TEXAS WELFARE COMMISSION

Commercial Secretaries Appoint Commission to Investigate Industrial Conditions.

The Welfare Commission which the Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association of Texas has organized will hold sessions in Dallas, Ft. Worth, San Antonio, Houston and other cities in Texas and hear the views of men of affairs on the needs of Texas. The following are a few of the questions which the Commission will undertake to answer:

Sixty-eight per cent of the farmers of Texas do not own their farms. WHY?

We need 50,000 miles more of railroads in Texas and there is not a mile of road under construction in the State today. WHY?

We have 140,000 miles of unimproved public highways and during the past ten years we have permanently improved only 2,300. WHY?

We have 1200 miles of navigable rivers but no steamboat lines ply our waters. WHY?

We buy from other States $75,000,000 worth of feed stuff annually. WHY?

According to estimates of the Farmers' Union it costs 12½ cents per pound to raise cotton and it sells for a less price. WHY?

We owe $1,100,000,000 to parties outside the State and will have to borrow ten billion more to develop our resources and yet large insurance companies and other sources of cheap money are not doing business in Texas. WHY?

The Farmers' Union report that they are paying 8 and 10 per cent for money loaned on cotton in their warehouses, although cotton is the best security in the world. WHY?

Texas cattle are rated by the Federal Agricultural Department at $14.73 per head and Illinois cattle at $28.02 per head. WHY?

There is shipped into Texas 100 car loads of cured meats per week. WHY?

The Texas farmers haul $1,200,000 of raw material per day to the foreign factory. WHY?

We raise between three and four million bales of cotton annually and manufacture only 40,000 bales. WHY?

The Railroad Commission of Texas values the railroad property at $210,000,000, the Tax Commission at $120,000,000 and the Tax Assessor at $340,132,572. WHY?

THE OFFICE CAT SAYS

An Iowa editor was asked, "Do hogs pay?" He replied: "A good many do not; they take the paper several years and then have the postmaster send it back marked 'refused' or 'gone to rest.' That was in Iowa.

An article that has real merit should in time become popular. Thus such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W. Hedrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup, and is my best secret." For sale by all dealers.

ALLEN ACADEMY GROWING

Two Distinguished Teachers Added to the Faculty of Allen Academy.

The principals of the Academy are congratulating themselves on the addition of two distinguished teachers to the faculty of the Academy. They are both Southern men and from the best families of the South.

Mr. J. J. Rodgers, a Rhodes scholarship man from Alabama, who made a high record as a student in Washington and Lee University, after winning the Rhodes scholarship in competitive examination, has been elected to the chair of history. After two years of study in the great University of Oxford, England, Mr. Rodgers came to the Academy a ripe scholar and full of enthusiasm. While abroad he also studied modern languages of the Continent.

Mr. Rodgers has had six years of successful experience in teaching. It is a rare thing for a training school to secure a teacher who is fitted for a chair in a great college or university. The other of the two new men is Mr. O. Q. Melton of Emory College, Georgia. Mr. Melton is a son of Dr. Melton of the chair of English in Emory College, one of the leading educators of the South.

Mr. Melton has been elected athletic director in the academy. He has held for the past ten years the position of assistant physical director in Emory College. While a student in the college, he starred in football, baseball, basketball and track athletics, and at different times he was the captain of each of these teams. He comes fully trained in the taking of scientific measurements.

To his experience and training Mr. Melton adds a magnificent physique, being six feet tall and weighing 170 pounds. With an attractive and pleasant personality, he is represented as having great executive power in handling his teams. But best of all, Mr. Melton is a cultured Christian gentleman, who has distinguished himself in his literary work.

The principals feel that they have been fortunate in securing for this important position a man who adds to his experience and skill as an athletic coach, scholarly attainments and Christian character.

34,000 FOLLOW BOOTH'S COFFIN TO FINAL GOAL

BUILDER OF SALVATION ARMY BURIED WITHOUT MOURNING IN RUMBLE CASKET.

MANY NOTABLES ARE PRESENT.

Simplicity and Optimism Mark Ceremony Attending Funeral of Famous Evangelist Who Spread His Work to Every Inhabited Clime.

London, Aug. 31.—Funeral services for the founder of the Salvation Army, General William Booth, took place at the Olympia. In accordance with traditions of the organization, they were without pomp or symbols of mourning, but were carried out with moving fervor and impressiveness.

Thirty-four thousand persons participated in the function. Nearly half of them wore blue coats and red jerseys or bonnets with red ribbon, so familiar on the streets of the cities of the world where the army is established.

The body of the late general, in a plain pine coffin, rested high upon a white catafalque in front of the big platform across the end of the hall, where all the chief officers of the organization were seated, and where forty "bands of music" were massed. The crimson flag of the army "of fire and blood," which the general unfurled on Mount Calvary, was planted about the coffin.

A mass of flowers, composed of the tributes sent by members of royalty and many societies, were heaped in flags of various nations in which the general, in his brief but varied campaigns and the standards of the older divisions of the army were arrayed in front of the platform.

The great music of the Salvation Army filled the galleries, each tipped with white ribbons, and twenty portraits of the evangelist, surmounted with green laurel wreaths and with white sashes, ribbon connecting them, were the only decorative efforts.

The coffin was covered with a flag and on it rested the general's Bible and cap. As it was borne down the aisle the immense audience stood and the Salvation soldiers were at salute.

Great Hall Overflows.

Every seat on the floor and in the galleries was taken when the service began and several thousands of people were banded around the outskirts of the hall. When the bands began with the hymn, "The Better World," the ocean of voices took up the strain and sang three stanzas of it. Then everyone bowed their heads in silent prayer.

The hands broke into a dead march at the conclusion of the prayer and the thousands rose and turned toward the far entrance, where appeared a cluster of white-clipped flags. Amid reverent silence the white catafalque was wheeled along the aisle to a position in front of the platform, where its escort broke to the right and left and mounted the steps. General Booth immediately after he reached his chair, fell to his knees and buried his face in his hands. The assembly then sang, "Dear Savior, Can You Hear the Debt of Love I Owe."

Commissioner Lawley, the late general's right-hand man, made a brief extemporaneous prayer and the service was followed by the hymn, "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Savior." Commissioner Adelaide Cox offered prayer and, with a great murmur of voices, everyone repeated the Lord's Prayer. A brigade of Salvation chorists sang, "When the Roll is Called in Heaven and the Hosts Shall Muster There," after which Commissioner Higgins led the responsive reading from Revelations vii to ix, which was followed by the singing of another hymn. The congregation then read silently from books several extracts of the late general's writings, the reading being interspersed by hymns sung by children and another by all the women in the hall.

Then came the most impressive feature of the solemnities. All the soldiers of the army arose and recited the covenant of Kalvary, pledging themselves to be faithful soldiers of the Lord.

The catalogue then was wheeled slowly down the aisle, and the great Roll of Honor was read. The Roll is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There."

The coffin was then placed in a hearse and conveyed to the Salvation Army headquarters where it will rest until taken to 27 Abney Park Cemetery tomorrow.

FARM NOTES

GROWING IRRIGATED POTATOES.

(Chas. W. Holman, from Farm and Ranch.)

"When you're on your upper end and a nickle licks as big as a dollar ought to look, eat potatoes and rice."

The deliverer of this rule for poverty-stricken folks was a florid-complexioned gentleman whose looks plainly proved that it had been many years since he had to figure on the high cost of living. He was riding in the observation car attached to the back of a train making its way across the Rockies.

I remember back in the '90s, continued the lobster-salad individual, "a young fellow named Jobson and I were out in Frisco, together, doing a little business. It was the panic, and there were more men hunting jobs than I have ever seen since. It didn't look as if we'd connect with anything for a long time. As a last stand I 'soaked' my watch and Jobson sold a useless evening suit he had brought along as a memento of college days. Then we went up to Chink restaurant and learned some lessons in reducing the cost of living. Rice'll carry you a long way, but the potato is the best thing to fill you up. A mar'll eat a big potato and feel like he's dined at Sherry's—that is, if he is pretty close to the dead line. Yes, sir, the potato's the thing to fill you up.

Many another man has availed himself of the same knowledge possessed by the man from New York. American-Plan hotels know this, and the best potato growers prominently on every menu. Poor folks know this, and potatoes always form a large part of their diet. Even at high prices the 'tater' affords more genuine satisfaction to the stomach for the price, than possibly, any other article of diet.

When times are hard prices of potatoes always go up. No better evidence of this may be found than to compare the per capita population of Europe, where money is always tight for the working classes, and America, where there is more proclivity in providing for the table. The country of Germany, which would have to be pulled, fastened out and multiplied several times to cover the space occupied by Texas, produces five times as much potatoes as all the United States, and consumes seven times as much potatoes per capita. Ireland, also, far surpasses America in consumption of the delectable tuber.

Physicians discovered the potato, so closely associated with Hibernian life is the potato that many Americans believe Ireland to be the original home of it, but South America claims the honor. The only great and lasting good done by the Pizarra conquest of Peru was to bring back from the high altitudes of the Inca's great specimens of tubers, which, on being introduced into Europe, proved adaptable to cool climates and they could across the potatoes to the warmer soils, but that it did best in high altitudes, where cool nights could be had and also a large percentage of sunny days.

With the great demand for practical affairs Queen Elizabeth of England saw in the potato a food to help hold down the high cost of living, which was the great head of the source of much discussion, but not until the beginning of the 18th century did the potato become famous as the chief article of diet of the Irish peasantry.

Many Uses for Potatoes.

When an American buys a carload of potatoes, what he wants is quality. When a European buys potatoes, he may have in mind the making of starch, the feeding of stock or the making of brandy. "The American wants a potato that will grow in the European prefers a soggy potato," said C. L. Pritch, Colorado's potato expert.

Various of Potatoes.

"Superior" failure in potato growing depends vitally upon the selection of the right variety," said Mr. Bliss. "The White Pearl, or the Peerless, as it is known in the Eastern states, is the most adaptable tuber for the soils and conditions of Colorado. About two-thirds of the potatoes in the state are of this variety. It is the standard potato at Greeley and in the San Luis valley. It also does well on the western side of the Rockies and New York No. 2 comes to maturity about a week or 10 days later than the Pearl, but is more subject to disease and adverse weather conditions. The Peachblow had made the Carbondale district famous. It is of fairly uniform size, but must have ideal environment. As it grows, it quickly deteriorates, loses color and changes characteristics."

Suitable Soils for Potatoes.

The potato in the irrigated districts of the West does best in deep sandy loam. In Colorado the most general type is known as the Colorado fine sand. The Billings loam, Billings clay loam and other types in which the potato may be cultivated with success.

For the potato grower the subsoil is very important, a gravelly formation being the best. It is of this character underlying the farm of E. R. Bliss, two miles northeast of Greeley, where I visited and who furnished me with an account of his cultural methods.

Growing Potatoes on Bliss Farm.

Mr. Bliss is one of the best know potato growers in Colorado, a university graduate, a leader in social and industrial activities in his county, and a man who speaks of his subjects with the authority of a man who has lived upon an elevation and has an area of 120 acres, of which 1000 is in cultivation. The soil is of the Billings clay loam variety and, as always stated, is underlaid with gravel. This affords an under drainage and prevents the ground from becoming too full of water.

The farm is well equipped with irrigation facilities. Mr. Bliss owns shares in the co-operative irrigation company serving him. He is also a stockholder in several reservoir companies. The farm draws its water from the Cache la Poudre, 50 miles up-stream.

Division of Crops.

While potatoes are the main money crop on this farm, Mr. Bliss has found that successful culture of the spud demands a diversification and rotation scheme of an elaborate nature. His farming tract he has divided into five 20-acre fields. Two of these he keeps in alfalfa, which average him three cuttings from half a ton to over a ton at a cutting. One to two tracts he plants every year to potatoes, which average him 200 bushels per acre. One tract is always in grain (wheat or oats). The wheat yields 35 to 50 bushels per acre, while the oats will average 60 to 75 bushels per acre. Part of the time, as this year, he alternates a potato plot with peas. His pea crop he sells in the field to a canning factory, which does its own harvesting.

Since the ravages of the Fusarium blight Mr. Bliss has determined upon the following rotation system for his farm: alfalfa, two years; alfalfa, one year; best; one year; grain.

Preparing the Seed Bed.

All the land on this farm has been in cultivation, so the method of preparing seed bed differs radically from what it would be if sod land were to be gotten ready. After the last cutting of alfalfa has been taken off the farm in the fall the owner waters the field and allows it to lie until a growth starts in the spring. In this growth he has got several inches high he starts the breaking plows, which go down six to seven inches, and turn under the green crop.

Potatoes following the alfalfa crop would have broken the land the summer before he planted potatoes. From this new land, however, he would not get as high a yield of potatoes the first year because of the poorer condition of the sod bed and deficiency in nitrogen.

Potatoes following the alfalfa crop always produce better yields than if they followed a grain or beet crop.

"If I had plowed under the alfalfa in the fall it would have amounted to the same as a cultivation of it, while plowing under in the spring when the plant is growing will kill it much easier."

Immediately after breaking the owner gives the land a thorough harrowing. The total cost per acre of breaking and harrowing he places at $2.50.

After harrowing he floats the land at a cost of 35 cents per acre. This process of floating is similar to that of leveling down a road and the floating is done in the same time the land is ready for planting.

Mr. Bliss imports his seed from Wisconsin, but also has a method of growing his own seed potatoes. Since the imported seed never does as well the first year as the second and third, he plants one-third of his land only with the imported seed potato. With the second harvest he uses the seed from the strip containing imported seed the year before. The third year he again plants one-third of his land with imported seed potatoes. Imported seed costs him $1.50 per hundred weight; home grown, 90 cents.

"In the winter time," said the farmer, "we select a bin of potatoes in the cellar—a bin in which the potatoes are not too large—and cull out the medium-sized ones, paying great attention to the elements of smoothness and evenness of size. These potatoes we set aside for seed."

A practice followed by some farmers and more approved is to select the seed tubers in the field.

Mr. Bliss plants late to avoid the potato bug and because he can develop the best crop during the months of August and September.

When Planting Time Comes.

If the potatoes have been kept dormant all winter they are "grounded" or subjected to the rays of light. The cuttings are spread out and "the offerer they are shoveled over by the better, which should be done a week at least for the last month" (For this grower's Colorado Station Bulletin No. 175.)

On the Bliss farm they cut all potatoes in the field, using for this purpose an upright box on legs. A good worker can cut 30 bushels of potatoes in one day. If the seed potatoes are under two ounces in weight they are planted without cutting. It is customary to have four-ounce potatoes. The cutter takes the larger potatoes and splits them lengthwise, cutting crosswise to distribute the eyes evenly. Some potato growers soak the seed in a seven per cent solution of formalin as a preventive of scab, but since this has not proved a successful treatment Mr. Bliss does not follow the practice.

This amount was paid August 1, 1912, to the stockholders of a home building company in Los Angeles, California, which buys cheap in city property; sub-divide into lots and sell, build and sell homes.

Not only that, but the investors who secured stock at the beginning at $1 per share, can now sell their stock for $1.90. Think that! $2.90 profit on every share.

Did you know that there is a company in successful operation in San Antonio, working along identically the same lines, whose success for the last two years of operation have been equal to that of the Los Angeles company? Will be perhaps greater as it is the first in the field in San Antonio.

THREE GRAVES ARE FILLED

Husband of Erring Woman Killed Self at the Grave Which Held Her Remains.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 3.—The death triangle—two men and a woman—has again filled three graves in a local cemetery. The third death was that of Gustav Kescher, whose wife was slain by the man whom she had preferred to him and who a moment after the murder, had slain himself. Kescher took his life while lying beside the grave of his wife.

It was Kescher himself who introduced his wife to Rudolph Karlsberg, a Bohemian, in May, 1911. There was a circus in town, and she wanted to go. Her husband could not get away from his business, so the suggested Karlsberg as an escort.

Later Kescher tried in vain to break the friendship between the Bohemian and his wife. He set a trap. One night he went out, telling his wife he would not be home until after midnight. An hour later he returned. Persons told him Karlsberg was upstairs. He took a revolver and went to his wife's room. When he opened the door Karlsberg opened fire on him, wounding him in the neck.

Then Karlsberg turned the weapon on Mrs. Kescher, shooting her in the back of the head and killing her instantly. He then shot and killed himself.

PREACHES ON SIMPLE LIFE

PREACHED BY FRENCH PRIEST TO FASHIONABLES.

Extravagances and Vices of Those With Too Much Money Were Laid Bare From the Pulpit.

Paris, August 25.—Mgr. Bole, who has been called the "Father Vaughan of France," is again in the limelight as the result of a sermon on the simple life he preached to a congregation of fashionable.

"Because you have on your heads indescribable skyscrapers, or because you carry on your backs farm and acres, are you better protected or more pathetic?" This question was asked and then answered in a sermon which was a merciless castigation of the extravagances and vices of the idle rich, who for a fortnight every year through the gayest beach in the world.

"When Lucullus dines with Lucullus," he continued to the representatives of the French and foreign smart sets who packed the church, "and is served with nightingales' tongues, has he done better than Sancha at Toledo? It is very doubtful."

Recalling the saying of one of the Dukes of Rohan in the eighteenth century, he said that the most miserable man in Europe, "and the least concerned regarding the material details of existence, just as the men of the highest intellectual values were those who showed the least concern regarding the material details of existence, just as the most virtuous were those who showed the least concern regarding the material details of existence, just as the most intelligent, and best in the world, he added:

"If that be so, you continue to load yourselves with masses of gew-gaws, to transform your insides into barns and museums, and to surround yourselves with an army of slaves and servants, then I am entitled to tell you that you give yourselves too much trouble to prove that you do not belong to the real elite of humanity, and that you have no intelligent conception of life."

In denouncing the modern race for riches, Mgr. Bole said:

"The real galley slave is he who has never had enough, who is possessed by the frenzied desire of always becoming richer.

"Look at their faces. The overworked are not the working classes; they are those who flock every year to luxurious resorts by the seaside, and crowd the opulent caravansaries of the watering places."

After listening spellbound to this rigorous attack on their class, the smart assemblage of leaders of fashion, popular actresses, millionaires and yachtmen left the church for luncheon at the palatial hotels on the sea front, where Mgr. Bole's sermon had been the principal topic of conversation ever since.

ARRESTED AT ALTER, DISOWNED BY HUSBAND

New Jersey Woman Alleged to Have Forged Order to Obtain Clothing in Which to Be Married.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Mary Pfeiffer King, aged 25 years, is alleged to have committed forgery in order to obtain the clothing in which she was married to Paul King, aged 25 years, and who is now well off.

The ceremony had been finished and the couple were leaving the church when the arrest was made. The wife was carried to the station and arraigned and was locked up, her husband of a few moments refusing to furnish bond for her appearance.

The complaint, Charles G. Seaman, treasurer of the Perth Amboy Savings institution, who accuses the woman of obtaining $100 on a forged order.

According to Seaman, the woman who until her marriage was Mrs. Mary Pfeiffer, presented an order which purported to be signed by Anthony Haberhorn, whose wife she represented herself to be. She said after the arrest that she wanted the money to purchase the trousseau for her wedding.

When she heard that her husband had heard the charge against his bride he disowned her and refused to bail her out. Without his assistance she was unable to obtain a bondsman and was committed for examination in default of $1000.

THE TRIAL OF BECKER IS AGAIN DELAYED

New York District Attorney Has Secured More Evidence Against Police Lieutenant.

New York, Sept. 3.—John F. McIntyre, counsel for Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, indicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, obtained a delay in the case until September 3, by serving a writ staying the proceedings. The writ was served on Assistant District Attorney Rubin and Judge Mulqueen, of the court of general sessions, before whom Becker was to have been arraigned, for pleading. Supreme Court Justice Amend issued the writ.

Becker was arraigned last Tuesday for pleading, but his counsel obtained an adjournment until today. Today, still professing to be not ready to go on, Mr. McIntyre obtained the writ on the ground that he needed more time to get any motions he might deem necessary.

New Evidence Against Becker. It was stated on good authority that District Attorney Whitman came into possession of additional evidence through a letter from John D. Hallen, a disbarred lawyer, who was recently sentenced to Sing Sing for forgery. Hallen is alleged to have heard a conversation between Lieutenant Becker and Policeman White, a former member of Becker's strong arm gang, who has been indicted for perjury in connection with the arrest of Big Jack Zelig. Hallen writes that he heard White say to Becker: "Go, they're got my chief."

"Shut your big trap. In six months they will be giving us medals for what we did," Becker is alleged to have responded. It was understood that the district attorney will have Hallen brought from Sing Sing for further examination. The calendar of the court of general sessions prepared this afternoon shows that the cases of "Whitey" Lewis, "Dago" Frank, William Shapiro and Jack Sullivan, Lieutenant Becker's office charges with murder in the first degree, and the unexpected setting of the trial will be a move on the part of the district attorney's office to offset the stay of proceedings agreed to by counsel for Lieutenant Becker. It was thought probable, however, that these cases, too, will be adjourned.

It was understood that Becker absolutely denied the story credited to Hallen, the disbarred lawyer.

TO LESSEN LAW'S DELAYS

Dexter Hamilton Addressed County Attorneys.

Simpler Indictments, Less Legal Verbiage, No Renewal of Cases on Trivial Points, Remedies Suggested.

Mineral Wells, Tex., Sept. 3.—At the session of the Association of County and District Attorneys, Dexter Hamilton read a paper on "The Difficulty of Securing Final Conviction in Murder Cases." He said it rests with the heaviest men in the legal profession to do something. Agitation is growing against the courts to an alarming extent because of the annual destruction of human life, he said. The present courts are looked on as preparators of murderers. The remedy needed is simplicity, rapidity and efficiency. Guilt or innocence should be what the courts look for.

He spoke against the delay caused by technicalities. He suggested simpler indictments, less legal verbiage, no renewal of cases of erroneous testimony except where damaging to the defendant. The charge of the court should be simple enough for the jury to understand. Present legal doubts, he said, induce turning murderers loose.

We burn our brick with 2025 degrees, which heat will burn up any brick except ours. We guarantee our brick to last three times longer than any other brick on the market. FRIDAY SEPT. 6, 1912

Will some of the wise younger generation inform us when and where slang originated? It is often used to make a statement more impressive, but it does seem that if it ever had any special advantage in this way, its usage has become so common that it now not only loses its impressiveness, but is absolutely coarse, and is grating to the truly refined mind. Why is it that our young people cannot just as easily learn to express their ideas in pure, correct English as to use the disgusting slang which forms the greater part of the average young American's vocabulary. The user of pure English is so seldom found that when we do meet such we thoroughly enjoy just listening to him talk. The following is an example of modern grammar:

A young lad, just returned from boarding school, upon being asked by "dad" how he stood in grammar at the end of the term, made reply something like this: "Say, dad, take it from me, grammar was my long suit. On the start of I was up against it hard. Couldn't get it through my noodle. Fell down every time I went to class. Finally I says to myself, look here, old kid, it's up to you. You've got to cut out the funny business and take a brace or you'll see your finish, the surest thing you know. Well I studied, believe me. And say, when it came to final exams did I lose out? Not on your life. I was right there with bells on. There was certainly some class to the way I answered those quizzes. A cold mark of ninety-five when it was all over. Not so worse, eh? Can you beat it? How I did it I don't know. You can search me. But anyhow it's 'ain't some, eh dad? None of 'em's got anything on me when it comes to grammar, that's a cinch."

"The old gent managed to gasp, 'Get the hook.'"

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Kimble County—
GREETING:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED, That by making Publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Kimble, if there is a newspaper published in said County (but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published,) for four weeks previous to the return day thereof, you summon G. N. Wright whose residence is unknown, to be and appear before the Hon. District Court, at the next regular term thereof, to be held in the County of Kimble, at the Court House thereof, in Junction, Texas, on the 14th day of October, 1912. File number being 542, then and there to answer the Petition of J. W. Boone filed in said Court on the 6th day of March A. D. 1912 against F. M. Chase, G. N. Wright and M. J. Wright, and alleging in substance as follows, to-wit:

That heretofore, on the 28th day of September, 1911, plaintiff was lawfully seized and possessed of the land hereinafter described, situated in Kimble County, Texas, and entitled to possession of same; that on the day and year last aforesaid defendants unlawfully entered upon said premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom and unlawfully withheld from plaintiff possession thereof; that the premises so entered upon are: 1st: Survey No. 74, Cert. No. 21349, S. A. & M. G. Ry. Co., containing 329 acres of land; 2d: Survey No. 754, Cert. No. 39 39 3/4, G. & S. F. Ry. Co., containing 750 acres of land. Plaintiff further alleges that on or about the 16th day of April, 1910, defendant F. M. Chase executed and delivered to plaintiff his three promissory notes, each for the sum of $1395.66 2/3, due on the 1st day of January, 1911, 1912 and 1913; that said notes provided that in case default was made in the payment of same or the interest on said notes when due, that plaintiff should have the right to declare mature all of said notes, that on the 1st day of January, 1911, the first of said notes became due, but defendant failed and refused to pay same or interest on said notes or any part thereof; that on or about the 28th day of September, 1911, plaintiff declared all of said notes mature and demanded payment of same but defendants though often requested have failed and refused to pay same or any part thereof and that plaintiff has been compelled to place said notes in the hands of an attorney for collection. Plaintiff further alleges that said notes were executed and delivered as part of the purchase price of said lands. Plaintiff further alleges that on or about April 16th, 1910, defendant F. M. Chase conveyed to defendant G. N. Wright the premises herein described and that defendant G. N. Wright had full knowledge that plaintiff held the vendor's lien notes herein described; that in the deed of conveyance from defendant F. M. Chase to defendant G. N. Wright, the payment of said notes was assumed by said G. N. Wright; that defendant G. N. Wright and wife M. J. Wright are in possession of the said premises.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, but have you then and there before said Court this writ, with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, in Junction this 7th day of August, A. D. 1912.

Attest: A. O. LAWLER,
Clerk Dist. Court Kimble County, Texas.

Letter to C. H. Stevenson
Junction, Texas

Dear Sir: One of the ways to get rich is to make a quarter look like thirty cents.

There's a better: make it thirty cents. It has this advantage:
one keeps out of jail.
There are 200 paint-manufacturers making quarters look like 30, 40, 50, 60 cents and all the odd cents between. That is their "paints" profess to be paints;
and they are in about the proportions named; they get 30 to 60 cents for a quarters worth;
some get 75.

There's a better way to paint:
Devoe. There are eight honest paints. By "honest" we mean we mean not-adulterated and full measure. These honest ones differ; no two are alike. In one the quarter is worth 27 or 28 cents; in another 30 cents; there must be a best one in eight; it is the one that takes least gallons to cover a job—Devoe.

To cover; that seems a light way to speak of a paint. No, it isn't. That is what paint is for:
to cover. It means to hide and protect. The paint that goes furthest is best, wears longest.
Go far is all; and Devoe is the go far paint.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.

THE WORLD NEEDS EDUCATED WOMEN

By Jas. L. Garvin, President of Wm. Woods College

The world needs her badly. It needs a healthier, happier tone. It needs girls who can see who can and be intelligently active in its service. Such women never deteriorate. They maintain the high levels upon which peace, joy and the beauty of life can flourish. Such women live their own life. But as Chibbabb sang one song which inspired the stream, the bluebird and the robin, and was loved for the magic of his singing, so the homes, the churches, and all the community feel the invigorating presence of the college woman. She is loved for the magic of her living.

In harmony with this eminently practical age, William Woods College strives to prepare young women for the everyday duties of life. Service is the keynote of our teaching. We do not mean by this that we neglect the accomplishments, as our facilities for their development are ample, but we make utility a prerequisite of culture. It is the aim and purpose of this institution to develop within its students all that is noblest and best in true womanhood, to meet every demand made upon it as a school, and to that end it combines the environments and privileges of a cultured, Christian home with the most thorough intellectual, moral and physical training William Woods College for women was founded in Fulton, Mo., twenty-two years ago, and today we have a school plant estimated at $175,000. During these years, the institution has encountered the usual experiences of colleges, but owing to the loyalty and generosity of friends, most prominent among them being the one whose name the college bears, Dr. W. S. Woods, and the untiring energies of those who were called to direct the affairs of the school, we have today one of the

SOMEWHERE East of Suez

By Wm. H. Greene

"Yes, that's a go, win or lose," said Reddy, and, turning to the man, "You'll have to agree to those terms and stick by them, Harkness."

"If he beats you," said Harkness, with a smile, "he can have every cent of money I have on board."

"Why don't you fight him yourself?" asked the girl scornfully, but Harkness made no reply.

The room was quickly cleared of all furniture. The girl, pale-faced and frightened, Harkness, smiling, and Keegan's "gang" with orders not to "butt in," stood in a row against the wall, while Reddy and the famous Bull Keegan faced each other in the center. The latter loomed up a trifle more bulky than his adversary, but not quite so clean-cut.

"You're not such a bad sort, Bull," said Reddy, apologetically. "I'm sorry I've got to do you. In a minute those were the last words spoken, and Bull, true to his title, put his head down and rushed away.

If you want an athletic and expert description of this fight, Nigger Smith and Louis the Dope are the ones you should look up. It is his story on the beach now—spoken of with reverence and awe, as any classic event should be. Certainly it was a contest that would make most of the stereotyped affairs of the professional prize-ring pale by comparison.

It was one long round of continuous, furious exchanges. Bull was powerful and aggressive; Reddy was equally powerful, and much more scientific. After the first five minutes the outcome was never in doubt, but Bull Keegan was very tough and very "game." At last, however, a short left-handed blow to the body bent him forward, just in time to receive a vicious right "swing" on the point of the chin. The hitherto undefeated gang leader went down, stiffened, slumped convulsively, and then lay still.

In the meantime a new spectator had silently joined the very quiet audience.

"I couldn't have done it better myself, Reddy," said a soft, silken voice, and Reddy turned to see Billy Englander standing in the doorway, cool, good-natured and confident as his ways. Turning toward the lady, he went on, raising his hat respectfully.

"Pardon me, Mrs. Harkness. Good evening, or, to be more exact, good morning." He bowed with a grace which any matinee idol might have envied.

His silken voice suddenly changed

AN APPEAL FOR THE BIRDS

Waco Woman Taking Up Work Started Since Husband.

Marlin, Tex., Sept. 3.—Mrs. M. B. Davis of Waco, who has taken up the work of her late husband in the Audubon Society, is in Marlin for a few days. Memory of Captain M. B. Davis is cherished throughout Texas. He was an able and interesting writer. His heart abounded with the tenderest sensibility for the welfare of God's smaller and more helpless creatures. It was an abiding principle with this excellent man to defend those who cannot defend themselves. During last winter when cruel and merciless slaughter of the robins was reported from all sections of Texas, he responded with a big heart full of mercy and zeal in behalf of the myriads of little red-breasted innocents that had been driven by the cold from their northern homes to a land of brighter days and warmer climate.

His appeal for the protection of the robins from men and boys armed with weapons of destruction made and another one. The tender plea of Captain Davis in behalf of the birds, as published in the papers, was read in the public schools and by other means. WILL WELCOME AMERICANS

Mexican Railroads Have Suffered Since Recent Nationalization.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 3.—That the American railroad men who left Mexico last April will be gladly welcomed back to Mexico is the statement of P. S. McGeeney, an old time Mexican resident now living in San Antonio, and who has just returned from a trip South.

Mr. McGeeney says statistics gathered by him show since the American engineers left Mexico there have been 187 railroad collisions on the National railroads, and fifty-nine engines have been damaged beyond repair. In these 187 collisions, 340 deaths have resulted, all of which Mr. McGeeney attributes to the fact that the Mexican engineers are not familiar with railroad orders. Had American engineers been at the throttle these collisions would not have occurred, he says.

These accidents have not been due to the activity of the people and Mr. McGeeney, but to the inability of the Mexican railroad employes to correctly interpret train orders.

VOTERS IGNORE CHARGES

Seven of Eighteen Aldermen Renominated in Detroit Primaries.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—Seven of the eighteen aldermen, recently arrested charged with bribery in connection with the passage of a street closing ordinance, were renominated in the primaries here.

Honest Tom Gilman, whom detectives had arrested for receiving bribes, was defeated by a very narrow margin.

If a man has a strong inclination to go to the devil, it is a pretty difficult matter to talk him out of it; you can't put an argument in his argument as a morning-after headache, and that doesn't seem to help much.

I am never able to understand why rivals do not fight every time they meet.

"El Merit" Coffee is packed by Dechman Coffee & Spice Mills, San Antonio. That's why it's good. Ask your dealer.

There are more on board of the schooner, and what once in Bull Keegan's boat will be sufficient to convict him, which settles an old score between Bull and myself.

"Well—I am a greenhorn," gasped Reddy.

By this time the launch had drifted outside the harbor, and the captain, seeing that a successful landing was made at a remote point up the beach, where packmules were waiting to take the cases of opium safely into town by a circuitous route through the jungle.

Reddy explained the circumstances of his affiliation with Bull Keegan's "gang."

"I started out to be a burglar, and now I'm a smuggler," he added.

"Be glad you're with the successful party," said Englander, smiling.

"The other smugglers are on their way to the calaboose by now."

It was broad daylight when the "Immortal" looking little launch chugged in and tied up at the boat-club wharf.

"Now let me bore you with a bit of advice," said Billy, "keep away from Bull Keegan's crowd. They're no company for a minister's son. In fact, I'm the only bad character that you ought to associate with around here. Make it a rule, Reddy, if they're any worse than Billy Englander, keep away from them."

"The 'gentleman-adventurer' and the 'beach-comber' shook hands, and the latter found a crisp, yellow bill sticking to his palm. He tried to say a word of thanks.

"Shut-up!" said Englander. "You have helped me to make a few hundred tonight—and I also knew Alvin Vernon before she was Mrs. Harkness."

HOUSTON'S WIDOW DYING

Indian Helpmet of Famous Texas Statesman Deserter by Tribesmen.

Lawton, Okla., Sept. 3.—Deserted and an outcast from her tribesmen, Melissa Houston, a full-blood Kiowa, once the beautiful wife of Gen. Sam Houston, first president of the Republic of Texas, has been left alone to die of hunger and neglect in her weather-beaten tepee, three miles from Lawton.

Mrs. Houston is 115 years old and blind. It has long been the custom of the Kiowa and Comanche Indians to desert their people and take, allowing them to die by degrees, and Melissa Houston, in spite of her former history, has not escaped the lot of the average squaw.

The city official was said to have been robbed of a diamond ring valued at $750, a watch worth $150 and $30 in money. NEW ORGANIZATION OF TEXAS EDITORS

An organization named the East Texas Press Association has been developed by the newspapermen of East Texas. The convention was held at Conroe and was well attended.

The purpose of the organization is to bring together in a closer relationship the various editors and publishers of East Texas, the establishment of a uniform rate of advertising, circulation considered, and a more fraternal feeling among the craft generally.

The day was very pleasantly spent by all present, and each pencil pusher departed for his respective field with the feeling that the time had been profitably employed and that something worth while had been accomplished.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Messrs. England and Edwards of the Conroe Courier for the courteous treatment the bunch received at their hands.

It was voted to hold the next meeting at Huntsville on October 23-24 of the present year, and Pro. Collett of the Huntsville Post-Item promises to give the members the time of their lives, and not let them get in the "pen" for keeps.

The following officers of the new association were elected for the first term:

President, T. L. Tucker, Montgomery Chronicle.

Vice President, Alvin A. Roberts, Security Hustler.

Secretary, Treasurer, V. L. Collett, Huntsville Post-Item.

Press Representative, J. S. England, Conroe Courier.

The executive committee is composed of the officers of the association.

B. W. Pike of the Trinity Tribune and W. P. Weldon of the Weldon Enterprise, were also very much in evidence at the meeting.

The initiation fee for charter members will be $5 and the dues will be $1 per year. The charter will be held open until after the next meeting in October, by which time it is hoped the members will have become a member.

The association also adopted an agenda, which consists of a printer's rule, crossed by two quills with the wording, "East Texas Press Association." This insignia will be run at the head of the editorial page of every member, and will appear on their stationery and the job printing which emanates from their respective places of business.

NEW BILL TO REVEAL HIGH COST OF LIVING

A very interesting bill is to be introduced before the national legislative bodies by Representative of Arkansas. It proposes to attack the patent laws and to extend the field of the anti-trust laws in such a manner that companies would be increased in all lines of trade.

There will be a fight royal when this measure is introduced, as it directly attacks the special privileges of the manufacturer, and will also do away with any chance for arbitrary trade rulings.

There are four main features to the bill. One requires that every patent shall expire within nineteen years after application has been filed, allowing the inventor two years to secure his patent allowance. The idea here is to prevent concerns with immense capital from permitting their claims to drag along, thus clogging the way for those behind them.

Another important section is the one which stipulates that a manufacturer may sell his goods to a merchant under a contract not to sell at a price, but that should the merchant do so he shall not be held guilty of having infringed upon the patent. Of course the manufacturer will gain by his contract and see the merchant in the civil courts, but according to Mr. Oldfield that will be far less expensive litigation and of much shorter duration than the present utilization of the Federal courts.

Talking about his sweeping measure the other day, Representative Oldfield said: "The manufacturer, say industry and business will be upset. If a man cannot do business without some special privilege of this sort he ought not to be in business. And I regard this price maintenance as the greatest of all privileges. The people don't know about this bill yet—but wait until they do. I know that the fight is going to be a tremendous one. Representatives from manufacturing districts will assail it from every side, but they will have to reckon with the ordinary voters of their districts."

"I claim that if the patented articles can be upheld in price, then non-patented articles can be upheld also. And in that case the farmer could put a price on his stuff at which it would be sold, and when you work that thing out, you will find the ultimate conclusion tell me where the non-producer—the ultimate consumer—would be."

This price feature is the backbone of the bill as far as the people at large are concerned.

Another striking feature of the bill is the extension of the anti-trust law to apply to all patent monopolies. Under these anti-trust law amendments a manufacturer is forbidden to get a patent and let it lie idle for the sole purpose of stifling competition. The inventor, however, is exempted from this clause, thus being given time in which to interest a manufacturer in his patented contrivance.

The Arkansas congressman realizes he has a big fight on his hands in securing consideration of his bill, but if he falls he believes the debate it will bring forth on the floor of the house will be sufficient to do the work he is thinking of. The ultimate of a great reform will be accomplished and the patent monopoly freed from present abuses.

LITTLE TALES OF FELLOW TRAVELERS

THE OUTCAST WOMAN

(From The Public)

It was late Saturday night, and a man but recently from a farm was walking along the streets of San Francisco; the hour was well past midnight. He had the fortune heritages of tremendous health, clean up-bringing, and plain, honorable ancestry on both sides; he was making friends and a place for himself in the great city. But on this night he was calmly studying "the seamy side of life."

He noticed a disturbance across the street. Several waiters were persuading a stylish elderly and too convivial man, with his young woman companion, to enter a carriage. Suddenly came a gentle touch upon his arm; a girl spoke: "Come home with me."

He looked at her in such an uncomprehending way that she flushed under power and rouge. She pulled harder at his arm.

"You are the greatest man I ever met. Have a good time, and give me a dollar or two," she said. "You might treat me to some supper first. I am awfully hungry. There's my room rent besides, or maybe I would not come along."

The youth noted her soiled and tawdry clothing, her thin, worn-out shoes, her hardened face, her hoarse and broken voice, her pitiful and terrible eyes. He thought of his own sisters and girl friends in far-off city and country places, asleep in love, in honor and protection. Into the sorrow and horror of this sudden Vision of Death, his soul fell; he asked himself: "Why are such things as this permitted by the Creator?"

What he said was: "If my mother were here she would take you to supper, right across the street. So come along."

A couple of reporters whom he knew were having oysters and ale there; he thought it might be well to speak to them. So, after he had made the outcast woman comfortable, he left her. In fact, he wanted to get away, for it hurt him to see how soiled by a fine and unusual type. One was that lovable Harry Bigelow, whose name still rings as a glorious tradition in the good newspaper circles. Both were good judges of men and of motives; he had guessed with more or less accuracy that the youth had something more on his mind than the mere giving of a meal to an outcast.

They knew him well enough to do so; they went straight to the problem, as they saw it.

"What you are trying to do," said one, "is Quixotic."

"It's lunacy!" said the other. "You bring her in here; you hang on her cloak you treat her as all respects like one of your uptown friends. At present you are welcome in the best private circles of San Francisco, but this gets around it won't from us—you will be cut dead."

"That girl is bright enough. She might have made an extra five hundred dollars in the city, and out; she's notorious. She once tried to kill the man who ruined her."

"The youth colored, and looked to the other reporter, who was especially dear to his soul.

"It's true," said Harry Bigelow. "Everybody knows about her; a country girl who got into the city and been publicly with her. Go over and say good-night. Give her all the money you can spare. Take this too, the couple on the table; it was a way that reporter had."

All three looked across the room. The girl was no attorney; she was still devouring her meal.

The youth hesitated, crossed the Rubicon, became a serious-eyed man as at one stroke he must let go my own foolish way, boys," he said.

"That poor thing has come to grief, and broken up with the men of the city, and our social system. But she and I, and you, besides, are really rat-fans. We must not be caught by Don Quixote!" they told him. "Hope you won't be sorry."

"Then he went back to the problem before him, drank some coffee, talked to a street cleaner, and then he went to his room, and he had his places until his face softened up, on her cloak, and started out with her."

The restaurant proprietor took his money and then called him a trifle aside. "Don't bring that woman here again."

"He asked the drunken man and woman your waiters put in a carriage awhile ago?" said the wrathful young man. "Were they much better?"

"Clear out!" the irate proprietor shouted. "I haven't any finer customers than those two."

The girl, who, of course, the iron mask again fell on her face; she dropped the young man's arm at the door.

"Thank you, sir, Good-by." He stopped her with a compelling and protesting gesture. "Not at all! I shall see you home."

He took her to a rooming house, together to a horrible lodging house on the Barbary Coast. It was 2 o'clock Sunday morning. A drunken woman was picking a drunken sailor up the stairs. A Jewish creature opened a window and a railing. She demanded seven dollars from the outcast woman for a week's rental in advance. The youth paid it instantly, walked past to the outcast's door, gave her money for breakfast, told her to meet him in Portsmouth Square, and then returned.

He looked her in the eyes and held out his hand. He spoke in a cool, clear voice which might have fallen from the lips of a saint. "I have a ship rule, and passion has been for ever brought under control. Tears were in his eyes; mingled sorrow, pride and bewilderment were in his heart."

"Good night, my poor sister. Now go to sleep!"

He walked, he walked towards Market street, took a car and went home, struggling with the age-old problem. Surely the Almighty had not created a man to be a failure. He could not rest; he read of Juliet and Imogen; again he read the immortal sonnet:

"Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediment.
Slowly, climbing the road of Shakespeare, this sonnet to the light from his Vision of Death. "The Sex Law," he whispered to himself, "is unselfish Love, and holy Marriage is the eternal communion of two spirits."

"Poor, broken-hearted woman of the streets," he added, "she is some man's daughter; she might have been some good man's dear wife."

That Sunday afternoon the young man and the outcast woman talked together in Portsmouth Square. She spoke with simple dignity and reticence. "The pressure," she said, "was too much for my ignorance of life; but I do want another chance."

He took the addresses of her relatives, gave her some hard-earned money—she was one of the toilers. "Eat and sleep," he said, "then try to get work. I'll find some woman to come and see you."

A certain rich man, prominent in social, literary and religious organizations, went past this minute; saw the girl crying, saw the youth give her money, put the worst construction on the affair, told a dozen people before night, told his wife later. "A nice fellow to be a member of our Literary Club! Never saw anything so brazen, and in broad daylight."

"Yes," said the youth to the outcast woman, as they parted, "I will get word to those aunts of yours."

The next evening he went to the most charming matron he knew, and told her the story. Would she take charge of this poor thing, call upon her, get her started in some self-supporting work, secure for her a woman-physician, communicate with her aunts?"

The matron was frankly shocked. "Take her to the homes for such persons!" she said, breaking off the discussion.

The aunt in Colusa replied to the youth's letter.

"What you say about my wicked niece and her repentance sounds well enough. Her mother died of grief. Tell her so; it may help to make her repent better. Of course, I have no means of knowing whether you are telling the truth about your relations. However, I know my duty. Send her life, and I will remit the railroad fare."

The youth read this twice and thrust it in the fire. Really, the problem was too much for him; he would go home before long; perhaps his mother would take hold of it.

The very next day one of his newspapers stepped into the office where the youth worked, to say that the Weekly Stiletto had picked up an item from the certain rich man; had reported a dramatic and very disreputable story, and was now trying to find the girl. "We'll move heaven and earth to keep it out of print," they said, "you set that woman out of town, Don Quixote!"

The young man shivered. Social convention, which he had always laughed at, began to look like a yellow-toothed gigantic ogre, who had cornered him in her cave.

But that evening came a small, ill-dressed, gray-haired woman from the redwoods and Mendocino, to see the young man. "I am Eliza's aunt," she told him. "I am so glad she has been found."

"Take her right home," he said, after he had talked awhile. "Give her a place in your heart. And tell her good-by from me."

She took his hands, this tall, worn elderly woman, thanked him with words he never forgot, and went back, with the girl, into the healing mountains.

As for the youth, he long carried with him this case of one poor maltreated traveler. For the first time in his life, he was not Sunday school he questioned the orthodox foundations of the Social Order; he asked: "Why should there be castes, thousands, human slavery under a thousand other names, a capital of common resources by the few? Why is so much of our Christian civilization an-Christian?"

He saw, he saw plainly that for men as for women there could be but one and the same law of security—his mother had taught him that. He would not let any other part of society forgive the man-sinner, it must equally forgive the woman-sinner. Also, he saw that woman in self-protection everywhere in public affairs; needs to declare open and invariable war upon every form of prostitution, on all which creates and sustains it.

As the years went, his thoughts widened. He began to recognize the feeble arrangements of every outcast man as well as every outcast woman might justly fling at the blunders and crimes of our civilization. Most of all, he saw that God of the Morning who brings light out of darkness, knew that, while his earnest Mother had her share in the gift, it was chiefly the work of the Outcast Woman, whose nameless agonies were thus melted into the slow creation of higher human standards on this planet.

A certain shot on this

I have been to Fredericksburg to make a rest, and while there, she consulted a physician, who told her that she had but a couple of months to live, as she had rapid consumption. She came back to San Antonio, and I took her to a local sanitarium, where she was chiefly the work of the French Laboratory. Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Anna Korte, 217 Mechanic St., Pueblo, Colo., says:

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration; I was unable to do any house work and doctors failed to help me. Remedies I tried from druggists did not do me a particle of good. A neighbor told my husband about and he procured a bottle. After the first few doses I showed a marked improvement and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured. I have been perfectly well for years and cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nerve too highly.
If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep, if you are in a general run-down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.
has proven its value in nervous disorders for thirty years, and merits a trial, no matter how many other remedies have failed to help you. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.

Plaintiffs allege that in addition to their claim of ownership of said land by reason of the Statutes of Limitation as pleaded they claim to own and hold the title to said land by virtue of the following deed recorded in the office of the County Clerk of Kimble County, Texas in the book and page hereinafter set forth.

Miller dated September 6, 1907, recorded in book 11, pp. 586-589. Plaintiffs allege that notwithstanding they have a good title to said premises said defendants are claiming some interest therein by reason of the fact that on the 25th day of September, 1911, a patent was issued to them for said premises by the Commissioner of the General Land Office that nevertheless plaintiffs have acquired a good and valid title to said land. Plaintiffs further allege that by reason of the pretended claim of defendants they are prevented from selling and disposing of said property readily and that it is and casts a cloud upon their title which cloud plaintiffs are entitled to have cancelled and removed. Plaintiffs pray that they have judgment for the said land, for their writ of possession and that the cloud upon the title be cancelled and removed.

HIGHER FAULT NOT, but have you then and there before said Court this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.
Given under my hand and seal of office in Junction, this 15th day of August, 1912.
