The museum's decorations this season are Victorian and the same theme will be featured in the demonstrations.

The Rotary Club donated two Christmas trees to add to the museum's festive appearance.

In addition, the museum will be opening a new display of photographs titled "Yesterday's Child." The photos are reproductions from historical collections from approximately 1890 to 1915.

Following the close of activities at the Scurry County Museum, the Diamond M Museum will open its holiday exhibit "Sacred Paths."

Visitors will be invited to make an "ojo-de-dios" to decorate the tree in the second floor lobby. Refreshments will be served from 3 until 5 p.m.

'Scrooge' due at junior high

Some 68 students — representing the combined junior high drama and choral departments — will present a musical version of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" next Friday, Saturday and Monday.

The production will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the junior high school auditorium. The musical, entitled "Scrooge," was arranged by James Leisy, the same arranger of "Alice," which was performed by the junior high school drama and choral departments last spring.

Included in the cast are Judson Morrison as Scrooge; Bert Otto, Jason Callahan and Blaine Irons as clerks; David Trevey as Scrooge's nephew Fred; Robert Neblett and Kelli McLarty as Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cratchit; Todd Perry as Marley's Ghost; and Michelle Pilgrim as Tiny Tim.

Playing the part of Christmas Past is LaFon Williams and Julie Newbury is Christmas Present. Christmas Future will be played by Dena Martin.

Directors for the musical are Ellie Dryden and Barbara Perkins. Tickets will be on sale starting Monday at the junior high school. Admission will be $2. Tickets will be on sale at the door if seats are available.

In addition to the cast of 33 members, an additional 35 member chorus will be providing the musical background.

High-level talks end

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Amin Gemayel of Lebanon ends high-level talks with U.S. leaders encouraged by strong American support and "opportunities for progress," but with no quick solutions in sight, a key aide says.

"President Gemayel wants very quick progress on all fronts," Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem told reporters Friday afternoon after the latest round of meetings with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

"He is not going to get this," Salem said. "There are problems and bottlenecks. ... You don't get everything you want."

There was nothing in remarks by either side to indicate Shultz and Gemayel had agreed on anything that will help achieve a rapid withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon.

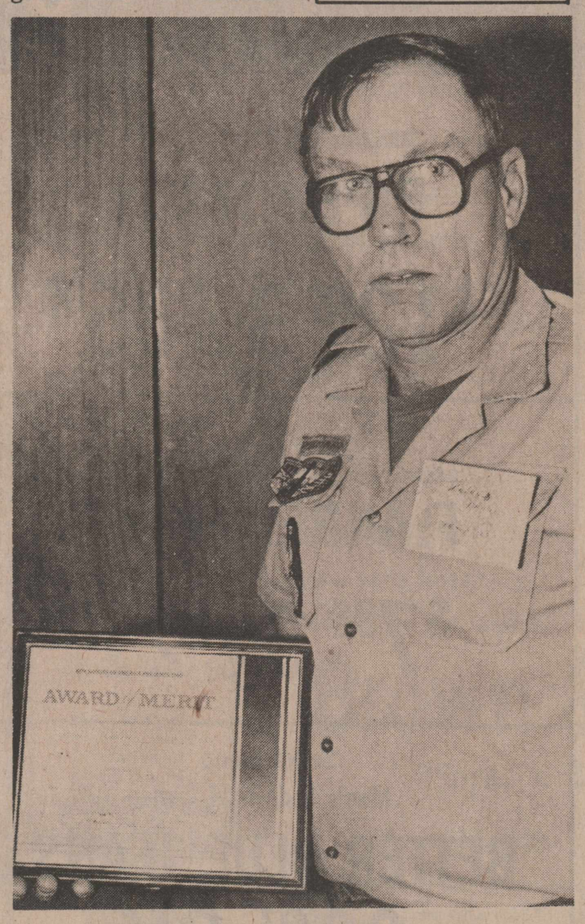

As is common when diplomats discuss difficult problems of great complexity, Salem was less than specific when asked exactly what opportunities he sees to ease Lebanon's civil war and erect a government of national reconciliation among warring factions. He also had no specifics on how to achieve the withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces from his country.

But Salem did say he believes Syria is displaying a new and "positive spirit ... to help the Lebanese government consolidate its political authority in the country."

After the latest round of talks with Gemayel, Shultz told journalists he and the Lebanese president agree there is a "genuine sense of urgency" about the need to make progress in Lebanon.

And Shultz announced the formation of joint military and economic committees to speed the search for solutions.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Your mind begins to work when you're born, and it doesn't stop until you are called on to make a speech."

Thanks to eight-year-old Lisa Kay Nix, a third grade student at West Elementary, we were able to read an article in last Sunday's Dallas News about a Texas character and name-sake of Scurry County.

Miss Nix spotted the article by Frank X. Tolbert and sent us a clipping. Dateline was Inadale, the Scurry County village on U.S. 84 named after an early-day belle, Ms. Inadale Wooten.

The article, however, centered around Gen. William Read (Dirty Neck Bill) Scurry. Tolbert wrote, "Judging from his nickname, Scurry (1821-1864) suffered from the television commercial problem called 'ring around the collar.'"

The article pointed out that Scurry was a Republic of Texas congressman, a lawyer celebrated for his readiness as an extemporaneous speaker. He was one of the owners of the State Gazette, an Austin newspaper dedicated to derailing the political career of Gen. Sam Houston.

Tolbert reported that in 1860 Bill Scurry must have done something to offend Houston, who was then governor of Texas. Gov. Houston thus described Bill Scurry's neck:

"Well, the professor (the state geologist) has reported to me that he found six distinct strata of filth on Bill Scurry's neck. And in the last layer, the one next to the hide, the geologist found the fossil remains of animalculae."

Others, like British author Fremantle, described Bill Scurry as a quite, cultured and amusing gentleman."

As Scurry County begins its 100th year celebration, much will be written about the county and its people. Time has a way of clouding memories, such as the diverse views of Gen. Scurry.

However, we're looking forward to the celebration and the recall of the colorful past. Charles Anderson's planned book, "Deep Creek Merchant," the story of Pete Snyder, will be ready for distribution Dec. 10.

Ask Us

Q. — What should a person do if they are stranded in the snow late at night or out in the country?

A. — One suggestion is to follow a requirement placed on U.S. Air Force personnel stationed in North Dakota during the winter months. Airmen are not allowed off base unless they have in their vehicle a blanket, a candle and matches. The heat from a single candle in a closed car is said to be sufficient to keep an individual from freezing to death.

In Brief

Early settlement not likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Greyhound Lines and the union representing its drivers are trying through a federal mediator to end the month-old drivers strike, but the company's top executive says he's not optimistic about an early settlement.

Sources close to the negotiations confirmed Friday that the two sides were considering fresh union concessions in indirect discussions at a Washington area hotel with further talks planned for today.

But the sessions were cloaked in secrecy with neither the union nor the company divulging their nature nor whether any face-to-face bargaining was involved. The two sides were working with Kay McMurray, director of the Federal Mediation and Concilation Service.

Leaders of the Amalgamated Transit union, which represents 12,700 Greyhound drivers, and company officials honored a self-imposed news blackout on the meetings, not even giving the location of the discussions.

Israeli plane raid targets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes releasing scarlet anti-missile heat balloons bombed leftist and Palestinian guerrilla positions in Lebanon's central mountains Saturday.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the planes scored "accurate hits" on headquarters and bases of "several terrorist organizations" under Syrian influence, then returned safely to base after the 10 minute raid that began at 8:05 a.m. (1:05 a.m. EST)

The air strike, Israel's fourth in a month, came one day after a guerrilla ambush killed an Israeli soldier and wounded four more. But the military command said the raid was in retaliation for a "long array" of attacks on Israeli troops in southern Lebanon.

Beirut's state-run and privately owned radio stations said the jets bombed and strafed targets in and around the mountaintop towns of Bhamdoun and Sofar on the Beirut-Damascus highway in Syrian-controlled central Lebanon.

Band boosters to meet

The Snyder Band Boosters will conduct their regular monthly meeting Monday in the high school band hall beginning at 7 p.m.

Orders will be accepted for the videotape of the band. All parents of junior high and high school band members are urged to attend.

Computer buy aid offered

Help in making decisions on purchasing home computer systems will be offered here Tuesday at a workshop sponsored by the Scurry County Program Building Committee in cooperation with the County Extension Office.

It is planned at 7 p.m. in Room 118 of Snyder High School. All area residents are invited.

Mrs. Larry Early, math teacher at Snyder High School, will present the program. Many of the questions regarding parts of computer systems, programs available and capabilities of various computers will be answered.

C-Club directors chosen

Four new members were elected to the board of directors for the Snyder Country Club Friday during the annual general meeting of club members.

New directors will be Jim Simpson, Suzy Reed, Eddie Epley and Buck Ramblin.

Directors remaining on the board include Don Sealy, Pete Greene and Mickey Nunley.

Sexual potency

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I sent away for some tablets to improve my sexual performance and am anxious to continue them. But after reading one of your Health Letters, I stopped taking them.

The tablets really improve my erection. However, if there is any danger of cancer, I must not take the tablets any more. It is really unbelievable how this tablet has inspired me after taking it for just two days. But one article said my organs would enlarge. Do you think it would be all right for me to take them?

DEAR READER — My advice to all is that no one should take any of the medicines or use any of the devices advertised to improve sexual performance or potency that are promoted by mail. That includes the product you are taking. If these preparations were truly useful, they would be approved by the Food and Drug Administration and would be available as prescription drugs.

What are they? Often they are a combination of vitamins or minerals that occur in a well-balanced diet. If you happen to get a preparation that includes hormones in it without a prescription, it is being dispensed illegally. Taking medicines dispensed by someone operating outside the law is not wise, to say the least.

The testimonials you sent me are common for such promotions. Claims that taking a pill will enable you to have sex as often as you want, day or night, to age 95 and beyond simply take advantage of people's hopes and lack of knowldege.

Why is your sexual response better? It is the old confidence game: We know that if a man believes some-

DEALING WITH HOLIDAY DEPRESSION

Why is it that during the period around the Holidays, most people start "feeling their age?" All of a sudden, it seems that they tire more easily and can't quite cope with all the confusion and merriment.

The truth of the matter is most people are suffering plain old fatigue. They find themselves on a tighter schedule than ever, trying to squeeze in the shopping, the entertaining, the visiting, and all the other Yuletide and New Year activities.

The American Chiropractic Association has made a study of the situation. It has a recommendation that will make all the difference in the world as to how you feel.

Start by eating nutritionally. Get plenty of pro teins, and fruit. Bananas and raisins, both rich in natural sweeteners, are a great afternoon pick-me-up.

In addition to watching your diet, you should also drink plenty of water. Maintain a regular exercise schedule in spite of the distractions of the Holidays. After exercise, treat yourself to a cool shower. And at night, relax in a warm bath.

When you're ready for sleep, make sure your mattress is in good condition. If your spine sags in bed, your back muscles are being strained.

It is equally important to care for your posture when you arise. Stand up straight and face the world. Slouching crowds the lungs, making your breath shallowly.

If possible, take rest breaks during the day. Relaxing with your eyes closed provides about 80% as much rest as you would get if you were actually sleeping.

Your doctor of chiropractic, who offers preventive and rehabilitative counsel in addition to corrective health treatment, recommends that you follow this list of fatigue-fighting measures. They should give you the energy to not only cope with the Holidays, but approach the New Year with enthusiasm.

Ball misses character

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten years after she stopped production on her last television series, Lucille Ball says she misses the crazy character she created.

"I like Lucy very much, and I really do miss her," Miss Ball, 72, said in an interview. Her shows — "I Love Lucy," "The Lucy Show" and "Here's Lucy" — are still seen by 500,000 viewers in 80 countries through syndication.

Despite her extensive TV experience, she said she was "tongue-tied" when she appeared on Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show and was "a nervous wreck" on a recent special celebrating Bob Hope's 80th birthday.

Miss Ball made her comments for an article to be published in January's Ladies Home Journal.

In the interview, she said her ex-husband, Desi Arnaz, "was much smarter than anyone thought. He was a great showman, a great businessman, a fantastic entrepreneur, and I loved watching the executives finding that out.

8 arrests here Friday

Snyder police jailed eight subjects Friday evening on various misdemeanor charges.

Two local men were jailed for misdemeanor possession of marijuana and possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia while two others were arrested on DWI charges.

One of the men charged with DWI was also charged with driving with a suspended license. A total of four persons were arrested for public intoxication during the evening.

Obituaries

She died Friday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. She was born May 9, 1929 in the Newmore community. She had lived in Sweetwater for 15 years before moving to Snyder a few months ago.

Survivors include two daughters, Karen Renee Galvan of Austin and Cheryl Ann Brazelton of Sweetwater; two sons, Billy Allen and Jerry Dale, both of Snyder; four sisters, Janice Tucker and Shirley Warren, both of Hermiston, Ore., Judy Carson of Tyler and Kaye of Corpus Christi; five brothers, Roger Brown of Sweetwater, Don Brown of Kennewick, Wash.; Douglas Brown of Denver City, John Brown of Hobbs, N. M., Joe Paul Brown of Granbury and five grandchildren.

Tree struck by vehicle

Two traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Friday.

The first accident, a minor hit-and-run incident, was reported at 6:46 a.m. in the 600 Block of 33rd St. According to police reports, a 1974 Toyota fled the scene after the car collided with a tree in the front yard of the Fred Soliz residence at 610 33rd St.

The identity of the driver was unknown Saturday morning. Damage to both the tree and the car was rated minor to moderate.

Two cars and an outdoor stairway at the Kingswood Apartments in the 100 Block of 37th St. were involved in the day's second mishap, reported at 9:01 a.m.

According to accident reports, a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Juan Lujan of 1703 17th St. hit a parked 1981 Chevrolet owned by Emma Ramirez of the Kingswood Apartments. The impact pushed the vehicle into the apartment house stairway.

Damage to both vehicles and the stairway was listed as minor to moderate.

Saddened by whale's death

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) — Scientists were saddened to lose one of three pygmy killer whales that beached themselves on Mustang Island, but say the whales' predicament gave them a rare opportunity to study the rare marine mammals in captivity.

"R2D2," as it was nicknamed, was believed by researchers to be a juvenile. It died Friday when scientists attempted to transfer it out of a holding tank at the Texas Marine Science Institute.

A spokesman for the institute said the other two whales were believed to be an adult male and an adult female, but said researchers could only speculate whether the three constituted a family.

All three were 6 to 7 feet long.

Anthony Amos, a research associate and physical oceanographer who led a University of Texas team that rescued the beached whales Thursday, said researchers were able to record what are could be the first recordings of pygmy killer whales communicating with each other.

Chris Kitting, a marine biologist at the institute, said hydrophones were placed near the blow holes and near the "mellon" (forehead) of the three whales to record the high pitched chattering, whistling, clicking and low-pitched moans from the three marine mammals.

Gulf Oil Corp. squares off with noted oilman

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. Chairman James E. Lee and oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., in a showdown before Gulf stockholders, appealed for support in their campaigns to lead the nation's fifth-largest oil company in different directions.

Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. of Amarillo, Texas, heads an investor group that has laid down nearly $1 billion in hopes of sending Gulf stock prices through the roof by forcing management to pay petroleum royalties directly to shareholders.

Lee asked that shareholders vote a majority of the company's 165 million outstanding shares in favor of reincorporating under Delaware business laws that would dilute the influence of the Mesa group's 12.5 percent interest in Gulf.

"The Mesa group has dangled before you the prospect that shareholders could get rich quick. We believe their market analysis is badly flawed. In our opinion, the numbers they've come up with are just plain wrong," said Lee.

Pickens said of the Gulf managers, "All we're asking them to do is share a portion of the cash flow.

"In the last five years they've lost 30 percent of their reserve base. We see an opportunity here before these assets are depleted to share them with the stockholders," he said.

Lee warned that the Texan's plan to create such a royalty trust at Gulf would rob the company of cash needed to finance expensive oil and gas exploration, and would subject individual shareholders to new tax liabilities.

Both sides said they were encouraged by shareholder support for their positions and predicted a close vote in a campaign which the proponents say will have cost each side some $7 million to $8 million.

The results of the voting are not expected for several weeks. The blue and white proxy cards will be validated and hand counted by an independent company.

Much of the voting had been done by mail and phone before Friday's session, but both sides said they were prohibited by law from disclosing preliminary tallies.

The 55-year-old Pickens wants Gulf to spin off enough royalty-producing petroleum reserves to pay out $750 million a year to shareholders. Such a royalty trust would double the payout from Gulf shares and drive up the combined value of shares in the trust and what remains in Gulf, he says.

The Mesa group's 20.5 million shares could control three seats on Gulf's 13-member board at May's scheduled elections. But if management wins the proxy battle, the Mesa group would get only one vote for each of its shares, not the 13 it would have under the company's charter in Pennsylvania.

Pickens told shareholders the group was committed to Mesa Gulf for the "long run."

Woman testifies deputies stripped her by road

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman testified a sheriff's son stopped her car twice in 1981 and the second time he threw her to the ground beside a highway and ripped her clothes off in a search for drugs.

"He told me I had drugs and told me to give them up," Kerrey Thomas testified Friday. "I told him that if he thought I had drugs to take me downtown and have a female officer search me."

Instead, the 22-year-old Florida woman said, Parker "got another deputy to hold me down" and tore into her shirt and jeans looking for drugs.

The search revealed a package of pills which she had hidden in her pants, after which, she said, Parker "started feeling in my pants again."

Parker, a reserve deputy whose father, James C. "Humpy" Parker, was sheriff of San Jacinto County, is one of four men charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of several drivers. A federal indictment accuses them of operating a lucrative "marijuana trap" to take drugs, weapons and money from drivers they stopped.

The younger Parker, former deputy Robert Rice, 25; Coldspring bail bondsman Herbert R. Atwood, 53; and former bail bondsman, banker and state representative James L. Browder are being tried in U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor's court.

The elder Parker, already convicted of torturing jail inmates to gain confessions, is jailed and undergoing psychiatric evaluation. He is to be tried later.

Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Burton Christian was among several other witnesses who testified Friday they were victims of the trap.

Christian said several deputies stopped the van in which he was moving his belongings in 1981.

He said none of them looked at his identification. One deputy searched the van and awakened his wife by ransacking her purse and taking her cold tablets, Christian said.

He said the deputies never told him why he was stopped but let him go when they found out he was a state trooper.

Ms. Thomas said the November incident which she described was the second time in 1981 that she and her boyfriend were stopped by San Jacinto County deputies.

The first time, she said, was in July. She said Gary Parker told the couple their license plate light was out. Ms. Thomas said she and her boyfriend paid $320 after they were taken to jail.

"There were a bunch of other people in jail. Some of them were children, as a matter of fact," she said.

The couple met Atwood, who first said it would cost them $1,000 to get out, then said it would be $500, she testified.

"We paid it," she said. The pair also paid $300 to an attorney, she said, "and we were told we were supposed to pay $600 more, but we never did."

Miss Thomas said she never really understood how the fees and fines were determined.

She said the couple was never officially charged, but Atwood told them "it was for the license plate light being out."

Graduate classes not available

Texas Tech University will be unable to offer graduate level courses at Western Texas College during the spring semester, Dr. Ben Brock, WTC executive vice president, said.

Dr. Brock had contacted Tech this week and was told that officials there were looking into the possibility of offering courses at a later date.

Fluvanna Day scheduled Monday

Monday will be Fluvanna Day in the senior citizens center and residents of the Fluvanna community are invited to be special guests on that day.

Monday is also "red and green" day in the center and everyone visiting the center is asked to wear articles of clothing in those colors.

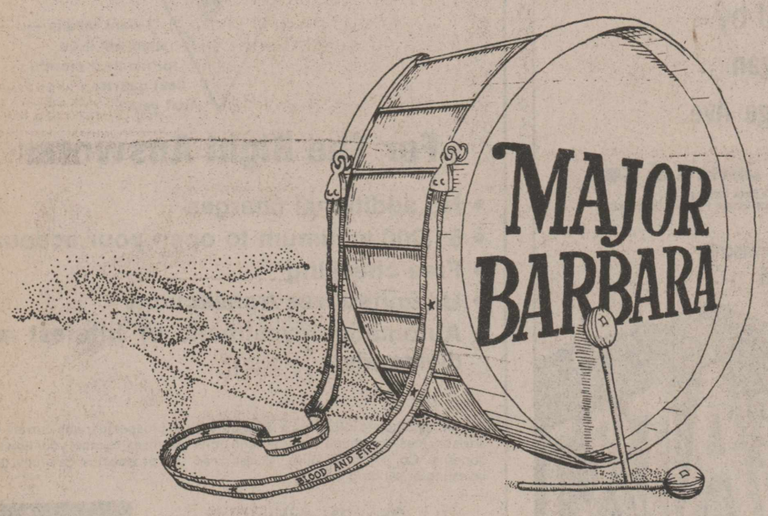

Identification cards for senior citizens will be issued by the center from Dec. 5-9. These cards entitle the holders to discounts from 17 Snyder businesses as well as free admission to Western Texas College home basketball games. The cards are free and are valuable for identification purposes since they carry such information as a telephone number to be called in the event of an emergency and the name of the holder's doctor.

Persons wishing to obtain cards are to go to the center between 9-11 a.m. or 1:30-3:30 p.m. during the week. Those who have obtained temporary cards can have them replaced during the week.

The center will host its annual Christmas gala on Dec. 15, with a dinner served at 6:30 p.m. Reservations must be made by Dec. 9 because of the seating space available. The center will be closed Dec. 23-26 for Christmas.

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

Horror stories are beginning to trickle in from the column I wrote a few weeks ago on young adults living away from home for the first time.

They run the gamut from a kid who used an electric blanket to heat up rolls to another one who kept his refrigerator plugged in only because he stored his film there.

Possibly the best story involves a girl who left home right after college and moved to another city where she got her first apartment. "It was quite a learning experience," she said, "cleaning the toilet, vacuuming, watering the plants and everything."

That's when she discovered paper plates. Why should she concern herself doing dishes when she could simply eat and toss them away? Then one evening, she decided to entertain and for this occasion she dragged out the "hard dishes." "After all," she said, "It wouldn't be too bad. When my company left, I'd put them in the dishwasher and they would wash as I slept."

When the guests took their leave, our heroine opened up the dishwasher to discover it was an OVEN. SHE HAD NO DISHWASHER!! She signed herself, "The Happy Homemaker."

As parents, we beat ourselves to death asking, "Where did we fail?" It's time we stopped doing that. Our influence over our children is minimal. Having spent ¾ of my adult life in the kitchen, I still have children who have no curiosity whatsoever as to how to turn on a stove.

I can only offer these words of advice from a woman with some experience.

Never drop in on your children unless you have a glycerine tablet ready to slip under your tongue. You can maintain a relationship with them and still not know where the dog eats and what a quart of milk is doing on the back of the commode. I'd give them lead time of four to six weeks' notice before you visit.

Never ask to see the wool afghan you brought them from Ireland and paid $88 for. (I did that once and discovered they had popped it into a washer and dryer and were now using it for a coaster to set their drinks on.)

Resist the temptation to bring their apartment up to health standards. It will only cause you pain when you return in a few months and find everything as it was before you cleaned it.

Remember ... one of these days ... they'll have children of their own. It's all that keeps you going.

Speaker says kids 'fear growing up'

A practicing psychologist told members of the Scurry County Task Force Thursday night that he thinks drug and alcohol problems among the young can be linked to a "fear of growing up."

Rod Cannedy of Abilene said children he treats have expressed this fear. He traced this to two conditions often treated.

This fear can produce a compulsion to over eat or a phobia where children are afraid to leave their homes.

"Adults are not making growing up attractive to children," he said. "They don't act as if they enjoy being adults."

The task force now plans a New Year's Eve party co-sponsored by the Snyder High School Student Council.

In addition, the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance declared Dec. 18 a day of prayer related to county's drug and alcohol problem.

Dr. Krenek's review to be published soon

A book review by Dr. Harry Krenek, dean of instruction at Western Texas College, will appear in the 1983 West Texas Historical Association Yearbook.

Dr. Krenek reviewed "Oil Booms: Social Change in Five Texas Towns" written by Roger M. Olien and Diana David Olien and published by the University of Nebraska Press.

True to its title, "Oil Booms" is more spciology then traditional history, more scholarly examination than stimulating reading," Krenek noted. "The authors never claim otherwise and make clear from the outset that their purpose is not to perpetuate the stereotype of wide-open, rowdy oil town. 'Rather than retell tall tales,' the authors write, "Oil Booms" shifts the focus on petroleum development from folklore to social and economic history."

Booms in five West Texas towns--Midland, Odessa, McCamey, Wink and Snyder--are examined in an attempt to determine the effect of petroleum activity on community life. An introduction on the phenomenon of oil booms leads into the specific themes and a chapter entitled "After the Boom" concludes the study.

Krenek himself covered a different aspect of Texas oil booms in his book, "The Power Vested." The book concerns the role of the Texas National Guard as the state's primary law enforcement agency from 1912-1932 and included their activities in the booms in East Texas, Mexia, Borger and Sherman.

BIRTHS

Susan and Jerry Anderson are parents of a baby girl born at 1:30 p.m. on Dec. 1 at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene. She weighed six pounds, 10½ ounces and has been named Heather Suzanne.

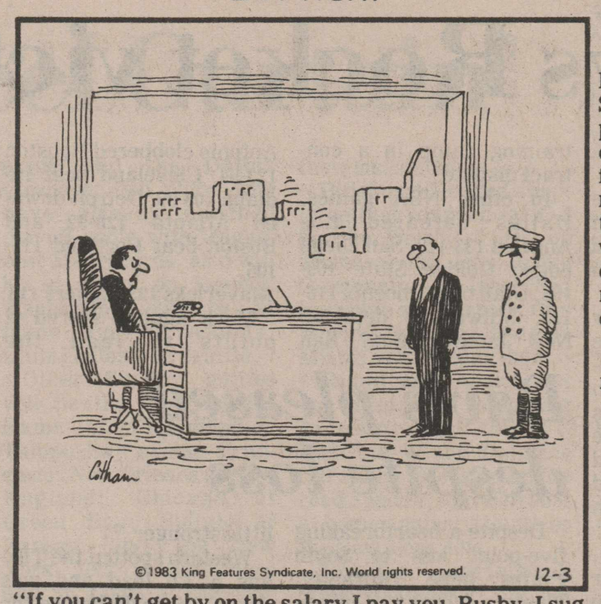

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rinker of Snyder.

Some 75 people were reported killed in 1965 when hurricane Betsy hit Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Nine tourists were killed in 1979 by rocks and hot ash from Mount Etna in Sicily.

Glitch fixed, experiments continue

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Spacelab's astronauts pressed ahead with dozens of experiments today after fixing a jammed tape recorder that threatened to curtail their mission, while scientists on Earth called the stream of information from the orbit "excellent."

The emphasis was on materials processing and medical tests today as Red Team astronauts Ulf Merbold and Bob Parker and the Blue Team of Owen Garriott and Byron Lichtenberg continued the round-the-clock, two-shift operation that began with liftoff from Florida on Monday.

The flight plan also called for them to study stars deep in space and to probe the atmosphere with electron beams.

Hayes keys Rocket victory

by The Associated Press

At 38 years old, Elvin Hayes is the oldest player in the National Basketball Association.

Friday night, he found himself having to sub for one of the league's newest players, 7-foot-4 rookie Ralph Sampson.

Sampson drew three fouls in the first six minutes, and Hayes came off the bench to score 16 points - supplementing the 22 points and nine rebounds of rookie Rodney McCray - to lead Houston to a 125-102 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Houston Coach Bill Fitch said he "had a gut feeling" about making the substitution.

"Why you do a thing like that, I don't know," Fitch said. "I guess the good Lord takes care of dumb Irishmen."

Seattle led 32-31 after one quarter, but Hayes scored 10 points in the second period as Houston took over. The 16 points boosted Hayes over the 27,000-point mark, behind only Wilt Chamberlain and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in all-time scoring.

McCray's 22 points, meanwhile, were a career high for the rookie who started for the first time after reporting late to training camp in a contract dispute.

In other NBA games, Dallas defeated Los Angeles 133-118, San Diego edged Golden State 109-108, Utah beat Phoenix 116-113, Milwaukee defeated New Jersey 122-107, San Antonio clobbered Houston 123-94, Cleveland beat Indiana 108-99, Detroit downed Atlanta 128-92 and Boston beat Portland 115-106.

Mavericks 133, Lakers 118

Mark Aguirre scored 42 points to lead the Mavericks to their seventh straight victory, while Los Angeles saw a three-game winning streak end.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson sustained a dislocated finger with Dallas leading 112-108 with 5:42 to play. After Johnson left the game, Dallas outscored Los Angeles 21-10. A doctor said Johnson would to be out of action for 5-6 weeks.

Davis pleased despite loss

Despite a heartbreaking five-point loss to South Plains here Thursday, Western Texas College Coach Barry Davis was in high spirits.

"No loss is easy to digest, but I saw a lot of improvement from a lot of different people and surely their heart was in it and the effort was there," he said of the 82-77 defeat. "I'm not disappointed with any individual or the team as a whole. We're improving. If we can start games like we played the last 20 minutes we'll be alright. Each game we're getting a little stronger."

Western spotted the Texans a 7-0 lead and was down 17-6 early before the team rallied back and kept it close the rest of the way. The Westerners had several chances to tie the score late in the game, but could not convert.

"We're coming along. We're going to NMMI (in Roswell, N.N.) Monday. The Military are always tough at their place so it's probably going to take all we can do. But we're looking for wins in our last two (conference) games," the coach said.

WTC men host Howard on Dec. 8 and finish up the first half of the season by entertaining non-conference foe Ranger on Dec. 10.

Felines knocked from tourney

LEVELLAND -- Snyder's varsity girls couldn't get anything going in the third quarter here Thursday or Friday, and it cost them.

Thursday, Snyder trailed 33-29 at half but gave up a 19-point advantage in the third to Odessa Permian before losing, 72-46. In the second game, Snyder trailed only 22-19 at the half but was trimmed 9-6 in the third and 18-16 in the fourth to fall, 59-51 to Lubbock High.

The losses eliminated the girls, now 1-2 for the season, from the Levelland Tournament here. They are to entertain Brownfield on Dec. 6 for their next outing.

"They were both morning games and of course we weren't accustom to those, and just had terrible third quarters," said SHS Coach Ken Housden. "I think we learned something from the tournament."

Karleen Thompson knocked down 14 points and had 11 rebounds in the game with Permian while Carie Housden and Becky Gray added 11 points apiece. Housden led on the boards with 12 rebounds.

Thompson recorded 22 points and 12 boards in the second game while Carmen Rios had 12 points. Housden again led in rebounds with 14.

NBA talks get federal mediator

NEW YORK (AP) - Negotiators for the National Basketball Association and the NBA referees union will go back to the bargaining table to try to settle their contract dispute - and this time, they'll have a federal mediator to help things along.

A spokesman for the NBA said Friday that both sides will meet Wednesday in New York with Federal Mediator Ed MacMahon sitting in on the session.

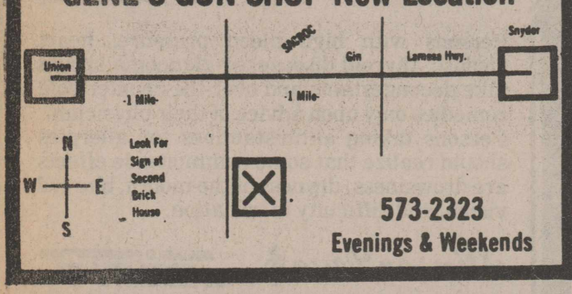

In a terse news release, a league spokesman said: "The NBA and the referees' union agreed yesterday (Thursday) to accept Ed McMahon, based in Washington, D.C., as the mediator designated by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to assist the two sides in settling their labor dispute."

The meeting is scheduled to start on Wednesday at 11 a.m., the NBA spokesman said.

The negotiators agreed to federal help after a failing to settle a new contract for the veteran referees, who have not worked since their contract expired on Sept. 1. There have been sporadic negotiations since.

Meanwhile, both exhibition and regular season games have been worked by substitute referees.

Browns gaining on 'Steel Curtain'

by The Associated Press

While Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" continues to melt in recent National Football League games, the Cleveland Browns are putting some heat on the Steelers in their division race.

At one time thought to be a cinch to win the American Conference Central Division, the 9-4 Steelers now hold just a one-game lead over the fast-closing Browns, 8-5, who have won three straight games and four of their last five, two by shutouts.

On Sunday, the Browns take on the Denver Broncos, another playoff-hopeful team, in their rush toward a post-season berth.

"Denver is in the hunt, and they'll play like heck to stay in the hunt," said Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano. "I've coached on that staff. I know that's a well-coached defensive team, and I'm sure they feel their backup players in the secondary will get the job done.

"As for Denver's offense, I think they lost their flow when Steve DeBerg went out with an injury. But (John) Elway is a tremendous talent. He's like a pitcher - he just needs one good nine-inning game, and then look out."

The Steelers, meanwhile, have a chance to clinch a wild-card playoff berth if they win Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals. The Miami Dolphins can also join the playoff-bound group by beating the Houston Oilers.

The Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys, two clubs who have already clinched playoff spots with league-best 11-2 records, also will be in action on Sunday. Washington will be at home against Atlanta, while Dallas is at Seattle.

Other Sunday games will be the Los Angeles Rams at Philadelphia; Tampa Bay at San Francisco; New Orleans at New England; Chicago at Green Bay; Buffalo at Kansas City; the New York Jets at Baltimore and St. Louis at the New York Giants.

On Monday night, Minnesota will play at Detroit, two teams which are tied for first in the NFC Central with 7-6 records.

Last Thursday night, the Los Angeles Raiders, 11-3, clinched the AFC West title with a 42-10 rout of San Diego.

Denver expects to have only one regular in its secondary on Sunday. Louis Wright will man his usual left cornerback spot, but the other three starters - right cornerback Mike Harden and safeties Dennis Smith and Steve Foley - are listed as doubtful with injuries.The 7-6 Broncos also will be without their second-leading receiver, Rick Upchurch, who reinjured a nerve in his neck.

"We've just got to get after it," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "I would like to see us rebound from a very poor performance last week. We weren't aggressive, we didn't hustle, we didn't play with much enthusiasm. We're not a good enough football team to expect to win when we play like that."

The Broncos are battling for one of two wild card playoff spots in the American Conference. Two other teams, Seattle and Buffalo, have the same 7-6 record as Denver, and it's likely that only one of the three will qualify for post-season action.

Cleveland, meanwhile, has the inside track on a wild card berth with the best record of any second-place team to date.

Terry Bradshaw is practicing again, but Cliff Stoudt, who has been the starter all season, will be at quarterback when Pittsburgh tries to snap a two-game losing streak in a battle of two teams that both were embarrassed in their last starts.

Pittsburgh looked inept in getting whipped by 45-3 by the Detroit Lions on Thanksgiving Day, while Cincinnati was shredded by rookie quarterback Dan Marino in losing 38-14 to Miami last Monday night.

Miami needs to win just one of its three remaining games to clinch the AFC East and if the Dolphins fail against Houston on the road Sunday, they can do it at home against Atlanta or the New York Jets.

Regular quarterback Steve Bartkowski did not play last week in Atlanta's 47-41 overtime victory over Green Bay and is questionable again Sunday. Backup Mike Moroski completed 22 of 35 passes for 303 yards and two touchdowns against the Packers.

The Atlanta defense, which couldn't stop Green Bay, will be faced with the passing of Joe Theismann, who has completed 232 of 386 passes for 3,117 yards and 22 touchdowns, and the running of John Riggns, 1,049 yards, and Joe Washington, 682 yards.

Seattle scored 51 points in beating Kansas City in overtime last Sunday - a total the Seahawks will have a hard time approaching against the tough Dallas defense.

Saints are not suspects in drug investigation

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - After George Rogers and six other New Orleans Saints players testified before a federal grand jury looking into drugs and other matters, U.S. Attorney John Volz said they were not suspected of any wrongdoing.

"They are all only witnesses," Volz said of the National Football League team players who appeared Friday. "None of these people are targets. We found no wrongdoing by these players."

He said the grand jury investigation was "not limited to drugs." But he would not elaborate.

Volz said although the grand jury investigation was continuing, he had finished with the Saints.

Those subpoenaed with Rogers, a running back, included: Wayne Wilson, fullback; Frank Warren and Reggie Lewis, defensive ends; Lindsay Scott, wide receiver; and Russell Gary and Rodney Lewis, defensive backs.

Volz said that "there is absolutely no connection between this instance and what happened last year."

Last year, Volz prosecuted former Saints running back Mike Strachan, who pleaded guilty to charges of selling cocaine and conspiring to sell cocaine. Strachan is serving a three-year sentence at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Rogers and Warren were among those listed as potential witnesses who would have been called to testify about cocaine purchases from Strachan, had the case gone to trial.

Strachan was the first NFL-connected person to be convicted in the wake of widely publicized remarks by Don Reese, former defensive end for the Miami Dolphins, the Saints and the San Diego Chargers. Reese said cocaine was used openly at New Orleans during the Saints' 1-15 season of 1980.

Rogers, Wilson and Scott met reporters after leaving the session, but they let their lawyers do most of the talking. Wilson and Scott said only that they didn't know how their names became linked with the investigation.

Ed Holler, representing former Heisman Trophy winner Rogers, responded to each question with, "I can't comment at all."

Joe McMahon, representing Wilson, said, "He has appeared and testified. He answered all questions asked. He had no knowledge of any wrongdoing or violations of federal law."

"There's nothing much I can say," said Dan Markey, representing Scott. "It's just unnecessary."

Last weekend, Rogers said angrily that he felt he was being victimized because his name is so well known.

"I ain't doing anything, and they better quit saying I am," he said. It was hard to prepare for a football game while his name was being linked to a drug investigation, he said.

LSU Fires Stovall; grabs up Arnsparger

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Jerry Stovall has been fired and Bill Arnsparger hired as head football coach at Louisiana State University.

"I am no longer the LSU football coach, I am now the team's biggest fan. I don't have any plans, except that I'm looking for a vocation," Stovall said Friday after the LSU Board of Supervisors voted to accept the recommendation of Athletic Director Bob Brodhead and buy out Stovall's contract.

About two hours later, the board accepted Brodhead's recommendation that Arnsparger, currently the defensive coordinator for the National Football League's Miami Dolphins, succeed Stovall.

The vote was 13-5 to buy up the final year of Stovall's five-year contract, which will cost LSU at least $80,000. He was 22-21-2, including an 8-3-1 Orange Bowl team two years ago that was followed by a 4-7 record this year - unacceptable by LSU standards.

Arnsparger was voted in, 10-2, after 90 minutes of heated debate. He will officially take over with a four-year contract at the end of the present NFL season, but will work with LSU recruiters during the interim.

Stovall, 42, a 1962 All-American and Heisman Trophy runnerup, said he was getting out of college coaching, although he would not rule out an assistantship in the pros under "certain men I would like to work with."

Bradshaw reactivated

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Pittsburgh Steelers said they would reactivate quarterback Terry Bradshaw today and he'll be available to play Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals.

But the Steelers said Cliff Stoudt will start as quarterback against the Bengals, and Bradshaw says his "purpose is to be the third-string quarterback."

"It does not mean he (Bradshaw) is playing," said Steelers spokesman John Evenson. "He was just added to the active roster. Cliff Stoudt still is starting."

Bradshaw, 35, a 14-year veteran, has been sidelined since last March when he underwent surgery on his right elbow.

He has tried to return to active duty several times since hurting his arm at summer camp, but each time he has had to stop because of recurring pain in his throwing arm.

Eye on blondes

Stark black mascara is sometimes too harsh-looking on women with blonde hair and fair skin. Here's an alternative: Brush on a first coat of black, let dry, then use a brown mascara for the final coats. Or try this: Use a base coat of brown mascara, then lightly tip the lashes with black.

Diet munchies

Here's a great idea for dieters — a fast lo-cal guacamole. Take 1 ripe avocado and mash it up, then mix it with 1 Tbl. lemon juice, 1 tsp. prepared Chili Salsa sauce and add pepper to taste. Serve it with fresh vegetables to nibble on instead of chips and it's waist watcher's delight at 50 calories per serving. It serves 6.

Film gets prize

NEW YORK (AP) — A French film, which begins with six skiers perched precariously atop a French Alpine peak, "Ski Espace," won the 10th annual International Ski Film Festival.

"Ski Espace" also won the co-prize for best special skiing film in a week-long film competition, sponsored by Salem.

"Wintersong ... an Ode to Skiing" won as best ski resort and travel film. It highlights the Beech Mountain, N.C., ski area. "Rivals" won as best ski racing and competition film. It was about the 1982-83 world cup downhill racing season. "A bit of Madness," showing recordbreaking ski feats, was co-winner of the best special skiing film award.

Winning films will travel to ski shows, resorts and clubs throughout the country.

POPULAR DIETS ARE UNSOUND

Many of the millions of dollars that Americans spend on diet books, plans and products are a waste of money.

For example, popular diet plans may promise rapid weight loss or claim to reduce specific body parts, such as the stomach.

Yet research shows that one to three pounds per week is optimal for long-term weight loss.

Spot reducing can take place only with the addition of specific physical exercises, if at all. Overall weight loss is usually required to reduce weight in one specific part of the body.

Although doctors and nutrition experts recommend a balanced diet, reducing plans often encourage an unbalanced intake of foods. For instance some diet plans recommend eliminating carbohydrates from the diet. Yet people need the carbohydrates found in cereals and breads to get the thiamine, niacin and iron necessary for good health.

Other diet plans advocate over-consumption of particular food groups like protein or fruit, which cannot provide all necessary nutrients.

By requiring the purchase of special foods, devices or books, or promoting the sale of diuretics, appetite depressants, miracle foods, vitamins and minerals, the diet industry makes money off of consumers.

Diet plans are usually advertised with testimonials from successful clients. But the ads don't discuss all the people who tried the diet and failed to maintain a weight loss.

There are no specific studies showing that any of these popular diets are successful in the long run for most people.

The best way to reduce is with a nutritionally balanced diet, moderation of eating habits, increased physical activity and the establishment of good eating habits. This will result in gradual weight loss.

HELP YOUR DRYCLEANER HELP YOU

Professional drycleaning is a big help for those of us who have little time to devote to clothing care.

But drycleaners can't work miracles and they do need help from consumers.

The International Fabricare Institute gives these hints on how consumers can help:

Have your clothes cleaned frequently. This prolongs their life. If stains and soil are left in clothes too long they may be impossible to remove.

If you do stain clothes bring them into the drycleaner as soon as possible.

Once you get there tell the cleaner about invisible stains, especially from light-colored soft drinks like ginger ale. These stains contain sugar which will turn brown when being dried unlss they are treated beforehand.

To avoid creating stain problems remember to let deodorants dry before dressing and protect clothes from excessive perspiration.

Also protect clothes from prolonged exposure to direct sunlight or strong indirect light which can cause fading.

And don't press stained or soiled clothes since the heat will just set the stains.

Some 150 million persons, or 2 in 3 people in the nation, were insured by legal reserve life-insurance companies at year-end 1982, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

She is a self-employed attorney. The groom is the son of Edna Rainwater Gordon and the late Tinsley Rainwater. He graduated from Snyder High School, Texas Tech University (B.A.), Indiana State University (M.A.) and the University of Oregon (Ph.D.). The couple will reside in Indialantic where the groom is a self-employed clinical psychologist.

Dark spicy pumpkin cake

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

Because this is the season when pumpkin reigns, you may be interested in a recipe for a Dark and Spicy Pumpkin Cake.

The recipe comes from Carol Kroll, who works as a full-time law-school librarian. Her participation in her community's good works brings her lots of appreciation — and so does the home baking she shares with her friends and neighbors.

One of Mrs. Kroll's daughters, who is particularly fond of her mother's Dark and Spicy Pumpkin Cake, attends college away from home. Every once in a while her mother mails her one of the cakes, and it travels well.

I thought this might interest you because a reader once wrote me she had made 50 of my own Pumpkin Walnut Cakes and had sent them all over the United States as holiday gifts. Maybe Mrs. Kroll's Dark and Spicy Pumpkin Cake will have the same adventurous fate.

PUMPKIN SPICE BUNDT CAKE

3½ cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cloves
4 large eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup safflower oil
1-pound can solid-pack pumpkin
2-3rds cup water

Grease a 12-cup bundt pan.

On a sheet of wax paper or in a medium bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, allspice, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

In a large bowl beat the eggs until foamy; add the sugar, oil and pumpkin; beat until blended. Add the flour mixture ½ at a time, alternately with the water, beating after each addition until smooth.

Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Place pan on a wire rack to cool for 10 minutes; with a small metal or plastic spatula loosen edges. Turn out onto the rack to cool completely.

Store, tightly wrapped, in the refrigerator. Serve at room temperature. If you like, sprinkle cake with confectioners' sugar.

"MAKE ME OVER"

Here is inspiration for any woman who is ready for a NEW LOOK.
Meet Norma Crownover from Midland, Texas, who wanted a New Look
FIRST STEP: A new cut! Norma has long beautiful hair so we wanted a cut to meet her individual needs and still be correct for her facial shape.
SECOND STEP: Makeup! For Norma we chose lavenders and pinks and applied it to enhance her natural good looks.

THE RESULT: A switch from sensible to sensational

If you too are ready for a New Look, call NAIDA (pronounced Nida) at The Headquarters 573-2131 for your personal professional consultation.

'World Class' University...

Set 2nd century goal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A century ago when the framers of the Texas Constitution decreed that "a university of the first class" be established in the state capital, they set aside a million acres of arid land in West Texas to help it achieve that status.

The legislature added a million acres more, with the expectation that the fledgling University of Texas would sell off the land to help pay its bills. But the regents rented the land out for grazing, never parting with so much as an acre.

Their patience was rewarded in 1923 when an oil well dubbed Santa Rita No. 1 began spewing oil.

The oil has never quit flowing, producing a $2 billion endowment for the University of Texas system that is second only to that of Harvard.

The University of Texas is winding up a year-long celebration of its centennial climaxed Dec. 9 by the addition of the five millionth book to its library, already the eighth largest in the nation.

In recent years, while other colleges have been cutting back, the University of Texas at Austin has been building relentlessly, luring academic superstars with six-figure salaries and scrambling to limit its surging enrollment.

It is a university with deep pockets and big ambitions, already realized in some outstanding graduate programs in such fields as botany, linguistics, Spanish, classics and engineering, as well as in a law school long ranked among the finest in America.

In true Texas style, it is one of the biggest American universities: 48,000 students, more than 37,000 of them undergraduates.

Nearly a quarter of the undergraduates major in the topflight College of Business Administration. The mean Scholastic Aptitude Test scores of its freshman class are 1041 — 489 verbal, 552 math — which is well above the national norm of 893, but far below those found in the Ivy League or at exclusive Rice University in Houston.

U.T. is trying to change that, in part by such tactics as spending $150,000 last summer to bring 1,200 potential National Merit Scholars and top minority students from across Texas for an all-expenses-paid weekend on the campus. With the help of $1,000 scholarships, it enrolled 225 Merit Scholars as freshmen this fall.

It has lured to Austin such noted scientists as physicist Steven Weinberg, a 1979 Nobel Prize winner who came from Harvard last year and whose $126,000 salary is exceeded by few, if any, U.S. professors, and fusion theorist Marshall Rosenbluth, who earns $124,556 and who came from Princeton in 1980 after the University of Texas won a $5 million Department of Energy contract to create the U.S. Institute of Fusion Studies.

Texas got that contract by promising to match the entire federal grant and to create 10 faculty positions for the fusion institute.

The university is not without problems. With 2,200 faculty members, the student-faculty ratio of 23-to-1 is worse than that found in a typical public high school and more than double the student-faculty ratio at Harvard. Classes with 300 or 400 students are

Some professors grumble that although the salaries at the top are sky-high, the pay, overall, is only fair. Figures compiled by the government and the American Association of University Professors show that the average U.T. full professor earned $42,100 in 1982-83, better than the $39,380 paid at the typical comprehensive U.S. university, but below such premiere institutions as Berkeley ($44,200) and Harvard ($53,600).

One focus of the centennial has been a drive to raise private funds to endow 100 faculty chairs with at least a half-million dollars apiece.

When the drive got under way three years ago, the university had 19 endowed chairs, 84 endowed professorships and seven other faculty positions with lesser amounts of backing. Today, it has 80 endowed chairs, 332 professorships endowed with at least $100,000, and 194 endowed fellowships, lectureships and other posts.

The legislature allowed the university to dip into income from its oil money, called the Available University Fund, to match all money raised in the endowment drive, thereby doubling the $45 million raised.

But the endowment income is not as ample as many outsiders may think. In fact, the oil wealth prgvides only a fraction of the university's $425 million budget.

Although the $2 billion Permanent University Fund produced $162 million in income in the last academic year, a third of the money, the Available University Fund, goes to crossstate rival Texas A&M and to retire construction bonds.

A 175-member Centennial Commission composed of prominent alumni and Texas potentates, including Lady Bird Johnson '33 and former Gov. John B. Connally '41, delivered a frank assessment to the regents.

"The current faculty is generally excellent, but not uniformly great," the commission reported. "Some foreign student (teaching) assistants have difficulty communicating effectively in English .... Disturbing signs indicate that unrestrained growth of the student body has stretched existing resources, personnel and facilities beyond appropriate limits."

But the panel also concluded that the University of Texas "is among the finest of the nation's universities," and predicted it will achieve international stature in the years ahead.

Opinions are mixed on campus about whether the university can achieve its new goal of becoming a "world class" institution.

Carter hunts, speaks

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — On a return visit to Arkansas former President Jimmy Carter is combining duck-hunting and speech-making.

Carter, 59, arrived in Newport by chartered plane with former press secretary Jody Powell Thursday night, and they were going hunting with former U.S. Sen. Kaneaster Hodges today.

Carter made a similar visit to the state last year.

"Arkansas is different from Georgia in that there are no rice fields or ducks in Georgia, just quail," said the former president. "It's nice to be back."

Carter gives an address on foreign policy Saturday at Arkansas College in Batesville.

Neil Simon hurts back

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Neil Simon — author of "Only When I Laugh" — may be hurting every time he moves.

Simon, 56, was in an unidentified New York hospital Thursday night with a painful back condition.

The problem is nothing new, dating back about 10 years, said Simon spokesman Albert Da Silva. "It kicks out every so often and it kicked out a few days ago."

Ropes and 15-pound weights were being used to help stretch the back, a process Da Silva described as painful.

Tarter, Minyard speak wedding vows

SWEETWATER—April Lynn Tarter became the bride of David Ralph Minyard at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 22 at First Christian Church. Rev. Charles Reece, minister of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Clara Jo Hicks of Sweetwater and Alvis Tarter of Copperas Cove. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tarter of Snyder. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Minyard of Snyder.

Church decorations included three wine, dusty rose and pink carnation arrangements, two candelabra entwined with greenery and two spiral candelabra.

Melissa Ellison of Lubbock was organist and Trudy Head of Abilene was soloist. They presented "I.O.U.," "The Wedding Song," and "Up where We Belong."

The bride wore a pale ivory gown by Alfred Angelo as she was given in marriage by her father. The high neck was accented with Schiffli embroidered medallions embellished with seed pearls. Schiffli embroidery formed the sheer off-the-shoulder yoke and the ribbon lace bodice was embellished with Venise lace medallions. The Victorian sleeves of ribbon lace had an elbow ruffle of Schiffli lace.

The front of the chiffonet silhouette skirt was embellished with Venise lace medallions and the hem was finished with a ruffle of ribbon lace which swept into a cathedral length train of tiers of ribbon lace ruffles.

The bride's single-tier cathedral length veil was sprinkled with seed pearls and fell from a halo of dusty rose and ivory rosebuds with burgundy starflowers, baby's breath and English ivy

The bridal bouquet of dusty rose, burgundy and ivory roses, rosebuds, starflowers, baby's breath and English ivy was attached to an ivory lace fan and accented with three colors of bridal satin streamers.

The groom wore an ivory Claridge tuxedo with a boutonniere of two dusty rose rosebuds, English ivy, burgundy gypsophila and baby's breath.

Carole Slator was maid of honor and Kelly Allen of Midland, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sheri Peeples of Austin and Rena' Lester. They wore wine-colored bustle-backed dresses with off-the-shoulder-ruffles and carried Victorian nosegays of a single dusty rose with burgundy gypsophila and ivory baby's breath attached to ivory lace backs with dusty rose and ivory ribbon streamers. Their hair was adorned with halos of dusty rose rosebuds, burgundy and ivory blossoms, ivory baby's breath and greenery.

The bride's cousin, Lea Tarter of Snyder, was flower girl. Her gown and head dress were like the bridal attendants. She carried an ivory parasol trimmed in burgundy and dusty rose with three colors of petals.

Ken Minyard served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Charles Minyard, the groom's brother; Tim Sonnier, his brother-in-law; and Doug Wilkerson. They wore ivory Claridge tuxedos with wing collar shirts, vests and bow ties with dusty rose boutonnieres.

The reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered with a wine-colored cloth with an ivory lace overlay and centered with her bouquet. Debbie Robeson, the bride's sister, and Debra Brown, served punch and the three-tiered cake with wine-colored trim. Appointments were in silver.

The groom's table was covered with a brown cloth overlaid with ivory lace and centered with a basket of wine-colored rose rice bags. Lesa Sonnier, the groom's sister, and Katrina Vinson served the German chocolate cake and coffee from silver appointments.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M. the couple will reside in Snyder.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Sweetwater High School, a 1982 graduate of Stenographic Institute of Texas and attended Texas Tech.

The groom is a Snyder High School graduate, attended Western Texas College and is manager of Permian Tire and Supply.

The bride was honored with a lingerie shower Sept. 24 in the home of the groom's mother by Lesa Sonnier, Teresa Hall, Becky Lee, and Rachael Romero.

SAGE PORK

Carving takes doing but this thrifty cut is moist and flavorful.

5-pound fresh pork picnic shoulder
4 large cloves garlic, peeled and quartered
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons dried crushed sage

With a small sharp knife make 16 deep incisions over top and sides of meat. Insert a piece of garlic in each incision. Stir together salt, pepper and sage; stuff into incisions. Score top rind in criss-cross fashion. Roast in a shallow pan in a 350-degree oven until cooked through — 2½ to 3 hours (170 to 185 degrees on a meat thermometer).

EVENING REFRESHER
Ice Cream & Chocolate Sauce
Coffee

CHOCOLATE SAUCE

Rich in chocolate flavor and repeated by request.

2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
6 ounces semisweet chocolate pieces
1 tablespoon honey
8 ounces heavy cream

In the top of a double boiler over simmering water (bubbles should break just below surface of water and double boiler top should not touch water), stirring often, melt the chocolate with the honey. Gradually stir in the cream; if mixture is not blended, continue to stir, especially around the sides of the pan, until it is. Serve warm over ice cream. Any sauce left over may be refrigerated, tightly covered, and reheated over simmering water. Makes a scant 1¾ cups.

Brush basics

Want shining, glowing hair? Then know how to pick a brush just for you. Though a natural boar bristle brush is $5-$10 more expensive than a nylon bristled one, it's a good investment. The natural bristles are porous and pick up the pollutants and dirt from your hair better. Next, chose a brush for your styling needs. If you blow-dry, try a round brush; if you have long, thick hair, a half-round brush is best. A narrow brush is for short hair and

Couple married in afternoon ceremony

THANKSGIVING WEDDING—Dotty Birdsall of the Dunn Community and Bill Hart of Snyder were married in a Thanksgiving Day ceremony in the home of Gay and Bill Kimmel. Gary Lyles of Iowa Park, the groom's nephew, performed the double ring ceremony. Attendants were Kris Kimmel, the bride's grandson, and Miss Rita Black. Out of town family members attending were from Austin and Iowa Park. The couple will reside in Snyder.

Elida De Loera, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond De Loera, and Rudy Garza, son of Mrs. Fermin Garza, Sr. and the late Mr. Garza, were united in holy matrimonty at 3 p.m. on Nov. 12 at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Chris Coleman. Deacon Salome Barrera asssited.

The church was decorated with two white arrangements of spider mums, carnations and daisies. The altar was flanked by seven-branch and nine-branch candelabra filled with greenery. Green bows marked the attendants pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father in a gown of dacron organza featuring a Queen Anne neckline with bishop sleeves. It was adorned with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The attached chapel train was beruffled with lace and organza. She wore a waist-length two-tiered Juliet veil with a bordered edge.

Something new was her dress, she wore a blue garter and borrowed a pearl necklace from her sister, Alice Alvarez.

The bride carried a cascade of white carnations with white satin hearts accented with greenery and long white streamers.

The groom wore a silver tuxedo with a white shirt and ascot tie.

"Like a Seal in Your Heart," "The Wedding Song," "There Is Love," and "Carino," a Spanish wedding song, were sung by Alicia Ibarra and Frances Rios. They sang "Love" for the recessional.

Maid of honor was Hortencia De Loera, the bride's sister. She wore a white taffeta dress with a sweetheart neckline and a gored skirt. Pearl buttons fastened the puffed elbow length sleeves.

Alice Alvarez, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Garza, Rita Garza, Otilia Rios, Betty Vasquez, Mary Castillo, Sally Davila, Emily Terry, Mercedes Vargas, Beatrice Ortegon, Rosemary Aguilar, Irene Salinas, Jo Anne Larez, Alma Munoz, Judy Constancio, Vera Lopez, Thelma Garza, Margie Alvarez, Anita Fuentez, Sandy Sepeda, Melissa Garcia, Martha Munoz, Magdalena Aguirre, Cindy Hill, Angie Costillo, Martina Vallejo, and Santos Martinez.

They wore green taffeta gowns similar to that of the maid of honor and headbands of silk daisies and baby's breath. Each carried a fan of silk green daisies and baby's breath.

Cynthia Munoz, the bride's cousin, was flower girl. She wore a long-waisted emerald green taffeta dress accented with a white ribbon. A white hat completed her attire.

Daniel Peralez of Austin was best man. He wore a silver tuxedo with an ascot tie.

Groomsmen were Anastacio Alvarez, Henry Ramos, Fermin Garza Jr., Gene Rios, Robert Vasquez Sr.; Fred Castillo, Scott Terry, Leon Vargas, Frank Orgegon Sr., Robert Aguilar, Salvador Salinas, George Lovar, Martin Benitez, Joe Garza, Jimmy Alvarez, Ray Hill, Eleadoro Garza, Israel Ortegon, Tommy Tullis, Arthur De Loera, Hector Cabillo, Raymond Garza, Eddie Perez, Tommy Rios, and Michael Sanchez. They wore black tuxedos with wing tipped shirts, cumberbunds, black ties and boutonnieres of silk flowers and baby's breath.

The white layered cake was decorated with white carnations, green silk flowers and baby's breath. Punch was served from a crystal bowl. Spanish wedding cookies, nuts and mints were served from wicker baskets. Presiding at the reception table were Cecilia Munoz, Helen Gomez, Gloria Ortegon and Yolanda Chaidez. Couples danced to the music of Sweet City Band of Sweetwater.

Following a week-long wedding trip to San Antonio the couple will reside in Snyder.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Loraine High School and a 1979 graduate of Western Texas College. She is employed by First National Bank.

The groom is a 1979 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College. He is employed with Texas Electric Service Co.

Out of town guests were from Loraine, Sweetwater, Colorado City, Post, Tivoli, Stamford, Arlington, and Midland.

The bride was honored with three showers prior to the wedding.

DIET DRESSING

It's a tangy blend.

½ cup canned tomato sauce
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons diced (¼-inch) onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon celery salt

Into the small jar of an electric blender turn the tomato sauce, lemon juice, onion, Worcestershire and celery salt. Whirl until onion is pureed. Store in the refrigerator in the blender jar; shake well before using. Makes about ¾ cup — 5 calories per tablespoon.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

One of the most valuable features in the American Contract Bridge bulletin is the column by Forrest Smith titled "Building a Sound Foundation." It is supposed to be elementary, but is good bridge for anyone.

He gives this hand as an example of the reluctance of many defenders to ruff with the high trump.

South won the diamond lead in dummy, led a diamond to his ace and ruffed a third diamond with dummy's trump seven. East wasn't going to waste his ace of trumps on a mere seven-spot and discarded a spade.

The rest of the play went quickly. South cashed his A-Q of spades, led a club to dummy's ace, discarded his last diamond on the spade king, led a trump, rose with his king, led a second trump so that East's trump ace captured West's jack and claimed an overtrick.

That overtrick wouldn't mean much in a rubber bridge game, but it was the difference between bottom and a near average for East and West.

It seems that all other East players ruffed with the trump ace right away to give the defense three trump tricks instead of two.

Music, music

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "People simply have not been trained to absorb most 20th-century music," says composer Sydney Hodkinson, who teaches at the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music.

"We often forget that a large percentage of Brahms's audience, for example, played and read music, even around the home," he noted recently to a group of music educators at a conference on music's future. But fewer members of today's classical music audience have such active involvement.

"Today, folks read James Bond novels while listening to records," he says.

Handgun controversy brews

MORTON GROVE, Ill. (AP) — Mayor Richard Flickinger opened the letter postmarked from Sequim, Wash. It began, "Dear Commie Cur Dog."

"Should I read more?" he asked. "It's pretty bad, but it's not unusual."

Since this community became the country's first to break the handgun barrier by outlawing their possession and sale in 1981, Flickinger has received nearly 400 letters from all over.

"About 60 percent favor what we did, praising our courage and conviction in the face of five court challenges backed by the well-heeled National Rifle Association," he says.

The 67-year-old Flickinger was a salesman most of his life before he retired and became mayor and liquor commissioner in this community of 24,000 for $4,800 a year. He's heard about everything. He flipped the letter aside.

It all began in 1981 when this middle-class suburb northwest of Chicago received an application for a license to open a gun shop in a small shopping center.

"When people got wind of it, they got up a petition against it and presented it to the board ... and that started the ordinance," says Flickinger, who just happened to live a block from the location.

"At a public hearing more than 100 people showed up and one in 10 were NRA people from all over the area yelling against the ordinance," says the mayor. "We had two votes. It was 5-1 to ban the sale of handguns, and 4-2 to ban their possession. We didn't have a referendum — this village is tight with the buck — but we felt that being elected officials we represented the people."

He says 73 percent of cards, calls and letters received before the well-publicized ordinance went before the board were in favor of it.

Trustee Neil Cashman, who introduced the ordinance, says $16,000 has been spent in meeting court challenges by the NRA and other handgun supporters.

"But it has cost the village nothing," he adds. "ABC in Hollywood wanted to make a documentary and gave us a $17,000 advance. We put it in a fund for court fights. And the Chicago law firm of Jenner & Block donated a lot of services.

Would the mayor do it all over again?

"I think more so now. I never had to vote (only in case of ties), but I certainly was behind the ordinance. And the further this went on, the madder I got."

Only 17 handguns have been turned in since the ban, and the crime rate, low from the beginning, hasn't changed.

In the village's general election in April, two trustees who voted for the ordinance and another who opposed it were reelected. They were challenged by a former neo-Nazi and a new political party that labeled the law "a little dictatorial."

"I think that election was the most important thing of all in the ordinance issue," says Flickinger. "Our Action Party ticket won by a 2-1 margin over the We The People Party. To me that was a referendum, a mandate from the people."

The mayor says "outside interests" tried to run the election with a vigorous $40,000 campaign backed by such progun groups as the NRA and the Second Amendment Foundation.

People Party candidate Seymour Primer denied the charges. "We received small donations from individual people but no funds from the NRA or Second Amendment Foundation," he says.

The constitutionality of the handgun ban was upheld 2-1 in January by a three-judge panel of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a ruling binding only in the court's Illinois-WisconsinIndiana jurisdiction.

The panel stated that the Second Amendment for the right to bear arms is a limitation only on the powers of the federal government, not state or local municipalities. It affirmed Morton Grove's right, under the state's home-rule powers, to enact handgun restrictions.

Early in October, the United States Supreme Court refused to disturb the ruling. A review of the ordinance by the Illinois Supreme Court is pending.

The high court decision was hailed by Flickinger.

Michael Beard, executive director of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns, says: "Communities all over the country have been asking, 'Can you enact a handgun ordinance ban and live to tell about it?' Yes, you can! Morton Grove fired a shot that has been heard 'round the country."

The ordinance, which became effective in February 1982, prohibits the sale and possession of handguns within the borders of the village. Exceptions were provided for law enforcement officers, licensed gun collectors and certain others.

Violators are liable for fines ranging from $50 to $500 or up to six months in jail.

Since the ban, convictions have been obtained on three arrests.

A survey by the Chicago Tribune of two dozen communities that had asked Morton Grove for copies of its handgun law found only one reacting to the ruling by opening debate on it.

After the high court's decision, Morton Grove's neighbor, Skokie, rejected a handgun ban on a 4-3 vote by the trustees.

But last year neighboring Evanston enacted a similar law, and Chicago followed with an ordinance banning registration of new handguns in the city, although people already owning them were allowed to keep them.

On Nov. 2, 1982, California voters overwhelmingly rejected Proposition 15 billed by both sides as a true test of the will of the people regarding the handgun issue. On the same day, voters in Nevada and New Hampshire approved referendums supporting the Second Amendment right to bear arms.

A few municipalities, such as Kennesaw, Ga., responded to Morton Grove's action with an ordinance requiring each household to own a gun and ammunition.

Film directors to get awards

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Federico Fellini and Bernardo Bertolucci are among the film directors who received the "Mark of Silver" award, a new Italian-sponsored prize for European cinema.

In a ceremony Saturday, leading European film directors and actors were awarded the prizes sponsored by Florence's Institute of Cinematographic Science.

Fellini's films include "La Strada," "La Dolce Vita" and "The Clowns."

Group of parents countering criticism

DALLAS (AP) — A group of parents has come to the defense of a 17-year-old high school homecoming queen criticized by other parents because she had a child out of wedlock.

About two dozen parents of Hillcrest High School students signed a letter presented to the school's principal in support of Asyle Martin, who some parents contended was not a "proper role model" because she is single and has a 2-year-old child.

Miss Martin's election as homecoming queen Nov. 5 prompted the executive board of the Parent-Teacher-Student Association to recommend that the school set up a screening committee to check the qualifications of future candidates.

Homecoming queen candidates are nominated by the school's football team and voted on by the student body.

PTSA president Pat McConnell said the group's action came after 20 parents called the school to complain that the teenager "represents the school, and we just don't think that's proper representation."

But parent Jane Siegel told the Dallas Times Herald that in the last two days two dozen parents signed a letter saying they were "neither angry nor offended" by the election.

"No one of us has the right to sit in judgment; and no small group of parents has the right to dictate the rules for selecting the homecoming queen," the letter from the parents said.

Miss Martin, a part-time student who also works 25 hours a week, said Thursday that she has received mostly support from fellow students.

"Everybody has said they were with me," she said. "They said that it doesn't matter that I have a baby. They chose me, and the parents have nothing to do with it."

Actors donate acres for housing

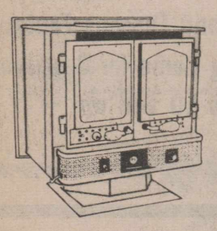

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Actors Clint Eastwood and James Garner have donated 350 acres worth $2.7 million in Carmel Valley to the county for development into housing for the elderly and a public park.

The northern part of the property known as Carmel Valley Overlook is next to Jacks Peak Regional Park, which already has hiking and riding trails and picnic areas.

At least 300 of the 350 acres of the donated land will be used for park development while the remainer will be taken up by low-cost housing, said Bruce Moore, executive director of the Housing Authority of Monterey County.

Moore said of the donation, it was "a very generous thing for them to do."

ASTRO-GRAPH

Your Birthday

Bernice Bede Osol

Dec. 4, 1983

Chances are the year following your birthday will not be just another ho-hum year. Unique and unusual opportunities are in store for you. You'll recognize and welcome them all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are now capable of handling several ventures simultaneously. Don't limit your possibilities by thinking too singularly. Major changes are in store for Sagittarians in the coming year. Send for your Sagittarius Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll awaken support for your ambitious aims if you're a bit mysterious about them. Tell only enough to whet others' appetites.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something for which you're presently hoping may still be in the offing. Don't despair. Each passing day brings it a few steps closer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are now entering a cycle in which you are unlikely to stand in the shadows of others where your achievements are concerned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It may be necessary at this time to revise your long-range plans in order to establish more constructive objectives. Look ahead realistically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beginning today, strive to do something positive about developing a second source of income. Opportunities exist. It's up to you to search them out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Agreements entered into today have excellent prospects for success. Be sure that both you and your counterpart continue to honor the terms.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will prove wise at this point to let go of something that hasn't proved profitable, in exchange for something else with greater potential.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is a good day to move to grasp control of a delicate situation that thus far has been managed by another. Start calling the shots.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not let an associate with a negative viewpoint talk you out of your good ideas today. He or she does not have your understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your material conditions are about to undergo favorable changes. Areas previously unprofitable will start showing gains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your chances for success pertaining to something big you've been hoping to bring about will be increased. However, time is still a factor.

Dec. 5, 1983

You will be quite fortunate this coming year in your friendships. It is likely you will have two sets of helpful friends; one group will be in the business world, the other from your social sphere.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Beneficial information could be disclosed today in discussions with friends. Do more listening than talking. You might learn something profitable. Major changes are in store for Sagittarians in the coming year. Send for your Sagittarius Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even though you may be anxious to personally control matters today, it might prove unwise to disrupt something that is now running smoothly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Strive to be flexible today. You might find it necessary to suddenly switch objectives. You'll be successful if you stay loose.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Properly handled, today's developments could help you better your station in life. Fortunately, you'll be able to recognize your true opportunities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have the capability today to handle several projects simultaneously. However, you must keep all involved posted regarding your steps.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Joint ventures should be a more fruitful area for you today than things which you attempt on your own. To be effective, allocate your priorities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have the ability today to size up situations practically. You should be able to transform nonproductive matters into something worthwhile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Attempting to serve the interests of others will have residual benefits for you today. You'll also gain, but this won't be your primary concern.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your possibilities for furthering your personal ambitions look good today, but you might have to work a little harder than you first anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Important situations can be finalized today. You'll have the needed persistence to see things through. Be careful, however, not to oversell.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Use your inquiring mind to add to your storehouse of knowledge today. You now can more readily understand facts which previously eluded or confused you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not be overly concerned about material matters today. All should work out well in the long run. Don't attempt to juggle things around.

Father buys dolls in London

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A mailman whose young daughter almost cried when she learned she wouldn't get a Cabbage Patch doll for Christmas took a whirlwind trip to London in search of the homely, chubby-cheeked plaything, and returned with five.

"You got all five dolls," 5-year-old Leana Pennington cried as her father, Edward Pennington, stepped off a plane at Kansas City International Airport Thursday night, completing a 12,000-mile journey. "I can't believe it."

"These dolls are not for sale," said Pennington, 44, a mailman from the Kansas City suburb of Shawnee, Kan. "I went through all this only because my little girl wanted this doll."

Pennington was met by reporters of Britain's Daily Star when he arrived at London's Heathrow airport Thursday morning. They whisked him away for an exclusive interview as reporters from other British papers gave chase.

Pennington said his daughter would receive one of the highly prized dolls as a Christmas present. Three of the dolls will be offered to needy children in nearby hospitals, and the last one was given to a local television station which plans to donate it to Childrens Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Pennington said.

While reporters from two of London's raciest tabloids were ready to take Pennington to Harrod's, one of London's most prestigious stores, reporters from the Daily Star had already checked and found the store was out of Cabbage Patch dolls.

The Daily Star located five of the dolls in Bristol, 100 miles south of London, bought five for 125 English pounds — $182.50 — and exchanged the dolls for Pennington's exclusive story.

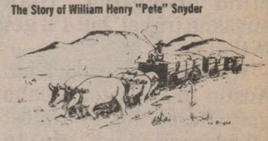

Pennington's wife, Maggie, a flight attendant for TWA, got her husband a reduced fare of $200 for the flight.

"We knew we had to have that doll," Mrs. Pennington said.

Classic in design with its turned columns, this clock is executed in hardwoods in our Cherry Bordeaux finish. It has a Tempus Fugit dial with a chime shut-off lever to silence the clock for the nighttime. The weight-driven Westminster chime movement sounds every 15 minutes and counts the number of hours on the hour, and features large weights and a polished brass lyre pendulum. Each clock will be personalized with the owner's name and date of purchase engraved on a solid brass plate.
H. 77", W. 19¾", D. 11".

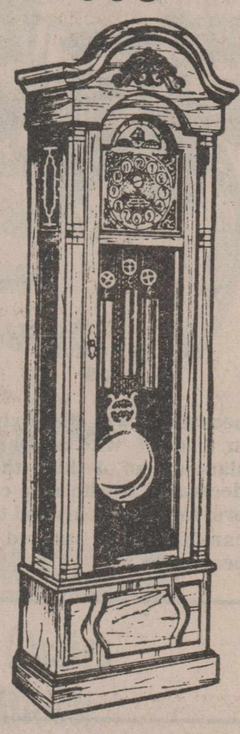

Reg. $825.00
$498.00

The natural beauty and character of oak inspired this elegant and informal David Zagaroli design. The arch pediment and plinth base reflect architectural overtones of Palladian style, influenced by the Italian architect's flair for dignified and classic simplicity. Urn shaped turnings top the reeded half columns alongside the opening door.

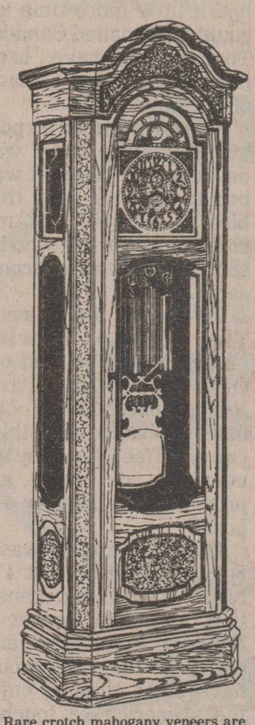

A satin silvered Roman numeral ring highlights the Tempus Fugit dial. Raised corner ornaments and graceful Serpentine hands are also featured. The chimes of Westminster sound each quarter hour, and the number of hours are announced on the hour. The weight-driven movement has a polished brass lyre pendulum and weights. Provided with each clock is a solid brass plate on which the owner's name and date of purchase will be engraved.
H. 78", W. 19¾", D. 11¾"

Reg. $1220.00
$698.00

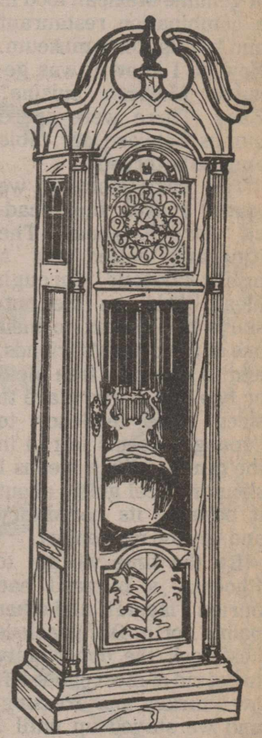

Designed by David Zagaroli, a discriminating connoisseur of the world's fine woods, the solid oak case is inlaid with choice olive ash burl on pediment and door. It is topped by a scalloped bonnet and defined by full ¾ round corner columns. The satin brass finished dial has an etched center, gold-plated numerals and individually cast spandrels of solid brass. Inside can be seen polished brass weights and a large polished brass lyre pendulum, and the chimes of Westminster, Whittington and St. Michael ring out each quarter hour. Complementing vertical rods provide added dramatic appeal. A solid brass plate will be engraved with the owner's name and date of purchase.
H. 78½, W. 24¼, D. 15".

Reg. $2195.00
$998.00

Rare crotch mahogany veneers are combined with cherry wood in our Bordeaux finish to achieve the graceful look of the Charleston. The pediment, base and center door are inlaid with brass. The dial features 24K gold-plated spandrels and a separate second track disc. The entire back is mirrored to reflect the beauty of the polished brass pendulum and brass weights. Glass sides reveal the triple chime, cable-wound movement which plays a selecton of Westminster, Whittington and St. Michael chimes. Each clock will be personalized with the owner's name and date of purchase engraved on a solid brass plate.
H. 83½, W 27¾, D. 17⅜.

Reg. $2330.00
$1298.00

Distinctive 24K gold-plated spandrels and raised numerals emphasize the elegance of the handsome moon phase dial on this clock, with its separate second track and hand. Westminster, Whittington, and St. Michael chimes ring out on the cable-driven triple rod chime movement. The distinctive cabinet is of oak in our Yorkshire finish, with rare facings of Carpathian elm burl. The glass front and side panels are accented with a decorative 22K gold leaf outline, revealing brass weights and a polished brass lyre pendulum. Each clock will be personalized with the owner's name and date of purchase engraved on a solid brass plate.
H. 85", W. 27", D. 17¼.

Most of what passes for good advice is nothing more than an "I told you so" wolf dressed up like Little Red's grandmother.

Since such wisdoms are provided after the fact, we'll give some before the disaster. And we'll wedge it in before we catch the durn holiday spirit, forcing us to guffaw our way through another picture post card Yule season.

Everyone is as high as a flocked Christmas tree right now. Sleigh bells go "jing, jing jing-a-aling," and all that.

Generosity with extreme prejudice is shown as we imagine round-eyed kids through misty-webbed window panes looking for "Sandy Claws."

In the true spirit of the season, we'll offer just two words of advice — restraint and foresight.

Restraint as in don't fire all of your guns at once. This coupled with sufficient foresight to see that Christmas ends on or about December 25th.

Who has not found themselves flatter than a flitter once the sounds of tiny reindeer hooves have faded from the rooftop?

Not just in funds, mind you, but in spirit as well.

The post holiday depression is for real, folks. The winter wind will scatter those silvery icicle decorations, leaving them to hang on frozen tumbleweeds like dried Christmas tree blood.

The coldest months in West Texas are January and February. Football season ends in mid-January. Then, for successive Saturday-Sundays after the week's work, the only thing television watchers can look forward to will be either Championship Wrestling or televised golf.

The hardest time will be directly after Christmas, of course. About the time everyone has to begin normal work or school schedules again.

After that first Monday, we'll return to our empty houses. The Yule log will be cold and there will be a big empty spot in the living room where a Christmas tree joyfully shone.

Those broken New Year's resolutions will be fresh enough to cause stirrings of guilt. The party will be over and we will be left alone with our hostess.

Which leads us to elaborate on that good advice: restraint and foresight.

Restrain yourself from decimating your pre-Christmas cash flow. Save some bucks for the first two weeks in January.

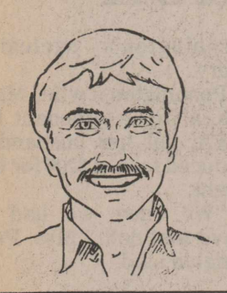

Then, as the post-holiday blues set in, choke back their ravages with doses of spending. As you would swallow spoonfulls of medicine for the bellyache, doctor yourself with purchases — big or small.

Spending money — particularly if it's cash and not credit — makes most folks feel better.

Others may choose to give the gift that gives after Christmas. Write a check to your favorite person and post-date it January 2nd — the first blue Monday of 1984.

Beside the memo line write, "Happy After-Holiday!"

You might include on the back, "Hope You Feel Better Real Soon."

John Dunnam

Few things are more mind boggling than airplane travel, but I'll get to that later.

My cousin moved from Austin to Lewiston, Idaho and offered me an almost all-expense paid trip in return for my warm companionship and legendary driving skills. All furniture and heavy stuff was sent ahead so I was sure it wasn't my powerful 150½ pound body being propositioned.

Could I go? I quickly assessed my situation here at home. It's almost Christmas and I'm broke. I'm behind in at least 13 of the 14 hours I'm carrying at the college. Partly because of school and an earlier trip, my career as a Department of Agriculture flunky in the dairy industry is in chaos. And a little building project I've started needs desperately to be "dried-in", as we builder types say, or else be left at the mercy of the weather.

"Sure I can go. When are we leaving and when will I be back?"

At the end of the first day we had reached El Paso. We got a room and ate a Thanksgiving dinner of genuine Mexican food in a combination restaurant and bullfighter's museum. How do I know it was genuine Mexican cuisine? Easy. There were speed bumps between our table and the bathrooms.

The next morning we toured Juarez, then headed for Arizona. The itinerary called for a minor detour through Mesa, Ariz. on the outskirts of Phoenix to visit one of my cousin's friends, and to sponge a free meal or two and a free place to sleep. This tendency to "sponge" seems to run in the family, which means I shouldn't feel guilty about it because its hereditary and beyond my control.

By the time we got to Phoenix, a blizzard had buried Flagstaff and other points north. Our gracious host took the opportunity to get rid of most of her left over turkey and dressing, and we stayed up until 2 a.m. rehashing old times. Or at least they did. I watched HBO and entertained a vicious but lovable 11 year-old who seemed to live there also.

After getting a report on the road conditions the next morning, I believe it was Saturday, we stoically accepted that our only logical route was through Las Vegas. Really. If we had not discovered that alternate route we might have been stranded indefinitely in Sun City with free room and board.

After a hard six hours of driving and another wracking eight hours of gaming, we managed to pull away from those bright lights in the desert and go due north, storm or no storm. I had about $35 less to lug around and my cousin was burdened with an extra $15. What happened to my expense paid trip? I'll be back though. Those lightweights in Vegas have got to be taught the hard way that they can't fool around with my money.

We finally got serious about driving. I won't bore you with any more details, but we spent the next three days negotiating the fallout from the storm and logging as many hours behind the wheel as possible.

The mountain passes were passable if not absolutely clear. The landscape was sparkling in its winter coat of snow.

We reached Lewiston Tuesday about 7 p.m. Mountain Time (9 p.m. here) after driving in the dark two hours. I'll never again complain about it getting dark too early here in civilized West Texas.

After a couple of turkey sandwiches and three or four cups of delicious hot chocolate at a friend's house we unloaded the car. Did I say that all the heavy stuff had been sent ahead?

Then it was on to Spokane where I had to catch a plane at 7:53 the next morning. If we had had a little more time we could have visited Canada. That would have been neat, Mexico and Canada on the same trip.

We arrived at the airport at 7:44 and by 7:51 I was boarding the plane. It was boring waiting for that bird to take off, but my cousin was the one who insisted we get to the airport early.

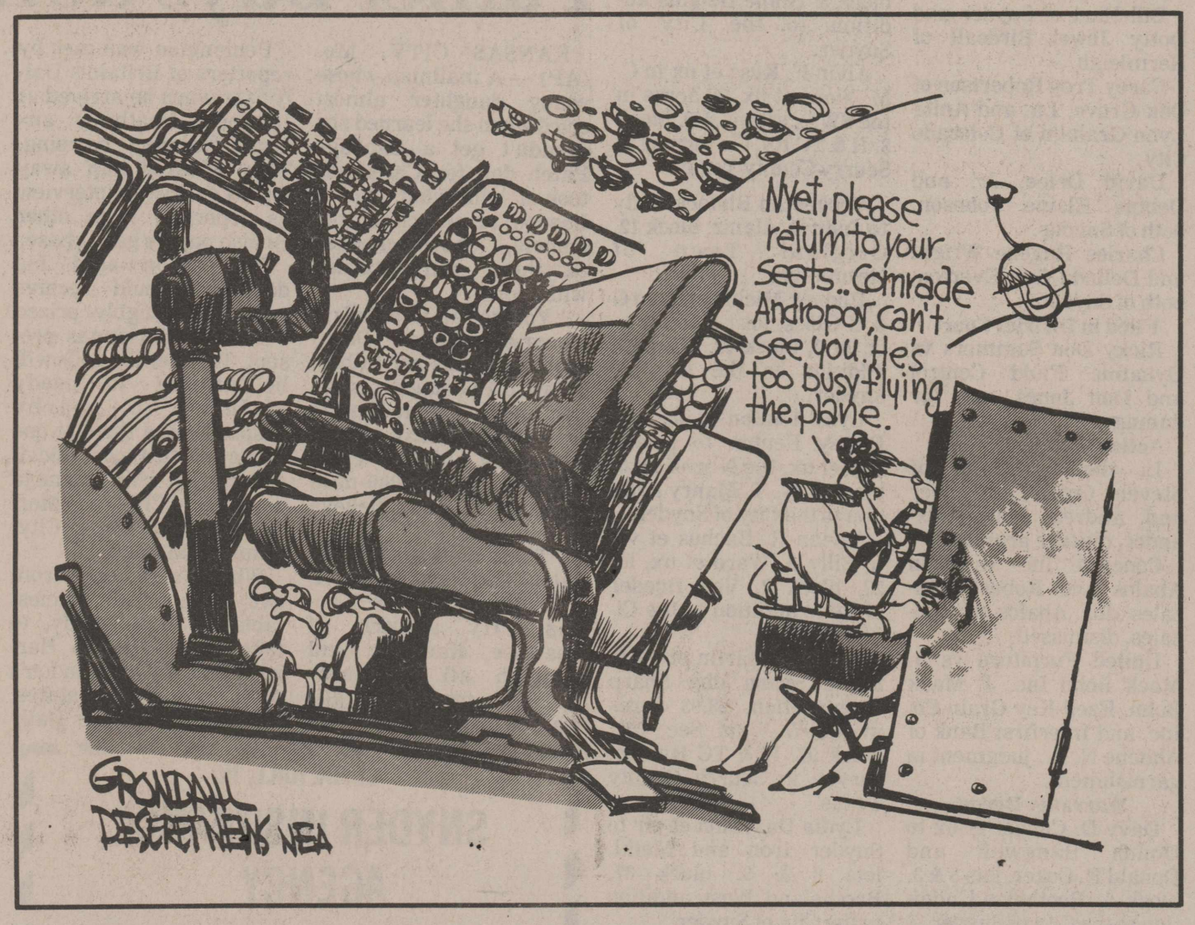

Up in the air I went. They began serving breakfast and pointed out Old Faithful and Yellowstone Lake. I had hardly finished my third cup of coffee when they announced we were approaching the Denver airport.

The temperature was 6 below in Denver, but I'm tough. I made my connection, and from Denver to Midland, lunch was served. I ate fast so I would have some time to enjoy the scenery. We touched down at Midland and then it took 35 minutes to fly to Abilene where my trusty pick-up truck was waiting.

The wind was blowing, (Isn't it always.) and I almost froze before I could persuade my rusty heater to do battle with the 40 degrees that were supposed to be out there somewhere. I'm not as tough as previously indicated.

About the time my plane was landing in Denver again, I was driving into Snyder. Then I did something I had been intending to do since shortly before I left Spokane. I went to the bathroom. I suppose I could have gone on the plane, but there really wasn't time.

On Aug. 24, A.D. 79, Mount Vesuvius erupted and buried the Italian cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

Question: What do you think it was like for the Indians when they lived in teepees long ago?

CATHY SMITH
Age 9
"I think it was fun because it was like living in a house with a sharp, slanted roof. I think they decorated it with nice colors, sang songs around the campfire and smoked a peace pipe."

MANUEL MEDRANO
Age 10
"The Indians built a fire to keep warm and ate fish."

ANGIE BIGGERS
Age 9
"The Indians cooked food over an open fire and slept on mats."

SANTOS GUITTEREZ
Age 10
"I think the Indians covered themselves with animal skins and washed their dishes in the lake."

SDN Week in Review

MONDAY
Nov. 28

A continuous gain in membership for the Scurry County Farm Bureau was recognized at the 50th state convention in Houston.

The county organization was presented a plaque honoring five years of steady growth regarding its membership. Other Farm Bureau chapters in the state were honored as well for 10, 15, 20, 25 and 30 years continuous growth.

TUESDAY
Nov. 29

The birth of William Henry "Pete" Snyder, for whom the city is named, was observed Tuesday.

The merchant whose store on Deep Creek gave rise to the city was born on Nov. 29. 1836 in Carbon County, Penn., the anthracite coal region of that state.

A mix of donors combined Tuesday to make the latest effort here the most successful blood drive ever in Snyder.

Tuesday's drive produced 140 donors and 167 persons who turned out to give. Twenty seven of these received temporary medical deferrals.

The previous high was 135 donors.

Purchase of a new heart monitoring device for Scurry County patients was approved Tuesday by the board of managers for Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The device's recording unit — which weighs less than one pound — is worn around the waist of the individual. The resulting recording has been called a "24-hour EKG reading."

Offices must be kept clean

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor William Green says he cleans up his office when it needs it, and expects city social workers to do the same with theirs.

On Monday social workers upset over filthy conditions in the Children and Youth Agency of the Department of Welfare delivered a petition to the mayor and dumped trash, including paper bags and tissue paper, in front of his office to dramatize their complaints.

Green toured the social workers' facilities Wednesday and said they should pitch in and clean the place up themselves.

Fighting makes things worse

BIG MASHUNKA MOUN-TAIN, South Africa (AP) — The six frail and tottering old men hid from both sides in the Zulu clan war.

They sheltered together "because we are of an age and all worn out." Ironically, they were arrested by police trying to break up the fighting in the notorious Msinga District of Natal Province.

After their release, one of the old men, Swelise, said, "The most painful thing is that the fighting has nothing to do with you. But, old and sick, you all wander round the mountain because somebody, somewhere, is fighting somebody else."

With stolen automatic weapons replacing traditional fighting sticks and spears, more than 1,000 people have died in fights among Zulu clans in the impoverished Msinga District in the past five years. Much of the fighting is for the available land in the overcrowded district. But that is not always the reason.

Creina Alcock, 41, who runs a church-funded agricultural project in the area, says the fighting that drove the six old men into the mountains started with an argument between the Skalenis and the Koornlivers over who won a dance contest.

The fighting isn't always along faction lines. One infamous group, the Gang of Seven, hides out in the hills and attacks all sides.

The sale of guns to blacks was banned in the region in 1859 but police reported 40 years later that Msinga people had begun building an arsenal. In the last five years, 24,367 guns were reported missing in South Africa. Police recovered 11,433. Many of the remaining 13,134 wound up in Msinga.

Zulu leaders, from top to bottom, have failed to stop the fighting.

Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, perhaps the most powerful black leader in South Africa, says, "Militarism runs in our veins ... It's very difficult to tell them when to stop." He says the fighting had been going on for at least five generations.

Police Warrant Officer Jurgen Freese went to nearby Tugela Ferry 21 years ago to command a gun-collection operation. He expected to spend just six months at a riverside tent encampment. Freese is still there.

His unit collects 30 or 40 weapons a month, including automatic rifles, and he reckons more than 10,000 guns have been recovered during his tenure.

When all else had failed, Chief Ngoza Mvelasse of the Mthembus, whose tribe was suffering fights among four factions, called for mediation by a 64-year-old white man, Mrs. Alcock's husband, Neil. Alcock had won the respect of Msinga people for 20 years of work in projects to teach blacks basic agriculture.

Dear Abby

Battered Marriage Is Down for Last Count

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After five months of marriage I am contemplating a divorce. "Marty" and I lived together for two years, so it's not as if we didn't know each other when we married.

We are always fighting. He never wants to be with my friends or family—only his. I've done nothing but give, give, give, and he takes, takes, takes. I was in the hospital with bleeding ulcers and Marty didn't bring me a flower—not even a weed! All he brought to my hospital bed was more fighting. I could go on and on.

After I got home I told him I wanted out of this marriage. He started crying and begging me to stay. Now he's making me feel sorry for him. He wants another chance. I've already given him so many chances I've lost count. His mother reminds me that we made a vow to God to live together regardless—and this is from a woman who is on her fourth marriage! Can you believe the nerve? Now she is making me feel guilty!

Am I wrong in my decision to leave him, Abby? My mother says, "Leave him."

HAD IT IN CINCINNATI

DEAR HAD IT: Don't ask me. Don't ask your mother. And don't ask his mother. Nobody can "make you" do anything or feel anything. As an adult you must make your own decisions and take the responsibility for your own actions. From your letter I would say you have been repeatedly used and abused, and if you remain in that kind of situation, you're asking for more of the same. Separate from him, and if he doesn't convince you that he will treat you right—make that separation permanent.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our newspaper rarely publishes an address for those who want to write to you with a problem. Today I saw a box number where one can obtain your booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." I have just passed my 83rd birthday and have already had three lovely weddings, which were sufficient, thank you.

I remain very truly yours,

WAITING TO HEAR

DEAR WAITING: Write to P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I work with a guy who is very friendly at work. I have met his wife and she seems very nice, too. Of course, they are a married couple and I am a single man, but I would like to be their friend.

Several times I have mentioned to this man that I would like to come and visit him and his wife at their home, but I have never been invited. Last week I had to deliver something to their home, so I planned on spending the evening with them. (They knew I was coming.) They seemed glad to see me, but after I was there for half an hour, the wife stood up and said, "I'm sorry, but we have to go somewhere." The way she said it sounded suspicious, so instead of driving home, I parked my car down the street from their house and waited for nearly two hours, but they never did come out.

I really like these people. What do I have to do to make them realize I want to be their friend?

PUZZLED IN TEXAS

DEAR PUZZLED: Please don't pursue this married couple. Most married people prefer to socialize with other married couples. Try to cultivate the friendship of single acquaintances. If you push too hard to socialize with this man, you will spoil the good relationship you have with him at work.

* * *

(If you're single and want to know how to meet someone decent, see page 20 of Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Retirement has meant more deals, success

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willard Rockwell Jr. is enjoying his corporate wheeling and dealing four years after his retirement as chairman of Rockwell International, the aerospace giant he built.

"I'm feeling very healthy these days," Rockwell, 69, says in the office of Cyprus Corp., a closed-end investment firm he is working to turn into an operating conglomerate of hightechnology companies.

"I'm walking my two miles a day, keeping my weight down," the bespectacled, white-haired Rockwell says. "I've always had a good heart so I hope I should have another 15-20 years of active life."

Rockwell retired in 1979 at age 65 as chief executive of Rockwell International, which as prime contractor for the space shuttle and other defense projects had total sales of $7.4 billion last year.

Two years later, in 1981, Rockwell and other investors took control of Cyprus, which this summer announced its intention to acquire four varied companies, three of them new ventures.

"We're loooking for companies in the high-technology area with good growth prospects. I think all four companies we bought fit that category," Rockwell says at Chatham Center, where his office is a short walk across a flowered courtyard from the apartment he shares with his wife, Constance.

The acquisitions include Special Metals Corp., a New Hartford, N.Y.-based maker of "superalloy" metals; Astrotech International Inc., a service station for space satellites near the Kennedy Space Center; Quasitronics Inc., a Houston, Pa., company that designs and manufacturers computer hardware; and Ecology One of Hialeah, Fla., which has developed a method to sterilize sewage with microwaves.

"It's fun. We're looking for some more," says Rockwell, who describes himself as a dealmaker and leaves the day-to-day operation of Cyprus to its president, Don Stitt, who worked with him at Rockwell International.

"I'm not a very good operating manager, so I let somebody else do that. Besides, if you're a retiree, you're not supposed to work that hard."

But an easy retirement didn't satisfy Rockwell. He and other investors bought 17 percent of Cyprus' common stock for $4.3 million at 75 cents a share. The stock, which dropped to 25 cents during a proxy fight with preferred shareholders that cost $20 million to settle, now trades on the American Stock Exchange for about $3.50.

"It seems like everybody in Pittsburgh seems to own some," Rockwell says of Cyprus stock. "The fact that we're getting into these hightechnology areas has made it exciting and interesting.

"One of the goals of this company is to increase our earnings 50 percent a year, which is the standard for high-technology growth companies, par for the course, I guess," says Rockwell.

Negotiations are continuing over the purchase of Special Metals, which employs about 750 people, from Allegheny International Corp., also of Pittsburgh.

The metals producer attracted Cyprus with its patented method of producing "superalloy" metals for high-temperature and high-strength applications such as jet engines and space satellites.

Cyprus announced its intent to acquire Special Metals after the U.S. Defense Department objected to a tentative deal between Allegheny International and Nippon Steel, Japan's largest steelmaker.

"They told Allegheny they figured if the process went to Japan it would be in the hands of the Russians within 18 months," says Rockwell. "Over here they have the security to keep it from them a little longer at least."

Astrotech International, purchased for about $8 million, is constructing the country's first privately owned facility to test and process satellites. Currently, all satellites are readied for space in NASA facilities at the Kennedy Space Center.

Ecology One plans to produce small sewage treatment units that disinfect and clarify waste using microwave technology and can be used in mobile homes and boats.

"It's just an electronic unit that big that fits in a closet in your house," Rockwell says, bringing his hands about a foot apart.

Quasitronics manufactures and markets peripheral hardware for computers, a venture Rockwell says will survive despite the severe competition in the mainframe computer business.

Rockwell says he was taught the merits of diversification by his father, Army Reserve Col. Willard F. Rockwell, who began what eventually became an axle company in Oshkosh, Wis., in 1909.

Watch for grass tetany in cattle

Scurry County cattlemen need to be aware of a condition called grass tetany that might afflict their herds this time of the year.

Grass tetany is a metabolic disturbance resulting from low blood megnesium in the animal.

The problem occurs frequently in adult cows, especially those nursing calves and grazing lush pastures. However, it can occur in cattle of any age or condition and often develops in those grazing wheat or other cereal crops. Cattle in poor condition and exposed to cold or cool, wet, cloudy weather also are subject to grass tetany.

Grass tetany appears more rapidly in lactating animals and more slowly in poorly nourished cattle. It results mainly from low levels of magnesium and high levels of potassium and nitrogen in grass and wheat pastures. Thus magnesium absorption is limited and the blood serum magnesium level drops.

In serious cases of grass tetany, animals start to tremble, stagger or run in a frenzied manner. Those that fall and show convulsions usually die rapidly. Animals less affected may be nervous, walk with a stiff gait, urinate frequently and be sensitive to touch and sound. This may continue for several days before progressing to the convulsive stage leading to death.

Call a veterinarian as soon as possible once symptoms develop since use of intravenous magnesium and calcium compounds can save animals.

Preventive measures can help avoid cattle loses from grass tetany. Feeding a free-choice mineral mix of 25 pounds each of tract mineralized mixing salt, cottonseed meal, dicalcium phosphate and magnesium oxide has been effective in preventing grass tetany. Other mixes also are available, but the key is for each animal to get at least 1 to 2 ounces of magnesium daily.

Since magnesium oxide is unpalatable, I suggest feeding mixtures that increase palatability. Start lactating or advanced pregnancy cows (those most susceptible to grass tetany) on a feeding program 30 days before grass tetany is normally observed.

Once the problem appears, crash feeding programs usually are not adequate to prevent losses. Feeds that supply energy, such as corn or milo, as well as legume hay can help prevent borderline grass tetany cases.

Young life story possible

ATLANTA (AP) — Mayor Andrew Young is working on an autobiography that will tell of his experiences as a civil rights leader, friend of Martin Luther King Jr., congressman, ambassador to the United Nations and mayor, a publisher says.

Young declined to comment on the book, but Bantam Books announced plans to publish the autobiography Thursday.

Stuart Applebaum, Bantam's vice president and director of publicity, said it will be out as soon as possible in 1985 after Young completes the manuscript.

It will be a hard-cover book, and as yet it has no title, he said.

Missouri River tamed by people, computers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The Missouri River used to run free as the buffalo but today is as docile, usually, as a shower nozzle.

Every morning at 10:30 a group of men and women meet to discuss how to let the river flow that day. The hand on the faucets is that of Chuck Abraham, reservoir control director for the Missouri River Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Abraham, or someone like him, decides what will be released through the six huge corps dams on the river proper and 45 more corps dams and 30 Bureau of Reclamation dams on the Missouri's tributaries.

"It's a science, not an art. You do get some gut feelings, but you better not use them. You'll get in trouble. You can't bring water back once it's over the dam," says Abraham, who has since moved on to California with the Bureau of Reclamation.

The Missouri used to be the gutsiest river in America. It set out from the Rockies near Yellowstone National Park with only the clothes on its back, crossed the dry High Plains with hardly a handout of water, yet managed to end up more than 2,000 miles later muddied but unbowed to join the Mississippi above St. Louis.

It was a shallow, sinuous river always changing its bed, sometimes flooding violently, sometimes all but drying up. The steamer pilots who traveled it disdained the easy life of their counterparts on the Mississippi. Mark Twain gave them all the publicity, but the Missouri men claimed they could navigate across a damp handkerchief.

When the Missouri Basin became a Dust Bowl in the 1930s Depression, the corps began building a dam on the river at Fort Peck in Montana as a make-work project to control flooding downstream and improve navigation. Five more dams have been added: Garrison in North Dakota and Oahe, Big Bend, Ft. Randall and Gavins Point in South Dakota. Together they hold 74 million acre feet of water, enough to keep the Missouri flowing for three years if it never rains a drop.

The dams cost $1.15 billion to build, and saved a corps-estimated $1.6 billion in flood damages since the system went into operation. Last year they brought the U.S. Treasury $72 million in power sales. All the dams have hydroelectric plants.

And every morning Chuck Abraham has to run the river to keep as many people happy, dry, or wet as he can. Towboat captains want enough water to stay afloat. Minneapolis and St. Paul want enough water going through the turbines, particularly at times of peak load, to supplement steam generators.

However, if Abraham lets too much water run downstream, irrigation interests are unhappy.

Over a year's time, the river is fed in spring by the snowmelt on the Plains and to a greater extent by that in the Rockies. Snowmelt historically has been a major factor in flooding. So the reservoirs have to be drawn down in advance to accommodate the runoff. But enough has to be kept so that the Missouri can remain navigable during the drier summer, the birds' nesting areas remain in the marshes and there's enough hydro to run the air conditioners of the Twin Cities.

The daily cycles vary from morning to evening when power demands fluctuate. On a longer range basis, Abraham has to keep an eye on the long range weather forecasts lest he send water down the river at a time when there's been heavy rain already in the Missouri's tributaries downstream.

In a wet spring, the channel is easy to maintain along its 732-mile length from St. Louis to Sioux City, Iowa. Summer is the problem.

Abraham keeps a chart of the channel in the conference room with the location of all commercial traffic in the river. If a captain reports running aground, his position gets a blue dot.

"If we accumulate several blue dots in one place, maybe we're going to have to dredge or give them more water. Buf if a boat grounded and another went through at the same spot, maybe the captain missed his turn."

Abraham tries to keep levels high enough in spring for the spawning fish. But if he raises levels at Garrison Lake in North Dakota, that means drawing down the level at Fort Peck upstream.

Shop Snyder

Sure, you can go out of town to do your holiday shopping--but why do it? Snyder retailers have a great variety of merchandise at prices as low (many times, lower) as the big town stores.

And, here's a few things the big town stores can't (or won't) do: Call you by name; Ask about your family; Give you service after the sale; Go that "Extra Mile" to ensure that what you get is really what you want.

These "Discounts" and prices were not changed in any way. We hope you have been given a real idea of what our prices are now. McLeod's Jewelers does not advertise 50%-80% off year round as others do. McLeod's guarantees that we closely match or beat the prices of all the discount stores.

True, we could not claim this when we opened 3 years ago, but we now have manufacturing facilities operating in our store. This facility will go into full production on Jan. 1st, 1984 to start wholesaling to other jewelry stores across the U.S. This is the main reason for our prices being what they are.
