DEFENSE INSISTS TRUE KILLERS STILL AT LARGE

Manson, His Gals Innocent Of Six Killings?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense says Charles Manson and three women codefendants are innocent of the Sharon Tate murders and the real killers are still at large.

Paul Fitzgerald, head of the four-attorney defense team, also told the jury Monday that the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, lied under oath in order to save her own life.

In the first day of his often dramatic summation, Fitzgerald gave the jurors their first look at the defense side of the case.

NO EVIDENCE

The four defense attorneys had presented no witnesses or evidence, and Fitzgerald was the first to state in court that persons still unknown might have killed the blonde actress and six others in two slaying sprees in August, 1969.

He cited a piece of prosecution evidence—a pair of eyeglasses found at the Tate mansion which have not been connected to an owner.

"Those glasses were introduced into the residence by the person or persons actually responsible for the deaths," said Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Kasabian was the state's only asserted eyewitness to any of the killings. Fitzgerald said she may have made up the whole tale to win immunity from prosecution.

"If you could save your life by making up a story, wouldn't you?" asked the attorney.

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, mother of two, testified that she went with members of Manson's hippie-style "family" on a murder mission to Miss Tate's home, where five persons were slaughtered, and one the following night to kill Mr. and Mrs. Leno LaBianca, wealthy food store proprietors. She was indicted with Manson and the other women on murder-conspiracy charges but went free after she testified.

"It's when she's got a gun up to her head, when she sees that her life is hanging in the balance, that she decides she has to say something, folks," Fitzgerald said.

BIG STAKES

"Her testimony might be worth something if she reported it when it might have done some good . . . But I submit to you that she didn't report it because it didn't happen the way she said it happened."

The attorney said a shoe heelprint was found on a bloody walk at the Tate mansion but Mrs. Kasabian testified that all defendants with her at the scene were barefoot.

No flesh or hair was found under victims' fingernails, indicating, Fitzgerald said, that they didn't fight the assailants.

"An inference could be drawn that one or more victims knew the killer or killers," he said.

Fitzgerald urged the panel to have "the courage to acquit."

"We're playing for big stakes here," he told them. "Lives hang in the balance. If you're going to convict someone, you've got to be absolutely sure. Don't trust the testimony of a liar."

BRUTAL GALES

Snowstorms Crush Barns, Halt Traffic

ROME (AP) — Fresh snowstorms crushed barns and factory roofs in northern Italy today while in the south warm gales from the Mediterranean disrupted air and sea travel to Sicily.

New snowfalls hit southeastern France tying up road traffic and cutting communications and electric power.

The varied but equally brutal onslaught of storms gave Italy no letup from a week-long spell of foul weather that left at least two persons frozen to death and capsized two ships — one with the loss of 10 crewmen.

Heavy snow fell on both sides of the Alps, in southern France and in northern Italy as far south as Tuscany, where three feet of snow was reported in Abetone, near Florence.

The new snow covered roads already treacherous with ice from earlier snowfalls. Traffic slowed to a crawl in the big cities of Milan and Turin, while many country roads were impassable. Milan's two airports, Linate and Alpensa, closed down.

Around Alessandria, north of Genoa, 20 inches of snow fell in a few hours, collapsing the roofs of many rural buildings and factories.

The roof of an electric appliance factory crashed down, causing an estimated $320,000 damage to the building and to machinery. No one was in the building at the time.

In France, about 5,000 cars and trucks were stalled in and around Montelimar. Some of the motorists were able to find refuge in hotels, churches, private homes or special centers. Others spent the night in their cars.

Another 1,000 vehicles were immobilized at Loriol Sur Drome.

Lawyer Must Support His 'Hippie' Daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — A prominent New York lawyer has been ordered to resume support of his 20-year-old daughter, even though he thinks her "hippie" life "stinks."

If the father does not post a $5,750 support bond, he may have to go to jail, ruled Family Court Judge Millard L. Midonick.

The case came to light Monday when the Appellate Division stayed a 30-day jail sentence against the father, which would have been imposed if he had not come up with the money by noon. The stay will remain in effect while the appellate bench reviews the case.

NO CONFIDENCE

The girl, a student at the University of Louisville, brought suit against her father after he stopped paying her tuition and other college bills. As is the practice in Family Court cases, neither has been publicly identified.

However, the Louisville Courier-Journal reached her and she said she is "destitute right now. I'm looking for a job. In fact, if they order a retrial, I can't afford to go back to New York.

FORCED TO SELL

She said she had been to New York twice since August, when she filed the suit and when she testified against her father.

"I've received no money from him," she continued. "He wouldn't give my any money because of how I looked." She said she was forced to sell her car for $1,000 to see her through the semester.

The father, "a prominent member of the litigating bar," had acted, Midonick said, because of a "loss of confidence" in his daughter's educational progress. But at one point, the lawyer offered to resume payment if the girl would drop the case. Midonick called the deal an "astonishing spectacle."

He rejected the father's allegation that if he were compelled to pay, "any minor would be able to set up housekeeping away from home and scornfully badger the father by court proceedings to underwrite any manner of living approved by mindless courts."

The girl had moved out of her college dormitory into an off-campus apartment which she shared with a girl friend.

The judge chastised the father for his conduct in the case and disagreed with his estimate of the girl's scholastic and emotional progress.

At the time of the breach, last April, the girl apparently was on probation at the college and in emotional difficulty, being "afraid, indeed terrified, to return to live in her father's home because of his rigid standards," said Midonick.

The judge cited several instances of friction between the father and daughter.

The girl had been "emotionally put down by her father," and called her a "hippie" who "stinks," said Midonick.

SHE "STINKS"

In turn, she responded with comments about the three wives her father had married since her mother died.

The girl no longer is on probation, the judge found. She is carrying on a full academic course and "is cooperating with a psychiatrist."

"At some point," said Midonick, "minors must have some right of their own views and needs for their independent and painful transition from minority to adulthood . . ."

He held "this court absolves the daughter from bridging the generation gap any more than she has," for "the gap is not entirely the doing of the young, nor can it be bridged entirely by the children."

How 'Bout Tax Refunds?

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County will end the year with about $1 million in the bank even though its departments spent most of the money in their budgets and all but about $30,000 of reserve funds, county Auditor George Smith said today.

Smith said the county accumulated the surplus because tax revenue was underestimated.

He said that his office estimated the value of taxable property this year would increase by about $300 million but the actual increase will be more than $400 million.

BAH! HUMBUG!

CLEVELAND (AP) — Kenneth Vacic, 20, a temporary assistant mail carrier for the Christmas season, apparently found the job too taxing and wound up keeping 1,347 pieces of mail, Post Office officials say.

He was charged Monday with two counts of detaining the mail and was freed on $1,000 personal bond.

21 Crewmen Are Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — A missing lifeboat today carried the hopes for rescue of 21 crewmen unaccounted for in the sinking of the Panamanian tanker Chryssi, which went down 270 miles southwest of Bermuda.

A Coast Guard C130 aircraft from Elizabeth City, N.C., resumed the search for the missing boat and men at daybreak. Search conditions were reported to be excellent with unrestricted visibility.

Seventeen other crewmen including the master were picked up by the Norwegian ship Ross Mount after they were spotted Monday in a lifeboat some 82 miles from the last reported position of the Chryssi.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the Chryssi carried four lifeboats. One lifeboat was destroyed in launching, the second capsized and the third carried the 17 rescued.

Nixon Books 'Live' Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today President Nixon will make an hour-long live television broadcast Monday, responding to questions put to him by four broadcast newsmen.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the question-and-answer session would be broadcast from the White House at 9 p.m. EST over the three major television networks and the facilities of the Educational TV network.

Ziegler said Nixon's questioners will be free to bring up either foreign or domestic matters.

The aim, he said, is to "have a general conversation in depth and perspective on major issues before the country and the presidency."

The panelists who will question Nixon Monday are Howard K. Smith — representing the American Broadcasting Co., Eric Severeid of the Columbia Broadcasting System, John Chancellor of the National Broadcasting Co., and Nancy Dickerson, who will be representing educational television.

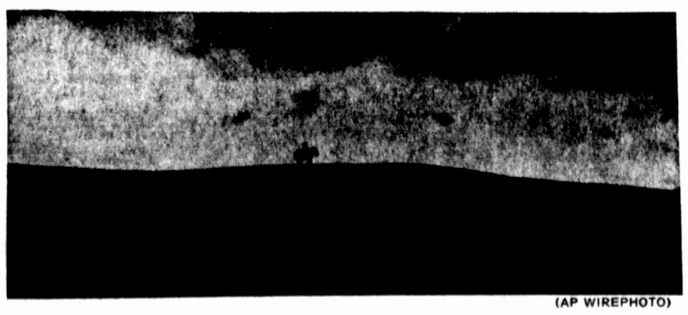

SAD YARN ABOUT BOA

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Ten-year-old Ben Uelteschi had to return his favorite Christmas present under orders from his mom.

The gift from his father was a 6-foot, 60-pound boa constrictor.

Mrs. Ueltschi said she decided to have the gift returned when several customers of her yarn shop told her, "Call me when the snake's gone," and, "Would you mind just mailing me my yarn?"

Ben, who hopes to be a naturalist, probably will get a puppy in exchange for the snake, his mom said.

Jetliner Dives, Two Persons Die

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, V.I. (AP) — Federal investigators began an inquiry today into the crash of a Trans Caribbean Airlines jet in which a New Jersey man and his son were believed killed.

Nineteen persons were hospitalized after the crash Monday of the Boeing 727 as it was landing on the Virgin Island of St. Thomas. The other 32 persons aboard were treated for minor injuries and released.

The Knud-Hansen Hospital said two unidentified bodies were brought to its morgue, and one apparently was a child's.

The bodies were believed to be those of John Vanyo of Murray Hill, N.J., and his son, Victor, who were listed by the airline as missing. Four other members of the family were among the survivors.

With the beginning of 1971 only four days away, it was the first fatal crash of a scheduled U.S. airline passenger flight in 1970, the National Transportation Safety Board reported. A total of 142 persons were killed in U.S. airline crashes earlier in the year, but they were on cargo, charter or ferry flights. The last previous fatal crash of a scheduled passenger flight occurred in November, 1969, when a Mohawk Airlines plane hit a mountain near Glen Falls, N.Y., killing 14 persons.

The Trans Caribbean flight had originated in New York City and stopped in San Juan en route to the Virgin Islands, east of Puerto Rico. Aboard were 46 passengers and seven crew members.

The plane "landed all right," said a witness, Juliet Parham of Queens, N.Y., "but suddenly something bounced away from the plane. It looked like a wheel. Then the plane bumped along the runway and seemed to be trying to take off again when it suddenly went to the right and up the hill. Then it exploded."

The passengers slid down the two evacuation slides through a curtain of smoke and flame. Firemen brought the flames under control more than an hour later.

The airport was closed for about three hours.

High Court Ruling May Aid Retirees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor and the federal government are asking the Supreme Court to rule that unions can force management to bargain about benefits for retired employes.

The case affects directly only 190 retired employes in Ohio. But labor lawyers say a lower court decision, if allowed to stand, could touch retirement benefits for millions of workingmen and perhaps lead to disappearance of countless other subjects from labor-management bargaining tables.

Employers have for years been required to negotiate retirement programs for active workers, and many have bargained voluntarily to increase benefits for workers already retired.

Last June 10, however, the U.S. Court of Appeals at Cincinnati overturned a National Labor Relations Board decision and ruled labor could not insist, as a matter of law, that management negotiate benefits for retired workers.

The importance of the case is underlined by the fact friend-of-the-court briefs were filed on management's side by the National Association of Manufacturers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and on the NLRB side by the AFL-CIO, the United Auto Workers, the Steelworkers and Transit Workers.

The case dates back to 1965 when the federal medicare law was enacted and Local 1 of the Allied Chemical Workers of America asked Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. to renegotiate medical benefits for its 190 retired employes.

At the time Pittsburgh Plate, under a 1964 agreement, contributed $2 a month to medical insurance premiums of retired workers.

Rather than bargain with the union, however, the company offered to pick up the $3 monthly medicare costs for any retired workers who would drop out of the company medical insurance plan. Fifteen accepted the offer.

Way To Handle Gate Crashers?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A promoter of rock concerts has taken a different approach to handling teen-age gate crashers. He calls their parents.

Jules Belkin said 27 teenagers were caught trying to sneak into a rock concert Monday night and instead of telling them to leave—which they seldom do, he says—or calling police, he called their parents.

Hijack Plea By Two Seamen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of two merchant seamen accused of hijacking the U.S. ammunition ship Columbia Eagle to Cambodia has pleaded innocent to mutiny and piracy charges.

Alvin L. Glatkowski, 21, of Long Beach, Calif., also pleaded innocent Monday to charges of assault, kidnaping and neglect of duty before U.S. Dist. Court Judge David Williams.

Williams denied a request for a psychiatric examination of Glatkowski, who with Clyde W. McKay Jr., 26, of Escondido, Calif., is accused of hijacking the ship last March 14.

FORECAST BY NOTED GENETICIST

'Deep-Freeze Babies'

CHICAGO (AP) — The future birth of "deep-freeze babies"—conceived from eggs and sperm preserved for years in the frozen state—is forecast by a noted American geneticist.

Dr. Bentley Glass, retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said Monday the technique would allow young couples to delay the birth of their children without risking the higher probability of genetic defects normally associated with advancing age.

He said the young couple could have their genetically healthy reproductive cells stored in a scientific deep-freeze for years, then combined in a laboratory incubator to produce a fertilized egg for implantation and growth within the mother's womb.

'STARTLING PROGRESS'

Glass, academic vice president of the State University of New York, Stony Brook, said this is one of various science-fiction-like possibilities for the future growing out of "startling progress" being made by a group of researchers at Cambridge University, England.

He was referring to the work of Dr. R. G. Edwards and collaborators who have succeeded in fertilizing human female eggs with fresh sperm outside the womb, and developing them to the stage at which they would normally become implanted in the wall of a woman's womb.

The British scientists have not yet implanted such an embryo into a woman. And they have said that when they do, it would only be to allow child bearing by women whose oviducts, or egg tubes, are blocked.

PINK OR BLUE

But Glass, in his farewell address at the 137th meeting of the association, declared, "It should be obvious that the technique can be quickly and widely extended."

He listed these further possibilities from the pioneering procedure:

—"Prenatal adoption" of babies—that is, babies artificially conceived from eggs of donor women, but implanted as embryos and brought to term in the wombs of women unable to conceive children of their own.

—Allowance of the selection of especially healthy donors, both male and female.

—Determination of the sex of the embryo before implantation, so the would-be mother would know beforehand whether to knit pink or blue booties.

'ADVENTURES' — Former Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, while having confidence in West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, fears that West Germany's new liberal policy toward the Soviet Union might in the future lead to "diplomatic adventures" between the two nations.

Kremlin Schedules Hijackers Hearing

MOSCOW (AP) — Acting with unusual speed, the Soviet government scheduled a hearing Wednesday on appeals from the 11 defendants in the Jewish hijacking trial. The speedup in the proceedings was seen as an attempt to end the worldwide furor over the severity of the sentences.

It appeared that the death sentences given six Basque nationalists in Spain Monday might help the Kremlin achieve this, much as the British-French invasion of the Suez in 1956 blunted Western condemnation of the Soviet repression of the Hungarian revolt.

Normally an appeal of a conviction takes six to eight weeks in the Soviet Union. But the two Jews sentenced to death and the seven Jews and two Gentiles facing long terms in labor camps were ordered to appear before the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation only six days after their conviction in Leningrad.

DEATH STAKES

Some sources suggested that the government was speeding up the process because it wants "this uproar to die down" before the Communist party congress in March.

"There definitely is the possibility that the death sentences could be commuted to lengthy jail sentences," one source added, explaining that the Soviet leaders "may feel Communist parties of other nations are going to put pressure on them and this could be worrying them."

Nine more Jews are scheduled for trial Jan. 6 in Leningrad, and another 12 are to be tried in Riga and Kishinev, informed sources have reported. They are charged with opposition in one degree or another to the Soviet government's ban on emigration to Israel.

The 11 Leningrad defendants admitted plotting to commandeer a small Aeroflot plane in June. The group planned to fly to Sweden, and the Jews were going on to Israel, but they were arrested as they were about to board the plane in Leningrad.

Protests in foreign countries, which began during the trial, increased in the wake of the sentencing, and several Western governments joined in with appeals to the Kremlin leaders for clemency.

U.S. ACTION

The U.S. State Department took a restrained approach, apparently feeling that any outspoken criticism from it would only stiffen the determination of the men in Moscow. A spokesman in Washington said President Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers had conferred about the case twice during the weekend, and the U.S. government has "taken steps which we hope will be helpful."

Two U.S. senators urged from the Senate floor that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant intercede. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., also called on Nixon to express U.S. concern, and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asked the Inter-Governmental Committee for European Migration at Geneva to seek from the Soviet government freedom of emigration for all Russians.

Jewish groups took to the streets in several European cities Monday, the Soviet Embassy in Washington was picketed, and the militant Jewish Defense League demonstrated outside the U.S. Mission to the United Nations in New York.

Welfare Student Told To Get A Job

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Barbara Whitney had been receiving public assistance for 10 years and said the best way for her to get off welfare was to get a college degree.

As a result, the 28-year-old mother of three refused employment and, instead, became a full-time student at the State University Center in nearby Albany.

That decision has led the Schenectady County Public Welfare Department to declare Mrs. Whitney ineligible on the ground that the law does not provide for her maintenance as a full-time college student.

TOO OLD

The county was upheld Monday by the state social services commissioner, meaning Mrs. Whitney will lose her benefits, although her children will continue to receive support.

"There is no provision in the law to allow assistance to her," County Commissioner Richard J. Staszak said.

Mrs. Whitney says she has been counseled by welfare personnel to take a job and attend school parttime, perhaps taking one course at a time. The problem is, she maintains, "I'd be too old to use the education."

"I've been on welfare for 10 years," Mrs. Whitney said, "and I decided two years ago to get myself off welfare. If I could get a four-year degree, I could guarantee that my children will never have to go on welfare again."

THREE CHILDREN

Her children are 10, 6 and 4. She is separated from her husband.

Mrs. Whitney has completed high school equivalency work and took advantage of a program of assistance to needy college candidates. Her goal, she says, is to become a sociology major and then help other people get off welfare.

She also says it is out of the question for her to keep up with her college studies and take a job.

The county maintains that Mrs. Whitney is employable and could reduce her need for public assistance.

According to Mrs. Whitney, the decision against her means a loss of about $50 a month. She says this is about one-quarter of her budget.

Staszak said it is not possible at this time to specify what the reduction will be, since Mrs. Whitney has admitted receiving about $3,000 a year through a federal grant and the state program for disadvantaged students in addition to welfare.

"There are funds available to her other than what she's applying for," the commissioner said, but just what over-all amount she is entitled to is still under investigation.

Okie Hospitalized Here After Wreck

An Oklahoma man is in good condition today in Cowper Hospital following treatment for injuries he received Dec. 23 in a one-car accident.

Barentine lost control of his vehicle, and it bounded across the median and across the eastbound traffic lane. His car went through a culvert and came to rest on the east service road, according to the investigating officer.

Texas Highway Patrolman Jimmy Parks investigated the accident.

Antispanking Issue Backed By Guess Who?

MIAMI (AP) — Seventh-grader Steven Steen has forwarded a petition to his state representative to "break the law of teachers to be able to hit kids" because he says corporal punishment only hurts the child, it doesn't change him.

"I spoke to most of the kids and teachers about it," said the 12-year-old pupil. "It doesn't get them anywhere."

Steen says he was never struck by a teacher "because I don't fool around," but saw his brother Michael, 13, and several friends whipped by teachers.

It disturbed him, so he dropped by Miami Beach attorney Leonard Rivkind's office one day after school. Rivkind advised him to get up the petition and submit it to his legislator.

Steven took his petition around to classes and asked the kids to sign. The youngsters were so agreeable most signed twice. He weeded out the double dissenters. On child declined but "he's a sissy anyway."

Steven says he doesn't believe the unruly should go unpunished "but I don't think teachers have the authority. They should send the child to the office and the principal should call the parents for permission."

Florida statutes forbid teachers to inflict corporal punishment before consulting with principal.

Mail Scandal?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has uncovered what could be "a scandal of major proportions" involving the role of a Kennedy family friend and aide in the transfer of mail service from rail to air carriers, a Republican senator said today.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., said the GAO probe had confirmed his own repeated charges of questionable and possibly illegal activities on the part of William J. Hartigan, a former assistant postmaster general.

IF ANY

Allott told the Senate he was asking the Justice Department "to determine what, if any, action is appropriate."

He said he also would ask the Department of Transportation, the Post Office, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the new Rail Passenger Corp. to explore means of returning mail delivery to passenger trains where feasible.

Hartigan was an associate of former President John F. Kennedy. He became a White House aide in 1961 and later that year was appointed an assistant postmaster general for transportation and international affairs.

Allott said Hartigan left the Post Office to manage the first senatorial campaign of Democrat Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, but Kennedy denied that Hartigan had anything to do with the campaign.

NOT TRUE

"I reject in any way the suggestion that Bill Hartigan left the service of the government to participate in my campaign," Kennedy said. "That's completely untrue. He had absolutely nothing to do with my campaign."

Allott said Hartigan left the Post Office in May, 1962, and was reappointed to his postal job in March, 1963. Hartigan served until 1968, resigning — Allott said — one month after the senator again called for his resignation in a floor speech.

In what Allott described as a "suspiciously smooth slide," Hartigan two days later went to work as a consultant for Sedalia-Marshall-Boonville Stage Lines, Inc., a Des Moines company that entered the air taxi service in 1967 and became by 1968 the largest air mail taxi carrier in the United States.

Allott followed up another speech critical of Hartigan in April, 1967, by asking the GAO to investigate the whole matter.

Woman Uninjured In Sunday Mishap

A Big Spring woman escaped injury Sunday when her vehicle veered out of control and struck the side of a building.

Rosemary Edens, 28, Route 2, lost control of her car on North Birdwell when she swerved to avoid hitting a dog. Her car collided with the side of the Big Three Salvage Co. building.

The accident was investigated by Texas Highway Patrolman Jimmy Parks, and occurred at 6:50 p.m.

ONE IN FIVE BRIDES GET MARRIED BECAUSE THEY HAVE TO

'BRUTAL REALISM'

'She's A Little Too Pregnant For Church'

LONDON (AP) — The Pregnant Bride today joined the Pregnant Man and the Careful Casanova in the British Health Education Council's birth control campaign.

'I DID'

The council's third illustrated pamphlet in its $500,000 campaign to cut down on unwanted babies featured a picture of a very pregnant girl in traditional wedding white standing at the altar and telling the vicar, "I did."

The council had second thoughts and decided to slim down the bride. "She's a little too pregnant for a church," said the director-general of the group, Dr. Bill Jones. "We do not want to be offensive to anybody."

But 200,000 of the leaflets already had gone out, and today the tabloid Daily Mirror—which has a circulation of 5 million—published the picture of the bulging bride in a four-page advertisement paid for by the council.

"One in five brides get married because they have to," said the ad, which gave advice on choosing birth control devices.

In its editorial columns, the Mirror termed all this "brutal realism" and invited its readers to write in if they were shocked. The Mirror did not mention that it had collected the equivalent of $38,380 for the ad.

JUST TRYING

A spokesman for the Church of England said it wasn't happy about the latest development in the birth control campaign because it "might give the impression that pregnant girls are regularly married in white with the Church's blessing."

The council's first eye-catcher in the controversial campaign was a picture of a young man clutching his distended abdomen with the caption: "Would you be more careful if it was you that got pregnant?"

Last week came a picture of Italian lover Casanova wooing a bare-breasted girl. The caption said Casanova was careful and "never got anyone into trouble."

"This is not sensationalism," says Dr. Jones. "We are just trying to reach the people who really matter—the thousands of couples who are not reached through normal health service channels."

DEAR ABBY: I have a young son with a slight speech problem about which the other kids tease him unmercifully. These are the same kids who tease other kids who happen to have a funny nose or something else that God put there and is beyond their control.

Now I ask you, who is the one with the problem? Kids can be the cruelest lot in the world. Abby, please print this letter and if just one person will quit teasing handicapped children, it will be worth it.

INDIANA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'll print your letter, and with it some advice for mothers of children with "slight speech problems, funny noses and something else that God put there and is beyond their control.'

A child may be born with (or develop) a handicap, which may not be "beyond control." There are speech therapists who can help children (and adults) to overcome speech problems. And people with "funny noses" and birth blemishes need not go through life hating their handicaps and suffering ridicule because of them. Don't assume that all handicaps must be accepted and lived with. We are living in an age of medical miracles! Your family doctor can make helpful recommendations.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a dilemma and need an outside opinion. My husband and I received an invitation to a high society wedding. We have two married daughters, Judy and Rosalie, Judy, who made a much better marriage than her sister, received an invitation to this wedding, but Rosalie did not.

My husband and I would really like to go, but I don't think we should when one of our daughters was slighted in this manner. Judy says that accepting or declining an invitation should have nothing to do with who else was invited and who wasn't, but as a mother, I see it differently.

My husband agrees with Judy. I think we should all stay home. What do you think?

A MOTHER'S HEART

DEAR HEART: I agree with Judy, too. In any case, you and your husband may accept or decline only for yourselves. And your married daughter has the same privilege.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The company my husband works for put on a big sales contest, and my husband was one of those who won a 10-day trip to Europe. I could have gone along but he didn't tell me wives could go. When I heard that some of the men were taking their wives, I asked him about it and he said, "Well, what would you have done with the kids?" I told him if he had told me in time I would have been able to make some arrangements.

Abby, if I were a person to be ashamed of, I could see why he wouldn't want to take me, but I am neat and dress nice and some people even think I'm pretty.

When I saw him off on the special plane they had for the trip, there were nearly as many wives as husbands. I was so hurt I wanted to die.

I hope this latter helps other husbands to remember the girl who loves him and takes care of him seven days a week.

LEFT BEHIND

DEAR LEFT: So do I.

She Will Not Give Up

DALLAS (AP) — Mrs. Louise McBride vows she will not give up her liquor store, although holdup men killed her husband and robbed her again recently, and the threat has cost her some employes.

The greying widow of 55 said, "A woman by herself tries to make a living, then somebody does a thing like this," after a gunman took $80 recently. It was only nine months before that her husband was killed in a bloody shootout at the store.

"They can do what they want," she said, "but I'm going to still be here. I'm not leaving. It's all I have left."

She shows the worry and fatigue from working 16 hours a day. "I can't get anyone to work here. I have to do it alone. I am too old to get an office job so this is the only way for me to make a living."

Robbers or the threat of them have chased off some of her best employes. Others have stolen from her. Some drink up the profits.

"What can you do?" she asks wearily.

$200 Million Airport Jobs

DALLAS (AP) — Work on the new Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport will hit $200 million during 1971, Ernest Dean, deputy executive director of engineering and planning, said Monday.

Dean said contracts covering terminal buildings for Braniff International, Delta Air Lines Inc., Ozark Air Lines Inc., and Texas International Airlines. Foundations for the Braniff terminal are near completion.

A contract for the airport's administration building, costing $1.5 million, will be awarded in January.

"It will be our first completed structure," Dean said. "we expect to move the staff there 12 or 13 months from now."

Other work scheduled for 1971 include contracts for six miles of central spine and public access highways, and for the airport's central air conditioning plant.

"We can see no reason why we cannot meet our opening date in the spring of 1973," Dean said.

Now Is 'Safe' Time To Change Deferments

Anyone in the 1970 draft pool may drop his deferment anytime up to midnight Dec. 31 and be considered 1-A for all of 1970 under a policy announced by the Selective Service System two months ago.

He just has to make sure his application to his draft board is postmarked before that deadline.

Locally, the registrants who would want to drop their deferments would be those with draft numbers above 185, which is the highest number reached this year by Local Board No. 71.

The December draft quota for the local board has been filled without going above 185, and according to Mrs. Roselle Coates, executive secretary, no one with a higher number is being called this year.

A deferred man holding a higher number can place himself in the 1970 draft pool before midnight Thursday and he will receive a 1-A draft card and be put in a less vulnerable priority group beginning Jan. 1.

The new rule does not apply to young men who drew numbers in the second lottery — the one held last July. Their year of "prime" exposure to the draft will be 1971 if they are 1-A, not 1970. And it is still unknown how high up the lottery scale the 1971 draft will reach.

The rule is not necessarily helpful to those with 1970 numbers under 186. If they end their deferment and ask for a 1-A classification before the end of the year they will be placed in an extended priority group until March 31, 1971. They would have to sweat out three draft calls, and would be more draft-vulnerable than the registrants with 1971 lottery numbers. Still, a high number under 186 could turn out to be "safe" for three months.

Anyone with a 1970 lottery number who keeps a deferment after the end of the year will be placed in the same pool with 1971 people if his deferment ends in 1971, Mrs. Coates pointed out. She said she could not predict the rules that will be used after 1971, since the present Selective Service Act is due to expire in June, and the new law will probably contain some changes.

Gulf Islands Seashore Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early Tuesday passed a bill establishing the Gulf Islands National Seashore in the states of Florida and Mississippi.

The new national park area would include Petit Bois, Ships and Horn islands as well as a portion of the mainland in Mississippi, and Santa Rosa Island.

Cooperative Housing Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury proposed regulations today aimed at making more cooperative housing available for low and moderate income families.

The proposed regulations, to be published in the Federal Register tomorrow, would provide that any interest in a cooperative housing corporation held by a government agency will be disregarded for purposes of determining whether a corporation meets the 80 per cent test. Prior law limited the ability of public housing agencies to own or lease cooperative housing for the benefit of persons of low or moderate income, the Treasury said.

This occurred because individual tenant stockholders were able to deduct pro-rata portions of the interest in taxes paid on a cooperatively owned apartment building only if at least 80 per cent of the cooperative's income was derived from individual tenant stockholders.

Texas Aviation Problems

Now that the United States Supreme Court has upheld the right of Texas to regulate intrastate carriers, the matter of finance is brought back once more into focus.

One thing which Texas must have in order to give meaning to an intrastate system of air traffic is facilities, and this means money. The federal airport aid bill provides $2.8 billion in matching funds over the next 10 years, and it is not realistic to expect that cities and other agencies can come up with their half as a subsidy to obtain and hold air transportation.

Big carriers opposed the Texas regulation right within its own borders on the grounds that this was disruptive of a federal regulatory system. They also may be expected to fight like tigers if and when someone gets around to (as they should) seeing about some sort of tax on the 600 million gallons of jet fuel used annually in this state. A penny a gallon would produce $6 million a year; five cents would mean $30 million. Any part of that will give Texas something to work with instread of the piddling $500,000 which now goes to the Texas airport assistance program.

It would be a major mistake, however, to assume that all Texas carrier problems are physical. The feeders, who serve cities such as Big Spring, must have additional revenue or help from some source, or the days of this service may be numbered.

Worthy Appointment

Although it came at a time when holiday and other news developments crowded it out of a position of prominence, the appointment by Gov. Preston Smith of former governor Price Daniel to the Texas Supreme Court is noteworthy.

Daniel has had a long, varied and distinguished public career. Through it all he has served with distinction and shown the great capacities of his mind and spirit.

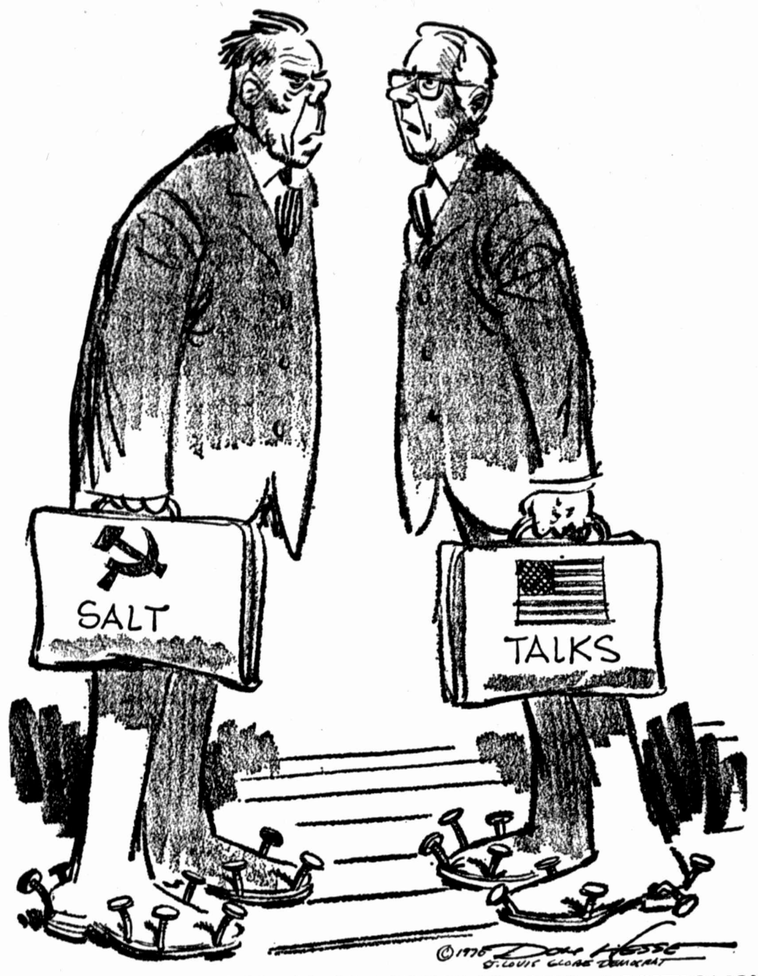

He entered state politics with election to the Texas House of Representatives in the 1939 legislature. Four years later, in 1943, he was its Speaker.

After serving as a private in the Army, Daniel was elected state attorney general in 1946. He served three two-year terms before being elected to the United States Senate in 1952.

Daniel gaye up his Senate seat in 1956 to run for governor, and he won. His friends wonder yet at this change of direction in his career, for the prospects for a long tenure in the Senate were bright, as were the opportunities for his growth and service there.

But Daniel chose to be governor, and here again he served well.

It is fortunate for the state of Texas that a man of Daniel's qualifications and stature was available for appointment to the high court, and that Gov. Smith took advantage of the opportunity.

The Travel Binge In Europe

ISLAND OF DJERBA, Tunisia — Europe is on a travel binge. In spite of strikes, slowdowns, brownouts and a variety of political turmoil, pleasure seekers spurred by the holidays are on the move.

While American airlines are hurting with reports of large losses, European lines are trying to keep up with the demand by putting on hundreds of extra flights. On the shores of this farthest island off the North African coast gleaming white hotels have gone up. Djerba, flat as a pancake, windswept, claims to have been the island where Ulysses heard the sirens and stopped the ears of his crew with wax to prevent them from yielding to the seductive songs. The principal hotels, the Ulysses Palace and Les Sirennes, celebrate this legend.

PRIMARILY it is a German resort. The big chartered jets from Frankfurt put down several hundred trippers a day. They come on a package deal, $150 or $200, for fare and accommodation for a stay of 10 days in the sun. In affluent Germany this draws a new class of travelers — clerks, secretaries, small-shop keepers.

The sun is brilliant but the air is nippy and the Mediterranean frigid, a challenge to the boldest swimmers. Grateful for the sun, the Germans sit around the pool huddled in blankets. As they gather for the table d'hote lunch the loud-speaker gives out with the music of "Tristan and Isolde."

THE SIRENS of promotion and publicity have done their work well. The prescription is a familiar one. Two or three film stars intensively photographed in bikinis during a stay of a few days or a prominent figure out of the news — Chancellor Willy Brandt came from Bonn to spend Christmas here a year ago — and an ambiance is created flattering the 10-day tripper who feels he is moving in a realm of fashion and fame.

THIS IS A phenomenon world wide from Tahiti to the Caribbean. The goal is not alone sun and sea, but in an ever-more crowded environment the resort must seem to be a kind of escape hatch into a simpler and more elemental setting. It is air conditioning and a heated swimming pool with the illusion of a return to nature. The natives are so picturesque — their little donkeys, the women carrying water jars as they might have done when Ulysses sailed past, the burnoose such a quaint and yet practical costume.

SOCIAL HAZARD though it may be, Tunisia is going in strong for the tourist dollar. The projection is for 70,000 to 80,000 hotel rooms in the next few years. The Mediterranean shore at Hammamet is lined with hotels. Morocco, with its extraordinary advantages of scene and setting, has developed a flourishing trade with jets from Europe and America, bringing tourists to Casablanca and Agadir. Algerian development plans put a low priority on tourism, with industry the principal goal.

IN EUROPE Spain is the country that has benefited most from the great tourist boom. From all over the continent — several million French have crossed the Pyrenees each year — and from North America they have flocked to the beauty of the past and the haven of peace and quiet creat debccyraFsnirnc.Foa o quiet created by Francisco Franco.

The tourist must pursue his illusion. He must survive the crowded chaos of the airport and hope that on a distant shore he will find the peace of a receding past.

Community Betterment

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Over 500 corporations of all types and sizes voluntarily contribute between 2 and 5 per cent of their net profits for community betterment projects each year in Venezuela.

Their contributions are made through a non-profit organization called Voluntary Dividend for the Community—DVC. A similar program was recently announced in Manila.

DVC was organized in 1964 by a group of businessmen headed by industrialist Eugenio Mendoza in an effort to unite the up-to-then uncoordinated philanthropies of the business communities.

Since then DVC has been active in fostering education, sponsoring and conducting scientific research in the fields of social improvement, welfare, communal recreation, cultural events and similar projects.

DVC does not publicize the names of the corporations that pay their "voluntary dividend." But it is known that among them are giants such as Creole Petroleum Corp. and Shell De Venezuela, LTDA., as well as small, family-run concerns, some of them retail stores.

The companies affiliated with DVC contribute in different ways. Some send DVC a check once a year, or at regular intervals during the year, for the amount pledged. Others send DVC a list of the amounts they have contributed directly to community improvement organizations and a check for the balance of the amount pledged.

The companies are entitled by law to deduct from their income tax payments up to 5 per cent of the amounts they contribute to DVC.

In addition to the amounts pledged, each company contributes to DVC one-twentieth of its pledge to cover the organizations administrative and running expense.

According to DVC's latest available statistics, contributions from industry make up 46 per cent of its income. From business, it gets 36 per cent, from service organizations 15 per cent, from petroleum and mining companies 2 per cent, and from miscellaneous firms one per cent.

At the end of 1969, DVC reported its income from corporate pledges totalled approximately $450,000. But community improvement organizations and similar bodies received directly from the companies about $13.2 million.

Funds received by DVC go mostly into education, post-graduate study scholarships, vocational training, university studies' allowances and assistance to schools. Educational television programs are contemplated for the coming year. These areas account for 47.9 per cent of the funds.

Just Look In The Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that annoy people who make New Year resolutions:

"How do you feel in your new halo? I didn't think they carried them in your size."

"I give him two weeks, and he'll be worse than ever."

"What good does it do to give up two bad habits one month if you come up with three more bad habits the next month?"

"I agree that you've got plenty of willpower, Harry. What you lack, I think, is won't power."

"If you were really serious about two of those resolutions, you'd start right now by throwing that carton of cigarettes out the window and pouring all the liquor in the house down the sink."

"Better take it a bit easy, Mike. If you give up all your bad habits now, what will you have left to give up for Lent?

"You know what I wish you'd resolve, Horace? I wish you'd resolve to get up enough courage to ask your boss for a merit raise. How long do you think we can live paying this year's prices with last year's income?"

"I know a fellow who gave up all his vices at the same time, and guess what happened? The very next week he just keeled over-- kerflop! His system couldn't stand up under the shock."

"One thing about you, Pat—at least you won't have to resolve to get more exercise during 1971. You get all the exercise you need just climbing on and falling off the waterwagon."

"I hear you've made up your mind to get more culture this year, Bill. Does this mean you're going to watch the Lawrence Welk program more often?"

"All I asked Esmerelda to resolve was this: that everytime she feels like giving her views on the international situation at a cocktail party during 1971, she'll put a clothespin on each lip until the feeling goes away."

"Ever since I became head of this firm, I've hoped that at least one member of this staff would make a resolution to do more honest work during the coming year—but nothing ever happens."

"Unless you mend your ways, dear, I'll tell you what I've decided to give up in 1971, and I do mean permanently. If you want to see it, just look in the bathroom mirror. It's the thing with red eyes staring back at you."

Billy Graham

I do not honor my parents, I have made promises to the Lord and never kept them. I have sinned in other ways and have asked God's forgiveness but I don't think that asking forgiveness is enough. What else can I do? How can I learn to honor my parents and understand their ways? N.A.

Obviously, you need Christian conversion.

You recognize your need, and in your letter to me you have acknowledged your sin. But, you need to take a further step: receive Christ into your heart and life. You say that asking forgiveness is not enough, and you are right. You must receive God's forgiving grace, by faith, and then He will give you the strength to overcome the weaknesses and sins you mention.

Many people acknowledge their sins, and even pray for forgiveness. But we must accept God's way, which is: "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Hebrews 11:6.) That verse begins with the words, "Without faith it is impossible to please God." Suppose you had a friend, and you were to say, "I like you, but I just don't have any faith in you." Lack of faith is a breach in any relationship. So, we can't say that we believe in God without believing what He has said, and acting upon it.

Just say to the Lord: "You have said that 'in Christ we have forgiveness of sins,' and upon the authority of your Word, I claim and accept your forgiveness." This will make all the difference.

The Proper Way To Take A Pap Test

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When having a Pap test, is scraping the proper way, or must you be clipped? I have heard that scraping is not the proper way and cancer cannot be found by that method. If this is true, how can you be sure your doctor is doing it the right way? — Mrs. R.L.N.

I have a feeling that somebody has said something that confused you — or perhaps somebody was spouting off on the basis of limited information.

First, let's clear up one point. Scraping some moisture (and cells) from the cervix, or "neck" of the womb, is the proper way to obtain a specimen for a Pap test.

What you mean by "clipped" probably means a biopsy — that is, taking a very tiny amount of the actual tissue, rather than the surface fluids.

The Pap test, by the scraping method, is not an absolute method of finding cancer. However, it gives the correct answer substantially over 90 per cent of the time.

Thus, if the test comes back positive for cancer, a biopsy will be made to pin the diagnosis down definitely. Or if, occasionally, the Pap test may not look conclusive but is suspicious, then a biopsy would be called for.

So the scraping for a Pap test is entirely proper and there's no point in fretting over whether he is doing it the right way. He is.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send your booklet, "Gout, The Modern Way to Stop It," for which I enclose 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. My husband feels best when he eats plenty of protein but he must deny himself protein in order to avoid gout.—Mrs. E.

I am sure the booklet will clear up an unfortunate misunderstanding. A low-purine (not low-protein) diet is helpful in avoiding gout, but the booklet also will explain medications now in use which have made diet a secondary aspect of preventing gout. The low-purine foods are also listed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My neighbor tells me oleo is bad for you because of the high cholesterol value and one should always use butter. I was under the impression that it was just the opposite.—Mrs. C.F.

You are right, your neighbor is confused. However, some oleos, if the vegetable oils in it are hydrogenated, can contain a good deal of cholesterol. Non-hydrogenated oleo does not.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is nevertheless vital to human life. For this reason, Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of The Herald, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressel, stamped envelope.

Around The Rim

Food For The Stomach–And Soul, Too

At first, it seemed the hog's head would be sufficient, but it may be cheaper to purchase the animal in its entirety.

I'll need the feet, ears, jowl, tripe, tail, backbone, ribs, brains, knuckles, hocks, shanks, butts — and tail.

THAT AIN'T all, Sugah.

I'm going to need a possum, catfish, a mess of turnip, collard, mustard and dandelion greens, a sack of yams, some snaps, cow peas and black eyes, a bucket of molasses, several pounds of rice — and tons of cornmeal.

"Princess Pamela's Soul Food Cookbook" provides the first shopping list to catch my fancy in years. It's not ho-hum or hum-drum. It makes my mouth water — and my ulcer tremble.

ACTUALLY, what Princess Pamela is serving to the Jet Set in her "Little Kitchen" in New York City may have a new name, but where I come from — and anywhere else south of the Mason-Dixon line — it's still called "breakfast", "dinner" or "supper."

TO TELL THE truth, I've never had the opportunity to eat possum and 'taters, and I've never even seen most of those parts of pig, but I'm going to whomp up a few of those vittles. If ham hocks and butter beans bring satisfied sighs from such sophisticates as Princess Radziwill and Tom Wolfe, they are certainly good enough for my crowd.

After 20 years in steak-and-potato country, I had forgotten how good were such Southern dishes as "Hopping John", hoe cake, fritters, dumplings, fried green tomatoes, sweet potato pie and milk-baked ham.

PRINCESS PAMELA brings it all back, and I can almost smell Grandmother Carroll's corn soup and gingerbread. Skillet peach pie and blackberry cobbler.

Princess Pamela's little book is spiced with her earthy observations on life, such as "Three things I find offensive — mean men, back-biting women and sloppy cookin'."

OR "I WON first prize with my bakin' and every woman asked for my pecan pie recipe — and every man for my home address."

Anybody know where I can buy a possum? —JO BRIGHT

The Tape Recorder For Combat

WASHINGTON — The Army has been accused of investigating and keeping files on civilians, including senators, congressmen and leading citizens. I couldn't believe this was true until I happened to be passing through a basic training camp the other day and I saw a crusty drill sergeant holding up a tape recorder. He was talking to a platoon of recruits.

HE BARKED, "Now this is your M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder. You will carry this tape recorder at all times. This tape recorder is issued with three F-107-X cassettes, which you will carry on your belt ready for instant loading when you are in a combat situation. Any questions so far?"

"What constitutes a combat situation, Sarge?"

"A combat situation during which you would use your M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder could occur at a political convention, a peace rally, a university lecture, or if you were sent on patrol through the halls of Congress.

"NOW, YOUR M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder can pick up sound at 200 yards, providing you use this B-62 directional microphone. You must assume that anyone you have been ordered to follow is the enemy, so you will record first and ask questions later. Your M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder has been designed so you can tape at night as well as you can in the daytime. It must be cleaned after each bugging, and recharged for use the next day. Any questions?"

"Sarge, suppose we're out trailing a senator, and we run out of tape. Do we return to base or do we continue following him?"

"YOU WILL be working in pairs. One man will be sent back for more tape, while the other will continue pursuing his quarry. But I want to warn you to use your tape only when you have the enemy within earshot. Don't fire until you see the whites of their earlobes.

"Now, you will wear your M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder under your jacket in this holster, like so. This will leave your hands free to take photographs of the enemy with this P-140 Cigarette Lighter Automatic 35 mm Camera. This P-140 CLA mm Camera may save your life. While recording your enemy, you will shoot him or her automatically. It has proved its value in hand-to-hand surveillance at the Republican and Democratic conventions.

"YOU WILL each be issued 20 rounds of Tri-X film to go with your camera. This will enable you to wipe out a rock festival, an anti-Vietnam demonstration or the governor of a state. Any questions?"

"Suppose we're trying to get near a governor and he's too far away?"

"You must ask for air support. The Air Force will take photos of the situation, and they will also try to pick up any conversations that you missed. Any questions?"

"SUPPOSE WE'RE out in the bushes of a cabinet officer's home tapping his telephone, and we're discovered. What do we do then?"

"You will give nothing but your name, rank and serial number. The Geneva Convention protects you if you are captured while tapping any U.S. government official's telephone."

The Political Snooping Mess

WASHINGTON — At the Pentagon, there are signs that the Army is scurrying about in a panicky attempt to put its intelligence house in order before Congressional hearings in February on charges that its spooks spied on such politicians as Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill. So far, the Army has denied everything.

THE SITUATION is a nasty piece of innuendo at this point. Evidence consists for the most part of statements by one John M. O'Brien, a former "domestic spy" for the Army, who says he was part of a military intelligence network formed to determine the "political views" of certain individuals, also including former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, now a Federal judge, and Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill.

Things could become much nastier before hearings by the Constitutional Rights subcommittee of Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., get under way. The town is filled with ugly rumors that have just enough coarse logic to send shivers down the sturdiest spy.

WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has said it was "inconceivable" to President Nixon that such surveillance took place. But it is not inconceivable to anyone who has poked into the activities of America's intelligence community, which now numbers 60,000 persons and spends probably $7 billion a year in secret funds.

Untidily relevant to the current fuss is the fact that Army's Counter Intelligence (CIC) operates under a directive which gives it carte blanche. It is charged with the prevention and detection of acts of treason, espionage and sabotage within the United States. This directive could make credible O'Brien's statement that the 113th Military Intelligence Group in Chicago was ordered to get the names and background of anyone who opposed Vietnam War policy or "who openly opposed the Nixon administration's controversial domestic policies."

AS A MATTER of fact, any spying on politicians and political dissenters is authorized on a much higher level than Army. That authorization is provided in the directive by which then Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara established the Defense Intelligence Agency in July, 1961. McNamara, an authentic liberal and Kennedy confidante, directed the DIA to conduct "such technical and counter-intelligence functions as may be assigned."

As a professional bounder, I'll put it this way: Were I a politician in high position I would consider both the DIA and CIC directives as authority to set military spies to snooping on my political opponents.

WELL, IT IS nice to know that a man of Ervin's integrity and competence has become so aroused. But — not impertinently, I hope — I can't help wondering where Ervin and other members of Congress were engaged when the nation's espionage empire, with its carte blanche marching orders, was established. Again, if the charges are true, the Army has a built-in defense, to wit that the directives under which it operated remain legal and constitutional until they are challenged.

What Others Say

Frank Shakespeare, director of the U.S. Information Agency, inadvertently may have put his job on the line when he told the truth on a national TV program Sunday.

Shakespeare said that the U.S. military strike into Cambodia last May was a "traumatic" blow throughout the world to America's prestige. This is counter to Nixon administration policy, which has continually proclaimed the Cambodian operation a success in all ways.

Ironically, Shakespeare is a hard-liner against communism and has advocated, among other things, breaking diplomatic relations with Russia. His statements on Cambodia's effect on U.S. prestige were based on a USIA poll taken last summer. The report is still classified as "secret." We presume Shakespeare is prepared to clean out his desk on short notice.

ROYAL RIFF? — Princess Margaret of Great Britain and her husband, Lord Snowdon, have agreed to separation and divorce, according to Tuesday's edition of the Washington Post. The couple are shown in March, 1968, at a party in New York.

Princess Just Piqued Or Lord At Liberty?

LONDON (AP) — A spokesman for Princess Margaret today denied a report in the Washington Post that the Princess and her husband, Lord Snowdon, have agreed to separation and divorce.

"It is certainly not true at all," said Maj. John Griffin, the spokesman for the princess.

The marriage has frequently been reported on the rocks in recent years, but each time the reports have been denied. Much of the gossip stems from sharp exchanges in public between the couple.

Quoting close friends and relatives of Lord Snowden, Post columnist Maxine Chesire reported in the paper's Tuesday editions the decision to break up was made recently and will be announced soon.

The Post reported that Snowdon has been dating a Vogue Magazine staffer on recent trips to New York and is the one seeking the separation.

Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth's younger sister, married Snowdon, then a commoner named Anthony Armstrong-Jones, May 6, 1960. The Post said there have been reports circulating in London society for the past three years of marital discord.

Snowdon, 40, is a noted photographer and has made several documentary films shown on American television in recent years.

A LOVELIER YOU

Grooming Hints For New Year's Party

By MARY SUE MILLER

How you spend New Year's Eve is a matter of personal preference. How you look . . . well, that is a matter of pride—how you see yourself or others see you as the clock strikes the witching hour.

Here are ways to ring out, loud and clear:

— Take time to relax. You don't want people to say that you are working too hard. Cleanse your face — good. Soak in a perfumed bath and towel-dry until the skin tingles. Rub down with a fragrant, smoothing lotion.

— If your face is really "tired," apply a stimulating mask before going into the tub. Remove it upon getting out. Then splash and splash with cold water. Follow up with pats of toner.

— Make up in a strong light, using your favorite products. This is no time to experiment.

— Dress with care. It is presumed your clothes from the skin out are in perfect order. Some women take more time to complain about lack of time than it really takes to groom one's clothes — and one's self.

— With a protective cape on your shoulders, dress your hair. This is no problem when you have learned the ways to manage your tresses. It's an educated habit, you know, like all loveliness lore. If you haven't got it, make up your mind to get it. Meantime spray, pray and resolve.

My resolve? That you have a lovelier New Year.

WINS NEW YORK FILM CRITICS' AWARD — "Five Easy Pieces," the story of a young man's uneasy odyssey through America in search of identity, has been chosen by New York film critics as the best movie of 1970. The film stars Jack Nicholson, above, as the wandering loner, a classical pianist turned oil rigger.

Basque Nationalists Threaten Retaliation

BURGOS, Spain (AP) — Basque nationalists swore vengeance today against the military judges who sentenced six Basques to death and nine others to a total of 351 years in prison.

"There will be retaliation," one member of the Basque terrorist organization ETA warned after the court handed down the sentences Monday. He singled out Capt. Antonio Troncoso de Castro, the legal adviser to the court-martial, and another ETA source said of De Castro: "He better have a bodyguard."

Denunciations of the death sentences and appeals for clemency poured into Madrid from around the world, and Basque sympathizers or foes of the Franco regime held demonstrations in cities throughout Europe.

SPURS VIOLENCE

Some led to violence. In San Sebastian, the Basque capital on Spain's northern coast, youths roamed the streets Monday night overturning cars and smashing windows. A bomb exploded in front of the Spanish Consulate in Rome but caused no significant damage. More than 200 demonstrators broke into the Spanish Embassy in Brussels and ransacked some of the rooms.

Defense lawyers for the 15 Basques filed appeals to the military commander of Burgos, but it appeared unlikely that he would accept them. If he does not and signs the death warrants, only clemency from Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish chief of state, can stop the executions before a firing squad.

WORST CRISIS

Franco, facing his worst crisis since the Spanish civil war, met with his Cabinet to discuss whether he should commute the death sentences.

Announcement of the sentences brought new appeals for clemency from the Vatican and the governments of Italy, France, Australia, Denmark, Norway and Belgium.

There was no word from Washington of any intercession by the U.S. government, a major military and financial ally of the Franco regime. But Pete T. Cenarrusa, Idaho's secretary of state and of Basque origin himself, said the State Department told him it would "do something" if the death sentences are not commuted. Attention in Washington was directed to the sentencing of two Jews to death in the Soviet Union for plotting to hijack an airliner.

'HANGMEN'

Denunciations of the Spanish death sentences came from the World Council of Churches, the International Commission of Jurists in Geneva, the Spanish Basque government-in-exile in Paris, and six French Nobel Prize winners.

Moscow newspapers published condemnations of the sentences under such headlines as "Cruel Sentence on Basques," "The Tyrants Passed the Sentence on Patriots," "The Sentence Must Be Abrogated," and "The Hangmen Must Not Get Their Way."

Eugen Beihl, the honorary West German consul kidnaped by Basques in San Sebastian on Dec. 1 and freed Christmas Eve, said he was "astonished" at the court's "most severe" sentences. Many had thought his release would result in leniency by the court.

The six defendants sentenced to die were charged with killing Meliton Manzanas, the provincial chief of the political police in San Sebastian. Three of the six received double death sentences, and all but one also drew prison terms ranging from 27½ to 60 years.

TERRORISM

The nine other defendants were charged with banditry, terrorism, possession of arms, disseminating illegal propaganda and illicit association connected with the ETA terrorist movement to gain independence for Spain's three Basque provinces. Their sentences ranged from 12 to 70 years.

The court acquitted a 16th defendant who has been committed to a mental hospital.

The judges did not say why they gave double death sentences to three of the accused. One defense lawyer said it might be because the three were convicted of both murder and banditry, also a capital crime.

Oil Slick Circles Fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A spokesman for Shell Oil Co. says several tests and other preparations must be made before a fire on a drilling platform in the Gulf of Mexico can be partially killed.

Workmen have been drilling a relief well near the base of the blazing well blew out Dec. 1 and started a mammoth fire, described as the biggest in the history of the industry.

When the relief well is completed, officials hope to force mud into the oil and rock and clog up the pipes through which they think oil is freely flowing to the fire.

Unresolved Dilemmas Blocking Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed early today a $1.8-billion appropriations bill providing $255 million in assistance for Cambodia and $500 million to help bolster the armed forces of Israel.

That bill was sent to President Nixon amid a burst of midnight speed that also produced an effort to settle the foreign policy dispute stalling the $66.6-billion defense appropriations bill.

SOCIAL SECURITY

In a scant 10 minutes, the Senate dealt with two issues that have been among the legislative tangles blocking the path to adjournment of the 91st Congress.

Another controversy was unraveled earlier Monday as the Senate dropped welfare reform and trade legislation in an attempt to beat the calendar and salvage a $6.5-billion-a-year increase in Social Security benefits.

The Social Security measure, on which a final vote could come late today, also would provide a $1-billion increase in welfare payments for some 3 million aged, blind and disabled Americans.

But, with the 91st Congress expiring at noon Sunday, little time is left for a House-Senate conference on Social Security.

The supplemental appropriations bill includes more than $1 billion worth of foreign aid for Asia and the Middle East. Its course was prepared before the Christmas recess, when Congress approved legislation authorizing the spending, but forbidding use of ground combat forces or military advisers in Cambodia.

The big defense money bill has been blocked by controversy about restrictions on the use of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia outside of South Vietnam.

In that one, the Senate had prohibited use of ground combat troops in Cambodia, Laos and Thailand. But in conference with the House a waiver was added, declaring the ban would not prevent President Nixon from taking any steps he deemed necessary to promote safe and orderly withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam, or to win release of U.S. prisoners of war.

A bloc led by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., opposed that provision.

NEW ROUND

To get around the dispute, the Senate rejected the compromise defense money measure, forcing a new round of conferences with the House. The new negotiations are expected to produce a bill stripped of the waiver.

The long night's work left the stalemate over a $210-million appropriation for the supersonic transport plane as the major obstacle looming in the path of adjournment.

The $210-million figure for the SST was set by a conference committee after the Senate had cut off funds for the plane and the House approved the full $290 million asked by the Nixon administration.

The Social Security bill authorizes raises of 10 to 56 per cent for about 26 million recipients, setting a new $100 minimum monthly individual payment and $150 for couples.

It faces an uncertain future in negotiating sessions with the House, which approved a 5 per cent increase.

For more than six hours Monday night, the Senate whittled away at a stack of amendments to the bill, making one major change by raising to $2,400 a year the amount a Social Security recipient can earn without losing any of his benefits. That amendment, proposed by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., was approved on a 52-9 vote.

By prying Social Security increases loose from the bitterly contested family assistance program and restrictive trade legislation, the Senate managed to clear a route around one obstacle to adjournment.

WILL SIGN IT

The House and Senate already have adopted a resolution setting Jan. 21 as the convening date for the new Congress, and White House sources said President Nixon will sign it.

The White House had indicated earlier that if Nixon did not get the action he sought on staled portions of his legislative program, particularly the family assistance program of welfare reform, he might veto the resolution and thus compel Congress to convene immediately.

The House reconvened today from its Christmas recess, anxious to adjourn for good.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the minority leader, warned that House members—and the quorum it takes to do business there—may soon become scarce.

"While they can't adjourn without us, they can leave without us," Scott said.

FTC Reported Ready With 'Truth In Gas' Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is reported ready with a sort of "truth in gas" measure—the posting of octane ratings on service station gas pumps.

Such a ruling, first suggested to the FTC in 1968 by Sen. William Proxmire, would be issued and enforced over protests from the oil industry.

Industry contends the octane rating is only one important component of motor fuel. However, according to Capitol Hill sources, the FTC requirement is intended as a first step to help drivers figure the best kind of gas for their car.

Basically, the octane rating is the measure of the gasoline for burning smoothly without knocking. Knocking wastes power and fuel, causes noise, may result in extra doses of exhaust pollution, and engine damage.

Different engines have different octane requirements.

"Consumers may be paying too much for gasoline, buying too low an octane gasoline, or contributing unnecessarily to our already critical pollution problem," Proxmire told a 1969 FTC hearing.

"I realize there are other important qualities to gasoline," the Wisconsin Democrat said, "but it is the single most important criterion in the quality and price of gasoline."

A number of consumer groups joined Proxmire in asking for the requirement.

Oil company representatives at the same hearing generally opposed the requirement, saying an octane rating gives no inkling as to other characteristics of gas—quick starting, good pickup, mileage, anti-icing. Also, they say, the rating does not take into account the brand, model and age of a car.

Knocking in an engine takes place when some of the gas fails to burn smoothly, igniting in a series of small, premature explosions. Gasoline with a high octane rating is less likely to burn or ignite prematurely.

'Long' Weekend For Postmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's postmen were back on their jobs this week after an extra-long weekend that was designed to give them a post-Christmas rest.

"It was not a dry run for a five-day week," a spokesman said of the Christmas week schedule. Mail was not delivered Saturday.

Saturday service will be as usual the day after New Year's.

Christmas, 1970, brought at least 8.3 billion pieces of mail into the system, an increase of about 5 per cent from 1969, authorities reported. Christmas Eve figures are still being tallied.

VETS PENSION PAY BOOSTED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Monthly pension payments for veterans, their widows and their parents have been raised an average of 9.5 per cent in a bill signed by President Nixon.

The measure also provides for a 10 per cent increase in special allowances for those veterans requiring regular aid and care.

Fight To Give All Children Equal Rights

ROME (AP) — Italy's Supreme Court today declared unconstitutional a law limiting the amount an illegitimate child can inherit.

The decision is a landmark in the fight to give all children equal rights. Because divorce has not been legal in Italy until this month, thousands of illegitimate children are born each year to couples who have not been able to marry.

The court's ruling invalidated a law which said an illegitimate child could inherit only one half of the amount bequeathed to the least favored of a parent's legitimate children and no more than a third of the total estate. The court ruled that this violated the postwar constitution's guarantee of the equality to all citizens before the law.

Good intentions never saved a penny.

It takes a commitment to save money. To your family, to the future. And maybe to your country. Good intentions just aren't enough.

That's why the Payroll Savings Plan works so well. It's a way of saying "I'm committed."

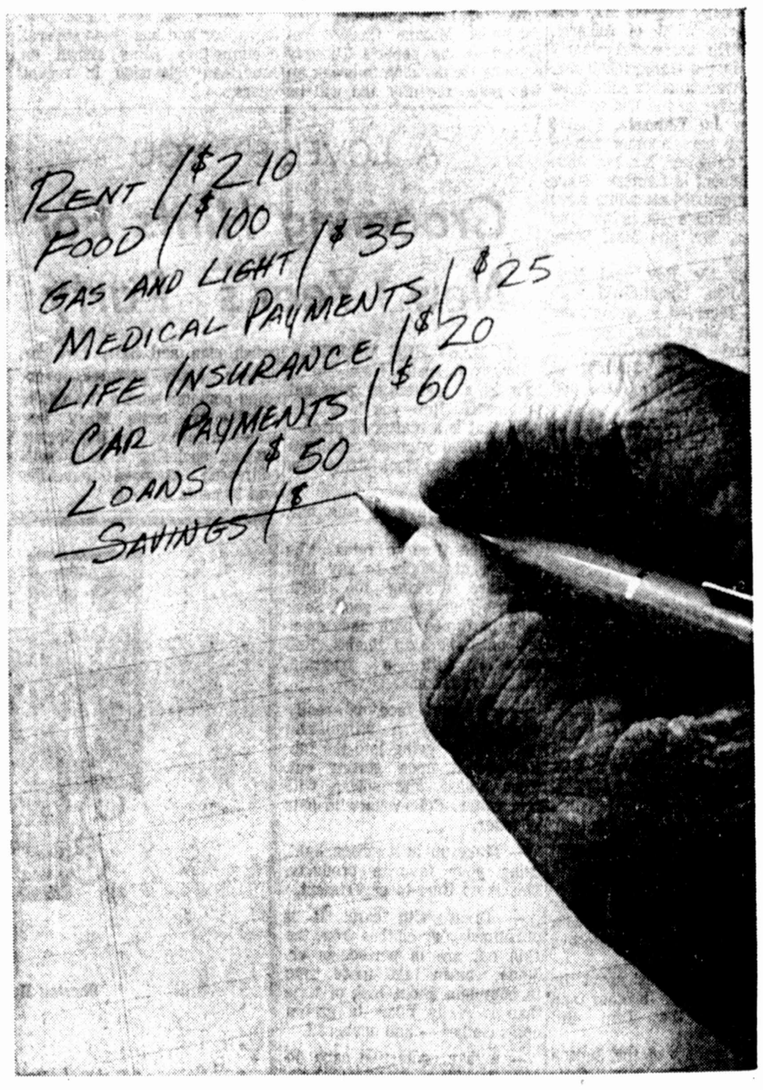

And it's almost effortless. All you do is sign up once, where you work. Then the amount you specify is automatically set aside from your check each payday and put into U.S. Savings Bonds. You have automatic saving power.

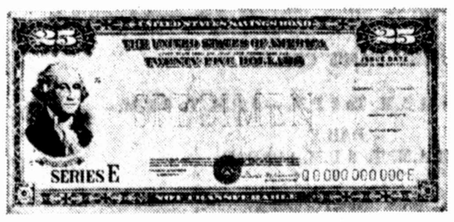

After all, it's hard to spend money you don't touch.

Oh, you'll touch it someday. For that house, or dream vacation, or for your kids' college education.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

So think it over. The Payroll Savings Plan. It's a small effort, but it's a big commitment. For you and your country.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.

Your Insurance May Only Be Protecting Half A House

If you think for a moment about your insurance, you may realize that you are only insured for "half a house."

The average homeowner is underinsured, and is unable to get more than half of his house replaced by his insurance company in case of fire or natural disaster, as many Texans found out after Hurricane Celia and the Lubbock tornado.

It is easy to see how so many people could become so underinsured: inflation raises prices about six per cent a year, local building costs have risen about 15 per cent over the past three years, and most Texans only insure to 80 per cent of their home value to begin with under the state co-insurance requirement.

Most people also continue to buy home furnishings and extra appliances without revising their insurance coverage.

As a full service agency, Permian Insurance is ready and able to help you compute the present replacement cost value of your home and furnishings. They have a Certified Real Estate Appraiser who will appraise your property for insurance purposes; this service is free.

Can you afford to replace half of your house tomorrow? If not, call on Jeff Brown and the staff of the Permian Insurance Agency for professional insurance counselling.

At a time when most insurance companies are discouraging agents from writing new home policies because of recent hail storm damage, Permian Insurance Agency is welcoming new customers.

Bruins Appear Safe At Head Of Ballot

By The Associated Press

Drake was just beginning to reap the benefit of an eight-game college basketball winning streak when upstart Niagara threw a monkey wrench into the celebration.

The underdog Purple Eagles used a 32-point performance by Marshall Wingate to knock off Drake 87-77 Monday night and capture the Queen City Basketball Tournament at Buffalo, N.Y.

It was the first loss after eight victories for Drake—a winning streak that earned the Bulldogs seventh place on The Associated Press poll of the nation's Top 20 teams.

UCLA remained No. 1 and safe—at least until tonight when the Bruins face apparently-overmatched William and Mary in the opening round of the Steel Bowl tournament at Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, second-ranked South Carolina advanced to the final round of New York's Holiday Festival, thumping Providence 102-86 with John Roche throwing in 35 points and Tom Riker hitting 31.

That set up a championship showdown with Western Kentucky, which advanced to fifth place in this week's poll. The Hilltoppers won their eighth straight, knocking off St. John's N.Y., 86-67 as 7-foot Jim McDaniels poured in 36 points and pulled down 19 rebounds.

27 BY MORSE

In Philadelphia's Quaker City Tournament, sixth-rated Pennsylvania used 27 points from 6-foot-8 Bob Morse to knock off Utah 86-78 and advance to the finals against Temple, which just hung on to top St. Joseph's 60-57 after blowing most of a 13-point lead in the final four minutes.

In other games involving ranked teams, Louisville, rated No. 17 in this week's poll, shot 57 per cent from the field and walloped Bellarmine 102-76 with Jim Price's 24 points pacing the attack.

St. Bonaventure went to double overtime to knock off Bradley 86-77 in the Gator Bowl tourney at Jacksonville, Fla. The Bonnies, 13th in the ratings, take on Georgia Tech in the finals. Tech whipped Florida 69-58 in the opening game of the tourney.

Niagara's stunner over Drake rated as the top upset of the night.

Jeff Halliburton had scored 13 of his 20 points in the second half, keeping Drake neck and neck with fired-up Niagara. Three points separated the teams when Halliburton fouled out with 10 minutes left to play.

That set off Wingate whose steady pumping pulled the Purple Eagles away and gave them the Queen City crown.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:

LEE MacPHAIL, general manager of the New York Yankees, on why his team didn't move to acquire Frank Robinson from the Baltimore Orioles:

"Our young players came along fast last year, and we feel it is the right program to follow. Frank Robinson would be an asset to any club, but he has reached the age where he is injury-prone and that makes him a gamble. If we gave up a front line pitcher like Fritz Peterson and young talent in a deal for Frank, we might get a spectacular year out of him and that would make the trade a success. On the other hand, if he were injured the first month of the season and handicapped the rest of the year, it would ruin our whole season. That's the gamble involved in a deal of this nature."

* * * *

Coach BEAR BRYANT, who coached both George Blanda and Ken (Snake) Syabler in college:

"I'm thrilled about what George is doing, but he ought to rest up and give Snake a chance."

* * * *

GEORGE SEALS, defensive tackle for the Chicago Bears:

"Things went so bad with us for a while that a suggestion box was put in our clubhouse. Would you believe that most of the suggestions dealt with jumping to the Canadian league?"

* * * *

JIM MURRAY, Los Angeles scribe:

"Kezar Stadium's press box (in San Francisco) is about as hard to get into as the Democratic party. In fact, it has so many politicians in it, clogging the aisles, working the free load, waving banners and cheering the home side, it rather looks like a nominating convention. It's the only press box I know where you have to get elected to get in. There aren't seven guys in it at game time who know how to work a typewriter. Kezar's press box is just another political plum. If you tapped on the glass, half the bums in the joint would get up and start making a speech. Not even the president of the United States got in the press box at the Arkansas-Texas game. Every political hack in Northern California gets in Kezar's."

* * * *

FRAN TARKENTON, quarterback for the New York Giants:

"You see where you can go, that's all. All the mystique about game plans is bull."

* * * *

CHARLEY WINNER, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals:

"Just because you beat a team twice doesn't mean it is not a good football team. There are a lot of good football teams in this league. And Dallas is certainly one of them. They won it. They had the best record."

* * * *

TOM SILER, Knoxville columnist:

"Texas is favored over Notre Dame by 5½. I like the Irish and I'll tell you why. Texas defeated the Irish in this same bowl a year ago, they've won 30 straight, are national champs for the second straight year and they're coming off as near a perfect game as a team can play — that 42-7 conquest of a good Arkansas team. That all sounds awesome and it is, but things have a way of coming unglued after a while. The time is now. Furthermore, the Irish are quite good. Joe Theismann is a leader type and those seniors haven't forgotten the loss to Texas a year ago. I'm sure Longhorn coach Darrell Royal will be reminding his players of all this, but there also comes a time when the players aren't listening, or even if they are listening, the words just don't soak in."

* * * *

DICK YOUNG, New York columnist:

"Developing coolness between Don Maynard and Weeb Ewbank involves the feeling that the Jets' veteran pass catcher has become overly protective of his legs. Maynard has signed for next season via a two-year contract and figures to collect his $35,000 or so, even if the Jets trade him — which they might, with youngsters like Rich Caster and Ed Bell coming along."

Unsung Suggs Leads South To Victory

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — South Carolina Coach Paul Dietzel' most crucial decision for the Blue-Gray football game may have been made last week when he named his own quarterback, Tommy Suggs, as the Gray starter over the more publicized Bill Montgomery of Arkansas.

By the time Montgomery left the bench in the second period, Suggs had built a 14-0 lead with two touchdown passes as the Southerners rolled to a 38-7 victory, greatest rout in the history of the 32-year-old event.

Suggs, who packs 190 pounds on his 5-foot-9 frame, was named the game's outstanding player after rifling scoring shots of four yards to Tulane's Dave Abercrombie and 50 yards to Florida State's Don Pederson.

Suggs hit on 15 of 24 passes for 211 yards while Montgomery connected on only four of 16 for 43 yards.

"Tommy was more familiar with the plan than Montgomery and that is the reason that Bill might not have looked too good," said Dietzel. "If we had been running Arkansas' type offense, then you would have seen the real Bill Montgomery."

Dietzel, who has worked nine all-star games, said, "This is the best team that I have worked with in a game of this type."

A first period injury to the only center on the Blue squad, Tom Beard of Michigan State, forced a trio of changes in the offensive line. Beard returned to action in the third quarter and the Blues promptly drove 60 yards for a touchdown, a six-yard run by James Harrison of Missouri.

"We got behind and just couldn't put our game plan in effect," said Blue Coach Bobby Bowden of West Virginia.

Clemson's Jack Anderson scored two touchdowns for the South, each on three-yard runs, the last with only one second left in the game. He also booted a 50-yard punt out of bounds on the Blue two only one play before Tulane linebacker Rick Kingrea, a second team All-American, intercepted a pass and returned it seven yards for a touchdown.

Persian War Gets Favorite's Nod

FAIRYHOUSE, Ireland (AP) — Persian War, winner of the Irish Sweeps hurdle, today was made 9-4 favorite to become England's champion hurdler for the fourth time.

The seven-year-old bay gelding by Persian Gulf, out of Warning, collared the two miles "Sweeps" Race Monday by eight lengths from Lockyersleigh with Inishmaan six lengths away in third place.

Bookies immediately made Persian War the favorite to win England's champion hurdle at Cheltenham in the spring. He's already won the race three times.

Danny Clendenin Gets Ten Points

SAN ANGELO — Texas A&I won its third straight Lone Star Conference game by edging Angelo State University, 81-80, here Monday night.

The defeat was the third in a row for the Rams.

Danny Clendenin, junior from Big Spring, scored ten points for A&I.

Kelly Vows Irish Will Lick Texas

DALLAS (AP) — "We're going to get 'em this time"

That's the word from Tim Kelly, Notre Dame's stellar linebacker, who wants to close out his college career with a victory over No. 1 ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day

"We made way too many mistakes last year and the best team won," said the Springfield, Ohio, center. "This will be the emotional game of the year for us. You can already feel it on the team."

Kelly was one of the victims of Texas' three long touchdown drives last year in a 21-17 Cotton Bowl victory over the Fighting Irish, making their first post season appearance in 45 years.

"They hurt us on the option with the pitch man," he said. "We got mixed up in some of our assignments."

The 6-foot-1, 225-pound Kelly said, "The critical series in the game for us defensively will be the first series in the first and third quarters. If we do well, we'll be OK the rest of the game."

Kelly said he was impressed with All-America fullback Steve Worster and running back Jim Bertelsen of the Longhorns.

"You have to hit Worster high to stop him," Kelly said. "It also helps if you gang tackle him. Bertelsen gives you a good straight arm. That's a lethal weapon the way he uses it.

"They have a faster team than you think. Their backs can turn on the jets."

Kelly said the fact Notre Dame is a six-point underdog right now doesn't make any difference.

"That will be changed by game time," Kelly said. "(Texas Coach Darrell) Royal will change the tide before kickoff. I wouldn't doubt that he will have everybody believing we should be favored. Royal is also very good at getting a team psyched up."

IN BORGER MEET

Steers Capture Eighth Contest

BORGER — Big Spring returned to winning ways in the first round of the Borger Invitational Basketball tournament here Monday, easily turning back Clovis, N.M., 77-56.

The win was the eighth of the year for the Steers, compared to nine defeats. The Longhorns return to play at 7 o'clock this evening, meeting the survivor of the Perryton-Spearman game.

Spearman is coached by Allen Simpson, former Big Spring coach.

Against Clovis, Big Spring jumped to a 10-0 lead and used the press all the way, forcing numerous turnovers on the part of Clovis.

The Steers hit 37 per cent of their shots from the floor and 75 per cent at the line.

Ten players got into the scoring act for Big Spring. Randy Womack had another good game for the Steers, scoring 13 points. Mike Randle also bucketed 13 points for the Black and Gold while Richard Bullard accounted for 12 and David Carter 11.

The game's top scorer was Clovis' Allen, who settled for 17 points.

The tournament, which ends Wednesday, winds up preconference play for the Longhorns.

Moss Will Open To Bird Nimrods

Public Works Director Nolen Chafin announced today that Moss Lake will be opened Jan. 1 to waterfowl hunters. The lake, as usual, will be closed to other types of hunting, he said, and the lake will not be reopened for fishing until further notice.

Arrangements for opening the lake for bird hunters were delayed this year by construction work on the spillway and lack of a park ranger. Ronald Robey was appointed last week to the position of park custodian in charge of lake patrol.

Bear Bryant's Club Hard To Handle In Big Ones

HOUSTON (AP) — Oklahoma, who lines up against Alabama Thursday night in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, knows from experience a better season record doesn't mean a thing against a Bear Bryant team.

This will be the third time Oklahoma has gone up against the Bear in a bowl game and each time the Sooners have had the better record.

In the past, however, they met defeat each time. The hardest blow, perhaps, was in the 1951 Sugar Bowl when Oklahoma was the national champ. Bryant's Kentucky team beat them 13-7.

Then in 1962 it was the Orange Bowl, with Coach Bud Wilkinson having such Sooner standouts as Joe Don Looney, Lance Rentzel, and Ralph Neeley.

That time it was 17-0 for Bryant and his Crimson Tide.

Oklahoma, under Coach Chuck Fairbanks and with a 7-4 record, now challenges Alabama, 6-5, in the Astrodome in this 12th annual Houston classic.

Alabama will have a balanced attack led by Scott Hunter, who hit 103 of 179 passes for 1,240 yards and eight touchdowns. This was despite missing two games and being slowed in others by a shoulder injury

When Hunter is not passing, more than likely he's handing off to Johnny Musso, who rushed for 1,137 yards, the third highest season total in Southeastern Conference history.

The Sooners like to concentrate on the running game and with sophomore Joe Wylie in the backfield there is little wonder why.

Wylie gained 984 yards, surpassing the rookie seasons of Oklahoma's Heisman Trophy winners, Billy Vessels and Steve Owens

The Sooners have practiced in the dome once this trip "to expose the squad to the lighting and playing conditions," said Fairbanks

"Actually, we're trying to put our game plans together," he said "We're not ready yet"

Alabama has played in the dome earlier in the season, defeating Houston

Bryant insists his team is working harder for this game than any of his previous bowl teams. Alabama has lost bowl games the last three years

"We've played in several bowl games where we never put on our pads for workouts but we started out this time wearing them the first day," he said

"There's just no way you can get a good look at Oklahoma's offense just wearing sweat suits"

DEFENSE WON'T CARRY CLUB

Dallas Must Move Ball

DALLAS (AP) — How do you go about beating someone you've taught everything you know?

That's Dallas Coach Tom Landry's problem in preparing his Cowboys for Sunday's National Football Conference finals with San Francisco in Kezar Stadium.

The Coach of the 49ers is Dick Nolan, Landry's defersive coach in 1966 and 1967 when the Cowboys came close to defeating Green Bay for the National Football League title.

"Tom taught me everything I know," Nolan said Sunday after San Francisco had upset Minnesota 17-14. "I'll enjoy playing against him."

Landry and Nolan are close friends and both are proponents of a "coordinated" defense where they attempt to put three defenders at every point of attack.

Dallas has gone 21 consecutive quarters without allowing a touchdown, but Landry is making it clear the Cowboys can't live by defense along against the 49ers.

"I know this, we'll have to do some scoring against San Francisco because the 49ers will be scoring with a guy like Quarterback John Brodie in there," Landry said.

In other words, Landry was saying his passing game is going to have to get untracked.

Dallas rushed for more than 200 yards against Detroit in a 5-0 victory and came away with only a field goal. Quarterback Craig Morton could hit but 4 of 18 passes for 38 yards.

"Craig has been having trouble with his elbow and his hand . . . and I'm hopeful he'll be working more this week," Landry said.

Morton passed very little before the Detroit game and Landry cited the rustiness as having "More to do with our ineffective passing than anything."

The Cowboys will fly to San Francisco Saturday morning.

Landry predicted before the playoffs began that defense would be the controlling factor.

And he adds "San Francisco has always been a fine offensive team . . . and that defense against Minnesota makes them a most formidable opponent."

Midland Beaten

EL PASO — Ysleta Bel Air toppled highly-rated Midland High, 60-53, in the semifinals of the El Paso Austin Basketball tournament here Monday. Midland is now 13-5 for the season.

Lauterbur Is New Mentor Of Hawkeyes

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Ex-Marine Frank Lauterbur has quit after 23 straight victories at the University of Toledo and today became head football coach of the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Word of the Big Ten job leaked out Monday and Lauterbur confessed the plans to his players last night before the Rockets thrashed William and Mary 40-12 in the Tangerine Bowl.

The former West Point and Baltimore Colts assistant coach replaced Clive Rush as Toledo's football chief in 1963 and, after a building period, produced an 11-0 season in 1969 and a 12-0 record this year.

Defense became king under Lauterbur as the Rockets rolled to two straight Mid-American Conference titles and two consecutive triumphs in the Tangerine Bowl against champions of the Southern Conference.

The W&M Indians finished their year with a 5-7 record, gaining the bowl bid by taking the Southern crown with a 3-1 league showing.

Lauterbur's defense gave up six points to a bit of age-old trickery to fall behind 6-0. The Rockets scored the next 40 points and William and Mary finally got touchdown No. 2 near the finish.

With the lopsided victory, Toledo outscored its dozen victims in 1970 by a combined score of 384-88.

A W&M quick kick shocked the Rockets and when the ball glanced off the foot of Toledo's Gary Hinkson, the Indians recovered at the Rockets 39. The ancient maneuver led to a 10-yard touchdown gallop by Tod Bushnell that gave the heavy underdogs a 6-0 lead.

Sensational junior quarterback Chuck Ealey hit three passes for big gains as the Rockets scored on a 1-yard plunge by 235-pound fullback Charles Cole to take a 7-6 edge.

Toledo busted it open with marches of 87 and 86 yards in the third period. Tony Harris ran 15 yards to score one touchdown and Joe Schwartz busted up the middle for nine to get another.

Ealey passed to Don Fair for a four-yard TD and scrambled three yards for another in the final quarter.

Lauterbur, who refused to go into the Iowa appointment, replaces Ray Nagel as Hawkeye head coach. Nagel was fired after a 3-6-1 record this year.

49ers Are Upset Over Selections

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers were too busy a week ago to waste time fuming over the Pro Bowl selections.

But now, after upsetting the Minnesota Vikings 17-14 Sunday, they're daring anyone to say their offensive line isn't the best in the National Football League.

And they're not too happy, either, about the National Conference coaches' defensive line selections for the all-star game next month in Los Angeles.

The 49ers, who face Dallas here Sunday for the NFC championship, have only four Pro Bowlers—quarterback John Brodie, receiver Gene Washington, linebacker Dave Wilcox and cornerback Jim Johnson.

A SHOT HARD TO COME BY

Son Powell eagled No. 15 on the Big Spring Country Club golf course Sunday, and offhand none could remember this having been done before.

The hole measures 400 yards, and his tee shot carried down the fairway for 225 yards. He slapped his second shot 175 yards straight as an arrow to the green. The ball took one bounce and dropped into the cup.

An eagle on this long par 4 hole is considered much more of an achievement than most holes-in-one.

Playing with Powell in the foursome Sunday were Tom Wilkerson, Fred Wilkerson, Daryle Hohertz, and Leonard (Blow) Morgan.

Permian, Cats, Eagles Win

BROWNWOOD — San Angelo Central moved into the semifinals of the Howard Payne tournament by defeating Mineral Wells, 76-64, here Monday.

Odessa Permian measured Kerrville Tivy, 65-53, in another first round contest.

Ricky Childress scored 22 points and Walter Lewis 17 for San Angelo.

A third 5-AAAA team, Abilene High, was ousted by Cleburne, 102-82, in first round play.

Cleburne made 46 free throws to come out on top. Mike Curtis scored 40 points for Cleburne while Lanny Fisher and Wayne Williams each had 14 for Abilene.

Cooper Decked By Eastwood

HOBBS, N.M. — Ysleta Eastwood sidelined Abilene Cooper, 63-54, in the first round of the Hobbs Holidays Basketball tournament here Monday.

The Cougars led at half time, 36-33, but could do little right after the intermission.

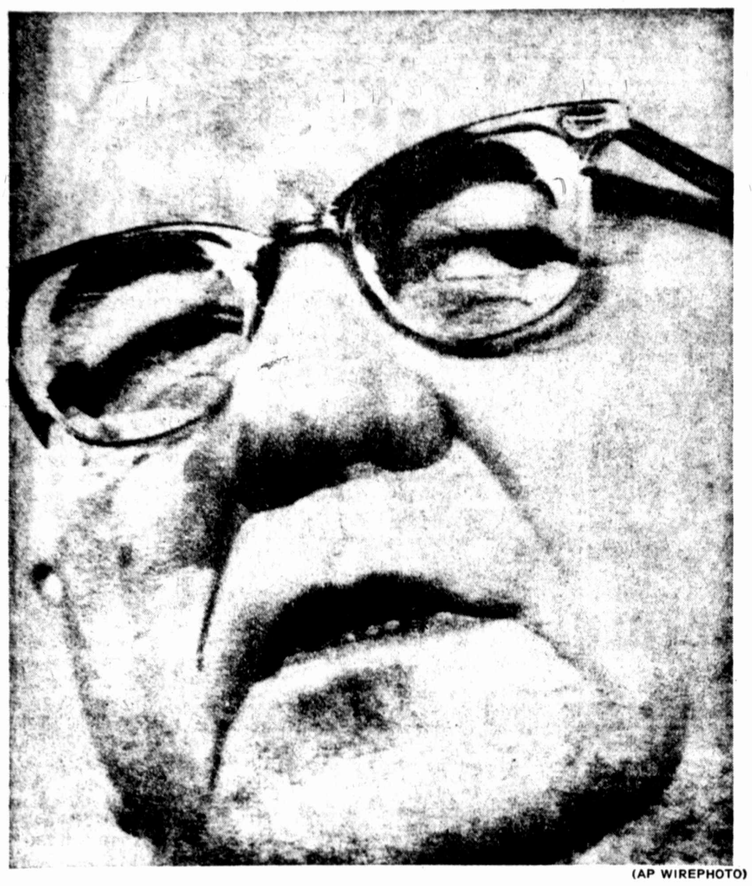

LaSalle Taylor led Eastwood with 26 points while Sammy Walker had 24 for Cooper.

My Lai Figure Charged In Cycle Rider Slaying

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — One of 10 soldiers charged in the alleged massacre at My Lai, Spec. 4 Robert T'Souvas, was among 17 persons charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of a motorcycle rider in the hippie district here Monday night.

His wife, Rebecca T'Souvas, also was arrested on a charge of occupying a "dive."

Police said the shotgun slaying of Barney McSherry, 21, took place in a rooming house where T'Souvas and his wife lived.

Full details of the charges were not immediately made known.

Officers reported that after the slaying they confiscated 18 bottles of gasoline rigged as fire bombs, a stick of dynamite, two shotguns, seven rifles, four pistols, $3,100 in money and a quantity of drugs.

In the My Lai case, T'Souvas, 21, of San Jose, Calif., specifically is charged with premeditated murder of two Vietnamese civilians.

He has testified during pretrial hearings at Ft. McPherson, saying he could not remember killing anyone at My Lai. Another hearing is set for Jan. 12.

Police said they found the slaying victim, nicknamed "Tree" because he was 6 feet, 7 inches tall, on the floor of the rooming house, his hand resting on a loaded pistol in his pocket.

Homicide investigators said McSherry was shot in the chest and face as he stood just inside the entrance to the house.

Officers speculated that the killing was linked to a feud among motorcycle riders and hippies in the 14th Street area of Atlanta.

The 16 others charged with murder were identified as Clifton Eugene Pittman, 21; Paul Raymond Brant, 20; Joel Mazat, 23; Harry Mallette, 21; David Johnson, 19; Johnny Elrod, 19; Janice Brent, 18; Chris Pollock, 20; Elaine Larby, 18; William Harvey Park, 27; Craig Powell, 20; John Roberts, 18; Robert Don Larby, 17; Gary Phillip Dreyfuss, 18; Larry Duane DeLaney, 20, and Duane Delbert Weems, 17.

Find Models For Mental Health Plans

HOUSTON (AP) — A team of South Carolina legislators and mental health officials are finding models for their state's mental retardation program in Houston.

The group, led by Lt. Gov.-Elect Earl E. Morris Jr. recently spent time at the Harris County center for the retarded talking with the staff and observing the operation.

"We came to Texas at the suggestion of Dr. Charles Barnett, the director of our state Department of Mental Retardation," Morris said. "He is an expert in the field and used to work in Texas."

Morris called the Harris County center "unique among all those I've seen both in this country and Europe.

"In South Carolina we have three residential institutions caring for about 4,000 patients. what we are most interested in here are the halfway houses, the day schools and sheltered workshops," he said.

"Many of the people in the residential institutions really don't need to be in that kind of setting," Morris said. "I'm impressed with these programs that allow patients to spend part of the time at home and another part in a center like this."

"We've made considerable progress in the last 10 years on the problem of caring for the mentally retarded," said State Sen. James M. Waddell Jr.

"Our budget has increased 200 per cent. In 1967 we established a separate Department of Mental Retardation. Now we have to find methods of giving care to all those who need it.

"The kind of program here in Harris County is impressive. Actually, residential, institutional care should be a last resort. This kind of system where the patients go home at night or on weekends seems better and less expensive."

Planes Dive Claims Five

SACATON, Ariz. (AP) — Five persons were killed over the desert southeast of here Monday in the air collision between two light planes.

Pinal County sheriff's deputies said one of the planes was apparently on a cross-country trip, while the second, piloted by the owner of a local airport, was en route from Phoenix to Casa Grande.

The operator of the Casa Grande airport, George Gomez, 68, and two passengers, Michael Henry Norman, 29, and his wife, Judith, 22, of Altadena, Calif., were killed when Gomez' Bellanca collided with a piper Comanche 250. The Piper crashed and burned, killing both its occupants, William O'Connor, 48, and his wife Thelma, 47, of Vestal Parkway, N.Y.

U.S. To Help Construct 60,000 Town In State

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new community, to provide housing for more than 60,000 persons, will be built north of Grapevine, Tex., with federal guarantees, says Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Flower Mound New Town will be built on 6,156 acres four miles north of the Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport and will consist of four villages around the town center. Almost 700 acres will be reserved for industry. Each village will have its own schools, shops and parks.

Tower said about 18,300 homes will be built on 2,989 acres and that 1,995 of the homes can be bought or rented by low income families. One-fifth of the unsubsidized homes will sell for $25,000 or less or rent for less than $100 a month.

The developers, Raymond Nasher and Edward S. Marcus of Dallas, have scheduled a news conference for Wednesday at the Inn of the Six Flags at Arlington, Tex.

A spokesman for the Housing and Urban Development Department in Washington said the department's $18 million guarantee will give the developers the benefit of government credit to determine interest rates on loans to build the community, the fourth such project of its kind in the nation.

He said the program is designed to encourage large-scale, balanced community development in the hope of bringing order to future national growth.

Golden Eagle Passport Ready

Southwestern Regional Forester William D. Hurst announced today that the 1971 Golden Eagle Passport — with two major changes — is now available at all Forest Service offices.

The new permit, which admits a carload of visitors to federal recreation areas an unlimited number of times, is now $10 and is good from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1971. In past years the passport was $7 and was issued for a year beginning April 1.

The passport is for use at virtually all outdoor recreation areas operated by the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the National Park Service, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, and the Bureau of Land Management of the Department of the Interior. The only exceptions, Hurst said, are a few recreation sites which provide some extra service and require an additional fee. Also available are $1 daily permits for a private vehicle and its occupants.

Light Rain Dots Texas

By The Associated Press

Skies remained cloudy to partly cloudy with scattered showers dotting some sections of Texas today.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 20s and 30s over the Panhandle to the 70s along the coastal plains. Minor temperature changes were forecast as a weak cool front moved across the state.

The cool front was located across East and South Central Texas this morning.

Light rain covered portions of North and Northeast Texas Monday night.

Monday's maximum temperatures ranged from 85 at Brownsville and McAllen down to 59 at Dalhart and Texarkana.

Fog hampered sea, surface and air traffic along the upper Gulf Coast Monday night.

Million Join Welfare Rolls

NEW YORK (AP) — City Human Resources Administrator Jule M. Sugarman estimates the number of persons receiving welfare in New York City will rise by 15,000 a month to 1.25 million by June 30.

He said Monday the rate of increase after that should decline to about 2,000 per month and the total by June 30, 1972 should reach 1.28 million.

She Can't Stop Talking

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Gladys Clifton just can't stop talking — and her farmer husband Ian doesn't mind a bit.

She only started Sunday. In eight months of marriage, she had never uttered a word before.

Mrs. Clifton lost her voice suddenly — and inexplicably — in 1964 when she was a nurse.

Then on Sunday, while she was cutting a hedge at home, she breathed in deeply and "some how squeezed out a noise — just a mutter."

It was "the end of a nightmare," Mrs. Clifton says.

"I was so thrilled, I just wandered around the garden for a while. Then I went into see Ian and said 'hello.'" "He looked astounded, then a big grin shot across his face. I just cried for joy."

Since then, telephone calls and a stream of friends and relatives have kept Mrs. Clifton talking nonstop — and enjoying every syllable of it.

Patrolmen Get Extra Training

City patrolmen are meeting for special orientation sessions this week to get acquainted with the new DPS accident reporting system they will be using after the close of the year.

The Department of Public Safety has changed its accident report forms along lines suggested by the National Safety Council in an effort to get more meaningful data on the circumstances contributing to traffic accidents.

Patrolmen will be making state reports on accidents involving any degree of damage, but will no longer estimate the cost value of the damage. Instead they will use location code letters and extent-of-damage numbers to describe the damage to each vehicle.

The forms will also be more standardized, with more information put in the form of multiple-choice checklists and less emphasis placed on the description of what happened and diagrams of the scene of the accident.

Local patrolmen are being exposed to the new system through six to nine hours of classroom work, and will "graduate" Wednesday.

Phone Rate Up, Secret Hearing

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Tim Thomas, president of Thomas Electronics Co. has objected to approval by the city council of a 6.9 per cent over-all telephone rate increase in the Fort Worth metropolitan zone.

The council approved the hike Monday night after closing a public hearing on the issue. The boost was 4.9 per cent less than Southwestern Bell had asked.

Thomas asked for a delay until Feb. 15, promising a report on the proposal at no cost to the city. Thomas said the increase plan would hurt his company, which sells telephone equipment.

City Atty. S. G. Johndroe Jr., and Richard Aughinbaugh, city utilities supervisor, told the council that the rate issue could be re-opened at any time Thomas has his report prepared.

Southwestern Bell division Manager Bill Serrault urged immediate approval of the increase.

Ask Computers What Happened

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The International Business Machines Co. kept up a Christmas tradition this year and once more offered free telephone calls home to employes on leave for military service in Germany. The company picked a code word and told West German telephone officials they would pay for all callers who gave the word.

This year the code word got on the military grapevine. On Sunday hundreds of GIs were lined up at booths outside the Kassel railroad station to call. One Frankfurt operator said she put through 300 calls one day "and all the callers knew the code word."

Stars and Stripes, the military newspaper, said the bill may run into six figures. A spokesman for IBM said the company has stopped the free calls and is trying to find out what happened.

$125,000 Fire Out In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A four-alarm fire ravaged the two-story Samuel Bingham Roller Co. in downtown Dallas early today sending cinders spewing some 200 feet into the air.

Firemen said the blaze was first reported at 3:10 a.m. and was finally tapped out at 4:31 a.m.

No injuries were reported.

Firemen estimated damages at $125,000 but a possible cause for the blaze was not at once determined.

Firemen said surrounding buildings were not in danger.

Yarborough Votes With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., voted with the majority Monday as the Senate in a 49-21 roll call vote stripped trade quota and welfare reform provisions from the bill increasing Social Security and Welfare benefits.

In the voting, 29 Democrats were joined by 20 Republicans to defeat the wishes of 9 Democrats and 12 Republicans.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., was not listed as voting.

Grab Three, Guns, $8,353 After Holdup

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Three suspects in a bank robbery were nabbed Monday when their car crashed into a utility pole during a high-speed chase.

Police said the trio will be charged with the $8,353 holdup of the People's National Bank.

One of the men was apparently wounded slightly in the hip by one of three shots fired by pursuing officers.

Two men entered the bank armed with pistols and ordered everyone to lie on the floor.

The two then walked to the only teller on duty, Mrs. Kathryn Waite, 25, and ordered her to hand over the money.

After stuffing the money in a bag, the two men tried unsuccessfully to open another locked cash drawer, then ran outside where a third man awaited them in a stolen car.

The men drove about a block away, police said, and changed to another car. But Albert Hernandez, 37, who works for a drug store near where the car was parked, gave police a description and license number for the second vehicle.

Patroling policemen heard the pickup order for the second car and chased the vehicle at speeds up to 100 miles an hour before stopping it, they said.

Police reported finding in the car three .38 caliber revolvers, a sawed-off shotgun and two pillow cases stuffed with money.

Suggests $1 Tax On Plane Riders

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dallas city councilman Jesse Price has suggested a $1 tax on all passengers at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport as one way of taking the burden of land costs off the property taxpayer.

Price said Monday the revenue would go to the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth to pay off land debts.

Price said this method would tax those using the airport instead of the property owner. Price said the ticket tax is "universal in Europe and two or three airports have it in this country."

City Atty. Alex Bickley questioned the constitutionality of such a tax. He said litigation is pending against some airports where the tax is in effect because of possible restraint of interstate commerce.

TEXAS LEGISLATURE

Pot Punishment Poses Problem

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A majority of Texas legislators apparently wants to keep possession of marijuana a felony rather than make it a misdemeanor.

However, sentiment to reduce the classification of the crime probably is higher among lawmakers than it was two years ago.

SCANT SUPPORT

There was scant support for such a change in the 1969 legislature.

Eleven of the 31 senators and 57 of the 150 House members replied to an Associated Press questionnaire.

Four senators favored retention of the felony classification for marijuana, two opposed it and five indicated indecision or reservations.

"Some means of a more realistic and enlightened handling of experimenting, curious youngsters must be devised," said Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena.

Sen. A. R. Schwart of Galveston said the age of the offender should be a determining factor.

Sen. Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi said the penalty should be reduced but "only if the pusher is punished more than present law provides."

19 UNDECIDED

Twenty-four House members said marijuana possession should remain a felony, 14 opposed it and 19 were undecided or had reservations.

Rep. Forrest Harding of San Angelo said it should be left up to the grand jury whether to charge the suspect with a felony or misdemeanor.

Rep. Ralph Wayne of Plainview would leave it up to the judge.

Rep. George Baker of Fort Stockton favors keeping it a felony but with "certain provisions for clemency and probation."

Rep. James Cole of Greenville would change the law to make the stigma of felony conviction "removable after a period of time."

Rep. Nelson Wolff of San Antonio has a proposal that would leave the choice up to the district attorney. Tax marijuana, Wolff says, and make it a misdemeanor for failure to pay. Then, after a person is arrested for possession, the district attorney would decide whether to prosecute under the tax misdemeanor law or under the felony possession law.

CRIMINAL CASES

On another issue, a majority of the House members favors letting courts of civil appeals handle criminal cases.

There is no intermediate appellate court for criminal cases in Texas. Appeals go directly from district court to the Court of Criminal Appeals, which writes more opinions than any other court in the United States.

Thirty-four House members said they supported expansion of civil appeals jurisdiction to include criminal cases, seven opposed it and six were undecided.

Sentiment in the Senate was just the reverse. Only one Senator, Joe Christie of El Paso, said he liked the idea. Four opposed it and 16 were undediced.

One House member who asked not to be named was refreshingly candid on the civil appeals proposal. He said he was "not qualified to comment, not being a lawyer."

In answer to a question on setting minimum salaries for law enforcement officers, seven senators and 29 House members said they supported the idea, only one senator and 13 representatives opposed it, and three senators and 18 House members were undecided.

SUPPLY, DEMAND

Schwart said he favored minimum pay "and minimum intelligence and training."

Baker was emphatically against minimum pay for officers, saying "supply and demand and training requirements will take care of it."

Rep. Honore Ligarde of Laredo opposed the idea unless the state supplements the pay in communities where the local taxpayer is already making a "substantial" contribution.

Rep. Joe Salem of Corpus Christi gave an answer subject to different interpretations: "I favor paying as much as we can."

Eighteen House members favored establishment of a public defender office, 15 opposed it and 24 were undecided. The Senate vote was four in favor, one opposed and six undecided.

Baker said it would be all right to establish a public defender in counties with 25,000 or more population.

FTC Taking Aim At 'Sweepstakes'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today challenged the so-called sweepstakes promotional practices of Reader's Digest.

The agency announced a proposed complaint charging 11 such promotions from 1966 to 1969 claimed the winners would get 699,293 prizes worth $5,645,000 but only 274,282 with approximate retail value of $2,530,700 were awarded.

The FTC said it intends to seek an order requiring all future contests result in award of all prizes as represented, and that the exact number of the awards with their approximate retail value and the odds of winning each prize be clearly stated.

In addition, the order would require that the firm—Reader's Digest Association, Inc., Pleasantville, N.Y.—not give out the purchasers' names and addresses for promotional purposes without prior written consent.

The FTC's complaint says millions of numbered tickets—some designated as winners, others as losers—were mailed to prospective buyers of the magazine and other products, with the recipient directed to return the ticket to be checked against a list of winners.

The complaint charges winners who thought they only had to mail in the ticket to obtain a prize "were asked to or had to comply with previously undisclosed terms and conditions;" first and second prize winners were subjected to interviews by private detectives, while third and fourth prize winners were told to submit affidavits.

In addition, the complaint says some winning tickets were distributed in states where the law prohibits sweepstakes, although it was represented that such tickets went to eligible participants.

The action came under the FTC's consent order procedure—in which it notifies the firm of the intention to issue a complaint and seek a cease-and-desist order against the company, and gives the firm a chance to settle the case by entering into a consent order.

GE Socked In Fed Court

AUSTIN (AP) — General Electric has been sued in federal court by a local appliance dealer which seeks an end to the company's so-called "dual distribution" system.

Fulford's, Inc., also asked U.S. Dist. Judge Jack Roberts to order General Electric to restore the Austin firm's franchise as a dealer in GE appliances.

The company is expected to file its answer to the suit in a few days.

Fulford's petition describes the dual distribution system thus:

Dealers may sell to the building trade only if they have signed a "builder-supplier sales plan agreement" with General Electric. Such dealers who have a sales prospect must submit a request for a price quotation. Prices for such volume business are generally lower than those charged to individual customers. If a potential customer is "relatively large," General Electric approaches the customer directly and sells at a lower price than the local dealer quoted, after learning of the prospect from the dealer.

The suit contends the company grants quantity discounts not justified by costs in some deals with builders.

'Smut' Seller To Appeal Case

DALLAS (AP) — William Groner, 55, of North Hollywood, Calif., convicted Dec. 5 of shipping obscene paperback books into Dallas, will appeal his case, attorney Mel Friedman of Houston said Monday.

Groner was sentenced by U.S. Dist. Judge Joe E. Estes to two concurrent federal prison terms of five years and fined $5,000 after being found guilty on two counts of shipping obscene materials across state lines.

SEN. STEPHEN M. YOUNG

Young, Oldest Senator, Isn't Calling It Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — His step has more shuffle, his eyes moisten with age, but Sen. Stephen M. Young, whose searing letters stirred the ire of many an Ohio constituent, still dictates diatribes in the waning days of his Senate career.

At 81, Young, the oldest man in the Senate, is retiring after serving a fiery eight years in the House of Representatives and 12 years in the Senate.

But the Puckerbrush Township Democrat isn't calling it quits.

Young plans to practice law in Washington—where he'll spend most of his time—and open an office in his adopted hometown, Cleveland.

"If I retired, I'd be dead in a few years," Young said in his office, handing out one of the last of his "Sen. Stephen M. Young" ballpoint pens.

He never said he was part of the Senate's inner circle. There never was a committee chairmanship for him. His windy, pugnacious speeches caused a president few anxious moments.

But Young did fashion memorable achievements in defeating two heavily favored Republican opponents for his seat: former Gov. and Sen. John W. Bricker in 1958—Young was 69—and Robert Taft Jr., in 1964.

Young's trademark was his prodigious letter writing. He never hesitated to match nasty insult for nasty insult with political foes or angry constituents. And he always delighted in handing out mimeographed copies of the letters to newsmen.

One voter was a "mentally deranged female crackpot," someone else was "lower than a snake's tail in a wagon rut," and still another voter, "a low-down skunk and liar."

Young was one of the first Senate doves on the Vietnam war and he considers his most important vote the one cast for the limited nuclear test ban treaty with the Soviet Union.

His recent public battles have been over the Kent State University shootings in which four students were killed by National Guardsmen.

"Only a cruel ignoramous would take the position that those four students—not one of whom was rioting or throwing stones—deserved to be killed," Young wrote one dissenter. "Also, you are a stupid, cruel jerk."

One of Young's favorite stories concerns the only time President Dwight D. Eisenhower ever spoke to him.

"He called me up on the telephone about 10 p.m. one night. He kept talking about some farm project in North Dakota. He was sure we could come to terms on it.

"Finally, I managed to break in, and told him I was Sen. Young of Ohio, not Sen. Milton Young of North Dakota.

Tickets On Sale Here For Odessa Horse Show

Choice tickets for the Sand Hills Hereford and Quarter Horse show in Odessa are still available at the First National Bank in Big Spring.

The big rodeo begins Saturday at 8 p.m., then skips until Tuesday night, Jan. 5, continuing consecutively at the same hour through Saturday Jan. 9. This is the first RCA-sanctioned show of the new year.

Stars of the rodeo show will be Faron Young (the Singing Sheriff) on Jan. 2, David Houston Jan. 5-6, Jack Greene Jan. 7-8, and Hank Thompson Jan. 9.

After each rodeo show, there will be a rodeo dance in the exhibits building adjacent to the coliseum, and the stars will perform at these functions.

Starting Jan. 2, judging of the various livestock classes will be held during the ensuing week, with a climax Jan. 8 when the champion steers will be picked. The quarter horse show will be Saturday, Jan. 9.

Three sections of reserved seats have been sent to the bank here and two of them contain some of the best seats in the coliseum. Prices range from $3 for the opening night, $2 on Jan 5-6, then $3 for all others. All tickets not sold by Friday afternoon will be returned to Odessa.

Tiny Airline Reports Boom

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Metro Airlines never flies out of Harris County, but business is booming enough that it plans to build a fourth terminal.

The small airline, which began operation on June 8, 1969, already ferries more than 500 persons on its 46 daily flights between Clear Lake near the Manned Spacecraft Center and Houston's new Intercontinental Airport at the other end of the county.

The airline also stops at Hobby Airport, halfway between its other two stops.

Now Tom Garanflo, executive vice president of the firm, said they are buying land to build a new facility in southwest Houston.

Garanflo said about 40 per cent of local travelers at Intercontinental come from the southwest area and he estimates the future terminal will serve about five times the number presently flying out of Clear Lake.

Metro now has four 20-passenger airplanes in service and plans to add four 55-passenger planes, with one leaving the new facility every 20 minutes.

Metro calls its airport a "stolport" for short take off and landing ports. Its runways are the minimum 2,000-foot length required by federal regulations but in practice the planes now flying require only about half the runway length.

Probe Drowning Of Three Persons

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — An investigation into the drowning of three persons at the Los Ebanos international ferry has been launched by the Coast Guard.

Cmdr. Melvin Eaton of the inspection office at Corpus Christi said Monday an officer will be sent to the Lower Rio Grande Valley to investigate the accident and to inspect the hand-powered ferry across the Rio Grande.

Three Sullivan City residents drowned Dec. 21 when their car drove off the end of the ferry and plunged into the Rio Grande. The ferry is located between Mission and Rio Grande City.

The coast guard has jurisdiction over such operations and can inspect the ferry, even if it is owned by a Mexican firm, since it comes ashore on the United States side of the river, Eaton said.

The coast guard is attempting to determine who owns the ferry and why it had not recently been inspected by the Coast Guard, Eaton said. A similar accident at the same ferry claimed five lives in 1959, he said.

Three Texans Die In Triple Crash

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Three men were killed in a triple collision here Monday.

Texas Highway Patrolman Wendell Jeter said the accident occurred when a car driven by Rodrick Wayne Lucas of Greenville tried to make a left turn into a grocery driveway.

Demcie Palmore, 53, of Greenville, driving behind him, swerved his vehicle across the road and struck a station-wagon containing two employes of the Texas Highway Department, killing both. Palmore was also killed, but Lucas escaped injury, Jeter said.

The other victims were highway radio technicians Guthrie Weldon Davis, 48, and Sammy Joe Brown, 30, both of Paris.
