

Texas drill teams in Dublin parade

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A crowd of more than 150,000 braved chilly weather to line the streets of Dublin today for a St. Patrick's Day parade that included a pair of high-kicking Texas drill teams.

Economic recession and internal Irish political disputes seemed forgotten as the Emerald Isle honored its patron saint.

Rising prices did not deter Americans and other tourists from attending. About 4,000 overseas visitors, mostly Americans, arrived to "drown" the shamrock and watch parades across the country.

The Dublin parade took 90 minutes to pass the VIP stand at the General Post Office, remembered as the center for the Easter Rising of 1916 when Irish nationalists declared their independence from Britain. Independence was won in 1921 after a bitter struggle.

The post office is on O'Connell Street, Dublin's main thoroughfare. Prime Minister Charles Haughey and Dublin Lord Mayor Fergus O'Brien headed the dignitaries reviewing a procession highlighted by the Springwood Tigerettes from Bellaire, Texas, and marchers from the Quinlan, Texas, Ford School.

A steel band from Britain, the Swiss mariners fife and drum band and a West of England dancing team were other highlights of the parade.

Thousands parade for St. Patrick

By DAVID GREEN

Thousands of Irish-Americans were parading in New York, Chicago, Savannah, Ga., and scores of other cities today in a festive tribute to their patron, St. Patrick. Cardinal Terrence Cooke urged the celebrators to be religious, not raucous.

Meanwhile, in California, two snake races were being held to honor the saint, credited with bringing Christianity to Ireland and driving the island's snakes into the sea.

For some, St. Patrick's Day is a chance to raise a cup of good cheer — perhaps in the form of green beer. But Alan Luks, director of the New York Affiliate of the National Council on Alcoholism, said the holiday has become "an annual orgy of abusive drinking."

Cooke, speaking at an annual musical celebration at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Sunday, urged New Yorkers to "moderate any grossness in the spring festival that has been growing up around St. Patrick's Day."

The New York parade route goes up Fifth Avenue, right past the huge, ornate Gothic-style church. Tens of thousands of marchers were expected, and more than 2,000 extra police were on hand.

In Georgia, parades were set in Atlanta and Savannah, where city officials contend their march is second in size only to New York's.

Savannah's parade was to include 18 floats and 38 bands.

"The place is loaded up with people who just walk, almost like Mardi Gras," said Jerry Hogan, parade coordinator.

Dublin, Ga., founded 169 years ago by an Irishman named Jonathan Sawyer, had a parade scheduled for Saturday.

tion — led by Mayor Jane Byrne — included turning the Chicago River green with hundreds of pounds of dye. St. Paul, Minn., outshines twin city Minneapolis every St. Patrick's Day with a much-bigger parade.

In Denver, the Volunteers of America were serving 23,000 corned-beef-and-cabbage meals to the city's elderly. Cooks started the day with 1,200 pounds of beef brisket, 1,000 pounds of canned potatoes, 800 pounds of cabbage and 3,200 Irish soda bread biscuits. In San Francisco, a spokeswoman for the California Academy of Sciences said the organization's snake race is intended to help children get over a fear of the reptiles.

"We started to do it particularly as an education event for youngsters who think that all snakes are evil," said Pam Wing, a spokesman for the academy's Steinhart Aquarium, site of the race for the past seven years. Youngsters race the snakes around a bright green track.

She said the story of St. Patrick and the snakes is a myth.

"There never really were any snakes in Ireland," Ms. Wing said.

The other race, sponsored by radio station KABL to benefit charity, is held downtown. Teams compete for $3,500 in prizes and the honor of having "The Fastest Snake in the West."

Meanwhile, the Newark, N.J., Star-Ledger reported in today's editions that President Reagan would name a New Jersey insurance executive today to be ambassador to Ireland.

The newspaper said the nominee would be William McCann, 50, of Short Hills, president of Foundation Life Insurance in Chatham. McCann refused to comment on the report. The White House also refused to comment.

Reagan claims report 'phony'

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, meeting with Republican members of Congress to reinforce support for his economic program, today declared "phony" a report that his budget target was $25 billion off.

He later softened his criticism of the report by the Congressional Budget Office, however, stressing the administration's faith in the impact of its economic proposals.

Before the breakfast session with administration officials and GOP members of Congress began, the president was asked about the report, which contends there is a $25 billion mistake in his budget estimates for fiscal 1982.

"My response is — I would start out with the word 'phony,'" Reagan said. "That's them practicing what they have been practicing for the last 30 years. The figures are phony."

Later, as he left the Capitol, Reagan said he probably shouldn't have used the word "phony."

"Actually, what they really are is differing assumptions and I think their assumptions are based on the continuing curve of decline in the economy," the president said before waving to a crowd and flashing a button in celebration of St. Patrick's Day.

"In other words, that our program is not going to have any effect on the economy."

Asked whether he intended to find new budget cuts to offset the $25 billion, Reagan replied: "No, no. We believe our assumptions or projections are correct. The difference will be that our program is going to have a different effect on the economy which they did not factor in.... What we claim about our program is that our program is going to change that."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the Republican leadership gave Reagan a "very optimistic" forecast for his economic plan.

Reagan was welcomed to the Capitol by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee and House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois.

When the breakfast session began, Baker told Reagan the country as a whole backs the administration's program, adding, "and we're going to pass it."

Reagan told the gathering that "the people" are in favor of his plan for big spending and tax cuts.

"They are in support of this program. They know that something has to be done different than we've been doing things for some time in the past," he said.

Michel, a Republican, said House Democrats already have agreed on a timetable for action on the president's proposals. But mindful of the Democratic majority in his chamber, Michel said, "It isn't going to be an easy road and we're going to have some pitfalls along the way."

Reagan, making his second trip to Capitol Hill in recent weeks to push for his program, declared, "You have not only been cooperative, you have put it on a fast track."

Leaders of the House and Senate are trying for final action on the administration's plan by the end of July.

After the meeting, Baker said there was discussion of the method used to adjust Social Security and other benefits for inflation.

"The president does not indicate a change in his position," Baker said, meaning that the administration favors keeping the system as it is.

Several members of the Senate Budget Committee have indicated a preference for changing the method used to adjust Social Security benefits, an area where billions of dollars could be chopped from the budget.

White House press secretary James S. Brady said Reagan's two-hour visit to Congress was just one of a host of activities the White House plans this week in its continuing effort to woo members of Congress who control the fate of the economic package.

At a luncheon Monday for women in Congress, Reagan got a taste of the opposition some of his proposed budget cuts already face.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., stood at the start of a question-and-answer session after lunch in the Family Dining Room and sharply challenged the president's proposal to eliminate money earmarked to help women return to the work force after raising their families.

Agent Orange bills introduced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Vietnam veterans afflicted with diseases allegedly caused by the defoliant Agent Orange are the victims of a "national scandal," a state representative says.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, has introduced two bills to help veterans who want to sue for money or for more information about the use of the controversial chemical during the U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam.

Shaw said evidence is "overwhelming" that many veterans' physical, emotional and mental problems result from exposure to Agent Orange, a defoliant containing dioxin, which he called "the most toxic substance known to man."

"This whole Agent Orange situation is a national scandal," he said. "The 55,000 Americans who died in Vietnam were only the beginning of our Vietnam casualties. Thousands more are dying every year from cancer or liver diseases, and thousands and thousands more are...disabled by everything from respiratory problems to internal bleeding."

Shaw chastised the federal government, saying it has "been trying to pretend like there's no problem, like the thousands of veterans aren't dying or fathering children with birth defects."

One of his bills would let the Texas attorney general represent veterans in class action suits for damages, or for information about the use and effect of Agent Orange and other chemicals and herbicides used in Vietnam during the war.

The measure also directs the Texas Department of Health and the health science centers at the University of Texas to set up programs helping veterans file claims for aid and providing genetic screening to discover physical or genetic damage caused by the chemical.

Shaw's second proposal would require doctors and hospitals to give the health department a full report on any veteran treated for symptoms typical of those allegedly caused by Agent Orange, and would mandate further study of the problem.

Saying President Ronald Reagan favors eliminating the Vietnam veteran counseling program, Shaw said he is "outraged."

"How can we justify that kind of treatment for these people who went to Vietnam for us?" he asked. "These two bills will...let the country know that in Texas we think a little more of our veterans than that."

Energy secretary slated to speak in Midland

Secretary of Energy James Burrows Edwards will be featured speaker for the Midland Chamber of Commerce annual dinner on May 1.

Making the announcement today was Frederick Tyler, executive vice president of the Midland chamber.

Edwards was sworn in as Secretary of Energy on Jan. 23 after being nominated by President Reagan in December 1980.

He served as governor of South Carolina from 1975 to 1979. During his administration, Edwards created the South Carolina Energy Research Institute to study energy resource options. He served as chairman of the National Governors Association subcommittee on nuclear energy in 1978.

A practicing oral and maxillofacial surgeon in Charleston, S.C., Edwards received a bachelor of science degree from the College of Charleston in 1950. He received his D.M.D. degree from the University of Louisville School of Dentistry in 1955.

Budget cuts not deep enough?

Economists fear budget won't balance by 1984

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate budget writers, starting the "torment and torture" of slashing federal spending, now are being told by congressional economists that the deep cuts proposed by President Reagan still are far from enough to balance the budget by 1984.

Preliminary estimates from the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office forecast that the Reagan administration underestimated inflation, interest rates, unemployment and spending.

Spending could be as much as $25 billion more than the administration figured in 1982 and up to $50 billion more in 1984, Reagan's target year for balancing the budget, the report said. If accurate, that would require more budget cuts or smaller tax cuts for Reagan to meet his goal.

As Reagan headed into a meeting today with Republican allies in Congress, he said of the report: "The figures are phony.... Their estimates are based on continuing things, the way they have run them for the last 30 years."

As he left the Capitol later, Reagan said he probably shouldn't have used the word "phony."

"Actually, what they really are is differing assumptions and I think their assumptions are based on the continuing curve of decline in the economy," the president. "In other words, that our program is not going to have any effect on the economy."

Asked whether he intended to find new budget cuts to offset the $25 billion, Reagan replied: "No, no. We believe our assumptions or projections are correct.... What we claim about our program is that our program is going to change that."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the Republican leadership gave Reagan a "very optimistic" forecast for his economic plan.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker told reporters he also believes the CBO estimates are inaccurate. "I think they are based on the wrong assumption and that is that next year will not be better than this year," Baker said.

The budget office's information was contained in a memorandum forwarded to Sens. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., the Senate Budget Committee chairman, and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, the panel's ranking Democrat.

The committee opened hearings Monday on what Domenici called "the most massive reduction in spending in American history."

Technically, the committee is drafting instructions to the other Senate committees to reduce spending for programs under their jurisdiction and is to tell each how much it should cut.

Reagan is recommending cuts of $6.4 billion in the current fiscal year, ending Sept. 30, and $48.6 billion in 1982. The cuts would hit about 300 government programs. Reagan also is proposing cuts in personal income tax rates and business taxes.

Domenici has vowed to keep the committee in session day and night, beginning today, to complete the package this week.

Domenici and Hollings predicted the committee will approve cuts at least as big as the administration is asking, and possibly bigger, but along different lines in some areas.

Reagan is forecasting a deficit of $45 billion for 1982. But Hollings said Monday the committee should not "go through the torment and torture" of making cuts only to end up with a huge deficit next year. He predicted the 1982 deficit would be more like $70 billion under the president's program.

Hollings added that the committee should use "economics that respond to reality" and reject "Reagan economics," which he said are based on "wildly optimistic" assumptions.

The budget office memorandum may have provided some support for that argument.

"These re-estimates will be done in detail during the next week, and are therefore subject to change," wrote Jim Blum, the agency's chief budget analyst who compiled the figures.

Blowing sand will calm down a bit

Today's dust and winds should slow down a bit tonight and Wednesday as temperatures become somewhat cooler, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The overall weather for tonight and Wednesday will be fair with no chance of rain.

Temperatures should dip to the upper 30s tonight. Winds will remain gusty, but drop to 15-25 mph tonight as they blow in from the northwest.

The wind will change Wednesday, coming from the north at 15-20 mph. High temperature on Wednesday should be in the upper 60s.

This morning's low was 42 degrees. The record low for the date is 26 degrees, as set in 1970.

Monday's high was 64 degrees — still a ways from the record high temperature for the date of 86 degrees set in 1966.

Commuters adjusting to strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Thousands of commuters caught in a three-day-old city transit strike appeared to be adjusting today as they piled into cars and trains and swarmed into the nation's fourth-largest city.

"It's like a normal day but with twice as many passengers," said a conductor on a Conrail commuter train not affected by the strike. "The trains are crowded but they're running on time."

The strike by 4,900 drivers, cashiers and mechanics has halted bus, subway and trolley service within the city's borders, forcing some 400,000

Sudan offers U.S. bases, says others should also KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudanese President Gaafar Nimeiri has offered the United States military bases when war is imminent if it helps him develop them. He says other countries in Africa and the Middle East should do likewise to counter the threat of Soviet penetration.

Nimeiri, the leader of Africa's largest country for the past 11 years, told The Associated Press in an interview Monday that the United States and its allies should increase economic and military aid to developing countries as a deterrent to Soviet infiltration.

He also said he foiled another plot last week to overthrow his regime.

"The Soviet Union is like a cancer," he declared. "The Soviet Union is a superpower and nobody can stand against it except a superpower — the United States."

Because of the Libyan military intervention in Chad, Sudan's western neighbor, the Reagan administration has asked Congress to approve $100 million in military assistance to Nimeiri's government for the next fiscal year. This is more than triple the Carter administration's recommendation that the $30 million program this year be renewed at the same level.

"The Sudan is a vast country," said Nimeiri. "We need military airfields. We would like (the United States) to help us build them, give them over to the Sudanese armed forces, and they would be used by both when anything starts."

"We will be ready to offer military facilities to the United States when we think there is danger of war. In the meantime, we have a large manpower, and if the United States gives us support to train this manpower, when anything happens they will be able to work in a joint group of armies."

"I would like to see the United States give help to the governments of riders to find other ways to get to work. Most have switched to cars and trains.

"Things seemed a lot more organized than Monday," said commuter Andy Furman, who rode a Conrail train into town from suburban Prospect Park. "I took an earlier train than I usually do. It was crowded but nobody was standing."

Hijacking is not over yet for Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The hijacking is over for most of the hostages but not for Syria. It's left with a bunch of Pakistanis who didn't want to leave home, three hijackers it doesn't know what to do with, an American wanted on drug charges in the United States and a Canadian believed to be an escaped convict.

Meanwhile, in Islamabad, a Pakistani Cabinet member claimed that the Soviet-installed Afghanistan government tried to force Pakistan to grant it official recognition while the plane was held at the Kabul airport.

The hijackers of the Pakistani airliner and the 54 political prisoners released by Pakistan in response to the hijackers' demand are being held under heavy guard at the Damascus Airport Hotel while the Syrian government decides what to do with them.

Libya agreed to give them and the hijackers asylum, then reneged. So far, they have been granted only temporary asylum by Syria.

A member of the hotel staff reported many of the freed prisoners said they want to return to Pakistan "to continue the struggle against the government of President Zia ul-Haq."

He quoted a spokesman for the prisoners as saying, "None of us wanted to leave Pakistan," and that Zia's government forced them to go.

They were exchanged Saturday for the 101 passengers and crew members who were held hostage aboard a Boeing 720 jetliner for 13 days in Kabul, and Damascus by three heavily armed young opponents of Pakistan's military regime.

Presidet Zia sai Pakistan got rid of "some bad eggs."

One of the freed hostages, Craig Clymore, 24, of Laguna Hills, Calif., has been indicted in New York on charges that he was a member of a ring smuggling heroin and hashish oil into the United States. The State Department revoked his passport and said he would be issued documents for travel only to the United States. But for the time being he was held up in a Damascus hotel.

Another freed hostage who passed himself off as Lawrence Clifton Mangum of New York City was arrested by Syrian police at the request of the Canadian government. It tentatively identified him as an escaped convict named Lawrence Lome, who escaped from Canada in 1976 while serving a seven-year prison sentence for importing drugs.

Neither the United States nor Canada have an extradition treaty with Syria, but officials in Washington and Ottawa expected the Syrian government to cooperate in sending the men home.

The 86 Pakistani passengers and the crew of the airliner Pakistani jetliner flew to Saudi Arabia Monday for a pilgrimage to Mecca, Islam's holiest shrine, as guests of the Saudi government. They are to be flown home Wednesday.

The other freed American hostage, Frederick Hubbell, a 30-year-old lawyer from Des Moines, Iowa, flew to Frankfurt, West Germany, for a reunion with his wife Charlotte, and his parents.

developing countries to defend their nations. If at the same time they can find any place to make a base, and while not interfering in the internal policies of these countries, it would be better.

"This is what I call self-defense in the area."

Nimeiri said Libya's intervention in Chad to save its ally President Goukouni Oueddi was part of a "grand Soviet scheme to take over Africa piece by piece."

He said about 50 Soviet military advisors are with Libyan forces 80 miles west of the Sudan-Chad border. He said the proximity of Libyan troops so close to his country raises prospects of sabotage along the border and attempts to undermine other moderate regimes in surrounding countries.

"I believe the Soviet Union's aim now is to come into the basin of the River Nile, Egypt and Sudan," he said, "and because in 10 years the Soviet Union will need energy, they are pressing on toward the Persian Gulf. They have already taken Afghanistan and are going into Iran and doing a lot of trouble in the Gulf...."

"The Soviet Union will not forgive Egypt for expelling Soviet military advisers (in 1972). Egypt is the center of Arabs and Moslems, and the Soviets know they cannot do anything in the Middle East unless they get Egypt and the Egyptians to their side."

"They also know that the Sudan through which the tributaries of the Nile pass is the backbone of Egypt, so by infiltration into the Sudan, the Soviet Union can press on Egypt. They will try to do the same with other countries — Nigeria because it has oil and copper."

"The intervention in Chad is to benefit Soviet interests. It is also in a way a present to Libya which wants to set up a Moslem empire which would include Morocco and Senegal."

As America celebrates the 100th year of the Salvation Army, Midland celebrated the end of its 25th year Monday with the Annual Advisory Board Luncheon at the Holiday Inn featuring Maj. W. Edward Laity, Midland's first Salvation Army commanding officer.

"God has been good to us," Maj. Pete Costas, current commanding officer, told the group. "And we will continue to provide services needed in the community."

Currently the local Salvation Army post offers everything from transient service to children's day care. A United Way agency, the Salvation Army collects clothing, furniture, gifts and money to provide local and transient citizens with food, lodging and clothing.

He went on to say, "We could not function without the assistance and all the money we get from the United Way."

Addressing "Changing the world; one life at a time," Laity urged members to work on changes. "We must continue to work changing Midland and Texas and the world," he said, "one life at a time."

Also at the meeting, new officers of the advisory board were awarded plaques, including Lloyd MacDonald, former board chairman in 1969-71 and new chairman, and Don Stevens, new board member.

Four volcano victims still a mystery 10 months later

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Nearly a year has passed since the cataclysmic eruption of Mount St. Helens, but authorities still don't know who four people reported missing after the fiery explosion are.

Ten months after the May 18 blast, which leveled thousands of acres of pristine forest and showered ash over several states, the Mount St. Helens toll stands at 34 known dead and 27 missing, says a Cowlitz County sheriff's officer in Longview.

Twenty-three of the missing un-

Five die in crash of Air Force jet

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Air Force officials, saying "horrible" weather was hampering their ability to get information from a remote snowswept base, say five people died and one person was missing after the crash of a reconnaissance jet in the Aleutian Islands.

The latest information from She-mya Air Force Station late Monday indicated that seven of the 24 people aboard the RC-135 jet were injured in the Sunday night crash, said Lt. Col. Richard Stevenson of the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb.

The high-altitude jet crashed in gusty winds and low visibility while trying to land after a training flight from Eielson Air Force Base near Fairbanks, he said.

The plane broke apart and burned, said a spokesman at Elmendorf Air Force Base in Anchorage.

doubtedly died in the explosion, but four names remain a mystery, says Ben Bena, Cowlitz County emergency services coordinator and the man charged with sorting out the fate of Jim and Cathleen Ford, Paul Hiatt and Gary S. Wheeler.

"All we have are names," Bena says. "We don't have a contact person or an address. We don't know how their names got on the list, but we haven't taken them off because we thought the names that did get on that list got on with some validity."

In the first confusing days after the eruption, several agencies compiled lists of missing persons.

Rick Lavalla, operations manager of the state Department of Emergency Services, said Monday his department relies on Bena's figures.

Once the Washington Legislature passes a pending bill authorizing the issuance of presumptive death certificates, Bena says, "we'll be removing from the missing list some of those people that it's quite evident are dead — (U.S. Geological Survey scientist) David Johnson, Harry Truman..."

"We've found people who, through field glasses, saw Johnson go under," Bena said. "People say 'We saw them disappear.'"

Truman was an elderly man who refused to flee his mountain-side home even as certain disaster loomed.

The Skamania County coroner issued some certificates "but they didn't mean anything except if Social Security or an insurance company wants to accept them on the basis of testimony given at those hearings," Bena said.

Thatcher's new budget approved

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons approved Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's harsh new budget but her majorities on some sections were drastically reduced by a rebellion of about 30 members of her Conservative Party.

One member quit the party, the first member of Commons to leave the government benches and cross the floor to the opposition side in 75 years.

The rebellion Monday night against higher taxes and a tighter squeeze on the badly depressed economy was the most serious in the party since Mrs. Thatcher led it back into power in May 1979.

The prime minister sat grim-faced as her usual majority of about 60 votes slumped to 14 on the most unpopular provision, increased gasoline taxes. Floor managers said eight Tories voted against the government, and between 18 and 25 abstained.

The voting on other sections of the budget fluctuated widely as the rebels registered their protest to various provisions. But the final motion to put the budget into effect was adopted 325-270, a comfortable majority of 55.

The Conservatives hold 336 of the 633 voting seats in Parliament's lower house, a majority of 39. But government measures usually get a majority of at least 60 because of absences on the opposition side of the house or support from minority parties.

"I hope the government realizes it cannot go on any longer running the economy this way," said David Knox, one of the Conservatives who voted against the government. "This is only the tip of the iceberg. Dissatisfaction is very deep."

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe was virtually drowned out by opposition jeers as he insisted the budget measures were the only hope of curbing inflation and reviving the economy.

In the final hours of the debate, Christopher Brocklebank-Fowler, a member of the Conservatives' left wing, rose from the government benches and walked across the floor to join the former Labor Party members who are preparing to form a Social Democratic Party.

Brocklebank-Fowler attacked doubting cabinet ministers for lacking the courage to resign and accused Mrs. Thatcher of saving British industry and costing thousands of jobs.

"The country, industry and the public at large want and deserve a new deal," he said.

His defection was a significant gain for the 21 social democrats — 12 in Commons and nine in the House of Lords — who quit the Labor Party last month in protest at its leftward drift. They plan to announce the formation of a new party in a few weeks, seeking to realign British politics and capture the middle ground between the right-wing Conservatives led by Mrs. Thatcher and the left-wingers now in the ascendancy in the Labor Party.

President-designate, Reagan meet today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roberto Viola, a general who soon will be the next president of Argentina, meets President Reagan today in another sign of increasing U.S. intimacy with Latin American military regimes.

After an hour-long, "extremely satisfactory" meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Viola said Monday he hoped for "optimum" relations soon after four years of disapproval from the Carter administration.

Describing his visit as one aimed at opening "a fluid channel of communications" after his March 29 inaugural, Viola said he found no disagreements with Haig.

Viola was picked by Argentina's top officers to succeed President Jorge Rafael Videla, president since a 1976 military coup.

Since then, the Carter administration publicly criticized Argentina's record on human rights as thousands of opponents of the regime reportedly disappeared after arrest.

Last week, State Department spokesman William Dyess said relations with Argentina have been "abnormal" over the past four years and promised to refrain from public criticism of Argentina.

Editors promoted

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Seven editors have been promoted in a major realignment announced by San Antonio Light vice president and publisher William B. Bellamy.

"The promotions reflect a major realignment for the Light which will place more emphasis on the wants and needs of morning newspaper readers," Bellamy said.

Joe Schott, assistant managing editor for administration who began his career with the Light as a part-time sports writer in 1946, was named associate editor for administration, and Joe Carroll Rust, editor of the editorial page, was named associate editor with responsibility for the editorial page and Sunday viewpoint section.

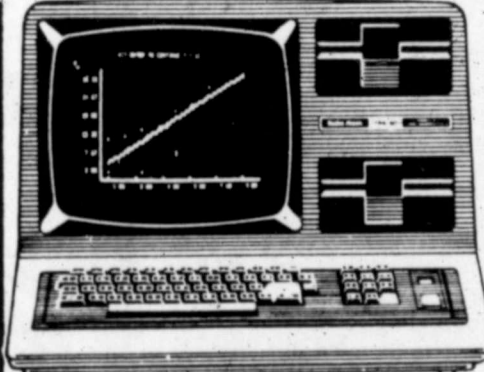

Bob White, who has spent nine of his 13 years in journalism at the Light, was promoted from senior editor to managing editor.

Bill Towery, senior news editor, and Griff Singer, former longtime University of Texas journalism instructor who has been city editor of the Light since 1979, were promoted to assistant managing editor posts.

The legislative net

The Reagan administration's new budget is designed to make sure no one at the poverty level is left out in the cold by the need to cut federal spending. Some programs are being spared to provide a "safety net" to protect the truly needy.

And the Congress of the United States.

Nowhere in the long list of proposed budget cuts is there mention of the $1.4 billion it costs to support the House and Senate in the style to which they are accustomed.

Do our senators and representatives and their staffs belong in the same category as the poor and disabled? Of course not. President Reagan and Budget Director David Stockman know full well that Capitol Hill represents a prime example of the rampant government growth they are trying to control.

But the Executive branch must respect the right of the Legislative branch to manage its own affairs. That leaves it to the conscience of Congress itself to decide whether cutbacks in congressional sional spending are in order.

The voice of the congressional conscience has plenty to account for. Congressional expenses have more than tripled in the last 10 years, even while the number of senators and representatives has remained the same. It is the size of the congressional staff that has gone through the roof.

A decade ago it took 702 employees to staff the committees of the House. Today it takes 2,073. The staffing of Senate committees has risen from 635 to 1,217. This doesn't count the personal staffs of senators and representatives — now standing at 3,612 on the Senate side, 7,067 on the House side.

Why do senators need 36 persons, on the average, to run their offices? Why does a representative need a staff of 16?

A lot of Americans would like to know — especially those who for one reason or another are going to feel the brunt of cutbacks in the federal budget. What Congress spends on itself is part of that same federal budget, and that's one item to leave out of the safety net.

Next-door neighbors

During the presidential campaign, Ronald Reagan stressed the common interests and concerns of the United States and its neighbors to the north and to the south.

Now, as president, he has taken the initiative in strengthening neighborly ties.

He has met with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo and seems to have established a congenial relationship. The two presidents have scheduled another meeting in Tijuana and San Diego within the next few weeks to discuss solutions to the illegal alien traffic, the unrest in Central America and trade.

Recently Mr. Reagan returned from talks with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in Ottawa, where he sought to ease the strain caused by differences over fishing rights, energy, pollution and foreign policy.

Over the long haul, each country will act in its own best interests, but the across-the-border meetings should promote better understanding of issues of disagreement and bolster the historic friendships that unite us.

INSIDE REPORT:

'Exotic alliance' has objective of stopping Soviet Union

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A tete-a-tete luncheon at the Chinese Embassy here for three Reaganite hard-liners with high credentials on the Republican right signaled an exotic alliance with this common objective: Stop the Soviet Union.

Two of the guests at the March 9 lunch with high-ranking Chinese diplomats are top officials in the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) with long-standing anti-Soviet records: Dr. Michael Pillsbury, Deputy ACDA director, and David Sullivan, a former Soviet analyst in the Central Intelligence Agency. The third was John Carbaugh, an aide to Sen. Jesse Helms who has placed more anti-Soviet hard-liners in the Reagan administration than anyone else.

The Chinese wanted to know how many and what kind of new arms President Reagan would send Taiwan; the three Americans wanted to know if China would help the U.S. resist Soviet gains in Black Africa. No commitments were given, but the two-and-a-half-hour exchange over a six-course lunch opened a dialogue that will continue despite the strong pro-Taiwan loyalty of American conservatives.

CANADIAN BLUES

Behind his calm exterior, Ronald Reagan was angry as he left for Canada on his first presidential state visit about the way the State Department had arranged the trip.

Reagan grumbled that U.S. diplomats had agreed to place "acid rain" and other confrontational issues on the agenda of his talks with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. The president's grievance was shared by his three top aides: Edwin Meese, James Baker and Michael Deaver.

Evans

That is only the latest of multiple aggravations between the Reagan White House and the State Department, beginning with resistance there to foreign aid budget cuts. The basic complaint is indirectly against Secretary of State Alexander Haig — not so much his own views but what the president's men see as his failure to control the State Department bureaucracy.

AUTO WARS

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, a cool, tough customer in Pennsylvania Republican politics, outbluffed his adversaries in the Reagan Cabinet to keep alive his proposal for a quota on Japanese auto exports.

Lewis was outnumbered with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and budget director David Stockman leading the fight against import restrictions. When no agreement could be reached, the free-traders suggested the matter go directly to President Reagan for his decision. That decision almost certainly would have gone against Lewis.

But Lewis protested, saying the Cabinet should make a last effort at consensus and suggested they start by listing all matters on which they agree. "We were eyeball to eyeball with Lewis, and we blinked," one free-trader told us. The matter was not sent to the president for his decision, keeping alive the auto import question and increasing the possibility of some limitation eventually resulting.

TIP'S STRAUSS APPEAL

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill went to his knees to beg Robert Strauss, one of the most effective long guns in the Democratic Party, to fire a blast of anti-Republican oratory at the party's annual fund-raising congressional dinner, originally scheduled for mid-May.

When O'Neill first asked the former party chairman, Strauss said not a chance; taking his family on a long-deferred vacation up the Nile River in Egypt and then to Israel had precedence over everything else. "I have paid my debt to the party," Strauss quipped to O'Neill.

But the speaker wouldn't take no for an answer. He got Strauss to agree to speak if the dinner could be postponed to June. The new date is June 17, and Strauss will speak in the grand ballroom of the Washington Hilton.

VAN CLEAVE RETURNS

Unstinting pressure from his conservative allies in Congress, led by Sen. Jesse Helms, has brought a high-level job within reach of William Van Cleave, the tough defense expert who was read out of any possible Pentagon job by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The likeliest possibility: running the important National Foreign Assessment Center, known by its acronym as NFAC at the Central Intelligence Agency. Van Cleave would be the No. 3 CIA official if he is offered and accepts the job.

Another post high on the list for Van Cleave is ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), a job with prestige and substance held by such luminaries in the past as the late David K.E. Bruce and Donald Rumsfeld. President Reagan will personally decide which job to offer Van Cleave, the Ph.D. who is a former Marine enlisted man with a professor's rank at the University of Southern California.

ON THE JOB TRAINING

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Is Nicaragua playing 'middleman' for Castro?

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has made no secret of its belief that Nicaragua is transshipping Soviet armaments from Cuba to the leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

What has not been made public, though, is the evidence our intelligence agencies have gathered of a reverse flow of non-military supplies from Nicaragua to Cuba. As with the military smuggling, the Nicaraguans are the middlemen — but this pipeline runs from the United States to Nicaragua to Cuba.

Despite the 20-year U.S. economic boycott of Cuba, it is now possible once again to buy goods in Havana bearing the label "Made in U.S.A." Intelligence analysts have concluded that the U.S. boycott is being circumvented by using Nicaragua as a clearinghouse for American goods that Fidel Castro badly needs.

For example, one U.S. company has sold huge quantities of agricultural chemicals to Cuba through the Nicaragua connection. In some cases, my sources say, the shipments have not even been offloaded in Nicaragua, where the cargo vessels simply touched port briefly before shoving off for Cuba.

Still other American companies have acted in good faith, but are becoming suspicious that the goods sold to Nicaragua were actually intended for transshipment to Castro. One tire manufacturer, for example, has sold Nicaragua tires that do not fit any trucks known to be in use in that country. The tires, however, will fit Soviet-made trucks the Cubans have.

Intelligence sources told my associates Dale Van Atta and Bob Sherman that U.S.-made farm machinery shipped to Nicaragua is also ending up in Cuba. Ironically, the American machinery goes to Castro, while Soviet machinery provided to Cuba is delivered to the Nicaraguans.

Drug companies are apparently major profiteers in the illegal breach of the Cuban boycott. Intelligence sources indicate that some drug makers are afraid the U.S. government will impose civil or even criminal sanctions for pharmaceutical shipments to Nicaragua that could not be by any stretch of the imagination be used only within that country.

Reagan aides have the intelligence reports in hand, and are reportedly using them in the development of their overall Nicaraguan policy. A final decision on resumption or termination of U.S. economic aid to the Nicaraguan junta is expected in the next few days.

Meanwhile, other intelligence reports have described the Nicaraguan leadership's communist connections. Nicaraguan interior minister Tomas Borge, who is close to Castro, has been quietly seeking aid from other foreign leftists.

For example, last April Borge made a secret visit to North Korea to arrange arms shipments to Nicaragua. The meeting was set up through Borge's ties to the Palestine Liberation Organization. These date back to his days in the Sandinista guerrilla

CHARLEY REESE

Judicial interpretation not the way to legislate

A state judge in Florida recently dismissed charges of escape filed against 10 felons who fled Florida's maximum security prison. His reasoning provides a perfect example of the dangers of legislating by judicial decree.

The judge, R.A. Green, was trapped by his own logic. In order to be found guilty of the crime of escape, you must be legally confined. Some months ago, in a class action civil suit, Judge Green had ruled that confinement in that Florida prison is cruel and unusual punishment, because of the over-crowded conditions. Therefore, the 10 felons, who had in fact staged the biggest break-out in Florida history, could not be guilty of escape as they had been, by the judge's own definition, illegally confined.

The decision is logical and legal. It's also stupid. As one of Charles Dickens' characters remarked, "Well, sir, if that's the law, then the law's an ass."

The law, unfortunately, is a self-contained world that must be consistent with itself. One decision is necessarily based on a previous decision and the chain of logic weaves its own way from one to the other and quite often leaves the real world far behind.

In contrast to the world of abstract legal argument, 10 convicted felons did in fact escape from a prison where they had been ordered confined by other judges for serious crimes. In the real world of the prison, more than 1,000 felons will read the judge's decision as offering them at least a free shot at attempting to escape. The job of the guards, which is to detain and to control these men, will be made more difficult and more dangerous.

Furthermore, the good judge is laying for himself a logical trap. Suppose that next week there is an attempted break and a guard kills one of the prisoners. Now the judge will have to decide, if the matter comes before him, whether it is murder or justifiable homicide to shoot a man attempting to flee from "illegal confinement."

I cite this absurd situation only as an example of widespread judicial abuses which have resulted from the current fashion of bringing social activism into the courtroom. The courts were never intended to be a substitute for the legislative branch and some means must be found to correct this abuse lest we find ourselves ruled by a black-robed oligarchy.

Let us, as the lawyers say, stipulate the conditions in the Florida prison are terribly in need of remedy and furthermore that the Legislature, for one reason or another, has not addressed the problem.

This is the classic excuse used for judicial intervention — a genuine social problem being ignored by the government agencies responsible for correcting it.

Even a social activist, however, needs an excuse to involve the court. The answer has been to abuse the Constitution with totally ridiculous interpretations. In this case, a lawyer filed a class action suit contending that because the state could not guarantee that men convicted of violent crimes would not occasionally resort to violence on each other in the prison, confinement in the prison violates the constitutional prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment.

The men who wrote the constitution obviously had in mind a different definition of cruel and unusual punishment. In their era, burning at the stake, quartering, flogging, and other such brutal acts were common. They certainly did not have in mind forcing a prisoner to sleep on a mattress on the floor or sharing his cell with two room-mates.

But asserting such a claim and having a judge accept it is only the first abuse of our judicial system. The second occurs when the judge goes beyond compensating an injured party to setting himself up as a one-man combination legislature and 'prison expert'. In this case, the judge decided what the standards of a state prison should be, even to such details as how many square feet to allot to each prisoner, and ordered the state to comply. To heck with costs and consequences!

Under this system, the Constitution means whatever some two-bit lawyer in a black robe says it means and the principle of separate branches of government and of rule by elected representatives goes right down the tube.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, March 17, the 76th day of 1981. There are 289 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On March 1, 1962, the Soviet Union accused the United States of fighting an "undeclared war" in Vietnam and demanded the removal of U.S. forces.

On this date: In 1649, England's parliament abolished the House of Lords.

In 1813, Prussia's Frederick William III declared war against France.

In 1891, telephone communications were established between London and Paris.

In 1973, a Cambodian air force officer stole a plane and bombed the presidential palace in Phnom Penh, missing President Lon Nol but killing at least 20 people.

Miami's murders taking big toll

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated-Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Police cars with flashing lights block the road. Officers stretch rope from a small rental-car agency to the warehouse across the street to keep away the curious.

At 3 a.m., there isn't much of a crowd.

The only signs of what's happened are a dark stain on the pavement, the blood of Carlos Vasquez, and a crumpled jacket someone has left behind after it had cushioned the victim's head.

Vasquez, 23, the overnight attendant at Fliteways Rent-A-Car, was shot once in the chest. He died at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

"Another typical Miami murder — nobody saw anything," Detective John Parmenter mutters as he wipes sleep from his eyes and follows the trail of blood from the office door to the street, where Vasquez collapsed. "We'll probably never find out who did it."

"Whodunit" killings, random deaths like Vasquez' in which there are few clues and no apparent suspects, have jumped from about 25 percent of all local murders five years ago to as many as 75 percent today, according to Capt. Marshall Frank, chief of the Dade County police homicide force.

Such murders require more detective work. With the Miami area's murder rate up 90 percent in the last two years, that isn't always possible — and trying to keep pace puts pressure on a detective squad already strained.

"Way back when most homicides were the domestic types, you could handle them in three to four hours," says Detective John LeClaire. "Anybody can do that — you have a willing subject and clear evidence."

Now, he adds, the typical Miami murder is a shootout that takes days of tracking down witnesses, friends of the victims and background.

A record 580 people were slain in Dade County last year, up from 363 in 1979, and the number of homicides so far this year is running well ahead of the 1980 pace.

Vasquez is just one more murder victim, but his death gets the careful attention of a squad of detectives, some roused from bed for an early start and others who have been working since early afternoon.

A crime lab technician busily measures, sketches and photographs the scene and dusts for fingerprints as homicide Lt. Raul Diaz examines the empty cash drawer in the Fliteways office.

Detectives interview the agency's owner and all witnesses, view the body at the medical examiner's office and search the rental-car agency.

"There's not much physical evidence," Diaz says, shaking his head. "Even if we get some good prints, if there're no prints on file to compare them with, we've got no subject."

A tourist buying gasoline next to Fliteways tells detectives he saw three Hispanic men race away from the murder scene in a blue car. They were going too fast to catch the license number and he couldn't see their faces.

The job pressures — internal and external — eventually take their toll. Last year, an exhausted detective ran off the road, wrecking his car and injuring himself, on the way home after a long day.

Another detective, already suffering from hypertension, handled two murders in one night, went home, collapsed and required major surgery. A few years ago, a detective with another area police department killed himself.

"Homicide detectives on the average are one of the last groups to seek professional help," Dr. Parke Fitzhugh, the department psychiatrist, says. "They're under a great deal of stress, but generally they've only gotten to me when they've been referred and they're at a crisis."

Some detectives drink too much or develop stress-related health problems such as ulcers. Many are divorced. Most are chain smokers. They don't eat right or get enough sleep. Some get short-tempered.

"You can see the strain. But they don't complain as much as one might imagine. They feel what they're doing is important — they're not dropping like flies," says Frank.

"Look at the people's faces," Diaz says. "They've all got bags under their eyes — you know who the homicide investigators are."

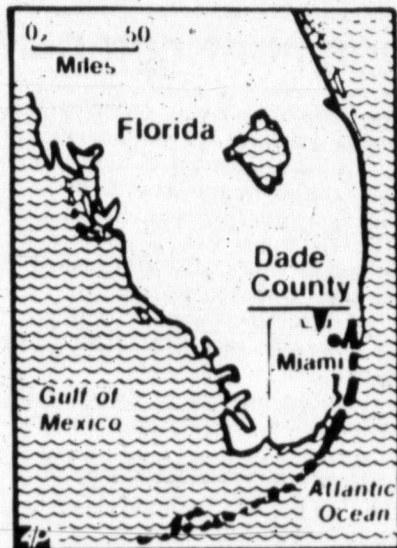

All of them want to do a good job and solve their cases — and they often can't, he says.

"They'll get a case today that looks really hot," Diaz says. "But the next day, they'll have another one they have to chase. The next day, there's another."

"The detective gets frustrated and demoralized — he has leads on his own cases that he's not able to follow."

Compounding the strain is the public pressure on a detective to solve society's most violent crimes. Within hours, an investigator may view death at its worst, deal with some of the most hardened criminals and then carefully break the news to the family of a victim.

"Sometimes you have to catch yourself when you're dealing with nice people — you tend to become cynical," LeClaire says. "But if it ever got to the point that it didn't bother me to have to tell someone their loved-one is dead, then I know it's time for me to get out."

Vickie Daniel recalls shooting during child custody hearing

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The widow of former state House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. has testified at a custody hearing that she shot her husband after she told him she had disposed of his marijuana and he shoved her off a stair.

Vickie Daniel burst into tears Monday during the first public recounting of Daniel's Jan. 19 death, interrupting proceedings to determine custody for her two sons by him. Judge Sam Emison Jr. ordered the parties in the case back to court today.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in her husband's death at their home here, said she shot him after he ignored a warning shot from a 22-caliber rifle and walked toward her, threatening to kill her.

"I told him, 'I'm warning you to leave,' but he wouldn't," she said. "I fired a warning shot...I intentionally missed him. I just wanted him to leave.... I was afraid he was going to hurt me some more and I backed away."

Mrs. Daniel, 33, said she was battered and abused by her husband. She testified he abused her children by a former marriage, kicked her in the stomach once when she was pregnant and exposed himself to young boys who visited the house.

Mrs. Daniel agreed to waive her Fifth Amendment self-incrimination protection and testify about the shooting as part of an agreement allowing her to retain custody of the children until the court decides a custody suit filed by Daniel's sister.

Relating the events leading to the shooting, Mrs. Daniel said she and Daniel were standing on the attic stairs when he asked where his "stuff" was.

"I assumed he was talking about the marijuana," she said, adding she told him she had flushed it down a commode.

At that, she testified, he knocked her off the attic stairs and she went to get the gun.

After the warning shot, she said, she held the rifle at her side, closed her eyes and began backing away from her advancing husband. She said she did not remember pulling the trigger.

"I remember hearing a funny sound," she told the court. "It must have been the last shot. I didn't know then I had hurt him."

Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson filed the suit seeking custody of her two nephews. Attorneys for Mrs. Murph claim Mrs. Daniel is not a fit mother for Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, because of emotional instability.

Under questioning by Zeke Zbranc, one of Mrs. Murph's lawyers, Mrs. Daniel said she was often denied food, household expense money and gasoline by her husband, who did the family grocery shopping and "most of the time he wouldn't buy enough food for the family."

Also in response to a Zbranc question, she said, "I didn't think it was very nice of him to pull his pants down when he was playing basketball" with her son and several boys who worked at the house.

She said Daniel kicked her in the stomach when she was pregnant — hard enough on one occasion to knock her out of bed — and would "throw chairs, glasses, pour drinks over my head and sometimes throw sticks and tree limbs."

Armed citizens patrol gains minimal support in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Police have refused to approve an armed citizens patrol determined to protect children at a housing project, and only a handful of people turned out for a meeting aimed at uniting police and community in the city's investigation of 22 child slayings and disappearances.

One of two meetings scheduled Monday night to kick off a series of police-community "unity forums" had to be canceled for lack of interest when only 25 people attended the first session.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said police had anticipated "a substantial amount of interest — which is not evident by the number in attendance so far."

"Certainly, though, it's not the number," Brown said. "If anyone's interested, we're willing to meet with them."

Meanwhile, young men said they would arm themselves with baseball bats and walkie-talkies to patrol a housing project near downtown Atlanta, despite criticism from top law enforcement officials.

Israel Green, head of the United Tenants Association at Techwood-Clark Howell Homes, said 40 people between the ages of 16 and 21 would patrol in pairs to protect the children living there.

Brown lashed out at the plan, saying, "There is only one police department in this city and we will not condone any group that will be performing police activities."

Monday also brought word that a nationally known cult "deprogrammer" met with a special police task force investigating the cases.

Deprogrammers are hired, generally by a cult member's parents who believe their child has been brainwashed, to persuade cultists to leave their groups.

On advice of attorney, man delays planned guilty plea in murder case

HOUSTON (AP) — Walter A. Waldhauser, who was scheduled to plead guilty Monday to a reduced charge of murder in the deaths of a Houston couple and their infant son, postponed his plea on the advice of his attorney.

Attorney Robert Scardino Jr. said prior to a scheduled appearance Monday in State District Judge Allen Stilley's court that it was in Waldhauser's best interests to wait until Wednesday.

A capital murder charge against Waldhauser was reduced to murder Friday after he made a statement in connection with the case and a third man was arrested in the case.

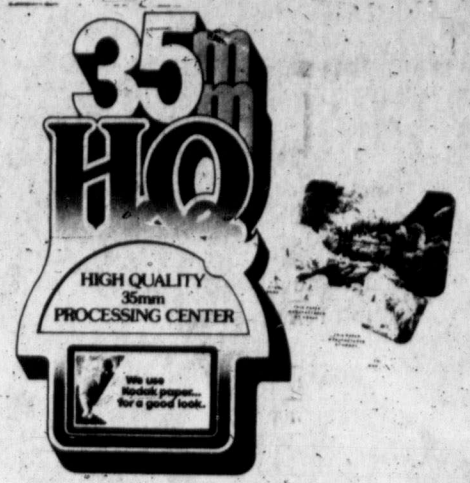

Markham Duff-Smith, 34, was indicted on a three-count capital murder charge in connection with the deaths of John Wanstrath, 35, an oceanographer, his wife, Diana, 36, and their adopted year-old son Kevin.

Authorities say Duff-Smith, an adopted brother of Mrs. Wanstrath, masterminded the murders to collect about half of the family's $800,000 estate.

Waldhauser is alleged to have hired a former convict, Allen Wayne Janecka, 31, to kill the Wanstrath family.

Jury selection started Monday for Janecka, who faces a capital murder charge.

Cigarette tax may supplement state parks aid

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Reagan Administration's plan to end federal aid for parks makes assistance from the state all the more urgent, Rep. Carlyle Smith has told the House Ways and Means Committee.

Smith is sponsor of a bill that would extend indefinitely the dedication of a penny of the 18 cents-a-pack cigarette tax to creation and improvement of parks in urban areas.

If the Legislature does not continue the dedication, it will expire on Aug. 31, 1983. The money would still be available for parks, but without specific earmarking for those in or near cities.

"I think this is the only way we can recover from the shock of losing the federal money," Smith said of the dedication, which means about $15 million a year to recreation-seeking city dwellers.

Senator says trade act not needed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Exxon, Gulf, Shell and the like are smart enough to look after themselves and don't need a state law to protect their interests, according to Sen. Carl Parker.

Parker asked a Senate committee Monday to exempt from the Deceptive Trade Practices Act transactions of more than $30,000 in which the consumer "is sophisticated with respect to the transaction" and can evaluate how risky it might be.

Former Assistant Attorney General Joe Longley testified, however, "Fraud is fraud, no matter who the victim is." He said he had helped Parker, D-Port Arthur, write the original act in 1973.

"The bill was never intended to protect Exxon, Gulf, Shell or Brown & Root" from each other, said Parker. "The giants of industry are no longer in a situation where they can bargain at arm's length with limited liability or limited damages."

Cambodians expected next month

DALLAS (AP) — Job offers are scarce and the need for housing is "desperate," but the first group of 1,000 Cambodian refugees targeted for Dallas will be arriving in April, a local resettlement coordinator said.

There are 5,000 refugees currently getting English instruction at a holding area in Thailand, the last stop before the Cambodians immigrate to the United States, said Fay Worrall, just back from a New York meeting of resettlement agency representatives.

Dallas and Houston are among nine U.S. cities selected for resettlement of as many as 1,000 Cambodian refugees apiece.

"We were told that the first 5,000 will be coming in April, May and June," said Mrs. Worrall.

Some "generalized" job offers have been made but the refugees are still "in desperate need of decent, affordable housing," she said.

"We would like to put 10 families in one site. We don't need efficiency apartments," Mrs. Worrall said, explaining the agencies plan to "cluster" the Cambodians together to ease their transition to life in a new country.

Fisheries chief asks for fishing ban

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There would be some "outlaw fishing" for redfish and speckled sea trout if the Legislature prohibits commercial fishermen from catching them, the state's fisheries director says.

But it would still be worthwhile to impose the prohibition as a step toward restoring the two species, Bob Kemp of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said Monday.

He testified before the House Environmental Affairs Committee in favor of a bill that would forbid commercial fishing for the two species.

Another bill, which would impose a two-year moratorium on both sport and commercial catching of reds and specks, would not provide sufficient time for the fish species to recover and could hurt coastal businesses that depend on game fishermen, he said.

Both bills were referred to a subcommittee for more study.

Jet turned back after bomb threat

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — A Lufthansa DC-10 jetliner en route to Chicago with 222 people aboard returned to Frankfurt after investigators found a travel bag containing a note with a bomb threat, the West German airline said today. A search of the plane failed to turn up any bomb.

Unconfirmed reports said the note warned a bomb would go off in the baggage hold unless the airline paid a $1 million ransom. Officials declined to comment on the note's exact contents.

The plane, carrying 210 passengers and 12 crew, was ordered to turn back to Rhein Main Airport Monday night when it was half-way across the Atlantic. It touched down without mishap and a search failed to produce evidence of any explosives, the Lufthansa spokesman said.

He said the passengers were put up in a Frankfurt hotel and were scheduled to be flown on to Chicago later today, the spokesman said.

Warning strike suspended; Polish farmer sit-in begins

RADOM, Poland (AP) — Labor leaders in the central Polish city of Radom suspended plans for a warning strike after an appeal from national union leader Lech Walesa, but about 50 farmers in another town started a sit-in demanding less supervision by the government.

The farmers in Bydgoszcz, 170 miles northwest of Warsaw, occupied the local headquarters Monday of the United Peasants Party, which cooperates closely with the Communist government. A spokesman for Solidarity, the independent labor federation, said the farmers want to limit the operation of government-sponsored panels called "agricultural circles."

The panels were created by the Communist Party to bring collectivization to areas where most farms are still privately owned. The party wants them to act as representatives of the farmers, but the strikers want them limited to providing agricultural services.

In Radom, an industrial city 50 miles south of Warsaw, the Solidarity local shelved plans for a work stoppage Wednesday to pressure the government.

The resignations of several officials the workers wanted ousted were announced over the weekend, and talks were planned today in Warsaw on other demands by the union, including access to government facilities and a halt to alleged harassment of local union officials.

Walesa, national head of Solidarity, appealed to a cheering crowd of about 15,000 in the Radom sports stadium for "calm and restraint."

He said Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski had promised to try to reach a settlement with them.

"We have a premier who wants to do something," Walesa said. "We have a reasonable government, but the government must have time to solve its problems."

Jaruzelski when he took office last month appealed for a 90-day respite from strikes so the government could attack Poland's acute economic problems.

Walesa said the workers' riots in Radom in 1976 protesting increases in food prices inspired the strike wave last year that resulted in replacement of the leaders of the communist regime and the legalization of the first independent labor unions in the Soviet bloc.

Midland choir receives good ratings in contest

Eight choirs from four Midland schools participated in the two-day University Interscholastic League Concert and Sightreading Contest held last week at Lee High School.

A total of 41 choirs from throughout the region presented concerts and were rated by a panel of three judges. In both concert and sightreading the judges may assign ratings of Division I through V. If a choir receives a Division I in both concert and sightreading, the group is designated as a Sweepstakes Choir.

Ratings received by MHS choirs were: Midland Freshman, directed by Diann Berry, concert III, sightreading IV; Lee Freshman, directed by Marilyn Jones, concert II, sightreading II; Lee Second Mixed Choir, directed by Walter Wright, concert II, sightreading II; Lee Second Treble Choir, directed by Walter Wright, concert II, sightreading I; Lee First Treble Choir, concert II, sightreading I; Lee Tenor/Bass Choir, directed by Walter Wright, concert II, sightreading III; Midland

17-year-old's answer bests 16 professors

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A high school junior who bested a panel of 16 college professors on a geometry question has forced the Educational Testing Service to correct the scores of 250,000 students who took a college board test.

"It's kind of overwhelming," said Daniel Lowen, a 17-year-old honors student in math and German at Cocoa Beach High School. "I didn't expect it to be such a big thing when I wrote in. I was just worried about my own score."

Lowen was one of 1.5 million students who took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test in October. The test was the first to be conducted under a new ETS policy of sending students a copy of their test and the answer key.

When Lowen received his PSAT results in late December, he noticed he had been marked wrong on a geometry problem involving two pyramids.

"It never entered my mind that they had made a mistake," Lowen said Monday. But he sat down with his father, an engineer on the space shuttle project at Cape Canaveral, and the two became convinced the boy's original answer was correct. They wrote ETS and found out they were right.

The question asked how many sides there would be in a figure made by attaching two pyramids, one with a three-sided base and one with a four-sided base. ETS said seven, but the Lowens argued for five.

The question was sent for review to math professors, according to Arthur M. Kroll, an ETS vice president.

"They all chose seven as the answer, but they all agreed that Daniel Lowen was correct when we gave them his reasoning," Kroll said.

The ETS notified Lowen his score on the math section of the test would be raised from 74 to 75. The test is marked on a scale of 20 to 80. His new total is 1,350 of a possible 1,600.

The ETS said it would also increase the scores of 250,000 other students who answered five instead of seven, but would not penalize those who chose seven.

"Most of the 250,000 students had their scores changed one or two points, and a very few had them changed three points or no points at all," said Robert Moulthrop, director of public information for ETS.

He said the change in scores depended on the ratio of total correct answers to incorrect responses.

The test, which also contains a section testing skills in reading and writing, was given in two versions in October. Only one, taken by about 800,000 students, contained the disputed question, Moulthrop said.

The PSAT is a warm-up for the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a college entrance examination, and is used in selecting winners of National Merit Scholarships, Moulthrop said.

Moulthrop said schools were notified of the score change "three to four weeks ago," and the change, which cost ETS about $100,000, would not affect any students' chances of selection in September for a National Merit Scholarship.

E. Belvin Williams, an ETS vice president, said questions similar to the disputed one would be tested more thoroughly.

Here's how the problem works:

The question showed two pyramids containing a total of nine sides, eight of them identical triangles. The question asked how many faces would be exposed if the two solids were placed together.

The expected answer was seven, with two identical sides disappearing when placed together. "All you have to do is add up the faces — four on one and five on the other — and subtract two," Kroll said.

But Lowen decided that when the pyramids were joined, four of the original triangular faces would be merged in two quadrilateral faces of the new solid. That meant two fewer sides on the new solid, for a total of five.

School leaders oppose tax credit

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big-city school superintendents are accusing the Reagan administration of trying to take more than $1 billion from public schools and give it indirectly to private schools in the form of tuition tax credits.

They contend a $250 tax credit for private school tuition would cost the Treasury $1.25 billion, virtually the same amount President Reagan has proposed cutting from some $5 billion in federal school aid programs.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell and his top aides planned to meet with the urban school leaders today at the final session of the Council of the Great City Schools.

Bell has said he backs tuition tax credits as "a matter of equity" for parents who send their children to private schools and support public schools through their taxes.

The council is a 25-year-old organization comprised of school superintendents and board of education members from 28 of the nation's largest cities.

Their schools enroll 5 million students, or 11 percent of all public school children. Samuel B. Husk, executive director of the council, said these urban schools, with 60 percent minority enrollment and 40 percent from families below the poverty line, stand to lose the most from Reagan's proposed 25 percent cut in aid to poor students, the handicapped and bilingual education.

Reagan's campaign endorsement of tuition tax credits makes the outlook "even more tragic," he said.

The administration has not yet sent Congress any legislative proposal of its own, but Bell has said a tuition tax credit will be part of future tax bills. Several senators already have introduced legislative to give private school parents a credit of up to $250 in 1982 and $500 in 1983.

Albert L. Ayars, superintendent of schools in Norfolk, Va., said in an interview he fears a tax credit might "re-segregate" America's public schools.

"The common school is a tradition in this country. Schools are common as the air is common and the sunshine is common to all people," he said. "This would make them common in the sense of cheap, ineffective and for the poor."

Aram Bakshian Jr., a Reagan special assistant, told the urban educators Monday that middle-class voters have been looking for tuition tax credits "for a long time."

"Apparently, their voice was heard," he said. "They were perceived as a large bloc of voters who supported the Republican platform."

He said these are parents who "seem to have lost faith in the American public school system."

Forced busing to end soon

BY YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Easter break ends for school children here, Los Angeles' program of mandatory busing to combat segregation will be over.

The Board of Education voted 5-0 Monday to allow students who so desire to return to their neighborhood schools on April 20.

The vote, which allows students being bused the right to complete the semester at their current schools, followed last week's state Supreme Court decision upholding a lower court decision in favor of an anti-busing amendment to the state Constitution. The amendment bans forced busing unless a school district has intentionally discriminated. The court decision eliminated any legal requirement for forced busing in the nation's second largest school district.

For four hours before the vote, a dozen speakers from parent, teacher, employee and student organizations urged the board to wait until the next school year before dismantling the mandatory busing plan implemented last fall.

The board's sole pro-busing member, Rita Walters, was in Washington on board business and did not vote. Los Angeles Urban League director John Mack read a statement from her urging the board not to approve an action which would "seriously turn back the clock" on desegregation of the 525,000-pupil district.

Most of the speakers said they favored ending busing in the 710-square-mile district next year, but were concerned about potentially disruptive consequences of mid-semester student transfers.

Teachers and other board employees said they feared layoffs or transfers and parents said they did not want their children's education to suffer.

"Everything's a balance," said board member Tom Bartman after the vote. "In this case it's a balance between freedom of choice versus some inconvenience. And those who will be inconvenienced are the ones who choose to transfer their children."

Board members have repeatedly stated their commitment to voluntary integration programs. At Monday's meeting — in accordance with a judge's order that integration gradually be expanded from the current 1st-9th grades into 10th-12th grades — the board issued an all-voluntary proposal to desegregate senior high schools.

Superior Court Judge Paul Egly's official withdrawal earlier Monday from the integration case he has supervised for the last five years. He had announced his intention to withdraw Saturday, saying he felt the predominantly white board was prejudiced in favor of white children at the expense of the district's 73 percent nonwhite enrollment.

Some of these students have already started trickling back.

Parents fight to have class air-conditioned

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Raul Espino Jr. doesn't look forward to returning to his plexiglass cubicle at Egly Elementary School now that warmer weather has returned, his mother says.

"He's starting to go back to it now," said Ana Espino. "I think it will be hard for him because in the winter he could stay out. I guess it's getting to him."

Her son is confined to a wheelchair and is unable to control his body temperature because of injuries he suffered in an automobile accident when he was an infant.

The Espinos say they will go to court if necessary to force the local school district to air-condition their son's first grade classroom.

The couple lost their appeal Saturday to the State Board of Education, which upheld the school district's handling of the case.

Raul's above-average intelligence and eagerness to learn led to his placement this year in a regular school instead of a campus for handicapped students.

His parents argue that the 5-foot by 5-foot box with an air conditioning unit unnecessarily restricts their son. The district argued parents of other children would be mad if Raul's classmates were singled out for air-conditioned comfort.

Mrs. Espino said Monday the family wants to meet with the school board.

"We're hoping this (meeting) will avoid going to court but if it doesn't, we'll go all the way," she said.

The Espinos said they were angry to learn Monday that a group of healthy children use an air-conditioned room just yards from Raul's class.

A group of undocumented aliens have been assigned to an air-conditioned classroom in a wing of Egly that serves as the Regional School for the Deaf. The children are enrolled in an intensive English-learning program.

Meningitis death reported

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston and Harris County health officials have reported three more cases of meningococcal meningitis and say one of them claimed the life of a one-month old girl.

Authorities emphasized, however, that the latest cases do not appear to be related to an unusual outbreak of the disease earlier this year at a Houston elementary school.

There have been 46 confirmed cases of the disease and four deaths in Harris County this year compared with 30 cases and no deaths for all of 1980.

The one-month old victim, who died March 11, lived in northeast Houston inside Loop 610. The two other cases involve a two-year-old boy and a four-month-old girl, both from the eastern portion of the county. The children are reported to be recovering in area hospitals.

Superintendent Raul Besteiro told the Brownsville Herald Monday he did not know the deaf school classroom was being used by undocumented children. He said the room should be used for hearing-impaired students.

The illegal aliens eventually will be transferred to a portable building. By then a new teacher will be available for the deaf school to start a new class, said Assistant Superintendent Tom Keller.

Harry Broda gazes from a hospital bed in Louisville, Ky. Broda has been paralyzed from the shoulders down after taking a fall from a mechanical bull. Now therapists are preparing for life in a wheelchair.

Fall from bull paralyzes youth

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Last month, Harry Broda went to the Urban Cowboy Bar to have a few beers and ride "Big Sid," the mechanical bull. Now physical therapists are teaching him how to write with his mouth and preparing him for life in a wheelchair.

"They ought to outlaw all of them," the 21-year-old man said of the mechanical bulls, a nationwide rage.

At the bar on Feb. 13, Broda said he drank three 12-ounce beers, paid $1 to ride the bull — "It sounded like fun" — and signed a document without reading it.

The document was a waiver that released the club from injuries incurred while riding Big Sid, a hydraulic contraption that can be made to buck with increasing force.

When Broda climbed on Big Sid for a third ride and told the operator he wanted to try it at a faster speed, he was flipped off and landed head first on mattresses placed around the bull.

"I went up in the air. When I came down, I heard three cracks and my whole body went numb," he said.

His neck was broken at the second and fifth vertebrae, according to Dr. Thomas A. Kelley, director of Louisville's Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation.

Paralyzed, Broda can only shrug his shoulders and move his head now. Doctors hope he will regain movement in his upper-arm muscles, but say his chances of ever moving again with his own strength are less than 1 percent.

Although numerous injuries ranging from bruises to broken bones have been blamed on falls from mechanical bulls, Broda is believed to be the first person in the country to be paralyzed in such an accident.

Since the accident, Broda has undergone operations to fuse his spine and install a pacemaker in his chest because spinal-cord injuries affect the sympathetic nervous system that controls the heart beat.

He has also been bothered by respiratory problems and urinary-tract infections. His weight has dropped from 185 to 154 pounds.

"That bull, it hurt me bad," Broda said.

The mechanical bull fad popularized in the movie, "Urban Cowboy" began at Gilley's Club in Pasadena, Texas, where the beast in residence has been ridden almost 150,000 times.

Actress to testify in libel trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The editor of the National Enquirer says he decided not to follow a request from attorneys for actress Carol Burnett to put a separate headline over a retraction of a story about her because "people wouldn't read it."

"We didn't use the headline because we felt people wouldn't read an article that said 'retraction' or 'correction,'" editor Iain Calder testified Monday in Superior Court.

Miss Burnett is suing the tabloid for $10 million, contending the Enquirer libeled her in a gossip item about an encounter with then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a Washington restaurant. She contends the article, published five years ago, implied that she had been drinking or was drunk.

She was to testify in the case today.

The Enquirer did publish a correction of the item on April 13, 1976, but it ran in a gossip column headlined "6 Million Man Blows Bionic Fuse."

"People who read the gossip column will be attracted to the column and read the retraction. To put 'retraction' in the headline, I think, would be a disincendence," Calder testified.

Under cross-examination by Ms. Burnett's attorney, E.D. Bronson Jr., Calder said retractions are sometimes given headlines.

The editor testified he had received a letter from Miss Burnett's attorneys demanding a retraction of the article, which described a purportedly rowdy confrontation between Miss Burnett and Kissinger.

He said Ms. Burnett's attorney's suggested in the letter how the retraction should be written and asked that it have a headline.

"They specifically didn't want the same words from the original column used," he said, "but I felt that, without using those same words, people wouldn't recognize what we were retracting."

The attorneys also demanded that a statement that the Enquirer had been "negligent in not investigating" the gossip item be included in the retraction, Calder testified.

Rep. Long visiting El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee that votes next week on the military aid President Reagan wants to send El Salvador is questioning members of the ruling junta today. He said he is not convinced American military advisers are needed in the war-torn Central American country.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., opened a two-day inspection of the situation in El Salvador Monday with a meeting with President Jose Napoleon Duarte, the head of the civilian-military junta.

After his talk with Duarte, Long said he was concerned about Reagan's decision to send military advisers to teach the Salvadoran troops fighting left-wing rebels. He said he wondered why Salvadorans trained in the United States couldn't do the same job.

Long, chairman of the foreign operations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, said of Duarte, "I think he leveled with me."

Long was to meet today with junta members Jose Antonio Morales Ehrlich and Dr.

Ramon Avalos Navarrete to discuss the government's public health and agrarian reform program.

He also planned to visit a ranch that has been expropriated and turned into a peasant cooperative and to meet with military commanders, business leaders and officials of the Roman Catholic Church.

Long's subcommittee is to vote next week on the appropriation of $5 million additional which the administration asked to send to the junta for patrol boats, helicopters, radar, vehicles and other equipment to be used against the leftist guerrillas fighting to install a Marxist government.

The Senate foreign relations appropriations subcommittee voted 6-2 Monday to approve the expenditures.

The funds are subject to veto by either Long's subcommittee or its Senate counterpart because they are being redirected from other appropriations. Reagan has used his own authority to send 20 additional military advisers and $20 million in military aid to El Salvador.

Army and police sources reported scattered battles Monday between leftists and government soldiers and said 20 victims of political terrorists were found, including three headless corpses in the capital, three victims in the suburb of Soyapango and the bodies of five women in Apopa, about 20 miles to the north.

Army sources reported 20 guerrillas killed in fighting in the towns of Villa Victoria, 55 miles northeast of San Salvador, and Palo Alto, 30 miles north of the capital. One source said the guerrillas occupied Villa Victoria.

Heavy fighting also was reported for the fifth day in the province of Morazan, a guerrilla stronghold 100 miles east of San Salvador, and in villages in the northern department of Chalatenango.

Ex-deputy prime minister of Iran on trial for conspiracy charges

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's former deputy prime minister and government spokesman, Abbas Amir Entezam, went on trial today on a charge of conspiring against the Islamic revolution.

Entezam served under former Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, who headed the first government after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's toppled the monarchy in February 1979.

Bazargan, who resigned in protest against the U.S. Embassy seizure, attended the court session along with former Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and members of the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party who have been sniping at Bani-Sadr for 10 months.

He said the panel would "closely scrutinize" Iranian news coverage of their disputes, and "if two members of the committee consider them harmful, they should inform the public and the prosecutor general's office so that the latter can take legal action."

Khomeini also urged Moslem leaders of Friday prayer services to promote calm and avoid making remarks "that might cause disunity or public concern," Pars reported.

Afterward, the ayatollah told a delegation of lution in collusion with the Central Intelligence Agency, Iran's official Pars news agency reported.

The session ended after the public prosecutor read the text of the indictment, and the trial will resume after the New Year holidays, which run for a week beginning Saturday, the agency said.

Hojatolislam Mohammad Gilani heads the Islamic revolutionary court that is deciding the case of Entezam, who was arrested a few days after the November 1979 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by militant Iranian students, Pars said.

Entezam served under former Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, who headed the first government after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's toppled the monarchy in February 1979.

Bazargan, who resigned in protest against the U.S. Embassy seizure, attended the court session along with former Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and members of the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party who have been sniping at Bani-Sadr for 10 months.

He said the panel would "closely scrutinize" Iranian news coverage of their disputes, and "if two members of the committee consider them harmful, they should inform the public and the prosecutor general's office so that the latter can take legal action."

Khomeini said the committee will be made up of three men, one representing him, another Bani-Sadr and the third the "other side," meaning Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and members of the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party who have been sniping at Bani-Sadr for 10 months.

He said the panel would "closely scrutinize" Iranian news coverage of their disputes, and "if two members of the committee consider them harmful, they should inform the public and the prosecutor general's office so that the latter can take legal action."

Khomeini also urged Moslem leaders of Friday prayer services to promote calm and avoid making remarks "that might cause disunity or public concern," Pars reported.

Afterward, the ayatollah told a delegation of women: "If, God forbid, the country is defeated in the imposed war, the solution may take long, the blame for this will rest with those who fan the flames of discord or bring about tensions."

Iraq invaded Iran, Sept. 22 and said its forces will remain until it gains complete sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab estuary, the southern border between the two countries and Iraq's gateway to the Persian Gulf.

este Consejo pade una orden estableciendo el procedimiento para archivar y conducir dicha elección de adminis-trador.

POR LO TANTO, SE ORDENA POR
EL CONSEJO DE ADMINISTRAD-DORES DEL DISTRITO ESCOLAR
DE GREENWOOD:

1. Que se lleve a cabo una elección en dicho Distrito Escolar el día 4 de abril de 1981, para el propósito de elegir al
Consejo de Administradores de dicho
Distrito Escolar miembros de dicho Consejo de Administradores para ocupar posición 3, 4, 5 y posición 7 por un año interminable.

2. Que todas las solicitudes de candidato a que se incluyen sus nombres en la boleta de la arriba mencionada elección, se han de presentar y firmadas por los candidatos y archivadas con el secretario del Consejo de Ad-ministradores en la oficina del superintendente antes de las 5:30 días anteriores a la fecha de dicha elección.

Todos los candidatos deben aportar a que la solicitud sea archivada, el acto notarial de lealtad como lo requiere el Artículo 6.02 del Código Electoral.

El Secretario del Consejo de Adminis-tradores debe colocar en la boleta de aviso en el edificio donde se reúne el Consejo de Administradores, los nombres de todos los candidatos que hayan archivado sus solicitudes de acuerdo con los términos y provisiones de esta Orden, y dicho Secretario de-berá en toda forma cumplir con los términos y provisiones del Art. 13.32

Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 1?

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The New Year's Day bowl picture may become a little more crowded next year with television contract negotiations under way to have the Fiesta Bowl played Jan. 1.

The only apparent stumbling block to the deal is whether the Tournament of Roses' Committee can be talked into starting its parade a little earlier, the Tempe Daily News said Monday.

The Fiesta Bowl, after playing on Christmas Day for several years, was staged Dec. 26 last year.

NBC-TV, which has a contract with the Fiesta Bowl, has drawn up tentative plans to air the next game after the Tournament of Roses Parade and before the Rose Bowl itself, said the newspaper. That would put the Fiesta Bowl opposite the Cotton and Sugar bowls on rival networks.

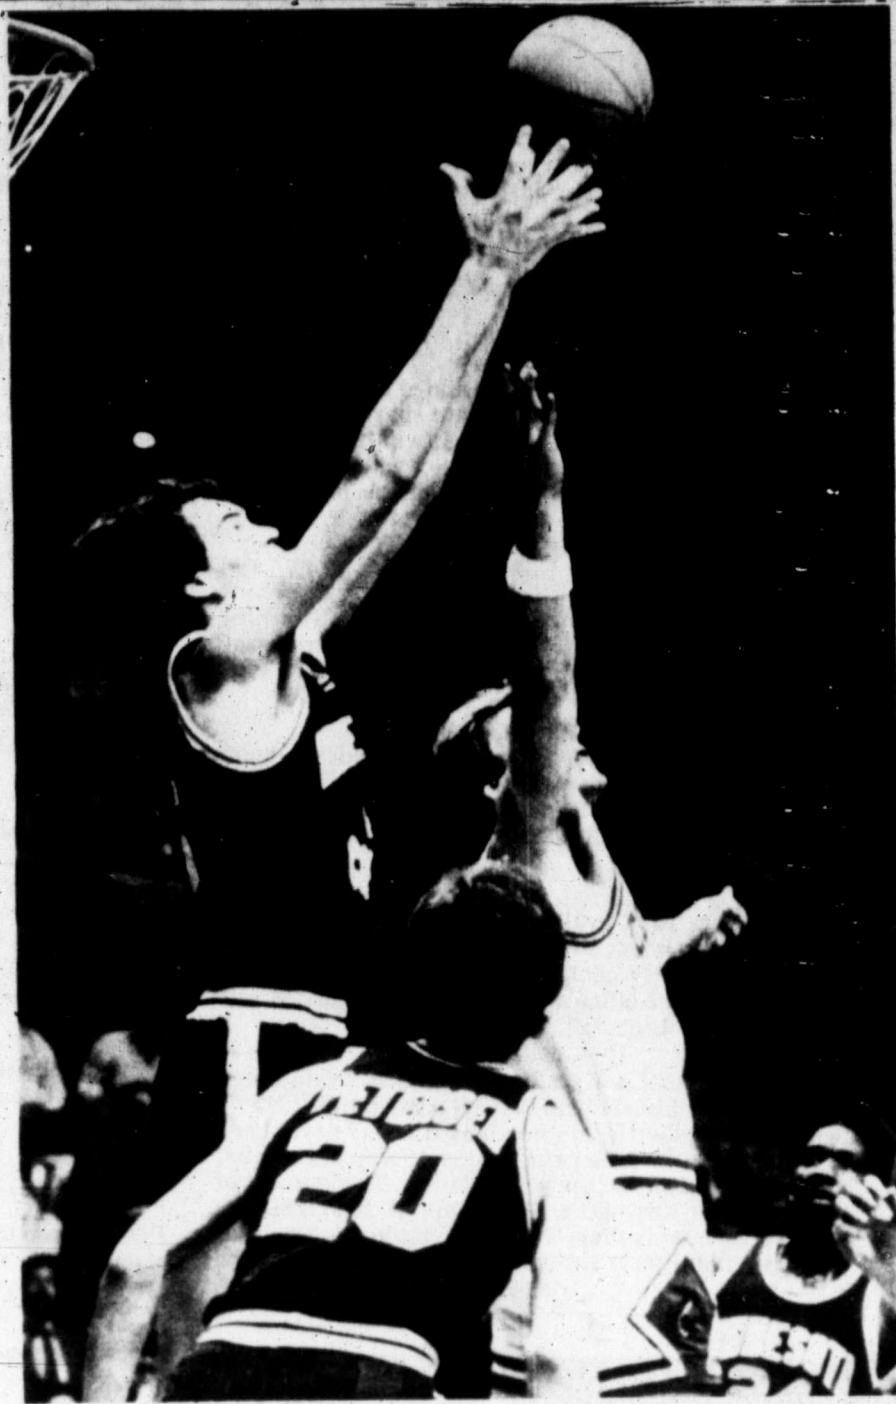

"We've talked to (Fiesta Bowl Committee members) about it," said Rex Lardner, NBC's director of programming. "The Fiesta Bowl is to the point where it is one step away from being a major bowl."

Bill Nicholson, chairman of the Rose Bowl's Football Committee, confirmed that his group had been approached by NBC.

"NBC talked to us and said the Fiesta Bowl would like to move (to New Year's Day)," he said. "They want us to move (the parade) 15 minutes earlier. But that makes a big difference because of the daylight-decent lighting for the cameras."

Nicholson said his committee had promised NBC last week that it would set down with network officials and "chart (the parade) and see what we could come up with. We haven't done that yet."

A decision is expected by Friday.

Randy Breuer of the University of Minnesota pulls in a loose ball with his fingertips as Chuck Aleksinas of the University of Connecticut tries to knock it away during first action in a second round game of the NIT. Watching the action are Jim Peterson (20) and Mark Hall (24) of Minnesota.

Big Ten looming bigger every day in National Invitation Tournament

By The Associated Press

The Big Ten is looming bigger every day in the National Invitation Tournament.

On the verge of the quarter-finals, Minnesota, Purdue and Michigan are all still standing tall — and looking pretty healthy at that, according to their latest victims.

"That team was 9-9 in the Big Ten — and it gives you an idea of how they play basketball in the Big Ten," said Connecticut Coach Dom Perno after suffering an 84-66 humiliation at home to the Gophers Monday night.

"THEY GOT inside people, they got outside people, they have seven quality players and will be tough to beat in the NIT."

So will Purdue, which beat Dayton 50-46 in another second-round game Monday night.

"They just manhandled us on the boards," said Dayton Coach Don Donohue. "It was a case of finesse."

Those games were two of seven played Monday night as the NIT field dwindled to eight teams. Elsewhere, Syracuse whipped Holy Cross 77-57; Duke stopped Alabama 75-70; West Virginia edged Temple 77-76 in overtime and Tulsa downed Texas-El Paso 72-67. Michigan scored a run-away 80-68 victory over Toledo in the only NIT game played Sunday night.

The results set up the following quarter-final pairings: Michigan at Syracuse and West Virginia at Minnesota on Thursday night and Duke at Purdue and South Alabama at Tulsa Friday night.

Trent Tucker, hitting 14 of 17 shots from the field, scored a career-high 35 points as Minnesota rolled past Connecticut. Seven-foot-two sophomore center Randy Breuer added 19 points for the Gophers, 16 in the second half when the Big Ten team pulled away from a tight 37-33 lead at intermission.

"I felt I couldn't miss," said Tucker. "Our team is oriented to the big guy (Breuer), but I had the rhythm, and the coach told me to put it up."

TUCKER ENTERED the game with a 14.1 average.

"Tucker has been a real good shooter," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "But he just proved himself a little more tonight."

Forward Mike Searce had three baskets and two assists in the final seven minutes to help Purdue beat Dayton. Dayton was forced to play most of the game without Mike Kaniecki, its leading scorer and rebounder for the season. The 6-10 junior center sprained his right ankle taking a jump shot at the 17:02 mark of the first half.

He was sent to the hospital for X-rays, which were negative, at half-time after soaking the ankle in ice. Later, he returned to the Flyers' bench on crutches.

Leo Rautins and Erich Santifer combined for 41 points to power Syracuse over Holy Cross.

Rautins, a 6-foot-8 sophomore transfer from Minnesota, scored 21 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Santifer finished with 20 points to help the Orangemen improve their record to 20-11.

The victory was the fifth straight in postseason play for Syracuse. The Orangemen had finished with their

By MIKE CRUVER

An 11-run outburst in the bottom of the third inning helped the Midland High Bulldogs to a 13-3 victory over the Pecos Eagles Monday at the Memorial Stadium diamond and raised their season record to 3-7.

Tim Whalen's crew took advantage of starter Nicky Granado and reliever Rios' wildness to score 11 runs on only five hits in the decisive third inning. Granado issued four walks before Rios came in to pitch. Kyle Ford started things off by beating out an infield hit and Joel Castaneda followed by getting plunked on the leg by a pitch. Granado walked Tim Davis and Jerry Zachery to force in a run before Frank Garramone laced a double into centerfield to drive in two more runs. Joel Castaneda and Fabian Ramos walked bringing in Rios from the bullpen. Rios walked Faustino Granado before Mark Hewitt belted a double into left for two more runs. Another run scored on the shortstop's two-base error on Ford's grounder and Castaneda knocked in Ford with a single. The final run of the inning came home on Davis's double to centerfield.

THE VICTORY could possibly be the most important win of the year for the Purple Pack. Going into the contest, the Bulldogs were a team that had suffered from a lack of hitting, pitching, fielding and was beginning to develop a case of team dissension following the Dogs' poor showing in the Tournament of Champions over the weekend.

Pecos started off like gangbusters in the first inning by taking raking started Mark Hewitt for three straight hits, a double and two singles, in scoring three runs before the Pack had a chance to settle down. Mundy Granado started things off with a double to centerfield and Mike Jacvuez followed with an infield single. Benit Galindo then lashed a single into left field to score the Eagles' first run. After Jamie Rodriguez sacrificed the runners over a base Ray Morales lifted a sacrifice fly to center. The third run of the inning scored when Wayne Sims booted a ground ball at shortstop.

MIDLAND CAME back to in the second inning to score two runs. Granado opened the inning by walking Zachary and Garramone followed with a single. After a passed ball moved the runners up, Joel Castaneda drove home the first run with a sacrifice fly to center. Ramos drove in the second run of the game of MHS when Garramone score on his grounder to shortstop.

After his shaky start, Hewitt settled down and gave up one one hit and struck out six over the last four innings. The victory was Hewitt's second against three defeats and one save.

The game was called after five innings due to the ten-run rule.

The Bulldogs move back into action when they travel to Pecos for a return engagement with the Eagles before opening District 5-5A action next Tuesday against Odessa Permian in Odessa.

Defending NCAA champs will watch finals on TV

An AP Sports Analysis
By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Louisville basketball Coach Denny Crum won the NCAA title last year, but this season he will watch the Final Four on television.

Crum knows very well what can happen in the NCAA tournament. Like so many other teams that drew byes into the second round of this year's event, the Cardinals never made it past their first game.

"You play to keep from losing, not to win," he said in generalizing the plight of second-round coaches.

RANKED 12TH in the nation, Louisville lost in the second round Saturday to Arkansas, 74-73, on a 49-foot shot by U.S. Reed at the final buzzer. Arkansas had beaten Mercer 73-67 in a first-round game.

"The pressure is greater for the teams that get the byes," Crum said. "Byes are not what they're cracked up to be. I think once you've got that first game out of the way, the pressure is off."

"It comes down to being able to handle the pressure," Crum said. "After winning a first-round game, you're relaxed, loose. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Once you get by your first game, anybody's got a chance to win."

In this age of parity in college basketball, Crum says there is not a great deal of difference between the Top 20 teams and the other best 50 or so teams. It would seem so.

EXACTLY HALF the teams ranked in the Top 20 in the final Associated Press poll lost in the second round of the tournament. And half of the 16 teams granted byes into the second round lost. Count them: No.1 DePaul, No.2 Oregon State, No.3 Arizona State, No.8 Kentucky, No.10 UCLA, No.11 Wake Forest, No.12 Louisville and No.13 Iowa. The other ranked teams that fell victim in the second round — No.17 Wyoming and No.18 Maryland — had survived the opening round.

"People forget how we won the tournament title," Crum said. "We started in the second round with Kansas State and won in overtime (71-69). In our next game, we beat Texas A&M in overtime (66-55)."

"The success of your season has got to be based on a whole year. You can have a great season without winning a national championship. Most of them don't, 260 or some (schools) don't, and only one does."

"Last year, we won those overtime games, but we could just as well have been sitting home, watching," Crum said. "Instead, we were good enough to win it. The same thing's true this year. You need a little good luck or else no bad luck. This year we had a little bad luck."

CRUM SAYS he is satisfied with the NCAA's 48-team tournament. He sees no inequities in a format that allows teams like St. Joseph's, Pa., Boston College and Alabama-Birmingham to advance to the regional championships, while the top three teams in the nation return home.

"With the tournament designed this way, the team that wins is the team that's playing best at the end," Crum said, "and that's the way it ought to be."

"Look at little ol' St. Joe's. Who would have thought they could beat DePaul in a game that counts?" Crum said.

"I think it's great this way. It gets the best teams in there, and it keeps teams that are playing well in there. That's why it's tougher to win than ever before," he said.

"Used to be that when the NCAA only took the conference champions, the teams playing their best at the end of the year never got into the tournament," he said. "Now, teams that finish second, third or fourth in the league are in there, and they might be playing better than the team that won the conference."

SO COACH Crum, resigned to his fate, will pull up a chair, turn on the television and play spectator for the NCAA finals March 28-30 at Philadelphia. It might have been different, but it wasn't.

Larry Brown lured back to NBA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After two winning seasons at UCLA, Larry Brown has been lured back to the National Basketball Association as coach of the New Jersey Nets.

He disclosed his decision to the Bruins at a closed-door meeting with them Monday, and although he would not confirm he was leaving, two players who asked to remain anonymous said that was what Brown told them.

THEY ALSO said Larry Farmer, a Bruin assistant basketball coach for six years and a player under former coach John Wooden, would be the new UCLA head coach.

Nets General Manager Charlie Theokas confirmed late Monday night that Brown, a former coach of the Denver Nuggets, had signed to coach the team starting next season.

Theokas, in an interview with ABC Radio Sports, said: "We're really excited about Larry and about next year. We feel we have half turned around our program and with the addition of Larry Brown we feel next year basketball in New Jersey will be exciting."

SEVERAL PLAYERS were near tears as they filed out, one-by-one, from Monday's meeting in Pauley Pavilion.

Freshman center Kenny Fields, who had been dropped from the team and then reinstated by Brown, said: "We hate to see him go. Coach has a tendency to get real close to his players. Wherever he goes, I hope he keeps in touch."

Brown had been rumored to be leaving UCLA for the past month, but said he would wait until after the Bruins finished the season to make a decision. Monday's talk with the team came two days after the club lost its opening game of the NCAA tournament.

HE BECAME the third UCLA head basketball coach to leave in the past six years. Following the end of Wooden's 27-year reign at the school, Gene Bartow, Gary Cunningham and Brown each guided the team for two years.

This season Brown's 10th-ranked Bruins, who suffered an embarrassing 78-55 NCAA playoff loss to BYU Saturday, finished with a 20-7 record. In 1979-80, Brown coached the team to a second-place finish in the NCAA tournament and a 22-10 overall record.

Brown, 40, had become the focus of considerable controversy at UCLA during the past two months. The speculation about his going to New Jersey was never really quieted. Brown publicly criticized the school for, among other things, not allowing enough students easy access to Bruin basketball games.

LATER, HE dropped Fields from the team because of what Brown described as an attitude problem. He said he'd never coach Fields again, but, later he reinstated the young center.

There was also a telephone threat on Brown's life and an upset loss to lowly Stanford in the Pacific 10 Conference.

Tummy tells Kuhn there will be no player strike

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he does not think there will be a player strike this year.

Kuhn, in Arizona to visit spring-training camps, said Monday while watching the San Francisco-Seattle game at Phoenix Municipal Stadium that he doesn't consider the current impasse over free-agent compensation to be a serious threat to the sport.

ASKED WHY he thinks owners and players will be able to get together, Kuhn replied: "My tummy tells me so."

The executive board of the Major League Players Association voted unanimously Feb. 25 to strike May 29 if the compensation issue is not resolved by then.

Kuhn said he thinks a solution will be reached once the two sides devote their full attention to doing so.

"I think once the spring camps are over and both sides sit down to some serious bargaining, the issue is eminently solvable," he said.

"The union is in no rush. That's not an abnormal thing in a union-management situation."

KUHN said he does not agree with the idea that the public is becoming fed up with baseball's labor-management spats.

"This kind of happening has gone on for 15 years," he said. "I think the fans take it pretty much in stride."

But he admitted that he would prefer to be rid of such hassles.

"Our problems are nagging — they need solutions," Kuhn said. "But I don't see this as a critical year for baseball."

He said that the free-agent compensation matter is just a drop in the economic bucket as far as baseball's overall picture is concerned.

"Only a small percentage of players would be involved in compensation," he said. "And there is a tendency for the good players to head for the teams that have a chance to win. Those teams have a greater supply of players (for compensation)."

KUHN SAID he considers rising ticket prices a far greater concern.

"Even since free-agency, ticket prices have not moved up dramatically," he said. "It's below the rate of inflation. If they went up dramatically, that would be a danger sign."

Kuhn was asked whether he could sympathize with Philadelphia Phillies owner Ruly Carpenter, who announced recently that he wants to sell his team because of escalating player salaries.

"I'd like to say no, but the answer is yes," Kuhn said. "Ruly Carpenter didn't see things adding up right."

Kuhn said that he does not foresee realignment in the near future but that the National League may add a couple of teams within the next five years.

HE LISTED Phoenix as a possibility for an expansion franchise, along with Washington (D.C.), Denver, New Orleans, Southern Florida, Central Florida, Buffalo and Vancouver, British Columbia.

Weather hampers MC tennis squads

With one eye on the weather, Midland College tennis coach Brian Gilley has two matches scheduled for his players this week. Last week the Chaps had three consecutive matches rained out, leaving the players with little action this spring.

Today, the Chaps host men's and women's teams from Wayland Baptist College at the MC courts, starting at 2 p.m.

On Friday it will be the first Western Junior College conference action for the Chaps as they play the tough New Mexico Military Institute men's and women's squads on the Midland College courts. Starting time is 1 p.m.

On March 24, the Midland College teams will host Hardin-Simmons University at MC a 2:30 p.m. and on March 25 it will be the neighborhood rivalry between Midland College and Odessa College in a conference match on the OC courts, with a 1 p.m. starting time.

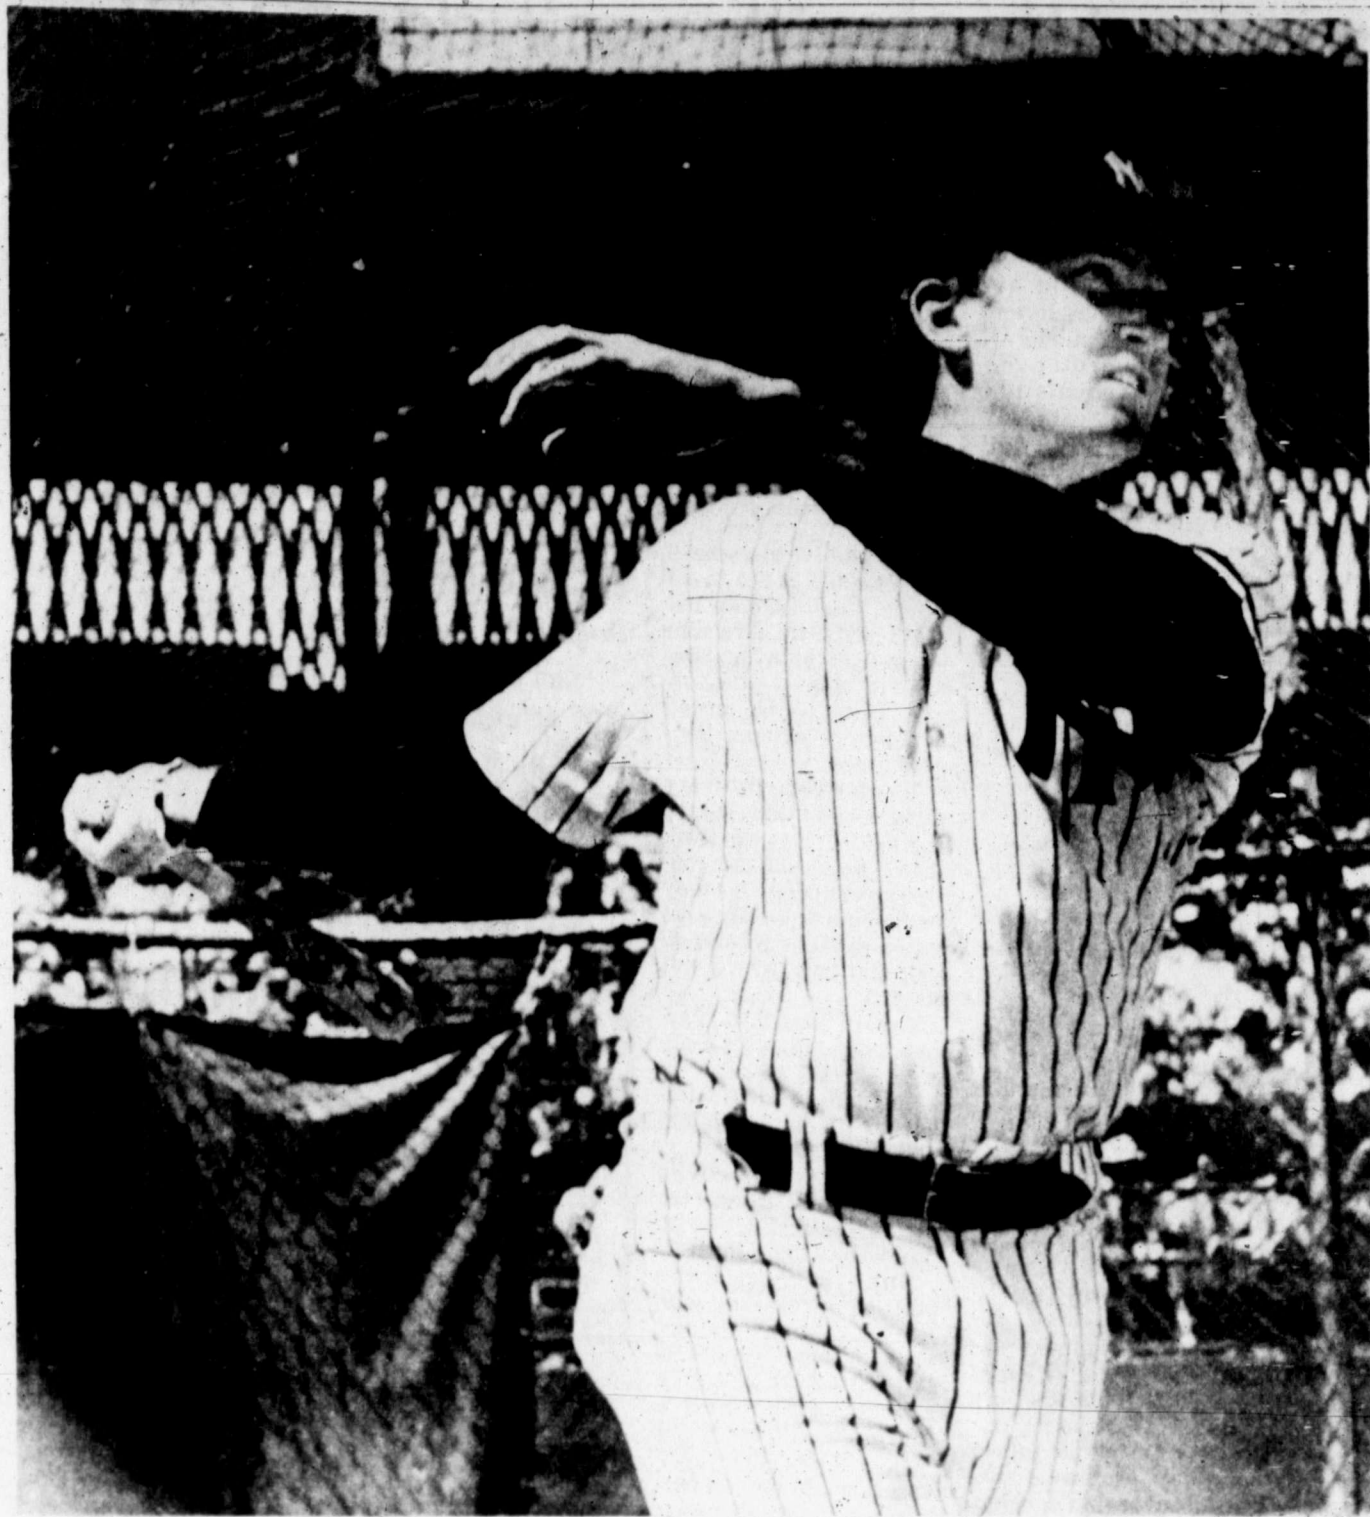

Gilley will be watching today's matches closely in an effort to determine which of his players will be taking over top spots on both teams.

"We just haven't had much playing time this spring and have several new players," Gilley said. "We needed last week's matches, but will just have to take our opponents one at a time now and do some shuffling around in both singles and doubles."

Gilley will be using three sophomores on his men's team. Russ Houck from Illinois; Chris Mosso from Chile; and Rudy Rico from Mexico City are the returning lettermen. Barry King from Illinois, Danney Olesen from Big Spring, and Randy Purifoy from Midland Lee were on the squad in the fall. Incoming freshmen include Luis Zavala from Mexico and Tony Macken and Craig Jeffrey, both from Vancouver, B.C.

The Chaparral women's team includes sophomore letter winners Brenda Burgess from Duncanville, Linda Hankins from Mesquite, and Teresa Landry from Plainview. Jane Webb from Fort Worth is a sophomore transfer. Freshmen players include Helia Barriga from El Paso, Donna Dickey and Karen Mannheimer from San Antonio, Laurie Runyan from Midland Lee, and Diane Wortman from Woodmere, N.Y., who transferred to MC at mid-term.

New York Yankees Greg Nettles works in the batting cage to shaping up his batting swing during spring training. Nettles hopes to get back into his regular form this season after an illness that kept him out most of last year.

Baseball rookie knows how to impress the manager

By The Associated Press

Ken Phelps knows how to impress the boss.

The 26-year-old rookie first baseman slammed a two-run homer Monday to spark the Kansas City Royals to a 6-5 exhibition baseball victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I thought he got an A-plus today," Royals Manager Jim Frey said of Phelps. "Any time a man hits home runs, you take that into consideration."

PHELPS, WHO played with Kansas City's Triple-A farm club at Omaha last season, hopes to move north with the American League team this year.

"We're going to head north with 25 names," Frey said. "What he (Phelps) does down here will determine our decision."

In other exhibition games Monday, Minnesota crushed Toronto 14-3, Baltimore defeated Atlanta 3-1, Detroit blanked Los Angeles 9-0, Cincinnati outlasted Houston 12-10, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 7-3, Milwaukee stopped Cleveland 5-2, San Diego edged Oakland 5-4, California nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-0, Seattle slipped by San Francisco 9-8, the Chicago White Sox downed the New York Mets 6-5, Boston squeezed by Montreal 6-5 and the New York Yankees and Texas battled to a 4-4 tie that was called after 17 innings because of darkness.

For Phelps, it was his second game-winning hit in two days. He collected his four-bagger Monday off Philadelphia pitcher Porfirio Altamirano in the bottom of the sixth inning.

RELIEVER DAN Quisenberry pitched the final three innings to preserve the victory over the Phillies, who beat the Royals four games to two in last year's World Series. Mike Schmidt homered for the Phils while Amos Otis added a two-run homer for Kansas City.

The Boston Red Sox handed Montreal its first loss in five starts as veteran Carl Yastrzemski keyed a three-run outburst in the first inning with a run-scoring double. The Expos pulled to within one run by scoring twice in the ninth but left the bases loaded against reliever Mark Clear.

Ken Singleton drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and three pitchers scattered nine hits in Baltimore's victory. Singleton now is 7-for-12 and has driven in five of the Orioles' 10 runs. Biff Pocoroba homered for Atlanta's lone run.

LANCE PARRISH tripled twice, doubled and singled and Al Cowens drove in four runs with a triple and double as Detroit trounced Los Angeles. Five Detroit pitchers, including Mark Fidrych, held the Dodgers to Rozelle says settlement on Raider's suit unlikely

MAUI, Hawaii (AP) — Changes in National Football League playing rules will be proposed today amid continued conjecture on the suit the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum have brought against the league.

The Competitions Committee makes the rules report, including one to lessen the penalty for pass interference, while the owners are expected to stand fast in their determination not to let the Raiders move from Oakland.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle was asked if he expected a vote on the Oakland situation after the ballot went 22-0 a year ago. He answered, "Not unless the Raiders ask for one."

Rozelle said the league expects the antitrust case will go to trial and just four singles.

Ron Oester, Ken Griffey and Nick Esasky hit home runs as Cincinnati routed Nolan Ryan with 10 runs in two innings, then had to hold on for its victory. Jose Cruz homered for Houston in a game that was played in gale force winds that swept toward the outfield.

Home runs by Pete Mackanin and John Castino combined with excellent pitching by Jerry Koosman led Minnesota to its romp. Koosman, making his third start this spring, went five innings and allowed only one hit, a solo home run by John Mayberry to lead off the fifth.

Pittsburgh's Dave Parker slammed a two-run homer on his first swing of the exhibition season, leading the Pirates past St. Louis. Dale Berra added a double and a triple to the Pittsburgh attack.

eventually could reach the United States Supreme Court.

Asked if he would step down if the Raiders should win the litigation, the commissioner answered:

"As long as I enjoy being part of the league, I will want to stay. If any circumstances occur, including personal, that I don't enjoy it, I will step down."

Rozelle would not enjoy a victory by the Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis. Yet he emphasizes he is only acting for the other 27 NFL team owners in this fight.

"I have a contract that says I enforce the constitution and by-laws," Rozelle said as the league's annual meeting of its owners began. "That is what I am doing."

He told the media he saw no out-of-court settlement in the Raiders case which goes to trial on an antitrust accusation shortly. The loser is expected to appeal.

Asked if a victory by the Raiders and L.A. Coliseum in district court would mean the Raiders would be able to move immediately, the commissioners said that depended on the jury verdict or what the appeals court says when it receives it.

He said that a full appeal procedure probably would take more than two years.

Tyler JC mentor tabbed to head Tulane program

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ned Fowler, head coach at Tyler Junior College in Tyler, Texas, has been chosen head basketball coach at Tulane University, reports say.

He will be officially named today, The New Orleans Times-Picayune and States-Item said.

Roy Danforth, who reigned as Tulane coach in February, was at New Orleans International Airport Monday night to welcome Fowler, the newspaper said, but he would not confirm Men try to improve boxing Group formed by referee

An AP Sports Analysis
By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Boxing referees and judges often are ridiculed even when they do their jobs properly, so it is a pleasure to have an opportunity to acknowledge a group that is trying to improve the sport.

The group is the Boxing Officials Association of New York, founded in 1977 by referee Arthur Mercante. It now has a membership of 32 referees and judges.

Mercante says the group has been discussing its goals with the New York State Athletic Commission, chaired by Jack Prenderville. That the commission is listening is also an encouraging sign. Too many boxing commissioners seem to have been born without ears.

TWO OF those goals are to be applauded and hopefully to be reached not only in New York, but in every boxing state.

"We're trying to establish a rating system for officials based on seniority and capability," says Mercante, "and we want to establish a mandatory clinic for referees and judges twice a year."

It is especially important than any rating system put capability ahead of seniority but not ignore seniority, which should mean experience.

A big step toward improving capability was gained when the association gained in the area of incentive by achieving its goal of increased fees.

Mercante says the $750 he got for working the first All-Frazier fight in 1971 — each fighter got $2.5 million — was the biggest check for a referee in New York State at that time. He also remembers getting paid $500 the night Ali got $6 million and Ken Norton more than $2 million for their fight at Yankee Stadium in 1976.

Now the main-event pay scale is $1,000 for referees and $600 for judges if the gate is from $100,000 to $300,000. If it is more than $300,000, then the fees are negotiated between athletic commission and the promoter. Mercante says Harold Valan got $2,000 for refereeing the Larry Holmes-Mike Weaver heavyweight title fight in the Garden in 1979 and that he got $1,000 for working the Roberto Duran-Carlos Palomino bout, an important 10-round match on the same card.

THE MANDATORY clinics for officials would teach and revise the mechanics in scoring and refereeing. It would also be a teaching and revue period for referees in the ways to recognize injuries and to recognize signs which should tell them to stop a fight.

Mercante also said the establishment of insurance for fight officials is being discussed. "We're trying to resolve problems that arise where legal action is taken against an official," and "we're trying to establish tight security for officials in the wake of riots in sports, not only in boxing."

Insurance and security are linked. In these days, when missiles hurled from by crowds are not the exception and when it no longer uncommon for the crowd to reach the ring, referees and judges should be insured from injury.

As for security — or, more accurately, the lack of it — it is an issue for which nobody should have to campaign. Promoters must be held responsible to point of license revocations and court action, for security. If security dips into a promoter's profits, so be it.

LSU Tigers expect different outcome

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — This time, senior center Greg Cook will be in the lineup, and the Louisiana State University-Arkansas matchup will be an entirely different basketball game, said LSU assistant coach Ron Abernathy.

The teams play at the Superdome Friday night in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

They met last in Alaska, and Arkansas whipped LSU 86-76.

It was the second game of the season, and it was the only blemish on LSU's record until a season-ending loss to Kentucky. That was followed by an upset by Georgia in the Southeastern Conference tournament.

Cook sat out the trip to Alaska as punishment for setting fire to a dormitory trash can.

"This time, we have him. He's ready," Abernathy said in a telephone interview before Monday's practice session.

Arkansas' main weapon has been 6-foot-10 junior center Scott Hastings, who is averaging 16 points and five rebounds a game. He had 25 points and 14 rebounds in his team's victory over LSU.

"But he hasn't been playing real well against big people," Abernathy said, with the implication that Cook, 6-9 and 230 pounds, could be more than Hastings can handle.

He said the loss to Arkansas really wasn't typical of the brand of basketball that LSU can play.

"We opened with our starters, but we pulled them out because they were playing so terrible," he said.

With most of the starters on the bench, LSU cut a 19-point deficit to one point before Arkansas again pulled away to win by 10.

"We're an altogether different team, now," Abernathy said.

Rick Schaeffer, sports information director at Arkansas, said the Razorbacks are much improved, too.

"We're a better team than we were in Alaska, but LSU's a whole lot better," he said in a telephone interview from the Fayetteville campus. "We outrebounded them in that game, 46-30. I watched them against Lamar Saturday night, and I don't see how anybody could outrebound them."

Unsed to call it quits after the season over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Center Wes Unsed, saying "it's just time to quit," announced Monday night that he will retire from the National Basketball Association's Washington Bullets at the end of this season, the Washington Post reported.

"I'm retiring basically because of the way my legs are acting, especially the good one," Unsed, the mainstay of the Bullets for the last 13 seasons, told the Post.

"I don't know if I'd be able to play next season even if I wanted to. There are other things I want to do anyway. It's just time for me to stop playing basketball."

UNSELD SAID he informed Bullets owner Abe Pollin of his decision two weeks ago.

"I explained my reasons to him and he understood," Unsed said. "I told him it was up to him to announce it whenever he thought the time was right."

The Bullets are expected to formally announce the retirement at a news conference Wednesday.

Unsed, who turned 35 last Saturday, has been bothered much of this season by arthritic knees and has already missed 14 games. The only other time during his career he missed that many games was during the 1973-74 season, when he had major surgery on his left knee and was told by some doctors that he would never play again. He played in all 82 games last season.

"When I started having trouble with my leg during Christmas time was when I started thinking about quitting," he said, "especially when I wasn't playing. There's something about getting paid and not playing that bothers me."

UNSELD IS known for of his strength, his court sense and his outlet passes. Listed at 6-foot-7, he said he is really only 6-5½.

He said he was afraid to tell the Bullets his true height when he was an All-American at the University of Louisville because he thought the team, then located in Baltimore, wouldn't draft him if they knew he was that small.

The Bullets made Unsed the first pick in the 1968 draft. That season, he was named the Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player, becoming only the second player in league history to win both honors simultaneously. Wilt Chamberlain was the first.

The Bullets had never had a winning season before Unsed's rookie season, but they have made the playoffs every year he has been with them and had a winning record in 10 of those seasons. He also played a major role in their NBA championship season in 1977-78 and led the team to the finals three other times.

Unsed is the all-time Bullets leader in games played, minutes played, rebounds and assists, and is second in points scored and blocked shots.

Hockey ref files lawsuit over facial injuries

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Claiming violence is encouraged in the American Hockey League, a former referee has filed a lawsuit in Superior Court over facial injuries he received when he stepped into a two-player fight.

LAWRENCE BELLE-MORE JR. of Hamden, Conn., is suing the New Haven Nighthawks, its parent team, the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and Nighthawk player Andre Dore for unspecified damages over $2,500.

Bellemore said he had to retire from hockey refereeing after his face was cut and four of his teeth were chipped when he intervened Feb. 3, 1980, in a scuffle between Dore and an opposing Adirondack Red Wings player.

THREE OF his damaged teeth were removed and extensive dental was necessary to repair the injuries, his suit says.

The former linesman maintains that the Nighthawks and Rangers "unreasonably failed to adequately discipline violent conduct prior to the attack" he suffered.

They also "encouraged and/or tolerated violent conduct among their players when they knew, or in the exercise of due care, should have known that such conduct is likely to cause injury to other players and referees," it adds.

The suit also says without further explanation that the AHL rule-book "by implication" encourages violence in its games.

ROY MLAKAR, president of the Nighthawks, claimed that Dore was "innocent" of Bellemore's injuries because the referee was "overly aggressive" in the way he intervened when "the whole thing was between two players."

Malone named NBA player of the week

Moses Malone of the Houston Rockets, who leads the National Basketball Association in rebounding and is second in the league in scoring, was named the NBA Player of the Week for the period ending Sunday, March 16.

Malone scored 134 points and grabbed 76 rebounds in helping the Rockets to three victories in four games last week. The 6-foot-10 center, who scored 51 points against Golden State last Wednesday, is averaging 28.0 points and 14.6 rebounds per game for the season.

Brian O'Neill, executive vice president of the National Hockey League, announced supplementary fines totalling $10,000 against four clubs, a coach and two players as the result of two recent bench-clearing incidents.

The games — involving the Minnesota North Stars and the Boston Bruins on Feb. 26 and the Philadelphia Flyers and the Vancouver Canucks on Feb. 24 — had produced $10,050 in automatic fines, bringing the total for the two incidents to $20,050.

Kate Latham upset Billie Jean King 6-3, 6-0 in just 39 minutes in the opening round of the $150,000 Avon women's championship tennis tournament.

In other matches, Joanne Russell defeated Pam Teeguarden 1-6, 7-5, 7-5; Kathy Horvath beat Stacy Margolin 6-2, 4-6, 6-1; and Miina Jausovec of Yugoslavia, upended Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa 4-6, 6-3, 7-6.

THE KING RIDES A DONKEY!

Jesus went on towards Jerusalem, walking along ahead of His disciples.

As they came to the towns of Bethphage and Bethany, on the Mount of Olives, He sent two disciples ahead, with instructions to go to the next village, and as they entered they were to look for a donkey tied beside the road. It would be a colt, not yet broken for riding. "Untie him," Jesus said, "and bring him here. And if anyone asks you what you are doing, just say, 'The Lord needs him.'"

They found the colt as Jesus said, and sure enough, as they were untying it, the owners demanded an explanation. "What are you doing?" they asked. "Why are you untying our colt?"

And the disciples simply replied, "The Lord needs him!" So they brought the colt to Jesus and threw some of their clothing across its back for Jesus to sit on.

Then the crowds spread out, their robes along the road ahead of Him, and as they reached the place where the road started down from the Mount of Olives, the whole procession began to shout and sing as they walked along, praising God for all the wonderful miracles Jesus had done.

"God has given us a King!" they exclaimed. "Long live the King! Let all heaven rejoice! Glory to God in the highest heavens!" Luke 19:28-38

Drunk horse proves Vaudeville isn't dead yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Rumors that vaudeville is dead are greatly exaggerated. It's alive and well in "Broadway Follies," a solidly entertaining grab-bag of song, fun, juggling, magic and mime.

It bowed Sunday on Broadway. The mime team of Shields & Yarnell — known from their CBS series — headlines a bill that features seven acts, among them a brace of boxers and a drunk horse.

This is quite an assortment, but this is quite a show, the only slow spots being the singing turns of British music hall star Tessie O'Shea and a troupe called Los Malambos, who thump drums, dance and shout with great vigor and little effect.

Shields & Yarnell, in their Broadway debut, are in fine form throughout, but the real standout is another Broadway newcomer, Michael Davis, a quiet zany who wows the multitudes time and again.

Said times are when he strolls on stage between acts, juggles various and sundry items, and drolly delivers wisecracks with timing that two noted jugglers, W.C. Fields and Fred Allen, would envy.

A fine juggler, he may have rented Martin Mull's mind for the occasion. He asks, "Do you have a feeling of deja vu?" Twice. And keeps in motion, all at once, a bowling ball, an apple and an egg, the last "the natural enemy of bowling balls."

And at one point he shows you various styles of juggling — modern, abstract, interpretive, sadistic, masochistic, and even classical. No, neighbors, Davis is not your ordinary ball-tosser.

A small spotted mongrel, apparently a visiting critic, keeps chasing him off stage at the end of each interlude. Each time Davis comes back, funnier than before.

The dog, who gets no billing, is pretty funny too. But honors in the field of canine humor go to the boxers, Scott's Royal Boxers, who appear as two teams in a collegiate balloon-game setting.

They leap about, knock down the referee, knock down their rotund mistress and filch her wig while battling for the balloon. A balloon vendor appears in the stands. You know what happens next.

A magic-and-silent-comedy team, Milo and Roger, also light up the night with an Arabian nights act in which the head of Milo — on a normal body — is turned completely around several times.

You don't see this very often. Good thing, too, as it would drive you from drink. So would the endless stream of water they pour from a small bowl into a barrel in a running gag that ends with a wet duck.

As for Shields & Yarnell, well, they're only magnificent, whether in a poignant toyshop number involving a windup doll and a puppet in love, or in an "At Home With the Klinkers" robot-couple skit loaded with wild and woolly sight gags.

Such includes the stuffing of a turkey with grapes, bananas and even a phone; the feeding of their baby with a can of STP, and a Murphy bed from which Mrs. Klinker flies right smartly into the kitchen.

They're equally good in solo numbers, with Robert Shields shining in a mime bit with a balloon that won't move, and Lorene Yarnell coming on strong in a big song and tap-dance-and-dance number that starts with her posing as an usher and literally stealing the spotlight from her husband.

You should inspect "Broadway Follies," crisply directed by Donald Driver, with eye-catching costumes by Alvin Colt and excellent music arrangements by Bill Byers and Marvin Laird. It's a welcome arrival in a season that's been pretty lame so far.

Yes, it's a wholesome show — save for a few crudities that should be cut from the drunk-horse routine of Gaylord Maynard. But it proves that wholesome need not mean dull.

It's good, old-fashioned entertainment, right down to its glittering production numbers, has a rampant spirit of merriment. Not only that, it's been pretty lame so far.

Submerged persons survive much longer than thought

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had occasion to be in a hospital emergency room last week because of a leg injury I suffered while playing touch football with boys one-third my age. In any event, while there I heard one of the nurses talking about a young man who had been brought to the emergency room after he either went swimming while drunk or fell out of a boat. He is supposed to have been submerged for as long as 10 minutes, but was said to be making a good recovery. I find this hard to believe since I'm under the impression that 10 minutes underwater should prove fatal. I wonder if the emergency room personnel simply accepted the story of the victim's friends (who also might have had a little too much to drink), or whether it's really possible for someone to survive after being submerged for as long as 10 minutes. — Hal

Dear Hal: It used to be assumed that death or permanent brain damage would inevitably result if a drowning victim was not revived within five or six minutes. Recently, however, there have been reports of people submerged for much longer periods of time who were able to survive with no permanent disability, provided the water was very cold.

One such report concerns a 23-year-old woman who was submerged in the Charles River in Boston for 25 minutes. At the time she was brought to a hospital, her body temperature was 14 degrees Fahrenheit below normal. After two weeks of hospitalization, however, she recovered completely, both, mentally and physically.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Instead of picking up her baby when he complains, a friend of mine uses a bottle of water as a pacifier. I've kidded her about the fact that her child will become a water-holic, but she doesn't seem concerned. If fact, she says that when the baby doesn't want any more water, he'll simply stop taking it. It seems to me the infant is drinking an awful lot of water, and I'm wondering whether there may be a potential for harm in this. Or do babies simply stop drinking when they've had enough? — Connie

Dear Connie: While it is generally assumed that a baby will refuse liquids after it has had enough, this is not always the case. Dr. Joseph Schulman, now at the Duke University Medical Center in Durham, reports on one baby who was not receiving sufficient nourishment. His desire to fill his stomach, even with water in the absence of milk, was stronger than the impulse to refuse the water. Other children may continue to take water because of the need to such, not because the child is hungry but because of the need for pacification that is not being provided by the mother.

While water generally is considered an innocuous substance, it can lead to irritability and even convulsions when consumed by babies in unusually large amounts. I don't know your friend or her baby, but she might try administering some TLC (tender loving care) rather than a bottle of water the next time her baby begins to complain.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Windfall profit tax rules may discourage producers' filing

NEW YORK — More than $2 billion from federal funds will be owed to the nation's crude oil producers this year, estimates Price Waterhouse & Company, an international accounting firm. But laying claim to it will be no simple matter.

The Windfall Profit Tax Act of 1980 required federal withholding of huge sums of money to cover the so-called windfall profits that owners of working interests and royalties may have received during the year. Refunds will be paid to those producers that are able to compute how much tax is actually due and how much they are entitled to in refunds.

But the complex IRS rules for computing the refund may discourage many producers from even filing for such refunds.

James H. Weimer, chairman of the Petroleum Industry Services Group of Price Waterhouse with headquarters in Dallas, says, however, "producers that do not file for the refund or do not perform all the calculations could be losing hundreds of thousands — perhaps millions of dollars."

"Because these rules are so new," said Weimer, "most companies have not had time to develop computer programs to take full advantage of refund possibilities. Use of computer processing is probably essential for anyone with more than a few oil producing properties."

As a result, Price Waterhouse developed a computer-based system to help producers with domestic crude oil production comply with the maze of rules and to assemble the data from various sources. Known as WPT/80, the system's general function is to help comply with reporting requirements while maximizing opportunities for refunds due from overpayments.

Some other advantages the system provides include the documentation of tax information in conformity with current law and rational IRS interpretations. The system computes the maximum refund, taking into account the 90 percent of net income limitation, the independent producers reduced rates on production up to 1,000 barrels per day, and the royalty owners credit of $1,000. It was designed to interface with other Price Waterhouse oil and gas accounting and tax reporting systems.

Weimer said he has seen client estimates of refunds ranging from 20-40 percent of windfall profit taxes withheld and/or deposited last year.

"In one instance, it was discovered that a relatively small company had overpaid the tax by more than $900,000. I believe this won't be an unusual case at all," said Weimer.

World crude oil production drops

TULSA — World crude oil production dropped four percent to 59.67 million barrels a day during 1980 in response to flagging demand, Oil & Gas Journal reports in its March 9 issue.

War between Iran and Iraq, two key Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries producers, lopped about 4.5 million barrels a day off global production.

The supply crunch which some industry analysts expected if the war lasted into spring this year, has not shown up, and won't, the weekly business magazine says.

Highlights of 1980 world crude production include:

*OPEC output plunged 12.9 percent to 26.8 million barrels a day.

*Non-Communist production skidded 7 percent - to 45.2 million barrels a day.

*Communist areas showed a modest increase to a new high of about 14.5 million barrels a day. The Soviet Union, the world's largest producer, edged up 2.6 percent to more than 12 million barrels a day.

*Non-OPEC, non-Communist producers, paced by Mexico and the North Sea, gained 3.3 percent to 18.3 million barrels a day.

*U.S. output gained nearly one percent to an average 8.5 million barrels a day thanks to the first full year of capacity flow from giant Prudhoe Bay field on the Alaskan North Slope and a slowing decline rate in the lower 48 states.

The Journal says market forces are in control of production country by country.

There is no better example of that than in North America.

The U.S., which has decontrolled oil prices ahead of schedule, is in the midst of a drilling boom. The hectic activity promises to further slow the nation's historic production decline.

By contrast, Canada's federal government has imposed an energy policy and tax that reduces incentives for exploration and production. The nation's production dropped 5.6 percent to 1.4 million barrels a day last year, and the new policy will do nothing to reverse the decline.

On the world front, the near-term key to production will be the extent to which major importing countries can continue to reign demand, which already is resulting in production cutbacks by oil exporting countries, the Journal says.

Two enter TMI building

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Two men clad in protective gear entered the contaminated Three Mile Island containment building today to prepare for tests on the highly radioactive water flooding the basement.

The men, the first of three teams involved in the two-day entry, carried in equipment for a test of a process designed to purify the water.

The TMI Unit 2 reactor was disabled almost two years ago in the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident. During the accident, some 700,000 gallons of radioactive water flooded the containment building basement.

Plant spokesman John Fidler said a second team would test the water with a steel tube packed with coarse sand-like resin material that removes radioactive isotopes.

"They will pump some water at a very slow rate through this column of resins. Then, after it's filtered through, they will take the water out and have it analyzed," Fidler said.

At that point, he said, the water should be free of radioactive cesium, strontium and tritium.

Fidler said the test would be conducted from the entry level, about 15 feet above the eight feet of water on the basement floor.

He said the filtering resins in the steel tube are the same ones contained in the Submerged Demineralizer System, an expensive and elaborate system the plant owners are building to treat all of the water.

The entry, the seventh since the accident, is scheduled to continue Thursday, when a third team will install a remote monitor to measure radiation near the highly radioactive reactor core.

The team also will do maintenance work on lighting fixtures inside the concrete building, Fidler said.

The entries, which began last July, are part of a $1 billion, seven-year operation to clean up the crippled plant. The process involves surface decontamination, purification and disposal of the water, and removal of the core.

Getty Oil has new location

The No.1 Madera 35-76 gas well, located 1320 feet north and 1320 feet east of the survey lines 25 miles north of Mentone in section 35, block 76 in the Public School Land survey will be drilled by Getty Oil Co. of Odessa.

The 22,500 feet well is one mile east of a American Petroleum gas well plugged 11-23-73 and one and a half miles north-west of a wildcat discovery by Getty Oil Co.

Strawn reopener

A drillstem test recovered 330 feet of oil and gas-cut mud indicating re-opening of the Strawn oil production at SUNSEX Energy Corp., San Angelo, No.2 Stanley V. Holik Sr., in 165-11-SPRR, 5/8-mile northeast of the original opener.

It is situated 1/2 mile east of the former Strawn oil producer, No.1 Frank J. Holik which was recompleted as the current second Canyon gas producer in the Lora field of Tom Green County, 51/2 miles south of Wall.

The test was taken at 4,630-709 feet and the tool open 11/2 hours. Flowing pressure was 67-100 pounds; initial and final shut-in pressures were 2,124 and 2,075 pounds respectively.

The 41/2 inch casing was run the total depth of 4,709 feet.

The No.1 Frank Holik, erroneously identified as Strawn before, was recompleted March 12 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 170,000 cubic feet of gas daily through perforations at 4,320-323 feet.

The Roger E. Canter No.1 F.J. Holik Jr., the Strawn opener was finished Feb. 11, 1964 with perforations at 4,665-67 feet through a 16-64 inch choke for 36.95 barrels of 34 gravity oil.

HNG completion

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-25 Ludeman has completed a 17,153-foot gas well in Loving County, 14 miles northwest of Mentone.

The well is located 1,320 feet from the northwest and 1,320 feet from the west lines of section 25, block C-25 of the PSL survey.

Total depth is 17,153. The well was plugged back to 17,012 feet, elevation is ground level at 3,181 feet.

Casing is 7 5/8 inch at 13,000 feet. Perforations were from 15,731 feet to 15,758 and acidized with 5,000 gallons.

The well produced 7,500,000 cubic feet of gas.

The prospect is 7/8 miles east of HNG No. 1-6 Ludeman, an active 18-, 200-foot wildcat.

Pecos County No. 908 Fort Stockton Unit has been completed by Exxon Corporation 8 miles northwest of Ft. Stockton.

The project was drilled to a total depth of 3,402 feet at ground level elevation of 2,835 feet. Casing was 4 1/2 inches at 3,392 feet.

Perforations were from 3,025 feet to 3,303 feet.

The well was treated with 2,900 gallons acid and fraced with 34,000 gallons and 10,000 #.

The well flowed 103 barrels of oil per day, 125 barrels of water on 20/64 inch choke. Gravity was 35.5 with a gas to oil ratio of 816 to 1.

Located 1,486 feet from the north, and 453 feet from the west lines of section 19, block 199, survey GC & SF, the nearest production is 1 1/2 miles in the Ft. Stockton (lower Yates) field.

Proxmire reveals plans for offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for $500 million worth of new congressional office buildings have been developed by architectural planners at a cost to taxpayers of $450,000, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire said the plans will be made public this spring.

Officials at the office of the Architect of the Capitol could not be reached for comment. The officials were said by their secretaries to be attending meetings and were not available to return phone calls.

Proxmire gave his tongue-in-cheek "Golden Fleece" award for March to the office for developing building plans that he said would eventually lead to "one office building for every member of Congress."

Proxmire said, "It is vital that these plans be killed now, at the very beginning, before the money has been committed, construction has begun and it is too late to turn back."

PBGS sets annual meet

The Permian Basin Geophysical Society will hold their 25th Annual Exploration Meeting March 19-20. The program will begin 1:00 p.m. Thursday at the Midland Hilton. A registration fee of $30, and pictures will be taken at that time. Cocktails will follow at 7:00 p.m. in the Midland Hilton Ballroom.

The program begins 8:30 a.m. Friday at the Midland Convention Center. "Geophysics-The Next Half Century" will be presented by the keynote speaker, Mr. Kevin M. Barry. Mr. Barry is vice-president and data processing manager for Teledyne Exploration Company in Houston. He is also president of the Society of Engineering Geophysicists.

Mr. Barry will be followed by James A. Powell, of Elfex Research and Exploration Inc., delivering "Electric Transient Surveys for Hydrocarbons." Next on the agenda is Dale G. Stone, of Seismograph Service Corporation, presenting "Statistical Relations Between Borehole and Surface Data." He will be followed by Alistair R. Brown, of Geophysical Service Inc., presenting "Statigraphic Interpretation Using 3-D Seismic Data."

The afternoon session will include Michael T. Spradley, of Fairfield Industries, delivering "Telesis - A Seismic Data Telemetry Acquisition System"; Ray O. Lindseth, of Teknica Ltd., presenting "Synthetic Sonic Logs for Delineation of Petroleum Reservoirs"; Jack R. Barnes, of Denver Processing Center, Inc., speaking on "Seismic Modeling, A Useful Tool in Exploration and Development"; and Dr. G. R. Keller, Associate Professor, University of Texas (El Paso), presenting "The Role of Gravity and Magnetic Data in Regional Exploration Strategy."

Mine workers, industry deadlock in coal talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contract talks between the United Mine Workers and the soft coal industry broke off early today in an apparent deadlock over the volatile issue of miners' working hours.

Union President Sam Church, entering consultations with his negotiators several hours after the talks broke down, declared: "From the very start, the union has not wanted a strike, but at this time it appears the operators do."

Church refused to elaborate on the differences between the two sides, but acknowledged that no more formal bargaining sessions had been scheduled. "We are in telephone contact with them," he said.

ENERGY

REPRESENTATIVES of the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm, had continued to talk past the union's self-imposed midnight deadline, signaling progress toward a settlement that would avert a strike March 27, when the current three-year contract expires.

One UMW official said after the deadlock developed, however, that the negotiations could conceivably run into Wednesday night and still give the union adequate time to have members vote on a proposal before the present pact expires.

The session at a downtown Washington hotel broke up shortly after 4 a.m. EST and negotiators left the room grim-faced.

And, for the first time since the talks entered the critical stage over the weekend, the two sides failed to announce jointly when they would meet again.

Union officials said then that they expected to resume bargaining by mid-morning.

BUT THE BCOA'S three representatives, asked if that timetable were correct, refused to comment. The trio, briefcases in hand, headed to the association's Washington headquarters.

UMW spokesman Eldon Callen confirmed subsequently that the two sides had not scheduled another bargaining session immediately. He said that the union bargainers were meeting at mid-morning and that the union's 39-member bargaining council scheduled an early afternoon session at the union's headquarters near the hotel.

But Callen said a contract settlement could still be achieved in time to avoid a strike.

"If we work through the night to night and Wednesday night, we could jam the administrative procedures up front and still make our (strike) deadline," he said.

LATER, HOWEVER, he acknowledged the ratifying a proposed contract in time to avert a strike would "be tough."

Later, Callen described the talks as being in "recess" and said he expected the bargainers would resume the talks, but did not predict when.

The multipay field of Terry County, Brownfield South, produced the third Fusselman well and a half-mile south extension with completion of American Quasar Petroleum Co., Midland, No. 1-92 Harred, seven miles south of Brownfield.

The location is 2,100 feet from the south and 467 feet from the east lines of 92-T-D&WRR.

Asked about the possibility of the two sides asking for federal mediation, he said "We don't want the government in it...and we don't feel the government would help anything."

Harrison Combs, general counsel to the union and one of the bargainers, also confirmed that no new bargaining session had been set.

UMW bargainer Tom Gaston said the two sides had failed to resolve differences over the industry's efforts to put mines on a seven-day production schedule.

"There is still a lot of ground to be covered..." said Gaston.

He said the industry had dropped its proposal to have miners work mandatory overtime but said the mine operators were continuing to insist on keeping mines open all week.

THE 160,000 MINERS covered by the UMW contract now work a six-day week with Sundays off. Gaston indicated the union is willing to work on Sundays — but only if the miners get a five-day week in exchange.

The industry has sought the seven-day production schedule to utilize expensive mining equipment and to improve mine output.

Gaston said he feels the industry will retreat from its efforts to replace the existing multi-employer pension fund with company-by-company plans handled by private insurers.

Until now, the pension issue, and not the production schedules, had been considered the chief obstacle to a settlement.

Gaston said the union negotiators also feel the industry's wage-and-benefits package "is inadequate at this time" but predicted that issue would not be dealt with until there is "some movement" on the issue of production schedules.

EARLIER, WHEN THE talks recessed about an hour after Monday's original midnight deadline had passed, UMW negotiator Jack Perry told reporters, "We're separated by several obstacles," including pension issues and an overall economic package.

However, Walter Suba, another member of the union team, said, "There's still a chance" to reach a settlement sometime today.

Church was pictured by his chief spokesman as eager to talk as long as

"He believes it's necessary for the industry, foreign markets and the economy," spokesman Eldon Callen said of Church, presiding for the first time over contract talks with the soft coal industry.

Church had said earlier that "we have a shot" at averting a strike.

Chief industry negotiator B.R. Brown had said he was not optimistic.

UMW LEADERS SAID earlier the midnight Monday negotiating deadline was inflexible because they needed 10 days to complete ratification by the union's 39-member bargaining council and the approximately 160,000 rank-and-file miners. Union policy has been not to work without a contract.

As the midnight deadline approached, however, Callen said that "if we got it (a tentative agreement) by tomorrow night, we can still probably make it" without a strike. That would mean completing the ratification process in nine days, rather than 10.

The UMW has struck the coal industry in five successive contract negotiations since 1964. The last strike, for 111 days in the winter of 1977-78, caused widespread industrial layoffs and some power outbacks in the Midwest as coal-dependent states tried to ration dwindling supplies.

If there were to be a strike this year, about 44 percent of the nation's coal production capacity would be idled. But a strike would not likely have an immediate impact on the economy because electric utilities, major purchasers of coal, are believed to have a 90-day stockpile. Also, spring is approaching, lessening the need for coal, and a host of non-union strip mines in the West would continue to operate.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Monday he was confident a settlement could be reached. But he ruled out any last-minute role by the Reagan administration in the talks, saying the government should not interfere in the collective bargaining process.

WAGES WERE NOT believed to be a major obstacle in the talks.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, March 18, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY:

Two of the movies' finest character actors—Dane Clark and Claire Trevor—share this birthday with you. Those of you in public life or the public eye will have popular opinion on your side in the year ahead. Romance is glamorous, exciting! Do not confuse daydreams with reality or you could make a costly mistake. Any travel or vacation plans should be made well in advance. A thirst for knowledge may lead you to return to school or take special courses in the fall. Loved one strongly encourages you show greater independence where career, business choices are concerned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

You get an idea this morning that will both increase job efficiency and boost your income. Evening hours favor romance, entertaining at home. Keep a close eye on your money and personal belongings today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Be prompt in fulfilling your family obligations. Look for new ways to expand the scope of your business activities. You will have to socialize more with your colleagues, if you want better

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Communication lines may become tangled today. Postpone financial dealings involving person who lives at a distance. You can now rekindle the spark of romance. Be sure this is what you want.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

This week is a very special time for romance. Get in touch with your true feelings! A new partnership increases your confidence in the future. Financial intrigue ends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Keep your mind on your work! Romance may have to take a temporary backseat to career. Welcome an opportunity to make important decisions. Others look to you for leadership.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Others are depending on you. Live up to your reputation as a leader and run the show in high style! New admirer will give you a wonderful gift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Make a greater effort to get along with co-workers. Avoid becoming impatient with those who lack your experience. You need to dig deeper to come up with the right answers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

Personal finances improve. Your first impression of a newcomer may not be valid. Choose your words very carefully if trying to sort out a difficult situation. Sensitive friend is quick to take offense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Act conservatively where finances are concerned. If buying furniture, select pieces for their durability as well as their looks. Re-establish contact with person who lives at a distance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

Stimulating news from afar comes your way. Partnerships and travel enjoy favorable influences. Social diversions could interfere with business progress. Stay home tonight. Someone special may be trying to reach you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

An unusual financial scheme could work in your favor. Contact influential person for best results. Old friend is able to give you special assistance. "Inside" information can be easily obtained.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Choose your attire with extra care today. Romance plays a major role in your plans. You can now learn the truth about a special relationship. Accept a social invitation this evening.

When South leads the last trump, East cannot afford to let go a club, so he must part with one of his diamond honors. Now declarer simply exits with a diamond, giving East his trick in that suit. East must lead away from the queen of clubs, and the contract is fulfilled even if East started with Q-10-x in

True enough. But an expert East, foreseeing the end position, will not discard so revealingly. He might well discard a club and hold the K-10 of diamonds. Now when you lead a diamond, he cashes the ten of diamonds for the setting trick, and you are left red-faced for going down in a "cold" contract.

Students are paid to attend school

SAN DIEGO (AP) — City school trustees have voted to keep through the spring term a program that pays Memorial Junior High School students the equivalent of a quarter a day for coming to class.

Principal Robert Amaran, who came up with the plan in an effort to cut truancy, said unexcused absences have dropped from 95 to 55 a day on the average during a four-month trial period. Increased attendance earned the school an additional $800 in state aid, but the plan cost $10,000. The trustees Tuesday budgeted $12,500 for the spring term. The 900 students earn 2 cents worth of scrip for each day they show up.

MARC Camera Manager Jeff Wilson wants all area photographers to know that MARC at 9 Imperial Center has both black-and-white and color darkrooms for rent for a nominal fee. Expert advice, plus cameras, lenses, printed material, supplies and almost everything the professional or amateur photographer might need are available at MARC Camera.

The only way to sell plants for the prices given at Plants by Evergreen is to grow them yourself — and that's what they do.

Plants by Evergreen is located at 409 Kent St. in Midland and inside the courtyard of The Market Place in Odessa. Owned by Grady and Joyce Johnson, Plants by Evergreen offers lush plants at wholesale prices. However, the Johnsons grow their plants in Florida where the year round temperature is warm. Their plants come from their greenhouses to you.

Along with beautiful healthy plants, Plants by Evergreen offer several special plant services. They specialize in interior plant design and atrium plant design. Plants give any home or business a relaxing, soothing atmosphere. People enjoy being around colorful, healthy plants. Consider adding beauty and atmosphere to your office and home with plants. Call Plants by Evergreen at 682-9199 in Midland and 366-5828 in Odessa and make an appointment for professional plant design assistance. If you are building, consider adding an atrium to your design. It will give you innumerable hours of enjoyment.

Plants by Evergreen also has a plant leasing and maintenance service for offices, hotels, restaurants and any business which wishes to beautify and decorate with plants. Brides and grooms rent large beautiful plants for weddings, as well. Or you can buy LARGE plants at half price, use them in your wedding and later in your new home.

Plants by Evergreen offers hand-made pottery by Richard Tadlock. The fine art of stoneware is exquisitely presented by Richard Tadlock, outstanding southwestern pottery. Earth and fire come together via his master touch to form uniquely designed art.

Whether custom made to suit one's needs, or purchased in one of the fine shops exhibiting his work, Tadlock pottery is always a standard of handcrafted excellence.

Plants by Evergreen has plants at prices impossible to resist. Their plants in four-inch pots are only $2 each — six-inch pots are $6 — eight-inch pots are $8.95. They have many larger plants at tremendous savings. It is difficult to go into Plants by Evergreen and come out empty handed. Stop by Plants by Evergreen today at 409 Kent St. in Midland or The Market Place shopping center in Odessa.

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Cabinet, still sharply divided on what to do about Japanese autos flooding into the country, is nonetheless inching closer to recommending some form of temporary import curbs, administration sources say.

A Cabinet-level task force headed by Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis was to meet again later today to discuss the issue with hopes of making a recommendation to the president this week.

However, one official said there is increasing doubt whether the president's advisers will be able to reach a consensus on the issue, raising the possibility it may present him with alternate recommendations.

Meanwhile, one White House source said Monday that Reagan has indicated he doesn't want the Cabinet members debating the issue in public.

"The president really wants to cool this one," said the source, asking not to be identified.

Pressure has increased in recent weeks for Reagan to begin negotiating with the Japanese a voluntary reduction of cars allowed into the United States in an attempt to take some of the competitive pressure off the ailing U.S. auto industry, which lost $4.2 billion last year.

Lewis is known to favor such a rollback for the next three years, arguing in Cabinet sessions that Reagan's overall economic recovery plan will not be enough to help the industry immediately.

He has been joined by Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, who told a congressional subcommittee recently that the U.S. industry needs "some running room" over the next three years so automakers can retool their plants and compete in the production of fuel efficient cars.

Strong opposition to any import curbs has come from budget director David A. Stockman, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council on Economic Advisers.

Stockman told an interviewer over the weekend that imports were not the cause of the U.S. industry's economic problems, saying the drop in domestic car sales have by far outnumbered the increase in imports during recent years.

Administration sources said Stockman and Regan fear import restrictions would add to inflation, might prompt similar requests from other industries, and could send a signal that the administration does not have full confidence in its overall economic recovery plan.

"There's a great hope that we will see an end to this (debate) soon," a Commerce Department official said. He added, however, that there is serious doubt whether the Cabinet members will be able to reach a consensus.

The Japanese exported 1.9 million vehicles to the United States last year, compared with 900,000 in 1976.

U.S. sales, on the other hand, dropped dramatically. Unemployment among auto workers and industry-related employees reached 600,000.

Reagan has emphasized that he is fundamentally opposed to government interference with the flow of free trade.

An administration source acquainted with the recent import debate said all the Cabinet members generally agree with the free-trade philosophy but some — including Lewis, Baldrige, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, and, increasingly, special

While seeking votes from auto assembly line workers in Detroit last September, Reagan expressed similar sentiment:

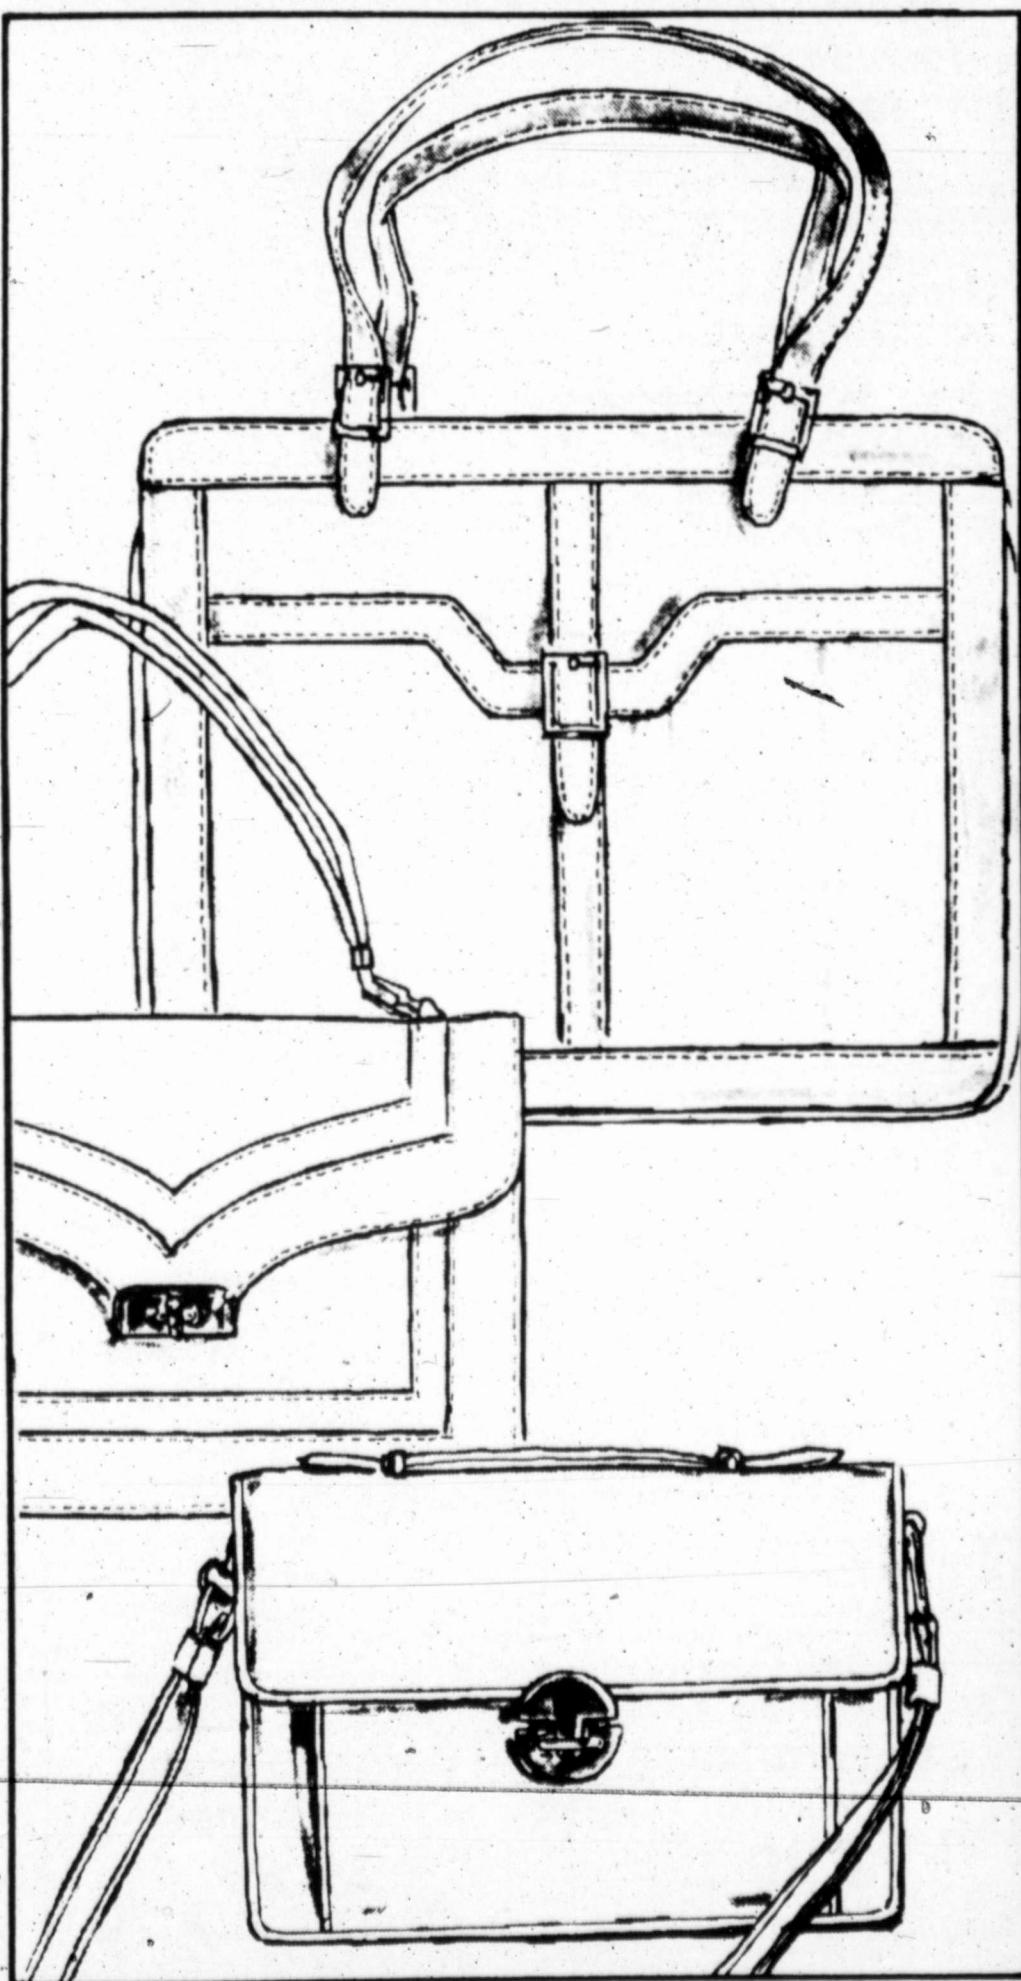

"There is a place where government can be legitimately involved... and that is to convince the Japanese that... the deluge of their cars into the United States must be slowed while our industry gets back on its feet."

Eight governors recently urged Reagan to seek some voluntary import restraints, as have auto executives and Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old single female engineer working in an oil field. I've worked for the same company for four years and am making a very good living.

When I was new in this business, and insecure in my position, I was pressured, or you might say "sexually harassed," by a fellow engineer who was much older than I, married, and in a position to do me a lot of good (and harm) in the company. He got me alone several times and I had no choice except to comply with his wishes, so I did. I never told anyone. Fortunately, after a while he stopped bothering me.

Now I am involved with another engineer who recently joined the company. He is more my age, single, and I am really in love with him. We haven't advertised the fact that we're seeing each other because we figure the less talk, the better.

My problem is that the older engineer has sort of taken the younger one under his wing, and they have become very friendly. I am worried sick that the older engineer will tell the younger one about what went on between us.

So far I haven't said anything, and I don't plan to, but I wonder if that is wise. Should I keep quiet and hope he doesn't find out? Or should I tell him myself and hope it won't make any difference? — NOT OK IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NOT OK: What was, was. If the younger engineer confronts you about the older one, don't lie. But for now, save your confessions for the confessional.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 38-year-old man who has recently started dating a very attractive 37-year-old woman.

We both enjoy theater and movies — especially comedies, and that's the problem. Abby, this lady's laughter attracts a lot of attention. She doesn't just laugh, she screams and hoots! I am sure I am not overreacting. When she laughs, people turn around and look at us.

I'm afraid if I ask her to try to hold it down, she will become self-conscious, and that would spoil the entertainment for her.

I am a fairly quiet person and dislike being conspicuous. Should I remind this lady that too-loud laughter is embarrassing? If it weren't for this one fault, she would be an ideal companion. — EMBARRASSED IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Hearty, explosive laughter is characteristic of an uninhibited, outgoing personality — a healthy plus. Furthermore, it's appropriate to laugh at comedy, so why not accept the lady as she is?

AT WIT'S END

Finishing tomorrow's heirloom

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't expect anyone to get too choked up about this, but I just completed my "15 x 20 STAMPED FOR BEGINNERS-ON PURE IRISH LINEN-TOMORROW'S HEIRLOOM-COLONIAL LADY AT WHITE HOUSE."

It has a $35 frame on it and if I do say so myself, it has qualities I've seen only in tapestries on museum walls.

I started to embroider "Colonial Lady at White House" in 1967... the very night I bought it. It had been one of those days where the most creative thing I had done was to witness/assist at/applaud a b.m. from a child who thought a bathroom was God's playroom.

As soon as I started it, I knew in my heart that I wanted to dedicate my entire life to embroidery. I didn't go to bed that night until I had finished stitching the Colonial Lady's face, skirt, parasol and dog.

The next morning at breakfast, I was at it again, driven by some strange creative curse. Someone bled toward the end of the week and I stopped working on it temporarily... and then I was on a phone committee... and went to the store a few times... and made a few beds, and the next thing you know, it was 1973.

Every time I discovered it among the sewing supplies, I would do a few more stitches and renew my vows to finish it in my lifetime. After awhile, it got to be quite depressing. It was like a conscience that shouted, "You never finish anything!" As I saw it tucked away among an unfinished needlepoint glass case, a couple of squares of a granny afghan, a half-done crewel pillow top, and an unfinished Christmas wreath, I knew it was right.

In 1976, I was sick for a couple of weeks and dragged out "Colonial Lady at White House." A friend of mine was visiting and observed, "If handiworks and crafts could only talk... what a story they could tell."

I looked at the crumpled, gray piece of pure Irish linen, tomorrow's heirloom, in my hand and knew there was only one way to silence her. But I couldn't help but wonder what would happen on the day I finished it. Would the clocks stop? Would my heart stop beating? Would this end an era?

Last Monday, I brought "Colonial Lady at White House" home... framed and ready to hang... exactly 14 years in the making. "What do you think?" I asked my husband.

"What's the matter with the tree? I think you forgot to stitch it!" I leaned in closer for a better look. I had missed it. "Are you crazy? It's March," I said. "Trees don't have leaves in March."

What's such a big deal about finishing something?

Bridge group names officers

New officers were elected at a meeting of the Ranchland Hills Country Club Ladies Bridge Association.

They were Patti Galbraith, president; Sunny Davis, first vice president; Dolly Benson, second vice president; Melba Hinson, treasurer; and Ruth Walker, recording secretary.

Mary Renton was elected chairman of the couples night group.

Program was a book review by Mary Lou Cassidy.

Luncheon was served and regular bridge played in the afternoon. Bridge winners were Jean Randsen, first; Teddy Lou Stickney, second; and Pete Sanders, guest high scorer. Grand Slam winners were Jean Keffer and Ruth Walker. Guests were Glynnis Riley, Verna Gill, Agnes Eden, Pat Walter, Bev Horst, Pete Sanders, Bobbie Simmons and Madge Hunt.

Women man fire unit

By ERNIE HOOD
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

BUFFALO GAP, Texas (AP) — Women come running from every direction every time the fire siren sounds in this West Texas community 15 miles south of Abilene.

Typical reactions: Kay Sayles drops her pen and pencil and forgets about balancing the books at the Deutschland Garten restaurant.

ment equipment. Even though Buffalo Gap is assured of protection by the Abilene Fire Department, through an arrangement with Taylor County Commissioners, "it takes the Abilene firemen 15 minutes or so to get out here, so a real hot fire could get completely out of control before they arrived," Johnson said.

Since their organization, the women have fought 10 or more grass and brush fires with a "great deal of success," says the mayor, who has served as fire chief since the town was incorporated in 1960. Most of the fires were out or under control before Abilene firefighters arrived, he said.

Johnson said his first task in training the women was to teach them to remember the location of 21 fire hydrants in Buffalo Gap. Then he taught them how to turn on the valves that start the two pumping units on the fire trucks; how to drive the fire trucks; how to hook up hoses from the hydrants to the pumpers, and how to handle hoses at the scene of the fire.

Now fully trained in all aspects of fire department operations, Mrs. Sayles, one of the first of the women to enroll, is sold on the training she received.

"Fire safety is something everyone needs to know," she said. "Actually, it's nothing more than the proper way to use a garden hose."

Women of the town responded immediately when the call went out from City Hall for volunteers last September, "because we all recognized that we needed to do something to protect our town until help could get here or our men came home from work."

Johnson praised the women for their firefighting expertise and for "the neat way they pick up the hoses, roll them out and put them back on the hose racks after a fire."

His pride was manifest as he pointed out they put out two grass fires just last week — one just south of the Buffalo Gap Steak House and the other near the Deutschland Garten.

"They got them out before they got to be big fires," he said.

The mayor-fire chief said his next chore will be to expose the firefighters to basic first aid training, and maybe get them to elect a new chief from their own ranks.

"On the basis of how they've handled things so far, everything will be a cinch," he said.

LIFESTYLE

Stuart's Grocery, leaves her customers standing at the butcher counter.

Housewives leave their front or back doors open and run for the fire station.

Within minutes, 10 or more women have donned fire helmets and red overalls and are on their way to the fire.

It's all understandable in the fact that they operate what they believe to be the only all-woman fire department in Texas — the Buffalo Gap Volunteer Fire Department — protecting a community of about 400 people.

Their equipment includes a 1941 Ford truck that carries an 850-gallon water tank and 200 feet of hose, and a 1953 Ford truck that carries a similar 850-gallon tank and about 800 feet of hose.

The 1941 Ford is used principally in fighting brush and grass fires and fires on railroad rights of way. The larger unit is generally on standby for use in fighting fires in town.

Buffalo Gap Mayor Glenn Johnson, 75, who also serves as fire chief, dons his "cowboy Stetson" and puts on a fire helmet to direct the women at the scene.

He admits that as they progress, they may get themselves a new female chief, "because I'm supposed to be mayor."

Johnson started training the women last September when it became apparent that most of the men of Buffalo Gap were working in Abilene during the day.

The mayor said the volunteer unit may soon qualify for grants for the purchase of newer surplus govern-

Fifth grade gives PTA program

Fifth grade sections at James Bowie PTA gave a program on "Texas, Our Texas" in honor of Texas Independence Day at a meeting of the Bowie PTA.

Madeline Van Ness, music and art teacher, was director of the presentation. Dana Wilson, fifth grade student, presented special music.

Life membership awards were presented to Janet Foster, Bowie PTA president, and Janet Perkins, third grade teacher at Bowie.

A flag was presented to Mrs. Van Ness and Bowie Elementary on behalf of the Daughters of the Republic in honor of Texas Independence Day. This presentation was made by Mrs. Solon Crain and Mrs. Stanley Erskin.

Brownie Troop 377, under the direction of Gayle Dodson and Janet Foster, presented the flag ceremony for the PTA meeting, in honor of Girl Scout Week. The troop also presented a book on "Wild Life" to principal Royce Austin for the Bowie library.

Announcement was made that the Midlanders Against Drugs Workshop will be held at Bowie Elementary in the cafeteria on March 20-31 from 7-9:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Eighth Annual ADA Bike-a-Thon slated

American Diabetes Association will hold its Eighth Annual Bike-a-Thon April 5 at the circle drive at Midland College.

Bike-a-thon is scheduled for 2-4 p.m. with registration beginning at 1 p.m.

John A. Bates, chairman of the event, noted that the bike-a-thon, which is a national event, is one of the local chapters best supported fund-raising activities. Funds raised are used for research and educational programs.

Mr. Bates said that diabetes is the third leading cause of death in the United States and is the leading cause of blindness in the U.S. He also pointed out that one of every four families is affected by diabetes.

Sponsor sheets are available at the ADA office, 2209 N. Big Spring St., or from a number of local businesses.

Prizes will be awarded to the first through fourth place winners in each age group, which are 21 and over, 13-20 and 12 and under. Grand prizes will also be awarded by the national chapter.

Burger King, national sponsor for the event, will be awarding special prizes to participants.

Anyone may participate in the bike-a-thon as a rider, and Mr. Bates urged those who cannot participate to be a sponsor.

For additional information, contact the ADA office at 682-0314.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Some people depend on the TV weatherman's predictions. Others watch the clouds, sniff the air. Then there's Gordon Wimsatt. He looks for rain and snow in jars of bear grease.

Wimsatt, who calls himself "The Bear Grease Kid," admitted he's been laughed at. But he says that doesn't bother him because he laughed himself when he first was told about it.

"I got it from a state game warden back in the '30s," said the 65-year-old semi-retired land developer, who has lived in the Mayhill-Cloudcroft area of south-central New Mexico since 1927.

He said the game warden killed a bear, rendered the fat and put the grease in jars. He gave jars of grease to Wimsatt and others, and told them they could use the grease to predict the weather, like the Indians did years ago.

"My immediate reaction was, 'Ha, ha,'" Wimsatt said.

But after the game warden, who had learned the practice from his father, demonstrated he could "read" the grease and predict moisture changes, Wimsatt said he began experimenting with the method.

He also began researching the practice, which he said he discovered had been used by the Mescalero and Jicarilla Apaches.

They didn't have glass jars, but were able to use the bladders of large animals, he said. After scraping, the bladders were translucent so the Indians could see the oil they had put inside.

Although he still uses bear grease, Wimsatt has been experimenting with other types of animal fat. Over the years, he said, he has had "somewhere from '90 to 100" jars of oil.

He said other oils that he has found will work include chicken, turkey, turtle, mountain lion and seal. He also said he has one jar of a bear and seal mix that works.

Experiments with oils from other animals such as cow, deer, hog and lamb have failed, he said. "I'm not saying others won't work, I just haven't got the others to work."

The first step is to render the fat so it can be put in jars.

"The fat has to be rendered at a fairly low heat and taken care of correctly for it to work," he said. "The oil that comes out of the fat is the same thing as when you fry bacon in the morning."

Wimsatt said he keeps the jars in the south windows of his house.

"They have to be exposed to that outside atmosphere to work right. They do need outside air and my windows give it to them," he said, laughing.

He said that depending on the weather, patterns form in the oil, or it gets lighter or darker. For example, he said, when the oil turns darker, it's going to get colder.

"For some unknown reason it works," Wimsatt said. "I can't answer why. I just know it does."

He said he's correctly predicted everything from moisture and temperature changes to earthquakes and tornadoes.

He said the oil never lies, but it's difficult to interpret the patterns.

"It always shows the correct thing if I'm capable of reading it. I miss every now and then. A single pattern means one thing. But 20 different patterns at the same time means several things are happening.

"When you have a whole conglomeration at the same time, that's when the sorting out starts. That's when I pull a boo-boo now and then."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Make baby bottles sparkle

DEAR HELOISE:

While most prefer bacon and eggs each a.m., I get an education and a delightful start with coffee and Heloise!

My daughter, an expectant mother, has requested information from Mom "who knows most everything" (thanks to your column) on how to keep glass nursing bottles from turning white and dirty-looking when sterilizing them.

Again, I turn to you for help as I'm sure you have a solution. Thanks a bunch! — Kay Johnson

"Yep, and your daughter is going to love it too 'cause it's so simple it's only going to require her to use an extra smidgen of her precious time, yet those bottles will remain crystal clear."

All she has to do is add two or three teaspoons of vinegar to the water in which she sterilizes the bottles. This will keep the chalky deposits off them, as they are caused by hard water.

However, if the bottles have been boiled numerous times and the lime has built up on them, you probably will need to use about a cup of vinegar in the pot of water at least for a time or two to remove it. Once the build-up is off, you can use less vinegar each time you sterilize bottles.

This also works on bottles made of plastic, as well as glass ones. Too, as an ounce of prevention, add a few drops of vinegar to the water when warming the bottles to prevent lime deposits on both pan and bottle. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: Why do people throw away perfectly good dishes, clothing, etc., when they move, or are cleaning house, etc? I've experienced instances when discarded items would have really been appreciated by someone else.

I would like to suggest that if people don't have time to take things to some charitable organization, etc., they put a box marked "FREE ITEMS" out on the street. The box would soon be empty. Thanks for listening. — Janette Schrack

WASHING WIRED BRAS

Dear Heloise: Many of my friends would not buy underwire bras because of the "hand-wash" instructions. With today's fabrics, that bra would often be the only hand-wash garment.

Since I don't like to hand-wash either, I pin the bra cups together along the underwire, right under the straps, so the wires won't get bent out of shape in the washing machine and dryer.

I've been doing this for a couple of years now and my bras stay nice and clean. Many of my friend's "No! Never!" comments have changed to "Wow!" after using this method of washing them. — R. Rucker

NIGHTGOWN SLIP

Dear Heloise: I had a see-through blouse with a long skirt for evening wear, but I couldn't find a pretty camisole to wear under the blouse. What I did find was a pretty, not too frilly, black nightgown.

Wearing it under the blouse, it also serves as a long, black slip under the skirt. — Maggie

MOST HATED

Dear Heloise: In your survey of things to do around the house which we most hate, I would have to add vacuuming to the list.

The hardest thing I find to do is walk to the closet and take the vacuum out. Isn't life strange! — R.M.W.

Sure 'tis! But beautiful too — in spite of such things as vacuum cleaners... or, maybe because of, depending on how you view things. A bushel of thanks anyway for writing. — Hugs, Heloise

Diet affects teeth condition, too

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY

Copley News Service

Just as your diet

exerts a major influence upon the general health of your body, it greatly

The nutrients that are

healthy bones, skin, muscles and connective tissue

also apply to oral tissues and teeth.

Deficiencies of dietary protein, calcium and vitamins

A, C and D can prevent the normal

oral tissues in young children.

One nutrient that is

dental health is fluoride,

yet it is often inadequate

in the diet. Fluoride deficiencies cause the enamel of the teeth to be poorly

Drinking water of less than 1 ppm (parts per million) fluoride is generally thought to be inadequate and additional fluoride is recommended.

Fluoridated tooth-

ways to add some much needed

of the teeth.

Sugar is, unquestionably,

the biggest culprit in our food supply, as the major cause of

emphasis today seems to be on the frequency of eating sugar, rather than the quantity of sugar taken.

For example, if five

15 minutes, the teeth are exposed to acid for 35 minutes. But, if they are eaten 15 minutes apart, the acid exposure continues for

produced as the end product of sugar breakdown, that causes the tooth enamel to

for cavities to develop.

Sucrose, or plain table

sugar, is the worst but other sugars are also damaging. Milk sugars cause

young children who go to sleep with a bottle in their

hours of acid pooled around the teeth. Fruit sugars also can cause problems if allowed to remain for long periods in tooth contact.

More complex carbohydrates, such as cereals, breads and starch do not break down

and therefore don't cause

the problem. Natural foods

honey, molasses, brown

glucose, fructose and lactose

to dental caries (cavities).

The sugar substitutes do

intake.

Sorbitol, mannitol, xylitol

without forming destructive acids.

The two major oral

gingivitis-periodontitis are widespread, insidious and debilitating. There is overwhelming evidence that the

sugars dissolve tooth

cause tooth deterioration.

accumulates on teeth is

in your dentist's office, but frequent brushing is also helpful.

dental health, be sure to have sufficient fluoride, limit or omit simple sugars from your diet and keep the plaque buildup

from becoming extensive

by frequent brushing, flos-

dentist.

teeth will be exposed to

your chances of develop-

greater.

consumption, rather than the amount, that does the damage. Periods of a sugar-free diet will

tion of the tooth, which
