Tuesday update

Inspection Underway

WASHINGTON (AP)—The eight domestic airlines flying DC-10s, told to inspect engine mounts of 134 of the jets or ground them, moved quickly to meet today's federally imposed deadline. Little disruption seemed to result for the nation's air travelers.

Arms, Aid On Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House will act this week on aid for Israel and Egypt and on a new missle system but not on President Carter's oil price decontrol plan, which begins Friday. The House will take no action to block the plan, which allows U.S. oil prices to rise in phases, despite an overwhelming Democratic Caucus vote against it.

Agreement Threatened

PEKING (AP)—The U.S.-China trade agreement was threatened today as the Chinese balked at limits on textile exports to the United States and Trade Ambassador Robert Strauss gave them until Thursday to accept the American demands. Strauss was meeting today with Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping Teng Hsiao-ping and Foreign Minister Huang Hua in an attempt to solve the impasse. He said the chances of agreement were "iffy."

Closer to Peace

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel and Egypt took more steps toward peace today as Israeli Navy ships prepared to sail through the Suez Canal for the first time in history, and President Anwar Sadat invited foreign airlines to begin flying between Cairo and Tel Aviv at once.

There's something about S.I. Hayakawa that leads us to believe that he is not all bad. In fact, the 72 year-old junior senator from California has made sense with some of his statements over the years, despite the fact that he is depicted by many as being on the verge of senility if not already out of it.

He has attracted nation-wide attention several times since being elected to the U.S. Senate, but his career as an unusual public figure began long before he reached Washington, D.C. We recall his reign as president of San Francisco State College during the days when a lot of unusual happenings were taking place in San Francisco. Some of his statements then dismayed a lot of liberals and especially some of the minority groups. But he could get away with it because he was of Japanese descent himself, which made him one of the many minorities in that area.

He is occasionally accused of sleeping through committee sessions in Washington, something that might actually benefit the nation if more of the legislators did it instead of cooking up new agencies and regulations. His recent statement concerning the gasoline shortage—that prices should go high enough that the poor can't buy it because they are not working—brought a new landslide of criticism.

Sen. Hayakawa reportedly responded with a statement that he was being facetious and that he thought the statement was so ridiculous that nobody would take it seriously.

If he does indeed doze off as much as some of his critics claim, Sen. Hayakawa may set a record for stimulating lively comments by sleeping. He regularly furnishes grist for the humor mills of Johnny Carson, the sometime host of television's Tonight Show, who apparently sees no incongruity in drawing a salary reported to be as much as $5 million a year for working less than half-time while firing barbs at oil company profits.

The capacity of the so-called 10-gallon hat actually is about three-quarters of a gallon.

The nest of a bald eagle found in Vermilion, Ohio, was 12 feet deep and weighed over two tons.

Stars do not always star in the major league baseball all-star game. For example: Mickey Mantle, a hall-of-famer, holds the record for striking out the most—17 times in 16 games—and another famous Yankee of old, Yogi Berra, hit only .195 in 15 all-star games.

Finance Bill Tailored To Avoid Clement's Veto

AUSTIN (AP)—The Legislature has approved a public school finance bill tailored to avoid a veto by Gov. Bill Clements by limiting cost-of-living raises for teachers to 5.1 percent a year.

Clements repeatedly has spoken out against giving teachers higher pay increases than other state employees.

The finance bill would raise state aid to public schools by $967 million over the next two years.

The Senate approved a proposal worked out by a Senate-House conference committee, 29-2, and the House accepted the report, 85-52.

The raise provided by the bill fits within Clements' guidelines, but it angered teachers, who wanted more. Teachers packed the House gallery to cheer legislators who tried unsuccessfully to reopen the state budget bill to find more money for teacher salaries.

"We put everything into the salary schedule that was available to us," said Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, chairman of the Senate conferees.

Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland, said the teacher pay hike was a "disappointment" because it was not higher, but he knew Clements

Griffin Resigns As Principal Here

Joel Griffin, principal of Stanfield Elementary School, has announced his resignation. Griffin said that he had decided to take early retirement after considering such a move for several months.

He began his career as a public school educator here in 1951 and has been in the Snyder School system since that year.

Griffin said he had no immediate plans, but that he has property in Callahan County, where he and Mrs. Griffin were reared, and that he probably will "run a few cattle down there."

"I have enjoyed my association with the schools and I have nothing but a warm feeling for Snyder Public Schools and the people of Snyder," Griffin said.

Griffin's first assignment here in 1951 was as a sixth grade teacher, a year later he became the first elementary school physical education teacher in the Snyder system. He then was named principal of the upper grades of the Central Elementary School, which in the early fifties had primary grades in the Central building and the upper grades in the Travis Junior High building. When all grades were combined at Central, he became the principal and then in 1956 was transferred to the principal's position at West Elementary. He moved on the Stanfield Elementary 13 years ago.

Reception For Bostick Tomorrow

Horrace Bostick, who is retiring as Snyder High School principal, will be honored with a reception from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday at 2903 36th St. Hosting the reception will be the faculty of Snyder High School, and all friends of Bostick have been invited. Bostick has been associated with Snyder Public Schools for the past 28 years.

School Bill Effects Here Uncertain

Snyder School officials were uncertain this morning about the effect the school finance bill passed at Austin last night will have on the local district.

It was not clear, said Supt. Bill J. Hood, whether budget-balanced districts such as Snyder would be included in the reimbursement funds approved state-wide for tax reductions. In fact, it appeared that rather than actual reductions the reimbursement might merely mean that tax demands on the districts would not go quite so high as they would have otherwise.

As for salaries, Hood said the Snyder district would wait for the state schedule to be compiled before taking any action locally. The legislature approved a 5.1 percent increase, but also added some step increases that had not been included before.

Clements Gives Legislature 'B'

AUSTIN (AP)-The 66th Legislature ended its regular session Monday with a "B" report card from Gov. Bill Clements but low marks from the Texas Consumer Association.

Lawmakers finished their major tasks hours before the constitutionally mandated mid-night adjournment, avoiding the usual last-minute crush of activity.

With little debate they passed and sent to Clements bills that:

-Appropriate $20.2 billion to run state government over the next two years, a 29.8 percent increase over the current budget.

-Boost state aid to school districts by $967 million, about a third of which will be spent on 5.1 percent cost-of-living raises for school teachers each of the next two years.

-Carry out all provisions of the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment, including a school tax freeze for elderly Texans and repeal of property taxes on personal cars. Both the disabled and persons 65 and older will have $15,000 of the market value of their homes knocked off the school tax rolls. Other homeowners received a $5,000 homestead exemption automatically from the Tax Relief Amendment.

Clements, whose feisty style irritated some legislators as the 140-day session wore on, received standing ovations during courtesy visits to each chamber.

He said he would see law makers again in a special session on his initiative and referendum proposal, which they had cold-shouldered.

But special session won't be soon, he intimated to the House.

"Those of you who have apartments with long term leases, just go ahead and give them up because we are not going to have a quick special session. And I will see you back in Austin before too long," Clements told the laughing, applauding represen-

Ask Us

Q—What would be the savings if the athletic director's position and head football coaching position at Snyder High School were combined into one post like it is in most Class AAA schools?

A—Supt. Bill J. Hood estimates that it would require approximately $4,000 per year less in salary. Under the present system, both the athletic director and the head football coach teach courses in the classroom, which means that combining the positions would not save a full salary.

School Term Winding Down

Snyder Public Schools, now in their final week of the spring term, will dismiss classes at 2:30 p.m. on both Thursday and Friday, it was announced this morning.

Buses will run both days at that time, and Friday will be the last day of classes in all schools. High school commencement is set for Friday night in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Elementary schools will distribute report cards at 2:30 p.m. Friday. High school and junior high students may have their report cards mailed to them if they bring a stamped, self-addressed envelope to school, or they may pick them up at the building during office hours from June 11-15.

Summer office schedules for the various schools have been announced. Elementary principals will be in their respective buildings from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. June 4-13 and June 18-26. The offices of the elementary schools will be reopened Aug. 1 and teachers will report for the beginning of school activities on Monday, Aug. 27.

The secondary schools will observe the 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. summer hours through June 26 and will resume the same hours beginning Aug. 1.

Central administration offices will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. throughout the summer and the school tax office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Motions Being Presented In Dixon Trial

ROBY—Pre-trial motions were being heard this morning in 32nd District Court here in the case of William Clarence Dixon, who is charged with involuntary manslaughter. Dixon was the driver of a truck which was in collision with a McCaulley School bus last Dec. 8 in which five students died and 22 persons were injured.

Barring unforeseen delays, selection of a jury was expected to begin this afternoon.

District Judge Weldon Kird is presiding and District Attorney Frank Ginzel is prosecuting the case. Malcolm Shultz, an Abilene attorney, is Dixon's attorney. His request for a change of venue in the case was denied two weeks ago.

Scientists Say Venus Dynamic, Spectacular

WASHINGTON (AP)-Venus, far from being dull and featureless as many suspected, is a dynamic planet with spectacular terrain and a unique, driving atmosphere, scientists reported today.

In the first complete report on the Pioneer Venus spacecraft missions, scientists said radar images show a mountain higher than Everest, the largest rift valley so far sighted in the solar system and a giant plateau dwarfing any found on Earth.

And the planet that looks like a fuzzy yellow tennis ball because of its thick clouds has a unique circulation system made up of atmospheric layers that drive one another with their motion, scientists say.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled the briefing by Pioneer project scientists at the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union.

Pioneer Venus 1 went into orbit around Earth's sister planet last December and has been sending back radar and other information since then.

Pioneer Venus 2 arrived days later and divided into five atmospheric probes, four of which reached the smoldering 900-degree Fahrenheit surface.

Dr. Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey said images constructed from radar scanning show a 37,000-foot-high mountain, unofficially called Maxwell, that would tower over Earth's largest, the 29,028-foot Everest.

State Bar To Live On

AUSTIN (AP)-Continuation of the State Bar of Texas as both a state agency and an organization to which all lawyers must belong won overwhelming legislative approval Monday.

Gov. Bill Clements was on hand when the House voted 119-22 for the bill extending the life of the bar. He said he will scrutinize it closely before signing or vetoing it.

"I still have a lot of misgivings about it," Clements told reporters.

Senators passed the bill, 30-1, shortly before the House voted. Without the legislation, the bar's existence as a state agency would come to an end in 1980 as a result of the Sunset process.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin a lawyer, spoke against the bill.

"We have applied a double standard to the bar. It hasn't had to operate under the same rules or principles applied to other state agencies," Doggett said.

too many choices

If President Carter is having difficulty coming up with a new policy on Rhodesia (correction, Zimbabwe Rhodesia), it is certainly not due to any shortage of possibilities to choose from.

There's his own of the past two-plus years, which is to maintain diplomatic and economic sanctions against the Salisbury regime and hope that this will eventually pressure it into widening black participation and powers in the coalition government.

There is also the policy of the U.S. Senate, which is on record as overwhelmingly favoring the immediate lifting of sanctions.

And then there is the policy the new British Conservative government is cautiously sidling up to, seeking to deliver on pre-election promises to its own rightwingers to loosen the screws on Salisbury without distancing itself too far from U.S. policy, whatever that may turn out to be.

All involve risks. To continue the hard line would mean U.S. rejection of the black-majority government resulting from the recent elections and ending whatever chance there may be of its effecting changes in the white-written constitution and coming to terms with guerrillas based in Zambia and Mozambique.

On the other hand, instant recognition, Senate-style, may win friends in Salisbury but is certain to lose them throughout the rest of black Africa.

The temptation could be understandably strong to take the third option and just go along with the British, letting them take the lead again in a policy that was, after all, originally designed to support them when they were invited out of Rhodesia back in the '60s by the white minority's unilateral declaration of independence.

The problem is that there is every indication British policy will be slow in developing, or at least in being revealed, London having no desire to stir things up in the area before Queen Elizabeth's scheduled attendance at a Commenwealth conference in Zambia in August.

Washington can't wait that long. Under terms of the congressional authorization, the president must determine by June 15 whether the conduct of the Rhodesian election and the character of the new government warrant lifting or continuing the sanctions.

It is a real test for the policy makers, and whoever said multiple choice was easy?

"Don't let us intimidate you — we're doing a study of feelings of job insecurity among bureaucrats who do funny government studies."

a valuable flower

Art imitates nature, it's said. But here's a case where nature not only imitates an artifact, it goes it one better.

A Japanese scientist reports that an artifically raised variety of the spiderwort plant is an excellent monitor of low-level radiation. It can detect as little as 150 millirems - a unit of measurement with which we have recently had cause to become familiar - and passes on the information by changing the color of its pollen-bearing stamens, from blue to pink.

By comparison, the natural background generates about 100 millirems of radiation a year for the average individual and the federal safety limit for the general public is set at 170 millirems.

The spiderwort is said to be much more sensitive to low-level emissions than mechanical detection devices now in use.

It could be that if nuclear power turns out to be as big a part of our energy future as some post-Three Mile Island proponents continue to assert, the spiderwort could become not merely a pretty roadside flower but a real lifesaver.

rain of iron due

Heavy, heavy hangs over thy head. It's going to rain iron!

That laboratory we have had orbiting in space for six years--85 tons of hardware--will come hurdling toward earth within days.

And NASA and NORAD hasten to assure you there is nothing to worry about; nobody on earth has ever been hit by space junk. But while the experts tell you not to worry--they do.

Hunks of space junk fall back into the earth's atmosphere at the rate of more than one a day--but this inbound Skylab is different.

It weighs 85 tons. It will break up when it hits the earth's atmosphere into 400-maybe 500-pieces which will survive reentry and hit the earth somewhere.

Many of those pieces will weigh more than 200 pounds.

At least one of them, a metal ring that holds two sections together, weighs 5,000 pounds. Another piece, a vault for storing film, weighs 4,000 pounds.

And breaking up bit by bit the bits will rain down along a track 4,000 miles long. Where?

The answer to that question may change between now and reentry day but tentatively NASA calculates that it will come down between latitudes 50 degrees north and 50 degrees south. That includes a lot of ocean--but it also includes Moscow and London and Berlin.

That would appear to leave you in the clear except--

Last April our space-junk trackers predicted that a certain Soviet rocket launched in 1971 would return to earth somewhere in the south Atlantic off Africa. It came down instead in the north Pacific off Alaska.

So from its base in Colorado Springs the North American Air Defense Command is going to try harder to anticipate the ETA and destination of Skylab.

Similarly, NASA is doing some computing on its own.

And if there is not any real fear--any real anxiety--and real official worry about your safety--there is what the Wall Street Journal calls some "fingernail chewing" going on.

Because sure as shootin'--should somebody get hit and hurt by space junk--our professional sky watchers would themselves be blitzed by an outraged media.

Theoretically, there is a greater chance you will get hit by a meteor than by a fragment of Skylab. There is a much greater chance you will be struck by lightning.

Yet disasters resulting from man-made hazards become "political events." So NASA and NORAD and the Federal Preparedness Agency and the Department of Defense, State and Justice are all holding meetings on "What do we do if ?"

The Pentagon already has medical and damage assessment teams standing by, though the earliest skylab is likely to disintegrate and fall is June 20.

A 1972 treaty makes the owner of any spacecraft liable for any damage it causes anywhere in the world. In this case, us.

my turn

Sometimes I wonder what came first, the oil field or the Vienna Sausage. New technology has improved some things but as far as I know the pale little weiners and salty old roughnecks have yet to be replaced. They are both as basic to the oil-patch as the steel-toed shoe or the 24-inch Stillson wrench.

I remember one particularly ornery Irishman I worked with on a drilling rig many summers ago who took his sausage eating seriously. Or maybe he just maintained a better perspective on life than most.

We had been going at it non-stop since our tower began and noon was upon us without the driller showing any signs of breaking for lunch. It had been one of those days when everything we touched tore up. To make matters worse, company brass was everywhere. They were standing around in their gold hard-hats with new gloves sticking out of the back pockets of their clean overalls, and talking quietly, getting in the way and generally making the young driller very edgy.

About 12:30 the Irishman decided it was definitely time for lunch. He dropped his spinning chain walked to the dog-house and begin fixing a sandwich. The driller, somewhat agast by his antic, watched as he popped open a can and commenced fixing himself a diminutive hotdog with the little weiners, lightbread and gobs of mayonnaise. The driller exploded.

"Good grief! A two-bit hand holding up a million dollar operation. What do you think we come out here for? Just so we can eat?"

"I don't know about you," replied the roughneck unruffled by the fireworks. "But that's the only reason I work at all...just so I can eat."

Red didn't always remain calm in tense situations. I remember one stormy night we were going in the hole after a string of pipe we had dropped. He was carrying a relatively fragile and very expensive fishing tool when he slipped on the rain-slick drilling floor and fell to the catwalk some 12 feet below. He did a flip in the air and landed on his feet somehow uninjured and with the fishing tool laying across his lap.

The driller peered over the edge and seeing that he was unhurt, yelled, "Is the fishing tool Okay?"

The Irishman looked up in disbelief and said. "The fishing tool! Is the fishing tool okay? Hell, no the fishing tool ain't okay," and raised it over his head and pounded it down on the catwalk. He was right the fishing tool was not okay.

Failure to communicate is as common in the oil patch as anywhere. L.B. White, owner of White's Testors, tells of a man who once worked for him who had peanutbutter and jelly sandwiches in his lunch almost everyday. One day he threw one down in disgust and said, "I just can't eat another peanutbutter and jelly sandwich."

"Why don't you tell your wife to pack something else for a change," White said he suggested.

"You just leave my wife out of this," he was instructed. "I pack my own lunches."

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Despite the nation's obsession with the need for a continuing flow of imported oil, federal energy officials admit they don't even know the source of a sizeable portion of the United States petroleum imports.

The Department of Energy (DOE) has compiled elaborate statistics identifying the country of origin of the more than 5.61 million barrels daily imported last year from 13 nations affiliated with the Oragnization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The list of non-Opec sources includes five groups of Caribbean islands - the Bahamas, Netherlands Antilles, Trinidad and Tobago, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico - that in 1978 accounted or more than 1.5 million barrels of imports daily, almost 14.1 percent of the total.

But with the exception of Trinidad and Tobago, none of those islands has any significant indigenous petroleum resources. They do, however, have major refineries that receive crude oil from other nations, then ship it to the United States in product form.

Who is supplying the crude petroleum to those refineries? Although that information could be crucial in the event of a future embargo, DOE officials claim they don't know and are reluctant to ask independent nations about the source of their oil.

But that explanation is hardly plausible in the case of either Puerto Rico, a commonweath associated with the United States, or the Virgin Islands, a territorial possession.

Another explanation: "We don't want to know," says a DOE official who claims that during the Arab oil embargo 5½ years ago, some friendly petroleum-producing nations used the Caribbean islands as trans-shipment points to quietly supply this country with badly needed oil.

There's more bad news on the energy front. Even if Congress eventually approves a standby gasoline rationing program, the federal government lacks the capacity to print the necessary rationing coupons.

The Treasury Department's Bureau of Printing and Engraving already is operating "seven days a week, three shifts a day" to meet the country's needs for paper currency and postage stamps, according to a bureau official.

Government experts estimate that a nationwide rationing program would require distribution of 4 8 billion coupons during a three-month emergency, with another 1 6 billion coupons necessary for each additional month.

Even after contracting with two private bank note producers to perform much of the printing job, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving estimates it would have to turn out 600 million coupons a month.

But "we have absolutely no excess capacity," says the bureau official, warning that it might be necessary to "curtail currency production." In other words, the public would get gasoline coupons, but little new money.

Secret Service protection for candidates during next year's presidential campaign probably will cost well in excess of $20 million.

When Secret Service officials appeared recently before a subcommittee for the House Appropriations Committee to request funds for the 1980 fiscal year, they asked for $16 million to protect presidential candidates.

But the fiscal year ends on Sept. 30, 1980, almost five weeks before the election day in early November. An additional $2 million probably will be required to pay for protection during the last month of the campaign.

The official figures also don't include the cost of protecting the president or vice president, since those tasks are financed through separate, permament Secret Service accounts.

Assuming the two incumbents seek reelection, they'll undoubtedly be traveling frequently during the campaign, adding at least another $2 million to the costs of their routine protection.

opinions differ

NEW YORK (AP)— As the stock market enters June, sometimes an uninspired month, opinions on the future of prices are split wide as the Grand Canyon.

Nothing new in this, it's been that way for 15 years, and the fact that the Dow Jones industrial average is no higher than it was in 1964 lends documentation. It tells of a split in opinions, a stalemate.

What is new is that some of those on either side of the split feel that we may not have to wait much longer for the proof of the pudding. That proof, they agree, is in the performance, not the prediction.

On one side of the great divide are those who say the market will now fall into the abyss. Included in the group are some huge institutional traders who, over recent years, have been shunning stocks.

On the other side they're ready to climb the mountain. By 1983 they foresee peaks twice as high as the recent industrial average, which closed last week at 836.37 points, about the same as in June 1964.

On either side they view the same economic probabilities as providing credibility. We are at a watershed, they say. We are headed toward recession. Our red-ink economy is like blood flowing.

One group maintains the economy will be down for the count, or at least they act that way. They're shunning stocks. The other insists a downturn is the long-awaited correction, after which strength returns.

Group one, unfortunately, includes a solid representation of those with the money, which in this age means institutions such as pension and mutual funds. They have avoided investments for short-term deals.

What they are saying, among other things, is that the U.S. economy is too risky for them to commit their billions on a long-term basis. They have preferred to remain liquid, flexibile. In short, ready to run.

However, their running hasn't gotten them far. Union and corporation executives are often distressed by the poor performance of their pension portfolios, especially as inflation dilutes values.

Even when invested in stocks, the funds have done poorly. A review by A.G. Becker Inc. of 371 pension funds found that since 1964 only 22 of every 100 matched or exceeded the Standard and Poor's 500 stock index.

Blame is often placed on the timidity of portfolio managers who under the relatively new prudent man law can be held responsible for investment decisions. They feel caution is more defensible than risk.

Students Present Recital, Receive Awards And Recognition

Piano students of Mrs Virgil Mott were presented in recital Monday evening, May 21, 8 p.m., at the Martha Ann Woman's Club

Following the recital, special recognition was given for outstanding work done during the year and for participation in auditions and competitions

Entering the Lubbock Music Teacher's Association Sonata-Sonatina-Concerto contest in February were Billy Overhulser, Aaron Fishman, Charlotte Jackson, Shane Sullivan and Joyce Cook who received excellent ratings. Lesa Barkowsky and Christy Jackson who placed third, Sabrina Sullivan, Benjie Fishman and Tom Brown who placed second, and Mark Robertson and RaiLynn Rundell who placed first and appeared in the winner's recital in Lubbock Tom Brown also placed second in the concerto contest sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Music Teachers contest

Cash awards were presented to those winning the highest grades in the auditions sponsored by the American Association of Piano Teachers held here on May 12. Dr. Mary T. Guerrant of Lubbock, was the adjudicator for the event. Dr. Guerrant is a performer, teacher and adjudicator for piano competitions and auditions. She received her master's and doctorate degrees in music from Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Talent awards consisting of a green ribbon and $3 cash went to Allison Adams, Benjie Fishman, Christy Greene, Denise Hood and Robby Rundell.

Top Talent award was won by Tom Brown who placed highest in the class for the third year. This award and red ribbon earned $20 cash for Tom. Second in the class was Christy Greene with an award of $13. Third place went to Benjie Fishman with an award of $8. The beginner with the highest grade was Robby Rundell with $5. The elementary student with the highest grade was Denise Hood who also received $5.

Following the presentation of these awards each student received a certificate and grade sheet for participation in the piano auditions of May 12.

Child-raising costs--from birth to age 18--are high even on farms, reports Lillian Chenoweth, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Recent figures estimate the costs range from $27,000 for thrifty families to $88,500 for a liberal plan.

Actress Victoria Racimo, who appears in Paramount's version of the book, "Prophecy," has been signed to star opposite Charlton Heston in Columbia's "Wind River."

All South has to do to make three notrump is to stop to count his winners.

He is sure of one heart, two spades, three diamonds and a third club trick barring very bad breaks. He almost surely must play clubs at some stage or other and must also try the spade finesse. There is a potential heart finesse also, but the one thing South wants to do is to keep from being forced to take that spade finesse ealry in the play.

Hence, he wins the first trick with dummy's king of diamonds in order to lead a club to his nine and West's jack. West can do nothing better than to lead a second diamond. Now South can lose the spade finesse while he still has heart control and score his game in spite of both major suit finesses being wrong.

A Utah reader wants to know if we recommend an opening two spade bid with this hand.

No, we don't. With only 19 high-card points and five probable losers, the hand doesn't qualify for a forcing two, but we would not give any demerits to a player who chose to open with a two bid.

Farm Census Reports Due

A drive to round up reports that have not yet been returned from farm households in the 1978 Census of Agriculture has been launched by the Bureau of the Census.

Bureau officials called the drive a "special effort to provide statistical results to the nation's farmer and other users of cenus data as early as possible."

Most farm operators first received report forms last January, and most have, by now, completed and returned them. Although the rate at which reports have been returned has exceeded the pace of the last farm census, some farmers and ranchers haye not sent in their reports.

The farm census is the only government or private method for gathering and reporting agriculture information on a county-by-county basis for the entire Nation, Wilhite noted.

Important decisions will be made by farmer organizations, marketing associations and co-ops on the basis of information in the farm census, he said. Census figures also are widely used by many other organizations, both public and private, on which farmers depend for services, supplies, and equipment.

Stiff from arthritis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a complete physical exam two years ago and the doctor found that I have arthritis of the spine. He gave me pills for the pain and a series of exercises to follow. I've been very pleased because my condition has improved. I no longer have the pains I used to have and I no longer take pills. I do continue to do the exercises and I'm quite active.

I'm concerned because my spine doesn't bend very much because of the arthritis. It's made the joints calcified and I'm not very flexible although I try to bend and stretch with the exercises. Is it possible to break up the calcium deposits in any way so the joints could again function somewhat like they used to? I'm a 48-year-old man and have suffered with arthritis for about 12 years. I don't care how long it takes but if it is possible to be more flexible, I'd like to work toward that goal.

DEAR READER — Your story sounds like you have a special form of rheumatoid arthritis that involves the spine. It's particularly apt to occur in young men. It may not be associated with arthritis of other joints although that's not a set rule.

It does behave a little bit different than the usual variety of rheumatoid arthritis. However, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis, to give you more information on this problem as it's related to your condition and the letter contains some comments about rheumatoid arthritis of the spine.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It sounds like the treatment your doctor has given you has been very good. Being pain free and being able to be active is an important achievement.

It's often impossible to avoid the spine becoming stiff and fused, regardless of what you do. Your best route to maintaining flexibility is through exercises. If a physical medicine department is available to you in your community, you might see a specialist in physical medicine and physiotherapy for additional advice and consultation about the forms of exercises that can be used to maintain as normal function as possible.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have asked my doctor this very personal question but I would like a second opinion. I'm in my late 40s and in the menopause stage. I don't have any problems but I'm very nervous about birth control at this time in my life. I need to know when contraceptives are no longer necessary.

DEAR READER — Many women in this stage of life have that same question. It's a very sensible question because there are so many complications and undesirable features to birth control itself. If you're not likely to get pregnant anyway, there's not much reason to live with these problems.

The difficulty is in saying specifically in an individual's case that she will no longer get pregnant. Some doctors say that when a woman has finished the menopause and gone at least a year without any periods that she is most unlikely to get pregnant. If you want to be safe you probably should extend this period to two years after the last period. If you want to shorten that interval, you ought to see a doctor and let him examine you and give you his opinion as related to your specific case. Finally, there do not seem to be any reliable records of any woman getting pregnant after age 57.

At Store But Not On Farm...

Ag Officials Wonder Why Beef Still Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials want to know why retail beef prices keep rising despite a two-month period of relatively stable prices for live cattle.

The question broke into the open last Friday when Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist, announced he had asked for an investigation by USDA and other federal agencies, including the Council on Wage and Price Stability, into what he considers to be the fat spreads in prices between farmers and consumers.

Hjort is particularly interested in looking at the beef situation. Pork prices at supermarkets have been declining as a result of lower hog prices, and are expected to ease a bit more in the near future.

Beef, however, is another matter.

The latest USDA figures, which are based on weekly surveys of supermarket prices and other information, show that through mid-May the average retail price of beef was more than $2.38 a pound, as measured on an all-cut basis.

That was up 2.3 percent from less than $2.33 a pound in April. The mid-May price also was up almost 5.5 percent from the March average of less than $2.26 a pound, and it was up 28.1 percent from less than $1.86 a year ago.

Choice steers, meanwhile, averaged $76.52 per 100 pounds in the first two weeks of May, up only 1.2 percent from the April average of $75.60. But the mid-May price was 6.3 percent above the average of $71.96 on steers brought in the full month of March.

Hjort contends, however, that, since mid-March, steer prices have been fairly steady - not like the rapid gains in the first two weeks of March and in the previous few months.

According to the latest figures showing retail prices as of mid-May averaging slightly more than $2.38 a pound, here is how USDA says the breakdown occured:

The so-called farm value of beef at the supermarket was put at less than $1.55 a pound. That is not what producers get for live animals, since it takes about 2.4 pounds of live steer to make one pound of retail beef.

Great Gas Crunch Took Holiday

By PETER MACKLER
Associated Press Writer

Americans were prepared to scrounge, scramble and wait for gasoline over the Memorial Day weekend, but most found that the Great Gas Crunch of '79 had taken a holiday.

It may not have been cheap and in some places was available only at the end of long lines, but police and tourist groups throughout the country reported gasoline supplies adequate in most areas.

Some officials said bad weather over much of the nation kept would-be travelers at, or close to, home. Others noted heavy use of public transportation - for example, some Amtrak riders had to stand in the aisles on trains taking them home Monday.

Whatever, the reasons, the number of traffic deaths over the three-day weekend also appeared to fall below predictions.

The National Safety Council had projected between 500 and 600 people would die in car accidents over the weekend that ended at midnight Monday. By early today the figure was just over 440.

Drivers entered the holiday steeled against the nightmare of an empty tank with no place to fill up. Most found their fears unwarranted.

Oscar Miranda of Phoenix packed a 55-gallon drum of gasoline in the back of his truck when he went camping near the town of Show Low, in Arizona's White Mountains. When he arrived, he found plenty of gas.

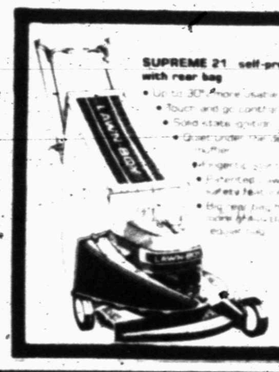

Gun Theft Is Under Probe

The theft of a gun is under investigation by sheriff's deputies.

Reporting the theft was Randy Chandler. He told deputies the gun, a 22-caliber revolver, was taken from his pickup outside his Andress Heights home.

The gun is believed to have been stolen the night of May 26, said deputies.

Finance Bill

had threatened to veto higher salaries -- "That's the bottom line."

Mauzy said $334 million - or 37 percent -- of the school money would go to teacher salaries.

In addition to the $967 million, another $21 million is in the appropriations bill for teacher retirement, said an aide to Mauzy, making a total of $988 million that is being spent on teachers.

Besides providing teachers 5.1 percent raises, the bill also gives "step up" or experience raises to tens of thousands of "career" teachers who otherwise would not receive them.

Teachers in their 12th, 14th, 16th and 18th years in the classroom would get 2 percent experience raises in addition to their cost-of-living increases. Under the existing pay plan, a teacher's annual 4 percent experience raise stops with the 11th year. After that "step ups" come only in the 13th, 15th and 17th years.

Starting pay for a bachelor's degree teacher would rise from $8,541 to $8,973 this fall and to $9,432 in September 1980.

He later told reporters he had raised the "F" grade he had stamped on the Legislature just over a week ago when much of his program was languishing.

"I would be something less than honest if I said I was overjoyed with the session, overall. But looking over the record, I think I will have to raise my pre - commencement grade assignment from 'F' to 'B,' " Clements said at a post-midnight news conference over the leavings of a buffet he had provided for staffers and reporters.

Driver Course Set At WTC

A summer driver education course has been scheduled by the community service division of Western Texas College.

The course will begin on June 4 and those who have reached their 16th birthday may take the state examination for a drivers license upon successful completion of the course.

The instructor in the course will be Albert Lewis, and the tuition is $100. Reservations may be made by calling the WTC community service office at 573-8511, extension 240. Enrollment for the course will be limited to 25.

No Link Found In Death Report

An investigation into some recent deaths and hospital cases here apparently have turned up no connection between the individual cases here and some others in Colorado City and San Antionio, local officials reported this morning.

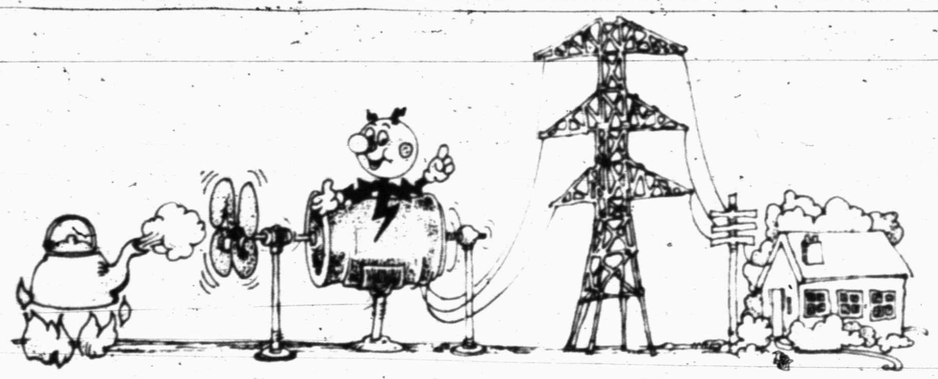

There had been reports circulating that "angel dust," a popular name for an animal tranquilizer, had been responsible for deaths in this area as well as in San Antonio. But local officials said their investigation had not been able to link up the cases so far.

Asked about a report that a quantity of angel dust had been stolen from a local store, District Attorney Pete Greene said that some capsules of a suppressant, which he did not identify further, had been reported missing from a drug store, but that it was not the so-called angel dust. The medicine was in a form of higher concentration that would be prescribed by a doctor and would be dangerous to any person taking it without substantial dilution, the district attorney said.

Police Chief Bill Stone said that the police department was continuing its investigation on one case and working in cooperation with the sheriff's office on another. All of the information is being assembled by the district attorney, and likely will be turned over to a grand jury.

The district attorney said the capsules reported missing would not have much monetary value. Their theft would not involve enough value to be classified as a felony, he said, and the medicine involved actually was old.

Here's why it takes fuel to make electricity.

It takes fuel to make electricity.

A lot of people don't understand that, but it's true.

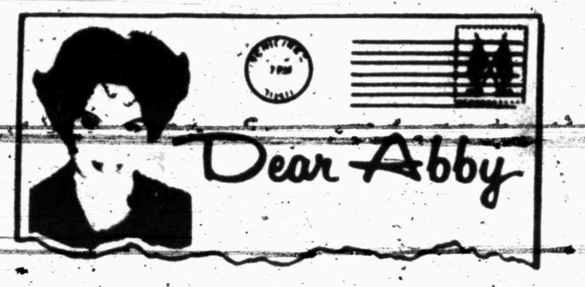

Most of the power plants in this country require steam to generate electricity. To make steam you must boil water, and that requires a lot of heat.

That's why we have to buy and burn large amounts of fuel, such as lignite coal and natural gas, every month. The steam we make with it turns the generators that make your electricity, which we distribute to you right when you need it.

The fuel we use costs money, more all the time, which is why we show it separately on your bill. At Texas Electric, we want you to know what you're paying for. And to remember: it takes fuel to make electricity.

'Cure' for Baldness Or Just Balderdash?

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just heard that a scientist in Budapest, Hungary, recently came up with a formula that will actually grow hair on bald heads! They claim that this miracle lotion, which is a combination of herbs and chemicals, not only restores hair on bald heads, it also prevents people who have hair from losing it! This sounds too good to be true.

I'm told that the Budapest shopkeepers sold out their first shipment to some very cynical customers, when, a week later, the stuff started to show results. Word got around and the shopkeepers had to call the police to keep the rioting customers from breaking down the doors.

Have you heard anything about this product?

INTERESTED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR INTERESTED: Yes, I've heard those hair-raising reports, but I'm skeptical.

If this product from Hungary is not also from hunger, it will be marketed all over the world.

DEAR ABBY: PUZZLED IN MANHATTAN wrote: "I'm sure you've heard of Peeping Toms, but I'll bet you've never heard of a Peeping Tina. Tina is my wife. We have a view of a large apartment house from our bedroom window, and Tina loves to stand in the dark and watch men undress. Is something wrong with her?"

You replied, "Such curiosity is considered normal in adolescents, but your wife should have outgrown it by now."

Abby, I've lived in high rise apartments for years, as do many of my friends, and we all enjoy the game of 'neighbor watching.' As a matter of facts a pair of binoculars by the window is standard equipment for every apartment.

I am in my 30s and my friends are in their 50s and we aren't considered adolescents.

LOVES TO LOOK IN MANHATTAN

DEAR LOVES: Whatever happened to the right to privacy? Or do you go with the theory that people who undress with the shades up are closet exhibitionists? Granted there is a touch of the voyeur in all of us -- but binoculars by the windows? Aw, c'mon!

DEAR ABBY: Why do fellows say, "I'll call you," and then you never hear from them again?

This has happened to me and a lot of my girlfriends so often it's not even funny.

HURT IN KOKOMO

DEAR HURT: Some fellows say, "I'll call you," because they think that's what most girls want to hear. And they're right. But it has about as much meaning as, "See you around," or, "Let's get together sometime."

The next time a fellow says, "I'll call you," if you want to shake him up, say, "Terrific. When?"

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument between my husband and me. He says that my sister's husband is HIS brother-in-law. I say that my sister's husband is MY brother-in-law, but he isn't my husband's brother-in-law. He is my husband's sister-in-law's husband. Who's right?

SAN CLEMENTE

DEAR SAN: Webster defines "brother-in-law" as follows: 1) the brother of one's husband or wife, 2) the husband of one's sister; 3) the husband of the sister of one's wife or husband. So your husband is right.

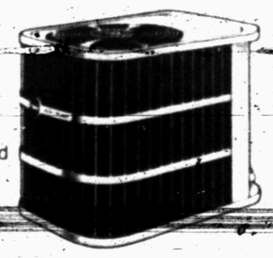

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tigers Take On Pecos

Regionals Begin Today

PECOS--Pecos' Eagles and the Snyder Tigers are to meet here at 5 p.m. today for Game One in a best-of-three regional baseball playoff series.

Game Two will be held Thursday in Snyder at 5 o'clock, followed, if necessary, by Game Three.

Pecos clinched a regional berth last week, by stopping Borger in a three-game bi-district series, 8-2, 2-3, 4-1. Snyder advanced to today's playoffs by stopping Burkburnett in two games, 3-2, 9-1.

The Eagles feature strong hitting and good fielding, and have won seven out of their last eight outings. Top pitcher for the Pecos crew is Danny Garcia, 7-2, winner of both games against Borger last week.

The far West Texas team features some of the best hitters in the area, keyed this year by Larry and Bobby Mosby, and Genaro Rodriquez, also a pitcher.

Snyder comes into the contest with pitching and fielding strength, through the Tigers can hit well - as attested by a seven-hit, seven-run sixth-inning blast against Burk in Game Two of their bi-district series.

District 3-AAA's Most Valuable Player, Sid Everton, will start on the hill for Snyder today. The senior left-hander is 10-2 for the season. He also kayoed Borger for two home runs.

Left-hander Mitch Mackey, another senior, will also see action during the series. Mackey, one of Snyder's leading hitters, holds an 7-3 record. Snyder has won eight straight games.

A charge of $2 for adults and $1 for students will be collected for today's game.

Discarded Jenkins Gets Down On Red Sox, 5-2

ARLINGTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox Manger Don Zimmer, rubbing a red spot on his stomach where he was stung by a line drive off Al Oliver's bat, says he still wouldn't want Texas Ranger ace pitcher Fergie Jenkins his team.

Jenkins, traded away by the Red Sox two years ago, whipped Boston 5-2 Monday night with relief help from Sparky Lyle.

Asked if he would take Jenkins back now, Zimmer said, "If I wanted him, I'd have him now. Fergie is pitching in a bigger park. I'm not knocking him, but he is not pitching in Fenway. In two years, he was .500 for us."

Jenkins, now 6-2, was benched by Zimmer two years ago which led to bitter feelings between them.

"Yea, I was in his dog house," said Jenkins, who struck out eight and allowed two runs on seven hits before he had to leave in the seventh inning with an arm strain. "It feels good to beat a club after it writes you off because of age."

The 35-year-old Jenkins said, "I have a good record in small parks. Rick Wise and I never got many runs in Fenway. I have no animosity for Zimmer. We still speak.

In fact, I gave him a rose before I pitched in Boston last year. I think he smiled."

It was a tough night all around for Zimmer, who was struck by a vicious line drive in the fifth inning off Oliver's bat.

"The ball hit me in the belly," said the portly Zimmer. "It hit me in the gut. I see the ball coming...I can't move...I just got to take it. Luckily it hit me in the belly...that's the fat part about me."

Zimmer said of Oliver: "It takes a super pitch from a super pitcher to get him out."

Oliver hit a two-run homer and a triple off Red Sox starter and loser Steve Renko (3-2).

Sparkly Lyle earned his seventh save, allowing two hits in the last two innings. The only Boston runs came in the third inning on a run scoring double by Jerry Remy and an RBI single by Fred Lynn.

Texas Clinches Tourney Title

AUSTIN (AP)-Noone could blame the Brigham Young Cougars if they didn't feel at home in Disch-Falk Field, the home diamond of the University of Texas baseball team.

With 5,500 partisan Texas fans and a rowdy group of UT supporters called the "Wild Bunch" shouting approval, country-western music blaring between innings and nachos, a Mexican delicacy, on sale at the concession stand, BYU must have felt they were in a foreign country.

The Mormon Tabernacle Choir might have helped but Willie Nelson was the preferred singing artist Monday night as the Horns mauled the Cougars 6-2 in the finals of the NCAA Central Region Baseball Tournament and marched off to the College World Series for the 19th time.

Five-hit pitching by Kem Wright and Keith Creel and the bat work of Terry Salazar, Keith Walker and Jim Tjader propelled the Longhorns into the first round of the College World Series Saturday against Connecticut, the Northeast Regional champion.

"I knew they were a good hitting team, but I felt as long as I could keep the ball down they would hit it on the ground," said Wright, who held BYU to two hits until he yielded a two-run homer by Cliff Pastornicky in the sixth.

Padres Hold Off Challenging Astros

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Randy Jones underwent major surgery on his pitching arm following a 1976 season in which he won the National League's Cy Young Award. He hasn't been the same since, but things are looking up.

"Jones can't throw quite as well as before his surgery, but he can still pitch," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon after the 29-year-old left-hander hurled the Padres to a 5-4 victory over the Astros Monday night.

Jones, 5-3, performed better than the four runs scored by Houston might indicate. He allowed three runs in the first three innings, then blanked the Astros until the ninth. At one point, he retired 15 straight batters.

Washington Thinks So

Bullet Comeback?

SEATTLE (AP) Kevin Grevey and Larry Wright, two of Washington's beleaguered guards, acknowledge the defending champion Bullets are having trouble, but all that will change if they can beat the Seattle SuperSonics tonight.

"I think we'll come back," said Grevey. "We're a team that makes great comebacks. We proved that when we were down 3-1 against San Antonio.

"We can very well change this thing right around by getting a win here and now we're in the driver's seat. We just have to play much better than we have."

The Bullets won the opener of the National Basketball Association best-of-seven championship series, but lost the next two. Tonight's Game 4 is in the Seattle Coliseum.

The Bullets' guards have taken the brunt of criticism for the teams' poor play, having hit on only eight of 35 shots in Sunday's 105-95 loss, the third game of the series in which Washington hasn't scored 100 points.

"We didn't play well as a team," said Wright, the substitute who is supposed to fire up the club. "We've got to figure out a way to hit our shots. We've got to take the game to Seattle, rather than let them take it to us. We're better when we're aggressive."

The Sonics' guards outscored the Bullets' backcourt 64-19, but Wright said "That comes from us not forcing the game to them. We walked the ball up the court and telegraphed every pass we threw. The Sonics had a chance to adjust and with the range of Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson, you can't do that."

Mid-Georgia Readies For JUCO Showdown

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP)-Middle Georgia, fresh from a 16-4 thrashing of Panola, Texas, faces Brookdale, N.J., tonight in a showdown between the only two unbeaten teams in the National Junior College World Series.

Panola fell from the undefeated ranks with the loss Monday night.

In other action Monday, freshman pitcher Andy Paviovic fired a six-hitter and shortstop Ray Etchebarren had three hits to raise his tournament batting average to .533 as Yavapai, Ariz., won its third game in two days, beating Housatonic, Conn., 7-3. Center fielder Tom Baurle slammed two home runs and drove in seven runs to power Normandale, Minn., past Meramec, Mo., 16-10.

Nuclear Waste Likely Topic For '81 Session

AUSTIN (AP)-Nuclear waste disposal likely will be a topic for the 1981 Legislature after senators said Monday they wanted more time to study the issue and refused to pass a bill on the subject.

Opponents claimed the measure would make Texas the nation's dumping ground for dangerous nuclear wastes.

The Senate voted 17-12 against accepting a conference committee report on SB910 by Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

McKnight said it dealt only with giving the State Health Department control over low level nuclear waste disposal. Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, and others disagreed.

"There ain't no such thing as low-level death," Schwartz said after threatening to filibuster until the session's midnight finish.

"The scientists who testified in committee said they can't define low-level nuclear waste," he continued. "Low level is everything below the level of a spent nuclear fission rod in a nuclear power plant."

McKnight's bill cleared the Senate Natural Resources Bill, which Schwartz chairs. However, Schwartz said he did not realize the bill's implications until it already had cleared the Senate.

"I was left with the impression that this bill was required under a federal act in order for the state to control uranium tailings generated from uranium mining," Schwartz said.

"But the federal act does not require Texas to take any action until November 1981," he added.

Nuclear disposal companies are considering dump sites in the Permian Basin of West Texas and the Piney Woods of East Texas, Schwartz said.

Senators from those areas - Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, and E.L. Short, D-Tahoka - joined Schwartz in opposing the measure.

Schwartz said McKnight's bill would transfer ownership of nuclear dump sites to the state, which would lease them to private companies. The state would be liable for clean-up and maintenance if site operators went out of business.

OBITUARIES

Two Thefts, Mishap Are Reported Here

Two thefts and a minor traffic accident were investigated Monday by city police.

Glenn Justice reported a felony theft. He said approximately $400 worth of tools were taken from a company pickup parked at his 2805 Ave. U home.

The other theft was a misdemeanor, for which a juvenile was arrested. Reporting the theft was J.C. Swartz. He told officers a $90 lawn edger was stolen from a shed at 320 34th St. Reports also show that a juvenile was taken into custody approximately three hours after the complaint was made.

The only traffic accident to take place occurred at 1401 25th St. at 2:50 p.m. It involved a 1976 Ford pickup driven by Eric James Spurr of Quebec, Canada, and a light fixture owned by O.D. Brewer. Damage to the light fixture was set at $115.

Prince Charles and Prince Philip have conservative tastes in their choice of footwear, says the royal bootmaker. They prefer traditional brogues and round toe-caps - at about $400 a pair.

'Super Station' Is More Than Mere Name At McCormick's 66

The name implies the philosophy on which the service is built. McCormick Phillips 66 Super Station, located on the East Highway, has a reputation to live up to.

Super Station is more than a name, its a way of business. You can have all your automotive and truck needs satisfied at the big station, located next to the Smorgasbord Restaurant.

It is a gas station in that you can get fuel--regular, premium, unleaded or diesel. But the important thing, according to manager James Harbin, is that the station has had an adequate supply of fuel to meet customer needs.

"We've got plenty of gas right now," Harbin said. In addition, the super station offers a full-service island or a self-service island.

The station is easy to get to and the wide service island is enjoyed by the many motorists who frequent the Phillips 66 Super Station.

Harbin and his staff at the Phillips 66 Super Station can handle just about any of your automotive needs. Let them give your vehicle a service check before leaving on that summer vacation.

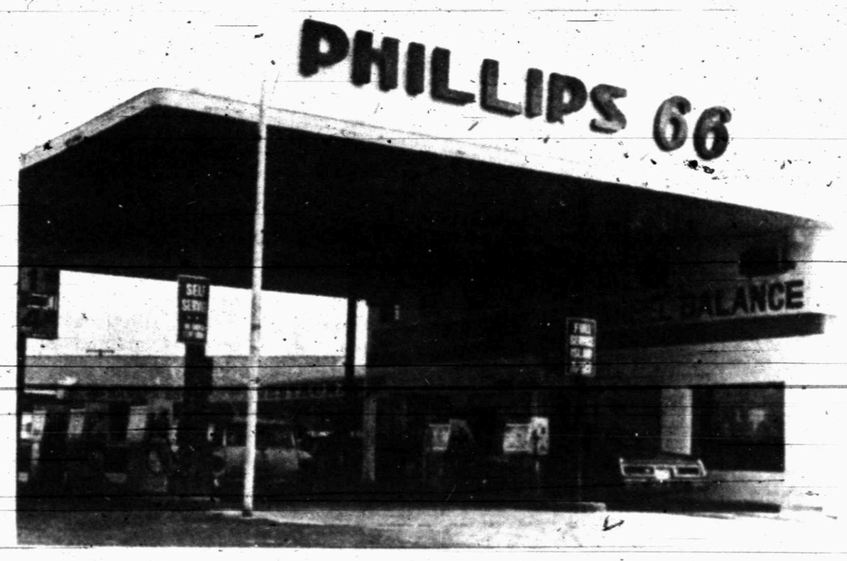

They can wash, grease and change the oil in your car. They'll routinely check the battery, wiper blades and filters. They can replace headlamps, fuses, etc.

A speciality at the Phillips 66 Super Station is tire repair. If you have flat tire problems, bring them to the Super Station and they'll solve your problems quickly.

If you need new tires, let James Harbin put on a new set for you. He's got the selection and the price, and he can mount the tires for you in just a matter of minutes.

Of course, the station features all the fine Phillips 66 products and the Super Station also has all the other automotive products by famous makers such as oil and gas additives, coolant, antifreeze and cool cushions.

Another big plus is the Super Station is open seven days a week for customer convenience. Hours of operation are from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. Come in and get Super Service.

50 Years Combined Experience At Hinshaw's House Of Flowers

When you think of flowers in Snyder, one of the first places that comes to mind is Hinshaw's, located at 2804 College Ave. Owners Hershel and Pat Hinshaw have worked to make Hinshaw's a close, personal family operation and they demonstrate this by having son Brent and son-in-law Tommy Johnson as co-managers. Brent has been working full time with the firm for four years and Tommy for two years.

Hershel says, "We have the finest group of employees that we've ever had. They are enthusiastic and concerned about their work." Employees are Sandra Bruns, designer, Teresa Hand, designer, and Linda Scoggin, bookeeper.

The staff at Hinshaw's take great pride in all their work. This is evident by the quality of their products. Hershel personally makes all the casket pieces for funerals as well as the easels of flowers.

Teamwork is evident in their wedding work with Pat doing the delicate work and Hershel, Brent and Tommy doing the decorating at the church.

Hinshaw's is active in all phases of the flower business, including funerals, weddings, hospitals, conventions and banquets. When you combine this with the extensive selection of gifts and the variety of the greenhouse, it is evident that Hinshaw's has got you covered in the flower sense.

No matter what your floral needs are, Hinshaw's with their wide variety of services and their helpful staff can assist you in making the right choices.

San Antonio Judge Shot

SAN ANTONIO (AP) U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was shot outside his apartment this morning on the city's north side, police said.

A spokesman for Northwest Baptist Hospital said Wood's condition was unknown.

There were early reports the assailant may have been a sniper.

Police quickly sealed off the area.

The judge was found face up, police said. He apparently was shot with a rifle, possibly from about 10 feet away.

Save calories while eating out--ask the waitress or waiter not to leave a bread basket at the table as a temptation to nibble, suggests Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
