Congo Rulers Join To Fight Reds

Three Band Together In Defense

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Enemies of slain Patrice Lumumba threw their military forces into a single command today in the battle to crush Lumumbist troops threatening to conquer two-thirds of the Congo.

Leaders of the Central Congo, Katanga and South Kasai governments signed a military treaty uniting their forces to meet "the tyranny of communism" posed by Red-trained Oriental Province leader Antoine Gizenga.

The agreement, which said United Nations peace efforts were "useless," was signed by Congolese Premier Joseph Ileo, Katanga President Moise Tshombe and South Kasai leader Albert Kalonji.

The new military grouping gave them a powerful numerical superiority over the Lumumbist forces. Kalonji claims 1,000 men, Tshombe 5,000 and the Ileo forces under Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu 17,000, although some estimates fix Mobutu's total at closer to 7,500 men. The Lumumbists are reported to have about 7,000 troops.

Soon after the signing, a band of 300 pro-Lumumba troops loyal to Gizenga, who proclaimed himself premier after Lumumba's death, were reported fleeing from Luluabourg, capital of Kasai Province.

There also were reports that a pro-Lumumba column of soldiers had advanced to Kikwit, a town in Leopoldville Province only about 280 miles from the capital city of Leopoldville. But these were believed to be the troops fleeing from Luluabourg.

Other unconfirmed reports said another column had reached Boende, 250 miles east of Colquihaville, capital of Equatorial Province. If these reports are true, it would mean this column had covered more than half the distance from the town of Ikela near the border of the Gizenga stronghold to Colquihaville.

A top Katanga spokesman said the three leaders, "conscious of the menace imposed on the territories of the former Belgian Congo by the tyranny of Communism," had agreed and signed a "common military accord."

A joint communique said the three regimes will maintain continuous military liaison among themselves and will make concerted military plans.

The announcement said the pact was made necessary not only by the "Communist" menace but also by "the proved uselessness of the United Nations."

A Katanga spokesman said "this means in effect Leopoldville has tacitly, if not officially, recognized Katanga independence."

Crawford And Crossman File For Commission

Two more names were added to the list of candidates who have filed petitions to run for city commissioner, it was announced today by City Secretary Ed Vicars.

One candidate filed for Ward One and another for Ward Two. Paul G. Crossman of 1501 N. Russell, local appliance dealer, has filed for Ward 1.

James T. Crawford Jr., 600 Red Deer, present commissioner in Ward 4 has filed for re-election to serve in Ward 2.

Eight candidates now are in the race for city commissioner in the April 4 election.

DeGaulle Sees An Early End To War

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle today held out hope for an early end to France's six-year-old war in Algeria following his talks with Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba.

Legislature Ready For First Big Tax Battle

AUSTIN (UPI) — After 50 days of preliminary skirmishing, the Texas Legislature was ready today for its first big fight on taxation.

Two key parts of Gov. Price Daniels four-point program to retire the general fund deficit were sent to the floor Monday night. Also on tap in the House is a proposal by Rep. Marshall Bell of San Antonio that would let voters decide in the 1962 general election whether the state should ever have a corporate or personal income tax.

Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry's constitutional amendment to legalize local option elections for pari-mutuel betting on horse racing in nine counties was also high on the calendar for action.

Berry said he would not attempt to run with his measure until he can be sure of approaching the 100 votes needed for passage, but opponents of the measure may try to force action in an effort to kill the proposal.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee sent to the floor the governors' controversial bill to permit the state to claim abandoned bank accounts and property, and his two-factor formula for computing the corporation franchise tax. Together they are estimated to raise $27 million to apply to the expected $63 million deficit.

The committee also sent to the floor a bill by Rep. Max Cariker of Roby that would set the gross receipts tax on public utilities at 1.99 per cent. He said it would raise $17.7 million during the next two years. The bill also removes the tax exemption enjoyed by rural electric cooperatives.

A measure by Rep. Franklin Spears of San Antonio to place a 2.6 per cent tax on fire insurance premiums to help support a firemen's pension was sent to subcommittee.

The abandoned property act sponsored by Rep. Charles Hughes of Sherman, would permit the state to take over unclaimed accounts after seven years. It would raise an estimated $17 million and also find heirs for another $10 million now held in dormant accounts, Daniel said.

Daniel has told lawmakers to either pass the bill or be ready to come back in special session to do the job.

Other unconfirmed reports said another column had reached Boende, 250 miles east of Colquihaville, capital of Equatorial Province. If these reports are true, it would mean this column had covered more than half the distance from the town of Ikela near the border of the Gizenga stronghold to Colquihaville.

A top Katanga spokesman said the three leaders, "conscious of the menace imposed on the territories of the former Belgian Congo by the tyranny of Communism," had agreed and signed a "common military accord."

A joint communique said the three regimes will maintain continuous military liaison among themselves and will make concerted military plans.

The announcement said the pact was made necessary not only by the "Communist" menace but also by "the proved uselessness of the United Nations."

A Katanga spokesman said "this means in effect Leopoldville has tacitly, if not officially, recognized Katanga independence."

Wilkerson is believed to be the "stripper bandit" who in four Knoxville, Tenn., robberies last September and October forced his victims to disrobe before making his getaway.

He was tagged the "vodka-drinking bandit" for habitually requesting the liquor along with store receipts during liquor store holdups. He began his criminal career at the age of 14.

Four Federal Judges For Texas Under New Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Monday approved a bill by Sen. William A. Blakley, D-Tex., to establish four new federal judges for Texas and two more for the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The New Orleans appeals court serves Texas.

The bill now goes to the Senate floor for approval, and if approved, it would give Texas a total of 15 federal judges.

Under terms of the measure, the northern district of Texas would get two new judges, and the western and southern districts would get one additional judge each.

Suspect In Slaying Confesses

BULLETIN TOMS RIVER, N.J. (UPI) — A man answering the description of the sex slayer of 4-year-old Edith Kiecorius of New York signed a confession today that he killed the child last Wednesday, state police said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police and FBI agents across the country today questioned suspects in the slaying of 4-year-old Edith (Goo-gie) Kiecorius, but the 59-year-old toothless dishwasher they sought may be hiding right around the corner.

New York police assigned 500 men to dredge through the Bowery and other areas where drifters gather. They said it was highly possible their prime suspect, London-born Fred J. Thompson, might still be in the city six days after Goo-gie was lured from the front doorstep of her uncle's apartment building, ravished, and beaten to death in a shabby, $8-a-week room.

Her body was found Sunday. Every man on the force—more than 23,000 — was told to be on the lookout for Thompson, who was married and the father of three daughters but who left his family 15 years ago.

More than 100 suspects had been questioned here by late Monday.

Suspects also had been picked up and questioned in Springfield, Mo.; Framingham, Mass., and Waterville, Maine. But the suspect in Maine was released after questioning, and the Springfield and Framingham suspects did not seem to fit Thompson's description.

The FBI entered the search on the possibility that Thompson had crossed state lines.

Police said they had learned more about Thompson's past—and about Goo-gie's last hours.

An autopsy report indicated she fought fiercely for her life.

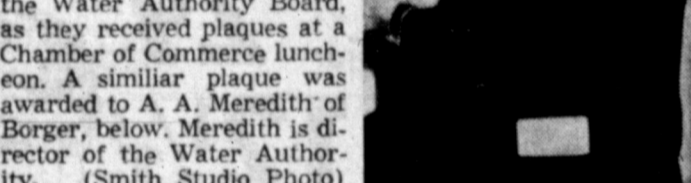

Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Milton Helsen said strands of hair were found in her palms, and bits of flesh under her fingernails. He said she died from "multiple injuries about the head, fracture of the skull and fracture of bones of the face" apparently inflicted by a green-painted, blunt instrument.

HONORED FOR WORK — A lot of work has been done to get the wheels moving for the Canadian River dam. A great deal more lies ahead. In the photos here are three of the men honored yesterday for their labors on the project.

Design For Canadian Dam Set For April

The actual designing of the Canadian River dam should begin in April, Leon Hill, regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation told the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at its monthly membership meeting.

At the present time, according to Hill, core samples, rock quarries and test pits for fill are being explored in order to give contractors information upon which they can intelligently make bids.

The actual appropriation by Congress of the money to be loaned the Canadian River Water Authority is due by July 1, but it is likely that this will not take place until later in the summer, the speaker said. It is hoped that actual contracts for the dam can be let between October and Christmas of this year.

One of the jobs presently facing those working on the project is the obtaining of land, either by purchase or condemnation, for the dam site and reservoir.

Hill was introduced to the group by Fred Thompson, one of Pampa's representatives on the board of the Authority.

At the conclusion of the program, Mayor Ed Myatt presented Thompson and Clinton Evans, the other board member from Pampa, with plaques expressing the appreciation of the people of Pampa for their work on the Authority.

A plaque was also presented A. A. Meredith, Authority director, by Mayor Myatt in recognition of his many years of labor on the project.

The meeting was presided over by E. Roy Smith, chamber president.

Food Stamp Plan May Start June 1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman says he hopes pilot food stamp programs will begin in eight areas by June 1 or June 15 at the latest.

ing or charging tolls, but should be kept on a pay-as-you-go basis by increasing highway "user" taxes.

Congress authorized the system of limited-access, multiple-lane highways in 1956. The federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost, the states 10 per cent.

Any slowdown would be unwise "when our slump-ridden economy needs greater, not less, construction activity," Kennedy said in his 2,500-word message.

Administration officials said Kennedy was not proposing "anti-recession" measures but was merely trying to keep the highway building program on schedule.

The President took critical aim at billboard advertising and raised the possibility of a federal levy on billboards if the states do not control their placement more strictly.

Kennedy's message bristled with arguments in favor of his tax proposals and against alternative financing plans which have been advanced in the past.

He said $600 million a year could be provided for the highway program by Congress preventing the reduction in the gasoline tax. He calculated the value of his other tax proposals at $300 million a year.

Kennedy proposed these increases in existing taxes: Diesel fuel, from four to seven cents a gallon.

Trucks over 26,000 pounds, annual license fee of $5 per 1,000 pounds instead of the present $1.50.

Motor vehicle tires, from eight to ten cents a pound.

Inner tubes, from nine to ten cents a pound.

Tread rubber, from three to ten cents a pound.

If Congress refuses to enact these tax increases, Kennedy said, it should boost the gasoline tax to 4½ cents a gallon.

Noting that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had unsuccessfully sought a 4½-cent gasoline tax, Kennedy said: "This is clearly acceptable and would have my support. However, I prefer not to raise taxes on the general consumer at this time, and to emphasize a fairer allocation of the burden among those who use the highways."

New Report Spurs Bill On Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's first anti-recession measure moved today toward House passage, with a new government report on joblessness adding a note of urgency.

The House Rules Committee was expected to clear the Kennedy proposal for a floor vote Wednesday. It would provide $1 billion in extra unemployment compensation for 3,125,000 workers whose regular benefits have run out or will be exhausted this year.

The Labor Department reported Monday that the number of persons drawing unemployment benefits reached a record high of 3,390,000 earlier this month.

The figure, for the week ended Feb. 11, was 32,200 above the previous week. Twenty-nine states reported increases, with Wisconsin, Virginia, Maryland, New York, Missouri and Pennsylvania having the sharpest rises.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, which approved Kennedy's proposal to extend jobless benefits, urged the rules group to speed the measure to the House floor.

If all goes well, the administration's bill could be on its way to the Senate Wednesday night. House passage was considered a certainty because of strong support from both Democratic and Republican leaders.

By a voice vote Monday, the Ways and Means Committee approved the second part of Kennedy's emergency program. This bill would provide up to $305 million in public assistance for needy children of the unemployed.

It would set up a federal-state program under which unemployed parents could get funds to provide necessities such as food and clothing for their children.

Today's Lenten Message

By THE REV. ROBERT S. ROEMIS, Pastor, St. John's Lutheran Church, Sacramento, Calif. (Written for UPI)

In ancient and medieval times the outstanding feature of Lent was self-denial and fasting in preparation for the celebration of Easter.

However, a strictly subjective observance, that of withdrawing from the world and the things of the world, too often becomes extremely negative. Lent is an opportunity for something truly positive. It is a time when the tempo of spiritual life increases through the more earnest contemplation of God's word. Instead of refraining from doing certain things, the Christian seeks to do more — to worship more, to pray more, to give more, to study the Scriptures more. He endeavors during Lenten days to draw more closely to Christ.

The heart of the Christian faith lies in the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Lent can lead men to the cross where the Savior died to redeem the world. But it also must lead beyond to the glorious victory of Easter morning.

Wiretap Probe Soon To Get Under Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Samuel J. Ervin, D-N.C., said today the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee intends to investigate wiretapping in an effort to clarify that confused legal area.

Ervin promised congressional action after a Supreme Court ruling on the subject Monday.

and temperatures on the rise. The front moved so fast through the state that it didn't have much time to drop as much snow in the northwest as earlier feared, and amounts ranged up to no more than two inches.

"It didn't have time to pile up snow like the one that brought up to 20 inches in the South Plains a week ago," A. C. Hinkle, a Weather Bureau meteorologist, said.

The snow was confined to an area west of a line from Lubbock to Childress and north of a line from Lubbock to the New Mexico border.

Hoe Down

By THELMA BRAY
Pampa Garden Club

Don't prune your roses yet! It is best to wait until the danger of a freeze is past. If you prune your roses severely too early, they will probably receive some damage from a late freeze and then have to be cut even more. Wait until all chances of a freeze are gone even though your roses do begin to leaf out. In a later article, we will give you some suggestions on pruning.

We have had several people express an interest in an evening couple's garden club and they plan to organize one or two groups soon. If you are interested, call Mrs. Wadon Moore, Mrs. Loyse Caldwell or myself.

Several garden club women in Pampa are making plans to attend the district Garden Club convention in Lubbock on March fifth and sixth. A short course is included at Texas Tech.

As we mentioned before, since it is a little early to do much gardening outside, we may well spend our time learning flower arrangements for those beautiful flowers we are going to grow this summer.

The technique of arranging flowers can be fairly well mastered in a fraction of the time required in the case of most arts. It is not essential to devote years of concentrated effort before a reasonable degree of efficiency is attained.

There are three main types of contemporary flower arrangements. These are line, massed line and massed design. The line design, characteristic of the Japanese arrangement, is one in which line is the dominant form. It is characterized by openness of silhouette and dominant line direction. The voids or "empty" areas are just as important as the lines used. The line design has height and width, but little depth except at the focal point.

The massed design is opposite from line in that it has a closed silhouette. It has depth; is a full but never crowded design, depending for its effectiveness upon quantities of plant material, groupings of kinds and colors, and a properly developed center of interest; all built upon a well-defined linear pattern. Massed designs may be symmetrical or asymmetrical in contour.

The massed line design is a combination of the best features of both line (oriental) and massed (accidental) design. In adapting certain features of both line and mass design in floral arrangements we have developed a style that is truly American.

The Occidental style includes all European "period" styles, which were predominantly massed arrangements, as well as our Early American and Colonial Williamsburg, which strongly resembled the European style.

The two kinds of balance in arrangements are symmetrical and asymmetrical. Symmetrical balance is equal balance of weight (actual or visual) on either side of a central axis. It is attained by having both sides of the composition as nearly alike as possible. Asymmetrical balance is visual but unequal balance of weight. There is the same amount of visual weight on either side of the axis though the two sides are dissimilar. (Tomorrow: Continued discussion of basic designs in floral arrangements.)

There were 98,993 registered civil and commercial aircraft in the U.S. at the end of 1958, nearly 45 per cent more than at the end of 1940.

Panhandle Home Gardeners To Meet For Short Course In Growing Tips

LUBBOCK — Home gardeners throughout the Panhandle and South Plains may gain new flower growing ideas at Texas Tech's ninth annual Garden Club Short Course slated here March 6.

The course is designed for garden club participants and any "green thumb" interested in learning more about growing and arranging flowers, said Ed Zukauckas, Tech assistant professor of horticulture, and short course chairman.

Sponsored by the Tech horticulture and park management department and the District I Federated Women's Garden Clubs of Texas, all sessions of the short course will be held in the Tech Union ballroom. Registration fee is $2.

Theme of the short course this year is "Living with the Home and Garden." Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. and program will formally open at 9:30 a.m., Zukauckas said.

"Living with Flowers," is the subject of a flower arrangement demonstration by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Orr of Altus, Okla., at 9:30 a.m. A "Parade of Products" display of the newest gardening tools, gadgets and products will be presented at 11:10 a.m.

A style show of the newest spring fashions will be presented by Hemphill Wells department store at 11:30 a.m. Closing the short course will be a 1 p.m. meeting of the Federated Garden Clubs of Texas, District I, at the Pioneer Hotel's Colonial Room. Mrs. H. D. Lewis of Dumas, District I governor, will preside.

Members attending were Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Adair; Messrs. and Meses. William A. Bennink; Stanley Brandt; Milo Carlson; Cecil Collum; A. F. Johnston; Meses. Ira Carlton, Glenn Radcliff, A. B. Whitten and Martin Stubbe.

Refreshments were served during the social hour which followed the business and program.

Dear Abby... Who's A Bore In This Family?

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm allergic to my husband. He's kind, considerate and generous, but oh, such a bore, and quite stupid. We don't have anything in common and never have had. I got married very young. We have three of the best children you could want. I have taken up nagging as a pastime. Please help me adjust my life. I am 42 and have been married for 25 years and am bored to death with him.

BORED

DEAR BORED: The way to be entertained is to be entertaining. Better start to entertain this "kind, considerate, generous" bore before someone who is attractive, appreciative and unscrupulous starts to bore in from the outside.

DEAR ABBY: I was horrified at your advice to "PAUNCHY." The modern male is having trouble enough hanging on to his masculinity without your saying it is fine and dandy for him to wear elastic paneled briefs to hold his stomach in. Please, Abby, leave the elastic foundations for the ladies.

JOHN

DEAR JOHN: Women have done a much better job of holding themselves together and keeping things in shape than men. A bay window doesn't look any better on a man than it does on a woman. There is nothing feminine about wanting to look and feel better.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I both work. We have no children. Our problem is a very kind and generous neighbor, who has a large family and loves to cook. So, every

Society Planning Dinner Meeting

The Pampa Rose Society met Tuesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Caldwell, 2208 Aspen with Mrs. Glenn Radcliff as co-hostess.

During a brief business meeting, conducted by Martin Stubbe, president, new year books were distributed and the program for the year outlined. It was planned to have a dinner meeting in March in the Coronado Inn.

Milo Carlson, program leader, introduced Mrs. J. E. Carlson, who spoke on the propagation and care of African Violets and displayed some of her plants.

Milo Carlson spoke on pruning roses, at which time he distributed leaflets to help members with pruning roses.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Garner Altom were welcomed as guests.

Members attending were Dr. and Mrs. Weldon Adair; Messrs. and Meses. William A. Bennink; Stanley Brandt; Milo Carlson; Cecil Collum; A. F. Johnston; Meses. Ira Carlton, Glenn Radcliff, A. B. Whitten and Martin Stubbe.

Refreshments were served during the social hour which followed the business and program.

"An Evening Of Ballet" Planned By American Civic Ballet Company

The Amarillo Civic Ballet Company will present "An Evening of Ballet" at the Amarillo Municipal Auditorium on Saturday evening, March 4, at 8:00 p.m., and Sunday afternoon, March 5, at 2:30 p.m.

Guest artists will be Yvonne Chouteau and Miguel Terekhov, formerly with Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and now Artists in Residence at the University of Oklahoma. They will dance the pas de deux from Act II of "The Nutcracker" by Tchaikovsky.

Also to be presented are two ballets composed by Dr. Michael Daia: "A Little Viennese Story" and "Pas de Quatre."

A. Guest Roller will conduct members of the Amarillo Symphony in the music for the ballets.

Julian Robles has designed the sets. The Area Arts Guild will have an exhibit of paintings and sculpture.

Are your parents too strict? For Abby's booklet, "What Teen-agers Want To Know," send 25 cents to ABBY in care of this paper.

For the winter bridesmaid there's the purple dress done in satin, peau de soie or silk taffeta. Sometimes it's cut as a simple sheath with an overskirt.

Here's What All That Fussing About So-Called Missile Gap Really Means

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There is a lot of political fussing over something which Republicans claim is non-existent—the missile gap.

Some Democrats contend there is a big one but President Kennedy is awaiting official analyses before commenting.

Some politicians will over the things are going, or not going, there are a few standards to apply to see whether the charges and the counter-charges make sense.

First, one must be on guard that the politician doesn't add two and two and come up with five. Or that he tries to add apples and oranges as though they were identical.

For example: The United States government knows what we have in missiles and what they can do. It also knows what its program is: what we plan to produce in missiles over the next few years. Missiles don't come off an assembly line. The big ones must be ordered years ahead.

Now, the government has intelligence information on the missiles the Soviet Union is supposed to have so they can be compared with what we have.

We also have intelligence information on what we think the Russians are planning to produce. That, figure, too, has some meaning.

But it is not the final answer. The Russians may have a capability beyond—sometimes far beyond—what they plan to produce.

If they should go all-out, they might increase their production substantially and leave us far behind.

And so, sometimes, you'll hear the experts compare our hard programs with what is figured to be Soviet capability rather than intentions. And that could show us falling behind.

Is that a fair comparison? Those who say yes argue this way: It's just too risky going on what we think Soviet intentions might be. It would be much safer to compare Soviet capability with what we're doing, assuming they are going to use their capacity. Sounds logical. But then why shouldn't we throw into the argument our capability rather than our fixed programs.

Supposing we should go all out and quit making luxury cars. Wouldn't that release some capacity?

And there is the complication the politicians quite frequently glide right over. What are they comparing? What are they talking about when they speak of a gap? That is not the end of it: Supposing we had hard figures on Soviet missile production and intentions and had full confidence in the spy reports. Suppose we got them right from the Kremlin. And suppose they showed that the Russians were even-steven with us in missile strength or even slightly behind. Would that mean there is no gap and the United States is not behind? Seems so. But listen to this.

When the real military experts measure our strength against Soviet strength they do so on the basis of what's left to the United States after we've been hit in a surprise attack. That, to them, is the only practical power we can count upon as a deterrent. For we know this nation will not strike first. That is national policy and we also know we're going to lose quite a bit of our military power by being hit first in a war. And so when they measure up the terms of what we may have after figures for a gap, they think in some future Pearl Harbor, not what we have now in a warehouse.

Confused? We're still not finished with the complications. There's one thing more: What is our national military goal?

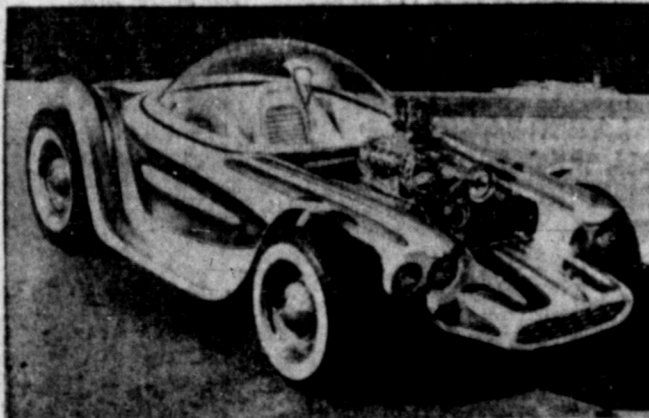

Deterrence? If all we want is enough left over after a surprise attack to deter an army—to let him know he's sure to get destroyed as badly as we are—that takes one kind of military missile buildup from which to figure a gap.

But suppose the national goal is not deterrence alone but sufficient power to insure defeat of the enemy, as many argue our policy should be. That takes a good deal more strength in being, and when that's figured as a base, the gap could be real big.

At any rate, it is a wise thing to keep these items in mind when politicians speak of the gap.

FBI Show Stolen By Funny Crooks

By JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Ever thought about the first thing you would say if suddenly you were arrested?

FBI agents have found that surprised fugitives sometimes react in ways that make it hard to keep a straight face while putting on the handcuffs.

One man, arrested in Arkansas for impersonating a federal agent, took one look at the cuffs and exclaimed:

"Gee, these are nice. Can I keep them?"

Gerald Corelli, convicted of car theft in Chicago, shouted what agents took for TV crime show dialogue when they entered his hotel room hideout.

"Don't shoot," yelled Corelli. "I'm clean. I'm clean." Agents found him sitting in the bath tub covered with soap suds.

"I can't leave now. I may bingo," protested a woman arrested for jumping bail in Atlanta. She was playing the game straight when an agent gently tapped her on the shoulder and identified himself.

When fugitive Frank L. Sprenz, the flying bank robber, was arrested in Laredo, Tex., after crossing the Mexican border, he said simply, "I'm glad to get back to the United States."

A classic case concerns a fugitive wanted for desertion from the armed forces. Two FBI agents finally found him working in a yard in Johnson City, Ill., and announced that he was under arrest. Instead of the expected scowl and sullen attitude, the fugitive flashed a broad smile and said:

"Boy, this is real honor. . . to be arrested by the FBI." He insisted on introducing the agents to his family and took great pride in explaining that the FBI "singled him out for an arrest."

After being frisked and relieved of a loaded gun in Chicago, a fugitive involved in an extortion case became very philosophical.

"This is ironic," he said "Dillinger was shot by FBI agents as he came out of the Biograph Theater. Now I'm arrested by FBI agents 20 minutes after seeing a movie at the Biograph Theater.

They sure have lost my business."

A fugitive was located while he was with a bridge construction crew in Washington, D. C. When agents arrived, the man was inside a piling 100 feet above the Potomac River. Informed of his arrest, the fugitive remarked, "You guys sure don't give a fellow much room to run."

"Give me a break, fellows. I'm an orphan and all alone in the world," pleaded a fence arrested in New York. The "orphan" was 62 years old.

Murder Suspect Forgotten In Jail Four Months

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Court officials blushing admitted today a 59-year-old murder suspect was left "forgotten" for four months in county jail.

"It was just a breakdown of the system," said one perplexed official today. "I can't remember it ever happening before."

Eugene E. Slowski, 59, a janitor, waited from Oct. 14 to Feb. 24 in county jail for some action to be taken in his case. Then he took things into his own hands.

Slowski, who surrendered to the police Oct. 4 admitted killing his wife, after "25 years of quarrels," penciled a note nearly two weeks ago asking the court what was happening with his case.

Astounded officials quickly saw to it that court machinery got back into action. Slowski will appear Tuesday before Judge Allen Miller of the psychopathic court.

The best time for parents to put the children to bed is while they still have the strength.

Proof Found That Man's Confession Of Murder False

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Chronicle said in a copyrighted story that it has proof Florida convict Emmett Monroe Spencer's confession of murdering a Texas woman was false.

The newspaper said it has located the woman, Beverly Jean Williams, who is living in East Gary, Ind., with her husband. She had been reported missing for seven years.

The Chronicle said the woman told them she ran away from home and never contacted her relatives.

Spencer, awaiting death in the Florida State Penitentiary, told Texas Rangers he killed the girl, who was 17 at the time, and another girl in Texas. He also confessed to numerous other slayings throughout the nation.

Memorial Contributions Sought For Heart Fund

Many persons have found deep satisfaction in making memorial contributions to the Gray County Heart Fund, an affiliate of the American Heart Association, according to Dr. T. D. Harvey, county president.

In this way, he said, they have both served the living and paid thoughtful tribute to the memory of a friend, associate or relative.

"Many others have found that special occasions such as birthdays, anniversaries and other events are most appropriately commemorated through gifts which will perform important humanitarian service," Dr. Harvey said.

Contributions will aid the Heart Fund's nationwide programs to reduce disability and death from heart disease through research, education, and community service. Memorial gifts advance research in heart disease, rheumatic fever and high blood pressure in all age groups.

Memorial gifts will be used exclusively, Dr. Harvey stated, in Research and Education to combat and conquer the diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

An acknowledgment will be sent to the person honored, or to a relative, in the case of a memorial gift. The donor's name and purpose of the gift will be designated. Donors will be sent an official receipt for a tax-exempt contribution. The contribution forms are on display in the First National Bank and the Citizens Bank in Pampa.

However, no form is essential and contributions can be taken at any time during the year.

Contributions and instructions should be sent to the Gray County Heart Fund, P.O. Box 915, Pampa, Texas, or call Dr. T. D. Harvey, MO 5-4396; Mrs. R. F. MacDonald, MO 5-5530 or Mr. W. R. Bowen, MO 5-4285 for further information.

Protests Resumed Against Theatre Segregation Rule

By United Press International
 At least 120 Negro and white youths resumed protests against segregated seating in motion picture theaters Sunday by staging "stand-in" demonstrations at the moviehouses in San Antonio, Dallas and Austin.

One student leader in San Antonio said the protests would continue.

It was the third consecutive Sunday that both Negroes and whites held the demonstrations at the Texas theater, across the street from the University of Texas campus in Austin.

Lyon Happy Over Pampa Track Start

Harvester Track Coach Dwain appeared to the well-pleased his "dirtmen" ("cindermen") as Pampa is one of the few 4A schools without a cinder track after their opening performance Saturday in Amarillo in practice meet with the always strong Sandies.

Although team point totals were not kept, the Pampa thin-clads turned in some good times in the sprints and relays and one school mark was tied in the pole vault when Bill Cooper leaped 11-6, tying Kent Mitchell's 1960 record.

Forced to pass up last weekend's Comanche Relays at Fort Stockton because of weather conditions, the practice meet probably turned out better in the long run as Lyon utilized more boys than he would have at Fort Stockton.

"I thought the kids looked good," Lyon said yesterday. "The sprinters were bucking a good crosswind which came in gusts but it didn't seem to hurt them too much."

"Naturally our sophomores were a little nervous, but Bill Martin jumped 5-6 in the high jump, a pretty good start for a sophomore."

Lyon added that Steve Dobbins, 1962 Harvester fullback, turned in a 1:41 for the 100 yard dash to finish in a winning tie. The 10.1 was also Dobbins' best time to date, chopping two seconds off his best mark last year.

Favored White Deer Leaves For Boys State Cage Tourney

Hogs, Aggies Win To Move Within One Game Owls Derail Tech SWC Express

By United Press International Rice ruined the Red Raiders' hopes of nailing down sole possession of the Southwest Conference crown Monday night and kept alive the hopes of Arkansas and Texas A&M for a share of the title as the race goes to the wire.

If not, Tech will share the crown with the winner of the Arkansas-A&M game at Fayetteville and Texas will tie the loser of that game for third place.

Del Ray Mounts, the Raider hot shot, was held to 13 points, partly because he ran into Rice's Roger McQueary in the first half driving in for a shot. One of McQueary's teeth tore a gash in Mount's head, and he had to be taken to the dressing room and have the scalp wound closed with four stitches.

BOB MOORE ... watches sky

Bucks Play Simms '5' On Thursday

WHITE DEER — White Deer's bucks, with the Class A state championship a long two games away, were slated to leave here today for Austin and a crack at their first state basketball title.

Coach Bob Moore planned a workout before leaving here for Abilene where the Bucks will spend tonight. The Bucks will motor in to Austin tomorrow and work out at Gregory Gym tomorrow afternoon before meeting James Bowie of Simms Thursday afternoon.

White Deer (31-2) will carry one of the better records into the big meet but will face the 1958 champion in the first round battle when it meets James Bowie of Simms.

Bowie Simms won the Class A crown in '58 by defeating Brownboro — another team back this year — 48-47 in the finals.

This year, Bowie Simms holds a 27-7 mark, winning District 15-A with a 9-1 record. Simms won the bi-district title over Quitman, 46-44, then polished off Crowell, 49-41, and Honey Grove, 39-38, in the regional tournament at Denton last weekend.

White Deer jumped to the state tourney by defeating Canadian, 70-47, in bi-district, and Iran, 40-52 and Farwell, 60-41, in the regional tournament at Lubbock last weekend.

The Bucks will hold a slight height edge over Bowie Simms but will have a decided advantage in experience as Bowie will start two juniors, a sophomore and two seniors.

Moore will go with his "Fearless Five" of Tommy Lester, 5-10 senior who has poured in 490 points in 33 games; Bob McAllister (361), 6-2; Dickie Hanna (344), 5-7; Gerald Michael (283), 6-3, and Carl McAdams (265), 6-1 1/2.

White Deer's well-rounded scoring attack — all five starters hit in double figures against Iran and four did same against Farwell — could make the Bucks a strong contender.

Unanimous Again

Ohio St. Holds UPI Cage Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mighty Ohio State, rolling along on a 27-game victory streak, chalked up another perfect score today in the weekly United Press International major college basketball ratings.

The bouncy Buckeyes were the unanimous No. 1 choice of all 35 members of the UPI Board of Coaches for the fifth time this season. They have held first place since the start of the campaign and appear in no danger of slipping from their pinnacle in the closing of the season.

Ohio State accumulated the maximum 350 points in this week's voting when St. Bonaventure, which picked up two first place votes last week to prevent the Buckeyes from gaining another clean sweep, dropped an 87-77 verdict to Niagara last Saturday night. It was the Bonnies' first defeat on their home court in 100 straight games.

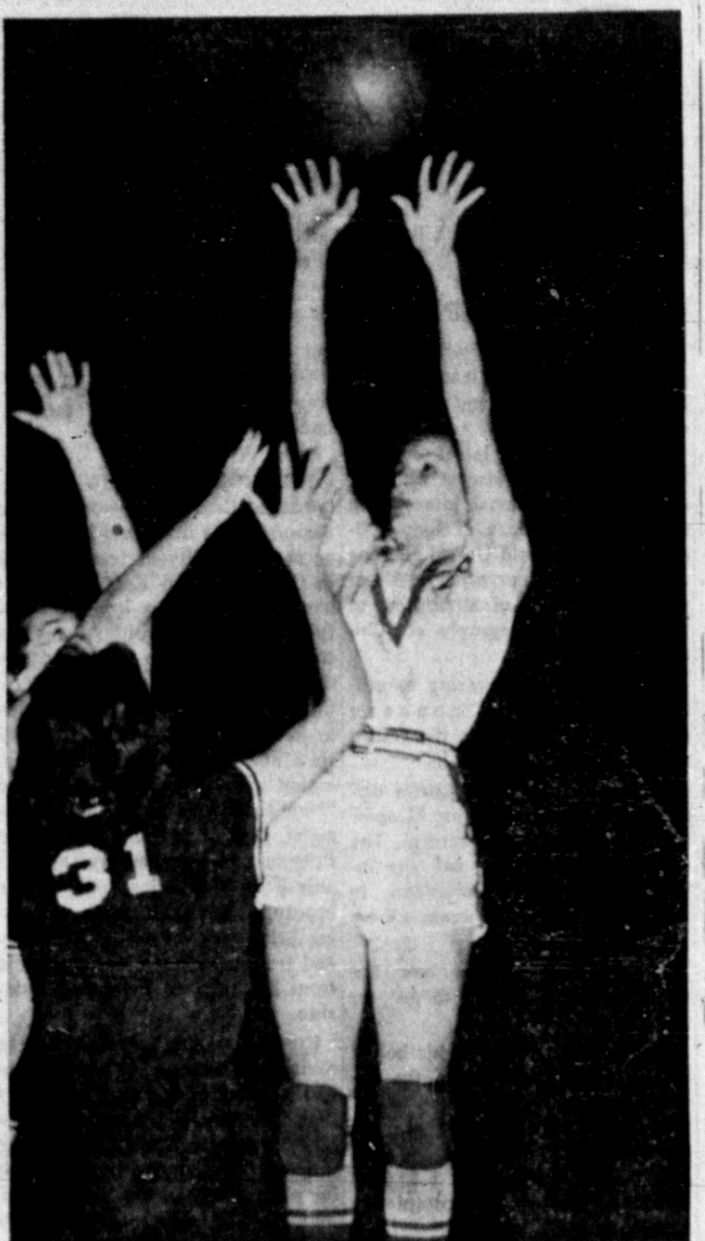

Despite this setback, St. Bonaventure held on to the runner-up spot in the ratings, polling 26 second-place votes and 300 points.

Cincinnati, which has clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference championship, moved from fourth to third place, switching positions with conference rival Bradley. The Bearcats totaled 231 points to Bradley's 185.

Kansas State also picked up ground, climbing from seventh to fifth place with a total of 165 points, two more than North Carolina.

Rounding out the top 10 in order were Duke (96), Iowa (95), St. John's (87) and Southern California (84).

West Virginia headed the second 10 group, vaulting from 14th place. The Mountaineers were followed by Utah, Louisville, Dayton, UCLA, Memphis State, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Wichita, and Texas Tech.

MORE FOR MOORE — Juanna Jo Moore, White Deer Doe shooting ace, puts up shot against Clarendon in last night's 51-47 bi-district victory. Miss Moore scored 25 points to spark the Does to their win and a trip to the regional tournament in Lubbock this weekend. (Daily News Photo)

Does Dub Clarendon, Eye Regional Action

White Deer's Does, one step behind their state-bound boys basketball team, today were preparing for their fourth straight trip to the regional Class A tournament at Lubbock this weekend after upending Clarendon's Bronchettes, 51-47, in a bi-district battle at Harvester Fieldhouse last night.

The victory sends the Does (27-5) against the Cohoma-Sundown winner in the first round of the fem tourney at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. The winner will play at 7 p.m. Saturday and the regional champ will go to Austin March 10-11 for the state meet.

Juanna Jo Moore and Leona Traylor keyed last night's win with 25 and 17 points respectively, but high game honors went to Paula Adams, who turned in 30 points in a brilliant one-girl performance for Clarendon.

Games 390 Miles Apart

Winning Buck Coach Checks Flight Plans

By ARTHUR MAYHEW Daily News Sports Editor

WHITE DEER — Bob Moore, White Deer basketball coach, may log enough flight hours to apply for his pilot's license if his two teams come through as expected in state cage play this weekend.

Why? Because Moore will have his boys' team in the state cage tournament at Austin which starts Thursday and his girls' team at Lubbock Saturday for the regional fem tourney.

The Bucks advanced to the state tournament after defeating Iran, 60-52, and Farwell, 60-41, in the finals of the Region 1 tournament at Lubbock last weekend. At Austin, they will play James Bowie of Simms in the first round Thursday afternoon.

As for the Does, they will play the Cohoma - Sundown winner at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Lubbock in regional. The Does defeated Clarendon, 51-47, last night in Pampa to win the bi-district crown.

Moore, who doesn't want to miss a game, doesn't plan to, although he may become the most air-minded coach in Panhandle history if all his teams win opening round contests.

Thanks to a White Deer sports plane, Moore has been offered a private plane and pilot to ferry the graying mentor from Austin to Lubbock and back should the demand warrant the 1,170 mile round-trip.

Twin wins will send Moore back and forth between Austin and Lubbock — approximately 390 miles apart — like a jet-propelled ping-pong ball as he would have to be in Lubbock at 8:30 a.m., Austin at 2:25 p.m. and Lubbock again at 7 p.m. — all on Saturday.

The trip to Austin, the Bucks first in history according to Moore, will send them against James Bowie of Simms, a small town near the Texas-Arkansas border. White Deer advanced to the regional tournament in Lubbock in 1959 but lost their opening game.

New Bowling Plan Stated

Due to the increased bowling activity and the shortage of available news space, The Pampa Daily News plans to institute a new policy on bowling coverage effective Monday, March 4.

In place of the individual league standings, The News will run a once- or twice-weekly column of high individual and team scores, similar to bowling honor rolls run into most daily papers.

In order to facilitate the new setup, leagues are requested to continue to turn in their standings to The News sports desk as in the past, from which the honor rolls will be compiled.

MICKEY MANTLE ... "The Leader"

Training Camp Briefs

Mantle Takes Command: Few Words, Two Homers

By FRED DOWN United Press International Mickey Mantle responded to manager Ralph Houk's call to leadership in characteristic style with a few soft words and a pair of "loud" homers.

Houk suggested Sunday that Mantle could assume the field leadership of the New York Yankees in a quiet style similar to Joe DiMaggio in his heyday. Despite his admitted brilliance, Mantle never has assumed the kind of leadership to which Houk referred.

"If Ralph thinks I can do it, then I'll certainly do all I can," Mantle said Monday when he was asked to train two days ahead of schedule. "I'm ready to do anything I can to help the club and if Ralph thinks I can do something along those lines I'm very happy to do it."

Then Mantle stepped into the batter's box and showed what he really does naturally — hit. Batting right-handed against the left-handed offerings of Danny McDevitt and Whitey Ford, he rocketed two 400-plus drives over the center field fence at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The appearances of Lew Burdette and Mike Fornieles provided the big news in the camps of the Milwaukee Braves and the Boston Red Sox, respectively, as teams began to speed up their workouts.

Burdette, a 19-game winner last season, agreed to terms estimated at close to $40,000 after a brief conference with general manager Johnny McHale. He and perennial 20-game winner Warren Spahn are counted upon again this year to head the Braves' pitching staff.

Harris Eyes 'Must' Win

HOUSTON (UPI)—The legend of Roy Harris, the gummy former school teacher from the thickets of Cut 'N Shoot, Tex., may come to an end tonight unless he beats English heavyweight Dave Ret in a 18-round "do-or-die" battle.

For Harris, a loss to the English brawler could mean the end of a career that took him to Los Angeles for a world heavyweight championship bout with Floyd Patterson.

Since the loss to Patterson, Harris' boxing career has been all down hill. In the past 11 months Harris has lost consecutive starts to Sonny Liston, Bob Cleareaux and Henry Cooper.

Home-Taught Children

There may or may not be just a hint of publicity seeking in the yarn. But it's an important one, for all that and it comes from a good Houston friend.

It seems that down in Houston, there's a pretty rugged individualist named Tom Wilson, who is a father of six children, an inventor, a bricklayer, a teacher (not licensed), a technician and a construction worker.

And the reason we don't place much credence on the publicity end of the story is that Mr. Wilson has never been willing to send his children to public school. He sent his eldest offspring to a public school in Arkansas once but that was to discover, if possible, if his own teaching methods with them were keeping them up with other children their age. According to his statement, his children were more advanced than their age contemporaries.

But the publicity charge was brought out in court the other day and Wilson didn't deny it. He admitted that he had written an article about how he taught his children privately in the hopes that the publicity would sell some patent rights that he owned. Well, something did. He apparently sold about $5,000 worth.

But the business of teaching his children at home in what he calls his own private school isn't something new that just occurred as a promotional stunt. Wilson means business.

And hardened reporters, who sat thru the court trial in which Wilson and his pretty brunette wife, Glenda, were featured, as were all six of the children, commented on the fact that the children aged 12, 11, 8, 6, 4 and 2, were without exception well-mannered, quiet and positively obedient for the lengthy hearings.

How did all this come about? Well, W. C. Murdock, who is principal of East Houston Elementary School, found out that Wilson had three children of school age (possibly the six-year-old is also eligible) who were not in school. Enquiry elicited the fact that father and mother did not hold teaching certificates but were engaged in teaching their own children. Making a success of it, too.

The mighty school board, spearheaded by Murdock, moved in against the entire Wilson octette. For, in this day and age the law says flatly that compulsion must be used to herd children into accredited school rooms.

Apparently, the fomenters of this regulation had some inkling as to the paucity of the learning to be acquired in our government schools and recognizing that well-informed people might rebel, simply made attendance mandatory.

The outcome of the trial? Oh, yes. Wilson was found guilty; fined $5.00 and court costs, both of which he refuses to pay and is appealing. But the wonderful thing about the entire affair is the character and behavior of the six youngsters. As Wilson put it:

"My kids are more advanced than children of their age in school. I teach them the three R's, and I teach them a lot, and to be heard only when they should be heard."

"Carol (12) can clean and sew and cook. She makes her own clothes. My wife and I are teaching them to be good citizens and we are teaching them the regular school subjects. Everybody says something must be done about juvenile delinquency — but we're doing it."

Carol told a reporter: "I don't care if they found my father guilty. I'm still not going to that school (she went for a couple of visits). They don't teach me anything."

Reporters calling upon the children at their home commented on the fact of the scholarly attitude of the youngsters. They found Carol reading a civics textbook, Floyd, 11, was studying a health textbook, Mark, 8, brought in a math book and began adding sums. They did this quietly and apparently without being told. The atmosphere of the home was refined and quiet. Everyone was well-mannered.

We are among what is doubtless a minority who applaud the Wilsons and inquire what is wrong with what they are doing? The law holds — the Wilsons to be criminals. From the standpoint of moral law, compulsion which might prevent the ideal educational activity being conducted by these people with their own children is hopelessly wrong.

Would that more families would take the interest in learning the Wilsons have shown. Several hundred thousand home-taught and home-disciplined young people would bring a whole new tone to the United States.

Mobility - To Resist Messianic Complex

We would like to explore an area of thought which apparently has been neglected in recent years. There has been so very much emphasis upon organized charity; upon being our brother's keeper; upon sharing our goods with others, that discussions in this field have tended to become one-sided.

Much mental energy and much more sweat and treasure have been expended in ways related to bringing succor to the problems of human beings who appear to be in "need." Little if any energy or treasure has been expended upon the theme that the evidence of "need," if it exists, is perhaps the most vital element in the forward motion of the race.

Persons who have the bulk of their requirements taken care of with some degree of facility, are rarely among the pioneers. Easy access to food, clothing and shelter does little to engender the higher qualities to which the human race can aspire.

Thus, and especially in recent years, Americans have expended much in an effort to raise the standards of Hindus, Latians, Europeans and Asians.

In this effort, Americans, drained of their resources, have comforted themselves by assuring each other that their effort is "noble." We have taken on not only the "white man's burden" but the burden of virtually every race and every nationality. And we are confident in the assumption of these responsibilities that we are being generous.

In our willingness to sacrifice ourselves for others but rather in our unwillingness to remove from others the stimulation and the instruction they can find in meeting their own problems?

We may think we are being high minded and virtuously akin to angels by depriving ourselves in the name of sweet brotherhood. But how much more noble it is to let our brother stand on his own feet and develop his own manhood without a subsidy.

Manhood that is subsidized is not manhood; it is dependence. And dependence is the quality of infants, not the quality of maturity. In this world, more than ever before, the character of maturity is a scarce item. We seem to have put aside our intrinsic worth in favor of the distribution of material things.

Yet it is always true that the producer, the maker, the creator of things — of services — is far more rewarded than he who simply receives out of the largesse of others who are successful.

Instead of being noble, are we not being mug and self-righteous in our assumption of the burdens which others should rightfully carry for themselves?

We speak of a larger good. What could be a larger good than a humanity which stood on its own feet? And what could be smaller than the unrealistic view that some persons are superior to others and hence must support them as though they were second-class citizens?

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Once upon a time an American short-story writer came up with an idea that dazzled him so that he sat down and wrote it as fast as he could and sold it immediately. I have utterly no memory of his name or the title of the story, but it was about a young novelist who married a showgirl and how, in time, she became a writer and prospered and he became an actor and did only middling well. It was so sound an idea that it has become 27 movies since, all variations of the basic theme.

I do not ordinarily take you by your hand and lead you into the bizarre things that happen in my house, but the truth is that the 27th variation has just happened to me. I am, confessedly, stunned.

Along back there in September when our young ventriloquist off to school in Washington, my bride and I found ourselves in a house disturbingly empty and silent. The first few days were a wrack, but emotions quieted down and she said, at dinner one night, that she had in high school and college written a few themes and ideas that attracted pleasant attention, had written a poem that the New York Herald Tribune published on its editorial page for $13.40 and, since the oncoming theatrical season promised neither to be brilliant nor to offer her a job as an actress, she was going to Columbia University and learn how to write. Write good, I said she needed to go to Columbia University or somewhere and learn the English language first—the phrase was write well not write good. When she stopped throwing things at me, she agreed that the phrase was write well. And started going back to college.

About that time a radio network, for which I had done a few fugitive broadcasts, sat me down and suggested that I do something more tangible and regular for them and I soon found myself doing 10 news broadcasts a week plus five 15-minute each commentaries and I had to jot AFTRA, the performers' union for radio and TV.

Now, you see, you have the plot. Where once I whacked at a typewriter at home and knocked out columns and an occasional story, my wife now is huddled over the thing and guarding it as a lioness guards her cubs. I can't even touch it. Furthermore, her first three stories written for class not only were read aloud to a class as examples of how to write, but she has sold one of them to a first-class magazine that pays sound money.

My case has not vastly altered. I still do 10 news broadcasts and five commentaries a week and no major sponsor — like the Ford Motor Co., say — has come along and twisted my arm to accept $100,000 a year as their exclusive announcer and commentator. I have a good sponsor, don't misunderstand. But that $100,000 lip-poor hasn't yet fallen into my lap.

On the home front there are changes, too. Where once she paced the floor learning lines and giving anyone who made even a rip of sound an incinerating look, she now is bent over a typewriter writing and giving incinerating looks to anyone who can't suddenly and on demand tell her how to spell Madrid. She is in the throes of a story about Madrid and came back from there a few years ago with the Castilian pronunciation — Mathreeth. She is finding it difficult to accept the simple Madrid — as correct in view of that pronunciation.

As for me, I am making the life at home hideous by coming home from the theater, giving the happy, ecstatic dog a sour look if he opens his jaws, being blunt with my bride and saying: "You stay up and write if you like, but please try to be quiet. I have an early show in the morning and have to get some sleep. Can't you wait to work that typewriter until I leave in the morning?"

I cannot remember how the man's original story came out. Happily, I imagine or he would not have sold it. Unhappy endings were not popular in those days. I don't even know how ours is going to end.

All I know is that it is very distressing to have a lady write in the house when a man has to give a good performance the next day.

temptation. If the Creator of all men was willing to trust the laws of nature for the evolution of individuals on an individualistic basis, a point which is self-evident in nature, how is man proving his superiority by seeking to organize on a global level to complete the work of the Creator?

Is this not, perhaps, our most vulnerable conceit? And how does the individual on the receiving end of our hard-earned wealth repay us for rubbing his nose in our productivity? He hates us, as he properly should. He despises what he finds to be our self-assumed role of global superiority.

Americans must learn to resist the temptation, not of refusing to assist others, but of assisting others. A world constructed of suppliant masses, dependent upon the few who produce, is far below the nobility to which we aspire and to which we could attain if we could resist the temptation to become the savior of the world.

Upside-Down "Sit Down"

ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — New talks are underway that could lead to the liberation of U-2 plane pilot Francis Powers.

Significantly, this latest move was initiated by Moscow which is displaying exceptional interest in securing the release of Igor Malekh, the 47-year-old United Nations official the FBI arrested last October on charges of attempting to obtain aerial photographs of Chicago.

The U.S. is endeavoring to utilize this intense Soviet concern about Malekh to secure the return of Powers.

Outcome of these backstage discussions — in Washington, Moscow and the UN — is conjectural. The situation is complex, and the involved negotiations may lead to something, and then again they may not.

It depends largely on how far the Kremlin is willing to go for Malekh.

The unusual efforts in his behalf are in direct contrast to the Soviet's apparent indifference to the fate of Colonel Rudolf Abel, the "master spy" seized by the FBI in 1957, and now serving a 30-year sentence. Moscow has completely ignored him.

Malekh is out on $50,000. Next week his attorneys will try to get his case dismissed in federal court on the ground he has diplomatic immunity.

This extraordinary claim is based on the contention that at the same time Malekh was head of the Russian Language Section of the UN Office of Conference Services, he also held the rank of Second Secretary in the Soviet Foreign Office.

This is in complete violation of UN rules.

United Nations employees are supposed to be that and nothing else. But since Malekh's arrest for espionage, the sole basis for seeking his release has been that he is a Russian diplomat and entitled to immunity.

That argument has already been rejected by one federal judge. The Justice Department will again oppose it next week.

Meanwhile, the State Department has indicated willingness to exchange Malekh for Powers. That is, the triple-charge espionage case against Malekh would be dropped in return for Powers' liberation.

THE COUNTER OFFERS — Significantly, this offer has not been turned down.

Instead, the Soviet has countered with the proposal to consider freeing Powers after the spy charges against Malekh have been squashed. The Kremlin holds that should be done as a "goodwill gesture" for the release of the two RB-47 pilots.

The U.S. emphatically does not see it that way.

PAUL SCOTT
WASHINGTON — New talks are underway that could lead to the liberation of U-2 plane pilot Francis Powers.

Obviously, the Kremlin is extremely anxious to get Malekh back to Russia.

HE OUGHT TO KNOW — Newly-named Census Director Richard Scammon has first-hand knowledge on the possibility of free elections in the Dominican Republic that has been under the iron rule of Dictator Rafael Trujillo for some 30 years.

Scammon has a study there last year and reported, "Trujillo alone can make the decision to hold free elections." Tunisia's new Ambassador to Washington will fight in with the "New Frontier." He is Habib Bourguiba, Jr., 34-year-old son of the President of that country, and his wife Neila is a 26-year-old Parisian beauty.

Queen Elizabeth is making brief stopover visits in Turkey and Iran, next week, enroute home from her trips to India and Pakistan.

Czechoslovakian technicians have arrived in Havana for the announced purpose of erecting a factory that they say will turn out 20,000 bicycles a year. The plant is being financed by the Czechs in return for a monopoly of the bicycle business.

The Governor of Syria's Central Bank has quit ostensibly because of "poor health," but actually because of disagreement over Nasser's fiscal policies. The UAR dictator cut the value of the Syrian lira to the level of the Egyptian pound, and transferred Syrian bank reserves to Cairo. The head of Syria's Central Bank strongly opposed these moves and, when he couldn't stop them, resigned.

The new aircraft carrier Brazil recently got from Britain is not sufficient in the opinion of Admiral Jorge Leite, chief of the naval general staff. He contends Brazil needs at least four aircraft carriers to be adequately protected. Leite points out the U.S. has scores of aircraft carriers, England 8, France 1 and Canada 1. Also that Russia has more than 500 submarines.

ROME, Italy — I have met few Europeans who did not want to visit the United States, and I have met few who thought they could afford to.

Cost, not lack of interest or unreasonable visa requirements, is the major cause of America's meager tourist business. Europeans dream of seeing New York, Washington, and Los Angeles, but most admit that they might just as well be dreaming of the moon.

No amount of tourist propaganda by the United States is going to lure the average European to our shores as long as the difference in prices is as great as it is. He simply doesn't make enough money to afford it.

Our prices for hotel rooms, food, and entertainment rock the European back on his Old World heels just to read about them. The thought of paying such sums — well, it's out of the question save for the wealthy few.

Even an American, long accustomed to high prices, gets a shock on his return from Europe. A few months away and New York strikes him as one vast clipity-downtown commercial hotel — not a de luxe one — goes for a nywhere from $15 to $20. A steak, a baked potato, and a green salad, five bucks or more.

A theater ticket, depending on whether the show is a big hit, anywhere from six to ten to twelve dollars.

Our standard of living is geared to such prices, but the European's is not. The middle-class Italian with a middle-class income, thinks twice before he pays more than eight dollars for a double room, with breakfast thrown in, in a first-class hotel. Even in July and August, when tourists overrun his country, and rooms are scarce, the de luxe hotels offer their top double accommodations for twelve to fourteen dollars.

This is true of most European countries, though I'll admit that the French are inclined to do their share of gouging when Americans hit town like locusts.

Our country has many fine restaurants, but so do the countries over here, and the difference in prices is amazing. One can have a lovely meal in Germany, superbly served, complete with wine, for three or four dollars. In the U.S. it's hard to get away from a hamburger drive-in, with the chili still wet on one's lips, for under a dollar.

I know beach resorts in Italy where a couple can have a double room overlooking the ocean, and three meals a day, with a cabana for free, for about ten dollars for the two of them. There's quite a difference between that and $40 a day for a single in Miami in the winter.

A family can go skiing for a weekend in Europe and not ruin a fifty-dollar bill, and that's more than a couple can do with one evening in a nightclub in New York.

Europeans Want To Visit U. S.

By HAROLD T. HYMAN

In accepting the Goldberger award, offered by the American Medical Assn. and the Nutrition Foundation, Dr. Richard W. Vilter of the University of Cincinnati emphasized the following aspects of the anemia problem that had previously been called to the attention of regular readers of these columns:

While dietary deficiency is a common cause for anemia in underdeveloped areas of the world, it is of relative unimportance in the United States—thanks to the general excellence of the American diet.

Daily servings of lean meat, dairy products, cereals, green and yellow vegetables and citrus fruits satisfactorily guard against deficiency anemias.

Uncontrolled treatment of anemia with complicated vitamin-mineral mixtures is rarely useful. It may be dangerous if it delays diagnostic investigation into the more frequent causes for anemia, such as chronic bleeding from a non-malignant condition like hemorrhoids or from a malignancy still accessible to curative treatment.

Even in the 4 per cent of anemias due to vitamin deficiency in the United States, "shotgun mixtures" may be harmful if they temporarily correct the anemia without delaying the progress of the accompanying involvement of the nervous system that is responsible for such manifestations as burning tongue, numbness of hands and feet, diarrhea, skin discoloration and difficulties in maintaining balance and in walking.

Because vitamin C is so plentifully provided by citrus fruits, tomatoes and a wide variety of fresh, frozen and canned vegetables, it is rarely a factor in the production of anemia in the American patient. Except in the cases of those who are suffering from some profound disease, vitamin C deficiency or scurvy is virtually unknown in all civilized communities.

Except for vitamin B12, other components of the B complex are not involved in human anemias although they may cause blood deficiencies under artificial conditions in laboratory animals. And when B12 is the cause for a human anemia, the deficiency may be corrected by a single monthly injection of the missing ingredient.

Doctor Vilter concluded his acceptance speech with the statement that "not repeated and overly healthy children" become ill over the course of the next few months, call your doctor without delay and tell him about your experience.

Unhappily, the murderous "golden staphylococcus" has not even the grace to go on its way after inflicting such sorrow on a household like yours. It may continue to lurk about in search of more victims unless you obtain immediate treatment with one of the newer "miracle drugs" now available to the medical profession.

Soviet Spaceship Due Near Venus Around May 20th

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet inter-planetary space station launched Feb. 12 is expected to reach "the vicinity" of Venus between May 19 and 20, the official news agency Tass said today.

In a Moscow broadcast monitored here, Tass said at that time the space station will be about 62,000 miles from the planet.

The 1,415-pound space vehicle was launched two weeks ago from a heavy artificial satellite that had already been placed in orbit around the earth.

The Tass announcement, which quoted figures published by the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, said the space station would be some 43,400,000 miles from earth when it reaches "the vicinity" of Venus.

STITCHER IN TIME—According to the history books, Howe invented the sewing machine and patented it. However, 84-year-old Mrs. Ray Evahson of Oshkosh has a sewing machine which bears the patent date of 1850. The machine is a Melceums chain stitch. The antique, which still works well, was used by Mrs. Evahson's grandmother, who made all her family's clothes on it—including her husband's suits.
