Flying Texas Cowboy Forced To Leap From Plane On Transpacific Takeoff

BROWNE TAKES TO CHUTE AS PLANE CRASHES

Weight on Fueling Hose Hits Stabilizer And Ship Falls

SHOULDER HURT

Jinx Again Prevents Trip Across Ocean for Ace Of World War

By ARTHUR HENDERSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEATTLE, May 30.—Nat C. Browne, hearty Texas cowpuncher, leaped to safety in a parachute today when his heavily loaded monoplane Lone Star crashed into Puget sound at the start of his second attempted non-stop flight across the Pacific in quest of $29,500 in prizes.

Frank Brooks, professional parachute jumper and stunt man who was in the Lone Star's cabin, likewise took to his parachute and together the airmen fell into the water. Both parachutes failed to open until the fliers were dangerously near the surface.

Dived Out of Control

Browne, victim of a series of jinxes, was attempting to refuel over the sound when a weighted hose from the refueling ship, piloted by Frank Whaley, struck the Lone Star's stabilizer.

The big crimson Fokker dived crazily, out of control. Browne desperately tried to right it. A wing collapsed. Then the ship seemed to fall to pieces.

Seeing all hope of saving the plane was gone, the two men jumped. A speeding motorboat picked them up and they were taken to Ballard General hospital for examination.

Dislocated Shoulder

Browne had a dislocated left shoulder. Brooks was uninjured. The latter had planned to descend in a parachute after refueling the Lone Star.

"Browne came too close under Whaley's refueler," Brooks explained. He laughed at the experience which cost Browne a coveted award and an expensive plane.

"The plane nose-dived about 700 feet from an altitude of 2,000 feet. When Nat tried to bring her out of it, she started breaking up.

Air Filled With Wreckage

"Boy, the air was filled with wings, struts, wheels. We weren't anxious to jump immediately in all that stuff.

"But when we got free in our parachutes it was fun to see who would land first. I beat him about 200 yards to the waters of Puget sound.

The Lone Star carried 650 gallons of gasoline when it rushed down the elevated ramp at Boeing field and climbed into the air. The heavy load, to which Browne planned to add 300 gallons for the 5,000-mile flight to Tokyo, aided in causing the craft to collapse.

Tried to Right Plane

Brooks was strapped in a back compartment. When the 50-pound weight which had been fastened to the refueling hose to steady it in the air struck the stabilizer, Brooks immediately cut the straps. But Browne, whose instinctive reaction to emergencies was developed when he punched cattle on the Texas plains and when he flew with the army air corps, was the first to jump.

The 36-year-old pilot tried to right the diving plane. When that failed he came to a standing position on

Breckenridge Murder Trial Continued Until Sept. 12

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, May 30. (AP)—District Judge C. O. Hamlin today sustained a motion to continue the murder trial of W. S. (Stony) Phillips. He reset the case for Sept. 12.

The absence of material witnesses was the ground on which the continuance was granted.

Phillips was charged with murder for the killing of E. L. Churchill at Fort Worth. The case was transferred to Breckenridge on a change of venue.

ROCKPORT, Mass., May 30. (AP)—John H. Selig, cement dealer, reported to police today that his wife, his seven children and his 1915 model truck were missing. But he was emphatic in stating that all he wanted returned were the 1932 license plates.

Four Cars Shatter De Paolo's Old Mark As Fred Frame Wins

By WARREN BROWN
Universal Service Writer

SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—The folks who take their automobile racing seriously, sort of allowed that the 20th annual version of the international 500-mile race would find Peter De Paolo's record average of 101.13 broken by some one.

They were reasonably certain of this. They were right, but they were guilty of uncommon conservatism.

Not only did one driver, and the car in which he rode break this record today. Four did it, and of these, the winner, Fred Frame, in a Miller-Hartz special, averaging 104.144 miles per hour, for the four-hour, 48 minutes and 3.79 seconds his 500-mile journey required, broke it almost as effectively as were smashed more than half of the 40 cars that started out so blithely, at 10 o'clock this morning in the bright Indiana sunshine, and in the presence of some 150,000 patrons of automotive speed and thrills.

Wilcox Second

Behind Frame, who had taken the lead at the 400-mile mark, to relinquish it no more, came, in order, Howard Wilcox, in a Lion Head Special, averaging 103.881 miles per hour; Cliff Bergere, in a Studebaker, averaging 102.662 miles per hour, and Bob Carey, in a Meyer Special, averaging 101.363 miles per hour.

In fifth place was Russell Snowberger, whose Hupp Comet did not quite manage to disturb that old record of De Paolo's. Snowberger averaged 100.286 miles per hour. In the light of what had preceded him across the finish line to get the checkered flag from the grizzled Gar Wood today, that wasn't so awfully fast. But the point was, Snowberger went the 500 miles. And that was something, indeed.

Many Entries Fail

Scattered along the route, so to speak, were cars of every description, cast out because of a variety of mishaps and ailments peculiar only to the dizzying dash around the two and one-half mile brick track of the speedway.

A record-breaking race, this, and one that was actually bewildering.

Nine times, in the course of the 500 miles, did the lead change.

First it was Lou Moore's, but his Boyle Valve Special that had qualified fastest of all, held the lead for a single lap. Then into the lead jumped Billy Arnold, blue-sweatered, and driving a Miller-Hartz Special. For upwards of 125 miles, Arnold held that lead and set the pace as it had never been set before on this speedway. And then, on his 58th whirl around the track, his car hit the north wall and Billy and his mechanic were carted to the hospital. Though this time Arnold's injuries were trivial by comparison with the smashup that sent him out of the lead and the race a year ago.

Carey Takes Lead

With Arnold out, Bob Carey, an Indiana lad who came up from the dirt tracks, took charge with his Meyer Special. He led until the 225-mile mark was passed.

Then it was Ernie Triplett in a Floating Powers Special who held sway for a time. A broken clutch put Triplett's car out of the race, and a Duesenberg, driven by Ira Hall, set the pace long enough to get a "call" as they say at another kind of race track.

At the 300-mile mark, and for nigh on to a hundred miles thereafter, the race developed into a two-

ENOUGH'S ENOUGH

Senator Favors Death For Next to Mention Balancing Budget

WASHINGTON, May 30. (US)—Capital punishment today was advocated by Senator Cutting, Republican of New Mexico, for any person who mentions the term "balance the budget." He said:

"There isn't one person in a thousand who knows what it means. The average citizen has been fed 'balance the budget' until he repeats it, automatically, like a parrot.

"I was dragged out of bed at 4 o'clock in the morning by a Pennsylvanian on the phone, who wanted to know how I stood on the tax bill section about 'balancing the budget.'

"I suggest capital punishment for the next person who mentions it."

BALLOONS SOAR AWAY IN RACE

Private Entry and Two Army Bags First Off

OMAHA, Neb., May 30. (AP)—The Chevrolet Motor company balloon piloted by Tracy Southworth with John E. Engle as aide, took off at 6:48 p. m., central standard time, tonight in the national balloon race starting from the Omaha Municipal airport. It was the first of the six balloons to start. The Chevrolet balloon, aided by a strong wind, from the southwest, soon faded from sight after being raised high by a gust of wind.

The army entry number one took off 29 minutes later. It is piloted by Capt. W. J. Flood with Lieut. Maynie McCormick as aide.

Next to get away was the army No. 2 entry with Lieut. W. J. Paul in command and Lieut. J. H. Bishop as aide. They were off at 7:45 p. m., and were forced to drop sand bag ballast in order to clear a row of trees. Their course was slightly northwest on the trail of the two balloons that preceded them.

The Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce balloon was away at 8:10 and was followed by the Goodyear VII at 8:25. Thorvald Larsen was piloting the Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce balloon with his brother, Harold, as aide. It also barely cleared the trees at the end of the field.

Roland Blair, in the Goodyear balloon, had better luck and rose quickly into the air. Frank Trotter is his aide. The two balloons followed the same northwesterly course their predecessors had taken.

The City of Omaha, sixth and last of the entries, took off at 8:45 p. m., the start was good and the balloon, piloted by E. J. Hill, Detroit, was quickly out of sight. Its course was Northwest.

SAN ANGELO, Texas, May 30. (UP)—W. R. Bissett, Crockett county ranchman, was in a hospital here today with painful injuries sustained when a horse dragged him for a mile. His life was saved when Leroy Taylor lassoed the frightened animal.

Nearly all the skin was scraped from Bissett's body but no bones were broken and he is expected to recover. He was removing kinks from a rope when his horse became frightened and ran.

The rope tightened about Bissett's legs and hurled him to the ground. He was unable to release himself.

DETROIT, May 30. (US)—Women are psychologically unfit to be magicians, because they hate to be fooled, says Nate Liepzic, one of 200 delegates to the fourth annual convention of the Society of American Magicians, in session here.

The magicians halted their sleight-of-hand today to cast ballots for new officers and to select a site for the next convention. Pittsburgh was favored for next year's meeting place.

"But how can you be sure the election will be strictly on the up and up?" some one asked W. C. Dornfield, of Chicago, after seeing a man pulled out of a ballot box. Dornfield replied:

"Oh, we don't do tricks at our closed meetings. That's the only chance we get to sit down and act like humans."

And so saying he pulled a string of link sausages out of the ear of one of the delegates.

HOOVER CALLS SENATE DEMOS TO TALK TAXES

Sales Tax Doomed by 55 Names on Petition Of Opposition

TO HIKE INCOME LEVY

Connally's Plan Comes Up For Vote at 10 o'Clock This Morning

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP)—President Hoover summoned senate Democratic finance and economy committee members to the White House tonight to disclose new estimates calling for an additional $200,000,000 in taxes.

A move for a supplemental revenue measure providing possibly for a general sales tax in addition to the pending billion dollar bill about to go through the senate is contemplated.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, after a late day White House conference which also included Secretary Mills and Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, informed the senate of the revised estimates.

Sales Tax Disfavored

His declaration was given to the senate just as a petition was laid down pledging 55 members—a substantial majority—in opposition to the sales tax.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, the Democratic tax leader, in presenting the petition, told the senate sales tax advocates that a "fight is futile."

He then moved to make up the $50,000,000 needed in the pending revenue measure to meet the budget estimates originally presented by Secretary Mills by restoration of higher income rates.

Vote Today on Income Tax

The income tax schedule of Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, providing normal income rates of four per cent on the first $4,000 and eight per cent on income over $4,000 with a maximum surtax of 55 per cent will be voted upon tomorrow.

It is expected to yield $90,000,000 additional revenue and bring the total of the bill to $1,050,000,000. Adoption was predicted.

Senator Reed issued a warning of runs on American gold with a possible gold embargo and forcing of the United States off the gold standard. This brought sharp retorts.

Reed Assailed

Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, said "the senator from Pennsylvania has made three speeches which, whether they were calculated to do so or not, have had the effect of doing all that is in the power of the senator from Pennsylvania to create both a foreign and domestic run on the American dollar.

"I say it is nothing short of striking a blow in this critical situation for the administration and the senator from Pennsylvania to arise and make a speech of the character which he has made this afternoon."

But for advocates of the sales tax, La Follette said, the senate could have completed its tax bill task tonight.

Earlier Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, referring to Reed's remarks about withdrawals of gold asked "who are these financiers of the United States who are sending out the gold of this country in large sums of money."

"What of their patriotism?" he inquired.

Lewis said if Reed referred to ear-marked gold, that does not belong to the United States anyway and the news of its withdrawal should not be used in a way that would "create the terror that brings on panic."

If it is American gold, he said, he wanted to know the names of the gold exporters.

Dick Gleason, pilot of the ship, whose plane fell in flames after its engine dropped from it, was rescued.

'Bonus Expeditionary Force' Told To Move on When Food Fund Runs Out

WASHINGTON, May 30. (US)—Ultimatum to leave town within 48 hours after the money raised to feed them is gone was served today on 1,500 war veterans who came here to demand immediate payment of the bonus.

As soon as this edict had been issued by Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of police, the veterans replied with a defy through Walter W. Walters, head of the Oregon delegation, who said:

"We will stay right here until the veterans bill is passed. We will remain until 1945 if it is necessary."

More than that, the fact that the bonus army has found quarters here in warehouses and other places has encouraged them to send for reinforcements and word went out over the country today urging other unemployed veterans to hurry to the capital and join the bonus movement.

Seeing a conflict impending, Senator Costigan, Democrat of Colorado, today introduced a bill authorizing the appropriation of $675,000 for the care of the unemployed in the District of Columbia. He proposed to set aside $75,000 of this amount for the immediate care of the homeless who are here.

The veterans expect a general response to their call for reinforcements. Harold D. Foulkrod, one of

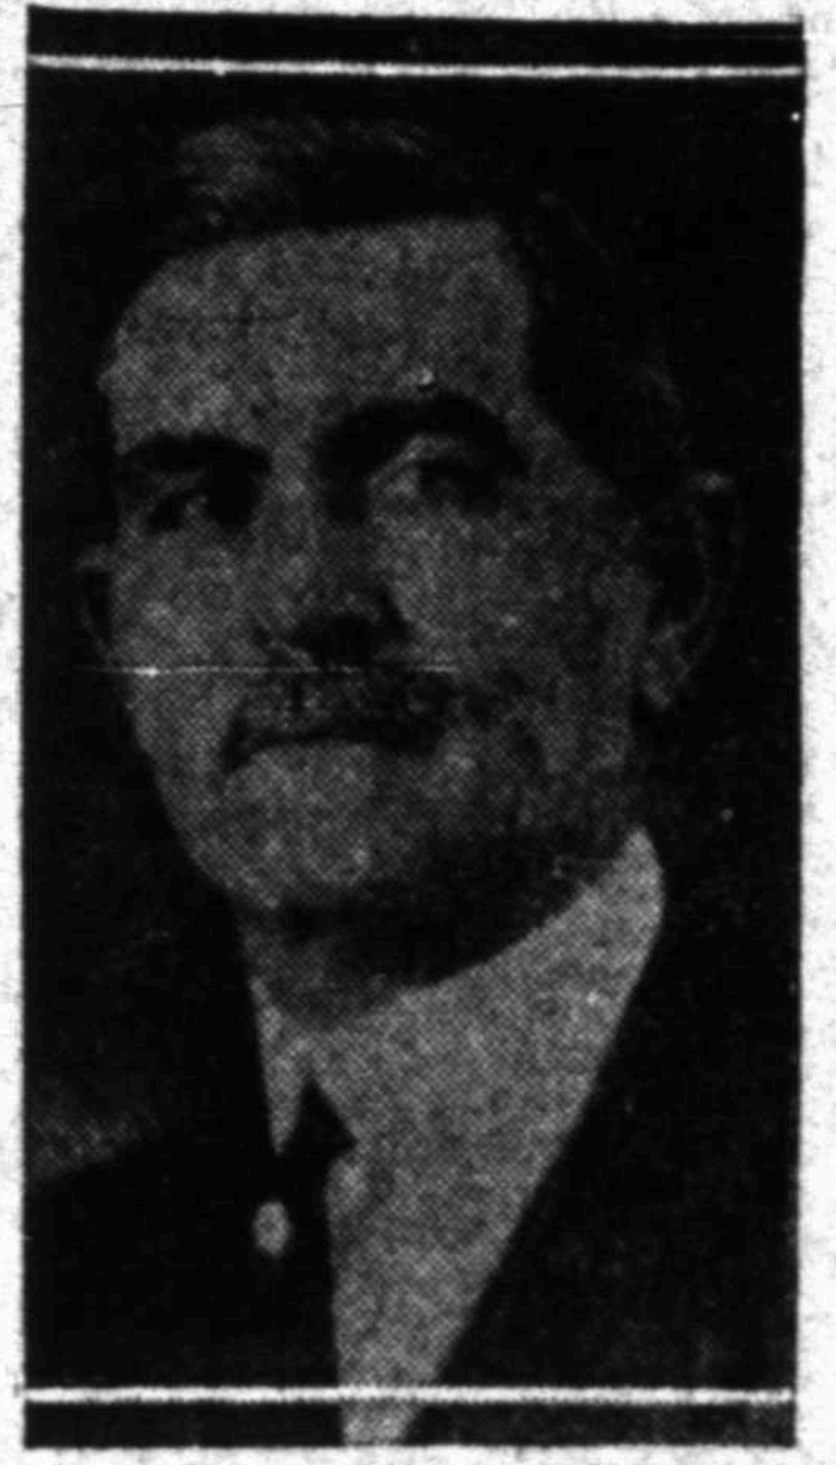
Speaks Here



Lee Satterwhite, candidate for state railroad commissioner, in an address here Monday night charged C. V. Terrell, chairman of the commission, with "extravagance and procrastination in public office." He criticised the commission for the slowness with which it is considering the case involving Wichita Falls' effort to secure lower gas rates.

SATTERWHITE RAPS TERRELL

Delay and Extravagance In Gas Cases Charged

Laying down a barrage of withering criticism of the state railroad commission, Lee Satterwhite of Odessa, charged that administrators of that branch of Texas government were guilty of rankest extravagance and procrastination in public office.

Mr. Satterwhite, a candidate for state railroad commissioner, made his attack in an address made at the Kemp hotel here Monday night before a group of representative Wichitans, among whom was Tom F. Hunter, Wichita Falls candidate for governor.

"Shooting at" Terrell

"It's C. V. Terrell I'm shooting at," Mr. Satterwhite declared. "If I can't prove what I've said by his own record I'm not entitled to a single vote. If any one can disprove my statement I will withdraw from the race without another word."

The speaker said that in seeking the office of railroad commissioner he was bucking a political machine, well organized and well oiled.

"Why," he said, "the commission has its employes all over the state

Border Merchant Battles Brigands

PRESIDIO, Texas, May 30. (AP)—Belief was expressed here today that an organized bandit band from Mexico was responsible for three raids in this border section within the last six months.

The last attempted robbery occurred late Saturday night at one of F. Seggerman's stores at Redford, 20 miles east of Presidio. Seven Mexicans, with high-powered rifles and revolvers, formed the raiding party.

A. B. Ramirez, in charge of the store, was fired on when he refused to open the doors. That started a gun fight which lasted for three-quarters of an hour and in which more than 70 shots were exchanged between the bandits and the storekeeper, his wife and 14-year-old son. The bandits finally retreated.

Federal Kidnaping Bill Gets Favorable Report

WASHINGTON, May 30. (INS)—An agreement to report favorably on the Patterson bill making the kidnaping of persons across state borders a federal crime was reached today by the senate judiciary committee.

The provision for the death penalty as a punishment for kidnaping was stricken out.

Senator Patterson, Republican of Missouri, offered the bill following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

ACCUSED MEN IDENTIFIED BY GIRL CASHIER

Suspects, Heavily Armed, Surrender to Sheriff And Deputies

COMPLAINTS FILED

Third Man Also Accused In Robbery of Kemp Kort Drug Store

Rounded up about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in a house at 708 Adams street, three men believed to be responsible for a series of hijackings and bank robberies in this section recently were captured by Sheriff Perry Browning and Deputies Pat Allen and Ben Howie.

Two of the men already have been identified as those who held up the Kemp Kort drug store and four customers Saturday night, while Miss Mary Frazier, assistant cashier of the Continental State bank at Petrolia, identified the same pair as the bandits who robbed that institution of about $1,000 and held her captive for more than three hours on May 18.

Arsenal Seized

One of the men arrested was Johnnie O. Russell of Wichita Falls. The other two said their names were Travis Williams and Fred Smith. They are believed to be from Dallas. Neither is a resident of Wichita Falls, and officers declared the names given here probably were assumed.

Arresting officers also seized in the same house a small arsenal consisting of three six-shooters, a sawed-off shotgun, and a 30-30 rifle from which the stock apparently had been partially removed by gun fire, and a large sack filled with ammunition for the various guns.

Smith and Russell were identified by Miss Frazier as the Petrolia bank bandits when she was brought to the Wichita county jail late Monday afternoon by City Detectives O. A. Roberson and Luke Hart. She was positive in her identification of Russell as the "larger man of the two," and stated that she had only to hear Smith talk to make positive her identification of him as the second robber by whom she was kidnaped.

The same pair, Smith and Russell, according to the arresting officers, were identified as the men who hijacked four customers at the Kemp Kort drug store Saturday night, and robbed the cash drawer while Orville Medford, clerk, was in charge of the store. A watch and two purses taken from the quartet of customers at that time were found in the house where the men were captured, it was said.

Anglin Files Complaints

Complaints charging robbery with firearms were filed against each of the trio, Assistant District Attorney Mike Anglin taking the complaints after prolonged questioning of the prisoners and witnesses. Williams also was charged with participation in the Kemp Kort drug store robbery, according to officers.

Arrest of the heavily armed trio took place in a setting which bore unusual promise of a serious gun battle. The nickel plated Packard coupe in which the men had been reported from Windthorst as traveling toward this city was spotted at the Adams street address by Deputy Ben Howie. Twenty minutes later Sheriff Browning and Deputy Allen, returned from a search for the fugitives on the Windthorst road, joined Howie in the raid upon the house. The Packard car, reported as stolen, was still there.

With drawn gun, Sheriff Brown-

BANDITS ROB TAXI DRIVER OF MACHINE

Two men hijacked Frank Smith, driver for the Yellow Cab company, at 8:30 o'clock Monday night, taking a rent taxi and forcing Smith to leave the machine about 14 miles northwest of Wichita Falls.

The men called for the taxi at Ninth and Van Buren and were taken to 705 Lamar, where they both drew guns, ordering Smith to move over while one of the bandits took the wheel. Smith's driver's cap was taken by the man at the wheel, before he was forced to get out and walk near the home of Gale Lorrance, northeast of Iowa Park.

BORAH—HOOVER PARLEY ALTERS PROHI OUTLOOK

President Expected to Drop Compromise Plan For G.O.P. Platform

WASHINGTON, May 30. (US)—President Hoover today revised his effort to seek a compromise plank on prohibition, at an extended White House breakfast conference with Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. After the conference, Borah said:

"We talked over the economic situation, balancing the budget, the sales tax, prohibition, and other matters."

Borah declined to say what angle of the prohibition situation was discussed. There were grounds for believing, however, that if the administration will stand for a dry plank, Borah will go to the Chicago convention to lead the fight.

Leaders Urge Evasion

President Hoover was understood to be considerably impressed by the receipt of word that former President Coolidge believes the party should avoid attacking prohibition.

The chief executive has been advised along the same line by Vice President Curtis, and Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Urging the chief executive to stand for some kind of resubmission or referendum plank are Postmaster General Walter Brown and many leading members of the Republican national committee.

If Mr. Hoover fails in his efforts to work out a compromise the belief now is he will take the advice of Coolidge, Borah, Curtis and Fess and propose a law enforcing plank for adoption by the Republican convention.

Visit Is Surprise

Borah, to whom the drys are looking for leadership, conferred yesterday with Mrs. Francis Peabody, one of those outstanding in the prohibition movement.

Borah's White House visit this morning came as a complete surprise.

They held a similar conference recently at which Borah definitely and finally declined to stand for a referendum or resubmission plank in the platform. He followed this up by announcing his intention to stay away from the convention.

The conference today put an entirely new complexion on the Republican prohibition outlook. Idaho has yet to select its delegates to the Chicago convention while the state leaders are urging Borah to attend and become a member of the convention platform committee.

Borah Has Plank

Borah has already drawn his own plank on prohibition which has been seen and approved by Col. Raymond Robins and Daniel A. Poling, head of the allied forces for prohibition.

In addition, other dry leaders are arriving in town for the meeting of the national prohibition board of strategy. They, too, are looking to Borah for guidance and leadership.

President Hoover is being urged by the foes of resubmission that no matter how far the Republican party will go in attacking the dry law, the Democrats will go further and corral all the opponents of Volsteadism. They fear likewise that a moist stand may alienate all the drys and many of the women voters who are expected to line up with the Republicans.

Fred Frame Wins Indianapolis Race

man, two-car duel between Wilbur Shaw and his Veedol Special, and Frame and his Miller-Hartz.

First Shaw led, then Frame displaced him.

Shaw Forced Out

Then Shaw was back, and, in a day of spectacular doings, from start to finish, Shaw's car went out of the race in a manner that was drab, indeed. He pulled into the pits for a final load of gas, oil and water, prepared to fight it out with Frame to the finish.

The idea was great. But when he tried to start the car out of the pits, the blame thing wouldn't function. Precious minutes were wasted before it did get running again, and then it seemed, the curse was on it, for not more than a lap or two later, a broken rear axle took it out of the race entirely.

From that point to the finish, Frame held the lead, though right behind him was Wilcox, bearing same given name, Howard, and same nickname, "Howdy" as that former great driver, now passed on.

Frame Holds Lead

But there was no catching Frame, in that last hundred miles. He was the party of the second part in the pre-race calculations of the Miller-Hartz team, though last year he took second place. Arnold, the spectacular figure, drew the plaudits of the multitude. But, at the finish, they paid off on Frame.

Something less than 46 seconds separated Frame and Wilcox at the finish, which isn't much, spread over a distance of 500 miles, come to think of it.

Murray's Doorman Weeps All Night In Jail After Water Wagon Run-In

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 30. (UP)—"The water wagon will get you if you don't watch out!"

This was the solemn warning today from jovial R. D. McManus, 265-pound doorman and chief clerk to Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray.

McManus spent last night in the city jail after a "run in" with a city water wagon. He was charged with drunkenness and reckless driving and released today on $40 bond for his appearance tomorrow in police court.

His eyes red from weeping, the executive secretary accused the driver of a city sprinkler truck of "deliberately running me down."

"I was out to Tom Apostle's last night and several of us went to the baseball game," McManus related.

"Tom is a water wagon driver, too.

"On the way home I stopped for a bite to eat and started out again when the water wagon deliberately ran me down and hit me."

The executive secretary stayed in jail all night, refusing to call his chief.

"I'll tell him all about it when I see him," McManus said. "Why, it's got so I don't even come downtown any more except to slip in to get a shave. And now they put a man in jail for being sideswiped. This was just a frame up."

Jailer Sam Weeks and Trusty Carl Thrasher breathed a sigh of relief when a friend posted bond for McManus and the rotund secretary walked from the jail, not stopping to claim his tiepin and checkbook.

"He didn't sleep a wink last night and neither did we," Thrasher said. "He cried most of the time and when he wasn't crying, he was shouting he wanted to get out."

TWO HELD AS BANK BANDITS

County Officers Seize Arsenal in Raid

ing approached the front door while Deputies Allen and Howie detoured to the rear entrance. Upon mounting the front porch, Sheriff Browning saw Williams and Russell inside the house, making for the rear door with guns in their hands. The sheriff entered at the front. Turning into a bedroom at his right, he covered Williams and Russell, who had crossed to the other side of the house and come to the front upon seeing the two officers at the back door. Joined immediately by Deputies Allen and Howle, the sheriff commanded three times that the suspects drop their guns before they complied.

An immediate search of the room discovered Smith, hiding in a closet toward the rear of the house. He, too, held a gun, but apparently had withheld fire because of two women who had entered the room and were between the officers and the closet.

Approach of the alleged bandits to this city was telephoned to the sheriff's office as a result of a holdup staged earlier in the day near Shannon, in the extreme southern part of Clay county.

Youth Tied to Post

About 9:30 Monday morning, Tyra Roper, 19, who lives near Shannon, was accosted by three men who dismounted from a Packard coupe, according to the information received. Roper was driving a small car owned by his father, Jess Roper, rural mail carrier from Henrietta to the Shannon and Antelope communities. Roper was tied with bailing wire to a fence post, his mouth sealed tightly with adhesive tape, while one of the trio took his car and followed the other two men in the Packard coupe.

Young Roper managed in about half an hour to release himself, and ran to a nearby farm house, where he telephoned to officers at Henrietta. Borrowing a horse, he then rode to Shannon, where he met Sheriff J. M. Donnell and Deputy Sheriff J. F. Thornton from Henrietta, and provided them with descriptions of the trio and their car. Roper's car was later recovered in Jacksboro.

Sheriff Donnell picked up the trail, and followed the fugitives through Shannon and Windthorst. A telephone call from Windthorst sent Sheriff Browning and Deputy Allen out on the road to that town in search of the bandits. Just before their return from a fruitless trip, Deputy Howle detected the car in question at the Adams street address. The car bore numbers issued for a Ford car.

Each of the prisoners was being questioned Monday night by Mr. Anglin and by the sheriff in an effort to clear up other robberies and car thefts which have taken place recently.

According to city and county officers, both Russell and Smith have penitentiary terms to their credit.

No Trace of Bank Funds

Further search of the Adams street house Wednesday evening resulted in the recovery of a medicine case stolen last Saturday night from the automobile of Dr. L. Mackechney, and of papers taken from the Kemp Kort drug store safe on the same night. Documents bearing the name of Harry Cohen, proprietor, were among the papers recovered.

No trace of money taken from the Petrolia bank had been found, however, according to investigating officers.

The two women who were in the house when the arrests took place were released late Wednesday afternoon after having been questiond by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney.

HEAVILY ARMED PAIR CAPTURED BY POLICE

Recovery of an automobile stolen at Fort Worth on May 19, was reported by city police Monday with the arrest of two youths at Seventh and Ohio at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Pistols and a large supply of ammunition were taken from the two men when Officers George Garrett, F. M. Dowdy and V. V. Musick made the arrest.

They were arrested as they stepped from the machine which Musick had followed for several blocks. The car carried Oklahoma license plates and a New Mexico license plate was found in the car. Henrietta officials failed to identify the two men as wanted in a recent hijacking case.

Officials of Saul's store at Bowie, victims of a $500 clothing robbery several weeks ago, are expected to arrive Tuesday morning to examine clothing of the youths.

City police also were instructed to keep a sharp look out for Erick L. Newton, wanted at Breckenridge on a charge of car theft and with breaking jail Monday morning. Newton and a companion, Lloyd Garrett, were arrested after a pistol battle the night of May 22, here. They were returned to Breckenridge May 25, and Night Police Captain Ed McDonald went to that city Monday to testify at their trial. McDonald arrested the men here. Newton broke jail at 4 o'clock Monday morning, according to police reports here shortly before noon.

the seat, then leaped outward into space.

Brooks jumped a few seconds later.

"It seemed their parachutes would never open as they hurtled towards the sound," said Whatley, who watched the accident from the refueling ship.

Flew Close

"Then the chutes opened like umbrellas and they slowly drifted into the water.

"I flew down as close as possible to see if Nat and Frank were okay. It looked like they were not hurt, so I headed back to the field to get help."

It was Browne's second narrow escape in his attempt to win a prize before it is withdrawn at midnight, June 1.

He took off yesterday with 850 gallons of gasoline, broke a strut near the tail skid as his ship almost crashed in a tree at the end of the field, then flew eratically into the north. Over Vancouver Island, 500 miles from Seattle, a cylinder in the Wright J-6 motor loosened and sprayed hot oil over his face and neck. He had to turn back.

Motor Stalled

At 11 a. m., today he again attempted to start on the perilous trip over the North Pacific. But the motor of his plane stalled on the runway.

The final take-off was at 12:32 p. m. For more than a half hour he attempted to contact with Whaley's refueler. It was not until the heavy weight—which proved his downfall—was attached to the hose that a contact was near.

No man has ever flown alone, without stopping, from the North American continent westward as far as Tokyo.

HITLERITES TO RULE GERMANY

Bruening Cabinet Resigns After Wrangle

BERLIN, May 30. (US)—Adolf Hitler, one-time sergeant under Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg in the world war, today assumed the status of Germany's "man of the hour."

The rise of militant nationalism, of which Hitler is the chief leader, today climaxed in a disagreement between the cabinet of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and President Von Hindenburg, with the result that the president accepted Bruening's resignation.

The president charged Bruening and his ministers to remain in power until a temporary cabinet is formed, and then went into conference for almost an hour with Hitler and one of the Nazi leader's chief lieutenants, Captain Goering.

It was reported unofficially after the conference that the president is inclined to favor immediate dissolution of the reichstag and calling of national elections, which at the present trend of political feeling would undoubtedly give the Hitlerites legally the control of the government they have been seeking.

Bruening's resignation resulted from the president's insisting that the cabinet be reorganized to include the nationalists on the strength of recent nationwide alignments and the Nazi victory in the Oldenburg elections yesterday.

After consulting with party leaders, the president declared he would follow parliamentary procedure by having an interim cabinet formed, based on the Socialist, Centrist and Democratic majority in the reichstag.

Ultimatum Given Bonus Marchers

the leaders from Philadelphia, said he believes the army will be swelled to 50,000 or 75,000 men in a few days. Almost every hour word reaches here of groups who are starting from various states in motor trucks and box cars.

While awaiting reinforcements the bonus marchers began to form their organization before making an assault on Capitol hill. Meetings will be held daily until the delegates from each of the 48 states are organized and made familiar with the part that each is expected to play.

Foulkrod reiterated Walters' statement that they expect to stay here to the bitter end, police edicts or not.

He added that the men are planning to elect Walters national commander of the "bonus expeditionary force."

They have already induced some members of congress to make speeches at their meetings, among them Representative Tom Blanton, Democrat of Texas.

Glassford secured a thousand sleeping bags from the war department today for the benefit of the bonus advocates. An additional 1,000 bags will be furnished if they are needed. Glassford also worked with his own police department today preparing the blue coats for any emergency.

"We don't want any trouble," he said. "We shall take each day as it comes, but at the same time we are prepared for any eventualities."

In order to minimize the possibility of trouble, Glassford decided today to scatter the veterans into small groups instead of allowing them to be concentrated in one large camp.

Druggist Gives New Formula To Stop Headaches

Realizing that no one drug can relieve all headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to relieve almost any headache in a few minutes. You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B. C.," 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B. C." will give you soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs.—Adv.

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

MRS. L. N. CASON

Floral Heights Methodist Group Studies Youth

"Youth and the New Day," was the topic for study in the book, "Korea, Land of the Dawn," when members of the Floral Heights Methodist Woman's Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon. A preliminary program of song, with Mary Frances Walker pianist, and a beautiful devotional by Mrs. M. T. Clements, who was given a lovely appreciation in a short talk by Mrs. Marvin Smith, preceded the study lesson.

Mrs. Clements' devotional was on the theme, "Youth of Any Land," and she compared the planting of proper ideals in the mind of youth with the cultivation of a beautiful flower garden. "The thoughts of young lives," she said, "are the seeds; youth is the plant and old age the harvest." An appropriate Scripture reading from Paul's letters and prayer, closed the devotional.

Mrs. Fred Sehmann sang inspiringly "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer," with Mary Frances Walker accompanying.

Mrs. Harvey Talks

In the lesson on Korea, Mrs. O. W. Harvey told of the youth of that country. "Korean young people," she said, "are talking a different language and living in a different world from that of their elders who regarded the world as hardly beyond the medieval age." She stressed the fact that very few Koreans past middle age know anything about modern learning, but emphasized the credit due them in looking forward and sympathizing with the young people. Appreciation was also stressed of the fact that Korean youth is patient and appreciates the worth of their fathers.

Mrs. Harvey's talk made plain that the problems of Korean youth are made more difficult by anti-Christian movements and propagandists of materialism who have attacked Christianity. The Koreans have however recognized the need of social betterment and are finding their places in social welfare. The Y. M. C. A. is at the forefront for rural improvement; it has been said, the speaker, stated, that the youth of Korea can be counted on to further a Christian program. They will even dare prison for the benefit of their people.

Personal Contact

Mrs. P. B. Cox told of Koreans she met in a recent general conference and brought the people of that land intimately into the minds of her audience when she described them as orderly, composed, devout and religious. Mrs. Cox gave a resume of Bishop Boaz' visit to a native Korean's home where the owner had risen from a pitiful existence to a Christian life full of industry, thrift and helpfulness in the church.

Following these personal notes, Mrs. Cox told of many problems of the relations of the sexes, stating that the Christian church should take the lead in Korea in showing how boys and girls may have social fellowship. Student conferences are being held, she said, under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. The need of the church for the honesty and sincerity and the spirit of service of the young people, was stressed.

Following the lesson study, Mesdames Hal Yeager and Finis Crutchfield gave enthusiastic reports from the district conference recently held in Henrietta.

Mrs. John Taylor dismissed the session with prayer.

To one thing constant ever."

The above lines we quote are from a book, "From Day to Day With Shakespeare," which our daughter memorizes from day to day, and they were repeated to us when we were puzzled over a certain man's actions.

And, being in some ways, old-fashioned, we marveled at the philosophy of sweet 17; an age when we were far too ignorant of the facts of life, a state of being which was in that day called innocence. The world has learned now that innocence and ignorance do not mean the same thing.

As to being deceivers, the quality cannot be credited to the male sex only. At one time in our life we had one major ideal, to be able to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. We discovered the result to be anything but happiness.

We have decided in more mature years that a campaign of absolute truth telling would end in a season of heart-break. "Thou shalt not lie," does not apply when a completely truthful expression of one's belief would be death to some one else's soul.

Far better be silent. (The most difficult of all life's tasks.) But if we are pinned down and have to choose between a "yes" that means anger, hurt and suffering, or a "no" that means a happy heart, we have the nerve to say "no."

Deceit does not pay; but neither does a passion of temper that sometimes follows what is known as "plain truth."

"One thing we believe," we said to our daughter, when she quoted Shakespeare at us (we mean "at"), "is that men try to live up to what the women they love and respect, expect of them." And her answer was in those two words that express an encyclopedia if the speaker knows how to say them, "Oh, yeah!"

There's another sad fact; that many Eve-wise women play on the theory of making a man a hero, and have simple souls struggling to live up to ideals which are really non-existent. Clinging vines are adept in this ability. It must be great to be a clinging vine.

As to each sex, it has its share of duplicity. The civilization of human life sometimes demands gentle wiles that the recording angel would hardly put down as lies.

"I am sorry, but I cannot" do thus and so, is one of the most popular falsehoods of society. The speaker may not be able to go or to do what he is asked, but half the time, he is far from being sorry.

The human language is not ade-quate to safety in absolute truth telling. To prevent broken friendships, stabs to love, harm to economic conditions, death to democracy, a noticeable degree of truth telling is undesirable.

By using a harmless deceit, we think that often we come nearer helping toward that end for which we pray when we say "Thy will be done." Now, I am ready for the scurge to be laid upon my shoulders, gentle reader and truth-teller.

NATION HONORS ITS WAR DEAD

Memorial Services Held At Arlington Cemetery

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP)—The nation's war dead today received the tribute and homage of its leaders and of thousands of persons who participated in the capital's Memorial day ceremonies.

The press of public affairs kept President Hoover at his desk and, contrary to custom, he took no personal part in the ceremonies. He sent wreaths by his military aide, Col. Campbell Hodges, to the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at the National cathedral, and the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington National cemetery.

Throughout the day long lines filed past the tomb of the unknown soldier. Each grave in Arlington cemetery was decorated with an American flag and red poppies.

Among the tributes at the unknown soldier's tomb was one laid there by a delegation of German and Austrian world war veterans now in America.

Memorial services were held within the amphitheater overlooking the tomb. James A. Reed, former senator from Missouri, as the principal speaker of the day, urged his listeners to "keep to the old faith." He warned that pledges of international amity were "but paper pacts quickly consumed in hatred's smouldering fires." He added:

"Pale and anemic pacifists denounce the soldier who stands guard upon our shores and gives protection to our homes. But it was men with iron in their souls who gave us all the liberty we have."

Earlier in the day Henry L. Stevens Jr., national commander of the American Legion, in a radio address, praised the valor of America's war dead and said the American Legion would again make "similar sacrifices" if the call came.

Both the first and second shipment of Turbeville's fed kinds are considered the finest ever shipped from Archer county.

Earth Shock Wrecks Mexico City Suburb

MEXICO CITY, May 30. (INS)—Half of Ixtapalapa, a suburb of Mexico City, was a ruin today, the result of earthquakes that shook Mexico City yesterday.

The Tacubaya astronomical observatory recorded four major disturbances and innumerable minor ones which were unfelt.

The focal point of the quake was in Santa Clara at the dried up Lake Texcocó, about 12 miles from here. It was the first time the national observatory ever recorded a focal point in the vicinity.

TEXAS VETS TO JOIN MARCHERS

'Lone Star Expedition' To Leave Friday

AUSTIN, May 30. (AP)—J. E. McClain, commander of Travis post No. 76, American Legion, received a telegram from San Antonio today advising him that the "Lone Star bonus expedition" en route to Washington to urge payment of the bonus would leave there at sunrise Friday.

"McClain said the message was signed "Lone Star Bonus Expedition" and he does not know who the promoters are. He said the Travis post was not having any official connection with the movement, although the post favored immediate payment of the bonus. He said it was likely there would be some joiners of the expedition here but not as official representatives of the Travis post.

R. O. Whiteaker, adjutant of the department of Texas, American Legion, was absent from state headquarters here and no one there knew of the movement. Whiteaker was attending a legion meeting in Paris.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Any reader of this newspaper is welcome to make use at any time of the free information service of this department. Address your inquiry to the Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C., and you will receive a personal letter in reply. Enclose 2 cents for return postage. Be sure to state your question clearly, and to write your name and address plainly.

Q.—Was Angelo Patri born in this country?—A. D.

A.—He was born in Italy in November, 1877.

Q.—How large is the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg?—J. T. M.

A.—It has an area of 999 square miles and a population of about 286,000.

Q.—Is traveling by air considered land travel?—A. A. A.

A.—It belongs in a class of its own, and may be termed travel by air in contradistinction to travel by land or sea.

Q.—How much is the public land worth in this country?—J. McC.

A.—The potential value of the 193,847,240 acres of public lands remaining July 1, 1928, under care of the general land office of the interior department, was estimated at $26,000,000,000.

Q.—Did Americans who joined the Canadian expeditionary force during the world war have to acquire Canadian citizenship?—W. F. W.

A.—They did not. They did, however, have to swear allegiance to his majesty the king for the period of their service.

Q.—Why should not money secured by land be used instead of money secured by gold?—G. E.

A.—The experience of history is that land values are not stable and could not constitute a standard. Land worth $1,000 an acre in 1920 now is down to less than $100 in many cases. Gold is a standard which remains precisely the same.

Q.—How does a distributor differ from a jobber?—U. G. C.

A.—A jobber is one who buys goods from importers or producers and sells to other dealers—a middleman. A distributor is one who is assigned a definite territory by a manufacturer, and is held responsible for the distribution of goods therein. He may represent one or several manufacturers and distribute to agents, jobbers, or retailers. He differs from an agent in that the latter acts for one house or one line of goods, whereas the distributor may have several.

Q.—Were African or Indian elephants used in filming Tarzan?—L. W. C.

A.—One of the outstanding differences between the African elephants and Indian elephants is the great size of the ears of the African species. However, the African elephant has never proved tamable and has never become the friend of mankind that the Indian elephant is. In filming a picture such as Tarzan it was necessary to use Indian elephants, but to make them appear like African elephants artificial ears were fastened on.

Q.—What is the object of a parent-teacher association?—A. M. D.

A.—The purpose of the parent-teacher association is to create an understanding between the parent and teacher and the work that each is accomplishing in the educating of the child. The association has stirred the parenthood of the nation in creating an interest in what the school is doing for the child. In many communities the parent-teacher association has organized and supported projects for the promotion of health examinations for the child. In some cases the organization has supplied the necessary equipment and clothing for children when the needs could not be met in any other way. It has carried on a project for the betterment of community conditions in the immediate school district.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on the Bicentennial

Did you ever see the mystery picture of the shade of George Washington at his tomb at Mount Vernon? This is a unique feature of this booklet. It is a photographic reproduction of a rare old Currier and Ives print and the mystery is to find the shade of Washington in the picture. Not one person in a hundred sees it until it is pointed out. Other illustrations in this valuable booklet include reproductions of nine of the more famous portraits of Martha Washington, and pictures of Martha Washington, of the scene at her marriage to Washington, of Mount Vernon of today and during revolutionary times, of Wakefield, Washington's birthplace, as it has been restored, and of numerous stirring episodes or scenes in the life of the first president.

Enthusiasm: Curse and Blessing

A 19-YEAR-OLD Chicago boy had dreamed of becoming an aviator. Not long ago he found out that the family finances would make it impossible. So he committed suicide, leaving a note in which he remarked that "death is better than a life of monotony."

Of suicide, unfortunately, there is never a scarcity; and every now and then we have one like this, in which some pitifully misguided youth thinks his life has lost all of its savor and so destroys it. And a tragedy of this kind is always a puzzler, for youth seems to have every reason to live—until we stop and remember how very, very dark the sky of a 19-year-old can seem, on occasion.

The youngster of 19 has the most priceless of all gifts—enthusiasm of 19 has a way of draining itself out very suddenly and leaving bleak emptiness behind; and that emptiness can be very hard to bear.

This boy's tragedy is typical. An older person can realize that while being an aviator may be the best of all possible callings, life can still be made supportable if one has to find his fortune in some other field. But it is harder for 19 to see that; harder, because when you're in your teens you haven't yet learned how to give things up philosophically.

That, after all, is about all there is to growing up. One learns that most of the bright dreams of youth can never be realized, and one also learns that it doesn't really matter so very much, after all. It's a mortal hard lesson, and some of us never quite get reconciled to it; but we do learn it, after a fashion, and we can watch our old dreams drift over the horizon and go to find substitutes as best we can.

Youth, though, hasn't yet learned that. It has the ability to live in and for a dream, but when one dream goes it often has a hard time finding a new one. And so, once in a while, youth destroys itself, for what seems to us an absurdly insufficient reason; and we are reminded that the enthusiasm of youth can be a curse as well as a blessing.

A Broker's Viewpoint

A NEW YORK stock broker contributed to an eastern newspaper the other day an odd and illuminating article protesting against the senate committee's current inquiry into speculation on the stock exchange. Declaring the investigation is a "damaging force serving to undermine confidence in the financial stability of this country," he expressed the pious hope that "this futile investigation will die a natural death within a brief time."

It is hardly reasonable, of course, to expect one who lives by and for the stock market to applaud this investigation; but other men are apt to question his statement that the investigation is doing the country very much harm.

The damage was done by the speculation itself. The more light we can get now on the way that speculation was conducted and the men who were chiefly involved in it, the better shall we be able to shape our course the next time a bull market gets us by the ears.

The Kreuger Disclosures

THE farther the investigation into the affairs of the late Ivar Kreuger is pushed the more astounding the whole thing becomes.

The disclosures that the famous "match king" had personal debts and indirect liabilities of more than $168,000,000 at the time of his death is one of those things that ordinary folk can hardly credit.

Here was a man, apparently, who built up a house of cards on a more colossal scale than any one before him had ever dreamed of. Great financiers and small investors seem to have been alike in the way they were hoodwinked.

The tragedy of it, of course, is the fact that it is the more or less innocent bystander who suffers the most. A revolver bullet took Kreuger beyond the reach of financial worries; but his debts are very real, and present indications are that many of his creditors will get little or nothing on their claims.

Congress' First Step

ONE is tempted to be mildly facetious about the baseball game that congressional Democrats and Republicans are going to play in Washington on June 4.

This game is to be held for the benefit of the capital's unemployed. It may not be much of a game, considered strictly from the artistic viewpoint, but it probably will draw a good-sized crowd, everybody will have a lot of fun and the unemployment relief fund ought to be helped a good bit.

But what is apt to occur to a lot of newspaper readers is this:

The depression has been going on for upwards of two years now—and here, with an interparty baseball game, is congress taking its first real step toward help for the unemployed!

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(During illness of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz)

To the Little Red Book!

Ho hum-m—Another day!
 Wonder what I'll write about?
 Better take the Red Book out,
See what it has to say.

Adelaide Crandall, a gorgeous young Scandoll,
 Is matri-money bent;
Mrs. Pierpont Morse sues for divorce;
 Her hubby's dough is spent.
The rich Mrs. Hawker will give birth to a squawker,
 And yet, she's none the wiser;
'Twill be a bum, but please keep in mum,
 Her husband wants to surprise her.
Curtiss confesses, but the worst of the mess is
 They can't solve murders with lies.
Tho' some call it news, where are the clues?
 They'll "get" some innocent guys.

Ho hum-m—close the leaves, friend.
 Lots of things to read about!
 Since I've had the Red Book out,
Are you at Yawitz end?
 —EDWARD I. PLOTTLE.

Little Red Book Stuff!

In an attempt to stave off complete financial ruin, that famous international mil-ynaire was compelled to borrow $1,000,000 last wk. from the famous son-in-law whom he refused to recognize until recently.

But How?

After reading the verse at the head to day's col., Croswell Bowen, the Mirror's cooking ed., suggests that we name our country estate "Yawitz End." All he has to do now is to suggest how we can get a country estate!

Stooge Door Pride

Morris Kosloff, who stooged for Richy Craig during the past few years, was approached by Milton Berle, the youthful m. c., and offered a job with his act. "How much will you pay me?" asked Kosloff.

And when Berle suggested $25 a week, Kosloff grunted, "Nothing doing. For that I only had to press Craig's trousers."

Cold Turkey

Jules Levine would have you believe that two columnists met in front of the Palace theater and the next morning 700 lay-offs were down with colds as a result of the sudden drop in temperature.

Broadway . . . where times are so bad that a fellow feels flattered if you make him look like 2 cents.

Yeah Man!

Thomas Van Dyke's idea of a complete sophisticate is a fellow who can differentiate between a revolver shot and the back-fire of an automobile in the dead of night.

The European Credo

American headline thunder has reverberated on the shores of the continent, and as a result many odd impressions of life in the states have come to the Europeans.

In a recent issue of the London Daily Mail, night life was described by a well-informed writer as "A holocaust of flabbergasted revelers mingling with swarthy gangsters in sombreros and chaps and visible revolvers . . . In one of the clubs, Texas Guinan presides . . . Her white horse is hitched outside the door . . . his hoofs are spangled with glittering rhinestones and his mane is shiny under a thick veneer of brilliantine . . . Miss Guinan stands at the entrance and calls to passers-by to come in and partake of her immense jollities and the caperings of her denuded damsels . . . Those who do are charged anywhere from 1 pound to 50 ($200) for a bottle of soda and to enjoy a typical Yorkshire dinner would stand you a king's ransom . . . In the western city of Chicago, night-life is colored by the influx of California Indians with their brightly painted meins and shoulders draped in blankets of rainbow hues . . . At each door an underworldling is hidden behind steel curtains ready with machine guns to 'shoot it out' with obstreprous invaders . . ." All of which gives you an idea!

The most ridiculous misconception of American manners was manifested by the dance-hall operators along the canals in Amsterdam. A few years ago I saw them advertising the Charleston as follows:

"Tonight! Tonight! See the Charleston as danced by its American Originator—David Belasco."

In an amusement park in Budapest, the American wild west was depicted by negro cowboys.

Of course, there was always the chance that it might have been Al Jolson.

Broadway Wise

An actor at liberty borrowed $100 from a friend with the promise to repay it the following Saturday, specials Doc Epstein. At the specified hour the money was returned. A few days later he asked for another loan of $200. "I'll pay it back Thursday night," he pleaded. The pal gave him a check and again at the specified hour the sum was returned.

A week went by, and the poverty-stricken actor approached his benefactor with another request. "Let me have $500. I'll give it back Tuesday noon," he said.

The lender balked. "But didn't I keep my word each time and pay you back on the dot?" protested the borrower.

"Yes, that's just it," the pal replied. "You disappointed me twice already, and I don't want to be disappointed again."

On the Pulitzer Prize

Here, oh lovely lady, is a play from several pens,
 With each one skilled at writing, it is true;
But playwrights, tho they're clever, haven't yet the mighty kens
 Of fashioning a work of art like you,
For there's music in your laughter, and there's lyric in your voice,
 There's a book that reads and plays right in your eyes.
You're a drama, you're a sonnet,
 And I'll stake my judgment on it—
You're the one who should have won Pulitzer's prize.
 —KAL PLESSNER.

Bowie Trounces Newport, 8 to 1

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, May 30.—A crowd of several hundred enthusiasts watched the Bowie Brewers, independent baseball team, take the game here from Newport Sunday afternoon by the score of 8 to 1. Pigg, who pitched a marvelous game for Bowie, allowed only eight hits, struck out five, and walked none. Newport's only run came in the first inning on a single, a stolen base and another single. The Bowie hitters gathered in 12 hits and two walks. After Newport's little spree in the first inning only one man was able to reach second base, and he died there. Stevens, Bowie shortstop, gathered in two triples and a double out of four times up; Bowling, playing for Bowie in left field, got two singles and a double in four trips to the plate; and Williams, Bowie third baseman, garnered a home run in the second inning for Bowie's first run. Barnett and Doever, Newport pitchers, pitched admirable games but had weak support.

Next Sunday afternoon on the local field the Brewers will meet a team of negroes from Gainesville. This negro team has already played several games with teams in this and surrounding counties, and a good game is expected. It is said that the comic element alone prevailing during the contests with these "dusky gentlemen" is well worth the price of admission.

Vernon and Electra Left Tied For Top After Sunday's League Tilts

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 30.—Following the fireworks Sunday, two of the four leaders in the Red River Valley Baseball league found themselves boosted from the pinnacle, and Vernon and Electra teams were occupying the throne room. Oklaunion's Cardinals and Frederick's Boosters were booted out of the leadership deadlock by defeats.

Vernon's Orphans who have been in the front position, either by themselves or with other clubs, since the first contest of the season, took a protested contest from Quanah in the Hardeman county city, by a 6 to 5 score. The game was stretched through 10 innings, the final frame being played under protest by the Quanah aggregation which contended a Quanah run ruled out by ground rules in the ninth inning should have been allowed.

Houston Lankford, Vernon veteran, both pitched and batted the Orphans to victory. Staked to a three-run lead in the first few frames the Orphan hurler was unable to hold the Quanah batters in check and the Indians tied the score. In the 10th inning, with two out and the bases loaded, Lankford, who garnered three blows during the afternoon, stepped to the plate and lined a single off Mitchell, Quanah hurler, to send two Vernon runs across the plate. Quanah came back in its half of the inning to score one run and place runners on second and third with but one out, but Lankford struck out the next batter and forced the next to ground out.

Electra's Oilers, who recently started a steady drive toward the top after resting in the second division most of the season, kept pace with Vernon by blasting a Wilbarger county team, Oklaunion, 7-3. Vanhorn of Electra held the Card batters while his mates took advantage of a flock of Oklaunion errors to win. It was the first loss of the season for Albert Arp, Oklaunion twirler, who turned in a well-pitched game.

Another leader fell at Chillicothe when the Cubs eked out a 6-5 win over Frederick. C. Zellers, slowball hurler, was the victim of the Chillicothe attack.

Tipton's Sooners plastered a 10-1 defeat on the Crowell Wildcats.

E-Z DEFEATS NOBLE-LITTLE

Doyle Stars to End Foe's Long Winning Streak

Jack Doyle's single in the fifth inning gave Harry Geyer the best of a pitchers' battle with Willard Hillin, and Joe Deal's E-Z All-Stars handed Noble-Little their first setback in 16 league starts Monday afternoon on Debus field. The score was 2 to 1 when Umpire McCord called the battle at the end of the sixth inning because of darkness. Harry Geyer was more right than he had been at any time this season, and Noble-Little could touch him but for four bingles, two of which were bunched in the third inning for their lone tally.

Winning Streak Snapped

Noble-Little had piled up 14 straight wins in the first 15 games of the league season, but were unable to go over this as Geyer and Doyle paired up their dynamite to stop them. Hillin tried hard to win the battle, but was given no runs. The game that Hillin pitched would have won a majority of the games played this year by the team, but fell short of Geyer's work on the hill.

Noble-Little got away to an early lead in the third inning when Washington beat out a slow roller toward second which Gifford knocked down, but was unable to field in time. Hillin grounded out and Washington took second. Shorty Hicks, the batting power of the Hardware nine, poked a hit over third which took a crazy hop by Wooten for a double and Washington scored.

Doyle started the rally in the fourth that tied the score for E-Z when he beat out a hit to deep short. "Jumping Joe" Deal drove a sharp single to right and Doyle pulled up at third. Doyle scored while Ray was forcing Deal at second.

The Winning Punch

After one was out in the fifth, Van Gifford singled between Whatley and Chatterton, and moved up to second on Earl Smith's smash to center. After Geyer had fanned for the second out, Doyle accounted for the second and winning run of the game with a single over second that scored Gifford. Hicks ended the rally by handling Deal's smash to second with perfection.

The game throughout was fast and one of the best games played this year with only one error made and this going to waste in the first inning. Two fast double plays saved Geyer twice. Score:

WICHITA WINS TENNIS MEET

Childress Stars Fall Before Visitors' Attack

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, May 30.—Childress' undefeated net team was unable to turn back the powerful Wichita Falls racqueteers here Sunday when the visitors copped all three matches to retain their lead in the race of the North Texas Inter-City Tennis league. Led by Capt. Charles Cook, undefeated singles player of the league, the Wichita Falls players won both singles matches and then annexed the doubles match in straight sets.

Martin Battles Cook

In the feature match of the day Jimme Martin, No. 1 singles player of the Childress team, battled Cook in one duece game after another but was never able to overpower the drives and placements of the diminutive Wichita Falls net artist. Cook won the toss and annexed the first game with his service. Martin took his service and then broke through Cook's to take the lead, after that taking his own service again to make the score 3-1 in favor of Childress. From then on both players settled down with drives, volleys and chops, with Cook emerging winner in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2.

Fletcher Carter, left-hand flash of the Childress netters, was off form Sunday, but put up a game fight against Hall only to lose 6-2, 6-3. Carter's usual terrific service was apparently wild, as were his overhead smashes and sideline placements.

Cook, Hall Take Doubles

Cook and Hall annexed the doubles match at the noon hour when they turned back the Childress team composed of C. P. Sanders and J. D. Michie. The Wichita Falls team took the first set with little trouble, 6-3, but the Childress netters settled down on the last set and broke through Hall's service several times to take a lead of 4-2. Through Cook's superb playing the visitors were able to stage a rally and duece the set, and then win it after a hard battle, 12-10.

The results of yesterday's play leaves Wichita Falls in the lead, while Childress and Vernon are tied for second place in the number of tournaments won. Childress and Vernon both have lost to Wichita Falls. The two meet here next Sunday at which time the tie will be broken.

New Player Expected

A new player is likely to face the Vernon team in Woodrow Carter, Childress racqueteer, who has been away at school. He will be paired with Fletcher Carter for the doubles team, with W. Carter playing the singles match. Martin will face Charles Lutz, Venon ace, while Carter will oppose the younger Lutz, Jimmy.

The other matches on June 5 will be Byers at Holliday and Quanah at Wichita Falls. Again Childress will hold the spotlight in that Wichita Falls is sure to sweep the Quanah matches, while Byers is likely to nose out the Holliday team.

BEAUMONT SHIPPERS EXTEND WINNING STREAK TO 15 IN ROW

Sportsmen to Tackle Problem Of Better Fishing at Meeting Tonight

All fishermen and sportsmen interested in fishing are invited to gather at the courthouse at 8 o'clock tonight for the purpose of discussing ways and means of bettering fishing conditions at the big lakes in this territory.

The meeting will not be one for the purpose of raising funds, nor has any definite plan been worked out. One and all will be given a chance to their opinions, and it is hoped from the discussion a constructive program can be worked out.

The meeting is being sponsored by the local chapter of the Izaak Walton league, of which Ben G. Oneal is president. All sportsmen, however, are urged to attend regardless of whether or not they belong to the chapter.

Depletion of game stock in the big lakes has brought on a serious condition which sportsmen hope to remedy.

A Pleasant Chap

Gus Moreland, winner of so many golf tournaments it would take a book to list them, arrived in Wichita Falls yesterday to visit his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. M. Pois.

Moreland last Saturday defeated W. R. Long of Austin to win the Texas Golf association's crown. The tournament was held at Texarkana.

The more tournaments a golfer wins the more he is in demand on the links, and so Moreland's visit here will be a short one. Wednesday he expects to qualify in the annual River Crest Country club invitation tournament at Fort Worth. The young champion probably will take a few practice rounds today on the local country club course with Bobby Burns and a few others.

Moreland is a mere lad of 20, an extremely pleasant chap, very tolerant of sports writers—and that's saying a lot for an amateur athlete who so often is in the public eye. We mention his age because some of his followers probably have been misled by stories of "Gus Moreland, veteran Texas golfer." He is a veteran, but a youthful one, and still has high golfing ambitions.

Yes And No Dept.

A Chillicothe fan writes:

"Get ready, Fred, here's one for you. In the game here Sunday with Frederick, Chillicothe had a runner on first, when they put on the hit and run play. Batter hits ball in front of plate, and on starting for first, the batter runs into the ball, and the runner on first advances to second. Of course the batter was called out, but the runner was brought back to first. I say he was due second, if he could make it. Am I right?"

No. The ball was dead after it hit the runner going down to first, and the rules say that when the umpire declares a dead ball base runners return to their original bases.

From Quanah

Walter Newman, manager of the Quanah baseball team of the Red River Valley league writes as follows:

"The following situation arose in the game between Vernon and Quanah, Sunday, May 29:

"Runner on first and one down. Batter hits ball to second base, who throws to shortstop, forcing runner at second. Shortstop throws wild to first, and runner goes to second. Meanwhile, first baseman gets the ball and makes play for the runner at second. He throws wild to second, and the runner scores.

"The ground rules entitled a runner to one base on an overthrow of first, third and home, if he could make it. Also, they entitled him to all the bases he could make on an overthrow of second.

"The umpire decided that the runner should go back to second. Was his decision in this instance correct?"

It seems to me that the runner should have been allowed to score. He obeyed the ground rules in every particular, taking only one base on the overthrow of first, and all he could on the overthrow of second.

LEADERS BUMP TRIBE TWICE

Rowe Wins First, 4-2; Joe Sullivan Second, 12-0

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 30. (AP)—Before a ladies' day crowd of 4,000 with 2,600 paid, the Beaumont Exporters extended their winning streak to 15 games today by twice defeating the San Antonio Indians, 4 to 2 and 12 to 0. Schoolboy Rowe let the Tribe down with three hits to win the curtain raiser and Joe Sullivan granted a like number in the seven-inning game.

With Chief Moore going like a house afire, the opener appeared highly doubtful from a Beaumont angle. The visitors were leading, 2 to 0, going into the seventh but Schoolboy himself started a rally with a powerful homer over the fence. Clifton then walked, Tauby singled and Jones flew out, after which Hank Greenberg poled a long circuit clout over left center field wall.

The league leaders hammered Vance and Flinn severely in the second game with Greenberg getting another homer, his 13th of the year, while Easterling and Fox also hit four baggers. Scores:

Ump Breaks Hand In Cleveland Fight

CLEVELAND, May 30. (AP)—George Moriarty, American league umpire, broke his hand in a fight with several Chicago White Sox players today, following Cleveland's victory in both games of a double-header.

Cleveland players said Charley Berry, Chicago catcher, challenged Moriarty to fight following a dispute over a third strike. Moriarty accepted the challenge, the players said, as other Chicago players gathered around him in the dressing room, saying he "would fight the whole bunch, one at a time."

Milt Gaston, Sox pitcher, stepped up, saying "you might as well start with me." Moriarty struck him twice, knocking him out and breaking his hand.

Cleveland players parted the battlers, including Berry, Grube, catcher, and Fonseca, manager.

Cherries

Ripe, luscious cherries are among the most tempting of all fruits. They have been used by men for many thousand of years. The cherry tree grows wild in many parts of Europe, and the caucasus of Asia. Cultivated cherries were familiar to the ancient Romans. It is related that when Lucullus returned in triumph to Rome after his victory over the Mithridates he carried back with him a cherry tree laden with fruit. The seeds of cultivated cherries have also been discovered in the ruins of the lake dwellings in Switzerland. The name of the cherry is taken from the Greek word meaning horn, referring to the wood, which is as hard as horn.

Cherries belong to the stone fruits, or the drupes, being of the same family as plums, peaches and apricots. There are over 250 kinds of cherries, some of them large, small, sweet, sour, dark, bright red, firm, soft and some heart-shaped. The cherry is grown in more climates than any other single fruit, since it is found from Vancouver to Newfoundland, and from Florida to Colorado, also growing in Europe, China and Japan.

In North America the cherry is one of the first fruits which appears in the late spring to tempt one's appetite after the winter, when fresh fruit is not so plentiful. It's attractive red color, tart flavor, and general deliciousness, makes it a very tempting fruit at the beginning of the summer fruit season.

Besides the cherry being used fresh part of the year, it is also employed in making beverages. Some of these are cherry bounce, cherry cordial and cherry brandy. In the upper Rhine the pulp is fermented and distilled into kirshwasser, while Zara, in Dalmatia, is famed for its maraschino liquor of cherries and honey.

The cherry contains a natural fruit sugar and also the vitamins and mineral elements which may be lacking in other fruits. They are about 80 per cent pure water, and contain almost 1 per cent of malic acid which causes it to be classed with the acid fruits. A cherry has 1 per cent protein, 16 per cent carbohydrates .80 per cent fat, .7 per cent mineral matter, consisting of a good amount of potassium, iron, magnesium and silicon.

The cherry season is short and everyone should make use of the cherries while they are abundant. While cherries are especially wholesome when used by themselves, they do not combine well with many foods, and therefore have the reputation of causing indigestion.

During the hot weather it is a good plan to make a meal of cherries alone, and as much as a pound or more can be eaten in this way. Cherries also combine well with milk, especially if the cherries are chewed and the milk sipped slowly in between. This quality of cherries and milk to make a good combination may surprise many people, but it should be borne in mind that even a small amount of bread or cake used at the same time would likely cause trouble in the otherwise good combination.

Cherry fasts, using no other foods for a few days, are especially valuable in pimples, whiteheads and other skin eruptions. Of course, enemas should be used at the same time just as in any fast regime.

The cherry fast is very healthful and assists in clearing the skin. The best way to do is to use all of the cherries you wish for a meal, making three meals a day of them. Those who are overweight will do well to use a cherry fast of five to 10 days. Those who are underweight do not need to fear using the cherry fast for a day or two at a time for the beneficial effect will be seen in a short time in an increased appetite for other minerals and a greater power to assimilate other foods.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Arms Get Numb

Question—Neil writes: "Please tell me what causes the arms to go to sleep and get numb at night. Is this because of high blood pressure?"

Answer: If you know you have high blood pressure, you have doubtless answered your own question, as this does cause the arms to become numb. Valvular leakage of the heart is also sometimes responsible for poor circulation and numbness of the arms.

Dead Tooth

Question—E. D. asks: "When is a tooth considered dead, and should dead teeth be extracted?"

Answer: A tooth is considered dead after the nerve dies, or, if the nerve has been removed. It is not always necessary to extract a dead tooth, however, unless some pus has formed about the root.

Floating Kidney

Question—Mr. Ed J. asks: "Can a floating kidney be cured without an operation?"

Answer: A floating kidney can be raised to position through developing the abdominal muscles. Sometimes it is a good plan to go to bed for two or three weeks and use the milk diet, also take exercises while remaining in a recumbent position. If there is any ache in the kidney, this can be overcome if you will assume the knee-chest position two or three times daily, thus allowing your kidney to slip back into normal position.

TAILSPIN TOMMY By Glenn Chaffin and Hal Forrest

YES SIR, THAT'S THE MAHARAJAH'S MAN FRIDAY, JUST AS SURE AS OUR GOOSE HANGS HIGH, TOM!
BUT WHY ALL THE SECRECY ABOUT HIS VISIT—CLAIMING TO BE A STUDENT AND ALL THAT BUNK?
MUST WANT TO SHADOW US—OR MAYBE HE THINKS THE CROOKS BROUGHT THE RAJAH'S ROCK OVER HERE!
I'VE A NOTION TO WIRE HIM AND TELL HIM IF HE WANTS TO SEE US TO COME TO THREE-POINT!
SAY, IF HE'S LOOKIN' FOR US YOU DON'T NEED TO SEND HIM A TICKET! HE'LL TAP YOU ON THE SHOULDER SOME EVENING ABOUT MIDNIGHT.
THAT'S OKAY WITH ME—AS LONG AS HE DOESN'T TAP ME ON THE HEAD—WELL, SEE YOU TOMORROW—SO LONG!

"Bring 'Em Back Alive"

By FRANK BUCK with EDWARD ANTHONY

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Dead animals mean nothing to Frank Buck—he brings 'em back alive! He hunts them barehanded; with snare and coil; in jungle, and mountainfastness, in wildest Africa, in darkest Thibet—but always he brings 'em back alive. Many of his living trophies can be seen today in the New York Zoological park, in the Lincoln Park zoo in Chicago, in municipal collections all over America, in circuses throughout the world. He has crossed the Pacific 40 times, encircles the world five times, knocked out an orang-utan in fair fight, walked the width of Borneo, and delivered to the city of Dallas one complete zoo.

Buck has just obtained, in Singapore, the largest orang-utan ever captured. He asks the natives how they accomplished the capture.

CHAPTER IV
Tiger Revenge

Environment has been blamed for many things. Maybe its partly responsible for the wildness of wild animals.

Certainly there's nothing tame about some of their "human" neighbors. For downright cruelty, for instance, the most ferocious beast of the jungle cannot match the efforts of many a Hindu of the royal line. Anglo-Saxon villains are mere comic-strip Desperate Desmonds in comparison with a Hindu prince who has made up his mind to set new records for malevolence.

Perhaps the most expert practitioner of the art of plain and fancy cruelty that I ever observed at close range was a Maharajah who ruled one of the native states of India. He was a man with a jaded palate. His normal mood was one of sullen boredom. He had made an extensive tour of Europe in search of new thrills and when these excitements ceased to excite he returned home to see what novelties in the way of mischief he could cook up there.

Jim Wendell, an Australian friend of mine who now lives in Calcutta, was in charge of the maharajah's racing stable. Many of the Hindu princes are fond of horse racing and as the horses most available for this purpose are Australian griffons, these royal gentlemen of India usually import Australian horsemen as supervisors.

Wendell, hearing I was in the district on a collecting trip, invited me to attend a "show" that the maharajah was giving the following day. As we sat and sipped our drinks at the local club—my friend urged me not to miss the royal entertainment.

His highness' "show" proved to be a battle between a tiger and a water buffalo (a powerful bull). Bored with the tameness of palace routine, the prince sought a thrill in a combat between two animals that had no good reason for fighting each other.

Nothing was overlooked to insure a bloody battle. By royal command, the tiger had been given practically no food for two or three days—just enough to stave off weakness. By way of getting the buffalo good and mad he was made to go without water for some time. If there are any water buffaloes that have ever done anything to you and you want to annoy them, just see that they don't get any water. You'll get quick results.

As an added guarantee of perfect buffalo fury, some small spikes had been driven into the animal's shoulders. Now, if there's anything a buffalo doesn't like, it's a spike in his shoulder—or even an ordinary nail, or a mere thumb-screw, for that matter. The idea just doesn't appeal to him.

If you want to stage a murderous tussle, you can't do much better than bring together in a walled enclosure a ravenous tiger and a parched water buffalo that has suffered the added insult of spiked shoulders.

The combatants were turned loose from cages. They didn't lose much time making it plain how they felt about each other. The tiger opened with a leap designed to land him on the buffalo's shoulders. The buffalo shook him off, lowered his head and charged. The tiger eluded him and once again sprang for the enemy's shoulders. He landed but couldn't keep his footing. Again he was shaken off but this time he drew blood from his claws digging into the back of his adversary's neck.

Lioness watching over her cubs.

This didn't do much physical damage but it did plenty by way of multiplying the fury of the buffalo. Again he charged and this time his aim was better. He caught the circling tiger amidships and sent him spinning on his back. The charge of a full-grown bull buffalo has spelled many an animal's doom. It is a charge that carries all before it. If the enraged bovine, one of the most terrible of fighters when aroused, had been quick enough he could have ended the fight then and there with his horns. But he was too slow in his frantic attempt to pin the tiger down and gore him. More than one tiger has met his death in a fight with a buffalo that trampled him after his terrible horns before the enemy had recovered from one of those awful charges.

The tiger, partly pinned down, wriggled loose and poised himself. He leaped. In a fraction of a second he was hanging from the buffalo's left forequarter, his hind claws unshakably imbedded in the animal's withers, his forepaws cruelly sunk into the shoulders, while with his murderous teeth he dug deep into the back of the neck. With an agonized bellow that was more of a sustained groan, the great jungle bull sank to his knees. Reaching out with his left forepaw, the great cat brought his claws around to a position in front of the buffalo's head. With a powerful thrust he cut down into the features which became a sickeningly gory mass. As he dug deeper and deeper with these hideous claws he pulled the probing paw downward as though he were manipulating a giant glass-cutter, and then when a final dig into the blood-spattered head gave him a grip that could not be broken, he braced himself with the other forepaw and gave a great yank toward himself that snapped the buffalo's neck.

The battle was over. The great horned fighter, in fitful gasps, was breathing his last.

The tiger continued to slash away at his fallen foe. He had conquered and was not ready to enjoy the fruits of victory. His sides were sore from the roughing the great bull had given him and one paw was out of commission—(the left hind leg which had somehow snapped in the tussle and now hung loosely)—but the main consideration was that here was a feast after a long fast and a hard fight.

You will have to pardon my reference to the tiger's victory. I assumed, of course, that he had earned some of the fruits of his victory. It seemed that I was mistaken. As the hungry cat started the first course of his banquet a shot rang out, the first of a series.

These little leaden tributes, all aimed at the tiger's head, found vulnerable resting places there and soon the tiger was no more. One of the maharajah's guards, who had been standing by during the fray, served as executioner.

It seems that the maharajah, no longer amused, found the limping tiger an eyesore. An incapacitated tiger approximated his idea of a nuisance, and this one, having fulfilled his destiny by relieving a few minutes of the royal tedium, was ordered shot.

I caught a glimpse of the prince as he descended from the platform just outside the walled enclosure from which he had watched the spectacle. The puffiness of his features suggested a head made of putty and stained dark to give the proper Hindu look. In each of the sacs that depended from the lower eyelids you could have stuffed a hen's egg. The unpleasant curl of the doughty lips that contributed further to the general evilness indicated that his princely highness was displeased.

The fight hadn't lasted long enough to suit him, I afterwards learned. After elaborate preparations, all he got for his trouble was a brief skirmish. It was galling. No wonder he had the tiger shot, poor man. Hadn't the silly beast wound up the fight in a hurry instead of dragging it out endlessly and showing his bored chieftain a good time? A tiger as lacking in consideration as that deserved what he got.

I looked around for Lal Bahudar, my native boy-of-all-jobs, and prepared to leave. Lal, more conservative than the rest of us who had watched the battle from the wall of the enclosure, had perched himself among the beautiful red blossoms of a near-by plane tree. Lal scrambled to the ground and ran toward me excitedly, emitting as whole-souled an epithet as ever greeted my ears.

In this quaint and playful manner, Lal was merely expressing his opinion of the execution he had just witnessed. In his brain there lingered an echo of something he had once heard his wicked master say (yes, I have much to answer for!) for he added, by way of making his meaning doubly clear, "He'sadamshame!"

Lal spoke broken English, in a typical native sing-song. He had a habit of running his words together into a jumble of syllables, sometimes unrecognizable.

Just as I was about to credit Lal with humanitarian instincts, he unleashed a hodge-podge of words that made it clear what was bothering him. What he regarded as a "damshame" was not the killing of the tiger but the fact that the beast had not been permitted to eat a square meal before he was sent to his doom.

Lal was as distressed by the idea of man or beast needlessly dying with an empty stomach. We discussed the subject at great length.

I tried to make Lal see that the question involved was not whether the tiger should have been allowed to have a final meal but, where it was sporting to make an animal fight for its life in combat with a dangerous opponent and then, when he had won, shoot him down in cold blood merely for the fun of seeing him expire.

I simply could not get my idea through Lal's head. He was a comparatively kind-hearted Hindu, which means that, while not nearly so bloodthirsty as his native royalty, he was not exactly merciful in his attitude toward wild animals, regardless of the circumstances. Had he understood what I meant by the sporting attitude he would have dismissed it as foolish sentimentality. Why should any one want to let a tiger, world-old enemy of man live? But it would have been so easy to let him have a last meal of buffalo meat before bumping him off. Over and over again he made his point, underscoring it each time with an eloquent curse. He kept it up until he had made the prince a direct descendant of all stray dogs since the year one and therefore not a prince at all but a rank mongrel.

PORTLAND, Ore.—A youth arrested for stealing gasoline from automobiles was found to have been in possession of a car stolen from Lou Wagner, criminal attorney. And Wagner very nearly was named an accomplice of the lad! He was partly to blame for the lad's actions, the deputy district attorney claimed, because his car which was stolen was such a high-powered, multicylindered affair that the boy had to steal gasoline from a number of different cars to keep it running.

MANY 'CURED' AT HOSPITAL

Castner Tells Kiwanis Of Work of State Institution

Members of the Kiwanis club were told Monday noon by Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls State hospital, that the restoration of patients to useful citizenship by that institution comprises a material return on the investment which it represents.

Pointing out that the hospital has for several years maintained an average of 55 per cent discharged patients, Dr. Castner declared his belief that "it more than pays its way" through that service.

The speaker familarized his hearers with the institution by describing in turn its various properties and departments, and by outlining the methods of treatment for mental diseases. He reported the physical plant as being worth about $2,500,000, representing 25 concrete and steel, fireproof buildings. In addition to its average population of 1,845 it employs 210 persons of whom 140 are attendants and nurses.

District Judge H. S. Lattimore of Fort Worth, a guest at the Monday luncheon, referred to Dr. Castner as "the most conscientious superintendent of a state hospital in Texas."

John Boswell, manager of the chamber of commerce, asked support of Kiwanians for aviation week, now being observed.

Kenneth Bebb, president, announced that Kiwanians will be entertained at the E. F. Riley farm on the Petrolia road Thursday night at 6:15 o'clock with a lamb barbecue dinner.

Frances Hope Hamilton entertained those present Monday with two tap dances. The program was arranged by Dr. O. W. Wilson.

Marrs. Monday's session was devoted to routine matters. Exhibits of vegetables raised on the county farm were brought in by L. N. Jernigan, superintendent. The display included giant turnips and onions, choice lettuce and "greens."

Chicken in the pot—pork chops in the pan—anybody like chicken? And how about pork chops and gravy? All free—yes, sir, free. No advertising stunt. Just given away by that bunch of red-topped Shriners immediately after their big ceremonial day parade which begins Tuesday afternoon at 4:30.

The parade will end at Eighth and Scott but the funmakers, bands, etc., will not go home but will continue to entertain the crowd while Noble J. T. Yeargin proceeds to present his stunt of feeding the multitude. Not with loaves and fishes but with pigs and chickens.

An area will be roped off on Scott and anybody who likes chicken or pork will be invited to enter the arena. Then comes the fun. The pork chops will be presented on the hoof in the shape of live porkers. All you have to do is to catch your pig and he is yours. You can either have side meat for suppor, or if you want to start up in the pig business you will have your start providing of course that you have a lady pig. There will be both kinds.

Then the chickens—It's going to rain chickens. Right out of the upstairs windows of the Kemp hotel and the Waggoner building they will come. Just reach up and grab yours.

All the needy are invited—needy millionaires, needy bankers, needy merchants, and just plain needy can come and get their next meal if they are lucky and agile.

200 JOIN IN TAXI PROTEST

'Petticoat Council' Accused Of Favoring Utility

Approximately 200 persons attended a mass meeting held in the 78th district courtroom Monday night for the purpose of protesting the city's 25-cent minimum taxi fare ordinance, and its action in arresting operators of 10 and 15-cent taxis for violation of that measure.

Monday night's assembly took the form of an indignation meeting, the audience responding with loud acclamation to attacks launched by a trio of speakers upon the city government.

Operators Give Views

Russell (Jack) Ballard, attorney who has represented the G. C. Williams dime-taxi service in its fight against the city's regulatory ordinance, presided at the meeting. Other speakers were J. C. Hampton, who organized the Hamp's Taxi company to introduce 10-cent tax service here, and O. T. Robson, one of its drivers.

Mr. Hampton reviewed his application for a license to operate. In obtaining the license from the city clerk, he said, he complied with every instruction given him, including the provision of personal liability and property damage insurance. He charged that the insurance provided by his taxi service exceeds that carried by the local traction company, and that the dime taxi service has proven more satisfactory to persons who purchase transportation.

"I don't want to compete with the street cars and buses," he said. "I begged the city council to pass a 15-cent minimum fare ordinance, so that we could operate without competing with the traction company. If I am not eating city beans Wednesday in the jail, I will be operating a 15-cent taxi."

Mr. Robson also told of obtaining required licenses and insurance and declared that he was assured by City Clerk W. E. McBroom that he would be privileged to operate for 12 months under the license he had obtained.

Council Assailed

Mr. Ballard denounced the city council as "a petticoat council which was afraid to buck the traction company, or the bigger transportation concerns." He stated that at least 40 cases against taxi drivers are scheduled for trial in corporation court here Wednesday.

"We believe firmly that this ordinance is unconstitutional because it is discriminatory," he said. "We are going to fight it until every legal resource has been exhausted. If any taxi driver is convicted here, we shall circulate a petition that will get enough signers to persuade the governor to issue a pardon. If this ordinance is maintained, we also are determined to circulate petitions which will persuade the council to call an election, so that the people of Wichita Falls themselves may decide whether they want 10-cent taxi service."

Support of local citizens for the low-price taxi operators was asked by each of the speakers.

TAXI OPERATOR REFUSED WRIT

George C. Williams, 10-cent taxi operator arrested by city officers last week for alleged violation of the city's 25-cent minimum taxi fare ordinance, was refused a writ of habeas corpus by Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the conclusion of a hearing which began at 10 a. m.

The plaintiff, represented by Attorney Russell Ballard, took the stand to testify that when applying for a taxi license several weeks ago, he told city officials that he purposed to operate at a 10-cent fare. He told also of being arrested for operating his taxi for less than the 25-cent minimum fare stipulated by the council in its recently adopted ordinance. Testimony to the same effect was given by O. T. Robson, another dime taxi driver.

Revocation of six taxi licenses in one day was recited by Judge Edgar Scurry, judge of the corporation court. Under questioning, W. E. McBroom, city clerk, described issuance of the taxi licenses, and told of the council meetings which resulted in adoption of the controlling ordinance.

City Manager V. R. Smitham denied from the stand that he ever had received official notice that the Wichita Falls Traction company had threatened several months ago to cease operation.

Thelbert Martin, city attorney, opposed granting of the writ sought by Williams. He was accompanied in the courtroom during part of the hearing by W. N. Bonner, counsel for the traction company.

Passage of the taxi-fare ordinance followed the devotion of four lengthy council meetings to the matter. An application for a restraining injunction against the city, forbidding enforcement of the ordinance, was denied by Judge William H. Atwell at Dallas, that court pleading lack of jurisdiction. A similar application, filed before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court here about three weeks ago, was set for hearing on Monday morning of this week. That hearing has been indefinitely postponed, purportedly to await definite action of higher courts in similar cases.

215 SIGN FOR SUMMER TERM

Full Classes Predicted For Short Session

A first day registration of 215 pupils for the Wichita Falls summer school session was reported by Registrar A. K. Presson Monday afternoon. The high school division was leading in number with 99 students enrolled.

Enrollment by divisions included 34 at the Junior college, 31 in junior high, and 51 in the elementary and primary grades. The figures for the elementary school equaled registration for the first day of the 1931 summer session and figures for the other departments compare favorable with the 1931 figures in view of current economic conditions, Mr. Presson said.

Additional enrollment in all divisions is expected Tuesday as class work opens. Classes open at 7:45 a. m. and school closes at 12:45 p. m.

C-C DIRECTORS

A regular meeting of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce directors will be held at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning for discussion of routine business, President A. E. Kelly said Monday.

Satterwhite Aims Attack at Terrell In Fight for Post on Rail Board campaigning for it. They are using good state automobiles on state time while they are doing it, too.

"The commission had its employes campaigning for it at practically every convention and gathering of any size in the state.

Employes Lead Campaign

"During the past 12 months when a popular convention was being held in a Texas city you would find that the railroad commission somehow always managed to have a case or so set down for hearing in the same town on the same date.

"The commission had employes at the East Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, at the state fair and at the Galveston bathing beauty revue.

"Imagine Chairman Terrell sitting up there trying to solve state problems when a bathing beauty revue is going on," he suggested.

In charging extravagance to the railroad commission, Mr. Satterwhite cited the recent evaluation of the Lone Star Gas company properties in Texas.

In December, 1931, he said, the commission executed a contract with Hawley, Frieze & Nichols of Fort Worth for this work, specifying that the expense should not exceed $45,500. The contract, the speaker declared, provided that the work should be completed in not more than 100 days and specified the salaries workers engaged in the evaluation should receive.

"Provision was made that John B. Hawley should receive $100 per day for his work, Frieze $75 per day and Nichols $75;" the candidate said. He cited other salaries for other employes ranging from $5 to $75 per day, plus necessary expenses.

"During the world war when money was plentiful and prices high, we wouldn't have thought much of those prices. But they would have been high even then. I know that Hawley received $50 per day during the war in connection with the construction of the air field at Waco. Even then the government objected to the high wage and made him a major to get out from under it."

Mr. Satterwhite carried with him a copy of the contract. He said that it was executed without the signature of Pat Neff, who claimed that the sums provided for the evaluation of Lone Star properties were extravagant.

Wichita Gas Rates

"Work of evaluating the Lone Star properties was completed and the report filed about 10 days ago," he said. "The commission set a public hearing for it late in July, making sure that hearings would come up after election time.

"Three or four weeks will be required for the hearings, and even then it can't be said what will result.

"You have a situation like that right here in Wichita Falls," he declared. In March, 1931, your city reduced gas rates by ordinance. The gas company secured an injunction restraining its enforcement. You haven't had any action yet.

"That's how your commission has functioned under C. V. Terrell.

"The prompt administration of these laws either should give you relief or tell you you can't have it," he declared.

Taking up the four important divisions of the Texas Railroad commission, the speaker outlined the duties of each. Citing the division which regulates railroads, the division for bus and truck regulation, the division for oil and gas conservation, and the division for regulation of utilities and their rates, he asserted that each should be under the supervision of a man competent in his particular division.

"If I had been railroad commissioner when the Lone Star evaluation proposition came up, I would have had a man in the utility division competent enough that he could have evaluated the property himself," Satterwhite said.

"The gas situation," he continued, "is one of the biggest the people of Texas have to deal with. It is necessary for a fair rate structure to have competent regulation of rates."

In dealing with the oil problem in connection with the railroad commission, the speaker declared that unless conservation laws that are fair and equitable to all can be had, the industry faces nothing but destruction.

DO YOU INHALE?

Is this question too revealing for other cigarettes?

We do not criticize others. We merely call your attention to the fact that the vital subject of inhaling has been generally avoided in cigarette advertising.

Why? What's there to be afraid of? Everybody inhales! Seven out of ten smokers inhale knowingly—the other three do so without realizing it. From your side—you want to be sure that the smoke you breathe in is pure and clean—free from certain impurities.

But from the manufacturer's side—he should be sure of giving you this protection. And if he is sure—he need not worry about the question: "Do you inhale?"

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
