OB ward to gain 'birthing room' with renovations

A renovation of the obstetrics ward at Cogdell Memorial Hospital — to include a changeover to a "birthing room" popular with Lamaze natural childbirth — was approved Thursday by the board of managers.

Hospital Administrator Cy Miller presented the proposal at the board's regular September meeting. He noted the OB ward is the only section of the facility which has not received a "general fixup" in the past three years.

According to Miller, the birthing room is a relatively new concept for the treatment of the expectant mother and has increased in popularity in conjunction with Lamaze training and natural childbirth techniques.

As described for the board, the new room will feature furnishings and design with a "homey" atmosphere. In addition to having her baby in the room, the mother and baby will remain there also for post-delivery treatment.

According to Miller, the concept has enjoyed great success in hospitals in the Lubbock and Abilene areas.

Hospital staffers are hoping the availability of the facility at Cogdell will encourage more local women to have their babies here rather than travel to an out-of-town hospital.

In addition to the birthing room, each room on the floor will be repainted with new wall coverings added in the hallways, nursery and rooms.

No estimates were available for the total cost of the renovation project Thursday night, but it was noted the largest single expense incurred will be the purchase of a special "birthing bed." It carries a minimum price tag of $6,500.

No major structural changes in the facility are planned and hospital staffers expect no significant disruption of normal OB procedures while the work is being done.

At Thursday's meeting, managers also approved the purchase of a computer terminal, printer and software for the hospital pharmacy.

Hospital staff pharmacist John Johnson presented the proposal to the board and explained advantages to be gained by computerizing the pharmacy operation.

According to Johnson, the program — called IBMAR-Mediquest Softqware — with allow improved inventory procedures to cut costs as well as alerting physicians to possible dangerous drug interactions.

Johnson told the board the

Borden talk 'dry' with tour

GAIL — Around 100 Borden and Scurry County farm and ranch operators were on hand here Thursday to hear "How to Survive the Drought."

The talk was part of a range and livestock tour sponsored by the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District.

Dr. John McNeil of Amarillo and Dr. Russ Petit of the Texas Tech Range Sciences faculty spoke to the group about ways to restart their livestock operations when range conditions improve.

McNeil, a cattle breeding specialist, presented a 15-minute program for the ranchers on restarting cattle herds.

McNeil cautioned the ranchers to take care in making sure optimum breeding cycles were observed for their cattle after they restart calf production.

He also also offered several suggestions for making sure that cattle bought to restock depleted herds are free from brucellosis, other diseases and parasites when returned to the range.

Petit, a specialist in range plant management, told the group there was "little he could offer" in terms of immediate suggestions to offset the dry range conditions.

He did offer an optimistic outlook for the current situation. "It will rain again," he said, adding an old timer he knew observed long ago that 80 percent of the years have below average rainfall anyway.

Petit told the group that — considering the circumstances — Borden county rangelands were in good condition, especially relative to rangelands to the northwest in Eastern New Mexico.

He also told the group that a beneficial side effect of the dry years would be that a tremendous variety of different types of grasses and weeds would get a chance to get started on the range when the rains eventually come.

Petit said that the increase in the variety of plants available for forage when the rains come would be very beneficial to livestock operations.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Ross Perot and his education reform bill has provided newspaper writers with plenty of material this fall. Harold Hudson, in the Perryton Herald, had some interesting facts.

Says Hudson, "Perot's daughter attends a private school and is spared the rules coming out of the new bill. It is interesting to note that Perot's daughter missed 23 days of school last year showing horses.

"Under the new rules for public schools, insisted upon by Perot, a student like his daughter would fail, no matter how good her grades. This seems to be a case of 'do as I say, not as I do.'"

Marshall Day, in the Seminole Sentinel, says while growing up a good deal of time is spent worrying about what the world thinks of us. "By the time we reach middle-age, we realize the world really wasn't paying that much attention."

Computers have made keeping statistics more than routine. If you happen to be watching a professional football game, the announcer may declare that Team X has outscored Team Y 50 points in the last 25 quarters.

We guess it helps fill the gaps in some of those games. We wonder why some statistics are maintained, like some of these passed on by O. G. Nieman in the Hereford Brand.

"Market value of labor performed annually by the average American housewife: $40,022.

"Annual earnings, including overtime, of a Carnegie Hal stagehand, $90,000.

"Out of every 100 baseball players who actually sign pro contracts, only eight ever appear in a major league game.

"Percentage of Americans who commit murder and never appear in a courtroom: 50.

George Dolan, in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, passed along another church bulletin blooper. The pastor was attempting to explain a new worship procedure whereby members of the congregation would observe a moment of silent meditation just before the sermon.

The bulletin announced, "We will undergo a moment of medication before the sermon."

Five offer WTRC aid

Five Snyder men have been named area chairman for the Cattleman's Round-Up for Crippled Children, held annually to benefit the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene.

Named from Snyder are Charlie Henderson, John Jarrell, Weldon Johnson, R.H. Odom Jr. and John Reed. They are among 200 chairmen helping with the 25th annual roundup.

Livestock donated by ranchers are collected at a designated point in each community and transported free to an auction site. Funds raised benefit an estimated 11,000 handicapped individuals throughout the area.

Schedules sales this year include a cattle sale Sept. 24 at Abilene Auction; a horse sale Oct. 6 at Abilene; a goat and sheep sale Oct. 8 in Junction; plus sales in Coleman Oct. 10, Stephenville Oct. 10; and Brownwood Nov. 7.

Hospital observes 'emergency' week, health exams free

A range of health-related medical exams will be offered free of charge next week courtesy of D.M. Cogdell Memorial Hospital and its observation of Emergency Medicine Week here.

Activities include an Emergency Room open house planned Sunday, followed Monday and throughout the week with a variety of free medical checkups.

County residents may receive exams designed to test for diabetes, sight problems, blood pressure as well as the compatability of prescription drugs.

In addition, hospital staffers Thursday and Friday will offer classes in life-saving training which will enable class members to become certified in CPR.

For county youth, a poster contest is planned also for pre-school and elementary-age youngsters.

All poster entries must be submitted no later than next Friday at 3 p.m.

The poster should depict what the hospital emergency room means to the child. Drawings should be on construction paper and supplies may be picked up at the ER desk.

Prizes will be awarded for first and second place. The posters will also be displayed on the ER lobby. The child's age should be on the front and the name and telephone number on the back.

Ask Us

Q. — Who is the current ruler of Saudi Arabia (a question submitted by Mrs. McCleskey's 6th grade class at West Elementary)?

A. — The Saudi Arabian government is a monarchy. Its legislative and executive powers are combined and vested in the council of ministers, which is in turn headed by the king. The current monarch is King Fahd ibn Abdul Azis, who assumed the throne in 1980.

In Brief

No decision

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission today ordered further study of the possible health hazards that could be caused by the construction of a 400,000-volt power line that three companies want to build through six counties.

The commission had planned to rule today on the controversial proposal submitted by Central Power & Light, Houston Lighting & Power Co. and Southwestern Electric Power Co., but in a 3-0 vote the PUC chose to send the case back for additional study instead of making a decision that would probably lead to an immediate court appeal.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Former opposition leader Shimon Peres was sworn in as Israel's eighth prime minister today and his bipartisan government promptly turned its attention to Israel's worsening economy.

In interviews with three leading newspapers, Peres was quoted as saying his first priority will be to revive the economy and seek financial aid from the United States.

Botha, prime minister since 1978, was the architect of the new system creating separate houses of Parliament for the Asian and mixed-race minorities to sit alongside the existing white chamber. The Parliament convenes Tuesday.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — After two weeks of black riots and a fresh spate of bombings, P.W. Botha was sworn in as state president today under a new constitution that still denies the vote to South Africa's black majority.

Guardsman shot during maneuvers prompts probe

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A young National Guard recruit said his first impression when a "sniper" fired at him during night infantry training maneuvers last weekend was "Man, these blanks really hurt."

Then his arm went numb. He felt a stinging sensation, put his hand on his arm, and felt the blood. Then he started hollaring.

"I'm shot, I'm really shot," Bert Moore screamed to other guardsmen on the maneuvers Saturday night at Camp Maxey near here.

Doctors said Moore's left arm was permanently disabled when he was hit by a shotgun blast.

Four National Guard offices have begun investigations into the decision to use unauthorized weapons in the exercise, apparently to add realism to the combat effects, the Dallas Times Herald said.

The staff sergeant who supervised the drill may face an unspecified penalty for violating regulations, they said.

Army officials said the shell that hit Moore contained wadding and gunpowder, but no pellets. However, Moore said pellets were removed from his arm during surgery Sunday at McCuistion Medical Center in Paris, where he remained today.

The use of live ammunition during such an exercise is "absolutely not" permitted, the adjutant general's office in Austin said.

In such exercises, only M-16 or M-60 guns loaded with blanks are permitted, said Gen. Willard Hill, assistant director of the Adjutant General's office in Austin.

"I can tell you quite frankly they shouldn't have had shotguns out there unless they were on riot control maneuvers," Hill said.

Capt. Jerry Morris, administrative officer of the National Guard's unit in Terrell where Moore was assigned, said the trainees were not on riot control exercises, but were engaged in infantry platoon training.

Moore and seven other trainees, dressed in camouflage fatigues and their faces darkened with black paint, were pretending to be in a safety zone with possible snipers in the area. They had M-16 rifles loaded only with blanks.

It was the first meneuver for Moore, a pre-med student at East Texas State University who joined the National Guard only three weeks ago. Six more experienced guardsmen were acting as aggressors.

Moore was lying on the ground next to a bush when an "enemy" walked past him.

"He got three or four yards from me. I jumped up and said, 'Ahh, you're dead!' You know, we were just out there having fun. Then I shot a couple of rounds from my M-16."

Moore said he apparently startled the other guardsman, who then fired on him with a riot shotgun.

Morris said the more experienced guardsmen had been on riot control maneuvers earlier in the evening, and it was decided they should carry their shotguns with them on the 11 p.m. infantry maneuvers to provide the sound of gunfire.

Moore said he was told the men had removed the pellets from the shotgun shells but kept in the gunpowder and the wadding for sound effect.

"It was someone's idea of adding realism to the exercise," Hill said.

Morris said he is "99 percent sure" which guardsman shot Moore, but that the individual will face no charges because the shooting was accidental.

Moore, voted "Most Courteous Student" last year at Quinlan High School, said he joined the Guard in late August to be eligible for its educational benefits so he could someday attend Bible college and become a minister.

He said his fear is that he will now be given a medical discharge, Moore said.

In that event, Morris said, Moore would receive some compensation from the Army but would be ineligible for educational benefits.

Dear Abby

Husband's Rejuvenation is Not Cause for Jubilation

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I found a paid hotel bill in my husband's possession. A room had been rented in a lady's name at a very expensive local hotel. It showed that a party of two had spent the night there and had room service. I was out of town at the time.

I also found a canceled check indicating that my husband had given this same lady a nice sum of money. (We have separate checking accounts.)

When I confronted my husband with the hotel bill and canceled check, he said he "found" the hotel bill at his place of business. The canceled check, he said, was a loan he had made to a young woman he hardly knew.

Abby, I know he's lying. I did some checking around and learned that the lady is 26 years old and married. (My husband is 58.)

When I told my husband I was going to mail the hotel bill and canceled check to the lady's husband, he begged me not to, but contends that he is innocent of any wrongdoing.

My husband has been impotent for the last eight years due to medication he's been taking for high blood pressure. (I've been told that a young woman can arouse an older man when a woman his own age cannot.)

Should I mail the check and hotel bill to her husband? I think he should know, since I do. I understand he is a very nice man.

I will not make a decision until I hear from you.

WAITING IN GEORGIA

DEAR WAITING: Please don't mail the hotel bill to the lady's husband. I realize that you are hurting. But would you hurt less if you caused her husband to suffer too?

Try to resolve this problem rationally without bitterness or ill will by discussing it with a counselor. Your husband needs counseling, too. He's obviously a sick troubled man who needs your understanding, and the non-judgmental guidance that a counselor can provide.

DEAR ABBY: A 54-year-old, financially independent professional woman wrote to say that she had many suitors who enjoyed her company, but after she told them she was celibate, they disappeared. She wondered why they didn't continue seeing her and get their sex elsewhere.

Abby, celibacy has nothing to do with sex. In my Webster's Dictionary, a "celibate" is defined as "unmarried." The woman should have used the word "chaste," which means "innocent of unlawful sexual intercourse."

Furthermore, there would be no need for an unmarried woman to announce that she is celibate since a celibate is, by definition, an unmarried person.

Why didn't you straighten her out?

CELIBATE IN N.J.

DEAR CELIBATE: I didn't straighten her out because until you straightened me out, I also thought celibate and chaste were synonymous.

But celibacy, according to my Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, is also defined as "abstention from sexual intercourse."

DEAR ABBY: Although I can't top "Pennsylvania Dutchman's" cousin, I think I can match him. From the Markwell family Bible: Lewis Markwell Sr. died in November 1879, shortly before his 80th birthday. However, my records show a cousin whose father was 90 when she was born!

My great-great-great-great-grandmother Armstrong, born in 1739, bore five children after she was 41 years old. The youngest was born when she was 49. I realize this is no record, as there have been children born to women in their 50s. But five children after 40 is not every woman's fondest hope!

JAMES L. PYLES, MAYSVILLE, KY.

CONFIDENTIAL TO IN LOVE WITH A PARAPLEGIC MAN: The many intelligent questions you asked me deserve to be answered, but unless you include your name, address and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I am unable to reply.

Paul Harvey

Paul Harvey, you travel almost constantly, what do you hear? How's the campaign going?

I do travel a great deal, purposely during an election year. I have supplied the 300 newspapers which carry my column an "advance" election evaluation for the ten national elections.

It is those travels which have made it possible for me to anticipate such election outcomes (including the so-called Truman surprise) at least five days in advance.

These words are NOT this year's prediction; your editor will receive that column on Oct. 31.

This, instead, is an "interim report" based on what I've overheard to date.

Historically, when there is a big voter turnout it is a "protest vote." The outs are rallying to vote the ins out.

To mobilize this "vote against," Fritz Mondale is seeking to characterize the incumbent president as being cold and uncaring, indifferent to human needs.

So far that accuation has won some cheers; there is little evidence it has won many converts.

President Reagan's campaign theme makes his audience feel good about their country, themselves and about him.

"Patriotism, prosperity and peace-through-strength."

He asks, "Are you better off than four years ago?" and most audiences believe they are.

Even the disparity in the candidates' ages, the president has managed to dismiss.

So what I overhear this pre-election time is little different from what George Gallup's pollsters have been hearing: Reagan by a comfortable margin: perhaps by an overwhelming margin.

What considerations could change that? What could happen in the next eight weeks which would favor the Mondale-Ferraro ticket?

Historically, the "upset elections" were those in which voters had talked one way and voted another.

Or, said another way, the ones who responded to the pollsters did not reflect the underground vote of pent-up resentment.

The resentment may have been against an alienated incumbent or a pompous challenger.

President Reagan--face it--for all the campaign rhetoric--so far cannot be hit with anything that does not bounce off.

If Reagan is at all beatable, Ted Kennedy would have tried.

Mother is reunited with child

GIDDINGS, Texas (AP) — A Mexican mother has been released from Lee County Jail on personal recognizance and reunited with her two small children, including the 5-month-old son she is accused of trying to sell for $50.

Ana Gomez, 20, and Roberto Cortez, 23, are charged with attempting to sell a child, a misdemeanor. Cortez remained in jail Thursday on $1,500 bond on that charge and on $10,000 bond on an auto theft charge.

District Judge Harold Towslee Thursday ordered the baby boy and his 17-month-old sister returned to Ms. Gomez, 20, after she was released from jail and after Harris County officials found records showing that the children were born to Ms. Gomez at a Houston hospital.

A Lee County woman told the sheriff's office Sept. 5 that a man and woman approached her on the parking lot of a Giddings shopping center, offering to sell her a baby who appeared to be about 6 months old.

The woman took down the license number of the 1978 Thunderbird in which they left, and provided authorities with descriptions of them and of the car.

Administration delays arms report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has decided to hold up a report to Congress in which the Soviet Union is accused of 11 violations of arms control agreements over nearly a quarter-century, a knowledgeable congressional source says.

The alleged violations include sending nuclear-powered submarines to Cuba and testing an illegal intercontinental ballistic missile.

The delay might extend beyond meetings President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz have scheduled later in the month with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

According to the source, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, a decision had been taken to submit the findings to Congress next Wednesday, but that at the behest of the State Department a postponement was arranged.

"We can understand the inhibition," he said. "We, ourselves, don't want to be blamed for torpedoing the (Reagan-Gromyko) summit. We think there are a lot of things to talk to the Russians about, starting with the violations."

A declassified summary of the report, prepared by the General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament, was to have been made public.

The source said he did not know when the report would be sent to Gqngress. "State (Department officials) would like to delay it forever," he told The Associated Press.

This hand has it all

By James Jacoby

Today's deal has something for almost everybody. There are bridge stars. The West defender is internationally famous Peter Nagy, formerly of Montreal. Declarer South is world-renowned Edgar Kaplan, frequent national champion. There are problems for declarer (for instance, should he win the first round of diamonds?). And last, there's an opportunity for the defense to shine.

Declarer did finally win the first trick, fearing that a second diamond might be trumped by East. He drew trumps ending in his own hand and led a low club.

Now the defense came to life. Peter Nagy put up the queen of clubs. The ace won the trick and the jack was continued. When East held off playing the king, declarer had to lose two diamonds, one club and one heart for down one.

Can the contract be made if the opening lead is ducked by declarer? Yes. Best for defense is a heart shift, in which case South must attack the club suit before drawing trumps, but he will eventually come to 10 tricks.

In defense of declarer, it is difficult to foresee that West will play second hand high on the low club. But as soon as I win 10 more national championships, I'm going to write Edgar Kaplan about this hand.

Lang answers home repairing questions

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am going to put red cedar siding on the outside of my house and hope to do it myself with the help of my son. We are having considerable discussion as to whether to use red cedar shakes or cedar plywood. I also have heard you can get red cedar hardboard. What can you tell me about it?

A. — Hardboard siding in rough cedar texture has the same characteristics as regular exterior hardboard and can be finished almost any way you wish. The best way to make a choice among the shakes, plywood or hardboard is to get one of the companies that sells it to advise you where the product can be seen, preferably in the makeup of a house.

Q. — We saw a question in your column from a fellow who dropped white paint on a brick wall. Rather than scrubbing with turpentine, an easier method would be one my husband and I used when trying to solve a problem we had when concrete was splattered against the brick front of our bungalow from the roof to the ground by vandals. We got a small can of brick-colored rust-inhibiting paint, thinned it with paint thinner to a water consistency, then painted the affected areas, being careful not to get paint on the mortar. Don't worry if the paint doesn't exactly match. It will sink into the bricks without a trace. We don't know why this happens, but it works. The paint can be lightened or darkened with a few drops of black or white paint.

A. — No such question and answer that we can recall. Nevertheless, your explanation is most interesting. Thanks.

Hominy adds to brunch...

Quick and easy skillet dish

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

One of the most interesting foods to serve at brunch has been widely used for years and years in the United States, but mainly in the South and Southwest. Oddly enough, its virtues have not been discovered all over the country.

I'm talking about canned whole hominy, white and golden. If it's not in your markets, ask for it. When there is a real demand for a product, stores usually stock it.

One way of fixing hominy for brunch is with bacon, eggs and cheddar cheese plus onion and green pepper for seasonings. And it's a skillet dish that is quick and easy to make.

BRUNCHSTYLE BACON, EGGS AND HOMINY

4 slices bacon
½ cup chopped (medium fine) onion
½ cup chopped (medium fine) green pepper
One 14½-ounce can white or golden hominy, drained
4 large eggs
Pepper to taste
½ to 1 cup shredded (medium fine) cheddar cheese

In a 10-inch skillet over low heat fry bacon, turning as necessary, until crisp. Drain bacon on paper towels, crumble and reserve.

Pour off all the drippings in the skillet except one tablespoonful. Add onion, green pepper and hominy; cook gently, stirring often, until onion is yellowed.

In a small bowl beat eggs enough to blend yolks and whites; add pepper. Pour over hominy mixture; sprinkle with reserved bacon. Cover and cook gently until eggs are almost set. Sprinkle with cheese; cover and let stand off heat until eggs are set and cheese melts.

BEAUTY

You can exercise to relieve stress while at your desk, says Shelley Liebman in "Do It At Your Desk" (Berkley Books, New York).

Rotate your ankles, then your wrists, then your head. Flex and point your feet.

Rotate your shoulders. Now make tight fists, then stretch fingers out. Do each of these movements in a regular rhythm five times each, then repeat the cycle.

To combat hip spread, tighten, then release buttocks 10 times at least once every hour.

Foot odor ends with use of soap

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Enclosed is a copy of your column that changed my son's life and made our lives bearable. John is 26 years old and, ever since high school, he has had unbelievable foot odor. This was a subject of jokes and ridicule in the school locker room.

When I did the laundry, the whole clothes hamper and contents would reek with the odor. You could always tell that he was home from work and had removed his shoes. The entire house smelled. Sometimes his socks were stained with a pale-yellow fluid and the soles of his feet were dead white.

He made the rounds of foot doctors and dermatologists and spent a fortune on special foot powders.

When I read your column, I called our doctor and asked for pHisoHex soap. The first day, he bathed his feet twice in the pHisoHex. He came down at bedtime and said there was no odor when he removed his shoes. That was three weeks ago. He continued using it, and there is no odor or seepage. The dead-white skin is beginning to rub off and the skin of his feet is starting to look healthy.

The clothes hamper has been aunned and aired, as has his bedroom, and all his blankets washed. The upstairs is starting to smell of clean air and not pine oil or aerosol spray. Thank you for all of us.

DEAR READER — I am delighted to hear that your son was able to eliminate his foot-odor problem. All the washing and usual hygienic measures that he took will not eliminate bacteria that live under the surface of the skin. Normal soaps will not remove these. About the only thing that does work is a bactericidal soap that penetrates the skin, such as HisoHex. Once the bacteria are killed, the odor they create will disappear.

It is not necessary to continue the soap a long time after the desired effect is obtained. Once the bacteria colony is eradicated, one can use the more conventional measures discussed in The Health Letter 11-8, Your Feet and How to Care for Them, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I hope your comemnts will help someone else with the foot-odor problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have heard that if your cholesterol level is too low, it can be detrimental to your health. What kinds of problems can this cause? What can a person do about low cholesterol levels if he is already overweight? Can this problem have anything to do with a nonfunctioning gall bladder?

DEAR READER — What do you mean by too low? I have seen some very low levels in outstandingly healthy young athletes. I suspect the stories you have heard relate to an observation a few years ago about an increased death rate in individuals with low cholesterol. It was noted primarily in athletes. The problem was cancer. It raised quite a stir, but it was an unnecessary panic that researchers are prone to.

Subsequent studies on larger populations did show a relation to low cholesterol levels and cancer. But the low cholesterol levels did not cause the cancer. Rather the cancer came first and may have contributed to the low cholesterol levels.

Remember that anything that causes you to lose weight may cause your cholesterol to fall. Cancer can certainly do that.

No, gall bladder disease does not cause a low cholesterol. If you happen to be blessed with a low cholesterol level rejoice and don't worry about it.

Parker misses child safety conference

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Carl Parker, who vowed that a grand jury indictment for allegedly financing a prostitution ring would not interfere with his official duties, missed a conference at which he was the keynote speaker.

Organizers of the statewide conference on child passenger safety had no explanation Thursday for Parker's absence. A spokesman in the senator's Capitol office said he had sent a representative.

Homes in Pacific Northwest insulated as part of study

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (AP) — Some folks in this Pacific Northwest valley are looking forward to the chill winds of winter: That's when a $20-million study seeking to document the benefits of heat conservation will pay off for 3,100 homes.

The Bonneville Power Administration, a federal electric power wholesaler, is paying the full cost of installing unusually thick insulation, heat-retaining windows and other home-tightening features, an average of $4,000 in free services for each household.

Not surprisingly, the householders are pleased.

"I can hardly wait for this winter, to see if there's a difference," said Jan Keeling, who with her husband, Homer, spent up to $225 a month on heating bills last winter. "I just hope it works."

The Natural Resources Defense Council, an environmental group, proposed the program four years ago and won the support of the Northwest Power Planning Council, which plans the energy future of Oregon, Washington state, Idaho and Montana. BPA agreed to finance the effort with ratepayers' funds.

"I don't think anybody here was terribly enthused about the project," said Terry Oliver, project manager at Bonneville, a federal power-marketing agency. "Both groups proposed conservation as a major resource. All the while, the utilities were making decisions ... to go with central generation plants."

Pacific Power & Light Co. agreed to submit a proposal to BPA in 1981. The company now has a contract with Bonneville to bundle up the homes.

The process began in March and is scheduled to be finished by December 1985.

Officials selected Hood River County and the city of Mosier, both just east of the Cascade Range, as a test area because of wide variations in climatic conditions there. The 20-mile-wide area includes the mild, windy climate in Hood River, the more biting cold near Mount Hood's foothills, the rain-soaked area on the west edge of the Hood River Valley and the dry, sagebrush country in the east.

The county also offers a "real divergence of economic classes," as well a mix of agricultural and urban utility customers and relative nearness to utiliy and power authority headquarters 60 miles away in Portland.

The program offers nothing to people who weatherized their homes on their own before the project was announced, and authorities admit some of them are unhappy. "Everyone hates to miss out on a freebie, (but) most are pretty philosophical," said Don Peters, project manager for PP&L.

Nor does the project assist people whose homes are heated by means other than electricity.

Project managers decided to use only local contractors in an effort to reduce consumer suspicion. A survey of the area found many residents did not trust either the utility or the power authority.

Some residents have refused to take part because they don't want their homes disrupted while workers install insulation, officials say. Others have refused to permit the installation of special, high-tech monitoring equipment in their houses.

About 320 houses will have the temperature sensors and other equipment installed so that energy use and savings can be measured repeatedly each day. Without the sensors, the only basis officials would have for determining energy savings is monthly utility bills.

Revenue losses are anticipated because of decreased power consumption. PP&L officials say the reduction will make only a small dent in revenues from the utility's service area, including Oregon, Washington state, Idaho, Montana, northern California and Wyoming. However, Perry said BPA had to pay a "substantial" amount to a Hood River co-op before its board agreed to participate.

Contractors are installing insulation to meet an R-49 level in ceilings and R-38 in floors ("R" values measure insulating efficiency) — compared to the R-19 common in the Northwest. The program would install triple-pane window, compared with the customary single pane.

Officials expect the study also to tell them how home heating patterns are affected by wood stoves.

"Wood stoves have been a kind of an unknown impact on space heating," Quinn said. "This gives us hard information."

Although Oliver expects the project to save substantial amounts of power, he doesn't think BPA "has the slightest intention" of extending free weatherization throughout its Northwest service area.

Still, project officials say the process is cheaper than building new power plants.

"There are two main reasons for weatherizing," Peters said.

Grocery in Ira now under new ownership

J&L Grocery in Ira now has a new name and three new owners: Cheryl Chance and Mark and Patti Musselman bought the business two weeks ago and changed the name to C&M Grocery.

Mrs. Chance said that changes are planned at a future date, but for now they are "learning, evaluating and studying."

C&M continues to offer a deli, groceries and gasoline. Store hours are 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Mrs. Chance and the Musselmans were "interested into getting into a business" and when they learned the store was for sale decided to "check into it."

Mrs. Chance's husband, Pat, is an oilfield worker. They have two children: Chris, 8 and Misty, 6. They have lived in Snyder for eight years, but intend to move to Ira as soon as housing becomes available.

Musselman is a loan officer at First Federal Savings and Loan and Mrs. Musselman is the secretary at 37th Street Church of Christ.

Musselman's father was an assistant manager at the local Furr's several years ago, before moving to California. He has had experience in working in grocery stores all of his life. The Musselmans have been back in Snyder for the past 1 ½ years.

"We are willing to serve the Ira Schools, community and oilfield in anyway we can," Mrs. Musselman said.

"We appreciate the support the people in Ira have given us and have found them to be encouraging and helpful," Mrs. Chance said.

The store first opened in Ira May 5, 1979. J. D. Goswick was the owner. He sold out to J. L. and Nora Clark who later sold to C&M's new owners.

Open beaches testimony beginning

AUSTIN (AP) — A six-man, six-woman jury has been selected to hear testimony in the state's effort to keep hurricane-damaged homes from being rebuilt on Galveston Island.

Most of the 35 prospective jurors questioned Thursday said they enjoyed weekends and vacations at Texas' beaches, including Galveston. Testimony was exp ected to begin today.

"The attorney general is simply trying to preserve the full use of the beach for the public," said Assistant Attorney General Ken Cross Thursday in opening arguments of the civil suit filed against Robert Matcha by Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Mattox took Matcha to court, along with 11 other West Galveston Beach homeowners, because they attempted to rebuild houses the state says are on public beach now. The Texas Open Beaches Act provides that the public beach runs from the water's edge to the vegetation line.

Impounded tiger may get new home in animal park

HOUSTON (AP) — Tiffany, a 180-pound Bengal tiger kept in the city animal pound for nearly a week, may get a new home at an animal park, but the feline's owner is trying to raise enough money to spring his pet.

A.C. Parsons, owner of the Texas Safari animal park in Clifton, about 200 miles north of Houston, said Thursday he hoped to have the animal at his drive-through ranch by early next week.

"It looks real good," Parsons said. "We've got a pair (of tigers) already, and we've got a half-acre site for the tiger."

But Tiffany's owner, Mark Cryer of Columbus, said he is trying to earn the money to get back both his tiger and his 1981 Chevrolet Camaro from the city of Houston.

It will cost Cryer more than $500 in court fines, impoundment fees and feeding costs to get Tiffany out of the pound, city officials said.

Cryer, 20, said he was visiting friends in southwest Houston over the Labor Day weekend when neighbors saw the cat and called police.

A city ordinance prohibits keeping wild animals within 300 feet of a residence, and animal control officials issued two citations. When Tiffany was still in the yard Sept. 6, the cat was taken to the pound.

"I didn't think a neighbor would call the animal control department," Cryer said. "I know how to take care of the animal."

Tiffany was not bailed out of the pound earlier, Cryer said, because Houston police towed his car, which stalled in mud in northwest Houston. When he returned with friends to get the car, he was told it already had been taken away.

Cryer said he has started a construction job that should raise enough money to get Tiffany out of the pound by Friday.

But the director of the Houston Animal Control Bureau, Robert Armstrong, said he has received hundreds of calls from residents interested in owning the animal.

"Everybody wants a piece of the action," Armstrong said, "especially if it's free. I tell you that animal is going to a public zoo or park."

Armstrong said Tiffany also was impounded in February and that animal control officials warned Cryer then about bringing the animal inside the city limits.

"He (Cryer) was running around with no shoes and no shirt," Armstrong said. "One of our workers put him up for the night and put his tiger in the garage."

Animal control officials have handled 347 animals, other than dogs or cats so far this year, including armadillos, seagulls, bats, chickens, possums and two monkeys, Armstrong said.

Police probe shooting

BENBROOK, Texas (AP) — Tarrant County authorities are considering the case of a 12-year-old girl who turned herself in to police in connection with the shooting death of a girlfriend.

The girl — "a young child who had no knowledge of firearms," Police Chief Bob Richardson said Thursday — said "she was showing her the gun when it accidentally went off."

The body of Kerry Ann Thomas, 11, was found in the suspect's backyard, officials said. She had been missing since Saturday.

Richardson said the girl gave them a statement Wednesday night in which she said the shooting occurred Saturday afternoon. Miss Thomas' body was discovered hidden under some debris in the 12-year-old's backyard about noon Wednesday.

A neighbor found the body about noon Wednesday after detecting a foul odor. Police and neighbors had searched throughout the neighborhood since Sunday.

Kerry was struck in the face and killed instantly by a single blast in the face, at close range, from a long-barrel 12-gauge shotgun as she drank from a glass of milk inside her friend's house, police said.

The girl's 18-year-old cousin, who was detained by police Wednesday, was cleared and released Wednesday night, Richardson said.

Richardson said the teen-ager and Miss Thomas had become close friends during the three weeks the man had been living in the 12-year-old's home.

Police said the girl reported she and Kerry had argued hours before the shooting, but that they had made up afterward.

"The two of them got into an argument about the victim paying too little attention to the girl's 18-year-old cousin. She said that afterward they made up and were just watching television and stuff around the house until everybody had left by about 4:30. Then that's when it happened," Richardson told the Dallas Times Herald.

Richardson said detectives reexamined the 12-year-old's dimly lit house with high-intensity lights Wednesday and found shotgun pellets, human tissue and bloody towels.

The girl told police she and Kerry were alone in the house at the time of the shooting.

The first U.S. Thanksgiving Day designated by presidential proclamation was celebrated Nov. 26, 1789.

Scene from 'Lines of Grace'

A. D. Players are set for local appearance

In celebration of the bicentennial of the Methodist church in America, the Big Spring District Council on Ministries in cooperation with First United Methodist and Trinity United Methodist Churches of Snyder, Ira United Methodist and Union United Methodist Churches will present "Lines of Grace," an historic play staged by the A.D. Players of Houston.

Best known for her portrayal of Corrie Ten Boom in the movie "The Hiding Place," actress and playwright Jeanette Clift George was commissioned to write the play. She founded the A.D. Players, a non-profit, independent Christian theater company, in 1967. She based the title of the play on Psalm 16:5-6.

With an ensemble of only six actors, a few benches and some unique costume effects, the play uses a series of flashback scenes to transport the audience from a 1900 Texas camp meeting to 18th century England. There, the audience meets Susannah, John and Charles Wesley, as well as Francis Asbury, Barbara Heck and others who were instrumental in establishing Methodism in America.

"Lines of Grace" uses humor to tell the story. Interspersed with Charles Wesley's music, the play offers emotion as well as comic insights into the lives of those historic Methodist figures.

The free performance is scheduled for Sept. 23 at 8:15 p.m. in the Snyder High School auditorium. An offering will be taken.

More information can be obtained by calling First United Methodist at 573-5416, Trinity United Methodist at 573-3988 or Union United Methodist at 573-6706.

Gospel music concert is set

Jane Womack, assistant professor of vocal music and piano at Western Texas College, will present a program of sacred songs on Sunday, Sept. 16 at 1:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church.

No admission will be charged, but an offering will be taken at the conclusion of the program.

Government says 'no' to proposal

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed government "categorically rejects" a U.N. proposal to demilitarize the famed Angkor Wat temple complex area, Cambodia's official SPK news agency said today.

The SPK report, monitored in Bangkok, said the plan would allow Cambodian guerrillas to use the Angkor area as a new base for attacks deeper into Cambodia.

Army Corps to okay Baker's port project

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Despite objections from two federal agencies charged with protecting wildlife, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers official said he plans to grant a permit for construction of a controversial, multi-million dollar oil rig servicing port near Corpus Christi.

Developers of Baker's Port say the proposed terminal for servicing deep-water oil rigs will employ thousands of people and be a boon to the local economy.

Federal law requires ocean-going rigs to be serviced regularly, but there are no terminal facilities on the Gulf Coast handling the big rigs. Baker's Port is designed to fill this service gap, developers say.

Conservationists and two federal agencies have been fighting the project for more than two years.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries Service maintain the development on Live Oak Peninsula would destroy wildlife habitat and fisheries.

Friday dance begins three days of festival

Activities were to begin at 6 p.m. Friday for three days of celebration commemorating Mexican Independence Day and sponsored by Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Following a welcome and opening prayer Friday night, folkloric dances, games and food booths will open at the church.

A dance Friday will begin at 8 p.m. in the church parish hall. Entertainment will be provided by the Sunshine Band.

Saturday, the presentation of this year's festival queen is slated for 7 p.m. This year's queen is Rachel Rodriquez, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rodriquez.

Saturday's activities will include the Independence Dance beginning at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by El Orgullo Tropical.

Sunday's activities will feature the traditional parade through Snyder which will include demonstrations of folkloric dances.

It will begin at 3 p.m., forming up at the Scurry County Library. The procession will go down Ave. T south to 26th St., then head back to the east to pass the south and east sides of the downtown square. It will turn back to the north on Ave. R and follow this street north until ending at 13th St.

Live music at the church will follow until 8 p.m. Raffles at the church are planned at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Mondale shrugs off latest results of polls

By The Associated Press

President Reagan, attacked all week by Walter F. Mondale for large federal budget deficits, is insisting that the Democrats are responsible for the record red ink under his administration, while Mondale is shrugging off the polls showing him far behind the president.

"You can stuff those polls," the Democratic presidential candidate said to reporters asking about the surveys showing him trailing Reagan nationally by 12 to 16 percentage points.

As the two debated at a distance, negotiators for each have agreed to hold two televised presidential debates this fall, with a third debate between their running mates, Vice President George Bush and Democrat Geraldine Ferraro, according to sources familiar with the discussions.

More talks were set for today, and sources said an announcement was close.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, meantime, responded Thursday to Catholic leaders who have been critical of Democratic politicians, including himself and Ms. Ferraro, for backing the right of women to choose abortions while personally opposing abortions.

Cuomo, speaking at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana, said: "To most of us, the manipulative invoking of religion to advance a politician or a party is frightening and divisive."

And, he said, "There is no church teaching that mandates the best political course for making our belief everyone's rule, for spreading this part of our Catholicism."

Mondale was in St. Louis today after a trip to Mississippi and Tennessee on Thursday, when he accused Reagan of "trying to almost destroy the Medicare program" and said in a second term Reagan "is going to savage Social Security."

Reagan was back in the White House today and planning no more political trips until next week.

The president was also in Tennessee on Thursday, traveling to Nashville for events that included a visit to the Grand Ole Opry for the 81st birthday celebration of country music singer Roy Acuff.

The birthday party became a political rally as Acuff gave the president a rousing endorsement, telling the audience, "Please go to the polls and cast your votes for Ronald Reagan ..."

And Reagan used his Opry speech to blast his Democratic opponents: "They probably couldn't perform here because all they can do is sing the blues."

Before leaving Washington, Reagan again condemned Mondale's new plan for cutting the federal budget deficits through higher taxes and spending cuts.

"We don't need more politicians insisting we have deficits because you're not taxed enough," Reagan said. "Those deficits ballooned from an economy that didn't grow enough and from 50 years of government spending too much.

"Since they (Democrats) have been approving deficit spending for — with just a few exceptions — virtually 50 years, and 42 of which they have dominated the Congress, I would have to say they can't remove themselves from the blame," he said.

Mondale has been hammering away at Reagan on the deficit issue. On Monday he unveiled a $177 billion program to reduce the red ink. It includes $85 billion in tax increases, most of which would affect high-income taxpayers, and pledges the higher tax revenues would go into a special fund for erasing the deficit, not for new spending.

Reagan proposed and won from Congress substantial reductions in federal income tax rates in 1981, but he has also seen the annual federal budget deficits increase substantially.

In 1981, the year Reagan took office, the federal budget deficit was nearly $58 billion, according to the Office of Management and Budget; for 1984, the OMB estimated the deficit at $184 billion.

Reagan said Thursday that the deficit this year "could be $50 billion less if the Congress, the House of Representatives, had agreed to the cuts we asked for beginning in 1981."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. promptly responded that the figure corresponded with the cuts Reagan proposed in Social Security. "When it comes to deficit reduction, Social Security has always been the president's primary target," O'Neill said.

Mondale encountered some hostility in Tupelo, Miss., where boos and shouts of pro-Reagan sentiment were heard amid the crowd at a high school gym. Mondale faced questions from the audience on abortion, gay rights and religion.

In his speech, Mondale said that Reagan's "plan on Medicare is nothing short of official cruelty."

"If he is re-elected," Mondale added, "he is going to savage Social Security. I won't cut Social Security and Medicare. He did and he will."

Ms. Ferraro was at her home in New York today before heading to Buffalo. Bush was heading to New York to address a Jewish Republican group and the New York Conservative Party convention.

Beliefs should not be laws, Cuomo says

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, saying most Americans find the use of religion for political gain "frightening," staked out a position for Roman Catholic political leaders who are at odds with the church over the abortion issue.

"What we're arguing about here is not what to get done but how to get it done," Cuomo said Thursday night during a question-and-answer session after his address at the University of Notre Dame.

Cuomo said the way to stop abortions in the United States is "not by trying to make laws for others to live by, but by living the laws already written for us by God."

While Catholics in politics might accept church doctrine in their lives, those who don't agree "aren't a ruthless, callous alliance of anti-Christians determined to overthrow our moral standards," said Cuomo, a Catholic who delivered a rousing keynote address at the Democratic National Convention in July.

Cuomo's speech came at a time when he and Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, another Catholic New Yorker, are embroiled in a dispute with New York Archbishop John J. O'Connor over their refusal to work for anti-abortion legislation while personally opposing it.

"Unless we Catholics ... set an example that is clear and compelling, then we will never convince this society to change the civil laws to protect what we preach is precious human life," Cuomo said in his speech on the relationship of politics and religion, which has become a major issue in the presidential campaign.

Cuomo said most Americans find the "invoking of religion to advance a politician or a party frightening."

President Reagan, who has said "religion and politics are necessarily related," has courted Catholics and Protestant fundamentalists with his backing for tax credits for private school tuition and firm opposition to abortion.

His Democratic challenger, Walter Mondale, in turn, has accused Reagan and his allies of a policy of "moral McCarthyism," which rejects opposing views as unchristian.

Cuomo, however, avoided any specific attack on Reagan's alliance with evangelicals such as the Rev. Jerry Falwell — something the governor has done in the past.

"The American people need no course in philosophy or political science or church history to know that God should not be made into a celestial party chairman. To most of us, the manipulative invoking of religion to advance a politician or a party is frightening and divisive," Cuomo said.

"I think our moral and social mission as Catholics must begin with the wisdom contained in the words 'physician, heal thyself,'" Cuomo said.

"Despite all the effort at defining our opposition to the sin of abortion, collectively we Catholics apparently believe — and perhaps act — little differently from those who don't share our commitment," he said. "Are we asking government to make criminal what we believe to be sinful because we ourselves can't stop committing the sin?"

Rabbi James Rubin, director of interreligous affairs at the New York-based American Jewish Committee, said Cuomo's speech "will be a benchmark, on which other future discussions of the subject will be measured. We owe him a debt for lifting it to new heights."

Carolinas begin Diana cleanup

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Torrential rains pounded a "terribly damaged" North Carolina today as thousands of coastal residents emerged from shelters to view Hurricane Diana's more than $25 million swath of destruction and workers tried to restore electricity to nearly 45,000 people.

As Diana rapidly lost intensity Thursday and was downgraded to a tropical storm, Gov. Jim Hunt asked President Reagan for federal assistance because adequate cleanup from the season's first Atlantic hurricane is "beyond the capability of state and local government."

In this southeast coastal city, Diana's 110 mph winds toppled trees and power lines that clogged many streets, blew roofs off homes, swept boats off trailers on land and smashed ands6unk many in the water. Many streets in coastal towns throughout the area were still flooded today.

There were no drownings, but the storm indirectly caused two deaths — one by heart attack and one by traffic accident, officials said.

"We've been lucky thus far even though these people have been terribly damaged and it has been bad for them," Hunt said Thursday as he toured Wilmington. "We have been badly hurt and badly damaged."

Heavy rains pounded interior North Carolina early today. Winds gusted to 30 mph in Fayetteville and Jacksonville and some evacutions were carried out in Grifton as floodwaters surged through the town, the National Weather Service said.

Since Tuesday, 17 inches of rain has washed across Wilmington.

Authorities planned to let people return to their homes today on the island of Carolina Beach, population 2,000, for the first time since the bridge joining it to the mainland was blocked Wednesday night.

About 20 National Guardsmen were sent to guard against looting at Carolina Beach on Thursday and a curfew was declared from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Cotton

The average price for strict low middling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 55 points to 60.73 cents a pound Thursday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 50 cents a bale lower to $1.00 higher than previous close. Oct 63.80, Dec 64.95, Mar 66.60, May 68.00, Jul 69.10, Oct 69.75, Dec 69.85.

Check cashing causes arrest

Police arrested a local suspect Thursday afternoon who now stands charged with a misdemeanor theft complaint filed Thursday morning.

Employees of Skinny's convenience store on the East Highway called police shortly before noon to report a man had cashed two checks in their store which were drawn on an account which had been closed.

Officers arrested the suspect in the case at his east Snyder residence at 4:58 p.m.

City officers also jailed one suspect Thursday morning on a misdemeanor assault charge after answering a call from a woman at an East Snyder residence.

Renovations due at Cogdell

pharmacy operation loses money each month as overstocks of duplicate drugs under different trade names expire and have to be destroyed.

Central to the new program will be a coordinated effort on the part of local physicians and the pharmacy staff to determine which drugs can be deleted from the inventory.

An increased use of lower cost generic drugs in the hospital inventory is expected to result in a significant cost reduction.

The computer is also expected to allow the pharmacist to better track the rate of drug usage prescribed through the facility. This will allow tighter inventory-reorder controls to avoid overstocking on perishable items.

The new program will also keep track of drugs prescribed for each individual patient in the hospital and will alert the pharmacist to the possibilities of dangerous interactions when a new drug is added to a patient's program.

When an interaction is noted on the computer, the new drug can only be given to the patient after the warning is overidden by the attending physician.

In cases where the warning is overidden, the system will keep accurate records of when and by whom the prescription was authorized.

Other expected benefits of the system include more accurate patient billing and reduced workload for both the pharmacy and the nursing staffs through automated record keeping.

Leasing cost of the system, which will be added to the hospital's existing IBM 34 facilities, will be $583 per month for the first year.

Costs for the next four years will decrease to $291 per month. After five years the cost will be $41.60 per month.

In another item of business conducted Thursday, the board voted to allow Miller to begin a public relations advertising program through the Snyder Daily News.

The program is designed to provide the public with information about the hospital and available services through a series of ads to appear weekly through the next several months.

Board members also discussed the expansion of the program to include the purchase of radio time, however no formal action was taken on that part of the proposal.

CHILDREN ARE EXPENSIVE

COST OF RAISING ONE CHILD TO AGE 18

Despite the day-to-day expenses, parents tend to underestimate the cost of raising a child. New figures show that over 18 years it can range from $75,000 to $98,000, depending on family income.

'Emergency' week observance set

A mock disaster drill is planned during the week also. The simulated "disaster" is scheduled here Wednesday.

In conjunction with all planned activities, Mayor Rod Waller has proclaimed Sept. 16-22 "Emergency Medicine Week" in Snyder.

The week is designed to encourge the public to learn more about the emergency medical resources in their communities.

Locals wishing more information about any of the week's activities should contact Elissa Clay, a registered nurse and the ER supervisor, at 573-6374.

The following is a complete schedule of events planned during the week.

—Sunday: Open house at the emergency room from noon until 3 p.m. Refreshments will be served in the doctor's lounge.

—Monday: A free diabetic screening in the emergency room from 7 until 11 a.m. A blood test is involved, so individuals are asked to refrain from eating food at least eight hours before the test.

—Tuesday: A drug compatability screening by John Johnson, head of the hospital's pharmacy department. County residents may bring all medications to be checked to insure they are compatable together. They will be advised also if further consultation with a physician is needed.

—Wednesday: A mock disaster drill is planned to illustrate the recent advances in emergency care. Residents are advised not to become alarmed as a realistic scenario is acted out. Emergency vehicles will be in operation.

—Thursday: A basic CPR life-saving class will be offered free of charge from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. It will be taught by in-service director Yvette Sickler, a registered nurse. Class enrollment will be limited to 10. Certification for taking the course will be given. Persons or groups interested should contact Sickler at 573-6374, ext. 288; or Elissa Clay at ext. 225. Also Thursday, local firemen will demonstrate the "jaws of life" extrication device at the Kmart parking lot at 4 p.m.

Friday: the basic CPR life saving classes will repeat Friday. Times will be the same with a class size limitation of 20. In addition, a free blood pressure screening clinic will be offered at the emergency room from noon until 3 p.m. Also, the drug compatability screening will be repeated from 11:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in the ER waiting room.

—Saturday (Sept. 22): Free eye examinations will be offered in the ER lobby from 8 a.m. until noon.

Driver flees after mishap

Two minor traffic mishaps — one a hit-and-run incident — were reported in Snyder Thursday.

Cheryl Wilkins Watkins of 204 35th St. filed the hit-and-run complaint at 9:35 a.m.

She told police that her 1978 Cadillac had been struck by an undentified vehicle earlier that morning while she was driving in the 2500 Block of College Ave.

The unidentified vehicle fled the scene of the mishap.

The day's second minor collision was reported in the 2900 Block of Ave. F at 7:04 p.m.

According to police reports, a 1976 Ford driven by Benton McMullan of 417 34th St. struck a 1979 Chevrolet owned by Jan Halbert of 2907 Ave. F while the Halbert car was legally parked beside the curb.

CRMWD report is optimistic

Through the first eight months of the year, the Colorado River Municipal Water District is nearly a quarter of a million dollars on the plus side of the budget.

Income of $8,141,079 was 1.6 percent under estimates for the period, while expenses of $5,091,823 were 6.98 percent under projects, amounting to $243,309 on the plus side.

Water revenues amounted to $7,750,701 for the first eight months, or 97.66 percent of the total.

The biggest single item of expense was $3,447,618, which was 76.66 percent of operation and maintenance charges. The power bill, however, was $440,463 less than estimated, or 11.32 percent, due to rates not rising as much as anticipated, plus employment of more economical pumping patterns in meeting summer peak demands.

During August, 1,365,060,450 gallons out of a total production of 1,900,832,180 gallons came from Lakes E. V. Spence and Lake J. B. Thomas. This was 71.81 percent of the total, which compared to 76.65 for the eight months period, or 9,506,676,140 gallons. The August totals showed 437,721,000 gallons from wells, or 23.03 percent, and for eight months 2,115,410,000 gallons or 17.06 percent. Non-potable water in August, marketed largely to oil companies, was 90,050,630 gallons, or, 4.74 percent, and for eight months 768,910,320 gallons, or 6.70 percent.

WTC Baptists name officers

Rudy Carreon of Roby and Chris Doles of Snyder have been elected co-presidents of the Western Texas College Baptist Student Union.

Heidi Matteson of Brownfield was elected secretary/historian for the coming year. Chairmen selected were David Brim of Snyder, Bible study; Larry Hartley of Snyder, evangelism/-outreach; Kinney Robinson of Snyder, fine arts; Jeff May of Garland, Baptist Student Center; Rebecca Shuler of Clyde, fellowship/social; Tim Blanchard of Gatesville, Student Missions, and Jamie Howell of Colorado City, publicity. To be assigned are Darren Greenway and Patricia Gregory of Snyder.

WTC schedules educators course

Texas Tech University has scheduled a three-hour course for educators to be taught at Western Texas College on Saturdays from Sept. 29-Nov. 17.

The course is ECEL 5002, Curriculum Department in Elementary Education: The Essential Elements. It covers curriculum development in reading, science and social studies in elementary education with the focus of instruction on the essential elements for these curriculum areas as described in chapter 75 and related thinking/learning skills.

The course may be applied to a Texas Tech degree program and satisfies the Snyder Public School District's professional growth requirements.

Instructors for the course will be Dr. Charles Geer in science, Dr. Paula Lowrance in reading and Dr. Gene Rooze in social studies.

Classes are to meet from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. on Saturdays from Sept. 23-Nov. 10, with the final examination on Nov. 17.

A minimum of 12 students will be required to form the class. Fees will be based upon the number of participants.

Persons wishing to register for the course or to obtain more information are to call the office of Dr. Ben Brock at Western Texas College, 915-573-8511, extension 202.

Judge nixes bond for jailed parents

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge refused to set bond for a couple jailed for refusing to testify before a grand jury weighing whether to charge their teen-age son with capital murder.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda on Thursday denied a motion for bond for Bernard and Odette Port, saying the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals had already ruled on the matter and he would not "upset the status quo."

However, he took under advisement a motion for a writ of habeas corpus and told attorneys he would rule Monday whether to free the Ports from a contempt of court citation.

The Ports' son, David, 17, is free on $20,000 bond in the killing of Debora Sue Schatz, 23, a mail carrier slain as she made her rounds June 7.

The Ports contend they are unjustly jailed "because they exercised a valid parent-child privilege which precludes the state from compelling them to testify involuntarily against their son."

According to transcripts of grand jury proceedings, the foreman said the panel was attempting to decide whether to indict Young Port for murder or capital murder, as well as whether there were other suspects.

Assistant District Attorney Brad Beers declined to specify the grand jury's intentions. "We're trying to get all of the facts before them. If that results in a capital murder indictment, then that's what the facts will support," Beers said.

David Port waived an indictment by the grand jury and pleaded innocent earlier to a murder charge in an effort to prevent his parents from being forced to testify.

"If all they were investigating was murder then waiver of an indictment would preclude any further investigation. This gives them (prosecutors) an excuse to keep the grand jury proceedings alive because a defendant cannot waive a capital murder indictment," said the Ports' attorney, Randy Schaffer.

Schaffer said he hadn't talked to the Ports since Wednesday and that he was "comfortable that they will not break." He has accused prosecutors of engaging in a "squeeze play" and said they were trying only to learn "which form of torture works."

State District Judge I.D. McMaster ordered the Ports to jail Aug. 28 and fined them $500 each for refusing to testify.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed McMaster's ruling this week, revoking the appeals bond. The Ports surrendered Wednesday.

Schaffer contends the Ports should be exempt from testifying against their son for the same reasons spouses are barred from testifying against each other.

He said the claim is based primarily on "the due process clause of the U.S. Constitution. It finds its genesis in the constitutional right to privacy, which has been extended to the family; the constitutional right to the free exercise of religion; and within the framework of the husband-wife privilege."

The Ports spent six hours in jail June 27 after State District Judge William Hatten found them in contempt for the same reason. But the Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the finding because of a technical error in papers filed by prosecutors.

David Port was charged with murder June 9, two days after Ms. Schatz disappeared. Her body was found the same day in a wooded area in northwest Houston.

The teen-ager had been left alone in the house June 7, but was gone when his mother returned home to find bullet holes in the wall of the stairwell. She also found blood on the steps, police said.

The boy's parents reported him missing the next morning. By then, police had used bloodhounds to trace the path Ms. Schatz followed. They lost the scent in front of the Ports' home.

Ragin' defense takes aim at Panther running attack

LUBBOCK – Snyder's Ragin' Tigers may find themselves leaping from one fire into another as they attempt to rebound from last week's loss to Big Spring tonight.

The Tigers go against a Lubbock Dunbar bunch that in Coach Dennis Tomlin's words, are "tall, good-size and have excellent speed."

Dunbar features a high-octane running attack out of the I formation, while averaging 204 pounds across the front of its '27' defense. The Panthers are also senior-packed, boasting a starting lineup that includes only four juniors.

"It's going to be a real challenge to our kids to play this quality of a team. We're looking forward to it making us a better football team," said Tomlin.

Though not without a passing game, the Panthers like to keep the ball on the ground, with 175-pound senior fullback Clyde Davis leading the way.

"He's one of the better backs in the area in class 4A. We'll have to contain him," noted Tomlin of Davis, who rushed for 187 yards on 20 carries in leading Dunbar past Lubbock High 21-6 a week ago. "They are run-oriented and like to run the sweep...outside or cut it back up. They try to spread your defense out. It's going to take a real defensive team effort to contain their offense."

Making the sweep more effective are ends Willie Rodgers and Sam Collins, who weigh 205 and 225 pounds respectively. Collins is a primary receiving threat. He snagged one of Dunbar's two pass completions for an 85-yard touchdown last week. DHS quarterback Michael Freeman only completed two of 10 passes against the Westerners, but both were for touchdowns.

The guards are Sheldon Henderson and John Rainwater; 200 and 205. The size remains at tackle, where Mike Wetter, 225, and Stacy Jones, 220, roam.

Quarterback is 165-senior Freeman. Terry Sims, a 175-senior, is the fullback.

Defensively, Collins doubles as an end, Rainwater as a tackle and Rogers as a linebacker. Darrell Berry, a 210 senior, is the Panthers' other two-way starter, taking on roles as center and defensive tackle.

"Defensively, they have a lot more looks than they have in the past," said [illegible]. "They have big, rangy linebackers that stunt some, but really they seem to let the defensive line take the blocks and then they come in and make the tackles."

The linebackers are Richard Terry, a 200-pound senior; Brian Jones, a 205 junior; and Rogers.

Snyder and Dunbar have played the previous two years, with the Panthers winning on both occasions. Both games were close, however, despite last year's final score of 12-6. Snyder had several chances to take the lead, but Dunbar's defense held at the 1, 7 and 12-yard line.

Game time is set for 8 o'clock at Lowery Field. Dunbar is out of District 1-4A while Snyder is from District 2-4A.

Cat combo defeated by Lamesa JV squad

A combination of Snyder junior varsity and freshman members were defeated 38-6 by Lamesa's JV gridders here Thursday.

Snyder scored its only touchdown on a 2-yard run by quarterback Reynaldo Gomez.

"We were overmatched a little. The group was made up of JV kids that didn't play last week, and some of our better freshmen," said freshman coach Ricky Howell, who commented, "Joe Martinez, our tailback, ran real well, and Steve Harper had a good defensive game."

Snyder underclassmen return to action next Thursday (Sept. 20). The regular JV unit plays in Brownfield at 7 while the ninth grade hosts Big Spring at 6:45.

In other games on that date, Snyder seventh and eighth graders open their seasons against Big Spring. The seventh graders play here at 4; the eighth graders there at 4.

2-4A grid roundup

After a flashy start last week, District 2-4A grid teams could find the second week of the season to be tougher tonight.

Snyder, Andrews, Sweetwater and Monahans all matchup against perennial toughies, while Lamesa and Lake View aren't figured to have an easy time of it either. And Fort Stockton, which plays a solid Kermit ballclub, could also find resistance.

Snyder and Lake View, the loop's only losers on opening day, will go on the road to try and find success. Snyder challenges always-tough Lubbock Dunbar, while Lake View takes on an unknown commodity in Killeen Edison.

Monahans, which romped over Pampa 35-0 last week, should find the going tougher when the Loboes host Hobbs, usually figured as one of New Mexico's better clubs. Ditto for Sweetwater, who should find Abilene High a stronger foe than Clyde, which the Mustangs walked over 56-0 a week ago.

Lamesa, a 7-3 victor over Levelland last week, treks to Brownfield. Brownfield narrowly lost to Andrews 21-14 last week. Meanwhile, Andrews' task doesn't get easier as the Mustangs must host Midland High.

In the other two games, Carlsbad, N.M. is at Pecos, a 12-6 winner over El Paso Riverside, and Alpine heads for Fort Stockton, a 34-0 victor over Crane.

Auburn cannot afford loss and stay in national scene

by The Associated Press

It's only the second game of the season for the Auburn Tigers, but already the most important one of the year for them.

"We know this game is our season as far as the national championship is concerned," said Auburn defensive end John Dailey as the 11th-ranked Tigers prepared for Saturday's game with fourth-ranked Texas.

The Tigers had come into the season ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, but dropped 10 places after a 20-18 loss to Miami in the Kickoff Classic.

"If we go 0-2, we're out of it," said Auburn center Yann Cowart. "It would be extremely difficult to win a national championship with two losses with all the good teams out there."

Texas Coach Fred Akers is wary of Auburn, and for more than one reason.

"I don't like to play someone who's had a game before, especially a top football team," he said. "They've had a game to get the butterflies and some of the bugaboos that come about the first game out of their system, plus conditioning, so I don't care for that."

Along with their national championship aspirations, the Tigers will be motivated in other ways. The Longhorns won last season's meeting 20-7, holding Auburn star Bo Jackson to merely 35 rushing yards. In this year's opener against Miami, Jackson gained 96 yards.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, it's Minnesota at No. 1 Nebraska; No. 16 Washington at No. 3 Michigan; No. 12 Penn State at No. 5 Iowa; co-No. 5 Miami at Purdue; Long Beach State at No. 7 UCLA; Tulsa at No. 8 Brigham Young; Washington State at No. 9 Ohio State; Bowling Green at No. 13 Oklahoma State; No. 14 Southern Methodist at Louisville; No. 15 Oklahoma at No. 17 Pitt; No. 18 Florida State at Kansas; and No. 19 Alabama at Georgia Tech.

Lou Holtz made a successful coaching debut at Minnesota with a 31-24 victory over Rice. But the Gophers don't figure to have as easy a time with Nebraska.

"Nebraska is deserving of its No. 1 ranking," said Holtz. "The offensive line is the best I've ever seen."

Last year Nebraska humiliated Minnesota 84-13, beginning a slide that cost Joe Salem his job and eventually led to the hiring of Holtz, who had coached before at Arkansas and in the pros.

Ohio State quarterback Mike Tomczak, on the bench with an injured leg in last week's victory over Oregon State, has been cleared for action against Washington State. Tomczak hopes he gets a better reaction from the home crowd than last week's boo-birds that caused Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce to comment: "We sort of consider Ohio Stadium as an away game."

Like Auburn, Pitt hopes to make a comeback from an opening-day loss and remain in the running for the national championship. The Panthers were upset by pass-happy Brigham Young in their opening game.

Oklahoma, a 19-7 winner over Stanford last week, will be trying to overcome a recent jinx of sorts in Saturday's game.

Card junior high defeats McCaulley

HERMLEIGH – Hermleigh junior high overcame an 55-yard runback of the opening kickoff to defeat McCaulley 50-46 in area football action Thursday.

Hermleigh scored on a 55-yard pass from Mark Kuss to Daniel Ramey in the second period. Ramey also scored on a 23-yard run before halftime.

In the third, Mario Sanchez ran a kick back 51 yards for the Cardinals. Hermleigh added three more TD passes in the fourth; a 21-yarder from Kuss to Joe Morales, a 26-yarder from Manuel Costello to Justin Hester, and a 37-yarder from Charles Martin to Hester.

Morales also booted four extra-point kicks.

Hermleigh had 155 yards passing and 127 rushing while holding McCaulley to 116 total yards.

District volleyball...

Tigers overcome Lady Mustangs

Coach Penny Bane's Tigers earned their second district volleyball victory in three days here last night, but had to overcome the blahs to do it.

Perhaps finding it hard to recoup after Tuesday's win over rival Lamesa, the Tigers traded games with Andrews, 16-14 and 8-15, before coming on strong in the third, 15-5, to win the match.

"It was hard to come off a big win (over Lamesa) like that," confirmed Coach Bane. "Tonight was a total team effort. We weren't nearly as sharp (as Tuesday) but we pulled together and did it."

The victory was actually Snyder's third 2-4A win since it was ruled Thursday afternoon that Fort Stockton would have to forfeit to the Tigers. Snyder arrived in Fort Stockton last Saturday for what should have been the first district ballgame, but officials had not been informed - a duty which is the responsibility of the home team.

Armed with a 3-0 loop mark then, 7-7 overall, the Tigers play next in San Angelo, taking on Lake View at 7:30 Tuesday. Pecos, which along with Snyder and Monahans figures to be in the playoff race, calls next Saturday (Sept. 22).

While Thursday's match had its moments of fine play, Coach Bane said it aptly when she commented on the third game, "We capitalized on their mistakes."

Though Snyder had run off a 4-0 lead in the first game, Andrews fought back to tie at 7-7 and 11-11. The Mustangs then went ahead 14-11 before the Tigers - frustrated but not rattled - found some momentum. The serve changed sides twice before Snyder pulled to 14-12 on a net foul. The 13th point was on an ace serve by Sabrina Sullivan. Snyder then got its 14th to tie, and a block by Donna Anderson and Gina Vaughn put the locals ahead, 15-14. The game was won when Karlene Thompson reached over the net and slammed a shot straight down between two Andrews players.

"The second game, we made some mistakes we weren't able to overcome, that kept us from running our type of plays," said Coach Bane. "We had a few calls (ball handling calls) against us, and their short serves got us."

Again Snyder led early, 2-0, but Andrews came back on the serving of Lauri Hester, who delivered two ace serves in aiding the 'Stangs to a 5-2 advantage. Though Snyder pulled back into the game at 6-6, Bonnie Flores came through with consistant serving as the visitors went in front once again, 13-6, and eventually won the game.

The third game was close, with mistakes - balls hit out of bounds, net fouls and ballhandling fouls - dominating. Sullivan sparked Snyder to a 6-0 lead but Andrews came back to make it 6-4. It took five more serves before Snyder got its 10th point, and another five before Thompson stepped to the serving line and the Tigers took advantage to reel off the victory.

JV girls fall to AHS club

Snyder junior varsity volleyball squad fell to Andrews here Thursday evening.

The Cats, who lost 15-10, 3-15 and 16-14, will travel to San Angelo for a 6:30 p.m. match on Tuesday.

"Andrews junior varsity was real good," acknowledged Snyder Coach Penny Bane. "Offensively, it was one of our better games, but defensively, we couldn't get off. It was a hard loss.

Monica Hinojos led the Cats in serving each game, accounting for 15 points over the match.

Freshmen top Andrews girls

Snyder freshmen volleyball squad tripped Andrews here Thursday, 15-5, 12-15 and 15-11.

Scoring on serves for the Cats were Yolanda Rivers 8, Jennifer Alarcon 7, YoYo Anderson and Meredith Goodwin, 6 each, Kelly Walker and Brenda Gonzales, 2 each, and Holly Page, Haley Vineyard, Patricia Casias, 1 apiece.

Also playing were Melinda Tucker, Lafon Williams, Paula Caldwell and Patricia Anderson.

The girls play Monday here against Sweetwater at 6 p.m.
