Area voters say charitable bingo is okay

After 12 years of silence, the call of "B-17" and "G-12" will again be heard at the VFW hall and other non-profit organizations. Saturday, voters approved legalizing bingo here.

"We are estatic. We feel like we have the opportunity to do some good within the community," said John Fair, co-chairperson of Veterans For Bingo, the group which got charitable bingo placed on the ballot and spearheaded the campaign for its legalization.

Those advocating the referendum said it would keep bingo money from leaving Snyder as well as bring visitors in. Some 57 percent of the people voting apparently agreed, as the issue passed 947 votes to 714.

"We were extremely pleased with the number of voters that came out," said Fair. "I don't think people were as apathetic as they were in 1982 (when a similar election failed, 782 to 411). I think they realized there is a major concern about dollars leaving the community. And hopefully we can keep lots and lots of money in the county now."

It will be 45 to 60 days before the first charitable bingo games can be held, said Fair. It takes that long before all the paperwork can be processed. To be sure, the VFW will be among the early applicants.

In their application to the Lottery Commission, non-profit organizations planning to hold bingo may designate three days each week during which they plan to hold the games. They can then conduct them on one, two or all three.

"We'll try not to particularly compete with surrounding towns as best we can, but of course the bottom line is to keep the money here," said Fair. "On the other hand, we have a better chance of attracting out of town players if we hold them on nights when other groups aren't."

Some 35 percent of the gross revenues must go to charitable organizations. Fair said the VFW plans to make frequent donations to a number of groups.

Saturday's election was held in Justice of the Peace Precinct 1, which encompasses almost all of Scurry County except for Hermleigh. Interestingly, bingo was passed in Hermleigh (Justice Precinct 2) in an Aug. 9, 1986 vote by a count of 56 for and 47 against. However, no organization has actually held bingo there since it was approved.

Lots of new faces on boards, council

Two incumbents held off strong challenges at the polls Saturday, in elections that were otherwise dominated by newcomers.

School board trustee Geraldine Parker and city councilwoman Vernest Tippens held off stiff competition to retain their seats. Ira and Hermleigh school board incumbents weren't as fortunate.

Jimmy R. Hudgins, the only incumbent among seven candidates running for three full-term seats on the Hermleigh board, came in fourth, while Ira trustee Sid Wall lost a one-on-one race with Dirk Dunn.

Not unexpectedly, Saturday's elections produced nine new board or council members. That's because only six incumbents chose to run again. And of them, college trustee R.C. Patton was uncontested, and councilman I.E. Martin's opponent announced early on that he would not campaign.

Snyder City Council was guaranteed two new members as incumbents in District 2 and 3 elected not to run again. Mobil production foreman Jerry Webb won the District 2 seat, beating H&R Block owner Robert Sanders 283 votes to 114. In District 3, Kenny Gambrell, an assistant parts manager, won over teacher Kenneth Gibson II, 104 votes to 59.

Tippens, who has served three previous terms, won her fourth on Saturday by defeating local bu-

Discussion of minutes keys county court meeting today

A late start and a 40-minute discussion of minutes from last week's meeting dominated the Scurry County Commissioners Court session this morning.

A non-agenda item that resulted in a lengthy discussion of the White Buffalo statue occurred with the appearance of Mrs. Elmo Crowder who has objected to moving the current statue to the Scurry County Coliseum grounds.

The court said the authority to deal with the placement of White Buffalo statues had been given to the Scurry County Historical Commission and that she should be expressing her concerns to that group.

Mrs. Crowder had appeared before the court on April 4. The historical commission plans to place a bronze white buffalo statue on the northwest corner of the square.

During approval of last week's commissioners court minutes, Precinct 2 Commissioner Roy Idom insisted that the minutes reflect that a new maternity and child health services program would be at no cost to taxpayers.

Idom, who voted against the

UIL students place 4th

AUSTIN — Snyder High School students came away with a couple of fourth place awards in Class 4A UIL Academic State Meet competition here over the weekend.

Kurtis McCathern placed fourth in ready writing, and the SHS science team of McCathern, Tom Kerr and Robert Clarady also placed fourth.

Also representing Snyder at the meet were Amanda Carter in poetry interpretation and Tiffany Jones is spelling vocabulary.

"As you can imagine, it was very tough competition," said Larry Scott, SHS principal. "Kurtis was just a few points out of the top three and so was Tiffany. The scoring was very close.

"All of the students gave a great effort. We're proud they made it to Austin and represented us."

WTC trustees meet tonight

The swearing in of newly elected trustees and reorganization of the board are key items on the agenda tonight for Western Texas College trustees.

The meeting will be held at 5:45 in the administration board room.

Out-going trustee and board president John Gayle will give the oath of office to Lee Presswood, R.C. Patton and Eddie Peterson, all uncontested candidates who were elected to the board in Saturday's election. Board secretary Carl Williams will then preside over the election of officers.

Snyder ISD staff members are to present WTC faculty member and rodeo coach Bob Doty a letter of appreciation for his work with the annual special rodeo. Also on the agenda is a request for funds for the rodeo teams to attend the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont.

Consideration of bids for computer software for the financial aid department is the only other new business.

The board is expected to approve the employment of an automotive instructor at the French Robertson prison unit and the transfer of another employee from assistant professor of sociology/psychology to associate professor of the Criminal Justice Training Center.

Trustees will be presented information regarding the Youth Employment and Training Program, or "Mainstream" program. The federally funded program allows disadvantaged seniors or 1994 graduates from the area to attend classes and work during the summer.

The board will also receive an update on recruitment efforts during the spring semester.

Jackson will head lawman association

Darren Jackson, a Scurry County deputy sheriff since 1986, Tuesday will become president of the West Central Texas Law Enforcement Association.

The organization is comprised of law enforcement personnel from 23 counties. Jackson will take office during the association's bi-annual meeting at the Shed Restaurant in Wingate.

Members include city, county, state and federal officials involved in law enforcement and corrections.

Jackson served on the board of directors for three years, served one year as secretary-treasurer and has served the past year as vice president. Another Snyder law officer, the police department's Trevlyn Pitner, is a member of the board of directors.

Jackson is a graduate of Snyder High School and Western Texas College. Jackson majored in criminal justice and was a member of Phi Theta Kappa.

Jackson is also a member of the Snyder Lions Club and currently is chairman of the club's project to sell bicycle reflectors. Jackson is also a member of WTC's criminal justice advisory committee and he coaches girls' softball.

Jackson and his wife, Jackie, have two children, Paul and Leslie, who attend West Elementary.

Annular eclipse to appear over skies Tuesday

From local, wire reports

A blazing ring of fire will arc across the sky Tuesday as the moon moves in front of the sun, leaving a circle of sunlight around a dark disk.

Astronomers call it an annular eclipse — a spectacular event, if not as dramatic as a full eclipse when the entire sun is covered.

An annular eclipse, like a full eclipse, occurs when the moon moves between the Earth and sun. But the moon's orbit isn't exactly circular and it's now near its farthest point from Earth, so it won't appear large enough to completely block the sun.

The eclipse will occur about 11:30 a.m. over Snyder, and will be an estimated 87 percent complete.

Scientists warn not to look directly at the sun. They suggest projecting the image through a pinhole in cardboard on to a sheet of paper or other object. Some people misunderstand, and try to look at the image directly through the pinhole. This is extremely dangerous and can cause eye damage, scientists said. Another option is to view the eclipse through a No. 14 arc-welder's filter.

All of North America will be able to view at least a partial eclipse — given clear skies.

"This one is attracting a lot of attention because of its path of visibility" across the United States, said John Bangert, an astronomer at the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington. "There are a lot of major cities in the path."

The eclipse will make a "wide track that covers perhaps a seventh of the area of the contiguous states," reports Guy Ottewell of Furman University in his book "The Under-Standing of Eclipses."

"If you're in the right place ... you will see the moon position itself directly between the sun and the Earth," said Fred Espenak, an astrophysicist at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

The best viewing will occur in a path ranging from 140 miles to 190 miles wide crossing the nation from southwest to northeast during the middle of the day. The closer you are to this line, the more of an eclipse you'll see, said Espenak.

If the weather is clear, the eclipse will first be visible to Americans in El Paso at 10:07 a.m. local time, meteorologist Joe Rao reported in Weatherwise magazine.

Eclispse can be dangerous

Tuesday's partial eclipse is a spectacle that won't happen again over the central United States until the year 2012. However, don't let this rare sight be the last thing you see.

Solar rays can cause instantaneous blindness. Never look directly at the sun without the proper protection.

Adults should closely supervise their children to make sure they are not looking at the sun, scientists warn. They caution that sunglasses are not safe for viewing the eclipse.

The easiest way to view the eclipse is to use two index cards, one of which should be white. Poke a small hole in a card with a pin or needle. With your back to the sun, hold up the card with the hole on it and let the light shine through the hole on to a white card two or three feet away. You should be able to watch the image of the sun on the lower card.

Dear Abby

Unsafe Conduct at Sea Can Turn Boaters Into Floaters

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You would have served "Mrs. N.M. in Maryland" and millions of boaters well if you had suggested she advise "Fred" to take a safe boating course offered by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary or Power Squadrons in their area.

We are well into the boating season, and many boaters are at risk of losing their boats, or lives — and their guests are at risk of serious injury or loss of life — because of the lack of safe boating habits.

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary are dedicated to serving the boating public through public education programs for a nominal materials charge.

Please note the toll-free phone number on the back of the enclosed "Federal Requirements" booklet ((800) 368-5647), where people can get safety information and attend a boating safety class in their area.

Once again, Abby, you could do a tremendous service for the boating public if you would print this. You may use my name.

DAVID A. DAY, SEMINOLE, FLA.

DEAR DAVID: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. I received a number of letters concerning water safety. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Mrs. N.M. in Maryland" concerning the boater who "brushed off" the life jacket question from his guest: Any guest invited aboard a vessel should be given a pre-departure orientation concerning the location and use of all safety equipment, life jackets, fire extinguishers, marine radio, etc.

The guest should also be given a basic orientation as to the operation of the vessel. What if the skipper becomes injured or otherwise incapacitated? Any person on board asking to use a life jacket ("personal flotation device," or PFD, in boating terminology) should be allowed to do so without question.

I would recommend to "Fred" that he enroll in a boating safety course taught by the local Coast Guard Auxiliary, U.S. Power Squadron or other qualified boating group. With his attitude alone, Fred sounds like a menace on the water.

GARY STEWART, PLEASANTON, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I appreciated your response to "Mrs. N.M. in Maryland" concerning their day aboard a friend's boat. There are certain rules and regulations that apply to boating — the ocean doesn't care if you are in a 20-footer or the Queen Elizabeth II. I've done ocean sailing for more than 30 years, and whenever friends sailed with me, I always pointed out the location of life vests, fire extinguishers and first aid kits. The ship-to-shore radio was monitored, and guests were given instructions on how to use the "mike."

Results: Thirty years of safe, family-fun sailing.

Unfortunately, the free boating courses offered by the Coast Guard are not mandatory for owning and operating a boat.

JOHN OLSSON, SANTA ANA, CALIF.

DEAR JOHN OLSSON: Everyone who operates a boat should be required to take a course and be "licensed," as automobile drivers are. All passengers should know how to operate a boat should the driver become incapacitated.

DEAR ABBY: To "Mrs. N.M. in Maryland" — we had all better believe life jackets save lives, or I wouldn't be here writing this.

It happened in Venezuela last August. There were 13 of us tourists who took a boat ride, a boat which resembled a canoe, long and narrow with an outboard motor. We sat two abreast. At one point, I thought the operator was going too fast and, before we knew it, the canoe capsized in the middle of the Carrao River, which was approximately one-half-mile wide. I could swim, but with my heart problem (I had a heart attack in Hong Kong in 1985), I soon became tired, probably from panicking, and can't remember when I was rescued.

When I regained consciousness, I was lying on the floor of the boat. Everyone thought I was dead when they saw me floating on my back unconscious. Abby, the life jacket saved my life.

Lotto Texas

by The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $25 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 3, 4, 30, 36, 38 and 47.

There were 180 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $2,087. There were 10,078 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $134. And there were 218,407 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $40 million.

Odessan charged in deaths

ODESSA (AP) — A 20-year-old Odessan has been charged with capital murder in the slayings of his elderly neighbors, who were found stabbed to death in their home last month, officials said.

Michael Dean Gonzales was being held without bond Sunday in the Odessa Detention Center. He is accused in the killings of Manuel Aguirre, 73, and Merced Aguirre, 65.

The motive for the stabbings appears to be robbery, police Chief James Jenkins said.

The couple's bodies were found April 22, Jenkins said.

Property belonging to the Aguirres has been recovered, he said. He declined to elaborate on what items were found.

Ector County Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright said he denied Gonzales' bond Saturday night because of the severity of the crime.

"My intention is that he never get out of jail," Bright said. "It was a senseless murder, and I've heard nothing but good things about the couple."

Texas City chemical refinery spews ammonia

TEXAS CITY (AP) — Hospital officials say about 450 people sought treatment for minor injuries after a leak at a chemical refinery sent an ammonia cloud into the sky near Texas City.

Four people admitted to Mainland Center Hospital overnight for observation were in stable condition today, said hospital spokeswoman Jane Hayley.

Most victims had minor respiratory problems and skin irritations, officials said.

The leak at Sterling Chemicals started at about 8:30 p.m., and sent ammonia and propylene into the air for three to five minutes, said company spokesman Wayne Parker.

The fine is instant death

By Phillip Alder

Let's start the week with another of those amusing signs, reported by a reader to The Guardian newspaper in England. Attached to a high-tension electricity pylon in Massachusetts was a board stating: "To climb this structure means instant death. Anyone found doing so will be prosecuted."

In bridge, though, you can commit suicide yet remain alive and unprosecuted — except perhaps by your partner. It is your contract that dies.

In today's contract of three notrump, West leads a low diamond to East's queen. After you win with the king, how do you try to stay alive?

When in no-trump, count your top tricks first. Here you have seven: two spades, three hearts, one club and one diamond (given the lead). You need two more tricks, which can obviously come from the clubs.

Perhaps you took a club finesse at trick two. Better is to lead the club queen to tempt a cover, but then to win with dummy's ace. Maybe East has a singleton king. And if the club finesse is working, you don't need it.

However, whichever line you chose, the contract died. East won a trick with his club king and flashed back his last diamond. West took four diamond tricks to defeat you.

Let's go back to trick one. Assuming West's diamond five is his fourth-highest, when East plays the queen you can place West with the ace. So the only risk to your contract is the given layout. As you are never getting more than one diamond trick, just play low at trick one: Give East the trick with his queen. The defenders' communications are cut and your contract is safe.

Suns, Knicks rally for wins Sunday in NBA playoff tilts

by The Associated Press

A 2-1 series lead wasn't enough for Miami. Eighteen and 15-point leads weren't enough for Houston and Chicago.

Sunday was Comeback Day in the NBA playoffs.

The Atlanta Hawks, down 2-1 to the Heat despite being the No. 1 seed in the Eastern Conference, avoided the upset bug that stung top-seeded Seattle in the West, beating Miami 102-91 Sunday to advance to the next round against Indiana.

Mookie Blaylock had 13 points, 18 assists, eight rebounds and four steals for the Hawks. With a loss, they would have joined the SuperSonics as the only No. 1 seeds ever to lose in the first round.

"He had a sensational game," teammate Kevin Willis said of Blaylock. "Defense, assists, he did it all. He was incredible."

The comebacks by Phoenix and New York in the openers of their conference semifinals were just as unlikely, with the Suns winning 91-87 at Houston and New York edging the Bulls 90-86.

Blaylock capped a late first-half surge that gave the Hawks a 54-44 lead with a desperation 3-pointer with 2.4 seconds left, hitting from just over the half-court line.

Willis had 24 points and 12 rebounds for the Hawks, who begin a best-of-7 series with Indiana on Tuesday. Denver, which pulled the upset of Seattle on Saturday, opens at Utah on the same night.

Miami, making its second playoff appearance in its six-year history, was led by Grant Long with 22 points.

Knicks 90, Bulls 86

New York trailed 67-52 with 3:15 left in the third quarter, then outscored Chicago 38-19 the rest of the way.

Anthony Mason made two big plays in the final minute — a breakaway layup with 48 seconds left that gave the Knicks their first lead since the first quarter and an offensive rebound with 8.2 seconds left.

Mason took a long pass from John Starks ahead of the Chicago defense and scored, giving the Knicks an 88-86 lead. After a miss by the Bulls, New York's Greg Anthony grazed the rim on a shot just as the 24-second clock expired, and Mason rebounded, setting up two clinching free throws by Starks.

Suns 91, Rockets 87

Kevin Johnson had nine points through three quarters, then scored 11 in the fourth as Phoenix won the opener of a Western Conference semifinal.

Houston's 39-21 first-half lead was cut to 45-37 by halftime. The Suns used a 15-4 run at the start of the third quarter to get back in the game and a 13-0 fourth-quarter surge to take the lead for good.

"I don't think they blew it," said Charles Barkley, who scored 21 points for the Suns. "They were going at a hellacious pace in the first half. We started making some shots and we were very lucky to be down only eight points at halftime."

Hakeem Olajuwon had 36 points and 16 rebounds for Houston.

Winfield homerun downs Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — After more than 20 years of major-league baseball, Dave Winfield doesn't worry about pressure situations.

Winfield hit a sixth-inning home run Sunday, breaking open a 2-2 tie and leading the Minnesota Twins past the Texas Rangers, 5-2.

"There was nothing unusual about the situation. Man on base, tight game and we needed a run," said Winfield, who turns 43 this year.

"I crushed the ball but the center fielder went back like he had a chance on it," Winfield said. "It felt good. It was my first homer ever here."

Winfield's 456th career home run came on a high fastball from Kevin Brown (2-5) and scored Alex Cole, who led off the sixth with a single. The 407-footer was Winfield's third of the season.

Winfield, 18th on the major leagues' all-time home run list, hit his fifth home run against Brown and improved to 12-for-31 lifetime against him.

"He's a future Hall of Famer, that's for sure," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "With the game on the line, a money player like that will beat you if you let him."

Scott Erickson, who had a no-hitter at Milwaukee on April 27, picked up the victory. He improved to 3-4 after pitching his second complete game victory with a seven-hitter.

Erickson struck out six and walked two to help the Twins to their fifth victory in their last seven games.

"I was just trying to get ahead of the batters," Erickson said. "I felt strong. The defense did a good job and got a couple of double plays (two) I didn't think the guys were going to turn."

Matt Walbeck gave the Twins a 5-2 lead with his second homer of the year in the seventh.

Brown took the loss, allowing nine hits over eight innings with three strikeouts and a walk.

"There were good points and bad points," Brown said. "On a couple of pitches, the location wasn't where I wanted it. Today they took advantage of my mistakes."

Pneumonia claims George Peppard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Peppard, whose 37-year acting career included roles opposite Audrey Hepburn in "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and Mr. T on "The A-Team," has died of pneumonia. He was 65.

Peppard died Sunday night at the University of California, Los Angeles Medical Center, said his publicist, Cheryl Kagan. He had been hospitalized Thursday with breathing problems and quickly developed pneumonia.

Peppard appeared in more than 25 movies starting in the late 1950s. He found early success with his role as a sympathetic young writer who befriended the flighty Holly Golightly, played by Hepburn, in 1961's "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

In 1964's "The Carpetbaggers," Peppard played a young playboy who inherits an aircraft business and becomes a megalomaniacal tycoon — a role he said typecast him for later tough-guy film roles.

"After the success of 'The Carpetbaggers,' I haven't played a character with much warmth," Peppard said in a 1972 interview with The Associated Press.

He co-starred with Robert Mitchum in "Home From the Hill" (1960) and with Gregory Peck in "Pork Chop Hill" (1959). He also appeared in "How the West Was Won" (1962) and "Damnation Alley" (1977).

In the 1970s, Peppard turned to television. He starred as a shrewd Polish detective in NBC's "Banacek," which ran from 1972-74, and a neurosurgeon on "Doctors' Hospital," an NBC medical drama, from 1975-76.

But he was perhaps best known to younger generations for his work on "The A-Team," in which he played Hannibal Smith, a cigar-chomping former Army colonel who leads a team of renegade Vietnam veterans.

"The character is probably the best part I've had in my career," Peppard told the AP. "It was a good script and a good script is hard to find."

"The A-Team," which ran from 1983-87 on NBC, marked his return to television after several years out of the limelight.

"I was cold. Cold as you can get," Peppard said of the years before the series.

Most recently, he co-starred on the March 3 episode of the TV series "Matlock."

Peppard was born in Detroit and attended Purdue Unviersity before transferring to the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh.

He was married five times, including two failed marriages to Elizabeth Ashley, his co-star in "The Carpetbaggers."

In 1992, doctors removed a cancerous tumor from Peppard's right lung and he had been in remission ever since, Kagan said. He was a two-pack-a-day smoker for much of his life, but quit after the surgery.

Peppard is survived by his wife, Laura; a daughter, Julie; sons Brad and Christian; and three granddaughters.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Quayle denies he targeted colleagues in his new book

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Dan Quayle says he wasn't trying to trash his former Bush administration colleagues in his new book and contends he has nice things to say about them.

"I have some very kind words to say about those same individuals. Unfortunately, the media focuses on more or less the candid side rather than the very complimentary side," Quayle said Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley.

"I guess I failed to appreciate what the cynical spin would be that this was somehow a harshly critical book of my colleagues. It's not."

He said the 400-page book, "Standing Firm," was a personal story in which he is "very harshly critical of myself." He called it a journal of "how I weathered unprecedented abuse and succeeded."

In the book, Quayle singles out Jim Baker, then secretary of state, for trying to dump Quayle from the 1992 ticket, and says that in every matter Baker would "want to know what was in it for Jim Baker."

He wrote that former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp, who along with Baker and Quayle are possible contenders for the Republican presidential nomination in 1996, "would sometimes go off on tangents and not make any discernible point."

He blamed President Bush's defeat in 1992 on "the most poorly planned and executed incumbent presidential campaign in this century."

Quayle said one valuable lesson he tried to impart to readers was that "you have to trust yourself." He said he didn't do that in 1988 when he abandoned thoughts of running for president, and "George Bush didn't do that in 1992."

He said Bush was wrong in adopting his opponent's political agenda and campaigning on the economy.

Clinton announces new Haitian policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration said today its new policy of giving Haitian boat refugees an opportunity to seek asylum at sea won't result in new waves of immigrants flooding Florida's shores.

The policy, spelled out Sunday by President Clinton, also includes stepped up international sanctions against Haiti's military dictators and the appointment of former Rep. William Gray as special adviser on Haiti.

Economic refugees will continue to be returned to Haiti, but changes must be made to protect "some who genuinely fear for their lives," Clinton said.

Clinton's deputy national security adviser, Sandy Berger, said today he didn't think there would "be overwhelming numbers" of Haitians granted asylum because most would not be considered political refugees deserving of asylum.

"There were 1,300 people so far this year who were picked up on boats," Berger said, and probably only 5 percent qualified as political refugees.

"The real problem here is what's going on in Haiti," Berger said on ABC. "And the real solution is to get the military leaders who are perpetuating this terrible violence in that country to stop. The refugee problem is only a result of the fundamental problem, which is the growing level of violence in Haiti and the fact that democracy has not been restored."

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles disagreed with Berger's contention that there would be no great influx of refugees, saying on ABC that in spite of the administration's efforts, "a lot still get through. And we don't need more waves and waves in Florida. We're sort of awash right now."

Berger said Gray, a former congressman from Pennsylvania and House majority whip, will be working with other nations in the hemisphere to pressure the Haiti dictatorship to leave — "to make it clear to them they're on a road that leads to a dead end. The only way to stop the suffering in Haiti is for them to step down.

Gray, who now heads the United Negro College Fund, said he shared Clinton's "determination to help end the suffering of the Haitian people at the hands of their military leaders."

The administration seeks to blunt criticism that it is too tough on refugees or too weak on the military leaders who overthrew Aristide.

sinessman Lynn Gardenhire, 33 votes to 23. Martin won District 4, 148 votes to 41 for Dr. Wylie "Buff" Hearn, who had announced he was moving and would not campaign.

In the Snyder ISD board race, Parker kept her Place 2 seat with a tough, 347 to 283 win over write-in candidate Phil Ragland. In Place 3, salesman Richard Chambers defeated housewife Pam Zeck, 188 to 129.

Winning the three full-term spots on the Hermleigh ISD board were John D. Williamson, with 147 votes; Andres Rodriguez, with 142; and Jimmy "Chip" Roemisch Jr. with 137. Hudgins, the only incumbent, had 119, followed by Rex Glass with 91, Jay Roemisch with 89 and Brian Blair with 6. Like Hearn, Blair had announced early on that he was moving and would not campaign.

Snyder school teacher Carole Haynes won the unexpired term on the Hermleigh board with 147 votes. Jesse Rios polled 83 and Larry F. Bridges had 20.

The changes give Hermleigh four new board members — although all of them with the exception of Williamson have served in prior years.

In Ira, Dirk Dunn managed 70 votes to displace Wall, who got 35 votes. Place 4 incumbent Bo Robinson had no challenger.

Like Patton, who got 391 votes, neither of the other two Western Texas College trustee candidates were contested. Lee Presswood, representing Place 5, got 408 votes; Eddie Peterson, representing Place 7, received 419.

TAAS testing begins Tuesday

Snyder elementary school students will take the state-mandated Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) test Tuesday through Friday at various campuses.

Students in grades 3 through 8 will take the TAAS reading test on Tuesday and the math test Wednesday. Students in grades 4 and 8 only will also be tested in science on Thursday and social studies on Friday.

Parents are asked to make sure their students gets plenty of rest in order to do well on the tests.

No make-up sessions will be held.

Doctor's suspension squeezes abortion availability in state

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — With the state's busiest abortion doctor suspended at least a year and his two clinics shut down, Mississippi may now be the most restrictive state for women seeking to end their pregnancies.

The state now has only one operating abortion clinic, here in the capital city, but abortion foes are not easing off.

"The noose is tightening on the one abortionist and the one clinic in the state," said Roy McMillan, who heads an anti-abortion organization called the Christian Action Group. "We would like to see Mississippi as the first abortion-free state."

Just two other states — North Dakota and South Dakota — have only one licensed abortion clinic, according to the Alan Guttmacher Institute in New York But Mississippi's population is twice that of the Dakotas combined.

In a two day hearing last month, the Mississippi State Medical Licensure Board stripped the medical license of Dr. Thomas Tucker II, who claims he performs 60-70 percent of the 7,000 abortions done in Mississippi each year.

The board found him guilty on 32 of 34 counts involving falsified paperwork and faulty procedures at his clinics in Jackson and Southaven. Some former clinic workers testified that records were routinely altered and controlled drugs often unaccounted for. He may resume work in one year if he meets board requirements.

Tucker, 50, who lives in Birmingham, Ala., also lost his Alabama medical license. Additionally, he faces malpractice allegations in the death of an Alabama patient last month.

Tucker blames politics for his penalty.

"They want to make Mississippi abortion-free," he said of anti-abortion activists. "It won't be abortion-free, it's going to be back alley."

Tucker's suspension and the loss of his two clinics is the latest in a series of setbacks for pro-choice advocates in Mississippi.

Last May, an appeals court rejected arguments against a state law that requires both parents to agree before a daughter 17 or younger can have an abortion.

new health department program last week, said having to move the mental health department would result in additional expenses.

"I want a paper trail, because sooner or later it is going to cost the county money. I want to know where are we going to get the money," Idom said.

The remainder of the court agreed that the "no cost" concept dealt only with the new program, and following a 40-minute discussion, the court agreed unanimously to add the "no cost" statement to the minutes.

In other action, the court canvassed and approved election returns from Saturday's bingo election which voters approved by a 57 percent margin.

A total of 1,661 votes were cast with 947 in favor of legalized charity bingo in Justice Precinct 1. There were 714 negative votes.

Commissioners also approved an $800 line-item transfer for the Precinct 2 Constable. The funds will be moved from salary to travel.

A budget amendment totaling $2,411.28 was also authorized for the juvenile probation office. The funds will be used to replace an engine and other repairs to the juvenile probation officer's auto.

County Judge Bob Doolittle presided at the meeting and commissioners attending were Idom, C.D. Gray Jr., Ralph Trevey and Jerry Gannaway.

Health officials probe illnesses

LUBBOCK (AP) — City health officials are investigating what made about 40 Odessa junior high students sick during a weekend band trip to Lubbock.

The students, treated at four hospitals Saturday night, became sick while boarding buses to leave Joyland Amusement Park.

"What we do know are some of the symptoms: nausea, abdominal cramping, headaches, diarrhea, vomiting," said Doug Goodman, Lubbock public health administrator.

Goodman said the symptoms could be associated with an intestinal disease, the flu or motion sickness.

Officials will interview the students about what they ate at South Plains Mall restaurants and at the amusement park, Goodman said. School officials said many had eaten pizza.

Car placed on MIT dome

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — You never know where you'll find a parking place. This morning, a police car was parked atop MIT's landmark campus dome, about 150 feet above ground.

The car, apparently just the shell of a campus police car, had its red light flashing and a dummy dressed as an officer at the wheel, with donuts.

"It appears to be a fairly spectacular hack," or traditional student prank, said Daniel Stevenson, a reporter and associate editor of The Tech, the student newspaper.

"It really floors you when you see it," he said.

Campus pranks often occur on special days, and today was the last day of classes at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. MIT.

The dome, patterned after classical domes of ancient Rome, is clearly visible from Memorial Drive and the Charles River that separates Cambridge from Boston.

Officials had no idea how the car got there, said Kenneth D. Campell, director of the MIT news office. "It will be coming down sometime today," he said, although he did not know how.

Store owner shoots alleged robber

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Fort Worth man who wounded a suspect after the armed robbery of his comic book store has found himself painted as a symbol for gun owners' rights, property rights and victims' rights.

"They want to make it into this 'hero' gimmick," said Clifford Segura. "He was going to kill me. What are you going to do?"

What did happen was Segura shot Christopher Mosley, 23, of Atlanta, in the leg and left side outside Segura's store Saturday night. Segura said Mosley robbed his store and threatened him moments earlier.

Mosley, who was released from John Peter Smith Hospital and moved to the Tarrant County Jail, has been charged with aggravated robbery. He was being held Monday on a $25,000 bond.

Segura, an engineer with Union Pacific Railroad, is also a TV and film actor and president of Cliff's Comics. He said he has received dozens of calls from nearby business owners, police officers and members of the National Rifle Association.

"They're trying to make me out like a hero," he said. "I've not had one call against me."

Segura, 36, said he was alone in the store about 6:20 p.m. Saturday when a man came in and asked him to retrieve a comic from a back wall. Segura said the man pulled out a pistol and told him to hand over the money in the cash register.

More than half of all defendants convicted of a felony do not go to prison.

Scientist: experiment may be dangerous

DALLAS (AP) — In the syndicated comic strip "You Can with Beakman & Jax," science is explained so children can understand.

But in Sunday's strip, a chemistry experiment was described that scientists say could cause an explosion: how to separate water into its two ingredients, hydrogen and oxygen.

"I looked at it and realized very, very quickly — hey, there's a real problem," said Dr. Gene Nelson, a biophysicist, computer programmer and fan of the comic strip.

"As it is described in the text ... it's just the perfect blend of hydrogen and oxygen to make an explosion," he said. "It should not be performed."

The experiment described in the strip could cause an explosion powerful enough to "break the glass and send fragments of the poor beaker into the eyes of those who are watching," said Dr. Chris Parr, of the University of Texas at Dallas.

The Universal Press Syndicate distributes "Beakman & Jax" to The Dallas Morning News and about 250 other newspapers.

Creator Jok Church said today that an explosion possibly could occur, but it is highly unlikely.

"It is theoretically possible for it to detonate, but I think in the amounts that we're talking about, a 9-volt battery couldn't ignite the whiff of gas you have in there," he said.

"While you can say electricity can detonate there isn't enough current to do it," he added.

In the running cartoon, Beakman is a nonscientist who learns about the world from books. He then finds ways to prove what he's learned. The cartoon has been in syndication about three years, said Lisa Tarry, an assistant editor with the syndicate.

In the running cartoon, Beakman is a nonscientist who learns about the world from books. He then finds ways to prove what he's learned. The cartoon has been in syndication about three years, Ms. Tarry said.

The experiment described in Sunday's comic is called electrolysis, which means that electricity is used to break down a complex material into its constituent elements.

In the " Beakman & Jax" example, electricity splits water into hydrogen gas and oxygen gas in one overturned jar.

"You normally do the electrolysis into separate jars," said Dr. Parr, a theoretical chemist. "If you put them in the same jar, you have pre-mixed the hydrogen and the oxygen, and that's explosive."

Parr says the experiment is something "that you might have second-year university chemists do after they've had at least one year hands-on experience in the laboratory."

The combined gases usually need an ignition source, like a match, to explode, he said. But if the two electrodes in the jar or beaker touch, they would create a spark that could trigger an explosion.

"I do the electrolysis of water, but again, the electrodes go under separate containers," said Robert Roe, who teaches physics and chemistry at Brookhaven College and Highland Park High School.

Getting back in shape after pregnancy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a C-section 1-1/2 years ago. Despite daily situps and abdominal exercises, my stomach still protrudes incredibly far. Nothing seems to improve my look of a four-month pregnant woman.

DEAR READER: Although a Caesarian section can occasionally weaken the abdominal muscles, pregnancy will often stretch these muscles so greatly that they fail to spring back to their normal tension after delivery, leading to a sagging abdominal wall. I don't believe that the Caesarian section you had is necessarily playing an important role.

Nonetheless, you should ask your obstetrician about this. Perhaps your exercise program needs modification — or, as in some cases, surgery to remove the stretched tissue may be necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss a transverse colostomy. While I recently had one, I really know very little about the procedure and its outcome, except to say that it's not pleasant.

DEAR READER: An anatomy lesson: The ascending colon begins in the lower right abdomen and travels up under the liver, where it makes a 90-degree turn to the left and becomes the transverse colon, which extends across the mid-upper abdomen to an area under the left rib cage.

At this point, it takes a 90-degree turn to the south (as the descending colon) and eventually becomes the sigmoid colon, which connects to the rectum.

In certain instances, such as the presence of a malignancy or abscess, doctors have to re-route the intestinal contents into a colostomy bag, a plastic container that is worn on the abdomen. Colostomies can be performed on any part of the colon, and may be temporary or permanent. Regardless, they are never pleasant.

You apparently required an operation to open your transverse colon. Frankly, I am shocked that the surgeon failed to discuss with you the need for the procedure, the procedure itself and the consequences. This is bad medicine.

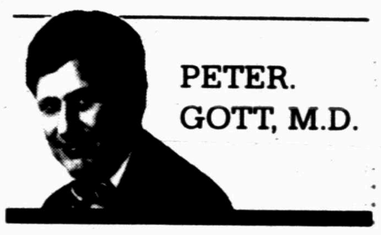

I encourage you to return to him for a thorough explanation, which — although after the fact — is still vital to your continuing health. For instance, you need to know the reason for the surgery and what his future plans are for you.

As important, you need instructions about how to care for your colostomy, as well as support for what must be a trying time. You can obtain this assistance from nurses who are trained ostomy specialists. Your surgeon (or the hospital) can refer you to these qualified professionals.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Pat Gray offers Clear-Coat car protection

West Texas weather is especially rough on car finishes. Now you can shield your new paint with the revolutionary protection of Herberts Standox Cross-Linking Clear Coat. It's the only coating endorsed by Lexus and Infinity. And in Big Spring, Pat Gray Body Works is the trained and certified Standox shop.

In addition to preventing chipping and scratching, Clear Coat guards against fading from extreme heat, cold and sand.

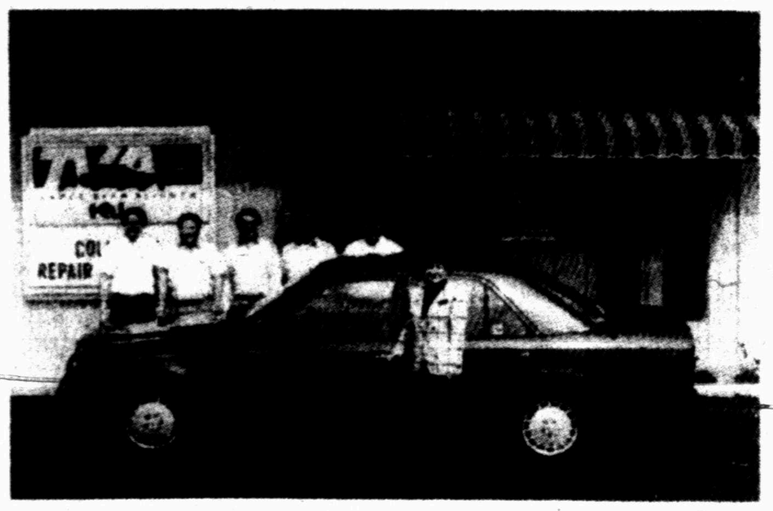

If that's not reason enough to order Standox Cross-Linking Clear Coat think about the beautiful extra glossiness your car will have. Many car manufacturers are now advertising, expecially on TV, the value of coating. (For example, a Chevrolet commercial shows ball-bearings showering down on the painted surface of a new pickup truck to demonstrate chip resistance.)

The expert application of Clear Coat is a specialty at the right price at Pat Gray's. An additional guarantee of satisfaction is Gray's qualification by I-Car (the industry's leading educational organization). Among the many courses required for the I-Car Gold Class Certificate is one that's all about painting and finishing. So Gray's warranty is backed up by the best possible technical knowledge.

Herberts Standox Clear Coat is the only product of its kind on the market; and Pat Gray Body Works is the only expert in town.

If your car needs body repair before painting and coating be sure to ask about special pricing. Pat Gray Body Works has a long history of making cars look like new for individual customers and the insurance business.

The company is a member of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. Since 1977 excellence has been the standard at Pat Gray Body Works: 700 North Owens, Phone 263-0582.

Man arrested for killing 11-year-old

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A San Antonio man was arrested Sunday on capital murder charges in the beating death of his fiancee's 11-year-old sister, police said.

Jonathan Armstrong, 20, was held without bond Sunday in the San Antonio jail.

Armstrong is accused of using a baseball bat to beat to death Sarah Anne Whitmore, said Sgt. Joe MacKay of the San Antonio Police Department's homicide division.

Armstrong, the fiance of 19-year-old Patricia Whitmore, Sarah Whitmore's sister, lived with the two and their parents at the Whitmore's house.

MacKay said that sometime after 4 a.m. Sunday, Armstrong lured Sarah Whitmore out of the house and over to the home of his friend.

"We believe he attempted to sexually assault her and that she attempted to resist, at which point he took the bat and hit her over the head repeatedly until she died," MacKay said.

Police arrested Armstrong without incident later Sunday morning.

An autopsy is pending with the Bexar County Medical Examiner's Office.

Mother Teresa bitten by dog

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Mother Teresa, learning that not every creature responds well to human kindness, has been given a rabies shot after being bitten by a dog.

"It's not much. I have been given an injection by my physician," she said today, reached by telephone.

Reprieve given to Pam Perillo

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has stayed the scheduled Monday execution of a woman convicted in the 1980 strangulation of a Louisiana man in Houston.

Pamela Lynn Perillo, 38, received the stay as expected Friday from U.S. District Judge Ewing Werlein Jr. in Houston.

The Texas Attorney General's office had said it would not oppose a stay for Ms. Perillo, whose case is in the early stages of the federal appeals process.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for the Attorney General's office, said last week it was "virtually impossible" that Ms. Perillo would die Monday. He said it would take another two years or so before she exhausts her appeals.

Ms. Perillo was convicted in the robbery-slaying of Bob Skeens of Houma, La. Skeens, 26, and a friend, Robert Banks, 30, were found strangled at Banks' Houston residence.

James Michael Briddle, an accomplice, also is on death row.

Ms. Perillo, 38, is one of only four women on Texas' death row.
