HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS WILL EDIT PAPER

Volume One, Number One, of the Eagle Screams, the new High School paper which will be printed weekly in the Junction Eagle is published in this paper. It marks the first newspaper attempts of many of the staff members.

This section will be a regular feature and will give a complete coverage of news of Schreiner High School. It will be edited by the students and will reflect the editorial opinions of the students.

Alzafar Temple Pilgrimage Will Visit Junction

The illustrious Potentate of Alzafar Temple of San Antonio has planned his annual pilgrimage, which he will make in company with other nobles and ladies. This pilgrimage will traverse the Hill Country of Alzafar's jurisdiction.

In company with the party will be the famed Rube Band and a dance orchestra. Traveling in a twenty passenger bus, the pilgrimage will start in San Antonio Thursday, November 7. The pilgrims will wind into Junction Thursday afternoon. A dance at the Fritz Hotel Thursday night will be one of the features of the program. According to Dr. L. E. Stanifler, Deputy Potentate, every local noble should be present with their fez and 1929 Membership Card. The dance will be informal.

The pilgrimage will make stops at Kerrville, Junction, Sonora, Ozona, Del Rio, Brackettville, Eagle Pass, Uvalde, Asherton, Crystal City and Carrizo Springs.

MRS. R. A. REESE DIES FRIDAY

Mrs. R. A. Reese of Kerrville, mother of Mrs. Doug. Nance of Junction, died Friday morning, October 25, in Junction.

Mrs. Reese was 83 years old at the time of her death. She had been confined to her bed for about three months before death came. Mrs. Reese came to Junction October 15.

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church of Kerrville at 3 o'clock Saturday, October 26.

The children present at the funeral were Mrs. Doug. Nance, Mrs. Baxter, and Messrs. Sid and Dan Reese.

CLASSIFIED ADDS PAY

Last week, C. R. Adams of Kerrville lost a new tire and rim somewhere between Midway and Roosevelt. He placed a small classified in the EAGLE and Monday morning the tire was brought in to this office to turn over to Mr. Adams.

Mr. M. J. Nethery found the tire and turned it over to the Eagle office. For results use classified ads.

Will Link Junction To Canada And Old Mexico

The Highway Commission has ordered the Engineering Department to begin the survey for Highway No. 4, the new designated highway which will come through Junction.

The highway will start in Canada and come on down through the Midwestern States and strike Texas at Perryton. It will come through Abilene, Anson, Ballinger, Eden, Menard, Junction, Leaky and on to Laredo. This highway will come directly through a section of Texas that needs a closer connecting link.

Every county in Texas thru which the highway will pass has offered a hundred foot right-of-way through the county. No actual work can begin until the survey has been completed.

This highway will be of great importance to Junction. Through the O. S. T. Junction motorists have a direct route to the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. This new highway will give them a direct route to two nations—Canada and Old Mexico.

Application has been made for the new highway to be designated as a national highway from Canada to Brownsville through the United States.

ROOSEVELT WILL HAVE BOX SUPPER

On Friday night, November 8, a box supper will be given at the Roosevelt school for the purpose of raising funds for the school. A half-day preceding the box supper will be given over to outdoor sports, such as ball games, horse racing and goat roping. The neighboring schools will participate in these contests. A free barbecue supper will follow this phase of the entertainment.

At seven o'clock the ladies will present a short play, entitled "Henpeck Holler Gossip." Clever songs, comic readings and vaudeville stunts will follow. The entire program is full of snap, pep and sure-fire laughs.

EAGLES WILL MEET MENARD TOMORROW

The Junction Eagles will meet the Menard team tomorrow afternoon on the Menard field at 3:30 o'clock.

It is a conference tussle and many from Junction will go to Menard for the game tomorrow. The girls' Pep Squad will go and wear their new uniforms.

OIL STOVE CAUSES BLAZE MONDAY

A fire alarm was turned in from the Junction Sheet Metal Company at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, when an oil stove burst into flames.

The fire department made a quick call, but Mr. Leon Powell had already extinguished the flames with a large fire extinguisher which he keeps in his garage. This is the second time that he has put out a fire starting from this same stove. Slight damage was done.

Mr. H. A. Hamer, formerly of Mason, has moved to Junction where he will be connected with Philip Joseph.

Methodists Award Contract For Building

After deliberating for more than an hour Tuesday afternoon, the Building Committee of the First Methodist Church awarded the general contract for the new building to C. C. Dishman of San Antonio. Dishman's bid was $26,546 and was the lowest submitted of the five bids that were opened in the meeting.

This contract is exclusive of the electrical, plumbing and heating contracts.

According to members of the Building Committee, construction will start sometime in the near future. The contract submitted by Dishman called for 150 working days for the completion of the building.

The new building will be erected on the property owned by the Methodist denomination on Main Street where the present structure now stands. The building will be of fire-proof construction throughout and finished with blended face brick. The Sunday School department will be two stories high with a basement.

The building will be equipped with modern plumbing and lighting and a central heating system.

Announcement of winners in the contest and awarding of prizes will be made at 2:30 p. m. on the Junction State Bank corner.

Help your favorite boy or girl friends win one of these prizes by buying from him or her a year's membership in the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce.

Kimble County Streams Get 47,250 Fish From Heart of The Hills Hatcheries This Year

Rivers and streams in Kimble County contain 47,250 fish which have been put there under the supervision of Game Warden Frank Cowsett since last spring. These fish were secured from the Heart of the Hills Fish Hatchery.

In the spring, Mr. Cowsett placed 15,000 little bass in Kimble Rivers. Last week he brought 25,000 bream, 3,500 bass, 1,100 channel cat, 1,500 goggle-eye perch and 650 crappie and placed them in the rivers.

The young fish are hauled in large milk cans in water of the same temperature in which they had lived. This was aerated while in transit. Mr. Cowsett placed

Church of Christ Prepares For Formal Opening November 10

We are thankful that our new Church House is now about ready, and the dedication of this new church will be held November 10 (Second Sunday in November). The seats are now being put up and arranged and everything will be ready if nothing hinders. Brother Batsell Baxter, president of Abilene Christian College, has promised to be with us and have an important part on the program, both at the morning service and at the evening hour. We are unable to give the program in full at this time. However, the services will begin promptly at 10:30, with a song followed by a scriptural reading and prayer, after which Elder J. S. Newman will make a talk, giving a brief history of the congregation which was set in order forty-nine years ago. Brother Baxter will conclude the services with an appropriate talk for the occasion.

We expect to close the morning service promptly at 12 and all go to the Schreiner Park

Loeffler Returns From C. of C. Meet

Mr. E. A. Loeffler returned to Junction Monday afternoon from El Paso where he had been attending the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention.

According to Mr. Loeffler, the first step was to raise money to wipe out the $23,000 debt of the organization. This money was raised.

The members of the Chamber of Commerce passed resolutions to sponsor everything that is good for West Texas, including schools, highways, railroads and agricultural developments.

On account of the inclement weather, the crowds were not as large as was expected.

Schreiner-Hodges Co. Buys Carload Pecans

The Schreiner-Hodges Company has already purchased one carload of this year's pecan crop and the nuts are in storage in the Schreiner-Hodges warehouse according to Mr. Lester Hodges.

Earlier in the season, Mr. J. N. Hodges stated that the crop this year would be light. There is a much smaller yield this year in Kimble County than last year.

Last year the Schreiner-Hodges Company shipped 29 cars of pecans from Junction, but Mr. Hodges says this year's crop will fall far below this level.

Mrs. Emil A. Loeffler and son, Louis, were Menard visitors Sunday afternoon.

LANDS GASPER GOOLE

In Junction, it's never out of season for a good fish story. Last week Mr. G. H. House was fishing at the four-mile dam on the South Llano and had about decided to pack up and return home as the fish were not biting, but something struck his line and after a nice fight Mr. House landed a Gasper Goole which weighed four and one-half pounds.

P.-T. A. ELECTS DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

Approximately sixty members of the Junction P.-T. A. were present at the meeting at the Schreiner High School Monday afternoon.

After the meeting was called to order by Mrs. George Pepper, president, a play entitled, "Cigarette Jack Had," was presented by a cast from the third grade.

Brother J. S. Newman gave the scripture reading and delivered the invocation.

After the invocation a song by the third and fourth grades was presented. Miss Betty Kropff gave a reading named "Fold by Tongue of Flame." Papers on Fire Prevention were read by Mesdames J. M. Livingston, H. O. Patterson and Frank Cowsett. Ducky Dan, Emmons gave a speech entitled "Hallow-e'en."

Educational Week is scheduled for November 11 to 17 in America. The P.-T. A. named Thursday, November 14th as visiting day in the schools and every parent is urged to visit the school on that date. Mrs. George Pepper appointed Mrs. Frank Cowsett in charge of arrangements for the day. Mesdames Joe Ramsey, Bot Ragland, W. M. Taylor, H. H. Farmer and Alex Wahl were appointed to assist Mrs. Cowsett.

The clean-up campaign which will be staged next spring by the Chamber of Commerce and P.-T. A. was discussed at the meeting, and a committee was appointed to make preparations for the campaign. Mrs. H. G. Hubert was appointed chairman. Mesdames R. H. Loeffler, J. M.

Doe Killed By Auto Given to Poor Folk

Wednesday night about 9 o'clock when Judge and Mrs. J. B. Randolph were driving to Junction from Kerrville, they saw a grown doe lying by the side of the road wounded. The doe had been struck by an automobile.

Judge Randolph picked the animal up and brought it into Junction and turned the carcass over to Mr. S. O. Durst, deputy sheriff.

The carcass was placed on storage at the Borden Plant, and will be distributed to the poor and needy over the county.

FEW CENSUS TAKERS IN KIMBLE COUNTY

Mr. Earl Tracy, local postmaster, has received a letter from W. L. Turner who has charge of the 14th District of Texas in the Federal Census work, stating that only three persons from Kimble County had applied for the job in this county.

The work starts on the first day of April, 1930. A person can receive good wages at this work while it lasts.

NEW SERIAL

Beginning in this issue of the Junction Eagle there will be published serially the story, "Devil-May-Care," written by Arthur Somers Roche. The first installment appears in this issue.

It is an interesting love story of a girl who made herself famous as an entertainer for the American soldiers at the "Front" in France during the World War. Start with the first installment and keep up with this interesting story of a dare devil girl, who thought she was old-fashioned at heart.

Buyers Bid Strongly For Government Rams

Rams of the Columbia, Rambouillet, and Corriedale breeds bred by the Department of Agriculture in the course of its experimental work at the United States sheep experiment station near Dubois, Idaho, which were sold at the national ram sale held recently at Salt Lake City, brought prices that were highly complimentary to the department's sheep specialists and their work. A pen of 14 yearling Columbia rams brought $155 a head, under the classification range rams. This was the highest price paid at the sale for rams of any breed to be used with commercial range flocks and was $10 a head higher than the average received by the department at the sale last year for its pen of 12 Columbia range rams.

The Columbia is a large, useful type of range sheep which has been an object of development work on the part of the department for the last 15 years. The breed was produced by mating Lincoln rams to Rambouillet ewes and has a generous inheritance of good points of both these lines of breeding. Columbia sheep yield heavy fleeces of readily salable wool of medium fineness, and produce lambs which mature for market in a shorter time than fine-wool lambs. Their Rambouillet inheritance has furnished enough of the flocking instinct and rugged constitution to insure adaptability to the range, and the Lincoln blood has contributed size, mutton form, and length of staple in the fleece.

Results with these sheep in experiments under strictly range conditions have been excellent. Over a three-year period mature Columbia ewes have averaged 11.27 pounds of wool as against 8.28 for the department's Corriedale flock and 10.82 for its Rambouillet flock. For the same period the average weight of lambs weaned was 78 pounds for the Columbias, 73 for the Corriedales, and 69 for the Rambouillets.

The keen competition presented by the commercial sheep interests at the national ram sale gives the department an opportunity to show the practical value of its sheep-breeding research.

At this year's sale, one pen of five yearling Rambouillet rams, offered by the department, brought $115 a head, a record price at the sale for rams of that classification. "Buyers at this year's sale," says W. A. Denecke, superintendent of the sheep experiment station, "were more discriminating than usual, and showed, by their selections of breeding rams, that many of them are becoming concerned about the length and quality of their wool crop."

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL NEWS

School is progressing nicely. The trustees hauled five loads of wood for the school last Wednesday. We are prepared for the cold weather when it comes.

The literary society met for its regular program Friday afternoon. The following officers were elected: Max Camp, president, and Ruby Lawler, secretary. For program committee we appointed Alpha and Reba Barfield and Donnie Thiers.

Hugh Lawler was absent from school Monday on account of sickness.

We were very glad to have Donnie Thiers back with us Monday as she has been gone on a visit to New Mexico, which she says she enjoyed very much.

The pupils received their report cards Friday for the second month. Every one is saying, "My, how the time does fly."

The fifth grade pupils are preparing for a bad English drive. We enjoyed some delightful talks on why we need Good English in Business by these pupils.

Great was the excitement when Miss Ethel Roberts found a rattlesnake in her wood box. The snake had one rattle.

Thelma Thiers visited Tuesday.

Alpha Barfield had a box supper Tuesday afternoon on account of their mother's absence.

At the school meeting decided on prizes for the month and for the year.

Reba Barfield had a box supper.

that is to be given at the school house Friday night, November 8.

The ladies met Monday and Tuesday night and rehearsed a part of the program that is to be given before the box supper. Everyone is doing nicely with his part.

HOG CHOLERA BREAKS OUT IN COUNTY

There has been an outbreak of hog cholera in the county and while steps have been taken to control the disease temporarily it should be borne in mind by all hog raisers that this is a serious and deadly disease and leaves many dead hogs when it makes its appearance in a herd. In order that no further seriousness result it is requested that everyone handling hogs either shipping in or out of the county take every precaution to prevent a spread of the disease. Vaccination is the only sure means of controlling the disease while disinfection of hog pens with a strong solution of some good disinfectant dip is a fine preventative. Spraying of animals in transit is also recommended. Any new outbreaks of this disease should be reported immediately.

R. E. Homann, County Agent.

FRUIT TREES

All kinds of fruit trees will do well in Kimble County and now is the time to consider the setting out of a few nice trees that will bring pleasure and profit to the owner within a few years. Fruit for the home and a surplus to sell means a little extra money for the bank account or exchange for things not so easily produced at home. A small fall garden assists in the idea of living at home. We hope to sponsor in the near future a Farm and Ranch Home Achievement program. The idea is to produce a living at home. The idea of living at home has met very favorably where it has been tried and everyone should strive to produce at least a part and that the major part of the things that they consume daily. Try it and report to us. Agricultural Agent.

District Court In Session at Ozona

With Judge Joe Montague, former district attorney of the 83rd judicial district, on the bench, the newly created 112th district court, comprising Kimble, Pecos, Upton, Crockett and Sutton Counties, held its first session in Ozona last week, sitting as a special term called by Judge Montague.

The regular session for Kimble County comes on the second Monday of next February, according to Judge Weaver H. Baker.

Ed Yarbrough of McCamey, the new district attorney, was present at the session at Ozona. Julian Estes was appointed by Judge Montague as court reporter for the 112th district.

Pecan-Hickory Nut Three Inches Long

Noted though Central Texas is for its pecans, they don't usually grow three inches long, one and three-fourths inches in diameter, and of a quarter pound weight. Crossing them with hickory nuts will work wonders, though, and they will grow to just that size. A. C. Easley of Waco, route three, has proof of the above. A half-caste pecan-hickory nut has grown that large on his farm near the site of Lake Waco. This is the first year the small shoot has produced, and its output was exactly one. It will be the last year as well, since the tree is located in soil which will be covered by the waters of Lake Waco.

Easley will cut buds from the tree, that the strain may not be lost with the rising of the lake. He obtained a shoot from a San Saba nut grower, who put pollen from the Hickory nut on a pecan blossom.

Easley has recently returned from the convention of the National Pecan Growers' Association in Ardmore, Oklahoma. He exhibited the mammoth nut there, and growers from all over the country declared that they had never seen anything like it.—San Saba Star.

FIRST INSTALMENT

"The game is this," announced Mrs. Clary. Flushed, moist with the twin effects of excitement and a humid tropical night, not to mention one tiny glass too many of the champagne whose bursting corks had lent a Fourth-of-July tone to the party, she stood upon a chair and waved a bunch of ribbons.

Her guests eyed her languidly. Mrs. Clement Clary—"Copper" Clary's second wife—who had cost him, he not infrequently said, hell, headlines and five millions in cash (the first Mrs. Clary had refused stocks, bonds, or negotiable instruments, or real estate, when she had finally yielded to his demands for a divorce)—had a reputation for putting a touch of the bizarre into every party she gave, and those present were willing to stop flirtation, scandal, and talk of real estate for a moment. "We go to the pool," said the hostess.

Several guests groaned slightly. One young man, Billy Leeson, turned to the pretty brunette beside him.

"I'm a hard-working lawyer, down here for a fortnight to recoup from typhoid. I wish to goodness somebody'd think of a party that didn't mean swimming with your clothes on. I've two dinner suits down here; one's been ruined by salt water; I refuse to spoil this."

"Sh-sh!" said the girl. "When Mrs. Clary chucks her cue she usually pockets the ball."

"Honest, you seem rapt and excited and everything."

"Why shouldn't I be?" demanded the girl.

The lawyer shrugged. "I don't know. Only, you seem a shade different from the rest of the crowd here. Nicer, not so... so rowdy."

"Just a home-loving maiden, the kind to make some man happy, eh?" jeered the girl.

"Now tell me I'm wholesome, and ruin my evening completely."

"You don't mean that," said Leeson blushing.

"Don't!" There was a harsh quality in the girl's laughter which consorted ill with the gay eyes, the generous mouth, and the smooth youth of her face.

"And where did you learn so much about me, Mr. Leeson?"

"The young man's embarrassment was painful."

"I didn't mean that... that I knew anything about you, only... well, you are wholesome. I don't care if it angers you or not. That's what you are."

For a moment it seemed as if she would take issue with him, debate the trivial matter; then she laughed, patted him lightly on the cheek and said:

"Really, you're a sweet boy. And—but you mustn't tell it to a soul—sometimes I believe I am an old-fashioned girl... at heart. Remember me kindly in your evening prayers, won't you?" And the jeer in her last sentence banished the effect of intimacy that had been created by her earlier words. She moved slightly away from him, and paid attention to her hostess.

"In days of old," went on Mrs. Clary, "fair ladies were wont to give guerdons to their brave knights—a lock of hair, a jewel, a ribbon, and sometimes, even, a garter."

"The pretty custom of our ancestors has given me an idea for tonight's party. I have here sixteen anklets. To each man here I will give one. We will all go to the pool. The ladies will stand in the shallow water. The gentlemen, each holding an anklet, will dive from the deep end. Swimming under water, the gentlemen will endeavor to fasten anklets upon the limbs of the ladies. No fair inching away. Thus will be partners be arranged for the rest of the evening's entertainment."

The pretty brunette turned to Leeson.

"We rarely go too far," she smiled. "This, which promised well, has degenerated into an ordinary moonlight swim. The bold garter becomes the timid anklet."

She looked at him quizzically. "It'll be standing at the edge of the pool," she said.

"Is that an invitation?" he asked.

She exhorted fiercely, as though puffing away a strand of hair that annoyed her.

"If Venus asked you for a stroll you'd want to know if she was married, my cautious friend," she jibed. "You needn't bother; only..."

"Only what?" he inquired, as she paused.

"Nothing at all," she replied.

She turned away from him again, and in that moment the dinner broke up. Three men pounced upon her; she was dragged away by them. He spoke to a man whom he knew.

"I'm rotten at catching names," he said, "and I didn't get a glance at her card by her plate. Who is that girl?"

"Your dinner partner? That's Lucy Harkness, 'Devil-May-Care,' everybody calls her. She was sixteen when we entered the war. Disappeared from home, and her parents were nearly frantic. Lied about her age, her family, everything; managed to get over there. Decorated by Joffre himself."

"Nurse" asked Leeson.

"At that age?" His acquaintance laughed. "Lord, no! Went as entertainer... Sang... danced. Heaven knows where she picked it all up. Turned down all sorts of offers for musical comedy since. Got nearer the front than any American woman. Gassed in a sudden attack, was given the right by Pershing to wear a wound stripe. Don't tell me you've never heard of her!"

"Of course I have," said Leeson. "Only, I didn't recognize her!"

"Well, you must have felt the evening's hate directed at you!" laughed the other. "Every man here has been dying of jealousy. You must have a drag with the Clarys, to be placed next to her."

He had met Devil-May-Care! Well, he was glad that he had not met her earlier. Otherwise—he was an extremely sane young man—leaving Palm Beach would not have been easy. In one brief hour at dinner she had left marks upon his soul. He knew that. Now, strolling with the laughing crowd toward the pool, with them but in no way of them, he re-created in his mind her features, her expressions, remembered all that he had read of her in the favored Sunday supplements. She could drive an airplane; she'd shot a tiger; she'd climbed mountains; she'd debonairly skipped her own speed-boat out to Rum Row off the Jersey Coast, and in extenuation thereof told a thrilled world that she wanted to meet men who were the spiritual heirs of L'Olonnois, Blackbeard, Lafitte, and the rest. Scandal always hovered about and around her, but not even its shadow rested upon her. Her friends, the press the public—every one seemed to consider her a unique type, one to whom anything was possible and whom nothing smirched. There was, for instance, the tip that had been given by a revengeful discharged maid, to the effect that Lucy Harkness was having an affair with Ted Kelly, the lightweight contender. She was found at his camp in the Catskills, unchaperoned, a lone woman amid a dozen pluguglies. Yet her announcement that she had bet twenty thousand on Kelly, and intended to see to it that the contender trained properly, was accepted approvingly by all the world. The world also thought it perfectly proper for Lucy Harkness to have gone into training with Kelly. She did road work, boxed, skipped rope, and frankly told reporters all about it. When Kelly met the champion she sat near his corner and was the first to grip his hand when the champion was counted out.

And this was the girl, the woman—she was only twenty-three, but how ridiculous to call one who had done all she had done a girl—whom he had rebuked, whom he had told she was too nice for this gathering tonight. He colored painfully. A prig, that's what he was. And she had mocked him, saying she was an old-fashioned girl at heart. And then, when this chastest of all Dianas had tendered an invitation, he had not the wit to grasp it instantly, but must slumishly ask her to tell him in words on one syllable. Callow, that was the word.

His feet lagged, and he was last at the pool. The men had dismanded his suits and, dinner-coated and patent-leathered, stood laughing by the diving-board. The women were now tripping down to the shallow end; toes tested the temperature of the water, and shrill shrieks drowned the murmur of the men.

A tall, Viking-like man edged him to one side.

"Stand anywhere else, young feller," he chuckled, "but give me the pole. This anklet fits a certain girl, and I'm the bad boy who's going to put it on her."

Leeson eyed the man resentfully, and yet even in his resentment would have granted the charm of blond giant. He had met him before, and had heard much of him. Stevens was his name, Tim Stevens. He possessed all those things which Leeson lacked: wealth, assured position, and the things which accompany them. Leeson remembered now that all through dinner Stevens had called across the table to Lucy Harkness, had raised his glass to her, indeed had never seemed to take his eyes off her.

The air was rent with shrieks and cheers. Quite evidently many of the women standing waist-deep in the water had certain cavaliers whom they preferred to be the ones to place the girdles of temporary partnership upon their limbs; for they clapped their hands and cried certain names. Leeson, dropping at once into the crawl, in a side glance took in the fact that Stevens was at his right, a trifle to the rear. He felt an exultation at the little triumph. He'd show this hulking brute...

A hand clutched at his ankle; he went under, strangling, unprepared for anything like this. He could feel that whoever had unfairly detained him was using his body as something to pull himself ahead; then he sank to the bottom of the pool, and the unfair competitor shot ahead. He came up to see Stevens within a yard of Lucy Harkness.

He swam to them as Stevens, his dripping features twisted in a triumphant smile, bent over and dipped his hands below the surface of the water. Leeson tapped the man on the shoulder.

"I claim a foul," he said quietly. "I like winners," the girl said carelessly. "Losers always claim fouls." She turned to Stevens. "Where do we go from here, Tim?" she asked. There was a final dismissal in her attitude. "I knew," boasted Tim Stevens. "That even though our hostess didn't seat us together, we'd be together before the evening ended."

"Insight, intuition, or logical reasoning?" inquired Lucy Harkness.

"Logical reasoning," he returned. "I know what I want, and, so far, I've always got it."

"So far?" she echoed. "But there must always be a Waterloo, mustn't there?"

He shook his head. "Not at all."

"I wonder," she said, "I wonder if the takers are content all through life."

"Why not?" he demanded. "Do the givers look happy? Watch them, waiting on table, driving taxis, living in tenements, starving; the takers rule, my dear. But we aren't to philosophize; we're to enjoy the evening. Come."

They were sitting on the edge of the pool, their feet paddling in the water. Across the pool, young Leeson was leading a young girl from the water.

"Where?" she asked.

"To the Minerva," he told her. She looked at him thoughtfully.

"What's the idea, Tim?"

"A little sail down the lake, a cozy supper for two."

"But we are guests of Mrs. Clary," he reminded him. "We can't be running away like—"

"Why not? Has she said what the rest of the evening is? Didn't she say that we were to be partners? You know what these parties are like; you come and go. Are you a quitter?"

"You know better," she reminded him. Her voice was languid, dulled, as though interest had departed from the night.

"Then let's go," he said. Still she lingered, watching a couple mount the steps leading from the water; his eyes followed hers. He turned back to her.

"Did the wrong man win the race to you?" he demanded.

She twisted her pretty shoulders.

"That's a fallacy, that rot about the best man losing. The right man always wins. I mean, the man who is meant to win any particular thing, wins it. He may not be as good or as strong or as clever as the loser, but just the same, the stars in their courses are not more, inevitably sure to travel the piths laid out than was the winner certain to win."

"Fatalist! Well, sometimes it's a comfortable faith. And as I was destined to beat young Leeson, stop looking regretfully after him."

BUMPER YIELD DEPENDS ON QUALITY OF SEEDS SELECTED

(By T. C. Richardson)
"Good seed" has been defined thus:
"Good seed are those which are true to name, free from noxious weed seed, of high germination, and well adapted to the region in which they are offered for sale."

How much of this kind of seed is grown in your community?
How much of this kind of seed is planted in your community?
"They cannot be had," says one. "They cost too much," says another. "I haven't time to bother with them, and could not sell them if I grew them," from another. "Any seed that will give me a good stand are good enough for me," is even yet heard sometimes.

All these objections are readily answered with facts and figures, to say nothing of logic and reason. We shall discuss only one or two of them here. There aren't enough "good seed" within the definition above, to go around if everybody wanted them. Not enough people are growing that kind of seed, and some of those who are, are having trouble selling them because they have so little that they cannot advertise widely and are therefore limited to a local market.

Not enough people who are offering what they honestly think are good seed have taken the proper precautions to insure that the seed remain as good as the stock from which they are grown. The customer, once disappointed in seed recommended highly, and for which he has paid a fairly high price, is likely to turn back to ordinary seed at an ordinary price. Thus the sound doctrine of good seed is given a stab in the back in the house of its proponents.

Not enough of the commercial seed offered on the market have come from a known valuable source, or if they have, have been mixed or crossed with others until they only slightly resemble their parent. Too many new "varieties" which are only old varieties with new names, are promoted without any reference to whether they have been sufficiently tested to show whether they have greater value than those already well known. All these and many more things have operated to handicap the breeder who does originate a valuable new strain or variety; the grower who starts with and multiplies carefully a strain isolated, and tested, by the experiment stations, and the seed man who sells seed with a known character and proven value.

The farmer who buys seed has until recent years had no way of distinguishing the true from the false, and usually the most extravagant claims are made for those seed about which the least is known. Under these conditions the unscrupulous "breeder," grower or dealer had an advantage over the honest one, because, having not met with the requirements of "good seed" as defined above, he could undersell the honest breeder who had devoted years to bringing a new variety or strain to commercial proportions, or the grower who, having received seed stock of a valuable sort, has carefully multiplied it under the exacting conditions necessary to keep it up to its original character; while the seed dealer who carefully checks the character and source of the seed he sells is at the mercy of the dealer who buys from a grain elevator or a gin where perhaps several sorts have been handled indiscriminately.

With the provisions for certification discussed in a former article, the "good seed" can now be distinguished from the uncertain by any planter who will take the trouble to do so. Of course all good seed are not handled under either State inspection in Texas or Crop Improvement Association inspection in other States. Some individual seedmen and corporations do produce and sell just as good seed, the only difference being that in the latter case the buyer relies upon the reputation of the seedman, while under the official inspection system he has an inspection and certificate from a competent and disinterested agency.

The official inspection system is a protection and an encouragement to the farmer who desires to grow and sell good seed, for it enables his product to be trademarked and set off from the general run of seed. The system encourages co-operation in selling, and thus reduces the selling cost. Where a single farmer with 100 bushels of seed could afford very limited advertising, an association with 1,000 bushels can spend a smaller amount per bushel and get better results.

Grady county, Oklahoma; Denton county, Texas; Lubbock county, Texas, and several others in the Southwest have such local associations of seed growers, and are producing such quantities of certified seed that they can ship in carlots. There is room for a number of other local associations in the Southwest, which by operating under adequate inspection and growing their stocks from pedigreed seed, in such quantities that they can supply a large demand, can build a reputation as seed centers that will bring added returns from year to year.

BURNS KILL 2,800 CHILDREN A YEAR

Burns and scalds are important causes of accidental deaths among small children. Only 11 per cent of the people in the United States are under 5 years of age, and 38 per cent of all persons who die as a result of burns are children under 5. In other words, the number of these children killed by burns is almost three times as high in proportion to population, as is true for persons of all ages.

Each year 2,800 children under 5 are killed in this way. For children of this age, in fact, burns cause more deaths than any other type of accident. Scalds are responsible for many of these deaths. For persons of all ages scalds cause about one-fifth of all deaths assigned to burns, and for children only this proportion is undoubtedly much higher. Most of these accidents occur when a child falls into a tub of hot water or pulls over a pan or basin of hot water left too near the edge of the table or stove.

Many children are also burned to death as a result of playing with matches, or firecrackers, or as a result of clothing catching on fire from gas stoves or other flame.

HENDERSON CATCHES LARGE DOG WOLF

A very large timber dog wolf was caught at around 12 o'clock Sunday night by Tom Henderson, using a pack of seven hounds, in the Wheat Bradford pasture, near what is known as the Shanklin well, after a run of one hour and a quarter. Mr. Henderson stated that his dogs started another wolf immediately after catching this one, and his dogs stayed in the race until around five o'clock Monday morning. The pack was led in this last race by a dog only seven months old.

This makes around four wolves that have been caught by dogs in this neighborhood within the past few months, while five have fallen victims to the traps of Mr. Blaylock, government trapper.—Rocksprings Record.

LUCK AND LABOR

Luck whines; labor whistles. Luck believes in chance; labor believes in elbow grease.

Luck looks for something to turn up; labor turns it up with thought and spade.

Luck lies in bed and dreams of a rich relative dying and leaving it a legacy, or some great person, with favors to give, suddenly discovering the dreamer to be a genius; labor rises before the sun and gets busy with saw or plow or pen, and lays the foundation worth while for itself.

Luck hit it off big yesterday, but spent it all while waiting for another hit to come along; labor stuck to a chosen task and showed a margin of profit on every day.

Luck finally died in the almshouse; labor won an independent competence for its old days.—Henry Ford's Bulletin.

4-H CLUBS DO BIG BUSINESS IN THIS STATE

Thirty thousand of the brightest youngsters of Texas, members of the 4H Clubs, are doing an annual agricultural business of not less than $1,000,000. The first boys and girls farm club in the United States was organized in Jack County, Texas, twenty-two years ago and since then approximately 165,000 farm children have been reached through the club medium in this State.

In 1928 200 baby beeves were exhibited by club members at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show. "The baby beef leads many youngsters along the logical route to profitable diversification." He finds that a good animal is worthy of good feed, and that it will not make the best showing in the ring or on the ledger book unless it gets the right roughage and concentrates. Experience teaches this youngster that feed comes high unless they are produced on the home place. So he uses persuasive measures and induces dad to let him have a bit of pasture land. He joins a corn club, next, a natural consequence of taking another bit of land to grow grain for his pet calf.

One of the surest recipes for making a good farmer out of raw but worthy material is to encourage interest in baby beef clubs.

TONSIL OPERATION 2,000 YEARS OLD

Tonsil operations are not modern inventions. The importance of removing tonsils was recognized 2,000 years ago, according to an article in the August issue of Hygeia by Dr. Emanuel Krimsky.

Crude methods were employed, such as trying to pull them out with the fingers, drawing them out with hooks and snipping them off with the scissors. But hemorrhages and other complications followed these rough and ready measures so frequently that all treatment of the tonsils was abandoned for several hundred years, Doctor Krimsky says.

About 200 years ago a tonsil instrument was devised to remove a part of the tonsil. This operation, which was called tonsillotomy, was extensively used, but it was found that the tonsils would often grow out again, since the roots were left in. Recognition of this shortcoming led to many improvements, until the standard operation at present is complete removal of the tonsil with its roots, and is known as tonsillectomy. When tonsils are removed by this method they cannot grow back.

Turkey growers apprehend that the recent agreement among produce dealers not to ship toms weighing less than 14 pounds or hens weighing less than nine may seriously reduce the Texas turkey shipments this year, as lack of good pasture, shortage of the feed crop and the long drouth have impeded the growth of the young turkeys.

Otis Foster, farmer near Lytle, Wilson County, this year sold $6,000 worth of peanuts and peanut hay off 125 acres sown to that crop. The nuts brought $1.06 a bushel.

Building permits in thirty-three Texas cities for August were nearly $10,000,000, according to Texas Business Review, against $7,834,000 in July. Abilene, Galveston and Wichita Falls showed unusual gains.

WISE RULES

The New York State Conservation Department has made eleven wise rules for the prevention of hunting accidents.

As men take to the field and wood, these rules deserve wide circulation. They are sensible. All hunters, in every part of the country, would do well to follow them. We print them herewith:

"Never carry loaded guns in automobiles of other vehicles.

"When afield hunting birds, keep abreast of and know the exact location of your companion.

"In loading never point a gun in the direction of your companion.

"In climbing over stone walls and fences, first break or unload your gun.

"A bird quartered to the right in the vicinity of your hunting companions should never be fired on by a hunter on the extreme left and vice versa.

"Never leave a loaded gun standing against a tree or lying on the ground where a dog may get at it.

"Always keep your gun pointed away from your companions when you stop to talk.

"In handing a gun to a person for inspection, be sure it is unloaded.

"Never shoot in the direction of your companions because you consider yourself a good marksman. You are taking a dangerous chance.

"Carry a gun pointed down to the left. If you shoot left handed, walk at the extreme right of the party.

"At all times be careful."

ARMISTICE DAY

Never before has Armistice Day held forth such promise of enduring peace. Now, eleven years after the stilling of the cannons, things bode well for a future unsullied by battle.

The visit of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to President Hoover, bringing forth a joint declaration for peace by the leaders of the two great English-speaking nations, inspired us all with the hope that international amity would continue for many, many years to come.

Culminating other efforts toward the noble goal of world peace, the efforts of MacDonald and Hoover are sure to have incalculable effect. This Armistice Day, as we bow in tribute to the brave who fell in battle and express our sympathy for the bereaved, let us lift our voices in gratitude for the bright prospects of peace before us.

C. of C. Membership Race in Full Swing

More interest is being manifested each day in the membership contest that is being sponsored by the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce, according to E. V. Stewart, secretary. It is only a short time now until the prizes will be awarded to these boys and girls who have been working to secure members for the Chamber of Commerce. Encourage these boys and girls who are working by buying one or more memberships. The money will be spent in Kimble County, for the benefit of Kimble County.

Pick out the boy or girls that you want to win, one of these prizes and help him by giving him your membership.

The Chamber of Commerce has been a great expense in securing and caring for these prizes in the hopes that they will serve as a foundation to the boys and girls who win them, whereby they could gain a start in life. The Chamber of Commerce will feel greatly repaid if the winners of these prizes will care for them in the way that they should, and through their efforts cause more boys and girls to become interested in good livestock.

WEATHER REPORT

A slow rain of .75 of an inch on October 26 and 1 of an inch the following day was a great help to this section. Ranchmen are feeling better since the rain and if the usual rains fall during the winter they believe that sheep and goats will winter fine. Mayor T. B. Phillips, who has just returned from his ranches in Edwards County, says that good rains have fallen in that section. The weather is fine for gathering the small pecan crop in this county.

ROTARY LUNCHEON

A round table discussion at the Rotary luncheon today on the most pressing needs of Junction revealed the fact that the majority considered a new school building as the most pressing need. Among other things brought forward were paved streets, railroad, Western Union, better residences, co-operation, determination, more capital, optimistic thinking, sense of appreciation, more advertising, conservation of Llano waters for power and irrigation.

Hon. Coke R. Stevenson in his talk said we needed more men like "Uncle" Billie McKee. The applause indicated that his opinion was unanimous.

The talks of George Pepper, A. G. Farmer and Milton F. Hill were the high points in the meeting. Every Rotarian present brought out some need for Junction, but those mentioned above covers fairly well all the needs brought out.

Personal

We are glad to have Gerald Ragland with us again. He is back in school after a long absence.

The Seventh Grade presented an interesting program in Chapel Thursday. The program was humorous and was enjoyed by everyone.

The boys are practicing hard every afternoon for the game with Menard Friday.

The librarians this year are being taken from the student body. Much reading is being done this year by the students in general.

Every one is anticipating the trip to Menard Friday. The Pep Squad girls are going to wear their new uniforms for the first time.

Mr. Moses has organized a class in bookkeeping, typewriting and shorthand. The class has a good start, and a number of students are enrolled in the new course.

Rings for the Senior Class have been ordered recently, and all are awaiting their arrival, as they have been ordered earlier than usual, and will arrive sooner.

PEP SQUAD PARTY

On Saturday, October 26 the Pep Squad met at the residence of Mrs. Chris Schraub to surprise Mrs. Earl Bowers with a party in honor of her birthday.

As Mrs. Bowers entered the room, a yell was given by the pep squad.

In behalf of the Pep Squad, Ruth Sandherr, the yell leader, presented a plaque picture to Mrs. Bowers.

After several games and contests were played, a delicious course of ham salad sandwiches, hot tea and cookies were served by Mesdames L. D. Borden, E. R. Borden and Chris Schraub.

Eagles Meet Menard Friday Afternoon

(By Carleton Wright)
On Friday, November 1 at ten o'clock the Eagles will leave for Menard where they will clash with the Menard Yellow Jackets at three o'clock that afternoon. All of the Eagles are in good condition with the exception of "Slick" Ake whose leg has not healed from the injury he received in the Ballinger game.

This game will be the fourth conference game and to be district contenders, the Eagles will have to win the game Friday.

Menard has a hard fighting team but with such backfield men as Ake, Hubbell, Richardson, Johnson and Coleman and such linemen as Munn, Cochran, Duderstadt, Ragland, Witt and the two Dunbar ends, how can they put a touchdown over on us, much less defeat us.

Junior Historical Club Meets Friday

The J. H. C. held its third meeting Friday, October 25. The motto chosen for the club is: "Onward and Upward," and it illustrates the earnest endeavor of the members.

The usual discussion of topics of interest based on the Literary Digest took place with Harry Witt presiding.

Ella Simon offered her resignation as club reporter and it was accepted.

The meeting was adjourned at 12 o'clock.

The Eagle Screams is a new feature for the Schreiner High school. A competent staff has been chosen and this page will become a permanent feature.

It will give the worthwhile news of the school every week.

P.-T. A. MEETS AT SCHOOL

The P.-T. A. held an interesting meeting at 3:30 p. m., October 28, to discuss means by which fires can be prevented.

The Third Grade gave a program on fire prevention. A reading was delivered by Betty Kroppf entitled, "Told by the Tongue of Flame."

Mrs. George Pepper, president, stated that this year had been a good one financially, and further means for raising money were discussed.

Mr. E. V. Stewart made a talk on the value of the P.-T. A. to the school and spoke of the good that an efficient P.-T. A. could do for the community.

The prize for attendance was awarded to the third grade.

The meeting was adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Students Drilled In Calisthenics

A change has been made in the High School schedule this year. Recesses have been eliminated, excepting an hour at noon. The seventh period from 1:45 to 2:00 o'clock is used for calisthenics.

The entire High School gets out in the fresh air and takes exercises. Mr. Bowers is director of the boys, and the lady teachers of the High School direct the girls.

The girls' exercises are based on marching, marking time, bending, arm and neck exercises.

The boys' exercises are based on jumping, kicking, "flopping," etc. They have a rule which provides that those who are awkward go to the awkward section. We all confess that this is the cheapest method.

Some of the boys in the awkward section are Harrell Ramsey and Raymon Schneider.

Junior Class Has Initial Meeting

The members of the Junior Class had their first meeting September 29, 1929, in the High School auditorium, for the purpose of electing officers. Miss Bennett, the sponsor of the class, presided.

By count of hands, the following officers were elected: Raymond James, president; Lorena Couey, vice president; Harry Witt, secretary and treasurer.

Lorena Couey, Lucille Motley and Blake Chenault social committee.

The members of the Junior Class had a meeting last Friday, October 25, in the High School auditorium, for the purpose of deciding whether they should get their class pins now or wait until next spring and get their Senior rings. No decision was made. At a later date a vote will be taken on this question.

The Junior English class began studying the "Selections from American Literature with Selections from Later American Writers." Monday, October 28. They have just completed the study of the "Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin." The long examination which followed has been a source of joy to the students.

Never mind, we'll bring our grades up!

Muriel Warren claims that the best spice we can get in our paper is cinnamon. Stay right in there Muriel!

The Plane Geometry class fails to find the subject true to its name. We think it is very complicated.

Basket Ball Girls Start Practice Soon

(By Leonard Dunbar)
The basket ball girls of Schreiner High School are more than eager for the day to come when they will start practice, and hear the sound of a whistle for their first game. Having lost only one player, Nevada Blackburn, captain and forward, and having gone through last year's season without a single defeat, the girls are determined to hold their enviable record again this year. Under the management of Mr. Moses and Mrs. Grady Kindrick and with the addition of some new players, we are predicting that somebody will have to hustle to break into this record.

They have ordered them some snappy looking basket ball suits,

SAN ANGELO WINS O. E. S. MEETING

San Angelo was elected as the city for the 1930 meeting of the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, at the final business meeting of the 47th annual session last Thursday night in San Antonio.

Several members of the Eastern Star from Kimble County attended the Grand Chapter meeting held in San Antonio.

EDUCATION WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

American Education Week will be held November 11 to 27 inclusive. Each day throughout the week provides a vital theme.

November 11 is Armistice Day. Home and School Day, Know Your School Day, School Opportunity Day, Health Day, Community Day and For God and Country Day are the topics for the other days of Education Week.

The local P.-T. A. will celebrate Education Week by setting aside one day and visiting in the school. Thursday has been set as the day when the parents will make personal inspection of the school.

MOTHER, AGED 93, CAN NOT STOP HER BOYS, AGED 67 AND 74, FROM FIGHTING

A gray haired, 93-year-old woman of San Antonio was forced to call on the police for help Sunday afternoon when her two "boys" decided to pull a civil war all their own.

"I just can't stop my boys from fighting and I'm afraid they'll get hurt," she telephoned the police, so Mounted Policeman M. T. Cassanova made a hurried call to the battle scene.

The "young kid," aged 67, seemed to be having the worst of it, when Cassanova arrived. "Big-Brother," despite his 74 years, was wielding a wicked cane and keeping the kid, who was relying upon a butcher knife, from doing much damage.

Cassanova finally separated the pair and bundled them into an ambulance for a ride to the hospital where the younger was treated for a big bump on the side of his head and the older for a slight cut on his cheek.

After being released, the "boys" were warned to be good and not fight any more. "Boys will be boys," sighed Cassanova as he made out his report.

which they are expecting some time this week, or probably next. It looks as if they are going to have to work hard for a position this year.

EAGLE SCREAMS JOURNALISM CLUB NAMES SCHOOL PAPER

With this issue of the Junction Eagle, an embryonic journalistic dream has come to a partial realization. The Schreiner High School will have an official organ of representation to the people of this community.

Through the co-operation of Superintendent Guy C. Moses, Mrs. Effie Roy Felps and the students of the high school this first issue of the "Eagle Screams" has been accomplished. In the mast head, the names of the staff appear. These students are directly responsible for the success or failure of this section. If it is good, they deserve the credit; if it is poor, they will reap the criticism.

Realizing the need for a more personal contact between the students and their work at the school and the people of the community, this paper was conceived.

From week to week, you can turn to this section and read the complete coverage of Schreiner School News. The news will be presented in a pleasing, readable manner.

Misses Mary Hubert and Elsie Simon, with their staff will put forth much effort to make this section a success. If you read the Eagle Screams and like it, tell the Editor-in-Chief and her associate that you do. Let them know that you are interested in their work at the school.

Senior Class First To Give Program

The "dignified" Seniors came to school the first day with a smile. After six weeks have passed and they have received their report cards, they have removed the title "dignified," and are now just seniors. The smile has vanished from their faces and they are working hard for their diplomas.

The Seniors have already held their organization meeting and their officers have been elected. The minutes of their first meeting are as follows: "The Senior Class of 1929 met and organized on Tuesday, September 24. The following officers were elected:

Lonie Rarland, President
Tempie Boone, V. President
Vivian James, Secretary
Frank Hubbell, Treasurer
Mrs. David Dutton, Sponsor

The Seniors gave the first program for the regular chapel exercises which are held every Thursday. At each chapel period, some grade gives a program. This arrangement has proven interesting.

Pep Squad Gets New Uniforms

The Pep Squad girls, under the management of Miss Ruth Sandherr, the Yell Leader, are putting out some real efforts to help the foot ball boys win.

They ordered their pep squad suits last week, and they are going to be sporting them in Menard Friday, helping the Eagles to win. (We are boasting of having one of the best Pep Squads Schreiner High has ever had.)

The Eagles have played one game of the local gridiron this season. The girls responded willingly, and out of the total 43, 40 were present. This game was played at Sonora.

The Pep Squad girls are giving a Halloween party in honor of the Eagles Saturday night.

The Journalism Club held its first meeting Monday, October 28, for the purpose of selecting a name for the school paper. The editor-in-chief and associate editor had been elected last Friday, and had appointed the members of the staff.

The first event of the meeting was the choosing of a name for our paper. Many names were submitted, and the choice was decided by popular vote. Eagle Screams, suggested by Elsie Bessent was chosen.

The associate editor, Miss Ella Simon, read a list of the members appointed on the staff, and told the duties of the staff members.

The staff remained after the meeting was adjourned to discuss some of the problems.

The Journalism staff will hold a meeting every week, during which the work will be discussed and improvements made.

SUGGESTS BEST NAME FOR SCHOOL PAPER

Because the name which she suggested was chosen by the Journalism Club as the official name for the High School Supplement for the Junction Eagle, Miss Elsie Bessent was awarded a year's subscription to the Junction Eagle and the High School paper.

Every member of the Journalism Club suggested a name, and they were voted on by the club. "Eagle Screams" was the name Miss Bessent suggested and the paper goes by that name now.

Glee Club Doesn't Meet; Sore Throats

The Glee Club did not meet this week, because most of the members had colds and sore throats. Don't forget to be present at our next meeting which will be held Wednesday.

Every one is urged to be present.

Ninth Grade Has Class Organization

The ninth grade is a wide-awake crowd of boys and girls numbering in all thirty-eight.

Shortly after school opened the class organized and elected the following officers:
President—Vivienne Livingston.

Vice President—Jewel Riley.
Secretary—Maud Boone.

Several meetings have been held already and many important things will probably be accomplished by this class before the year is over.

So far very few of the ninth grade pupils have been absent. The entire High School has regretted so much the illness of Mrs. Dutton. We are glad to know she is rapidly improving and will soon be in school again. Mrs. Tinsley is an excellent substitute.

Quite a number of the boys attended the Fredericksburg-Mason game at Mason recently.

IVY ECHOES

Good rains have fallen in this section since our last writing and everything is looking better. There is just enough crispness in the air to make this ideal weather for good study and for pleasant living. Autumn will soon tint her leaves with crimson and gold, and as we shall view this wonderful change which Nature shall have made, we shall be made to do as the little girl did who took a stroll through the woods—we shall just wonder and wonder.

This is examination week at school, and our pupils are bringing up all their reserve intellect and energy to meet the occasion.

Marion Hight and family went to Junction Tuesday on business.

The Yates road crew is busy improving the highway which leads to the city of Yates.

Paul Kane was a pleasant visitor at school Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. H. H. Kane and little son are visiting at the home of Mrs. Kane's daughter, Mrs. Jim Herring, who lives on the Baker ranch near Junction.

H. H. Kane, T. S. Jones and L. W. Grobe are in San Antonio for a few days this week on business.

Miss Bessie Grobe proved her friendship for the Ivy school this week by making our girls new basket ball uniforms. We are expecting this group of girls to pull down some laurels of honor for our school soon.

We plan to have a decorated truck, and to have our school represented in the big parade at Junction on Armistice Day.

Motto: "It is gratifying to know that happiness may often be possessed, by having only a small amount of material belongings."

WHEN MAN IS A FAILURE

- When he has no confidence in himself or his fellow men.
- When he values success more than character and self-respect.
- When he does not try to make his work a little better each day.
- When he lets a day go by without making someone happier and more comfortable.
- When he tries to rule others by bullying instead of example.
- When his friends like him for what he has more than what he is.
- When he does not care what happens to his neighbor or to his friend so long as he is prosperous.—Pep.

Good quality silk is durable material, but it cannot be washed like cotton. Use only lukewarm water for silk garments, for washing and rinsing. Make good suds of a neutral soap, and wash with as little rubbing as possible. Be careful that the silk does not come in contact with washing powders which bleach, because these powders may rot the material.

Junction Trade Notes

(By G. G. Co.)

Among recent laws enacted by Texas Legislature, and now in effect: Land owners are denied protection of the posting law if, in selling hunting or fishing rights, their charges are more than $4 a day a person or exceeding 25c an acre. . . . The time of registering motor vehicles is extended to Feb. 1.

The wool tariff bill now in force provides a 31-cent duty on scoured wool but only a 7 1/2-cent duty on rags or shoddy. The amended tariff bill, now before Congress, provides a 28-cent duty on rags, which meets the approval of Texas growers.

Kimble County ranchmen in Junction early in the week talking over their cups of coffee reported recent rains, which improved the sheep ranges. A ranchman wants a rain every Saturday night. . . . Dick Johnson of Fort Worth, livestock order buyer, was in Junction fore part of the week looking for feeder lambs and yearlings to go to Iowa feeders. He failed to find anything at 10c a lb. . . . The first sale of Texas fall wools is scheduled Nov. 5.

The advent of cool weather suggests hog-killing time. In stock: Smoked meat salt for curing, bulk sage and pepper. Gann Grocery Company. Fresh fruit cake ingredients.

V. G. Jordan, truck grower of South Llano, reports a failure of his fall lettuce crop, due to ravages of deer. Kimble County deer seem to have a fondness for the farmer's salads. . . . Buck Frazier is glad to be again at home in Junction after a summer's work in South Texas to the Tex-Mex border and across the River at Roma. . . . The ranch home of O. E. Seagraves, Houston capitalist, on his game preserve south of Junction, is nearing completion. The home is of Spanish type, constructed of native stone and will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000, it is said.

The pastor of a local church is a most-esteemed advocate of change in hours of Sunday worship. He would merge the Sunday School and morning service, dispensing with the morning sermon, substituting therefor a study of the Book, so timed as to permit attendants to be at home by eleven. The sermon of the day would be in the afternoon, and night service omitted so as to permit families to spend the evening at home.

Lipton Tea, in individual bags; new crop dry lima beans, fresh stock black-eye peas in cans, ready to serve. Gann Grocery Company. New assortment flower seeds just arrived.

A measure of praise is due Junction's Volunteer fire department for its promptness in responding to alarms of fire. Members of the department serve without pay or promise and every citizen of Junction profits by their unselfish service.

November 2nd Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Guthrie will observe their 50th marriage anniversary around the fireside at their South Llano ranch. The presence of their eight children, four sons, four daughters, who live close by, will afford them much comfort and satisfaction. Both Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie are native Texans, born in Lavaca County. They have lived in this section of the State 42 years. It is a distinction to have been married fifty years and Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie have the season's best wishes of many friends.

Gann Grocery Company "Everybody's Store."

Miss Angelean Eastman of Austin arrived here this week for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. S. B. Kindrick.

Mr. J. A. McBride of Center Point is a guest of his old time friend, J. N. Hodges, today.

Mrs. A. K. Macdowell of Kerrville visited with her sister Mrs. E. A. Loeffler, Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. Loeffler returned to Kerrville for a visit with Mrs. Macdowell.

CONFERENCE RETURNS M. F. HILL TO JUNCTION

The meeting of the West Texas Conference in San Antonio brought many encouraging reports concerning the work of the Methodist Church in this section, according to Rev. Milton F. Hill, who returns to Junction for his third year of service. The conference territory extends from the Colorado to the Rio Grande River, and from the Pecos to the Gulf, and represents a membership of well over 50,000. The conference was presided over by Bishop John M. Moore. Definite progress was reported despite serious crop failures in a large section of the territory. The Kerrville Assembly received special attention. Rev. C. M. Wheat, formerly Kerrville pastor being placed in the field to finance and manage the Assembly. Very few changes were made in the location of pastors. The next session of conference is to be held at Harlingen, Texas, this church winning the election over Austin First Church.

COPPERAS P.-T. A. MEETS

The Copperas P.-T. A. met in regular session on Monday afternoon. Some members were absent on account of sickness. Arrangements were made to have a sand table for the primary grade, and also, to purchase a primary chart.

A piano committee was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Gully Cowser, chairman, Mrs. Bob Ragsdale and Miss Byler. Mrs. Bennett was appointed Home Service chairman.

The box supper sponsored by the Copperas P.-T. A. ladies, on the 18th, was a success socially as well as financially. The quilt went with the last box sold which brought $26. The total net receipts were $95.

P.-T. A. MEETS

Livingston, W. P. Riley, Jim Massie and Clay Secrest were appointed on the committee. Delegates were elected to represent Junction at the State Convention of the Parent-Teachers' Association which will be held at Waco November 18th to 21st. Mesdames B. L. Smith, J. Holt Smith, W. P. Riley and Bro. J. S. Newman were elected as the official delegates to represent Junction. Alternates elected were Mesdames C. W. McCarroll, Earl Bowers, Chris Schraub and J. M. Livingston. Secretary of Commerce E. V. Stewart made an address to the organization.

The third grade taught by Mrs. Earl Bowers won the attendance prize and was awarded the book for this month.

REV. AND MRS. M. F. HILL RECEIVE POUNDING

Tuesday evening Rev. and Mrs. Milton F. Hill and family, who have been returned to the local Methodist church for the ensuing year, were invited to dinner at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Ragland. After dinner they received a telephone call notifying them of guests at their home. On their arrival they found assembled a number of friends, while the dining table groaned under its weight of groceries and on the floor was spread more of the pounding.

Rev. and Mrs. Hill expressed their hearty thanks for this evidence of the good will of the church membership.

The following program was much enjoyed:

BUS DISCONTINUED

The Peterson Bus Company announce that the bus that leaves Junction at 7:00 each morning east will be discontinued after November 1. The bus that reaches Junction each evening about 9:00 o'clock will also be discontinued. All other busses will continue to run as advertised in the Eagle each week.

FORD LEADS 2 TO 1 IN AUGUST RECORDS

Registration figures for August show the New Ford to lead its nearest competitor by a two to one margin. Total Ford sales for the month was almost as much as the five next makes of automobiles. This indicates, beyond a doubt, that more and more people are seeing the desirability of the New Ford and are carrying out their convictions by investing their money. The records show 136,000 Fords for the month of August against 74,000 for the next highest.

In 1923 over two million Model T's were built for a record. This year the Ford Motor Company, with 1,808,500 cars built by the end of October, is well on its way to break that record if it holds up its schedule of around 180,000 each month.

While the Model A delivers nearly twice as much horsepower as did the old Model T, some of the largest fleet operators in the country have found them cheaper to operate than the old models. A cab company in California which runs 70 cars (New Fords) has kept accurate records over 260,000 miles of daily service and has found operating costs on a mile basis to amount to 4.3 cents. This is much cheaper than any other car and counts the insurance, depreciation, investment, repairs and garage expenses.

A trial will convince you the judgment of others who invest in Model A's is absolutely sound.
