Rain Brings Partial Relief To Cotton Crop

HEAVY WIND AT NOCONA BLOWS CHURCH AWAY

Wires Blown Down South Of Bellevue, Railroads Report

ALL CROPS HELPED

Big Yield of Cotton Over Whole Territory Expected This Year

Coming in on the heels of a black hot spell, a downpour of rain brought relief Wednesday night to heat and drouth-struck north Texas.

While reports were not available from all points in this territory, information reaching here from railway stations along local lines indicated that the Wichita Falls trade territory had been drenched generally. This was true of the country east of Wichita Falls where the storm apparently reached its greatest intensity.

Wind at Nocona.

Wires were blown down south and east of Bellevue and other damage caused by the high wind and hail storm which accompanied the rain.

Nocona sent word that a heavy rainfall with some hail and wind had appeared there late Wednesday afternoon. A church house near Nocona was blown off the blocks. Bellevue was also visited by a storm, as was Henrietta. Ringgold and Bonita. Reports from Dallas and Fort Worth stated that severe rains had fallen there early in the evening, indicating that the storm area had extended over all of that territory between here and those two cities.

Moving slowly from the east, the storm reached Wichita Falls shortly before 9 o'clock Wednesday night. It covered the city with a light rain at this time and drove the thermometer down at a precipitous gait.

Storm Threatens Early.

Locally, the impending storm began to threaten early in the afternoon. Heavy black clouds banked in the east, coupled with a heavy, sultry atmosphere pressged a disturbance of no inconsequent proportions. A brisk south wind that had been blowing Tuesday night died down early in the day Wednesday and the city sweltered in one of the most wilting temperatures of the summer. The thermometer climbed only as high as 104 but it seemed higher because of the murky condition of the atmosphere.

Rain Proves Godsend.

That the rain is a godsend to the farmers of the county and territory is indicated in advance reports from agricultural agents and farmers themselves. A promising cotton crop that has been crying for rain is now apparently saved. Other crops badly in need of moisture have been benefited correspondingly. Wichita county cotton, according to County Agricultural Agen Guy R. Jones, has shown excellent prospects in those sections that have escaped the grasshoppers. He has also stated, however, that a good rain was badly needed and that a continuation of the dry weather would mean a heavy loss to the farmers.

If it is found that last night's storm prevailed over the entire county as generally as it did in Wichita Falls, the agricultural situation here has been relieved.

Reports of similar vein have been sent in by Record News correspondents from various parts of this territory before the rain. A few of the typical ones are quoted below:

BOMARTON—Cotton, up until the last few days, has been above normal. Now, however, it is shedding for want of moisture and if the dry weather continues the crop will be cut about in half. A price of 35 or 40 cents per pound is expected.

NOCONA—Cotton in this locality is holding up well considering the dry weather. Some farmers complain of needing rain and claim cotton is already suffering. Others say cotton is better off without rain at this time. They fear the boll weevil if much rain falls. The weevils so far have done but little damage. Something like 15 per cent more acreage of cotton was planted this year than last, on an average, while some planted twice as much. The cotton condition at this time is considered much better than for years but if dry weather holds on much longer, some think it will fall off considerably.

HENRIETTA—Unless rain comes within the next week the cotton yield in Clay county will be considerably less than heretofore indicated, according to George R. McNeill, Clay county farm demonstration agent. As a result of the prolonged dry weather, the plant in most sections of the county is underslze and shedding freely. A good general rain within the next few days would be of material benefit and would, in the opinion of the agent, insure a good crop. A considerable shortage is certain unless relief comes in the near future.

BURKBURNETT — The cotton crop prospects which promised to be the largest of many years has been hit by the grasshopper raid and dry weather fully 30 per cent. It will be much more if rain does not come in abundance within the next ten days, according to statements from buyers in this section today.

Two Kind Wichitans Qualify For Record News Courtesy Club

Is kindness dead?

Did chivalry of the Old South pass into oblivion with flowing sideburns and duels at sunrise?

Has man forgotten his duty to his fellowman and has simple, tolerant courtesy been displaced in the modern mad rush for money?

The Record News believes not; this newspaper believes kindness still abounds in Wichita Falls just as it did in the olden days.

To prove it, the Record News is offering one dollar each day for the best example of courtesy seen by its Courtesy Reporter who, unknown to the public will watch for such acts and reward the doer of such kindness.

Two persons became members of the Record News Courtesy club last night.

At a local downtown cafe a little ragged, dirty newsboy with a few afternoon papers still tucked under his arm came in and took a seat before the counter and ordered a sandwich and a glass of milk. He was a likeable looking little chap, with a winning smile, but he was dirty and his clothes were ragged. His milk and sandwich came and while he was still eating he started counting out the few pennies from his day's earnings to take care of the check. The check was made out and was just about to be handed to the little boy when the man sitting next interrupted with a request to "put it all on mine."

The waitress made out a new check and handed it to the man, and took from her pocket a dime and placed it alongside the new check merely saying that she was "paying for the kid's milk." The man smiled and she smiled back and the "kid" smiled, and everybody was happy.

The Courtesy Reporter saw the deed. Both man and waitress were handed a note of praise for their kindness and on the spot were made members of The Record News Courtesy club.

Who'll be the next?

W. C. T. U. NOT BACKING ANYONE

Mrs. Van Watts, S.-P., Says Candidates Cannot Use Name of Organizaton

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—Candidates for office in Texas are not authorized to use the name of the W. C. T. U. in furthering their candidacy, Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, state president of the organization announced here today. She said it was not the policy of the national or state organizations to endorse specific political parties, but to stand for dry candidates in all parties.

Endorses No One.

"The W. C. T. U.," said Mrs. Watts, 'has not and will not officially endorse a candidate. Pressure has been brought on the organization to secure its support. Since the ku klux klan has entered politics in Texas this has been extra strong. If the organized prohibitionists lend themselves as tools to any political faction they will destroy their usefulness."

LYNCH DAVIDSON FOR FERGUSON

Runner-Up To Leaders Will Continue Fight On Robertson

DALLAS, Aug. 6.—If Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is in the democratic runoff primary election for the Texas gubernatorial nomination, she will receive the support of Lnch Davidson of Houston, former lieutenant governor who ran third, according to unofficial returns of the recent primary, and apparently was eliminated for the runoff by Mrs. Ferguson.

Official returns of the election are to be announced by the state democratic executive committee here August 11. Declaring that indications are that he will not be in the second primary, Mr. Davidson said in a statement issued here today:

"Whether I am or not I shall actively continue my campaign against the ku klux klan and its candidacy for the governorship of Texas, Felix Robertson.

"If Mrs. Ferguson is to be the instrumentality by which this pernicious political organization is to be defeated, I stand ready to unite on Mrs. Ferguson to the end that this serious menace to our form of government may be ended."

Texas Woman Would Have Boys Tried By Jury Composed of Jewish Rabbis.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The defense temporarily exhausted its source of expert testimony today, forced an early adjournment and tomorrow will introduce the first of its lay witnesses who will continue to give Judge John R. Caverly evidence on which is based the plea for mitigation in the punishment of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, kidnapers and murderers of Robert Franks.

Loeb Identified as Slayer.

The startling developments of today's session of the hearing on the youths' plea of guilty was the identification of Loeb as the actual slayer of the Franks boy.

The mystery as to which of the two actually administered the death dealing blows with a cold chisel had remained unsolved throughout weeks of luvestigation and 12 days of the hearing until Dr. Bernard Glueck of New York, the third mental pathologist to testify for the defense calmly and casually in his monotonous drone of testimony replied to a question of Benjamin Bachrach of the defense counsel.

"Did Loeb say who struck the blow?" asked Bachrach.

"He told me throughout that he, Loeb, struck the blow," replied Dr. Glueck.

Revelation Proves Sudden.

The revelation came with unexpected suddenness just as the doctor had settled into what promised to be further vivisection of the youths' personalities along lines brought out twice previously by Doctors W. A. White of Washington and William Healy of Boston.

Boys Not to Testify.

"The defense does not intend to have the boys testify," said Mr. Darrow. "We may find that we shall want some members of their families to take the witness stand to connect up different phases of their lives or to identify exhibits already put into the record.

"In that event, we shall call Foreman Leopold, brother of Nathan, and Allan Loeb, brother of Richard."

Mr. Darrow indicated that the defense might reach the point where it could rest its case next Monday.

Judge Caverly took advantage of the adjournment today to scan a stock of several hundred letters bearing post marks from all parts of the country advising him as to what his decision should be. He said they were a nuisance and every writer was in contempt of court.

The judge's chambers were invaded after adjourgment by an elderly woman who said she was Mrs. Anna Lurie, the wife of a Jewish rabbi of Houston, Texas. She urged that a jury of rabbis be called to hear the trial. She was taken to the psychopathic hospital for observation.

MRS. FERGUSON OPENS CAMPAIGN IN DALLAS TALK

Candidate For Governor Introduced to Crowd At Fair Grounds

'FARMER JIM' IN PLEA

Asks Voters to Remove Stigma From Name Of Fergusons

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Aug. 6.—Three planks out of her platform were the basis of an appeal to the voters of Texas in the interest of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple, candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, who opened the second lap of her campaign here tonight. Mrs. Ferguson, according to tabulations of the Texas Election bureau, was second in the recent primary, and will enter a "runoff" primary with Felix D. Robertson.

Jim Makes Appeal.

The appeal tonight was made by "Farmer Jim" Ferguson, former governor and campaign manager for his wife, who stressed in his opening address lower taxation, attacked the ku klux klan and appealed to the voters of Texas to vindicate the Ferguson name by electing Mrs. Ferguson to the governor's chair. The candidate herself was introduced to the audience in a building in the grounds of the state fair.

Mrs. Ferguson thanked the listeners for their applause at her introduction and in a few words reminded them that she was not a speaker but was more a housewife, and closed with the declaration that during the past ten years her husband has been "the speaker of the house" and asked that he be heard in his plea for family vindication. The candidate then introduced the campaign manager who said, in part:

Advocates Free Speech.

"My wife is not asking for the governorship of Texas because she is a woman, and I believe that the brave chivalrous southern gentlemen will not vote against her because she is a woman. Her campaign and candidacy is on the high ground that she has the best platform in this campaign.

"Her candidacy promises more in relief of the burden of taxation and in the restoration of the liberties of the people in free-thought and free action which is being attempted to be taken away by the opposition. Her candidacy is based upon high ground that it promises more for the country schools and for the reformation of the penitentiary system and more in the way of protection against the designs and intentions of the ku klux klan to take away the liberties of the people. I take it that the people had rather have a woman governor with a good constructive platform than a man with no platform."

Right Taken Away.

Saying his right to hold office had been taken away "by political and judicial legerdemain," Mr. Ferguson added.

"Therefore there is nothing left for the protection of the Ferguson name but for my good wife to take up the battle and say to the people: Won't you help me and vote for me because they have taken away your right to vote for my husband.

"They have destroyed the man suffrage in the Ferguson campaign and therefore I appeal to the prompting of fairness and justice to help me remove the stigma of impeachment that has been put upon my name and the name of my children."

EX-STUDENTS GET VOICE IF FERGUSON WINS

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—Former students of the University of Texas and of A. & M. college will have a voice in the selection of regents and directors for those institutions if she is elected governor, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson informed Dr. Joe Gilbert, member of the University ex-student's executive committee in a letter received here today.

Colin O'More, "Irish" Tenor, Plain Hornberger Off Stage

The Irish now have something else to fight about.

"Colin O'More, Irish tenor," sweet singer in grand opera and on the phonograph and admired by hundreds in Wichita Falls, who heard him last fall sing here with the San Carlo Grand Opera company, stands revealed as plain James Herrod Hornberger.

This fact was revealed in supreme court in New York, when justice granted a motion to discontinue first action for divorce, which his wife, Madeline, brought.

The rift in the Hornberger happiness occurred a year ago. Mrs. Hornberger charged the man who has sung the role of unfaithful lover in "Madame Butterfly" time after time, with misconduct with an unidentified woman. Hornberger denied the charge.

Hornberger, it is said, earns $10,000 a year on a royalty basis from his records.

GOMPERS DENIED DAVIS MEETING

A. F. and L. Chief Says He Refused to Grant Dem Nominee an Audience

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 6.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight that John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, sought a conference with the labor leader in New York July 17, and later requested Mr. Gompers to file with him "a statement of questions which labor is chiefly interested in.

Conference Impossible

"The conference was impossible," said Mr. Gompers, "because of a conflicting engagement." The request was denied, he added because he could not submit questions to Mr. Davis "which would not be equally submitted to other candidates for the presidency."

That Mr. Davis had communicated with Mr. Gompers was revealed in a letter the Federation leader wrote William S. Wilson, former secretary of labor and a present staff member of the democratic national committee at Washington.

The letter was in reply to the one received from Mr. Wilson by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, urging that it defer endorsing La Falette until Mr. Davis delivered his notification speech.

Closest Senatorial Race In State's History Is Predicted

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 6.—The Daily Oklahoman, which opposed the nomination of former Governor J. C. Walton for the United States senate on the democratic ticket, tonight conceded his victory over Congressman E. B. Howard and predicted his final plurality would be 10,000.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 6.—Former Governor Walton's lead over Congressman Howard of Tulsa for the democratic senatorial nomination had increased to 4,048 when tabulation of returns from yesterday's primary was suspended for the night. This is the greatest margin of advantage yet attained by Walton and is based on returns from 2,267 of the state's 2,996 precincts. The total figures: Walton 62,247; Howard 58,163; Gore 39,355; Wrightsman 38,093; Freeling 11,902.

Gains On Late Returns.

Throughout the day the former governor, foe of the ku klux klan, ran second to Howard, klan endorsee, but as reports from the south and southeast sections of the state filtered in, the Tulsan's margin was reduced and late in the day Walton took the lead.

The 2,190 precincts gave: Howard 56,810; Walton 59,880.

These same precincts gave T. P. Gore 34,413; C. J. Wrightsman 34,389, and S. P. Freeling 9,937.

W. B. Pine, of Okmulgee, seeking the republican nomination for the United States senate, continued the gap between himself and Eugene Lorton, Tulsa publisher, and Hugh Scott, Muskogee.

The 824 precincts gave: Pine 21,849; Lorton 11,571; Scott 5,794.

C. J. Wrightsman this afternoon conceded the nomination of Walton but the other candidates maintained their silence.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 6.—Charging that there have been flagrant violations of the election laws in certain counties by persons controlled by the grand dragon (of the ku klux klan), former Governor J. C. Walton, democratic senatorial candidate, tonight issued a statement saying he would demand a "full investigation" in the counties in question. He declared that returns from yesterday's primary showed that he had been nominated by a "substantial vote."

The statement also charged that the "grand dragon attempted to dictate the nominee of both the democratic and republican parties."

"I shall demand a full investigation whether my plurality is 10,000 or 100,000," he said.

Close Race Expected.

Political observers predict the closest race in the state's history for the senatorial nomination, believing the result may hinge upon returns from the last 200 precincts reporting.

Leaders in the other races last night held their own today, several increasing their leads.

Democratic congressional incumbents in four districts who had opposition for the nomination apparently had received the party approval.

M. C. Garber, the only republican congressman from Oklahoma, practically was assured the nomination over Manuel Herrick.

Thomas A. Edwards of Cordell almost doubled his lead over Smith C. Matson. Ardmore, chief justice of the criminal court of appeals, in the race for the democratic nomination to the court.

Returns today indicated that Walton had carried Oklahoma City and Oklahoma county; that Howard would carry Tulsa county and that Wrightsman had a commanding lead in Muskogee county.

WRIGHTSMAN CONCEDES WALTON'S NOMINATION.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 6.—The nomination of J. C. Walton, deposed governor, for the democratic nomination for the United States senate, was conceded late today at the headquarters here of Charles J. Wrightsman, who was running third in the race.

MRS. HOBART MAKES BOND IN CLARENDON

By The Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 6.—Sheriff Less Whitaker was notified today that a $4,500 bond had been obtained in Clarendon, Texas, for Mrs. Ruth Hobart, held here on charges of murder and conspiracy in connection with the shooting to death of her husband, E. W. Hobart, here July 14. Mrs. Hobart probably will be released tonight, to appear before the August grand jury.

Somerville Shows World He Can Still Run

Victor in Recent Campaign Makes Sensational Capture of Escaping Prisoners.

The traveling accomplishments of Wayne Somerville, newly elected county attorney, corraled a fugitive in a break for freedom Wednesday afternoon and returned him safely to the county jail after he had broken away from an officer and dashed out of the court house.

J. B. Stout and Carl Ferguson, under indictment on charges of burglary, were found guilty in the 89th district court and sentenced to two years each in the state penitentiary. Both had pleaded not guilty and had asked that in event an adverse verdict were returned against them, they be granted a suspended sentence. This was denied by the jury.

After the verdict had been returned, Assistant County Attorney J. Earl Kuntz took the two youths in charge and started for the sheriff's office to turn them over to the jailer. At the foot of the stairs leading from the second to the first floor of the court house, Stout bolted and ran.

Kuntz grabbed Ferguson and held him tightly, at the same time shouting to Somerville and Deputy Constable E. S. Richardson who were the only two men in sight on the first floor. Seeing Stout disappearing through the main door, these two set out in hot pursuit. Somerville shed his coat on the way, picked 'em up and laid 'em down the same way he used to when on the University of Texas track team, and by the time the fleeing Stout had crossed Seventh street, the attorney was on his heels.

A flying tackle brought him to the ground and he was held until officers arrived to return him to jail.

Ferguson and Stout were arrested in Channing, Texas, last April on charges of theft of automobile tires. While under investigation there, some goods stolen April 10 from the W. T. Parker grocery in Wichita Falls were uncovered. Both denied any complicity with the Parker robbery, but evidence introduced at the trial tended to show that they were involved.

PROGRESSIVE INSTITUTIONS of Wichita Falls

WHERE DO YOU SOW?

IF YOU were sowing for a crop, would you sow in your own field, or in someone's else? Sounds like foolish question doesn't it? But there are a great many people who do sow in the other fellow's field when it comes to buying. Instead of buying from home dealers, or having home folks render them service, they send their money away to firms that they have never seen and folks they never will see.

THE MONEY spent at home yields a crop in building up home business—making it possible for home folks to buy what you have to sell. The money sent elsewhere doesn't do that. It can't, for it never comes back. Patronize the firms represented on this page and you'll be sowing in your own field—and reaping—a twofold harvest. Spend your money where it will have a chance to return to you.

DAVIS PONDERING OVER CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.

LOCUST VALLEY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Resting at his home here today, John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, gave attention to the broader aspects of the campaign which he will formally open next Monday night at Clarksburg, W. Va., and later conduct intensively in a series of addresses over the country. Among other things, he is revolving his mind the sequence in which he will present the arguments in his case in a more extended manner than he will find it possible to do in his first address.

What Will De Valera Do Now? Is Question of Hour in Ireland

What will De Valera do? That is the question in Ireland since the release of the Irish republican leader and his followers from prison by the Free State government. FIRST FAIR DAY IS FOR CHILDREN

Public Schools Will Probably Declare Holiday For Event

The first day of the Texas-Oklahoma fair which opens Monday, September 29, will be Children's Day, according to officials of the fair association. On this day all school children will be admitted to the grounds free. Although no announcement has been made, in all probability the public schools in Wichita Falls will be closed in order to allow the school children to attend the fair. This supposition is taken on the grounds that the schools in the city were closed on Children's Day last year.

On the first day the exhibit poultry, live stock, agriculture, educational, women's and fine arts buildings will be opened. The Queen of the fair will be crowned Monday night and the royal pageant shown.

German Profiteers' Autos Now Serve as Taxicabs

These were formerly the private cars of war and inflation profiteers, who were obliged to get rid of them for a mere pittance when the government acted.

The original owners paid high prices for them and entered them as business charges to reduce the amount of their income taxes.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

LIFE AND GOOD DAYS—He that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue fro evil, and his lips that they speak no guile.—1 Peter 3:10.

PRAYER:—

"Take me, O my Father, take me;
Take me, save me, through Thy Son;
That which Thou would'st have me, make me;
Let Thy will in me be done."

WHERE THEY STAND

This is the slogan of General John J. Pershing: "Let me say right now that I am ready and every ex-service man is ready to go to the mat on national defense."

John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, sees no need for military display or National Defense Day.

Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska says there is no necessity at this time for encouraging civilians to leave their occupations for the purpose of engaging in what would be only a military demonstration without practical educational effect.

President Calvin Coolidge has decided against any personal entry into the political phases of the controversy.

General Charles G. Hell-Maria Dawes is for national defense, state defense, county defense and community defense.

Is Defense day to be made the paramount issue of the presidential campaign. All the big conventions of the political parties sidestepped law enforcement in their platforms. They sidestepped the prohibition issue; they sidestepped the League of Nations and lastly they sidestepped an issue which burns like a prairie fire in spots and then dies out.

Practical politicians run the politics of America. Practical politicians feed hokum to the voters. Practical politicians avoid any issue that is a live issue. But why blame the practical politicians?

There are fifty million qualified voters in America. Four years ago less than twenty-five million could be induced to vote. This year the practical politicians hope to drag at least thirty millions to the polls.

If all the people could be taught to think then most of the people could be taught to act. There are fourteen hundred thousand qualified voters in Texas. Less than seven hundred thousand are active participants in the primaries of the two major parties.

There are seven hundred thousand men and women voters who are self-disfranchised. They refuse to protect themselves or their property rights by aiding in the selection of the men who make the laws or who carry on government.

New Zealand, a very advanced self-governing country, has decided to enact a compulsory voting law. Many of the advanced statesmen of Australia favor a cumpulsory voting law.

Why not give the system a try-out away down here in Texas? Either force them to vote or impose a tax of $10 a year on every qualified voter who neglects to participate in the elections and thus dodges the responsibilities of government.

DEFENSE DAY.

Now the politicians are for a National Defense day. There isn't a real soldier first or second on any of the national tickets. There isn't a real soldier among the managers of the national political circus.

Warren G. Harding called a disarmament conference and insisted that all the nations of the earth disband their armies, dismantle their navies, close up their powder plants, darken their arsenals and become Quakers.

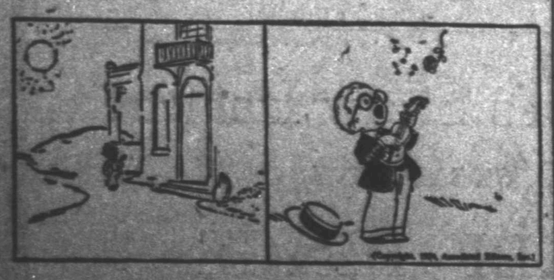

Now the American Eagle is on the war path, all dressed up with nobody to fight.

DID YOU KNOW?

That now William Jennings Bryan is saying, speaking of nominee Davis, says: "You shall not press upon the brow of Davis this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify Brother Charley upon a cross of gold."

That Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska says that he can not, in consistency and decency, run on the same ticket with President Coolidge or accept "the reactionary republican platform?"

PANTOMIME -:- By J. H. Striebel

WAITING FOR THE STARTER'S GUN.

Their Name Was Legion

"What is it?" Vaguely Bart Rogers had identified the shadowy visitor as Old Jim.

"Could—could I trust you, if I talked to you a little while?" The voice seemed tense, almost frightened.

"Tell me what it is!" Rogers ejaculated. At last came the words:

"Mind if we sit down?"

"Not at all." Bart brought two chairs toward the window. Jim halted him at a safe distance.

"That's better," he whispered. "Nobody can see us from the street here." He seated himself, and his thin hands knitted. At last: "You own the land right next to where they've brought in this oil."

"Yes."

"It'll be worth a lot of money—if you'd want to sell out."

"It should—that is, if the oil keeps up."

Old Jim laid a hand on his arm.

"Boy," came in a low voice, "I want to tell you something. I can't tell anybody. I'm"—then there was a long silence—"I'm putting myself at your mercy, in a way, in even coming to see you tonight. If he'd ever find it out—"

"You mean 'Bull'?"

"Yes."

"You mean—"

"You met us on the road one night," came cryptically. Rogers recalled in horror.

"He would beat her? Again?" He rose and paced the room, at last to halt beside the older man's chair. "Good God, man! you don't stand for that? Haven't you an ounce of red blood in your veins? Haven't you—"

But the thin hands spread hopelessly.

"—I—I can't do anything. There are reasons why I can't. I—I've just got to stand and look on. That's why he takes such a delight in it; because he knows that I'm suffering. That's why I—"

"There's one way out—and you'd have a right to do it!" Bart Rogers spoke slowly, coldly. "No man has a right to beat a woman—much less a girl. Understand that? And there isn't a jury in the world—"

He paused then. The faint light from the street reflected the gleam in Old Jim's eyes, as the older man half-rose, his hands extended, his lips working convulsively, his features fraught with excitement, with hope—then suddenly with fear as he sank into the chair again and stared dully into vacancy.

"No," came hopelessly, "I've thought of it. I—guess I've thought of it more tonight than ever before in my life. But I can't do it. I might only wound him—and then it'd be worse than ever. I—I can't take the chance. There'd be too much at stake. My hands wouldn't be even steady. I—I miss. Then he'd get a greater revenge then. He'd ruin her life—and yours!"

"Mine? Ruin my life?"

"You care about her, don't you? I've seen it, boy." Old Jim rose now. "I saw it in your eyes this afternoon—I saw it there tonight. That's what made me come here. I want to get your promise."

Then his voice trailed away.

"My promise? To what?" answered Bart.

"That—that you'll marry Anita."

"I?"

"Yes!" Old Jim had caught him by the arms now, and was holding in a grip that was almost spasmodic in its intensity. "You care about her—I know you do. I want you to marry her. You'll have money—plenty of it. You can go away—to New York, or maybe across the water—some place where he couldn't get his hands on her and torture her and tear the heart out of me! I'll help you—I give you my word that I'll help you! I'll pretend to hate you, I'll let him think that it will be a living agony to me to see her married to you! Then he'll consent to it—because he will think it will hurt me. Bart—" the man's fingernails were digging deep into the tight-clasped arms now, "I'll do anything in the world for you if you'll only promise! I'll crawl on my knees to you. I'll—"

"But why—why should you think that she would marry me? That she even thinks of me other than to be grateful for that night on the road? Why—"

"Maybe she doesn't. But I'll help. I'll talk you up to her—I know she likes you better than anyone else. And I'll try to make her love you."

Then he stopped. Bart Rogers, waited long for him to continue, but no words came. The clutch at the younger man's arms released slowly. Then the old man turned despondently away.

"—I guess I've been a fool," came at last. Just forget I've ever been here."

"I can't do that, Jim." Bart Rogers was following him to the door. "But I'm afraid you've baked some impossibilities. In the first place, a girl doesn't marry a man unless she really loves him. Then she marries without influence from anyone. If that time ever comes, you'll find me waiting for Anita, and if she's willing to go with me, it'll be plentier I have money or not, and in spite of what 'Bull' Frannison or anybody else has to say or think about it. I'll—"

"Don't!" The appeal had come in a whisper that was almost frantic. "Don't—please, please, for God's sake, don't!" He looked about him hurriedly. "That can't be Rogers! Understand—it can't be! You can't take her that way—you mustn't—hear that? You mustn't! You've got to promise me that before I leave this room!"

CHAPTER VII
The Mysterious Friend

Bart Rogers smiled mirthlessly.

"We're discussing a good many things that may never happen. But, if it'll help you any, Jim—I'll promise."

And through the night, as Bart sat by the window, alone in his grief, there were moments when, in spite of his sorrow, his mind reverted to the visit of the shadowy Old Jim, and his strange, mysterious requests.

It brought questions—a myriad of them. And some answers. More than once, in the years which had followed their first meeting, Bart Rogers had wondered why Anita Frannison allowed herself to suffer the cruelties which must be her lot at the hands of her father. This was an independent age, Rogers had told himself, an age when a girl was forced neither through precedent nor public opinion, to countenance indignities or mistreatment. This was an age when a girl, rather than submit to cruelties, could make her own way in the world, and Rogers had wondered why she had not done so. Tonight, there had come an answer in an unanswerable mystery. Was it Old Jim, who through the fear of what he knew inevitably would descend upon her, who had kept her in the unkind hands of her father, rather than allow her to go forth to apparent security, and by the excursion bring even a worse fate upon herself? What was that fate? What was the evil thing which "Bull" Frannison held in his keeping? What sort of a power could this man hold, which, through a few words, could control the destines of two persons?

Breakfast, then the perversity of nature, demanding sleep after denying it, sent the fatigued man to a few hours' rest. After that—a cemetery, and a caustic, snapping-tongued man who accompanied him back to the hotel, only to leave him the moment they reached the door.

"Going to send for you tonight," was his parting. "Don't go running around. I want to know where to put my hands on you when the time comes. We've got to talk over some things."

"I'll be in my room."

"Very well. I'll count on that."

Then he turned into the crowded street, leaving Bart Rogers alone once more with his grief and his conjectures. The motley collection of human riff-raff that flocks to every oil boom town was present in full force below in the street.

But up in his room, Bart Rogers watched dusk and then night came with hardly a thought of the milling throngs so near. He had left word at the desk that he was not to be disturbed by any one save a messenger from the office of Leon Barrows—even that afternoon as the one dilapidated carriage followed the hearse to the cemetery, a man had scrambled out from the sidewalk with an offer for his land.

Not that Bart Rogers did not care to sell, either. Right now, however, he did not want to discuss the sale of land, or to bicker over prices. His thoughts were on a different thing, on the loneliness of a mound he had left behind that afternoon.

An hour he watched the money-mad mob in a vacant, detached manner, at last to rise at the sound of a knock on the door. Old Jim was there, looking querulously up at him, but this time he did not enter.

"Lawyer Barrows sent me for you."

"Certainly." Bart reached for his hat and joined him. Silently they descended to the street, then forced their way to the broad, wooden stairway which led to the office of the attorney. There Old Jim tugged at his arm, and when Bart turned toward him, asked guardedly:

"What is it? What does he want you for?"

"I don't know. He told me this afternoon that he would want to see me tonight. He said he had some things to talk over with me."

"Is it about money?" There was a sharp insistence in the older man's voice.

"I don't know. I suppose so—about what my father left and that sort of thing. It all has to be settled up and—"

"Come on in," he said, "and meet the friend of the family who sent that money. He's got to come in for his share, you know."

He threw wide the door then and Bart Rogers looked within, for his first glimpse of the "mysterious friend of the family!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

LEO

During the early part of the day, the planetary aspects are very favorable and counsel activity and aggressiveness. They are specially propitious for all business matters, literary efforts, and chemical research. They also indicate that a marriage solemnized during this period will, in all probability, be productive of much happiness and enduring love. In the afternoon, the aspects change and become adverse, rendering it necessary to maintain poise and to practice cheerfulness, so as to eliminate all impulsiveness and to encourage peace and contentment.

A child born today will be normally healthy, although it will probably experience a rather serious ailment during the state of adolescence. Its character will be spontaneous and impulsive; its disposition ultra sensitive, but keenly responsive to affection and kindness; its mentality will be bright. The one trait that must be overcome, by training and discipline—mental and not physical—is that of impulsiveness, which, for the child's own well-being, must be checked and controlled.

If today is your birthday, you are painstaking, deliberate and meticulous; you, however, lack enthusiasm, which is the electric current that keeps the engine of life going at top speed. Dirty ore wrought in white heat enthusiasm can be transformed into shining steel. Half heartedness never attained whole success.

To be able to muster up enthusiasm, you must believe in what you are doing, believe it is legitimate, believe in its efficacy, believe in its benefits. Just as surely as indifference and ignorance spell failure, enthusiasm and enlightenment spell success.

Experience has demonstrated that at the birth and base of every great business enterprise was an enthusiast, one consumed with earnestness of purpose, confidence in his or her powers, and faith in endeavor.

The one who lack enthusiasm has already given up the race. It stirs the pulse, brightens the eyes, and quickens the step. Indifference is twin brother to laziness.

HOW IT STARTED

"A REGULAR SPONGE."

The word sponge has many figurative uses in the parlance of slang to describe people who live on the bounty of others or enjoy benefits by imposition on others, who, like a sponge, "take in" but do not give out. Its most popular slang usage and the one to which the others in their origin are not unrelated, is to express a large capacity for drink.

It is in the latter sense that we find the original use of the metaphor by Rabelais the sixteenth century French satirist who wrote: "I drink no more than a sponge."

As a matter of fact, industries operated politically for a favored few are paid for by the many through taxation. The average citizen may not realize this until he stops to figure it out—but he pays the bill just the same.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

GO INTO THE COUNTRY.

"I don't get a vacation this year—unless I take it at my own expense. And the cost of two weeks in the country would mean no new coat in the fall."

Are you one who must take a similar choice? Then go to the country.

You don't know, you can't have remembered, or there would be no question of choice, the beauty, the peace, the healing balm of those fields and meadows, and woods, the cleansing and refreshing power of mountain streams. Just to look at them, to feel yourself out among the green of the hills and the open spaces is to feel lighter, clearer of mind.

Two weeks in the country will give your eyes a sparkle, your tread new life, your complexion a coat that will make you more attractive than anything which vacation money could buy. For it will be a coat of health which is lovelier in old clothes than a tired and stale body, mind and skin can possibly be in any finery.

So go to the country.

If a vacation is really impossible, then be sure on Saturdays and Sundays, on any holiday you can get, to go into the country. A small fare and an hour's ride will take you and your lunch box.

With the inspiration of early spring the new green called you and you went, perhaps. Then with the sunshine no longer novel, with the mystery of budding over, you let it go. The weather grew warmer, trains and boats more crowded, and you more tired—so it was easier to stay at home.

But it is just that staying at home, that shutting yourself in the heat and closeness of the city, that is so enervating. The country is well worth the effort to get to it. Go; not to the amusement spots with the crowds, but to the real country—any offroad will lead you to it—where no noise drowns the notes of the birds and no crowds obscure the horizon.

Go every time you can. Don't pass up a chance. The summer will soon be over.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A CONFESSION OF UNFITNESS

If through the gloom within my room,
By night a burglar came,
And took my watch and cash and Scotch,
And walked out with the same,
I am not sure that I'd secure
The miscreant by the hair,
With a serene and quiet mien,
And pitch him down the stair.

But tht's the way they do it in the movies;
A burglar ventures in the hero's flat,
And he lands, all bruised and gory
"Plop!" upon the lower story.
While the hero softly murmurs: "That is that."

If I should meet a burglar in my bedroom,
My yip for help would ring out shrill and keen;
I could only sit and shiver with a gun against my liver,
Which is why I'd never shine upon the screen.
If in the wood alone I stood
Confronted by a bear,
I'm sure that I with fright would cry,
And go away from there.
I'd not step out and boldly flout
The monster's hideous grins,
And watch my chance to take a stance
And kick him in the shins.

But that's the way they do it in the movies;
No creature in the jungle is so wild
That his nerve won't fall to zero in the presence of the hero,
And his countenance grow pitifully mild.
Let a hero look but once upon a wildcat,
And the wildcat hastens shrieking from the scene.
I would faint with trepidation in the selfsame situation,
Which is why I'd never shine upon the screen.

Domergue

On the thirteenth of June, M. Gaston Doumergue was elected president of the French republic, by the National Assembly at Versailles. This national assembly consisted of the senate and chamber of deputies combined.

M. Doumergue received five hundred and fifteen votes as against three hundred and nine by his nearest competitor.

Mr. Doumergue is considered a radical socialist but a mild one. So mild indeed that the bulk of the socialists and radicals were opposed to him and he was elected by the more moderate votes of the assembly, by those who considered it necessary for the traditional policies of France to be maintained. It should not be forgotten that M. Doumergue voted for and defended M. Poincare's foreign policy in the senate and approved of France's entry into the Ruhr.

Voting was closed at 4:50 o'clock, at which time the result was read in congress by M. Bienvenue, Martin, vice president of the senate. Fully two-thirds of the deputies and senators present arose from their seats cheering wildly. The benches occupied by the socialist and radical-socialist deputies could not once be distinguished, as their occupants remained seated. The small knot of communists attempted to sing the "Internationale" but their voices were promptly drowned by those of over five hundred senators and deputies singing the "Marseillaise."

There were only three candidates, M. Doumergue, M. Painleve and third, M. Camelinat. The result of the voting was that M. Doumergue received 515 votes, M. Plainleve 309, and M. Camelinat 21. Having polled more than half the votes cast, M. Doumergue was therefore declared elected.

M. Francois-Marsal announced to M. Doumergue, in a private reception room called the Salle Marengo, that he had been elected president, and M. Marsal, who during the interregum had been constitutionally charged with all executive powers, handed them over to the new president.

After thanking Mr. Martin and M. Marsal for their congratulations, M. Doumergue said that he would endeavor to put into practice at the Elysee the same principles of fidelity to ideals and love of country which had been his during a political life extending over thirty years.

After shaking hands with the senators and deputies and the members of the French and foreign press, and thanking them all for their congratulations, M. Doumergue drove off through the troop-lined streets in an open car bearing the presidential flag to the Elysee, or official residence of the president.

Long before it was possible for the presidential cortege to reach Paris the public, eager for the first sight of the new president, were crowded along the Champs Elysees. It was important for this crowd to be near shelter, for heavy storms broke from time to time, and the chestnuts with the finest foliage were those selected.

What M. Doumergue will do with this new position is as yet uncertain, but he is the distinct choice of the majority of the deputies selected by the people and the reign of a constitutional head of the state is always followed with interest.

WATER.

The Chemical Composition of Water.

Few people, perhaps, have given thought to what water really is. Water is an oxide, an oxide of the gas hydrogen.

Whenever iron rusts then we have an oxide of iron. When a fire burns it is changing its fuel to oxide. Oxides are common. They make up most of the earths crust. They are formed by the action of the gas oxygen on the various substances and elements.

In the case of water the gas hydrogen has been acted upon or combined with the gas oxygen. Hydrogen is the lightest gas known. It rarely occurs in nature by itself. Oxygen is about sixteen times as heavy as hydrogen and is found in its free state principally in the air. Oxygen is the gas in the air which we use in breathing. If there was no free oxygen in the air we would all smother at once.

Water can be broken up under the influence of an electric current into its own component gases. On the other hand a mixture of the two gases can be caused to form water by introducing an electric spark into the mixture. When these two gases combine to form water they do so with explosive violence.

These two gases should not be confused with steam. Steam is the gaseous form of water and is not a separation of the hydrogen and oxygen.

Water is not broken up by heat but only changed in form. Steam can be subject to a high degree of superheat without separating into the two gases. They are so firmly bound together chemically that they separate only with difficulty.

Today's Poem

THERE CAME A SHIP.

There came a ship from the sky today,
Dropped from the sky with its cloudy sail
Caught by the waves in the distance grey,
Its bow of gold, and a silver tail
Linking its heart with the faraway.

There came a ship with a gift for me,
Songs as swee as the lilting strain
Borne on the winds where they kiss the sea
And tumble back to the sky again—
A haunting magical melody.

And would you know of the tales they tell,
And would you hear of the songs they sing?
From wonderland where the fancies dwell
They float on a wide-stretched, pearly wing,
And wait for you in a tiny shell.

Berliners Eager to Travel

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug.—The German railroads have arranged, during the summer vacation season, a number of special excursions to Munich, the Baltic watering places, the Harz mountains, Hamburg and Bremen. The rates are one-half the regular fares.

So popular are these trips that at the Anhalter station hundreds of people arrived the night before the opening of the excursion ticket sale, armed with camp chairs and eatables. Thus they sat patiently till 9 o'clock the next morning, when the offices opened and the scramble for tickets began in earnest.

Dorothy Dix

The "Family Sacrifice" Rebels—Unhappiness of Early Marriages—What to Do With a Superscntive Wife

Dear Dorothy Dix—Being the eldest of seven sisters and brothers, coupled with the fact that my father's livelihood is not sufficient to make such a large family reasonable comfortable, sacrifice has been my twin sister.

When I graduated from grammar school I anticipated with great joy my entrance into a higher one, but my mother explained to me that I must go to work so that my brother could continue his education. He must be given the preference.

I started by working at a local department store as messenger and paid half of my tuition through business college by doing work for the professor after school. I made rapid progress, and at the age of 16 finished a secretarial course at night school. I am now a capable secretary and my income is more than my father's. Today our family is the cause of much admiration, for every one of us is doing some worthwhile thing. Two have studied music, another engineering, the brother referred to previously is attending one of our famous colleges and another sister is studying art.

My earnings have always gone into the family pot. I have not even asked my mother for an allowance out of my own pay envelope, and when I do ask her for a dollar or two, or for a new dress, her funds are nearly always exhausted. She has spent everything on the other children.

I am beginning to feel that this is unjust, and I am thinking of leaving home and starting out for myself. There is no use in trying to have a heart-to-heart talk with my mother. I have done that, and used every other conceivable method, but to no avail. What should I do? W. L.

Answer:

I think you will be very wise to refuse to be any longer the family goat, and that the only way you can keep from being offered up as a sacrifice is to leave home.

One of the things at which I never cease to marvel is the injustice of mothers. They seem incapable of holding the scales even and giving each of their children the same sort of square deal. In almost every family there is one spoiled daughter who is waited on hand and foot by all the other members of the family and who has twice as many pretty clothes as the other girls, or one lazy loafer of a son, who is supported by his industrious brothers and sisters.

I have seen mothers take the money that a hard-working older daughter had earned, and that she needed for a decent street suit, to buy a party dress for a giddy little younger daughter, who lay on a couch and read novels when she was not amusing herself. I have seen mothers force frail, delicate girls to support a husky, drunken, good-for-nothing brother.

And, apparently, it never entered into the minds of the mothers what a cruel, unnatural thing they were doing. You see, the mother would give anything in the world to her favorite children; she would deny herself anything for them, and she cannot see why their sisters and brothers do not feel the same way about it. Furthermore, she is utterly incapable of realizing that she has no right to rob one of her children for the other, or that her children have equal rights.

When a child has that sort of a mother, the only thing it can do is to defend itself as best it can and to refuse to permit itself to be made the victim of brothers and sisters who are quite as capable of working as it is. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Have a nineteen-year-old girl and a twenty-one-year-old boy seen enough of life to settle down and marry—and be happy? What are their chances of happiness against those of waiting two or three years? What is your opinion of early marriages? Do you think the young people should marry while they are very much in love? Do you not think that long engagements often end disastrously, especially when the parties concerned are young?

A MOTHER READER.

Answer:

The divorce statistics answer your question about the chances of making a success of marriage that a 19-year-old girl and a 21-year-old boy have. A perfectly appalling number of such marriages go on the rocks. Among the thousands of letters that I get every year from men and women telling me of their matrimonial woes nearly every one begins by saying, "I married when I was very young," and nine-tenths of them end by saying, "I am now in love with some man, or woman, who is my real mate."

The girl of 19 and the boy of 21 are still children, undeveloped, unformed. They have no idea what they are going to be themselves when they are grown. Still less do they know the kind of man or woman they will want for a husband or wife.

Of course, occasionally a boy and girl marry and grow up and develop alike, but it is a miracle when it does happen. Far oftener they grow apart, or one goes on and grows and the other stays just the unformed boy or girl that he or she was at the time of marriage. And there are no greater tragedies than that.

Certainly I think that young people should marry while they are very much in love, but puppy love isn't the sort of love that lasts. One heart throb of a mature man and woman is worth all the crazy sentiment of the children who think they will die if they cannot get the thing they want that minute. They cry for a wedding ring as a baby does for a rattle, and tire of it just as quickly.

Of course, long engagements often end disastrously when the parties are young, but a broken engagement is far better than a broken marriage vow. The love that cannot stand the waiting test is not the real thing.

WHOLE COMMITTEE WILL CANVASS VOTES

By The Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Aug. 6.—When the state democratic executive committee meets in Dallas Monday of next week it will be faced with the task of opening and canvassing the returns from the 252 Texas counties.

Heretofore the committee has been relieved of this work by the officers of the committee who have opened and canvassed the returns in advance of the meeting of the committee. In a statement given out today by Secretary Joe Hale of the state committee he says that in view of the fact that the official canvass might change the result as reported by the Texas election bureau it has been decided to follow the law literally and preserve the returns intact and to be opened only in the presence of the full committee. This decision was reached after a long distance telephone conversation with Frank C. Davis, chairman of the committe.

FIVE CIRCUIT SMASHES MADE IN ONE-SIDED SPUD VICTORY

White Poles Two Homers—Turgen, Jonnard, And Vache Wallop Horseside Over Barriers

By BLONDY CROSS.

Spudders accumulated runs in clusters Wednesday, and whipped up on Dallas, 14 to 5.

Southpaw Slim Love, of the cross fire delivery, and Lefty Schuman met their betters in Bud's bludgeoners, and each came in for long distance mauling.

Paul Musser, slobber ball specialist of the Spuds, started the affair, but failed to stay the route. He was relieved by Lefty Frederick Fussell in the sixth after the visitors had punched Paullie frantically in that stanza. All went well from a Spudder angle the remainder of the way.

Accurate bombardment of territory adjacent to and in the rear of the left field fence was quite frequent. The fistful of ball microbes present witnessed the slugging of five homers, four by the locals and one by Dallas, to that section.

Spudder Keystoner Al White poled a pair. Jonnard and Turgeon chimed in with blistering busts for four bases, also. Vache, Steer central gardner, histed one to port in the third with one on.

Spuds Three in First.

After there were two away in the initial couplet, miscues, a walk, stolen base and a pair of safeties chased the Spudders into the run column for a trio. Fitzgerald led off by going out third to first on a hard hit ball which would have been a safe blow had it been a few feet to either side of Segrist. Callaghan was given a free ticket. Coombs aviated to the middle precinct. With Weis at the platter, Callie set out for second, made the ripple, and scooted on to third when Catcher Lingle jungle heaved to center field. Weis hoisted one to right, an easy catch which was muffled by Donohue, Callaghan tabulating. Turgeon doubled down the third base line, putting Weis to third. Locker singled cleanly to center, and Weis and Turge checked in. Locker was caught between second and first a few seconds later, Love to Barnes to Bauman.

Bovines pulled up at the paying counter in the second for a marker minus the essence of a hard poke. Griffin and Segrist paraded to the initial station with four-balls donations. Stow bunted them around each a notch. Lingle grounded out to Turgeon, and Griffin counted. Love bounded out to White.

Al Hits First Homer.

Spuds busted loose in the second frame for two more. White led off with a non-stopper over the port wall. Jonnard followed with a single to left. Musser gazed regretfully at a third strike, and then Fitzgerald attempting to dodge a weird chunk by Slimbo, singled down the third base line. Callaghan crashed a bullet-like drive to starboard for a brace of cushions, sending Jonnard to the paying counter. Fitz stopped at third. Coombs flied out to left, and Griffin strong-armed the pellet to the plate, a perfect throw, cutting Fitzgerald away, who attempted to score after the catch.

Barnes walked in the Steer third. Two batters expired, one at the plate, and the other on the infield, then Vache sent the horsehide on an aerial voyage to the jungles back of the left pastures. Tabulate two more for the visitors.

Three More in Third.

The Tanner crew accumulated three in the third. Weis beat out a bobble between the box and first. Turgeon passed away at the plate. Locker poked a slow one between the mound and third, also beating it out. Weis rested at the keystone. The sacks became populated to capacity when Love passed White. Bubber Jonnard strode to the pan and promptly broke it up. He slashed one through the box a mile a minute, a single, scoring Weis and Locker and sending White to third when Vache in center bobbled. Jonnard made second on the error. Musser drove a hard one to deep center, and Vache raced back to pull the sphere down for one of the most sensational catches of the season at the Spud lot. White tabulated after the catch. Fitz hoisted to Griffin in left.

Both Clubs Rout Hurlers.

Love gave up the ghost in the fourth act after there was one away when Coombs pecked him for a two-cushioner to left center. Schuman took up the task, and got through the round with no casualties.

Four safe blows in a row counted two for the Steers and eliminated Musser in the sixth. Griffin doubled to left; Segrist, Stow, and Lingle singled. Fussell clambored onto the hillock with none out, and two aboard. Schuman popped to center. Barnes swung lustily at a third strike, but connected with nothing other than thin, resilient ozone. Donohue was put away, Turgeon to Coombs.

The Steer relief hurler managed to squeeze through the fifth and sixth stanzas all to the merry, but the Spuds couldn't be kept from the door in the seventh. Turgeon's twentieth round-tripper of the season abetted by a walk and circuit smash by Jonnard, both blows to port, iced three for the domestics.

An error and a walk put Coombs and Turgeon on the paths, and with two gone, White poled his second homer of the game in the eighth.

Second Game In S. S. Loop Title Series Disputed

The Grace Methodists rallied in the final inning of the second game of the championship series in the Sunday School League, and tied the score at 10 all. With Skeen at bat and Hicks on first, and one out, Windham went into the box for the First Methodist, and made, what appeared to be, several unnecessary throws to first. The Grace team claimed that the Hare players were stalling and the crowd flowed upon the field. By the time the field was cleared it was evident that it was too dark to play. Manager Hare of the First Methodist understood Umpire-in-Chief Montgomery to call the game on account of darkness, and his players left the field. Umpire Montgomery stated that the game was forfeited to the Grace team, 9 to 0, because the other team left the field. In case it is found that Hare's understanding was right, the game belongs to his team, by rule 23 of the Official Rules, which states: "If the umpire calls a game in accordance with Rule 22, Section 3, at any time after five innings have been completed, the score shall be that of the last equal innings played, except that if the side second at bat shall have scored in an unequal number of innings, or before the completion of the unfinished inning, at least one more run than the side first at bat, the score of the game shall be the total number of runs each team has made."

Coyote Gridders Begin Practice On September 2

News was received in Wichita Falls recently that Bud McCallum, high school football coach, would arrive in the city the last week of this month. Football training will begin September 2, according to Supt. J. W. Cantwell. As school opens September 8 the football men will only have a week of early practice and that means some stiff work.

There was some talk last spring that a two weeks football training camp would be held at Medicine Park this fall but with the announcement received by Supt. Cantwell this idea was discarded. Several of the larger high schools in the state, including three high schools in Fort Worth, go into camp two weeks before the respective schools open. The purpose of this is to get the men hardened but many of the high schools have already discarded this practice after branding it a failure.

Approximately 100 men reported for practice last fall and it is thought that this number will be increased to 125 this fall due to the interest raised in football during the past season when the local high school went into the semi-finals in the state race.

Top O' the Mornin' Stuff

BLONDY CROSS

Final Spud-Steer frolic this afternoon.

Gassers invade lot Friday for first of four.

Double-header scheduled Sunday, the second twin bill of the season here.

Spudders, for awhile the sluggin'est club in the loop, seemed to find themselves again yesterday.

The nine as a whole has slumped in clouting, but the Wednesday fiasco may have been the starter on the return voyage to the league top in hitting again.

After that Steer massacre one wouldn't imagine the Spuds need any lessons in fighting, but for fear they may slip again Legion Promoter Don Wofford has invited the entire aggregation out tonight to the legion arena to see how it is done.

Since the Dallas club takes their departure about 11 p. m. Wofford believes no harm will be done by inviting the Steers to the fisticuff program, also.

Bobby Burns is taking personal interest in Dukey Trammel and Frankie Fink, but Burns is not managing the two as was stated Wednesday morning. "It's all I can do to manage myself," chirps Bobby.

WILDCAT SQUARES OFF WITH MORAN WINNER-TAKE-ALL BASIS

Dallas And Wichita Falls Baseball Teams To Be Guests of Legion At Program

Members of both the Dallas and Wichita Falls ball clubs, who will wind up the present series at Spudder park this afternoon, will be guests of the American Legion this evening at the weekly fisticuffs program, said Promotor Don Wofford Wednesday.

The bouts will be held in the Legion open air arena, Tenth and Ohio, and the curtain raiser is scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock.

The card tonight rates on paper as an enticing one with Frankie Fink and Nick Gundy leading the bill, and Duke Trammel and Euell Paul finishing the second feature tilt of what is listed as a double wind-up bill.

THE CARD

Frankie Fink, Fort Worth, versus Nick Gundy, Oklahoma City. Featherweights, ten rounds.

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, versus Euell Paul. Welterweights, ten rounds.

Wildcat Monte, Amarillo, versus Mickey Moran, Devol. Featherweights, eight rounds.

Soldier Fuqua, Fort Worth, versus Joe Burnam, Los Angeles. Heavyweights, ten rounds.

All battlers lined up for this card were in town Wednesday with the exception of Fuqua, who is expected to arrive this morning from Cowtown.

Each boxer is in toptop condition, and but a few brushed off their training by taking light workouts yesterday.

Announcement has been made that Bobby Burns, veteran featherweight who is well known all over the country, will officiate.

In the Fink-Gundy bout fandom will witness two midgets who are rated the very best in their weight of the entire southwest. Both are fast, and each packs a punch.

The Trammel-Paul setto is doped to finish before the full route has been covered with Duke possibly kayoing Paul. Paul, a rather frail youth, is a clever boxer, but not much of a slugger.

Moran challenged Monte recently for a winner-take-all scrap and was immediately taken up. These two boys will probably put up a slambang fight.

Tribe Obtains Biggest Man in Baseballdom

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 6.—George Buckeye, Chicago semi-pro southpaw pitcher, has joined the Cleveland Indians. He probably is the biggest man in major league base ball, weighing about 233 pounds and standing six feet three inches.

Bruce Barely Escapes Clutches Of Game Warden

H. J. Bruce, lawyer, remembers the following fish story from the experiences of a recent vacation in Colorado. It was told at yesterday's Lions' club luncheon for the edification of that club.

"The sun was just rising and I had been trying for a big one. A little fellow, not over a pound and a half caused me some trouble but I finally got him back in the water after hooking him. No sooner had he reached the depths when a larger fish looking to weigh about six pounds came from behind a rock and swallowed him. Then the larger fish took after my line and I started pulling him in. I hadn't got him to the boat when one of the largest trout I have ever seen struck at my catch and swallowed the fish—fishes—bodily. I pulled them in and weighed them, the scales showing the three fish to weigh together eighteen pounds.

"I was congratulating myself on my splendid catch when the game warden stepped up and told me that since the state laws of Colorado would only permit a catch of ten pounds in one day I must either throw back the fish or go to jail. I threw them back just as any real sportsman would have done.

"A picture? My camera wasn't with me at the time."

Mail bags are now picked up by airplanes in full flight by means of a hook which seizes a rope to which the bags are attached.

Billy Whiskers

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY.

The two cats had hidden themselves in the tree to escape being dressed up in dolls' clothes.

After looking for the cats everywhere, the girls came back to the front of the house and sat down by the empty doll carriage, scolding and telling each other what they would do when they laid hands on those two cats again. Presently one of the little girls threw herself back on the grass, her head on her hands, too angry to talk any more. Lo and behold! What did she see but those two cats she had been talking about sitting quietly side by side on a limb over her head looking down on her. Yes, and from the expression on their faces she knew they were laughing at her!

"Nellie, Nellie, look up in the tree over your head and see what you will see!"

"Oh, you naughty, miserable cats! Come right straight down out of that tree this minute!"

"Oh, yes, we will be right down when we get good and ready," meowed Button.

"We are very comfortable up here, so you two better play with your dolls, as we igtend to spend the rest of the day up here," meowed Bella.

"You miserable cats, you! If I had hold of you, I'd pull your tails, so I would!" called Nellie.

"Better wait until you DO get hold of us before you tell what you will do to us," meowed back Button.

"Let us throw geeen apples up at them and make them come down," suggested Kittie.

"All right. Let's do!"

"They make me laugh," said Button. "Neither one of them could hit the side of a barn even if they aimed at it. To try to hit us up here is perfectly ridiculous.

"I bet they hit themselves," meowed Bella. "Here they come with their aprons full of apples."

The girls began to throw the apples up in the tree but they could not even throw high enough to hit the limb on which the cats sat. And presently an apple came down and hit Kittie on the head.

"There! Didin't I tell you they would hit themselves?" said Bella.

Just then Nellie let out a cry and the cats laughed so they nearly fell off the limb, for Kittie in her endeavor to throw high enough had whirled half way around, and as she turned the apple flew out of her hand before she was ready and it hit Nellie squarely in the back.

"Let's not try to hit them any more," proposed Nellie wisely.

(But tomorrow they think up a new way to get the cats down).

Originator of Souvenir Postal Card Celebrates

By The Associated Press.

GOTTINGEN, Germany, Aug.—Heinrich Lange, who has just celebrated his 50th anniversary as proprietor of a stationery and art store in this city, has achieved more than local fame by the fact that he was the first German to bring out a view postal card.

Shortly after taking over the business, Lange had the designs for the first series of souvenir cards drawn by a Gottingen architect, Hildebrand.

Since then the sending of souvenir postal cards has become so popular in Germany that it is a common practice for the German tourist to order post cards at the same time that he orders his beer and his meal. Some inveterate post card senders can even be observed dashing out of the train at every station and hurriedly writing and mailing a view of the town through which they happen to pass.

Viennese Women Adopt Colored Handkerchiefs

By The Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug.—Women's linen handkerchiefs, in colors and fancy designs, are the vogue here just now. One of the most popular colors for handkerchief borders is apple green. Myrtle blue, also, is quite the rage, and many azalia pink borders are seen in the streets and the fashionable cafes. These are all hem-stitched, of course.

All white handkerchiefs to be smart, say the modistes, must show a medallion of Brussels lace, bearing the initial or a quaint pattern remindful of the days of long ago. And then there are powder puffs to match—they are hidden within the folds of the handkerchief itself.

Polluted Waters Kill Fish.

By The Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Aug.—Fish are dying by millions in Danish inland waters due, it is explained, to the unusually long and severe winter, which made the waters stale and rotten. Industrial establishments dump much of their refuse into the waters, but ordinarily this does not harm the fish as the obnoxious gases escape.

Last winter the lakes and canals were frozen for five months and the gases could not escape until the ice melted.

Alaska Has Air Service.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug.—This is the latest Alaskan city to establish an aerial landing field. A smooth, level one has been provided, six blocks from the business section. A commercial aviation company is carrying on a regular passenger service to mining districts.

The Tower Bridge in London costs $165,000 a year to keep in repair.

Color Cut-Out

"Too-hoo, Billy Cut-out!" shouted Roger, early in the morning. Billy stuck his head out and there stood his friend carrying a big fishing pole over his shoulder and holding a landing net and a can of worms.

"Whee!" exclaimed Billy. "I'll be down in a minute."

"We're going down to the creek," called Roger, "and fish and try to think up some plan for getting that poor little girl out of that old cottage. We're the only friends she has."

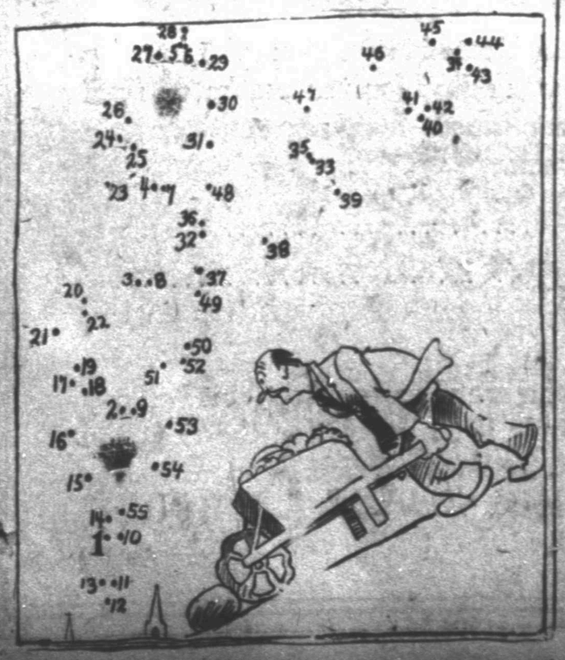

But Billy had pulled his head in. A few moments later he came down the steps two at a time and away they went to the creek.

Color the fish a gray green, the net handle tan and the fishing pole yellow. Mount them on cardboard and cut them out. You can put a string through the end of the fishing rod and through the hole right back of the fish's mouth.

South Archer Co. Ragle Pool Gets 1,000-ft. Southwest Extension

COMPLETE BOTH RAGLE TESTS

Hill and Hayes No. 4, Looks Like Best Well Of Three

More than a thousand-foot extension was added to the Ragle pool of Knight and Hines an the Panhandle Refining company yesterday afternoon when No. 4 Hill and Hayes, Panhandle Refining company, Knight and Hines was completed for a producer of estimated more than 100 barrels a day capacity. Sand depths were not obtainable last night but the sand in this test is known to have been encountered at a much less depth than in the discovery well, the Ragle No. 2, depth there being about 1,079 feet.

Following the completion of the No. 4, the No. 3, west offset to the discovery well was also drilled in. Sand that was encountered at exactly the same depth as in the No. 2 to the east was more broken in this than in that and it is not believed the well will make as good a producer as its neighbor.

The discovery well is given as still making about 50 barrels a day on the beam.

The discovery well, No. 2 Ragle (Knight-Hines, Panhandle) is located on the west line of the R. Newman survey, abstract 330. The No. 3 Ragle is loated 200 feet west in the J. Hopkins survey, abstract 174, and the No. 4, (Hill and Hayes, Knight and Hines Panhandle) more than a thousand feet to the south and west in the southeast corner of the Hill and Hayes lease.

SANTA RITA 1, NOW A PRODUCER

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—Big Lake Oil company's No. 1 Santa Rita well in Reagan county, the first of eleven to be drilled by the Big Lake Oil company, has been worked over and was Tuesday brought in as a producer, according to a telegram to Land Commissioner J. T. Robison from Frank T. Pickrell of the company. No. 2 well was the first producer brought in. The original well was drilled deeper, and Tuesday when it was one foot into new sand, oil blew out over the top of the derrick. The well was closed down until earthern storage tanks could be provided.

GRACE JENNINGS WELL PLACED ON PUMP, 100 BBLS.

The United Prodnction company has completed and placed on the pump yesterday their No. 5, Grace Jennings, for a probable production of 100 barrels daily from the sand at 1,802-14 feet. This is the sixth well of the company on this lease. It is stated that no more drilling will be done for some time.

The well is located just outside of Electra on the southwest corner of the north 20 acres of the west 40 of the east 60 of the northeast quarter of section 12, HT&BRR survey, Grace Jennings land.

MAGNOLIA WILL DRILL THEIR NO. 3 SOUTH ELECTRA

The Magnolia Petroleum company is rigging up with cable tools for their No. 3 W. T. Waggoner, 400 feet east of the No. 1. The test will be located 330 feet east and 330 feet north from the southwest corner of the southwest 20 acres of the southwest 40 of the northwest quarter of section 3, directly south of Electra.

THREE-DAY TEST FOR CRANFILL BAYLOR CO. WELL

Cranfill Brothers and Penn will place their No. 2, Mills, east Baylor county, southwest of Megargel, on the pump, pulling it with a Star, today for a three day test, to determine possible production. This well has been shut down because of inability to obtain water for pumping.

ROSA ET AL PAST 1,410, MONTAGUE

Ed Rosa and associates are drilling past 1,410 feet on the old Summerour test near Sunset, southwest Montague county, after passing through a foot of gas sand with a strong flow of gas, the third to be found so far in this test.

This well was taken over by Rosa and associates after it had been drilled to about 1100 feet by Summerour and abandoned.

ALFORD ET AL. PAST 889 FEET

Alford and others are drilling past 889 feet after being shut down temporarily with engine trouble on their test on the J. L. Anderson land, lot 33, Clark and Plumb subdivision, block 4, south and east of the old Ladd and Hanon-Mabistead and Mook well, in block 90. It is expected to reach the sand discovered in that well sometime today.

MID-KANSAS SPUDS TEST, SO. ELECTRA

The Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company has spudded a test in the northeast corner of the northwest 40 acres of the southwest quarter of section 28, HATCHR, block 5, Wichita county, W. T. Waggoner land, just south of Electra. The test will be drilled by Hedrick.

VERNON HOME FOR TEXAS CO. MAN

VERNON, Aug. 6.—W. B. Scott, district representative of the Texas company in the territory between Wichita, Clay county, and Childress county, has elected to make his home in Vernon and will work the territory out of Wichita Falls.

Bridwell-Heydrick Offsetting New Wilbarger Co. Well To East, Dill No. 1

Underwood Teapot Dome Tests Near 2,000-Ft. Sand

Bridwell and Heydrick are building a derrick and expect to spud in soon on a test offsetting to the east the Wells-Guiberson well on the Wharton land, south of Vernon, Wilbarger county.

This test will be located on the Dill land in the southwest corner of section 84, directly between the G. M. Church gas well and the Wells-Guiberson oil well, offsetting the latter. Bridwell and Heydrick have a 20-acre lease here in the corner of this section, offsetting to the west the Church 20 acres.

This is the first new location to be made in the locality of the new Wells-Guiberson well. It is understood that it is the first of several tests to be drilled on this lease by these parties.

Other Wilbarger Tests.

A gasoline engine is being installed on the Wells-Guiberson well for pumping. In the meantime other tests drilling around the new well within a radius of three-quarters of a mile have reached interesting depths and should be in a position to show something of the extent of the new field within a day or so. The Teapot Dome test in the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 100 is drilling past 1,950 feet and should pick up the 2,000-foot sand of the Wells-Guiberson well today, while to the north and east in the northeast quarter of section 84 Kemp and Birdsong drilling with a Star expect to reach the 1,250-foot gas sand of the Church well some time today. The Underwood Drilling company is drilling this well.

Castlebury No. 1.

Castlebury, Bowers No. 1, drilling with a Star just north of the Teapot Dome test, section 100, northeast half of the northwest quarter, is shut down with a fishing job, the fourth since its start. The South Vernon Oil company is attempting to clean out its No. 1 Richardson, there being about 30 feet of caving in the bottom of the hole at 1,240 feet.

GULF WATCHING TEXAS APPEAL

State Preparing to Take Anti-Trust Suit To Higher Court

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 6. — Attorneys of the Gulf Refining company conferred here Tuesday with the attorney general department, which is perfecting an appeal to the Austin court of civil appeals on the state's anti-trust suit against the company. The state recently lost its case in the trial court here, and was given time to prepare an appeal to the civil appeals court.

The state will also appeal its similar cases against the Texas company and the Producers Oil and Refining company, in all of which it alleged anti-trust violation through the use of contracts with retailers requiring exclusive sale of each company's products through filling station equipment leased or loaned by it. The state has already appealed to supreme court an anti-trust suit against the Humble Oil and Refining company, in which the trial court and civil appeals court sustained the company's contention that the majority ownership of its stock by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, a banished corporation, did not constitute operation in Texas by the Standard company.

TWO TESTING, MILLER LAND

Shipley and Everts Set Casing on Tests Block 19

Casing has been set and two tests a location apart, are making a thorough test of the 1,600-foot sand on the J. B. Miller land, block 19, ATNCL, Archer county.

Everts and others have finally set casing on a sand encountered more than a month ago at a depth, steel line measurement, given as 1,635 feet. Shipley et al to the north, 300 feet, is setting casing on the sand at the given depth of 1,628 feet. It was expected to hail the Everts et al well yesterday afternoon or last night, and the Shipley well some time today.

Should either of these wells be completed for a producer it would be the means of opening up a large northwest extension producing area. The Everts et al well is located in the south half of lot 2, block 19, and the Shipley test a location north.

Oil-Gas Journal Figures Show Output up 18,880

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 6.—Crude oil production in the United States during the week ending August 2 aggregated 2,030,811 barrels, an increase of 18,880 barrels over the week previous, according to the weekly summary of the Oil and Gas Journal, published here.

The increase touches a new production peak for this year, the Journal says.

The various Oklahoma fields yielded a total of 492,772 barrels as compared with 488,610 the previous week. Northern Louisiana fields increased their output from 56,290 to 56,645; Arkansas fields from 147,085 to 148,570; east central Texas from 127,581 to 131,556; Kansas from 81,865 to 83,750. The whole midcontinent field shows an increase from 1,024,940 to 1,035,708. California fields showed an increase of 3,000, the last week's total being 123,400 and 122,615.

COOLIDGE BUSY DESPITE HEAT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. — The hotest weather of the summer had little effect on President Coolidge today as he went through another busy day of conferences on government and political affairs.

Enthusiastic reports on republican party prospects were conveyed to him again during the day in conferences with Porter J. McCumber, former senator from North Dakota, and James M. Good of Chicago, and a former representative from Iowa.

CHARGE ILLEGAL OIL COMBINE IN FLORIDA

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—An order aimed at an alleged combination in Tampa, Florida, described as intended to maintain the margin of retail profit on gasoline, was issued against the Standard Oil company of Indiana, the Gulf Refining company, and the Texas company today by the Federal Trade commission. The order also names the Tampa retail gasoline dealers association.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6.—The cotton market was very erratic today and prices fluctuated over a wide range and without definite trend, being controlled entirely by weather advices. In the early trading prices advanced on short cover and fair speculative and trade buying until values reached a level more than two dollars and a half above the previous close. October traded up to 27.92 during the first hour and December reached 27.88, or 52 to 54 points above yesterday's close. October later declined to 27.08 and December also 27.08, or 80 to 89 points down from the highs. There was quite a sharp rally in the last moments of trading on covering and the close showed net loss for the day of only 4 to 11 points.

A forecast for showers and cooler weather in the more northerly portions of the western belt and a rather more favorable weekly weather report than looked for, started a rather rapid decline, and although there was quite a sharp temporary rally around noon, the market turned weak in the afternoon on reports of quite general showers in Oklahoma.

The temperature record showed 22 stations in Texas with maximum temperatures of 100 to 106 degrees and 20 stations in Oklahoma with 100 to 105.

MONEY At Work

Brief but important lesson in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

Can the corporation report of a corporation be safely used as a basis for making investments?

In many cases corporation reports can be taken as pretty good indicators as to the condition of a corporation, but this is very often untrue. Take for example a portion of a report which was distinctly misleading—the report of a certain manufacturing company for 1922.

For the quarter ending March 31st 1922, the company reported a surplus, after preferred dividends, of $126,000; the second quarter showed a surplus of $438,368; the third quarter showed a surplus of $950,000. This would make the expected surplus for the year amount to $1,250,000. The actual surplus, after preferred dividends, was only $272,744! This is a typical example of a report which failed to report accurately. Persons who bought the stock of this company for investment suffered a rude shock which might have been saved if the corporation report had been more accurate or if the investors had consulted a good banker.

Grain Letter

W. N. Graham today received the following telegraphic communication from Clement Curtis:

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 6.—Market opened weak under influence of hedging pressure and lower cables. Liverpool opening 2 1-4 to 3Dc lower and closing 2 3-4 lower.

Good buying developed later advancing prices 2 to 3 cents from the low. The advance was led by Winnipeg which advanced 2 to 3 cents influenced by more evidence of rust in Manitoba.

Reports of widespread damage in Minnesota and Dakota from hail gave an impetus to the advance. Rains are interfering with threshing in the winter wheat belt. Primary receipts fell off some but exceeded a year ago. Demand for flour was reported good. Millers should have a good trade this year. Increased buying of wheat for export was reported. Argentine reports continued dry weather.

The market sold off toward the close but on the whole acts strong and sentiment prevails that although there may be some setbacks higher prices will be seen.

Corn—Sentiment is mixed but the market gained moderately after a weak opening caused by scattered liquidation and later declined especially in December and May.

Weather is generally favorable for the progress of the crop but reports as to condition vary from poor to good. Cash corn and September delivery showed more strength than deferred deliveries.

Oats—The market was relatively stronger than corn, the spread between the two grains was slightly narrowed. Cash oats are in light supply and firm heavy rains caused much lodging of the standing grain.

PROFIT TAKING CHECKS STOCKS

Oils Hold Strength Despite Favorable Production Figures

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Profit taking sales again interrupted the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, which closed irregularly lower. Many operators on the long side showed a disposition to suspend operations until the realizing sales had run their course, which probably accounted for the total sales falling below the million share mark for the first time in three weeks.

Favorable news developments were again disregarded. These included cables dispatches indicating a conciliatory attitude on the part of the German delegates at the London reparations conference and publication of the weekly trade reviews reporting future signs of improvement in the industry.

Despite the prevalence of reactionary tendencies, more than a dozen issues advanced to new high prices for the year.

Standard industrials held relatively firm, net losses in U. S. Steel common, American Can, and Baldwin being held to small fractions. Du Pont, American Woolen, Republic Steel, Cuyamel Fruit, Famous Players, International Paper, Magma Paper and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe dropped 1 to 2 points.

Rails developed several independent strong spots. Pittsburgh and West Virginia common and preferred, Lackawanna, and Delaware and Hudson all broke through their previous high prices of the year, the net gains ranging from 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Persistent rumors of unfavorable dividend action caused a further break of nearly five points in Atlantic Refining. Others held relatively steady in spite of favorable production statistics covering last week.

GRAIN FALLS AFTER ADVANCE

Heavy Offerings Flood Market and Small Collapse Results

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Wheat prices underwent something of a collapse at the close today after an advance due largely to assertions that purchases for shipment to Europe had been made on a big scale. Heavy offerings which suddenly developed found the market without adequate support. Wheat closing quotations were weak, 3-4 to 1 3-8 cents net lower, September 1.27 1-8 to 1.27 1-4 and December 1.31@3-8. Corn finished unchanged to 11 1-4 cents lower, oats varying from 1-8 cents off to 1-4 cent gain and provisions at 5 cents to 7 cents decline.

Corn and oats were chiefly swayed by the action of wheat. Favorable crop reports as to corn received only secondary consideration and the same was true in regards to rains delaying the oats harvest.

Provisions eased down with grain and hogs.

CAR AND FIRE TRUCK COLLIDE

Bert Bean Machine And Central Station Cart Wrecked in Crash

The chemical truck of the city fire department and a coupe driven by Mrs. B. J. Bean were badly damaged at noon Wednesday when the fire truck crashed into the other machine as the latter turned directly into its path. Neither car was overturned, but in smashing into the curbing at the side of the street, both were damaged so badly that extensive repairs will be necessary.

Happens On Tenth.

The accident happened in the 1300 block Tenth street in front of the Bean home, and was due, according to reports of the fire and police departments, to the turning of the Bean car in the middle of the block. The fire truck was responding to an alarm in the 16000 block Tenth street and was running out that thoroughfare with its siren screeching full tilt. One fire truck had already passed the Bean car, according to officers.

Goes to Curb.

As the Bean machine approached the 1500 block, it slowed down and turned to the left curbing. Believing that it was stopping to allow the truck to pass, Herschel Jobe, fireman at the wheel, turned out to the left to pass it. Without warning, however, the Bean car turned squarely to the left in the middle of the block and attempted to run into the driveway of the house, which is on the south side of the street. Jobe swerved his truck to the left but was unable to avoid hitting the coupe and both cars crashed into the curbing together.

Frame Is Bent.

The fire truck suffered a bent frame, bent axle, badly demolished right fenders and a shattering of all the exposed wooden parts of the truck. The Bean machine lost a wheel and some fenders.

Bert Bean was in the car with his wife at the time of the crash. Mrs. Bean was hooked at the police station on charges of interfering with the fire department and will be given a hearing before Judge Whitelaw Thursday morning.

May Go On Rock Pile.

"I will bring in some of these people one of these days and give them an opportunity to appeal to the supreme court. They ought to get thirty days on the rock pile at Bridewell." The judge's remarks were occasioned by an address by E. F. "It is breeding anarchy," said the judge, "to hang a man without giving him a hearing."

PIMPLES AND BUMPS TAKE THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

Girls and boys, too, whose faces are "broken out," rough, pumply and blotched, imagine all sorts of weird things.

The worst fault it leads to is using just anything which promises them relief from their condition, which often makes their trouble worse. Never put anything on your skin which has not been proven by the test of time and public opinion to be right. In this connection the phenomenal success, which is called Black and White Ointment, and the soap, too, offers sufferers from such skin diseases the one reliable and dependable means of relief and restoration of their skin to that clear, smooth and lovely condition it was in their youth.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are economically priced, in liberal size packages. The 50c size of the ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.
