Wave Of Bitter Cold Sweeping Across The United States

Scores Die As Blizzards Hit In Many Areas

Snow Storms Pile Drifts High In A Dozen States; Eight Fishermen Lost; Temperature Plunges Lower

Colder Forecast

Worst Of Weather Yet To Come In Some Parts; Slides In Mountains Tie Up Traffic; Planes Are Grounded

(By The Associated Press)

A WAVE of bitter cold, accompanied by raging winds that brought deaths on the Great Lakes and blizzards in New England states, swept across the United States last night on the course of snow storms that piled high drifts in a dozen states.

Deaths from the cold and from accidents caused by the snow were estimated at several score, including eight fishermen lost on Lake Michigan. The majority of the deaths, however, were from car accidents. In several sections, the worst of the weather was yet to come.

Temperatures Drop

Temperatures plunged far below zero in the midwest. Chicago had a 16 degree drop in five hours, with 10 below predicted. The city reported 6.3 inches of snow.

New York had 10.3 inches of snow in seven hours that tied up shipping for hours, kept airplanes at home, delayed trains and buses. "No visibility" was reported from the New York harbor, and even ships at sea were troubled.

A terrific windstorm sunk the 100-foot fishing smack, "Martha," near the harbor at Michigan City, Ind., and carried four fishermen to their deaths. Four men were drowned when the tug "Bremen" capsized at South Haven, Mich. Another fishing tug was beached 20 miles from South Haven and the crew of three made its way safely ashore, swimming through the icy waters.

Worst In Years

Northwest winds carried the snow storms eastward from their birthplaces in the Pacific northwest, Montana, and the Canadian northwest. A bitter blizzard howled into Portland, Me., at noon, and the New

Two Women Shot; Fail To Pay Rent

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 26. (AP)—Two women were shot, one perhaps fatally, here today, and Jack Kutsch, 61, was held by police after he allegedly admitted turning a rifle upon them because they had failed to pay $22.50 rent on a cottage he had let to them.

Mrs. Adelia Wilmot, 40, and her daughter, Mrs. Lois Maceto, 22, were the victims. Physicians said Mrs. Wilmot probably would not live and Mrs. Maceto was in a serious condition.

Angry neighbors swarmed about the place after hearing the shots and when threats of summary violence were uttered against Kutsch, police hurried him to the city jail.

Herriot's New Blast Falls Like Pebble In The Ocean

PARIS, Dec. 26. (AP)—The new blast of former Premier Edouard Herriot in favor of payment by France of its war debts to the United States fell "like a pebble in the ocean," a government spokesman said today.

M. Herriot said he recognized "my opinion is unpopular" and that the statement passed unnoticed.

The former premier, whose cabinet was overthrown on the debt issue last year, asserted "we committed a grave mistake" in not recognizing the debts as Great Britain did.

Chain Gang Is Advocated For Prisoners Of County

County Attorney Declares Lubbock's Jail Is Stocked With Men Happy Over Plight

A CHAIN gang for Lubbock county prisoners was proposed yesterday by County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson.

The county attorney, in advocating the move, said that prisoners, if put to work, should not be permitted to compete with other laborers.

"While Lubbock county's decent and industrious people are moving around briskly to keep themselves warm during this freezing weather, the county jail is stocked with 35 to 50 misdemeanor prisoners who are enjoying the necessities of life without any effort whatever," Wilson said.

"Some of them have prior criminal records and few, if any of them, are unhappy over their confinement. On the contrary, most all of them are well pleased with their surroundings and life would be complete with them if it lasted until late spring."

He charged that to some of the inmates only objection of confinement was the "smell of the disinfectant," used at the jail. He pointed out, "Some of them are cotton thieves. Among them are shortchangers, shop-lifters, petty swindlers, automobile accessory thieves."

"They have a common philosophy of life," he declared. That philosophy, he said, was that "anything they can do and get by with is OK."

"Should the tax-payers see fit to

Changes In Recovery Machine Will Be Few; Anti-Depression Drive Is Progressing Rapidly

President Devotes Attention To Six Billion Dollar Budget And To Annual Message To Be Given Congress

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Few changes in the recovery machine are to be asked of congress by President Roosevelt and the general impression in capital official circles is that the chief executive believes the anti-depression campaign is progressing satisfactorily.

With every indicator pointing in this direction, the president today devoted his attention to the preparation of the $6,000,000,000 budget which will be recommended to the national legislature and to his annual message reporting the nation's legislative needs.

Gold Action Studied

Meanwhile, the prospects of international action to stabilize world currencies on a gold basis received the careful study of those who have followed the development of the administration monetary program, their curiosity aroused by the refusal of Acting Secretary Morgenthau to answer a question whether a move in this direction was in the making.

Mr. Roosevelt only a few days ago expressed the hope that such action might be taken, without saying how soon he thought it should come about. His attitude for months has been that stabilization was not desirable until domestic commodity prices reached a satisfactory level.

Revisions Are Minor

Such revisions as Mr. Roosevelt may suggest of the recovery laws enacted last spring are expected to be of a minor nature and intended mainly to clarify their language or answer technicalities that have arisen in their operation.

Some amendments of this nature may be suggested for the farm bill and the truth in securities law. No modification of the latter is contemplated, it was said, despite the insistent clamor from certain business interests for action to make it less severe.

Much speculation has been aroused as to whether Mr. Roosevelt might ask for legislation in connection with his gold buying-monetary program to make its legality, which has been disputed, undoubted, possibly giving the treasury authority

Five Held In Stabbing Plot

Archbishop Tourian Stabbed To Death As He Leads Big Procession; Secret Society Being Probed

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Identification of five prisoners—alleged members of a secret Armenian revolutionary society—as participants in the attack which led to the assassination of Archbishop Leon Tourian was claimed by the district attorney's office today.

The announcement came as police delved deeper into the activities of Tashnak—a secret society said to have been formed to wrest Armenia from control of the U. S. S. R.

Five Are Charged

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Cohn charged the five prisoners and possibly a sixth member of the society took part in the actual stabbing.

He said it was possible twenty other members of the society were present in the Holy Cross Armenian church when the archbishop, clad in the colorful garments of his office, was assassinated as he led a procession up the aisle the day before Christmas.

A meeting of 75 members of Tashnak was held on Thursday

Cold Norther Strikes Texas Tuesday Night

State Rudely Awakened From Christmas Holiday Too Warm To Be True; Hard Freeze Is Declared On Way

Mercuries Slump

Minimum Of 20 To 30 Degrees Expected Today; Warmer Is Thursday Forecast; Drop To 12 Registered Here

(By The Associated Press)

TEXAS was rudely awakened from a Christmas holiday that was "too warm to be true," as a cold northerly wind whistled down across the Plains Tuesday night and even the Rio Grande valley shivered. The northen portion of the state had the prospect of the first hard freeze of the winter.

Wichita Falls citizens remembered water pipes and automobile radiators, as summer in December suddenly ceased and the mercury dropped from a maximum of 35 during the afternoon to 22 degrees at 8 p. m. and continued to slump.

WARMER FORECAST

The mercury in the Municipal airport thermometer stood at 12 degrees above zero late last night, while at the same time in Lubbock a reading of 22 degrees was reported.

The airport recorded a maximum of 34 degrees during the day and a maximum wind velocity of 36 miles an hour. The wind had dropped to a 2 mile-an-hour speed at 11 o'clock, and at that time skies were clear. A forecast of warmer weather was issued for Wednesday.

Freezing At Amarillo

Amarillo had shivered under a bright sun, with freezing weather all day, and had the prospect of continued cold Tuesday night, lower even than the minimum of 18 degrees set Tuesday morning. The maximum temperature for the day was 26 at 4 p. m.

The weather bureau at Dallas predicted colder weather for Tuesday night and advised against a minimum temperature of 24 to 30 degrees Wednesday morning. Slightly warmer weather for Thursday was forecast.

El Paso, sheltered by mountains, still basked in the balmiest Christmas weather in the history of the city's weather bureau.

Drop At Angelo

San Angelo's warmest for the day was 49 degrees but the temperature had dropped to 29 degrees at 9 p. m. and fair, colder weather Wednesday was predicted. Austin's weather man forecast a minimum of 34 degrees Wednesday morning.

The temperature at San Antonio dropped 11 degrees in two hours to Frantically the father leaped out, staggered through the snow, calling for help and shouting for a stretcher.

In the midst of his shouts, his wife tooted the car horn. And when doctors reacher her she exhibited her husky son.

Local Markets Show Increase In All Prices

Commodities Are Higher Than At Any Similar Time During Last Three Years In Some Outstanding Leaders

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Improved farm prices at local markets, in some cases higher than at any similar time in three years, were reported today by the bureau of agricultural economics.

The uprising was led by grains, the bureau said, with potatoes, sweet potatoes, cotton, and cottonseed following closely. It reported grain prices as 111 per cent higher on December 1, than on the same date in 1932, due to a decrease in production which cut the total supply. Due to a rye crop 48 per cent smaller than a year ago, that grain was priced at 55.4 cents per bushel, nearly two and one-half times the price in 1932.

Oats, Wheat Higher

Oats were 30.4 cents per bushel or 127 per cent higher than on Dec. 1, 1932, and wheat was purchased at 67.8 cents, an increase of 112 per cents over the 1932 figure. The oats crop was 42 per cent smaller and the wheat crop averaged almost 39 per cent less than in 1932.

Despite the one per cent increase in the cotton crop during the past year, prices of cotton and cottonseed averaged 63 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Regarding this increase the bureau held another fact partly responsible with the statement "the depreciation of our currency in terms of foreign exchange also was an important factor favoring the price increase, since a large portion of the crop is sold abroad."

Control Is Factor

The bureau said that for a number of crops the production control program of the administration was the vital factor in the price increases.

"At 86 per cent of its pre-war average in 1933, the crop reporting board's index of the volume of production of 10 principal crops was 18 per cent smaller than a year earlier and the lowest since 1903," he said.

James Wedell Fights Freezing Weather To Save Child

(By The Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26.—Logan field, covered by snow and slush which was freezing, was put in readiness tonight for the landing of the airplane of James R. Wedell, speeding to Baltimore with a sick baby for treatment at the Johns Hopkins hospital.

The facilities of the city of Baltimore were offered by Mayor Howard W. Jackson to aid the flier and the family of the stricken infant, five-months old Sue Trammell of Houston, Tex., even indicating he would send his private car to the airport with a police escort for the flying party.

No Word Received

No word had been received at Johns Hopkins tonight of the anticipated admittance of the Trammell baby, but hospital authorities said it was customary for such patients to be admitted and examined by a resident physician and save in exceptional cases the specialist sees them on his regular visit the following day.

The visibility over Logan field was poor tonight and all local planes had been held in port during the entire day because of a heavy snow fall which had turned to slush. A crust was forming late tonight.

Mayor Jackson said attendants at the municipal airport had been instructed to have the landing lights turned on in ample time to serve as a guide for Wedell as he approached Baltimore. As the pilot did not leave Atlanta until 9:25 p. m. (EST) his arrival was not expected before 2:30 a. m.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 26. (AP)—Robert H. Farmer, 23, was in jail today on a charge of beating his 30-year-old wife, Laura, to death, and police blamed his predicament on his desire for a cup of strong coffee.

Deputy W. H. Bailey said Farmer told him he had given his wife a "whipping" for refusing to brew him some coffee.

Two neighbors who said they saw Farmer leave the house yesterday with his wife and return alone a few minutes later quoted him as telling them that he had "taught her to make me a cup of coffee when I want it." Bailey said Farmer was intoxicated when arrested.

Unemployed Mechanic Declares He Was Hired As Kidnaper And Killed Boy Because He Tried To Escape

(By The Associated Press)

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 26.—Robert H. Wiles, 49-year-old unemployed mechanic, was quoted by Sheriff T. Alex Heise as confessing today that he was "hired to kidnap" Herbert H. Harris, jr., 15, and had beaten the boy to death to prevent his escape. The body of the young junior high school student with the skull battered in was found on Christmas day.

The sheriff depicted the jobless World war veteran as the tool of "another party" in enticing young Harris to a deserted farm house near Columbia Saturday by an offer of employment.

Another Is Held

The sheriff declined to elaborate upon his statement that "another party" was responsible for the crime, but officers disclosed that a former employe of young Harris' father was held at the state penitentiary "for questioning."

Once in the farm house, Sheriff Heise said, the boy grew suspicious. He was quoted in Wiles' purported confession as having said "this is a devil of a place."

Wiles allegedly said the boy scowled at him and twisted away as though to leave the farm. Wiles, the sheriff said, related that:

Hit Him In Face

"He hit me a hard blow in the face.

"I picked up a piece of iron about two feet long, held it in both my hands, and hit first a right-hand lick on the front of the head and then a left-handed lick that caught him behind his head.

"When he lay still, I caught him by the heels as well as I remember and dragged him in the house and covered him up with an old mattress. I started to go back and hide him better, but didn't."

Writing Farewell

Declares He Had "Dickens Of A Time Thinking Up What To Say"; Visited By Wife And Mother Christmas

(By The Associated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, Dec. 26.—As he sat on death row scribbling a farewell note to his wife and mother, Paul Mitchell, 24, of Lubbock, received the news late today that his life had been spared by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson for another 30-days.

Mitchell, condemned to electrocution shortly after midnight for a Lubbock grocery robbery in which a man was shot dead, jumped to his feet when he saw Emmett Moore, secretary to the warden, enter the death house with a telegram in hand.

Mitchell Is Excited

"So the governor gave it to me, eh?" he queried, excitedly, as Moore read the reprieve tidings to him.

"Well," he went on, "I'm glad of it. What reason did she give for granting the stay?"

Moore informed Mitchell that the telegram did not give any reason for the reprieve.

"Next time," Mitchell said, "she'll either turn me out or let me go to the chair. I feel certain this is the last reprieve that will be granted in my case."

Visited By Relatives

Tossing the stub of a pencil he had used in scribbling the note to a table, Mitchell remarked that he had had a "dickens of a time thinking up what to say in that farewell note." Mitchell's wife and mother visited him here Christmas day and the mother went to Austin in his behalf later.

In a few minutes they brought Mitchell the fried ham and potatoes

Hotel Men Wear Brighter Smiles

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—New York hotels are crowded and busy, and the men who run them are wearing broader and brighter smiles.

Repeal has filled the dining rooms and taprooms with joyful diners-out who no longer count every nickel they spend, hotel men assert. But beside this, they say improved business conditions generally have been reflected in the hotel business.

More people are traveling than a year ago, hence more hotel rooms are rented. More employes have been added. Banquets are becoming more frequent, and the after-dinner speaker has replaced the prophet of gloom.

Weddings Of Several Lubbock Young People Are Feature Of Early Week In City

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche Woman's Editor

MRS. E. H. Curry of Elmer, Okla., listed three don'ts that are conductive of long and happy life on her 100th birthday. These were "Don't worry; don't bother about other people's business, and don't wear a grouch."

That is good advice, in all probability for those who wish to grow old, but it is just as good for those who expect to live only a short time. For isn't it a fair ambition to want people to remember us as being cheerful and as tending to our own affairs during a short lifetime as well as a long? Can't we all hope that our lives, no matter how short, will leave a good impression on those who must remember us when we are gone? So, Mrs. Curry's advice may be passed along and remembered: "Don't worry; don't bother about other people's business, and don't wear a grouch."

GOOD SIGN

THERE was a sign of better times in the difficulty that some people had finding poor families to help at Christmas tide. Several organizations, seeking to take Christmas cheer to the needy, discovered that there were few such families to be found that were not already being cared for. The Salvation Army and other relief organizations were appealed to until they had no more families listed on their rolls.

Perhaps this would be a good time to run a reminder about the help these people will need later in the winter. It is a beautiful thing to reach out and help some needy family at a period when peace and good will prevail. It is just as essential, however, to help these same people and others during the winter times that follow Christmas.

Often poor families are visited time after time an Christmas. They have more food than they can use before it spoils at this one season of the year. But when winter has arrived these families are often left with virtually nothing and they then discover that the rest of the town has forgotten as soon as the Christmas cheer was dispensed.

This column has no objection to make to this spirit of helping the needy at Christmas time. It is a laudable custom and one that should receive support. But let us not forget that these same poor people are with us throughout the rest of the year and that help in February or March is just as comforting as that tendered at Christmas.

A BRIGHTER PROSPECT

EVEN though this is not a perfect world, more people, probably, are happier this season than during any such time for several years past.

Christmas found merchants checking up the best business of many years. The New Year is going to find many businesses prospering that were having hard times on the last few New Years. More people have jobs than have been working for several years and more people are optimistic of the future.

Glancing through the Christmas edition of newspapers today it has been easy to find advertisements in which firms were thanking their patrons "for the best season in many." Several advertisements carried the information that this Christmas season had been a record-breaking one. Store men are stating that they were "sold out" of many articles long before Christmas arrived and many had bought heavier this season as they expected an increase in business.

Everything isn't perfect, to be sure. The hardest time of the year is coming and we can find many things to cause us worry as we look at 1934. But in spite of it all, there is this cheering news that business has been better this fall than during any since those boom days of long ago. Things are not perfect. We can all hope that this is just the beginning of improvement, at that, most merchants and other people are facing the New Year with hope that is built on the happenings of the last few months.

Miss Juanita Dyer and Miss Frances Murrell, nurses at the Lubbock sanitarium, have returned from Crosbyton, where they visited as the guests of Miss Dyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dyer.

New Deal for Coughs and Sore Throat

The medical profession has found that a Cold is an internal infection and must be treated internally. Thoxine, a doctor's prescription, for Coughs and Sore Throats, is based on this discovery. Unlike gargles, salves, and cough syrups, which touch only the surface, Thoxine goes directly to the internal cause, relieves congestion, reduces fever, and quickly brings you back to normal. Why take chances with a patent medicine when you can get this doctor's prescription for 35c? Demand Thoxine at your drug store. (Adv.)

Gold Program In Final Week

No Indications Of New Setup Toward International Understanding Similar To That Reached On Silver

By WILLIAM L. BEALE, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Roosevelt's monetary program entered the last week of 1933 today without official indications of any immediate new step toward an international gold understanding similar to that reached on silver.

The first price for domestic gold set by the government after the Christmas holiday was $35.06 an ounce, the sixth successive repetition of this figure. This RFC quotation was $2.70 above the first price bosted two months ago and $13.39 above gold's mint value.

While the monetary program progressed apparently unchanged, the president and his financial advisors were devoting increased attention to polishing the budget message which goes to congress next week, the day after Mr. Roosevelt submits his own report on the state of the union.

These preparations were pushed at a time when the federal deficit crept close to the billion-dollar mark in latest treasury figures dated only ten days from the end of the calendar year and the first six months of the fiscal period.

It stood at $96,518,000 as compared with $1,588,132,000 a year ago.

Increased receipts, due chiefly to new taxes, an accounted for $436,000,000 of this $624,600,000 difference between last year's deficit and the present one.

The administration break-down of the outgo allotted $1,416,803,000 to ordinary operating expenditures and $979,825,000 to emergency ones, of which $532,733,000 for the RFC constituted the largest single item.

Sinking fund operations also represented a big difference between the position of the treasury at this time and a year ago.

During the present fiscal year the government has put $17,287,000 in the sinking fund as against a corresponding allotment last year of $418,764,000.

Cattle Program Will Be Talked

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 26. (AP)—The convention of the American National Livestock association here January 11 and 12 probably will bring out a record attendance, F. E. Mollin of Denver, executive secretary of the association, declared today in a statement issued from the headquarters of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' association.

Pointing out that the cattle industry was facing a great crisis because of over-produtcion and poor market prices, Molling said mutual troubles were binding cattlemen over the nation closer together.

Cattlemen from all parts of the west are expected to attend the associations convention and the conventions of the New Mexico Wool Growers' and Cattle Growers' associations which will be held January 10.

Mollin urged livestock men to attend the national convention to iron out conflicting views and to present a united front in demanding a recovery program for the cattle industry.

A plan for recommending the prohibition of all imports of canned meats for a period of two years and for government purchase of $75,000,000 worth of beef for distribution among the needy probably will be among the major resolutions to be discussed and adopted by the national convention. The New Mexico and Texas Panhandle associations already have endorsed the beef purchase movement.

Butler Outlines Repeal's Causes

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP) — Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, whose aggressive participation in the long fight against the 18th amendment brought him a strange mixture of praise, death threats and epithets, looked back over the historic struggle today and declared the "moving influences which hastened repeal" were:

1. Nation-wide bootlegging.
2. "Cowardice, hyprocrisy and corruption" of officials.
3. A warning against the amendment's effects, uttered in 1920 by Elihu Root.
4. Two decisions of the supreme court.

One of the decisions, he said denied to persons in vehicles the constitutional guarantees against unwarranted search and "led to about 110 murders by officers of the government."

The other, he declared, upheld federal officals in violating the laws of a state in the quest for evidence. These decisions, he said, brought revulsion and "revolt."

Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Post-holiday dullness was the rule in markets today. For stocks, the trend was downward, though many let losses were moderate. Grains and bonds drifted. Dollar dealings brought higher rates for the foreign monies, sterling advancing a few cents here. There was a holiday in London.

Stocks seemed largely under professional auspices. Gold shares, which had sprinted Saturday possibly in expectation of "news" affecting them, were dropped by those who had sponsored them and other metal issues encountered realizing. The market appeared to feel that immediate effects at least, of the new silver plan had been discounted.

Tax selling usually makes a dent at this time of year, although brokers currently report rather small offerings of that variety. Tomorrow is the last market in which such transactions can be made in the "regular way;" beginning Thursday they must be for cash. Utilities are apparently bearing the brunt of whatever selling of this description is occurring. The utility average today made a new 1933 low.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26. (AP)—Cotton was a dull holiday affair today with slack trading and narrow price fluctuations. The trend was moderately downward and the close was 5 to 6 points net lower.

The opening was irregular. First trades were 1 point down to 1 up with March at 10.18, May at 10.31 and July at 10.44.

Around noon there was a slight rally of 2 to 4 points on some short covering but in the afternoon prices eased again owing to lack of buying support and March duplicated the low of the morning at 10.10 while May and July made new lows for the day at 10.24 and 10.27 respectively. The close was practically at the bottom March closing 5 points net down and May 6 points net down.

Port receipts 11,247, for week 64,023, for season 5,500,597 last season 5,759,777. Exports 10,446, for week 51,066, for season 3,980,773, last season 3,919,238. Port stocks 4,154,046, last year 4,808,597. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 159,826, last year 202,973. Spot sales at southern markets 16,044; last year 13,251.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Cotton sagged off under scattering liquidation and a little southern selling in a quiet between-holiday market today. Except for trade buying to fix prices on scale dwn orders, there appeared to be very little demand and prices worked off 10.11 for March contracts under light offerings. March closed at 10.14 and the general market closed barely steady at net declines of 8 to 12 points.

Traders evidently found nothing in the over holiday news of an immediately stimulating character and while there were slight bulges from time to time on trade buying and covering, prices reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading, with January selling off to 9.95 and May to 10.25. The close was slightly up from the lowest on the more active positions on covering.

Owing to the continuation of the Christmas holidays, there were no cables from Liverpool and fluctuations in foreign exchange were to narrow to create much sentiment. The Liverpool market will reopen for business tomorrow.

Exports today 10,196 making 4,052,034 so far this season. Port receipts 11,247. U. S. port stocks 4,133,142.

Speed Ace

Sue Trammell was suffering from any ailment, was noticed Saturday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammell, with a change in the contour and size of her head.

Dr. ames Park, jr., of Houston, was summoned by the parents, and after it was said the child's condition was becoming worse due to pressure within the cranial vault of the brain, recommended she be brought here as quickly as possible for treatment by Dr. Walter Dandy. Dr. Parks said her condition resulted from an unknown cause.

Wedell, noted speed ace, took off at Houston early this afternoon on a dash against bitter wind and hazardous weather conditions for Baltimore. Prince Louis Ferdinand, son of the former crown prince of Germany, gave up his seat in the fast passenger plane to New Orleans for the ailing child.

Economists Believe It's About Time To Keep 'Down' From Meaning 'Up'

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP) — When an economist says "up" he sometimes means "down," and when he says "loss" he sometimes means "gain."

It's all very confusing to the public, so a group of New York economists are working on a plan to standardize economic terms in presentation of business conditions to the public. They seek a means of technical expression through words which do not have a contrary popular connotation.

For instance, when business failures "gain" in numbers, it is a loss to general business indices. Economists know this fact, but the idea has been presented in a vague manner to the public in the past.

Irving Fisher, Yale university economist, in a recent chart inverted the line for business failures to show a business condition gain when the number of failures fell.

Perhaps the most confusing case is in fluctuation of the dollar in foreign echange. When the dollar goes "up" in foreign exchange in terms of sterling, say from $5.00 to $5.25, it is really a loss in the value of the dollar because it requires more dollars to purchase a pound.

Likewise when the dollar price of gold increases there is a decrease in the purchasing power of the dollar.

In presenting the quotation status of the dollar to the public, some economists have used "gain" and others "loss" to mean the same thing.

CHICAGO REPORT
BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Upheld by apparent likelihood of crop damage from severe cold and lack of moisture southwest, the wheat market today ended at almost exactly Friday's finish.

Big snowfalls over the greater part of domestic winter wheat territory elsewhere than southwest more than counterbalanced at times any bullish effect of predictions of 8 to 10 below zero tonight in Chicago. There was some buying of wheat futures as against reports af incresed flour sales, but business as a whole was of a typical holiday character.

Wheat closed steady, 1-4 off to 1-8 up compared with Friday's latest figures, corn at 1-8 decline to 1-4 advance, oats 3-8 lower to 1-8 higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 27 cents.

England states generally had tastes of real winter.

The snow had abated and temperatures were rising from extreme lows in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, and neighboring states, but farmers still took precautions to protect livestock, and shippers were warned of continued below-zero weather probabilities.

Lines Tied Up

Two slides in the moutains had tied up railroad branch lines in Montana, with prospects that one of them, between St. Regis and Avery or St. Maries, would not be open for 30 days. Through trains from the Pacific coast, bearing belated Christmas travelers, arrived at Missoula, Mont., for the first time since Friday.

he had ordered for his last meal. The six doomed men in the death house celebrated Mitchell's reprieve by all sharing the meal.

Long Man Hunt

Mitchell was captured after a man hunt that stretched from the southern tip of Texas into Canada after Robert Tharp of Lubbock was shot to death in a robbery on October 15, 1932. Two other men, Clyde Shaffer of Amarillo and William E. (Bill) Doupe, former Canadian army aviator, are charged at Lubbock in connection with the case. Shaffer officers said, made a statement and Mitchell was arrested a short time later in Kingsville, Texas. Doupe is in jail.

At his trial Mitchell admitted his part in the robbery and said he shot Tharp accidentally. When the judge sentenced him to death, he calmly faced the court and said:

"I have nothing to say except that I killed him accidentally and unintentionally. If my death would restore him to life, I would go gladly."

CONVICTED ON BURGLARY

OLTON, Dec. 26. (Special)—Ray Day was found guilty on a charge of burglarizing a local store and was given a prison term of three years in the state penitentiary by Judge Charles C. Clements, in 64th district court. Previously Day had been convicted in Hale county for the burglarizing of a filling station at Hale Center and was given three years.

Threats Of Death Revealed By Man

SYLVA, N. C. Dec. 26. (AP)—A story of being abducted by two masked men Friday night, driven about over the mountains of North Carolina and Georgia for two days in an automobile and threatened with death was told today by Frank Rhinehart, 37, principal of the Beta school in Jackson county.

Rhinehart, who appeared in Sylva bruised and apparently suffering from shock, said he was released on a highway between Clayton and Mountain City, Ga., Sunday and given his automobile there.

Several times, he said, he was threatened with death and once was thrown in front of an approaching train at night, but was dragged from the track just as the engine was about to hit him.

introduce this gang to 9 hours of work, instead of 24 hours of indolence, for every day they are confined in jail, my guess is that when they are released from jail they will seek a gentler climate," the county attorney declared.

"And the others who are not incarcerated at the present time will not be so anxious to return to the 'jail-house' for rest and recuperation," he added. "I believe that working this type of prisoner not only will lessen the cost of their keep but also ultimately will rid Lubbock county of many of its undesirables."

Sheriff Tom Abel said that county commissioners court allowed him 40 cents daily for feeding each prisoner and 15 cents daily for keeping the prisoners, making a total of 55 cents for each individual. The sheriff said the total was the minimum permitted by law.

Texas Bankers Are To Gather

Governor Ferguson Calls For Meeting In Austin Thursday To Discuss Plans For Sale Of Relief Bonds

AUSTIN, Dec. 26. (AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson said today she had called a conference of Texas bankers for Thursday to discuss sale of Texas relief bonds.

Two efforts have been made to sell the first issue of $2,750,000. Only one bid was received the first time and it was rejected. The second time bids were received on approximately $1,300,000. Mrs. Ferguson said she expected a hearty response to her call. She expressed the belief that all the bonds would be sold speedily.

The legislature authorized issuance of $5,500,000 in relief bonds. The Texas bond commission is planning to advertise the unsold portion of the first issue and the second issue of $2,750,000.

State and national bank officals have been invited to the meeting, the governor said.

The Government's Duty

THE original manuscript of "The Star Spangled Banner" will be sold at public auction in New York on January 5. It now is a part of the estate of the late Henry Walter, of Baltimore, and is to be sold by order of the executor.

It is priced at $500, but that it will command a much higher figure under the spur of eager bidders is certain. It has a historical and sentimental value that can not be estimated.

The federal government has in its possession by purchase or donation many famous manuscripts. That of the national anthem would make a worthy companion for the most highly prized of these. The circumstances themselves under which Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner" give it a patriotic origin which calls for its preservation as a historical relic for future generations.

Its purchase by the government would be fully justified and would command popular approval.

PEACE IN THE FAR EAST

The suggestion of General Araki, Japanese minister of war, that Japan summon a far eastern peace conference in Tokyo before 1935 has a pleasing sound but needs to be looked at from several standpoints before passing judgment on its value.

There is no doubt that the Far East is a danger spot in world relations. Most of the major powers have vital interests there. This was recognized by implication by General Araki in the suggestion that the conference include, in addition to Japan, the United States, Great Britain, China, India, Russia, France, Holland and Manchukuo.

Japan for the last several years has been actively pursuing a policy designed to give her a position of dominance in the Far East. Her methods have been at times ruthless and in hostile defiance of world opinion. She has gone so far as to violate treaties to which she had subscribed. The fact that the rest of the world has been too busy with big problems nearer home to give much attention to matters farther away may explain the ease with which she has carried forward her general purpose.

Even Tokyo must realize, though, that an accounting time eventually must come. The military and naval expansion plans upon which Japan is actively engaged lend force to this belief. Significant in this connection are the words of General Araki that if Japan failed to follow "the armament replenishment program and the second naval supplementary plan, the red figures in the budget will become black, but the prospect of establishing far eastern peace on an enduring basis will be lost, and the people of Asia, led by China, will become permanent servants of the white races."

In other words, she regards herself as custodian of the fate of the people of Asia, and sees the white race as a menace to these.

What would be the purpose of the suggested peace conference? In general, it would be "stabilization" of conditions in the Far East. But Japan's idea of what would constitute stabilization might not agree with that of other powers. A hint of this was given in General Araki's assertion that the Kellogg and the Nine-Power treaties had proved defective and were in need of revision.

These are the treaties Japan is charged with violating in the course she has followed in China. The general apparently would have the pacts revised in a way that would legalize and give world approval to these violations.

The United States is eager to further peace in any part of the world, where it can do so without compromising its legitimate interests. Its participation in such a conference as that suggested by General Araki might be advisable, but it would be fully justified in being alert to the danger of being drawn into a trap.

EXPERTS

"The . . . experts in the Law thwarted God's purpose."—Luke 7:30.

We have so institutionalized life that the only people who can speak on a subject are the experts, and each subject has its own set of experts. Unfortunately (for the experts), the experts do not always agree among themselves. It is impossible to name all the "schools" of psychology, philosophy, and even medicine. We are [illegible] that some one said: "An expert [illegible] has spurted."

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

THE New Dealers have concluded it's bad business to attempt to draft legislation and send it on to congress for a rubber-stamp okay.

In the first place there's every indication that endorsements of administration desires won't be bouncing off the ink pad as fast this coming session as they did last.

Secondly, in the Tugwell food-drug bill executive officials have had a concrete example of the jealous care with which our legislators guard the bill-writing prerogatives.

As a result Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau plans to let the house ways and means committee draft the new revenue bill with only such advice and counsel from the treasury as may be requested.

You won't see him stepping to bat with a whole set of schedules that can be dubbed the Morgenthau bill and held up in comparison to the tax program worked out by the ways and means sub-committee.

Only if the committee appears headed off some tax proposal considered inimical to White House wishes will you witness the treasury lads making an issue. That isn't considered likely.

By the same token, Secretary of Commerce Roper is going to watch congress work out a solution to the communications problem without interference.

President Roosevelt has suggested the alternatives of letting telephone, telegraph and radio (1) remain as they are, (2) become monopolies under strict government supervision or (3) be taken over by the government.

That pretty well leaves No. 2 as the outcome but Roper isn't going to draw up any bill providing for an administrator of communications with his name attached to it. He'll just be on hand with advice.

The administration is still behind the Tugwell bill with all the influence it has but wishes now the professor's name hadn't been so prominently identified with the original draft.

All the patent medicine boys have been building up an insidious backfire against "the young college theorist." (As a mater of fact, Tugwell is 42 and has made a most intensive study of the food-drug-cosmetic problem).

But the net result seems to be since the hearings that everybody and his brother are going to take a whack at rewriting the bill.

MORGENTHAU: Members of congress are quick to get the old hump up at the slightest suspicion anybody from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue is trying to tell them how to write legislation or steal their stuff.

An example of this followed Morgenthau's appearances before the ways and means committee. His statement therebefore got a most prominent press.

Several members allowed rather truculently as to how Henry, jr., hadn't offered anything but criticism of their month's efforts—and that wasn't constructive. They added generally he couldn't be expected to give them any helpful suggestions because he'd only been on the treasury job three weeks.

In fairness to Morgenthau it may be said his friends report him as somewhat astonished at the large amount of newspaper space his statement received—largely, because as charged, he had offered no specific tax recommendations of his own.

He probably had forgotten for the moment that any number of people are vitally interested in every word the secretary of the treasury has to say on such a nerve-wracking subject as taxation. Even though he only be acting secretary at the moment.

NOTES: Prof. Tugwell has about decided it is a distinct handicap to be good-looking and appear younger in age than he is. . . . His friends predict he is considering borrowing Santa Claus' long white beard for the coming year. . . . President Roosevelt is getting an ear awfully close to the patient's chest for symptoms of complaint as the congressional session impends. . . . He had Senator Carter Glass to lunch one day and Senator Hi Johnson the next. . . . The president tells friends a lot of applesauce is being written about bi-metallism these days. . . . He points out our currency has been based on gold and silver for years. . . . . The administration was quite proud it was able to spring the silver purchase story cold. . . . They will tell you at the White House it was the result of sealing up all those "treasury leaks."

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE silver move is seen here as a perfectly timed Christmas gift from the president to the mining states. Metal miners are now in a class with cotton, wheat and tobacco farmers as New Deal orphans.

Result—some dozen or more potentially fractious senators commandeered for the administration's bandwagon. New York rates the senate as safe for the session against any inflationary measures F. D. R. doesn't want. This despite the Oliver Twist act by Borah and Wheeler. Their constituents will be happy and that's what counts.

The practical inflationary effect will be nil. Twenty to forty million dollars in silver added to the monetary base means as much to the price level as a thimble of water to an elephant.

Speculators soon discovered that silver wasn't their Santa Claus. Restriction of purchases to newly mined metal put the kibosh on their dreams. Insiders concede that was smart of Washington. Experts expect world prices to rise a little but not to anything like 64 1-2 cents.

New York's dyed-in-the-wool silverites hope for more strenuous measures to follow. A fund of three to five hundred million dollars for American purchases in the world market is being quietly pushed on the inside.

JUMP: For once there was no advance leak in New York on the Washington silver move. But London knew or suspected something. The day before it was announced several London houses kept the cables hot asking their New York correspondents what was coming off. The correspondents insisted there was nothing in the wind and felt plumb foolish about it the next morning.

Wall Street wishes someone would tell the president that when he breaks big news in the evening it gives London a five-hour jump before the local markets open.

RACKET: The tipster racket could stand some regulating with a blackjack itself. Atlas Tack was a plain case. The tipsters bought a reputable financial service and forgot to notify the public of a change of management. Then they used it in the accepted Wallingford tradition to [illegible]ce the customers.

Lack of co-operation between federal and state governments makes [illegible]ual prosecution of these gentry tough. New [illegible]k state's attorney general is trying to handle the Atlas Tack mess but the rigging was done in Massachusetts and there you are. Washington would get warm support from most of Wall Street if it finds a way to put the screws on the tipsters.

THE MARATHON KISS—Paulette Day, 18, and Lee Knight, 20, began a kiss early in the afternoon of September 13, 1933, and continued without a break for 397 minutes (6 hours, 37 minutes), to win the kissing marathon at the world's fair. Very appropriately they received a loving cup and $25 for establishing a new world record.

THE OLD GRAD—Mr. Kupper enrolled at the De Witt Clinton High school in New York in 1899 but left it suddenly in 1902, before he was graduated, to enter the New York university law school. He was admitted by special dispensation since he did not have a high school diploma.

Twenty-nine years after he left high school, Mr. Kuper decided to remedy his lack of a high school diploma and returned to De Witt Clinton, where he was graduated in June, 1931, 24 years after he was admitted to the bar of New York state.

The UNKNOWN BLOND By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his apartment?

DAVID BANNISTER, author, former newspaper reporter, undertakes to find out.

Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who visited King shortly before his death. Bannister has seen this girl but she has disappeared since.

HERMAN SCURLACH, who wrote King a threatening letter, is in jail. He declares his innocence. Bannister works on the case with J. RANDOLPH GAINEY, star reporter of the Post. In the dead man's apartment Bannister picks up an old-fashioned wedding picture which he keeps. He and Gainey talk to AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, who tells them the orchestra leader had been having trouble with JOE PARROTT, his former vaudeville partner. Drugan accuses Parrott of the murder.

Gainey and Bannister go to see DENISE LANG, King's fiancee.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV.

THE two men followed the maid across a hall into the huge living room. And then they saw Denise Lang.

She was sitting on a small sofa at one side of the fireplace. A fire glowed on the hearth, cracking and snapping cheerfully. The fire gave warmth and color to the room that otherwise, for all the richness of its furnishings, was rather forbidding.

The girl saw them, rose and came forward. Bannister would have recognised her from her photographs but he was not prepared to find her so very attractive. She was more than that. Denise Lang was beautiful. She was taller than he had expected, slender and she moved gracefully. Her frock was of black velvet, a dress of complete simplicity except for a bit of white at the throat. Her hair lay in gleaming ringlets—an elaborate coffure that must have been arranged by a skillful hairdresser. The ringlets caught the light as she moved, turning to shimmering gold.

"How do you do," Denise Lang said. "You wanted to see me?"

Her voice was low-pitched, with a quality of vibrance. Bannister saw that she was quite pale and that the rouged lips formed the words rather slowly.

It had been Gainey who had taken command in talking with Drugan but now it was Bannister who stepped forward.

"Yes, Miss Lang," he said. "My name is Bannister and this is Mr. Gainey. We're with the Evening Post. The Post is co-operating in every way possible with the police, trying to learn more about the horrible crime that took place last night."

The girl's lips tightened. "Have they—?" she began hesitantly. "Do they know—?"

"They're working on several lines of investigation," Bannister told her. "Some of them are quite promising. There's nothing yet, though, that's definite enough to pin the guilt on anyone. I suppose you've talked with the detectives?"

"There were two men here this morning," Denise Lang said. The light of interest had gone from her eyes. "Won't you sit down?"

The men found chairs. Denise returned to her sofa and sat, facing them.

"We came to see you," Bannister went on, "thinking you might be able to tell us something that would be of help. As Mr. King's fiancee—"

The girl caught her two hands together, gripped them. "I'm afraid there's nothing I can tell," she said slowly. "It's been so terrible I can hardly believe it—even now! I don't see how anyone could do such a thing! I've been telling myself over and over that it's true but I can't seem to believe it. I don't—oh, how could they, how could they?"

The words ended in a stifled cry. Denise Lang turned her head quickly, raising her handkerchief to her eyes. Bannister and Gainey looked at each other, acutely uncomfortable as men are before a woman's tears.

There was no sound at all in the room. Then the girl raised her head. Her face was expressionless once more. "I suppose you want to ask questions," she said. "They did that this morning. What is it you want me to tell you?"

Gainey edged forward on his chair. "I'd like to ask," he said, "when you saw Mr. King last?"

"Night before last," she told him. "We had dinner together—at the Tremont. I didn't see him at all yesterday. We were going to play golf in the morning but I remembered I'd promised to go shopping so I telephoned and told him not to come. We postponed the golf until this morning—"

Again the words died away in a whisper. In spite of this Bannister felt that the girl was exhibiting marked control over her feelings.

He said—and cursed himself for his brutality as he did it — "Miss Lang, I suppose you know there's been talk about a girl—the one the police are looking for—who went to king's rooms last night? I suppose you know—"

"It isn't true!" the girl broke in defiantly. "I mean if she went there it was someone he didn't know. Someone he didn't care anything about! Tracy King was in love with me! He wouldn't even look at anyone else. Our engagement was announced last week and we were going to be married!"

"Yes, I know," Bannister put in quietly. "I know, Miss Lang. All I was trying to get at is whether or nor he had even spoken of any other girl, ever even dropped a hint—"

"Never!" she insisted. "If a girl went to see him last night I don't know anything about her. I don't even want to know—!"

The shrill peal of the doorbell interrupted. They saw the maid hurrying to answer the bell and all three sat in silence. They heard the outer door opening and closing and a moment later a man appeared.

"Denise—!"

He was a young man. He stood in the doorway, the single word dying on his lips as he saw Gainey and Bannister.

"Come in, Park," Denise Lang said. "These men are from The

Special Railroad Fares To Be Offered Visitors Here

Special railroad fares for agricultural workers of Texas who plan to attend the annual meeting of the Texas Agricultural Workers association and the Texas Jersey cattle club, are available, T. B. Gallaher, Amarillo, general passenger agent of the Santa Fe, has advised the chamber of commerce. The meetings will be held January 2, 3, 4.

Two types of fares are available, it was explained. A round trip fare from all points in Texas for one and one third of the one way fare, with ticket sale up to January 1, 1934 and good for a return prior to January 14, will be available.

On January 1, 1934 a coach ticket 10 per cent less than double the one way fare, with return within 10 days, can be purchased. This amounts to 1.8 cents per mile. Mr. Gallaher pointed out.

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

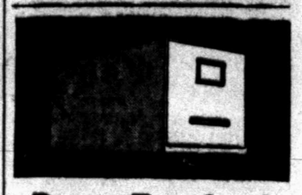

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (Adv.)

Curtis And Bauer Feature In Double-Header Mat Program Here Tonight

Mackey Grips With Brown In Opening Fight

Christmas Wrestling Show To See Experienced Grapplers In Auditorium Ring; Bauer Hales From Germany

Joe Bauer, hot from Hitler's Germany and looking more like a gorilla than most gorillas do, meets "Lightning Jack" Curtis, of Jackson, Mississippi, tonight in one of two main events carded on Promoter Sled Allen's holiday wrestling show.

Cyclone Mackey, veteran middleweight from Clovis clashes with Lobo Brown of Amarillo in the other main event. Both matches go the best two-out-of-three fall distance.

Curtis Is Popular

Curtis, who has appeared here twice before, swatting for performers who failed to show up, has established himself as one of the most popular grapplers ever to appear on a local mat. Fast, clever, and full of surprises, Jack has showed himself to be a finished matman, although he is relatively new at the game. In Bauer, he meets a scowling strong man, a facial contortionist who can twist his opponent into more shapes than he can his face.

Not a popular wrestler, in the full sense of the word, Bauer is more likely to be jeered than cheered, but he has always been appreciated by ringworms wherever he has appeared since embarking out of his present tour from Coblenz, Germany.

Cy Is Favored

In the other match, the Cyclone will give considerable weight to Brown—the young Amarillean falls just below the light heavy class—but the bout is rated almost a toss-up with Mackey a slight favorite. Mackey has been fighting in the Panhandle for a good many years and is one of the biggest drawing cards in Amarillo.

Brown has appeared on several preliminary and semi-final events here, most of them going the full time limit to a draw.

Prices as usual are 40c for general admission, 65c for ringside, and 10c for ladies and children. Proceedings get under way promptly at 8 o'clock.

Rassles Teuton

Here's Jack Curtis, Jackson, Miss., youth who has made a hit with local wrestling fans the last two Wednesday nights. Tonight he goes into the Auditorium ring again, this time as a scheduled main eventer against Joe Bauer of Coblens, Germany.

Local Persons Return After Attending A Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Hobson, 1908 Avenue M, and their children, Dewey, jr., and Barbara Jane, returned late yesterday from Wichita Falls where they attended a family reunion at the home of Mr. Hobson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hobson.

It was the first time Mr. Hobson and his nine brothers and sisters have been together in six years, the Lubbock man said.

Others attending the reunion included Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Gilstrap, Iowa Park; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hobson, jr., Parkersburg, West Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Otho Childress, Holiday, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Denman, Quanah; Lloyd Hobson, Olney, and Misses Ima, Ina, Pieta, and Anna Mae Hobson, all of Wichita Falls. D. G. Hobson's oldest child, Bobbie, who lives with his grandparents, also was at the reunion.

ON THE SIDELINES
BY EDWARD J. NEIL

You'd think, from looking at the tears in Lou Little's eyes, that Columbia will be heading for the last roundup in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. From the attitude and demeanor of Old Roman Nose, head coach of the Lions, it seems just a question of how high the score will run, and how many of his brave Columbia boys will be left to sleep forever under the California sod.

But the trouble is you can't always believe large Mister Little. He wept when Lafayette held Colgate scoreless because his boys had to play Lafayette. They did and ran up 46 points. He was tearful of the prospects against Penn State, Cornell, Navy, and yet the Middie team that beat Notre Dame and gave Army such a terrific fight, never was a threat against Columbia.

In other words Little has become a confirmed pessimist. In a common canter he has stripped the eastern title from the greatest champion this section, or any other, ever had, Gloomy Gil Dobie of Cornell. As a matter of fact, when Lou and Gil get together now and talk prospects, Dobie actually seems to be laughing all the time.

So don't take Little's line on the Lions of Columbia. For that matter, dont' take the opposite attitude, the over-enthusiastic viewpoint that Columbia can readily be figured to beat Stanford New Year's Day. They can't.

Swell Long Shot

But I do think that Columbia, under-rated even in the east, certain to be the underdog on the coast, almost a cinch to catch Stanford overconfident, is the best long shot of the season. You can't figure them to win. But if you've seen the team, the way it plays, know the men, and realize Little is one of the top three coaches of the country, a ray of light breaks through.

Here are some facts. "Little" Columbia will concede no more than five pounds a man to the Stanford "giants." "Columbia has no reserves." None at all—only four tackles of almost equal strength, four fine guards, two crack centers, four fullbacks, two fleet running back replacements.

Of course, playing Stanford in California is a tremendous disadvantage. Eastern teams, perhaps because of the climate, crumple as a rule on the coast. Pittsburgh did it twice in three tries. But there also were many other things wrong with Pittsburgh on those western jaunts.

No Soft Touch

Columbia will take a style of attack west such as Stanford has never seen, hasn't had a chance to scout. Hearsay information will contain more mad tips than good. Stanford has a crack sophomore end in Bill Moscrip. But they'll see something just as good, perhaps better, in Columbia's red headed destroyer, left end Tony Matal.

Bobby Grayson, Stanford fullback who calls signals, is headed for gridiron greatness, but he's still a sophomore. Columbia has a 190 pound sophomore, Al Barabas, who just might match him stride for stride. And there's grave question whether Stanford, or any other team on the coast except Southern Cal with its Cotton Warburton, can match the guile, running, passing and kicking ability of Columbia's captain and quarterback, Cliff Montgomery.

Columbia has a tricky offense, precise, perfectly drilled in offensive fundamentals. It has speed, power, deception. The Lion line is the fastest charging unit in the east. Montgomery leads them like a football Napoleon at his best.

Dont sell Columbia too short!

Grid Coaches Suggest Seven Rule Changes

Committee Headed By Kipke Of Michigan Recommend To National Rules Committee Various New Adoptions

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Seven changes in the college gridiron rules for 1934, designed to open up the game for the benefit of thrill seeking customers, were suggested by the American Football Coaches' association today, but not one coach was brave enough to predict they ever would become more than suggestions.

The proposed changes, most of them requested by a minority of the 400 coaches in attendance at the annual convention, were:

1. Permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage. (Under the present rules, a forward passer must be at least five yards behind the line of scrimmage before firing his tosses).

2. Move the goal posts back to the goal lines. (Present rules require the goal posts be 10 yards back of goal lines).

3. Abolish the dead ball rule. (Present rules declare a ball automatically dead when any part of the ball carrier's body, except his hands and feet touch the ground).

4. Increase the sideline rule from 10 to 15 yards. (Under present rules when a ball goes out of bounds except on forward pass or kickoff, the ball is brought in 10 yards from the sidelines).

The Fumble Rule

5. Abolish the fumble rule. (Present rule declared a fumbled ball is automatically dead on point of recovery).

6. Adopt a new "windy day" rule whereby a team in possession of the ball within its own 20-yard line on windy days can surrender the ball 25 yards nearer its opponent's goal without kicking. Coaches of both teams would have to agree to use of the rule before the game started on exceptionally windy days.

7. Modify the forward pass rule whereby only incomplete passes on the fourth down into the end zone shall be ruled as touchbacks; incomplete passes on first, second, and third downs shall be counted only as downs. (Under present rules, however, any pass is incomplete over the opponent's end zone, a touchback results and the opposing team gains possession of the ball on its own two-yard line).

The suggestions will be forwarded to the national rules committee, which meets in February. Coach Harry Kipke of Michigan, chairman of the coaches' rules committee, said the proposed changes were "merely suggestions or recommendations."

Majority Is Satisfied

"The majority of football coaches seem to be in favor of letting the rules stand as they are," Kipke said. "But there are some progressive suggestions contained in the seven that merit deep considerations. But after all, it's up to the national rules committee entirely.

"We realize that many close games were played last fall, but the coaches and fans should understand that the demand for contests between more closely matched teams was the underlying cause. Too, the defense has developed faster than the offense."

A canvass of coaches failed to reveal one that would predict success for all seven suggestions when the national rules committee studies and acts on them. The consensus was that the proposals to abolish the "dead ball" and fumble rules and to modify the forward pass rule on touchbacks had the best chance.

37 "Football" Deaths

The report of the survey of football accidents and deaths last season, made by Floyd R. Eastwood, of New York university for a coaches committee headed by Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, former head coach at Yale, indicated that more than one-fourth of the injuries might have been avoided.

A big share of the serious mishaps and 27.8 per cent of the total could have been avoided by "adequate leadership"—closer attention to coaching, playing fields and players' condition. The preventable injuries listed by Eastwood were divided as follows: Inadequate coaching and poor playing fields, 17.7 per cent; fatigue, carelessness, etc., 4.9 per cent, and physical condition 5.2 per cent.

Of the 37 deaths reported, only 28 were directly attributed to football injuries. Twelve were the result of sandlot games, two in amateur play, 12 in high school football and two in college. The report was compiled with the co-operation of 117 institutions in 38 states with 7,084 players.

Dunlap Takes Medal Honors

New York Ace Shoots 72 Over Wet Course To Lead Field At Pinehurst; Rain Keeps Scores Soaring

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 26. (AP)—George T. Dunlap, jr., of New York, playing his first competitive golf since winning the national amateur title at Cincinnati last fall, today won the medal in the 31st Pinehurst mid-winter championship with a 37-35—72.

Dunlap's score, one over par, was the same with which he took the medal in this tournament last year, but was registered under more difficult conditions. Rains last night left the long number 2 Pinehurst course slow and showers fell at intervals during the championship round.

Dunlap

As a result of the weather, all scores were high and Dunlap's nearest rival, Eric D. Thompson, of St. Andrews, N. B., was six strokes away with a 41-37—78.

Halbert J. Blue, of Aberdeen and Pittsburgh, a finalist in the tournament last year, took an 85 and Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, who recently tied Dunlap's course record of 68, an 80.

Wilson and R. P. Davidson, of Washington, who also shot an 80, tied for third place in the qualifying list.

In the first round of match play tomorrow the champion will meet F. C. Robertson, Manchester, Vt., who had an 82 today.

Other championship flight pairings with the qualifying scores of each player:

R. P. Davidson, Washington, (80) versus David N. Tallman, Minneapolis (84); Jack Rudel, Montreal, (86) versus Dick Wilson Southern Pines (80); Eric Thompson, St. Andrews, N. B. (78) versus Halbert J. Blue, Pittsburgh (85).

Frank Parker Wins Opening Match In National Tourney

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—Frank A. Parker, 17-year-old Milwaukee tennis star, inaugurated the national junior indoor tennis championship tournament here today by disposing of his first round rival, Stephen S. Ogilvy, of the Northwood school, New Rochelle, N. Y., 6-0, 6-1.

The Referee Knew What Was Coming

Coach Henry Frnka And His Lions Tipped Off Referee Dyer When "Hidden Ball" Trick Was To Be Used; Says Legal

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

DALLAS, Dec. 26.—Probably no football play this season in Texas created as much statewide comment as the hidden ball trick employed by Greenville to defeat Brackenridge of San Antonio, 6 to 2.

Critics, coaches, players and fans still are discussing the play. There has been criticism on the basis it was illegal. Others claim it was legal and one of the smartest plays used by a high school team during the current Texas Interscholastic league championship race.

The play was used December 18 in a crucial quarterfinal bi-district game. Jim Rogers, lineman, took the ball and galloped 66 yards for a touchdown.

Here It Is Explained

Because of the unusual pro and con comment on the play, Eddie Dyer of Houston, who was referee of the game, has explained the play in a letter to the Associated Press.

"A number of my friends have asked me to get a signed statement before the public outlining the hidden ball play that won the game for Greenville.

"Before the game Coach Frnka discussed the play in question with all of the officials. We agreed that if it was worked as outlined by him it was legal. Now this is the way I saw the play:

"The quarterback received the ball from the center and then passed it lateral and backwards (not forward) to the left guard. The left guard's knee did not touch the ground nor did he move with the ball. The quarterback faked a run off to the left with his interference. The right tackle came around and took the ball from the guard and ran for a touchdown.

"The ball was passed lateral and backward to the guard, and again let me repeat the guard did not move nor did his knee touch the ground. Another important point was that I, as referee, was tipped off when the play was to be pulled. I was waiting and looking for it. I did not move out of my position until the tackle took the ball from the guard.

"I do not believe it is quite fair to Coach Frnka to say he and his boys won an important game on an illegal play. I do not think it is fair to say that Coach Kellam of Brackenridge was asleep or allowed an illegal play without a protest. Nor is it fair to the officials in the game to say that they did not know a legal from an illegal play."

Now that the hidden ball trick has been thoroughly explained by the man who knew it was coming, fans and critics can rest easy until Saturday afternoon at 2:30 when the Greenville Lions and Dallas Tech Wolves meet at the local fair park stadium for the state championship. One thing sure—the Wolves will be watching for the hidden ball trick.

Both teams started bearing down in stiff practice today. The game is expected to draw approximately 25,000 persons.

Eligibility Rumor Aimed At Wolves Quickly Squashed

DALLAS, Dec. 26. (AP)—P. C. Cobb, athletic director of Dallas High schools, today furnished a complete eligibility record on "Abe" Rich, Dallas Tech guard. A message from San Angelo questioned the eligibility of Rich on the report circulated there that he was 22 years old and therefore ineligibility under interscholastic league rules. This information was given to the San Angelo line coach by a person who claimed to be a relative of Rich.

Cobb said his records show that Rich was born January 5, 1917, which makes him 16 years old. He enrolled in the eighth grade in 1932. He has only three semesters in high school and ten credits. He has two more years of high school according to Cobb. Efforts are being made to learn the name of the person at San Angelo who claimed Rich was ineligible.

San Angelo School Head Denies Rumor

SAN ANGELO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Chester H. Kenley, San Angelo High school principal, announced this morning that rumors circulated among football fans here to the effect that San Angelo High school considered protesting the eligibility status of Abe Rich, Dallas Tech guard, under the interscholastic league's 20-year limit rule, had absolutely no foundation.

Kenley said that he had no basis upon which to lodge any kind of protest and that San Angelo High school planned no investigations. He added that the football season is ended so far as San Angelo High school is concerned.

Dallas Tech defeated San Angelo in a semi-final game here Saturday, 13-7.

Columbia Grid Captain Avers Team Is Tough

Cliff Montgomery Speaks Up To Say Stanford Will Not Have A Set-Up; Lions Go Through Stiff Workout

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 26. (AP)—Quiet, unassuming Cliff Montgomery, Columbia's football captain and quarterback, offered the opinion today that Stanford's stalwarts are not going to be pushing the Lions around promiscuously in that rose-bedecked bowl in the arroyo seco, New Year's Day.

As much at ease under verbal fire as on the gridiron battlefront, the slender, personable 165 pound signal shouter spoke right up.

"Anyone who expects Stanford to push us around New Year's Day is going to be in for a surprise," Cliff announced.

"I don't know much about Stanford's comparative ability. There's no basis of comparison. I understand the Indians are big and fast, but that doesn't mean they can beat us."

Montgomery was in dead earnest. He built no alibi bridges. He said nothing about his own prowess. He talked of the team as a unit.

Hard To Penetrate

"That low-charging line of ours will be tough to penetrate," he continued. "Coach Lou Little hasn't taken one thing for granted. We've worked from the ground up, and no team can throw down a coach like Lou."

Coach Little called the squad together again today for its daily football discussion and then took it to the University of Arizona field later in the afternoon for the hardest workout of the trip to date.

Three members and the pro of the Blue Mound, Wis., golf club each scored birdies on the 120-yard 16th hole on the same round!

Umpires Call Their Shots From Stands And Silence War Cry Of Fans

Several years ago the Texas League was a tough row for umpires to hoe. Galveston had the reputation of being the toughest town in the circuit.

Jack Daly and Louis Weir were old hands at the game, however, and after a particularly strenuous session one afternoon, they made up their minds to pull one on the fans who had grown so loud.

Before the game the umpires, after announcing the batteries, informed the crowd that, in view of past incidents, they had decided the only fair way to officiate a game in Galveston was from the stands.

Whereupon they walked off the field and took seats, Daly in the front row directly behind the plate and Weir behind first base. There they stayed for a full inning, calling their decisions.

The stunt went over and they had no further trouble from the Galveston fans.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 57

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A few fours before Jane's heroic dash for freedom seemed to have failed, and when with a stifled sob she gave up the unequal struggle with the Kincaid's sailors, the beasts of Tarzan might have been seen disappearing into the jungle. The snarling, savage pack were directed in their pursuit of Rokoff by the black warrior, Mugambi, chief of the Wagambi. Only he knew which might be friend or foe of their lost master, Tarzan.

If they could have reached either the canoe filled with Rokoff's men or the Kincaid, they would have made short work of any whom they found there. But the gulf of black water intervening shut off from further advance. Sheeta, the panther, especially hated water. He leaped over the small streams. Now Mugambi knew something of the occurrenees which had led up to the landing of Tarzan on Jungle Island.

He knew his savage master sought his wife and child, who had been stolen by the wicked white man whom they had followed into the interior and now back to the sea. He believed also that this man had killed the great white giant whom he had come to respect and love, and so in the wild breast of Mugambi burned an iron resolve to catch this wicked one and wreak vengeance upon him for the murder of the ape-man.

When he saw the canoe come down the river and take in Rokoff, then watched it make for the Kincaid, he realised that only by possessing a canoe himself could he hope to transport the pack within striking distance of the enemy. With this definite purpose in mind, he led the pack quickly back into the jungle, where, moored to the bank of a small tributary of the Ugambi, he soon found a canoe and plied his hideous fellows into it.

Dallas Pastor Will Be Here

Dr. George W. Truett To Hold Revival At Baptist Church; Starts January 9, Continues Through January 18

Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas, who recently began his 37th year as pastor of the First Baptist church there and who is one of the outstanding leaders of his denomination in the nation, will hold a 10-day revival meeting here beginning January 9, Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church, announced Tuesday.

"Dr. Truett will hold his first service at 10 o'clock the morning of January 9 and he will be with us through Thursday, January 18." Reverend Campbell said. "He will hold two services each day. 10 o'clock in the morning and 7:30 o'clock each night."

First Time Here

As far as the minister and other members of the church know this is the first time that the famed Dallas pastor-evangelist has ever held a meeting in Lubbock and this section. Years ago, when Lubbock was not as large as Plainview at that time, he held a meeting there. Other than this, Dr. Truett has never been in this section for other than a sermon or an address.

"We are adding enough seats in our auditorium to seat 2,200 people in all," the minister sead. "Our regret is that we do not have the room to accommodate all of the people from out-of-town we expect.

Man Strikes His Father With Car

WHEELER, Dec. 26. (AP)—Howard Criner, returning from Oklahoma City at 10 o'clock Christmas morning to spend the holidays at home, ran over his father, J. B. Criner, 56, in the driveway to his sister's farm home.

Whether the elder Criner died as a result of being hit by the car, or from injuries received in an affray earlier in the night was the grounds for an investigation by Sheriff John Porter today. Criner, a farmer, died in a local hospital yesterday without regaining consciousness.

The son told Porter that he believed he had hit a calf in the driveway, but when his father failed to return home, he recalled the incident and investigated to find his father in a dying condition from bruises and lacerations. He said an examination proved that the car passed only over his father's feet, and he expressed the belief that his father collapsed in the driveway as a result of a beating.

Four Dead In Flood Waters

Christmas Day Tragedy Adds To Long List Of Deaths In Pacific Northwest Floods; Cities Menaced

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 26. (AP)—A Christmas day tragedy, in which four persons lost their lives in mud and rocks hurled down a canyon by flood waters, was added to the long Pacific northwest flood toll of the past 10 days while high waters still menaced parts of the region today.

Those who were killed when a natural dam gave way at Carskanie, Ore., wrecking a farm home, were: Milo Allen, 50, and his three sons, George 30, Robert 12, and Donald 7.

Mrs. Allen and two other sons, Eldon, 17, and Clifford 8, were pulled out of the wreckage by men who rushed to the scene. The mother's condition was critical.

Meanwhile, the mud-laden, riotous flood waters were still endangering northeastern Washington and northern Idaho, including the Spokane and Wallace areas. They were receding in central and western Washington, with the flood dangers well past.

Hundreds of workmen spent Christmas day attempting to hold back the waters of Lake Couer D'Alene, at Coeur D'Alene, Idaho. The water was 12.55 feet above normal or higher than during the great flood of 1894, in which great property damage occurred.

Twenty thousand sand bags were thrown up in the city park to protect the city's most exclusive residential region.

To the southwest, residents of Wallace, Kellogg, Kingston, Evansville, Rose Lake and other towns began the task of rehabilitation after a week of the worst floods in their history.

Losses were set at several millions of dollars.

At Spokane, peaceful valley, a low lying section of the city containing several hundred homes was still under water today, after the Spokane river had risen yesterday to the highest winter point in history. A score of residents evacuated their homes, but others were loathe to leave.

In the Columbia river gorge in the vicinity of The Dalles, a severe snow storm last night followed a day of rain and sleet.

Post." She said, turning to the others, "This is Parker Coleman."

Bannister and Gainey introduced themselves. Parker Coleman was, of course, one of the Colemans whose name figured prominently in Tremont society columns. Bannister remembered seeing him years before, only a boy then. He had grown into a tall, broad shouldered young man with friendly brown eyes and a well cut chin.

Coleman greeted the other men easily. He crossed the room to the fireplace and held out his hands to the blaze. "Getting cold out," he announced. "There's a bad wind from the west." He said it as though he knew perfectly well that none of them were interested but he was trying to ease an uncomfortable situation.

Bannister nodded. "Yes," he agreed, then plunged directly into the subject at issue. "We've been asking Miss Lang a few questions."

Coleman dropped to the sofa beside the girl.

"About—what happened last night?" The question was addressed to Bannister but Coleman's eyes were on Denise Lang's face. "Do you think," he went on, speaking to the girl and without waiting for an answer, "that you feel well enough for all this? Don't you think it would be better to wait—?"

She brushed aside his scruples. "I'm all right," Denise said. "I want to know what the police are doing. I want to know what they've found out."

Her eyes appeased to Bannister. He hesitated, then said, "Well, as I told you, the detectives are working on several lines. There's a new one that came up this afternoon." He told them then about Joe Parrott—not the whole story as Al Drugan had related it, but the essential facts.

As he talked it occurred to Bannister as curious indeed that a girl like Denise Lang could be associated with anyone who was a friend of Al Drugan. Drugan had called Tracy King "the best pal a fellow ever had" and indicated that their friendship was of long standing. But Drugan and this girl with the golden curls did not speak the same language. They lived in different worlds. How had Tracy King climbed from the life Drugan had described to Denise Lang's exclusive circle?

For at least the dozenth time Bannister thought, "If only I'd seen King just once while he was alive!"

He hadn't seen him and there was nothing to be done about it. Coleman and Gainey were talking now, Coleman asking questions. Bannister noticed that Denise Lang did not ask questions, though she listened intently.

Without knowing quite why he did it, Bannister leaned forward again. "Miss Lang," he asked, "when did you first hear about—er, your fiance's death?"

"My father told me," she said. "Someone telephoned. It was about midnight, I suppose. Father came to my room and told me—"

The words broke off, but Bannister went on relentlessly, "Had you been at home all evening?"

"Yes." The others had stopped talking, were listening. "I seldom saw Tracy in the evening. He had to be at the theater. Mr. Coleman was here for a little while. We're—very old friends and he'd been out of town. He left early, though I don't know just what time it was."

"Almost 9:30," Coleman interrupted. "I glanced at my watch when I got into my car. I drove to the club and sat around there for an hour or so. Then I went home. I didn't know what had happened until I saw the morning paper—"

There had been no sound, but involuntarily all four of them looked up. Standing in the open doorway at the side of the room was a slender man with gray hair. His eyes, dark like Denise Lang's, glowed with anger.

"What," the man demanded as he stepped forward, "is the meaning of this?"

NOW $2.95 A GALLON

The same safe, all-winter anti-freeze sold last year for $4.45. Concentrated—not diluted or cheapened in any way.

HUNDREDS of cars on the street and in unheated garages soon will have frozen radiators, cracked engine-blocks, and big repair bills.

Boil-away anti-freezes—a makeshift at best

If you buy a boil-away anti-freeze, it will evaporate during the next warm spell and leave your car unprotected. You'll have the bother of continual testing and frequent refilling.

Formerly, boil-away anti-freezes, with all their faults, had one appeal—low initial cost. But today, at the new low price of $2.95 per gallon, Eveready Prestone is within the reach of all. And, of course, in all-season cost it offers real economy. It won't boil away or heat up your motor—even during the warm days. It won't cause rust in the cooling-system. One filling will last you all season long.

How many "permanent" anti-freezes will last through the winter?

Rigorous laboratory tests have been conducted on many so-called "permanent" anti-freezes. For hundreds of hours, each product was run through an automobile cooling-system at a speed and engine-temperature exactly duplicating actual driving conditions.

Under this test Eveready Prestone was unchanged after 1000 grueling hours—25,000 miles of average driving—still giving full protection against freezing and rust. Other anti-freezes, in the same test, broke down and became definitely corrosive in from 50 to 200 hours.

Do not confuse Eveready Prestone with either alcohol or glycerine

Eveready Prestone is a patented product—approved by every car-manufacturer.

Many a can of "permanent" anti-freeze is nearly half water. Eveready Prestone is concentrated. It is your safest, most economical all-winter protection. Have it put in now.

FIND YOUR OWN CAR ON THIS CHART. If your car is not listed, see your dealer. He has a complete chart showing every car made. The amounts of Eveready Prestone required, as shown here, do not allow for the capacities of hot water heaters. If you have a hot water heater, or if you need to protect your car to any lower temperature, down to 60° below zero, consult your dealer.

The important thing in buying an anti-freeze is to figure cost to a definite protection point, not the price per gallon. See how reasonably you can get all-winter protection against freezing and rust with Eveready Prestone.
