Senate Republicans...
Rebel Against Austerity Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, rebelling against President Reagan's latest austerity program, say they probably will approve less than a third of the $16 billion package the administration wants before Congress adjourns for the year.

GOP leaders said the Senate is unlikely to act before next year to act on Reagan's call for $3 billion in increased tax revenues and $2.6 billion in cuts from government benefit programs. In addition, they said, Reagan probably will get no more than $5 billion of the $10.4 billion he wants in additional 1982 budget cuts.

The Republicans made their feelings known as the Senate began debate on a bill to restore the $122-a-month minimum Social Security benefit for more than 2.5 million beneficiaries. The legislation also is designed to assure financial stability for Social Security through the end of the decade, partly by making sick pay subject to the payroll tax.

Senate GOP leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said he hoped the measure could be approved late today or Friday, although Democrats were attempting to use the bill to repeal part of the tax break Congress voted earlier this year for the oil industry.

The bleak assessment of chances for Reagan's latest round of budget cuts included:

—Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he doubted legislation would reach the Senate floor this year to raise tax revenues. Reagan has yet to send details of his proposal to Congress.

—Dole said action would be deferred until next year at the earliest on Reagan's plan to trim $2.6 billion from the 1982 budget for benefit programs such as pensions and food stamps.

—Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., indicated he intends to ask the Appropriations Committee to begin drafting 1982 spending bills in the next few days without regard to Reagan's call for 12 percent, across-the-board cuts in domestic programs.

Hatfield had said previously he believes the committee, which he heads, would approve a total of $5 billion in cuts in defense and other domestic programs.

Saudis Push Own Peace Plan

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabia is stepping up its campaign on behalf of an alternative to the Camp David peace process following the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. But Israel says it will make no concessions.

The oil-rich kingdom is expected to present Crown Prince Fahd's eight-point blueprint for Mideast peace to the Arab summit scheduled Nov. 25-27 in Fez, Morocco.

Flood Stages Reached

Oklahomans living along the rain-swollen Red River and its tributaries were continuing their cleanup and repair projects today after the waterways crested at record flood levels.

Some rivers, waterlogged by 18-inch rains that pounded the area earlier this week, aren't expected to be back in their banks until Saturday, National Weather Service officials said.

Gold Auto Unveiled In Snyder National Lobby

As television cameras zeroed in and scores of people gathered around, a gold-plated De Lorean automobile became a focal point in the lobby of Snyder National Bank this morning.

The car, which was ordered more than a year ago by SNB President Roger B. Mize, was unveiled by the Mize daughters, Lynda Tolleson and Vicki Kallemeyn, and it will remain on display indefinitely in its own glassed-in area of the bank lobby.

The unveiling attracted considerable interest in and out of Snyder. Three television stations sent crews here to cover the event, including Channels 12 and 32 (SCAT 5) of Abilene, and Channel 11 of Lubbock.

The automobile was manufactured in the plant of John De Lorean in Dunmurry, a suburb of Belfast, Ireland. De Lorean's firm makes a sports car aimed at the American market, and Mize purchased one of two gold-plated vehicles turned out in the De Lorean plant. The other gold-plated car went to a purchaser in San Francisco.

After the cover was removed, Mize opened the gull-swing doors and visitors crowded around to get a close look at the inside of the car.

Although the car is equipped with powerful engine, Mize discounted the possibility that it would ever be driven. He said he bought it purely for display at the bank.

Egypt's Mubarak...
Consolidates Power Reins

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Consolidating his grip on the reins of power, Egypt's new president, Hosni Mubarak, named himself prime minister, retained the cabinet of his assassinated predecessor and extended the death penalty to anyone using unlicensed weapons to break the peace.

Mubarak, handpicked heir of slain President Anwar Sadat, took the oath of office before Parliament Wednesday, a day after Egypt's voters gave him a landslide endorsement in a referendum in which he was the only candidate.

His televised inaugural address to the People's Assembly included a tearful testimonial to Sadat and a pledge to "continue in all its letter and commitment" the U.S.-sponsored Camp David peace program with Israel.

The Reagan administration, seeking to strengthen the shaken hand of America's strongest Arab ally in the Middle East, announced it was adding two AWACS planes to the force it is sending for joint maneuvers with Egyptian and Sudanese forces in Egypt.

Although the maneuvers do not begin until next month, the advanced radar reconnaissance planes were arriving today. An authoritative source in Washington said they would remain in the area indefinitely to help protect Egypt and Sudan against Libya.

After Sadat's death the Reagan administration also promised to speed up shipments of U.S. military equipment to Egypt and Sudan. But Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday it was impossible to increase arms shipments to both nations at the same time.

In his inaugural address, Mubarak took aim at the Moslem extremists blamed for killing Sadat and for subsequent anti-government attacks in Cairo and the Moslem fundamentalist stronghold of Assyut, a city 250 miles south of the capital.

"The sword of the law will be used against any lawbreaker, no matter his rank, wealth or privilege," he declared.

"I say from here, I say to all those who exploit the freedom of the people and their safety...they shall not escape fierce punishment."

He warned that he will not tolerate a resumption of the summer's strife between Moslem fundamentalists and the Coptic Christian minority.

"We are all Egyptians with our souls and blood," he said. "There is no difference between Moslems and Christians."

The religious violence, in which at least 70 people were killed, prompted Sadat's roundup last month of more than 1,500 Moslem fundamentalists, Copts and political opponents.

The SDN Column

The confusion and unrest in the Middle East following the assassination of Anwar Sadat kept President Ronald Reagan from attending Sadat's funeral and in so doing led to an unusual situation in this country.

The last we heard, they were still checking the records to determine whether four men who had served as president had ever been together in the White House before. Since he could not go to Sadat's funeral, President Reagan designated three former presidents, Richard Nixon, Jerry Ford and Jimmy Carter to be his official representatives. They met at the White House, Reagan and three predecessors.

It is unusual for more than two former presidents to be alive, let alone visit the White House at the same time. Herbert Hoover, who lived to be 90 years old, saw five more men ascend to the office of president, and for a brief period in the early 60s, there were three former presidents alive---Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower. But when Hoover left office early in 1933, he was the only former president alive, as Franklin D. Roosevelt took office, and we don't recall Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower ever meeting with President John F. Kennedy in the White House during those months that they were all alive.

People used to say that a term in the White House took 10 years off a person's life, and in the earlier days, perhaps that was true. Yet, today, when the stress of the office is much heavier, our presidents seem to endure better than ever, that is, if they do not get shot. It shows a type of progress, and it also points up a contrast between our way of life and that of the Middle East and some other regions of the world. This type of progress enabled Ronald Reagan to become president. A quarter century ago, a 70-year-old man would have received little or no consideration as a presidential candidate, regardless of his qualifications otherwise. We remember the dashed hopes of the late Alben Barkley, the astute orator from Kentucky, who hoped to get the nomination for president at the 1952 National Democratic Convention. He had served as vice president with Harry S. Truman. Party leaders were sympathetic, but they candidly told Barkley, who was 73, that he was too old.

Then, as if to "show 'em," Barkley requested and was granted a spot on the convention program to address the convention and he treated the delegates to what many decared to be one of the most forceful and moving speeches they ever heard. But five years later, Alben Barkley was dead.

Local Fees Opposed...
Snyder Woman Leads Telephone Rate Fight

People ought to read their newspaper closer, Mrs. J. A. Merritt believes.

"I didn't even see it myself, but Florine (Merritt) called and asked me if I saw that article in the Snyder Daily News last Sunday about telephone rates. She said somebody ought to do something about it."

Mrs. Merritt decided she would become one to try to "do something about it," and this decision led to a petition that literally snowballed within a few hours.

Mrs. Merritt is circulating a petition opposing "measured local service" by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Measured service is the term used by the phone company in reference to a proposal to establish a toll system for local phone calls. The length of the calls, time of day they are made, etc., would determine how much a person would be charged for his local telephone calls. At present, telephone customers pay a flat monthly charge for local service, with long distance charges extra.

"This is ridiculous," said Mrs. Merritt, referring to the measured service proposal. "It would be a big blow to senior citizens. Being able to call people on the telephone is a big part of recreation for many of them. If they are charged for each call, few of them can afford it because most of them are on fixed incomes."

Mrs. Merritt said she went to the courthouse first "to see if I would be doing anything illegal" when she decided to start the petition. The people she consulted there---District Attorney Pete Greene, County Attorney George Killam, District Judge Wayland Holt, and others---not only assured her that she had a right to circulate the petition, but they also signed it.

She also has been in contact with State Rep. Larry Don Shaw and the office of Congressman Charles W. Stenholm. All have encouraged her in the project.

"They say we have until Oct. 28 before the Public Utilities Commission takes it up."

Since then, the petition has grown rapidly, and now copies are available at the Scurry County Coliseum and at the Scurry County Senior Center for anyone who wishes to sign.

And, oh yes, Mrs. Merritt still carries one herself, and if you meet up with her, you'll get a chance to sign on the spot.

Q.—Will there be a swimming pool in the new city park?

A.—There are no plans for a swimming pool in Line Park, which is scheduled for development as the first city-owned park here. And it is highly unlikely that a pool will be considered in the future, since the new park property is subject to flooding and all facilities being planned there take this into consideration.

Justin Wilson Here Tonight

The spotlight will be on Justin Wilson tonight at a "Cajun Cookout" in the Scurry County Coliseum, sponsored by the local chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

The dinner session will begin at 6:30 p. m., and tickets priced at $12 each will be available at the door.

Cindy Hataway, well-known vocalist from Snyder, will present entertainment also.

It will be the second time for the API to sponsor an appearance here by Wilson, widely-known "Cajun Humorist." He scored a "hit" here in February of 1980.

Proceeds from tonight's event will go to the West Texas rehabilitation Center, which has facilities in Snyder, Abilene and San Angelo.

Plans Shape Up For Farm Tour

Plans are proceeding for a Scurry County Farm Tour scheduled for Saturday, according to the tour planning committee headed by Billy Roach, county extension agent.

Buses will leave the Scurry County Coliseum at 8:30 a. m. Designated stops will be made at the Snyder Co-Op Gin, a drip irrigation system, parallel terrace systems, Hermleigh Community Improvement Program, a cotton variety demonstration, an underground drainage system, the Von Roeder Seed Farm variety plots and crossing blocks.

A barbecue lunch will be served in Room A of the coliseum at noon.

A highlight of the tour will be a talk by Charles W. Stenholm, 17th District Congressman. It is hoped that Congressman Stenholm will have a report on the farm bill.

Hosting the noon meal are the financial firms in Scurry County: West Texas State Bank, Snyder National Bank, First National Bank, Snyder Savings and Loan, First Federal Savings and Loan, and Production Credit Association.

Producers and agribusiness representatives are being encouraged to make the tour and hear Stenholm.

Vickie Daniel...

Testimony Continues In Trial

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The widow of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. told two medical aides she shot her husband, but insisted it was accidental, the aides testified.

"She said she did not mean to do it," Oscar Cantu, an emergency medical technician, told jurors Wednesday in the Vickie Daniel murder trial.

Mrs. Daniel, 34, is accused of killing her wealthy, widely known husband at the family's stylish ranch house last January.

Cantu, 20, and co-worker John Anderson, the lead-off prosecution witnesses, told of arriving at the Daniel home within minutes of the nighttime shooting.

The medical aides and family friend Bill Buchanan, a broadcast executive, said they found Mrs. Daniel crying and screaming and Daniel lying in a pool of blood.

"She was in a high state of hysteria," said Buchanan, whose Tuesday testimony was interrupted by the overnight recess.

Cantu, looking nervous and tense, said Mrs. Daniel met him inside the front door and recalled her saying, "He's in the back."

The witness said he located the body in a hallway near a back entrance and that he checked but found no vital signs.

"What happened?" Cantu said he asked Mrs. Daniel.

"I shot him," he said she replied.

Later, on cross-examination, Cantu elaborated, "She said they were arguing," he recalled. "She said he went upstairs to get some pot or something. She said she went to get a gun to try and scare him.

"He said, 'Oh, no!' It went off," he quoted Mrs. Daniel as saying.

Still later, a defense attorney produced a statement Cantu gave authories after the shooting. The witness then recalled Mrs. Daniel saying, "It was an accident" and that "She did not mean to do it."

Anderson's testimony largely matched his colleague's. He called Mrs. Daniel "totally hysterical" and said it took four people to restrain her.

"Do you recall observing any blood ... bruises ... cuts ... or scratches ... on Mrs. Daniel's face?" a defense attorney asked.

"No, I did not," Anderson replied, but later conceded that he did not make a close inspection.

That testimony went to the heart of one major defense contention — that Daniel beat his wife a short time before the shooting.

Roughly 100 spectators partially filled the Liberty County courthouse for Wednesday's opening testimony, including one avid supporter of Mrs. Daniel.

A woman grabbed and hugged the blonde denfendent the moment testimony ended and it appeared someone might need to free Mrs. Daniel from the grip.

The incident vaguely reflects the emotional depth of the case, which has split this Southeast Texas city of some 10,000.

Procrastinators Must Hurry Up

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Quick! Hurry! Before it's too early!

The Procrastinators Club of Tucson says it finds itself in a rare position — being forced to hurry up.

Because of the 2-cent increase in the postal rate Nov. 1, the procrastinators say they will have to mail their Christmas cards earlier than uncontemplated.

However, the cards aren't for Christmas 1981. They're for Christmas 1980, the traditional season's greeting of the stalwart stallers.

The cards will be mailed Oct. 31, said Stuart Gellman, founder of the chapter, because waiting one more day would be inconvenient for members who still have stashes of 6-cent stamps.

Gellman said they planned to mail the cards on its normal mid-summer schedule, but was delayed by several projects, including an award to Gov. Bruce Babbitt for refusing to go on daylight savings time.

Legislator Seeks Congress Seat

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The first hat hit the ring Wednesday when state Rep. Ron Coleman of El Paso announced that he would seek the congressional seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. Richard White.

The five-term state representative is the first formally declared candidate for White's seat, which is expected to attract others before the May primary.

White announced two weeks ago that he wouldn't seek election to a 10th term in the House because he wants to spend more time with his family.

Coleman, 39, said he had considered a congressional campaign before, but had ruled out any bid while White held the office.

The El Paso lawyer predicted the 16th congressional district campaign will focus on the country's economic problems.

"I think we'll be talking about the Reagan economic policies and whether they're working or not," Coleman said.

Coleman's voice on the House floor earned him recognition by Texas Monthly magazine as the "Best Legislator" in the [illegible] sion and one of [illegible] Best" in 1977 and 1981.

Berry's World

at wits end

by erma bombeck

One of the first concerns of new mothers is the eating habits of children.

I can make you an authority in 400 words or less.

The more teeth a child has, the less he chews.

He or she will never eat anything that is good for him-gives him strong bones or teeth-makes him feel better.

He will never eat anything that is green.

His first words will be "a la carte."

He will never eat the same cereal twice.

A child inherently feels that the dog gets better food than he does.

When a mother pretends to love the white lumpy stuff in the spoon that smells, a child has absolutely no reason to trust her.

Knowing this, I cannot imagine why there is flak every year somewhere regarding school lunches. The school lunch has always been designed to give children the nutritional balance and vitamins necessary for growth and development that a child is put to bed early for not eating at home.

Some children have been known to enter high school believing in their hearts that broccoli is something you plant on Arbor Day for shade.

Yet every year someone insists upon converting them to nutrition despite the fact that nutrition is what gets thrown out.

This year, at a school in New York, a realistic administrator has declared, "Let 'em eat pizza"...a phrase that ranks right up there with "Don't turn your back on a two-year-old."

He has rationalized that pizza has all the basic standards to get students through the day and wants it on the menu every day. I say, let the man speak. He obviously knows children. Once pizza has the sanction of school and parents, I fully expect a rebellion among them to protest they are being fed junk food and will demand string beans, Harvard beets and okra.

Until then, the award for ingenuity goes to a school in the Midwest which announced that the price of a school lunch will go up to $1.35 this year.

If exorbitant prices don't get children flocking to the cafeteria, then I've been a mother 25 years for nothing.

Your Birthday

October 16, 1981

Your horizons will be greatly expanded this coming year, as well as your circle of friends and acquaintances. You'll find adventure in things which you've never attempted before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A pal might come to you for advice today and you could be tempted to tell him what he wants to hear. You can assist him only by being honest and frank. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be businesslike in commercial affairs today, even if you're involved with someone you know on a friendly basis. It will avoid future problems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you really want to impress the one you love today, show that you'll stand by your commitments regardless of how much they may inconvenience you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are two important tasks to which you've not been as attentive as you should be. This is a good day to complete them to your satisfaction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) At a social gathering today a member of the opposite sex may single you out for special attention. Unless you came alone, you'd be wise to ignore his or her advances.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things will have a way of working out for you today, even if you didn't personally initiate them. This is especially true if your career or finances are affected.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although you may not be as tactful as you should be, you still have the ability to sway others. They'll overlook your lack of charm because of the value of your ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Financial conditions are likely to be a mixed bag today, but gains should be greater than expenditures, provided you use your smarts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll get along best with persons today who have direction and purpose, because they'll inspire you to achieve. Avoid flightly types with no goals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be helpful today to persons who are making sincere efforts, but who can't cut it on their own. Let the indolent and lazy fend for themselves.

Berserk Man Kills Several

PARAMOUNT, Calif. (AP) — A 32-year-old man who shot and killed his girlfriend, two of her children and himself had been drinking and had argued with the girlfriend and his estranged wife, authorities said.

Along with the bodies of Ronald Phillips, 32, Cathy Swanson, 30, and her children Robert Swanson, 4, and 9-month-old brother Jackie, police found an arsenal of weapons at Phillips' home early Tuesday.

Another child, Timmy Swanson, was in stable condition at a hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in the head, said Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy Merlyn Poppleton. Phillips had been "drinking heavily throughout the day," he added.

Phillip's ex-wife, Nancy, said he was a former Marine and truck driver. He was wearing combat fatigues at the time of the shooting.

The Sahara Desert in northwest Africa is the world's largest desert. It covers about 3½ million square miles and is roughly equal to the United States in size.

Hamman and Wolff open four-card majors so they got to a most optimistic four hearts in just two bids.

Things started out nicely when dummy's jack held the first spade trick. The heart 10 was led to the ace at trick two. Then the French player led a low diamond. Wolff went right up with dummy's king. When it held he drew trumps, discarded dummy's last two diamonds on the ace-king of spades and eventually lost two club tricks to make his game.

At the other table Passell, sitting West, played the ace of diamonds instead of underleading it and then led a second diamond to dummy's king.

Declarer drew the last trump and discarded a club and a diamond on good spades. Then he entered dummy with a third trump in order to lead a club to his king.

If Passell had been at all careless, he would have played a low club, but Passell was wide awake. He dropped his queen under South's king whereupon Hamilton collected two tricks with his ace and 10 of clubs.

This hand shows the American team at its best. Wolff had to play very well to take advantage of a French error. Passell had to defend even better to keep the French declarer from making his contract.

In Favor Of AWACS Sale...

Try To Sway U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan had the support of Texas' "boll weevils" but not its Republicans on the 301-111 vote Wednesday in the House of Representatives to disapprove Reagan's proposed AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia.

All five of the state's GOP members voted for the resolution that expressed disapproval of the sale, while seven of the state's eight Conservative Democratic Forum members voted with the president.

The vote among Texas' 24-member delegation was 13-10 against the sale, with Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, not voting.

An aide to Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, the deputy minority whip of the House, said Loeffler's opposition "was based essentially on what happened when the shah was overthrown in Iran."

"Sophisticated material fell into the wrong hands. He sees that as something that could happen again," said Loeffler's press secretary, Jim Overton.

Charlie Stenholm, D-Stamford, chairman of the 47-member Democratic conservative coalition, smiled when someone mentioned the GOP congressmen voted against the president while he and other CDF members supported Reagan.

"I thought that was interesting," Stenholm said.

"When you look at the total package, including the commitment made by the president, I believe it is in our best interests for the sale to be made. It's important that we begin to build on our support in the Middle East."

Both the House and Senate must disapprove the sale of Airborne Warning and Control System planes before the plan is scuttled.

The House's action had been anticipated. The sale of Airborne Warning and Control System planes to Saudi Arabia will still go through if the Senate okays it. Before the president's proposal can be scuttled it must be disapproved by both the House and Senate.

Voting for the resolution — against the AWACS sale — in the House Wednesday were 193 Democrats and 108 Republicans, while 33 Democrats and 78 Republicans voted no.

Among the 33 Democrats who supported Reagan's commitment to supply the sophisticated aircraft to Saudi Arabia, almost a third were from Texas.

The 10 votes from Texas for the AWACS sale included only three Texans who are not boll weevils — Charlie Wilson of Lufkin, Abraham Kazen of Laredo and Bill Patman of Ganado.

Ralph Hall of Rockwall was the only CDF member from Texas voting to disapprove the sale.

CDF members voting for the AWACS sale were Stenholm, Phil Gramm of College Station, Sam Hall of Marshall, Kent Hance of Lubbock, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Marvin Leath of Marlin and Richard White of El Paso.

But voting for the resolution were GOP members Loeffler, Bill Archer of Houston, Jim Collins of Dallas, Jack Fields of Humble and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

Besides Ralph Hall, Democrats voting against the AWACS sale were Kika de la Garza of Mission, Martin Frost of Dallas, Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio, Mickey Leland of Houston, Jim Mattox of Dallas, Jake Pickle of Austin, and Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth.

Doctor Gives Stern Warning

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A doctor warns if reputed New England crime boss Raymond L.S. Patriarca goes to Miami to face a racketeering charge, he'll run a high risk of succumbing to a heart ailment.

Cardiologist Barbara Roberts told a federal magistrate Tuesday that Patriarca, 73, suffers from severe heart disease and diabetes and has only a 50-50 chance of surviving the year under the best conditions.

New Committee To Help Deal With Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is re-establishing a National Advisory Committee on Meat and Poultry Inspection to help deal with a variety of federal regulations that affect farmers and consumers.

But the 17-member panel, which was announced Wednesday by Assistant Agriculture Secretary C.W. McMillan, identifies only one appointee as a farmer and none as a consumer representative.

As McMillan's announcement described it, the committee represents "scientific and public health organizations, federal and state government agencies, academic circles and various private interest and trade groups."

The lone farmer on the committee was identified as William D. Waters of Palmyra, N.C.

"The selection of committee members is based on nominations submitted by various groups," McMillan said. "Every effort was made to gain national geographic distribution as well as a divergence of backgrounds and expertise, to achieve a broadly balanced membership," he said.

Some of the topics to be taken up by the committee include mechanically processed meat, sodium content and labeling of meat and poultry products, food safety and legislative issues.

The advisory committee is required by law. Its organizational charter was established by Congress in 1971, renewed in 1978 and then renewed again, for an indefinite period, in 1980.

Rod Leonard, executive director of the Community Nutrition Institute, said his organization submitted several nominations to the committee but none was chosen. The non-profit institute actively engages in consumer issues relating to agriculture and the food supply.

Leonard said in a telephone interview that he was not surprised the new committee did not include a consumer representative. He said it was an indication of Reagan administration policies that have cut away from consumerism in favor of "a strong industry bias."

The previous panel — which served during the Carter administration — included two consumer representatives but no farmers.

Other members of the new committee included:

—Roslyn B. Alfin-Slater, School of Public Health, University of California, Los Angeles.

—Carrroll S. Brickenkamp, National Bureau of Standards, Commerce Department, Washington, D.C.

—Mahlon Burnette, The Nutrition Consortium, Washington, D.C.

—Mason Carbaugh, Virginia state commissioner of agriculture and consumer services, Richmond.

—Frank Rankin Craig, director of health services, Perdue Farms Inc., Salisbury, Md.

—Esther Cramer, vice president for community relations, Alpha Beta Co., La Habra, Calif.

—E.M. Foster, director, Food Research Institute and chairman of the Department of Food Microbiology and Toxicology, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

—Robert H. Lounsberry, secretary, Iowa state agriculture department, Des Moines.

—John E. McDade, vice president, Norbest Inc., Salt Lake City, Utah.

—Rosemary Mucklow, executive director, Pacific Coast Meat Association Inc., San Francisco.

—Dean Pridgeon, director of Michigan state department of agriculture, Lansing.

—Ernest Ross, poultry scientist, department of animal sciences, University of Hawaii, Honolulu.

—Former U.S. Rep. Keith Sebelius, lawyer, Norton, Kan.

—Yvonne Vizzier, director of laboratory services, Marshall Durbin Companies, Jackson, Miss.

—Elizabeth Whelan, executive director, American Council on Science and Health, Summit, N.J.

—George D. Wilson, American Meat Institute, Rosslyn, Va.

Some Farmers Can Be Happy

WASHINGTON (AP) — American soybean farmers can breathe a little easier because of a decision by the European Common Market not to impose an internal tax on vegetable oil.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that the proposal, which had been under consideration for some time, was recently rejected in Brussels by the Common Market commission.

Wallace Lindell of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wayne Sharp, the U.S. agricultural counselor in Brussels, informed department officials earlier this week that the tax plan had been turned down by the commission, at least for now.

On Tuesday, the department issued a news release quoting Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, who was then in Seoul, South Korea, as being "pleased that the commissioners decided not to recommend imposition of this tax."

Block is on a two-week trip to South Korea, Japan, China and Hong Kong.

Elephant Lives Through Flood

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — An elephant missing and presumed dead in the deluge that swamped the city zoo used her trunk as a snorkel to survive 30 to 40 hours snagged in the branches of a fallen tree, her trainer said.

"She's just utterly exhausted," Zoo Superindentent and trainer Vince Reynolds said Wednesday night. "I really don't see how she survived it."

Reynolds said the elephant escaped with a slight cold, a scarred trunk and a sore neck.

"Right now, we've got her on high ground. I started to take her back to her cage ... but she just wouldn't go. She got in that soft mud and she just wouldn't go any further. She'd had enough of that."

Gerry II, a 13-year-old female elephant that was reported missing and presumed dead Tuesday, was found snared in a fallen tree and stranded by the swift current of floodwaters that hid most of her massive body from rescuers.

"We could see her, but we just couldn't get to her because of the swift water," said Assistant Police Chief Carl Dunlap.

"She was able to keep her snout above water and breathe after she became entangled in the treetop. When we finally got to her, there was about a foot of her back sticking out of the water and her snout. We could see her eye every once in a while," he said.

Cowboys in this North Central Texas town began a roundup Tuesday of the animals that broke out when rising water from three days of heavy rain submerged the Frank Buck Zoo.

But some of the animals who escaped the rising waters still were on the loose late Wednesday.

"We don't have a full count of what animals are missing, but none you could consider dangerous. Mostly they're fleet of foot, like deer," said Dunlap.

The elephant, happily, is present and accounted for.

Reynolds, 61, said he has cared for Gerry II since the popular pachyderm came to Frank Buck Zoo about 12 years ago from Six Flags Over Texas.

"Our relationship? It's about like father and daughter. We got her when she just just a little more than a year old and I nursed her with a bottle for over a year and fed her five times a day. I got pretty close to her," he said.

The zoo is fashioned in a sloping valley-like environment, which filled up with the heavy rains until its banks were overflowing, Dunlap said.

"That flood came down on us so fast we didn't know what was taking place," Reynolds said. "We had very little water in the zoo when the rain started so we thought we'd get boats and open the door on monkey house."

Fifteen minutes later, he said, the whole zoo was submerged.

Gerry lives in a cement-block building in a low-lying area of the zoo.

"I don't know how she got out of her cage," Reynolds said. "But Tuesday night I realized she was alive. I had been sure she didn't live through it. I heard her trumpet lightly and I knew she was alive, but we still had a world of water.

"She was having to keep her trunk in upward position to get air. There were some boys down there and whether they called her and got her to come out of her house, I just don't know."

Reynolds said he stayed out on the bank well after Gerry was discovered snagged in the tree late Tuesday night, but finally went to bed.

"But after the police called me and told me she had come out, I stayed with her the rest of the day."

The zookeeper, who has been at the Gainesville zoo for 18 years, said he didn't know how many of his approximately 60 animals survived the deluge, though he was certain that three big sheep and two flamingoes had drowned.

"It's bad enough for anything to lose its life when it's out on its own," said Reynolds. "But I really feel like I'm responsible since those animals are penned. It's my fault."

Survey Almost Finished

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Officials expect to finish a survey of 66 unoccupied, dilapidated shacks here late this week or early next, and will then order the owners to repair or destroy the buildings, Lufkin's planning director says.

Ed Richie said Wednesday that the city will begin sending notices to landlords in two weeks. The owners will have the choice of bringing the structures up to the standards of the city housing code or demolishing them.

Richie said an informal survey the planning department completed in September identified 414 substandard "shotgun" shacks, so called because a shotgun blast fired from the front door could exit through the back door.

"We want to take care of those structures that are vacant first," Richie said.

The existence of the shotgun shanties was brought to the attention of city officials in July by a series of stories by the Lufkin News.

Many of the houses, built in the 1930s and 1940s for lumber mill workers and other laborers, do not have indoor plumbing. In one area, residents of 12 houses shared an outhouse.

Richie said 75 percent of the 414 houses needed substantial improvements. But he said the City Commission feels that "any kind of roof is better than no roof" and that the city has no plans to order occupied houses vacated.

Dear Abby

Man's Short Stature Looms Large in Romance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been a big fan of yours for a long time, but I've never written to you before.

I am 27, white, male, and I'm 4 feet, 6 inches tall and weigh 95 pounds. I have never had a date with a girl because all the girls I know are bigger than I am and they don't want to go with a runt.

Abby, I don't want to live the rest of my life single. I'd like to find a nice little lady and get married.

I've been told that there is a club somewhere in the U.S.A. for small people. Do you know anything about it? Please help me if you can. Thank you.

YOUR FAN IN ORANGE, TEXAS

DEAR FAN: The club you've heard about is "Little People of America." It was organized in 1957 to bring together people of smaller stature to help them meet others like themselves and to share valuable information, such as how to get the right kind of jobs, where to buy clothing in sizes for adults, not children, etc.

There are chapters of this organization all over the U.S.A.; they hold district and national conventions and publish an informative newsletter. They even have a teen membership. For information about the chapter nearest you, write to: Little People of America, Inc., National Headquarters, Box 126, Owatonna, Minn. 55060. Please enclose a S.A.S.E. as it is a non-profit organization. I recommend it highly.

DEAR ABBY: I have five daughters. My only son was killed when he was 16. How do I answer people when they ask me how many children I have? I feel bad saying I have only five, because my son is still in my heart. Also, if I say "I have five girls," I have to listen to jokes about having no boys. Then I have to tell them of my only son's death, and they and I feel bad.

So what is the correct answer? My head tells me to answer five, but my heart says six.

MRS. H.

DEAR MRS. H.: Listen to your heart, and say "I have five daughters; I lost my only son when he was 16."

That will eliminate any "jokes," and you will feel better.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I received a phone call from the 35-year-old illegitimate child of my deceased husband. The girl said she was anxious to know something about her father, thus she had traced her lineage and found me.

She knew before contacting me that she had been conceived within six months after my marriage and that the affair with her mother, of which I had no knowledge, was an ongoing thing from before our marriage. She also knew that her father had died some years ago. She has substantiated to me the truth of her claim.

This has brought me only heartache. I don't want to know this woman. I have two daughters and a son whom I love dearly, and I have no need for this woman to enter my life as a constant reminder of my husband's infidelity.

Abby, don't adoptees seeking natural parents know when to stop? Why do they contique their search at the risk of bringing unhappiness to innocent people?

In this case, the innocent people who could be hurt, in addition to me, are her adoptive parents, her biological mother's husband and children, and my children.

I beg you to ask those who seek their natural parents to please consider the heartaches they can bring to others in order to satisfy their own curiosity.

SUE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SUE: Consider it done.

Widow Files Damage Suit

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The widow of a man accidentally shot to death by law enforcement officials has filed a $2 million damage suit alleging a "whitewash" by local officials who investigated her husband's death.

James Grandstaff, 31, was shot on the 6666 ranch in Carson County Aug. 11, during a gun battle between law enforcement officers and an Oklahoma fugitive.

Ballistics tests conducted by the Texas Rangers showed the fatal bullet was fired by an officer's weapon, but authorities have refused to divulge who fired the shot.

Mrs. Sharon Grandstaff filed the suit in U.S. District Court Tuesday, naming as defendants the cities of Borger and Pampa, the counties of Carson, Gray and Hutchinson, Hutchinson County Deputy Sheriff Ricky Morris, and Borger police officers Robert Alonzo, John Ray, Bailey Roberts and John W. Turner.

Members of Grandstaff's family have called the grand jury investigation and an earlier investigation by Texas Rangers "a coverup."

Mrs. Grandstaff's suit alleges that the officers "handcuffed him, threw him to the ground and let him painfully and excruciatingly bleed to death."

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy of Pampa said no papers had been served on the county.

Heart Assn. Gets Activity Reports

Directors of the Scurry County Division of the American Heart Association heard reports of local activities at a noon meeting Wednesday.

Dr. Ben Brock, board president, directed the meeting. Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, program chairman, reported on educational programs being carried out in public schools. Mickey Baird, who will be in charge of a fund-raising "Turkey Walk" set for Nov. 7, presented preliminary plans for that project.

Susan Schmucker, regional AHA director, showed a film strip titled "What Is the American Heart Association," in which it was pointed out that this is an organization with a purpose vital to all Americans, to combat the crippling and fatal results of cardiovasculr diseases. It was originally a professional society, admitting only physicians and scientists to membership. In 1948, membership was opened to non-medical persons allowing a multi disciplinary attack on cardiovascular diseases. The first public education program was presented in 1947 through a grant from the American Legion.

Directors received memorial gift envelope racks to be distributed locally. Memorial gifts may be sent to the American Heart Association at Box 1185 in Snyder at any time.

Equipment Is Replaced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twelve Superliner observation lounge cars with wrap-around windows have replaced the dome cars on all of Amtrak's long-distance Western runs.

But the traditional dome cars, long an attraction on many U.S. trains, are not entirely gone from the rail scene.

READY FOR WINTER — Let Grahame Kerry or Dan Howell at Mason's Automotive help you prepare for winter by taking care of your automotive needs.(SDN Staff Photo)

The Pros At Mason's Automotive Are On Hand To Check All Needs

Don't let the first winter freeze catch you unprepared this winter-not with Mason's Automotive around.

Mason's, located at 1907 43rd Street, has all the pros on hand to give your car a winter check-up.

They can check your anti-freeze coolant to make sure your car is protected against winter freeze-up. They will check your cooling system, fan belts, battery and ignition system.

Also, they can align your front end, balance your tires or give you a complete tune-up.

The firm features Interstate batteries, and has a good stock on hand to fit most any car.

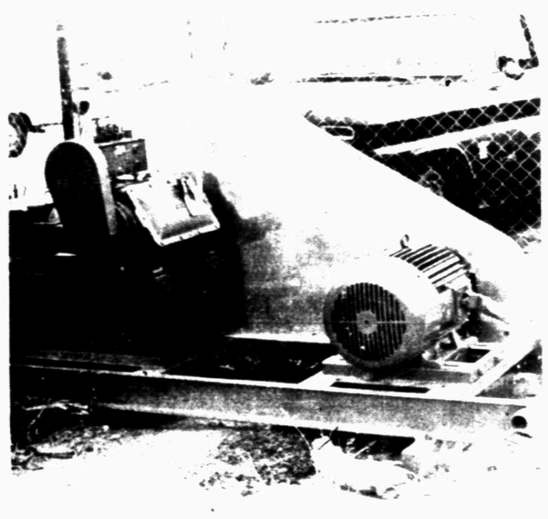

A new feature at Mason's is rebuilt Aaron transmissions for General Motors cars. If they don't have one to fit your car, they can order any kind that you might need.

Wrecker and road service is another service Mason's offers it's customers.

Grahame Kerry, a mechanic at Mason's, is a specialist in some makes of foreign cars. His specialities are Datson, Toyota, and British Leyland.

So avoid the winter rush by getting your winter check-up now at Mason's Automotive. Mason, Dan, and Barbara Howell, along with Grahame Kerry, are the friendly folks that will welcome you.

I&R Industries Has Announced The Addition Of Gaso Pump Line

REBUILT PLUNGER PUMP UNIT

FABRICATED COMPRESSOR UNIT

I & R Industries, is proud to announce that, in addition to all their other products and services, they are now handling the Gaso pump line.

The oil business means the fluid moving business. Gaso helps move those fluids with the best-made pumps on the market today. Gaso manufactures rugged, long-lasting, efficient reciprocating power pumps.

Gaso pumps are built to last year after year. And with I & R Industries, you can be sure you're getting the best field service program available. With the Gaso line, choose from well service pumps, duplex piston pumps, triplex plunger pumps or quintuplex plunger pumps.

With their new expanded facilities, I & R, located at 2507 25th St., can now serve their customers better. The recently completed addition houses sales and repair shops.

The products in addition to the Gaso pump line are as varied as the industry they serve.

The firm has a complete repair shop and can repair pumps, engines, valves, compressors, mud pumps and meters. They also have electrical installation and service, a complete machine shop, and engineering, shop and field service.

I & R also specializes in motor and control sales, offering the Siemens-Allis line of electric motors, industrial controls, switchgear and oilfield pumping motors.

Behind all of I & R Industries, Inc. products and services stands a well equipped and staffed machine shop, fabrication shop, and electrical shop, with related engineering, accounting and sales personnel to guarantee satisfaction for their valued customers.

Payment Sought For Local Calls

NEW YORK (AP) — To stay competitive in a deregulated industry, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will no longer be able to subsidize local phone calls with toll calls, AT&T's chairman says.

Chairoan Charles L. Brown told a meeting of the Financial Executives Institute the cost of local telephone service probably will double.

Monday Club Meets...

'Old Girls' Networks Spring Up

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Blazers and tweeds move about the plush room overlooking the Susquehanna River, and the tinkle of ice in cocktail glasses punctuates casual talk of business and politics.

It is the October meeting of the Monday Club, a 3-year-old network for professionals, executives and the upwardly mobile.

There are lawyers, psychologists, stockbrokers, lobbyists, bureaucrats, labor analysts, professors and business owners.

And not a man in sight.

"We thought this would be more fun and more productive than trying to break into the old boys' system," said Dorothy Fulton, a Welfare Department official and one of the club's "founding mothers."

The Monday Club was modeled after this capital city's all-male Tuesday Club.

"I went there for lunch one time and they just about had a fit," said Bonnie Menaker, another club founder who is a prominent family law attorney in Harrisburg. "My husband quit after they wouldn't allow me back."

Women's networks have mushroomed since the feminist movement propelled women into high-level positions, filling a need that did not exist when men alone ruled the roost.

Kathy Marconi, a Health Department sociologist, said she didn't know where to meet other women when she first started working for state government.

"There were no clubs unless you wanted to join the Junior League," she said. "I was looking for something that was more geared to the working woman. I wanted something with a more feminist perspective, too."

She was not alone. The Boston-based National Alliance of Professional and Executive Women's Networks estimates that by the late 1970s, there were 200 formal networks serving 20,000 women in Canada and the United States.

The 20-month-old alliance is holding its second annual conference Sunday through Tuesday in Marlboro, Mass. Its 6,000 members come from 20 cities, including such metropolises as Kansas City, Mo., Baltimore, Atlanta and San Francisco.

But networking is not confined to big cities. In Pennsylvania, women's networks have surfaced in York, Lancaster and Scranton, as well as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Many members say the Monday Club has had a major impact on their personal and professional lives.

"It has probably helped a lot of women by giving them the guts to try new things. You meet other women who are doing daring things, and you kind of get into the swing of things," said Betty Wasconis, a bookkeeper for The United Way who recently bought a house built in 1876.

"I don't think I would have tackled restoring an old house by myself. But I met some women who said, 'Betty, you can do it.' So I decided to try it and I'm having a ball."

Doris Brunner, a chemist for the state Department of Environmental Resources, said she recently appealed a job ruling concerning a dispute over authority through a labor relations attorney she'd met at the Monday Club.

"I feel I've gotten some backup, some moral support," Mrs. Brunner said. "I don't think I would have had the confidence to initiate something like this prior to my association with the people here."

Kathryn Power, former director of the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape, recently became a partner in a counseling firm and a senior associate at a computer firm.

"I've lived in a very safe environment," she said. "Now I'm out dealing with a much more sexist world. If I did not have Monday Club, it would have been more difficult for me to take that risk."

On a practical level, the club is a forum for sharing and solving problems. Counselors and furniture refinishers alike have gained clients through the network. Some people said they owed their jobs to Monday Club listings and announcements.

A typical meeting breaks at 6 p.m. for a fixture called the Six O'Clock News. At this particular session, Mrs. Menaker darts up to the microphone with drink in hand.

"Today's the first Monday in October and I want to propose a toast to Justice O'Connor," she said, as cheers and applause for the first female Supreme Court justice, Sandra Day O'Connor, ring out from some 60 members and guests.

Next up are female candidates for city council and city controller, followed by news of a sexual harassment workshop and a seminar on legislative issues relating to women.

Then comes "jobs available": chemistry instructor, public administration trainee, entry-level engineer, controller for the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

There is a status report on an abortion bill before the Legislature. Finally, members are advised to set up individual, tax-free retirement accounts by a grandmotherly woman in navy skirt and ruffled blouse — a stockbroker with Dean, Witter, Reynolds.

When President Reagan nominated Mrs. O'Connor to fill the Supreme Court vacancy, the Monday Club sent a congratulatory telegram. Some women consider that a harbinger of more intense political involvement.

"A lot of women who are professionally in the know come here," said Susan Ziering, owner of the Old Midtown Furniture Works. "This is a pretty powerful type of organization — or as powerful as women can get. We might as well get together and use it as best we can."

No underlying cause found

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son had a seizure just after his 16th birthday. I took him to the best neurosurgeon in this area and he told me he had epilepsy and put him on phenobarbital. He had a brain scan along with a blood sugar tolerance test. He also had a brain wave test and all of his tests were negative. My son is now 19 and last month he had another seizure. It seems before these attacks he complains of a nervous stomach. Can there be any connection between the two?

I'm sure his doctor is a fine, capable man but he can't communicate with my son or me so can you tell me what is causing the seizures? I worry that he is treating a symptom without looking for the cause. Other than the seizures my son has always been healthy and athletic. I would appreciate any information concerning his problem.

DEAR READER — Your son's doctor thinks he has already told you what is causing your son's seizures when he told you he had epilepsy. The story is typical for this rather common condition. In many such cases no underlying cause is ever found. In others we know it is caused by a specific disease or injury. Some people develop seizures for the first time after head injuries sustained in automobile accidents.

The important thing is to be sure there is no underlying cause that can be corrected, rather than neglected, and I am sure from your letter that your son's doctor has already done this. You will understand your son's problem better after you read The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As the Health Letter explains, many people with such disorders live perfectly normal lives. In fact some important people in history, such as Julius Ceaser and Alexander the Great, were epileptics.

The other point you need to keep in mind is that it is not always easy to control seizures. It often takes a period of time in evaluating the individual patient's responses to different treatments before finding the best one available. But most people with this problem can have the seizures controlled with various treatment programs now available.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We have a spoiling grandmother who gives our 2 and 3-year-old children Halls cough drops and Rolaids as candy. Occasionally when we see her they will get four or more Halls in one day. She says they are good for them, the cough drops clear up their nose. The children don't have colds when she gives them the cough drops. Could I please have your opinion on this because I disagree?

DEAR READER — I'm sure she means well and just wants to express her love for her grandchildren but it is a bad habit. Halls cough drops contain one ingredient that has an adrenaline-like action. That is why it helps to clear the nose in patients who have a stuffy nose from a cold. It has another ingredient that is a cough suppressant.

Beyond that, it is very bad to give children medicines, including antacids, as a substitute for candy. It gives them the idea that medicines are candies and can lead to carelessness. Children should be taught to respect medicines and know they can be harmful. Try to encourage grandmother to show her affection for your children in a better way, perhaps by baking cookies instead of pushing pills.

Police Recover Stolen Property, Probe Mishap

One major accident and the recovery of property reported stolen Tuesday added to an otherwise routine Wednesday for Snyder police officers.

At 7:56 p.m. last evening, a 1974 Ford van, driven by Thomas Abell of Snyder, was in collision with a utility pole owned by Southwestern Bell.

Abell was transported to Cogdell hospital by Scurry County EMS. The accident occured in the 1400 block of 25th St. Damage to the pole was not estimated.

At 11:50 a.m., a bicycle, reported stolen by Carol Caldwell on Tuesday, was recovered by local police units. The bicycle was found at the Skinney's store at 37th and Ave. E.. Ms. Caldwell reclaimed the bicycle later in the day.

In other more routine action, city police investigated a hit and run mishap in the parking lot of the Kingswood Apartments on East 37th St. In this incident, a legally parked 1979 GMC pick-up, owned by Canyon Sandblasting was struck by an unknown vechicle which left the scene. In another minor traffic mishap, a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Jeffery Minor collided with a 1973 Volkswagen operated by Gwendolen Sue Scrivner. Although the accident was reported as minor and no injuries were reported, the Volkswagen did require a tow truck. This incident occured in the 4000 block of Austin.

At 6:15 p.m., police were called to another accident at the intersection of 12th and College. Involved were a 1979 Chevrolet driven by Gilbert Pesina of Snyder and a 1975 Chevrolet operated by Toby Wright of Abilene. Only minor damage was reported to both cars. In addition, city officers arrested one subject on charges of public intoxication and another on charges of possesion of marijuana less than two oz.

Retired Singer Receives Award

BOSTON (AP) — Retired opera singer Beverly Sills was one of three people awarded honorary degrees by Boston University in a celebration of the centennial anniversary of its Sargent College of Allied Health Professions.

The honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degrees were awarded Sunday at a special convocation to recognize contributions to rehabilitation.

In 1936, Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime ordered military training for German children.

Snyder Hosts Lamesa...

Friday's Foes Excited About Matchup Here

By BILL McCLELLAN

When you're 0-5 and things aren't going quite like you hoped, sometimes it helps to keep your humor.

"We've been picked to beat Lamesa by 10 points this week," Coach George Byerly told the Snyder Football Booster Club Tuesday night. "It's hard to believe. We've been use to being the underdog in every game. But I've told the kids not to get overconfident."

Friday night's matchup presents an interesting confrontation between Snyder and the 0-5 Lamesa Golden Tornadoes. With a composite record of 0-11 between them, it's clear neither team has much to lose and everything to gain.

"Our kids are real excited about playing Lamesa, but they've got to understand that Lamesa's going to be real excited about playing them too. Lamesa has been sitting over there feeling, 'Boy, I'll be glad when we finally play Snyder', and we've been over here thinking, 'Boy, we'll be glad when we finally play Lamesa'. I think both teams are going to be ready to get after it," grinned the coach.

"I definately do believe we have a chance to beat Lamesa," Byerly continued, "but we're going to have to play better than we've played in spots."

Offensive coordinator Dave Creswell agreed.

"We're going to have to go in with a concerted effort, stay with people longer and block longer so our young men in the backfield have a chance to run with the football. We're progressing, but we're not there yet."

Again, Snyder won't be making any drastic changes for its sixth ballgame of the season - only those necessary to counter what the Golden Tornadoes do best.

One thing Lamesa likes to do is put the ball up.

"Their receivers do a real good job and their quarterback does a good job," said defensive coordinator Walter Hargrove.

Lamesa's passing attack is led by 170-pound senior Sam Hansard, who has completed 42 of 177 tosses for 399 yards, three touchdowns and five interceptions. For the season, the Tors have 469 yards through the air and 569 overland - a district low average of 173.0 per outing. Snyder has 671 on the ground and 422 through the air, an average of 218.6.

The top receiver is split end Robert Gomez (150-sr). He's caught seven passes for 132 yards. As that figure might indicate, the Tors spread out their passing a lot, using sprint-outs, screens and drop-back passes to hit the ends, flanker or either running back.

Lamesa can also run the ball and a major figure in the Tors' game is tailback Steve Alexander, who has 321 yards on 103 carries. The other back is 175-pound fullback Steven Archer.

"If we let Alexander get his motor running, he's the kind that's going to be tough all night," said Hargrove. "We'll need to stick him quick and play him tough."

Defensively, the Tors and Tigers sit eighth and ninth in the conference; Lamesa allowing 306 yards a game and Snyder allowing just over 311.

Lamesa has scored 33 points this year - Snyder 40 - and has given up 166 to the host's 147.

Tomorrow – a look at tradition, and the starting lineups.

Tough Tests Awaiting SWC's 'Elite' Members

DALLAS (AP) - Three undefeated Southwest Conference football teams are all on the road Saturday, traveling to extremely unfriendly locales.

Texas takes its No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press college football poll to Fayetteville, Southern Methodist risks its 5-0 record and No. 10 AP ranking against Houston and Texas A&M visits defending SWC champion Baylor.

Rice visits Texas Tech in the fourth conference game and TCU hosts Utah State in a non-conference match.

Texas A&M (4-1, 2-0 in SWC) at Baylor (3-3, 1-2) - Bears have beaten Aggies three straight but have never won four in a row. On defense, Aggies rank 11th nationally against the run at 92.8 yards per game, Bears are fourth in SWC pass defense at 167 per game.

Utah State (3-3) at Texas Christian (2-3), 2 p.m. - Utah State fresh off 17-14 victory over Pacific, Frogs trying to rebound from 41-28 threshing by Rice.

Texas (4-0, 1-0) at Arkansas (4-1, 1-1, 2:45 p.m. - Regionally-televised (ABC-TV) game. Texas leads SWC in all three defensive categories, ranks fourth nationally in total defense, fifth in rushing defense. Hog QB Tom Jones, out with injury since TCU game, will start against Texas.

Southern Methodist (5-0, 2-0) at Houston (3-2, 1-1), 7:30 p.m. - SMU is third nationally in scoring with 39.6 points per game, but Cougars are fifth nationally against scoring, allowing just 7.8 points per game. Cougars lead series 4-2 but Mustangs have 2-1 edge in Astrodome. Mustangs lead conference in total offense (419.6 yards per game) and rushing offense (321.6). Houston's total defense of 229.8 is tenth in nation.

Rice (2-3, 1-1) at Texas Tech (1-4, 0-3), 7:30 p.m. - Rice win would give Owls best start since 1967. Tech suffering worst SWC start since 1966. Rice QB Mike Calhoun this week's AP SWC Offensive Player of the Week."

Oh, Those Crazy Aggies

By BILL McCLELLAN

The biggest Aggie joke in the world is an A&M football season. Now don't get all flustered up. It's the truth.

Now one-on-one, Aggies are all right. I've got nothing against Aggies as individuals. But stick 'em together on a striped field and it's like a herd of maroon-colored buffalo waiting to scatter.

Problem is, nobody knows which direction they're going to take off in. It's true. If they all head upfield, the opposition might as well forfeit. It's over. A&M football can compete with anybody. But if half go one way and half go the other, even Slippery Rock could have a field day.

Ah, but it wasn't just the Aggies that did me in last week. Atlanta and TCU fell apart on me, Cleveland didn't do its job and heck, I didn't know Odessa Ector would get all riled up over a simple homecoming. On the flip side, Minnesota came through, as did Stanford and Florida State. Thanks, guys.

Sooooooooo. For the season it's a paltry 74 right of 120 for .616. Last week was 12 of 20 for .600. Goin' down slow.

Snyder 24, Lamesa 14 -- If it weren't for the big play and Snyder's apparent problems with stopping it, I'd predict a bigger point spread. A must-win game for both teams; it ought to be a pretty good one.

Monahans 35, Fort Stockton 17 -- I just can't see the Panthers competing with Monahans.

Pecos 24, Sweetwater 21 -- This could go either way, but Pecos has the better team.

Andrews 24, Ector 7 -- Could be a real upset special and it might be for two quarters. But after that...

Borden County 56, Grady 14 -- If three straight wins haven't made the Coyotes cocky, they'll have no trouble with the Wildcats.

Hermleigh 45, Ira 35 -- I haven't seen as much of Ira as I have Hermleigh, so I have to go with Spieker's Cardinals. They don't know how to quit.

Texas 21, Arkansas 17 -- A perfect upset pick but common sense says stay with the Longhorns.

A&M 25, Baylor 14 -- I'll probably change it a hundred times before Saturday. Doesn't matter, YOU pick the opposite.

SMU 24, Houston 20 -- The big test for SMU. How tough are they?

Rice 27, Texas Tech 21 -- Tech is ouching from injuries and Rice is capable.

TCU 31, Utah State 27 -- At home, TCU bounces back.

THE OTHER COLLEGIANS -- Pick USC to hold off a ignited Stanford club, 24-21; Pitt to hold off Florida State, 24-14; Missouri to blast Iowa State, 29-10; Florida to rap Mississippi State, 23-21; and Angelo State to top Abilene Christian, 27-24.

THE PROS -- Oilers 17, New England 14; Eagles 26, Vikings 20; Steelers 17, Bengals 16; Cowboys 23, Rams 21.

Yankees Blast Athletics, Lead Playoff Series By 2

"We are fighters," said Martin. "We are a battling ballclub. We'll win Thursday and we'll win the next day and then we'll see who's singing that song."

"That song" was Frank Sinatra's recording of "New York, New York" which blared over the public address system at Yankee Stadium as the A's ran for cover after Wednesday's 13-3 shelling. But Martin may be whistling past the graveyard. The Yankees buried his A's under a barrage of a record 19 hits - the 13 runs were a record, too - in cluding three-run homers by Graig Nettles and Lou Piniella. Now, New York goes for the kill tonight with rookie left-hander Dave Righetti pitching against Matt Keough for the A's.

Piniella's homer capped a seven-run Yankee fourth inning that wiped out a 3-1 Oakland lead. Nettles, who had four hits in the game, started that rally with a booming single off the right field wall that just missed home run territory. The third baseman got his homer in the seventh, wrapping up another four-run rally.

Nettles' shot was more majestic, soaring deep into the right field seats. It looked very much like the ball he hit in the fourth inning for a tape-measure single.

Nettles was still on first when Rick Cerone was hit by a pitch by A's starter Steve McCatty. Martin wasn't so sure about that. "I think," said the A's manager, "Cerone won an Academy Award."

Willie Randolph followed with an RBI-single and when Jerry Mumphrey, who also had four hits, walked, loading the bases, Dave Beard relieved for the A's.

Larry Milbourne singled for one run and Dave Winfield's double delivered two more. Then Piniella homered and, just like that, the Yankees had seven runs and an 8-3 lead.

Montreal Bounces Back For Win, 3-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Montreal Expos, bolstered by a masterful pitching performance by Ray Burris, return home on even terms in the National League Championship Series after beating rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela and breaking the Dodger Stadium jinx in the process.

And patience was the key to Wednesday night's 3-0 victory as far as rookie outfielder Tim Raines is concerned. Raines, Valenzuela's only serious challenger for the NL Rookie-of-the-Year award, collected three hits because he refused to chase the 20-year-old left-hander's out pitch - the low screwball.

The five-hit shutout by Burris not only tied the series, but enabled the Expos to break a 10-game Dodger Stadium losing streak. They had lost 19 or their last 20 games in Los Angeles.

Now the series shifts to chilly Montreal, where the nighttime low temperature for the week was recorded at 28 degrees on Monday night. The teams square off Friday night and Saturday afternoon. A fifth game, if necessary, would be played Sunday afternoon.

The Expos scored twice in the second inning. With one out, third baseman Larry Parrish singled off what he said was a poorly thrown screwball and went to second on a single by Jerry White.

Then Warren Cromartie lined a hanging screwball to right and only a great fielding play by Pedro Guerrero kept White from scoring. Shortstop Chris Speier walked and Burris struck out.

Raines singled to score White, but Guerrero threw out Cromartie at home plate to end the inning.

About Deformed Babies...

Tough Decisions Have To Be Made Sometimes

MIDDLETOWN, N.J. (AP) — The air was heavy with moisture, warning of the coming storm. Ignoring the angry sky, Maggie Berges races her wheelchair over the back lawn to play on a swing set.

At 9, she celebrates life with every raindrop or sunbeam. When Maggie was born, doctors told her parents she would be better off dead.

But her parents, Peggy and Chuck Berges, wanted Maggie to live, despite their shock, the expense and the effect on family life.

Maggie was born with a form of spina bifida, in which the spinal cord is exposed and the spine protrudes from the back. Unless the spine is fused to prevent infection, the infant will die. If the baby survives surgery, it will be incontinent and paralyzed. And equally as troubling is the danger of spinal fluid dripping into the brain and causing mental retardation.

Maggie was lucky. A successful "shunt" operation — a tube placed in the head to permit spinal fluid to drain — prevented brain damage. Maggie is bright and articulate with all the giggly allure of any other 9-year-old. Surgery and physical therapy will allow her to walk with the aid of leg braces.

She already has begun her first steps. Her mother has to lift her onto the swing or her "special bicycle"--a three wheeler that's motorized.

— Maggie has shown remarkable agility getting around without use of her legs or the wheelchair, using her arms and her body.

New medical techniques and knowledge have increased survival chances of spina bifida babies from highly unlikely to something like 20 percent to 40 percent, although most of the survivors are apt to be far more disabled than Maggie.

More than three million children are born each year in the United States, and about 100,000 to 150,000 have significant congenital malformations or genetic disorders, according to the National Institutes of Health.

Spina bifida is just one form in the sorrowful array of malformations. Babies are born without brains or other organs. And there are chromosomal disorders, such as trisomy 13, 18 or Down's Syndrome. Survival past a few months for trisomy 18 babies is rare. Trisomy 13 infants die within six months. In both cases, the newborns have many gross physical deformities: clubfeet, absence of thumbs, cleft lips and palates, sloping forehead.

But many parents and physicians, arguing that quality of life for the infant and its family is the most important consideration, are reluctant to use the sophisticated technology available to extend life. This has stirred a growing debate over the rights of infants and parents and who should decide whether a severely deformed baby should live or die.

"Heroic treatment for the purpose of prolonging dying doesn't make sense," says Dr. Raymond S. Duff, professor of pediatrics at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"It's difficult to tell parents that nothing will help and that many things we're going to do will involve a lot of pain," says Dr. Judith G. Hall, director of medical genetics at Children's Orthopedic Hospital in Seattle.

The American Medical Association's Judicial Council earlier this year proposed that "the decision whether to treat a severely defective infant and exert maximum efforts to sustain life should be the choice of parents."

Increasingly, however, the courts are stepping in when parents refuse treatment for their newborns.

A circuit court in Dade County, Fla., recently ordered surgery for Elin Daniels, who, like Maggie Berges, was born with myelomeningocele, a severe form of spina bifida.

In court testimony, Elin's father, Albert, said he and his wife thought their decision "to allow what would naturally transpire to transpire" was in the baby's best interest.

In another recent case, a Danville, Ill., couple was accused of ordering nurses to withhold food from their severely deformed newborn Siamese twins. The charges were later dismissed.

Not all parents are able or willing to accept a seriously malformed child and the burden it places on their lives. Disbelief, denial, anger, guilt are part of the complex psychological reaction, says Dr. Ruth Stein, director of ambulatory care in the pediatrics division of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York.

"There is the mourning of the lost, fantasized normal child," she says. "The family has a lot of adjustments to make very quickly," and serious medical decisions as well, with little time to weigh them.

Despite advances in prenatal technology — amniocentesis, ultrasound, fetoscopy — many malformed births come as a surprise because not every woman is a candidate for such tests. Prenatal detection is usually performed on women whose age, genetic makeup or medical history suggests danger.

However parents decide, a family may grow tremendously from the difficult process of choosing, says Seattle's Dr. Hall.

More than half of the parents take the children home, says Dr. William Fox, director of the infant intensive care unit at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, "but a fairly significant percentage would rather have the institution caring for them."

Halloween Witch Image Is Changing Rapidly

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Like the old gray mare, the wicked old witch of Halloween just "ain't what she used to be."

The frightening frump who symbolized the scariness of All Hallows Eve as she soared through the skies astride her broomstick, has become a funny fuddy-duddy who more often than not has lost control of her wooden steed, according to the curator of an extensive collection of old and new greeting cards.

The witch switch, explains Hallmark's Keith Davis, can be attributed mostly to the change in the ages of Halloween followers.

"The earlier Halloween postcards and the celebration of the holiday itself were much more adult-oriented than the modern versions," he says. "In the earlier part of the century, adult Halloween parties and exchange of cards were very popular but the party custom virtually died out during the Depression years, and while it has made a strong comeback in recent years, Halloween parties and cards nowadays are primarily for the young."

As a result, greeting cards today generally depict witches as whimsical, cartoon-like characters, Davis points out, whereas on the early cards they appeared much more menacing, in keeping with their historic connection to Halloween.

References to witchcraft have been traced to ancient times, even before they surfaced as part of the original Druid celebrations of Halloween, says Davis.

In return for serving the Devil, witches were alleged to receive certain powers, such as the ability to cause illness or transfer it from one person to another, to make rain or raise storms, to produce impotence in men and sterility in women, to cause crops to fail, animals to be barren and milk to go sour; to destroy love by charms and spells; to do harm by a glance ("the evil eye"); to revive the dead and conjure up their spirits, to transform themselves and others into animals, particularly wolves and cats, and to fly with or without the aid of brooms.

Hence, the Halloween cards of the early 1900s present witches of malevolent mien, accompanied by equally churlish cats, admonishing: "On Hallowe'en beware, beware. For witches sure will get you, if you don't take care." Or "Hallowe'en Warning: On Hallowe'en look out! Strange things are all about."

The cards started to change, Davis observes, after World War II when the spelling of the holiday gradually moved from Hallowe'en, a contraction of All Hallows Eve, to the simpler form of Halloween.

This year's card crop continues the woeful-witch trend, he says, with one unhappy hag saying, "I'd like to be with you on Halloween but somebody stole my broom," and another sliding down through the night wailing, "Some idiot greased my broom!"

Other not so baleful warnings from the 1981 card witches include: "STOP! Don't open this card! It's got a curse on it! Too late! Now you're going to get warts.!"

And, possibly in keeping with today's turbulent times, still another shows a witch crossing the moon on a reindeer-powered sleigh, with a tied-up Santa Claus crying, "If you see an old witch in a sleigh drawn by eight tiny reindeer, notify the police immediately!"

Fake Watches Were Smashed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They took a licking — and were finished off dead instead of still ticking.

U.S. Customs officials put 4,000 fake Cartier watches on the pavement here Tuesday and smashed them with an eight-ton steamroller until the gold-plated seams gave way and every gizmo inside was the metallic equivalent of mincemeat. The Cartier people watched — and loved it.

"I came all the way from Paris for this," said Alain Perrin, chairman of Cartier International, one of many manufacturers of expensive watches being victimized by large-scale counterfeiting.

Perrin said the fakes, seized in San Ysidro, Calif., were worth about $10 to $15 but were heading for Mexico for sale at about $500 each. A real Cartier costs $650.

For now, the crushed watches will go into a display on counterfeiting at Cartier's store here. Customs say they haven't had time to decide their eventual fate.
