Sharp unveils blueprint

$5.2 billion plan might derail income tax

Proposals recommend mergers, layoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Comptroller John Sharp said Wednesday that state government would be leaner — but not meaner — under his massive reorganization plan.

Services would be merged, more than 1,000 state employees would lose their jobs, and some departments would be shut down under the proposal that was the result of a 4½-month audit of the state bureaucracy.

In his report, Sharp said Texas government is "overlaid with hundreds of agencies, boards, commissions and advisory groups. It is a jerrybuilt mess."

Also, tuition at public colleges and univer-

AUSTIN — State leaders Wednesday received a blueprint for saving and raising $5.2 billion, and Gov. Ann Richards said the massive audit should head off talk of a state income tax.

"My personal feeling is that you will not see an income tax in Texas," Richards said. "I said repeatedly I didn't think you were going to see an income tax in Texas, and I do not believe that anything's changed."

However, the governor stopped short of predicting that the nearly 1,000 changes proposed by Comptroller John Sharp's audit could prevent all taxes from going up.

"As far as what will be needed, though, in terms of additional revenue — I don't think we know that yet," she said.

The governor praised the audit's

Federal army tanks roll into Slovenia

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Federal army tanks rolled into the breakaway republic of Slovenia's main airport early today after defiant citizens set up blockades but apparently did not try to fight the federal advance.

Slovenian officials said the federal government was trying to secure the field so military planes could land. The airport was closed on Wednesday, a day after Slovenia and neighboring Croatia declared independence.

A duty officer at the airport, Marjan Miklavci, said on Slovene radio that at least 10 tanks had entered the airport outside the Slovenian capital, Ljubljana. He was quoted as saying airplanes had been parked on the runway, presumably by Slovenes seeking to prevent military aircraft from landing.

Before dawn today, a column of tanks and armored cars had left the Vrhnika army base, 12 miles west of Ljubljana, and began moving toward the airport north of the city, according to a statement read on Ljubljana Radio.

An Associated Press reporter saw nine Soviet-made T-72 tanks and two armored personnel carriers approach the airport.

The convoy managed to get past the roadblocks set up by Slovenes, one group

House passes counseling bill; foes hold back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday overwhelmingly approved a bill to permit abortion counseling at taxpayer-financed clinics, a step toward reversing a Bush administration ban and the Supreme Court ruling that upheld it.

The spending bill was approved 353-74 after abortion opponents decided to pin their hopes on a veto by President Bush rather than fight an amendment that would block enforcement of the government's abortion-counseling ban.

Bush has said he would veto the bill, as well as other abortion-related measures that have advanced in the House this year. And though Wednesday's approval vote was well above the two-thirds needed to override a veto, abortion foes said it was not a reflection of sentiment on the counseling ban.

"This vote had absolutely no relevance in terms of strength to uphold a veto," said Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J.. He said

Jerry Dugan's fiddle provides a traditional country sound for the popular local band West-Wind.

Country artists strike chord for stardom

By Chris Van Wagenen

IN TUNE WITH West Texas

Unlike rock and pop artists who generally shun smaller cities, country superstars like George Strait and Reba McIntire have never forgotten their roots — making a point to include Midland and Odessa in their tours.

Jerry Dugan may not be a household name like George and Reba, but every day he grows more confident that he's moving toward that level of stardom.

"We're just in the middle of no-man's land right now. I've put eight pretty good years into this, but it's really just been over the past two that I've had a goal to work toward," said Dugan, who heads local band West-Wind.

"Our main objective is getting with a record label that can get our music played all over the nation."

Dugan isn't alone in that respect. Fellow Odessan Johnny Blaine, front man for Johnny Blaine and the Spur Band, has similar ambitions.

"We need to get a few things taken care of, but our next step is to get some producers out here. I think it's just a matter of time before something breaks," Blaine said.

Officials reveal Sununu's use of guards as drivers

Sununu

By Michael Wines
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — For more than 18 months, John H. Sununu has used workers who guard federal office buildings in New York to drive and escort him on business, political and personal errands in the New York and New Jersey area, according to government officials and documents.

The White House said Wednesday that the assistance to Sununu, the White House chief of staff, was routine and had been authorized, and has been made available to other senior officials.

But managers of the guard service in five other major cities said Wednesday that their duties primarily were limited to guarding buildings and investigating crimes on federal property, and that they had never escorted high-level officials on local visits.

A Washington spokeswoman for the General Services Administration, which manages the guard service, said she could recall only one other instance of such services being provided outside New York. In New York, she said, sev-

Baptist factions at odds on motel-room bookings

(NYT) Baptists have stopped arguing about the Bible, at least temporarily, and are feuding about motel rooms.

All the 2,000 hotel and motel rooms in Waco, the site of next fall's Baptist General Convention of Texas meeting, have been booked, and Baylor University officials blame fundamentalists for it.

"We view with this as a conspiracy by fundamentalists to rob Texas Baptists of a free and open convention," said Mike Bishop, vice president for communications at Baylor, which is in the central Texas city. "This for once and for all will show Texas Baptists that the fundamentalists will do whatever it takes to take control of the convention and Baylor University."

He said fundamentalists had credit cards ready to snap up large blocks of rooms shortly after midnight June 20, the earliest the Baptists could book rooms under an agreement with Waco convention

Jesse to make run

In Jesse Jackson's mind, all this leads to one thing: He's back. Or at least he wants to be. After two years of aimless wandering in a political Sinai, the Rev. Zach died naturally

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Zachary Taylor died of natural causes, not arsenic poisoning as a writer speculated, a medical examiner said Wednesday. "It's not borderline. He was not poisoned," Kentucky Medical Examiner Dr. George Nichols said after reviewing tests on the 12th president's remains. Nichols said traces of arsenic — a naturally occurring element — were found but levels for poisoning "would have been at least 200 if not maybe thousands of times higher."

SHARP: Plan calls for sweeping changes in state

proposals, saying adoption of them by the Legislature would put the state on the road to a dramatic overhaul.

"This is a start at real change in state government" that has been dogged by "just pure laziness and inefficiency," she said.

"The people of Texas are not satisfied with what they've always got. They are not satisfied with the service and they are not satisfied with the bill that goes with it. And I don't blame them," she said.

Her special tax study committee last week canceled its meeting after Richards told the chairman, former Gov. John Connally, about the audit's results. Several committee members have supported a state income tax, and the panel may vote on tax recommendations Saturday.

The governor said she would decide by the weekend whether to start the Legislature's budget-writing special session July 8, or wait until July 15 so lawmakers would have more time to examine the audit.

Richards, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock planned a private summit meeting on Matagorda Island for Wednesday night and Thursday.

Sharp's report, the result of 54,000 hours of work by nearly 100 auditors, called for sweeping reforms in the way state government works.

"It was suggested that we should look for ways to cut at least $200 million from the state budget. We did that the first day," Sharp said.

The 975 recommendations included merging some agencies, combining many of the more than 600 state bank accounts and eliminating about 1,000 of the 226,000 state jobs.

Among key proposals:

- Reorganize the Texas Education Agency.
- Merge the numerous health and human services agencies, which now involve about 25.
- Create a Natural Resources Council. Currently, 15 agencies deal with the environment and natural resources.
- Consolidate many of the more than 600 special-purpose bank accounts now on the books.
- Provide incentives for state workers to be more efficient.
- Limit school district administrative costs.
- Obtain more federal Medicaid and child support money.

REPORT: Services would merge

sities would be doubled for in-state students and quadrupled for out-of-state students.

The plan would save and raise $5.22 billion over 1992-93, avoid the need for a major tax increase, and improve services, Sharp said.

Many of the recommendations "promote good government or improve the flow of services to the public — gains no less real or important than those measured in dollars," Sharp said.

For instance, he said, parents of children with multiple disabilities currently have to seek assistance form several agencies. But under his plan, they would go to one agency that would be composed of the 14 existing agencies now providing most health and human services.

Although, 1,043 state employees would lose their jobs, Sharp said the remaining 225,000 state workers would receive better health insurance and retirement benefits, plus incentives to perform a better job.

He proposed massive changes to education administration, including the shutdown of the Texas Education Agency in order to allow the new Education Commissioner, Lionel "Skip" Meno, to restructure the department.

In higher education, tuition at public colleges and universities would increase from $20 per semester hour to $40 per hour for in-state students, and $40 per hour to $160 per hour for out-of-state students. One-fifth of the tuition revenue would go into a special fund to provide loans to low-income students.

Other reorganization measures would create a new Department of Transportation by combining the departments of highways, aviation, and turnpike authority. The High Speed Rail Authority would be rolled into the Texas Railroad Commission.

TANKS: Defiant citizens set up road blocks crossing over fields to the airport. The Slovenian defense forces said tanks rammed through some of the blockades.

Slovene radio said that at one blockade, some of the federal troops went over to the Slovenian side, but did not say how many.

Slovenian territorial troops armed with antitank weapons and rifles patrolled the capital overnight, but there was no indication the army was moving toward the city itself.

On Wednesday, the federal government had sent warplanes buzzing over the capital, and army tanks moved to take control of Slovenia's international borders, but their advance was blocked by trucks parked across highways by Slovenian militiamen.

Federal authorities stopped all flights through Ljubljana on Wednesday.

Territorial troops armed with antitank weapons and rifles said they'd been dragged out of bed by officers to patrol the dark streets of the city of 330,000. But there was no indication the army was moving toward the city itself.

On Wednesday, a day after Croatia and Slovenia declared independence, the federal government made little effort to physically confront the secessionist republics. And despite the renewed ethnic violence, it continued to talk of a democratic solution.

The republics, for their part, continued taking small steps away from the Yugoslav federation despite an apparently total lack of international solidarity with their secession movements.

The federal government, based in Belgrade, said its police were moving to take control of border posts along the frontier with other European nations. But there was no evidence they succeeded anywhere.

Slovene police wearing bullet-proof vests and armed with automatic weapons guarded crossings on the border with Austria. They raised Slovenia's flag and put up signs welcoming visitors to an independent Slovenia.

Citizens and police in Slovenian towns and villages close to the Italian frontier reportedly blocked roads to bar federal forces from reaching border posts there.

Some 20,000 Slovenes coverged on a Ljubljana square for a solemn ceremony in which the republic's new white, blue and red flag was hoisted after the Yugoslav flag was taken down. Slovene President Milan Kucan told the crowd, , "Every man is born with a right to dream. Through work he can combine dream and reality. Yesterday we linked the two."

The federal government called for Yugoslavia's six republics to renew efforts to reach a "democratic agreement" on the federation's future.

The two secessionist republics previously said they might return if Serbia dropped its opposition to transforming Yugoslavia into a loose federation of sovereign states. But there was no sign of compromise Wednesday.

Slovenian and Croatian leaders expressed hope that foreign capitals would acknowledge the new status of their republics. No foreign government had done so by Wednesday.

HOUSE: Vote overturns abortion-counseling ban

(From 1A)

many lawmakers opposed to the amendment supported the bill anyway because "it's a good bill except for this . . . and it's coming back."

He expressed confidence that abortion foes could mount enough support to sustain a veto. If all members are voting, 290 lawmakers would be needed to override a veto.

The amendment is attached to a bill would appropriate $203 billion for the departments of Health and Human Services, Labor, and Education.

The measure to lift the ban has "broad and deep support on both sides of the aisle and in most cases regardless of position on abortion because this is even a more fundamental question, one regarding the honest relationship between citizens and their government," said Rep. John Porter, R-Ill.

"I would urge the president to listen to the medical profession and to listen to people across this nation and sign the bill when it comes across his desk," said Porter, who sponsored the counseling provision as an amendment to the broad spending bill.

But Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., said, "This policy of the president is a good one and we will sustain a veto."

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said the amendment "is making doctors who should be helping parents plan their family recommend that they can also exterminate this child . . . and it's compelling the taxpayers to pay for it."

Lawmakers favoring abortion rights have pushed through several abortion-related measures this session by picking up support from Republicans, but it was unclear whether any of the measures could get the two-thirds majority necessary to override a veto.

Earlier Wednesday, the House approved a District of Columbia appropriations bill that would allow the city to use its own money to pay for abortions for poor women.

DRIVERS: Sununu now is curtailing travel plans en members of President Bush's Cabinet have received assistance from the guard service.

Sununu's office did not pay for the services. The spokeswoman said that was because the cost on each visit did not exceed the $500 minimum level at which reimbursement is required.

Employees of the guard agency, the Federal Protective Service, shuttled Sununu to speeches, a New York Giants football game and to a Manhattan commencement ceremony on June 9 and a political fund-raising event on June 12 in nearby Peapack, N.J., a spokeswoman for the General Services Administration said Wednesday. The protective service is part of the GSA, the government's purchasing agency and property manager.

The trips in New York this month occurred more than four weeks after the White House, stung by reports of Sununu's extensive travels on military jets, withdrew his authority to use government aircraft on personal and political business and made clear that Sununu should avoid even the appearance of taking advantage of his position to obtain special travel privileges.

As part of a campaign aimed at shedding an image of arrogance, Sununu is curtailing his travel plans even further, advisers said Wednesday.

Sununu's access to assistance from the protective service, which he has used on at least 10 visits to New York, dates to the beginning of the Bush administration, when he had broad authority as chief of staff to use government agencies in his travel. The Secret Service does not provide Sununu with a security detail unless he is traveling with the president.

In response to questions given to his office on Tuesday, Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said Wednesday that the assistance provided Sununu in New York was "consistent with the services the General Services Administration provides senior federal officials."

Fitzwater added: "In the context of recent stories about the chief of staff's travel, any support services could be made to look unnecessary. But these are routine, warranted and authorized services."

Sununu said Wednesday in a written statement: "The support of the General Services Administration is an available asset for many senior officials in this administration. I hope that my acceptance of this assistance does not in any way diminish the important contribution they make by providing that support."

A senior White House official who asked not to be identified said the issue with Sununu's travels "is not illegality or venality," and added, "It's a matter of taste, proportion, balance and perspective."

Referring to Sununu's travels in general, the official said, "Each of these incidents suggests that his judgment was flawed."

C. Boyden Gray, the White House counsel, ruled last week that Sununu's trip to New York to buy rare stamps and to make a political speech in New Jersey the same day were part of an official trip because Sununu conducted some business by telephone while he was traveling.

He traveled from Washington to New York in his White House limousine, and returned to the capital aboard a private jet chartered by a New Jersey financial services company.

According to confidential Federal Protective Service records and to government officials, Sununu was escorted by the agency's drivers and guards on at least nine other visits that he made to New York or to suburbs in New Jersey since September 1989.

BAPTISTS: New fight erupts about motel-room bookings

officials.

Fundamentalist leaders disputed the accusations, but one conservative Baylor trustee, Hal Boone of Houston, said he expects a record turnout for the meeting. Last year's meeting in Houston was the largest, with 7,540 voting representatives.

Boone declined to comment on whether he had booked a large block of rooms, reserved for conservatives.

"Herb Reynolds (the Baylor president) booked up a lot of rooms, too," said Boone, a retired medical missionary serving as an associate pastor at a Houston church.

"I booked rooms for me, my wife and my family," Boone said. "Let's leave it at that."

Bishop said Baylor officials will provide other housing if necessary, using churches, private homes and dormitories.

A large turnout is expected because of Baylor's attempt to remove itself from state Baptist control.

In September, the university changed its charter, setting up a self-perpetuating board on which 18 of the school's 24 regents would be elected by Baylor and six by the state group. In the past all trustees were elected by the delegates to annual state Baptist meetings.

Texas Baptist officials, who say Baylor acted illegally, have been trying to negotiate a compromise.

The compromise proposal asks that six be elected by Baylor, six by the state Baptists and 12 elected by state Baptists from a list provided by Baylor. Baylor officials don't like the proposal.

Tom Brannon, public relations director for state Baptists, said many attending the meeting Nov. 11-12 will have to stay in Hillsboro, Temple, Belton and other central Texas cities.

"An obviously organized effort to buy up all the available rooms in Waco housing was completed in the early hours of June 20," Brannon said.

Reynolds said that Baylor wants to remain Baptist but said he fears that it will be taken over by fundamentalists.

Fundamentalists control the national Southern Baptist Convention, but moderates control the Texas Baptist organization. And Reynolds fundamentalists are growing in strength among Texas Baptists.

Fundamentalists say they want to return Baptists to their roots in the belief in a literally true Bible. Baylor is a frequent target of the group because of its stands on academic freedom and individual interpretation of the Scriptures.

U.S.: Iraq moved nuclear material while delaying inspection

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq allowed U.N. inspectors to visit a military base Wednesday, but only after a 72-hour delay the United States charged was used by Iraq to hide materials it is using to make crude nuclear weapons.

At the United Nations, the United States, Britain and France were joined by four other Security Council members in condemning Iraq for barring the inspection team from what was described as a storage site for enriched uranium intended for weapons production.

The council members, including Austria, Belgium, Romania and Ecuador, accused Baghdad of cheating on its commitments outlined in an April 3 cease-fire declaration.

Iraq has agreed to allow destruction of any chemical, biological or nuclear weapons and related materials. The indication that Iraq is hiding weapons is likely to hurt Saddam Hussein's effort to persuade the Security Council to lift an economic blockade on his country.

The Security Council was told the inspectors were turned away twice from the Abu Gharaib Army Barracks in Baghdad between Sunday and Tuesday.

U.S. satellite photos shown to the Security Council in New York showed that nuclear materials and chemical weapons at the base were moved between Sunday, when the inspection team first tried to visit, and Wednesday, when it finally was allowed in, diplomats said.

"Access was denied to the inspection, and an urgent inspection. That is very bad," Soviet U.N. Ambassador Yuli Vorontsov said.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmed Hussein said the visit was delayed because of the four-day Muslim holiday Eid Al Adha, the Feast of Sacrifice, which ended Tuesday.

Iraqi officials denied nuclear materials were removed, and said the U.N. inspectors had not been barred from the military base itself, but from two sites in the compound.

The inspection took place at a site that Iraq didn't account for under the U.N.'s Gulf War cease-fire resolution, an International Atomic Energy Agency official said in Baghdad.

"We were officially denied the right of access and the right of inspection for 72 hours," said David Kay, deputy leader of the inspection team. "The U.N. agreement provides for immediate access."

At the United Nations, acting U.S. Ambassador Alexander Watson said Iraq was hiding parts of a crude device for enriching uranium to weapons-grade quality.

At one point, he said, the inspection team outside the base had to move aside to allow heavy moving equipment to reach the site.

"Even as Iraqi work crews were frantically removing this equipment, Iraqi officials were barring the Security Council-mandated inspection team access to the site," Watson said.

"This calls into serious question other commitments and reports the government of Iraq has purportedly made in compliance with Resolution 687," said Watson. The cease-fire resolution also calls on Iraq to pay reparations and return loot its soldiers stole from Kuwait.

"There is ample evidence that Iraq has been conducting a covert nuclear weapons program," State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said earlier. "We strongly urge the Security Council to put the Iraqi regime on notice that this obstructionism must not happen again."

The Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, quoted a Foreign Ministry source as denying Tutwiler's charges.

"We express our strong astonishment for the statement attributed to her and categorically deny the empty claims and charges," said the unidentified source. "... It is part of a misleading campaign waged by malicious quarters which are very well known to everybody."

Rolf Ekeus, chairman of a U.N. commission overseeing Iraqi disarmament, told the Security Council that inspectors were "able to observe that, in areas to which access was denied, considerable activity was under way, including cranes, trucks, forklifts and other equipment and work crews."

The International Atomic Energy Agency said from its headquarters in Vienna, Austria, that when the visit finally took place, "activities which had been observed from a distance during the first visit had ceased and objects that had been seen had been removed."

Commander: US will rebuild air, navy bases in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The United States plans to rebuild its bases in the Philippines and will return evacuated dependents next month unless the threat from Mount Pinatubo increases, the senior U.S. officer here said Wednesday.

However, officials at the Philippine Institute of Vulcanology and Seismology said a new lava dome appeared to be forming in the volcano that could lead to more big eruptions.

But they said they didn't expect a repeat of the huge eruptions in mid-June that spewed tons of ash, causing widespread damage to towns and the U.S. bases.

Ash and steam continued to billow from Mount Pinatubo Wednesday, forcing President Corazon Aquino to cancel a visit to one of the devastated towns.

Officials said the death toll from nearly three weeks of eruptions rose to 338 as late casualty reports reached Manila. Forecasters predicted heavy rains Thursday night near Clark Air Base, raising fears of mudslides from tons of ash and debris piled up by the eruptions.

Speaking on the nationwide Emergency Broadcast Network, Institute of Vulcanology and Seismology official Ronaldo Arboleda said people should be prepared to move quickly away from rivers and ravines.

'Certainly, if Mount Pinatubo continues to erupt, we will have to more seriously consider what the alternatives are.'

— Rear Adm. Thomas Mercer

Rear Adm. Thomas Mercer, commander of the Subic Bay naval base, told reporters that 700 Navy construction workers would arrive in July to rebuild Subic and Clark Air Base. He said the cleanup was already under way and power and water were slowly being restored.

"My mission is to put it back together exactly the way it was," he said.

In Washington, officials said the United States wants to retain the bases, and that talks on a new lease would resume in Manila next month. The lease covering Clark and Subic expires Sept. 16, and renewal talks had bogged down before the eruptions over issues of compensation and the length of the extension. Agreement has already been reached on four smaller bases, which are being returned this year.

There was no immediate reaction in the Philippines to the U.S. announcement.

Some Filipinos strongly oppose a continued U.S. presence, but recent polls have shown increasing public support for extending the lease. Most lawmakers and government officials had appeared more concerned the Americans might abandon the bases and leave the government without an important source of income.

Mercer said the United States was considering transferring some of its operations elsewhere in Asia if Mount Pinatubo continues to be a threat.

"Certainly, if Mount Pinatubo continues to erupt, we will have to more seriously consider what the alternatives are if we cannot go back into either Subic or Clark," he said.

Kuwait commutes executions

KUWAIT CITY (NYT) — Kuwait's Prime Minister Crown Prince Saad al-Abdullah Salem on Wednesday ordered that all death sentences imposed on people convicted of collaborating with Iraq should be commuted to life terms in prison, the official news agency said.

The decision on martial-law courts' death sentences appears to reflect Kuwait's growing sensitivity to criticism from abroad that the nation's postwar policies in general, and the trials in particular, have not lived up to the expectations of nations in the American-led alliance that fought to free the emirate from Iraqi occupation.

Martial law courts have sentenced 29 people to death in the last five weeks, despite rising protests from foreign governments and human rights groups who said that the defendants had not received fair trials and that the penalties in many cases were out of proportion to the alleged crimes.

The government announced Tuesday that martial law would end Wednesday.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (Company), in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission), hereby gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas for Directory Assistance Services, effective August 1, 1991, unless otherwise determined by the Commission. The Company has filed an application with the Commission to restructure and change the rates for Directory Assistance Service.

To help recover its costs, the Company is proposing to increase the rates for Directory Assistance calls from $.30 to $.40 per call (after the three-call allowance). Southwestern Bell is proposing that there be no change in the number of free Directory Assistance calls allowed each month (currently three) and that customers who qualify for exemption of Directory Assistance charges because of visual or physical handicaps continue to be exempt from these charges. The company also proposes to begin charging $.25 per call for Directory Assistance from pay telephones.

If approved by the Commission, this proposed rate change for Directory Assistance will increase the Company's annual revenues by $15.4 million, which is an increase of approximately one half of 1 percent in the Company's adjusted revenue for the twelve-month period ending December 1990. This proposed rate change would affect approximately 900,000 residence customers, approximately 155,000 business customers, approximately 500 private pay telephone owners and all customers who make Directory Assistance calls from public pay telephones.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

IN TUNE WITH West Texas

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Ric Vickery spent 10 years knocking around Nashville before returning to West Texas as lead guitarist for the Spur Band.

Hispanic bands with varied sounds develop loyal statewide followings

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

ODESSA — After a long trip back from McAllen, Willie Mendoza, lead singer for The Twin City Band, said he just likes to take a day off and rest.

Mendoza, who along with his wife Melinda, operates The Spanish Inn on West County Road, says the pace can sometimes be tiring. "But you learn to work around it."

And work they do.

"They're a well-established band that's been around awhile," said Dan Ferguson, an employee of Caldwell Music Store in Odessa, who's familiar with the group. "They play as much as they want."

Twin City, a 10-member band with players from Odessa, Midland and Big Spring, has been together for five years.

Their music is well known. So is their showmanship and talent.

"We stay on the road quite a bit. We're more of a weekend band, but we'll play sometimes three nights a week. That's why it takes me a long time to recuperate," said Mendoza, who has been at it for 28 years.

The band, which has a big following in Midland and Odessa, plays in cities from Houston to Austin as well as towns from Pecos to Fort Stockton.

"We also do a lot of weddings and quincianeras . . . we're booked solid through New Year's," Mendoza said.

Twin City is working on its third album since completing a 16-track studio. The band had recorded at Nick Carlton's No Mountain Recording studio in Midland.

"But we decided to build our own because there just wasn't one in Odessa. We also knew a lot of other bands couldn't afford to go and record in San Antonio or Dallas, so we opened it to them ," he said.

Twin City performs a lot of popular Mexican-American tunes, recording in both English and Spanish, but Mendoza said the group's long-term goal now rests in being picked up by a major record label as Hispanic music grows in popularity.

The group isn't alone on the local music scene. Flavor of the culture also is captured by others, such as The Destino Band, which plays many styles of Chicano music; the tropicales style of Sennix, Prosetas and Parasio; the Norteno sound of Hermanos Aleman.

That doesn't surprise Caldwell Music's Ferguson, who said that unlike rock and other types of music, Hispanic groups simply have larger followings.

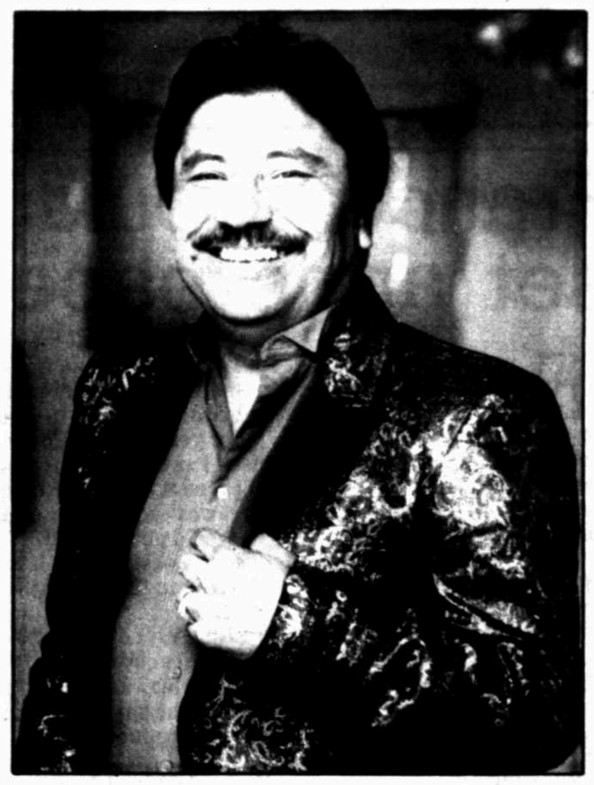
"They're the artists who really amaze me. You would be surprised at just how many bands there are and how many people show up for their gigs. That's why there are so many of them . . . because the demand is there."

As for Twin City, Mendoza said the group's recordings are becoming well- known in Hispanic radio markets from Texas to California.

"The only one we can't get into now is San Antonio. Most of the big names who go to the awards are from that area. We're over here in West Texas. That's like being (in the Middle East) at Desert Storm," he said, joking.

Twin City has opened for many major Hispanic acts — from Latin Breed to La Sombra — over the years and now is being pushed to do more by Rocky Hernandez, brother of Little Joe Hernandez Y La Familia.

"Little Joe could probably get us onto a label," Mendoza said. "The problem is, we're a band that can't travel during the week. We're mostly just weekend warriors. We all have jobs and families to support."



'We stay on the road quite a bit. We're more of a weekend band, but we'll play sometimes three nights a week. That's why it takes me a long time to recuperate. But you learn to work around it.'

COUNTRY: Bands' pursuit of fame diverge

(From 1A)

When it comes to local country artists, no one works harder at it than Dugan or Blaine.

Both do it as full-time careers.

And both have cut albums at Nick Carlton's No Mountain Recording studio in Midland.

But similarities end there.

While each is moving in the same direction, Dugan has chosen a more rigorous route that's expected to place him on the road this fall at county fairs and rodeos stretching from Oklahoma to Louisiana.

Blaine, on the other hand, is convinced he can use the Midland nightclub Rumors II as a showcase for his band, which for the time being is sitting tight on the advice of others.

"Things are taking off for people out here. This place is a natural spawning ground for country music," said Spencer Bennett, program manager for country station KNFM-FM. "That may sound silly, but when you think about it, this is what we live. We are country music."

Bennett wouldn't get an argument from Dugan, who's been interested in music as long as he can remember.

While the performer admits it's been tough on him and his wife Sherri, the couple hasn't lost sight of the dream.

"She and I have made a couple of trips to Nashville trying to lay the groundwork, and we've done pretty good," said Dugan, who decided to make a full-time living at country music in January.

With help from the Lip-hatcher Agency of Nashville, which handles Randy Travis, and Artists Entertainment Group of Dallas, Jerry Dugan and West-Wind are about to make a serious stab at the big time.

Dugan, who recently completed taping a television appearance on the Astro World Country Jamboree that was seen in south and east Texas, said he's now preparing to go on tour.

"They say if you can hold out for 10 years in this business that you'll start seeing the rewards, so I guess I'm looking at two more," he said jokingly.

For a long time, the band played any booking they could get. "But we can afford to be a little more choosy now. We have a good group of guys who all look at this as a business — that's helped a lot."

Joe D. Williams/ Reporter-Telegram

And Dugan's wife Sherri expects to be relieved of 75 percent of the group's booking when Artists Entertainment takes over.

"With them doing the booking and the management company in Nashville working on the record label . . . if they can get us signed, then hopefully we'll be taking off in the near future."

Dugan's band consists of Odessans Larry McGinnis, a drummer who's been with him for six years; Joe Williams, his lead guitarist; Charley Charlesworth, a keyboard player from San Angelo; and Doug White, his bass player, from Hobbs, N.M.

Dugan said there's no question that the band is ready to go, especially after opening for Lee Greenwood at the Ector County Coliseum, where West-Wind played to a standing ovation before 7,000 people.

"That's probably one of the biggest highs you can get. After playing one of those, it's tough to go back to a bar situation the next night," he said.

Dugan writes most of his own material, but has worked with music from other writers out of Houston and Nashville.

"The only thing tough about this life right now is, people don't look at it as a real job. But it is a real job and it's hard on a marriage," he said.

When Midlander Tommy Gammage opened the Cosmic Cowboy (now Rumors II) in January 1989, he decided to embark on a unique relationship with Johnny Blaine — one that would showcase the band every other month.

It's been that way ever since.

"It's helped both of us out," Gammage said. "In my opinion, there isn't one (group) the caliber of the Spur band, and that makes them worth seeing.

While the relationship has had its up and downs, Blaine said he considers Rumors II his home base.

But that wasn't always the case.

Even when Blaine and his band played at the original Rumors in Midland, his starlit eyes were always on Nashville and the big time.

In 1988, Blaine got a big dose of reality.

"I decided to go up there and got slapped in the face. There was a Johnny Blaine on every street corner. I thought I would go to Nashville and just take over, but it didn't work out like that," he said.

Blaine said his ego had a lot to do with it. "That trip brought me down to earth. It made me realize that there are a lot of people out there who were trying to help me if I just would let them. Now, I realize I don't know everything."

Since then, Blaine said he's come to realize that if he is going to make it big he needs to build a large local following and let Nashville come to him. "We're currently working on our third album and we're booked through Feb. 1, 1992. I'd much rather do this, then lose money on the road. The road is for someone already on a label who's trying to push it."

The Spur Band consists of Blaine; Dan Ferguson on keyboards; Ric Vickery on lead guitar; and John Womble on drums.

Vickery, who spent nearly 10 years in Nashville before returning to Odessa, agreed with Blaine. "I know this is going to sound kind of strange, but there's no place really to play in Nashville. You work out of Nashville and there's a lot of competition just to do that."

Vickery said the band could return to the country capital and starve, but added that no one is interested in doing that. "I've been there. Johnny's been there, and Dan's been around it enough to know. We live in Texas. We think if the right person could hear this band and its material we could do real well."

For the time being, their problem is how to promote the group and its well-known lead singer.

Blaine, who has been writing music since he was 14, said he would like to open for another big act like Reba McIntire. "It's a big shot in the arm to be able to do something like that, and we have enough original material to play through a night."

Although there have been some lean times along the way, the lead singer said that West Texas has been good to him since he came from Houston in 1982.

"Right now, I'm pretty optimistic about the future," Blaine said. "I have several things going on that I think could work out real well."

France should set arms pace

France used to assert its independence by refusing to join in cooperative arms control efforts, but no longer. Now it is preparing to sign the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty.

And President Mitterrand has answered President Bush's quavering call for supplier states to curb Middle East arms sales with full-throated assent. In fact, he has exceeded Bush by calling for such curbs to extend worldwide.

France's new willingness to join in restraining the spread of arms is warmly welcome. The Persian Gulf war may have demonstrated the competitive disadvantage of some French-made arms in Iraq's arsenal. But it brought home the self-destructiveness of unregulated arms sales.

What's especially helpful is French adherence to the 1968 Nonproliferation Treaty, which tries to keep nuclear materials and reactors from being diverted to bomb-making.

It could spur China and South Africa, among others, to join the 140 signers and make the treaty truly universal.

France has come a long way since 1968, when President Charles de Gaulle saw the treaty as an impediment to nuclear independence and refused to sign.

For years, France exercised less care than it could to prevent misuse of the nuclear reactors and materials it sold abroad. But over the past decade it has adhered to the treaty in practice.

Still, France shows no willingness to reduce its own nuclear arsenal even though the superpowers are about to reduce theirs.

On conventional arms, France will be host at a meeting of the five leading arms sellers to devise rules for restraint in the Mideast. It supports a registry of sales that would allow the world to keep track of arms trafficking. And it wants to extend restraints on sales beyond the Middle East to the whole world, a laudable if daunting goal.

It's a good sign that Paris may have become more willing than Washington to forgo some arms sales.

No sooner had Bush called for restraint than his defense secretary ran off to the Middle East to peddle planes and helicopters.

President Mitterrand might set an example of restraint by temporarily suspending arms sales to the region — encouraging others to give arms control a chance.

LETTERS

Prisoner release due before USSR trade

Editor's Note: The following letter is being republished due to the inadvertent ommission of several lines which altered meaning and intent of the writer.

The headline of your June 19, 1991 edition, "Apartheid is 'History'," was read with keen interest by those of us who are aware that the United States depends upon the protection of their sea lanes. All of this spells jobs to people in the United States who are concerned about our unstable economy. Sanctions against South Africa should be removed now.

An Associated Press story in the Dallas Morning News on June 19, 1991 reported that deputy spokesman Richard Boucher of the State Department had said that the only condition remaining for the lifting of sanctions against South Africa is the release of all political prisoners. The Communist Party's ANC says there are still about 1,000 in jail.

How is it possible that President Bush and our State Department are encouraging active trade with the Communists in the Soviet Union where there are more than one million persons in their 1,000 slave labor camps? These 1,000 slave labor camps contain approximately one million slaves, most of whom are "political prisoners" because they cherish freedom. Why don't the people of the United States demand the release of all "political prisoners" in the 1,000 slave labor camps before we trade with the USSR?

I enclose a U.S. government map showing the slave labor camps. Each number represents a cluster of slave camps, as several defectors have explained in their books.

Law enforcement program is interesting, informative

Sheriff Gary Painter is to be commended for his sponsorship of the Public Information program aired over KJBC on Saturday mornings at nine thirty.

Call The Law has been superbly moderated by Sergeant Terry Lowe and has been very interesting as well as informative. I hope the program continues to be produced, as I think the public can learn some valuable information about their Law Enforcement Agencies. Listeners can anonymously call in questions to which they would like answers.

Indians fear gold mines will foul land

WASHINGTON — Indians at the Fort Belknap Reservation in remote northern Montana are celebrating the renewal of life on earth this week with an annual Sun Dance while miners next door sprinkle the earth with cyanide and rend the air with blasts of dynamite.

Anderson

Mining operations have existed next door to the reservation ever since gold was discovered in the Little Rocky Mountains about a century ago. But the Indians' reluctant acceptance of their mining neighbors has turned to suspicion in recent years. They now fear the expanding mine will ruin their environment and poison their people.

Federal authorities have ignored concerns about the plans by the Zortman Mining Co. to expand its active mining operations to encompass more than 1,200 acres. The Canadian-based firm also wants approval to explore for valuable minerals on 25,000 more acres of the Little Rockies. The Fort Belknap Indian Community Tribal Council has asked Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan to forbid such exploration.

The clash between man, nature and wilderness in this isolated slab of Montana is playing out at sites throughout the West. In this modern-day gold rush, more than twice as much gold was mined last year in the United States than was mined during the peak of the original California rush in 1852.

Miners are not only cutting a swatch through scenic wilderness, but are often acquiring the land for pocket change. Despite heightened public awareness about wilderness preservation, hard-rock miners face no stiffer regulations or oversight than they did a century ago. The powerful mining lobby has preserved laws that allow miners to purchase mineral rights on federal lands for as little as $2.50 an acre. The U.S. government fails to charge even royalties for exploitation of land that is the heritage of all Americans. Foreign miners are flocking to this firesale.

One of those firms is Pegasus Gold, the Canadian parent firm of Zortman Mining Co. In recent years the mine has ranked in the top 20 most productive gold mines in the country. Last year it harvested 109,700 ounces of gold and 652,000 ounces of silver.

Like many gold mines, the Zortman mine uses a cyanide solution to leach gold from heaps of ore. The earth is stacked on a pad and sprinkled with cyanide, which settles to the bottom of the heap and pulls the gold with it. Environmental hazards arise when the cyanide seeps off the pad and into the earth. The company, however, asserts that the solution is safe and carefully handled. The Bureau of Land Management nods its head in agreement.

Scott Haight, a geologist for the BLM, told us the Zortman mine had a fine environmental track record. "There's never been a serious (cyanide) leak that I'm aware of." We reminded him of the 55,000 gallons of cyanide that leaked out of the mining site in 1982. Haight said that was "before my time."

Pegasus spokesman John Fitzpatrick told us that he questioned just how many Indians were opposed to the mining, and he claimed that the loudest noise the Indians will hear from the mine is the sound of trucks backing up.

Our associate Jim Lynch examined state and federal files on the Zortman mine, as well as the company's own reports. The record includes unauthorized clearing of the land, stacking ore too high on the leach pads, failing to fence off toxic ponds and pads, and "persistent problems" with the amount of cyanide draining into a nearby gulch.

ART BUCHWALD

Virginians could teach Soviets to throw dirt

Although Gov. Wilder and Sen. Robb said they have made up, everyone in Virginia is still asking, "If Gorbachev and Yeltsin can get along, why can't Doug Wilder and Chuck Robb?"

Buchwald

Reuben Destel, a specialist in Soviet and Virginia politics at the Brookings Institute, responds that there is a difference between the two odd couples. For one thing, Gorbachev and Yeltsin would never think of getting involved in dirty politics while that's all Wilder and Robb ever seem to do.

Reuben said, "For another thing, Wilder and Robb are members of the same political party, so it figures that they don't like each other. Gorbachev and Yeltsin are from two different parties so they respect the other person's privacy."

Reuben told me, "Yeltsin has a lot of hot stuff on Gorbachev, but he has never released it to Soviet television."

"Such as what?"

"Yeltsin has tapes of Gorbachev recorded at Yalta where a dozen topless street car conductors were in attendance."

"What's wrong with that?"

"They were members of the Communist Party and they wore pictures of Elvis Presley on their sandals."

"I could see where that might cause trouble for Mikhail."

"It could be worse if Yeltsin wanted to play it that way. Yeltsin has a photograph of Gorby getting a massage when he was in Armenia to quell the riots. The lady who gave him the massage said that they had a liaison which lasted for three hours, and that's twice as long as Gorby spent with the Armenian leaders."

"Why would this information damage Gorbachev in the Soviet Union?"

"Because that's where Mrs. Gorbachev lives."

Reuben showed me the pictures.

"Where did you get them?" I asked.

"From Yeltsin's staff. They gave them to me after they decided that the pictures wouldn't hurt perestroika."

"What else separates the Russians from the Virginians?"

"We know that Gorbachev has never listened in on any conversations made by Yeltsin on a cellular phone."

"Why not?"

"Because Yeltsin doesn't have a cellular phone. Even if he did, Gorbachev has given strict orders to the KGB that whatever they overhear they have to keep to themselves. Virginia, on the other hand, has all sorts of cellular phones, and American politicians like nothing better than eavesdropping on each other's car phones. There is talk that John Adams tapped Thomas Jefferson to find out what he was trying to sneak into the Constitution."

"It's hard to believe that Soviet politicians don't resort to dirty tricks."

"They would if they knew how. You have to live in a democracy for a long time before you learn the ropes of cheating in politics. Some day Russia may be as bad as Virginia, but at the moment it doesn't have the sophistication to really destroy its opponents."

"I'll bet Gorbachev would give every hair on his head to know how Wilder and Robb play the game."

"It's not Wilder and Robb — it's their staffs. You can win any election you want to if you have the right staff to do your dirty work for you."

"Where will it all end?"

"Nobody knows for sure, but the Democratic Party could fade away. That's what political fratricide is all about."

Dancers may lament loss of free expression

WASHINGTON — When the women who dance at the Kitty Kat Lounge in South Bend, Ind., are dressing, so to speak, for work, putting on, as they would rather not, pasties and G-strings, their talk may well turn to constitutional law and to laments about the retirement of Justice Brennen.

Will

His replacement, Justice Souter, voted with the majority that, had Brennen been there, would have been a minority last week. The Supreme Court ruled, 5-4, that the First Amendment protection of free "expression" is compatible with Indiana's law prohibiting total nudity in public places.

The four dissenters (Justice White writing, joined by Marshall, Blackmun and Stevens), agreed as to why they think Indiana's law is unconstitutional. The five justices in the majority had three different reasons for the opposite conclusion. Because First Amendment law is so encrusted with the barnacles of bad decisions, all nine justices missed the main point.

An appeals court held that the nude dancing done at the Kitty Kat is "inherently expressive," communicating an erotic message, so Indiana's law is forbidden by Madison's amendment. But Chief Justice Rehnquist, in a plurality opinion joined by O'Connor and Kennedy, said nude dancing in barrooms is only "marginally" within even "the outer perimeters of the First Amendment." This "expressive conduct," although performed only for consenting adults, conflicts with Indiana's legitimate interest in protecting "order and morality." Most states have such laws against people appearing nude among strangers in public.

However, Justice White scored a palpable hit when he said: How can Rehnquist say the law is designed to protect morality but that the activity the law bans expresses no morally-relevant message?

Scalia's concurring opinion came closest to a satisfactory way of sustaining Indiana's law. He said the Rehnquist opinion erred in arguing that the First Amendment is even peripherally germane. Indiana's law is not like the unconstitutional law banning flag burning. That law prohibited particular conduct precisely because of its expressive attributes.

Indiana's law would be faulty if it targeted only expressive nudity. (Scalia here conceded that the dancing is expressive, and the "expression" implicates the First Amendment.) But, said Scalia, Indiana evenhandedly prohibits nude beaches, nude hot dog vendors, even a gathering of "60,000 fully consenting adults crowded into the Hoosierdome to display their genitals."

Although it is hard to imagine John Marshall or Oliver Wendell Holmes worrying about such stuff, the decision did implicitly make a serious point: Communities as well as individuals have rights. But is it necessary for the court to be so convoluted and oblique in reaching that conclusion?

The Kitty Kat dancers' complaint against Indiana, and now against the court, is impeccably Reaganite: It is the cry of small business against government regulation. The dancers are, or were when the litigation began, paid commissions on drinks sold while they dance and some say they make more money dancing nude.

Does that mean their "expressive conduct" is commercial speech, meriting only modest First Amendment protection? The court can grasp that nettle when next (such is the court's itch for First Amendment fine-tuning, there will be another case) the court defines constitutional dress for almost-nude dancers.

It is evidently impossible to get the court to take seriously the fact that Madison — who would find the Kitty Kat amazing but not more so than the notion that the First Amendment is germane to what transpires there — purposely wrote an amendment that protects not "expression" but speech, the use of words. That activity is indispensable for reasoning and persuasion, and hence for democratic government, which is the point of the Constitution and its amendments.

Soviet reformers consider creating a rival party

MOSCOW (AP) — Former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and other leading reformers are seeking a common platform to create a new political party that could rival the Communist Party for power, sources said Wednesday.

A group of reformers including Shevardnadze, Moscow Mayor Gavriil Popov and former Politburo member Alexander Yakovlev have met twice in the past week to discuss the proposed party.

"The question was about the creation of a national democratic party which would combine Democratic Russia with parties of other republics on a confederative basis," said political activist Valery Khomyakov, who participated in the second meeting, held Monday at the Moscow City Council building.

In a separate development, a conference was held Saturday in Moscow to discuss creating a new party called the Liberal-Conservative Union. Among its founders are historian Yuri Afanasyev, chess player Garry Kasparov and lawmaker Arkady Murashev.

Democratic Russia, not a formal party, supported Boris N. Yeltsin's successful campaign to become the first popularly elected president of Russia.

Yeltsin, who quit the Communist Party last July, has said he does not want to join any other party as long as he is president because he believes he should represent all people equally.

After the first meeting last week of Communist Party reformers and social democrats, Shevardnadze and Yakovlev had second thoughts, and it was uncertain whether they would continue to support the creation of a new party, Khomyakov said, declining to elaborate.

Yakovlev and some other Communist Party members involved in the meeting are hesitant to sever their ties with the party, said another source.

On Tuesday, Yakovlev denied reports he was leaving the Communist Party, the independent news agency Interfax reported.

"All these rumors are circulated by those who are interested in and badly want me to leave the Communist Party," Interfax quoted him as saying.

Kira Ulyanova, a spokeswoman for the Democratic Party of Russia, stressed that a meeting of the group held Monday was only preliminary.

"It's very difficult to say when it will happen and what exactly the outcome will be. In this country, under these circumstances, it's very difficult to decide," she said.

Former Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin also was involved in drafting a program for the new party, said another source.

Shevardnadze, who resigned as foreign minister Dec. 20 with a warning that the country was heading toward dictatorship, has been a vocal proponent of a multi-party system.

Taxation issue holds up Gorbachev's Union Treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — A political battle over the power of the purse is shaping up as the main obstacle in a draft Union Treaty designed to hold the Soviet Union together, according to news reports Wednesday.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who initiated the Union Treaty, wants to give the power of taxation to the national, republic and local governments, what he calls a "three-channel system."

But Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin and leaders of other republics that back the treaty want a "one-channel system," giving their governments exclusive right to levy taxes. They would pay a fixed amount to Gorbachev's central government.

The legislature of the Russian Federation already has adopted a law fixing its contribution to the national budget at 23.4 billion rubles ($39.8 billion at the official exchange rate), Yeltsin told the Russian legislature Wednesday.

The latest version, which Gorbachev has submitted to the legislatures of the republics, calls for direct presidential elections, but does not settle other controversies.

It does not contain the word "Communist," and it uses the term "Socialist" only once — to note that it would be replaced by "sovereign" in the formal title of the country: The Union of Soviet Sovereign Republics.

Leaders of nine of the 15 republics have endorsed the latest draft.

The Russian Federation is by far the wealthiest republic. Leaders of three other powerful republics also object to giving the Kremlin the right to levy taxes: Leonid Kravchuk of the Ukraine, Nursultan Nazarbayev of Kazakhstan and Vyacheslav Kebich of Byelorussia.

Leaders of poorer republics, especially the four in Central Asia, favor central taxation.

Andrews-Midland district shapes up

■ George Staley elected chairman of the new education entity.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland school board trustee George Staley took the helm of the newly formed Andrews-Midland County Education District Wednesday evening.

Staley, representing Midland Independent School District, was elected chairman of the district.

Peter C. Francis of Andrews was elected vice chairman and Price Robinson of Greenwood was elected recording secretary.

The district was formed to fulfill requirements under the school finance law passed by the Texas Legislature that went into effect April 15.

Judge Scott McCown of State District Court had twice found the current Texas school finance system unconstitutional on the basis that it allows a school district's property wealth to determine the quality of a child's education.

The new law offers a tax plan geared to share wealth under the premise of tax base consolidation.

The law divides the state into 188 education regions, roughly along county lines. It sets a minimum tax rate of $0.72 and shifts local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts within the new education regions.

The minimum tax rate starts at 72 cents and raises to $1 per $100 valuation in four years — 82 cents for 1992-93, 92 cents for 1993-94 and $1 for 1994-95, according to information from the Texas Education Agency.

MISD, Greenwood ISD and Andrews ISD will share revenue generated up to $0.72, which will be distributed based on a complex formula.

Ector County ISD will share revenue with school districts in Upton, Crane and Reagan counties.

All tax revenues raised by rates above the minimum are kept by each respective school district.

The maximum rate school districts can set is $1.50 per $100 valuation, except when a higher rate is necessary to repay school bonds authorized before April 1 and issued before Sept. 1 this year.

The Andrews-Midland CED board adopted a resolution calling for an Aug. 10 election for voters to decide on three CED propositions concerning homestead exemptions for the newly created district.

The CED board decided on the order the propositions would be placed on the ballot. The proposition calling for "the taxation of all tangible personal property, other than manufactured homes that is

Delinquent bills for ambulances pose problems

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

■ Council instructs city management to develop tougher collection policy.

The city is hoping to put some bite behind its collection bark by being more aggressive in pursing $138,000 in outstanding ambulance bills.

Councilmen earlier this week instructed city management to develop a tougher and more expedient method to crack down on those who neglect paying the bills.

Despite terse letters from the city and its collection agency, some ambulance riders still ignore the bills or think the service is free, councilmen said.

"Our procedures were not as efficient as they could be," Assistant City Manager Susan Thorpe acknow-ledged.

She said receipts, which totaled $248,000 during the 1989-90 fiscal year, are running slightly above

Local attorney files appeal with high court

■ Tom Morgan has filed a motion for a writ of certiorari.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

Midland attorney Tom Morgan is convinced that one of his clients received an unjust sentence, and the U.S. Supreme Court may decide whether he's correct.

Morgan's client, Oscar Prince Garcia of Big Spring, pleaded guilty on July 10, 1990, to using a telephone to facilitate a cocaine transaction, court records show.

Applying 1987 federal sentencing guidelines, U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III sentenced Garcia to 27 months in prison, one year of supervised release and a $500 fine.

But Morgan argued that the sentence, although allowable under the guidelines, was unfair because it was for an offense greater than the one to which his client pleaded guilty.

Law enforcement officers arrested Garcia, 28, in April 1990 after he arranged to sell 126 grams of cocaine to undercover agents, court records show.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William W. Torrey said a plea agreement was reached in the case. In return for Garcia's guilty plea to a charge of using a telephone to set up the sale, the government agreed to drop more-serious cocaine distribution charges, Torrey said.

However, court records show that Judge Bunton sentenced Garcia according to guidelines established for cocaine distribution, not illegal telephone usage.

Morgan said his client should have been sentenced for the telephone charge, not for offenses to which he hadn't pleaded guilty.

He appealed Bunton's decision to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, but that court upheld the sentence in a ruling dated March 18.

The 5th Circuit Court judges concurred that sentencing guidelines allow for greater sentences when defendants "stipulate to a more serious offense" — even though they may not plead guilty to that offense.

Morgan appealed the 5th Circuit Court's decision to the U.S. Supreme Court in April, filing a motion for a writ of certiorari. Such writs compel lower courts to send case records to higher courts for judicial review.

Morgan said only about 3 percent of all requests for a Supreme Court review are granted, but he added that he thinks his motion has a better-than-average chance.

That's because the court in May showed an unusual interest in the motion by ordering the U.S. Justice Department to file a response, Morgan said.

To Morgan's surprise, the justice department in its response agreed with the legal arguments outlined in his motion.

"It's exceedingly rare when the Department of Justice agrees with the defense attorney at the U.S. Supreme Court level," he said.

So with the Justice Department backing him up, Morgan is hopeful that his client's sentence will be overturned. By Morgan's estimation, Garcia should have gotten a prison term about half as long as the one he received.

"It looks very, very positive from Mr. Garcia's standpoint," Morgan said. Although the Supreme Court could still refuse to issue the writ of certiorari and thereby refuse to review the case, Morgan believes that scenario is unlikely.

"I'm just waiting for the Supreme Court to either issue an opinion or set the case for an oral argument," he said. "It's very doubtful that they are going to deny the writ of certiorari."

Morgan said he doesn't expect the court to issue a decision in the case until next fall.

Hospital district addresses controls

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Hospital District's directors are "constantly looking for ways to control costs," particularly now that the hospital's tax-supported funds for indigent patients are virtually depleted, Tom Bruner, hospital board member, said Wednesday.

Tax funds for indigent care — which costs $715,000 per month — total only about $6.1 million, Bruner said. And more than eight months into the hospital's fiscal year, 90 percent of that money has been spent.

The remaining $700,000 in tax funds is yet to be collected by the Midland Central Appraisal District. But after that committed money is in, it, too, will be spent.

"We're actually short from now until the end of the year," Bruner said.

As a result, the hospital is obligated to make up the $2.1-million deficit — with the hospital's operating revenues. Projected indigent-care costs for the year is $8.2 million.

"That, unfortunately, is the position we've been in for a number of years," Bruner noted.

"Fortunately," the hospital makes enough to cover the costs of indigent care not absorbed by tax revenue, he said.

"But the problem is, you can't buy equipment; you can't remodel. And you can't upgrade your facility if your money goes to pay for the indigent patient," said the board's immediate past president.

While the hospital keeps "trying to carry" much of the tax burden that otherwise is assigned to the taxpayers, the hospital has fallen "so far behind the eight ball that we are having a hard time playing catch up."

Medical care for qualified indigent Midland County residents is supported by a 16.62 cent tax rate per $100 valuation. That rate applied to a county-wide $3.7-billion tax base would bring in $6.1 million. So far, 90 percent, $5.4 million, has been collected and spent, Bruner said. The remainder is committed.

The hospital treats an average of 715 indigent patients per month, more than 20 a day. Of those, 75 percent are children.

The September opening of the Delano Street pediatric-prenatal clinic is expected to reduce indigent-care costs. Instead of being treated in the more-costly emergency room setting, indigent children will be treated in the out-patient clinic.

Yearly savings from the patient shift would be about $250,000, Bruner said, if 6,435 children are treated at the clinic rather than in the emergency room.

"And that's good news," Bruner said. "That's a real benefit to the taxpayers and to the hospital patients who have to make up the shortfall."

Airman returns from Philippine disasters

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Edward Brown wasn't frightened by the eruption of nearby Mount Pinatubo from his station at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

But then, the natural disasters began to mount.

"I didn't think I was in any danger until the earthquake and typhoon came," said the 20-year-old Brown from his family's home in Midland.

"All three together — water and ash raining mud and the earth shaking all at the same time," Brown recalled, "I didn't think we were going to make it."

Brown was evacuated from the country on June 18.

The U.S. military has moved out more than 17,600 personnel and their dependents since the 4,795-foot volcano's initial eruption on June 9. At least 338 have died as a result.

"I lost everything — car, TV, clothes, everything I owned," he said.

The day Brown left, the ground was covered with seven to 10 inches of ash and housetops with about five inches of ash mud, he said.

'All three together — water and ash raining mud and the earth shaking all at the same time.'
— Edward Brown, Evacuated from Clark AFB

"The ground was like powder or dust," Brown said. "It was real strange."

"The kids wanted to go out and play in the ash because it looked like snow," he said.

Brown recalled the day the volcanic snow first arrived.

It was a sunny day when he visited the PX (post exchange) — but it looked like a storm was brewing when he went outside.

"It was like a mushroom cloud going straight up in the air. It spread out and in 20 minutes it was total darkness," he said.

"Then it started dropping little-bitty pebbles ... like grit," said Brown, who added that he wasn't aware the cause was Mount Pinatubo until he heard the news.

"That went on for two or three days, on and off," he said.

Then the utilities went out.

"The worse thing was no electricity or water," Brown said.

After 16 months at Clark Air Force Base, Brown, who is currently on leave, won't be returning. He plans to stay with his family in Midland until he reports to his new base in Florida.

And his parents, Albert and Rebecca Brown, his brother, Victor, and sister, Rhonda Freeman, are glad to have him home — safe.

Mrs. Brown described her concern for her son.

"I tried to call his number to no avail — that didn't work and I just started praying," she said.

A friend at church suggested she call the Red Cross.

"Before I could contact the Red Cross, he called. I was feeling pretty good."

Arts organizations express concerns at hearing

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

Local arts organizations voiced concerns over the composition and funding of the Texas Commission on the Arts during a public hearing Wednesday.

The hearing, chaired by Rep. Glen Maxey, D-Austin, a member of the Oversight Committee of the Committee on Cultural & Historical Resources, was one of many being conducted around the state this summer by the committee, which oversees the TCA.

Changes outlined in bills during the last legistaive session, include reducing the number of governor-appointed commissioners, on the TCA from 18 to nine; removing the requirement that a percentage of the commissioners have an expertise in some area of the arts; and decreasing their term from six years to two, said Rep. Ralph R. Wallace III, chairman of the committee.

Also suggested was the possibility that the TCA instead of operating as an independent agency would be made a part of another state agency, such as transportation or education, Wallace said.

"There was no public hearing given to the bills in the last legislature," Wallace said Wednesday. He added that the changes came out of another committee and told those present, "This is the time to speak up."

Representatives who spoke at the hearing agreed that although their facility had been visited by TCA staff members, they could not remember being visited by a commissioner.

"I don't think there's enough representation from West Texas," Wallace said. "It doesn't mean anything. I'm from Houston. You have to state your position."

Each local agency expressed the concern that if the commissioners were to be reduced from 18 to nine, West Texas would definitely not be represented.

"West Texas is already a country cousin of the commission," said JoAnn Steel of the Odessa Cultural Council, adding that if the number were reduced any more, West Texas would "definitely be out in the cold. And this is

COUNCIL: City to get tough on ambulance bills

(From 1B)

50 percent. Midland paramedics made 4,726 runs in 1990, compared with 4,499 runs in 1989, city figures show.

Collection of past bills improved in January, when the city switched collection agencies, Ms. Thorpe said. However, the ambulance fee increase that month from $75 to $125 per run has since made riders even more reluctant to pay, she said.

In addition, some ambulance riders have discovered that the city and collection agency issue only paper-tiger threats, Ms. Thorpe said. Neither the city nor the agency sues those with delinquent bills, practically making payment a matter of conscience, she said.

The city issues four warning letters before the case is handed over to the collection agency.

Ms. Thorpe said that in late July or early August she will provide councilmen with a report of collection figures and proposed strategies to improve the numbers.

In addition to switching collection agencies in January, Ms. Thorpe said the city began billing patients faster and including stronger language in collection letters.

Before January, the city waited up to three weeks to receive a full ambulance report from the Midland Fire Department. Now bills are sent out as early as the day after the ambulance run.

Before January, it took an average 97 days to exhaust the city's payment-reminder process before the collection agency took over, Ms. Thorpe said. The process now takes only 67 days, she said.

She said it is important to collect the bill early. The longer the wait, the less likely the bill will be paid, she said.

The new collection agency, Transworld Services Inc. of El Paso, has managed to net $740 in uncollected bills since January, representing only 0.5 percent of outstanding bills.

District 1 Councilman James Devenport said that is not nearly enough.

"If we're collecting 0.5 percent, we're not collecting enough. There's something wrong," Devenport said.

Ms. Thorpe said the previous collector, Medical and Retail Credit Bureau of the Permian Basin, collected nothing from July 1990 to Jan. 1.

At-large Councilman J.D. Faircloth said the city must stress to the public that ambulance service is not free and should not be used frivolously.

"The fire department says there are people who call every time they get a headache," Faircloth said. "But legally we cannot refuse them service."

Ray Sprague, assistant support service chief with the Midland Fire Department, said at least one-third of local ambulance runs are unnecessary.

"Some people use us because they don't have means of transportation. Some feel that we should come and get them because they're taxpayers," Sprague said. "Some of them call us knowing they aren't going to pay. They dump the bill in the trash."

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Indecency counts

Staff reports

ODESSA — A 51-year-old Odessa man was arrested Tuesday and charged with five counts of indecency with a child and one count of aggravated sexual assault of a child, police said.

Jerald Dee Blair remained jailed Wednesday in lieu of $225,000 in bonds.

Blair was arrested on a warrant and a search warrant executed in Andrews by Andrews County sheriff's deputies.

The charges against Blair were orignally reported to the Odessa Police Department on Saturday. Blair reportedly committed the offenses with six females from 7 to 11 years old.

Blair appeared before Andrews County Justice of the Peace Calvert Shortes before being transferred to the Odessa jail.

Odessa Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly upheld the bonds set for Blair.

Suspect bit

ODESSA — A police dog named Batari bit a burglary suspect who assaulted the dog's master, Odessa police officer Luis Adame, early Wednesday morning, police said.

The incident occurred about 4:30 a.m. outside the Quik Stop Grocery, 1201 S. Grant Ave., as Adame investigated a shattered window of the store's drive-thru.

A youngster, described as a teen-age Hispanic man, was seen coming out of the broken window but eluded police.

A second suspect, a 15-year-old Hispanic youth, was discovered in the building and was ordered outside. He complied with the officer's order to lie down, but kept one arm under his stomach.

When the officer attempted to straighten the arm, he was stabbed in the left index finger with a piece of glass.

The police dog immediately went to his master's aid and bit the man's left upper arm.

The suspected burglar was transported to and treated at Medical Center Hospital. He was transferred to the Ector County Youth Center, where he was held on charges of burglary of a building and assault of a police officer.

Adame was treated and released from the hospital.

Warrant served

A 28-year-old man remained jailed Wednesday after being arrested on a warrant for burglary of a habitation on Tuesday, police said.

Bond for Russell Dwayne Woods was set at $25,000 by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine, jail officials said.

Woods was arrested at his residence at Emerald Terrace Apartments, 4405 N. Garfield St. about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Bicyclist hit

A 36-year-old Midland bicyclist hit by a car remained in stable condition at Midland Memorial Hospital late Wednesday, police said.

Paul Heyroth was struck while bicycling north in the 4400 block of Big Spring Street about 5:23 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

The car — which did not stop — was described as light tan or yellow 1987-89 Chevrolet four-door, possibly an Impala or Caprice.

Three occupants in the car were described as Hispanic, in their mid-20s. All were wearing green baseball caps and athletic attire.

Police believe they may have been en route to a baseball game.

SCHOOLS: Andrews-Midland organize taxing district

not held or used for the production of income" was placed first on the ballot on the advice of Attorney Harvey Allen, representing MISD.

"Make sure voters know this is a 'no' vote," Allen said. "It is the most difficult of all property taxes to collect."

"I agree," Mott said. "We need to put it at the top of the ballot and say: 'Vote no on One.' "

Staley said the proposition "entails taxing automobiles, boats and recreational vehicles."

Tax collections, distribution responsibilities, depository contracts, balloting and appraisal rolls were discussed.

Attorneys representing each of the three districts gave presentations on the statutory responsibilities of the CED.

"We won't know collection rates until after the Aug. 10 election," said Robert Mott, an attorney with the Houston-based Perdue, Brandon, Fielder, Collins & Mott representing Andrews ISD.

MISD superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. noted that a court case challenging the constitutionality of the new school reform law "may make everything moot by Aug. 10."

The CED board members agreed to send out bids to all banks in the combined counties.

As for collection, McInturff, who is Greenwood ISD's legal counsel, said, "The logical thing to do is to collect taxes at the same time as the remainder of the school taxes are collected ... It would allow school districts to collect the 72 cents plus their rate and just send the 72 cents to you."

The board will meet again at 7 p.m. July 30 in the MISD boardroom.

ARTS: Organizations voice their concerns

not a cold area."

"It's a good idea to have a mandate of representation," said Linda Bond of Midland Community Theatre.

Most opposed making the TCA part of another state entity unless the change meant additional funding and then certain guidelines would be necessary. For example, Odessan Edith Libsom of the Texas Arts Council would support the Texas Education Agency sending a check to the Texas Commission on the Arts, but "not the other way around" for arts and education programs.

Another proposal under consideration is making block grants to one local agency, which would allocate the funds within the community. This proposal received a mixed response.

"I do not support block granting," said Teresa Brockman of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. "I'm afraid if we go to block granting we will lose quality across the state."

Jean Hagman of the Museum of the Southwest suggested that block granting might work effectively for agencies with budgets of less than a half million dollars annually since smaller operations often do not have the resources, such as grant writers on staff, that larger non-profits do. "The larger agencies could compete on the state level."

The opinion on six- vs. two-year terms for the appointed commissioners also was mixed, with most favoring four or six years.

All local agencies agreed on the importance of quality arts programs and that a program's impact in the community and not the population base it reached needed to be a determining factor in TCA funding.

Wallace told those at Wednesday's hearing that "now is the time to get on the list" if their agency needed funds.

"We have a shortage of funds to distribute," Wallace said, adding that at their public hearing in San Angelo, 60 organizations "asked for support. That made an impression with this committee."

Crime Stoppers seeks aggravated robberty tip

This week Odessa Crime Stoppers is seeking information that could help solve an aggravated robbery that occurred at 1107 W. 14th St.

On May 11 at about 2 a.m., a woman was awakened in her home by a man who had climbed in an open window.

The man demanded money and the woman said she didn't have any. The man then became abusive and told the victim he would shoot her if she did not give him money. The woman gave him the money she had in her purse.

The man put the woman in a closet and again threatened to shoot her.

The robber was described as Hispanic, about 23 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall, 150 pounds with a dark complexion. He spoke to the victim only in Spanish.

Information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the person involved could be worth up to $1,000 in cash to the first caller this week only. Call Crime Stoppers in Odessa at 333-TIPS or in Midland at 694-TIPS.

Judge scheduled for surgery

Midland Judge Pat M. Baskin has been admitted to Methodist Hospital in Houston and is scheduled to undergo heart bypass surgery today, the judge's secretary confirmed Wednesday.

Baskin, who presides over 142nd District Court in Midland, was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital on Sunday after he complained of back pain, Baskin's wife Joan said.

Baskin's secretary, Bonnie Rister, said the judge was transferred to Houston on Wednesday.

Visiting Judge Ray L. McKim will take over for Baskin while he is hospitalized, Ms. Rister said.

LULAC files suit against Crane

Staff Report

The city of Crane is the latest taxing entity to be sued in U.S. District Court in Midland for allegedly violating the civil rights of minority voters.

The League of United Latin American Citizens filed a lawsuit Wednesday seeking to force the city to adopt single-member election districts for city council members.

Citing the Voting Rights Act and the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution, the lawsuit calls for a permanent injunction against future elections under Crane's existing at-large system.

LULAC filed a similar federal lawsuit against the Crane Independent School District on June 5.

The latest lawsuit states that there are about 3,533 people in Crane, about 32.6 percent of whom are Hispanic and about 3.5 percent of whom are black. Yet there are no minorities serving on the city council.

This illustrates the tendency of at-large systems to dilute minority voting strength, the lawsuit states.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of LULAC by San Antonio civil rights attorney Rolando Rios and the Garrett & Thompson law firm in Dallas.

Death row inmate gets new trial

The State

AUSTIN (AP) — A man sentenced to death in connection with the 1982 torture-slayings of three teen-agers that became known as the "Lake Waco Murders" will get a new trial, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The appeals court overturned the conviction of Muneer Mohammed Deeb, who was accused of hiring David Wayne Spence to kill a woman, Gayle Kelley, and collect on a $20,000 life insurance policy.

The case will now return to state district court.

Spence, along with Anthony and Gilbert Melendez, was convicted in the slayings that occurred July 13, 1982.

Ms. Kelley was not one of the victims. Another woman, Jill Montgomery, who looked like Ms. Kelley, was brutally killed, according to court documents.

The other victims were Raylene Rice and Kenneth Franks. Both Ms. Rice and Ms. Montgomery were raped and repeatedly stabbed. Franks had at least 20 stab wounds.

On Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court turned down an appeal by Spence, letting stand rulings that he received a fair trial and a proper sentence.

In Deeb's case, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said the trial court made a mistake by allowing testimony from Darryl Beckham, who was Spence's cellmate while he awaited trial.

Beckham testified that Spence told him about the conspiracy with Deeb.

But Deeb argued that Beckham's testimony was hearsay, meaning that his statements were based on what Spence allegedly told Beckham, and were not the result of personal knowledge or observation.

The Court of Criminal Appeals agreed. "We cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the admission of Beckham's testimony did not contribute to the conviction or punishment," the court said in its opinion.

The appeals court, however, said that even without Beckham's testimony there was enough evidence to show that Deeb hired Spence to kill Ms. Kelley, and that Spence killed Ms. Montgomery "while acting pursuant to that agreement."

The court dismissed other objections by Deeb and said the trial court was correct in assessing the death penalty. "The facts of the instant case also reveal the remorselessness of appellant after these murders were carried out. These facts reveal a wanton and callous disregard for human life."

Both Spence and Deeb are on death row, court records said. Spence was convicted in the kidnapping and murder of Ms. Montgomery and Franks. Trial evidence also indicated he killed Ms. Rice.

The Melendez brothers pleaded guilty to the slayings of Ms. Montgomery and Franks, and were given concurrent life sentences.

In other cases, the Court of Criminal Appeals:

— Denied relief to Ronald Keith Allridge, who was sentenced to death in the 1985 robbery-murder of Carla McMillen Otto in Tarrant County.

Allridge argued the jury was not allowed to consider mitigating evidence during the punishment phase of the trial. The court disagreed.

— Overturned the life sentence and ordered a new trial for Audrey Meador, who was convicted in a 1985 murder-for-hire of Wayne Hutson, whose body was found near Longview.

The court said the trial judge should not have allowed a taped telephone conversation to be admitted into evidence. Ms. Meador was accused of hiring two men to kill Hutson, who died from a gunshot wound to the chest on Sept. 17, 1985.

The telephone call was set up by Gregg County law officials, and the conversation was between Ben Sheffield and Titus McKee.

The court said of the conversation, "It is equally clear that neither of the two alleged conspirators involved in this conversation were attempting to further any interest other than their own."

Non-striking garment workers demonstrate

EL PASO (AP) — Garment workers who have crossed picket lines held their own demonstrations Wednesday to protest attempts to unionize the factories where they work.

About 30 workers from DCB Apparel Group Inc. and Apparel Conditioners Corp., a laundry, chanted anti-union slogans in Spanish and carried protests signs. Some of the signs read: "Freedom of Choice. No Union" and "Union Go Home."

Workers from DCB, ACC and two other factories went on strike in May complaining of poor working conditions and unpaid wages. They are demanding that Andre Diaz, manager of DCB Apparel, sign a union contract with them.

But Catalina Garcia, a two-year ACC employee, said there is no need for a union.

"I have never gone unpaid for work, all my vacations have been paid, we're not owed anything," she said in Spanish. "Last year I had one week vacation, paid, and we get holidays."

The International Ladies Garment Workers Union has collected signatures from 30 percent of DCB and ACC workers, enough to hold an election on whether to allow the union to represent all the workers, said Guillermo Glenn, an ILGWU leader. But Glenn said the election won't be held until it is sure Diaz is not intimidating workers.

"We're trying to create an atmosphere for it to be a fair and impartial election," Glenn said.

Ms. Garcia said the pickets have affected business at ACC.

"Two weeks ago we went a week without work. We didn't receive any and so we didn't get paid," Ms. Garcia said. She said she's listened to the union's presentations, but still does not want to join.

The anti-union workers also protested at the offices of the El Paso Roman Catholic diocese. The workers said they have been trying to meet with Bishop Raymundo Pena but he has referred their calls to staff member Jose Moreno.

Moreno said the issue falls under his authority as moderator of social ministries. He participated for one day in striking workers' hunger strike.

"Our support is for the rights of the workers and it has nothing to do with one group versus another," Moreno said. He said church doctrine supports workers' rights and that Pope John Paul II has reiterated the church's defense and approval of trade unions.

Moreno stopped short of endorsing the union, but said: "We're basically saying if a union is needed to protect the rights of the workers then such a union should not be prevented from forming because at the roots of this is workers protection."

Moreno said the protests have created an exciting time in El Paso.

"There's a new activism within the Hispanic community saying, 'We need to make things more equitable and the only way to make things equitable is to take matters into our own hands.' "

STATE IN BRIEF

■ Group praises vote

AUSTIN — Texas abortion rights advocates praised approval by the U.S. House of a bill to permit abortion counseling at taxpayer-financed clinics.

"Today's vote is proof that American people want to hear about their reproductive healthcare options from their doctors, not the Bush administration," the Texas Abortion Rights Action League said in a statement Wednesday.

The House voted 353-74 for the measure to lift the abortion counseling ban by the Bush administration. The U.S. Supreme Court ruling had upheld the ban.

"The vote shows that Congress recognizes the depth and diversity of public opposition to this callous and outrageous interference in the doctor-patient relationship," the state abortion rights group said.

■ Leaders meet privately

AUSTIN — Gov. Ann Richards on Wednesday dismissed questions about whether it was legal to meet privately with other state leaders about the budget as "much ado about nothing."

"I think it must be a real slow news week," Richards said when asked about the meeting on Matagorda Island with Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, and other top lawmakers.

"I think it is much ado about nothing," Richards added.

Attorney General Dan Morales has said it was unclear whether the meeting violates the Texas Open Meetings Act.

His spokesman, Ron Dusek, said that if a quorum of the Legislative Budget Board attends the closed meeting, they could only hear information provided by staff — not conduct deliberations or make decisions.

The 10-member LBB consists of Bullock, Lewis, and eight legislators, including the chairmen of the budget-writing House Appropriations and Senate Finance Committees.

"They can't deliberate with each other in any kind of secret meeting," Dusek said.

Asked whether the meeting on Matagorda violated the Open Meetings Act, Dusek said, "We don't know because we don't know what they are going to do."

State leaders left for the island, which is between Corpus Christi and Galveston, after Comptroller John Sharp unveiled his proposal to produce $5.2 billion in savings for the 1992-93 budget period.

Richards planned a news conference upon returning from the meeting Thursday night, her office said.

■ Some duty-free allowed

WASHINGTON — President Bush said Wednesday he will allow more than two dozen kinds of goods, ranging from shelled pecans to battery parts, to be exported duty-free to the United States by Mexico.

The loosening of trade restrictions was granted in a waiver of import ceilings under the Generalized System of Preferences.

Currently, Mexico can export the goods duty-free but only if they represent less than 50 percent of the total U.S. imports of the products, or until their value reaches $92 million.

Bush's waiver removes the two conditions. In all, 29 products are covered by Bush's order, including products such as pine moldings, spark plugs, acid-grade fluoride, spark plugs, mangoes and potato chips. Mexico sold the United States $2.4 billion worth of the 29 goods last year.

■ MTV calls concern 'silly'

TYLER (AP) — Music Television Network officials on Wednesday said complaints about the network's videos being lewd and immoral are "silly" and "a cheap shot."

MTV spokeswoman Kristy Loveman said the network is negotiating with TCA of Tyler over whether the cable company will cease broadcasting MTV to all TCA's basic cable subscribers.

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram wire services.

Congressmen vote on appropriations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how Texas congressmen voted in the 353-74 roll call Wednesday by which the House approved an appropriations bill that includes an amendment that would block enforcement of the government's policy banning abortion counseling at federally funded family planning clinics.

A "yes" vote is a vote to approve the bill.

Voting yes were 257 Democrats, 95 Republicans and 1 Independent.

Voting no were 8 Democrats and 66 Republicans.

X denotes those not voting.

There are two vacancies in the 435-member House.

Brothers on trial in slaying of East Texas constable

TYLER (AP) — The slaying of an East Texas lawman, who inadvertantly videotaped his own shooting, was a "vicious, violent and unprovoked attack" by three men who were hauling marijuana, a prosecutor said Wednesday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wes Rivers said Wednesday during opening statements in the federal trial of two South Texas brothers that the shooting was intentional.

But a defense attorney for the brothers, who face the death penalty if convicted in the killing of Nacogdoches County Constable Darrell Edward Lunsford, said the shooting was an accident.

Baldemar S. Villarreal, 29, and Reynaldo Sambrano Villarreal, 24, both of Edinburg, are accused in the Jan. 23 slaying of the 47-year-old officer. Another man earlier pleaded guilty and agreed to testify against the brothers.

Federal officials say the trial is the first in the nation under a section of a 1988 law that carries the death penalty for those convicted of killing a police officer during commission of a drug offense.

Rivers said the Villarreals and Jesus Zambrano were transporting marijuana from Houston to Chicago when their car was stopped by Lunsford during a routine traffic stop.

Lunsford was patrolling U.S. 59 in his hometown of Garrison, 151 miles southeast of Dallas, when he pulled over the car. A videotape camera mounted on the dash of his patrol car recorded his conversation with the men and the attack.

Rivers told jurors Wednesday that they would see the videotape. "You will see most of the attack but you will not see the actual firing of the gun," which took place out of camera range, he said.

Defense attorney Clifton "Scrappy" Holmes said during opening statements that Lunsford was shot accidentally during a scuffle.

He also said that the tape will not prove the government's case.

"The government will say it's as easy as watching 'Inside Edition' on TV. It's not," Holmes said.

"The videotape will show a scared Baldemar waiting to bolt and run to fulfill his nickname of Jackrabbit," he said.

Dr. James Bruce, a pathologist from Lufkin, testified Wednesday that it would have been difficult for Lunsford to have been holding the gun when it was fired.

The bullet penetrated the back of Lunsford's jacket before it struck him, Bruce said. The gun was fired from a distance of about three inches, he said.

Lunsford died from a gunshot wound to the right side of his face, Bruce testified. He also had bruises on his neck, face and fingers.

Nacogdoches County Deputy Sheriff Don Welch, the first of 13 witnesses called Wednesday, said he drove by while Lunsford had the suspects' car pulled over and later saw the same car leaving town.

After following the car because it looked suspicious, Welch backtracked to look for Lunsford. Welch testified he found the constable's body in a ditch near his patrol car, which was still running and had its overhead lights on.

Two days of jury selection concluded Tuesday with attorneys selecting seven women, five men and two alternates for the panel. The case is being heard in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert Parker.

One suspect, Jesus Zambrano, 22, pleaded guilty April 11. In a plea bargain, prosecutors have agreed not to seek the death penalty against Zambrano in exchange for his testimony against the Villarreal brothers. Zambrano faces 20 years to life in prison and a fine of up to $250,000.

"Jesus Zambrano is a cooperating witness because he has cut a deal to save his own life," Holmes said in his opening statement.

NCNB, C&S-Sovran discuss merger

Proposed marriage would create second-largest bank in U.S.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp., known in the banking world for aggressive growth, is negotiating with rival C&S-Sovran Corp. over a possible merger that would create the nation's second largest bank.

Both banks confirmed Wednesday that talks were underway, and experts who follow the banking business said a marriage was logical in the ferociously competitive and unstable world of U.S. banking.

Many banks are seeking partners in other states, both to increase their size and geographic diversity to help counterbalance the regional economic downturns that have hurt many banking companies.

C&S-Sovran, which has dual headquarters in Atlanta and Norfolk, Va., is itself the product of a bank merger last year after thwarting a takeover offer from NCNB, which is based in Charlotte.

It said Chairman Bennett A. Brown was meeting with NCNB Chairman Hugh McColl and would report to the C&S-Sovran board of directors today. Brown refused to meet McColl in previous takeover tangle.

"I think it could happen. NCNB could make a reasonably attractive offer," said bank analyst Richard Stillinger of Keefe Bruyette & Woods, a New York firm that follows the banking industry. "C&S would have a lot more difficulty rejecting it than it did two years ago."

With combined assets of about $116 billion, a merger of the two would rank second only to Citicorp with assets of nearly $217 billion among the nation's biggest banking companies.

Wednesday's developments were little surprise to Stillinger.

"It's not their style to sit around twiddling their thumbs," he said of NCNB officials.

NCNB is the seventh largest banking company in the nation with more than $66 billion in assets. It has 900 branches in North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Texas, Virginia, and Maryland.

C&S-Sovran ranked 12th with assets of more than $51 billion and operations. The banking comoany has 1,000 branches Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, Kentucky, Georgia, South Carolina, Florida and Washington, D.C.

C&S-Sovran was created in the 1990

Economy falls back sharply, profits drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy contracted at a sharp annual rate of 2.8 percent in the first three months of the year while corporate profits took their biggest nose dive since the spring of 1989, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Both the drop in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, and the 6.3 percent decline in after-tax corporate profits represented downward revisions from previous estimates.

Private economists said the worse-than-expected figures, while surprising, did not shake their belief that the economy resumed growing in the current April-June quarter at a weak annual rate many put at 0.5 percent.

Meanwhile, the Bush administration indicated it was still concerned that the economy was being choked by a lack of available bank credit and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said the Fed was spending a significant amount of its time wrestling with the so-called credit crunch.

"There's just not enough credit available," said Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack Kemp, who called for dramatic action to make it easier for businesses and consumers to get loans.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady said financial regulators, who issued rules in March hoping to alleviate the credit crunch, met again last week and were considering further steps.

Greenspan, who appeared with Brady and Kemp at a congressional oversight hearing, said that so far he has seen little improvement in the slowdown in bank lending. He avoided a question on whether the Fed was considering further moves to lower interest rates in an effort to combat the problem.

Most economists are not looking for more interest rate cuts from the Fed in light of various statements by Fed officials expressing concerns about aggravating inflationary pressures at a time when the recession appeared to be ending.

Many private economists are forecasting that the recovery will be the weakest in history with GNP growth in the July-December period averaging around 3 percent, less than half the normal rebound following a recession.

Freebies abound at specialty ad show

ATLANTA (AP) — In the freebie business, some things never die.

Making promotional key rings, pencils, calendars and rulers has grown into a $5 billion-a-year business with some ornate and pricey additions to the product line.

But the industry's trade show, which opened Wednesday in Atlanta, makes it clear the old standbys of the business are alive and well. It's a phenomenon that puzzles even some of the industry's practitioners.

"Thing that amazes me is the wooden nickel. We sell thousands and thousands of them," said Peggy Parker, sales coordinator for Gold Bond Inc. of Hixson, Tenn., whose product line also includes plastic squeeze bottles, rulers, pencils and fly swatters, all featuring logos or slogans.

She said the wooden nickels are a popular promotional tool for bars, which can give free drinks to customers who collect enough of them.

Ed Schaeffer isn't mystified by the appeal of such items. Schaeffer, the president of St. Louis-based Gemini, has been making refrigerator magnets and key fobs for 36 years.

"A key fob is just like an adult pacifier," said Schaeffer, whose business card is a magnet. "People like to feel them."

That people keep these things is the heart of the business, said C. Ronald Schwisow, chairman of the Specialty Advertising Association International, sponsor of the trade show.

"The thing about specialty advertising is, we use the term, 'the medium that remains to be seen,'" Schwisow said. "It is long-lasting — a ball point pen stays around for years and years."

Every time someone uses a promotional pen, sticks something under a magnet or drinks from a free coffee cup, they're looking at advertising, said Schwisow, who also is president of Teraco Inc., a specialty ad firm in Midland.

The specialty advertising business is "an industry of many small companies," with the biggest ones having sales of about $60 million a year, Schwisow said.

As the industry has grown, he said, it has gotten more sophisticated. Specialty advertising now is often used carefully in conjunction with other media, Schwisow said.

And it's not all cheap trinkets. Some of the exhibitors at the show feature such items as acrylic desk clocks, which cost upwards of $100 each, compared with a few cents per wooden nickel.

Oil prices sluggish

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil futures prices showed little change in a mixed performance Wednesday, but natural gas prices moved higher as traders who had sold it during this week's steep plunge bought it back.

Analysts said the market greeted the latest oil supply statistics from the American Petroleum Institute with a yawn, so sluggish trading was based on technical factors.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in August settled at $20.08 per barrel, up 3 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The move up by the gasoline futures was taken by some analysts as an indication that the market was firming up after a weak start to the summer driving season.

But much of the trading on the refined petroleum products was based on the expiration of the July delivery contracts on Friday, which had some players making deals ahead of time to avoid getting caught in volatile trading that often occurs when a contract is expiring.

Natural gas prices advanced in strong volume. The gas futures have been moving sharply lower lately, picking up momentum from stepped-up trading that brought record volume a day earlier.

Natural gas for delivery in August settled at $1.142 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 1.9 cents.

Dow Jones rises

NEW YORK (AP) — A convergence of technical and seasonal influences on stock prices left the market mixed Wednesday in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.90 points to 2,913.01.

Dollar takes hit

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar declined Wednesday amid speculation that interest rates would rise in Germany.

The dollar fell to 1.78725 marks in New York from late Tuesday's 1.7935.

The British pound gained against the dollar, rising to $1.6385 in New York from $1.6310 late Tuesday.

The dollar slipped to 138.275 yen in New York from 138.30 Tuesday.

Gold rose $1.30 on the Commodity Exchange in New York, closing at $365.90 a troy ounce.

Gold rose in London to a late bid price of $366.30 a troy ounce, up from $364.20 late Tuesday.

Silver slipped 1.8 cents on the Commodity Exchange to close at $4.355 a troy ounce.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Having high percentage in munis is safe

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q. After clearing several million dollars from the sale of our business in the early 1980s, my wife and I are retired. We find that having money is about as much worry as being short of cash.

Our investments in stocks and mutual funds holding stocks were disappointing, so most of our investments now are in municipal bonds, mutual funds holding bonds and U.S. Treasury bills. We make the bond and mutual fund selections through two major brokerage firms and maintain our own Treasury Direct account for the T bills.

Do you think there is any substantial risk in leaving our bonds and mutual funds in the hands of the brokerage firms? Is it unwise to have a high percentage of our money in "municipals?"

A. No, in both cases. Relax and enjoy your retirement.

Every securities brokerage firm doing business with the public is required to be a member of the Securities Investor Protection Corp., which was created by Congress in 1970. If a brokerage firm fails, SIPC sees to it that customers receive securities and cash held by the busted firm.

SIPC coverage is limited to $500,000 per customer, no more than $100,000 of which can be cash. However, most brokerages provide extra protection written by insurance companies, in some cases up to millions of dollars. Check that coverage at the two firms where you have accounts.

Leaving securities with brokerages in "street name" is a convenience used by many investors. Besides eliminating your need to store your certificates, it reduces your record-keeping and can speed things up when you sell, because you don't have to deliver certificates to the broker.

Just one note of caution. Study your brokerage statements to be sure interest and dividends payments are credited to your accounts promptly and that money is sent to as soon as you request it. Some brokerages are slow in that regard.

Municipal bonds certainly are wise investments for you. Because those bonds, issued by states and their political subdivision, pay interest not subject to federal income tax, they are suitable for people in the 28 and 31 percent federal income tax brackets, as you clearly are.

Folks in the 15 percent bracket do better with the higher interest available from many taxable investments.

A final thought. You're smart to buy U.S. Treasury securities through Treasury Direct, thereby avoiding all commissions, fees and other expenses.

Q. When we invested in triple-A rated and insured tax-free municipal bonds we were informed the interest and principal was guaranteed for the life of each bond.

We have just been told the insurance company keeps checking each bond issuer's financial status. If it drops, the rating is lowered and the insurance is cancelled. Can this happen?

A. No. The latest information you received is dead wrong.

Municipal bond insurance, which is written by individual insurance companies and groups of those companies, guarantees exactly what you were told in the first place.

If a municipal bond issuer, such as a state, county, city, town, school district or public authority, defaults, the insurer of those bonds makes good. The insurer meets the defaulted bonds' interest payments and redeems those bonds at face value when they reach their maturity dates.

Bond ratings can be and often are reduced when the issuers fall on hard times. That can cause the market price of a downgraded bond to fall. However, it does not change the fact that interest and principal payments will be made on defaulted bonds by the insurer.

It must be stressed that municipal bond insurance is a commercial venture. There is no federal insurance on municipals. Also, all "munis" are not insured.

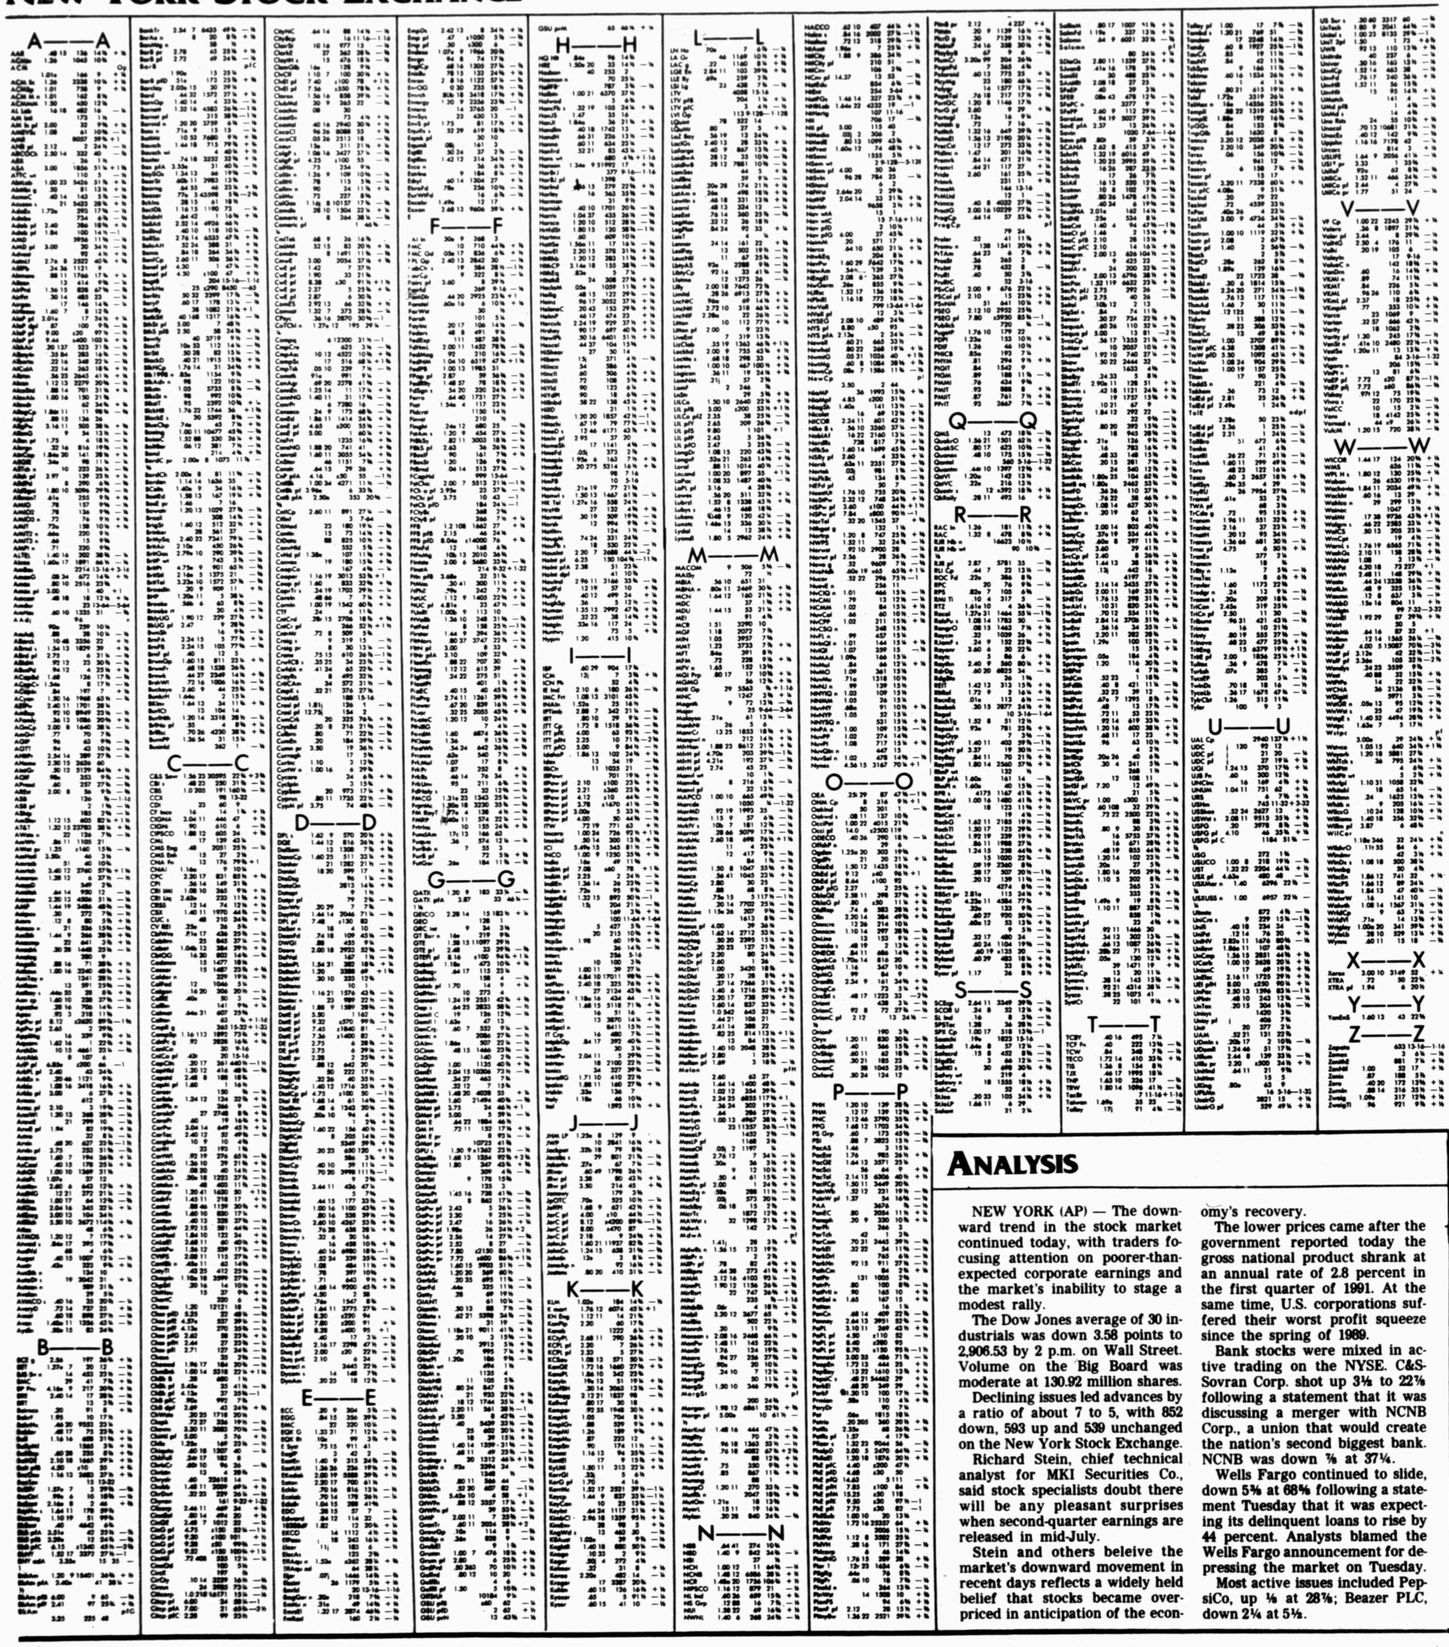
NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE



ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The downward trend in the stock market continued today, with traders focusing attention on poorer-than-expected corporate earnings and the market's inability to stage a modest rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.58 points to 2,906.53 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street. Volume on the Big Board was moderate at 130.92 million shares.

Declining issues led advances by a ratio of about 7 to 5, with 852 down, 593 up and 539 unchanged on the New York Stock Exchange.

Richard Stein, chief technical analyst for MKI Securities Co., said stock specialists doubt there will be any pleasant surprises when second-quarter earnings are released in mid-July.

Stein and others beleive the market's downward movement in recent days reflects a widely held belief that stocks became overpriced in anticipation of the economy's recovery.

The lower prices came after the government reported today the gross national product shrank at an annual rate of 2.8 percent in the first quarter of 1991. At the same time, U.S. corporations suffered their worst profit squeeze since the spring of 1989.

Bank stocks were mixed in active trading on the NYSE. C&S-Sovran Corp. shot up 3¼ to 22⅝ following a statement that it was discussing a merger with NCNB Corp., a union that would create the nation's second biggest bank. NCNB was down ⅞ at 37¼.

Wells Fargo continued to slide, down 5⅜ at 68⅝ following a statement Tuesday that it was expecting its delinquent loans to rise by 44 percent. Analysts blamed the Wells Fargo announcement for depressing the market on Tuesday.

Most active issues included PepsiCo, up ⅛ at 28⅜; Beazer PLC, down 2¼ at 5½.

Thousands file claims in damages from Exxon Valdez spill

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The Exxon Valdez oil spill may be a fading memory for some, but for thousands of fishermen, native Alaskans and others who have filed $59 billion in damage claims, it promises to live on for years.

Dozens of civil cases are pending in state and federal court in Anchorage. One case is before a federal judge in Washington, D.C. Millions of pages of court filings, scientific studies and other documents are being produced.

More than 100 law firms from Minneapolis to California are involved, in part because many lawyers have agreed to work on the cases on a contingency basis. They'll get paid if and when claims are paid.

The Trans-Alaska Pipeline Liability Fund is targeted by 19,379 claims for $59 billion in spill damage payments, according to fund and other court documents.

The fund — set up by Congress to handle oil-spill claims when it authorized construction of the 800-mile pipeline from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez — is financed by a per-barrel oil tax and has just $86 million to pay Exxon claimants.

Under fund rules, claimants were to have been paid by June 24. But fund administrators have just begun to resolve problems in the complicated claim-review process and they say it will be months, perhaps years, before they are paid.

Under case management proposals before U.S. District Judge H. Russel Holland, who is overseeing the lawsuits against Exxon Corp. and its subsidiary Exxon Shipping Co. as well as the fund's claims process, trials would stretch out at least through 1994.

Thousands of birds, marine mammals and fish died after the March 24, 1989, Exxon Valdez oil spill — the nation's worst at more than 11 million gallons.

Exxon spent $2.5 billion to clean up the spill and handed out $300 million to 10,000 fisherman and fish processors during its own claims process before the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Liability Fund took over.

The company said last week its Houston-based claims office remains open to receive further damage claims.

The liability fund is targeted by 19,379 claims for $59 billion in spill damage payments, according to documents.

Fishermen, native leaders, fish processors and their lawyers have said the liability fund is inadequate and the process is not working.

"With so many people applying, who's going to benefit?" asked Elenore McMullen, chief of the tiny Aleut village of Port Graham in Prince William Sound.

The spill "tragically impacted" the village's traditional subsistence lifestyle, she said, though she hopes payments eventually will compensate villagers for their loss.

Matt Moir, a fish processor in Kodiak, where the spill also affected the industry, said he's worried about payments going to the big companies, not the little guys.

"The small coastal fishermen and processors are going to come out on the short end of the stick," he said.

"It's a joke," said Lloyd Miller, lead lawyer for thousands of plaintiffs with lawsuits against Exxon. "It's clear this case is so vast and complex that you can't actually get people even a few cents on the dollar for perhaps a few years."

"The longer you go on, the farther you get away from the incident. All it does is work against the claimants," said Jeff Stephan, with the United Fishermens Marketing Association of Kodiak, whose members have damage claims before the fund.

Lawyers for the claimants said they will suggest to Holland that he order the fund to place the $86 million it has for the Exxon spill into a court-administered account so it can accumulate interest for the claimants rather than the fund.

The fund is doing its job and the process is working well, its defenders say. Delays in processing claims has been unavoidable, in part because many of those submitting claims have filed incomplete documentation.

"We're moving along quickly. With cooperation all around, we can complete the job promptly in accordance with the schedule we've laid out," said A. Stephen Hut, the fund's lead attorney in Washington.

Exxon in court documents filed last week called the $59 billion in claims a "fanciful exaggeration." The company said the $86 million administered by the fund should cover all valid damage claims. Exxon accused claimants' attorneys of trying to "sabotage" the fund process.

Regional airline sues American

DALLAS (AP) — Metro Airlines Inc., a commuter carrier forced into bankruptcy by the demise of Eastern Airlines, said Tuesday it is suing American Airlines for contract violations it claims threaten its existence.

One of the oldest regional airlines, Metro lost a quarter of its revenue after Eastern's collapse earlier this year. The company later sold TWA-affiliated operations in the Northeast and others in the Caribbean.

Metro's lone remaining operation is as a commuter feeder for American Airlines at its primary hub, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. A subsidiary, Metroflight, operates 260 American Eagle flights daily to 26 cities, carrying about 140,000 passengers a month.

Earlier this month, American asked the judge overseeing Metro's Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization to be freed from a 1987 agreement extending Metroflight's term as American Eagle carrier from 1992 to 2002.

Metro's lawsuit is a counterclaim asking the judge to enforce the agreement.

MERGE: NCNB, C&S-Sovran talk

merger of Citizens & Southern Corp. and Sovran Financial Corp. Five months earlier, Citizens & Southern rejected a merger offer from NCNB, with Brown saying the company and its shareholders would be better off independent.

In a statement Wednesday, NCNB confirmed it has held "preliminary and exploratory discussions" with C&S-Sovran and that "it looks forward to continuing those discussions."

"It does appear that the two companies are talking seriously," said bank analyst Kathryn H. Bissette, who follows NCNB for Interstate-Johnson Lane in Atlanta. "There's obvious attractions for the two companies to get together.

"The geographic completeness of such a franchise is certainly significant," she said. "It will be bigger in Florida and South Carolina and C&S has a very good presence in Atlanta and Georgia."

Large-scale mergers have been long predicted by industry analysts as the U.S. banking industry shrinks. Many bank executives and regulators agree that with about 12,300 banks nationwide, the United States has too many banks chasing a limited amount of business.

The United States is widely considered the most over-banked nation; Canada has 65 commercial banks and Japan, less than 150. Many analysts believe too many banks are chasing too few loans, which leads to risky lending practices and ultimately poor quality loans.

Stillinger said conditions could be perfect for the merger.

The merger talks were greeted warmly on Wall Street. C&S-Sovran Corp. shot up $3.37½ to close at $22.75 in composite trading on the New York Stock Exchange. NCNB rose 12½ cents to $38.25.

Federal officials originally estimated that the bailout of the failed Texas bank would cost the government about $2.9 billion. Rep. Charles E. Schumer, a New York Democrat who chairs the task force, that because of the tax breaks, the actual cost would be $4.6 billion to $6.6 billion.

Rain plagues messy Wimbledon again

■ Rain continues to torment Wimbledon tennis, but it didn't bother Gabriela Sabatini and Jennifer Capriati.

Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — Heavy rain tormented Wimbledon for the third straight afternoon today, wiping out most matches and magnifying the tournament's grass-court gridlock.

But the wet weather cleared in the early evening, and Gabriela Sabatini and Jennifer Capriati scored straight-set victories.

Sabatini, the second seed, defeated Monique Javer 6-4, 6-0. Capriati, seeded ninth, won 6-0, 7-5 over Shaun Stafford.

Natalia Zvereva, seeded 12th, completed a 7-6, 6-4 victory over Cristina Tessi that was interrupted for 6½ hours by rain.

The tournament also lost its first seeded players as dusk approached.

Richey Reneberg finished off a 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 upset of 12th men's seed Andrei Cherkasov in a match that began Tuesday and Gigi Fernandez eliminated women's 10th seed Helena Sukova 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The long rain delay further complicated an already messy schedule as 77 of today's 100 matches were washed out. Some players originally set to play Monday still have been unable to get on court.

Argentina's Gabriela Sabatini ...winning first round in straight sets

Only 46 first-round matches have been completed so far. At this point, about 180 first- and second-round matches should have been finished.

"It's not quite critical, but it's getting close to that," Wimbledon referee Alan Mills said. "It's obviously been a very frustrating and depressing three days."

But Mills said he still hopes to avoid play this Sunday, traditionally a rest day at Wimbledon, and was optimistic the tournament can end as scheduled on July 7.

Mills said the two-week event could be completed on time even if the first round is not finished until Monday.

Wimbledon librarian Alan Little, who has been at the Grand Slam tournament for 46 years, said the soggy weather was unprecedented.

"I can't remember a wetter first three days," Little said.

And the London Weather Center did little to lift the gloom, forecasting "a lot more showers" on Thursday.

"Some of them may be heavy and prolonged and there may also be thunderstorms," forecasters said. "The showers are likely to start fairly early in the morning and are unlikely to die out until late evening, so prospects are not good for Thursday."

Tournament officials broke with another tradition today by starting matches 90 minutes earlier than usual, and the decision paid off because the rain began at 12:15 p.m. — 15 minutes before the regular starting time.

Mills said play would start early for the rest of the week.

Five matches were completed today before the rain began. Women's seeds Nathalie Tauziat and Anke Huber scored straight-set victories, while Americans Pam Shriver and Tami Whitlinger also won.

The 11th-seeded Tauziat defeated Regina Rajchrtova 6-4, 7-5 and 13th seed Huber won 6-1, 6-2 over German compatriot Veronika Martinek.

Shriver, a three-time Wimbledon semifinalist, completed her 6-0, 7-5 victory over Baltimore neighbor Andrea Leand just before the rain began.

Johnson NBA's draft cream

■ The Charlotte Hornets make the former Odessa College star the top draft pick in the 1991 NBA draft as expected.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Larry Johnson was the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft Wednesday night as the Charlotte Hornets opted for raw power over Billy Owens' all-around talent and Dikembe Mutombo's defensive skills.

The Hornets' selection was not a surprise as several team officials indicated in recent days Johnson would be the one.

However, director of player personnel Allan Bristow would not confirm Johnson was the choice, saying only that the Hornets would take a forward or center.

Johnson, listed at 6-foot-7 during his college career at UNLV, was measured at 6-5½ at a recent camp for potential draftees at Chicago. But Bristow decided Johnson's aggressive, hard-nosed style was sufficient to make him an NBA star in the wide-body mold of Philadelphia's Charles Barkley.

Johnson averaged 20.6 points and 11.4 rebounds as UNLV won the NCAA title in his junior season. He averaged 22.7 points and 10.9 rebounds as the Runnin' Rebels reached the semifinal game in 1991 and were upset by Duke to finish the season 34-1.

With the No. 2 pick, the New Jersey Nets took Kenny Anderson of Georgia Tech after several days of speculation they would take Owens, the forward from Syracuse.

Willis Reed, director of player personnel, and coach Bill Fitch both said they favored Owens, but the Nets' ownership apparenlty prevailed in their desire for Anderson, whom they consider a bigger drawing card at the Meadowlands where attendance is among the lowest in the NBA relative to capacity.

Anderson was considered the premier guard in the draft although he played only two years in college. The only question mark surrounding the 6-2, 168-pound Anderson is his ability to withstand the rigors of the long NBA season.

He averaged 23.0 points and 7.0 assists in his two years at Georgia Tech, which reached the Final Four in his freshman year. Anderson also helped the U.S. National team to a bronze medal at the 1990 World Championships.

The Sacramento Kings, with a full stable of solid forwards, wanted Anderson, but instead had to accept Owens, who was rated as the best all-around player in the draft.

Jerry Reynolds, the Kings' director of player personnel said before the draft that if Anderson was gone before they selected, he would take either Owens or Johnson and then try to make a trade before the season started to alleviate the crowded situation at forward.

The versatile Owens averaged 23.3 points and 11.6 rebounds as a junior and was named Big East player of the year and an All-America before declaring early for the draft.

Owens can play either forward position, has good ball-handling skills and can score facing the basket or posting up.

Mutombo, who played at Georgetown and was the highest-rated center in the draft, was Denver's first pick and the fourth selection overall. The 7-2 Mutombo, from Zaire, will follow Hakeem Olajuwon and Manute Bol as Africans in the NBA.

Despite not playing basketball until he was a senior in high school, the 25-year-old Mutombo averaged 15.2 points, 12.2 rebounds and 4.72 blocks as a senior for the Hoyas and was se-

Mavericks fill need for front-line help with Smith

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks picked Missouri forward Doug Smith with the sixth pick in the NBA draft Wednesday night, filling a dire need for front-line help.

Smith, a 6-foot-10 power forward rated just a notch below the draft's premier players, was the third player in Big Eight history, after Danny Manning and Wayman Tisdale, to reach 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds.

He averaged 23.6 points and 10.4 rebounds as a senior for the Tigers.

The Mavericks had said they would pick either Doug Smith or versatile Michigan State guard Steve Smith, whichever fell to No. 6. The Miami Heat took Steve Smith with the fifth pick.

That suited Mavericks coach Richie Adubato, who had said he preferred Doug Smith because Dallas is thin at forward, heavy at guard. But the Mavs said they also considered 7-foot-2 center Luc Longley of New Mexico, picked seventh by Minnesota.

Doug Smith didn't visit Dallas for interviews until Sunday.

"I was pretty surprised," Smith said of being picked by the Mavericks.

Houston Rockets use 20th pick for NAIA player

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets, who went into the off-season seeking help at small forward, chose Phillips forward John Turner with the 20th pick in Wednesday night's NBA draft.

Turner, 6-9, 245, averaged 23.9 points and got 370 rebounds last season at Phillips, a NAIA college in Enid, Okla.

"It's a real good feeling, I dreamed about it all my life," Turner said.

Turner also played one season at Alleghany, Md., Community College where he averaged 21.4 points and one season at Georgetown, where he averaged 6.6 points before transferring to Phillips.

The Rockets also were interested in Seton Hall forward Anthony Avent and Louisville guard Labradford Smith. But Avent was taken by Atlanta with the No. 15 pick and Smith went to Washington as the No. 19 selection.

Turner said he was happy to make the jump from the NAIA to the NBA.

"It really is, that's why they had the camps and I took advantage of the opportunity," he said.

Turner was chosen to the NAIA All-America team and was the Sooner Athletic Conference player of the year. He led the SAC in scoring and rebounding.

"Coach (Denny) Price told me to take advantage of what the NBA is looking for," Turner said. "He told me to go up there and don't rush things, rebound well and run hard."

Rockets general manager Steve Patterson said the Rockets planned to play Turner at both forward positions.

Turner sat out a year after transferring to Georgetown. As a sophomore, he started 27 games and averaged 6.6 points and 6.2 rebounds per game with the Hoyas. He had seven games with 10 or more rebounds.

Rockets coach Don Chaney said after the season one of his off-season goals would be to strengthen the small forward position manned last season by Buck Johnson.

The Los Angeles Lakers took advantage of the Rockets' weakness at the position to sweep the Rockets three straight games in the first round of the NBA playoffs.

Jays, Wells cool off Minnesota

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — David Wells cooled off the major leagues' hottest team and former Midland Cub Joe Carter had four hits and a pair of RBIs as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Minnesota Twins 5-2 on Wednesday night.

The loss was Minnesota's third in 24 games in June and ended the Twins' 11-game winning streak at the Metrodome.

Wells (9-5), who's won eight of his last nine decisions after a 1-3 start, allowed seven hits, walked one, and struck out two against the top hitting team in the majors. Chili Davis spoiled Wells' bid for his first career shutout with his 18th homer, a two-run shot with two outs in the eighth.

Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 13th save in as many opportunities.

Toronto, which had its five-game winning streak broken by Minnesota on Tuesday night, tagged Twins' starter Mark Guthrie for six extra-base hits in the first four innings.

AL Roundup

Angels 10, Royals 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Luis Sojo had a two-run double in California's six-run first inning and the Angels set an American League record with their 13th straight errorless game as Kansas City suffered its sixth straight loss.

Wally Joyner extended his hitting streak to 10 games with three hits, including a first-inning single and a two-run triple in the third.

Mark Langston (11-2) won his fifth straight decision and 10th in his last 11 despite allowing five runs and six hits in eight innings before Mark Eichhorn pitched the ninth. Langston struck out six and walked three.

The Angels, who haven't committed an error since June 12, broke the errorless streak set by the Detroit Tigers in 1963. The 1975 Cincinnati Reds and the 1991 St. Louis Cardinals hold the major league record of 15 games without an error.

Kansas City has lost nine of its last 10 at home. The Royals were swept for the fifth time this year, including three at home.

Yankees 5, Red Sox 1

BOSTON — Scott Sanderson, who has not lost consecutive starts in more than two years, extended that streak to 60 starts as New York beat the Red Sox, handing Boston its third straight loss.

Sanderson (8-3) allowed one run and six hits, including Ellis Burks' ninth homer, in six innings before the Yankees went to their bullpen for the 65th time in 67 games this year.

Steve Howe took over to start the seventh and gave up an infield hit to Tom Brunansky and a double to Carlos Quintana, putting runners on second and third. But he got out of the jam by striking out Tony Pena, Luis Rivera and Ellis Burks, then retired the Red Sox in order in the eighth and ninth for his second save in 19 appearances.

Indians 10, Orioles 4

CLEVELAND — Albert Belle, in his first game back with Cleveland following a stint in the minors, had a two-run double and an RBI single in a nine-run first inning.

Belle, who was sent to Class AAA Colorado Springs on June 6 after he failed to run out a double-play grounder, drove in the Indians' first two runs with a double off the left-field fence and capped the big inning with a run-scoring single.

The victory snapped Cleveland's five-game losing streak and was the Indians fourth in 21 games. They were 2-15 without Belle.

Greg Swindell (4-6), plagued by a lack of support all season, was the beneficiary of the offensive outburst. Swindell pitched six innings before being replaced by Jeff Shaw. Swindell allowed four runs on 10 hits, struck out four and walked two.

Tigers 8, Brewers 7

DETROIT — Travis Fryman's RBI single in the 13th inning scored Alan Trammell to give Detroit a victory over Milwaukee.

Trammell led off the 13th with a single, move to second on Milt Cuyler's sacrifice and scored when Fryman lined a 2-2 pitch up the middle.

John Cerruti (1-2) pitched three perfect innings for the win while Julio Machado (0-2) took the loss for Milwaukee.

Detroit hit three homers, including Mickey Tettleton's second roof-clearing shot in five games, and led 7-2 entering the eighth. But Willie Randolph singled in two runs off reliever Paul Gibson to make it 7-4 and Paul Molitor hit a three-run homer off Mike Henneman in the ninth to tie the game.

Mariners 5, White Sox 4

CHICAGO — Randy Johnson allowed three hits in 6⅔ innings for his third straight victory as Seattle held off Chicago, ending the White Sox' five-game winning streak.

Johnson (6-6) walked five and struck out nine. His 102 strikeouts are second to Boston's Roger Clemens among American League pitchers.

Rangers 8, Athletics 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Steve Buechele's bases-loaded triple sparked a six-run seventh inning as Texas beat slumping Oakland.

The A's, now 3-9 since June 12, lost their second straight home game to Texas and fell into third place in the AL West behind Minnesota and California.

With a 1-0 lead and one out in the seventh, the A's intentionally walked Juan Gonzalez with runners at second and third to get to Buechele. He responded by hitting reliever Gene Nelson's pitch up the alley in left-center to clear the bases and give the Rangers a 3-1 lead.

The Rangers were held to one hit through six innings by A's starter Mike Moore and two relievers before Ruben Sierra drew a walk from Curt Young to start the seventh. Nelson (1-2) relieved Young and got Julio Franco to hit into a forceout, but Kevin Reimer followed with a single to left and both runners advanced when Rickey Henderson let the ball roll under his glove for an error.

Ruddock 10 pounds heavier than last time

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Donovan "Razor" Ruddock was asked Wednesday if fans would see a different fighter in his rematch with Mike Tyson.

"We'd better see a different Razor Ruddock," he said.

The fans cerrtainly will see a heavier Ruddock on Friday night in the match at The Mirage. Ruddock, who weighed 228 pounds when he was stopped in the seventh round by Tyson on March 18, weighed in officially at 238 pounds.

Jones says Cowboys competitive

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Wednesday his team, which won seven games last season after winning only one in 1989, has as much talent as any team in the National Football League.

Jones said 80 players would be coming to summer football camp in Austin, and added, "This is the most competitive that the Dallas Cowboys have been for intrasquad positions in many, many years."

He noted that the roster includes second-year players Emmitt Smith, a running back who was NFL Rookie of the Year, and wide receiver Alexander Wright, whom Jones said is the fastest player in the NFL.

Both were holdouts last year and will be taking part in their first summer camp.

"We have excellent talent. I believe we have talent on par with anybody in the NFL, with anybody in the NFL today," Jones told a news conference. "It is dramatic the talent that we have relative to where we were two or three years ago."

The Cowboys finished 7-9 last season, which was the second for Coach Jimmy Johnson, improving from 1-15 record in his rookie year. As a result of the Cowboys' improvement in 1990, Johnson was named NFL Coach of the Year.

Last year, in a training camp Johnson called "fantastic," the Cowboys drew 97,647 spectators for 36 practices, according to the team's count.

"I think you haven't seen anything yet compared to what it's going to be," Jones said.

The Cowboys report to camp at St. Edward's University on July 14, with the first practice July 16.

An intrasquad scrimmage is scheduled for July 21. Scrimmages against the Houston Oilers will be held July 25 in Austin and July 28 in San Antonio.

"The heat is right, the Cowboys are right," Jones said. "We have excellent talent and the excellent makings of a team. We know the other teams have something to say about how successful we're going to be.

Dallas trained in Thousand Oaks, Calif., for 27 years before new owner Jones shifted camp to St. Edward's.

Pendleton rains hits in Houston

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Terry Pendleton went 4-for-4 and scored the go-ahead run as Atlanta ended a 23-inning scoreless streak against Houston on Wednesday in a 3-2 Braves victory.

With the score tied 2-2, Pendleton led off the eighth with a double down the right-field line off Jim Clancy (0-2). Jeff Treadway followed with a single to center to the lead run.

Former Midland High pitcher Mike Stanton (3-1) allowed one hit in 1⅓ scoreless innings. Juan Berenguer finished with perfect relief for his 11th save.

Houston had tied the game in the sixth when Casey Candaele walked and scored on Finley's double.

The Astros, who loaded the bases with no outs in the fourth and failed to score, took a 1-0 lead in the fifth. They loaded the bases again with no outs, this time on singles by Steve Finley and Craig Biggio and Jeff Bagwell's walk. One out later, Ken Caminiti hit a sacrifice fly into foul territory down the left-field line.

Atlanta ended its scoreless streak against Houston in the sixth and took a 2-1 lead. Otis Nixon and Pendleton reached on bunt singles, Jimmy Jones threw a wild pitch and two runs scored when Caminiti booted Lonnie Smith's sharp grounder to third.

Pirates 7, Cubs 6

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds and Jose Lind homered in Pittsburgh's five-run third inning and Bob Walk remained unbeaten.

Jay Bell went 5-for-5 and singled home an insurance run in the seventh as the Pirates, breaking out of their worst offensive slump of the season, won for only the second time in seven games.

Chicago lost its 10th in 11 games after ending a nine-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory Tuesday.

Walk (6-0) improved to 11-3 lifetime against Chicago despite Ryne Sandberg's two-run homer in the first, Rick Wilkins' homer in the fifth and Mark Grace's two-run triple later that inning.

Walk, who has won eight straight decisions since last Sept 9, allowed six hits in seven innings, his longest outing this season. Last year, he averaged just 5⅔ innings in his 24 starts and had 12 no-decisions, the most of any pitcher with 15 starts or more.

NL Roundup

Cardinals 14, Phillies 1

ST. LOUIS — Pat Combs walked five of six batters he faced and St. Louis went on to rout Philadelphia.

Combs (2-6) threw 27 pitches and 22 were balls. St. Louis had 16 hits, including five doubles and a triple. The Cardinals tied their season high for runs and have 24 in two games after scoring 10 in their previous four.

Reds 6, Padres 2

CINCINNATI — Scott Scudder hit his first major league homer in a four-run third and pitched six strong innings.

Cincinnati, the defending World Series champions, reached six games over .500 for the first time this season at 38-32, winning for the fifth time in seven games. Once again, they did it with offense; the Reds have scored 59 runs in their last 10 games.

Scudder (3-3) allowed four hits in 6⅓ innings, including Fred McGriff's two-run homer in the fourth. Randy Myers got his sixth save, giving up a pair of seventh-inning singles before retiring Tony Gwynn on an inning-ending groundout with the bases loaded.

Mets 7, Expos 4

NEW YORK — Frank Viola survived a shaky start and five hits by Marquis Grissom for the left-hander's third victory over Montreal this season.

Viola (8-5) had lost four of his previous five decisions, and things looked bleak for him in the first inning when Montreal loaded the bases with no outs on singles by Grissom, Delino DeShields and Ivan Calderon. The Expos, however, managed only one run on an RBI infield single by Dave Martinez.

Harnisch helps fans forget Davis trade

HOUSTON (AP) — Pete Harnisch is helping Houston Astros fans forget Glenn Davis, though he has yet to hit a home run.

He did pitch his second shutout of the month for a 1-0 victory over Atlanta Tuesday night, lowering his ERA to a NL leading 2.01.

Davis, the team's perennial home run leader, was traded to Baltimore in the off-season for Harnisch, Steve Finley and Curt Schilling, leaving the Astros without a home run source.

Even so, Tuesday's performance helped Harnisch put up some gaudy numbers of his own, despite a 5-5 record.

He already was the league leader in opponents' batting average at .184.

With any kind of run-support from his youthful teammates, he'd be among the league leaders in victories and a strong candidate for the All-Star team.

"I don't even like to answer questions like that," Harnisch said. "I just want to go out and do my job and not get involved in anything like that."

Astros manager Art Howe thinks Harnisch would make an outstanding All-Star.

"He's All-Star material, he's right up there with any pitcher in the league," Howe said. "Pete's fired up every time he goes out there. I know he's a great competitor. His record is as much the fault of our offense as anything."

Harnisch's teammates have scored seven runs in his five losses. He pitched a two-hitter at Pittsburgh on May 3 and lost 1-0. He pitched eight shutout innings against San Diego on May 24 but got a no-decision in a 1-0 victory.

The Braves lead the NL in runs scored, but Harnisch held them scoreless in beating Tom Glavine, an 11-game winner.

"I'm out there to keep the other team from getting runs," Harnisch said. "I don't go out there thinking about who's pitching for the other team. That has nothing to do with it."

Harnisch allowed one runner to reach third base in the first inning and put down another Braves threat in the seventh when Lonnie Smith doubled to start the inning.

"I've always thought he was a good pitcher, he gets himself out of jams," Atlanta's Ron Gant said. "I knew he was a good control pitcher, but I've never seen him throw that many fastballs."

Harnisch started the season in the rotation behind Mike Scott and Jim Deshaies but he's outperformed everyone on the Astros staff.

Spurs take point guard with only NBA selection

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs used their only selection of the NBA draft Wednesday to choose point guard Greg Sutton of Oral Roberts University.

"He probably has a better chance of making our team than a lot of other teams," Spurs owner Red McCombs said. "Our needs would be at the point guard position, so we're delighted he was there."

Spurs officials had said they would be looking for help for starting point guard Rod Strickland, who currently is in contract negotiations with San Antonio.

The late second-round pick — the 49th overall — was not a favorite of all the fans who attended the Spurs' draft night party at HemisFair Arena. Early indications were the Spurs might choose guard Joey Wright of Texas, and a number of fans shouted his name at Spurs officials after Sutton was selected.

Sutton, a 6-2, 170-pound guard from Oklahoma City, was voted NAIA player of the year and was a consensus All-American as a senior. He is the leading scorer in Oral Roberts history, with 3,070 points in three years.

As a senior, Sutton averaged 34.3 points, 4.8 rebounds and 4.3 assists.

"He just can play. He can shoot it. He can put in on the floor," Spurs coach Larry Brown said. "He's the 49th pick, so let's just hope we got lucky."

Throughout the evening, Brown, McCombs and other Spurs officials met secretly in the team's so-called "war room" trying to decide on a selection.

McCombs had said earlier in the evening a trade was possible that could give San Antonio a higher draft pick. Team officials later said a trade fell through that would also have given the Spurs the 38th overall selection.

NBA: Smith most popular draft name choice

lected as the conference's defensive player of the year. He also has excellent running skills and stamina for a big man, and he will be expected to plug the leaks in the Nuggets' defense, worst in the NBA.

Steve Smith of Michigan State, the Big Ten's leading scorer the last two years, was the Miami Heat's selection with the fifth pick. Smith was the subject of several pre-draft trade rumors because the Heat has Glen Rice and Willie Burton playing the same position. Smith, a 6-7 guard, averaged 25.1 points as a senior to become the Spartan's all-time leading scorer ahead of Scott Skiles. As a junior, he led Michigan State in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Doug Smith of Missouri, a 6-10 power forward rated just a notch below the draft's premier players, was the sixth pick by the Dallas Mavericks. Smith was the third player in Big Eight history, after Danny Manning and Wayman Tisdale, to reach 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds.

He averaged 23.6 points and 10.4 rebounds as a senior for the Tigers.

The Minnesota Timberwolves made Luc Longley of New Mexico the second center drafted. The 7-2 Longley, from Australia, averaged 19.1 points and 9.2 rebounds as a senior to become the Lobos' all-time leading scorer and rebounder.

Scouts rated Longley high as a scorer, shotblocker and passer, but his intensity has always come into question. He will compete with second-year man Felton Spencer, the Timberwolves' No. 1 pick last year who started most of their games in 1990-91.

Denver, with the NBA's worst record of 20-62, acquired the eighth pick by trading guard Michael Adams and a first-round pick next year to Washington.

With their second pick of the first round the Nuggets selected Mark Macon of Temple, whose status among NBA teams rose and fell with the fortunes of the Owls.

Macon, who averaged 20.7 points for his career and was a four-time All-Atlantic 10 selection, saw his stock jump dramatically with a big performance in the NCAA tournament, leading Temple to the final eight.

The selection indicates the Nuggets wil try to use Chris Jackson, last year's No. 3 pick overall, as a point guard although he may be more suited as a shooter.

Atlanta, using the ninth selection it acquired earlier in the day in a deal that sent guard Doc Rivers to the Los Angeles Clippers, chose Stacey Augmon, the second UNLV player taken in the first round.

The 6-8, 205-pound forward was the defensive stopper on the Runnin' Rebels, averaging 16.5 points and 7.3 rebounds as a senior. He received the Henry Iba Corinthian Award as the nation's top defensive player for three straight years and was named to the AP All-America first team as a senior after playing in 1988 Olympics as a freshman.

The Orlando Magic used the 10th pick to take Brian Williams of Arizona, who transferred there from Maryland after his freshman year and then left college with one year of eligibility remaining. The 6-11 Williams averaged 14 points and 7.8 rebounds as a junior, earning All-Pac 10 honors.

The Magic, despite having the best record among the four NBA expansion teams, were desperate for players who can score inside and rebound, especially at center.

Then the Cleveland Cavaliers selected 5-11 Terrell Brandon of Oregon, who left school after an outstanding junior season in which he was named Pac-10 player of the year. Possessing excellent range and quickness, he averaged 26.6 points in his final year for the Ducks, a school record.

The Cavaliers were the last of the "lottery teams" to select, having the best record among the clubs that did not make the playoffs. However, their scoring from the backcourt was abysmal following the loss of Mark Price to a knee injury.

Greg Anthony became the third UNLV player taken when he was grabbed by the New York Knicks who have Maurice Cheeks and Mark Jackson at the point guard position although Jackson has been on the trading block for over a year and Cheeks will be 35 at the start of next season. Anthony was the floor leader on the Runnin' Rebels' dominant NCAA teams the last two years, averaging 11.6 points and 8.9 assists last season.

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

If you were to take a vote for the best bridge player of the post-World War II era, the name of Benito Garozzo would be at or near the top. It was scintillating technique such as he demonstrated on this hand that brought him to the attention of Carl Alberto Perroux, captain of Italy's legendary Blue Team. Garozzo's partnership with Pietro Forquet became the cornerstone of an unbroken string of Blue Team triumphs in world championship play.

South's three-heart jump showed both the quality of the heart suit and the improvement in the strength of the hand because of the club fit. When North could do no more than raise to game, Garozzo was quite happy to pass—the potential of the South hand had already been disclosed and any further move was up to North.

Everyone at the table knew that West's lead of the nine of clubs was a singleton. East rose with the ace and returned the queen. Most declarers we know would have covered with the king reflexively, and that would have spelled defeat. West would ruff and switch to a spade and, in the fullness of time, declarer would have to surrender a spade and another club for down one.

Garozzo found the winning play without a moment's thought. Although the king of clubs was almost surely doomed, it still had a vital role to play in disrupting the opponents' communications. Declarer withheld the monarch, allowing East's queen to win the second trick. A low club continuation permitted West to ruff and shift to a spade, but declarer was in charge.

South rose with dummy's ace of spades and ruffed a club high, setting up a long club on the table. After drawing trumps, declarer was able to discard the jack of spades on the good club, and the game rolled home.

Author to donate $1 million to build a field of dreams

BANGOR, Maine — Stephen King, creator of nightmarish fantasies, is donating $1 million to build a field of dreams.

The best-selling author said Tuesday he is building a baseball field and donating it to his home city, a gift designed to ease a shortage of full-size diamonds for youngsters in Senior Little League.

"It's not on a par with world peace or ending hunger here in Bangor," King said. "But I was taught that charity begins at home."

King's contractor planned to begin soliciting bids in order to have the field ready for play next spring.

King, 43, author of such novels as "Misery," "Carrie," and "Cujo," is an avid baseball fan.

NORWALK, Conn. — Veteran television newsman Harry Reasoner returned to the critical list Wednesday, two weeks ago after brain surgery to remove a blood clot.

Reasoner

Reasoner, 68, who developed pneumonia after the June 12 surgery, had improved enough for his condition to be upgraded Monday from critical to serious.

Doctors at Norwalk Hospital's downgraded his condition to critical Wednesday, said Bruce Hutchison, a hospital spokesman who declined to release any further information.

Reasoner, of Westport, retired from "60 Minutes" in May after 27 years with CBS News, but planned to continue as a contributing correspondent.

He underwent surgery for lung cancer in 1987 and again in 1989.

NEW YORK — Mary Alice Williams, one of Cable News Network's anchors when it began 11 years ago, may return to CNN from NBC News.

"Exploratory talks" are under way, a CNN spokesman said Wednesday.

Williams joined NBC News in 1989, initially as an anchor on NBC's new CNBC cable network, then as co-anchor of the since-canceled "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" series. She now co-anchors "Sunday Today."

"NBC has no comment" on whether Williams will return to CNN, said Katherine McQuay, an NBC News spokeswoman. Williams did not return a telephone call for comment.

LOS ANGELES — Malcolm-Jamal Warner, a star of "The Cosby Show," will expand his fledgling directorial skills next week when cameras roll on "This Old Man...," a short film about a day in the life of an elderly man.

Warner, 20, already has directed three episodes of "Cosby" and several music videos.

"This Old Man . . . " will be Warner's first movie and will star Whitman Mayo, best known as Grady on the old "Sanford & Son" show.

NEW YORK — Ron Protas, the artistic director of the Martha Graham Dance Company, was left the rights to the dancer's legacy.

"She did not have any stocks or bonds," Peter R. Stern, the lawyer representing the estate, said Wednesday. "She did not own any real estate. She didn't even have a bank account.

"Her major asset is her legacy, the ballets, her name."

Protas, as executor, estimated the estate's value at $325,000, including $100,000 in artworks and $25,000 in jewelry.

Graham died April 1 at age 96.

In her will, executed in 1989 and filed Wednesday, Graham made no specific bequests but asked that Protas distribute some personal effects "in accordance with my wishes, which are known to him."

She also requested that he consult with friends and colleagues over the use of rights and interests in dances, musical scores, scenery, personal papers and the use of the Graham name.

Among those named are Mikhail Baryshnikov, Jerome Robbins, Jacqueline Onassis and people affiliated with her school.

ATLANTA — Darryl McDaniels, a member of the rap group Run-DMC, and a member of the group's stage crew denied charges Wednesday of aggravated assault and battery stemming from a brawl at an Atlanta nightclub.

Police investigator J.P. Spillane said McDaniels and Raymond White, both 27 and from Long Island City, N.Y., attacked two bouncers at Club 112 early Sunday.

Spillane said 15 people became involved in the fighting, a bouncer suffered apparent nerve damage and the brawl did about $4,000 worth of damage.

The two men, who were performing at the club, were originally charged with drunken and disorderly conduct, simple battery on a police officer and criminal damage to property. The other charges were added Tuesday.

"We categorically deny all the charges, but under the advisement of local counsel, we can't make any further comment at this time," the two said in a statement issued by Profile Records.

Jesse Jackson readies himself for presidential campaign

The Nation

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The presidential campaign looms ever closer over the horizon. Racial politics are in the air. A dominant Democratic candidate has yet to emerge. In Jesse Jackson's mind, all this leads to one thing: He's back. Or at least he wants to be.

After two years of aimless wandering in a political Sinai, the Rev. Jesse Jackson is moving to capitalize on recent events, sowing hope among his loyal followers and agita among some Democratic moderates.

The moderates had been hoping Jackson would continue on the arc of diminishing visibility that he has followed since declining to run for mayor of Washington, D.C. and settling for the obscurity of the make-work post of "shadow senator" for the District of Columbia.

Instead, Jackson is raising the possibility of another run for the Democratic presidential nomination, all the while declining to say that that is his plan.

"I have to look at all the political options for 1992 because I am the front-runner," he said.

In a few days of frenetic activity this month, Jackson put his political and personal strengths on display, as well as his weaknesses.

He pointed out that the agency managing the savings and loan bailout was failing to award some contracts to black-owned businesses, as required by federal regulations. He directed a disappointed bidder with internal documents detailing the practice to The New York Times in an effort to publicize what he considered an injustice. He criticized President Bush for his opposition to the civil rights bill, spelling out his differences with Republicans in ways few Democrats of weight have so far undertaken and with a rhetorical passion few others can match.

"Race is a decoy that sets America against America," Jackson said in a recent stem-winding speech castigating Republicans for what he said was using the quota issue for political gain.

"It is a way for a politician to win, and the people to lose. It is morally wrong to polarize the country this way. Moreover, it is economically destructive. Race-baiting is a smokescreen that hides how vulnerable Americans really are."

At the same time, Jackson showed he is not above indulging his own ego and political jealousies. Sitting in his office, ticking off the bevy of Democratic heavyhitters that would attend the five-day convention of the Rainbow Coalition, the political group he founded and heads, he sounded more like a youngster comparing his baseball card collection to that of his rival.

In Jackson's case the rival is the Democratic Leadership Council, a moderate group that declined to invite Jackson to address its meeting last month.

"We got Tsongas coming, Harkin coming, Gephardt coming, Simon coming, Gore coming, Graves coming, Rockefeller coming."

Jackson said that his conference, held this month, was "far more substantive, far more diverse," than the Democratic Leadership Council meeting.

Inquiries about Jackson's own plans for 1992 bring forth coy demurrals, but his actions speak louder than his demurrers. When newspapers fail to record Jackson's own view of himself as the front-runner, he is quick to provide polls showing that he is at or near the top of Democratic candidates in terms of name recognition and initial support.

AMA approves testing of doctors, health workers for AIDS virus

CHICAGO (NYT) — The American Medical Association on Wednesday formally approved the testing of physicians and health-care workers for the AIDS virus and proposed easing informed-consent procedures so that more patients could be tested for the virus.

The measures were among a package of resolutions adopted by the association at its annual meeting here to set forth the responsibilities of physicians and patients in the transmission of AIDS.

The resolutions followed hours of debate and months of soul-searching in the wake of the finding that a Florida dentist, Dr. David J. Acer, apparently passed on the virus to his patients.

Wednesday, the association rejected the idea of mandatory testing as unwieldy and too expensive, but strongly asserted that doctors have a duty to "do no harm" and, if infected, must either cease performing invasive procedures or disclose their condition to their patients.

'If doctors are at risk, due either to their practice or life style, they have an obligation to know their HIV status.'

— Dr. Nancy Dickey, AMA trustee

"If doctors are at risk, due either to their practice or life style, they have an obligation to know their HIV status," said Dr. Nancy Dickey, a member of the association's board of trustees, who is a family practitioner in Richmond, Texas.

"If they are doing invasive procedures, they have an obligation to stop voluntarily or tell their patient and let the patient decide whether to go further.

Dickey said that the association would rescind the membership of any physician who willfully ignored the group's ethical guidelines. The action was generally well-received among several medical ethicists, but some wondered about its implications.

"I'm not sure there is any scientific data to warrant any aggressive testing of health care professionals," said Dr. Mark Siegler, a physician who is director of the Department of Medical Ethics at the University of Chicago.

"This notion of voluntary testing seems to be a middle ground that may not satisfy either the physicians and scientists who say there is no adequate proof that the HIV virus has been transmitted from health care workers to patient or the patients' rights groups who will claim they have a right to know."

At the core of Wednesday's action is the mutual dependency between doctor and patient, a relationship perhaps made more poignant by the threat of AIDS.

The physicians asserted that what was best for the physician was best for the patient. "We are concerned about the transmission to patients as we are concerned about patients transmitting the virus to us," said Raymond Scalettar, a member of the executive committee of the association's board of trustees.

In approving a resolution to make it easier to test patients, the association plans to create new consent forms to be used in hospitals and clinics that want to test for the virus. The new form, Scalettar said, would focus more sharply on explaining the disease and why the test would be deemed necessary.

"We want to come back with a modified form that would be simple, lucid and clear and without the cumbersome details on the current forms," Scalettar said. "These blanket informed consent forms are bulky, clumsy and very unfocused."

"The whole basis of informed consent is to get the patient to understand the risk and benefits," said Reinhard Priester, a lawyer and research associate at Center for Biomedical Ethics at the University of Minnesota. "If streamlining means cutting corners, then I don't think it's worthwhile."

Senate adopts appeal limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Wednesday to adopt President Bush's proposal for sharp new limits on the legal maneuvers prisoners may use in federal court to challenge their convictions and sentences.

The 58-40 vote to pass the measure as an amendment to a Democratic crime bill reflected a growing frustration with death-row inmates who file repeated appeals to delay their executions.

The new restrictions are high on the administration's legislative wish list this year, and the vote was a political victory for Bush as 16 Democrats bolted their party to support his proposal.

Democratic leaders and civil libertarians argued the plan would virtually eliminate the right to file habeas corpus petitions in federal courts.

"If this bill becomes law, the federal courts are out of the business of enforcing the Bill of Rights in state courts," said Larry Yachle, a Boston University law professor.

"The only thing that is left, I suppose is if you are tried in a kangaroo court," said Leslie Harris, chief legislative counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Under Bush's plan, such a petition could not be considered if the federal judge who reviews it determines the convicted criminal received a "full and fair hearing" of his legal claims in state courts.

On another issue, the Senate voted 65-33 to make it a federal crime punishable by death any murder committed with a gun sold in interstate commerce, which applies to virtually all killings involving firearms.

Healthy hair requires special care

Associated Press

Cheryl Tiegs protects the hair with a baseball cap, Julie Wolfe wraps her head in an old terry towel and a sports hairstylist recommends constant hair-conditioning.

Sweat, sun and salt water can take their toll on your hair, according to an article in the June issue of Harper's Bazaar, so to keep your hair as fit as your body you need to give it special care.

"As you exercise, your scalp perspires," said hair expert Philip Kingsley of New York City and London. "If this sweat is allowed to remain, hair can become dry, dull, lank and lifeless."

He recommends shampooing after each workout, and don't worry about overdoing it.

"Twice or even three times is just fine, as long as you use a mild formula, warm water and rinse thoroughly," he said.

Outdoor activities also call for sun protection, easily achieved with gels and sprays that create a barrier between hair and ultraviolet light.

Chlorine and mineral deposits from the copper piping that feeds many pools can cause discoloration. To protect, apply a water-resistant conditioner.

CHERYL TIEGS has her own method of hair protection. She always tucks her blonde shoulder-length hair under a Los Angeles Dodgers baseball cap before she goes bicycling around Santa Monica or hiking in the nearby hills.

"I can't stand my hair hanging down on my neck when I'm exercising," she said. "If I'm not wearing the cap, I'll use big clips to pull it up on the top of my head."

Summer activites can take a toll on hair if it is not given special care.

Julie Wolfe finds windsurfing leads to fading, drying out and splitting ends. She combats the elements with an intensive moisturizing treatment.

"Several times a month or whenever I really need to, I'll gob on the conditioner, wrap my head in an old terry towel and leave it on overnight," she said. "In the morning, my hair is incredibly soft, smooth and supple."

Jacob Neal gave Martina Navratilova the clip-topped hairstyle she boasted when she played Steffi Graf in the 1987 U.S. Open final. To Navratilova's dismay, her hair and not her tennis had everybody talking.

"I don't think Martina was truly upset," Neal said, "but she was a little surprised."

Neal cuts hair that can be styled and blown dry in under 15 minutes. As consultant to the Virginia Slims Tennis Circuit and the Women's Sports Foundation, he does not tamper too much.

For younger players, such as Jennifer Capriati, Monica Seles and Gabriella Sabatini he leaves hair long and full, trimming ends frequently. He recommends conditioning after every shampoo.

"It doesn't matter whether you're playing on center court at the U.S. Open or in a neighbor's backyard," he said. "Nothing looks better than a head of healthy, luminous hair."

EXERCISE ALSO can revitalize your skin.

"Any activity that boosts general circulation is great for a complexion," said Houston dermatologist Dr. Esta Kronberg. "Running and swimming are two of the best, because they keep the body in constant motion; tennis and volleyball are slightly less helpful, as they don't offer as much of an aerobic workout."

Women with acne-prone skin should take special care.

"Sports that involve protective helmets, chin straps or padding can lock in perspiration and aggravate skin," said Dr. C. William Doubleday, a sports dermatologist at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston.

He recommended showering not more than 15 minutes after every workout, using a mild soap. Cleanse accessories like head and wrist bands after every use.

Working out and wearing makeup are not mutually exclusive, makeup expert Mark Hayles told Harper's Bazaar, saying: "Forego foundation, which will melt right into pores as you work up a sweat. But mascara, eyeshadow and lipstick are just fine."

Knit wear makes a revival in fashions

By Bernadine Morris
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Designer knitted styles offer comfort and flexibility.

From the classic twin sweater sets of the 1940s to the pyschedelic patterns of the 1960s to the message T-shirts of the 1980s, knitted clothes move regularly in and out of fashion, occupying varying degrees of importance at different times.

Now the signs are pointing to a revival of designer knitted styles, including wool and cotton jerseys.

In some stores, styles by Missoni, the quintessential knitwear house of the 1970s, are undergoing a resurgence in demand.

The comfort and flexibility of knitted clothes and the fact that they lend themselves to strong colors and patterns contribute to their appeal. Knitwear designers are helping the trend along with their collections for fall.

Marc Jacobs, the Perry Ellis designer, has announced the revival of the Portfolio collection. Ellis rode to fame on the Portfolio clothes, which included sweaters knit by hand.

Jacobs is emphasizing animal patterns, geometric designs and primary colors in a young, clean-cut collection that includes jersey dresses as well as knitted pullovers. He hints at the fresh college look that Ellis emphasized in his early collections.

Besides zebra, giraffe and leopard patterns, there are bold stripes and oversize zigzag designs. Black-and-white paillettes cover the surface of a white pullover that would be fun to wear at night.

Valerie Louthan, who designed cashmere sweaters under her own name for a number of years, now works for the N. Peal group.

While she offers her share of classic styles, Ms. Louthan has introduced some dashing patterns into this traditional area. Many are patterned with abstract designs suggesting Mondrian and others.

Her idea of a classic is a square neckline pullover that can be worn with tights or a rather austere T-shirt that can be worn with shorts.

Cashmere jackets with gold buttons have a suit look. The capestoles that Ms. Louthan made part of the language of fashion now have matching satin borders.

Generally her styles have more shape than is usually associated with cashmere sweaters. Braid trimming and bold zippers extend their range.

Fashions take a shine to metallics

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

If you're looking for something to add sparkle to your summer togs, try metallic.

In fact, fashions now through fall are going heavy on the metal — silver, gold, copper, bronze and gunmetal — throughout the day for work and play.

The shiny metals look best for summer, while the matte look adds just a hint of glint for autumn. In the proper balance, these shimmering shades, once reserved for evening, are ideal neutrals.

"I just bought a gold stretch T-shirt to liven up a three-year-old gray crepe business suit," says Emily Cho, New York image specialist. "Now it looks very new and yet classic."

Silver looks cool on a hot day, and when paired with white it can look downright frosty. But don't be fooled. Anne Cole, the swimwear lady, says metallics added to fabrics can heat up in the sun because they act like conductors.

"But," she says, "they're still selling very well because a woman would just as soon burn and wear it to be noticed."

Included in her current collection is a tank suit with a gold flag printed on Lurex tricot, about $76 retail. Bill Blass Beachwear paints gold and white stripes up and down an underwire maillot, about $66, and Anne Klein shapes silver Lurex into a wrap style swimsuit, about $86.

IF YOU CAN'T find the shine you're looking for in the stores, the catalogs are full of it. T-shirts, leggings — even penny loafers — are transformed with unexpected sparkle.

A polyester silver lame (that's la-MAY) T-shirt, $44, can be paired with silver spandex leggings, $70, both in the Saks Fifth Avenue catalog.

Other sporty options are a metallic-coated nylon baseball cap in gold or silver, $18; a stretch tank dress with silver sequins, $145, and a 44-inch square chiffon scarf in silver or gold metallic, $22. The scarf, from Echo, can double as a beach wrap. All are from the Lord & Taylor catalog.

There's a lot of metallic footwear around, too. Mules and straps, both high and low; mesh flats, woven pumps. Anne Klein II has one of the wittiest — and most versatile — looks: penny loafers that look like mules. Or maybe they're mules that look like penny loafers. They're available, about $125, in bright suedes, too.

Donna Karan goes for the gold for fall, with metallic suede for day or evening, Lycra bodysuits and stockings, stretch wool blazers and column dresses. Her gold leaf suede bomber jackets, belted swing coats and cropped motorcycle jackets range from $1,785 to $2,600.

PUBLIC RELATIONS director Christy Hood says Donna's affinity for gold began with the gold zipper pulls on her scuba dresses for spring "and will move into fall in a bigger way."

Karan likes to accessorize with Robert Lee Morris' sculpted brass body jewelry with a gold overlay, such as neck collars and belts for hip or waist.

"They're pieces of jewelry that are almost apparel," Hood says. "The gold totally changes the feeling of what you're wearing, transforming it into a new look."

At Fred Hayman in Beverly Hills, silver is the metal of the moment.

"Gold is something that sells well all year round in Beverly Hills," says Karen Schneider, women's fashion buyer. "But for the current season, silver has become the new gold."

Silver leather hot pants by Zang Toi are $605 at Fred Hayman, where a private label silver Lurex crewneck cable knit sweater is $245. Panama straws and cowboy hats go metallic there, too, for $200 to $350.

"You take a traditional silhouette like a cowboy hat, add metallics and suddenly it becomes a hot item," Schneider says.

Remember, a little gilt goes a long way.

EMILY CHO SAYS if you're unsure avoid anything that looks like aluminum foil.

"A dull or brushed finish is a much newer look," she says.

Schneider of Fred Hayman agrees.

"I see the direction going towards gunmetal as the newer metallic for fall," she says.

Maybe that's because for fall the store is heavy into gunmetal catsuits by Karl Lagerfeld.

DEAR ABBY

Parents look for cure to teen's lovesickness

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We are a middle-class family with a 20-year-old son and a 16-year-old daughter. Our problem is the girl — "Karen." She's been going with the same boy, "Mark," for a year and a half. He's 17, and they are so wrapped up in each other, it's terrible.

Van Buren

Karen was always a happy, outgoing girl, but now she's secretive and quiet. She used to confide in me. She doesn't go places with her girlfriends like she used to; they don't even call her anymore. Her grades have plunged this year, so she has to go to summer school to make up some credits.

I have tried to reason with her. We have restricted her to seeing Mark only once a week because they were getting too thick. (She says she "loves" him.) We have talked until we are blue in the face about doing something besides waiting for Mark to call, but she can't — or won't — see the light. What can we do? — KAREN'S PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Your daughter has a bad case of lovesickness. She needs someone she can talk to honestly about her feelings. Unfortunately, there is now little communication between you and Karen. So, family counseling might bring you closer together.

Karen needs to see you as loving parents, which is what you are, instead of "the enemy" — using your parental power to keep her from seeing the boy she loves. (Don't ridicule her; although she is only 16, her love is genuine.)

Ask your family doctor to recommend a family therapist. If money is tight, your YWCA may be the answer. And hats off to you for seeking help.

DEAR ABBY: I need your opinion. Two weeks ago, I gave my girlfriend an engagement ring. We have been going together for nearly two years, and it's understood that we will get married in about a year, so she wasn't exactly surprised. (I am 24 and she is 21.)

Now, the problem: The ring I gave her is a three-carat zircon — set in white gold. It looks exactly like a diamond, but it is not nearly as expensive. I never did tell her it wasn't a diamond, and she has been showing it off at work and to her relatives. Now I'm too embarrassed to tell her the truth.

I keep thinking that one day, when I can afford it, I will replace it with a real diamond, but now I don't have the nerve to tell her the truth. What should I do? — NO GUTS

DEAR NO GUTS: Please get the guts to tell her the truth, and the sooner the better. If she should decide to insure the ring, she would be told immediately that it is not a diamond. Your engagement would be less "rocky" if she heard it first from you.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law's behavior is sometimes very puzzling to me. She will bake (or buy) some sort of pastry or dessert to take with her when invited to a get-together for a special occasion. (Birthday, anniversary, housewarming, etc.)

When the get-together is over, she always goes to the kitchen and packs up whatever is left over from her "offering" and takes it home with her. Trying to get her to leave even a portion of it is like pulling teeth!

I'm embarrassed when she does this in front of my family, or even her own children. My husband and I feel that whatever she brings to the home of another is a gift, and she has no right to take home even a part of it. — CONFUSED IN MARIPOSA, CALIF.

DEAR CONFUSED: The leftovers should be left — unless, of course, the host or hostess insists that the donor take them home. And by the way, when one takes a "goody" to the home of another, it would be very thoughtful to bring it on a paper plate, a box, or some other type of disposable container that need not be returned.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

AT WIT'S END

Hair today is gone tomorrow

By Erma Bombeck

Men do not admit to vanity. Yet beginning at the age of 15, a "hairline alert" goes into effect. Every day they check to see if they have less hair today than they had yesterday.

Bombeck

They develop a curiosity about their genes. It isn't important how their grandfather died. They just want to know if he was buried with hair on his head.

When their hairbrushes require more combing than their heads, they turn creative.

Parts will begin an inch above the ear to give the illusion there's more hair than meets the eye. Certain strands of hair are allowed to grow to a length of three feet so that they may be combed forward, where they are coiled and curved into 36 inches of bad road.

Others have an instant solution. They wear baseball caps.

Enter the hottest item ever to grace an adult toy store: the ponytail hat. It's a marriage made in heaven — a baseball cap that covers a bald head and has a shoulder-length pony tail cascading from under it.

A New York salesman is quoted as saying, "They're bought by people like me, people who used to be hippies or who used to have hair. They buy them to remind themselves that they're not becoming middle-aged. I wear one because it attracts women like a magnet."

Actually, the ponytail hat will fool no one. For some strange reason, men who have enough hair on their chests and bodies to blow-dry — with bushy beards down to their knees and ponytails they can sit on — often have no hair on the top of their heads.

It's the dark side of fate. It's kind of like a woman who by the time she can afford to offer her face a lift, doesn't have anyplace to go with it.

If you watch old classic movies, you realize that wigs for men have been around for a long time now. I saw an English drama the other night and the male lead looked like Eva Gabor.

One of the pluses of the ponytail cap will be that our youth will not be caught dead with a rope of hair hanging down their backs anymore. Once a kid starts to look like his father, he will drop the style like a bad habit and go on to something else.

If I were a betting woman, I'd put my money on this next toy: a ski cap with a shaved look just above the ears that turns into a field of buzzed hair standing straight up a la Bart Simpson or Vanilla Ice.

And then there's Michael Jordan. Is bald the new wave of the '90s? Or just someone's father?

Sheer street wear fashions are perfect for city heat

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

Every time the temperature soars, a new look seems to emerge as a favorite for city street wear. This time, it's transparency.

Popular with everyone is the loose shirt in a gauzy fabric teamed with opaque cigarette pants or leggings.

The newest look is a tent tunic made of organzalike fabric in a small, flower-print pattern. Usually this is worn over a tank top and stretch biker shorts.

When this is accessorized with a small back pack and running shoes or ballet slippers, it's fun, funky and best pulled off by those in their teens and 20s.

Sophisticated Madison and Park Avenue strollers seem to like the bottom half of a costume to be sheer, under a fingertip-length top. Most prevalent are full or pleated skirts of semisee-through material.

The other morning, one woman looked particularly smashing in an all-black outfit, a long, fitted shantung jacket over flaring, ankle-length pleated culottes of crisp, semisheer silk. With the focus on the legs, sheer, dark-toned hose is the right choice.

Any of these looks is fresh and cool. But there are a couple of things to remember when wearing see-through styles: Unless your figure is perfect and your tummy flat, a sheer top looks best over a bodysuit or camisole.

And sporting something sheer demands plenty of confidence.

Get a leg up on summer fashion with today's denim shorts

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember cutoffs?

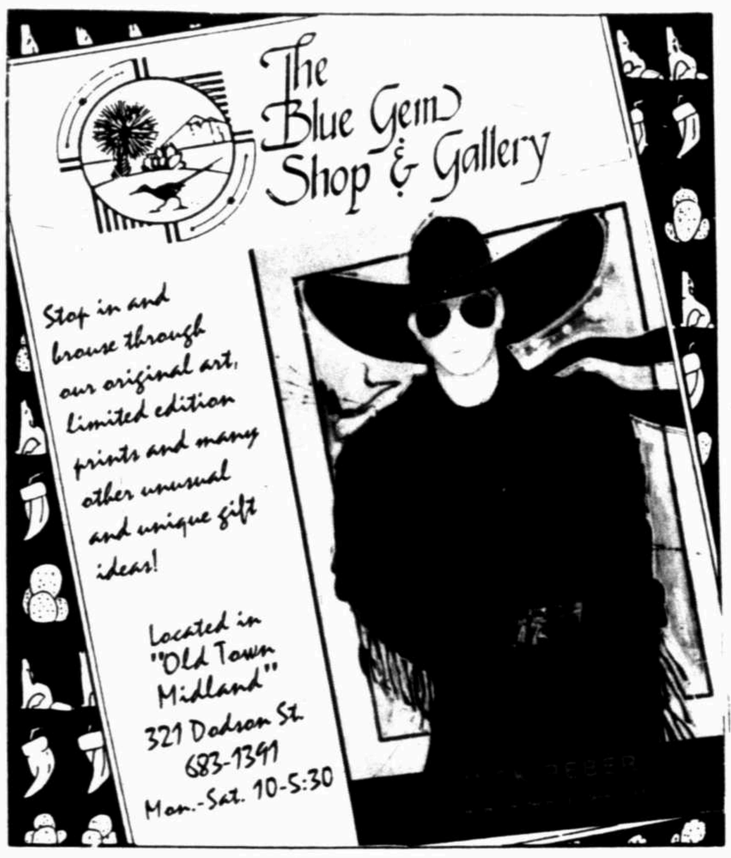
Well, they're back. Except you don't have to chop jeans off at the knee to make them. Manufacturers have done it for you.

And unlike those of the 1960s, there are no frayed edges. This time round they are neatly hemmed, to roll up or not.

The Gap has them in colored denim, as well as faded blue. But white, which creates a long, lean and clean look, seems to be a favorite.

Lee's denim shorts, by contrast, are more forgiving of the 30-or 40-something bodies. Styles range from the molded look of stretch denim to the classic five-pocket, the relaxed fit and a pull-on with an elastic waistband.

"Today, a woman can choose from a selection of designs according to her figure type and fashion preference," says Kim Sater, vice president of brand marketing at Lee.



Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (Company), in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission), hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas for residence Custom Calling Services, effective August 1, 1991, unless otherwise determined by the Commission. The Company has filed an application with the Commission to restructure and change the rates for certain residence Custom Calling Services.

The Custom Calling Services affected by the Company's application are optional telephone service arrangements that provide the following features: Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three Way Calling, Speed Calling 8 and Speed Calling 30.

The Company's proposal would increase the monthly rate for the individual Call Waiting feature from $2.10 to $3.10 for residence customers. Also, the rates for certain combinations of Custom Calling Features (Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Speed Calling-8) would increase or decrease depending upon the combination of features. In addition, the company proposes to obsolete the optional Custom Calling Service feature Speed Calling 30 for residence customers except for existing customers at their existing locations. Following are the feature combinations and their current and proposed rates.

One Feature Per Line	Current	Proposed
Call Waiting	$2.10	$3.10
Call Forwarding	2.10	2.10
Three-Way Calling	2.10	2.10
Speed Calling-8	2.10	2.10
Two Features Per Line	Current	Proposed
Call Waiting, Call Forwarding	3.75	4.50
Call Waiting, 3-Way Calling	3.70	4.50
Call Waiting, Speed Calling-8	3.70	4.50
Call Forwarding, 3-Way Calling	3.70	3.50
Call Forwarding, Speed Calling-8	3.70	3.50
3-Way Calling, Speed Calling-8	3.70	3.50
Three Features Per Line	Current	Proposed
Call Waiting, Call Forwarding and 3-Way Calling	5.30	5.90
Call Waiting, Call Forwarding and Speed Calling-8	5.30	5.90
Call Waiting, 3-Way Calling and Speed Calling-8	5.30	5.90
Call Forwarding, 3-Way Calling and Speed Calling-8	5.30	4.90
Four Features Per Line	Current	Proposed
Call Waiting, Call Forwarding 3-Way Calling, Speed Calling-8	6.90	7.30
Speed Calling 30	3.20	3.20

Southwestern Bell's application proposes to obsolete residence Speed Calling 30 except for existing customers at their existing locations.

Most of the Company's residence customers in Texas who subscribe to one or more of the Custom Calling Service features will be affected by the proposed rate restructuring. It is expected that the proposed rate restructuring of Custom Calling Services will increase the Company's annual revenues by $15.9 million, which is an increase of approximately one half of 1 percent in the Company's adjusted revenue for the twelve-month period ending December 1990. The restructuring will result in an increase in the Custom Calling Services rates for approximately 2.5 million residence customers and rate decreases for approximately 15,000 residence customers. Also, the obsolesence of the optional feature Speed Calling 30 will affect approximately 156,000 residence customers.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Study suggests weight loss is possible with lowered fat intake, not calorie counting

If you cut your fat intake, it's not necessary to count calories. You will lose weight steadily — at the rate of about half a pound per week — if you're like the subjects of a recent Cornell University study.

Carper

It's yet the latest of several studies showing that cutting out fat is better than counting calories to lose weight.

For 11 weeks, 13 slightly overweight women ate either a low-fat or a typical American high-fat menu. Then they switched to the opposite menu for another 11 weeks. The high-fat menu derived 35 percent to 40 percent of calories from fat. The low-fat menu contained the same recipes that had been modified to contain only 20 percent to 25 percent of calories from fat.

The women could eat as much as they wanted on both diets, and rated both as tasting equally appealing.

Yet, the women on the low-fat diets ate 220 fewer calories than usual. They did not snack more. Nor did they have cravings for high-fat foods. Consequently, they automatically lost half a pound a week. Women on the higher-fat diet lost none.

The conclusion: A low-fat diet seems successful in inducing weight loss even when you don't restrict how much you can eat.

Sugar and criminal behavior

Eating sugar does not foster criminal behavior. That's the bottom line, according to Dian A. Gans, University of Hawaii, who recently reviewed all of the scientific evidence on the question.

Dr. Gans says correctional facilities that have reduced sugar in the diets of inmates, hoping their behavior will improve, have misinterpreted scientific findings.

There's no link between antisocial behavior and low blood sugar, mistakenly said to be induced by eating sugar, she says.

Feeding youngsters sugar in objective studies does not show that it exacerbates hyperactive behavior in almost all normal or hyperactive children, she concludes. However, it's possible, she agrees, that some individuals may have an intolerance to sugar that affects behavior. One such case has been verified, she finds.

On the other hand, she warns that dietary restrictions of sugar and other simple carbohydrates in attempts to curb behavior problems could backfire and indeed be harmful. She points to one study of adolescent male prisoners showing that sugar appeared to improve some aspects of behavior.

The hidden MSG hazard

If you're trying to avoid monosodium glutamate (MSG), you should know that it is not always listed under its proper name on food labels, says Dr. Alfred L. Scopp of the Northern California Headache Clinic.

Dr. Scopp worries that MSG triggers migraine headaches in more people that suspected, and that it's difficult for MSG sensitive individuals to detect the chemical in their diets.

He points out that the use of MSG is no longer limited to Chinese foods and canned soups. The flavor-enhancer is widely added to foods in restaurants, particularly sauces, soups and salad dressings, as well as "a large percentage" of canned, frozen and prepared foods in supermarkets, he claims.

The problem is you can get MSG in processed foods and never know it, he says, because it may be disguised as part of other ingredients. As such, MSG is not required to be listed separately on labels.

If you are MSG-sensitive, beware of such ingredients as hydrolyzed vegetable protein (HVP), hydrolyzed plant protein (HPP), natural flavor, flavoring, seasoning or Kombu extract. All may contain substantial amounts of MSG, he warns.

Jean Carper's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Illegitimate births reach 1 million in U.S.

ATLANTA (AP) — For the first time, more than a million babies were born to unmarried mothers in the United States in a year.

The national Centers for Disease Control reported that 1,005,299 babies — or 26 percent of U.S. newborns — were born to unmarried women in 1988, the latest year for such statistics. In 1980, 665,747 babies were born to single mothers, 18 percent of births.

The highest birth rate for unmarried women is in the 20-24 age group: 57 births per 1,000 women in that group in 1988.

Bicyclists go the distance to promote their sport

By Ira Dreyfuss
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bicycle across the continent? Sure, why not?

"It's really not all that difficult," said Douglas J. Torosian, about two-thirds through his latest crossing. "We encourage pretty much anybody to come ride with us. We do require that you've ridden a bicycle before."

Torosian is associate director of Pedal for Power of Atkinson, N.H., a program of the Bicyclists' Educational and Legal Foundation, which is an educational and safety arm with the League of American Wheelmen, a national cyclists' association.

The Across America ride raises money for the foundation and for other causes designated by riders. Pedal for Power also has a Portland, Maine to Orlando, Fla., 1,600-mile, 23-day ride starting Sept. 21.

Cyclists on Pedal for Power's third Across America were to cover 3,300 miles — Los Angeles to Boston — in 47 days, ending June 25. They average about 80 miles a day, Torosian said during a stop in Champaign, Ill.

If you can't do it now, don't worry — with training, you could, said Judy Bowman, Across America's on-road director. She offers training schedules and writes a monthly advice column in Pedal for Power's newsletter.

"At a very beginner level, most could ride 15 to 20 miles a day, and progress from there," Bowman said. She recommends mixing endurance training with recuperation by working harder some days than others, but regularly increasing overall distances.

For instance, here's her training formula for the Maine-Florida run, starting at 10-12 easy miles and five faster miles three days a week. That's fine for the first month, Bowman said. Then you can move up to 20-25 miles at a steady pace, with one weekend day at 30 miles at a steady pace and 10 miles at a harder, faster one. After a month of that, you can ride 15-18 miles for three days, at least 20 miles two days, and 50-62 miles one day a week for a month.

Across America riders should shoot for five days a week of at least 20-25 miles, with a weekend ride of 100.

If they begin at least three months ahead, riders should be ready for 80-100 miles a day by the starting date, Bowman said. And people can improve during the trip, she said: "The longer you're on this ride, the more stamina you build up. We haven't had anyone yet who hasn't successfully completed a trip."

The beauty of the ride is its own encouragement, Torosian said. "There are so many things to see in this country," he said. "You can stop and smell the flowers. Going through the mountains, it's just breathtaking, some of the views."

They don't look too cool but bike helmets are safe

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some young bikers and skateboarders may resist wearing bulky safety helmets, so Allegheny General Hospital has launched a campaign to give helmets a "cool" image.

Posters and flyers show professional athletes from the Pirates, Steelers, and Penguins, along with a typical neighborhood biker and a skateboarder — all wearing helmets. Facts about injuries and helmet wear are carried under the headline, "Helmets . . . All the Pros Wear Them."

The campaign, co-sponsored by the city's professional sports teams and the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education, points out that of 50,000 children injured in bike-related accidents last year, 1,200 died and one third faced lifetime disabilities. It's estimated that helmets can cut the risk by 85 percent, for both children and adults.

Tips for selecting a helmet are covered in the flyer:

— Hard outer shells give the best protection because they spread impact over the entire helmet. Softer shells made of foam, however, may be more appropriate for young children whose neck muscles are still developing and cannot support the weight of hard helmets.

— A helmet should have a protective liner, safety strap and fastener. The liner will absorb energy from the fall, shielding the head from traumatic injury. The strap and fastener should keep the helmet in place; check that the buckle cannot be easily opened or destroyed by bending the safety tab.

— Fit should be comfortable but tight enough not to move while on the head. Since helmet sizes vary by make, try on several brands for the best fit. The helmet should also be well-ventilated.

— Check the helmet for certification from either the Snell Memorial Foundation Standard or the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

— Helmets cost from about $25 to $65 and are available in sporting goods and bicycle stores.

Question

When riding, I experience isolated muscular pain in the shoulder blade area of my back. Why?

Answer

With your arms straight and elbows locked, road shock passes up your arms and into your shoulders. Relax your arms and bend your elbows slightly. Handlebar stems that are too short horizontally can make people ride stiff-armed. Get a stem that is longer horizontally. If your saddle nose is angled down, this will throw your weight into the handlebars. Set the saddle level, and if this is uncomfortable, get a wider "gel" saddle. A lighter Styrofoam helmet will relieve neck strain. Finally, get fitted to your bike by a trained professional using the fit kit.

MOONLIGHTING!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
