BOURLAND FOR 'QUIETER' MEETINGS

Second Injunction Halts Work On Fundamentalist Church

Faith

More Signs—Clipping Expenses—Pledges and Pledges—Expectations—

Better employment conditions in Wichita Falls for the last few weeks have resulted in a decline in the demands made on organized charity, according to a report filed with the financial board of the Community chest. More signs of the times. Every barometer points to the fact that business in Wichita Falls is surely and certainly on the upgrade.

The employment bureau maintained by the chamber of commerce at the city auditorium has been of considerable benefit in meeting the demands of the unemployed here. The bureau has also proved a convenience to those who have needed occasional labor and wished to give employment to persons really needing work. The sooner the need for the bureau is eliminated the better for all. In the meantime it has handled its business in an unusually efficient manner.

City Manager George D. Fairtrace has clipped another $5000 from the expenses of the city by a revision of the pumping schedules of the city water plant. Such savings, and many smaller ones which are never mentioned in print, are coming with a pleasing regularity from the city auditorium. The end of the present city fiscal year should see the superiority of the city manager system of operating a government well demonstrated in Wichita Falls.

According to press dispatches, 31 Baptist preachers of Harris county signed a pledge declaring they would not vote for Governor Al Smith. Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, president of the Texas W. C. T. U., is advocating Hoover-Curtis clubs with members pledged to support the Republican ticket. When is a pledge not a pledge, and when is it binding? A majority of the Harris county pastors participated in precinct conventions. Mrs. Van Watts participated in the precinct and county conventions in Travis county and in the state convention. Presumably all agreed to the Democratic pledge. It must have been signed with "reservations."

Completion of the municipal airport at Kell field here is seen by Charles I. Francis, president of the chamber of commerce, as a certain step to the institution of air mail, passenger and freight transportation service here. Statements of visiting air officials here July 4 bear out Mr. Francis' predictions. Now that Wichita Falls has a field comparable to any in the state, it seems we should soon receive this service. Certainly, West Texas deserves the next extension, now that practically all other sections of the state have been linked with air lines.

Growth of air transportation in other sections of Texas has not been an overnight business. From a comparatively small amount of mail carried between Chicago and Dallas when the service was first instituted, the business has grown until many planes are now used in transporting mail, freight, express and passengers to and between Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Waco, Austin and San Antonio. Wichita Falls and West Texas have no volume of air business already developed. They have no air lines. But institution of service to this section of the state might reasonably be expected to follow much the same lines and meet the same succes as elsewhere.

'WAR' COUNCIL CHECKS WORK ON TABERNACLE

Injunction for "Men Only" Foils Officers Who Present It

PREACHER IN JAIL

Feminine Carpenters Given Word to Resume Work Today

DALLAS, July 6. (UP)—War between county officials and members of the Fundamentalist Baptist church temporarily ceased here tonight.

After Judge Towne Young issued instructions late this evening to arrest any "man, woman or child" violating an injunction issued in his court that work on building a new tabernacle by the church must stop, a council of war was held.

The church members decided that work on the tabernacle would halt until a hearing on the temporary injunction is held next Wednesday.

Exciting Evening

But peace came only after an exciting evening.

To begin with, Judge Young issued warrants at noon today that any men working on the church were to be jailed. The men immediately were replaced by 30 women in overalls who continued work on the building.

Then Judge Young extended the injunction to include the women.

A city building inspector looked over the building. He than put up a sign:

"This building is unsafe. It was built by women.

Watchman Jailed

The night watchman came on duty and immediately tore down the sign as a thronging crowd gathered to hear the Rev. Frank Norris of Fort Worth continue a revival meeting he started several weeks ago.

The night watchman was placed in jail.

But the meeting went on and the Rev. Norris preached. Ushers were stationed at all corners of the building.

JUDGE ISSUES SECOND INJUNCTION

DALLAS, Texas, July 6. (AP)—Despite the issuance of a second temporary injunction ordering cessation of construction of a tabernacle for the Fundamentalist Baptist church here, more than 50 women and boys continued work on the structure today, building part of the roof after men in the congregation had laid down their tools in obedience to an injunction yesterday by County Judge Towne Young.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Earl Anderson, pastor of the church, spent the day in the hospital ward of the Dallas county jail where he was sent yesterday when Judge Young found him guilty of violating the first temporary injunction, fined him $100 and costs, and set his bond at $1000.

Judge Young issued the first injunction after residents in the vicinity of the tabernacle had charged that city ordinances providing for fireproof structure in auditoriums of more than 600 seating capacity and for widening of one street on which the tabernacle is located were being violated.

Warned by assertions of the Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, who is conducting a revival at the tabernacle, that work would be continued despite the injunction, deputy sheriffs in large numbers went to the scene this morning.

The men who had hammered and sawed on the tabernacle for several days and all one night had disappeared, but in their stead was a crew of women who were hauling heavy sheets of roofing material up ladders and banging them into place in amateurish but enthusiastic manner.

For Men Only

When officers sought to interfere, their attention was called to the wording of the first injunction which enjoined "men" to cease the building. The deputies hurried back to the courthouse, and at 5 p. m. a new injunction, substituting "man, woman or person," was placed in their hands. They returned to the tabernacle, only to find that the women, many of whom were laboring in overalls, had gone home to wash up and get ready for preaching tonight.

Conquers Niagara in Rubber Ball

Jean A. Lussier of Springfield, Mass., seated in his 758-pound fabric and rubber ball in which he thrilled a huge crowd of July Fourth celebrants by tumbling over Niagara Falls. Lussier was smiling when freed from the sphere after his daring stunt, though possibly he was not puffing a cigar. Only two persons had previously successfully navigated the falls.

Carload of Wild Animals Arrives This Afternoon for Municipal Zoo

Everybody out to see the animals!

A whole carload of wild animals, some from Africa and some from Borneo, are arriving for the municipal zoo in Wichita Falls on the Katy at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Every boy and girl in Wichita Falls is invited to see the kangaroos hop, the elephant bow and hear the lions roar as they are unloaded.

Band to Play

The Lions club band will meet the train, and give the animals a real Wichita Falls welcome. Dr. R. H. Graham, president of the Lions club, originator of the idea of a big zoo for the city, and chief worker for the delight for the boys and girls of the city has arranged for the celebration.

As much of a parade as it will be possible to make out of a bunch of strange, wild animals will be given from the train to Scotland park, the future home of the animals.

A telegram from the Horn zoological gardens at Kansas City to Dr. Graham Friday night said to get a big van to carry "Miss Sugar" the trick elephant, given by J. J. Perkins, across the city. Dr. Graham was at a loss to understand why Miss Sugar would rate a special taxi, but he said he was willing to do anything that might make her ladyship's entrance into the city more comfortable.

King of Beasts

Two Nubian lions, excellent specimens of "the king of beasts," the kind of lions that have gigantic heads and manes, are on the car, and will have places of high honor, the doctor said.

A striped Bengal tiger, two Borneo sun bears with sun spots on their throats, two stripped zebras, a pair of African porcupines, several baboons, a dozen monkeys, and two jumping kangaroos make up the balance of the cargo.

The elk at the zoo have been moved out of their corral to make way for Miss Sugar. She will be right near the buffalo, across the road from the cages housing the smaller animals.

Boyd Vardy, zoo keeper, will be in charge of the animals.

NATIONS SHIRK CHANNEL PROBE

Loewenstein's Death Blank To Offiicals

PARIS, July 6. (AP)—Death of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, is puzzling three nations. The mystery of his death in the English channel, whether he fell or jumped from his plane on a flight from England to France, may never be solved, particularly as it is not even known which of the three countries, London, France and Belgium can investigate the affair with official authority.

The French officials say they are not competent because the tragedy occurred when the banker was traveling from London to Brussels, outside of French territorial waters.

The theory that Captain Loewenstein had made a mistake as between the outer and lavatory doors of the plane is rejected by the Dutch company, manufacturers of the machine. In order to test the possibility of such a mistake, two mechanics at Le Bourget air field—the terminus of the Paris-Rotterdam airline operated by that company—entered a plane of similar construction today. With the motor running at full force the combined strength of the two men was just sufficient to open the door wide enough to permit one of them to pass.

Yet friends aver Loewenstein often opened the door of his plane to look out over the sea and the landscape.

The flurry in the Paris Bourse Thursday in Loewenstein and other stocks calmed down somewhat today, though the market was still shaky.

Italian Fliers to Use Substitute Plane for Completion of Journey

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, July 6. (US)—With their transatlantic monoplane damaged in landing on the beach at Touros, Brazil, the Italian aviators, Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Delprete today announced their intention to continue their flight to Rio De Janeiro in another plane, thus completing the plans held when they hopped off from Rome Tuesday night.

After being forced down by fog last night at Genipabu, a small settlement 10 miles north of Natal, the fliers resumed the flight an hour and 20 minutes later, determined to reach their goal. But again they encountered fog and lost their way, eventually seeking a landing at Touros, which is 50 miles north of Natal.

In landing on unfamiliar ground the plane struck sharply, breaking the landing gear, which cannot be replaced in South America, being of a special Italian design. Messages tonight from Natal said a commercial plane had been sent to take the Italian fliers to Natal preparatory to their resuming the flight to Rio De Janeiro.

16 TRUE BILLS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Theft and Forgery Lead in Number In Indictments

MEET AGAIN TUESDAY

Jury Fails to File Report On Tour Of Jail

Sixteen true bills of indictment returned Friday by the grand jury in 30th district court brought the total number for the term to 27 with 11 indictments reported Tuesday afternoon. Following its report at 5 o'clock the body adjourned until Tuesday morning. Adjournment for the term probably will be had sometime next week, according to Gage McDermett, assistant district attorney.

Assault to Murder Charges

Indictments returned Friday included three charges of theft over $50, two cases of assault with intent to murder, four cases of forgery and passing of forged instruments, four cases of burglary, two cases of manufacture and possession of intoxicating liquors for purposes of sale and one charge of receiving and concealing stolen property.

No report was made by the body on recommendations of Judge E. G. Thornton that the grand jury investigate the structure of the interior of the county jail to determine whether it is responsible for the escapes from the jail within the past three months. Final report embodying all recommendations is expected next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Indictments returned Thursday were:

S. V. King, theft over $50 and receiving and concealing stolen property. The charges against King are an outgrowth of his arrest several weeks ago following the looting of a water pump belonging to Kellog-Davis Water company at Lake Wichita.

Bailey Indicted

Robert Bailey, two cases of assault with intent to murder, in connection with an attack about two weeks ago on Constable Grady Wigley and Deputy Teafateller of Iowa Park.

Inez Wilkes, two cases of forgery and passing. She is in jail at Dalhart, where a deputy sheriff has gone to return her to Wichita Falls.

T. C. Smith, a second indictment on charges of theft over $50 and receiving and concealing stolen property, growing out of Smith's arrest in Abilene 10 days ago with two automobiles identified as having been stolen in Wichita Falls.

Frank Kelly, negro, two cases of burglary.

Jennie Lee Helm, negro, two cases of burglary.

An indictment also was returned against a Wichita county junk dealer, charging "receiving and concealing stolen property." The man is not yet under arrest.

Two persons not yet arrested were indicted on counts of "forgery and passing of forged instruments." Another was indicted for "theft over $50 and receiving and concealing stolen property," and two persons not arrested were indicted on liquor charges.

Bolters' Names Must Stay On Ballot, Says Wilcox

Chairman of State Democratic Committee Declares No Way Exists to Remove Certified Names

AUSTIN, Texas, July 5. (AP)—Names of Democratic candidates who have announced their intention of bolting in the presidential election by voting against Al Smith, the party nominee, will remain on the ticket, D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the state Democratic committee, said Friday by telephone from Georgetown.

The names were certified for the ballot some three weeks ago, Wilcox said, and consequently there apparently is no way of taking action against "bolters" even should the state committee wish to do so.

THINKS MEETING INADVISABLE NOW

GEORGETOWN, Texas, July 6.—D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, today said he was heartily in favor of the demand of Jed C. Adams of Dallas, national committeeman for this state, for support of the national ticket, but that he thought a meeting of the state executive committee at this time inadvisable.

This expression was contained in Wilcox's reply to a letter from Adams suggesting a vigorous campaign for the national ticket, and requesting the call of the state executive committee at some convenient time and place to formulate plans for the impending campaign.

Wilcox pointed out that such a meeting now would work a hardship on members of the committee, who already have met three times this year.

"I am convinced that August 13, when the state committee meets to canvass the returns of the July primary will be the best time to act on your suggestions", Wilcox said. "I fear that many members of the committee could not attend a meeting now".

"I will get out a letter to committeemen and county chairmen impressing upon them the duty and necessity of organizing immediately their respective districts and counties. I am whole heartedly for the platform adopted and the nominees selected at the Houston convention and will do everything I can both personally and in my official capacity to see that Texas gives its Democratic majority for Smith and Robinson."

NAMES OMITTED IN VAL VERDE COUNTY

DEL RIO, Texas, July 6. (AP)—Dr. F. M. Rose, county Democratic chairman, today ordered the names of Thomas B. Love, candidate for lieutenant governor and William E. Hawkins and Mrs. Edith Wilmans, candidates for governor, omitted from the state Democratic primary ballot for this county, now being printed.

"We are running a Democratic primary," Rose said, "and those who want on the official ballot must be Democrats and support the nominees."

Love, Hawkins and Mrs. Wilmans have publicly announced their intention not to support Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president.

Rose was the second county chairman to announce that he did not intend to allow the names of those styled as party bolters on the ballot, Judge Volney W. Taylor of Brownsville, Cameron county Democratic chairman, having made a like statement.

BOLT QUESTION TO CANDIDATES

Hecklers Ask Speakers How They Will Vote

"Are you going to bolt the party? Are you going to vote for Al Smith?"

Troublesome days ahead of candidates for county office were indicated at the political rally at Bellevue park Friday night as the candidates began hurling defiance at each other and as the audience became sufficiently interested to want to know how the speakers stood on the question of the party bolt.

A. V. Grant, candidate for state representative, district 112, comprising Wilbarger and Wichita counties, rode rough-shod over the oft-repeated question as he attempted to tell of a bill he proposed offering when—and if made a member of the Texas legislature.

Question Unanswered

He did not deign to answer his interrogators. Cecil Story of Vernon, who followed Mr. Grant, was not heckled in any way as he told of his past record and outlined future plans.

Early Van Deventer, also a candidate for the legislature, opposing Mr. Story and Mr. Grant, laughed when his story of how the Constitutionals were robbed of their voice in the Democratic state convention was stopped by the, by this time, old question, "Are you going to vote for Al Smith?"

"I am," he retorted, "if I am on the ticket."

"But if you are not?" a persistent voice wanted to know.

"Then I'll use my own common sense," he retorted.

Personalities were handed in the campaigns for judge of the 78th district court and for district attorney of the 30th district court as three different persons laid claim to the record of the past two years in the district attorney's office.

Others Mild

Only mildly did seekers after other offices venture the waging of their battle for office along the lines of personalities.

E. F. Fruechte, first of the four candidates seeking election as district attorney to speak, reviewed the 21 months he has been associated with Ben P. Allred, district attorney, as an assistant district attorney. Records of the office, according to Mr. Fruechte, showed 306 persons tried, with 238 convictions in the period he had been in the office.

After outlining the activities of the district attorney's office during the 21 months he had been in there, Mr. Fruechte launched an attack on his three opponents.

"Sam Spence," he told, "was in the office as a special investigator 14 months before I was made first assistant district attorney. I came in and went around him.

"The docket of the district attorney's office was congested when I was appointed. Mr. Allred said to me, 'I have to have someone who will clear this up for me. I have to be here and in Young county and in Archer county. I'll give you 30 days' trial and if you don't make good, out you go.' I stayed in until my resignation on May 15."

Mr. Fruechte then swung his attack upon John B. Rhea, convalescent from a major operation and

Mystery of School Teacher's Murder Solved in Girl Slayer's Confession

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 6. (AP)—The two-year-old mystery of the brutal killing of Miss Lily Dale Croy, young school teacher, who was struck down in the midst of the terrorism caused by the notorious Toledo slugger two years ago, was cleared up today with the confession of Charles J. Hoppe, 26, child slayer.

A little more than a month ago Hoppe, a taxi driver, kidnaped Dorothy Sledlagowski, 7, from her bed, attacked and strangled her. Brought to trial on first degree murder he threw himself upon the mercy of the court today by pleading guilty.

Three common pleas judges were hearing evidence to determine the man's mental condition before disposing of him when Dr. L. A. Querner, defense alienist, startled the courtroom with the testimony that Hoppe was the clubber who killed Miss Croy.

The prisoner not only confessed the Croy murder, but admitted attacks on a number of other women in the last four years, Dr. Querner said.

W. T. C. C. HEAD URGES LESS NOISE IN MEET

"More Business and Less Hilarity," Need of Body, He Declares

TOWNS OUTGROWN

Vernon Citizen Wants Activities Trimmed For Economy

FORT WORTH, July 6. (AP)—Other than reasserting his opinion that the present West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention system is too unwieldy, A. M. Bourland of Vernon, president of the chamber, asserted here today that he could have little criticism to offer at the executive board meeting in Coleman, July 16.

Bourland expressed the opinion that more attention should be paid to business and less to hilarity at West Texas convention and that the annual meetings have grown too big to be held in any other than cities.

"I have suggestions, of course, but that is a matter for directors to work out at the Coleman meeting," he said.

Towns Too Small

"As the situation now exists, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Waco and El Paso are the only cities sufficient in size to act as convention hosts. While Vernon, Lubbock or Abilene might like to be the scene of a convention they are unable to do so, on account of its size. In this way the color of previous conventions in smaller towns have been eliminated."

Bourland said that while noisy conventions previously were needed to advertise the west half of the state, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is now firmly established. The elimination of much of the elaborate program also will be an economical step, Bourland said.

Wade in Accord

Homer D. Wade also is in accord with the plan, according to the president.

Selling West Texas to the world will be his major objective while in office, Bourland said. "We have already sold it to ourselves. The next step is that of interesting others in its possibilities," he said.

The "selling campaign" will be discussed at length at the Coleman meeting, Bourland plans.

Road Program

Belief that the new committee recommended and approved at the convention in Fort Worth to cooperate with the east and south Texas chambers of commerce on highway problems would be one of the most important of the organization was expressed by Bourland, who arrived in Fort Worth to spend two days here on private business.

"I feel sure that roads are vital issues and I hope that much benefit can be accomplished by working cooperatively with interests from other sections of Texas other than ours," Bourland said.

All standing committees for the year have been selected, Bourland announced, but names have been withheld pending acceptances from members of the various groups.

The president said he had attempted, after conferring with Manager Homer D. Wade and other West Texans alive to the problems of the organization, to select men especially fitted to the problems they would be called upon to face.

ROADS TO WAR ON SMUGGLERS

Officials to Confer With Government July 18

WASHINGTON, July 6. (US)—Officials of railroads operating between United States and Canada have been called for a conference on July 18, with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman for a checkup on steps taken to prevent smuggling between the two countries.

In announcing the conference today Lowman explained that about a month ago, the entire situation had been laid before the rail executives and customs officers at Buffalo, where an agreement was reached to take drastic action against smugglers.

Because of the dictate of the treasury department for additional regulatory activities in connection with freight and express traffic, it was decided at the time to give the railroads an opportunity to work out an anti-smuggling campaign.

Advices to Lowman indicate that such a plan has been devised by the railroad people and that it will be presented at the conference. It is probable that a group of Canadian and American customs officials will sit in.

Included in the list of railroads to be represented are the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Pere Marquette, New York Central and Delaware and Hudson.

Riot Threatens When Convict Kills Cellmate

JOILET, Ill., July 6. (US)—Guards at Joilet penitentiary today averted a riot when Henry Gath, 60, was slugged to death by his cellmate while they marched with 60 other inmates from the prison yard to the dining hall.

When Gath dropped to the ground, guards seized Seymour Schackell, his cellmate, and trained their guns on the rest of their convict chain. Several prisoners made motions of striking Schackell, but the latter was whisked away to safety.

Richard Loeb, thrill slayer, witnessed the slaying and may be called to the coroner's inquest.

BUREAU CHIEF'S OUSTER ASKED

Rankin Seeks to Remove Cotton Head

WASHINGTON, July 6. (UP)—Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, protested to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine today against appointment of Nils A. Olsen as chief of the bureau of agricultural economies, and asked Olsen's removal because of alleged misconduct in connection with the bureau's issuance of cotton price predictions.

Rankin said the farmers of his state have "suffered greatly" from the bureau's activities.

"To place him in the position under the circumstances after the senate cotton investigating committee has laid bare to your department and to the world his record as a member of the bureau, would be little short of criminal abuse of the powers vested in you as secretary of agriculture," Rankin said in a letter to Jardine.

"You are bound to be familiar with his record in helping to formulate the price decline prediction and the padded carry-over report of American cotton in foreign countries, given out by that bureau on September 15 last, which broke the cotton market, and helped to drive it down from 25 to 17 cents a pound, thereby taking from the cotton farmers of the country the small margin of profit which they otherwise would have made."

Olsen was acting chief of the bureau at the time, Rankin recalled.

'Lion and Mouse' Keeps Old Thrill

By The Record News Critic

"The Lion and The Mouse", as the older generation will remember, is one of the amazing stage successes. Its original run was inaugurated by a man who hadn't a nickel to call his own. Before the end of the New York run, he owned the theater in which the play was given. Its road popularity was quite as phenomenal.

Now comes the screen revival, not an ordinary revival but an extended run production on the vitaphone on which Warner Brothers have evidently spent much money, and much time in staging, research and choice of people.

It opened at the Strand Friday, and has more dialogue than any talkie Wichita Falls has had the opportunity of seeing and hearing to date.

No actor on the stage today could play "Ready Money" Rider, lion of the industrial world, with such merciless authority as Lionel Barrymore, remembered for his characterizations in "The Jest", "Peter Ibbetson" and many other successes of the stage and screen.

And if all screenland holds a more ingratiating small "mouse" than May McAvoy, The Record News critic is not aware of the fact. Then, there is Alec Francis, grand old man of the movies, and the manly charm of young Buster Collier, whose real name is William Collier, Jr. Jack Ackroyd, who was Alf in "The Better 'Ole", and Emmett Corrigan also do good work.

Lloyd Bacon has avoided the error of ruining good books or good stage plays when adapting them to the movies that most of the movie directors seem to think it necessary to make. He holds close to the original play and story, and gets the real meat and greatness into his production by holding true to the original success. He is to be complimented for this and still more for the marvelous direction that is evident throughout the play.

The story is a rugged one, based on human relations which will be as true centuries from now as today. Ryder, the outstanding genius of the world of business, ruthlessly ruins an old judge who has made a decision inimical to his interests. Ryder's worthless son meets the judge's charming daughter who is studying art in Paris.

What happens then as the tale begins to build to its climax is what makes "The Lion and the Mouse" a powerful drama, magnificently presented, and worthy of the viewing by every man, woman and child in Wichita Falls.

NEW PARKING LAW READY

Unloading of Trucks in Alleys Provided

Thelbert Martin, city attorney, has completed the draft of an amendment to the city traffic code pertaining to parking of commercial vehicles in alleys of the city. It probably will be presented to the city council Monday night, as it was drawn up at the request of the council after City Manager George D. Fairtrace had suggested it last Monday night.

Thirty minute parking in alleys is provided by amendment for trucks and delivery wagons actually loading and unloading. It excludes parking of these vehicles when not being loaded or unloaded, and it does not include other cars which are used in business.

Because of the fire laws and the indavisability of blocking the alleys, the old ordinance has been enforced rigidly so that practically no loading or unloading was done in the alleys. Under the new ordinance as planned, the alleys will continue to be kept clear, but the business firms will be served better.

Movie Magnates Aroused at Japs Who Seek to Keep Kids From Shows

WASHINGTON, July 6. (INS)—Japan's program to regulate by law the attendance of children at movies has aroused American film producers. They may seek the aid of the state department in their attempt to prevent such drastic action by the Tokyo government.

Basing its policy upon a recent survey involving more than 16,000 school children, the Japanese ministry of education has declared that "practically all pictures shown are intended for adults and are of a character likely to have an injurious effect upon the minds of children." The youngsters form an important part of the movie audience in Tokyo and other great Japan cities. As most of the films exhibited in Japan are from American studios, the drive against the school-child trade is a direct blow at the American industry. No other nation ever has attempted such legislation, according to movie representatives here seeking a "gentleman's agreement" which would avoid formal regulation by law.

Spaghetti-Cheese Menus Suggested

A big dish of spaghetti and cheese is an excellent substitute for meat and potatoes. In the following recipe you are told just how to make it. The amount of cheese you use should be decided according to individual taste. Some like only a slightly cheesy flavor, so a mild cheese and less of it than the recipe calls for should be used. But if your family is fond of cheese, use a snappy cheese and plenty of it.

Baked Spaghetti and Cheese
Spinach Beet Salad
Berry Pie Coffee

Combine the three-fourths cup water, sugar and vinegar and bring to a boil. Add the gelatin which has been dissolved in the cold water and the other ingredients. Pour into refrigerator tray to set. Serve in slices on lettuce with mayonnaise.

To Cook Spinach

Spinach is one of the most healthful of vegetables. Cook it just the right length of time, so that it retains a suggestion of crispness and does not lose its color. Always select young, tender spinach, carefully pick over and reject all wilted leaves and coarse stems and cut off the roots. Wash in cold water several times and place in a large kettle with only the water that clings to the leaves; keep turning over every two or three minutes, but cover between stirrings. As soon as it appears to "wilt," remove from the fire, drain and chop. Put a couple of tablespoonsful of butter in a sauce-pan, melt and toss the spinach in the hot butter. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Minced garlic or onion sauteed in the butter adds to the flavor. Spinach may be heaped on slices of buttered toast and served with cheese or cream sauce, or garnished with hard boiled eggs, or with a poached egg, as luncheon dishes or for meatless meals.

ORIENT CHIEFS HONOR DEAD

Nationalists Pay Homage To Late Leader

PEKING, China, July 6. (AP)—With the full mysticism of the Orient in its most dramatic form, the four most powerful military leaders of the nationalist movement in China today stood before the tomb of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen and presented an account of their stewardship in the nationalist cause to the founder of the Chinese nationalist movement.

Nationalism's military "big-4," Chiang Kai-Shek, Feng Yu-Hsiang, Yen Hsi-Shan and Li Tsung-Jen, united in devout homage before the remains of the late leader, reporting to the spirit of the father of the nationalist cause the successful completion of the military stage of the Chinese revolution as he envisioned it, and pledging to him loyal cooperation to achieve the reconstruction of their country along the lines which he had pointed out.

Chieftain Comes Late

At the last minute, just as day was breaking, the ranks of the four dramatically completed by the arrival of Feng Fu-Hsiang, long one of the most picturesque figures among China's military chieftains. He had traveled from his headquarters all night long despite illness and appeared at the scene bearded, travel-stained and tired.

A simple, moving memorial service was held at the Azure Cloud temple on a wooded slope in the western hills, 15 miles northwest of Peking, where Sun Yat Sen's body has rested since he died in March, 1925, in the midst of his work for his country.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, the quartet, walking abreast, climbed to the white carved marble shrine above which fluttered nationalist banners and entered the small alcove containing the heavy flowered and lacquered coffin draped with flags which held the body.

Gaze at Body

The four leaders bowed before this and stood in profound silence as the great gathering of generals, officials and soldiers which filled the courtyard outside also bowed in homage.

Then the report to Sun Yat Sen's spirit was read before the coffin and a few moments later came a dramatic climax when the heavy wooden outer lid was raised permitting the four commanders to gaze upon the body of their late chieftain.

Permission of High Courts Necessary

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6. (INS) That William Edward Hickman's case may never be reviewed by the United States supreme court, is an existent possibility, according to E. Grant Taylor, clerk of the state supreme court of California.

"Such an appeal," said Taylor today, "can be taken only with the consent of the state supreme court or the permission of the United States supreme court."

If both courts refuse, Hickman's fate, as sealed by the state supreme court yesterday, when that body denied Hickman's appeals from the court which sentenced him, will be final.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, July 5.—Variegated notes of a reporter covering the biggest beat in the world:

At the Roxy, largest movie theater in the world, where the entire staff is organized on a military basis, no usher or other service attache may leave his post after the close of the show until a bugler sound "taps."

For the decorations at a recent Park avenue wedding, rare flowers were imported from France at a cost of more than $10,000. The bridal bower was composed of 11,000 buds. In the same hotel at the same time, a man of orthodox Jewish faith gave a confirmation fete for his young son which cost $10,000.

An opera singer has five talking parrots, each speaking a different tongue—Russian, English, Italian, French and Spanish, and it is her ambition to have 10. At present, however, there are only five rooms in her apartment, and she deems it necessary to keep the birds separated.

The vogue for the German police dog is over in fashionable New York. Russian wolfhounds are again in style. The Pekingese continues to be a favorite.

Many hotels now have furnished roof cottages which may be rented by the week or month. Prospective bridegrooms reserve them months in advance.

New York police are endeavoring to break up a new "racket" of Broadway gold-diggers. A girl driving a luxurious auto attracts a lone man's attention, invites him to take a ride, drives him to a lonely spot, suddenly shoves a gun into his side, mulcts him of his valuables, and makes him walk back.

Charles and Kathleen Norris, the novelists, are croquet fiends, and will drop their work anywhere at any time to play a challenger. They have an elaborate croquet court at their house.

The pack-peddler of the Trader Horn variety, who passed out of existence in rural sections with the advent of the mail order house and the auto, continues to be seen in New York. He trudges through the tenement district carrying bags of tinware or sewing materials or decorative goods, such as statuettes and framed pictures.

Nearly all of these peddlers are patriarchcial appearing men who emigrated from Europe, where they earned a living in the same way. One of them has sons and daughters who have been successes in business and art. He continues to tote around his pack of goods, making sales at doorsteps, because he is happier doing that than sitting at home.

Another story stranger than fiction. The daughter of a singer, unhappy at home, ran away. When police failed to find her, he resorted to the radio. He voluntarily appeared on programs and in his programs sang his daughter's favorite song, "Old Pal, Why Don't You Answer Me?"

Alone in a New York boarding house, the homesick girl happened to hear the song being broadcast and, recognizing the voice, was moved to return home.

"Variety" records the tale. A gentleman took Peggy Hopkins Joyce to dinner. After glancing over the expensive array of rare foods the restaurant's menu afforded, she contented herself with an order of macaroni.

"Good heavens!" the gentleman was moved to exclaim, audibly. "Peggy Hopkins Joyce sticking to a dollar dish."

"But," said Peggy, fingering a rope of diamonds, "if there is a bit of cool wine about, I wouldn't mind."

The wine cost the gentleman $60.

TO A LITTLE BABY

Sleep sweetly, little baby chile,
Or else wake up, and coo and smile.
You bright and shining little star;
Gee, What a lucky thing you are.

Oh, you'll grow up quite soon enough
To stand rebukes, and life's rebuff;
You'll have no heart to smile or sleep,
You'll do more crying, loud and deep.
With bread to win and bills to meet,
With folks you hate, and yet must treat
With manner that is kind and sweet.

You're very lucky, baby dear;
You haven't very much to fear
And papa tends you in the night.
So coo or sleep, sweet sugar stuff:
For you will get yours soon enough.
—John Self Elliott.

One-Minute Sermon

And when ye come into an house, salute it.
And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.
And whosoever shall not receive you, not hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.—St. Matthew, x, 12-14.

A Duty Performed

NEWS from Huntsville that the home of Gen. Sam Houston, Texas' second president and hero of the battle of San Jacinto, is soon to be restored to its original state should bring a feeling of gratitude to every loyal Texan. This state has too long neglected the duty of caring for the home of a man who loved and served his adopted country above all other loves and all other services. In many ways Texas has never accorded to Sam Houston due honor and appreciation, not only for his accomplishments, but for his strength in rising above surroundings and shortcomings which racked his soul throughout a life time.

In this campaign year, there are those who are saying the 40th legislature spent not wisely but too well. No better appropriation could have been made than the $15,000 which goes to the preservation of Sam Houston's home, and the record of the 40th needs no defense if all other expenditures were made with half as much wisdom and justification.

Secret Corners of the Heart

YOU NEVER know about men. There are always secret places in hearts which are not revealed to all and sundry.

The late Lord Curzon, for instance, during his lifetime was recognized as an immensely able, capable, industrious, scholarly statesman and administrator and cabinet minister. But he was deemed cold and cynical and supercilious.

It was thought the job of viceroy of India suited him to a T, because of the glamor and glitter and oriental magnificence that accompanied it.

But now comes his official biography, written by one of his lifelong friends. And what do we find? Well, for one thing, Curzon, the simple human being, who fell head over heels in love with Miss Leiter of Chicago and was her ardent swain all her life. To her he poured out his soul.

To her he indited beautiful love letters long years after they were married and long after most husbands begin to be commonplace and workaday.

You see there was a secret corner in his heart and in it he burned candles to the loveliness of the woman who shared his joys and his sorrows.

Presidential Tradition

AFTER all, this American Democracy of which we hear so much must be pretty effective.

Half a century ago two boys were growing up, in poverty, on opposite sides of the continent.

In Oregon an orphan named Herbert Hoover was helping his uncle in a real estate office and facing, apparently, a lifetime of hard toil and obscurity.

In New York another fatherless lad named Alfred Smith was selling papers to help support his widowed mother. The streets were his school; one would have said that his prospects were among the dimmest.

This fall one of these two—Herbert Hoover or Alfred Smith—will be elected president of the United States. The two boys who had to start making their own way while yet in their 'teens have reached the top. One or the other of them will, within a year, occupy the highest place that an American citizen can attain.

Our Democracy, after all, must be a pretty real thing when that can be true.

The rise of the poor boy to the heights—the old story, "From the log cabin to the White House"—is one of our most cherished traditions. It symbolizes the equality of opportunity that we have been taught to prize above everything else. And we are justified in so regarding it.

For it is the faith that justifies our works. It is the outward, visible symbol of an inner, spiritual grace, to drop into the old phraseology of the churchmen. It is a sign that however much injustice and inequality we may have in our country, however much poverty and discouragement and frustration may rest upon some segments of our population, the way is still open. Not yet have we solidified into castes. Not yet have we grown old and cautious and calculating. Not yet have we surrendered to the notion of a ruling class, rich and well born.

There are those who see in our growing industrialization, in the ever increasing accumulation of wealth, a sign that this old avenue of opportunity is to end. Yet while we lean more and more on the machine, on the power of finance, on far-flung bigness in business, industry and politics, by the same token individual ability is becoming more highly prized than ever. We need capable men now more than ever before, and we are trying harder than ever to find them. When one arises—a product of poverty and hard work, like Hoover, Smith, Henry Ford, the Fisher brothers—he is heaped with power and honors.

Much remains to be done, of course. But for the present we can be encouraged. The great old tradition is still flourishing. The two nominations of last month prove it.

Probably the International Union of Ladies' Garment Workers wants a five-day week because it takes them three days every week to find something more to leave out.

PRIVATE EGO AND GOVERNMENT

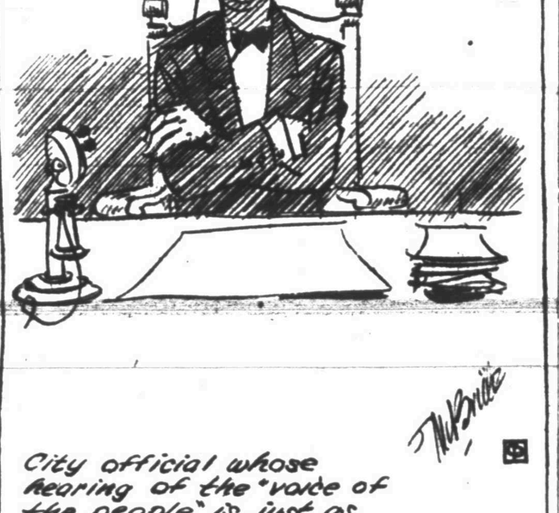

This is a great race of men that inhabit the earth. For some strange unknown reason each man seems to think that what interests other men is pure nonsense and that the way other men go about business is the height of folly. This much is said in order to say something else. H. T. heard a public man ridiculing the manner of procedure of the two recent national political conventions. The proceedings were absurdly ridiculous, according to this critic.

He was particularly satirical in referring to the Democratic convention. He said if a group of immature boys were to stage a convention like the one in Houston their parents would forbid them ever holding another convention. Of course, the permanent chairman of this column is not an authority on conventions, but he read reports of both Republican and Democratic conventions, almost everything he could find, even the silly comments of one or two self-styled humorists and satirists, and so far as H. T. could judge the two conventions were conducted in a dignified and serious manner. Of course, there were a few fist fights in both Kansas City and Houston, but such things have been known to happen at church gatherings.

RADIO HEADS SET FOR FIGHT

Many Stations To Be Abolished

WASHINGTON, July 6. (INS)—Officials today were prepared for the first major test of the much mooted powers of the federal radio commission.

Faced with the necessity of reducing the existing 700 odd broadcasting stations to 550 or less, the commission announced it would refuse to continue later than August 1 the licenses of 162 stations. Those that protest this action must file their protest Monday, later to be heard by the commission, and if no change results, carry their case into the courts.

They may take the case either to the D. C. court of appeals or to the U. S. court of the district in which the station operates.

Lewis G. Caldwell, of Chicago, the new legal chief of the radio commission, was building up a staff to fight the battles of the commission.

Commission engineers point out that it is possible for but 340 stations to broadcast simultaneously in the United States without bad results from interference, but that a difference in broadcasting time schedules made it possible for more than 340 stations to hold broadcasting licenses.

A number of smaller stations ordered to discontinue broadcasting by August 1 have consolidated with larger plants.

Adventurers Find Many Mishaps in Tour of World

BANGKOK, Siam, July 6. (UP) Twenty-three punctures are too many for transafrican motorcycle tourists.

So thought James Wilson, former Columbia student and Club Lido saxophonist, and Francis A. Flood, agriculture student and Nebraska newspaperman, they said on their arrival here en route around the world.

The punctures were due to sharp thorns in the midst of untraveled country. There was nothing but native ingenuity to fall back on, so the two Americans shot an antelope and dried its skin.

"When the skin was thoroughly dry we cut it in strips and put it inside the tires to protect the tubings," said Wilson. "And believe it or not, from then until we reached Massuah, nearly 3000 miles away, we never had another puncture."

A lost rubber bearing from the magneto when 1500 miles from a repair shop was replaced by rubber from a dental bridge plate contributed by Flood, the travelers said. Other troubles included a price of $4 a gallon for gasoline at one remote point.

The two youths passed India by steamer but went overland on a 125-mile tramp from Karkarak to Meh Sod, whence they proceeded by ponies and raft.

After leaving Bangkok they expected to go on by bicycle, train and boat, returning to the United States via the Philippines. Flood is from Lincoln, Neb., and Wilson is professor of English at Ames, Iowa.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

This Has Happened

Virginia Brewster, upon the sudden death of her father after losing his fortune, goes to live with a girlhood friend, Clarissa Dean, and her father in spite of the objections of her fiance, Nathaniel Dane, who mistrusts Dean's motives. Becoming unhappy in her new home, Virginia phones to Niel's studio late one night and is surprised when his model, Chiri, answers. This causes a lovers' quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get Niel away, Dean has a company he controls offer him a high-salaried position in San Francisco. Niel begs Virginia to marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art study.

Clarissa becomes furious when she discovers her fiance, Russell Waingould, making love to Virginia and will not listen to an explanation. Virginia resolves to leave but when she goes to say farewell to her host Dean tries to get her to stay and asks her to marry him. When she refuses indignantly, he tells her that her father cheated him out of $100,000 in a bootlegging deal and that she had better reconsider her decision in order to save her father's honor.

Now Go On With the Story
CHAPTER XV

"I shall pay you with money!"

Virginia's voice rang with gallant resolution, and she flung the words at Frederick Dean as one would fling a bone to a mangy cur.

He started, bent a searching glance upon her, and then laughed—a cruel laugh, cruel in its merciless mockery.

"That's good," he sneered. "I'd like to know where you will get $100,000." His words broke off suddenly and the jeering smile left his lips. "Unless you expect to marry someone else for it," he shot at her with unveiled insult. "But that would hardly be playing the game," he hurried on before she could answer; "letting some other man pay the Brewster debt of honor would not be acceptable to me. I shall insist that you pay it yourself or agree to the alternative. Otherwise, I shall still look upon your father as a liar and a cheat!"

Virginia did not show any signs of the consternation he expected her to feel at his ultimatum. Her eyes still gleamed with defiance, and when she spoke there was no hint of despair in her voice.

"You are jumping at conclusions too low for my consideration," she said icily. "I shall marry no one but the man I love."

"Be sure you don't marry him too soon," Dean warned sullenly. "It may not be so easy to find a fortune of $100,000 around an artist's studio. After all, you have to admit there's a good chance of failure. You might borrow it from among your father's old friends if you care to pass on the obligation in that manner, but you would still have to repay them or owe your protection to charity. And you cannot expect ever to see even the shadow of such a sum if you marry a penniless artist."

"I will get the money for you," Virginia declared, still in a state of unreasoning excitement. "But if I should fail I will keep to your infamous bargain!"

"Then you may as well set a wedding date," he replied bluntly.

"A year from today then," she hurled back at him, "if I have not paid you the debt you claim I will marry you! But don't think you have made me believe that my father knowingly cheated you. Whatever happened couldn't have been his fault, but I acknowledge the debt rather than have you blackening his character."

"Spoken like the girl I thought you were," Dean applauded. "But I'm sure you're just a little bit afraid that I have told only the truth and you don't want to take a chance of denying a genuine obligation. Well, I assure you that if you don't live up to your agreement I shall find it easy enough to have Richard's name dropped from the conversation of men who still believe that he was a very fine fellow."

Virginia shrank slightly from the pitiless lash of his words but her spirit continued to flame at a high pitch of combat. Her voice, when she spoke, vibrated with disdain and contempt. "I suppose I can trust you to withhold your lies until the end of the year?" she asked with deliberate implication that nothing decent could be taken for granted from him.

"So long as you keep to the terms of the agreement so shall I," he returned smartly, stung a trifle by her open disgust.

"I will take a bag and send for the rest of things in the morning," Virginia told him and turned quickly to leave the room.

Back in her charming rose and ivory bedroom she was seized with a great desire to fling herself upon the bed and give way to the grief and horror that assailed her. But the thought that this room and all the beauty it held belonged to the man who had charged her father with being a dishonorable and dishonest man restrained her. She could not get out of the house soon enough.

For a moment she stood and watched the walls swaying and the ceiling bobbing. "I mustn't. I mustn't," she cried aloud against the thought that she was going to collapse here, at the mercy of a man she hated.

Somehow she pulled herself together, drawing the thin shreds of a much-tried endurance about her to get her through this crisis. Hastily she packed a few necessities in her traveling bag and rang for a maid.

"Pack the rest of my things, Colette," she ordered briskly; "all of them, and have everything ready when I send for them in the morning. Here," she picked up her black lizard handbag and extracted a five-dollar bill which she handed to the servant girl. The latter's dark eyes were alight with curiosity, but she said nothing beyond a respectful "thank you."

"Now run down and call me a cab, and let me know as soon as it gets here," Virginia ordered and turned away to get a hat and wrap from the closet.

In a very short while the girl was back to tell her that a cab was waiting. Virginia motioned to the traveling bag and Colette took it up and followed her down to the street.

As she passed swiftly along the hall Virginia glanced through the open door of the drawing room, fearful lest Russell might see her and make another scene. But she did not see him. Russell and Clarissa had left the house in sullen anger while Virginia was in the library.

The door of that room, across the hall, remained closed and Virginia breathed a sigh of thankfulness that Frederick Dean did not appear to bid her adieu. She was glad to be spared the necessity of pretending for Colette's benefit.

"Where to?" the taxi driver asked perfunctorily, and for the first time Virginia realized that she had given no thought to where she was going.

"To the Ritz," she answered in response to the power of her subconscious mind. "To the Ritz," had been a habit of years and the words sprang to her lips automatically.

But common sense had a word to say before she arrived at that glamorous hostelry. Could she afford to go there now? In a moment she had the contents of her hand bag spread out in her lap. A jade vanity case, a few cards, two cobwebby handkerchiefs, a notebook and the usual odds and ends to be found in a fashionable woman's possession. But of money there was very little.

Virginia bit her lip with vexation. How could she have been so negligent as to let her available funds get so low? She would have to cash a check at the hotel. She put the things back in the bag, with the exception of a small checkbook which she opened and examined, trying to find her balance. It was a hopeless task, for more than half the stubs were blank. She had no idea how much money she had in the bank but she knew it might be none at all. A small matter like an overdrawn account had never bothered her in the past, but it loomed now like a dread disaster.

The taxi was speeding southward fast, having a good "break" in the traffic, and Virginia knew that she was soon to be deposited under the marquee of the Ritz if she did not do something to avert it. It was simply impossible to go there broke. She thrust out an ungloved hand to rap on the glass at the driver's back to attract his attention, when her own became centered upon her hand, and she drew it back to regard more closely a ring she was wearing.

Her father had given it to her and Virginia rebelled against the thought that had come to her in connection with it. But she must have funds. Immediately. And there was nothing she owned that would not have the same sentimental value, except Nathaniel's ring. Virginia smiled over it. It was in exquisite taste, made by Niel himself, but it had little intrinsic worth. Her father's ring was a costly sapphire.

Still Virginia hesitated, and a little later the taxi was pulling up to the curb at the hotel she had chosen. She made no motion to get out when the doorman held open the door for her.

"I want to go down Fifth avenue," she said, and the lackey transmitted her directions to the driver.

As they crept down the avenue Virginia was thinking fast. Where did one go to raise money on jewels? Surely not to any Fifth avenue jeweler's! Perhaps if she had a newspaper . . .

They were at a corner and she beckoned the driver to turn to the right to get out of the unending river of cars. He reached back and pulled down the glass partition between them. "Where to, lady?" he inquired.

"Why, I . . . I really don't know," Virginia replied helplessly. She saw that he was looking at her with a worried expression. And she was surprised at the sympathy in it, too, for she had thought that all taxi drivers were hard-hearted brigands. And here was one of the ilk with a kindly visage and apparently at a loss as to what should be done with a bewildering passenger whom most drivers would have been glad to drop.

"You might be able to advise me," she said suddenly, on an overmastering impulse.

"I suppose I can trust you to withhold your lies until the end of the year?" she asked.

Fate Cruellest to Wife of Habitual Drunkard, Dorothy Dix Advises

Shall This Young Wife Return to the Husband Who Drinks?—How Can a Bachelor Have a Romantic Married Life?—Sage Advice to the Girl Whose Fiance Made Her Walk Home.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young woman 23 years old, married, have two children, and my husband and I have been separated nearly a year. He was a man who would take a drink occasionally, and during the three years we were married he came home three times a little intoxicated. The third time I called my folks in and asked them what to do; they told me to leave him, and in a week they made me file suit for divorce. My husband never ran around with any other woman or mistreated me and was as generous and kind to me as he could be. We lived on a farm to which he was one of the heirs and were making good, but now he has quit farming. He wants me to come back to him, but my parents and my sisters don't want me to do it. I love him and want to go, but my folks try to make up my mind for me. What shall I do?

—R. E. H.

Answer: It all depends on how deeply the drink habit has fastened itself upon your husband. If he is a habitual drunkard, you are very wise to have left him before there are more children to support and while you are still young enough to learn some way of making a living for yourself and children.

No fate is more cruel than that of the drunkard's wife and no women more pitiful than those who see their husband's earnings spent on liquor while they and their little ones lack the necessities of life and who wait night after night for the coming home of a man who has reduced himself below the level of a beast.

But an occasional drink does not make a man a drunkard, and it seems to me that you were fanatically quick to condemn your husband and met the situation with neither patience nor wisdom. If you had been a little more forbearing you might have induced him to give up drinking altogether, seeing that he was inclined to take too much when he drank at all, and you could have thus saved yourself and him all of the misery you have been through.

However, what is done, is done. The past cannot be mended now, and whatever you decide to do must be largely based on your husband's attitude. Perhaps in his misery at losing you and the children he has lost hope and self-respect and has been drowning his sorrow in drink. Perhaps your going has awakened him to the danger he was in and given him the lesson he needed.

Only you can decide that question and judge what his chances of reforming are and only you can decide whether you love him enough to take the risk of the future with him. It is a thing about which you shouldn't let your family make up your mind, as you say.

It is a queer thing about the way families act, anyway, when they are called in on cases of matrimonial discord. They are nearly always trouble-makers instead of pacifists. They almost invariably urge Mary not to stand this from John, or John not to put up with that from Mary, and generally do all they can to help along a divorce.

And then, especially after they have egged on a wife to leave her husband and she comes back home with the children for them to support, they give her a frosty welcome and let her plainly see that they regard her as a burden. They speak of her as "poor Mary" and complain of the children's noise and bemoan the things that they have to deny themselves, because now they have Mary and the children to support.

It is natural and human, of course. It is hard on father and mother to have Mary and her children to come back on them. It is nerve-racking for old people to have to live in the house with children. It is hard to deny themselves the luxuries to which they had been looking forward in order to educate and dress and feed a lot of youngsters. It is hard for mother and father to have to pay for Mary's mistake in marrying or Mary's jealousy or Mary's fights with John. But they should have thought of all that before they backed Mary up in throwing up her marriage just because it did not come up to her expectations.

Anyway, that is the way it happens. That is the family attitude toward Mary after she gets a divorce, and nearly every woman who has taken her children and gone home has found that she has jumped out of the frying pan into the fire and that she was better off even with a very imperfect husband than she is an unwelcome guest in her old home. There is never much veal slain for the prodigal daughter, nor the daughter who is the wife of a prodigal, especially when there are a lot of little prodigals who have to be supported.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man thinking of getting married, but the type of woman that I want is a romantic woman. Still I am a member of the church and a faithful Christian. Do you think a Christian could live a romantic married life?

—L. E. H.

Answer: I haven't an idea of what you mean by a "romantic woman," but I judge that you are one of the gentlemen who prefer blondes, and that you are thinking of a tall, thin, slinky-looking woman wearing a handful of spangles and long jade earrings and with the vertebrae unduly exposed—the kind of a woman you see in the films and that you never see in real life. If that is your notion of a "romantic woman," I am afraid she wouldn't be much of an uplift toward the Christian life. But don't worry. You will never meet her.

Perhaps, though, your romantic lady is the adventuress, the woman who has a dark, speckled past, who is given to hectic love affairs, who has had half a dozen divorces and who is always on a still hunt for a real affinity and wanders around the world seeking a soul mate.

Don't let these women fool you, L. E. H. They are not romantic. They haven't an ounce of sentiment in them. They are hard-boiled to the last degree, and if they started out with any illusions they have lost them so long ago that they have forgotten what they looked like.

Perhaps your conception of a romantic woman is the mushy, sentimental sort of a woman who always takes soulful views of things and who quotes poetry and gives way to her emotion and never can do anything so sordid as work or concern herself with practicalities because this dear, darling old world was just made for us to enjoy ourselves in. That sort of a woman makes the kind of wife who runs a man crazy because she never has a meal on time or sweeps a floor or keeps up with the bills or takes any sane position on any subject.

As for living a romantic married life, it can't be done. Marriage dissipates illusions. It gets down to the hard pan of the disposition and character and principles of men and women, and they know each other as they are. Marriage calls for sacrifice and good humor and horse sense, but there is no place in it for romance.

Many husbands and wives find great happiness in marriage. They love each other devotedly. They may revere each other as saints and heroes, but they can't see each other as romantic figures.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20 and have been going with a young man for the last two years. The other night we went riding together and on the way we had a quarrel, and the young man got so angry that he made me get out and walk home, all of five miles. Now he wants another date and says he will try to act better. I love him very dearly and believe he loves me. We have been planning our marriage for quite a while and I would be very disappointed if our dreams failed to come true. It is the first time we have ever quarreled, and so far as I am concerned it will be the last.

Answer: If you are going to marry a man that you will have to vee-vee about everything to keep him from treating you brutally you are certainly letting yourself in for domestic slavery of the worst sort.

Many questions are bound to come up between a husband and wife on which they do not agree, and the wife is in a sad predicament if she does not dare express an opinion.

This young man has shown you that he is not a gentleman, that he has no idea of chivalry or tenderness or consideration toward a woman, and no wife is happy who is married to a man who lacks these qualities. Besides, a man who would put a girl out of his car and make her walk five miles back home because he gets angry with her will beat his wife up when she provokes him.

Better a broken dream now, my dear, than a broken heart and a black eye later on.

— DOROTHY DIX.

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

WHAT'S the use of doing the daily good deed. A young man of the city has been asking himself that question all day, and part of the day before.

A few days ago he found a little Airedale pup roaming aimlessly about the countryside road, and rescued him from mercy knows what fate. And here is what happened to the pup and to the kind and spiritual young man.

He (the young man) took the pup into his heart and home, which happens to be a hotel room, and gave the stray every advantage. The dog was allowed to wander about the hotel at will, visiting all rooms the doors of which were not barricaded, and becoming acquainted with men and women of refinement and culture.

Some of the ladies mentioned took the wanderer to their hearts, and others kicked him out, thus giving the beginner a variety of experience. And the dog learned rapidly—he soon memorized the location of the rooms where he would be welcomed and parked out there.

And the board bill for the youngster was no small item, for he was only a few weeks old and required a diet with which a bachelor is not acquainted. All in all, those few days were full of novel experience and indigestible food for the dog and sleepless for a few inmates and hectic for the hospitable young man, who had borne the full burden of casual remarks from hotel inmates as to the advisability and taste of keeping the purp about the place.

At the end of an almost unbearable third day came this ultimatum from an unknown source . . . . "Will the person who took a young Airedale puppy from (such and such a place) please return him on pain of . . . . . ."

The foster parent has restored the pup to his rightful heritage, and is nursing a grievance against mankind who cannot appreciate a kindly deed done in the old-fashioned Christian spirit.

A TEXAS writer opines that the people of Texas are loyal to a point. He says that during the recent convention of the Democratic party in Houston, Houstonians explained to heat tortured easterners that the hot Texas sunshine is necessary for the growth of cotton, just as if the sun could be turned off as soon as the cotton had attained full growth. In setting forth the omnipotence of Texans, the writer mentioned failed to suggest that the cotton season be postponed by Texans until a more opportune time.

A GROUP of 25 or 30 women of Fort Worth have recently presented a petition advocating the erection of a city and county hospital in Fort Worth, and have set forth a group of stipulations which a few years ago would have seemed impossible coming from a group of persons uninitiated in the intricacies of politics. What have I been telling you about women in politics?

"THEY'VE all gone," retorted the lady shortly when Marie Theresa asked concerning the summer trips planned by friends and neighbors. Somebody else is lonesome.

HERE Mary Pickford has played a prank on us. Said she was having her hair bobbed, and we see pictures of Mary displaying a full and conventional length of hair, long enough to be done up, and looking very much as Mary's hair has always looked. Shame on you, Mary, we thought you were a better sport than that, what-what?

AND NOW an eastern judge decrees that a married woman who helps support the family, need not obey her husband nor account to him for her actions and whereabouts.

There, that should throw Mary and John for a few more family arguments.

Installation of New Freight Rates Delayed

DALLAS, July 6. Forum Will Reproduce Festive "Old New Orleans" as Cabaret

"Old New Orleans" will be reproduced realistically in cabaret style as the first of the four large benefits planned for the program of the Woman's Forum for the 1928-29 season, and will be given Friday evening, October 26, according to an announcement made by members of the forum. The benefit will be staged under the auspices of the ways and means committee of the Woman's Forum of which Mrs. G. B. Smedley is chairman.

The cabaret will be staged on the roof of the Fritz Motor company building which offers sufficient space for an elaborate display, and which will be covered by a tent for that occasion. Hostesses are already making plans to entertain large parties of guests, and reservations will be made later in the season for both large and small parties.

The program will be given by professional singers and dancers during the serving of the dinner.

"A Gypsy Revel" under the direction of Mrs. Lois Parker will open the cabaret. This will show twilight in gypsy land. Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. will play musical scores and the accompaniments for this skit. The cast for the opening attraction will include 100 young people of the city, including the best singers and soloists who will weave into a colorful gypsy romance, popular gypsy music. The scene opens with a group of gypsy men returning to camp in the evening, singing the beautiful "Ho-La" chorus from "Countess Maritza."

Numbers on the program proper are as follows: "Ho-La" (Gypsy call) by the chorus; "A Gypsy Band of Dreams" by Paul Bliss; "Gypsy Trail" by Galloway, baritone and tenor duet; "Play Gypsies, Dance, Gypsies" from "Countess Maritza"; dancing chorus; "Merry Life" taken from an Italian Gypsy folk song by Denza; Gypsy solo dance; trio, "Gypsy Life" by Schumann; "Carmen" by Texas contralto and baritone duet with chorus; "When My Caravan Has Rested" by Lane, sung as soprano and tenor duet; "Sweet Mystery of Life" by Victor Herbert, a soprano solo; "The Gypsies" by Brahms, contralto solo with chorus, and "Gypsy Love Song" Victor Herbert, a tenor solo.

In addition to the program given, an orchestra of note will be engaged to furnish music in keeping with the setting of the scene. Hosts and hostesses in appropriate dress and including the pirate, Jean La-Fitte, will be in attendance to aid in receiving the guests. The surroundings will be made to represent as nearly as possible the old New Orleans of history, in all its picturesque and romantic festivity.

The flower entries of the flower show will be exhibited on the first floor of the Fritz Motor company building. Prizes for winning entries will be given and especial prizes will be offered for out-of-town entries.

Committees for the flower show and cabaret will be announced later.

Carolyn is experiencing something of woman's new found independence, she has recently mastered the new art of rolling around in her walker without any assistance even in taking off.

But she is certainly going to give the press fits when she sees her photograph run without that of her brother, Blair Pickens Coleman. You see, they are crazy about each other and had sort of planned to have their pictures run jointly.

Carolyn Merrill is going to be allowed to grow pu just as she pleases, and no effort is going to be made to turn her from her natural bent. She is only 10 months old and is the only daughter in the Pickens family on Morningside drive.

She has a rather limited and also purely personal and somewhat egotistical vocabulary—"bye, bye" and "baby."

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By SECRETARY OF LABOR

JAMES J. DAVIS

From a Southern peon camp, where he suffered hunger, where he drank the bitter cup of unrequitted toil, where his body was cut with the whip of a brutal slave-driver, Jim Davis worked his way up to a post in the cabinet of the United States government, as the secretary of labor.

Davis is also the generous founder of a great school called Mooseheart, where more than a thousand students of both sexes, ranging from 1 to 18 years, are receiving their preparation for life.

Secretary Davis is the author of a novel, "The Iron Puddler," which he says was written "so that my son might know the pit from which his father was digged." In that book will be found reference to the following—the story the secretary told me amused him most.

"When I was a boy," the secretary recounted, "living in Sharon, I used to work at the opera house. My duties might require me to sweep out, shift scenery or be 'fillin' for some traveling stock company. I acted as a super in the sensational drama 'She'; I played supplementary parts in countless shows, including Richard III and other Shakespearian plays.

"At the scene of the battle of Bosworth field, in Richard III, where Richard speaks the line, 'A horse, a horse; my kingdom for a horse!' we supers in the army were jumping about, clattering our swords on opposite shields in a great hub-hub, and shouting 'Hay, hay, hay!'

"No sooner had Richard bellowed the line about wanting a horse, than a voice rang out:

"'Don't order so much hay, boys, until you see whether he gets the horse or not.'"

Dinner: Sliced cheese, cooked asparagus, cooked cucumbers, salad of grated raw carrots on lettuce; dish of berries with cream, no sugar.

Stuffed beat salad: Select beets of uniform size, scrub with a vegetable brush and boil until tender. Remove from the fire and place in cold water, when the skins will slip off very easily. Cut a slice of each beet from the stem end (to make it flat) and scoop out a generous portion from the center with a sharp knife. Fill with a mixture of finely chopped celery, cucumbers and tomatoes, and serve one or two of the beets, (depending upon the size) on crisp lettuce. Do not discard the scooped out portions of the beets, but use on the following day. Cut into small pieces, re-heat, and serve with butter.

Questions and Answers

Question—J. L. writes: "My daughter age 12 years has a birthmark on her forehead, which is beginning to extend down into the corner of the eye. The doctors call it a cyst; something like a blood tumor. Is there anything that can be done to remove it without an operation?"

Answer—Birthmarks can usually be removed by the proper electrical treatment. I advise you to take your daughter to a skin specialist who understands the treatment which will be necessary.

Question—Mrs. J. F. asks: "Of what fruits does the fruit diet consist, and how taken? Am troubled with sour stomach after eating. Would this diet relieve it?"

Answer: An exclusive fruit diet would be helpful in overcoming your sour stomach. Only one kind of fruit should be taken in any one day, but you may use as much of it as you desire. I have found the following fruits to be most helpful for this purpose: Apples, apricots, peaches, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, berries, tomatoes, pineapple and melons.

Question—Mrs. L. M. writes: "Your articles are very good and I enjoy them very much. What is the cause of abscessed kidneys? What are the symptoms? How can the trouble be remedied?"

Answer—Such kidney trouble sometimes develops simply because the kidneys are overworked and are forced to eliminate poisons which should be thrown out through the intestines. Another cause is from the irritation of kidney stones. An abscessed kidney is always a serious trouble and each case must be properly diagnosed and treated accordingly. Don't expect the trouble to cure itself until you remove the cause and take the proper diet or use what other medical treatment is necessary.

Bobbed Haired Girls Believed Revolutionists

TOKYO, July 6. (UP)—Bobbed hair girl revolutionists are adding to the troubles of Japan's military expedition in Shantung.

Dispatches from Tsinen say scores of bobbed haired girls recently have entered Shantung province nominally as workers for the Nationalist Chinese Red Cross, but really as plain clothes military agents and members of the "pienitei" groups of revolutionary terrorists believed responsible for many of the most daring of the south China revolutionary coups including bombing of the late Generalissimo Chang Tso-Lin's train in Mukden last month.

Chicago Judge Says His Court's No Reno

CHICAGO, July 6. (INS)—Judge Joseph Sabath in the superior court here this afternoon served notice on the stage world that Chicago is no Reno when he dismissed a bill for divorce brought by Mrs. Helen Cressman Carr, wife of Alexander Carr, famous stage star of Potash and Perlmutter.

At the same time Judge Thomas J. Lynch announced he would dismiss the bill for divorce filed by Audrey Maple Griffiths, star of "Sunny Days," who brought suit against George E. Griffiths, New York broker.

Fanny Brice Denies Rumor of Engagement

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 6. (INS)—Billy Rose, well known song writer is not "my man."

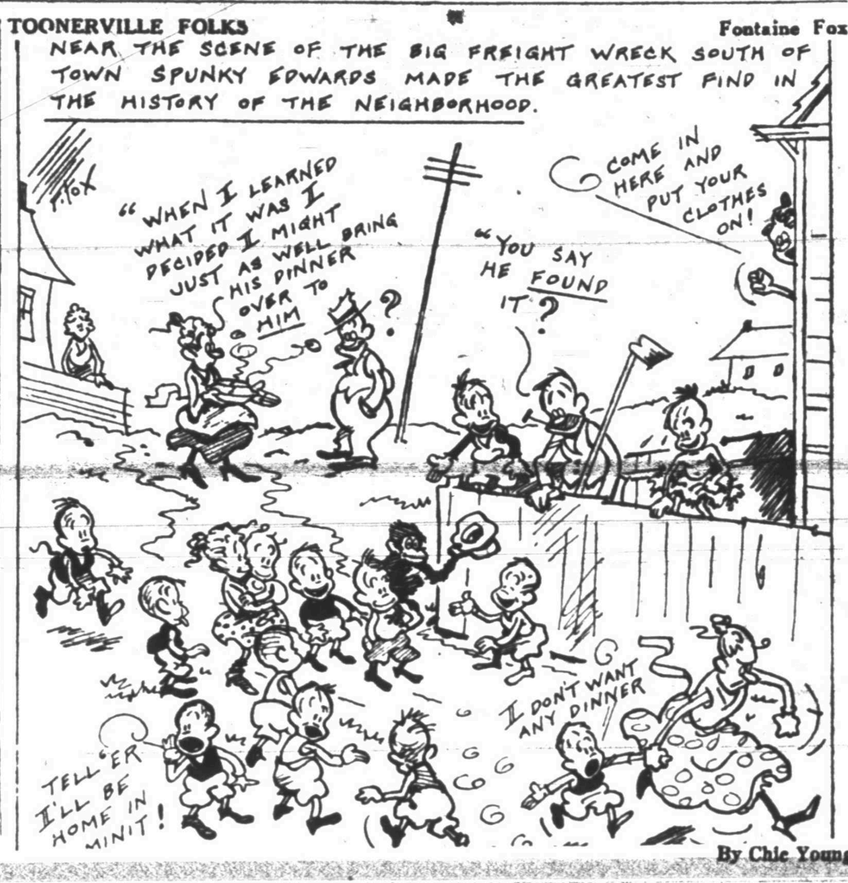

Fanny Brice, stage star, so paraphrased the title of her favorite song today in denying rumors of an engagement.

"Ridiculous. I hardly know him. Too busy to marry," declared Miss Brice, who is on location with a motion picture company here.

CVENGROS HURLS SUPERB FIVE-HIT WIN OVER SPORTS

THREE HOMERS HELP WIN, 7-1

Roetz, Turgeon and Jenkins Clout for Circuit

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Charles Stis, who scouts for the Chicago White Sox, was among those present yesterday at Athletic park. Mr. Stis, in his hunt for valuable ivory, tarried here to look over a youngster or two on the Spudder and Shreveport clubs. He saw some excellent prospects—but the brilliance of the lads whom Mr. Stis is giving the look-see was dimmed by a man who while not aged, is well seasoned as ball players go.

Introducing Mike Cvengros. Mike formerly toiled for Charley Comiskey, who pays Stis' salary, and last season was with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The reason for his two trips upward and extended stay on both occasions was shown yesterday. Mike turned in a corking day of chucking to trim the Sports in the second of the series. The score was 7 to 1.

Owens Batted Hard

The Spudders batted Tiny Owens—who is called Tiny because he is so big—hard and at opportune moments. Three home runs, by Roetz, Turgeon and Jenkins figured in the Wichita Falls carnival of run-making. It was Roetz' 11th circuit drive of the season and Pete's second in two days. None was on base when any of the three homers were clouted.

Some loose outfielding by Oscar Estrada, who is a pitcher, and Wilson, who is an outfielder and usually a good one, also helped the Spudders. But those lapses of defensive play only contributed to the scoring and had no effect on the ultimate result.

This was due to Cvengros' pitching and some very fast support. Mike allowed only five hits, which except in the inning when the Sports escaped a shutout, were distributed along the route. He struck out eight and passed only two. Mike's performance equalled the superb hurling of the previous day when Bunny Hearne blanked Jim Galloway's Ten Gallons.

Fitzgerald, Lamb, Jenkins, Stanton and Mike himself each banged two hits of the Spudders' 12, both of the drives by Howard and George going for two bases.

Fast Fielding

After making one misplay and being saved from another by Stanton the rookie Roetz settled down to an impressive display of fast fielding, marked by the starting of two double plays. Attention is also called to some fast fielding by the rival Petes who play second base—Turgeon and Kilduff—and continued excellent work by Bernie Deviveros.

Houston maintained the league lead by beating Waco while the runnerup Wichita Falls and Dallas clubs were winning.

Roetz and Jenkins led off the first and second innings with home runs over the left field wall and the Spudders tallied two more in the fifth. Turgeon banged his circuit drive over the left field barrier after two were out. Fitzgerald whaled his first double, this a smash to right, and scored on Lamb's single to left.

Sports Score

The Sports counted their lone run in the sixth. Kilduff doubled to center after one was out. Woehrs batted for Watwood and was tossed out by Cvengros, Kilduff moving to third. Wilson singled sharply off Turgeon's glove, Kilduff tallying.

Wichita Falls counted a brace of markers in its half. Cvengros singled to left after two were out. Roetz was hit by a pitched ball. Estrada dropped Turgeon's lift, Mike and Eddie scoring.

The last run was scored in the eighth. Wilson ran all around but not under Stanton's fly and Buck went to second. Smith's long lift to Phipps sent Stanton to third. Cvengros singled to center, Stanton scoring.

Notes of the Game

Herb Cobb probably will be Galloway's bad news for the Sports today.

The Sports' off again, on again deal for Ziggie Sears materialized. The outfielder who pastimed so many seasons in the Texas league left early yesterday to join the Mobile Southern association club.

Ball players are superstitious. Pete Kilduff always brings his glove in after the opposing side is out each inning. Another ritual of Pete's is the touching of second base after the catcher makes his practice throw.

Stanton made a nice catch of Roetz' wild peg on Holman's grounder in the second and tagged the Sport third sacker.

Smith and Turgeon made perfect throws to nail Wilson at the plate on an attempted steal with Deviveros in the second.

Jenkins went from first to third in the fourth while Lamb was run down between third and home on Swenson's grounder in the fourth.

Kilduff made a glittering barehanded stop of Roetz' grounder over second and forced Cvengros in the eighth.

WACO, July 6. (AP)—Hallahan was too much for Waco today, not allowing a hit until the sixth inning, and Houston took the opening game of the series, 6 to 3. Barnabe was accorded ragged support by the Cubs while the Buff fielding was sensational until the late innings. Score:

Fishing Chats with The Old Angler

Experienced hunters, anglers and other devotees of sports afield are a happy and enthusiastic lot who know woodcraft and campcraft, observe the fish, game and forest laws and insist upon others doing so. But each season brings thousands of itinerants into the clans of the angling fraternity and amateurs are now casting about for helps and aids which will help them creel the lunker trout just like the experts do.

You will be lucky if you happen to be invited to attach yourself to a veteran angling party. Then you will imitate the brookwise veterans and in no time you will be casting flies and lures as niftily as the old timers and landing worthwhile trout.

In case you stage your trouting alone about the first question you will be asking is, "Do I need a guide?"

You are perfectly safe no matter how deep you go into the wilds in most any part of the country, but in strange sections if you want real fishing a native guide is about as necessary as is a doctor in case of sickness. Your first trip to strange streams or lakes, if staged with a reliable native woodsman, is quite likely to prove the wise plan.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THAT BIG FELLOW Bill Shores is going to be a mighty valuable asset to the Spudders in their fight for the second half pennant. Shores showed just what to expect of him when he toiled a few innings Thursday in a relief role. Going into the pastime with two out and a runner on base, Shores walked the first batter who faced him. He then retired the remaining 10 Shreveport Sports in order. Bill was one of the foremost pitchers in the Texas league last season, and indications are that he is better than ever this year. A sojourn with Connie Mack's Athletics part of this campaign should have helped Bill develop the undoubted pitching talent he possesses.

Talent. That big boy has plenty of it. He has a pitching move reminiscent of Christy Mathewson; a free-armed, full-body sweep that is easy on the arm. He has speed and curves and control. Bill has every attribute essential to a great pitcher. Indeed, Connie Mack thought so highly of Shores that only his friendship for J. Alvin Gardner finally caused him to send the young man here on option to aid the Spudders' pennant fight.

THE SPUDDERS look mighty sweet to me. Their only weakness is a tendency toward erratic play at critical moments. That, I believe, is due largely to the frequent shifts in the lineup necessitated by injuries to players. Now that Benton is ready to resume his post at shortstop, all the ill and ailing are fit and if the gang can go along with no further mishaps their defensive work will improve accordingly. And there is nothing the matter with their hitting, and the pitching, on the whole, is all that can be asked for.

LACOSTE WINS TENNIS CROWN

Rene Beats Cochet in Four Sets for World Title

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6. (UP)—Rene Lacoste became the acknowledged ruler of the tennis world today when he vanquished Henri Cochet in the all-French final of the men's singles in the all-England tennis chnampionships.

Lacoste completely outplayed last year's titleholder to win a comparatively easy victory, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2. It was no such match as Lacoste and Tilden put up in the semi-finals. Cochet lost all control of his game and failed to rise to his unusually sensational heights in a crisis.

Misfortune continued to dog at the heels of the United States men players and another American representative was eliminated when Francis T. Hunter and Helen Wills lost to P. D. B. Spence of South Africa and Elizabeth Ryan of California in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles. The scores were 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The United States, however, is practically assured of one title as no one questions Miss Wills' ability to defeat Senorita de Alvarez of Spain in the final of the women's singles, Saturday. Last year the California girl defeated the Spanish star, 6-2, 6-4, in the final.

Bonner, Duncan Score Golf Wins

J. S. S. Bonner, the defending champion, advanced to the fourth round in the all-city golf tournament when he defeated W. F. Weldon, 1 up, in one of the most sensational matches played in the meet to date. J. C. Wynne eliminated T. P. Duncan, Jr., also by 1 up, in another brilliant contest, also in the championship flight.

E. W. Meyer disposed of O. M. Daniel, 4 and 3, in the second flight and Allen Rowen defeated C. E. Allen, 9 up and 7, in the fifth flight.

The tournament is on the course of Golf and Country club.

California, Yale Meet In Olympic Rowing Final

PHILADELPHIA, July 6. (UP)—California and Yale will meet in the final of the Olympic rowing tryouts on the Schuylkill river here Saturday for the right to represent the United States in the Olympic games.

California's husky crew defeated Columbia by half a length in one semi-final today, covering the 2000 meters in 5 minutes, 20 3-5 seconds.

Yale previously had beaten Princeton in the other semi-final by a length in the fast time of 5:18 4-5. Princeton's time was 5:19 2-5, faster than California's in winning the other semi-final.

WUXTRY! WUXTRY!

Stevenson Announces He Still Is President Of West Texas

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 6. (AP)—J. McAllister Stevenson of Abilene, ousted from the office of West Texas league president by league directors, announced today that he would continue as president. He ordered E. E. Lowrie of San Angelo, elected to succeed him, to send a detailed report of Lowrie's actions the past two weeks as "purported president."

Stevenson declared that he had the backing of Mike Sexton, president of the National association of minor baseball leagues. Lowrie ignored the wire.

Stevenson also assessed each club $350 as its share of the league expenses and ordered all umpires to report to him at Abilene for instructions.

Ritt's Riticisms

By BILL RITT

Baseball will never be popular in England. It would interfere too much with tea.

What Americans will never understand is why a nation that has not got prohibition should spend 4 o'clock any place but on a brass rail.

All Englishman were in the midst of their cups when the world war broke out. Everybody got so excited the nation almost choked.

The army threw aside its wafers and adjusted monocles. The navy abandoned its cups and dropped its haitches. England was ready.

That's where Germany made a mistake. The kaiser stopped for a second stein of beer. He hadn't dried his mustache before the British were in the trenches.

For the next four years England battled for the right to guzzle orange pekoe in peace. It was a battle for the freedom of the tea.

The Yanks entered the scrap to make the world safe for coffee. It was before they realized the importance of ginger ale.

Today the kaiser makes a living chopping wood. The next time he starts a war he will wait until after supper.

Wykoff Ties Record in 100-Metre Final as Paddock Fails to Qualify

Claude Bracey of Rice Lands Place As Olympic Sprinter in One of Greatest Dash Contests Ever Held

By FRANK GETTY

HARVARD STADIUM, CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6. (UP)—A Blonde-topped flash through the fading twilight in Harvard stadium, Frank Wykoff, a California schoolboy, showed the way to America's veterans of the cinder path in the finals of the greatest sprint series ever contested.

Moving up with every stride as the final sextet in the Olympic 100-meters dash tore down the straightaway into the vast chasm of cheers at the finish, the 18-year-old youngster from Glendale High school flung his powerful body against the tape a full yard ahead of the pack.

Behind him, straining every stride for the places which meant a chance to represent the United States on the running track at Amsterdam, five other finalists in this most dramatic of sprints finished as one man.

When the judges had sorted them out, literally counting by noses, it was found that Bob McAllister, the New York veteran, once known as the "Flying Cop" and a former Metropolitan sprint champion, had placed second, with Henry Russell, the tall Cornell runner, third and Claude Bracey, the Rice institute flyer, fourth.

Equals Olympic Record

Wykoff's victory in the 100-meter dash marked the completion of the one final Olympic tryout decided today. The youngster's time was 10 3-5, which equals the Olympic record. He won all four heats this afternoon in similar time.

Simultaneous with the school boy's triumph came the passing of Olympic heroes of the past decade, Charley Paddock, once called the "fastest Human," who was last in his semi-final heats; Frank Hussey, who won Olympic fame as a school boy himself in 1924, and Jackson V. Scholz, the only American winner of a flat race at Paris four years ago, who was shut out in that desperate driving finish in which Wykoff was crowned the country's sprint king.

The Far West's representatives showed to advantage in the other trials held this afternoon, the finals of which were reserved for tomorrow.

Ross Nichols of Stanford equalled the world record of 14 4-5 seconds in winning his semi-final heat in the 110-meter high hurdles. Bud Houser of the Los Angeles A. C. hurled the discus beyond the best efforts of his competitors in the trials of this event. "Sandy" Brix of Washington showed the boys a few tricks with the 16-pound shot. In every event the Olympic selections committee was forced to turn its eyes speculatively westward in summing up the athletic strength of the nation.

Southern Athletes Star

The south, too, gave promise of placing a number of sterling athletes aboard the President Roosevelt when that vessel sails for Amsterdam next Wednesday. Young Eddie Hamm, the Georgia Tech broad jumper, leaped a full foot farther than the rest in leading the qualifiers in his specialty.

Lloyd Hahn of Nebraska and the B. A. A., swinging easily around the final turn and "coasting" down the straightaway, lowered the American record for 800 meters in winning his trial heat, but the temperamental middle distance star obviously was saving his real effort for Saturday.

The Nebraskan's time was 1:53 1-5, bettering the mark on the record books by 3-10 of a second. Hahn did even better than this, however, a fortnight ago in Yankee stadium, and with a fast track for the finals he may erase Dr. Otto Peltzer's world record of 1:51 3-5.

A steady downpour of rain which began at 7 p. m. Thursday and did not let up until a few hours before the trials were scheduled to start caused the Olympic committee to decide upon an hour's delay. Once the games got under way, it was apparent that the interest of the 7000 spectators, as well as that of the waiting nations, centered upon the dramatic contest for places in the 100-meter dash.

Great Field

When you gather together a field of sprinters in which Karl Wildermuth, Howard Jones, Johnny Harwood, Al Miller, Eban Draper, Chet Bowman, Folwell Scull, Frank Lombardi and their like cannot event get to first base, you have some conception of what went on this long afternoon within they grey shadows of Harvard stadium.

There were six trial heats, three quarter-finals, two semi-finals and the sensational finish. This meant Wykoff and those who survived to meet him in the final dash had to run four times down those soggy cinders, and had to run within a fraction of record time to keep from being eliminated.

The echoes of the first sounding gun had scarcely mingled with the uproar of cheers at the finish before George Simpson of Ohio State had swept aside the tape, winner of the first heat in 10 3-5, Olympic record time.

Bracey Wins Second

There was no time to spare cheers for the winner, after the first uproar. "Pow!" went the starter's pistol shot, reverbrating through the sloping arena, and Claude Bracey, the Texas Express, flitted across the finish line to equal Simpson's time in the second heat.

Then the big "G" on young Wykoff's broad chest brushed the ribbon from the judge's hands in the third heat, and once more leather-lunger Johnny Hallahan announced: "Time—10 3-5 seconds!"

Charley Paddock, in his gaudily striped pants, came rushing up out of the hurtling pack to win the fourth heat, and that other old Olympic veteran Jackson Scholz, accounted for the fifth. "Truck" Miller's brawny frame showed in front in the sixth heat, and they all went back, all that were left of them, to try it all over again in the second round.

Once again simpson, Bracey and Wykoff showed flying scornful heels to the famous sprinters of the country. Little Jimmy Quinn, the inter-collegiate champion, who had been coming faster all the time, then stepped out to win the first semi-final heat, in which Scholz and Bracey finished shoulder to shoulder with Charley Paddock a whisker behind and so eliminated.

Wykoff, McAllister and Russell survived in the other semi-final heat and then, after the trials in the other events had been conducted and the sunset's glow slanted in through the arches of the colonnade, the sextet which had survived the sternest spring test ever imposed went to the starting line to have it out.

Wykoff to Front

At 50 metres the long striding Wykoff began to forge to the front. McCallister challenged and then Bracey, but the California schoolboy would not be denied, and with a rush which opened daylight between himself and the others he dove at the tape. The others in that final spectacular swoop which forecasts something akin to a clean sweep at Amsterdam fought desperately for the remaining three places.

When the judges unscrambled them, McAllister, Russell and Bracey were named to join young Wykoff aboard the S. S. Roosevelt.

The survivors in the 110-metre hurdles who will meet in the finals Saturday afternoon are Leighton Dye, Los Angeles A. C., Johnny Collier of Brown, Steve Anderson of the University of Washington, Carl Ring, veteran timber topper of the New York A. C., and Ross Nichols, he who equalled the world's and Olympic records in winning his semi-final heat.

Ten Survive 800 Metres

Opposing Lloyd Hahn in the finals of the 800 metres run there will be nine other survivors of the three trial heats of the afternoon. The Nebraskan won the first, with Johnny Burton of Utah, running as though 17 wives were after him, second, and George Leness of the B. A. A., third. Earl Fuller, another Californian, took the second scramble, with Billy Gest of Kentucky, second and Billy McGeagh of Los Angeles, third. Fuller's time, 1:53 2-5 also bettered the best accepted American time for the 800 metres run. Ray Watson, Illinois A. C., won the third heat from Virgil Gist of Chicago university, with Russell Chapman, B. A. A., and John Sitting, Chicago A. A., in a dead heat for third place. Other qualifiers who will compete in the finals Saturday were:

1500-meter run—Sid Robinson, N. Y. A. C.; Rufus Kiser, Washington U.; Emmett Brunson, Rice institute; Orval Martin, Purdue; Ray Conger, Illinois A. C.; Willie McKniff, West Philadelphia Catholic high school; Joseph Sivak, Butler university; Galen Elliott, University of North Carolina, and Nick Carter, Los Angeles A. C.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP)—Rather sharp early advances in the cotton market today were followed by irregularity and nervousness, October contracts selling off from 22.80 and closing at 22.52, compared with 22.13 at the close the previous day. The general market closed barely steady, at net advances of 9 to 13 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 17 to 25 points on overnight buying orders attracted by the firmness yesterday and some additonal buying brought in by relatively firm Liverpool cables. This initial demand was promptly supplied by realizing and prices lost the greater part of the advance in the first few minutes, but soon firmed up again on reports of showers or rains in some parts of the eastern belt, which some traders thought might possibly be the forerunner of unsettled conditions over Sunday.

For a time the market showed considerable strength, buying being stimulated by continued reports of boll weevil infestation in the south. Prices worked up to 22.63 for December and 22.45 for January, or about 35 to 39 points net higher on new crop months, while July sold 19 to 20 points above yesterday's closing quotations. As prices approached the previous high record, however, offerings increased, and the market weakened again during the afternoon under realizing or liquidation, probably in preparation for the week-end or the government acreage report expected Monday.

Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest for the day.

Private cables reported local and Bombay buying, combined with trade calling and covering in the Liverpool market, but that buyers of cotton cloths were cautious with Manchester inactive, and with yarn production curtailed.

Exports today were 13.105 bales, making 7.550.959 so far this season. Port receipts today 7071. U. S. port stocks 810,075.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 6. (AP)—Early advances of $2 a bale were not fully maintained in the cotton market today owing to a desire of traders to liquidate in advance of the government's acreage report due Monday. October contracts, after advancing to 22.23 during the morning, eased off later to 21.93 and closed at 21.96, compared with 21.86 at yesterday's close. The general market closed steady, 10 to 12 points net higher.

Liverpool cables were 10 to 13 penny points better than due and the market here opened steady in response. First trades showed gains of 15 to 17 points and prices continued to advance after the start until October contracts reached 22.05 and December 21.97, or 19 to 20 points above the previous close. This bulge attracted the usual profit-taking by early buyers which was absorbed at a setback of 8 to 11 points.

Later in the morning the market strengthened again when the detailed weather report showed considerable rain in the eastern belt. Good trade buying developed and was further stimulated by fears of damage to the young crop by recent hot winds in the west. Before the demand was supplied October sold up to 22.23 and December 22.17, or 38 to 39 points and practically $2 a bale above the previous close.

Around mid-session the market turned reactionary under the general liquidation brought on by a desire to even up commitments in advance of Monday's acreage report. In the afternoon prices continued to ease and October made a new low at 21.93, or 30 points under the day's high. There was a slight rally at the end and October closed at 21.95 and December 21.90, or 10 to 12 points net up.

Stock Market Volume Drops Below 2,000,000 Mark in Erratic Session

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 6.—Fear of an advance in the Chicago rediscount rate frustrated efforts to put the stock market higher today.

General Motors and other speculative favorites of the bull groups were churned in a lively manner at intervals but it was found too difficult to attract a following and the moves petered out rather quickly so that most stocks closed net lower. Simmons was one of the few stocks to consistently move higher during the session.

Volume fell off to less than the 2,000,000 share level and while there appeared an abundance of funds for all purposes, call money held at 5½ per cent throughout.

The foreign exchange market firmed up somewhat as better reports of trading abroad were received.

Cotton rallied quite strongly on favorable weather news. Wheat added a little to its climb in an otherwise irregular commodity market.

An increasing number of traders are adopting a policy of buying stocks that go through the "old highs." In other words they are influenced by belief that only "good buying" would produce such results. Every pool manager in the street knows of such opinion and tries to benefit therefrom so that the result is more people become involuntary investors because they bought in new high ground than profit from such operation.

When pools have a stock or options well below the market it always pays on the average to "clean up the book" or take all the stock offered at the old high and thereby effect a new peak price. The outside participation attracted is a great help to pool liquidation and the new peak in most instances remains the record high for a long time.

Those working to get the general public back in the market kept General Motors as their favorite but were active again in Montgomery Ward, Sears, Nickel and Combustion. One group of bull leaders also adopted more aggressive tactics in Simmons, coincident with the issuance of special analysis which was told of here last week.

Operations, growth and prospects of Simmons were outlined and in conclusion it was estimated that the net for the first half of the year was more than $2 a share. The forecast was made that the net for the year would run between $5 and $7 a share without benefit from new machinery installations to be financed from the recent sale of additional stock.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 6.—All the grains except corn sold down hopelessly today. The wheat futures broke a couple of cents and the rye futures more than 1c. The close was around the bottom in most cases.

Wheat was down 2c to 2⅛c; rye was down 1⅛c to 1⅜c.

Wheat opened weak and lower. All through the session liquidation of long wheat appeared to be under way. Hedging sales added to the weight put upon the market and there was not enough buying to absorb the offerings without price recessions.

The market was a sick-looking affair that seldom showed even momentary spasm of strength. Most of the buying appeared to be in the nature of short covering that tended to weaken the undertone. Corn has been holding remarkably well in the face of the weakness in wheat. To the country trade, in close proximity to the growing corn crop, the price probably looks high.

What the outcome of the deal in the July future will be seems questionable. Corn taken in on July contracts may be hard to hedge in September at a satisfactory price.

The strength in all the corn futures seems to turn largely upon an oversold condition of the market. But on a decline the market might change its character in this respect by easing the position of shorts and making the position of longs more troublesome.

Rye acts sick.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1c off; so was corn; oats were unchanged; rye was weak; barley was steady.

STOCK-A-DAY

CHICAGO, INDIANAPOLIS & LOUISVILLE RAILWAY COMPANY—5 YEAR RECORD.

The Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway company is controlled by the Louisville & Nashville and by the Southern Railway companies and operates about 650 miles of railroad between Chicago and Indianapolis and from Michigan City to Louisville. It has traffic rights into each of these four cities. It also has several branches in Indiana, and operates a through passenger service to Cincinnati in connection with the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western. Its two main lines intersect at Monon, Ind., and this has given the name Monon route to the company.

Since 1902 it has been controlled jointly by the Louisville & Nashville and the Southern railway, which use it as a means of access to the Chicago district. About two-thirds of its freight consists of bituminous coal.

Operating revenues have increased about 50 per cent between 1919 and 1927. Earnings have been more variable. There was a deficit of over $1,100,000 in 1920, followed by more substantial earnings. Net income in 1927 amounted to $1,566,332, or the equivalent of $31.33 a share on the preferred, and $13.02 a share on the common. This compares with $1,689,640 in 1926. The road and equipment at the end of 1927 was carried at $51,356,000.

Funded debt totals $29,542,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of $5,000,000 in four per cent noncumulative preferred shares of $100 par, and $10,500,000 in common shares of $100 par. The L. & N. and the Southern hold $1,936,700 of the preferred and $4,903,450 of common apiece.

Dividends have been paid at the regular rate since 1900. On the common stock seven per cent was paid, including two per cent extra. On January 10, 1928, 3½ per cent, including one per cent extra, was distributed.

As of January 1, 1928, total current assets were $3,083,362; current liabilities 3,919,520, and excess of current liabilities over current assets was $836,158. Book value applicable to the common stock amounted to $172.73 a share.

LESS WORK IN PERMIAN BASIN

Locations Drop From 47 To 14 in Week

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 6.—Locations for new oil tests in the Permian basin of West Texas slumped last week to 14, after 47 had been made the week before. This, however, increased the number for four weeks to 153, still a record number for a similar period.

Eight of the locations last week were in Winkler county, six of them by Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company. Jones county gained two and Concho, Crane, Howard and Pecos counties each gained one. Corrections in the locations of two Pecos county wells were made.

Speed in Concho

J. E. Beall of Brownwood on June 20 spudded No. 1 W. O. Schultz in Concho county and early this week had drilled to 950 feet in broken lime and shale. The test is 1980 feet from the north and west lines of section 95, block 71, H. & G. N. Railway company survey, about three miles west of Millersview. It is about three-quarters of a mile from the nearest earlier Schultz wildcat in which a showing of oil was obtained. More than half a dozen tests have been drilled on the Schultz ranch and in each some oil has been struck around 1400 feet, though none developed production. O. G. Windsor has the contract to drill the Beall No. 1 Schultz to 1500 feet. The Brownwood operator has 1400 acres under lease.

J. W. Grant has rigged up to deepen his No. 6 W. W. Turney in Pecos county, which several years ago was completed temporarily and dry at 3527 feet. It has an elevation of 2592 feet. The well is 500 feet from the south and east lines of section 19, block 140, T. & St. L. Ry. company survey.

Howard county's location was made by the Ward Oil company for No. 2 Dora Roberts, 2310 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the west line of section 137, block 29, W. & N. W. Ry Co. survey.

Gulf in Crane

In Crane county, Gulf Production company made the location for No. 53 McElroy, 1442 feet from the north line and 2310 feet from the east line of section 201, block F, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Ry Co. survey.

One of Jones county's locations was made by Phillips Petroleum company for its No. 2 Sharp 182 feet from the north line and 965 feet from the west line of the lease in section 14, block 19, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. It is due east of Phillips' No. 1 Sharp. The other Jones county location was Robert Oil company's No. 3 Grayson, 300 feet from the south line and 1301 feet from the east line of the lease in section 13, block 19, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

In Winkler county, Landreth Production company made a location for No. 4-B Hendrick, 2200 feet from the north line and 330 feet from the east line of section 40, block 26, public school land. Skelly Oil company made a location for No. 11 Hendrick, 1320 feet from the south line and 1650 feet from the east line of section 40, block 26, public school land.

COTTON MEN FORM COUNCIL

Bankers and Merchants To Aid Farmer

NEW ORLEANS, July 6. (AP)—To bring relief to the cotton producer in the form of a fair monetary return on his investment, delegates from the 11 cotton producing states in the South and representing bankers, merchants and farm organizations, today formed a permanent organization here to be known as the Southwide Cotton council. The council's purpose is to aid the cotton producer in dealing with crop and marketing conditions with profitable price stabilization the objective.

Formation of the conference is the outgrowth of a southwide conference held at Jackson, Miss., last January at the call of Gov. Dan Moody of Texas. The conference appointed a committee to draft a program of action at a subsequent meeting in Memphis. This committee's report will be received by the council for final action.

Stability Urged

Judge C. E. Thomas of Montgomery, superintendent of banks in Alabama, temporary chairman of the council, set today's meeting in motion with a resume of activities since the movement was initiated. Pointing out the disparity of returns to a family of five laboring in cotton fields as compared with gains from other lines of endeavor, Judge Thomas declared it was up to the bankers and merchants' associations and allied organizations to aid in the movement to bring the south back to stability.

Former Lieut. Gov. T. W. Davidson of Texas declared the south was "sold" on the purpose of the council but feared the present effort was merely a repetition of predecessors, all of which met failure. A part of the council's activities, Mr. Davidson said, is to convince the farmer that this movement is in earnest.

Reviewing the cotton producer's plight since 1920, Mr. Davidson declared there is small wonder that the south is near bankruptcy.

Deplores Price Changes

"No industry," he declared, "can survive under the price fluctations cotton has been subjected to since 1921 when in that year alone the market fell 30 cents between the time of planting and harvesting. We must revert to the old law of self preservation if we expect to accomplish anything for ourselves as well as the farmers."

C. S. Holland, a Houston, Texas, banker, declared in his state the diversification slogan had been dropped in favor of "live at home."

Clarence M. Ousley of Dallas, said failure of farm organizations to act in behalf of the farmer at the present crucial moment would be an apparent confession of mental inferiority. He is attending the meeting as a representative of the East Texas Bankers' association.

Wichitans Guests Of Electra Lions

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, July 6.—A splendid patriotic program was enjoyed at the weekly luncheon of the Lions club of this city Thursday noon. Lions H. E. Wilson and Bill Davenport and J. A. Hood of Wichita Falls and Lions Hudson and White, president and secretary of the Iowa Park club, were present and were introduced by R. P. Hall. The program was as follows:

"America," led by R. P. Hall, with Miss Letrice Woffard at the piano; invocation by Rev. H. E. Anderson; patriotic reading by Miss Margaret Owens; talk on "Our Flag," by Ben W. Tipton. Stressing the teaching of reverence to the flag to the younger generation was the outstanding feature of Mr. Tipton's talk.

During the business session an invitation was read from the Seymour club to that city's charter night banquet. G. R. Davidson, president; Neil Sparks, secretary; W. A. Asbill, vice president, and E. E. Rogers, tail twister, made up the Electra delegation which attended. Plans were made for members of the club to repair the Lions club park which was damaged by the storms of the past few weeks. G. J. Gilles, past secretary, was appointed to act as secretary in the absence of Neil Sparks, who leaves Sunday to represent Electra and this district inter-city association at the convention which meets in Des Moines, Iowa, next week.

JUNE HOLDS LICENSE LEAD

Marriages Gain, Divorces Lose in Month

Citizens of Wichita county were anxious to get their names in the book of marriages during the month of brides, records in the office of Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, reveal. At the same time there was a slump in the filing of divorce petitions with Eunice Jackson, district clerk.

Apparently people in the county were more contented with marriage during June, for only 37 petitions for divorce were filed with the district clerk, while 109 couples decided that two can live more pleasantly when one.

Through June 493 marriage licenses have been issued by Miss Hall during 1928 with the month of brides shattering all records for the year.

During May there were 76 marriage licenses sold in Wichita county, while divorces were sought by 52 persons.

The new models were driven overland from Dallas Friday, and are being shown here today for the first time simultaneously with displays all over the nation.

BOLT QUESTION TO CANDIDATES

Hecklers Ask Speakers How They Will Vote

represented on the stand by his wife.

"W. L. Scott," he continued, "will tell you that he has had 25 years' experience as an attorney, but I ask you, as I asked Mr. Scott, how many criminal cases he had brought to court in that time? None while I have been in the district attorney's office."

Spence Speaks

Sam E. Spence followed Mr. Fruechte.

"Since Fruechte has seen fit to hail himself as Moses, and has taken unto himself all the convictions obtained by the district attorney's office since he has been there for the past 21 months or two years, there seems little left for me to hang on by.

"I ask you to nominate and elect me to the office of district attorney because of those 14 months' more experience I have had in the office.

"As to this crowded docket, Fruechte said the other night in Electra that when he resigned in May there were 20 cases on the docket when he left office. During the time he was in office he tried 25 cases which had been on the docket prior to the time this Moses came to the district attorney's office.

"Fruechte," Mr. Spence continued, "used to pat me on the back and say, 'boy that was fine work we did.' Now it is all 'fine work that I did.'"

Mrs. John B. Rhea, speaking for her husband, outlined his work as an attorney, as county attorney in Knox county and later in Young county, and asked for support of the voters.

W. L. Scott, following Mrs. Rhea, proceeded to pick to pieces the record exhibited by Mr. Fruechte, stopping off to attack the "youthfulness" of the two former assistant district attorneys.

"They really disposed of 177 cases, instead of 300 or more claimed by Mr. Fruechte," he said. "And these were disposed of by having 120 pleas of guilty and 35 suspended sentences."

Other speakers on the evening's program were candidates for constable of precinct 1; justice of the peace, precinct 1, place 2; district clerk; district judge, 78th district court; judge of the county court-at-law; sheriff and tax collector.

GROUP NO. 1 AT IOWA PARK

IOWA PARK, July 6.—Candidates of group No. 1 for Wichita county and district offices subject to the Democratic primary July 28 spoke here Friday night before a crowd of more than 300 people.

C. C. Hudson acted as chairman and introduced the candidates.

Robert K. Crain and Wayne Somerville, candidates for county attorney, led the verbal fireworks with speeches that roused the audience to whoops and cheers of applause more than once during their stand on platform.

The candidates spoke as follows:

For Commissioner of Prec. No.3

G. C. Burgess announced his candidacy and asked for the vote and influence of the voters.

L. L. Kuntz: "I ask you for the office of commissioner because I have served you well in the past."

T. W. McHam: "I invite the public to inspect my record and will appreciate your vote and influence."

Mrs. W. W. Gardner announced her candidacy and asked the support of the voters.

For County Superintendant of Schools

Clyde R. Wofford: "I am a candidate for county superintendent of rural schools because they pay the salary and they are entitled to the undivided attention of the county superintendent. I promise to stay in the office on Saturdays and Mondays and to spend the other four days of the week in supervising education in the rural schools of Wichita county."

J. A. Hood: "I am going to give attention to the independent school districts as well as the rural because when I find youth that is ambitious I am going to do all that I can to encourage him to push his way as far as it is possible for him to do so."

Buri Bryant: "I have been engaged in active school work since I was 18 years of age and I have never had another sideline except cotton picking in the fall before school opened. I believe that few men in Texas have had more rural school experience than I or are better versed on the subject of supervision of rural education."

For Tax Assessor

B. L. Trevatham: "My platform is honesty. I want the office for the money that it pays."

Everett Hughes: "With my experience I believe that I will make as good a tax assessor as any one and I intend to try to get more tax reduction."

N. A. Moore: "If any other candidate has done more work or climbed through more fences, then I will ask you to vote for him."

Max Shumake announced his candidacy and asked the votes and influence of the audience.

Mark Banta: "If I am elected to the office I assure you that it will be run straight."

R. S. Dunaway: "I haven't lost a day at my work in five years and I will try to make you the best assessor that I can."

For District Judge of the 89th Court

P. A. Martin: "Regardless of the outcome of the approaching election I wish to thank the voters of this county for their courtesy and support in the past years. I wish to be in the position where I can do the most good for the people. I gave up a job that paid me a salary three times as great as this to serve the people of Wichita county as district judge. My opponent is one of the brightest young men of the bar in Wichita Falls; he says that he will speed up things in the court room, but the office is too serious to hurry through cases. The only question between us is whether you will have age and experience or whether you desire youth, inexperience and ambition."

Harry Bunnenberg: "Judge Martin has been your judge for eight years and it seems to me that the voters of this county have been generous to him. I am young in years and not so old in experience, but I have spent a number of years in preparing myself to hold the office. Ask any representative group of lawyers in Wichita Falls whether or not I am capable. If I am not qualified to hold the office I do not want your vote. I will not hurry through cases, but I will make the time-killing lawyer step up to the bar and deliver or the case shall be dismissed."

For County Attorney

Robert K. Crain: "Somerville bases his claim for election upon his record in office and since he invites criticism I think that I am just in exposing his past record. I invited him to meet me in a public discussion of his administration but he did not reply. Now, Mr. Somerville, I want you to tell these people tonight just why it is Wichita county spent $20,000 in hiring outside lawyers to dispatch its business while the county attorney was doing a wholesale divorce business. The truth may hurt but it won't hurt me."

W. E. Wilson: "I have nothing to say against any of my opponents. I think that you will be justified in believing any thing that either of them say against the other. My record is that of an average lawyer but I can do the work and I will do my best to give you competent and efficient service."

Wayne Somerville: "I have been here for 28 years and I did not learn until a few days ago that a poor county attorney I have been. The only case on which a woman received the full fine in a vagrancy trial in my court was contested by Mr. Crain. I would rather have a man go back to his wife than to put him in jail. That is why I have proceeded in the manner which I have. Why did not Mr. Crain ask me to meet him in public discussion of his record and mine and let the voters be the judge rather than just to discuss mine? I have given attention to the office. He says that I have cost the county $40,000 but I have turned in more money to the county than any other county attorney."

Bill Davenport: "My opponents are capable men and it is not my policy to dig up their private or or personal records. I will be satisfied with your verdict. I am qualified to hold the office and I invite your inspection, furthermore I will prosecute violations of the liquor law in the 78th district court and that is more than my predecessors have done."

For County Judge

P. B. Curd: "I will conduct the business of the court in a business manner."

E. W. Nicholson: "The business of the county court has been conducted right during my administration."

T. P. Marrs: "The man who is most capable to fill the position should be your next judge."

Representative, District No. 111

Dr. Joseph Graves: "I have had sufficient and as much experience as any of my opponents. I do not know what I will do when I get to Austin and neither of my opponents do but I think that the men there should be the watch dogs of your treasury."

R. J. Long: "In hearing political speeches you are supposed to believe what you want to. Of the three running for representative none of us is competent of holding the position. I would withdraw from the race if a competent man did enter. I am a Democrat because I am for the rule of the people. If I am elected I will be responsible to no political group but my only and chief interest will be the voters of Wichita county and on any bill upon which I do not think the voter receives 100 cents on the dollar will not receive my vote."

GOTHAM HAILS 'LADY LINDY'

Tribute and Homage Paid Amelia Earhart

NEW YORK, July 6. (UP)—Along the canyon-like path made famous by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his feminine counterpart moved today to an enthusiastic welcome.

New York paid proud tribute to Amelia Earhart and the homage only increased when the first woman to fly the Atlantic attempted to turn honors from herself to her two male companions on the flight—Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon.

"Please, forget I'm a woman. It was Wilmer and Lou—," she cried while the click of cameras and the greetings of the crowd drowned out her voice. "I was only a passenger—"

But her protests availed her nothing and the shouts were all for "Lady Lindy" while the procession moved on to City Hall park; while Acting Mayor McKee greeted them; while they moved away to more receptions tonight. Stultz and Gordon apparently were quite content to have it that way and they grinned happily throughout the reception.

Tonight Miss Earhart was the guest of honor at a reception and attended a benefit performance at the Palace theater for the American delegation to the Olympic games in Amsterdam.
