Easter Snow, Rain Relieves County Wheat

Collingsworth's Easter spell brought a three-inch snow blanket which began late on Good Friday, March 27, and continued into Saturday morning.

This was the heaviest snow that has fallen here at any time during the winter.

It was followed on Tuesday night by rain that measured from .40 to .60 over the county.

This brings relief to wheat, which was beginning to suffer, and will put it, along with pastures, in good condition for early spring.

Lloyd Langley of Quail said that area received .90 inch of moisture from the snow and rain. Some of the land to the northwest of Quail was getting too dry to plow, although the area to the south still had plenty of ground moisture from rains last fall.

Wellington recorded .60 inch

School Vandalized

Trucker Sees Burglary Of Warrick's Monday

Three young men burglarized Warrick Feed Store shortly after 6:00 a.m. Monday, March 30, as a Wichita Falls truck driver looked on, believing they were employees of the company.

Six cases of Treflan, valued at about $600 was taken.

One other burglary occurred during the week end, according to law enforcement officers.

Vandals entered Wellington High School Saturday night, broke into 22 lockers in the upstairs hall and dumped the contents onto the floor.

Sheriff John Rainey and Police Chief Donald Nunnelley have given this account of the Warrick burglary:

The truck driver, identified as John Williamson, arrived about 6:00 a.m. with a load of molasses, drove onto the scales to wait for the office to open, then went to sleep in his cab. He was awakened by the men, got out of his truck and was within two feet of one and saw two others, he told officers. He thought they were employees and didn't talk to them.

The three went around the corner of the office and walked south.

Williamson told officers he waited in the open office for them to return, then got back in his truck. A farmer came by, he said, and asked to see one of the Warricks.

It was not until Glen Warrick reached the office that Williamson was aware he had witnessed a burglary, Chief Nunnelley said.

One case of Treflan was left in the office.

Tire tracks indicate the vehicle used in the burglary was parked between the railroad tracks south of the office, according to officers.

The men, identified as white and in their 20's, are believed to be driving a 1965 or 1966 light Pontiac with mud grip tires on the back wheels, Sheriff John Rainey said.

Officers are also trying to contact the farmer, to learn if he noticed anything that might help them.

Entry into the high school was gained through a south door, Chief Nunnelley said. The glass pane had been shattered earlier and replaced with a piece of plywood, which was broken out by the burglars.

Only one downstairs locker was broken into, he said.

Three sets of footprints leading from the door eastward to the street were found, according to Chief Nunnelley.

Fire Destroys Cellar Contents

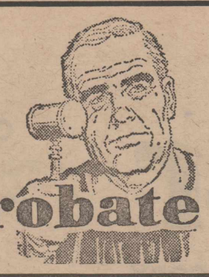

Wellington firemen were called to put out a blaze in a storm cellar at 405 Childress Street at noon Tuesday, March 31, according to Fire Chief Jim Sikes.

He said the cellar was apparently used to store clothing, two car seats, a divan, a motorcycle and other items.

Firemen believe the fire started from a lighted lantern.

The contents of the cellar were a total loss and firemen had to wear smoke masks in fighting the blaze, Mr. Sikes said.

IMPORTANCE OF AN INDEPENDENT ADMINISTRATION

Texas can proudly claim a great contribution to American law—the concept of an independent administration. An independent administration is a way of settling an estate free from the control of the probate court.

The probate process originated because of the government's desire to protect creditors and collect taxes. In 1843 the Republic of Texas gave birth to a new type of administration, now commonly termed an "independent administration." The new law provided for including in a will the words "that no other action than the probate and registration of this will shall be had in the probate court."

This authorized for the first time in America the settlement of a decedent's affairs without long and expensive court supervision. Only three other states (Arizona, Idaho and Washington) have this extraordinary type of probate proceeding.

Purpose of an Independent Administration

This law was passed to provide a more effective method for settling a decedent's estate with the minimum bother, delay and cost necessary to probate a will. After probating the will and filing an inventory of the estate with the court, the executor is not required to report back to the probate court for any purpose. He is not required to file annual accountings or final accountings.

He is not required to apply to the court or obtain court authority to make sales or compromise claims. And he is not subject to the direction of the court in any of his other activities in the settlement of the decedent's estate.

This way of handling an estate is so popular Texas lawyers never draw wills without it. It is truly the most significant feature of the Texas probate system.

How to Obtain an Independent Administration

A person must make a will to obtain the great benefits of this device—another good reason for making a will. No magic words are required; any indication that the executor is to be free of the court's control is ample. The simple statement "I wish my estate kept out of the probate court," has been ruled good enough.

The only other requirement is the naming of an executor to hold this special job. Unless the person making the will names an executor who is alive when the will is probated and who is qualified and willing to act, an independent administration cannot be established.

The court cannot name an independent executor and the independent executor named in the will can't name someone else. Naming an alternate independent executor in the will to serve if the first one named is not alive or can't serve would seem wise.

What Is an Independent Executor?

The position of an independent executor is somewhat unique. "He takes charge of and administers the estate . . . without action of the county court in relation to the settlement of the estate and may do, without an order, every act which an executor administering an estate under the control of the court may do with such an order."

But he is not a law unto himself. He is required to conform to the probate laws. The independent executor practically stands in the shoes of the one who made the will.

Enforcement of Dutis of an Independent Executor

The purposes of probate are to settle the deceased person's affairs, to satisfy the claims of the creditors and taxing authorities and to distribute the estate left over in accordance with the directions in the will.

Ample protection is afforded to insure the independent executor's faithful performance of his obligations. If mis-management is suspected, the independent executor can be forced to post bond with the court.

If the one making the will does not relieve the independent executor of the necessity of posting bond, the independent executor must post an appropriate bond to qualify, just as any other executor. Most people making a will with competent advice eliminate the bond and save their estate the bond cost.

An independent administration is freed from formalities and delays found in an ordinary estate proceeding. This makes possible a quicker, less expensive settlement of the estate, while affording ample protection for creditors and the minimum reporting necessary for tax purposes.

The independent executor saves court costs which must be paid in an ordinary court-supervised probate administration. This probably has much to do with the fact that Texas legal fees in probate rank a low 37th among the other states.

Summary

Because our laws authorizing a person making his will to take it out of court with an "independent administration" much criticism of the probate process in the United States does not apply to Texas. Opportunities for abuses are largely eliminated here.

Naming an independent executor in a will to serve without bond and with full authority to handle the estate can accomplish the least expensive, most effective and quickest settlement of an estate. Everyone should write the independent administration into his will.

NEXT: An attorney's will-making fee, making proper provision to pay debts, taxes, and probate costs, is small compared to the saving that can be effected.

PIGGY BANK

Do you know the origin of the time-honored piggy bank? While dogs may bury bones, pigs have not won a reputation for thriftiness. Nor is there any connection between a pig and a penny.

Here is the answer: During the Middle Ages, metal was too expensive for manufacturing of household utensils. A type of clay was used which was economical and pliable.

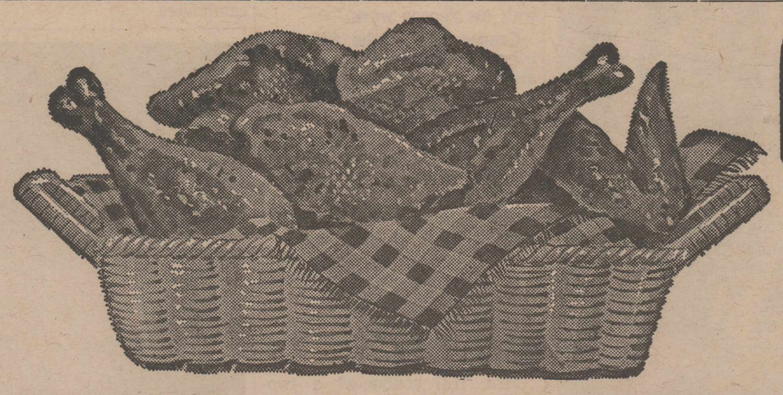

This clay was called PYGG.

It became very popuar for dishes, pots and jars. In fact, everyone referred to earthenware as pygg. And so the container holding money soon became known as a pyggy bank.

Later a pig-shaped container was devised with a coin slot.

Physical, occupational and speech therapy the offered to help the handicapped overcome their disabilities. A complete referral program to ensure equal rehabilitation serviecs to every person in Texas is included in the Easter Seal Society services, he added.

Retired Couples Can Live for Less in Austin, Texas

COLLEGE STATION.—If you are a retired couple, own your own home and take in $3,940 a year, consider retiring in Austin.

According to a new Bureau of Labor Statistics study, the Texas capital city is one of the areas in which retired couples can live for the least amount of money.

Non-metropolitan areas in the South were among the lowest cost areas.

The bureau instigated the study to find living costs so pre-retired people could know what to expect when they retire, whether to seek council and how to plan income for retirement, explained Minnie Bell, Extension specialist on aging at Texas A&M University.

They found that the yearly minimum living cost for a retired couple will average about $2,777 providing they own their home, do not have a car, buy almost no services and use free recreational facilities.

An intermediate budget that was $3,940 and a higher budget at $5,803 were formulated also. Costs do not include gifts and contributions.

The intermediate budget calls for more to be spent for food than housing, transportation, clothing and medical care.

The higher budget affords more appliances and equipment and an occasional new car and some paid services.

Bible Published in Paperback

A paperback Bible has just been published by the American Bible Society.

Containing the Old and New Testaments in the King James version, it is the first complete paperback Bible the Society has produced. A paperback New Testament in the Today's English Version, "Good News for Modern Man," was published by the Society in 1966.

That volume, popularly referred to as the TEV, has topped all other paperback books in the United States with a total of over 17 million copies now in circulation.

Entitled "The Way of Life," the new paperback Bible is designed especially for people in prisons, hospitals, youth camps and other institutions. It is considered suitable also for young people's groups, for class use in schools and colleges, and for special distribution purposes.

Mixed Designs New in Furniture

COLLEGE STATION. — At least three manufacturers of higher quality case goods (bedroom and dining) are mixing designs within collections. This is for the convenience of the consumer who may wish to choose a piece of furniture to harmonize with furnishings she already has, says Bonny Lay, Extension home furnishings specialist at Texas A&M University.

For example, one collection includes French Provincial, derived from Louis XV design, with a few accent pieces in Regency. Woods used for the major pieces are cherry, walnut and pecan with Hawaiian koa wood for accent on the series of collector's cabinets.

Baby Furniture in Adult Trend

COLLEGE STATION. — The new furniture market offers baby furniture in French Provincial, Mediterranean and Early American styles, following popular trends of adult furniture by one or two years.

Wyatt Earp A Wildcatter

The famous ex-marshal of Tombstone, Ariz., enjoyed a degree of success as an oilman, although he once wrote to a friend about one of his wells, "I was in hopes they would bring in a 200 or 300 barrels per day well. But I must be satisfied, as it could have been a duster."

Wildcat wells are still, as in Earp's day, much more likely to be dust-dry than profitable. Chances of discovering a significant new field containing the amount of oil or gas considered necessary for commercial success are only 2 in 100.

According to a 1962 census the Principality of Monaco is the most densely populated territory in the world—37,687 people per square mile.

Extension Possible Because of DDT

AUSTIN.—Texas is using 170 million pounds of pesticides annually, and the amount is increasing at the rate of 10 to 12 percent per year, according to Ken Jurgens, administrator of technical programs for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Jurgens said fortunately about 84 percent of the pesticides used are less persistent types such as organphosphates and caramates, which are not presently of great concern in causing environmental problems.

"The remaining 16 percent," he added, "are persistent chlorinated hydrocarbons, and it is these which are causing serious problems. In aerial application of chlorinated hydrocarbons, as little as 50 percent may actually reach the intended target."

More Disabled Veterans in College, Training

There are significant increases in the number of disabled veterans studying in colleges and pursuing on-the-job training, Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson reported this week.

Johnson said nearly 14,800 trainees, some 4,100 more than last year, were participating in training programs on Jan. 31, 1970.

"More than 9,500 disabled veterans, almost 3,400 more than last year, are attending college this year, thus continuing the trend toward college level training," he said.

"On-the-job trainees increased almost 48%, from 612 to 905, for a gain of 293.

"New Towns" Make Appearance

NEW YORK. — The current population spillover from metropolitan centers is causing a new kind of self-contained real estate development.

These New Towns, as they are called, start from scratch to create communities in which residential, shopping, recreational and industrial needs are dovetailed into a long-range plan of growth.

Columbia, Md., is one of the New Towns.

It includes a 450-acre game preserve stocked with pheasants, quail and ducks — and the Merriweather Post Pavilion, summer home of the Washington Symphony.

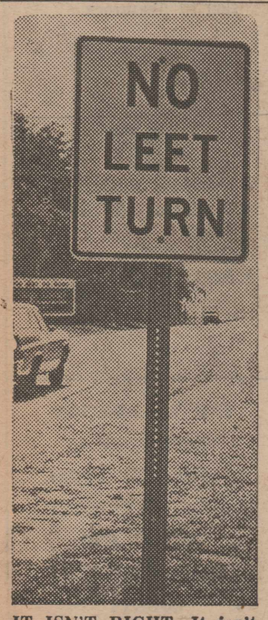

Because automobiles and expected to be part of daily living for many years in the future, New Towns make ample provision for their use. Plans often include miles of walkways and trails as well as over passes and underpasses to separate pedestrians from automobile traffic. Broad parking areas are provided close to the homes and the places where residents shop and work.

Sheep and Goat Numbers Drop

All sheep and lambs in Texas on Jan. 1, 1970 totaled 3,860,000 head, down 4% from last year.

Goat numbers were also down—by 10%.

About 90% of U.S. cotton is mechanically harvested.

RABBIT CHANCES
Although a young cottontail rabbit has only one chance in 20 of reaching its first birthday, it is one of our most common animals.

VIRGIN FOREST
Alaska is the biggest U. S. virgin forest. It has 44 million acres of standing timber and an additional 89 million acres of open woodland and scrub.

Who's to Blame for Litter?

On this page Thursday morning, cartoonist Bill McClanahan editorialized, in sketch form, on the national litter disgrace—showing villain-type characters in cans and cartons which contribute to piles of refuse now under attack throughout the country.

But the cartoon heading asked: "Won't the Consumer Ever Control It?"

All of which comes to mind after those incidents in Ann Arbor, Mich., in which high school and university of Michigan students demonstrated against manufacturers and retailers of disposable containers, like milk cartons and soft-drink cans.

Just who is really to blame, if these disposable items are scattered across the landscape? The people who make them, or the people who buy and use them?

Why demonstrate against a manufacturer of a beer can—who has tried only to meet consumer demands—if the beer can is thrown into the gutter? Did he throw it?

An employe of The News can no doubt pick up 30 or 40 discarded cigarette packs between this building and the Baker Hotel. Who threw them in the gutters? Should the American Tobacco Company be held accountable?

This cuss-business, cuss manufacturer, cuss-retailer phychology can be ridiculous and unfair, when the cussedness of the individual consumer is at fault.

Government and Private Industry.

On every hand evidence is mounting that the adversary concept of the relationship between government and private industry in matters pertaining to the environment is becoming as obsolete as the Model T. In fact, in the field of recreation, the park program of numerous companies has become an important supplement to overburdened, tax-supported facilities of both federal and state governments. Investor-owned electric power companies, in ever-increasing numbers, are adapting certain types of power sites to public picknicking and camping, as well as to power production. One of the latest additions in this category has been announced by an East Coast utility, the Philadelphia Electric Company.

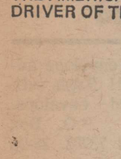

An attractive pamphlet describes its recreational development near a pumped-storage hydroelectric plant the company recently completed on the Susquehanna river in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. A 100-acre lake, surrounded by 500 acres of wooded land has been transformed into an ideal outdoor recreational area. Initially, public recreational facilities have been constructed over an area of approximately 150 acres. These include a 164 trailer and tent camping site, two picnic areas with 250 tables, small boat docking and rentals. In addition, the Company is providing comfort facilities, a camp laundry, picnic pavilions, outdoor electric cooking shelters and children's playgrounds.

This project will give a little more breathing room to a thickly-populated reigon of the country; and, like many others of its kind blossoming out all over the country, it has not cost the taxpayers one dime. Enlightened private management, far from being an adversary, is an ally of government at many levels in making our nation a better place in which to live.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VERN SANFORD

AUSTIN.—New programs are in the works for job training and computerizing data on the industrial advantages offered by Texas communities.

Texas Industrial Commission announced its computer project will go into operation this summer with completion of data storage on cities across the state. Texas Municipal League, Chambers of Commerce and industrial developers are cooperating.

Commission plans to provide prospective industries with instant information on every town in Texas, listing natural and human resources available, economic potential and strong points in each place.

Program also is designed to show communities which industries most likely would be interested in their attractions.

Meanwhile, a three-year project to develop industry's ability to determine what training is needed and where was announced at the Governor's Conference on Technical-Vocational Education here.

Construction Industry Council for Education, Manpower and Research will receive $90,000 from Texas Education Agency to help other industries plan training based on families, occupation or employment. Council will use the system to develop an environmental technology program expected to enroll between 9,000 and 10,000 students in 1972.

Students will get an introduction to the industries in the ninth grade, study plumbing basics in the tenth grade, heating and cooling in the eleventh. In their senior year, they will select jobs for part-time supervised training. After high school they can go directly to work in a trade or take advanced training in technology and engineering. Industry and education agencies cooperate in offering the training.

Air Board, AG Clash

Texas Air Control Board has accused the attorney general's office of demanding too much evidence before it will take pollution cases to court.

"You shouldn't have to kill anybody to get prosecution," emphasized Dr. Wendell H. Hamrick, Houston member of the Board. "I don't see how we can ever get any prosecution under conditions set out by the attorney general."

Protest broke open a long-standing conflict between the Board and state lawyers over how much evidence is necessary to support filing of air pollution violations against industries. It was provoked by an Austin furniture plant case, where the Attorney General declined to take action for lack of sufficient evidence.

• Gov. Smith urged the newly organized Mass Transportation Commission to pay special attention to the needs of the old, poor and handicapped who are not able to drive.

• National Aeronautics and Space Administration will provide the state data from its aircraft and satellites to deal with pollution problems and natural resource preservation.

Census Takers Easy to Identify

Householders will not have any difficulty identifying enumerators for the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, District Manager R. L. Butler has pointed out. Enumerators, or census takers (most of whom are women), started making their rounds in this area on April 1 and are expected to complete their work in three to five weeks.

Each census taker will wear a red, white and blue identification card. This card bears the seal of the Department of Commerce, and the words "Census Enumerator, Official Credential" are printed across its face. It bears the census taker's signature and certifies that she is authorized to perform the duties of a census enumerator and has sworn to keep confidential all census information you provide.

Persons purporting to be census takers who do not have this identification card should be reported immediately to the local police or to the census district office which is located at Bldg. # 9316, A.A.F.B. Amarillo, 791070.

Census takers will be further identified by the portfolio containing their supplies. The portfolio is blue and bears the legend "1970 Census". In the portfolio, the census taker carries her supplies of report forms, maps, pencils, and other tools necessary for her work.

Draft Board 20 Will Call Ten Men April 9

AUSTIN.—The April draft call for Texas is 940, and no man will be selected and ordered for induction with a random sequence number higher than 115, Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said Wednesday.

This April quota is down from 1,064 in March, which is being filled with men having random sequence numbers no higher than 90.

Texas Local Board No. 20 at Childress, will forward ten men for induction and approximately 40 men for armed forces physical on April 9.

The state quota for pre-induction physical and mental examinations in April is 8,442, up from 8,253 in March. Men sent for these examinations will be limited to those with random sequence numbers 1 through 215.

Deferred or exempt men, such as teachers or students, with random sequence numbers 1 through 215, may be forwarded for these examinations if they are likely to lose their deferred or exempt status during the next six months, Col. Schwartz said.

No men with random sequence numbers above 215 will be forwarded for examination until further notice. Men born in 1951, who have no random sequence numbers, also will not be called now for this purpose. A drawing probably will be held in July to establish the numbers for the 1951 group.

All volunteers at the draft boards must be inducted ahead of the non-volunteers selected and ordered to report for induction by random sequence number.

The Texas induction quota of 940 for April is the state's share of a national call for 19,000 men, all for the Army.

National Guard Summer Camp Set June 6-21

Wellington's National Guard Platoon will be in summer camp June 6 through 21, from two to three weeks earlier than in the past, Platoon Sgt. Robert Valliant has announced.

The platoon will drill Saturday and Sunday, April 11 and 12, and this will be the last regular drill before the men go to camp at Ft. Hood. The May drill period will be given over to loading the trucks and other final preparations.

An alert drill was called Saturday, March 14, and under the command of Lt. Neal Gray, weapons were issued and the men prepared to move out.

Wtih the exception of one man who has moved to Florida and could not be reached, the platoon had 100 percent attendance for the alert, Sgt. Valliant reported.

Boots Graham President

Quail Reunion Draws 120 Despite Weather

Despite Easter's snow, more than 120 attended the annual Quail Ex-Students reunion Saturday night, March 28, coming from points throughout Texas and Oklahoma.

They heard a youthfully dynamic appraisal of America's strength by Bill Sarpailus, Clarendon College student and immediate past president of the Texas Association, Future Farmers of America.

Ken Maxwell, outgoing president, announced the election of Boots Graham, Amarillo, as 1970 president. Unable to attend because of the snow, Graham will announce his other officers at a later date.

A pair of ceramic quails, a tradiitonal gift, went to the ex-student traveling farthest, A. W. Atkinson of Wake Village, near Texarkana.

Sarpailus spoke proudly of the United States flag and what it stands for, and of the things that "make America tick." Yet he warned of complacency, and of the many things taken for granted, including the American flag.

The young collegian enumerated the stated methods by which Communism hopes to destroy the United States . . . corrupting the young, controlling communications media, dividing the people into hostile groups and destroying credit . . . civil disorder . . . breaking down of honesty and requiring registration of firearms to leave the people defenseless.

"Their goal is to cause us to destroy ourselves," he declared.

Reunion decorations were in a patriotic motif.

Musical entertainment was by the Texas Three, John Alf Thomas, Tommy Thomas and N. E. Childers. Guest vocalists were Brenda Childers and LaVonda Thomas.

Mr. Maxwell was master of ceremonies and the speaker was introduced by Gene Peggram, Boys Ranch staff member and Sarpailus' former dorm parent.

1969 officers, in addition to Maxwell were Roy Canada, vice president, Rose Patterson White secretary and Jerrol Morris, treasurer.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Since the first of the year there have been far too many burglaries and thefts, each amounting to several hundred dollars, committed in Wellington and the immediate Wellington area. One of these felonies is too many; but the growing number and boldness of these raids is alarming and is a threat to the welfare of the entire community.

The appalling growth of crime of all kinds in the larger cities has been a grave concern for many years. The increased pressure on the criminals in the metropolitan areas plus better highways and faster vehicles has caused the criminals to turn to the smaller towns where the stores are virtually unprotected during many hours of the night. And every town and community has its own local criminals or potential criminals and this fact should never be overlooked.

★ ★ ★

Here are some questions that need answering in towns such as ours. Are our law enforcement agencies efficient and adequate? Are they understaffed and underpaid? Are the governing bodies and the elected officials giving proper attention to law enforcement? Are the owners of business firms taking proper precautions? Are the people themselves aware of the extent of the danger? Do they realize that once burglary has been made more difficult by alarm systems, night watchmen, etc., that the thefts and depredations may spread to residential districts with the potential of murder, rape and arson?

The protection of your person, your property, and your freedoms depends ultimately upon the efficiency of our civil law enforcement agencies. Privacy in your home, respect for you on the street, the deed to your property, the safety of your children, all are insured only through the work of officers. No matter what laws and ordinances are passed by legislative bodies, no matter what the orders of courts might be, democratic government fails when the civil police system fails.

The alternative to civil police is anarchy or martial law. Under anarchy it is every man for himself. Under martial law democratic civil procedure is suspended. Some person rules by decree. Martial law is democracy's last stand against anarchy. Continued martial law would evolve into a dictatorship. Conditions which spawn one spawn the other. Either system results from the failure of citizens to support enforcement of the civil and criminal laws and ordinances which they enact to promote the welfare of their community. There is no such thing as a free democratic society without an effective system of civil police.

The police are doing a job which you as an individual cannot do for yourself. The least you can do for your own welfare is to cooperate with police in every way possible. It is your duty to help them identify and prosecute outlaws by furnishing information or physical evidence or by serving as a witness or juror.

You can also remind unthinking people, who thwart the efforts of the police or who, through indifference, place an extra work load on the police, that such acts or omissions seriously endanger the democratic liberties they enjoy.

★ ★ ★

These facts should be given grave consideration; but it is frustrating to run across a story such as the one about the Iowa farmer who set a booby trap and seriously injured a burglar. The burglar sued and a jury awarded him $35,000 in damages. And again there are too many cases of the police being harassed instead of the criminal being prosecuted.

★ ★ ★

Here is some good news for a change in subject. Wellington Travelers has been reorganized and refinanced locally and has secured a loan from the Small Business Administration and other assistance from the Community Action Corporation. The firm plans to resume production about the middle of April and this will add an important payroll to Wellington.

★ ★ ★

Farmers believe this is the best moisture in a decade or so. It fell gradually and over an extended period of time during which there was practically no evaporation. There was no place for the moisture to go but down. Most of the tilled ground had been plowed earlier and as a result the soil is in superb condition and the wheat, oats and alfalfa look wonderful.

Charter Presented to Samnorwood Leo Club

There are many things that youths can do for their community, Ed Flood of Amarillo, District Governor, 2-T1 Lions Club, told a group of teen-agers when he presented the charter to the Samnorwood Leo Club. But he spoke to the adults in the next sentence:

"Let youth do these things in your community."

The charter night banquet for Leo and Lions Club members and their guests was held Thursday, March 26, at the Samnorwood School cafeteria.

Leo Clubs are sponsored by the Lions Clubs, and membership is open to both boys and girls. Samnorwood club has 12 members and its rolls are still open.

Only a few weeks old, the Samnorwood Leos already have carried out two projects, assisting in the Wayland College Larry Parks drive for a kidney machine for that young man, and preparing and distributing material urging adults to vote.

Mr. Flood presented the charter to Robert Huntley, Leo president. Officers were installed by James Thompson, president of the McLean Lions Club and in addition to Huntley, they included Laron Breeding, vice president; Joe Stice, secretary-treasurer, and Robert Dwight III, Johnny Christner and John Stages, directors.

Other members are Janet Christner, Ruth Dwight, Rita Lackey, Cecilia Snead, Tressie Kirkland and Mary Ruth Schaub.

Ed Brown, Lions president, was master of ceremonies, and special music was presented by Cecilia Snead and Rita Lackey. Mr. Christner introduced the guests and the Rev. C. R. Hankins gave the invocation and benediction.

A group of McLean Lions Club and Leo Club members were special guests.

Sandy Parsons. Charles Darter is attorney for Wellington Travelers.

The SBA representatives set out the requirements which must be met for Wellington Travelers to reopen and among these were community backing and participation.

Within a few minutes, $13,910 was pledged by Wellington men who were present, and the amount was raised to $49,000 during the next 10 days, Mr. Darter said.

Mr. Fitzpatrick explained that a $13,500 grant was earmarked by the Labor Department for Wellington Travelers, Inc., for on-the-job training of employees, and more is available. This was approved Oct. 31, 1969, but was not used by the company before operations were closed down.

Three trailers per week were produced when operations closed, and this will be raised to five per week, according to Mr. Darter.

Most of the men employed by the company went to work for trailer manufacturing companies in Childress and Memphis, and most of these are expected to return, bringing added skill and experience they have gained during this period.

Pledgers and stockholders will be notified next week of a stockholders meeting when cash contributions will be accepted and converted to shares, the company attorney announced.

At the same time a permanent board of directors will be elected.

Mr. Newman, the SBA director, told the Wellington group he and his associates had examined closely the facilities and the product of Wellington Travelers.

"You have a tremendous product—one you can be proud of," he said.

He commended the co-operation of Wellington's business community.

"I never saw the enthusiasm you have expressed here, and I think you will get on with it (the re-opening)", he declared.

of rain Tuesday night. The snow, although unusually wet, came in with wind and the moisture from it could not be measured accurately, although a total of one inch is estimated.

The Samnorwood-Lutie area received one-half inch of rain Tuesday and moisture from that and the snow is estimated at an inch. All school buses ran but progress was slow.

Four-tenths inch of moisture was recorded near Dodson on Tuesday and both snow and rain amounted to an inch.

Hedley Girls Win 4-B Title in Volleyball

First round tournament play saw Lakeview girls defeat Samnorwood and Hedley win over Quail. Hedley then defeated Lakeview for the district title, according to Bill Wilson, Quail coach who was in charge of tournament arrangements.

Favorite Food Lunch Slated for April 8

Foods of many varieties prepared by some of the county's outstanding cooks will be featured in the annual Home Demonstration Club Favorite Food Luncheon Wednesday, April 8, in Bura Handley Community Center.

The serving hours will be 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Plans were announced by Mrs. Jess Motsenbocker, Home Demonstration Council chairman, and Mrs. Loleta Hill, home demonstration agent.

This is the principal money-raising event of the HD council.

The wide assortment of foods is planned to give those attending a "tasting treat," a small serving of many foods that appear regularly on the tables of Collingsworth homes, it was explained.

Besides the variety of meat dishes and casseroles from which to choose, there will be turkey and ham as entrees also.

Lunches will be delivered at a slightly higher cost.

"If someone wants a lunch delivered, they will have to call the agent's office, 447-2313, or a home demonstration club member, by Tuesday, April 7 at 5:00 p.m.," said Mrs. Hill.

Mrs. Motsenbocker will also take the names for delivery orders.

"Other tickets will be sold only at the door. We are not selling any in advance," the agent continued.

Nursing Home Owners Attend Licensure Meet

Trusten A. Thomas, Jr., administrator representing Thomas Nursing Homes, Inc., in Wellington was among the 738 nursing home owners, administrators and staff in attendance at the 20th Annual Spring Meeting of the Texas Nursing Home Association. The meeting was held in Austin at the Terrace Motor Hotel, March 22-24.

The conference was designed to acquaint nursing home personnel with the major subject areas that will be covered in an educational curriculum for training and examination for Nursing Home Administrators licensure. Dr. Donovan J. Perkins, a member of the National Advisory Council on Nursing Home Administration, established by the 90th Congress, conducted the course.

During 1969 the Nursing Home Administrator Licensure Law was passed in Texas and the Licensure Board appointed by Governor Smith. All administrators of Texas nursing homes must have a license by July 1, 1970.

Land D. Wall of Lubbock, president of the Texas Nursing Home Association, said, "We are looking forward to licensure. We feel that licensure will help us gain the professional status that we desire and have worked toward for many years."

Questionnaires for the 1970 Census of Population and Housing were distributed by the Post Office beginning March 28 to all households in this area, District Manager R. L. Butler announced.

This will give families a chance to assemble information about each member and about the house in advance of the census taker's visit.

Mr. Butler and Mrs. Hill urged all residents to fill out the forms and have them ready for the census takers when they begin work April 1.

Information about individuals and their homes furnished to the Census Bureau is kept confidential under Federal law, it was pointed out.
