on to say that people who want to special order clothes should not wait until the last minute. McLaughlin also stressed the importance of trying the clothes on since the sizes were running smaller than average and that persons ordering clothing from the company could not specify colors since they are assorted.

Ray Alexander, chairman of the Brothers of the Brush organization, explained about the upcoming burial of Mr. Ray-Zor and asked the members of the Centennial Belles to join the Brothers of the Brush April 1, at 4:30 to 4:45 p.m. at 1st and Main for the funeral procession. Alexander said this would be the kickoff of the celebration and felt it would provide people in the community an opportunity to start having fun with the centennial festivities.

Alexander said that he felt many of the ladies would help since many had already buried Mr. Ray-Zor around their homes. He went on to briefly discuss some of the highlights of the funeral and the wakes that some of the chapters were going to have for Mr. Ray-Zor.

McLaughlin suggested that the funeral might be held in a New Orleans style and that people at the meeting take up the funeral with the other members of the chapter. Alexander agreed by saying that the Brothers of the Brush could not do it alone.

Billye McLaughlin suggested that the various chapters could challenge each other to many events, such as a tug of war, but stressed the importance of clearing these activities through the Centennial Store-Headquarters. She said that a board and calendars would be on the walls at the headquarters at 900 Main and that persons should look over the scheduled events before planning their activities in order to prevent conflicts.

She went on to say that the celebration had caught the imagination of everyone and that she had seen many people in the store buying clothes and other [illegible] she didn't even know lived in Big Spring. She said that the centennial was for everyone and that Centennial Belles chapters interested in having a float in the parade should contact Lynn Hise at the business office of the Big Spring High School.

McLaughlin said that chapters should nominate their First Lady candidates prior to the April 12 deadline. She said the initial meeting of the First Lady contestants would be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 14, in the Cactus Room at Howard College.

Police Beat

Screaming foils local robbery

A little screaming foiled a robbery, 11:40 p.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, four men knocked on the door of a room occupied by a Dallas couple at the Motel Six, Tuesday night. When the occupants answered the door, the four men rushed in, assaulted the man inside, and tried to steal his wallet.

The couple began screaming, "Police!" and this apparently rattled the would-be robbers. All four fled from the scene.

Thieves lifted three color television sets and a desk lamp from another motel, the Holiday Inn, 300 Tulane, Sunday night. Total value of the stolen items was estimated at $1,350.

Burglars entered the home of Emiliano Fierro, 706 N.W. 5th, Tuesday afternoon, and stole a tape deck-turntable component. It was valued at $125.

Sometime Monday, thieves stole a five-foot aluminum windmill imbedded in a concrete slab in the front yard of [illegible] Fuller, 1611 Johnson. Loss was estimated at $50.

Vandals broke the CB antenna from a car belonging to B.A. Lockhart, 1110 Lloyd, sometime Monday night. The damage was estimated at $75.

Police arrested a male juvenile at the Seven-Eleven Store at 11th and Johnson, 6:04 p.m. Tuesday. The youth was carrying some marijuana and a controlled substance.

Two mishaps were reported Tuesday.

Vehicles driven by Dolly Shober, [illegible], and Doyce Piper, Route 1, collided at Fourth and Franklin, 2:51 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Carolyn Bunn, 522 Scott, and Terry Jones, 2404 S. Monticello, collided in the 2000 block of South Birdwell.

Rep. Shaw to hold public discussion in Big Spring

Rep. Larry Don Shaw will hold a "Town Meeting" Friday afternoon in Big Spring to review the issues facing the 67th Legislature and to field questions about votes he has already cast or will be casting before the Legislature adjourns on June 1.

The Town Meeting in Big Spring is scheduled for 5 p.m., Friday afternoon at the Cactus Room in the Howard College Student Union Building. The public is invited.

Rep. Shaw said he will review his own legislative package and discuss the more controversial bills facing the Legislature.

"The main reason for the meeting, however, is to give Howard County residents the opportunity to tell me what their concerns are and to ask any questions they might have about what's going on in Austin this session," Shaw explained. "We'll try to keep it very informal and open, and I hope anyone who is interested will take the time to drop by to say hi."

Shaw will hold similar Town Meetings in Robert Lee and Sterling City on Thursday, and he said he would be scheduling public meetings in Gail, Snyder and Lamesa in early to mid-April.

Jack Little appointed to UT commission

Among other West Texans appointed to the commission are William D. Noel and John Ben Shepperd, both of Odessa; J. Mark McLaughlin, San Angelo; Mrs. Joan Ragsdale Baskin, Stabley Erskine and Tom R. Sealey, all of Midland; and Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde.

Phillips begins duties of arson investigator

RODNEY PHILLIPS

Rodney Phillips, who has assumed the duties of arson investigator for the Big Spring Fire Department, recently completed the Permian Basin Law Enforcement course in Midland with the highest scholastic rating in the class.

The academy course requires 400 hours of classroom study. Phillips finished with a grade average of 95.29.

Phillips succeeds Ricky Womack as Arson Investigator here. Womack resigned recently to become a member of the State Fire Marshall's force in Austin.

Phillips, a 1969 graduate of A.N. McCallum High School in Austin, started his career as a fire fighter with the Austin Fire Department, where he remained for 10½ years. He moved here 2½ years ago to join the Big Spring Fire Department. In his new capacity, he will work closely with Fire Marshall Carl Dorton.

Born and raised in Austin, Phillips joined the U.S. Navy after graduating from high school. He was a storekeeper, stationed aboard the guided missile cruiser, the USS Chicago, in San Diego much of the three years four months he was in the Navy.

He is married to the former Donette O'Connor of Austin. They have two children, Rodney Jr., 17, a junior in the local high school; and Lisa, 12, who is in Goliad Middle School. The family makes its home at 1202 Mulberry and attends the 14th and Main Street Church of Christ.

Phillips said he was gravely concerned with the sharp rise in arson cases, pointing out that the nation had experienced 125 percent increase in deliberately started fires in ten years' time.

Permian, Cooper, Odessans triumph

ODESSA — Odessa Permian edged Midland High, 4-3, here Tuesday in the opening District 5-AAAAA baseball game for both teams.

Jerry Hix won it in the sixth for the Panthers with a single that produced a run.

The Panthers ganged up on Joel Castaneda in the third, scoring three times without the aid of a hit. He walked two and his teammates committed four misplays behind him.

Brad Phillips was credited with the mound victory, improving his record to 2-3. Phillips fanned six and yielded five walks.

The win was the fourth of the year, compared to seven defeats, for Permian. Midland High is now 5-7.

ABILENE — Tommy Clemons pitched a one-hitter in leading Abilene Cooper to an easy 8-0 District 5-AAAAA baseball victory over San Angelo here Tuesday.

The junior right-hander fanned four and issued three walks. It was Clemons' third win, compared to two defeats. San Angelo used a hit batsman and two walks to load the sacks in the third but Clemons fanned Robert Bolin to quell the uprising.

San Angelo's pitchers had trouble finding the plate, walking a total of six. Cooper scored all the runs in the needed with a two-run outburst in the first.

MIDLAND — Odessa High got off on the right foot in District 5-AAAAA baseball play here Tuesday, edging Midland Lee, 2-1.

The Bronchos had to go an extra inning to turn the trick. They won it when Hector Sanchez clubbed a bases-

Lee's hard-luck pitcher was Alan Koonce, who fanned 13 Odessans and yielded only three hits from the second through the seventh inning.

Koonce was also invited in the Lee scoring. The Rebels' only run came home when Koonce hit into a double play in the opening inning.

To win over Abilene

Rubio paces Longhorns

Domingo (Moe) Rubio pitched Big Spring to an impressive District 5-AAAAA baseball victory over Abilene High here Tuesday afternoon. Final score was 4-3.

Rubio spaced five hits, outshining Mike Hargesheimer, who was tagged for six safeties by Big Spring. In seven decisions this year, Rubio has won four times.

The Steers scored once in the first, added two in the third and won it with a run in the fifth.

Rubio shut out the Eagles until the sixth, when they broke through for all their runs.

The win was the sixth of the year for Big Spring, compared to six defeats.

Abilene has won only twice in seven starts.

The Longhorns will play a practice game in Crane Thursday afternoon and return to conference competition Saturday here against Midland High. Saturday's contest will start at 2 p.m.

Two rally ending double plays in the fifth and seventh innings turned in by Tommy Rodriquez, Beef Armendariz and Tommy Olague wiped out all hopes for an Abilene victory.

After Mark Warren grounded out to start the game for Big Spring, Dickie Wrightsil singled to left field and Blake Rosson came through with a double to score Wrightsil.

In Big Spring's third, Rusty Hayworth walked. Warren sacrificed him to second and got abroad himself on a bobble. Later, Lupe Ontiveros singled to score both runners.

Big Spring scored again in the [illegible] single by Warren, a sacrifice of Wrightsil and a two-out single by Rosson.

Downtown funeral

Mr. Ray-Zor will be laid to rest

Presidents and representatives of the various Brothers of the Brush chapters held their initial meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main in Big Spring. Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the role of the Brothers of the Brush chapters in the upcoming centennial celebration and things they could do to have more fun during the festivities.

Ray Alexander, chairman of the Brothers of the Brush organization, announced that a total of 35 chapters had been assigned charters so far and that many other kits were still out. He said that the response to the Brothers of the Brush exceeded previous expectations and that new kits and materials should be received at the Centennial Store-Headquarters within the next week.

Alexander discussed the funeral to be held in downtown Big Spring on April 1, beginning at 4:45 p.m. at 1st and Main. He said the funeral procession for Mr. Ray-Zor would move along Main to the Centennial Store-Headquarters and would pass 3rd and 4th streets around 5 p.m., with the two streets being blocked off to traffic. Alexander said that they would need pallbearers for the wood casket carrying Mr. Ray-Zor, as well as mourners for the funeral.

He said that Clyde McMahon Jr., had been contacted to carve out a tombstone and that Mr. Ray-Zor would be laid to rest on the parking lot at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main at around 5:30 p.m. Reverand Edwin Chappell will officiate over the funeral services.

Alexander, and John Taylor, said that they wanted to get the entire community involved in the centennial celebration and felt that persons who took the time to join either the Brothers of the Brush or the Centennial Belles could have a lot of fun during the festivities. Taylor said the centennial was "not something to see, but something to be," stressing the involvement of all parts of the community in this area-wide celebration.

Taylor went on to say that one of the purposes of the local centennial was to bring new leadership to the surface. He said that he felt this was already happening in the more than 60 committees of the Big Spring Centennial, Inc. He said the new leadership is what the community needed to keep it going and growing. Taylor also said that he felt the ten-day celebration could be financially rewarding to the businesses taking part in the various activities in May.

Alexander said that Brothers of the Brush chapters could have their own floats in the parade. He said they had been in contact with a firm that would provide the floats for around $175 each, and that all the chapters had to provide was a pickup, people to ride on the float, and the cost of the float kit.

JV teams tie in game here

The Big Spring JVs and Abilene's JVs played to a 2-2 deadlock here Tuesday. The tie was the second of the season for the Steer reserves, who have yet to lose this spring.

Abilene scored twice in the first inning. A bloop single into right scored both runs for the Eagles.

Big Spring came back to get a run in the bottom half of the inning when Adam Rodriquez tallied on a two-out base hit by Danny Arista.

Big Spring deadlocked the count at 2-all in the second when Alan Trevino moved across on a single by Marty Rodriquez.

After that, Oscar Limon limited Abilene to four hits while fanning six.

The Big Spring team, who has won seven decisions this spring, returns to play here Thursday against Midland High and goes to Odessa Friday for a contest with Odessa High.

Endorsement didn't hurt wife of Sen. Ray Farabee

Harte Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Helen Farabee, wife of Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls and head of a special committee on social services, was testifying recently for a bill to improve coordination between local Mental Health-Mental Retardation Centers and state facilities.

At one point, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby stepped into the room through a side door and interrupted, "It is a good bill and a good deal of credit for its development goes to this lady."

* * *

R.S.V.P.: No thanks, Mark ...

That is a too-kind summation of Ruben Monilla's acid-dripping, three-page, single-spaced response to an invitation to "Mark White Night '81," and fundraiser for the attorney general March 31 in Austin.

Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, wrote that White's recent activities "lead to the inescapable conclusion that he has decided to part company with the growing Hispanic American community in the State of Texas."

The Corpus Christi attorney singled out as "unfounded, irresponsible and (of) infinite harm," White's comments to Dallas Chamber of Commerce officials that President Reagan should dismiss federal civil rights attorneys.

"It appears that Mr. White sings a different tune when addressing his conservative constituency ... than when visiting LULAC halls," Bonilla wrote.

He also attacked White's efforts to get the Justice Department to oppose a federal court order desegregating public schools in Gr[illegible] Portland as "reckless abandon of Hispanic educational concerns."

Evidently, Bonilla's angry regrets extend to future White invitations, as well.

"If Mr. White plans to be governor some day, I would encourage him to repudiate (such) statements," Bonilla wrote, concluding, "Please remove my name from any further mailing lists."

* * *

So, Ruben, how about Peyton McKnight?

McKnight, the state senator from Tyler, is a Democrat like White, an oil-millionaire like Clements and -- like both -- a rumored contender for the 1982 governor's race.

"I guess anybody would like to be governor of Texas," McKnight said." "There may be some who wouldn't but I think it would be a great honor."

As for whether he could use his personal wealth to underwrite a multi-million dollar campaign, McKnight said with a hearty laugh, "I don't believe I could ever come up with as much as Mr. Clements did."

* * *

A Republican attorney general?

That's what Clements' general counsel, David Dean, reportedly wants to be if Mark White vacates the office to run against Clements in '82.

Dean is apparently using his highly visible role as public advocate of Clements' anti-crime bills to that political end, says a Senate staffer whose boss is carrying one of the bills.

More on 1982 ...

With moderate-liberal democrats Babe Schwartz of Galveston, Ron Clower of Garland and Gene Jones of Houston dispersed from the Senate in 1980, Republican and conservative business groups are targetting Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin for defeat next year.

So is an Austin real estate tycoon, J.B. Goodwyn, who's telling potential supporters he's ready to spend a half-million dollars to take Doggett's seat.

* * *

Enough is enough ...

So when a House hearing on a bill to ban commercial harvesting of redfish and speckled trout had droned for more than four hours, the committee chairman decided to make that point.

Interest apparently lags in Colorado City contests

COLORADO CITY (SC) — If absentee voting is any indication of interest in the upcoming local elections, voters are showing a lack of interest.

With only a week remaining to cast absentee ballots, there have been only 10 votes cast in the hospital board election, nine in the city council race and only five in the school board election.

Both the hospital board and the city council races have contested elections, while the school board has three candidates and three vacancies.

Dance to follow concert by Johnny Rodriquez

Johnny Rodriquez, a native Texan who is now one of the established Country-Western singers, will appear in concert in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum starting at 7:30 p.m., Friday. A dance will follow the concert.

Sharing the billing with Rodriquez on the program will be Little Joe and La Familia. The band recently won the Buddy Award as the top Chicano musical group in the country.

Sponsor of the show here is the Dallas Community Theater. Tickets will sell for $6, $7 and $8 and will be available at the door. Advance tickets can be purchased either at the coliseum box office or radio station KBST.

Rodriquez's reputation, of course, precedes him here. Little Joe and La Familiar are just coming onto their own.

first fronted the Latinaires in the 50s and 60s. In the early 70s, they organized La Familia, developed a spicy blend of music that is neither Mexican nor American in origin, but rather a Tex-Mex combination of hot Latin rhythm and Texas soul.

Little Joe and Johnny Hernandez were born in Temple, Tex., two of 12 children of an immigrant couple. They picked cotton all over the southern United States before they decided music was a better way to make a living. Nightly singalongs led by their father helped them cultivate their voices.

Three on way to Huntsville

Several men were transferred from the Howard County jail to Midland Monday where they were placed on a bus and sent to the Texas Departments of Corrections in Huntsville.

Charles Herbert Jones, 41, Lamesa, who entered a guilty plea in 118th District County Monday on a theft by check charge of over $200. He was given a three year sentence in the TDC, and was transferred to Midland.

Dillard Curtis Johnston, 25, Route 1, Box 141, entered a plea of guilt, Monday for a theft over $200 charge. He was also sent to the Texas Department of Corrections, and given a three year sentence.

Bruno Thomas Cruz was taken to 118th District Court Monday for a revocation of probation hearing. Cruz, 20, of room 205, Thrifty Lodge, was given three years in the penitentiary after his probation was revoked. He was originally charged with felony criminal mischief.

Two goats are missing

Tino Cisneros, 1008 Stadium, reported to the Howard County Sheriff's Department Monday that two goats had been taken from his land on the Snyder Highway.

Taken were a brown goat and a gray goat. Cisneros also told the Sheriff's deputies that his water tank had been damaged by shots, and hoses on the property were cut.

The goats were valued at $140.

Ronald Allen, Gail Route, reported Monday that a rifle had been taken from his residence sometimes between Jan. 15 and March 10. Missing is a Marlin .22 magnum rifle with a four power weaver scope. The rifle is valued at $250.

Bryant hired as deputy

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County Sheriff Wendell Bryant has hired a new deputy, Bobby Joe Calloway, who replaces Jim Reynauld.

Reynaul resigned after Bryant was named by the commissioners to succeed Bill McGuire as sheriff.

Calloway, who assumed his duties immediately, commented, "I've had three years prior experience with the Colorado City Police Department and I have missed law enforcement. I have the chance now to be a part of the force again and I'm glad to be back in it."

Luna faces burglary rap

Bill John Luna Jr., 25, of Snyder, was transferred to county jail Monday following an arrest on a burglary charge.

A $10,000 bond was set for Luna by Judge Bobby West. The bond was later reduced to $7,500 by Judge Lewis Heflin. Luna was released affer the bond was posted by Lugo's Bail Service of Lubbock.

'Spring Fling' scheduled in Brownwood for folks

Who said that older folks can't have fun? Now there's an opportunity for those over 55 to take part in an exciting, fun filled camp at the Texas 4-H Center at Brownwood April 28-May 1.

Appropriately called "Spring Fling '81," the camp is designed for today's modern adult, says Janet Rogers, County Extension Agent home-economics, Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Among activities offered will be basket weaving, lapidary, needlecraft and ceramics. There will also be free-choice demonstrations on creative cooking, gardening, nature studies, exercise and recreation. Among other tantalizing activities will be shuffleboard, dominoes, "42", bridge and other card games.

And there's a tennis and golf course near by. Of course, square dancing and sing-a-longs are planned each evening to make your stay at the 4-H Center a memorable one.

Extension Service specialists and a key group of volunteers will be on hand to present educational programs and to help you get the most from your camp activities.

The 4-H Center, located in a lovely wooded area on the shores of beautiful Lake Brownwood, offers an opportunity to "camp" in a resort atmosphere with all the modern conveniences.

Cost for the entire event is $44.75. This includes room, board, all meals, refreshments, linen and insurance. A $10 deposit is required when you make your reservation — this will be deducted from your total fee.

Anyone interested in taking part in the "Spring Fling '81" camp may contact Janet Rogers, 267-8469 for an application form. Reservations must be received at the Texas 4-H Center by April 22. This is the best camping deal in Texas!

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Wearing shoes has a positive psychological effect, says article

Many people take off their shoes to relax, but others feel much better when they put them on, according to an article in a recent issue of the "American Journal of Nursing."

Putting on ordinary shoes can mean, "I am somebody. I have things to do," according to Adaline B. Chamberlin, RN. Ms. Chamberlin, reports that the mental attitudes of patients in psychiatric hospitals improved dramatically when worn slippers were replaced by good shoes.

Dear Abby

Mother-in-Law's Company; She May Be a Crowd

DEAR ABBY: WAITING IN WASHINGTON writes to say that her husband's 80-year-old mother has come to live with them. She's financially secure and draws a nice Social Security check. There are four teen-agers at home and they are barely making ends meet. Grandma has been paying $150 a month, but daughter-in-law added up all the household expenses and divided them by the number of people who live there, which comes to $275 each.

WAITING asks you (and your readers) what Grandma's fair share should be. I say at today's prices $275 is a bargain for room and board. Tell Grandma to pay up or pack up!

OREM, UTAH

DEAR WAITING: The woman who thinks $150 a month is sufficient is living in a dream world. My mother pays a nursing home in Spokane $1,260 for a 30-day month, and $1,301.50 for a 31-day month! Sign this . . .

REAL WORLD

DEAR WAITING: The mother-in-law should pay $300 a month. She sounds like a selfish old witch who whines, "You'll get it all when I die." Then she leaves everything to a home for stray cats.

TIRED OF FREELOADERS, BOZEMAN, MONT.

DEAR WAITING: In my community, a modest nursing home is $600 a month. Husband's mother should keep her mouth shut, pay the $275 and be thankful her family doesn't just put her in a home and forget about her.

RHODE ISLAND READER

DEAR ABBY: I am 88 and live with my daughter and her family. I give them my entire Social Security check ($370.70 a month), which I think is fair. I have a small additional income for expenses, so I manage. I'm treated with kindness and respect. I'm unable to help with the housework, but I do care for myself. Hope this helps.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

DEAR WAITING: You are giving your children a great example to follow by quibbling about how much your mother-in-law owes you because you have to set the thermostat up a little higher. I pity you when your time comes. Your children will thumb their noses at you and say, "Pay up, Mom. You owe us!"

Both my in-laws, who are 85 and 90, are living with us. One is blind and the other is senile. Caring for them is not a burden. I consider it a privilege.

NOT COMPLAINING

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for WAITING. My 73-year-old aunt checked into an old ladies' home. They told her she could expect to live another 12 years, so they wanted $55,000 in advance. She paid it, moved in and died a year later. No refund. (P.S. All her personal belongings "disappeared.")

G.B. IN WOOSTER, OHIO

DEAR WAITING: There is no way a family can be adequately compensated for the inconvenience of bringing in a third generation, so the mother-in-law should keep only as much as she needs to survive, and the rest should be thrown into the family pot. She should do all she can to show her appreciation for having been rescued from life in a nursing home.

SAN MATEO, CALIF.

DEAR WAITING: Teen-agers surely eat more than a little old lady in her 80s. Do your children pay you $275 a month for their room and board? You say, "But they are my children." Well, our parents, when they grow old, become our "children," as we were once theirs.

AGHAST IN ASHVILLE

DEAR WAITING: If you are smart, you will play a waiting game. The less mother spends now, the more she will leave for the loving family who took care of her during her declining years.
