Lighters ruling

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators ordered manufacturers Wednesday to make virtually all butane lighters child-resistant in an effort to save more than 150 lives lost annually in fires started by children playing with lighters. The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted 3-0 to require that the lighters be too difficult for most children under 5 to operate.

American dream

NEW YORK — Only 17 percent of Americans polled say they have achieved the American dream, and eight in every 10 say it will be harder for the next generation to do so. A poll conducted by Gallup for the CNBC cable network found most Americans worried about obstacles that could keep them from achieving their goals./8A

Tilton pie

TULSA, Okla. — Televangelist Robert Tilton was excused from a federal court hearing Wednesday because someone nailed him with a piece of pie. Tilton has been in court seeking to block a rerun of ABC's "PrimeTime Live" expose of his ministry. As Tilton walked out of the courthouse Tuesday, a man who reportedly had been waiting for nearly four hours threw a piece of cream pie in Tilton's face. The pie thrower made no statement; no arrest had been made.

TAAS: 10th-graders read, write, but stumble on math

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Texas high school sophomores can read and write well, but they can't do math, according to the recent TAAS test.

The Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test, a requirement for graduation, has tripped up more than half of the Class of 1995 locally and statewide.

Close to half of Midland's sophomore class — 48 percent to be exact, and 45 percent of their peers statewide — failed the math section of the state exam alone.

Only 49 percent of local students in grade 10 last year — and sophomores statewide — passed all three portions of the TAAS test given in March and May. That translates to 670 sophomores (337 of 716 taking the test at Lee High School, 317

Senate Democrats focus on Breaux's fuels tax plan

By Maria Recio
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Reeling from President Clinton's abrupt decision to drop the Btu tax from his budget package, Democrats on Wednesday began looking for alternatives. They focused on a plan by Sen. John Breaux of Louisiana to tax gasoline and other transportation fuels by an additional 7.3 cents a gallon.

"No one likes taxes, but now that the Btu tax is off the table, it is time the Senate gets behind a deficit-reduction proposal that includes more spending cuts and less taxes," Breaux said.

The 7.3 cent tax on gasoline and other fuels used to propel

Hard rain, hail wallop city

Flooding disrupts traffic, closes many streets

Chris Hansen, Joe Lawrence and John Farnel take a raft ride down Wadley Avenue Wednesday afternoon after the worst of the rains had passed. The National Weather Service reported 3-4 inches fell over the area.

Predicted sunny skies turned nasty Wednesday as a severe thunderstorm system pounded the Permian Basin with rain and hail and dropped temperatures in some areas by 20 degrees.

The system developed when a dry line met with an upper-level energy mass and created unstable conditions. The stormy weather began to the north of the Midland-Odessa area around 6 a.m., according to the National Weather Service at the Midland International Airport, and moved into the area in the early afternoon.

As the storm moved in, temperatures dropped from 90 to the mid-60s, where they remained the rest of the day.

The storms brought 3 to 4 inches of rain to Midland, which broke the record for that date, .67 inches set in 1979. Although the storm packed marble to baseball-sized hail in some areas, NWS officials reported ¾-inch hail fell in portions of the city.

The heavy rains caused many intersections and streets to flood and be closed off for much of the after-

Officials uncover 2 new suspected cases of mystery illness, one fatal

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A 22-year-old New Mexico woman died Wednesday after suffering symptoms resembling those of a mystery illness that has killed 11 others, the governor's office announced.

"Authorities suspect that her death was caused by acute respiratory distress related to the recent illness outbreak in Southwestern states, but confirmation of that will require further tests," said John McKean, press secretary to Gov. Bruce King. The woman's name and hometown were not immediately released.

Of 18 confirmed cases of the illness since early February, seven in New Mexico and four in Arizona have been fatal. Most victims have been young, otherwise healthy Navajos. It wasn't immediately known if the woman who died Wednesday was Navajo.

The most recent previous case of the mystery illness was reported May 28, when a 13-year-old girl collapsed near Gallup and died the follow-

Clinton's consolation: Others less popular

By Robert Barr
Associated Press writer

LONDON — With his opinion poll ratings down in the 30s, President Clinton has fallen to a level some other world leaders would envy.

Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa was bumping along at 26 percent approval in May, little changed in six months, and Prime Minister John Major hit a 50-year low in Britain at 21 percent in a Gallup Poll published last week.

Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney was down to 12 percent when he decided earlier this year to retire. Italy's government, ravaged by corruption scandals and now under the caretaker administration of banker Carlo Ciampi, barely registers a pulse in the ratings.

In many countries, Associated Press bureaus report, it's not a good time to be governing.

Gordon Smith, professor of government at the London School of Economics, suggests Western industrial powers are suffering a post-communist malaise. Deprived of what he calls "the necessary enemy," they are also suffering economically in part because of a drop in military spending.

"A kind of contributory factor there would be the lack of polarization between left and right in Europe — for instance the collapse of communist parties, and so on —

Wasp sting triggers allergic reaction, man dies

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

A wasp sting proved fatal for a Midlander Saturday, leaving family members bewildered as they mourn the death of the man they knew as their father, brother and son.

Larry Hoover, 37, was a husky, muscular man of 250 pounds. About 7 p.m. Saturday, he was trying to rid his yard of a wasp's nest with a stick when he was stung under the arm by a quarter-inch wasp.

Immediately following the sting, Hoover began to have difficulty breathing, so he called his brother and sister-in-law. Tina Taylor said she rushed to her brother-in-law's house and was there within three minutes.

She said Hoover's 7-year-old son, Shawn, had called 911 — just like he learned to do in school. Emergency medical technicians already had arrived, but Hoover lost consciousness within six minutes of the sting.

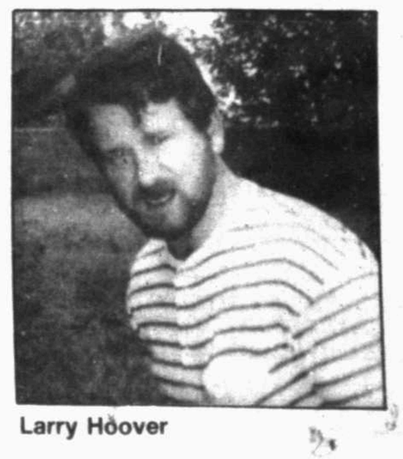

As a result of the sting, Hoover suffered a heart attack and sustained brain damage from the lack of oxygen. He was placed on life support machines at Memorial Hospital & Medical Center.

About 6:30 p.m. Tuesday he died, immediately after being removed from the life-sustaining machines.

"It's hard to believe a 250-pound man died from the sting of a quarter-inch wasp," Hoover's sister-in-law said.

Bari Meeks, a registered respiratory therapist at a local allergist's office, said that dying from a bee or wasp sting is not uncommon. She said that how allergic someone is to a sting determines the sever-

U.S. sends warships to Somalia to aid U.N. against faction chief

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The United States has sent four heavily armed gunships to Somalia to be available for any retaliation by United Nations forces against a leading faction leader who has been blamed for the deaths of 23 peacekeepers, administration officials said Wednesday.

Three of the AC-130H "Specter" gunships have already landed in neighboring Djibouti, giving U.N. forces new offensive power to strike at arms caches controlled by faction leader, Gen. Mohammed Farah Aidid.

While no final decision had been reached, the officials said they expected the U.N. forces to retaliate soon against Aidid or his army. They said a leading plan would use the U.S. warplanes to blow up warehouses where Aidid has assembled a powerful weapons arsenal.

The beginning of the U.S. reinforcement came as Mogadishu, the Somali capital; braced for an expected showdown between the United Nations forces and those controlled by Aidid. Western relief officials said they had been told to expect a strike against Aidid.

The big, lumbering gunships are equipped with advanced radar and computers that allow their heavy guns to be used with devastating effect.

Administration officials said the aircraft had been sent at the request of Adm. Jonathan Howe, the retired naval officer who is the senior U.S. official in Mogadishu.

The first stage of the reinforcement was to have included a pair of AC-130Hs from Hurlburt Field, Florida, headquarters of the First Special Operations Wing. But one plane was left behind after it developed mechanical problems, a senior Pentagon official said. That plane is being repaired, the official said, and is to arrive in Djibouti later this week.

AC-130s were used by United States forces in Panama and during the Persian Gulf War, but were never called on by the U.N. forces that were sent to Somalia late last year to help insure the delivery of food supplies.

The officials said the United States was also leaning toward approval of a U.N. request for armored personnel carriers, and perhaps attack helicopters as well, to give substantial new firepower to the peacekeeping force in a mission that has turned surprisingly lethal.

Saturday, Somali gunmen trapped the U.N. forces in a ambushes, and killed 23 Pakistanis and wounded 3 Americans and dozens of Pakistanis. Tension has wound tighter in the days since, with more gunfights breaking out between Somalis and peacekeepers as U.N. helicopters patrol the skies over Mogadishu.

Aidid has denied involvement in the attacks, and has contended instead that the Pakistani troops attacked innocent Somali civilians.

But administration officials said Wednesday that evidence of responsibility points strongly to Aidid.

Wedding raises hopes of modern monarchy

By Laura King
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO — Tens of thousands of Japanese lined the streets Wednesday to cheer their newly married crown prince and princess, a Western-educated pair who many hope will modernize the world's oldest hereditary monarchy.

In an auspicious start to the imperial match, the sun broke through just before their 30-minute motorcade, allowing the future emperor and empress to stick with plans to ride in an open car.

Rain had fallen all day, deepening the somberness of the ages-old wedding rites deep inside the moated Imperial Palace.

Under the traditional robes, however, were figures more attuned to Japanese society's new side — Naruhito, the liberal-minded heir to the Chrysanthemum Throne, and Masako Owada, the savvy diplomat he doggedly pursued for a half-dozen years before she said yes. Naruhito's grandfather's marriage had been an arranged match.

Each attended Oxford University in Britain; Masako also graduated from Harvard University in the United States.

Life here came to a near-standstill as Japanese by the millions gathered around televisions to watch the 33-year-old Naruhito exchange vows with Masako, 29, only the second commoner in modern times to wed an heir to the 1,500-year-old throne.

The wedding day was a national holiday, and the nation was in a holiday mood. Glad of a break from the workaholic routine, couples strolled in the Ginza, and people window-shopped and lingered in coffee shops. Still, some were a little jaded in the face of all the hoopla.

"They've got nothing to do with me," said Yokohama taxi driver Kunihiro Shimada. "I'll celebrate when my own daughter gets married."

On the rain-slicked streets, crowds of people watched the ancient rites played out on huge, state-of-the-art high-definition televisions set up outside train stations and at busy corners.

The ceremony took place in the secrecy of a palace shrine called the Kashikodokoro — literally, the "Awesome Place."

U.S. pushes to make Japan, Germany permanent Security Council members

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Clinton administration has launched a campaign to make Japan and Germany permanent members of the 15-member Security Council, a move likely to irk other countries seeking the same status.

Any council reform that simply adds more wealthy and powerful nations to the Security Council and omits the developing world is likely to run into major opposition.

In a speech to the Foreign Policy Association on Tuesday evening, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Madeleine Albright, announced the new U.S. policy shift.

The Bush and Reagan administrations had been noncommittal about expanding the Security Council, promising only to consider it.

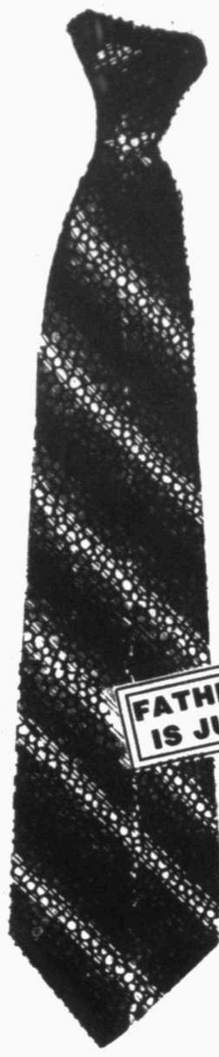

But Albright added that "We will be careful not to sacrifice the council's newfound effectiveness on the altar of reform."

That suggested that Germany and Japan would be given limited powers.

STORM: Clouds to persist

(From 1A)

noon and evening. Officials at the Midland Police Department said officers responded to at least 10 calls of stalled vehicles, with several vehicles at each call. No major accidents were blamed on the weather.

Midland remained under a flash-flood watch and a tornado watch until 7 p.m. Although a tornado warning was issued about 4 p.m. for southeast Midland County due to a funnel that registered on radar, NWS officials said no confirmed tornadoes were spotted during the day.

Although Big Spring did not receive as much rain as Midland, police officials blamed a early morning housefire there on lightning associated with the storm. Officials said the home, located at 900 Highland St., caught fire after lighning shorted out the wiring. The home's resident, whose name was not released, was not at home at the time of the fire, which destroyed the structure.

Cities to the west of Midland did not experience the storm's severe weather. Odessa police officials said the city did not have much rain and no high water was reported. Andrews did not report any rainfall.

However, the system did create severe storm conditions as far east as the Dallas-Fort Worth area, with flash-flood and tornado watches being issued throughout the day for the southern South Plains, the Abilene area and the metroplex. By Wednesday evening, the system had moved into Terrell County and was headed for the Mexican border.

The nasty weather will remain in the area with precipitation in the forecast through Friday. Today's skies will remain mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain. The highs will only reach into the lower 80s and winds will be east to southeast at 10-20 mph.

Tonight will continue to be mostly cloudy with a low in the lower 60s.

The cloudy conditions will continue Friday, with a 20 percent chance of rain and a high again in the low 80s.

After an overnight low of 62, Wednesday's high reached 90, compared to the record high for that date of 103 set in 1958. The record low was 51 set in 1975.

NATION

Thunderstorms producing high wind, heavy rain, hail and lightning broke out Wednesday from Texas to New England, following the leading edge of cool air pushing against hot, humid air.

Tornado and flash flood watches were posted for parts of Oklahoma and Texas, the National Weather Service said.

Severe thunderstorm watches were issued for parts of Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York state, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

STING: Death leaves family bewildered

(From 1A)

ity of the reaction.

But, she noted, most people don't die from a sting unless they have been stung before.

Ms. Taylor said Hoover had not shown any previous signs of being highly allergic to insect stings, but he suffered a spider bite on his stomach a couple of months ago.

Unlike a snake bite, where venom can be counteracted through the use of an anti-venom, the venom from an insect sting stays in the bloodstream and causes the severe reaction on the second instance.

"We have learned so much about this (insect stings) since it happened. People have been calling us and everyone is shocked," Ms. Taylor said. "I keep benadryl (a common, over-the-counter allergy treatment) here at the house, but the doctors said it wouldn't have helped him. I had no idea how severe this could be. I have an appointment with the allergist next week."

Ms. Taylor said she never realized just how dangerous the stings could be. She said both Hoover and herself would bat wasps down and try to kill them with fly-swatters while others would run in fear.

She also said the large numbers of insects in West Texas make fighting them so dangerous.

"This has been so devastating to the family. ... Had it been a different kind of accident, like a car wreck, it might have been easier to deal with. You know, we just take the little things for granted," Ms. Taylor said.

Experts: Precautions, treatment can help

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Accompanying the summer season's arrival in West Texas will be the onset of flying insects whose stings can be fatal.

The family of Larry Hoover, 36, of Midland has learned that tragic lesson with his death as the result of a wasp sting.

Bari Meeks, a registered respiratory therapist at a local allergist's office, said that even people who are not aware they are allergic to insect stings can die as the result of one.

But, Ms. Meeks said, avoiding instances where a sting is possible and getting treatment can prevent these reactions.

According to information from the allergist's office, appropriate precautions, such as wearing a hat, long-sleeve shirt, work gloves and having pants tucked into socks or boots should be taken when trying to rid a yard of insect nests.

Experts advise that, when attempting to destroy a nest, the best time to do it is after dark when most insects are in the nest. Burning or flooding the nests are not suggested because they will often result in infuriating the insects, causing incomplete removal and increased likelihood of a sting.

Also, to avoid stings, don't wear perfume in outside areas where bees, wasps and hornets may be. The odor attracts the insects. Common sense also can prevent many stings.

Calm, quiet behavior without sudden movements or flailing arms and keeping a sharp lookout for the insects while outdoors usually will prevent trouble.

Allergists estimate that 1 to 2 million Americans are severely allergic to the venom of stinging insects.

The problem is caused when a person's immune system produces too much of an antibody called IgE. The reason why some people produce excessive quantities of IgE is unknown. The excess production usually follows an initial sting to which there is no reaction.

However, when the person is stung again, the insect venom entering the body combines with the IgE antibody produced by the first sting, which triggers a series of internal reactions causing severe allergic symptoms.

Ms. Meeks said if a reaction follows a sting, capturing the insect after it is dead or taking a picture of it will allow the treating physician to know which insect the victim is allergic to.

Depending upon the severity of the allergy, a physician may instruct the patient to use an emergency self-treatment kit for emergencies. This kit contains a syringe pre-filled with epinephrine.

According to Physician's Desk Reference, epinepherine is used to "relieve respiratory distress, provide rapid relief of hypersensitivity reactions to drugs and other allergens ... may be of use in restoring cardiac rhythm in cardiac arrest due to various causes."

"You should inject yourself according to your physician's instructions to prevent or reduce the allergic reaction in the event of an insect sting. Epinepherine works extremely well in counteracting the physiological effects set in motion by the sting," according to Ms. Meeks.

People who are highly allergic to insect stings should carry an identification card or bracelet alerting emergency personnel of the allergies.

Ms. Meeks advises anyone who has had an adverse reaction to an insect sting to be evaluated by an allergist. Through appropriate tests, the allergist can develop a proper treatment to help prevent the adverse, and sometimes, fatal reactions to stings.

TEST: 48 percent stumble on math section of 663 at Midland High School and 16 of 57 at Coleman High School) passing the test. This means a total of 766 sophomores in the districted fail at least one part.

(From 1A)

Texas Education Agency spokesperson Joey Lozano, said despite the high failure rate, it's no cause for alarm — yet.

"This is the first time we gave the exit-level test in the 10th grade," Lozano said, noting that only 53 percent of juniors taking the test for the first time last year passed it, compared to 49 percent of sophomores passing the test.

"It's a slight drop in the number of students passing, but the sophomores (now classified as juniors) will have multiple opportunities to retake the test by the time they reach the end of their senior year."

Lozano said, despite high numbers of students failing the exit-level test on their first try, typically more than 90 percent have passed all three sections before graduation.

He said the TEA decided to offer the test in the sophomore year rather than giving it to students for the first time in the fall of their junior year. This gives the students more chances to take the exit-level test as graduation nears.

The test previously was given to students in grades three, four, seven and nine. It was recently given to students in grades four, eight and 10.

Local eighth-graders also stumbled over the math section of the TAAS, with only 44 percent mastering it in the district, similar to the state average of 43 percent passing.

"I am really at a loss to explain why those scores can't be higher," said MISD school board trustee James Fuller.

Fuller said MISD administrator Joe Cummins, at Tuesday's board meeting, maintained that the state's changing the test's composition may contribute to some of the low scores.

"What stood out to me was the fourth-grade scores at Parker," Fuller said.

Parker's scores, depicted on a graph, were noticeably higher than all of the other fourth-grade schools in the district.

While most fourth-grade schools in the district only had 49 percent or less of their students passing all three sections of the test, Parker had 67 percent of the students mastering all parts, which was also far better than the state average of 47 percent.

A whopping 86 percent of Parker pupils passed the writing section of the TAAS, while only 66 percent to 78 percent of fourth-graders at other schools passed it, falling below the state average of 81 percent passing.

While no more than 60 percent of pupils at any other fourth-grade school in the district passed the reading section, 74 percent passed at Parker, above the state average of 56 percent.

In math, 74 percent of Parker's students passed, compared to 52 percent to 63 percent of pupils in other district schools and 58 percent statewide.

"What is happening in this school ought to be happening in the others," Fuller said.

Cummins, MISD executive director of planning, evaluation and testing, said another area needing improvement is the instructional programs and staff development for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

He said the eighth-grade test results, which showed that 61 percent of all students tested failed one or more of the three tests given, reflected on the "instructional program, instructional leadership, and the staff development" available in the lower grades.

"The faculty should consider the low passing rate for all tests taken as the primary focus of their campus improvement and staff development activities until the scores for students tested at grade eight are improved."

Cummins said that fourth-grade reading scores had improved, but teachers assigned to grades one through three "should continue to review their expectations for reading."

The good news, Cummins said, is that 73 percent of fourth-graders passed the writing test, showing an improvement, though the passing rate was 81 percent statewide. The eighth-graders maintained the state average of 71 percent passing the writing test, as did the sophomores, with 80 percent passing the writing test, the same percentage as their peers statewide.

"Students that did not pass each of the subject areas will be scheduled to receive remedial services at the beginning of the 1993-'94 school year," Cummins said.

"With the state averages being low, it's still not impressive, in my opinion, if we stay at the state average," Fuller said. "I hope that next time around we have significant improvement."

As for having several more chances to pass the math section of the TAAS, one junior, who failed only the math section, said, "That doesn't cheer me up much. I saw a few of my friends who didn't go to graduation when they couldn't graduate because of the TAAS. Now I know it can happen to me."

aircraft, barges, trucks, trains and other forms of transportation would raise an estimated $40 billion.

That compares to $72 billion expected to have been raised by the tax on the British thermal unit (Btu) content of fuels. Breaux advocates making up the $32 billion difference through Medicare cuts.

There were early indications of White House support for Breaux's proposal, despite Clinton's opposition to a gasoline tax during the election campaign. White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers hedged on his earlier stance, stressing that a "straight-up, solo gasoline tax is something that he has not supported."

The initial congressional reaction to the tax idea was largely positive, especially in the absence of other proposal.

"It's easy to administer, there's less chance of fraud, and it would still keep gasoline prices lower than our trading partners," said Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston.

A transportation industry lobbyist said of the fuels tax, "It appears to be a go.".

To head off critics, Breaux emphasized that his plan would be equitable by affecting all modes of transportation.

"If everybody pays the same tax, then no one has an advantage," he said.

And to avoid the unpopular notion of a gasoline tax, he won't even refer to it as such.

"This is not a gasoline tax," he told reporters, many of whom snickered. "This is a transportation fuels tax."

By any name, it will generate opposition from western states, where longer distances require more driving. Texas lawmakers were cautious about the gasoline tax but were primarily relieved that the Btu tax is dead.

"The position I took has been vindicated," said Rep. Greg Laughlin, D-Victoria, who voted against the tax after intensive lobbying, including a lengthy conversation with Clinton.

Laughlin is not ready to embrace the gas tax, either, noting, "We in rural America drive more."

A supporter of the earlier package, Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said of the gasoline tax, "I don't like it at all."

RATINGS: Clinton falls quickly doesn't distinguish the political parties very much. And therefore in a sense the public is becoming more skeptical or more cynical that no party has the answer," Smith said in an interview.

Clinton's standing has fallen quickly.

He had a 38 percent approval rating in a CBS News-New York Times poll taken June 1-3, and was at 36 percent in Time-CNN and Newsweek polls released May 28. Those numbers represent precipitous drops from the 58 percent he received in a Gallup poll just after he took office in January.

Among other leaders who have slid in public esteem recently:

■ German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who has never enjoyed great personal popularity, and his governing party received a favorable rating from just 28 percent of 1,001 Germans responding to a ZDF television poll in mid-May. That was down from 43.8 percent in the 1990 election.

■ Russian President Boris Yeltsin was supported by 91 percent of Russians immediately after the failed coup by Soviet hard-liners in August 1991. He remains popular but his rating is slipping, even in Moscow, his strongest base: 66 percent of 1,050 Muscovites surveyed May 27-29 want him to stay in office.

So whose popularity remains, for now, unassailable?

Kim Young-sam took office in February as South Korea's first civilian president in 32 years and has pushed a strong anti-corruption drive, resulting in the arrests, firings or reprimands of 3,000 officials. That has helped push his approval rating to 85 percent or more.

Kim also won applause by pledging not to play golf — a luxury at $120 a round in South Korea.

MYSTERY: Evidence of virus mounts

ing day. The woman who died Wednesday was among two new suspected cases reported earlier in the day.

"It is not abating," Dr. Norton Kalishman, chief medical officer for the New Mexico Health Department, said of the disease.

Researchers also said they had found more evidence that the flu-like illness might be caused by a virus found in rodent droppings. Six of nine people tested have had antibodies to the Hantavirus virus, Kalishman said.

Some strains of Hantavirus have up to a 42-day incubation period, meaning it can take that long for a person to develop symptoms after being exposed.

Kalishman said it would take weeks to determine if the people whose cases were reported Wednesday were suffering from the illness. "There's nothing we can do other than to send the blood out for tests," he said.

Besides the woman, other possible cases were initially reported in Arizona and Pueblo, Colo., Kalishman said, but a doctor at St. Mary Corwin Hospital in Pueblo said late Wednesday the mystery illness had been ruled out in that case.

The woman who died and the person in Arizona were scheduled to receive the experimental drug ribavirin, which has been effective in treating the strains of Hantavirus found in China, Kalishman said. It wasn't immediately known if the woman who died had received the medication.

Kalishman said that two additional victims of the ailment had tested positive for antibodies to Hantavirus. One case was negative and was being retested and two tests were inconclusive, he said. Four had previously tested positive for the antibody.

"Clearly Hantavirus has been identified through the antibodies, and that clearly leads to a conclusion that it's part of the illness," Kalishman said.

He added, however, that other causes are still being investigated, and that Hantavirus might not be the only cause.

When Hantavirus, which is common in Asia and occurs more rarely in Europe, caused death, it was usually because of kidney failure. None of the U.S. victims developed kidney problems, but have suffered from respiratory problems.

Employers can't trim AIDS benefits, EEOC says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission sued a New York union welfare fund Wednesday for cutting off health benefits to a construction worker with AIDS.

It filed the lawsuit one day after issuing a detailed policy statement that warned employers it is illegal in most instances to curtail medical benefits just for workers with a specific disability.

The EEOC's interpretation of the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act could prevent companies from copying a Houston music store that cut its AIDS benefits from $1 million to $5,000 after a clerk came down with the deadly disease.

But some business experts cautioned that the EEOC's move actually could spur small businesses to drop health insurance entirely for their workers, rather than face the cost of treating catastrophic illnesses.

The Supreme Court ruled last fall in McGann vs. H&H Music Co. that the Houston firm, which was self-insured, acted within its rights under a 1974 federal pension law. The company acted before the disabilities act was passed so it was not covered by that law.

Some say it could prompt small businesses to drop health insurance entirely for their workers, rather than face the cost of treating catastrophic illnesses.

Lawyers for the federal commission filed a lawsuit in New York charging that the Mason Tenders District Council Trust Fund violated the disabilities changing its health insurance plan in July 1991 to exclude coverage of any AIDS-related illness.

A union member, Terrence Donaghey Jr., who was first diagnosed as HIV positive in 1989, complained to the EEOC. The EEOC ruled in January that the welfare fund discriminated against Donaghey. It filed the lawsuit after failing to negotiate an agreement to settle the charges.

Sharon Rennert, an EEOC adviser on the disabilities act, said the agency's policy "covers all employers," whether or not they are self-insured.

The EEOC's guidelines say that employers' health insurance plans can pay different benefits for physical and mental illnesses, and can limit coverage of all medical procedures.

But the plans cannot single out a particular disability such as AIDS, cancer or kidney disease for curtailed coverage, the guidelines say.

A company can justify limited coverage of certain disabilities by demonstrating that unlimited coverage would bankrupt the health plan, the guidelines say.

Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J., a sponsor of bills that would outlaw actions like that of the Houston music firm, called the EEOC policy "a welcome development." But he said the federal pension law, cited by the Supreme Court in the Houston case, needs to be amended to eliminate sections barring states from protecting workers covered by self-insured plans.

Clinton offers HIV-infected Haitians home

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The Clinton administration said Wednesday it will comply with a New York federal judge's ruling and admit 158 Haitian refugees, most of them infected with the AIDS virus, who are being held at the Guantanamo U.S. Naval Base in Cuba.

"We will not seek a stay in the Haiti ruling," White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said. "In other words, the people in Guantanamo will be paroled (and) brought into the United States."

However, Myers said the Justice Department might later appeal the ruling — after the refugees have entered the United States.

Administration officials said the refugees could begin arriving in the United States within the next few weeks.

The refugees are among roughly 40,000 who fled Haiti for the United States in flimsy boats following the September 1991 military coup that ousted Jean-Bertrand Aristide, the country's first freely-elected president.

Many of the so-called boat people were picked up by U.S. Coast Guard vessels and detained at Guantanamo, where their requests for asylum were processed. Thousands of those were granted preliminary asylum in the United States, while the majority held at Guantanamo were subsequently returned to Haiti.

But the 158 who remained have been held under U.S. military guard for up to 20 months on grounds that federal law forbids allowing HIV-positive immigrants into the United States.

Aristide predicts 'social explosion' could smash Haiti

MIAMI (AP) — The collapse of Haiti's military-backed government will set off a "social explosion" unless democracy is restored immediately, ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide said Wednesday.

The exiled Haitian leader said the 7,000-person army has $500 million worth of arms and is divided over how to split bribe money from drug traffickers, setting the scene for a violent clash or even civil war.

"In order to avoid that social explosion, the only way is to have the restoration of democracy," Aristide said at a hastily called news conference.

He said new support for tougher economic sanctions in the Clinton administration and the United Nations makes his peaceful return more probable now that the government of Marc Bazin has fallen.

"Now in Haiti we have a possibility for a final solution, one that has to be peaceful," Aristide said.

Aristide repeated demands for the firing of military coup leaders, an agreed-upon date for his return and the power to pick a new prime minister.

Woody opens 2nd round during child custody court fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Mia Farrow's bid to void Woody Allen's adoption of two children is just another vindictive act by his former leading lady, the filmmaker's lawyer charged as the pair returned to court Wednesday.

"This is an example of Ms. Farrow's continuing efforts to seek revenge," lawyer Elkan Abramowitz said before the closed-door hearing in Surrogate's Court. Farrow is claiming Allen's secret affair with her oldest adopted daughter constituted a fraud that should nullify the adoptions.

Allen, who this week lost his custody battle with Farrow over their three children, was more succinct before the fight began over his adoption of 15-year-old Moses and 7-year-old daughter, Dylan.

"Round Two," the director told reporters at the courthouse.

Rulings stress religious rights

This week's Supreme Court ruling overturning a New York court verdict on use of public facilities by religious groups and the decision by the High Court to let stand a ruling in a Texas case which approved a prayer in a school graduation ceremony, seem to shore-up the rights of religious groups and individuals.

That's particularly true in the instance of the court declining to review the 1992 ruling by the 5th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in regard to the graduation ceremony at Clear Creek Independent School District in the Houston surburbs. Students at the Clear Creek school planned and carried out a graduation prayer.

In a similar but significantly different Providence, R.I. case a year ago, the court ruled 5-4 that a graduation prayer would violate the principle of church-state separation.

The difference was that in the Texas case the graduation prayer was planned and carried out by students while in the Rhode Island case the graduation prayer involved a policy formulated by school administrators.

In the other case, the justices struck down in a unanimous decision action by the school district in the Long Island, N.Y. community of Center Moriches which barred Lamb's Chapel, an evangelical Christian church, from showing a six-part film series exploring issues of family togetherness and child-rearing from a Christian perspective.

Since the Center Moriches school district's rules permit "social, civic or recreational uses" of its facilities, as well as some political uses, the decision to bar the film series amounted to "viewpoint-based discrimination."

Just how important Monday's rulings were for religious groups and individuals was addressed by Mike McConnell, a University of Chicago law professor, who said, "This is going to be an important corrective" ruling for the earlier overreaction.

"What's required is neutrality, not pristine secularism," McConnell said. "This case is very important to religiously oriented students in public schools."

He's correct. The ruling sends an important message to school administrators nationwide who must understand that if they open their school facilities to non-religious groups after school hours, they cannot exclude religious groups.

That's an important step that underscores the fact that the religious still have constitutionally-protected rights.

Clinton should look at raising gasoline tax

A welcome sense of flexibility appears to be shoring up Bill Clinton's White House — compromises with conservative House Democrats on entitlement programs and bringing in more experienced hands being two examples. As Arkansas' governor, Bill Clinton also demonstrated an unconventional streak, sometimes dealing with opponents to the sharp irritation of supporters.

So now that Mr. Clinton has rediscovered his deal-making skills, why not extend them to the carved-up energy tax? Specifically, the White House should kill its supposedly broad-based energy tax — known as a Btu tax.

The administration's aim was to derive revenue from a tax on a broad range of energy sources. But in its Capitol Hill travels, the Btu tax has become infamous for its many exemptions. The overall Btu tax may not be high, but its multiple exemptions create an uneven effect. Some regions, and certain industries, would be more deleteriously affected than others.

Collecting and administering the energy tax would also be a bureaucratic nightmare. One former Treasury Department official estimates that administrative costs could absorb 10 to 20 percent of the Btu tax's revenue.

So scrap the Btu tax and introduce a nickel increase in the gasoline tax over the next five years. Some energy leaders wonder why have any energy tax, but the nation needs money to balance its books, and an energy tax provides a way to raise revenues while increasing conservation.

A gas tax has two distinct advantages: It is relatively easily administered at the refinery level and generates steady cash flow. A penny gas tax increase raises a billion dollars. U.S. gas taxes also are quite below those of competing nations, so an increase would not necessarily harm U.S. competitiveness.

Yes, energy-producing, auto-bound Texans do not naturally like gas taxes. But Texans as diverse as George Bush and Ross Perot have supported increases. If coupled with a home heating fuel tax hike, which would require Northeasterners to equally participate in energy tax increases, the gas tax could provide a simpler, cleaner means of raising revenue. Poor people could also be assisted through the proposed expansion of the earned income tax credit.

Of course, Bill Clinton is opposed to a gas tax hike. But it's time he undug his heels. A more efficient option exists.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, June 10, the 161st day of 1993. There are 204 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1922, singer-actress Judy Garland was born Frances Gumm in Grand Rapids, Minn.

In 1935, Alcoholics Anonymous was founded in Akron, Ohio, by William G. Wilson and Dr. Robert Smith.

GEORGE WILL

Congressaurus shoves industry into tar pit

WASHINGTON--At the Cato Institute, a libertarian think tank here, a recent lecturer drolly introduced himself in language fashionable in Clinton's Washington: "I am an excess of the 1980s."

He is T.J. Rodgers, president and CEO of Cypress Semiconductor, which he founded 10 years ago with one used computer and no other employee. He is one of those who, in Clinton's words, "profited most from the uneven prosperity of the last decade." (A question: What would "even" prosperity look like?)

Will

Today he is wealthy. But forgive him that sin. His company, which has paid $60 million in taxes, has created 1,500 jobs for employees who have paid $150 million in taxes. They all own Cypress stock, which has generated today's market value of $500 million for shareholders.

"Venture experts," he says, "are wrong more often than they are right. But surely they are right more often than Washington would be." If that thought is sensible, the proposed National Competitiveness Act (H.R. 820) is not.

It would get government deeply into business as a venture capitalist, providing loans to, and buying preferred stock in, venture companies. This capital allocation would be done by the Commerce Department, currently run by Ron Brown, the former lobbyist and head of the Democratic National Committee. H.R. 820 could be a political slush fund for compliant companies.

If so, it might achieve the nearly impossible--making the Commerce Department's record even worse than it is. More than half the almost $1.2 billion lent by Commerce in the last two decades is in default. In the 1970s the Economic Development Administration at Commerce lent $471 million, of which just $60 million has been recovered. And what is the penalty for such failure in Washington? A reward, such as H.R. 820's fresh infusion of taxpayers' dollars. Do you wonder why there is so much failure in Washington?

Rep. Chris Cox (R-Calif.) notes that H.R. 820 would add more than $1 billion to the deficit in 1995. It would do so by authorizing the government to buy 20 percent of the equity capital in venture firms and to guarantee the dividends on preferred stock. "I suppose, therefore," Cox says with tart irony, "it is fitting that this bill is called the National Competitiveness Act, because it will give most private firms the opportunity to compete with government-subsidized securities."

Or perhaps H.R. 820 should be titled The Wesley Mouch Memorial Bill. "This whole plan," says Cox, "reeks of special interest favoritism and make-work waste for bureaucrats. Anyone who has read Ayn Rand's 'Atlas Shrugged' will see frightening similarities between this statist scheme and the disastrous projects of the novel's arch bureaucrat, Wesley Mouch."

But Cox's preferred title for H.R. 820 is The Jurassic Park Act because it will squander money cloning "new industrial dinosaurs." The bill's premise is that Commerce bureaucrats and political operatives make better investment decisions than do authentic venture capitalists and authentic investors when putting their own money at risk.

Of course Cox and others have argued in vain. The Democratic-controlled House passed H.R. 820, not to enhance competitiveness but to concentrate yet more power in Washington, further permeating American economic life with the inefficiencies of politics.

So, which do you prefer, T.J. Rodgers, the self-described "excess of the 1980s," or H.R. 820, a sample of the excesses of the 1990s?

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Politicians deliver 'core' messages to public

"We have to first create a language," said Hillary R. Clinton to Michael Kelly of The New York Times in one of those eye-popping, seminal magaziners, "that would better communicate what we are trying to say, and the policies would flow from that language."

Safire

Language first, policy second; there's a woman who has her priorities straight. Language mavens across the land are prepared to take a crash course in Hillaryese, centered on what the writer Michael Lerner has named "the politics of meaning."

The key noun, as I interpret it, is core. "The problem with the language," wrote Mr. Kelly, troubled by the gushy jargon, "goes right to the core of the question of what it all means." He asked, "Is there one unifying idea that is at the heart of the politics of meaning?"

"I don't think there is one core thing," replied the First Lady, urging that the politics of meaning be thought through on "a variety of planes."

I have since been flying US Air, Delta and United, thinking about core values, core ideas and the whole core thing.

Only a couple of weeks ago, David Wilhelm, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, used the magic word on "Meet the Press" to define Bill Clinton's plan as including "the core idea that we need to improve the economic chances of hard-working, middle-income families."

The week before that, Senator Edward M. Kennedy showed how he could get with the program: "I think that all of us understand that one of the fundamental core values of our society is voluntary service."

Secretary of Education Richard Riley was confronted by the Hillaryese vocabulary as well, when he hosted a satellite town meeting. (A meeting in a satellite town, or suburb? No; a town meeting via satellite.) During the program, an educator said, "The core idea is that the work place becomes a learning environment for young people."

The core thing, as against the vision thing from a previous Administration, is directed inward. "Cohorts are generations of people with the same birth years and core values," wrote Natalie Perkins in Advertising Age. Philip Gailey, a columnist for The St. Petersburg Times (must be Florida; the paper in Russia is the Sankt-Peterburgskiye Vedomosti) found "continuing signs that (Clinton) is what his critics have long said he was: a politician with squishy core values."

To a previous generation, core — from the very middle of Middle English — was the acronym for the Congress of Racial Equality. To tomorrow's generation, a core dump is a copy of the data stored in the core memory of a computer, usually transferred to an external disk. (I'd better hit the "save" button before all this slips into cloud-cuckoo-land.)

In a sense, the current generation of boomers is participating in a cohort-wide core dump, downloading the word core as an attributive noun on all our heads. That may fall short of the meaning of life, but it gives us a leg up on the meaning of the politics of meaning.

An aging Gen. Douglas MacArthur, bidding farewell to the corps of cadets at his beloved West Point, presaged this plunge into the politics of meaning with his immortal closing line: "Today marks my final roll call with you. But I want you to know that when I cross the river, my last conscious thoughts will be of the core, and the core, and the core." (That's how it sounded, anyway.)

This is the only place in the whole global media where subtle, sensitive souls can find explanations of poetic allusions in current hardball political discourse.

Members of the Poetic Allusion Watch (PAW), however, have endured a dismaying year. Politicians using poetry are stooping to identify their allusions as they make them, taking out the fun and insulting the electorate.

I called the editorial department of The Times, which is indeed peopled by groupies — journalists who preserve their anonymity to speak for the institution as a whole — and reached Robert Semple, who was hanging around late that day.

"Allusion to Kipling?" he responded. "Us? This is The New York Times. We do Yeats.

What a pity. Ever since being disappointed at the paucity of PAW, I'm a fleeter, beater writer with a leaner, meaner mind. We'll come back to this study when subtlety can again be heard in the deep heart's core.

Smokers sneak outside to avert critical gazes

One of the saddest sights in a big city now are the smokers standing outside their office buildings puffing away because they are no longer permitted to smoke inside.

There are no more guilt-ridden people on earth.

They never look you in the eye. Most of them are bent over hiding their faces, staring at the cracks in the sidewalk. They inhale and exhale hoping not to be noticed by the passing crowd.

Buchwald

Father Crowly of "Our Lady of the Virginia Slims" ministers to those who are obsessed with the tobacco weed. He offered to give me a tour.

"This is my flock," he said, pointing to a group huddled in the doorway of the General Motors building.

"They are so hopeless that no one else will have anything to do with them."

"They seem to be coughing a lot," I told him.

"That does not mean they are not good people. You see the fellow in the pin-striped suit with the Countess Mara neckties? He works for an advertising agency and he's out on the sidewalk every seven minutes."

"What's so wrong with that?"

"He works on the 50th floor. Every time he sneaks down he gets short of breath.

"The woman with her back to us is Regina Dumbarton. She is a two-pack a day person and is terribly frightened that if Clinton puts a new tax on cigarettes she will have to sell her apartment to pay for her habit. She could never afford those costs on the salary she makes in her health insurance firm."

"Father, is smoking a sin?"

"It will be if they put a new tax on it."

"What do you tell people who live in dread that this could happen?"

"I tell them to get down on their knees and pray to the tobacco lobby."

"How did you get involved in saving these souls?"

"One time the Marlboro man was in the confessional and he was smoking. I breathed in his secondary smoke and I was hooked."

"Then what?"

"The cardinal issued a decree that he didn't want smoking in church, so I went out on the sidewalk where I met all these addicts that no one cared for."

We walked past Saks Fifth Avenue. Customers as well as employees were standing outside the store, not speaking to each other but lighting their cigarettes as if they hoped to find a message there.

Father Crowly said, "Some of my hardest cases are customers who don't know if they should be inside or outside the store."

"What do you do for them?"

"Give them absolution as well as coffee and doughnuts. It can be darn cold in the winter smoking in the street. Most of these people have to have coffee with their cigarettes."

Father Crowly went up to one of the smokers standing in the shadow of Radio City Music Hall. The man's hand was shaking as he tried to light his smoke.

Father Crowly took out a Zippo and lit it for him.

"God bless you, Father," the man said.

Crowly tapped him on the head, "Even chain-smokers need love."

NAFTA won't pass House, officials say

WASHINGTON (HNS) — U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., agreed in separate statements Wednesday that the proposed trade pact with Mexico would fail to win House approval if it were voted on now.

"The administration doesn't have the votes in the House on this," Dole told reporters after speaking to a group of corporate executives here. "We have the votes in the Senate. We're ready to move on this now."

Earlier, Kantor, talking to reporters at a breakfast meeting, said the pact, called the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), would be "in modestly good shape" in the Senate if a vote were held now. But the House is a different story, he said.

"If you were to take a straw poll in the House today, I think one third would be passionately for NAFTA and one third passionately against NAFTA and one third right in the middle," Kantor said.

Legislation implementing the pact requires a simple majority in each house.

Despite the faint support it now has in the House, NAFTA has a good chance for approval this fall, Kantor insisted.

"We think we have good momentum in the Congress right now as opposed to when we came into office," Kantor said. "NAFTA, as it stood on Jan. 20, was in deep trouble, especially in the House.

"It appears now that people are willing to listen, review it again" and consider side agreements being negotiated with Mexico that would toughen standards on worker safety and environmental protection, he said.

Kantor said the proposed amendments to the pact, if approved, will make NAFTA "politically viable." The negotiations will likely be completed by August, he said, adding that he hopes the proposal will be sent to Congress for approval in September.

A House source said that while no vote count on NAFTA has been taken, "it is understood, based on what most (House members) have been saying on this issue, that now is not the time to bring NAFTA up for a vote. There is not enough support for it in the House now."

White House economists, meanwhile, said a pro-NAFTA campaign will soon be waged to build support in the House.

Robert Rubin, chief of the President's Economic Security Council, said the White House is encouraging industry leaders who support the agreement to mount a massive lobbying effort for the pact.

White House specifies two court contenders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has narrowed the field of potential Supreme Court nominees to Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt and federal appeals court judge Stephen Breyer — with a decision likely this week, officials said Wednesday.

Federal appeals court judge Gilbert Merritt of Tennessee has been dropped from the list to succeed retiring Justice Byron White, two senior administration officials said.

As Clinton continued to ponder the selection, one official said the president is "very concerned" that picking Babbitt, an attorney and former Arizona governor who has never sat on the bench, would be seen as too political.

Clinton has not made his choice, said a third senior administration official close to the process. The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, noted that Clinton could change his mind and reconsider someone previously dropped.

White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said the announcement was expected later this week, perhaps Saturday.

More Chinese illegals fly to America

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Despite a dramatic rise recently in the arrival of illegal Chinese immigrants by boat, the major influx of smuggled Chinese has been through U.S. airports on both coasts.

By some estimates, hundreds of thousands of Chinese have come on planes to the United States without visas in the past few years. Although the airborne smuggling operations generally bring their customers in smaller groups than human-cargo ships, there is evidence that the Chinese who arrive by plane are also met by gang members who exact steep payments for the trip to the promised land.

New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport is the major port of entry, but San Francisco and Los Angeles have also had a share of the illegal traffic.

Earlier this week, 12 Chinese from Fujian province were apprehended at San Francisco International Airport when they disembarked from an Aeroflot (Russian Airlines) flight carrying forged visas, according to Immigration and Naturalization Service deputy district director Phil Waters.

'This represents a major movement in the direction of doing something that would allow the nation to have better control of its borders.'

— Rep. Romano Mazzoli

Saying that Chinese smuggling incidents have stirred strong bipartisan support for immigration reform, the chairman of the House immigration subcommittee announced that he will expedite a bill to toughen U.S. asylum law.

Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky, chairman of the House subcommittee on International Law, Immigration and Refugees, said a "combination of events," has reversed the political dynamic in favor of reform.

He said members of the California and New York delegations "on both the left and the right of the political dial are hearing from constituents and they're concerned," about abuse of asylum laws.

"This represents a major movement in the direction of doing something that would allow the nation to have better control of its borders," he said Wednesday.

The White House, under pressure from key congressional Democrats, appeared ready to nominate a new commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service after having left the office in the hands of Bush administration holdovers.

Sources said President Clinton has selected Doris M. Meissner, 52, a former acting INS commissioner, to head the agency.

Clinton chooses Walter Mondale for Japanese post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton is tapping former Vice President Walter Mondale to be ambassador to Japan, a move underscoring the high priority the administration attaches to improving economic relations with Tokyo.

Mondale has accepted the job offer and his nomination is likely to be announced shortly, said a senior administration official, who spoke Wednesday on condition of anonymity.

Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said an announcement was likely as soon as the nomination clears final diplomatic hurdles in Tokyo.

The news came as President Clinton forcefully expressed his resolve to reduce the United States' huge trade imbalance with Japan and dismissed Tokyo's criticism that the U.S. efforts were too harsh.

"We've got to keep pushing forward to try to show you some results from all this talking," Clinton told a group of business leaders. "We've been talking until we're blue in the face for a long time now. I'd like to show a little bit of results."

The Clinton administration earlier this week announced plans to use upcoming trade talks with Japan to increase exports of autos and auto parts, computers, telecommunications equipment and financial services. On Friday, U.S. and Japanese negotiators will meet in Washington.

FDA's new ruling forces restaurants to back up claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration reversed a Bush administration ruling and said Wednesday it will require restaurants to back up nutritional claims on their menus.

In one of its final acts, the Bush administration had exempted restaurant menus from the rules the government set forth in January for food health and nutritional claims.

But Jim O'Hara, a FDA spokesman, said the agency now has decided to propose that restaurants with health claims on their menus "meet some of the same nutrition labeling requirements as food sold in grocery stores."

The menus themselves will not have to include boxes spelling out the nutritional contents of different entrees.

But the chefs will have to be prepared to show state health inspectors recipes to justify claims that an entree is "low fat" or "light," O'Hara said.

They can do that by showing a meal was cooked according to a recipe designed to promote better nutrition or health, said O'Hara.

American dream eludes most folks in today's society

NEW YORK (AP) — Only 17 percent of Americans polled say they have achieved the American dream, and eight in every 10 say it will be harder for the next generation to do so.

A poll conducted by Gallup for the CNBC cable network found most Americans worried about obstacles that could keep them from achieving their goals.

The obstacles, ranked by those who said they were "extremely" or "very" worried, included rising taxes (72 percent), the cost of education (71 percent), catastrophic illness (67 percent), pension cuts by the government or their employer (62 percent) and cuts in employee benefits (61 percent).

Fully 58 percent were strongly worried about losing their job. Of less concern was personal debt (46 percent).

ODESSA — Rexene Corp. on Wednesday announced a new, community access telephone line for use by the Odessa residents with questions about Rexene. Rexene's General Manager Johnny Lasiter said, "A large manufacturing operation like Rexene generates sights and sounds as a part of its operation, safety and training procedures that may be unfamiliar to the general public. Odessa is our home and we want our neighbors to give us a call if they have questions, concerns or suggestions about how we do business." Lasiter said Rexene provides thousands of pages of information to regulatory agencies about its chemicals, manufacturing activities, environmental activities, safety procedures and virtually every aspect of the company. "This information is mostly available to the public," he said. "But, when government officials, lawyers, engineers and scientists get together, the reports can get very complex and lengthy. We wanted a vehicle for local residents to ask questions and get answers." Rexene's Community Access phone line, 333-8777, will be answered by Rexene employees 24 hours a day.

Perry to speak

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry will speak at the Far West Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in Odessa today at 9 a.m. at the Holiday Inn Parkway, 3001 East Highway 80. Perry will discuss bills passed by the Texas Legislature to enhance producers' conservation efforts and the Natural Resources Foundation, an organization to promote free-market environmentalism.

Pickens to run?

SAN ANTONIO — T. Boone Pickens is pondering whether to make a switch from the boardroom to the governor's mansion. But the Dallas oilman and head of Mesa Ltd. said he'll only get serious about running for governor if the price of natural gas goes up. "Let me tell you, if the natural gas price today were $3 an mcf (thousand cubic feet), I would announce at this luncheon," Pickens said Tuesday before addressing the American Water Works Association in San Antonio. But Pickens told the group's members that the natural gas price is now closer to $2 per mcf. "So, I'm a long way from making any announcement like that," he said. "We just have to be in better shape than we are right now."

Health chief: Prevention is key

■ Proper immunization of children should be top priority when health-care reforms are considered this year, commissioner says.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

State Health Commissioner David R. Smith Wednesday said education and prevention are keys to adequate health care reform in Texas.

Smith told the Leadership Midland Alumni Association that the proper immunization of children should be a top priority when state reforms are considered later this year.

Since becoming commissioner in 1992, Smith has made children's immunizations a focal point for the Texas Department of Health. He and other health officials have stressed the message that parents need to secure immunizations for their children — either through private doctors or public health clinics.

"If we continue to neglect following up on immunizations and properly caring for our children, then we should stop calling them our future," he said. "We have tried to make it impossible for any Texas parent to plead ignorance as the reason his or her child is unimmunized. But ignorance is only one of the problems. Logistics — the geographic availability of vaccinations at sensible hours for working families — are still a major stumbling block."

"It is long past time for us to have all but wiped out such devastating diseases as measles'

— Commissioner David R. Smith

Smith said there are several things inherently wrong — yet easily fixable — with the health care system.

"It just doesn't compute. We fund intensive care units for measles and pneumonia, yet we don't provide measles vaccines," he said. "Masectomies are covered, yet breast self-examination training is not. We need to start paying for prevention."

Currently, there are several bills pending in the Texas Legislature meant to guarantee protection against vaccine-preventable illnesses.

The proposed legislation would make doctors and hospitals responsible for reviewing children's vaccination records, and either immunizing the children with any needed vaccines or referring them for treatment at an appropriate clinic.

He cited the recent outbreak of measles cases in Dallas and San Antonio that amounted to millions of dollars in health costs.

"We have a system that says diseases have symptoms, but symptoms don't have diseases. Think about it," he said. "In this state we actually track lottery tickets — we can know where each 13-digit ticket was bought, but we can't find a way to keep immunization records."

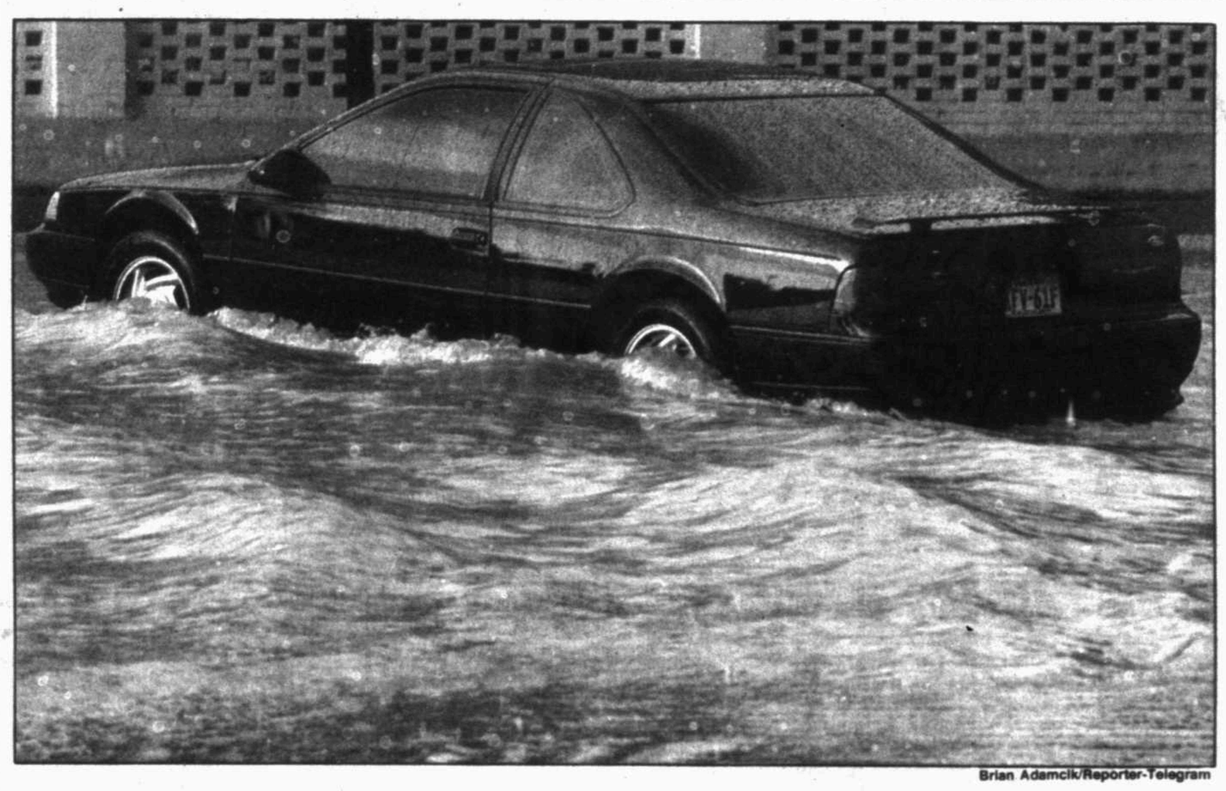

And, indeed, other parts of the legislation call for the creation of a statewide immunizations tracking system — an automated system for contacting families whose immunizations are incomplete.

"It is long past time for us to have all but wiped out such devastating diseases as measles, yet within the past five years, more than 3,700 Texas children younger than 5 have had the disease — including 12 who died from complications," he said.

P&S president thinks hospital role to change

■ Health care will shift to outpatient concept, Michael Potter says.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Michael S. Potter, the 37-year-old president and chief executive officer of Midland's Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, said Wednesday that health care is shifting more and more to "an outpatient concept" from the traditional emphasis on inpatient care.

Potter

While the "traditional role of the hospital has always been to treat acute illnesses," community needs are moving to outpatient care.

"We are moving more and more toward an outpatient concept," Potter said. "And we have to incorporate wellness in that whether we provide it directly through the hospital or through other providers."

Inmate's lawsuit claims his prison sentence is illegal

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

A federal inmate has filed a motion to set aside his prison sentence claiming that it should be overturned because of double jeopardy.

Charles Farmer filed the lawsuit in federal court Wednesday morning via mail from his cell in the Federal Correctional Institution in Bastrop. Farmer's lawsuit indicates that the United States should "correct the illegal sentence" that he received.

Farmer is serving five years in the federal prison as a part of a plea bargain deal for an April 1991 arrest for possession of a firearm during a drug transaction. He was also sentenced to

Weather, like human nature, is unpredictable

Weather, like human nature, is alive and fascinating.

While you may never know what's going to happen, it's for sure that the unpredictable will not be surprising.

Todd

Rain or shine, the weather gets everybody's attention. Well, virtually everybody's attention, since, possibly, there are some different drummers out there who are oblivious to changes in the weather. It's a strain to imagine, but it's probably so.

"Everybody talks about the weather," Charles Dudley Warner wrote in the Hartford Courant in 1897, "but nobody does anything about it."

That's as true now as it was then.

But folk still talk about the changing weather as if watching, scrutinizing and following its meandering ways somehow might alter its path and intensity and mitigate its threat.

Wednesday's foreboding dark-gray clouds moved here and yon like a mysterious, living being over the West Texas plains. The living movement invited and incited excitement and imagination.

Cloud formations, both angular and rounded, take on the appearance of art sketched by a capricious, mercurial artist-mathematician-physicist whose literary powers are in the clouds' delineation.

Ominous and fearsome cloud formations excite, enrage, intimidate, fascinate, impress, woo, court and make fearful and awe-struck the heart and mind of man and his mate. Their mere being and appearance causes tired and weary folk to become alive and exuberant and full of wonderment.

Clouds are powerful and overpowering, for they contain forces that mortal souls cannot alter or control or explain without contradiction. They bring the enrichment of rain and the dread of pain.

They bless the land and its inhabitants with the soothing gift of life. And from time to time, the forces which emerge from clouds torment the land, its people, its critters, and their playthings and habitats.

Words of weather can conjure up fear: cyclone, tornado, hurricane, typhoon, thunderstorm, deathly fog, hailstorm.

They can tease the mind's-eye: dust-devil, thundershowers, light and variable.

They can placate the soul: gentle showers on a hot summer day, slight breezes at daybreak, mist in a garden of flowers.

Indeed, it is the all-encompassing weather and its interacting with the rise and set of the sun and with the hues of sunlight reflecting off the clouds that transfer prose to poetry.

Tape contrasts Koresh's, top aide's reactions

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — While his followers panicked and pleaded for a cease-fire, cult leader David Koresh calmly offered Biblical interpretations to a law enforcement officer during the Feb. 28 raid on his compound near Waco.

Koresh's eerily calm reaction to the fierce gunbattle between members of the Branch Davidian cult and federal agents was captured on a tape recording of calls that Koresh and one of his top lieutenants made to the local 911 number during the raid.

The 30-minute tape, which was released at a congressional hearing Wednesday, offers an extraordinary look at the chaos inside the cult compound during the intense firefight. The shooting started when more than 100 agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms tried to serve search and arrest warrants on Koresh's heavily armed followers.

The recording also indicates that law enforcement officials suffered a severe breakdown in communications that hampered meaningful negotiations with Koresh during the firefight.

"Stand by, David, we're having a heck of a problem with communications," Lt. Larry Lynch of the McLennan County Sheriff's Office told the cult leader during negotiations over whether Koresh would let law enforcement officials retrieve the bodies of slain and wounded ATF agents.

Lynch, who handled back-to-back 911 calls from cult member Wayne Martin and Koresh, failed in three attempts to reach the ATF communications center during his talks. The officer's conversations with cult members were punctuated by repeated bursts of gunfire.

"They're still firing. I can hear the bullets. God Almighty!" Lynch said in an aside to one of his colleagues in the 911 operations center. "Listen to that!"

But the most striking aspect of the tape is the stark contrast between Martin's panicky reaction to the raid and Koresh's nonchalance.

"There are 75 men around our building shooting at us in Mount Carmel," Martin said in the first 911 call shortly after the shooting started. "Tell them there are children and women in here and to call it off! Call it off!"

Martin, a Harvard-educated lawyer who became one of Koresh's most trusted aides, later reported that he could hear the screams of a wounded cult member.

"I'm under fire!" he shouted. "I have a right to defend myself. They started firing first."

Koresh, in contrast, sounded as if he could have been placing a call to directory assistance. The cult leader apparently called 911 during a brief cease-fire, but the shooting resumed during his conversation.

"Hello, this is Dave Koresh," he said calmly. "David Koresh, Mount Carmel Center. We're being shot up out here ... What did you guys do that for?"

Koresh, who seemed to think that the sheriff's department was leading the raid, told Lynch that he knew that an undercover agent had infiltrated his cult.

"You brought a bunch of guys out here and you killed some of my children. We told you we wanted to talk. How come you guys try to be ATF agents?" the cult leader asked the sheriff's department official. "There's a bunch of us dead. There's a bunch of you dead. Now that's your fault."

Koresh, who insisted that he and his followers were "not trying to be bad guys," launched into a rambling lecture about his apocalyptic interpretation of the Bible and the seven seals in the Book of Revelation.

"It's your Bible," he told Lynch. "There are seven seals. There are things in that Bible that have been held as mysteries about Christ."

"Yes, sir," Lynch replied.

"Now," Koresh continued, "what it says in Revelations 22 is, 'Because I come quickly, my reward is with me.' The statement is, What reward did Christ receive in heaven from the Father? He received the seven seals."

After listening to more of Koresh's views, Lynch gently tried to steer the conversation to the ongoing confrontation between the cult and federal agents.

"Can I interrupt you for a minute?" the officer asked. "We can talk theology, but right now ... "

"No," Koresh interrupted. "This is life. This is life and death. Theology is life and death. You have come and stepped on my perimeter."

Later, Lynch negotiated with Koresh about maintaining a cease-fire while law enforcement officials removed slain and wounded ATF agents.

"How many individuals are you planning on sending to take the wounded away?" the cult leader asked. "What are they going to be dressed in? Are they going to be dressed in white, unarmed?"

Seconds later, Lynch lost his phone link to the cult compound. When the sheriff's lieutenant called back, he reached Koresh's answering machine.

"Hello, I'm not in right now so please leave your name, telephone number and message after the beep," the cult leader's recorded message said. "Thank you."

The tape, which was obtained by investigators for a House Appropriations subcommittee, was released on the opening day of a two-day hearing on the ATF's role in the cult standoff. Among other questions, members of the subcommittee on treasury, postal service and general government want to know how the ATF lost the element of surprise on the day of the raid.

Top ATF officials said their lead undercover agent reported that he was "very uncomfortable" and feared exposure on his last visit to the cult compound shortly before the Sunday morning raid. They said they have not yet determined whether the agent's concerns should have prompted ATF officials in Texas to call off the raid.

The ATF officials also assured lawmakers that cult members, not ATF agents, started the firefight that left four agents dead and 16 wounded.

"When we pulled up that day, Koresh was in the door," said Daniel Hartnett, the agency's associate director for law enforcement. "He stepped inside the door, and the firing began."

Sharon Wheeler, the agency's public affairs officer in Dallas, denied suggestions that she might have compromised the raid by alerting reporters in advance. Reporters from a Waco newspaper and a Waco television station followed the raiding officers into the cult compound.

Wheeler said she had no contact with Waco reporters before the raid.

ATF officials said their agency has spent about $4.6 million on the raid and related investigations. The agency's involvement with Koresh began in June 1992 with a tip that he was stockpiling illegal weapons.

The 51-day standoff ended in a fire that killed Koresh and most of his followers.

ROLE: P&S' Potter looks forward to expanding hospital's services based Champion Healthcare from a group of Midland investors.

Potter moved to Midland from Ennis, where he was executive director of Baylor Medical Center, a not-for-profit affiliate of the Baylor University Health Care System.

While at Ennis, he was active in the Chamber of Commerce, American Heart Association, Lions Club International, the United Way and the First Presbyterian Church.

"I look forward to being able to be a part of that (community affairs) here in Midland," Potter said. "I'm working with you and for you in the community."

Potter, speaking at the Midland Chamber of Commerce in a press conference, said that he is "excited about the opportunities ... to continue the quality service that Physicians & Surgeons Hospital is providing." The hospital, he said, has "an excellent group of employees and physicians."

"I'm also excited about the opportunities for building and developing not only the facility but also the range of services that we have."

Potter said he is interested in "building and developing relations" in Midland at the "personal, professional, community" levels.

The three-year-old Champion Healthcare, which owns and operates the 330-bed BayCoast Center in Baytown and the 127-bed Heartland Medical Center in Fargo, N.D., purchased the private Midland hospital with the intention of building a completely new Midland medical center designed for emerging concepts in medical care — the increasing emphasis on outpatient treatment.

Custom-building a hospital would be more practical than "retrofitting" an older hospital, noted Ron Patterson, Champion Healthcare's chief operating officer. Site selection and planning are under way, Patterson said, and the new hospital would be built within 18 to 20 months.

Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, in gearing to meet community needs, is growing in a "healthy" market, he said.

"As in most businesses, we feel that competition is good. Both facilities in town, with active competition, will grow and be stronger," Patterson said in referring to Physicians & Surgeonsl and 335-bed Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

"What's important nowadays in building a hospital is to try to keep people from becoming an in-patient," he said. "In the years gone by, people were traditionally inpatients first and outpatients second. With the wellness programs and many other things than are ongoing in the form of preventative medicine, much more is done on an out-patient basis to try to keep people out of the hospital.

"And the sort of hospital that we build will attend to those kinds of needs."

James VanDevender, Champion Healthcare's chief financial officer, said that Champion "is a fairly small company" with no specific objective "to be a large company or to be any larger than we are today."

"When we formed Champion," VanDevender said, "Mr. (Charles) Miller (Champion's president and CEO) and I decided to very carefully select specific projects that we could personally be involved with" and "make investments that we thought made sense in the communities in which we bought hospitals."

In a prepared statement, Miller said that Potter "is a mature, seasoned, visionary health-care executive. His commitment to community involvement, participatory management style, and successful record of working with physicians fits the profile of our CEOs."

Potter holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from Trinity University in San Antonio. His graduate degree is in health-care administration.

three years of supervised release following his prison stint.

Citing other law cases, Farmer alleges that his sentencing is in violation of the double jeopardy clause because he is serving "pyramiding of punishments in consecutives for the same act."

Farmer indicates that the supervised release and the prison sentence are two sentences for one crime. He also states that a specific statute says supervised release is not applicable for the crime of using a firearm during a felony.

A law clerk in U.S. District Court Judge Lucius Bunton's office indicated that under a section of the U.S. Code a prison term may include supervised release after imprisonment. The clerk also indicated that any drug offense is subject to a minimum five-year prison sentence plus supervised release.

TODD: Weather must have a soul

both confirms and sustains life.

Like the creator of all things, weather is always with the people, critters and things which it gently caresses or severely strikes. It is a living force which doesn't judge. Rather, weather is judged not so much for what it is but for what it does.

Surely, weather has a soul. It seems so.

Choosing gift tie is knotty issue

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

It's the least useful item in his wardrobe, known for color not comfort, and the first to catch a dab of ketchup, a drop of wine, a dribble of gravy.

But for all its foibles, the necktie is one of Western man's few statements of fashion individuality and many a man wouldn't go to the office without one.

Denis Boyles, who says he's worn a necktie every day since adolescence, looks on it as a badge of maturity.

"Men constantly complain that they hate this thing around their neck, but I think it means you've accepted the responsibility of being a grown-up and that you've entered the world of the gainfully employed," says Boyles, editor-at-large for Men's Health magazine and author of "The Modern Man's Guide to Modern Women" (Harper Perennial, July 1993, $16).

Boyles, who lives and writes on a farm in the Pennsylvania mountains, says he doesn't feel like he's ready for business unless he wears a tie.

"I put it on, feed the cows and then go type.

"For the self-employed, the necktie is the 'Open' sign that you hang in your window."

AMERICANS, WORKING alone or trying to stand out in corporate world, buy about 100 million ties each year, according to the Neckwear Association of America, 15 million of those purchases are for Father's Day. The association says prices average $12.50 to $15 apiece, though a tie can run as high as $90.

While a lot of dads might appreciate a tie that makes a serious statement, a lot of families express their love with thematic or conversational ties.

"Conversational ties are the T-shirts of the '90s," says Gerald Andersen, executive director of the Neckwear Association, a trade group in New York.

"Back in the '60s when many of us were in our formative years, your T-shirt was your billboard," he says. "When people had something to say, that's how they said it.

"Now that they've achieved a certain status in their careers, they're wearing neckties that fulfill that function."

For maturing baby boomers, drawings by John Lennon have been reproduced by Burma Bibas as wearable art. For aging Deadheads, there's Stonehenge's line based on Jerry Garcia's drawings. The company also has newly introduced the Art of Miles Davis in Neckwear, inspired by the jazz great's vibrant abstract paintings.

For those who miss — or missed out on — the Summer of Love, the groovy Fillmore Poster Tie collection by Mulberry Ties salutes the legendary rock palaces both East and West.

For a word to the wacky, there are dozens of options from Ralph Marlin, the firm that made a splash in the 1980s with its tacky yet trendy wide-mouth fish ties. Marlin currently pays tribute to Elvis Presley (young and hunky or old and chunky — take your pick), and the Three Stooges — the company's best-seller. There are ties for fans of "Star Trek," "I Love Lucy," Harley-Davidson, Dracula, major league baseball and the NFL.

SPORTS THEMES are perennial favorites for buyers and sellers alike. They run the gamut from major pronouncements of team loyalty to understated elegance of small overall prints such as Hermes' thoroughbred horses and Tommy Hilfiger's baseball player.

For the young at heart, Schreter Neckwear is introducing seven new silk ties from its Where's Waldo line. Waldo, you'll remember, is the Martin Hanford children's book character who hides among densely packed people and objects. There's also MAD magazine silk neckwear introduced at Sears stores in May in eight Spy vs. Spy and Alfred E. Neuman designs.

For the politically correct, there are prints of endangered species. Wemco's series in silk includes leopards, zebras, eagles, wolves, elephants, dolphins, and more, all in their natural habitat. Wemco also offers the American Film Classics collection.

"We've got all the old MGM productions, a total of 188 films with actual scenes of the movie stars," says Sidney Pulitzer, Wemco chairman and CEO in New Orleans.

THERE'S A compelling emotional component in selecting a tie, says Dr. Joyce Brothers. So if you give one this Father's Day that seems never to be worn, just remember that the reason for rejection is more than a matter of taste.

"Because ties are not a necessity," Brothers says, "the choice is very meaningful to men."

Neckties need proper care

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

Shopping for a tie doesn't have to be a pain in the neck.

Start by touching the tie to test its quality, suggests Jeffrey Schenkel, vice president of men's furnishings at Brooks Brothers in New York. It should feel smooth. The finest ones are made of pure silk.

The fabric should be crisp, not flimsy, says Barry Goldsmith, managing director of Burberry's in New York.

"Some people like a crepe de chine lightweight, while others like a somewhat heavier silk which gives a slightly bigger knot," he says.

Schenkel says the heavier the silk, the more durable the tie.

Today's favored tie width is 3⅞ inches, according to Gerald Andersen, executive director of the Neckwear Association of America in New York.

Tie length can range from 52 to 58 inches. The important thing, Schenkel says, is that a necktie, once tied, should reach the waistband of your trousers.

With proper care a tie, like a good suit, can last for years. But unlike a suit, a tie should never be dry-cleaned. It compresses the lining, dulls the silk and causes the impression of the labels to show through the front, Schenkel says.

Before you remove your tie, always unknot it, says Schenkel. Don't yank it from one side to another. That puts undue stress on the tie. So does wearing it on consecutive days.

"You should rest a tie rather than wearing it two or three days in a row to relax the creases from the knot," Goldsmith says.

Some men roll their ties in a drawer, but Goldsmith recommends hanging them on a tie rack. "This allows them to get a little bit of air and maintain their freshness."

DEAR ABBY

Divorced dad's gifts of roses point to thorny times ahead

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on the divorced father who sent his 6-year-old daughter a dozen long-stemmed roses for St. Valentine's Day ... and his girlfriend of three years, a dozen short-stemmed roses! (He lamely blamed it on "a friend" who ordered them for him.)

Van Buren

First of all, how about something more practical and lasting for a 6-year-old — such as time, shared values, or a memorable trip to the zoo?

Second, don't discount the girlfriend's feelings. Feelings aren't right or wrong. She has a right to have hers.

To the girlfriend: Things will probably not change with your boyfriend, unless they get worse. Men do lots of stupid things regarding children from former marriages to assuage their guilt. Evaluate carefully before making any long-term plans with this one!

I've been there twice, and the only thing I can change about someone else is my attitude. — L.M., DENVER

DEAR L.M.: Let's hear it from another woman who has been there:

DEAR ABBY: Let me assure you that the question of indulging and overcompensating children after divorce will be a critically important factor in the next marriage — where emotional power struggles are bound to occur. A dozen long-stemmed roses for a 6-year-old? That is a totally unnecessary gesture, which is both a thoughtless put-down of the girlfriend and a subtle message that empowers a 6-year-old.

"Jealous Valentine" is wise to bring this touchy issue and her feelings out into the open. She needs to know what her boyfriend's priorities are going to be, in order to have a healthy, well-balanced marriage — especially where stepchildren are involved.

My experience over 20 years has proved that the husband/wife relationship needs to be top priority, with the children a close second — and the children need to know this!

If a stepparent is willing to be a totally self-sacrificing partner, let the children be indulged to the hilt — but if you want and need more from a marriage, either speak up, or beware! — DELAWARE STEPMOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I'm hopeful this information will help men who have been married for a long time, then suddenly lose their spouses and need help in knowing how to court again.

Initially, he needs to lose weight, and then, a vehicle is needed — one that is late model and clean. No trucks, vans or old jalopies, please.

Second: nice clothes — something new in preference to something that has been hanging in the closet for years.

Third: new shaving lotion/cologne, which will make him smell wonderful.

Fourth: more attention paid to body cleanliness and deodorant.

Fifth: more attention paid to oral hygiene.

Sixth: more than $20 in pocket when going on a date, even if a credit card is used.

In summary, nothing turns off a romance faster than to violate any of the above. Particularly if the lady is a high-class lady, it is essential that he have a car equal to hers or better. — HIGH-CLASS LADY, LAKE COUNTY, FLA.

DEAR LADY: What if he is kind, considerate, thoughtful, decent, well-mannered, hardworking and honest, but drives a 1976 jalopy? Come on, lady ... your values need a tune-up.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. AT WIT'S END

Young patients are victors in cancer fight

By Erma Bombeck

Is there anything more painful than outliving your talent or your money?

Bombeck

You bet. Outliving your children.

I've been around parents who had to give a child back, and their lives take on a numbness that miraculously pulls them along from one day to the next. Even when the life of a child is threatened, parents must endure the what-ifs and wonder if they are strong enough to deal with it.

Readers of this column know that a couple of years ago I wrote a book on children surviving cancer called, "I Want to Grow Hair. I Want to Grow Up. I Want to Go to Boise." (It's out of print, so I'm not plugging it.) I thought you'd like an update on what has happened to some of the kids in the book.

Melissa Denney was 10 years old when she was diagnosed with cancer. For 10 years she sacrificed her childhood to the disease. She was 21 when I interviewed her. On my desk is a current picture of Melissa, with her husband and new baby.

Ted Kennedy Jr. of Boston was quoted in the book, "What girl would want to go out with some kid with one leg?" He just announced his engagement to be married. He lost a leg to cancer in 1973.

Last Mother's Day I received a special card from Aaron Asencio and his family. Aaron, from Crestline, Calif., discovered a lump on his neck on prom night and later was diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL). He is doing well.

A white official-looking envelope arrived this week from Michelle Hawley, who was diagnosed with ALL in her junior year in high school. The disease returned during her sophomore year at the University of Arizona. Inside the envelope was an announcement that Michelle was graduating summa cum laude with a BA in education from Arizona State University.

The successes of these kids have somehow found their way back to my desk like tired warriors returning victorious from a battle. They are telling me, "I made it." Many have lived their lives surrounded by white walls and pale, worried faces. Normalcy is something they will never again take for granted.

I have also heard from parents whose children fought just as valiantly — and lost. Surprisingly, the letters of these parents are not filled with anger or bitterness. They are filled with a sense of wonderment at how many things they personally missed in life until a child put it in perspective.

Without exception, every child I talked with didn't want people to forget he or she was here. That's why so many of them wrote diaries and drew pictures of their experience.

Could we forget them? Not a chance.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You find that your priorities have changed. Cut yourself loose from negative people and situations. Discussing a financial roadblock with understanding friends could lead to a windfall next autumn. An older person makes a valuable suggestion. Learn from someone else's mistakes. Get all promises in writing. Intelligent and charming, you are adept at obtaining support from influential people. Live up to your promises!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Judy Garland, lawyer F. Lee Bailey, Miss America 1993 Leanza Cornett, Britain's Prince Philip.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Have more faith in a parent's or child's efforts. Be loving and patient with those who lack self-confidence. Your encouragement works wonders! Cupid's arrow strikes its target.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You should get the response you seek before the weekend. Refuse to remain in a hurtful relationship. New financial benefits come your way when you volunteer to help a business associate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You find a new creative challenge at work and decide to stay put. Good news arrives late in the day. Tell romantic partner the truth if you have enough faith in your relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put your own needs first today. As long as you keep your temper under control, you can make substantial gains. You are strongly attracted to a newcomer. A magnanimous gesture wins rave reviews.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make certain you handle family responsibilities in a mature manner. Take stock of a parent's or child's needs before making any firm decisions. Romance is somewhat predictable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A permanent relationship becomes possible. Know the difference between infatuation and true love. A major personal decision cannot be postponed. Make up your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Postpone a job change until later in the year. An opportunity to boost your income may not be all it seems. Display your special talents to best advantage. Travel with family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Help a loved one find a new creative challenge. Your warm personality wins you many friends. An exciting romance is part of the picture. Athletic activities capture your interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those who work in the arts receive great news today. Share the limelight. A willingness to forgive and forget will help you avoid a major confrontation at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An improvement in your personal appearance makes someone influential see you in a new light. Job performance is still the most important factor in career advancement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not let a setback get you down. Eventually you will win big! Be gracious in victory. The reappearance of a former romantic partner could lead to a new inner peace.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your willingness to look ahead helps you make the future bright. A new place or face, or piece of information, will get a stalled project off the ground. Romance looks happy.

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

Here's a hand that is a finesser's paradise. Three entries to dummy and three simple finesses to take. What an irony that all the finesses fail and the winning line requires only one of those entries and a simple endplay. All you have to do is spot it.

The auction would meet anyone's standards. With a combined count of 27 and fillers in South's five-card suit, life should be simple. And it is for a good dummy player.

The odds on winning one of three finesses is a little short of 90 percent and that would be good enough for most players. But why settle for less than the whole loaf?

Accurate declarer play is to win the first club in dummy. There are eight fast tricks and just one more in any of the suits barring clubs will give you the game. When you discover the 4-0 club split, cash three more club tricks, ending on the table, to strip the defenders of all their cards in that suit. What now?

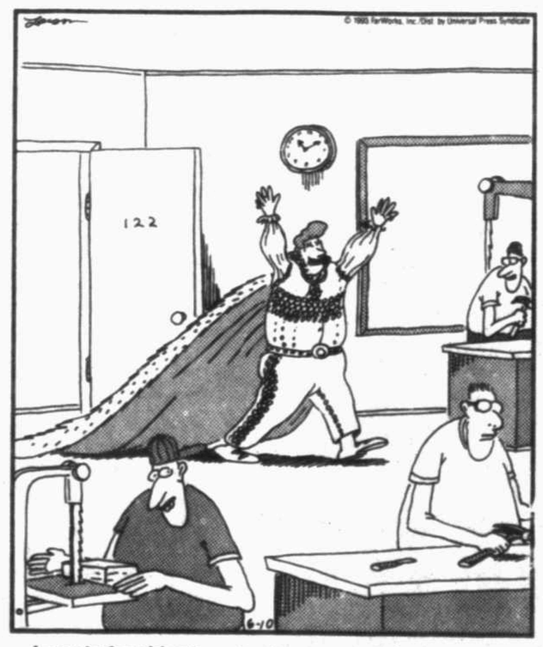

The sure-trick line is to lead a heart and simply cover any card that East produces. If East plays low, your plan should be to insert the nine to endplay West. But let's suppose that an enterprising defender inserts the ten. You simply cover with the queen and, although that loses to the king, your A-9 still constitutes a major tenace.

In with the heart, West must do your work for you. No matter which suit that defender returns it will present you with the fulfilling trick. Simple, isn't it?

Actor Ted Danson's wife ends 15-year marriage with divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Ted Danson's wife has filed for divorce, citing irreconcilable differences as the reason to end their 15-year marriage.

Danson

Cassandra Danson filed the Superior Court divorce petition on June 3. Danson and his wife separated in October.

An agreement on division of assets was sealed by a judge. The couple will have joint custody of daughters Katherine, 13, and Alexis, 8.

Danson publicist Annette Wolf said Wednesday he would have no comment on the divorce filing. Newspapers have romantically linked Danson and his "Made in America" co-star Whoopi Goldberg, but they have refused to comment.

The future of the romance between dashing Manhattan lawyer John F. Kennedy Jr. and dishy Manhattan actress Darryl Hannah is considered by the New York Observer's Frank DiGiacomo, who notes:

Kennedy is said to have moved out of his downtown loft and into Hannah's apartment on the Upper West Side of Manhattan. Hannah is the first woman (since Jackie O.) with whom he has lived.

When Hannah went to Los Angeles recently to devote her professional self to "Attack of the 50-Foot Woman," Kennedy apparently "visited her on at least one occasion."

Hannah is rumored to have bought a wedding dress at a recent flea market. A source "close to the actress" told DiGiacomo that she is "talking about making some significant changes."

Kennedy is said to be considering changes, too. According to a legal insider, he has begun at work to make sure "all of his i's are dotted and his t's are crossed." The Observer speculates that this means a possible run for public office.

Running is "something I consider a lot," Kennedy told the New York Post's William Norwich. The drawbacks: "Once you run for office, you're in it," said Kennedy. "Sort of like going into the military — you'd better be sure that it is what you want to do and the rest of your life is set up to accommodate that. It takes a certain toll on your personality and on your family life."

CORK, Ireland — Sinead O'Connor issued a statement in the form of a poem that asks the public to "stop hurting me."

The Irish singer, who ripped up a photo of the pope on "Saturday Night Live" and was later booed off the stage at Madison Square Garden, gave the statement to a newspaper, explaining why she abruptly pulled out of a peace concert in Dublin last weekend.

O'Connor said in the statement, published Wednesday in the Cork Examiner, that as a child she was "tortured and abandoned and spat at and abused."

"If only I can fight off the voices of my parents and gather a sense of self esteem. Then I'll be able to really sing. Which is what I want more than everything else in the world."

O'Connor has said before that she was abused by her parents.

She explains in the poem how the public can help her:

"Stop hurting me please.
Saying mean things about me.
I've been in public since I was only twenty.
Still a very sad baby.
But I could sing then because I wasn't frightened.
I know I've been angry
but I am full of love really do you think you could stop hurting me?
It is suffocating me.
Please?"

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Garrison Keillor and his traveling radio show returned to Birmingham to make up for a snow-bound performance in March.

People who missed Keillor's March show because of a severe blizzard didn't actually get a rain check. But those who didn't ask for a refund on their tickets got on a priority list for Tuesday night's performance.

The Alabama Theatre had a full house of 2,100 for the tall tales of the Minnesotan who has made his name with stories of the make-believe town of Lake Wobegon.

Keillor and his crew performed songs they wrote about Birmingham, the blizzard and Bear Bryant.

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — One horse in the upcoming Gold Cup Polo Competition will have a Monkee on its back.

Mickey Dolenz, former drummer for the Monkees, will play for the Southfield team during the July 17 event. He spends his time on the amateur polo circuit when he's not acting, singing or directing.

"I called Polo magazine to find out if any celebrities play polo," said Nimrod Rosenthal, Southfield's community relations director. "The woman there told me about Mickey Dolenz."

Dolenz, who lives in Los Angeles, said he plays celebrity polo and tennis, mostly for charitable causes. The Southfield team will take on Tampa Bay in the fifth annual competition, expected to draw about 3,000 spectators.

Evening wear barely there

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — For the last couple of summers, the "it" evening look was the littlest slip of a dress that clung to every curve. This season a slip is still it, but now it's supposed to be as sheer as a night mist and waft around the ankles.

For fashion fanatics, it's not a new idea to wear sheer clothes. What IS new is their widespread availability — and acceptance. These diaphanous drifts of dresses are all over town. Bloomingdale's is filled with versions from well-priced labels like DKNY and Nicole Miller.

A Belgian designer, Dries van Noten, offers one of the most seductive and interestingly detailed of the genre. Made of midnight blue chiffon, its diagonal seams have a somewhat puckered effect. Barneys New York has it for $685.

The big question is what to wear under these wisps of slips. Joovay, at 436 West Broadway (between Prince and Spring streets), carries the ideal underpinnings.

A body-hugging cotton tank dress costs around $60. And a silk charmeuse slip that ends at mid-calf is $140. Either of these under something sheer makes it possible to sally out in style but with a modicum of modesty.

New 'sneakers' anything but ordinary

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Let the rest of the world plod around in sensible sneakers. It takes real attitude to strut in this season's spoofy versions.

And there are plenty of them out there. All of the new sneakers bear a passing resemblance to the real thing, with white laces and thick molded rubber soles. But after that, they take off into the wild blue yonder.

The wackiest are the open-toed sneaker mules from Gaultier Junior. They cost $115 at Barneys New York Co-Op.

In the same vein are Sam & Libby's "high jump" oxfords. Made of navy canvas, they rest on a stocky heeled sole and lace up to just under the ankle. They are $34 at Bloomingdale's.

Also at Bloomingdale's, for $38, are Sam & Libby's high-heeled, high-top sneakers that look a lot like ice skates without the blades.

In a more classic vein are Esprit's "clipper" mules ($26 at Bloomingdale's), thick-soled sneakers with the backs snipped out. And at the Ecco boutiques in Manhattan, there are sneakers with triple-thick soles for $68.

These sneakers work best with a long tube T-shirt dress, the shortest shorts, or leggings.

Blaylock signs

ATLANTA — Point guard Mookie Blaylock, a former star at Midland College, is set to direct the Atlanta Hawks' offense for five more years.

The Hawks announced Wednesday that Blaylock has agreed to a five-year contract, terms of which were not disclosed. The new deal negates the option year he had under his old contract with the New Jersey Nets.

The Hawks obtained Blaylock from New Jersey at the start of the 1992-93 season in exchange for Rumeal Robinson. He averaged 13.4 points, 8.4 assists and 2.5 steals.

"He has provided the stability and leadership we needed at that position, and we look forward to his continuing development over the next five years," Hawks president Stan Kasten said.

SMU in Cotton

DALLAS — Southern Methodist will kick off its football season with a Sept. 4 game against Arkansas at the Cotton Bowl, Mayor Steve Bartlett announced Wednesday.

"It is a very important event for the city," Bartlett said of the first Cotton Bowl matchup between the schools since 1978.

SMU Athletic Director Forrest Gregg said Bartlett's role in securing the venerable station for the game was "another example of his strong commitment to amateur athletics in Dallas."

The statium is under renovation for the 1994 World Cup soccer tournament. A new press box won't be complete until late September, so a temporary one will be built in the upper deck of the west side. The remainder of the west upper deck will be closed to spectators.

The number of seats available for the football game will likely be in excess of the 53,801 capacity for next month's Gold Cup soccer games.

The opening game at the Cotton Bowl will mark Danny Ford's debut at Arkansas.

Oilers ink six

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers announced Wednesday the signing of six free agents and the releasing of eight other players.

Clint Gwaltney, who had a tryout with the Oilers during 1992 training camp was signed as a place kicker, guard/center Hesham Ismail, guard Rob Wallow.

Also signed were rookies Lee Williamson as quarterback, cornerback Tony Rand and defensive end Jody Kilian.

The Oilers announced they had waived the following players: defensive end Chris Burns, defensive tackle Monte Cuba, cornerback Dale Joseph and linebacker Corey Edmond.

Also waived were rookies Steve Carmer, a safety, Paul Gipson, a cornerback, Stephen Harris, a cornerback and John Lewis a wide receiver.

■ Chicago defeats Phoenix in Game 1 of the NBA finals as Michael Jordan gets a leg up on Sir Charles.

Associated Press

PHOENIX — The Chicago Bulls took the first step in their final sprint to a third consecutive NBA title Wednesday night.

The Bulls contested every Phoenix outside shot, harassing the usually high-scoring Suns into 44.4 percent shooting and won the opener of the NBA Finals 100-92.

Michael Jordan scored 31 points and Scottie Pippen 27 for Chicago, which could be building the most dominant NBA dynasty since Boston won eight consecutive titles from 1959-66. Minneapolis is the only other franchise to win three straight championships, from 1952-54.

Chicago's defense was so effective that the Suns took just 15 free throws, 49 less than they took in Game 7 of the Western Conference finals against Seattle on Saturday.

Despite their shooting woes, Phoenix fought back from a 20-point deficit in the second period to within two points late in the third.

"We hung in there. We knew we gave away the momentum," Jordan said, breaking his long media boycott. "We came back and established ourselves in the second half and fought off their surges."

Richard Dumas, who didn't even play in the Suns' final victory over the SuperSonics, had 20 points and 12 rebounds. Charles Barkley had 21 points and 11 rebounds for the Suns, the highest-scoring team in the NBA's regular season with 113 points per game on the way to a league-high 62 victories.

"We knew we wanted to control the tempo," Jordan said. "This team is a run-and-gun type of team. When they get in the fast-breaking game they are dangerous. With our defense we just wanted to control the tempo."

As he has done so often in the past, Jordan started slowly, with just 10 points in the first half. But he scored the Bulls' first four baskets of the fourth period, keeping them narrowly ahead of the scrappy Suns.

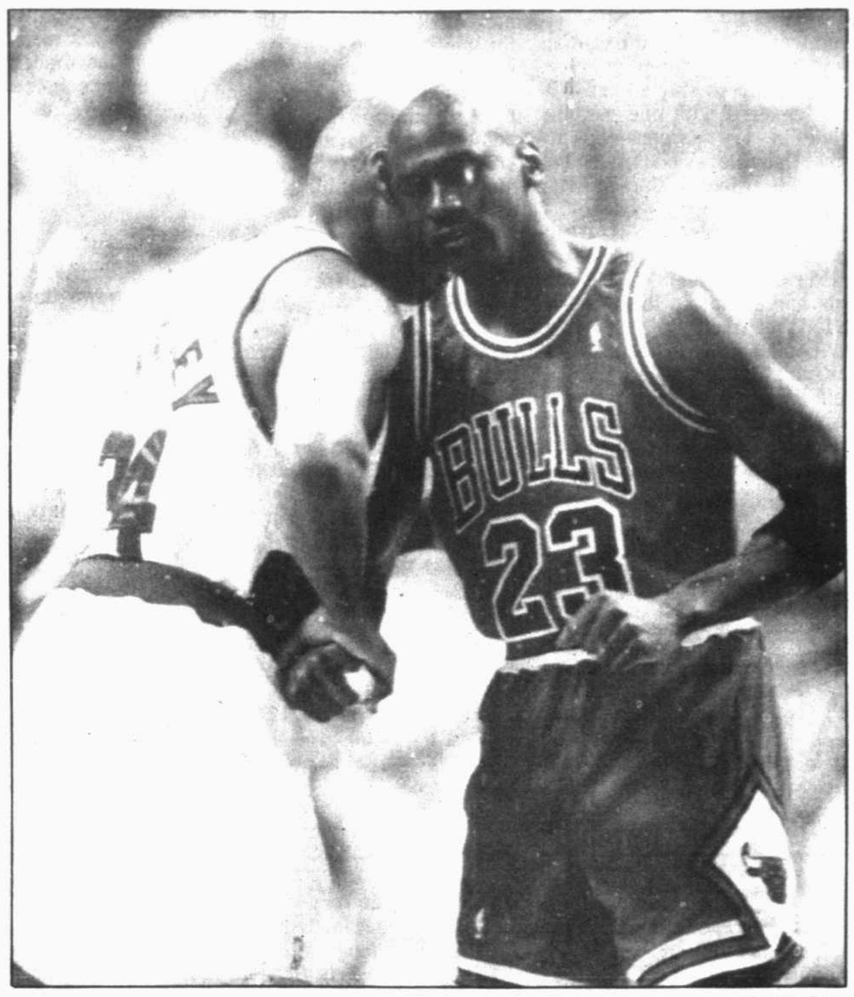

A jumper by Jordan and a layup by Pippen gave Chicago an 88-81 lead with 5:37 remaining, but Barkley's jumper with 4:27 left closed Phoenix to 88-85.

The Bulls then closed out the victory with eight straight points, highlighted by Pippen's fastbreak dunk that made it 93-85 with 2:49 to go and B.J. Armstrong's 3-pointer 30 seconds later. Armstrong finished with 16 points.

"We're an experienced team. We've been here before and know what it takes to win," Jordan said. "We've got to go out there and prove it on the basketball court. One thing that happened with Phoenix is this is their first time to the finals so maybe they were a little too hyped. They're going to go back and look at the films and make their adjustments."

The Bulls won their fifth straight playoff game and continued a recent trend of failure by the Western Conference champion at home. The Suns' defeat was the 11th in 12 games by that conference's representative on its home court.

Chicago, which spotted New York a 2-0 lead in the NBA semifinals before coming back for a 4-2 victory.

Kansas City Chiefs' president Carl Peterson, right, announces that LA Raider running back Marcus Allen has signed a three-year contract with the Chiefs. KC recently signed quarterback Joe Montana.

Kansas City adds Allen to attack

By Doug Tucker
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Chiefs, six weeks after signing quarterback Joe Montana, added free agent running back Marcus Allen today.

"You'd have to be crazy not to take advantage of an opportunity to play with Joe Montana," said Allen, a five-time Pro Bowl performer who signed three one-year contracts.

Terms of the contracts were not disclosed, but NFL Players Association figures showed Allen's base salary last season was $1.1 million.

"Chronologically, I'm 33, but I feel very youthful," Allen said at a press conference at Arrowhead Stadium. "The last couple of years I haven't had much enthusiasm, and it showed in my play. Believe me, there's a lot left. You'll see."

The NFL's 12th all-time leading rusher, Allen spent 11 seasons with the Los Angeles Raiders, the Chiefs' arch-rival in the AFC West. He was the NFL's most valuable player in 1985 and was named MVP in Super Bowl XVIII when the Raiders routed the Redskins 38-9.

Montana was a Super Bowl MVP three times.

Allen probably will line up at halfback in the San Francisco-style two-back offense the Chiefs are installing behind Montana.

Chaps close in on leaders at nationals

Staff report

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. — The Midland College golf team had to come from behind a year ago to capture the National Junior College golf championship and the Chaps are poised for another race to the wire as they gained two strokes on the leader during the second of the National JUCO Golf Championships being played at the McCormick Resorts Ranch.

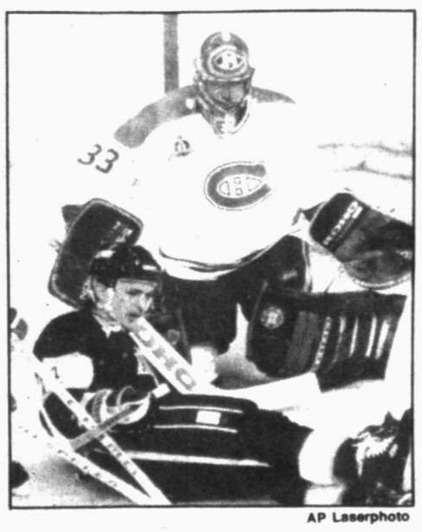

The Chaps, are tied for fourth place at 587, four strokes, back of leader Wallace State of Alabama. Wallace State overtook first round leader and host Scottsdale Coummunity College during the second day of play by shooting a 4-over-par, 292 and lead Scottsdale by a single stroke. Brevard Community College of Florida is third with a 586 while Midland College and Broward County of Florida are fourth with a 587.

Midland College, who trailed by six stroke after the first day, was led by Steve Dundas with a sparkling 69 on the par-72 course. Dundas has a two-day total of 142, good enough for third place in the medalist race. Shawn Savage pieced together a 73 for a two-day total of 145. The trio of Darren Summers, Chad Campbell and Guy Redford had 75's during the second round.

The field was reduced the top 24 teams after Wednesday's round. Individuals within striking distance for medalists honors will also compete during today's third round.

Team Standings: 1. Wallace State (Ala.), 291-292—583; 2. Scottsdale CC, 289-295—584; 3. Brevard CC (Fla.), 296-290—586; 4. (tie) Midland College, 295-292—287, Broward County (Fla.), 291-296—587.

Midland College Individuals: 1. Steve Dundas, 73-69—142; 2. Shawn Savage, 72-73—145; 3. Darren Summers, 74-75—149; 4. Chad Campbell, 76-75—151; Guy Redford, 77-75—152.

Los Angeles Kings' Gary Shuchuk slides into Montreal Goalie Patrick Roy in the final game of the Stanley Cup series as the Canadiens won their 24th Cup.

Oh Canada! Montreal wins Cup

MONTREAL (AP) — Magnifique! Les Habitants have done it again.

The Montreal Canadiens, the most decorated franchise in professional sports history, skated away with their 24th Stanley Cup, beating the Los Angeles Kings 4-1 Wednesday night to win the finals in five games.

Patrick Roy, a rookie goaltending sensation when the Canadiens last took the NHL title in 1986, became a certified "bleu, blanc et rouge" hero — the first Montreal player ever to win the Conn Smythe Trophy twice as postseason MVP.

Rebounding from a difficult season filled with trade rumors, Roy went 16-4 with a 2.13 goals-against average while playing all but 18 minutes of the playoffs.

He was the main reason Montreal set an NHL postseason record with 10 consecutive overtime wins — including Games 2, 3 and 4 of the finals — stopping all 58 shots he faced during a 96-minute, 39-second OT shutout string.

Roy capped the Canadiens' 34th finals appearance in rather routine fashion, making 18 saves.

John LeClair, who scored the overtime winners in the previous two games, had two assists and Paul DiPietro scored twice as Montreal became the only sports franchise with at least one title in every decade since the 1910s.

Wayne Gretzky, who captained Edmonton to four Stanley Cups before being dealt to Los Angeles in 1988, made Hollywood hockey an event by taking the Kings to the Stanley Cup finals for the first time in their 26-year history.

But though he reaffirmed his greatness by leading all postseason scorers with 40 points — including a goal and three assists in the Kings' 4-1 win in the opener against Montreal — he couldn't make the clutch play in any of the three overtimes or in the desperation situation that was Game 5.

The finals turned in Game 2. The Kings were less than two minutes from going home with a 2-0 series lead when Marty McSorley was penalized for playing with an illegal stick. Eric Desjardins tied it with a power-play goal and won it 51 seconds into overtime. The Canadiens then won both games at Los Angeles on LeClair's OT heroics.

LeClair was at it again in Game 5, this time as a set-up man.

In the first period, his hard check on Tim Watters worked the puck loose to Gary Leeman, who fed DiPietro for a 1-0 lead. And in the second, after McSorley and Kirk Muller traded goals, LeClair's pass sprung Mike Keane, who fed Stephan Lebeau for a power-play goal to make it 3-1.

Williams bags No. 18

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Williams hit a three-run homer in the first inning, and the San Francisco Giants held on Wednesday to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1,.

Williams' 18th homer of the season tied Albert Belle of the Cleveland Indians for the major-league lead.

Darren Lewis led off the first inning against Donovan Osborne (3-3) and was safe on third baseman Tracy Woodson's fielding error. Robby Thompson singled and Williams homered with one out, his second in six career at bats against Osborne, who attended the same high school in Carson City, Nev.

Winner Bud Black (5-1) struggled, allowing nine hits and one unearned run in six innings. The Cardinals had 11 hits in the game to five for the Giants.

St. Louis scored in the sixth on Woodson's RBI grounder.

Jeff Brantley, a starter who is missing a turn, replaced Black in the seventh. Rookie Kevin Rogers pitched 1⅓ scoreless innings and Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his 17th save.

Phillies 8, Astros 0

PHILADELPHIA — Terry Mulholland had his league-leading sixth complete game and second shutout, and was backed by four homers as rampaging Philadelphia cooled off Houston.

Darren Daulton, Lenny Dykstra, Jim Eisenreich and Milt Thompson homered as the Phillies won for the 12th time in 16 games. The loss was only the third for Houston in its last 11.

Mulholland (7-5) allowed six hits, struck out nine and walked none as the Phillies beat the Astros for the fifth time in six games this season.

Eisenreich had a double and triple in addition to his two-run homer in the seventh.

Pete Harnisch (6-3) lasted 4⅔ innings, giving up all six runs on nine hits. He struck out six and walked two.

Reds 3, Expos 2

MONTREAL — Bip Roberts scored from second base on a throwing error by Montreal third baseman Mike Lansing in the 12th inning as Cincinnati beat the Expos.

Roberts reached on a fielder's choice against Mike Gardiner (0-2), took second on a two-out walk to Barry Larkin and scored when Lansing threw a ball hit by Bobby Kelly into the dirt at first base.

Greg Caderet (2-1) pitched 1⅓ scoreless innings of relief. Bobby Ayala got the last two outs for his second save.

Pirates 4, Rockies 1

PITTSBURGH — Al Martin hit a two-run homer and tripled, and Denny Neagle won his second in a row since becoming a starter, leading Pittsburgh over Colorado.

Neagle (2-1), who may return to the bullpen when Zane Smith starts on Monday, limited the Rockies to a run on six hits over six innings. He has allowed two runs over 15 innings in his last five appearances and is 2-0 with a 1.59 ERA since moving into the rotation last week.

Blas Minor pitched two scoreless innings in relief of Neagle, and Stan Belinda got his 13th save as the Pittsburgh bullpen lowered its ERA to 0.94 over 28⅔ innings in its last 10 appearances.

Cubs 8, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Mark Grace had the key hits and torrid Rick Wilkins two more home runs as Chicago defeated woeful New York.

Wilkins — with three homers in two games and 10 in the last month — and Grace — drove in three runs apiece to back the strong pitching of Jose Guzman. Grace had three doubles.

Chico Walker hit a solo homer for the Mets, who lost for the fifth time in six games.

Guzman (4-4), in his first career start against New York, allowed three runs on seven hits, striking out seven and walking none in 7⅔ innings.

Padres oust McIlvaine for Smith

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe McIlvaine, long opposed to his team's budget-slashing campaign, was ousted Wednesday as general manager of the San Diego Padres.

He was replaced by Randy Smith, the 39-year-old assistant general manager of the Colorado Rockies. Smith becomes the youngest general manager in major league history.

Tom Werner, managing partner of the 15-member owners' group of the Padres, said McIlvaine was not fired.

"The parting was mutual and amicable," he said. "Joe has been increasingly unhappy here."

He said the owners felt it was important to have a general manager who was "enthused about being here." Werner said he told McIlvaine about two weeks ago that there was no point in him staying unless he was "charged up and ready to go."

Speculation started immediately in New York that McIlvaine might return to the Mets front office to replace — or help — general manager Al Harazin within two weeks. It's not certain what Harazin's next role would be with the last-place Mets.

Smith signed a five-year contract but financial terms were not disclosed. He was the Padres' director of scouting before moving to the expansion Rockies.

"This is home for me," Smith said. "I'm very happy to be back."

Angels break slump

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

TORONTO — Mark Langston pitched 7⅓ strong innings and Kelly Gruber homered against his former team as the California Angels beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4 Wednesday night, snapping a four-game losing streak.

Langston (7-1) gave up six hits and allowed three unearned runs to help the Angels beat the Blue Jays for the first time in six games this year.

Steve Frey finished for the Angels, escaping a bases-loaded jam in the ninth after a run scored.

Dave Stewart (2-2) gave up five runs and six hits in eight innings. He struck out five and walked four as Toronto lost for only the second time in their last 11 games.

Chili Davis, who hit a two-run homer and had three RBIs in the Angels' 14-6 loss to the Blue Jays Tuesday night, followed Tim Salmon's two-out walk with his sixth homer of the season in the first inning.

Ron Tingley put the Angels up 4-0 in the second with a two-run double.

Orioles 7, Athletics 4

BALTIMORE — Former Midland Cub Mark McLemore had a career-high five hits and drove three runs as Baltimore beat nemesis Bob Welch and Oakland to stretch its winning streak to seven games.

McLemore went 5-for-5 and scored three runs for the Orioles, who had not gone 6-0 on a homestand since August 1980. Baltimore swept Seattle before becoming the first team this season to record a three-game sweep of the A's.

The victory put the Orioles (28-30) two games under .500 for the first time since they were 1-3.

Baltimore got four runs and nine hits in six innings against Welch (4-5), who was 6-0 with a 2.69 ERA in nine starts against Baltimore since April 1989.

Mariners 6, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Randy Johnson struck out 11, and Mackey Sasser drove in two runs as Seattle snapped a five-game losing streak.

Johnson (7-3) allowed six hits in eight innings, walked four, hit one and threw two wild pitches. But the strikeouts pushed his major-league-leading total to 108. He fanned Greg Vaughn four times.

Bill Wegman (4-9) allowed 14 hits in a complete-game loss, his fifth in seven decisions. The Brewers scored a total of seven runs in those losses.

With the game tied 1-1, Mike Blowers doubled to open the seventh, but was cut down at third on Bill Haselman's attempted sacrifice bunt. Greg Litton singled Haselman to second and Omar Vizquel had a run-scoring double just inside the left-field line that sent Litton to third. Sasser followed with a two-run single to make it 4-1.

Indians 3, Red Sox 2

CLEVELAND — Wayne Kirby homered and three Cleveland pitchers combined on a seven-hitter as Indians beat reeling Boston, ending Danny Darwin's personal five-game winning streak.

The Red Sox have lost four straight and seven of their last eight games, dropping them a game below .500.

Darwin (5-5) had gone 5-0 with a 1.13 ERA in seven starts prior to Wednesday. He allowed three runs and seven hits in 7⅓ innings.

Cleveland starter Mike Bielecki gave up one run and four hits in 4⅓ innings but got pulled by manager Mike Hargrove because of control problems one out before qualifying for the win. Bielecki hit one batter and walked three.

Cliff Young (2-2) followed and pitched 3⅓ scoreless innings, allowing two hits. Eric Plunk got the last three outs for his fourth save, but yielded a ninth-inning home run to John Valentin, his fourth.

Tigers 7, White Sox 4

CHICAGO — David Wells, released by Toronto in spring training, won for the seventh time in eight decisions as Detroit beat Chicago.

The Tigers have won five of their last seven games, including two of three against Chicago.

Wells (7-1) pitched five innings and gave up four runs on seven hits. Mike Henneman replaced Bill Krueger in the ninth and finished for his 12th save.

Alan Trammell and Travis Fryman each drove in two runs for Detroit.

Royals 10, Yankees 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rookie Phil Hiatt drove in five runs with three hits to help Kansas City rout New York.

Hiatt, in a 3-for-25 slide, hit a 1-1 pitch from Jim Abbott (4-7) into the right-field bullpen for his fifth homer after Harvey Pulliam doubled leading off the sixth inning.

He also had a two-run double in a four-run third inning, and singled in a run when Kansas City scored four more runs in the seventh to pull away.

Long Beach State homers past LSU

Associated Press

■ College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Pinch-hitter Eddie Davis' two-out, two-run homer in the eighth inning tied the game and Kevin Curtis followed with another homer against Louisiana State ace Mike Sirotka on Wednesday to keep Long Beach State alive with a 10-8 victory in the College World Series semifinals.

Sirotka (11-6) had thrown a three-hitter against the fourth-seeded 49ers in a 7-1 opening-round victory on Friday. This time, he came on as a reliever in the eighth and gave up four runs.

The teams meet again Friday to decide which one goes to Saturday's championship game against the survivor of Bracket Two — Wichita State or Oklahoma State. They play Thursday with Oklahoma State needing to win to stay alive.

Long Beach State (46-18) took a 5-2 lead in the bottom of the fifth on a three-run homer by Jim Liefer, his second of the series and 12th of the season.

The celebration was short-lived.

Fifth-seeded LSU (51-17-1) scored six in the top of the sixth. Mike Neal led off with a single and scored on Jim Greely's triple to right. Greely, who had doubled in a run in the second, scored on a wild pitch. Armando Rios singled in a run and two more scored when second baseman Eric Martins couldn't handle a throw from shortstop Rudy Rodriguez on Harry Barrios' bases-loaded grounder.

Martins then dropped a throw from catcher Brian Whatley moments later on a steal attempt and LSU's Todd Walker scored for an 8-5 lead.

Brian Smith's sacrifice fly brought Long Beach State within 8-6 in the seventh.

Davis homered over the 408-foot sign in dead center with Martins on on a fielder's choice to tie it in the bottom of the eighth. Curtis followed with his 12th homer of the season. Liefer added an insurance run as he reached on a bunt single, stole second and scored on Rodriguez's single.

Gabe Gonzalez (4-2) was the winner, retiring 10 of the final 11 batters.

Aaron isn't bubbling with nice, happy words

By Art Spander
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — There is pain for Hank Aaron. There always will be. If some perceive it as bitterness, well, then that is their problem, not Aaron's.

We are too quick to judge, too eager to misunderstand. And as Hank Aaron was taught by his mother, "Until you walk a mile in someone else's shoes, don't say anything about him."

Of Hank Aaron, in San Francisco Tuesday to address the National Association of Minorities in Cable, we can say this: What he accomplished will always be diminished by what he endured.

Aaron hit more home runs than anyone in major league history, 755. He is an American icon.

To some he's also an American irritant. They're the ones who want their heroes agreeable not angry, appreciative not demanding. They're the ones who made his journey into history a trip of agony.

Someone wrote that trying to sneak a fastball by Aaron was like trying to sneak sunrise past a rooster. Tricky pitchers didn't bother him. Tricky people did. And still do.

Maybe it was because Aaron is a black man with a hard edge and a long memory, hardly unexpected for a child of the segregated South. Maybe it was because in his quest he trampled upon the exploits of Babe Ruth and inadvertently squashed another bit of sporting mythology.

Those days in April 1974, of equalling Ruth's supposedly unapproachable total of 714 home runs and then of surpassing it, which should have been the best of Aaron's life, were instead among the worst. Hate mail was voluminous. Negative stories were prevalent. It was as if half the country wanted him to fail.

So now, 19 years distant, 59-year-old Hank Aaron, an executive for Turner Broadcasting System and for Ted Turner's Atlanta Braves, finds it hard to show benevolence. He was treated with contempt. He was treated as, well, a black man.

We know about minority hiring in baseball, or the lack of it. Blacks and Latins succeed on the field, and then when their playing days are done they are neglected and ignored. There is only one black general manager, Bob Watson of Houston. There are four black managers, including Aaron's longtime friend Dusty Baker of the Giants. But for the most part those in charge are as white as the ball.

What Aaron told the cable television group was what he tells other gatherings of minorities: There's not enough of you in visible positions of power. But don't give up. Keep working. Keep up the fight.

If that sounds like the words of somebody who is a malcontent, well, reminds Aaron, if one person in this land is prevented from fulfilling his potential simply because of ethnic background, then there is a reason for discontentment.

"I don't think people ever understood me," said Aaron, by nature a gentle person until challenged. "I read little tidbits always saying that I'm angry or bitter or a racist. I'm just the opposite. But you have to remember where I came from, what I went through.

"Once they gave blacks a chance to play, we showed we belonged. But when a Stan Musial or Ted Williams retire, they immediately have jobs with a team. When a Willie Mays or Ernie Banks or Larry Doby retire, they didn't get a job. I got a job because I was lucky to have played for a liberal-minded person like Ted Turner."

The rebuttal is that baseball, that rudderless ship, is sailing toward smoother waters. The Commissioner in Residence, Bud Selig, contends the sport is serious about expanding minority involvement.

"I'm still skeptical," said Aaron, "until I see some visible evidence. People in charge are sort of saying, 'Give us time.' But how long do we have to wait? My grandfather waited in the South. Jackie Robinson had to wait to play. People need a fair chance."

Baker and one other manager who is black, Hal McRae of Kansas City, have their teams in first place, or more properly their teams have them in first place.

Prices steady

NEW YORK — Oil prices changed little in futures trading Wednesday as the market waited for indications on how much oil OPEC might pump this summer. Gasoline prices fell in reaction to an increase in weekly inventory figures.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery next month settled at $19.64 per barrel, down a penny, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. More distant delivery months were slightly higher.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries gave traders little to go on Wednesday as the oil ministers continued their talks in Geneva. The cartel is trying to agree to summer production ceilings, but is caught between plentiful world supplies, countries that want higher prices and producers that want to pump more oil.

SmithKline sale

PHILADELPHIA — SmithKline Beecham PLC said it is selling most of its remaining toiletries business to Sara Lee Corp. and Wella A.G. in order to focus on health-care products.

The transactions, announced Wednesday, are part of a worldwide restructuring of the giant British pharmaceutical company's consumer products division that will result in a charge against earnings of about $152 million later this year.

Dollar gains

NEW YORK — The dollar strengthened against the German mark and held ground against the soaring Japanese yen Wednesday on anticipation of an economic revival in the U.S.

In New York trading, the dollar closed at 1.6358 German marks, up from 1.6250 the day earlier.

In New York, the dollar closed at 106.45 yen, up from 106.40 yen late Tuesday.

The British pound continued to decline in New York. The pound was quoted at $1.5155, less expensive than Tuesday closing figure of $1.5201.

Stocks ir.ch up

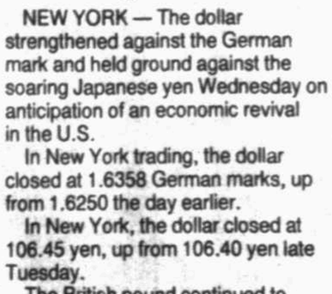

NEW YORK — Stocks fell back from a morning rally, ending only modestly higher Wednesday as cautious investors resisted any big moves into the market ahead of much-awaited data on inflation.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.39 points to 3,511.93.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 7 to 6 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 242.39 million shares, up from 238.09 million in the previous session.

The Nasdaq composite index rose 1.50 points to 689.24. The NYSE composite index rose 0.62 to 245.77, while the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped 0.82 to 436.36.

Bank profits soar in first quarter

■ Nation's banks earned $10.9 billion in January-March, up 44 percent from year ago.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Bank profits soared to a record during the first quarter of this year, the government said Wednesday, prompting analysts to declare the crisis in the banking system over — at least for now.

The nation's 11,328 commercial banks earned $10.9 billion in the January-March period, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said.

That was up 44 percent from $7.5 billion a year ago. And it easily surpassed the previous record of $8.5 billion, set in the third quarter last year.

"I think the crisis is over. . . . The recovery in banking is for real," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

The FDIC attributed part of the gain, as much as $1.8 billion, to the one-time effect of a change in accounting rules. But even without the rule change, earnings would have set a record.

"The recovery in the banking industry is continuing nicely. The vital signs are reassuring, and barring any unforeseen setback, the prognosis for the near future is excellent," said Acting FDIC Chairman Andrew C. Hove Jr.

Two years ago, many analysts were worried that massive failures would cripple the U.S. banking system. In response, an alarmed Congress in late 1991 authorized the FDIC to borrow up to $75 billion in taxpayer funds.

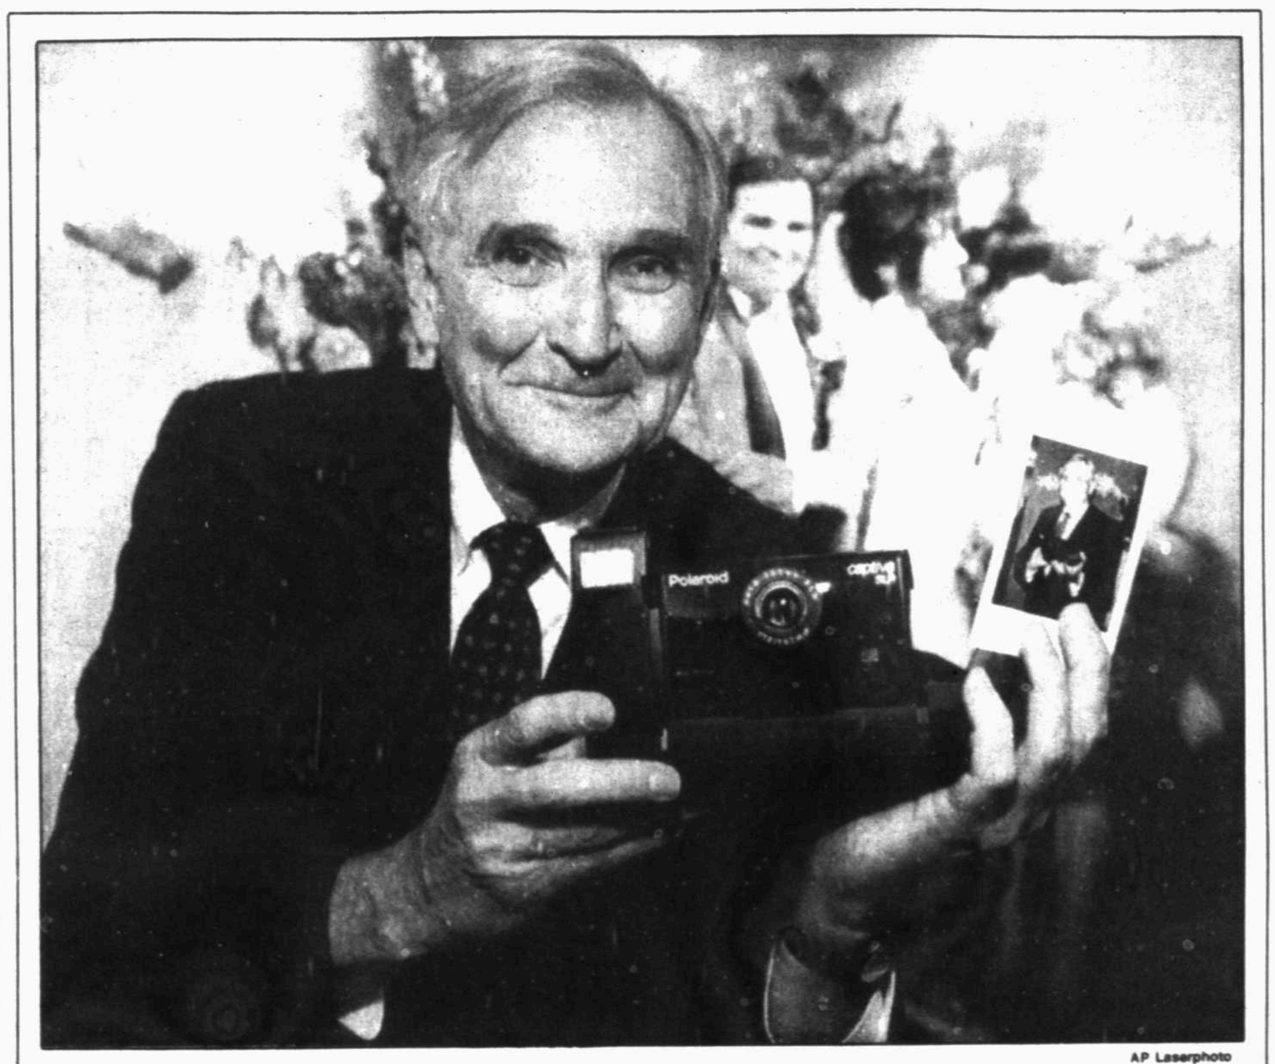

Although failures have remained high by historic standards, commercial banking managed to avoid an S&L-style debacle and the FDIC insurance fund for banks was in the black at the end of March.

Getman said banking was able to do without the kind of explicit taxpayer rescue needed to handle bankrupt S&Ls because the Federal Reserve pushed short-term interest rates down to levels not seen in nearly 30 years. Long-term rates fell much less precipitously.

That allowed banks to maintain earnings on their loan and securities portfolios while at the same time paying depositors less than 3 percent on their savings and checking accounts.

The low rates also made mortgages cheaper. That shored up real estate values and reduced delinquencies among commercial real estate loans. Banks set aside $4.7 billion for bad loans in the first quarter, a decline of more than one third from the $7.2 billion set aside in the first quarter of 1992.

But some analysts fear bank profits will start falling again as the economy improves and short-term interest rates rise. The gap between the interest rate banks pay on deposits and other liabilities and what they earn on loans and other assets narrowed for the first time in two years in the first quarter, although it was still wide by historical standards.

World's richest just get richer

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the world's richest rode surging stock prices to more wealth over the past year, but the average worth of the 101 wealthiest increased only slightly, Fortune magazine reports.

The average net worth of the wealthiest increased 2.27 percent, to $4.5 billion from $4.4 billion, the twice-monthly business magazine estimates in its June 28 issue, available Monday. The increase was less than the U.S. inflation rate, which was about 3 percent during the same period.

The Sultan of Brunei, with an estimated worth of $37 billion in global real estate and oil and gas fields, led the list again. The Walton family, which owns 38 percent of Wal-Mart stores, was second at $23.5 billion.

The Mars family's ownership of the candy company was worth $14 billion, $1 billion more than a year earlier, putting them in third place.

Among the more notable increases, legendary investor Warren Buffett's holdings in the stock of his Berkshire Hathaway conglomerate increased his wealth 33 percent to $6.4 billion.

FDIC sues once-favored S&L, bank buyer

WASHINGTON (NYT) — James M. Fail, once a favored buyer of failed banks and savings and loans from the government, is now being sued by federal regulators trying to rescind the multibillion-dollar assistance package it gave him in 1988.

The lawsuit filed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., in which it charges Fail with fraud, represents the first time the government has tried to undo any of the $50 billion in assistance it promised wealthy private investors like Fail in 1988 when it sold off and merged failed institutions in hopes of resolving the savings and loan crisis.

Back then, Fail combined $1,000 in his own money, millions in borrowings and the money from the federal government to create Bluebonnet Savings Bank from the remains of 15 insolvent Texas savings and loans. Now the government, in effect, wants to cancel the deal, refund Fail his investment and take back his institution. The FDIC is also seeking to have Fail removed as a director of Bluebonnet.

With more than $3.3 billion in assets, Bluebonnet is now one of the largest and best capitalized savings and loans in Texas.

In the lawsuit, the FDIC charges that Fail committed fraud by concealing or making false statements about his background to regulators, including a fraud conviction of one of his companies, to better his chances of buying the failed institutions.

The agency says the false statements were part of a "deliberate effort to mislead" the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and "constituted fraud in the inducement in connection with the execution of the Assistance Agreement."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

'CMOs' are good investment if held to maturity

By Bill Doyle

Q: Several brokers in our area advertise "collateralized mortgage obligations," also known as CMOs. All offer higher yields than bank certificates of deposit.

Doyle

Being a cautious and conservative investor, I telephoned one of those brokers and asked about the safety of CMOs. I was told they are quite safe, because each CMO is secured by either Ginnie Mae, Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac "mortgage pass-through securities."

I know those three funny-name outfits are federal government agencies whose correct titles are Government National Mortgage Association, Federal National Mortgage Association and Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

Past that, I am in the dark. Can you give me more information about CMOs, before I make the financial plunge?

A: Let's do it in two steps, first with an explanation of pass-through securities.

That type of security is backed by a pool of mortgages. As homeowners make payments on the mortgages, the money — part interest and part principal — is sent along to the owners of the Ginnie Mae pass-through securities.

When all the mortgages in the pool are paid off, owners of the pass-through securities not only have received interest, but all their invested money back. The pool is dissolved and the investors get no more payments.

The second step comes into play when a CMO is created. Such a CMO is backed by Ginnie Mae, Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac pass-through securities and is divided into as many as 30 or more classes, called "tranches," which receive interest payments regularly. Each tranch has a different maturity. Consequently, it is paid off and retired as mortgage principal payments come in.

CMOs are complicated securities. However, because of their high yields, they can be worthwhile investments for people who buy with the intention of holding them until maturity. Just be aware that, if you sell a CMO before it matures, you might get more or less than its face value.

Q: I will be getting approximately $50,000 in the near future. I am considering investing in Ginnie Mae, Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac securities, perhaps even in CMOs backed by such securities.

Where do I go to make such investments?

A: Virtually any securities brokerage firm and many banks will be only too happy to handle your purchase order.

However, both pass-through mortgage securities and collateralized mortgage obligations are complicated. Before you invest, study the literature available from outfits selling the securities.

Q: A friend insists I must have at least $25,000 to invest in mortgage pass-through securities. Is that correct?

A: Your friend is right, if he or she is talking about a new issue.

But you can purchase a previously issued and partially paid off mortgage pass-though security for a smaller sum in the open market. There is an active trading market for those securities.

Also, for $1,000 or less, you can buy shares of mutual funds or unit investment trusts that hold mortgage pass-through securities as investments.

Finally, some CMOs can be bought for as little as $1,000.

Q: I simply do not understand how CMOs can pay higher interest than certificates of deposit. How do you explain that?

A: You would get a quick grip on the interest rate discrepancy if you shopped for a mortgage lately. Mortgage interest is higher than CD interest. So is the interest passed through to owners of mortgage-backed securities.

Ashe memoirs criticize Johnson, Chamberlain escapades

NEW YORK (AP) — The sexual shenanigans of basketball stars Magic Johnson and Wilt Chamberlain reinforced racist stereotypes of the black man as a slave to his sex drive, the late Arthur Ashe says in his memoirs.

Ashe, in a book completed less than three weeks before his death from AIDS, also criticizes the players who kept the HIV-positive Johnson from returning to the NBA.

Ashe died Feb. 6 at the age of 49.

The behavior of Johnson, who was open about his promiscuity, and Chamberlain, who claimed 20,000 "conquests," produced "a certain amount of racial embarrassment" in Ashe, he writes in the book published by Knopf.

"African Americans have spent decades denying that we are sexual primitives by nature, as racists have argued since the days of slavery," Ashe says. "These two college-trained black men of international fame and immense personal wealth do their best to reinforce the stereotype."

Ashe adds that he didn't believe Chamberlain's claim, concluding, "I felt more pity than sorrow for Wilt as his macho accounting backfired on him in the form of a wave of public criticism."

Lon Rosen, spokesman for Johnson, said he hadn't seen the book and couldn't comment; Chamberlain's whereabouts could not be immediately determined.

The book covers Ashe's life from his boyhood in Virginia to his final days in New York, and includes his emotional meeting with Nelson Mandela, his consideration of a run for Congress in the late 1970s and his decision to go public with his condition — the result of a blood transfusion — when he learned USA Today was looking into it.

"I hated the paper for what it was doing."

Young old before his time

NEW YORK (AP) — Someday, years from now, Anthony Young might be introduced at old-timers' day at Shea Stadium as a pitcher who saved 15 games as a member of the New York Mets in 1992.

It certainly would be the kind and gentle thing to do.

But Young's real legacy to the Mets came Tuesday night against the Chicago Cubs when he established a club record by losing his 20th straight decision.

"I never could see that this could ever happen," a slightly shaken Young said. "I'm still throwing well, not any differently. You can't win if you don't score runs."

That's one reason, anyway.

Young, 0-6 this season, had been tied with Craig Anderson (1962-1964) for most consecutive losses by a Mets pitcher. The all-time record is 23 in a row by Cliff Curtis of the 1910-1911 Boston Braves.

It's not easy to lose 20 straight decisions, either.

For Young, there have been costly errors, wild pitches and passed balls along the way. Some say he's unlucky, while others have concluded the right-hander just isn't very good.

Cubs catcher Rick Wilkins disagrees.

"He's the best 0-19 pitcher I've ever seen," Wilkins said in all seriousness last week after Young pitched six shutout innings at Wrigley Field in a no-decision.

"I can't think about the losing streak," said Young, who has gone 68 appearances without a victory, mostly in relief. "If you don't have your good stuff, you have to battle."

Obviously, though, Young is fighting a losing battle right now. But at least the fans are still with him.

Young has even tried hanging some lucky charms in his unlucky locker lately.

"They keep coming in," he said. "I feel every time I go out there the streak is going to end. I'm not going to give up."

Young, 2-14 last season, pitched six innings and gave up four runs and nine hits to the Cubs. It was his first loss as a starter this year.

"I want to keep starting," Young said.

Maybe.

Young again made several physical and mental errors in his latest loss, including dropping a throw at first base after covering late on the play.

"He was a contributor to his own loss," said manager Dallas Green, never one to offer too much sympathy. "He didn't play very good defense, stayed tough, pitched out of jams. But it's always difficult when you don't play heads-up baseball."

Right now, Green isn't sure if Young's march to No. 21 will be as a starter or in relief.

Does it matter?

"I have a better chance to snap the streak if I am starting," a confident Young said. "Dallas hasn't made any promises about keeping me in the rotation."

"I'm not sure; we'll talk about it," Green said. "We'd all like to get the kid a win."

When Anderson lost 19 straight, he was just one in a gang of losers on one of the worst teams in baseball history. In 1963, teammate Roger Craig lost 18 decisions a row.

"You have to be a good pitcher to lose 19 straight," Anderson said proudly.

Oh sure, 19. But what about 20?

U.S. pulls off soccer unthinkable

FOXBRO, Mass. (AP) — After 43 years, the unthinkable happened again — the United States beat England in soccer.

Thomas Dooley and Alexi Lalas scored for the Americans and goalkeeper Tony Meola made several acrobatic saves in a 2-0 victory over the English in the U.S. Cup '93 tournament Wednesday night.

The victory was the first for a U.S. squad against England since the 1950 World Cup — a 1-0 win by the Americans in Brazil that is arguably the biggest upset in soccer history.

The Americans, who had gone 388 minutes without a goal until Dooley scored late in the first half, received a huge boost as they prepare to stage the month-long World Cup tournament next summer. Lalas scored midway through the second half.

The loss will be seen as a national disgrace in England and almost certainly will mean the end of Graham Taylor's tenure as national coach.

Though the English have struggled recently in World Cup qualifying matches and lost 2-0 at Norway last week, they still were overwhelming favorites against an American team that entered the contest having won just once in 15 matches this year.

Dooley, a native of Germany who holds dual German-American citizenship because his father was in the U.S. Army, scored with two minutes remaining before halftime on a pass from Tab Ramos.

Jeff Agoos worked the ball down the left side and centered the ball across the front of the England goal. Ramos saved the ball and sent it back into the middle for Dooley, who scored on a diving header.

Lalas, a Michigan native who was named the best U.S. college player in 1991 while at Rutgers and was a member of the 1992 U.S. Olympic team, scored off a corner kick with 19 minutes left.

UNITED WAY AND RAPE CRISIS PROGRAMS... TURNING VICTIMS INTO SURVIVORS.

Genon French, volunteer advocate for rape crisis programs.

The Problem? Last year, hundreds of West Texans, men and women, children and adults, were victims of sexual assault. The recovery process, turning victims into survivors, requires special services in a variety of fields.

The Solution? Twenty-four hour hotlines, well-trained volunteers, education and prevention programs can make a difference. Just ask Genon French, a survivor of sexual assault, and now a volunteer advocate for rape crisis programs.

Through the United Way, your contributions to local rape crisis programs will bring support and recovery programs, education, and prevention strategies to thousands of West Texans this year.

Rep. Jack Brooks is senior member of Texas delegation

Hearst News Service

BEAUMONT — Kay Bailey Hutchison's landslide victory Saturday over interim Sen. Bob Krueger has upset more than the political balance in the U.S. Senate.

It has roiled the waters of political protocol a bit by throwing the responsibility for recommending appointments to key federal jobs on the dean of the Texas congressional delegation: U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said in Washington on Wednesday that President Clinton will be looking to Brooks for advice on administration nominations for federal judges, U.S. district attorneys and regional representatives for federal agencies.

"We work closely with Jack Brooks on a number of issues already," Myers said. The results of the Texas Senate race "make him the senior member of the Texas delegation. We will be looking to him because he is the senior member of the Texas delegation, he's already working with us on the economic plan and other issues and because he's someone the president has great respect for."

Sharon Matts, chief administrative aide to Brooks, said Tuesday the White House has designated the veteran Democrat as the member of Congress from whom Clinton will accept recommendations for presidential appointments in Texas.

Police hold 15-year-old in shotgun slayings

HARLINGEN (AP) — A shouting match and a hurled rock among teen-agers angered a 15-year-old so much he returned with a shotgun to kill two friends and wound a third, police said Wednesday.

"It's very shocking," Police Chief Jim Scheopner said. "We don't have 15-year-olds going around here and shooting 12-gauges at people."

Harlingen, population 50,000, has had only five other homicides since 1991.

"Maybe this incident will encourage people to take a look at their children and get some help from outside agencies if they can't handle them," Scheopner said.

Police and the District Attorney's office are recommending that the suspect be certified as an adult to face two counts of murder and one count of attempted murder. He was held Wednesday at the Cameron County Juvenile Detention Center in Brownsville.

The trouble began early Tuesday when the suspect was riding by a grocery store where the other youths were standing outside, police said.

Some of the teens yelled at occupants of the car, and at least one threw a rock, investigators said.

"The suspect then said he was going to get them, and about 30 minutes later he came back with a shotgun," the chief said.

Raymond Garza, 15, and Paul Gonzalez, 16, were killed by shotgun blasts at close range.

Enrique Perez, 15, fled the scene and required medical treatment for a minor wound to his right hand, investigators said.

Detective Sgt. Andy Muniz said Perez identified the assailant, who was arrested a few hours after the shooting while sleeping at his girlfriend's house.

"Now, it's getting to the point where these kids don't know what it's like to be in a fistfight," Muniz said. "They feel like they have to go out and get a weapon."

Scheopner said the youth denied he shot his friends.

A shotgun believed to be the murder weapon was found at the house, along with other weapons that had been stolen recently from a residence in Combes, a small community north of Harlingen, Scheopner said.

Police said the teen-agers had been feuding over minor things before.

"Some folks tell us these kids were trying to form a gang, but they couldn't get it off the ground," Scheopner said.

Scheopner said investigators hadn't determined what the angry exchange before the shooting was all about, but he doubted it was gang-related.

The suspect has several prior arrests, the chief said.

DELIVERY
MOONLIGHTING!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

Often Asked ????
Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!
Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
$100.00 deposit.
