'PINK' HAMMOND SHOT TO DEATH AT DALLAS

City Council Appoints W. E. McBroom As Acting Manager Of Wichita Falls

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Two hundred and two children attend free swimming classes sponsored by the city park department in a single day. Hundreds of others are receiving swimming instructions in these classes.

These children are being taught the fundamentals of swimming in which they can perfect themselves through the summer and next summer and others to come. Probably a larger percentage of our population now know how to swim than any other generation. They are learning not only to remain on top of the water but to make progress through it.

The commercial swimming pool of 1931 may lack some of the glamor of the old swimming hole of romantic memory but its a lot better place in which to learn to swim.

The papers have been printing a lot of news lately about play and recreation in the city parks. Never before have so many children and grown-ups, too, taken advantage of the recreational opportunities offered by our city parks. It promises a healthier and happier generation, and when we consider the large number who participate in these activities the cost is indeed small.

Judge A. H. Carrigan is being urged to become a candidate in the 18th district to succeed the Honorable Guinn Williams. No man in Northwest Texas has more or warmer friends than Judge Carrigan. If he should decide to become a candidate this Talker would be willing to make a prophesy as to the identity of our next congressman.

Emily Newell Blair who lectured before the Woman's Forum here last spring tells the National Education association convention at Los Angeles that the condition which relegates women to a lower rank than men in the business world will not continue indefinitely, "for modern women will effect a change by taking over some part of the world's business as their own and thus substitute cooperation for competition."

If women can substitute cooperation for competition, Governor Sterling might turn over the East Texas oil problem to them.

The Archer county commissioners' court has made arrangements with the state highway commission whereby construction on highway 25 leading toward Electra from Archer City will be started. Engineers are expected to start surveys for this highway within the next 10 days, the Archer County News reports. ARDMORE, June 29. (AP)—District Judge John B. Ogden today set July 20 to hear application of Cecil Crosby, former Carter county deputy sheriff, to dismiss the case in which Crosby is charged with slaying of Emilio Cortes Rubio, cousin of the president of Mexico.

W. E. Guess, charged jointly with Crosby and granted a severance, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Ogden's court Saturday. Both deputies still face charges of killing Manuel Garcia Gomez, Rubio's companion. The two were slain by the officers on the highway here June 8. Guess said he fired the fatal shots.

Judge Ogden declined to rule on Crosby's motion to dismiss today because of the absence of representatives of the attorney general, governor and the Mexican government, who assisted the county attorney Marvin Shilling, in the Guess trial.

MacDonald Asks Support For Disarmament Plan

LONDON, June 29. (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, laying the statistics of world armaments before the house of commons today, asked pledges of support from all political parties to a British policy of drastic reduction in naval, military and air forces at next February's disarmament conference.

NEW ETEX OIL LIMIT URGED

Lucey Sets Figure for Action of Board

AUSTIN, June 29. (AP)—Capt. J. F. Lucey, chairman of the East Texas oil arbitration committee, today proposed to the railroad commission that it limit the East Texas production for July to 250,000 barrels daily under the unit system.

Captain Lucey explained this would be about 250 barrels per well. Such an order would be a modified form of the Canfill plan, which proposed 200 barrels per well. As new wells were brought in, the output of each well would be reduced so the total would not exceed 250,000 barrels. New wells would be permitted to produce 100 barrels daily pending readjustment.

Meanhile, another group of operators, headed by C. F. Roeser and E. Landreth of Fort Worth, proposed that the potential method of proration be continued. Under that policy, the allowable of a well would be proportionate to its potential.

Captain Lucey said he believed there would be very few violators of the Cranfill plan and that public opinion would do much to bring those few into line.

Asked if he thought the East Texans would obey an order based on potentials Captain Lucey replied they had not in the past.

The commission was considering a new proration order for the giant field. A three-hour conference was held in an effort to bring about a unanimous recommendation to the commission, but the divergent groups were again unable to reconcile their differences as had been the situation at a meeting at Dallas Saturday.

'Pink' Hammond Colorful Figure In Oil Industry of Wichita Section

Wichitan Widely Known in Three States as Operator, Rancher and Leader in Aviation Development

For more than 22 years, L. P. (Pink) Hammond, shot to death in a Dallas hotel Monday night, was one of the most active and colorful figures in the oil fields of Northwest Texas and Oklahoma. His wide interests included the ownership and management of the famous Eppimino-Martinez ranch in New Mexico and his enthusiasm for flying made him one of the foremost developers of aviation through this section.

Born in Tennessee, Mr. Hammond came to Texas in early youth and for many years followed the oil fields of the state from Sour Lake and Spindletop to Petrolia and the other Northwest Texas fields. At the time of his death he was returning from Tyler where he had participated in the East Texas oil development and at the same time he was backing a new deep test adjoining the Deep Oil Development company's holdings in Archer county.

Active in Many Fields

With his residence established in Wichita Falls since the beginning of his operations in the Petrolia field 22 years ago, Mr. Hammond has been a leader in the development of each successive oil field through the section and in Oklahoma.

The ownership of several private airplanes and an unfailing interest in aerial development added color and drama to his wide oil and business interests. For 10 years he operated the extensive New Mexico ranch, sold last year, flying between the ranch property and his home here at regular intervals.

He was the first manager of the Municipal airport here, leasing Kell field from the city immediately after the city took an option to buy the port. He operated Kell field from September, 1928, until August, 1929, maintaining a flying school of his own and operating a passenger service under the name of the Lone Star Aviation company.

Champion for Many

A part of his fame through the oil sections of two states grew with his vigorous championship of the oppressed and his willingness to fight the battles of the "underdog" where they came to his attention. He espoused with success many a "lost cause" during his varied career here and his revolt at injustice ran parallel to his pioneering spirit in the oil fields and in aviation.

In 1917, Mr. Hammond married Miss Cora Belle Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Miller, in Wichita Falls, his second wife.

Of their three children, the eldest son, L. P. Jr. was killed in an automobile accident on the Archer City road last April 10. Mr. Hammond and two other children were injured in the crash.

With him in the Dallas hotel Monday night were Mrs. Hammond, John B., 4, and Betty Sue, 3. A daughter by his first marriage, Mrs. Howard Davis, lives in Tyler. His brothers are Gay Hammond, Fort Worth and Bill Hammond, Houston. A sister, Mrs. Annie Horn, also lives in Houston. His mother, Mrs. Betty Hammond, lives in Mineral Wells.

CHICAGO, June 29. (INS)—Protected by bullet-proof glass, J. H. Luhring, 54, cashier of the Frankfort State bank of Frankfort, Ill., a suburb, today defied five bandits and put them to route before they could secure any loot.

After the bank had been robbed last April, bullet-proof glass was installed. When three of the bandits entered today with guns pointed at Luhring, he refused to put up his hands.

One of the bandits fired, but the bullet merely nicked the glass. Luhring secured his own gun and, firing through the opening in the glass enclosure, routed the bandits.

OIL OPERATOR FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

Bullet From .45 Automatic Ends Life of Widely Known Wichitan

WIFE HEARS SHOT

Hammond Despondent Over Son's Death, Friends Here Believe

L. P. (Pink) Hammond, Wichita Falls oil operator, rancher and aviation leader, was shot to death in his room in a Dallas hotel Monday night shortly after 9 o'clock.

Mr. Hammond's body was found in the bath room. Mrs. Hammond and two children were in an adjoining bedroom when the tragedy occurred.

Inquest Held

Although Justice E. J. Baldwin of Dallas, held an inquest and gave as a verdict death from gunshot wounds, self-inflicted, friends of the family here said the Wichitan's death might have been accidental. This belief was partly borne out by statements which Mrs. Hammond was said to have made to friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond were on their way from Tyler to Wichita Falls, and had stopped at the hotel late Monday afternoon, according to Associated Press dispatches. Shortly after they had registered at the hotel, he retired to the bath room. A shot was heard, and he was found dead, a bullet from a .45 caliber automatic pistol in his brain.

Mrs. Hammond was prostrated with grief Monday night, and was unable to discuss the tragedy. She told Justice Baldwin, however, that Mr. Hammond had seemed despondent since the death of their son, L. P. Jr., who was fatally injured in an automobile accident on the Archer City road April 10. Mr. Hammond was injured in the accident and two smaller children, John, 4, and Betty Sue, 3, were slightly hurt. Mr. Hammond had grieved almost constantly for his son, friends said Monday night.

Mrs. Hammond telephoned her mother, Mrs. C. M. Miller, Iowa Park road, shortly after the tragedy Monday night, with the message that Mr. Hammond had been accidentally shot in the hotel. Mr. Miller left at once for Dallas.

Widely Known

"Pink" Hammond was 45 years of age, and was widely known in this section of the state. Friends of the Wichitan, hardly able to believe the story of his death, and other members of the family left for Dallas Monday night.

The body was taken in charge by Ed C. Smith and brother, undertakers, and probably will be returned here today. Late Monday night word was received by Jerome Stone, asking him to prepare the house at 2136 Avenue H for the return of the body today, and it was expected that services would be held from there.

Uncle Sam to Make Fingerprinting Fashionable Among Federal Workers

Uncle Sam is going to do what he can to make fashionable the ancient police pastime of fingerprinting.

"In fact, some of our best people already have their prints on record with the government," Postmaster O. P. Maricle revealed Monday.

Recent government orders, which require fingerprint records of all new civil service employes, have been anticipated in Wichita Falls by the fingerprinting of all substitute postal employes during the last year, Mr. Maricle said. The order for the nation will go into effect July 1. Wichita Falls has been designated as fingerprint headquarters for this section.

W. C. Bain, local secretary of the civil service board of examiners, will be in charge of the Wichita Falls fingerprinting bureau. Equipment has already been set up for the work.

The government order, Mr. Maricle said, is designed to prevent criminals from entering the government service; but does not act as an absolute bar to a person with a criminal record. Such an applicant may present evidence of his reform, and in cases of merit, will receive impartial consideration from the examiner's board, it was said.

Small Farms Displacing Ranches In Collingsworth and Knox Counties

Steady transition of Knox and Collingsworth counties in Northwest Texas from ranching and grain raising to small-farm districts with increased values and increased numbers of farm owners is shown in the preliminary surveys of those counties for 1930 released Monday by the federal bureau of census.

In Knox county, the number of farms in operation in 1930 shows an increase of almost 50 per cent over the report for 1920, the total having grown from 1,037 at the earlier date to 1,460 last year. The average number of acres per farm also showed a material decrease, dropping from 284.7 acres in 1920 to 258.3 in 1930. Development of the district under the more intensive cultivation is reflected in the reported total valuation of land and buildings. Values at $11,359,860 in 1920, Knox county farms were appraised at $15,534,492 in 1930, an increase of more than $4,000,000. For the same period, farmers in the county became owners of $150,000 worth more of farm implements than they possessed 10 years ago.

Knox county gained 25 new owners of farms in the past decade, 1930 showing 451 farms under operation by their owners. Valuations of their land and improvements in-

DEBT PROBLEM SOLUTION NEAR

Mellon Makes Progress In French Parley

WASHINGTON, June 20. (AP)—Only a few technical details separated France and America tonight from complete accord on a one-year inter-governmental debt moratorium plan.

Officials made it plain that while an agreement had not been reached, one was near. Negotiations now in progress in Paris were expected to reach a successful conclusion by the end of the week.

A brief formal statement by Acting Secretary Castle of the state department said:

"No agreement has yet been reached with France for the reason there are still some technical points to be settled. The United States will accept no offer which does not fall completely within the spirit and purpose of the president's proposal."

Mellon Conference

The acting secretary made the statement after telling President Hoover of the results of a transatlantic telephone conversation with Secretary Mellon. With Ambassador edge, the treasury secretary is negotiating directly with French officials at Paris.

The admonition that the United States would accept no offer which did not fulfill the president's desire to relieve the situation in Germany, was interpreted by officials as not being directed wholly at France. Replies from several nations, including Belgium, Greece and Yugoslavia, have not yet been received. The possibility of reservations by those countries is being taken into consideration.

"Suggestions" Studied

A week ago Secretary Stimson announced the "broad outlines of the president's proposal would not be departed from."

France, in indicating its accord with the principle of the plan, offered reservations in the form of "suggestions' of methods of procedure which have necessitated the lengthy delicate negotiations.

Throughout these discussions, President Hoover has maintained that evolving a method of applying his plan is an economic and not a political problem. Every effort is being made to eliminate political considerations.

Some of the points advanced by France are regarded here as lying outside this restriction and involving projects upon which the United States can not commit itself. These must be settled directly between France and Germany, officials said.

The United States has taken a decided stand against the French proposal that Germany's unconditional annuities, if placed in a credit fund during the moratorium, be available to France at the expiration of the period.

AIR CLEARS IN PARIS

PARIS, June 29. (AP)—The difficulties which made the Franco-American negotiations over President Hoover's moratorium proposal hard going this morning were largely cleared away tonight at a second meeting attended by Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, Ambassador Walter E. Edge and members of the French cabinet.

The outlook which had been considered rather gloomy all day brightened suddenly and tonight the prospects for a successful agreement on a general reparations holiday were considered much brighter. The French spokesmen restated the conditions under which they are willing to accept the Hoover plan and their terms were telegraphed to the president tonight.

Concessions Required

While reports from Washington indicated the points still at issue are regarded there as matters of technical detail, the French are inclined to attach considerable importance to them and it is asserted here that one or both sides must make further concessions before an agreement can be reached.

The essential point in the French reply that Germany's unconditional reparations payments must not be changed has, it is understood, proved acceptable to Washington, and if this acceptance stands up under argument over details the chances of an agreement are greatly increased.

French Provisions

Premier Laval placed before Mr. Mellon the French conditions of accordance among which there are most important.

First, France asks the United States to accept the contention that Germany must in fact make her unconditional yearly payments into the bank for international settlements, and that this money be made available for the needs of all nations although in practice most of it would go straight back to Germany in the form of loans.

Second, this payment into the world bank be considered as like any other year's unconditional annuity so that it would be used as a guarantee to the bank for international settlements for the second year in case Germany should as a moratorium under the Young plan at the expiration of the Hoover holiday.

The third French condition will require some bargaining, for it is the French wish that the conditional portion of the reparations annuity which the Hoover plan would postpone be spread over the next five years of conditional payments.

The United States, it is understood, wants to spread the payment over 25 years.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH BRIDGE PARTY HOLDUP HANDLES OWN DEFENSE

FORT WORTH, June 29. (AP)—Without lawyers, without witnesses but apparently with a good knowledge of law, Harold Lincoln Bomberger, 23, went to trial in criminal district court Monday in connection with the "bridge party holdup" at the home of S. D. Johnson the night of March 21. He appeared at the counsel table alone, carrying his hat and a sheaf of papers.

Bomberger faces nine indictments in connection with the holdup but the complaint on which he went to trial was one charging him with the robbery of Johnson of $6.

DEATH SUSPECT MAKES BOND

Two Charged After Fatal Crowell Shooting

(By The Associated Press)

CROWELL, Texas, June 29.—W. O. McDaniel, city employe, was free today on $1,500 bond after he had been charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Grady Miller here late Sunday night.

O. C. Howard, 20, who was with Miller when the slaying took place, was charged with conspiracy to murder McDaniel. He had not made bond of $1,500 late Monday.

Both waived examining trial in the hearings before J. W. Kletter, justice of the peace, until the grand jury convenes in September.

McDaniel told officers after the shooting that Miller attacked him as he was on his way home. The shooting occurred, he said, after he had been knocked down with a wrench.

McDaniel surrendered to officers after Miller had been shot near a lumber yard a short distance from Crowell's business center. He was later released to receive medical attention for severe scalp wounds said to have been inflicted in the fight with Miller.

Rites Held

McDaniel was the principal witness in a case brought against Miller here recently when the latter was charged with theft of gasoline from a city tractor. Miller pleaded guilty to the charge and served 10 days in jail.

Funera iservices were held at the Crowell cemetery Monday afternoon for Miller. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Miller; four brothers, Vernon, Leon, Delmas and Macanay Miller; and a sister, Miss Marie Miller, all of Crowell. The family moved here from Abilene late last year.

Tonight five water pumps hurled thousands of gallons of water into the woods, and a close vigil was kept at the borders of the tract lest the flames spread out into the town.

Oil companies with wells within the city limits are required to maintain fire fighting equipment. This apparatus was quickly assembled at vantage points about the tract.

After the flames had raked the woodland clean of grass and small underbrush they subsided some, the heavier timber in the tract burning lower.

FARMERS BACK MARKET ACT

Leaders Map Program In Suport of Law

CHICAGO, June 29. (UP)—Prompted by what they called "the rising opposition to the agricultural marketing act" officials of 14 national farm organizations whose memberships include more than one-half the farmers of the nation, met here today to plan a co-ordinated, aggressive campaign for national support of the marketing law.

Edward A. O'Neal, Chicago, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, called the conference and was made its chariman. An executive committee, created at a preliminary conference on May 18, included C. E. Huff, president Farmers National Grain corporation; C. A. Ewing, president National Livestock Marketing association; C. O. Moser, vice president American Cotton Cooperative association; Ralph Snyder, chairman, national committee of farm organizations.

O'Neal said at the outset of the meeting that farm leaders planned to develop a nation-wide educational program designed to accomplish:

1—Complete organization of farmers. 2—General acceptance of cooperaitve principles. 3—Directly inform the public concerning the agricultural marketing act and the federal farm board.

The first step, he said, was to determine what groups were opposing the marketing act, then make public the affiliations of those groups and reveal their motives.

It was further planned to place before farmers of the nation the specific information regarding the marketing act which is lacking at present and is necessary for complete understanding and acceptance.

Vera Cruz Fights To Maintain Law Limiting Priests

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 29. (INS)—Gov. Tejeda of Vera Cruz state today filed a counter petition with the district court, protesting the injunction granted by the court on Saturday restraining the state from enforcement of the ecclesiastical limitation law.

This law would limit the number of priests or ministers permitted to officiate at religious ceremonies to one for each 100,000 of population.

The governor, in his counter-petition argued that the Catholic church in Mexico is the agent of a foreign power, implying the church represents the Italian government through an arrangement with vaticcan. He bitterly attacked the conduct of the Catholic priests, and declared the church in Mexico annually sends $15,000,000 to Rome. He declared this money should be used to build schools in Mexico.

A group of 100 anti-church demonstrators who marched to a parochial church today found the buildings guarded by federal troops. Since 1929 all church buildings in Mexico have been classified as federal property.

WOMEN DRYS HIT ROOSEVELT

'Bolt if He's Named' Says Enforcement Writer

WASHINGTON, June 29. (AP)—An editorial characterizing Governor Roosevelt of New York as "wetter than Smith," and calling upon southern Democratic women to bolt the party if he is nominated for president was published by the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement league.

The article was written by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the league, and appeared in its official organ, "The Woman Voter."

Mrs. Nicholson also assailed Col. Edward M. House, confidential adviser to President Wilson, who recently conferred with Roosevelt in Massachusetts. Referring to a statement attributed the House that the New York governor would be acceptable to the drys, she said:

"What drys does he mean? The very few southern politicians who supported Smith in 1928?"

At the recent convention of the Democratic women's league here there were frequent speeches urging an organized bolt from the Democratic party in 1932 if the candidate nominated was a wet. The entire group of delegates, many of whom voted for President Hoover in 1928, called at the White House to pay their respects.

In her editorial today, Mrs. Nicholson advised Colonel House to "get the viewpoint of the southern dry women" if he would be "saved from embarrassment later on."

'BOOTLEG' GAS WAR SLATED

Oklahoma to Launch Check-Up Drive Today

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 29. (UP)—A definite campaign to stop the flow of "bootleg" gasoline in Oklahoma will be among the first steps to be taken by the state tax commission which assumes office Wednesday.

Rules governing the sale of gasoline in the state have been adopted by Melvin Cornish, chairman, W. D. Humphrey and W. B. Hudson, members of the commission.

Attempts have been made to adopt rules against every conceivable method of concealing sales of gasoline. Field agents to enforce the rules will be named.

Officials said the state has lost thousands of dollars through inability of agents to check sales completely. The old law left collection up to the oil inspectors of the corporation commission and three men in the state auditor's office.

Collection of gasoline taxes under the new act starts July 11. New rules have been put in pamphlet form for distribution to all dealers. Both the retailer and wholesaler must report sales. All tank trucks must be registered. Railroads are required to report all deliveries.

License and bond forfeiture and fines from $100 to $1,000 with a year in jail constitute penalties for violation.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Consider the Garden of Eden. When that old serpent put Eve up to the idea of handing Adam an apple, he may have been doing them both a good turn—for where would we be today, ladies and gentlemen, without our Adam's Apple. If we didn't have our Adam's Apple, we couldn't sing, we couldn't even speak. For your Adam's Apple is your Larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. So—Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Remember—the serpent in the smokers' Garden of Eden—harsh irritants are present in all raw tobaccos. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" Process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say, "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas' industrial development is proved by the number of its counties with manufactured products exceeding $1,000,000 per annum. But 10 counties account for 76 per cent of the total with annual production valued at $1,093,000,000. The 10 are Jefferson, Harris, Dallas, Tarrant, Bexar, El Paso, Wichita, Grayson, Galveston, McLennan.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Miscellaneous improvements that are helping to build Texas. . . . Permit for the eight-story annex to the Citizens bank, Tyler, has been issued. Discovery of a new deposit of fuller's earth reported from Flatonia. Further extension of suburban playhouses with one big chain group announcing it will invest millions in that kind of investment in Texas during the coming months. $250,000 building at Highland Park and $130,000 at Del Rio being among those definitely announced. Building permits in Texas cities reporting showed 30 per cent gain for May, 1931, over May of last year—figures $17,222,600 and $14,368,300 respectively. Gain over April was nearly $2,000,000. First Baptist, Graham, plans new Sunday school building, two stories and basement, auditorium later. Discovery of a phosphate shell deposit, estimated to contain more than 400,000,000 tons is reported from Corpus Christi, said to be the only formation of its kind in the United States and the first phosphate ever taken from water, its discoverer said, in announcing that he had leased all water property from Flour Bluff along the coast to the Rio Grande and out as far as the three-mile limit.

Oklahoma Parents Seek Missing Baby

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 29. (UP)—Leslie E. Stevenson and his wife appealed to police today to find their 2-year-old son, Donald Glenn, whom, they reported, had been kidnaped.

The parents told police the child was spirited away from their home yesterday by a friend of the family.

The friend, a railroad worker, called at the Stevenson home yesterday to get a car he had loaned the child's uncle, Stanley Bishop. Stevenson said the man often had expressed deep affection for the child.

"When he left he took the child for a short ride," Stevenson said. It was not until several hours later the parents became alarmed. An all night search failed to reveal a trace of the child's whereabouts.

"If he only brings the baby back, we will forgive him," Mrs. Stevenson said.

Capt. W. G. Lloyd of the police said he had known the man for 20 years and was at a loss to explain the alleged kidnaping.

An Old Army Era Passes

NEWS that the war department has decided to abandon some 53 army posts in the far west sometime in the near future emphasizes again the way in which the nation has done an about-face in the last few decades. The change that has come over the army mirrors a change that has come over the whole country.

These posts are surviving relics of the old days of Indian warfare—the days of the "winning of the West," when the frontier was close at hand and America had no attention to spare for anything outside of its own borders. New trails were being made into hostile wildernesses, new settlements were springing up amid distant mountains and on remote plains; army posts were needed for their protection, and the 53 that are soon to be decommissioned were, in their day havens of safety for pioneer families.

Their very names speak of the color and romance of the old West. Fort Laramie, Fort Bridger, Fort Learned, Fort Phil Kearney—they excite memories of a day that never found its poet, a day when adventure, danger and bloodshed were abundant in the land and the red Indian was something more than a picturesque figure in story books.

The army was devised to meet those conditions. It did the job well. Little more than a constabulary force, from European standards, it was precisely the kind of army America needed. It was scattered all up and down the far west in small detachments, a platoon here and a platoon there; and the bravery and ability of the men in these detachments have given the army some of its brightest laurels.

When the Spanish-American war broke out it was discovered that there was not an officer in the army, except for a few civil war veterans, who had ever seen a body of troops as large as a brigade assembled in one spot. As a preparation for war with a European power, this was almost disastrous; but it meant really, that the army had been doing its job very well. Dispersion of its units had been essential. There had been no need to hold large-scale maneuvers.

But it is all different now, and the pending abandonment of the old posts proves it. The nation today has finished its frontier skirmishes; now it trains its army for war on a large scale, providing skeletonized commands that can be enlarged rapidly, making sure that it will never again be caught unprepared as it was in 1918.

That fact is a measure of the change that has come over the country. The end of the army's western forts marks the disappearance of the last vestiges of an old era in American history.

Savings Deposits Go Up

ONE of the most encouraging signs in the rather discouraging economic situation today is the fact that savings bank deposits are rising again.

A bulletin from the Alexander Hamilton institute points out that the years of prosperity did not do these deposits as much good as might have been expected. From 1920 to 1925, the deposits made an average gain of eight per cent a year. During the three following years the gain dropped to four per cent and in 1929, with prosperity at its peak, there was actually a loss.

Commenting on the prevalence of the advice from all quarters to spend money more freely, the institute's bulletin remarks:

"As a matter of fact, one of the contributing factors to the current depression is that in the years preceding it people spent too much and saved too little. Part of the slow process of recuperation must be a building up of savings."

The Submarine's Function

THE difficulties that have beset the submarine Nautilus on its voyage across the Atlantic indicate that mankind is still a long way from equaling the imaginary submarines of Jules Verne.

Verne's famous submarine, in addition to having living quarters as palatial as those on an ocean liner, was the last word in sturdiness. The ship in which Sir Hubert Wilkins hopes to go to the north pole seems to fall considerably short of that mark. Extensive repairs are necessary before the craft has even reached the base of her arctic voyage.

In plain truth, a submarine is an exceedingly delicate mechanism. It is extremely valuable in war, of course; but one wonders if any submarine will ever prove really worth-while for any purpose except that of war-time destruction.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Wonder why the Lambs never seem to catch that note? . . That spark? . . That Broadway Something. . . That the Friars always pack in their Frolics? . . The Lambs Gambols are always so arty. . . So starchy, so stiff, so dull. . . The Friars manage to breathe. . . They put on the gravest folderols, and send you home feeling alive . . Too bad the Frolics held Sunday evening was only put on for one performance. . . They might have staged it at Madison Sq. Garden and gathered so much more coin. . . After the long series of expert clowning, ribbing, joking and gagging the finale touched you so. Mr. Cohan's genius, of course, made it a lovely thing. . . I mean that scene revealing the Monastery of the club with all the members grouped on one side of the stages reverently looking on. . . While the spirit of Sam Bernard, David Belasco, Louis Mann, George LeMaire, Raymond Hitchcock and Eddie Foy sizzled each other at a corner table. . . And the spirit of Joe Schenck one-fingered a melody on a Steinway and tenored the tune. . . The Schneck impersonator canary'd almost exactly like Joe used to sing. . . Wonder what Bus Van thought as he looked on. . . Most touching was the fact that Foy was being played by his Junior.

Wonder if the newspapers which stated that the leading lady attempted suicide because the critics were mean will report the facts? . . That she didn't swallow poisonous tablets over the reviewers at all, but because love is what makes the world go 'round with that pained expression. . . As a matter of fact, her play wasn't covered by the first-line oracles, but by their shadows. . . And, according to eye-witnesses, whatever those critics reported was accurate, for it was a hammyteurish production. . . . And that the audience tittered at her performance, several of them walking out to suppress their laughter. . . My sympathy goes out to the hat-check gal at the Calais club, who killed herself because her man came out second in a gat duel with a detective. . . The rags gave her two lines. . . That's what she gets for not being a "Follies" doll.

They were saying of Jimmy Walker that he never fails to say the right thing at the right time. . . Ever since he stopped his tormentors with: "I'll match my private life with any man's!" I have envied him so—for being the parent of what certainly will remain the classic crack of the century. . . It was fun last night trying to go to sleep—instead of counting sheep—trying to figure out one man who could have accepted that challenge. . . We are all so illicit. . . And it's about time they altered the simile "ugly as sin." . . It's the most attractive thing in the world. . . That blind man who dances so enthusiastically at the Cotton club reminds me of another afflicted youth. . . Tom Pierce Jr., son of a St. Louis attorney, who is paralyzed. . . But he manages to take his fun where he finds it, as the quip goes, in the not-so-gay places. . . They tell me he invests at least 50 Gs a year in Whoopee. . . Eugene Sue summed up the stitch-ee-ay-shun in fewer words. . . That nothing is so healthful as joy.

Chevalier is a shrewd showman, at that. . . He doesn't wait to stale. . . He keeps polishing up his routines, for he is blessed with a mind, and because he knows how fleeting is renown. . . The other night, frixample. . . When he introduced his new act "so that a representative audience" could see the idea, and associate it with him. . . He remarked that he always thought he sang one of his ditties in "this manner"—then he proceeded to do it. . . He never suspected, he said later, that he did it the way Rudy Vallee says he does it. . . Then he imitated Vallee's imitation of himself. . . It was a remarkable impersonation of Rudy, and of Rudy's conception of how Chevalier delivers a tune. . . They shrieked, roared, howled and applauded boisterously. . . Wawreese then delivered Jolson's and Willie Howard's imitation of himself. . . The parroting was something to enjoy. . . Chevalier will find the field limiteless. . . Considering all the celebrated pretenders who think they are giving a good carbon copy of the delightful Frenchman because they stick out a lower lip.

Wonder if it is true Coolidge flopped as a columnist because he didn't print any Joosh jokes? . . That expression which is catching on: "Tmmm, that's Dishy!" sounds very chorus-boyish. . . They let me have it in April when I Monday-columned that Betty Compton's first husband would be suspended by the Canadian Bar Ass'n. . . Because he landed on the front pages in the startling style, after she did. . . "Where do you get such rot?" they belittle, etc. . . Well, he was suspended on June 22, the explanation being "profesional misconduct" . . The Harding memorial tomb probably wouldn't have been dedicated had it not been for the story in a just-before-it-folded-issue of Plain Talk. . . It was tagged "Harding's Haunted Tomb," and was written by Robert S. Harper, telegraph editor of the Ohio State Journal, Columbus, O. . . The article so aroused the nation—even Hoover attended. . .

That sign in the window of the bean store on 6th Ave. in the 40s still intrigues me . . . "1000 Beans for 10c" it reads . . . One presumes that if a customer is skeptical he is told to count 'em . . . It is a most engaging review in Publishers' Service on S. Stephenson Smith's new tome, "The Craft of the Critic" . . . The inspector asserts that newspapers which continue the practice of assigning any available member of the staff to review a play, a book or a picture are guilty of a crime . . . "A crime, too, of which the reviewer, the play, the book, the picture and the eventual readers are all victims" . . . Yet James Huneker, a great critic, started his career as a locomotive engineer . . . Burns Mantle, an expert drama defender, started as a printer . . . Percy Hammond started from a lower pit . . . My only objection to a critic was when one of them, now jobless, turned in the only sugary report on a third-rate play produced on 48th street earlier this year . . . So I investigated, purely to satisfy my curiosity . . . And to the disgrace of the craft I discovered that his sister-in-law wrote the show! . . . No wonder they say you have to grit your teeth to pronounce "critic."

TOMORROW—"THE MAN WITH THE IRON HAIR."

$20 A WEEK

by ROB EDEN

THE STORY SO FAR

Sally Blair, once a $30 a week typist is now private secretary to the millionaire, Harvey Davidson. She is in love with young Peter Douglas, who is engaged to Davidson's daughter Linda. Staying with Sally is Ann Tierney, separated from her husband Mac, but very much in love with him. Sally comes home one evening to find Ann not there. Later, she learns that Ann had killed herself. She leaves a note saying that "You can't forget love." Cally knows that she can't forget Peter.

November, and Sally was glad to have her new fur coat—not squirrel because she didn't want to go in debt for it, but a better grade of lapin, butter colored with flannel lining.

A cruel November, snow, and then a long cold lull, with the sidewalks like glass, and the air icy and still, the bloody sun throwing no warmth on the city by day, and the moon by night a round shivering ball of silver.

The pain of Ann's death was still very near. Mrs. Seymour had come and gone, a woman exactly as Sally had pictured the mother of Ann, her hands gnarled with work on the farm, in her kitchen, her face kindly, comforting, her stout matronly body ravaged by the bearing of her nine children. Her shoulders broad enough to take on the grief of Sally and Mac, for it had been Mrs. Seymour who consoled them.

Mrs. Seymour plainly didn't understand the lonely girl Ann had loved, but because Ann loved her, she loved her too, and mothered her. It was the first time Sally had ever been mothered, and it was a glorious experience. Very apparently, too, she didn't understand Ann's husband, but because he was her husband she forgave him, and took him in her strong arms along with Sally.

Sally Is Lonely

After she was gone, and the apartment was so empty, so lonely, Sally envied Ann more than ever, and wondered how she could have left home two years ago to come to New York. The only one of Mrs. Seymour's flock to have left. Because she really believed Mrs. Seymour wanted to hear from her, she wrote every week, and every week had an answer, the same as Ann had had. Motherly letters of advice, some of the words misspelled, some of the grammar incorrect but letters such as she had never had before. She grew to look for them every Thursday, and regularly on Sunday night, as Ann had done, she sat down and told Mrs. Seymour what had happened during the week.

Sometimes there were packages from Nebraska, a plum pudding, a cake, a small box of winter apples, more fragrant than Sally had ever had before, a few jars of quince jelly, and an apron which Mrs. Seymour had taken the time to make because when she was there Sally had had none for her kitchen.

Sally sent things, too, toys for the smaller children, whose names she had learned long ago from Ann, a purse for Mrs. Seymour because hers had been so shabby when she had been in New York, a warm scarf for Ann's father. Little things that gave her such infinite pleasure to choose, such delight to wrap up at night when she came home.

Mac she saw occasionally. Not too often, because she was reminded too much of the pain he had given Ann. When they were together they sat in dumb silence, each thinking the same thing, unable to shake off the agony of Ann's absence. Mac seemed older now, more mature. There was a man's look in his eyes, a man's sorrow on his shoulders. Sally thought she would hate him, but she didn't. She could not hate Mac, and he had no one to go to to talk of Ann, so he came to her.

The weeks edged on, slow, cold weeks that seemed interminable, until Thanksgiving was over, and December had begun, and the shops were bright with Christmas things.

Erma Gossips

"Thought Miss Davidson was going to marry her Mr. Douglas in November," Erma Brown said one day as she and Sally were going to lunch. Sally had been thinking the same thing often, too often for her peace of mind but she hadn't voiced it until now, when she agreed with Erma.

"Mr. Davidson say anything to you about the wedding?" Erma asked.

"Nothing." Indeed there had been no mention of it, either from Harvey Davidson, or in the society columns, except for the parties that were being given for Linda week in and week out.

"Wonder if it's off."

Sally didn't know. At the announcement dinner, November was set for the wedding, and November had come and gone, and still there was no wedding.

"Linda getting tired of him?"

"She seldom comes into the office." Sally admitted. When she did she came right in and went right out again.

"Mr. Roper asked me today if I'd heard anything around, and I said I hadn't. Thought you might have. Maybe they're going to have a Christmas wedding."

"Maybe—" It was all Sally could think of to say. The wedding couldn't be off or else the parties for Linda would cease, and they were going on, more every week. Sally looked in the papers every night for them, and she didn't miss any. The mere mention of Linda's name coupled with that of Peter's fascinated her still.

Mr. Davidson was in a pensive mood that afternoon when she went in to him. He was sitting at his desk, staring at the papers in front of him, his hands folded.

Mr. Davidson Is Moody

Sally sat down and waited. She never disturbed him until he spoke, even though he had rung for her. Fifteen minutes went by and she was still waiting. Davidson seemed unaware of her presence. Finally he looked up and started at finding her there.

"Oh, didn't hear you come in, Miss Blair. You should ring a bell when you enter, so I'll know you're here." He sighed as he picked up some letters, and glanced through them, only to lay them down in a few minutes, and stare ahead again.

It was unusual for Mr. Davidson's moods to last as long as this. Sally wondered if anything was the matter.

"Don't feel like working today, Miss Blair. Feel like loafing, and going off by myself, and just sitting. Ever feel like that?"

"Often—"

"You're a comfortable soul, Sally —" Sally caught her breath. The first time he had called her Sally, yet he did it so naturally, so unconsciously that she thought he could not have realized it.

"Yes, you're a comfortable sort of person, Sally." There it was again! "I never even know you're in the room. How can you keep so quiet?" He didn't expect an answer so Sally didn't give him one. He seemed to be talking to himself as he went on. "You've the ability to make yourself absolutely inconspicuous at times. Besides that you have a very soothing effect on me, do you know it?"

Sally didn't know, but she was glad to learn.

"Secretaries are usually so nervously high strung, so efficient that when I'm thinking of musing, they rattle papers to get my attention. You never do. You just sit and wait very patiently. You know me well enough now to know that I don't like to be hurried with my work, like to take my time. You're a jewel, Sally, and I've realized it for a long time."

Sally again—well, she had trained herself to Davidson's ways, as she had to John Warner's, and to Kent Roper's. It was easy after you knew your man, and she knew Harvey Davidson now. She knew when he wanted to be left alone and when he wanted to talk. At first he wanted to be left alone all the time, and now occasionally he wanted to talk. And when he was in a confidential mood he was charming, and very human. She had been afraid of him at the start, but now she wasn't. She was used to him, and he was used to her. He was beginning to rely on her more and more this past month.

"I don't think we'll work this afternoon. I think we'll talk. I've got a little problem on my mind that I think you can help me solve." He arose and walked toward the fire, and stood in front of it looking into the flames. It was his favorite place now that the summer was over and the roof garden was closed. Sally took the chair he had indicated near the hearth.

"The thing is this, Sally. Linda wants to get married right away, and Peter Douglas doesn't. He has some noble idea that he has to make good before he marries her. All rot, don't you think? He's in charge of the branch in New Jersey and making a nice record for himself, but he thinks that isn't enough. Wants to prove himself or something. More rot. If Linda wants him now, there's no reason why they shouldn't be married. Like to see Linda married and happy. But young Douglas is stubborn, as stubborn as I was when I was a boy. Can't blame him. He hates to have people think he's marrying her for her money. The wedding was all set for November, and then he said they ought to wait. Well, here is December, and Linda has set her heart on a Christmas eve wedding, and Peter is still stubborn. I've done all I can, but I can't move him. Neither can Linda."

Mr. Davidson Kisses Sally

Sally looked deep into the flames. They reminded her of Linda, so red at their hearts. Like her hair.

Then it was Peter who was holding off, not Linda, as Erma thought. Because of Peter the wedding had not taken place in November . . .

"So tonight," Davidson went on, "I've got to see Peter again and talk to him. Linda's orders—when you have a daughter like mine you have to obey orders. I've got to make him see the light. No easy job. Like the boy, though. Liked him at first, and like him better now. He has a fine mother, Linda's very fond of her. Charming woman."

Sally smiled to herself. Was she the only person to dislike Mrs. Douglas? Mr. Davidson and Linda thought her no nice—well, she was different to them than she had been to her. Far different. And Mrs. Douglas would always be lovely to the Davidson's. Mrs. Douglas had no reason to insult the Davidsons, no reason to be rude to them.

"Everything's ready for the wedding. Linda has her whole trousseau, lovely things. She tried on her wedding dress last night for me" Davidson's voice grew very soft, and he sat down on the arm of Sally's chair, his eyes still on the flames. "I suppose you get tired of me raving about Linda, but I can't help it. She's all I have—"

The fire was crackling noisily, and the sparks were raining on the stone hearth.

Davidson's arm crept around the back of the chair. Sally could feel his sleeve against her hair. Then it was around her, and he was bending over kissing her lips. She was up in a moment, out of the chair, and walking swiftly for the door. When she was in her own office, she sat down dully at her desk.

What she had been waiting for had come . . . but now that it had come she didn't like it.

Answers to Questions

This is a special department devoted solely to the handling of queries. This paper puts at your disposal the services of an extensive organization in Washington to serve you in any capacity that relates to information. This service is free. Failure to make use of it deprives you of benefits to which you are entitled. Your obligation is only two cents in coin or stamps enclosed with your inquiry for direct reply. Address The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—What was the origin of the Horus headdress for Egyptian women?—J. D.

A.—It came into use in the Ptolemaic times. Originally, in the earlier history of Egypt, it was customary for a king to have his statue modeled with a hawk back of him showing the protection of the god Horus. Later, Isis, the wife of the god Osiris, was sometimes shown with wings of a hawk, a sacred bird of Egypt. A large figure of the goddess would have the wings like long arms protecting a small mortal standing in front of her. As time passed this was abbreviated into a headdress worn by women of the royal family.

Q.—What is a cryptogram?—N. H.

A.—A cryptogram is a cipher used in secret correspondence whereby the message is interwoven into a book, story, or just a sentence. A special key is required to know how to understand and put the letters together.

Q.—Has a fly two kinds of eyes? —T. F. W.

A.—The greater part of the head of a fly is occupied by the eyes, some several thousand in number, described as compound. Between the compound eyes, and near the top of the head is a triangular arrangement of three simple eyes.

Q.—In dog races do the dogs chase the rabbit and run in a pack following a leader?—T. P. W.

A.—Dogs are very intelligent animals and soon learn to race. While the young dogs may follow the rabbit or another dog, the older ones have learned to race each other. The dog which has the rail often coming around the curve at great speed is driven outward by centrifugal force, and another dog, waiting for this chance, dashes in to the rail and finishes first.

Q.—Should trees be cut when sap is down when the wood is to be used for firewood?—W. J. H.

A.—It does not make any difference when the trees are cut, but if they are cut when the sap is up it will be necessary for them to be dried for a long period of time before the wood is suitable for use.

Q.—Please furnish particulars concerning the fish and chip houses which are springing up in the United States.—A. P.

A.—Fish and chip houses, although common in England, are new in the United States. Some have been established in and around St. Louis and are known as Whiting Sandwich shops. These fish and chip houses use the Whiting fish from Cape Cod, Massachusetts, as they are easy to handle, have few bones, weigh about one-third pound each, and are particularly adapted for making sandwiches which can be sold for the popular price of 15 cents each. They are fried in fat and served as an open sandwich on caraway seed bread.

Q.—Where is the school for prison guards?—A. S.

A.—It is held at detention headquarters, New York City. The course covers a period of four months. Those qualifying are only ones who have passed the civil service secret service examination. From this list they are selected and admitted to the prison guard school for instruction as federal guards.

Q.—How much cash money is there in the world?—A. F. L.

A.—There is probably less than $50,000,000,000 in cash in existence in the entire world. Wide fluctuations occur due to the issuance of paper money. Following the world war when vast quantities of depreciated currency were issued by Germany, Russia and some other countries, the total stock of money considerably exceeded $50,000,000,000. Now that there has been a fairly complete regaining of the gold standard, the total likely is below that mark.

Q.—Is there still extant a tea chest left from the Boston tea party?—C. E.

A.—Only one such chest exists. It is on exhibition in the Royall house, Medford, Mass.

Q.—What use is made of the Rock of Gibraltar?—L. M. S.

A.—The principal use of the British crown colony of Gibraltar is as a fortress. The Rock has a very small area and population, and there is practically nothing of importance there except the garrison, which, with the inaccessible physical conformation of the Rock, makes it one of the most impregnable fortresses in the world, and a very effective guardian of the entrance to the Mediterranean.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

I met Mike Sunday. It was far from being the first time I'd seen him, but we'd never been introduced. I had watched him often in his promenades and, though people may feel that it was rather a romantic admiration for a person of my age, I wished the friendship of so gallant a young fellow.

Mike, as you would probably guess from his name, is Irish. But he's high class Irish and descended from the nobility. Even though I'm not a snob, it is interesting to be the friend of a grandson of Lord Buccaneer of London, an aristocrat well known in England and Ireland.

Male clothing is never so interesting to femininity as the frills and furbelows of womankind. But Mike is always so well groomed that one must notice him and his suit is spoken of wherever he goes.

With the typical warm Irish heart, he is friendly almost to the point of familiarity. I don't think he knows what a Platonic friendship means. His eyes are not the Irish blue or gray, put in with a smutty finger, but a warm hazel that smile unashamedly at all his friends.

I had no sooner met him than his red head was thrust right into my face. There was gayety in his expression but he demanded response and he muzzled and pawed me until I caught his neck and twisted the loose hide in the manner dogs have desired since time began.

For Mike is a beautiful mahogany, or Titian (useless to name the color), a magnificent Irish setter, the grandson of Lord Buccanneer, the world's champion in 1928 and 1929. As a setter he is a genius and as a friend he's a love.

He has as much curiosity as any woman. The afternoon I met him, he wanted to make the acquaintance of two kittens, a meek little white one and a blue-gray the color of a Maltese, who galloped about with an arched back and stiff legs, for all the world like an old warhorse.

Mike is trained to mind, and when he started toward the kittens, a word from his mistress stopped him; but his eyes shone and his mouth and tongue laughed. The Maltese wished to meet him and slipped under the mistress' chair until Mike put his ruddy face in close proximity, then leaped back.

The setter's mistress called his name warningly and he stood his ground—just gazing at the wee kitten. Step by step, the finy Maltese came nearer. He wasn't a foot away when he stretched his neck inquiringly—then "p-ss-st" that kitten, who'd been the one to force the acquaintance, spit in Mike's face then stood glaring at the grinning setter, as if insulted.

Mike's a gentleman. He didn't move. But that small Maltese is no lady.

And while speaking of dogs, I just heard a funny thing. A splendid pointer was brought over from the old country where he had been taught the tricks of his trade in the Swedish language. Do you know he could not hunt in America until a Swede told his master the proper words to use to him?

NO ONE tries out more sunburn remedies than a lifeguard. No one is a better judge of their effectiveness. So it speaks volumes for the soothing, healing qualities of Noxzema Cream to receive the following letter from Ernest S. Wiese, captain of the Miami Beach Patrol.

"In my forty summer and winter seasons as a lifeguard," writes this veteran Florida lifeguard, "I have treated thousands of cases of sunburn. In my experience, the simplest and most effective remedy is Noxzema Cream. No matter how severe the burn, it instantly stops the pain."

The biggest beaches on the Atlantic Coast—Atlantic City, Coney Island, Asbury Park and others—all echo Captain Wiese's hearty praise! If you are suffering from sunburn apply Noxzema at once. 250 Dry Students Start Training Today

WASHINGTON, June 29. (AP)—Three hundred and fifty new prohibition agents will begin to find out Wednesday how to do bigger and better enforcement work.

Training schools for the additional men will be opened then to prepare them for the federal dry forces' biggest campaign beginning July 15.

While the prohibition bureau yesterday was dispatching its concluding orders to the school teachers, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment issued a statement in which it said repeal of the 18th amendment would provide additional revenue sufficient to wipe out the more than $800,000,000 deficit.

"Our latest revised estimate, based on the 1930 census," the association said, "puts the probable federal revenue from alcoholic beverages at $906,402,224."

Prohibition Director Woodcock, who now is inspecting conditions in the South, let heads of the training schools as well as his present agents know that he expects improving results in the forthcoming campaign. He added that he wants activities concentrated against high-ups.

TEXAN FIGHTS DEATH PENALTY

El Paso Man to Face Mexican Firing Squad

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, June 29. (UP)—A vigorous fight was being planned today against the death sentence given W. J. Meers, 28, of El Paso for killing Antonio Visconte in the Owl cafe at Juarez June 18, 1930.

Meers was sentenced Saturday, several hours before a jury in Ardmore, Okla., acquitted W. E. Guess, former deputy sheriff, on a charge of slaying Emilio Cortes Rubio, a kinsman of President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico.

Suarte Cabrera, attorney for Meers, announced he would appeal the case to the state supreme court. If that court affirms the sentence, the American's case may be appealed to the federal district court in Chihuahua City and to the federal supreme court of the republic of Mexico.

Although the Chihuahua state district attorney asked for a prison sentence of 20 years, Judge Navarro, of the second penal court decreed the American must die before a firing squad.

Meers shot Visconte when he mistook him for Manuel Villareal. The youth had sworn he would kill Villareal, who had been sought for an El Paso pay roll robbery in which Meers' father was killed.

SMALL FARMS SHOW GAINS

Decline in Ranching Shown In Two Counties

creased almost $700,000 during that period.

Utilization of small plots for intensive farming represents one of the outstanding features of the report. In 1920, Knox county showed no tracts of three acres or less under cultivation. In 1930 there were 33 such small farms. The county also gained 15 farms of from three to none acres each; 50 ranging from 10 to 19 acres; and 70 of from 20 to 50 acres. The period showed an increase of 40 in the number of farms of from 50 to 99 acres, 141 more farms of 100 to 174 acres each, and 72 more farms of from 175 to 250 acres. Farms of from 260 to 900 acres decreased materially in number; while those of 1,000 acres or more, representing established ranches owned principally by absentees, remained practically unchanged in number.

Large increases are shown in the number of mules used for farm work, the milk cows maintained, and the number of chickens kept by farmers. Offering further evidence of more diversified and intense cultivation, crop land in 1930 was reported as totaling 184,275 acres as against 157,719 acres in 1920. Idle land last year totaled only 842 acres, while in 1920 there were 1907 acres of land unused.

Wheat Acreage Drops

Abandonment of wheat as a grain crop is noticeable in the census. Knox county farmers gave 32,340 acres to wheat in 1920, and but 1382 acres in 1930. Corn acreage also has decreased heavily, while that devoted to hay has increased about 50 per cent. While figures on cotton cultivation are not included in this preliminary survey, it is intimated that much wheat and corn land has been diverted to cotton in the past 10 years.

Similar changes are reflected in Collingsworth county, where the number of farms has almost doubled since 1920. The present number is approximately 2,112. The average farm is 160 acres smaller than that of 1920, and is worth $5.39 more per acre. The county has 117 more owners operating their own farms than in 1920, with an increase of about 14,000 in total acreage under cultivation by such farmers, and a valuation of farms and improvements about $700,000 higher than that of 10 years ago.

As in Knox county, there has been in Collingsworth a remarkable increase in the number of small farms in operation. The number of large ranches, of 1,000 acres or more, has dropped from 59 to 43 in that decade.

In the field of livestock, fewer horses and hogs are shown; there are many more mules and milk cows in use; and much larger flocks of chickens are maintained. Crop land in Collingsworth county totaled 177,064 acres five years ago, and in 1930 was reported as 246,964 acres.

The 1930 census was taken as of April 1, while those of 1920 and 1925 were taken as of Jan. 1.

Khabarovsk, Siberia, to Nome, Alaska, the last cross-water hop of their record breaking globe-circling tour.

The Winnie Mae roared off from Khabarovsk at 6 p. m. (5 a. m. E. D. T.). At 11:40 p. m. (10:40 p. m. E. D. T.), a monoplane believed to be The Winnie Mae was sighted over the mouth of the Kamchatka river, Kamchatka peninsula by the Japanese Canary ship, Jimbu Maru.

This would have placed the fliers 800 miles on their course in 5 hours and 40 minutes. If the plane was The Winnie Mae, as seems certain, the fliers had crossed the Gulf of Tartary, the Sea of Okhotsk and the Kamchatka peninsula and were then headed for the Aleutian islands, the Scimitar of land pin pricks that leads across the Bering sea to Nome.

The Cannery ship radioed that it was certain the plane was The Winnie Mae. It said the plane remained within sight for about 10 minutes, disappearing in a northern direction.

Behind the blue and white monoplane and her impatient crew when they took off from Khabarovsk lay 8,785 miles of land and sea, crossed in a race against the sun in four days, 21 hours, and 26 minutes.

After losing precious hours at Blagoveschensk when The Winnie Mae bogged down in the mud, Post and Gatty were again delayed at Khabarovsk for 29 hours and 30 minutes. Impatiently they scanned each weather report—from the time of their arrival at 1:30 a. m. E. D. T. yesterday, each report gave unfavorable weather along their Nome route.

Airmen Warned

The auspices were little better when the fliers decided on a take-off. With visions of their phenomenal record slipping from them, the two American airmen decided to risk all, despite the advice of Russian and Japanese airmen.

Stormy and clear spots were reported over the Kam Chatka peninsula, which The Winnie Mae has now left behind. Before them is the treacherous Bering sea, reported clear at the take-off, but with Japanese weathermen averring that it would soon be struck by a storm brewing in the Japan sea.

It was therefore with considerable feeling of foreboding that a large crowd gathered at the Khabarovsk flying field waved good bye to The Winnie Mae as it shot off into the gathering night. The anxiety was further increased when the fliers announced they would not pause at Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, for refueling and last minute weather reports. Instead they planned to press on straight for Nome, cutting some 300 miles off the hop.

When the airmen got away from Khabarovsk they were beginning the seventh day of their trip which started at 4:56 a. m. E. D. T. Tuesday, from Roosevelt field, N. Y. The two days setback caused by delays at Blagoveschensk and Khabarovsk precluded the possibility of them being in New York by Wednesday, but they were virtually certain of completing their circuit of the globe in 10 days, the mark they set on departure. They were out to break the Graf Zeppelin's present globe-circling record of a little more than 21 days.

HOME-TOWN TALK

By B. D. D.

City to Mankins as a state highway and upon its completion will maintain it free of cost to the county. The News also takes it as an indication that hard surfacing will eventually be placed on the highway from Archer City to Windthorst and on to its connection at the Jack county line.

Slowly, perhaps, but surely Texas is building a magnificent system of state highways. Wichita Falls is fortunate in being a center from which state highways radiate in a number of directions. We were once concerned about the building of highways that came directly to Wichita Falls, that is, highways that came to our city limits or were continued through the city. Of course we had to have these highways to get in or out of the city and for others to come here. Now any highway that is built within 200 miles of Wichita Falls is pretty certain to link up with some other highway that leads directly to this city so that the building of any highway anywhere in this section leads to Wichita Falls. That is one of the reasons we can expect Wichita Falls to resume its growth as soon as this period of depression is over.

Not the least interesting page of Holland's magazine is that on which the verse of Texas poets are printed. Here's one of four lines:

Clay Preferred
By DOROTHY PRICE

I know your feet are softest clay,
And, yet I think, my own
Clay feet are lovelier far than those
Of hard, unyielding stone!

one of the leading business men of the Southwest. He boasted that he never worked a day for wages. He became interested in the cattle business early in life, and never lost interest in it, owning several large ranches at the time of his death.

Wide Interests

After farming in Hall and Smith counties, he ranched in Denton and Archer counties in the 70's, moving to Fort Worth in 1880. Four years later Colonel Herring acquired large holdings in the Indian territory, in what later became Greer county, then in 1889 moved to Vernon, where he became interested in flour mills and the lumber business. He founded the Herring National bank at Vernon and was still its president. He never retired from active business.

Colonel Herring erected Amarillo's first five-story building, and built the Herring hotel, which is still the city's largest structure. He had lived here since 1904.

FRITZ' TWO HOMERS GIVE SHIPPERS THIRD STRAIGHT, 4 TO 3

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

One comforting thing about the current Beaumont series is that our outfielders have on hand a plentiful supply of sun glasses.

Last week a story went the rounds that Ted Gullic tried to borrow a pair of specs during the Spudder series at Beaumont, and was informed that "Mr. Baker said not to let you have the glasses."

That story is not exactly true. In the first place Gullic did not play in that series. Bob Fuss was the player in question, and the reply he received from the Beaumont outfielder was not as bad as the one above quoted. Fuss had broken his glasses in the last game at San Antonio. In the first game at Beaumont he did borrow a Beaumont outfielder's sun glasses, and the outfielder at the close of the game told Fuss he'd better make arrangements to get a new pair, because "the management objects to your using mine."

And Fuss told him he'd go ahead and use his broken ones, thank you.

Old Sol has been the cause of a lot of bitter feeling down at Beaumont. The Beaumont park is so located that sun floods the infield, and blinds have been put on top of the grandstand. But the club officials seem to have a certain hour for the blinds to be removed, regardlss of whether the sun has yet lowered sufficiently to prevent eye strain.

You probably remember that Skipper Del Baker and De Viveiros, San Antonio shortstop, came to blows when the blinds were raised early in a recent game at Beaumont. De Viveiros claimed the blinds had been tinkered with at that moment for the sole and exclusive purpose of blinding the San Antonio infield.

"Tex" Carleton, right-handed ace of the Houston pitching staff, also had a run-in about those blinds. They were raised when he was pitching at Beaumont a few weeks ago, and he stoppped the game until they were so adjusted that he could see the plate.

Thought He Was Dizzy

Down at Slick Ansley's coffee counter the other night, the boys were saying to themselves: "Well, that guy sure nuff is 'Dizzy' Dean, ain't he?"

For Dean had just sprawled over the counter and said: "Yeah, you just watch me. I'm goin' to be the captain of the pitching situation in that first game at Fort Worth Sunday, and if I win it I'm goin' right ahead and pitch the second game, too!"

"Oh yeah?" we said, and took another gulp of java.

And Saturday, after the Spudders had whipped the Buffs, and the Houston players were in their hotel rooms kinda gloomy like, Dean came into Skipper Schultz' room and said:

"That's all right, Skipper; you just watch me pitch that game tomorrow; I'll show you how to beat them Panthers!"

And he went on to add that, the first game under his belt, he would pitch the second. And his outburst again was met with "Oh Yeahs?"

But the dizzy devil did it!

Such a thing has happened few times in this league. The writer, in fact, never heard of it anywhere, but the more experienced writers remember it having occurred. At any rate, it has been a long, long time since a Texas league pitcher even attempted to pitch two complete games in one day. And we doubt if any pitcher in baseball ever did it so nobly as Dean, who allowed a measly 10 hits and three runs in 16 innings pitched against a slugging outfit like the Fort Worth Cats!

Did You Know That—

Buck Stanton possibly is the only player in organized baseball with over 100 hits. Including the four hits Buck got in Sunday's games, the portsided first sacker had 118 safeties to his credit. Up to last Saturday Combs of the Yanks, Simmons of the Athletics, and Cronin of the Senators each had 93, more than any other player in both major leagues.

They Like Us

The Houston team went away wishing they had a shortstop like Scoop Scharein, a first baseman like Buck Stanton, a second baseman like Bear Allday, a third baseman like Bo Euller, a right fielder like Bob Fuss and a center fielder like Ted Gullic. The Spudders watched them go wishing they had pitchers like George Washington Payne, Dizzy Dean, Tex Carleton, and Lefty Fowler.

It's just pitchers the Spudders want, whereas the Buffs want everything but pitchers.

Give the Wichita Falls club two more pitchers of the caliber of Bob Cooney, and we wouldn't need a Dean, a Payne, a Fowler, or a Carleton.

Speaking of Pitchers

It's about time our old hoop-skirt curver of the hot summer days, Maul 'Em Milton Steengrafe, was doing a little maulin'. The veteran got off to a poor start. In his last two starts, it took a pack of work by Scoop Scharein, et. al., to put over a 5 to 4 victory over Galveston, and his start against Beaumont Sunday was anything but invigorating.

We still maintain that when Steengrafe gets started, his string of July and August victories will more than compensate for his early bum showings, but we will need full value from Milt's arm pretty soon.

For the first time in weeks, Lester White let go with his fence ball Sunday. This is not a habit of the calm right-hander in the early months, and it may be that the torrid sun is at last having a telling effect on him.

If Les could keep on at the rate he was going before Sunday, he could pile up 20 victories a season along with the best of them. But if the sun gets him, he'll have to give way to the boys who can stand the heat. Steengrafe can stand it, and he can carry the winning streak on where White leaves off, if he'll bear down and do it.

Hillin has let his temper get the best of him in his last two starts. Curiously enough, he lost his temper in both instances in the ninth inning when the opposing club started to nibble at the lead he had to work behind, and in each instance, it was the umpire who bore the brunt of his wrath.

With the score 6 to 2 in favor of the Spuds, in the first game of the double-header with the Indians, Hillin let down and the Tribe scored twice before Les White went in and subdued them. Then in Friday's game with Houston the umpire, who until then had apparently been okay, got terribly rotten in the ninth, according to Hillin, and when Ash completely lost control of himself, he finally succeeded in losing his ball game, too, 7 to 6.

TOT PRESSNELL WHIFFS SEVEN

Circuit Blows Rob Pitcher Of Splendid Game

By FRED THOMPSON

Two home runs ffrom the big bat of Ray Fritz, Beaumont first sacker, robbed Tot Pressnell of victory in a splendidly pitched game Monday. The Shippers won, 4 to 3, making it three straight in the crucial series. Pressnell was opposed by Slim Hollerson, who also pitched a fine game, but Pressnell turned in a more spectacular performance, fanning seven. Both kept hits well scattered.

Fritz' first homer came in the sixth, giving the visitors their third score. The Spudders hustled over their third run in the seventh to tie the score, but Fritz banged his second circuit clout in the eighth to score what proved to be the winning run.

Both sides fielded perfectly. The series, and incidentally the first half of the season, will close with today's game.

White Hits Triple

The Shippers scored in the first. Taylor fanned. White tripled to right center and scored on Schuble's fly to Gullic. Easterling and Hughes singled through second, but Fritz grounded out to Stanton unassisted. In the home half, Garms grounded out, second to first. Allday fanned. Stanton singled to right. Gullic lined to left for a single, but Hungling flied to left.

To open the second, Holley doubled to center. Wise grounded out, Allday to Stanton, Holley taking third. Hollerson singled to left, scoring Holley. Taylor fanned. White flied to Gullic. In the last half, Fuss walked. Scharein forced Fuss at second, short to second. Euller forced Scharein at second, third to second. Pressnell fanned.

In the third, Schuble grounded out, Allday to Stanton. Easterling flied to Garms. Hughes flied to Gullic. In the home half, Garms lined out to right. Allday grounded out, second to first. Stanton flied to left.

Fritz popped to Scharein to open the fourth. Holley flied to Garms. Wise popped to Allday. Pressnell retired the three men on four pitched balls. Gullic singled through the box to open the home half. Hungling forced Gullic at second, pitcher to second. Fuss hit into a double play, second to short to first.

Scharein Scores

Hollerson fanned to start the fifth. Taylor singled to center. White flied to Gullic. Schuble singled to center, Taylor taking second. Easterling fanned. To open the home half, Scharein's hot liner bounced over the center fielder's head and went for a triple. Euller grounded out, short to first, Scharein scoring. Pressnell fanned. Garms grounded out to first unassisted.

Hughes fanned to open the sixth. Fritz hit a home run over the right field fence. Holley grounded out, Euller to Stanton. Wise grounded out, Stanton to Pressnell, who covered first. In the home half, Allday popped to short. Stanton dropped a Texas leaguer in left for a base hit. Gullic singled to left, Stanton taking third. Hungling forced Gullic at second, short to second, Stanton scoring. Fuss grounded out, second to first.

Hollerson fanned to open the seventh. Taylor flied to Garms. White singled over Scharein's head. White stole second. Schuble grounded out, Pressnell to Stanton.

Too Much Fritz

In the eighth, Easterling grounded out, Euller to Stanton. Hughes beat out an infield hit to first, but was thrown out stealing, Hungling to Scharein. Fritz hit his second homer of the day over the right field fence. Holley popped up to Stanton. In the last half, Stanton grounded out, second to first. Gullic grounded out, short to first. Hungling grounded out, third to first.

PANTHERS BEAT BUFFS, 2 TO 1

Shippers Now Have Full Game Lead

FORT WORTH, June 29. (AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers slipped in a 2 to 1 defeat to Houston's first half pennant hopes tonight at Lagrave field. Sunday the Buffs had put the skids on the Panthers chances with a double victory.

The defeat didn't exactly put the Buffs out of the pennant race, but lots will have to happen in the final game tomorrow for them to beat out Beaumont, which pulled one full game away with a victory over Wichita Falls Tuesday.

It was Leon Chagnon and his assortment of curves and fast balls that proved too much for the Buffs. He was staked to a 2-run lead in the first inning and had his heart in every pitch the rest of the way. Score:

Blake Named Referee For Championship Bout

CLEVELAND, June 29. (AP)—Cleveland's five-man boxing commission today climaxed a series of arguments by choosing George Blake of Los Angeles to referee Max Schmeling's 15-round heavyweight title defense against Bill Stribling in the Municipal stadium Friday night.

Ever since the championship match was allocated to Cleveland, the commission had struggled with the problem of finding a local man capable of doing the job or settling upon an outside official satisfactory to both warriors.

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Carl Hubbell weakened with one out in the ninth today and the Cardinals scored three runs to defeat the Giants, 5 to 3, in the opening game of their crucial National league series. The victory increased St. Louis' lead over the McGraw men to two and a half games.

Chick Hafey set off the winning rally with a single. Score:

Sandlotter Breaks Leg In Noble-Little Game

In a game marred with an accident, the Presbyterians kept their tied position at the top of the Commercial league ladder by defeating the Noble-Little club 6 to 3 on Harrison field Monday. N. S. "Al" Ashley, right fielder for the Noble-Little club and an employee of the Daily Times, broke his left leg in the first inning of the game when he collided with Spider Corbin, a teammate, while both were going after Red Thurman's Texas leaguer double into short right. Ashley was rushed to the Wichita General hospital in a spectator's car. Spider Corbin accompanied him to the hospital.

Carroll "Big Boy" Ridling held the Hardware company nine to four well scattered singles, two of which went to Boyd, the maskman. Ridling whiffed an even dozen batters. Red Thurman led the Presbyterian attack with a home run and a double in three times up. John Ross Haley hit a single and double in three trips.

Texas League Umpire Resigns

Alvin Gardner, Texas league president, announced Monday Les Tullos, who joined the Texas league umpire staff at the start of the current season, had resigned, effective July 1. Tullos is in ill health, Gardner said.

The league does not plan to fill the vacancy. Tullos' resignation will cause a shake-up in the working arrangements of the remaining eight arbiters. The veteran combination of Harry Kane and Colfer will be retained, but King henceforth will work with Barr, Basil with Sears, and Dominique with Ballanfant, Gardner said.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Reactionary sentiment was more apparent in cotton today.

Complaints of high temperatures in the Southeast brought in further trade buying and covering, but rallies failed to hold and the general market closed steady at net declines of 22 to 34 points.

The opening was steady 18 to 19 points lower with active months selling about 25 to 34 points net lower during the early trading under realizing or liquidation which seemed to be coupled with some local and southern selling. It was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, reports of needed rains in Texas and the lower opening of the stock market.

The market steadied after the early offerings had been absorbed, and there may have been a little buying on a private report pointing to a decrease of 13.1 per cent in acreage, and end-June condition of 69.5 per cent and an indicated crop of 13,180,000 bales. A rally from the early decline in the stock market helped the market, no doubt, as there was some comment on high temperatures in the eastern belt. The buying tapered off on the rallies, however, and after selling up to 10.06 for July and 10.68 for December, the market eased again. Later fluctuations were irregular enough to suggest a rather divided sentiment, but the bulges seemed to meet cotton from one source or another with July selling back to the opening price while December broke to 10.45. July closed at 9.91 and December at 10.53, showing rallies of about 6 to 8 points from the lowest on October and later deliveries.

Two private crop reports were published, the second indicating a decrease of 8.1 per cent in acreage and a condition of 71.3 per cent making the crop indication 13,465,000 bales. This report may have been responsible for some selling early in the afternoon while the market later appeared to be influenced by the easier ruling of stocks.

Liverpool reported liquidation on the Texas rains. Exports today 5,848, making 6,607,819 so far this season. Port receipts 3,102. U. S. port stocks 3,061,281.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 29. (AP)—While not quite so active, cotton was nervous and erratic today. Prices sought lower levels mainly on poor cables and a less optimistic view of the success of the Hoover debt proposals. The day developed a net loss of $1.50 a bale.

After opening 17 to 21 points lower and declining to levels 30 to 36 points under Saturday's close on liquidation by recent buyers owing to the less favorable advices from Paris relative to the debt plan, prices rallied 18 to 20 points around the middle of the morning on shorts covering. The market soon eased off again to new lows, losing 22 to 23 points from the previous highs and dropping to levels 33 to 35 points under Saturday's close. After mid-session prices rallied gradually on covering regaining 13 to 15 points of the previous loss. Prices fluctuated rather aimlessly in the late trading but eased off near the end nearer to the lows. The close was steady showing net losses for the day of 26 to 35 points.

Liverpool cables came in 14 to 15 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that there was local and continental liquidation of Texas rains.

Port receipts 3,102; for week 4,867; for season 8,830,607; last season 8,717,707. Exports 5,913; for week 8,960; for season 6,407,490; last season 6,470,377. Port stocks 3,091,625. Last year 1,673,037. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 61,762; last year 63,425; spot sales at southern markets 4,206; last year 1,293.

Market Values Recede Under Uncertainty and Profit-Taking

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 29. (US)—The combination of renewed uncertainty plus a quite natural desire to realize profits on fortunate recent purchases brought about a general reaction in the stock market today. Considered from an unbiased standpoint, the net decline was hardly more than might develop purely out of technical consideration, in view of the substantial recovery of the preceding week.

Selling, however, was also induced by the recognition of possible further delay in effecting a satisfactory agreement between the American and French governments over the debt moratorium. Delay in this program, if it assumes indefinite character, might undo whatever good has been accomplished by the dramatic announcement of the program.

Volume, however, was not particularly increased as prices receded and there were occasional brief spurts of strength which served to prevent any drastic break. There was still evident in some speculative quarters a disposition to accept price setbacks as further opportunity for purchasing, but such buying was insufficient to overcome the pressure of offerings. Trading just barely exceeded two million shares, a decline of a million from Friday's total.

Another contributing factor in the uncertainty was fuller realization that the Interstate Commerce commission will not be hastened into making a favorable decision on the railroads' application for higher rates. The railroads, in their declination to name specific commodities upon which the propose to advance rates, force the commission into an extensive survey of the entire railroad rate structure with necessary exhaustive studies consuming weeks and perhaps months.

It is now generally conceded, as frequently claimed here, that a general 15 per cent rate increase will not be granted; the roads will be fortunate to secure half this amount. The Rails as a group had to withstand considerable profit-taking today, with reactions of as much as seven points among the higher-priced issues.

Aggressive pool activity was evident in many stocks, but even such sponsorship was unable to absorb the offerings which appeared. Case Threshing was a favorite of the bulls and reached new high ground before reacting to close with a small fractional net decline. An extensive short account is the principal factor in this stock's strength. United Aircraft was among the few issues to close net higher, gaining 1' points under active pool sponsorship.

Steel Common, American Can and other leading issues closed lower, Steel losing more than two points. United Corporation sold down with the general list, but in this stock the buying on reactions was reported to be high grade. No haste in buying the issue is exhibited, but seemingly persistent demand exists whenever the stock shows weakness. United, because of its dominant position in the utility field, has virtually all qualifications essential to leadership in a bull market. The buying is chiefly for the long-pull, although bullish traders have been fortunate of late in their purchases on recations.

Copper stocks were in supply. Profit-taking probably accounted for a good part of the selling, but it was reported alte today that the conference of leading producers designed to bring about an agreement for cooperation in limiting production had come to an end without results. Unless drastic curtailment of output becomes effective, the industry will have to wait patiently while its huge surplus supplies are gradually absorbed.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, June 29. (AP)—Heavy receipts of wheat and oats on the cash grain market today found good demand with wheat reflecting the slightly lower prices on the northern markets but oats strong, corn and sorghums were fairly well taken, though the latter were lower. Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard of any protein 56¼@57c.

Corn—No. 3 mixed 67@69c; No. 3 white 73@75c; No. 3 yellow 74@76c.

Oats—No. 3 red 29@31c.

Barley—No. 3, 40@42c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.10@1.15; No. 2 kaffir $1.05@1.10.

Exporters were bidding 56¼@57c for wheat delivered freight paid at Texas gulf ports.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—Belief that a break in the hot wave was imminent led to reactions in grain prices today. The reaction came after a steep rise in which oats had outdone the season's top record. Temperatures exceeding 100 at many points for more than a week were largely responsible for hoisting corn temporarily to a maximum of 10¾c and oats to 6¾c above values current about two weeks ago.

Wheat strength, more lasting than that of corn and oats, resulted chiefly from successful mediation by President Hoover inducing the federal farm board to reconsider plans to keep old crop surplus wheat off the market for any definite period.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@⅜c higher, corn unchanged to ⅛c up, oats 1¼@1½c advance and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c. Provisions were easier, affected by weakness of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, July, 57@59¼@⅛c; Sept., 58¾@61¼@⅛c; Dec., 62¾@63¾@65⅜c. Corn, July, 60¼@62⅝c; Sept. 59@61⅝c; Dec., 53¼@53¼@55⅜@55⅝c.

DRAINAGE AREA BONDS ORDERED

County Approves Issuance Of $26,958

Issuance of $26,958 in bonds by the Wichita County Drainage District No. 2, as authorized by the voters of that district last August in an election, was approved by the commissioners court Monday after Judge A. H. Britain, attorney for the district, reported that arrangements for sale of the bonds are practically complete.

According to the agreements under which the election of last August was called, Water Improvement District No. 1 will put up the same amount as that being raised in bonds by the drainage district, providing a total of about $50,000 for the drainage project. The district lies between Call field and Holliday creek, and between Wichita Falls southern limit and Lake Wichita.

The bonds will draw 6 per cent interest. Judge Britain said that contracts for the construction work probably will be let within the coming 60 days.

County Auditor Paul Barnett's bond was approved for a term of two years beginning July 1. He was authorized to employ two deputies at salaries of $2,700 and $2,100 annually.

The report of Miss Elizabeth Hall county clerk, for May was received and referred to the auditor.

KIWANIS CLUB

Dramatic and musical entertainment furnished by local artists comprised the program which local Kiwanians heard Monday noon in their weekly meeting at the Wichita club.

Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes and Mrs. Harry Fuller presented a crystal-gazing number, Mrs. Holmes portraying "Madame le Saucier," a fortune teller, and Mrs. Fuller a love-lorn maiden.

Vocal solos by R. E. Shepherd and John Flynn completed the program. Mrs. Shepherd and Miss Katherine Sullivan were accompanists. Dr. H. T. Wood was in charge of the program.

Thousands of men and women have taken advantage of the most dramatic values offered in years—38 Anniversary Sale. P. B. M.—Adv.

Gangs Use Falls As New Agent Of 'Informer's' Death

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 29. (AP)—Add to gangland's list of one-way rides a trip over Niagara Falls. Rum runners are believed to have sent a suspected informer over the cataract last night.

The unidentified man, thought to have been a smuggler himself, rode to his death over the falls in a disabled boat, and at first it was taken for granted that it was an accident.

Then a piece of an oar which had been sawed almost in half was found and the authorities concluded rum runner enemies had cut the oar so that it would break when bent against the swift current.

The man went over while firemen and police stood helpless. They arrived just too late to reach him before he was swept into the fierce pull of the current just above the falls.

While the crowd looked on, the man rose as the boat neared the brink, waved his arms, and disappeared.

Burglary Charge Filed In Drug Store Robbery

Complaints charging burglary in connection with the recent theft of goods from the Oasis Drug store, on Tenth street near Van Buren, were filed by Assistant District Attorney Mike Anglin Monday against L. V. Jenne and Robert Godfrey.

Both defendants were being held in the Wichita county jail Monday. The Oasis Drug store was entered last week when a quantity of merchandise and jewelry belonging to the owners was taken. The loot was recovered by city police within a few hours.

If your husband does not know about it, he would appreciate your telling him that all our summer suits in palm beach, tropical worsteds, and linens are marked down for this 38th Anniversary sale. P. B. M.—Adv.
