Buildup In Viet Nam Continues

SAIGON (AP)—More U.S. soldiers are being put into battle almost every day, and the U.S. military men won't disclose future plans, the next step is evidently to send out larger units and hopefully have them stay — or at least leave behind strong enough Vietnamese units to hold the ground won.

A pattern of American strategy has emerged in the past few months.

It began with simple holding operations when the U.S. Marines first landed at Da Nang more than a year ago. As the U.S. forces expanded and the troops became accustomed to local conditions patrols gradually increased in size.

For months, such operations were usually of short duration.

MAJOR SHIFT

A major shift in emphasis began perhaps six months ago when Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander, started operations which would keep groups of two, three or more battalions in sustained search and destroy" operations for more than a month. Although the military men won't disclose future plans, the next step is evidently to send out larger units and hopefully have them stay — or at least leave behind strong enough Vietnamese units to hold the ground won.

The headquarters thinkers do not speak of conventional offensives and attacks and victories and defeats. They apply themselves to the grinding task of continuing pressure against an enemy who frequently retains the ability to dictate where and when he will stand and fight.

OTHERS

Besides the Americans there are 24,000 Koreans and 5,000 Australians to beef up the South Vietnamese. Another division of Koreans is on the way. South Viet Nam claims 700,000 men under arms.

As new troops arrive they will be put in the field as soon as they go through relatively brief on-the-spot training. They will not be hoarded to start any great, strategic offensive because, in fact, the offensive has been under way for months.

One objective is to deny the rice harvests to the Viet Cong. Staff officers say many Communist elements are already critically short.

Another objective is to strengthen control of the strategic central highlands and make infiltration of men and supplies through Laos and Cambodia more difficult.

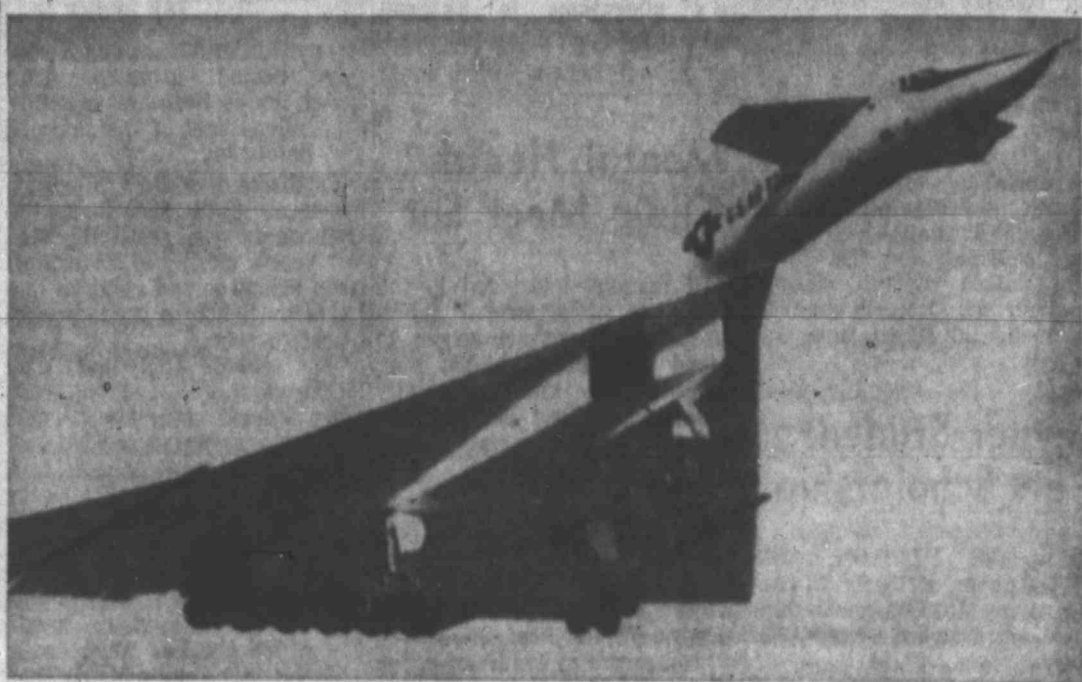

The long-term U.S. goal, being implemented as troops arrive, is to enlarge the present coastal enclaves until they eventually merge. This, of course, is really long-range planning.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League and American Football League are on the verge of an agreement that will call for a virtual amalgamation under one commission, The Associated Press learned today.

Commissioner Al Davis of the AFL was meeting this afternoon with three club owners at which details of the peace were to be refined.

Under the agreement, it was reported that the two leagues would continue to operate separately with one commissioner, Pete Rozelle of the NFL.

Giant Research Bomber Crashes

Air Force officials did not know at noon today which of two men in an XB70A research bomber survived a desert crash this morning. The experimental craft fell near Barstow, Calif., and there was a chance that one rider was safe. Al White, chief test pilot for North American Aviation, and Air Force Major C. S. Cross, copilot, were aboard. The downed plane was the second of two planes built, and flies 2,000 miles per hour up to 70,000 feet. The 185-foot bomber carries encapsulated ejection seats for both men. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Cong Unit Wiped Out, Buddhist Quits Eating

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. paratroopers all but wiped out a determined battalion of North Vietnamese regulars today after two days of bitter fighting, a military spokesman reported. He said the enemy left 232 dead strewn over a five-mile battlefield in the central highlands after offering stiff resistance.

The picture given by the U.S. spokesman indicated a significant victory over the enemy troops after a weeklong lull in ground action in South Viet Nam.

HIT BACK

The Communists hit back with a blistering mortar attack on a U.S. military advisers' compound in the Mekong Delta, killing some Americans.

A squadron of helicopters poured more men of the 101st Airborne Brigade into the raging fight 250 miles northeast of Saigon as South Viet Nam's political crisis took a calmer turn. The moderate leader of the Buddhist Institute called for a halt to rioting and human sacrifices but said his followers will continue to struggle in a "nonviolent spirit" to overthrow Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's regime.

The declaration by Thich Tam Chau, chief architect of an abandoned political truce with the military junta last week, promised continued although

HUNGER STRIKE

In Hue, South Viet Nam's most militant Buddhist leader, Thich Tri Quang, began a hunger strike as a protest against the Saigon government and U.S. policies supporting it.

Thich Chon Kim, another Buddhist leader in that northern city, said Quang will fast until Buddhist objectives are satisfied. He said Quang will take water and juices but no solid food.

The bitter fighting in Kontum Province began before dawn Tuesday when a North Vietnamese attack on a valley camp of the American "Screaming Eagles" backfired on the Communists, breaking a week-long lull in the ground war. The Americans struck back with planes and troops, routing the North Vietnamese unit which was estimated at 350 or more men.

BATTLE FLARED

The battle flared just north of the Communist infiltration routes close to the Cambodian and Laotian borders where the U.S. 25th Infantry Division had been running encounters with North Vietnamese troops in Operation Paul Revere last month.

A U.S. spokesman said the penetration by the 101st Airborne six days ago on another search-and-destroy mission — Operation Hawthorne — provoked the North Vietnamese into the attack against the isolated artillery battery.

A U.S. military spokesman reported light casualties among the airborne battalions. But the fierce battle was obviously not without its cost.

Viet Cong attackers hit the U.S. advisers' compound at My Tho, in the Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon, before dawn with a heavy barrage of mortar and recoilless rifle fire. A U.S. spokesman said shrapnel cut down some surprised American soldiers as they jumped for their weapons in the small compound.

NO FIGURES

The spokesman said there were some wounded and killed but no figures were released.

While the fighting intensified in the central highlands, U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots stepped up the air war against North Viet Nam Tuesday. They flew 70 multiplane missions compared with 55 on the previous day.

The attacks concentrated on supply lines and coastal junks and barges, a spokesman said. One ship was hit 40 miles south of Haiphong, the north's major port.

Alma Howls Across Cuba Toward Keys

Some Areas In Florida Evacuated

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Alma smashed through Havana today, battering the Cuban capital with winds reaching a peak fury of 117 miles an hour, then howled on toward the Florida Keys and the southwest Florida mainland.

The Weather Bureau raised hurricane warnings on the Florida Gulf Coast northward through the heavily populated Tampa-St. Petersburg area.

WARNINGS

Gale warnings extended from the Florida Keys up the east coast to Savannah, Ga., and forecasters said winds would rise to near hurricane force south of Cape Kennedy late in the day.

Tides ran seven to 11 feet above normal ahead of the storm as it thrashed into the Florida Straits and the Weather Bureau asked for immediate evacuation of low areas of the lightly populated southwest coast of Florida.

Cuba's three national radio networks made no mention of any deaths in Havana. Alma took 72 lives in Honduras.

Alma had switched to a due-north course and was moving forward at 16 miles an hour — a track that should take the hurricane close to Key West during the afternoon and to the Tampa Bay area late tonight or early Thursday.

SIDESWIPE

On this track, Alma would sideswipe the thickly populated lower east coast with her outer gale winds. At 11 a.m. EST, Alma was centered about 205 miles southwest of Miami and 230 miles south-southwest of Fort Myers, Fla.

The storm may have dealt a damaging blow to the Cuban sugar crop — mainstay of Fidel Castro's economy — and to other crops in the food-ridden Communist nation. Havana Radio said some houses collapsed as the hurricane crossed the Cuban Isle of Pines.

For two days, Alma had crawled at a snail's pace across the Caribbean with no outside weather forces exerting any influence on its movements.

SPEEDS UP

Today, however, a high-altitude cyclonic circulation over the eastern Gulf of Mexico began to affect the hurricane, speeding its forward movement and pulling it slightly off its north-northeast track more toward a northward path.

When Alma moves off Cuba into the Florida Straits, the Weather Bureau warned, there will be a possibility of tornadoes over south Florida.

But, although Alma has left a trail of 74 dead in her soggy wake — 73 in Honduras and at least one in Cuba — forecasters told residents of the Florida Keys there was no need for widespread evacuation or cause for panic.

WATCH UP

A hurricane watch was placed in effect on both Florida coasts, northward to Daytona Beach on the Atlantic side and to Cedar Key on the Gulf of Mexico, well above Tampa. A hurricane warning was in effect in the lower Florida Keys and on the lower west coast.

While Alma was still 250 miles south-southwest of Miami, her advance winds reached all the way to Tavernier on Key Largo, buffeting that community with 50-mile-an-hour gusts. Brisk squalls whipped through Miami.

Tens of thousands of Cubans were evacuated from the path of the hurricane before it hit that island's western portion, Havana Radio said.

The first Cuban storm victim was a boatman. Havana radio reported Tuesday night a wind gust slammed him against a cabin and he went down with his craft while two crewmates swam ashore.

The incident occurred off La Coloma, a fishing port on the south coast of Pinar del Rio, Cuba's westernmost province.

Rights Leaders Plan Strategy

COLDWATER, Miss. (AP) — of here.

A promised crusade on foot through Mississippi stalled temporarily today while civil rights commanders planned strategy and arranged for supplies.

Dr. Martin Luther King visited James Meredith at his hospital room in Memphis as 18 gray-shirted state troopers posted here looked northward for the vanguard of marchers. Memphis is about 35 miles north

There were indications Meredith might leave his hospital bed to resume the march interrupted Monday when he was felled by three shotgun blasts from ambush.

Already, volunteers were arriving in Memphis from New York and Oakland, Calif., to join the trek which the Rev. Dr. King promised would "be bigger than Selma."

The heads of several civil rights groups picked up Meredith's march Tuesday from the point where Meredith was wounded, and one was shoved to the ground when highway patrolmen ordered them onto the shoulder of the highway.

Gov. Paul Johnson condemned the march but promised police protection for it.

Five Negro leaders combined forces to carry on the 225-mile walk to Jackson, Miss., started by Meredith and interrupted by three shotgun blasts.

Aubrey J. Norvell, 40, a Memphis white man accused of assault with intent to murder in the wounding of Meredith with birdshot, was held under $25,000 bond. His lawyers were drafting an appeal to have the bond reduced.

Three bus loads of sympathizers from Chicago will join the march soon, said Floyd McKissick, head of the Congress of Racial Equality.

"We have made a national call for people to come," said Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. "The number will grow every day."

In Jackson, Gov. Johnson issued a plea for residents to "ignore completely these exhibitionists" and said he would use any state power to keep the peace — presumably including the National Guard.

"Sufficient patrolmen and other state forces will be used to see that these demonstrators get all the marching they want, provided they behave themselves, commit no acts of violence, nor take a position of provocative defiance," he said.

REAGAN PLEDGES TO UNITE GOP

Brown Sees Tough Fight Ahead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — W. Yorty's strong showing against Brown — prompted the Republican nomination for governor of California today and pledged to unite the party for a November challenge to Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's bid for a third term.

Reagan's overwhelming defeat of former San Francisco mayor George Christopher — and Los Angeles mayor Samuel star, moved to the front of his party in his first bid for public office.

Brown, whose aides had predicted an easy win over Yorty, saw the Los Angeles mayor accumulate a heavy vote in populous Southern California. But the governor defeated Yorty by a comfortable margin.

That's where Reagan piled up a massive margin against Christopher. Brown, however, will take a Democratic registration edge of slightly more than 3-2 with him into the runoff.

THE VOTE

This was the vote: Republican — with 21,185 of 30,586 precincts reporting, Reagan 1,070,652. Christopher 471,988.

Democrats — with 22,415 of 30,586 precincts counted, Brown 936,423. Yorty 664,737.

As the vote mounted against him, Christopher, 58, stepped before his followers at campaign headquarters in San Francisco and declared he was through with politics. He promised to support Reagan, but added: "I certainly don't think I owe Mr. Reagan the attention I gave my own campaign."

"We have been entrusted with a very great challenge," said the man who vaulted into politics two years ago with a fundraising telecast for presidential candidate Barry Goldwater. He said he hoped Christopher would back him.

In another race with national interest, Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, criticized by opponents for his handling of a National Guard callup during the Watts riots last August, won the Democratic nomination for the second spot on the ticket.

He defeated Thomas W. Braden, president of the State Board of Education and a friend of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Lloyd Hand, former U.S. chief of protocol and a protégé of President Johnson.

Reagan, while sounding a warning that government was too big, carefully avoided the acrimony of the Rockefeller-Goldwater fight in an effort to appeal to both conservative and middle-of-the-road segments of the party.

Brown, 61, looked at the results and said: "I've never had an easy fight in my life. I want every single solitary one of you to know that I like a tough fight, the tougher the better."

He said the results show "I have to spend a whole lot more time in Southern California in the next four or five months."

One twister funnel was sighted close to Hale Center, between Lubbock and Plainview, but it disappeared without touching ground. Peace officers kept careful watch for a time on mean looking clouds in several other areas.

Broken utility lines blew across the Santa Fe railroad tracks between Slaton and Lubbock as hail banged hard at farm and cotton trailers and house buildings.

Farther north, in the area east of Amarillo, the wind upset several house trailers and caused other damage.

Before midnight the Weather Bureau warned that a few tornadoes and thunderstorms could be expected until 5 a.m. in a 120-mile-wide area centering on a line from near Lubbock to Ft. Sill, Okla. It cancelled the alert by 1:20 a.m., however, reporting the storm activity had decreased sharply.

A southbound front was expected to cool Northwest Texas a bit during the day, and forecasts called for widely scattered thunderstorms to reappear in that area and to spread into parts of North Central and Northeast Texas.

Continued hot weather was in prospect for the southern half of the state.

Temperatures hit 108 degrees Tuesday at Presidio in far West Texas and 100 at Lubbock and Wichita Falls. Top marks were in the 90s at most other points.

Prof Suggests Insects Best Prepared Fresh

By STRATFORD C. JONES

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The message is simple enough:

"I believe that dieticians and economists should seriously explore the nutritional value of insects and the possibility of extracting their protein and incorporating it into other food-stuffs."

But it's a message that Dr. Ronald L. Taylor, an insect physiologist-pathologist at the University of California's Irvine campus, has been having a tough time getting across.

The trouble arises when he gets to details, such as: "To really appreciate intact recognizable insects as food they need to be prepared fresh."

"Yukkkk! Blahhh! Creepy!" are the usual verbal responses, and eyebrows go up. Especially when Taylor fries up a batch of still-squirming caterpillars and passes them around.

Still, Taylor, 28, continues spreading the word. But as a researcher concerned primarily with inducing tumors in insects and isolating any nucleic acids they produce, he doesn't have too much time for it. He hopes to find out what these acids are and whether they're possibly a virus, a finding other researchers might be able to use in cancer research.

He considers research on human use of insects as a protein source a necessity.

"Some say that if the population increase continues at its present rate we have at best 50 to 60 years of steak and then we will have to turn vegetarian or find other sources of animal protein. Insects constitute one of the best remaining resources of animal protein in the world."

"If insect protein were incorporated in other food, such as flours and meals, you wouldn't even know the insects were there. There is no need to eat them whole, as gourmet items, and I'm not saying that they should be eaten this way."

But Taylor eats them that way, and likes them. He sees them also as a great cocktail party conversation-starter, and, possibly, a way to start breaking down prejudices against the eating of insects.

South, the declarer at three no trump, attempted to make this contract by endplaying West. His execution, however, was imperfect and his opponent proceeded to cash the setting trick.

West opened the five of clubs and East put up the king which dislodged declarer's ace. South could count eight tricks—three spades, three hearts, one diamond, and one club. If the hearts divided evenly, he would have a ninth in that suit.

The ace of hearts was cashed, followed by a small one to dummy's king. When West showed out, discarding a spade, South was obliged to turn his attentions elsewhere. He played three rounds of spades to which both opponents followed.

With all the spades accounted for, West was known to be down to clubs and diamonds. Declarer reasoned that he could end play his opponent, by putting him in with the club for, after West finishes running that suit, he must open up the diamond suit.

South exited with the jack of clubs and West was in with the queen. He proceeded to frustrate his opponent, however, by running five tricks in clubs and then graciously conceding the last two.

Declarer had the right idea, but he was a bit premature. If he cashes the queen of hearts first, West is obliged to make another discard and he is apt to discard a club in order to protect his diamond holding. If he does so and declarer now exits with the jack of clubs, West can take only four tricks and then must lead a diamond—presumably the eight to put South to a guess. If the latter puts up dummy's queen, then he has his ninth trick.

Sprightly New Image For Madame Butterfly

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
MANILA (AP)—A half-dozen Asian charmers are giving the women of the Orient a sprightly new image. Its a whopping change from the fluttery world of Madame Butterfly.

The classy six bear such diverse names as Sirikit, Imelda, Mai, Michiko, Monique and Dewi. They reached the top by the classic method of marrying the boss or the boss's son. But in getting their man several of them shattered the old eastern idea of arranged marriages.

They are envied and emulated by the women of Thailand, the Philippines, South Viet Nam, Japan, Cambodia and Indonesia. As a foretaste of change among Asia's women they indicate the long dominant male is in for lively surprises. They have such expectable housewifely abilities as cooking dinner and spanking the kids. Collectively, they can also fly an airplane, play the piano, dance the twist, fast-draw a western six-shooter, strum a guitar, write poetry, man-handle a jeep, play tennis, golf, badminton or what-have-you and belt-out American popular songs to a spellbound crowd of 25,000 people standing in the rain.

Each speaks a minimum of two languages. Some speak three or four.

In short, they are talented and beautiful and although they play second-fiddle to their husbands the tune is frequently theirs.

The most influential are Queen Sirikit of Thailand and Imelda Marcos of the Philippines.

Mayor Complains Of T&P Service

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—Mayor Ralph Hooks of Abilene charged Tuesday that the Missouri Pacific Railroad has done more to discourage use of its passenger trains than to encourage it.

He made the complaint at one of a series of meetings scheduled along the route of Texas & Pacific Railroad passenger trains No. 26 and 27 operating between Dallas and El Paso.

Missouri Pacific, parent company of Texas & Pacific, has proposed discontinuing the trains, citing a loss of revenue.

T. E. Spencer, Missouri Pacific passenger traffic manager, said the trains probably would lose more than a quarter million dollars this year unless they are discontinued. He said the railroad lost $125,000 on their operation last year.

Spencer told Abilene and Baird officials it would not be good business judgment to operate a service the public no longer patronizes.

He said when the railroad advertises its passenger service "people accuse us of skyrocketing the operating expenses in order to get a good case" for stopping service.

"Are you saying that you don't want passenger business?" Spencer was asked.

"I didn't say that," Spencer replied. "I am saying that it is not smart to spend a lot of money advertising something that is only losing money."

The Abilene mayor asked Spencer if he thought the Missouri Pacific "has exercised good business judgment in the upkeep of your cars and the service you provide."

Spencer said the two trains involved use the same type of passenger cars that are in service on the railroad's Texas Eagle which he said carries 350 to 500 persons a day between St. Louis and Houston.

Spencer is due here for a 3 p.m. conference at the Chamber of Commerce conference room Thursday, to break the same news. Wednesday he was reciting the story to Sweetwater civic leaders.

Breaks Window, Can't Get In

Yeggs broke out a small window at a local grocery Tuesday night, officers said, but were foiled by wire. Police said the window, at Vernon's Drive-In Grocery, 1904 E. 4th, was shattered by a heavy object, but that the owners had placed a heavy wire screen behind the window for just such an occasion. The burglars were unable to gain entry.

Water Demands Are Soaring

The return of a familiar pattern of hot, dry days has boosted water demands upon the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

At the first of this week, production was pointing toward the 50,000,000 gallons-a-day mark, according to Paschall Odum, assistant to the general manager. Monday's draw was in excess of 46,000,000 gallons, and demands appeared to be increasing.

Odessa required 21,350,000 gallons Monday, Big Spring 10,734,000 gallons and Snyder 4,058,000, a total of 36,322,000 for the member cities. Oil companies have been taking about 10,000,000 gallons per day.

Conviction Is Upheld

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today overruled an appellant's motion by Clarence Yanez Jr., Howard County, that his case be given a rehearing.

Yanez was indicted here July 1, 1965, with intent to murder Avery Faulkner, a city policeman. The 118th District Court jury found him guilty Oct. 21, 1965, and sentenced him to two years in the state penitentiary. Yanez had appealed the case to the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

Testimony in the trial was the defendant had grappled with Faulkner during an attempted arrest and a shot had been fired.

Cancer Chapter Picks Delegates To Conferences

Delegates and alternates to district and division conferences were appointed Sunday at the regular monthly meeting of the Howard County Unit, American Cancer Society, at Webb AFB.

Tentative delegates for the District II meeting in Sweetwater on June 22, were appointed. Mrs. Donald D. Van Meter, president, said that names of representatives would be announced later.

Mrs. Van Meter was selected as the delegate to the division meeting in Houston Oct. 5-6, with Mrs. K. H. McKibbin as alternate.

Plans for the coming year were announced, with emphasis stressed on a stronger educational program and the importance of keeping the cancer program in the eyes of the public at all times.

Officers of the organization, in addition to Mrs. Van Meter, are Mrs. Lucian Jones, vice president; Mrs. Lee Rogers, secretary; Mrs. H. W. Smith, treasurer. New committee chairmen, appointed at the meeting, are Mrs. Neil Norred, public education; Dr. Louise Worthy, medical; Mrs. William Thompson, service; Mrs. K. H. McKibbin, publicity; and Mrs. Larson Lloyd, campaign.

Two damage suits resulting from injuries sustained in auto accidents were filed Tuesday afternoon in 118th District Court.

The suit of George Daves et ux vs. Wayne Stewart asks $17,000 in damages allegedly resulting from injuries in an auto accident April 25 at Fifth Street and Owens.

The suit of J. B. Hinson vs. Gene E. Salazar asks $8,000 for injuries allegedly received in an auto accident April 3 at West Sixth and San Jacinto.

Hoffa Moves To Crush Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — If he did. Earlier, Hoffa said "I doubt if he gets 175 votes" at the convention. Convention delegates, who are sure to re-elect Hoffa to another five-year term, will have 2,300 votes.

The twice-convicted Hoffa predicted Gibbons will drop his plan to run for the new post of executive vice president at the union's July 4 convention in Miami Beach.

"He won't even run," Hoffa told a newsman. "I'd be the most amazed man in the world if he did." Earlier, Hoffa said "I doubt if he gets 175 votes" at the convention.

Convention delegates, who are sure to re-elect Hoffa to another five-year term, will have 2,300 votes.

But whoever wins the executive vice presidency could wind up running the 1.7-million-member union — the world's largest.

Hoffa, awaiting a Supreme Court review of his eight-year jury tampering conviction, wants Detroit Vice President Frank Fitzsimmons to have the post, automatically becoming president if Hoffa goes to prison.

Hoffa reportedly wants Fitzsimmons to serve as a caretaker only until he got out of prison and could resume power. Hoffa aides disclosed that a resolution to change the union's constitution will provide that no one can run for both vice president and the new post of executive vice president.

Thus Gibbons, former close associate and one-time potential heir-apparent to Hoffa, would lose his seat on the union's executive board if he lost his bid for executive vice president.

Already waiting in the wings to run for Gibbons' present post as 10th vice president is Roy Williams, president of the Central States Highway Drivers Council and of the Kansas City Teamsters Council.

Williams apparently is backed by Hoffa in the effort to force Gibbons from power.

Role Of French Troops For Another Session

BRUSSELS (AP)—The vital question of the future role of 72,000 French troops in Germany was kept alive today after the Atlantic Alliance foreign ministers themselves had decided to shunt it to their respective governments.

Unemployment At Low Point

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas unemployment reached its lowest point in 10 years in mid-April, falling to 121,000 or 3 per cent of the labor force, the Texas Employment Commission said Tuesday.

The commission said, it was the lowest April jobless rate since 1947. There were 160,000 unemployed, or 4.1 per cent, in April, 1965.

The April total was the fewest number out of work since December, 1955, when 113,400 were seeking jobs.

The commission said although the civilian labor force expanded by 52,300 from mid-March to 3,992,600 in mid-April, total employment rose 55,900 to 3,868,400.

The number of nonfarm workers increased by 37,300 to 3,579,600 in April, an all-time high. Agricultural employment rose by 18,700 to 288,800.

The commission said three of the largest metropolitan areas—Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston, reported unemployment rates below 3 per cent. Only Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito and Laredo showed rates above 6 per cent.

A Devotional For The Day

"Take heed, and beware of all covetousness; for a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions." (Luke 12:15, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to see that all we have is really Thine, and that only by giving do we receive. We praise Thee because Thou who art love dost always return to us more than we are capable of giving of love and life and happiness and all good things. Glory be to Thee; through Christ our Savior, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

(From the "Upper Room")

Loading The Payrolls

Sen. John Williams (R-DeL.) couldn't resist the temptation the other day to take a sly dig at the administration. Noting that the administration was pressing for a truth in packaging bill, he suggested something similar for the government in reporting on its own activities.

Naturally, he had a case in point. Back on Dec. 1, he recalled that President Johnson had said the government was going to reduce civilian employment. The record, contended, Sen. Williams, had something entirely different to show, or more precisely a total of 96,321 civilian employees added after that date. To underline his point, Sen. Williams observed this adds up to a neat 675 per day.

The senator can be excused for this political rapier, but he does bring into focus something that needs attention. There are many ways in which government spending can be reduced, but one of the most effective is through reduction of the working force.

Granted new programs call for more personnel, the challenge is to shift personnel from other areas which have become more or less self-perpetuating. It might be difficult to convince bureau workers of the fact, but the federal work force is sufficient now to meet existing and foreseeable needs. They easy thing is to just add another face; the difficult but proper thing is to find ways to absorb that work.

It's Astounding

Only 10 years ago, if you had stated for an unshakable fact that men would walk in space around the world and maneuver spacecraft for a rendezvous, you would have been put to bed under a sedative. And had you insisted that less than a decade away, you could sit in your living room and see a closeup picture being made on the moon, you would have been put into the soft room for commitment.

Yet within the past week both of these things were done, and it scarcely provoked any real excitement. To be sure news media made the events major stories, but John Q. Public was pretty blasé about the whole thing. We've had so many phenomenal successes that we've come to regard them as common place.

Yet these achievements are like fairly tales. To fire a satellite into the air and know that something had gone wrong in shedding the shroud is remarkable. But to rendezvous and make a personal inspection of the errant craft is even more so. Finally, to have a man walk in space for over two hours—nearly one and a half times around the earth—stagger the imagination.

Nothing, however, is more intriguing than the soft landing executed on the moon by an automated device, which, at commands from the earth, sends back pictures by television. Man hasn't quite got to the moon yet, but he's got a close up of its surface. No matter if we do seem urbane about it, this is astounding. It's a tribute to our scientists and technicians.

A Few Rays Of Sunshine

WASHINGTON—Rays of sunshine have begun to appear in a clouded world of war or near-war. Diplomacy has raised hopes that the process of reason may yet prevail in resolving the conflicts of mankind. Here are some of the encouraging developments:

1. The United States government has intimated its willingness to enter into an agreement with Communist China pledging that neither country will initiate the use of nuclear weapons and that the Peiping government will join the other nations in banning nuclear tests everywhere except underground.

2. THE STATE Department here has publicly reiterated a readiness to consider stopping the bombing of North Viet Nam if the government at Hanoi is willing to take some "reciprocal action." This, it is officially explained, doesn't mean that the United States merely wants a temporary halt of infiltration into South Viet Nam, but is asking for a withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops. Presumably the United States would agree to withdraw American forces, as this is what "reciprocal action" really could mean when the necessary guarantees are given by both sides.

3. PREMIER KY of South Viet Nam has declared that, after ten new members are named to the ruling directorate, he is prepared to resign and submit to an election. It is a formal step, but the objective now is to create an atmosphere of compromise between the anti-Communist factions which have been quarreling among themselves. These groups, however, have a common purpose—namely, to set up an independent government.

4. The holding of free elections in the Dominican Republic, accomplished just 13 months after American intervention, has given new hope to Latin America that domestic disturbances can be adjusted successfully by international effort—in this instance, through "the Organization of American States."

5. A MAJOR EAST-WEST conference on European security, in which both the United States and Russia would participate, has been proposed by Denmark as a means of achieving the main purpose of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—to establish a strong foundation for peace in Europe.

Inasmuch as the NATO ministerial council is meeting in Brussels this week, an opportunity will arise for discussion of a new East-West formula. This is expected to clarify the fuzzy situation that has resulted from General de Gaulle's announcement of France's withdrawal from NATO.

THESE VARIOUS developments in the world are salutary, even though there is naturally much uncertainty as to just how the negotiations will turn out. The important fact is that little by little reason is beginning to prevail.

World opinion can strongly influence the result. Meanwhile, patience is essential. The Dominican problem, for instance, has been an exasperating one, but today it is on the road to solution. The developments in Viet Nam are by no means conclusive, but the emphasis now is on free elections.

THERE IS undoubtedly at work in the world a strong movement toward peace and the settlement of disputes by the process of reason rather than by military force. The United Nations has a remarkable opportunity today to derive from the encouraging developments of the last few days an inspiration to set up conferences and negotiations that could lead to peaceful settlements of the many current disputes which, though local in character, have threatened to bring on a major war.

De Gaulle Plays It Both Ways

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China's a problem, the war in Viet Nam is a mess, Africa is unpredictable, this country bubbles and boils over civil rights, but tensions in Europe recently have eased greatly.

The best proof is the Brussels meeting of 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries' foreign ministers. If the heat was on they wouldn't have the time for the kind of debating and postponing they're doing now.

THE BEST weathervane is French President Charles de Gaulle, who wasn't there.

Tall DeGaulle, always fidgety about the image of French greatness, decided earlier this year European conditions have improved vastly since the NATO allies first teamed up in 1949 against a possible Soviet attack.

He didn't like the idea of French troops under allied command—integrated forces, they were called—and he couldn't endure the thought of NATO bases, mostly American, on French soil.

Out with the bases, he told NATO, feeling he could say so now in a safer Europe. He announced he would pull French forces out of the integrated set, meaning France and no one else would have any say over French troops.

NATO HAS its headquarters in France. Out with that, too, he said. At the same time he said he wouldn't pull France out of the NATO alliance. This was really having it both ways.

France, militarily, would no longer be part of the common NATO defense. But if the Soviet Union attacked, France would depend on NATO allies to defend her. De Gaulle is a man who has played it both ways for quite a while.

CLEAN-UP: Justice of the Peace Mel Reinhard of Hell.

authority over all things French, he had withdrawn its Mediterranean and Atlantic fleets from NATO; assigned NATO only small air and ground forces of about 60,000 men; refused to permit non-French naval personnel from certain high command posts. And he did other similar things.

(IN FAIRNESS it should be remembered France stood beside the United States in the Berlin crisis and the Cuban missile crisis.)

In view of De Gaulle's demands the remaining NATO nations had to arrange to take their headquarters out of France and re-cement the organization which his actions had badly shattered. They had to remove the NATO Council, political arm of the organization, from Paris, too, although De Gaulle didn't demand that and, instead, invited the council to remain.

This week the 14 NATO countries' foreign minister met, including Dean Rusk, U.S. secretary of state, and agreed to move NATO's military headquarters to Belgium.

But, since they weren't under pressure to remove the NATO Council from Paris, they didn't. They discussed it, disagreed on what to do, and decided they'd take it up again in their meeting next October.

Lots Of Vets Around

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Man, if you're looking for a marriage partner, there are a lot of veterans available. The nation now has some 5½ million widows and more than 2 million divorcees.

Forget any dreams you have of discovering a valuable pearl in a restaurant oyster. Pearls found in that kind of bivalve aren't of gem quality, and have nothing but curiosity value.

SEE AMERICA FIRST: Our people spent between $20-25 billion last year on vacation and business trips within the country. About half the family trips and two-thirds of the business trips were round-trip journeys of less than 200 miles.

There is a controversy raging over whether God is dead. If He is, it is news to most Americans. According to the Catholic Digest magazine, polls show that 97 per cent of adult Americans believe in God. But in 1952, the magazine adds, the figure was 99 per cent.

Alcoholics aren't born. They're made. Researchers believe the disease takes from 15 to 20 or more years to develop and that it can shorten life expectancy from 10 to 20 years.

Lupus And Arthritis Can Occur Together

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have lupus erythematosus and rheumatoid arthritis. I am on a stabilized daily dose of prednisone.

How often should I go for a check-up and what tests do you consider necessary? I have had two different medical opinions plus others from friends. It is the difference in medical opinions that confuses me. — MRS. J. W.

Lupus (a complicated ailment) and arthritis (a baffling one) are two of the group we call collagen diseases, or disorders of the connective tissues of the body. Arthritis not infrequently develops after lupus has appeared.

Since the cause of neither has been discovered, treatment consists of therapy which helps the patient even though we have no current means of offering a complete cure.

The steroid drugs (prednisone being one) are the accepted treatment for lupus and in many cases help arthritis. The steroids must, however, be used with care. Side effects can occur, so it is necessary to keep watch.

The doctor who is treating you is in the best position to judge how often you should see him, since he knows your condition, knows your dosage, knows how long you have been getting steroids, and may very well have some idea at least of how you may react to them.

I defer to his judgment—but since you asked, I would say you ought to be checked every two months for any side effects. (Report any you noticed between visits.) Checking would involve your blood pressure, any changes in weight, urine and blood determination of sugar, chemical imbalances, if any. It would not be necessary to make all of these checks at each visit, but they are representative of factors that bear observation steroid use.

Dear Doctor: In 1953 my case was diagnosed as lupus and they did not give me long to live. I came home and am now being treated by a local doctor who says I have rheumatoid arthritis, which I control pretty well with aspirin and some cortisone. Were they wrong at the hospital? — MRS. J. B.

I guess we'll have to admit that they weren't very good at predicting longevity, and after 13 years you seem to be doing very well, with more years still ahead of you.

I beg to point out that there are different types of lupus, some much more dangerous than others. Remember also that we had no effective treatment for lupus until cortisone was discovered, and years were required to learn what it could do for the disease.

The hospital you mentioned is one of the best in the world. I would rather guess that they were right in the original diagnosis, but 13 years ago they didn't know as much about treatment as now. Medicine doesn't stand still.

It may be that if you had developed lupus say 10 years sooner than you did, the hospital's prediction would have been correct. Let's just be glad things turned out the way they have.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

High Point Of The Day

It looks as if they are bound to take away our last passenger trains, ending an era that started for us 89 years ago.

The only alternative to the slow and bumpy ride on or behind a horse was the railroad passenger coach. The speed differential was comparable to that of today's automobile and jet airplanes, so if you had to go any distance you rode the train.

IN SMALL towns the major events of the day were the arrival of the passenger trains. It seemed as though half the town turned out to see the trains come in. Early-day reporters had the depot as a fixed beat to make sure they were up on the news. Here they learned who was going where, and who had come home or was moving to town. They also kept in touch with the outside world by visiting with the drummers as they stretched their legs or caught a quick bite at the T&P eating house. News butchers kept the natives up on the latest knee-slappers and testy stories.

LONG BEFORE train time, folks began to drift toward the depot, generally going through the waiting room and past the ticket cage with its grill work that rose formidably to the ceiling. Outside they looked at the blackboard which noted that No. 6 was either on time or running 17 minutes late.

WHILE THE switch engines rattled and chugged restlessly up and down the tracks, townspeople got in their visiting. Kids sometimes surreptitiously placed a nail or penny on the track to see how flat the train would make them. Sharp-eyed specialists could spot the locomotive the instant it rounded the bend, and pronounce "here she comes." Later when automatic signal lights were installed, the knowing ones confided

"she's in the block."

That little speck far down at the end of the yard seemed unsteady at first. Gradually it grew, strutting down the track like game cock, sending up an occasional plume of steam followed by sounds of a whistle.

EVERYONE STREAMED out of the depot to the platform alongside the track and peered in the direction of the oncoming train. By now, it was a winking and puffing, and kicking up a little dust as pounded over the road bed. Parents held back their small children, and the others pulled back, remembering tales that the engine created a vacuum that would suck you under.

THE LOCOMOTIVE rolled past, the fire-box flashing, the big drivers coasting like a race horse past the finish line. The bell clang-clang-clang, and steam exhausted. The fireman or engineer, depending on which way the train was headed, peered out the cab, and the conductor hung to the railing on the coach step. Then the screech of steel against steel set in, and finally with a mighty swoosh of expelled air, the brakes grabbed. The train shuddered and stopped.

DOWN HOPPED the conductor, down came the porter with the truncated stool, and down streamed the passengers. The conductor looked at his watch, so did the brakeman, and from inside one of the cars, some one waved. Up went the plaintive cry of the hawkers—"Come and get it—20 minutes here," "get 'ya' back up-town," or "fresh hay and new tie ropes." Off in the distance, the sound of rhythmic beat on the triangle in front of the Wig Wam cafe acknowledged that the most electrifying time of day had come. —JOE PICKLE

Ambassadors And National Interest

WASHINGTON — Professor Edwin O. Reischauer, our Ambassador in Tokyo, seems to have found the handle to his job at about the time he may be leaving it. He is a Kennedy man, a Harvard don, and the word is that one or more of Lyndon Johnson's trustees would like the cushy post among the lotus blossoms.

Anyhow, Reischauer got a letter last month, dated May 5, from Senator Cannon (D., Nev.) concerning a matter which ambassadors are paid to handle. Reischauer answered it promptly, May 13, and evidently did what the Senator requested.

THE SENATOR'S correspondence had to do with two mining companies in his state, Standard Slag and Nevada-Barth, which employ a total of about 200 persons. For a number of years these firms had been selling low-grade iron ore to Japanese steel makers through the port of Stockton, Calif. In the last contract year, these shipments came to about 700,000 metric tons with a value of $6.5 million, plus the handling charges for American railroad and port facilities.

YOU MIGHT say that these are peanut sums, but the two Nevada Senators didn't think so. The incomes of many families in their state are involved. The development of low-grade mineral deposits in the Rocky Mountain area is of high importance, for it brings neglected resources into our economy. Besides, we need to sell everything we can to Japan, a country which, in 1965, took $59 million more out of the U.S.A. than we were able to earn in Japanese-American trade.

ON SEVERAL accounts, then, it was strictly in our American interests to renew this Nevada contract, but the Japanese manufacturers are sharp bargainers. They found they could get comparable iron ore at similar prices in Australia and Malaya, in Chile and Peru, as well as in some Communist countries, and could sell their manufactured products in those places. Contract renewal hung in the balance when Cannon got in personal touch with Reischauer, who responded: "I fully appreciate the importance of the Japanese market . . . to your state," and promised to do what could be done.

I HAVE thought the story worth noting because I have several times written roughly about our Ambassador to Tokyo and about Japanese trade tricks. It had seemed to me that we have suffered from too many ambassadors who fall in love with the country where they serve and forget that they took their oaths to serve the U.S.A. and no other nation, people, culture or economy. But I'm very glad to find Reischauer at work for his own country.

SEVERAL Japanese-American citizens have objected to my comments on tricky trade practices by Japanese merchants. In this story there is no chicanery involved, and the purchasers will buy their iron ore and sell their steel products where it best suits their interests. By the same token, American citizens of whatever extraction have a right to demand that their senators and ambassadors do what is best for our side of the bargaining table.

This unabashed self-interest has not always been the habit of American statecraft and diplomacy — a reason, I would warrant, why we sometimes do so badly in world affairs. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

No Economic Decline Expected

NEW YORK (AP)—Bad weather and job-eager teenagers jumping the gun combined to send the jobless rate up in May. But even that couldn't keep a bustling economy from pushing total employment up—and more than seasonally in some important sectors such as manufacturing payrolls.

Weekly overtime hours also rose in May and so did weekly earnings of factory workers to a record $12.05.

A LATE spring held down employment in many farming areas. But nonfarm payrolls rose by 573,000 to 63 million. This was 166,000 larger a rise than average for the month. And total employment was up 659,000 to 73.7 million.

These figures hardly spell an end to the business boom. A slowing down in the growth rate from now until fall is expected, but not a decline.

The rush of teenagers hunting for jobs while still in school upset the seasonal pattern. June is the month when traditionally the number of unemployed rises because of youngsters out of school and looking for work.

TO COUNT as unemployed someone still attending classes is a moot decision. And the Bureau of Labor Statistics says it may drop the practice.

But this time the high school pupils and college students said they were looking for jobs before school let out, and they were counted among the unemployed, raising that total by 140,000 to 2,942,000.

This brought the percentage of jobless in the total labor force to an even 4 per cent, compared with the 3.7 per cent in both February and April, the lowest figure in about 12 years.

The unemployment rate among job seekers 14 to 17 years old rose to 14.7 per cent. Many apparently were inspired by the administration's drive to get businessmen to offer extra summer jobs to the young.

WHILE THE factory workweek actually rose in May, the gain was less than average for the time of year. So the seasonally adjusted work week was put at 41.4 hours, off from 41.5 hours in April. Weekly overtime hours did rise as expected and the May figure held at 4.1 hours.

These are the figures that economists watch closely for an indication of what's ahead. Overtime and the factory work week itself may fall in June, partly because of the cutbacks in auto production and the beginning of the summer dip in steel output.

What will matter will be how big the drop this month and next.

The betting now is that the drop could be less than usual for the hot weather months. Despite soft spots here and there, the economy still has too much bounce, most economists feel, to go slack soon.

Medicare May Be Liability For LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare, or a shortage of participating hospitals in the South because of noncompliance with the civil rights rules, the source said.

"And the timing is lousy, at this stage in a congressional election year."

To smooth medicare's take-off, the White House has invited 200 leading physicians and hospital administrators, representing every state, to a conference here next Wednesday.

Johnson is expected to appeal for cooperation in conserving hospital space and medical services, preventing abuses, encouraging compliance with civil rights requirements and promoting better understanding of what the law does and does not do.

Government officials and hospital administrators are concerned that many of the 19 million elderly Americans entitled to hospital benefits expect more than the law actually provides — and may react angrily if their expectations are not met.

The government does not guarantee a hospital bed or visiting-nurse service. Nor does it guarantee, in the case of the optional doctor-bill insurance costing $3 a month, the availability of doctors.

The government has merely undertaken to pay most of the bill.

Officials anticipate an increase of not more than 5 percent in hospital usage nationwide. But government spokesmen admit the bulge could be greater in some areas and that any increase would create a critical problem in the cities where medical facilities already are overloaded.

Hospitals dislike the provision under which each elderly patient pays the first $40 of his bill because they suspect many aged persons are not aware of this so-called deductible.

Medicare also might fuel the fires of racial controversy. Unless compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act is certified, a hospital cannot qualify to participate in the government insurance.

Up to two weeks ago, more than one-seventh of all the country's hospital beds were in institutions, mostly in the South, that had not yet been certified under the nondiscrimination rule.

More Tax Revenue Needed Next Year, Connally Says

DALLAS (AP) — It's going to take more tax revenue to run the state next year, Gov. John Connally said Tuesday.

He told newsmen additional money will be necessary because he plans to ask that the Legislature start implementing a new state water plan, provide more aid to education and buy more park acreage.

Connally said he was not ready to list possible sources of revenue but "I believe there are some things that could be taxed more and some areas where funds might be raised."

He said he also may ask the Legislature for a statute to let residents of cities decide whether to levy municipal sales taxes.

Texas Methodists heard the governor, himself a member of that church, appeal for them to bring resources of the denomination "to bear on the War on Poverty in this state."

"You, of all people, cannot rest on tradition or indulge in self-satisfaction, leaving social change to the irresponsible and the self-seeking," he said at a joint convocation of all eight Methodist conferences in the state.

He added: "Who knows better the problems of the local community than you? Who possesses more or better resources to effectively engage in the crusade than you?"

Connally assured the Methodists that state government has done all it can to "carry forward numerous programs designed to help our neighbors help themselves," and he said his office will assist the church's work on poverty "in any way possible."

Students Have No Support

PANAMA (AP) — Lack of popular support and prompt government action apparently were the main reasons for the collapse of student outbursts in Panama's two chief cities this week.

A high government official who had dealt with many such outbreaks, said he was convinced that professional agitators touched off the wave of destruction Monday in Colon, Panama's second city at the Caribbean end of the Panama Canal.

Protesting the unsolved slaying of ultra-leftist student leader Juan Navas Pavaro, about 500 students rampaged through Colon, stoned National Guardsmen and burned the City Hall, post office and national lottery building.

Two students were killed in clashes with guardsmen, but authorities believe the deliberate destruction of public buildings and smashing of store windows kept the demonstrators from attracting general popular support.

Graham Going Into London's Sin Area

LONDON (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham plans to carry his crusade one night next week to Soho, London's square mile of sex and sin, an aide said today.

"The intention will be to greet the people, invite them to the crusade and tell them God loves them," said Sherwood Wirt. "The whole thing should take about an hour."

One or two members of the crusade organization probably will accompany the evangelist, Wirt said. No date has been set.

Tuesday night's crusade meeting attracted a crowd estimated at 17,750. Officials said 458 persons went forward to declare "decisions for Christ," bringing the campaign total to more than 4,000.

The meeting brought an angry response by campaign organizers to criticisms of the campaign's finances. Maj. Gen. D. J. Wilson-Haffenden, chairman of the crusade, accused sections of the press, public and broadcasting organizations of misrepresenting the campaign's purposes. Appealing for funds, he said: "It is a blatant lie to say that Billy Graham and his team are here making money out of this crusade."

"When you hear people say that this is a money-making racket, just tell them from me that this is quite untrue."

He said that Graham and his group are in London at their own expense. Officials estimate the cost of the campaign at $540,000. Wilson-Haffenden said a full statement on all costs will be issued.

Graham told the meeting that the racial situation in the United States is better than it was, but "we still have much to be concerned about and to accomplish." He led the meeting in prayer for the recovery of wounded civil rights leader James H. Meredith and for an end to racial strife.

SOMEONE USED TAPE ON LANYARDS

Error Created 'Alligator'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Someone taped four separation devices to a protective shroud instead of fastening them firmly to disconnect plugs. It was a human error that cost the Gemini 9 astronauts a chance to dock with their target satellite.

Here is an anatomy of that error:

BACKGROUND

The background: The satellite, called ATDA for augmented target docking adapter, was launched a week ago today. There was an indication that perhaps a shroud covering the docking collar on the ATDA had not jettisoned.

Gemini 9 astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan, stalled two days by a guidance problem, took off in pursuit of the satellite Friday. When they caught it, they found that indeed the 117-inch spun glass shroud was still in place.

But it had started the separation process and its two clamshell halves were parted. Stafford radioed that it looked like an "angry alligator," a description that will live long in the annals of space.

With the docking collar covered, the astronauts had to abandon the linkup attempt. They went on to conduct different types of rendezvous with the ATDA and to Cernan's record space walk.

QUICK LOOK

The quick look: Stafford told ground stations that the shroud appeared to be hung up by four bundles of electrical wires and also said it appeared that small lanyards might not have been connected properly. Cernan snapped several close-in pictures of the shroud.

The lanyards, about the size of a six-inch-long soda straw, were designed to be hooked to disconnect plugs and to yank them out during the separation sequence, which is triggered by firing explosive bolts.

The four plugs were joined to bundles of wires which provided a power relay for the separation sequence. With the lanyards not connected, they could not pull out the plugs and the shroud hung up on the wires.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT

With Stafford's information, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration ran back through the history of the shroud and learned some interesting things.

NOT ALL

It did not report the whole story, but a vague statement admitted that someone erred. The statement, released Tuesday several hours after some news media carried some facts about the situation, said:

"An error in the separation procedure prior to launch was the cause of the ATDA shroud separation malfunction. The written procedures used by technicians at Cape Kennedy to ready the ATDA for flight were found to be insufficiently detailed to insure proper installation of lanyards attached to shroud separation mechanisms.

As a result one end of the lanyards was not properly secured."

Behind the scenes: Douglas Aircraft Co. builds this type shroud under contract with Lockheed Aircraft Corp. Lockheed uses them for Agena rockets—which have been used as target vehicles for other Gemini flights. Douglas also builds and installs the shrouds for its own Delta space rocket. More than 70 have flown without any trouble before Gemini 9.

FAILED

The original Gemini 9 Agena target failed to reach orbit when its Atlas booster failed. The makeshift, less-sophisticated ATDA was substituted.

McDonnell Aircraft Corp. makes the ATDA and requested that its technicians—instead of Lockheed's trained crew—be permitted to install the shroud. NASA granted the request—although McDonnell had no experience with the shroud.

McDonnell's checkout and installation procedures were based on those established by Lockheed.

The Lockheed procedure book on the lanyard says that installers should be certain the lanyards are straight and refers to a drawing. The drawing shows how the lanyards should be installed to the disconnect plugs.

There is a question whether the McDonnell technicians included the drawing in their version of the procedures, or whether they overlooked it.

At any rate, they made certain the lanyards were straight—taping them instead of connecting them.

SHOW TAPE

Officials said the pictures taken by Stafford and Cernan show the lanyards taped to the "angry alligator."

Another shroud was flown on an Atlas-Agena launched from Cape Kennedy Monday with a geophysical satellite. The Lockheed procedure had been redone to include written instructions on how to fit the lanyards.

Where the real blame lies is hard to determine. But men are human and rockets are complicated. Put them together and there are bound to be mistakes.

Testimony From First Trial Heard

GATESVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Jurors reviewed some five-year-old testimony against Leslie Douglas Ashley at his second murder trial Tuesday night.

A lawyer who formerly represented Ashley said some statements made by a witness in 1961 were untrue.

Ashley, 23, a onetime female impersonator, is being tried again in the torch slaying of Fred A. Tones Jr., a Houston real estate man, after what others have described as a sex party in Tones' office.

The defendant drew the death penalty at his first trial but a federal court threw out the verdict four hours before he was to be executed, holding the state had withheld evidence.

Prosecutors read to the jury Ramirez and Ralph Lee Mizell testified in 1961 after informing the court that neither man now could be located.

Ramirez told about shooting a .22 caliber pistol in target practice with Ashley and Carolyn Ann Lima two days before the killing of Tones.

Houston jeweler Samuel Shaincock has testified he sold such a weapon to Miss Lima that day, Miss Lima, convicted with Ashley in the original trial, since has been retried and finished serving a five-year sentence.

Lloyd Lunsford, the lawyer now defending Ashley, unsuccessfully opposed the reading of testimony given by Ramirez and Mizell. He contended that Ramirez was coerced into appearing as a witness and would repudiate his remarks if placed on the stand now.

The record showed Ramirez also testified that Ashley pulled a gun and pointed it at him.

Jack Knight, counsel for Ashley, then testified that Ramirez had stated he wanted to change his original testimony because he actually had robbed Ashley of $45.

On cross-examination, Knight said that Ramirez lied later at a hearing on a new trial motion when he denied expressing a desire to alter the testimony.

Mizell was quoted as telling the 1961 trial jury that Miss Lima bought five gallons of gasoline at his station the night Tones was slain and took it away in a can.

Shooting Will Have No Effect, Senator Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., said today he does not think the ambush shooting of James H. Meredith will have any effect on hearings on the administration's civil rights bill.

"This bill has too many potentialities for injury to be passed in a hurry," the North Carolina Democrat and chairman of the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee told newsmen.

The subcommittee already has a schedule of witnesses for the rest of the month, and Ervin said he could not predict when it might act on the bill. As Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach returns for a third day of testimony before Ervin's subcommittee today, 19 House Republicans pressed a drive to break up the omnibus bill and seek quick passage as a separate measure a section dealing with civil rights violence.

The administration bill's proposed ban on racial and religious discrimination in the sale or rental of all housing could cause months of delay or doom the omnibus measure completely, said Rep. Charles McMathias Jr., R-Md., spokesman for the group of House Republicans which introduced the separate bill Tuesday.

But Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House

Judiciary Committee which also is considering the civil rights bill, informed the Republicans he will oppose their move. Celler favors the open housing provision and thinks its chances are better if the bill remains intact.

The open housing provision was all but ignored at Tuesday's Senate subcommittee hearing following Meredith's shooting Monday during a Mississippi civil rights march.

Attention focused instead on a section to make it a federal crime to interfere forcibly with anyone, because of his race, color, or religion, while engaging in the exercise of his constitutional rights.

The bill also would provide federal criminal penalties for violence against civil rights workers and peaceful demonstrators, with punishment up to life imprisonment in case of fatal injuries.

Katzenbach called this part of the bill, along with sections to prohibit discrimination in the selection of state and federal juries, absolutely essential to deal with cases like the shooting of Meredith.

However, Ervin insisted in his questioning of Katzenbach that a constitutional amendment was necessary before Congress could make acts by private citizens federal crimes.

Ervin, who expressed abhorrence of violence, said he would offer such an amendment. He urged the administration to show its "fidelity to the Constitution" by supporting it.

"All I am trying to do," Ervin said, "is to save a few remnants of the Constitution for future generations of Americans — and, I might add, Americans of all races."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has branded the bill's open housing section as "absolutely unconstitutional," told reporters he couldn't speculate on whether the attack on Meredith would spur action on the legislation. But he said that if Congress adjourns by Labor Day, the Senate is unlikely to act on the open housing proposal by that time.

A LOVELIER YOU

Varicose Veins Will Need Attention Now

By MARY SUE MILLER
According to mail from lovelies, varicose veins are a widespread problem. Summer attire and activities seem to spotlight the ailment for those who have it. Yet it is one that knows no season.

Many factors may cause varicose veins. Heredity appears to play a large role. Circulatory weakness and overweight may also trigger the condition. It may or may not be accompanied by pain and sensitivity in the legs. Swelling of the surface veins may be the sole symptom.

In any event, there is no relief without a medical check. Some varicose veins can be treated by injection or removal, and neither process is catastrophic. Some require no treatment.

Most vital is the prevention of increased varicosity. In that area, doctors recommend these procedures: 1. Sit to perform such chores as paring vegetables. But never sit or stand still for long periods. Move about frequently.

2. Wear support stockings, when your doctor advises that course. 3. When possible, elevate your feet for 10 minutes, morning and afternoon. Lie down and prop legs on pillows or, if you do desk work, use a footstool. 4. Get the walking habit. 5. Get the swimming habit. 6. Get the paddling habit, if you have the facilities. 7. Get the cycling habit, if you have the facilities. 8. Get the walking habit, if you have the facilities. 9. Get the swimming habit, if you have the facilities. 10. Get the paddling habit, if you have the facilities.

5. Never cross the knees for long or wear round garters. All those moves alternately rest the legs and promote circulation. And that's just what the doctor ordered to control swelling.

GIRL'S EXERCISES
Here's an effortless way to trim off heavy spots. All you do is lie down or sit down, and flex your muscles. If that's for you, send for Lazy Girl's Exercises. Based on the isometric principle of exercise, routines trim head-to-toe figure. BOARD
Executive board members

As the program began, Mrs. Arnold served as commentator, explaining that a hat has always been the symbol of rank, that jeweled crowns were used by royalty, motorboards by academic groups, and that through the centuries, it has mainly been the peasants that remain hatless.

She stressed that the shape of the face and type of coiffure should be considered when purchasing a hat, that the hat is a frame for the face, a trim for a dress and fashion's most important accessory. As she spoke, models posed on the stage to show the newest fashions in hats. They were Mrs. Lyle Barry, Mrs. Larry Ledbetter, Mrs. R. G. Piland, Mrs. T. B. Tompkins and Mrs. Sadie Key. The stage was decorated with a screen, to which hats were attached, and in the center was a hat tree.

PRESIDES
Following the program, Mrs. Flowers presided for a brief business session, during which the budget was presented.

The head table was covered with white linen and an overlay of lavender net to which pastel flowers were attached at the edges. The centerpiece was an arrangement of pink carnations and greenery.

The U-shaped table was accented with beige placemats, and the head table was centered with an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery. The flowers were won by Mrs. Neefe.

Hospitals Eye Medicare With 'Wait-And-See' Plan

By TOM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

Most Texas hospitals are already over-crowded, over-worked and under-staffed.

And the situation appears bound to get worse after July 1, when the Medicare law goes into effect, a check of several hospitals by The Associated Press shows.

Rates for the non-Medicare patient will go up at some hospitals simply because of record-keeping required by the sweeping measure.

Others will be hit by a shortage of nurses and technicians as the demand increases sharply.

But specific information on the effects of Medicare on hospitals is hard to come by at this stage.

"I think we're just guessing if we say what Medicare is going to do," said Waldo Hill, assistant administrator at Brackenridge Hospital, Austin.

His uncertainty was reflected in conflicting remarks by other administrators regarding the possible increase in hospital rates to non-Medicare patients.

An increase in rates was foreseen by spokesmen for Ben Taub Hospital in Houston and Baylor Hospital in Dallas.

But administrators at Parkland in Dallas, Seton Catholic in Austin, Valley Baptist in Hardening and a major Fort Worth hospital said such rates probably will not go up.

"I really don't know. I don't think anybody knows yet. We'll have to wait and see," said Sister Josephine, Seton administrator.

Howard Chase, assistant administrator at Baylor in Dallas, said rates for non-Medicare patients would probably go up because of the higher over-all costs of accounting and record-keeping that Medicare will necessitate.

"About 17 per cent of our patients right now are over 65," Chase said. "We expect it will go over 20 per cent when Medicare becomes effective."

"The elderly generally require more personal care than younger people. So, with more older patients and the upgraded accounting, it looks like costs to everyone will increase," Chase said.

On the other hand, there is this comment from a leading Fort Worth administrator:

"In all likelihood, Medicare will in no way add to the (non-Medicare) patient's bill."

He and several colleagues believe Medicare ought to benefit hospitals financially because the government will be helping to pay for charity patients who previously did not pay the hospital. An anticipated shortage of beds was not deemed critical by most administrators. One said there can be no bed shortage caused by Medicare because "we're already almost brim-full."

The same spokesman, Peter

Gellish, assistant administrator at Parkland, said the measure might actually ease the shortage in that it might bring needed pressure to build expanded hospital facilities.

Gellish said the main impact on Parkland would be a shortage of trained nurses and technicians. He put it this way:

"Federal standards will force rural hospitals and clinics to hire more registered nurses and technicians. But these smaller hospitals won't be training many new ones, just taking them from larger institutions such as Parkland."

Gellish said the changes in accounting would come in the form of quality rather than quantity.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wed., June 8, 1966 3-B

"We're changing all our records systems to data processing (IBM-type equipment), but we may not have to hire any additional clerical personnel," he said.

Regardless of present conjecture, there was implicit agreement with Sister Josephine's comment: "We'll have to wait and see."

Unusual Cures For Maladies

DALLAS (AP) — When they get such maladies as mal ojo (evil eye) and mal puesto (hex), many of the 40,000 persons of Mexican descent in Dallas don't call on the marvels of modern medicine.

They have their own cures.

These findings were published in a recent edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association in a paper written by Dr. Harry W. Martin of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School. He was assisted by one of his students, Vervando Martinez.

They interviewed 75 Spanish-speaking housewives in Dallas, of whom two-thirds were born in the United States.

The median educational level of the women was six years.

The women said persons with "light blood" are susceptible to mal ojo—evil eye.

"The blood is believed to be heated by electricity in a strong person's vision who looks at the afflicted admiringly or covetously but does not touch him," the authors reported.

How does one cure mal ojo?

An unbroken raw egg is passed over the body, usually in the sign of a cross. The sweeping motion draws the fever into the egg, which is then broken and placed in a bowl.

The bowl containing the egg is then placed under the head of the remaining fever. If the cure is complete, the belief goes, the egg will be cooked by morning.

Another folk malady, the hex—mal puesto—can be inflicted on a victim by a bruja (witch) upon request, or by any person who knows the intricacies of witchcraft, the article says.

Usually motivated by jealousy, it can be imposed through food, a photograph or by means of a small effigy of the victim.

Symptoms of the hex are a bit vague, the authors say, but some manifestations are sudden attacks of screaming, crying and singing, bodily exposure and convulsions.

"One respondent refused to describe symptoms she had witnessed in two of her acquaintances because they were too embarrassing for her to relate," Martin wrote.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

When trick golfer Paul Hahn, who gave an exhibition at the Municipal course here recently, made an extended tour of South Africa last year, he buddied around with Harold Henning.

When he learned that Henning hadn't been invited to the Texas Open at San Antonio (following his return to this country), Hahn telephoned some of his golfing friends there and corrected the oversight.

Henning displayed his appreciation for the gesture by winning the tournament.

Bruce Devlin has become the most famous golfer in the plumbing profession. When the Australian hit the big time on the pro circuit, he gave up plumbing as a vocation.

Another plumber still active in the business, however, is Roland Adams, who comes in here this weekend to try and pocket some loot in the fourth annual Big Spring Open.

Adams, who dominated amateur play on the South Plains until he turned pro, thought seriously for a while of going on the tour. Some observers insist he would have been good enough to make a comfortable living at it.

Roland's winnings in the Opens here could conceivably pass the $1,000 mark this year. In 1962, he was the low pro with a medal score of 124 (over 36 holes) and picked up an extra C note when he tied with Charley Hopkins to tie for sixth place in the low-ball play.

In 1964, the Lubbock veteran made his best showing here. He fired a 137 for medal honors and teamed with Bernard Raines to glean an additional $300 in the partnership play. The two finished one shot back of the leaders, Eddie Jones and Jim Fullington, who pined together a 134.

Last year, Adams earned an extra $200 by teaming with Randy Reiger to finish third in team play. Over three years here, for six days of campaigning, Adams' pay has totaled $700 — not a bad return on his investment.

Although the tournament was designed primarily for the working pro, the guy who sticks close to his job, it has attracted its share of headliners.

Earl Stewart Jr., Jack Montgomery, Charles Coody and Rocky Thompson — all of whom have made the tour from time to time — have played in past Big Spring Opens. All have helped to make the meet what it is today.

The tournament is unique in that it is limited to two days. In other words, the visiting golfer who plays here finds it necessary to spend only one day away from his job and his home, at the most.

The Munny course here is not going to be able to stage a top-drawer invitational tournament until adequate clubhouse facilities are available.

An invitational pays off a community in many ways — through good will and dollars spent locally by visitors to the area.

Money for such a facility is going to have to be budgeted by city commissioners before a spade of dirt can be turned toward its construction. There is every indication the commissioners will, in time, regard such an expenditure benignly.

One Little League player here lost several front teeth in an accident here earlier in the season. It may take $1,000 to rebuild his dentures.

Fortunately, the league has an insurance program that will pick up the tab.

Sam Snead doesn't make it in qualifying round

By The Associated Press
That U.S. Open jinx still is hounding Sam Snead, world famed golfer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. The 54-year-old veteran won't be in this year's National Championship next week in San Francisco. He has competed in the last 25 dating back to 1937 because of wartime interruption.

Winner of all of golf's major championships except the U.S. Open, Snead failed to qualify Tuesday in the sectional open qualifying over the 6,915-yard Country Club of Detroit par 72 course at Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich.

Snead finished with birdies on the last two holes and missed qualifying by one stroke with a seven-over-par 151. This compared to the 140 with which Jack Cupit of Longview, Tex., led the Pittsburgh Pirates blasted St. Louis 9-1 with an eight-run eighth-inning explosion and extended their June winning streak to six games.

Manny Mota and Matty Alou, half of the Pirates' outstanding outfield quartet, complained before the game that their vision was impaired by eyedrops given them during an afternoon examination by a doctor.

The Cardinals' Bob Gibson threw seven innings, striking out 12, before the Pirates caught him in their sights. Clemente triggered the eighth-inning rally with a single, capped it with a three-run homer and finished with three hits in five trips.

Stargell, whose string of consecutive hits was snapped at nine by Gibson in the first inning, picked up two hits after that, capped it with a three-run homer and finished in center field but did not bat.

Mota leads the league in batting with a .345 average while Alou and Stargell are tied for third at .323 and Clemente shares the No. 5 spot with Houston's Joe Morgan at .328. Dave Nicholson of the Astros is second with a .336 mark.

Jim Bunning won his eighth straight as Philadelphia's ace, whipping Cincinnati 5-1; Nicholson, John Bateman and Sonny Jackson led Houston past San Francisco 10-9; Los Angeles topped Chicago 5-0 on 10th-inning homers by Al Ferrara and Jim Lefebvre, and Atlanta bombed New York 11-6 in other National League action.

Bunning, now 8-1, struck out 14 Cincinnati batters and allowed only three hits as the Phillies breezed to their eighth triumph in the last nine games.

Bill White cracked a two-run inside-the-park homer in the first inning and Cookie Rojas hit a bases-empty shot in the seventh for the winners.

Three hits apiece by Jackson, Nicholson and Bateman helped Houston outlast the Giants, who have dropped four of their last five. Dave Giusti won his seventh in 10 decisions but needed relief help when the Giants scored three runs in the eighth, two on a homer by Tom Haller.

Lefebvre hit his 12th homer, breaking a 6-6 tie in the 10th inning and Ferrara followed with his second of the game on a fly ball that dropped in left field when shortstop Don Kessinger and left fielder Byron Browne collided.

John Roseboro had pulled the Dodgers even at 6-6 with a lead-off homer in the eighth.

Joe Torre's three-run blast capped a seven-run uprising in the fifth that erased a 5-0 New York lead. The Braves wrapped up their fourth straight victory with three more runs in the sixth.

Angels Trounce Cardinals, 7-5

A six-run second inning boosted the Angels past the Cardinals, 7-5, in National Little League play here Tuesday night.

Doc Holiday was credited with the hill victory. The Cardinals outthrew the Angels, 7-4, but couldn't connect when it counted.

Bruce Abbe banged out three hits for the losers while Doyce Mitchell had two for the Angels.

HERE'S WHAT AGGIES CAN LOOK TO

Aggies Are Working Toward Top Stadium

COLLEGE STATION — A statewide drive was launched this weekend to provide Texas A&M University with what its backers call "one of the finest football stadiums in the Southwest Conference."

Nearly 1,000 "Aggie Exes" are involved in the campaign. L. F. Peterson, a member of the Texas A&M Board and a Fort Worth oil operator, is chairman of the effort.

Local campaigns will be conducted in nine districts, with one or more members of a steering committee in all of the principal cities of the state.

Immediate goal is to raise $750,000 from donation seat options, good for 10 years, to match a $750,000 revenue bond issue the A&M Board has agreed to.

The drive was kicked off in Bryan-College Station by the local Quarterback Club at which members and friends of Texas A&M pledged to sell a minimum of 1,000 seat options and subscribed to an impressive number of them, themselves.

The long range renovation and expansion of A&M's Kyle Field will take place in two phases: Phase 1, which is to begin immediately following this year's football season will add new cantilevered upper decks to both sides of Kyle Field. These will increase the number of good seats from 17,000 to 33,000, including some 8,000 choice seats being offered to the public on the 10-year option plan.

Total capacity of the New Kyle Field is to be increased from 39,000 to 54,000 in Phase 1.

In addition, new high intensity lights will increase the night lighting to 100 candle power on all parts of the field.

Understandably, facilities for both fans and players will be improved greatly, and extensive parking facilities will be added near the stadium. New access roads will be built to reach these areas.

These improvements will be completed in time for the 1967 football season.

Eventually, what is now the "Aggie horseshoe" will be converted into the "Aggie bowl," by enclosing the presently open end of Kyle Field. When Phase 2 is completed, the stadium will have a capacity of 65,000.

Phase 2 also will lower the present level of the playing area and add more seats closer to the field.

Robert L. Hunt Jr., executive secretary of the drive, said: "The $1.5 million we are going to put into the New Kyle Field as Phase 1 will provide us with a facility that could not be duplicated for under $5 million. We think our $1.5 million investment is the best buy in stadium expansion in the country today."

Four kinds of options, ranging in price from $150 to $250, on a fully tax deductible basis, will give the holder preferential choice to buy the best seats in the stadium for 10 years in the area of the stadium in which he holds his option.

The drive is backed by the A&M Board of Directors, the Association of Former Students, the "Aggie" Club, the Athletic Department, the Athletic Council and the student body.

Chilcott, Jackson Are Top Draft Selections

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Chilcott, a 17-year-old high school catcher from Lancaster, Calif., and Reggie Jackson, a 20-year-old sophomore outfielder from Arizona State University, were the one-two picks in baseball's free agent draft Tuesday as the majors and minors picked a total of 444 players.

The selection process, which already has progressed through 10 rounds of Class A minor league draft, will be completed today.

Bill Frost, a right-handed pitcher from the University of California and Rialto, Calif., was picked by the San Francisco Giants in as No. 1 in the special phase, restricted to boys who had been drafted previously but had not signed pro contracts.

The pros drafted 104 of the 172 eligible in the special phase, including shortstop Eddie Leon of Arizona State by the Chicago Cubs and shortstop Dick Devarney of Maine by Detroit.

The New York Mets had first pick in the regular draft and they grabbed Chilcott, a 6-foot-1 inch, 180-pounder who will graduate from Antelope Valley High School Thursday night.

Jackson, whose 15 home runs led the collegians as a sophomore, was grabbed by Kansas City as the No. 2 pick in the first round. The A's took another Arizona State center fielder, Rick Monday, in the first round a year ago and paid him $104,000.

Of course, the drafting does not assure the club of signing the player. The selection merely gives the club exclusive negotiation rights with the boy until the next draft in January.

Houston came up with a sleeper in Wayne Twitchell, a right-handed pitcher from Portland, Ore., who had a reputation as a strikeout ace at Wilson High.

Boston snatched Ken Brett, a 17-year-old schoolboy from El Segundo, Calif., who was recommended by scouts. The Cubs selected Dean Burk, a right-handed schoolboy pitcher from Highland, Ill.

There's nothing to it," Hornung said in Green Bay. "I'm going to sit down and talk to Coach (Vince) Lombardi about a contract in a day or two."

"There is no truth to it," Werblin said in New York. "The only time I ever met Hornung was to shake his hand at the Kentucky Derby."

Several NFL standouts have reported offers from American League clubs since Pete Gogolak, who played out his option with Buffalo of the AFL in 1965, was signed last month by the New York Giants of the NFL.

Lowe said he received feelers from an NFL club — which he would not identify — about the time Gogolak signed with the Giants.

Ladd's three-year contract with Houston, which acquired him from San Diego last winter in a trade later nullified by former AFL Commissioner Joe Foss, must be approved by Al Davis, the new commissioner.

The 312-pound lineman was legally free to sign with anyone, including the Chicago Bears, who held NFL contract rights.

There's nothing to it," Hornung said in Green Bay. "I'm going to sit down and talk to Coach (Vince) Lombardi about a contract in a day or two."

"There is no truth to it," Werblin said in New York. "The only time I ever met Hornung was to shake his hand at the Kentucky Derby."

Several NFL standouts have reported offers from American League clubs since Pete Gogolak, who played out his option with Buffalo of the AFL in 1965, was signed last month by the New York Giants of the NFL.

Lowe said he received feelers from an NFL club — which he would not identify — about the time Gogolak signed with the Giants.

Ladd's three-year contract with Houston, which acquired him from San Diego last winter in a trade later nullified by former AFL Commissioner Joe Foss, must be approved by Al Davis, the new commissioner.

The 312-pound lineman was legally free to sign with anyone, including the Chicago Bears, who held NFL contract rights.

'Anti-Americans' Just Clever Bit Of Scrap Collection

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' News special Tuesday night was called "The Anti-Americans," but it often looked like a clever bit of salvage work for some of the odds and ends of interesting film that didn't seem to fit conveniently into any network niches. There were excerpts from a television documentary shown in France that looked at the Vietnamese conflict in what, from an American viewpoint, was almost a hostile attitude toward us. There were excerpts from a British documentary featuring a professional gadfly that portrayed American life by focusing exclusively on used car lots, garish billboards and ugly architecture.

There was an interesting feature shot by CBS' News showing a visit of a U.S. Information Service team to a northern village in Thailand. There were also excerpts from a USIS propaganda film explaining the Vietnamese war and which has been shown widely abroad.

All of these were enlightening and some — like the British documentary — were annoying. But neither together nor singly did the program fulfill its promise to take a look at our nation's image abroad.

Some isolated instances of anti-American feeling were shown. There was an unruly mob in Santo Domingo burning our flag. There were some serious young Mexican university students complaining about U.S. imperialism. There were some street interviews in London during a protest march about Viet Nam. But it was not an impressive demonstration of anti-American feeling.

On the other hand, the demonstration of pro-American feeling was no more convincing — not a Levittown, a supermarket and a drug store in France nor yet a mob of writhing, frugging youngsters with long hair and short skirts in London.

Even narrator Charles Collingwood had his problem trying to pull the parts into a related whole. He abruptly switched emphasis at the end, commenting on the large numbers of young people, both here and abroad, who are involved in protests — "the newest of the emerging peoples, youth," — and suggested that for their sake we be not too insistent on maintaining the status quo.

ABC will launch something different in the way of a daytime serial drama at the end of this month.

It is called "Dark Shadows" and instead of the usual physical and emotional problems of soap operas, it will go in for the dark, the mysterious, for intrigue and downright scary effects.

Producers describe all this as "in the tradition of the Gothic novel," and set it in a Maine fishing village dominated by a huge stone mansion.

Just how all this will go with the ladies of the audience is now in the lap of the polltakers.

Firemen Out On A Strike

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — About 500 of Atlanta's 723 firemen have gone on strike in a dispute over wages and hours.

They rejected a plea by Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. Tuesday night to return to work. Some booed him as he spoke to them in a union hall.

The city obtained an injunction from Fulton County Superior Court Judge Virlyn Moore ordering the firemen to return to work and forbidding them to resign en masse.

The injunction is directed against the Atlanta Firefighters Union, independent, formed two months ago. The firemen meet today, and union officials talk with the mayor and city officials later.

The city, which has more than 500,000 within its corporate limits, improvised its overnight fire protection, spreading those firemen remaining on duty around the various stations and pressing policemen into service.

Airport officials assigned several maintenance men to duty in case of emergency. Air traffic was not disrupted.

Capt. James I. Martin, union president, said firemen remaining on their jobs were "mainly superior officers and those who have only a few months to make their pensions. They are there and that's their problem," he said.

Martin said the union would respect any court order but would rely on the advice of its attorney in obeying the order, obtained Tuesday night. The attorney, Robert Mitchell, said he didn't want to comment on the injunction because he had not seen it.

The firemen at first were asking for reduction of a 60-hour week to 56 hours. Martin said, with time and one-half pay for work over 40 hours, and a $100 a month raise. The firemen's present base pay is $1.55 an hour with top pay of $1.91 an hour. They have 20 days per year paid vacation, but Martin said it actually is less than this.

"Now we're just asking for shorter hours and higher pay in general," he said.

William Buck, president of the International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO, said Tuesday night in New Albany, Ind., the Atlanta walkout apparently is the first strike of fire fighters against an American city in more than 40 years. Buck also said no group of firemen had ever won a strike.

DEAR ABBY Candidates For Couch

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 13-year-old boy who crawls in bed with his mother after his father leaves for work?

I can't stand to visit my sister any more when I see what's going on there. I believe it is WRONG and I have said so. She lets this boy wear nail polish and play with her make-up and jewelry. He can't stand to get his hands dirty. It's "too hot" in the summer and "too cold" in the winter, so he stays indoors and plays with his dolls. He has a 15-year-old brother who is so ashamed of the younger one he is becoming more and more withdrawn from people. Needless to say, the younger boy has no friends. The father is helpless. He once threw all the make-up and dolls out, but the boy cried so hard his mother went out and bought more. This boy gets furious if he sees his father kiss his mother. What is wrong here? I can't believe I am worried for nothing. Or isn't it any of my business?

DISGUSTED AUNT
DEAR DISGUSTED: Your sister and her son are both ready candidates for the psychiatrist's couch. And if the father looks out the window, knowing what is going on, so is he. Appeal to her husband to get help for the whole sick family before it's too late. Yes, it IS your business. Would you walk away if you witnessed a man beating a helpless dog?

Lord Haw Haw Dies Tuesday

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Capt. Norman Baillie-Stewart, the first Lord Haw Haw of World War II, is dead.

Baillie-Stewart, 57, collapsed in a Dublin street Tuesday and died without regaining consciousness. He had been living in suburban Raheny since he was released from a British prison in 1949.

He was convicted in 1933 of supplying Germany with British military secrets. He was released in 1937 and went to Germany.

At the outbreak of the war, he began the Nazi propaganda broadcasts which William Joyce later took over. After the war Baillie-Stewart served nearly four years of a five-year British sentence for treason. Joyce was hanged.

Miss Tan America Contest Begins

DALLAS (AP) — A Negro beauty contest is vital even though the trend is toward integration of all events, says the director of the Miss Tan America pageant, because it gives confidence and courage to the girls.

"How many times will you see a Negro in the Miss America contest?" asked Lew Williams, creator and director of the Miss Tan contest, being held for the second year.

"There may be one or two, just so there will be representation, but there aren't even Negro judges on most primary levels," he said.

Miss Tan America is the only beauty and talent contest held nationally for Negro girls. The age limits are 17 to 25.

After last year's competition, Williams said, modeling opportunities opened for several contestants and others have been featured in national magazines.

A winner will be crowned Friday night by Willie Mae Johnson of Washington, D.C., a sophisticated college freshman with a flair for cute clothes.

She was named Miss Tan America two days after the close of last year's contest, when judges discovered an error in the point tabulations putting Willie Mae ahead of the announced winner.

The emphasis is on talent rather than beauty, although all the contestants are attractive. In the over-all judging, talent counts half. Other considerations are poise, personality and appearance in evening gowns

Says She Did Not Ballot

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Testimony by a Fredericksburg woman that she did not vote May 7 as indicated by election records led to a court order Tuesday for the opening of sealed ballot stub boxes in Bandera and Gillespie counties.

Dist. Judge Charles Sherrill Jr. of Fort Stockton directed that this be done after hearing 17 witnesses in a suit over the Democratic nomination for district attorney.

Official returns originally showed Raymond Kanese won the nomination by polling 3,024 votes to 3,023 for Sam Darden.

Darden filed suit and a recount ordered by the court raised the margin of Kanese to eight votes. Judge Sherrill subsequently held three votes challenged by Darden could not be counted.

Mrs. Katie Boos of Fredericksburg testified that while a return sheet from Precinct 1 in Gillespie County showed she cast a ballot, she did not vote
