Embassy bombed

View of the American Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon, after a huge bomb blast collapsed the entire front of the seven-story structure. Rescue vehicles are seen in the foreground as a helicopter flies overhead.Twenty-eight people have reportedly been killed, including six U.S. Marines.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb blew up outside the U.S. Embassy today, and authorities said 28 people were killed and 105 wounded in the fiery blast that collapsed the center section of the seven-story building. Six U.S. Marines and two U.S. Army soldiers were reported among the dead.

U.S. Marine commander Col. James M. Mead said people were still trapped alive in the rubble and that rescue efforts were under way. U.S. Ambassador Robert Dillon was briefly trapped but escaped unharmed, the White House said, calling the attack a "despicable terrorist act."

A police officer on the scene said an estimated 330-pound bomb was hidden in a Lebanese police car and detonated by remote control in the embassy's driveway. There is no fence separating the embassy from the seaside road.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said a Moslem suicide terrorist drove the car and that it had diplomatic license plates.

A group called Moslem Holy War claimed responsibility, telling the newspaper Al Liwa, "This ispart of the Iranian revolution's campaign against imperialist targets throughout the world. We shall keep striking at any imperialist presence in Lebanon, including the multinational force." Moslem Holy War has claimed several previous attacks on the multinational force.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in Washington that two people wearing U.S. Marine uniforms were among at least 21 killed in the blast, "but we cannot verify that there are any American dead."

However, doctors at the American University Hospital in Beirut said the morgue had 28 bodies from the blast, including those of six U.S. Marines. U.S. Army Capt. Alfred Martin said two U.S. Army soldiers also were among the dead. They apparently were from a special group helping rebuild the Lebanese army.

Doctors at the hospital reported 105 wounded. Lebanese police reported 28 dead and said 78 were wounded.

The blast at 1:05 p.m. (5:05 a.m. CST) collapsed the entire front of the central wing of the seaside building and blew a large hole through the ground floor visa section in the northern wing.

An Associated Press reporter said the building's center section from the ground to the roof collapsed like a layer cake and a body could be seen dangling from the fifth floor, its arms and legs hanging down and dripping blood.

Two other wings of the embassy were still standing, although they sustained heavy damage.

Witnesses at the scene said the explosion was caused by a car bomb in a vehicle parked in the circular driveway or just beside the embassy, in the seaside in west Beirut's predominantly Moslem Ein Mreisseh neighborhood.

Special U.S. envoys Philip C. Habib and Morris Draper were in the presidential palace five miles away at the time of the explosion, but Draper's wife was visiting the embassy and he raced back to the compound to search for her. A U.S. Marine said she was taken to a hospital with cuts on the temple.

A towering cloud of smoke was seen rising from the area of the embassy shortly after the explosion.

A U.S. Marine standing in front of the embassy said, "There is a soldier and some others in there," pointing to a pile of rubble.

At least a dozen ambulances rushed to the scene along with French and U.S. members of the multinational peacekeeping force serving in Beirut. Sirens were screaming and hundreds of onlookers crowded the area near the compound.

How to build county courthouse on 12 cents a day

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a four-part series examining the history of Midland County Courthouse and issues surrounding the bond issue to expand it. This part deals with how much county taxes would be raised if the issue is passed.

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

County Bond Issue

Will just 12 cents a day for 15 years buy you a $12 million courthouse and jail?

In a sense, yes, if you do a bit of finagling.

Should voters approve Midland County's proposed $11.76 million bond proposal Saturday, then the county's tax rate to pay off the indebtedness over a 15-year period would be increased by 4.4 cents — from 18.03 cents to 22.43 cents per $100 valuation.

What that means to the owner of a $100,000 house would be a $44 per year increase in county taxes — from $180.30 to $224.30.

Taxes on a $50,000 house or other property would be half that.

"Now, we have to be careful not to mislead people," said Dan A. Almon, vice president for Rauscher Pierce Refsnes brokerage house, which is the county's financial adviser on the bond issue. He explained the tax rate could change should the county's operating expenses increase or decrease or should the county's almost $3.6 billion tax base change. "It could go up or down."

To the dollar, the county's 1982 assessed valuation, or tax base, is $3,589,832,870.

"Your county tax increase is probably lower than most because you've got a high valuation," Almon said. "Midland County is fortunate in that they do have a good tax base," which largely is centered on the petroleum industry and farming and ranching.

Should the county's tax base increase due to renewed prosperity or drop due to a severe economic slump, then the tax rate would be adjusted upward or downward to ensure that revenue would cover operating expenses and to ensure that the $1.5 million debt service would be paid.

Should the bond issue pass, Midland County will be paying out $1.5 million per year for 15 years to retire those $11.76 million general obligation bonds.

Based on the $3.6 billion tax base at a 95 percent collection, the 4.4 cent increase in the tax rate would produce slightly more than $1.5 million yearly in revenue. That income would pay off the bonded indebtedness.

In repaying the $11.69 million over a 15-year period at 8¾ percent interest, the county — the taxpayers — would be paying out almost $23 million. Of that, $11.69 million would be principal and $10.4 million would be interest.

In addition, at onset of 1983, the county owed about $795,775 on the $1.95 million 1970 bond debt, but that amount has been reduced to about $600,000. The county's last payment — $204,750 — will be due in 1986.

The probability of Midland County undergoing such a breakdown in the economy that it could not pay its debts or even operate is "far-fetched," Almon said. To keep from defaulting, the county "would file suit against the property owners" and would either collect taxes outright or would confiscate the property and sell it to recover back taxes. But that is quite unlikely unless the whole nation collapsed, he said. The property owner somehow would pay his taxes rather than lose his property.

Even in "deep depressions," property owners manage to pay their taxes rather than losing the property" in a suit for taxes, Almon noted.

Salient features of the bond issue is the need for more jail and court space and, noted Almon, "jail bond issues certainly are difficult at best to sell."

"People hate to think in terms of 'country club' facilities" for criminals and the accused. He noted the federal government "is forcing the county governments to comply" with certain jail standards, which really are far from country-club class but which nevertheless provide for decent, clean and reasonably comfortable and relatively wholesome lodging for inmates.

"Those (jail) requirements are not voluntary," Almon noted, but neither will they have a country-club atmosphere. If county governments don't provide jails of high standards, then the federal and state governments could compel the counties to comply. Counties, including Midland County, could and have been sued by former inmates who allege "cruel and unusual punishment" and other violations of their constitutional rights while they were jailed.

Accordingly, the passage of a jail bond issue sometimes is difficult.

"It's a tough sell, because people have to be educated on it," he said.

Selling the bonds, however, should pose no difficulty, noted Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis. "We're the Cadillac among all political subdivisions when it comes to bonded indebtedness. We're Triple A-top of the line)."

Policemen look through the rubble of a fire which swept through a South Korean disco.

Fire sweeps through Korean disco

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Fire raced through a disco jammed to over-capacity with 400 people early today, killing at least 25 and injuring 70, many of them teen-agers trampled in a panicky stampede toward a narrow exit door.

Police said they feared rescue crews would recover more bodies in the smoldering rubble of the House on the Prairie disco in downtown Taegu, South Korea's third largest city 200 miles south of Seoul.

The bodies of 17 young women and eight young men had been recovered by mid-morning, most of them badly burned, police said. Some of the injured were in critical condition at local hospitals.

City officials said about 400 people, many of them teen-agers, were packed into the disco, which is on the second floor of a wooden building that also houses a club downstairs.

Officials said the disco's legal capacity was 300 and that the teenagers had been admitted illegally. South Korean law forbids teen-agers from patronizing bars and discos, and the House on the Prairie had been closed in January and March for violations, the officials said.

Police said there was one exit, five feet wide, that led directly down a stairway. One radio station reported there also was an emergency exit but that it had been locked. That account could not be confirmed immediately.

Investigators believed an electrical short circuit may have caused the blaze because witnesses reported seeing sparks and flames shooting from the ceiling.

Lee Chan-dong, 19, one of the injured, told reporters from his hospital bed that he saw "fireworks like flames." When dancers screamed "fire!," he said, a stampede of people charged the exit, pushing and kicking to escape the flames and billowing smoke.

"I threw myself onto the people trying to go down the stairway and later found myself at the bottom," said another survivor, Park Kun-ho, 20.

South Korean radio and television said Park In-hyon, 30, a civilian employee at a nearby police station, was the first to reach the scene, saw people jammed in the exit screaming for help, and yanked six to safety.

Local news reports said two other men, who were not identified, rushed to the club and found people "stacked up in layers" at the exit. They were credited with pulling 10 or more free.

Officials said flames soon spread to the first-floor club, where the manager, Kim Chang-dae, 29, calmly told the 50 patrons that "we are starting an emergency fire exit exercise." They said he led the group outside without casualties.

When word of the fire spread, more than 200 parents rushed to Taegu hospitals, searching for their children. Others went to the burned disco, waiting while rescue crews searched the blackened rubble and collected piles of sneakers, clothes and other discarded belongings.

Midland man killed

A 59-year-old eastside Midland man was jailed in connection with the shotgun murder death of a southside man about noon Sunday.

Killed was 59-year-old Foy Johnson of 509 S. Weatherford. Police said the suspect pulled up in front of Johnson's house and honked his horn. When Johnson stepped outside, he was cut down by two blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun.

The suspect was arrested a short time later, according to police, who said the shooting capped a long-standing feud between the men. Formal murder charges were to be filed sometime today.

'Sponge' to be at drugstores soon

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Another method of birth control, approved by the Food and Drug Administration Thursday, is expected to be on pharmacy shelves in Texas this fall, according to the executive director of Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin.

The two-inch sponge, shaped much like a small doughnut with an indention in the center rather than a hole, combines the barrier method with spermicide contraception, Tamra Oatman explained during a press conference at the Planned Parenthood executive offices here this morning.

The new method will be available over the counter, needs no fitting, has no significant side effects and is relatively easy to insert and to dispose of.

Although Planned Parenthood Federation of America has not endorsed the method as of yet, Ms. Oatman said she felt the organization would follow the recommendations of the FDA.

"It's real exciting that there is another option available," Ms. Oatman said, adding each new method provides another opportunity to fit into one's lifestyle, medical and personal needs.

"(The new method) is the closest thing to the condom but the difference in it and the condom is you can use it for more than one time of intercourse," she said.

Made of a soft, cellular polymer with tiny open cells, the sponge may be worn for 24 hours at a time.

Invented by Bruce Vorhauer, 41, president of VLI Corp., a small California pharmaceutical firm, the method is being marketed under the name Today.

Because only one company will be marketing it, the demand will be high and Texas stores may not receive shipments until next fall, Ms. Oatman said.

As a contraceptive, the success rate of the sponge is close to that of the diaphram: about 82 to 90 percent.

It is more convenient, however, in that it doesn't need to be fitted by a doctor. One size fits all and the price, about $1 each, makes it competitive with other methods of contraception.

In addition, the sponge is saturated with the spermicide nonoxynol-9, used in other vaginal contraceptives, and does not require any of the messy and inconvenient creams or jellies essential to some other methods.

Police take Walesa into custody

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Police stopped Lech Walesa's car about 60 miles outside the Baltic port of Gdansk today and detained the labor leader as he drove toward Warsaw, according to Western newsmen who saw the incident.

Walesa's friend and priest, the Rev. Henryk Jankowski, also was in the car when it was reported stopped, but his whereabouts were unknown.

It also was not immediately known where Walesa was taken and a spokesman for the Internal Ministry, which runs the security police, refused to comment on the report.

The newsmen, members of a CBS-TV camera crew, said police stopped Walesa's car near the city of Olsztym. They said they had been following Walesa in their own car and that they were detained by police for several hours after Walesa was taken into custody.

Walesa, who led the Solidarity union until it was suspended and outlawed under martial law, had said earlier that he would go to Warsaw today to lay a wreath at a monument to the 1943 Jewish uprising in the Warsaw ghetto.

On Sunday, police broke up a gathering of about 1,000 Solidarity supporters who sang union songs following a ceremony at the monument to mark the 40th anniversary of the uprising against the Nazis.

"I don't confirm and I don't deny," said the Interior Ministry spokesman who was asked about Walesa's reported detention. "I have not been authorized, as a man who is in charge of information here, to give any information on this case to the press."

The reported detention of Walesa comes six days after he announced that he had met with leaders of the Solidarity underground, and later defied police pressure by telling reporters he planned to meet again with underground leaders and cooperate with them.

Walesa was detained last Wednesday for questioning about the meeting, as were his wife and his driver. All three told Western reporters they refused to tell police anything about Walesa's contacts with the underground.

On Sunday, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, indicated strong support from the church for the outlawed Solidarity during a homily outside St. Ann's Church in Warsaw. About 10,000 faithful attended the Mass.

Alluding to the government's outlawing of Solidarity and its unwillingness to talk with its leaders, Glemp said "words and gestures made with accommodation in mind did not produce the desired results."

"We are humiliated in lines, humiliated in shops, in work establishments, humiliated before the world," Glemp said.

After the Mass, Glemp traveled to Gdansk, the Baltic port where Solidarity was born in 1980, for ceremonies consecrating Auxiliary Bishop Tadeusz Goclawski. Walesa said that before the religious ceremony, he met with the cardinal for 30 minutes in the parish house of St. Mary's Cathedral.

Walesa declined to discuss details of the meeting, but a reliable source said they talked about the police interrogation of Walesa, his wife and their driver last week.

On Saturday, police announced the arrest of 26 Solidarity backers in apparent response to the underground's call for nationwide protests May 1. Walesa has not publicly endorsed the call.

At least three people, including Solidarity's former national spokesman, were detained Sunday after police broke up the demonstration in Warsaw, witnesses said.

Janusz Onyszkiewicz, Solidarity's former national spokesman, was led away by two plainclothesmen after giving a speech at a monument to the 70,000 Jews killed or captured in the 1943 ghetto uprising against Nazi occupation forces.

Before he was detained, Onyszkiewicz told the crowd: "We came here because we could not find a place in the official ceremonies."

The wreathlaying was organized by those refusing to join elaborate ceremonies sponsored by the government.

After Onyszkiewcz finished speaking, the crowd flashed victory signs and broke into union songs. About 100 uniformed police moved in and most of the crowd dispersed, but reporters saw three men, including Onyszkiewicz, taken away by police.

A friend of Onyszkiewicz said he was still in custody today but no charges have been brought. Polish civil law allows to hold people for up to 48 hours without charge.

Onyszkiewicz was released Dec. 23, 1982, from more than a year in martial law internment.

Executive director: Parallels exist between ministry, United Way

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

He made a pilgrimage from the ministry to public service, from the hills of South Carolina to the flats of the Permian Basin, but Robert Cornelius doesn't see it as all that traumatic a change.

In fact, said the incoming executive director of United Way of Midland, to address the needs of others is a calling which transcends medium and state boundaries.

"I think that there are strong parallels between the work of the ministry and the work of United Way," Cornelius said in a press conference this morning. "Both are dedicated to serving people...I decided several years ago, in 1972, that I could better serve people in the United Way."

The former Lutheran Church in America pastor, who took the reins of the local United Way April 4, noted that the organization "succeeds only to the extent that it has the commitment and involvement of the volunteers of the community... My goal in United Way of Midland is to enhance and support the work already begun."

Additionally, he said, he would like to "expand the number and variety of agencies United Way supports."

The new executive director noted that Midland fulfills his dream "to become a United Way executive in a modest-sized city with civic pride, an eye for the future, hard-working people and community commitment to the goals of United Way.

Cornelius, who succeeds Sarah E. Smith as executive director, served as pastor of two congregations and as assistant to the bishop of Upper New York Synod from 1967 until assuming duties with the United Way in Syracuse, N.Y., in 1972. In that position he served as planning associate, budget director and executive director of Central New York Community Foundation, the assets of which grew by 45 per cent as it expanded from a one-county to a five-county regional organization.

In 1978 he became associate executive director of United Way of Columbia, S.C., the fund of which grew from $2.5 million to $3.9 million under his leadership. He managed a downtown-Columbia, nine-agency central services facility which offered family counseling, consumer credit counseling, aging services, hearing and speech therapy, child abuse treatment and prevention, mental health out-patient services and Big Brothers and Big Sisters.

Robert Cornelius

Most recently, he developed a comprehensive emergency shelter system which included a 60-bed facility for indigent men and a 16-bed facility for economically disadvantaged families. He also supervised the Voluntary Action Center, an organization which matched volunteer skills with the needs of private and public agencies.

Bodies of couple found

RIDGWAY, Ill. (AP) — In a community too small for even one stoplight, most people knew and liked Willard and Velma Lemons. Now townsfolk wonder what drove their quiet neighbors to an apparent murder-suicide at an abandoned farmhouse outside town.

"Nobody ever really knows why," said a teary-eyed Leonard Beam, a Ridgway patrolman and close friend of Lemons. "I don't think the situation was bad enough that they couldn't get out of it."

The bodies of Lemons, 48, and his 49-year-old wife were discovered Thursday in an abandoned, ramshackle brick farmhouse where Mrs. Lemons was raised. State investigators said the couple had been despondent about recent financial troubles, spent a few days out of town and then drove to the farmhouse with the intention of ending their lives.

"He was a well-liked man in the community. His wife was well thought of," said Gallatin County Sheriff Noble Moye. "He was the type of guy that would help anybody."

Moye and Lemons were distant relatives and their wives were related. "They stood up with us in our wedding and we stood up with them exactly a month later," Moye said Friday.

Moye discovered the bodies after his office received a report that a truck was parked at the abandoned farmhouse.

The one-story building sits about five miles down a gutted gravel road from the Lemons' home. State police said Lemons apparently used a .38-caliber revolver to shoot his wife and then himself. The two had been dead several days when their bodies were found.

"There's an old bed there...and she was lying on it and he was sitting beside it on the floor," said Bill Edwards, owner of Edwards Funeral Home, who added that he had known the Lemons' all his life.

Edwards said the couple had bought some farmland a few years ago and found themselves in a financial bind, like a lot of other Gallatin County farmers.

"Most people nowadays file bankruptcy and get out of it, but I guess they didn't feel that way," Edwards said.

Lemons grew corn and soybeans on his farm just outside Ridgway, a community of about 1,100 about 300 miles south of Chicago in southeastern Illinois. He had spent part of each year as an investigator with the county state's attorney's office until he lost that job last week. Mrs. Lemons worked with a community service organization that served reduced-price meals to the elderly.

Many people in town remember them dancing together at American Legion hall parties. Lemons, a Korean War veteran, was a member and his wife joined the lady's auxiliary.

They had one son, Mark, in his mid-20s, and an infant grandson they adored, friends said.

"There's a lot that can be said, but it's just too personal to go into," said patrolman Beam. "He talked to me personally and said some things I'd rather forget."

Bomb blast collapses U.S. embassy in Beirut

There is no fence separating the embassy from the seaside road or a sidestreet that runs past the north side of the building.

Rubble from the explosion coated the divided four-lane seaside highway for 50 yards in each direction. Windows were blown out of residential buildings for at least a block around the embassy and at one house 40 yards away a young woman stood weeping in a room where the door had been blown open.

The French and U.S. soldiers fanned out around the embassy, blocking off access to the compound and holding rifle across their chests.

AP reporter Earleen Tatro reported from the embassy area that the blast blackened the walls of the seven-story building.

Lisa Piasic, an embassy employee who works in the consular section, stood in front of the compound in a blood-stained orange dress.

"It's not my blood. I am not hurt," she said. "It's just from helping other people who were injured.

"I went out in the hallway after the explosion. It was full of smoke. We came down the main stairway and came out through the back."

When Mrs. Tatro first spotted Ms. Piasic, she had her arm around another woman, apparently trying to calm her down shortly after the blast.

All roads around the embassy were littered with glass. The blast shattered window glass in dozens of neighboring apartment buildings and shops in the residential neighborhood.

Ambulances and fire trucks with wailing sirens were racing to and from the blast scene an hour after the explosion. A massive traffic jam developed in the center of west Beirut only a few blocks away as the streets were cordoned off.

The blast came 17 hours after an unknown assailant fired at a U.S. Marine on Beirut's southern outskirts Sunday night. A bullet tore through his trouser leg without injuring the marine, a spokesman said, and the soldier returned fire at his unseen attacker.

Officials said they were having difficulty identifying the dead because many were burned so badly, though a number apparently died of smoke inhalation or were trampled. They also said many of the victims were not carrying identification cards.

Many teen-agers get into South Korean discos and bars by claiming they forgot their identification cards, which give their age.

The worst fire in South Korea's history was a blaze at the Taeyonkak Hotel in Seoul on Christmas Day in 1971. It took 167 lives.

Sponge contraceptive soon available

The round sponge, which has an indention that fits over the cervix, is inserted by moistening it with about a tablespoon of water, according to literature distributed by Planned Parenthood. Moistening the sponge also activates the spermicide.

The sponge may be removed by pulling a small polyester loop attached to the sponge.

The only apparent side effect is irritation from the chemical in the sponge, experienced by 2 percent of the users studied, according to reports.

One disadvantage, compared to the diaphram, is the sponge must be reinserted every 24 hours whereas a diaphram is inserted less frequently, Ms. Oatman said.

"As with any of the barrier methods, it takes a little more personal responsibility," she said.

Three persons injured in accident

Three persons were injured, one critically, in a two-vehicle traffic accident late Sunday night.

Listed in critical condition this morning at Midland Memorial Hospital with head injuries was 17-year-old William Z. Conley of Rt. 4, Midland. In satisfactory condition with head lacerations was 18-year-old David Hendry of 1415 N. Griffin.

According to city police, they were passengers in a 1974 automobile driven by 21-year-old Gary Dwayne Hicks of Rt. 2, Midland. He suffered a broken leg in the accident and was in satisfactory condition.

Police said Hicks' car and a flatbed truck driven by Gary Dwain Jones, 23, of 2200 S. Lamesa Road collided near the intersection of Industrial Loop and Midkiff Road about 10:15 p.m. Sunday. Jones reportedly was not injured. The fire department's "jaws of life" had to be used to extricate the victims.

Only minor injuries were reported in a rear-end collision that destroyed one tree and damaged another in the 2100 block of West Wadley Avenue about 4:35 p.m. Saturday.

Released following emergency treatment at MMH were the drivers of the cars, 19-year-old Delsian Jean Ricketts of 2601 Dora Place and 29-year-old Luz Mendoza of 107 E. Cowden.

Police said Ms. Ricketts' 1981 car struck Mendoza's 1977 vehicle from the rear. Mendoza's car then left the road, knocked down one tree and hit another before coming to rest.

A passenger in Mendoza's car, 54-year-old Maria Unzuita, no address available, was also released following emergency treatment.

Sheriff's deputies today are investigating a house robbery in which guns, cash and jewelery worth a total of $29,000 were reported taken at knifepoint from an elderly county resident Sunday.

W.T. Carson, 65, of County Road 124 West told sheriff's investigators that two Hispanic men entered his residence about 11 p.m., brandished a knife and tied his hands before fleeing with the loot. No description of the men was available.

City firemen used 3,000 gallons of water extinguishing a storage building fire at 2112 City View Road Sunday morning. The building was destroyed in the blaze, which reportedly was set by youngsters.

And a shed was destroyed in a grass fire that broke out at 1510 Cloverdale Road shortly before 2 p.m. Saturday. Firemen used 1,100 gallons of water extinguishing the fire. The shed's owner was listed as Gavino Cobos of 1004 S. Jackson.

Mae Champlin chats with Shannon Petit, 4, while petting an Italian greyhound puppy at the Bell Haven Nursing Center in Killeen. The program of bringing animals into the nursing center began 1½ years ago and everything from Great Danes to rabbits, cats and lambs have made an appearance.

Nursing home sponsors weekly 'pet therapy' for residents

KILLEEN (AP) — Thursday was a special day for Rachel Purdin as her hands, trembling with age stroked the Italian greyhound puppy sleeping on her lap.

The 83-year-old Bell Haven Nursing Center resident sat in a corner of the recreation area as she waited her turn to hold the petite dogs during the center's weekly "pet therapy" program.

"She responds more to animals than to anything else," Jane Ziesmer, activity director, said. "She smiles, talks to them and cuddles them."

Owner Richard Goforth carried one of the 4-week-old puppies from lap to lap as eager hands touched and stroked the dogs' velvety backs.

Paws, an elderly statesman of a cat, nonchalantly glanced from a basket in a pushcart. However, the 17-year-old cat received its own share of attention when it was scooped from the basket and its taffy-colored fur was ruffled by residents.

"The thing I like most is it brings out those smiles," Mrs. Ziesmer said.

After Paws and the dogs finished being adored in the recreation room, volunteers took the animals to individual rooms for bedridden residents.

"He's a dang little bitty old thing," Jesse Brown commented about the tiny dog whose body filled his hands.

"Here, take it back so I won't lose it," Brown said as he returned the puppy.

The program in the Killeen nursing center began 1½ years ago, Judy McClelland-Sherman said.

A member of the Fun-Tier Kennel Club of Greater Killeen, Mrs. McClelland-Sherman has brought everything from great danes and rabbits to a baby opossum into the volunteer program.

The animals are screened for health problems and diseases, and are selected for an amiable disposition toward being handled by strangers, Mrs. McClelland-Sherman said.

The only bad incident besides an occasional housebreaking problem was a rabbit nibbling a resident's sleeve, she said.

Another time, a resident made arrangements for a friend to bring a lamb during the therapy session without warning the coordinators, Mrs. McClelland-Sherman said.

"One day, I had my horse in a horse trailer outside and one of the residents said, 'Oh, my gosh, is she going to bring that in here?'" Mrs. Ziesmer said.

The therapy session allows residents a change from routine and gives them a choice of whether to hold the animal or not participate.

Houston attitudes change

HOUSTON (AP) — If a Rice University survey is any indication, most residents of the Bayou City believe the quality of life has worsened and that job opportunities are not as plentiful.

The survey, conducted by Rice's sociology department, was based on 474 telephone interviews in February. The results were published Sunday in a copyright story in the Houston Post.

"There is a real recognition that the recession has hit," said Stephen L. Klineberg, the professor who directed the survey. "But it hasn't hit the average Houstonian personally, and he believes it's temporary. It's more of an awareness that Houston is no longer immune from economic problems."

The survey showed that only one of 10 questioned rated employment opportunities in the city as excellent. In a similar 1982 survey, four of 10 people said job prospects were excellent.

Fifty-six percent rated the job market fair to poor, nearly twice the number that gave the same rating a year ago.

According to the survey, 60 percent of those questioned agreed with the statement, "People who work hard and live by the rules are not getting a fair break these days." A year ago, 51 percent rejected the same statement.

Unemployment in Houston, once buoyed by healthy oil and energy industries, climbed aboved 10 percent this year, higher than it has ever been.

With the job prospects dimmed, residents have become more sensitive about their quality of life, Klineberg said.

"People came here to make money. They didn't come for the quality of the city services or the scenic wonders," he said.

Legislators 'go native' to raise money

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators hard-pressed for money to finance the next state budget could turn today to horses, dogs and — on a much smaller scale — license plates for revenue.

Among measures on the Senate calendar was a proposal that would legalize pari-mutuel betting on horses on a local option basis, provided a statewide referendum in November 1984 passes.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated the bill would raise $140 million for the state over the next two years.

The Senate Economic Development Committee scheduled testimony on a bill to allow pari-mutuel betting on greyhounds, which Bullock said would add nearly $114 million to the state treasury.

The House calendar included Rep. Chip Staniswalis' bill to make "Texas Native" license plates available for cars and light commercial motor vehicles.

To obtain the plates, a person would have to submit a copy of his or her birth certificate to the county tax collector and pay an extra $50.

The Legislative Budget Board estimated the bill would bring in $250,000 a year to the state highway department.

Today was Vietnam Veterans' Day at the Capitol, and Rep. Larry Shaw planned a news conference to focus attention on Texas' Agent Orange program.

In 1981 Texas was one of the first states to enact legislation to aid veterans exposed to Agent Orange, a defoliant containing dioxin. Shaw, D-Big Spring, has introduced a bill this session to set up an a committee of veterans, doctors and medical researchers to advise the State Health Department on helping Agent Orange victims.

"The dioxin controversy related to Agent Orange is particularly timely, because it is the same chemical found recently at Times Beach in Missouri," Shaw said. "In fact, officials from the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) have called it one of the 'deadliest chemicals known to man.'"

A joint legislative session was set for 2 p.m. to hear Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., one of several Democratic presidential contenders.

Following Hart's speech, the entire Senate was to meet as a committee to discuss congressional and state House redistricting.

Another measure on the Senate calendar would give new power to Texans who get stuck with a "lemon" of a car to force a settlement with auto manufacturers.

Yet another Senate bill would ban open containers of alcoholic beverages in a car within five feet of the driver.

The House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee has posted a hearing on 19 drunk driving bills.

On Tuesday, Karl Rove of Houston is expected to make a second appearance before the Senate Nominations Subcommittee to talk about his role as a regent at Texas Woman's University.

Rove was appointed to the board by then-Gov. Bill Clements in October 1981 but still must be confirmed by the Senate, which returned his name to the subcommittee on Thursday.

Also to appear before the subcommittee Tuesday are two recent appointees to the state prison board — Deralyn Davis of Fort Worth and Thomas McDade of Houston. A third appointee, Joseph LaMantia Jr. of McAllen, cannot appear Tuesday and will be rescheduled.

Finance committee avoids tax increases

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has approved a $29 billion state budget that avoids new tax increases and pares 1984-85 spending by about $2.4 billion.

Committee Chairman Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, said after the 9-0 vote Sunday night that the new budget would be "pretty inadequate" for state spending in several areas, including prisons, teacher salaries, highways and social services.

Jones, reflecting strong sentiment in the Senate that a tax increase is needed, said that the recommended budget is "probably a bit regressive in the level of public services."

Members of the Legislative Budget Board were to begin adding up the exact figures contained in the legislation today.

Like the House Appropriations Committee, the Senate panel decided to hold the line on teacher pay raises, providing the 9 percent average increase already built into salary schedules.

Another major Senate cut came in the Texas Department of Corrections budget, which the budget board had recommebnded for $798 million, a reduction of at least $80.6 million.

The committee trimmed salary increases for state employees and university faculty to four percent in each of the 1984 and 1985 budget years to save an estimated $228 million.

The committee earlier had agreed to set the increase at 4.5 percent for 1984 and 5 percent for 1985, and the Legislative Budget Board had recommended 6 percent raises in each year.

The House Appropriations Committee, which also worked Sunday evening, has made deeper cuts, setting state employee raises at 4½ percent for 1984 and nothing for 1985.

The reduction in the TDC budget parallels reform legislation that would reduce prison spending by relying more on rehabilitation programs and less on incarceration.

Agreeing to a suggestion from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, the Senate committee planned to meet today to consider what to include in a new section and possibly two new sections of the standard appropriations bill that won't be funded unless a tax increase is approved by the Legislature.

Among the items under consideration in the new section are additional salary increases for state employees and a boost in public school teacher salaries.

The recommended budget assumes that Comptroller Bob Bullock will not revise his tax revenue estimate again.

Man stays in jail to prove his point

HOUSTON (AP) — Cleveland Hicks says he languished behind bars 10 months longer than his sentence in order to prove a point — "I'm innocent."

Hicks, 24, spent 16 months in jail after a six-month trespassing sentence, and he says he didn't mind because he was "fighting for what was right." He was freed from the Harris County jail Friday after a Texas appeals court reacted with shock to his predicament.

The three justices also blasted the trial judge who sent Hicks back to jail to await an appeal even though the defendant had served his sentence.

Hicks, who was looking for "any kind of job" to support himself while taking classes at the University of Houston, was arrested in December 1981 at Methodist Hospital's job application center for allegedly refusing to leave when he filled out employment forms.

He was convicted of criminal trespass and sentenced in June to 180 days in the Harris County Jail.

But Hicks already had served 200 days behind bars and County Court-at-Law Judge Jimmy Duncan ordered that he be credited for that time and released.

When Hicks said he wanted to appeal the conviction, Duncan then ordered Hicks back to jail and set bond at $2,500 to await the decision by the Texas Court of Appeals. Hicks didn't pay the bond, so he remained in jail.

"I still felt I had done nothing wrong," Hicks told the Houston Chronicle in a copyright story in Sunday's editions.

"I felt I should just keep on fighting. If I didn't I wouldn't have any pride or dignity," he said.

Fellow inmates were stunned that Hicks chose to stay in jail when he could have won his freedom by dropping the appeal. But Hicks said he believed he had to continue "because I'm innocent and I was fighting for what was right."

But Hicks' court-appointed attorney had missed deadlines for filing Hicks' appeal, so while Hicks was in jail the appeal wasn't progressing. Hicks finally got a new lawyer, who took the case to the appeals court.

THE BETTER HALF

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, April 19, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Napoleon Bonaparte was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Cincinnati Red centerfielder Harry Craft, comedian Don Adams ("Get Smart"), tennis pro Sue Barker, "Arthur" star Dudley Moore, football's Jack Pardee and actor Hugh O'Brian. New enthusiasm and effort could make this a banner year for you. Escape from a stale environment. A new love gives you the courage you need to make major changes. Keep up with new developments in your field. Grandparents can play a key role in how a child turns out. Encourage young people to respect their elders. A financial situation gradually shifts in your favor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Being with positive companions helps you think clearly and become more productive. Romance is filled with hope. Be honest about your feelings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The boss could be in an irrational mood. Postpone presenting new ideas or asking favors. A love triangle will lead to trouble for all concerned. Get your affairs in order.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Give a business proposition time to jell. If you try to rush someone into making a decision, it could go against you. An unexpected invitation triggers romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Fresh air and exercise will help you feel better and think more clearly. Count on a friend to assist you with a career matter. A new agreement reduces tension.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get your emotions under better control and a coveted leadership spot could become yours. Convince those in charge they can trust your judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try not to be so gullible where new friends or business associates are concerned. If something is important, get it in writing. Romantic partner deserves a second chance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get outstanding support from your co-workers or staff. There is nothing you cannot accomplish if you put your mind to it. A raise should be right around the corner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A business feud ends and you feel like celebrating. Do not betray someone by revealing a secret. A child tells you something that warms your heart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A partnership is on a lucky streak. Concentrate on those tasks for which you have been trained. Loved one offers you another chance. Take it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Discuss your dreams with a long time friend. A young person is impressed with what you say. Romantic partner becomes impatient when you drag your feet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be fair with someone who is doing his best. Ambition may be blinding you to your duty. Open new lines of communication at work.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be generous with your time, but reserve your money. Family member seeks honest opinion. Postpone signing papers. Keep quiet about someone who is giving you financial help.

Abortion shown on PBS series

By PAUL RAEBURN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Abortion Clinic," a documentary to be shown on public TV tonight, does not make pleasant viewing.

It is the story of several young women, most of them unmarried, unemployed, on welfare — and pregnant.

Two of them decide to have abortions. Cameras follow them through brief interviews and into small rooms where the abortions are performed. The film doesn't stop until the operations are over.

The producers of the documentary, the latest in the "Frontline" series for Public Broadcasting Service stations, believe this is the first time film of an abortion has been shown on television.

It's a surprisingly quick and simple procedure, considering the huge political and moral controversies that swirl around it. It takes no more than a few minutes, and requires little preparation.

The abortions were filmed at the Reproductive Health and Counseling Center, a private abortion clinic in Chester, Pa., a small town south of Philadelphia. The clinic building itself neatly draws the lines of the abortion controversy. Inside, it looks like a doctor's office. Outside, it looks like a church. (The building was formerly the library of a seminary.)

On a sidewalk beside the clinic, a small band of protesters carries hand-drawn signs denouncing abortion, and prays softly.

Dr. George Isajiw, the organizer of the protest, persuades two women not to have abortions, but rather to continue the pregnancies and put the babies up for adoption. One of them moves in with Isajiw and his family, joining five other pregnant women already there.

By switching back-and-forth between Isajiw and clinic workers, the producers of the documentary accomplish the difficult task of fairly presenting different points of view. But whether this will do very much to help the program's viewers clarify their own feelings about abortion is another question.

The abortion debate has been going on for a long time. Viewpoints have become inflexible, and the time when people might have expressed doubts about their positions is past. At this point in the debate, a program like "Abortion Clinic" has little to say that is new.

Nevertheless, the footage of the abortions is gripping, particularly in the case of Barbara. At 17, she already has a 2-year-old son. Her birth control pills made her sick to her stomach, she tells her interviewer at the clinic, and so she stopped taking them.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠83 ♡K1095 ◇AKQ83 ♣72
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♠

What action do you take?

A. — You have a minimum opening bid and your hand's only redeeming feature is that it contains a good five-card suit. But don't feel obliged to tell partner about it, especially since it is a minor. Pass, and let partner have the right of way. He might want to double two clubs, and that would be welcome news indeed.

Q.2 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠72 ♡Q98543 ◇85 ♣962
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Dble	Rdble	?

What action do you take?

A. — Partner already knows that from the auction that you have a weak hand. However, that does not mean that you should pass. Since you have a clear preference for hearts, and you should bid one heart. If you stay out of the auction, partner might retreat to one spade, and you will then have to bail out at the two-level.

Q.3 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠76 ♡93 ◇Q10754 ♣Q752
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
2 ♡	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A. — It is true that, with a trickless hand, you can pass if partner simply rebids his suit after opening with a forcing two-bid. But your hand is not trickless — it contains two queens and a ruffing value in spades, any of which might be worth a full trick. On this auction, partner quite likely has a self-sufficient suit, so raise to four hearts.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q87 ♡94 ◇853 ♣QJ762
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
2 ◇	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — There is a bid that describes your hand exactly, so why not use it? Jump to five clubs. A jump raise of one of the demand bidder's suits shows excellent trump support and a hand that does not contain any ace, king or singleton. Recognize the description?

Q.5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J98543 ♡A5 ◇73 ♣976
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 ◇	3 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A. — Were you invited to this party? Had partner wanted to hear about your spades, he could have doubled three diamonds for takeout. Partner quite likely holds a long, solid club suit with a diamond stopper and another card or two. Don't convert a possible plus into a probable minus position by running out to four spades.

Q.6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♡AJ8752 ◇AKQ83 ♣K5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — We are sure that there is some scientific way to investigate the possibilities and then stop short of slam if you find out that certain key cards are missing. But for our money, the simple jump to six hearts stands out. If you don't tell the opponents anything about the hand, you might get a favorable lead. Those of you who bid only four hearts show little grasp of the trick-taking potential of your hand.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Hounding waste

One of Ronald Reagan's campaign themes was a pledge to get the federal government off the people's backs, not only by reducing regulations but by reducing burdensome costs. Once in office he made it a presidential theme, and to help him find ways to save money he asked 150 private-sector citizens to serve on a panel under the chairmanship of businessman J. Peter Grace.

The panel is called the President's Private-Sector Survey on Cost Control. To simplify such a ponderous title it is generally referred to in shorthand, the PPSSCC, and several of its subcommittees already have made tentative suggestions for economizing the federal bureaucracy. A recent Washington report by Vic Ostrowidzki of The Hearst Newspapers gave an excellent summary of what the PPSSCC is all about.

Ostrowidzki wrote: "A presidential advisory committee of business executives probing federal government for waste and inefficiency reported that task forces had recommended a $55 billion reduction in the cost of operating six federal agencies over a three-year period.

"Sure to be controversial were the report's suggestions that the government could do without thousands of workers and that most workers are overpaid and enjoy too many fringe benefits when compared to the private sector. It also proposes severe cuts in domestic agencies and programs which have already been cut by President Reagan."

These proposals are only tentative, as Ostrowidzki was careful to point out. Only six of 37 task forces have reported, and their suggestions will be reviewed by the PPSSCC executive committee later this month before they go to the president. A final report will not be ready until June.

But it is already clear that the Grace panel seeks to achieve the mission outlined for it by the president. Reagan asked the group to "look at this as if you were looking at a merger or a takeover." He said to Grace: "We want your team to work like tireless bloodhounds."

That is exactly what has been taking place. The panel has been putting probing ahead of politicking, its "bloodhounds" seeking to sniff out the causes of the nation's ballooning bureaucracy. What we need to remember as the sniffing continues is that remedies for waste and inefficiency can be painful in the short run, but in the long run a real favor to the American taxpayer.

A war of losers

In case anybody over here is keeping score, the war between Iran and Iraq is still on.

Just the other day, Iran announced it had launched an offensive which captured several scores of square miles of territory and inflicted 5,000 casualties on the enemy. The Iraquis replied that they had killed just about all of the attackers. Few people believed either claim.

The hostilities, which became full-scale Sept. 22, 1980, after a series of raids and border skirmishes, has become a war of communiques, characterized by extravagant trumpetings of victory on both sides. And no end is in sight.

There certainly have been casualties — thousands of them. Bombs, artillery shells and rockets seldom fall harmlessly. The two belligerents, however, appear united in one resolve and that is to bar any neutral observers from the forward areas. This leaves them free to say anything they please.

One visible result of the war — blamed on the bombing of oil tanks — has been the appearance of a vast oil slick on the Persian Gulf. Estimated to be the size of the state of Connecticut, the slick has resisted the efforts of engineers and environmentalists to blot it up. Moving inexorably, the slick is killing fish and other wildlife and threatening the shores of non-belligerents.

Clearly, this is a war that will have no winners — only losers.

Another View:

French connection

It was tinsel town stereotyping, granted, but Hollywood tended to depict Frenchmen as either heavy breathing lovers like Charles Boyer or carefree boulevardiers like Maurice Chevalier. They were, one and all, free of the work ethic disease infesting other nationalities.

Now there's a new image — the Frenchman who exhorts his countrymen to work hard. He is President Francois Mitterrand who recently pictured France as an "embattled country" where workers must sacrifice to "stop the infernal machine" of inflation and reduce the foreign trade deficit.

Mitterrand's Socialist Party policies caused France's current condition. From 1958 to 1981, real capita income for workers steadily increased. Since then, under Mitterrand's leadership, real income has declined.

"For our part, we have had to devalue (the French franc) three times," he said. "It's a law from which no one can escape. A country whose inflation runs higher than that of its neighbors is condemned to devalue in one way or another. I tell you without searching for excuses."

The day before Mitterrand spoke, and in the wake of Socialist Party losses in recent municipal elections, the 44-member Cabinet resigned. Mitterrand immediately reappointed Pierre Maurot as prime minister, who in turn pruned the Cabinet to 15 members.

The new Cabinet expanded Finance Minister Jacques Delor's authority by including control over the economy and the budget. That is expected to reassure international banking circles and France's trading partners that Paris will institute a rigorous austerity plan to bolster the franc and curb inflation.

Mitterrand's foreign policy has been far from clear-cut. A backer of U.S. deployment of missiles in Europe, he nonetheless led the fight against the U.S. embargo on the Siberian pipeline. Also paradoxical is his firm anti-Soviet stand on Western defense and his acceptance of only two Communist Party members as ministers in the new Cabinet. That's two less than were in the old Cabinet.

But the recent elections and the nation's strapped economy indicate that Mitterrand will move France toward the center. That's what often happens when socialists begin to face economic realities.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. sea lift capability has sunk

WASHINGTON — Naval planners in the backrooms of the Pentagon have their fingers crossed hoping that the United States doesn't have to fight a conventional war far from home.

Jack Anderson

The reason is simple, if embarrassing: We don't have the ships needed to keep our troops and our allies supplied.

Top-secret Pentagon assessments make frighteningly clear how low our sea lift capability has sunk since World War II, when the U.S. Navy and Merchant Marine carried the military output of American industry to battlefronts around the globe. That, basically, is what won the war.

The estimates, seen by my associates Donald Goldberg and Dale Van Atta, also show that the Soviets' ability to supply armies on distant battlefields has been growing as ours has withered away.

What makes this woeful lack of transport ability important is that the stocks of munitions now on hand in Western Europe aren't enough to keep a war alive.

As one top-secret Pentagon report puts it: "Both U.S. and allied war reserve stocks in Europe continue to be inadequate. A 'high risk' situation exists in NATO today because a strong initial defense in NATO cannot be sustained until the supply pipeline, supported by the U.S. industrial base, is established."

In other words, the United States is still the "arsenal of democracy" that it was in World War II — but there is no longer a way of shipping the arsenal's output where it's needed.

The importance of a sea lift capability — if it was ever in doubt — was made clear by the Falkland Islands mini-war, which the British won largely because they were able to press into service their civilian ships, including the "drafting" of the Queen Elizabeth II as a troop transport.

Unfortunately, the United States has no QE II or enough other civilian ships to draft for wartime duty. Here's what we have available to rely on in case of a national emergency:

— The Military Sealift Command Controlled Fleet of 134 government-owned ships. Unfortunately, "less than three dozen ships are estimated to be ideally suited for sea lift of military supplies," according to an internal White House document, which adds, with some understatement, that the fleet's "principal weakness is that it can only carry a small share of the military cargo likely to be needed."

— The National Defense Reserve Fleet of 254 ships that supposedly will be ready to go within three to eight weeks. As of October 1981, 130 of these ships were 30 or 40 years old.

— The U.S. flag Merchant Marine of 578 privately owned ships. But only 36 percent of this fleet is considered useful for the food and munitions that fighting forces need.

— The 343-ship "effectively U.S. controlled" fleet owned by American companies or individuals and registered with foreign countries. But only about 15 of these ships are capable of carrying dry cargo, and only 52 of the tankers are suitable for military use. Furthermore, these foreign-flag ships are manned by non-American crews, whose enthusiasm for getting shot at in an American war is understandably suspect.

— Free world shipping, some 600 ships. About 400 of these might be available, but there's no estimate of how many would actually be militarily useful.

— Some 20,000 ships owned by non-communist nations, capable of carrying 600 million tons of cargo. But few are likely to come rushing to America's aid — at least in time to do any good.

PRESTIGIOUS 'PUSHERS': Supporters of the medical use of heroin for terminally ill patients include Americans of every political persuasion, from liberal Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., to conservative columnist William F. Buckley. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, has repeatedly introduced legislation to allow the use of heroin to relieve the excruciating pain of terminal cancer victims.

But the legislation has gotten nowhere. Capitol Hill sources say one reason is a group called the American Federation for a Drug-Free Youth. This group threatened to accuse Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, of "pushing" heroin if his committee approved Inouye's bill. Hatch was running for re-election, so he backed off.

Meanwhile, terminal cancer patients are suffering great pain, even though there would be no conceivable social problem if they became heroin addicts in the final weeks of their lives. Congressional aides predict that the legislation will be revived once things "simmer down."

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES. When the Environmental Protection Agency's general counsel, Robert Perry, allowed Rita Lavelle to write her own statement to a House committee denying that she had a conflict of interest in matters concerning a former employer, he was warned by his assistant, Gerald Yamada, "Bob, there's a conflict of testimony here." But Perry let Lavelle's statement go through. Later, he referred Lavelle's testimony to the Justice Department — after a memo from Lavelle's office turned up that was highly critical of Perry.

— Score one for sexual equality. The Interstate Commerce Commission can now allow female as well as male employees of non-profit organizations who work for the good of railroads to travel free on trains. When the inequity in freebies was discovered, the commission promptly sent remedial legislation to Congress, where it languished for more than a year before it was passed.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan itching to visit Peking

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz has quietly ordered a top-to-bottom review of U.S. restrictions on technological exports to China, a certain signal of President Reagan's desire to visit Peking before the 1984 presidential campaign.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

That presidential itch for China has not been at all lessened by recent U.S.-Chinese unpleasantness over political asylum granted defecting tennis player Hu Na. White House political strategists believe a Russian trip by Reagan would be more rewarding for his 1984 re-election effort than a Chinese journey, particularly if linked to an arms control treaty. But the president's desire to visit the mysterious East surpasses any yen to see the Kremlin during the next 18 months, something Reagan considers unlikely in any event.

Returning from the April 9-10 weekend with Reagan at Camp David, Shultz ordered a review to consider possible relaxation of present restrictions on export to China of American technology. While less severe than comparable curbs on trade with the Soviet Union, regulations now limit technology transfer in nuclear weapons, anti-submarine warfare, advanced electronics and intelligence collection and processing.

VOLCKER MUST GO!

Republican sentiment against reappointment by President Reagan of Paul Volcker as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board has been swelled by the influential House minority whip, Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi.

Lott, a figure of rising importance in the House who usually reflects the views of junior GOP congressmen, has informed a senior presidential aide that it is politically imperative for the president to have his own man heading the central bank before the 1984 election. The staffer responded that he and his colleagues generally share Lott's view but that no decision had yet been made.

A footnote: The principal advocate inside the administration of getting rid of Volcker is Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan. That puts him in direct confrontation with Martin Feldstein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who has pushed hard for Volcker's reappointment.

DEAVER VS. WITHHOLDING

Although White House deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver is usually regarded by the Right as the villain turning Ronald Reagan into a moderate, he has been a quiet ally of conservatives trying to cool the president's passion for tax withholding on dividend and interest income.

As the supreme pragmatist, Deaver sees no utility in pursuing the widely unpopular withholding scheme. But Reagan, discarding Deaver's counsel, has been a passionate advocate against repealing the new tax method.

A footnote: White House lobbyist Ken Duberstein, one of the strongest champions of withholding on the White House staff, has told the president he can muster the 41 senators necessary to sustain a veto of withholding repeal. Reagan was delighted by the news, though his political advisers view with alarm the impact on the 1984 election of such a sustained veto.

NO DEARDOURFF FOR PEARCY

As an unanticipated fallout from Chicago's bitter mayoralty election, Sen. Charles H. Percy almost surely will not have the benefits of the Bailey-Deardourff political consulting firm in his expected tough 1984 fight for re-election to a fourth term.

Bailey-Deardourff is a favorite of prominent moderate Republicans such as Percy, and the firm successfully designed a newly humble image for the senator to make possible a come-from-behind 11th-hour re-election victory in 1978. But John Deardourff, a moderate Republican and political protege of Nelson Rockefeller, gained national notoriety in the Chicago campaign with television commercials called racist by the black Democratic winner, Harold Washington.

Percy had intended to use Bailey-Deardourff again in 1984, and neither the senator nor his aides has canceled at this writing. However, even if he does not, Deardourff is likely to take the initiative and voluntarily bow out for the sake of the Percy campaign. Illinois Republican politicians agree that Percy will have a tough time maintaining his usual strength among black voters in 1984 without Deardourff, and would have no chance at all with him.

CHARLEY REESE

Mideast problem frustrating

A long conversation with a PLO supporter has given me an insight into why American diplomacy in the Middle East often produces frustration.

Charley Reese

For the sake of clarity, let's dispense with any judgments about who is right and who is wrong and simply look at the factual situation.

The position of the Palestinian nationalists is that they want a sovereign state with its own flag and its own passport. Unfortunately for them, the territory they want is occupied by two existing states, Jordan and Israel.

To satisfy the Palestinian nationalists, Israel or Jordan or both must cease to exist. Two independent nations cannot simultaneously occupy and govern the same piece of ground. Neither Jordan nor Israel, however, intend to commit national suicide. Therefore, the only course open to the Palestinian nationalsts is war.

Autonomy for the West Bank and Gaza or an "entity" federated with Jordan (which would in fact be part of Jordan) will not satisfy the Palestinian nationalists. Hence, the PLO is not being extreme, only logical, in rejecting Camp David and Reagan's peace plan as well as in refusing to recognize Israel. There is no point in recognizing a state which must be dismantled in order to achieve the PLO's primary purpose.

Likewise, the Israelis are also being only logical in refusing to deal with the PLO. Two parties with mutually exclusive objectives have nothing to talk about. If Israel achieves its goal of continued existence, the PLO must give up its goal of a Palestinian state and vice versa.

Americans, however, seem to have a psychological block against recognizing an insoluable problem. We seem to have an almost religious faith in the concept of compromise. In the Middle East this causes us to ignore reality and to set goals that are, in fact, unattainable.

We keep urging the PLO to recognize Israel and branding it extremist for refusing. We keep urging Israel to deal with the PLO and calling it intransigent for refusing. Actually, Israel and the PLO are being realistic.

But what about the West Bank? Here again let's look at facts and dispense with judgments. Though it does not make too much of it in public these days, Jordan considers the West Bank part of Jordan and the residents, Jordanians. It seized the area in 1948, annexed it a few years later, and lost it when it attacked Israel in 1967.

The area is too small and contains too much inhospitable land to be a viable independent state even if Israel and Jordan would allow that. Israel will not allow it for security reasons and neither will Jordan unless it is forced to do so.

Furthermore, even if it became an independent state, it could not house the Palesfinians living in other countries. The 600,000 people who already live there certainly would not welcome even the 600,000 Palestinians who live in Lebanon. Nor, for that matter, would the Palestinians in Lebanon, who never lived in the West Bank, be particularly interested in going there.

What makes the situation not entirely bleak is that Palestinians are not one homogenous lump of people with identical goals. Palestinian nationalism, while real, is new. There never existed an independent Palestinian state. What the early Palestinian nationalists lost was not a country, but the opportunity to create one. When the British and French divvied up the Ottoman Empire, the Palestinian nationalists got left out.

Palestinians in Jordan seem to be content to be Jordanians. Palestinians who are Israeli citizens have shown no revolutionary fervor. Most of the West Bankers, while they may not like being under Israeli occupation, do not seem to be nationalistic in the same sense as the PLO. After all, they have physical possession of their homes and businesses. Their only question is who will operate the government.

The point is American politicians should learn to recognize what is possible and what is not possible. Some change in the West Bank status is possible by negotiation; satisfying Palestinian nationalism is not. Satisfying those non-Palestinian Arabs whose goal is a no-Israel situation is not possible. By blurring this difference, by pretending that the West Bank can be a solution to the "Palestinian problem," we simply frustrate ourselves and complicate an already complex situation.

A guard wears a bulletproof vest and holds his weapon at the ready as former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger walks by during a session of the Trilateral Commission in Rome Sunday. The commission is holding a three-day meeting.

Kissinger: Hussein will compromise with PLO

ROME — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Sunday that he believes that the Palestine Liberation Organization and King Hussein of Jordan will patch up their differences and that Hussein will enter negotiations with Israel, Egypt and the United States on autonomy for Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"I believe we are witnessing a complicated negotiating process between King Hussein and the Palestinians — a relationship complicated by a very long history which has not always been totally amicable, to put it mildly," Kissinger said in reference to Hussein's refusal last week to deal on behalf of the PLO in the long-stalled autonomy talks.

"I am hopeful that, especially within the context of (an eventual) Lebanon solution, both Hussein and Arafat will reconsider their positions and that Hussein will be able to enter the negotiations," he said.

Many Middle East political figures interpreted Hussein's refusal, following unsuccessful efforts to gain a green light for entering the negotations from PLO chairman Yassar Arafat, as the death knell for President Reagan's Middle East peace initiative, which calls for Palestinian autonomy in association with Jordan.

"I do not believe that the Reagan initiative is dead," said Kissinger, who is in Rome for the annual meeting of the 32-member Trilateral Commission.

At a press conference after the commission's opening session, Kissinger also dismissed reports that he had conducted secret meetings recently with an official of the PLO, an organization with which the United States strictly avoids contact under a formal policy adopted by Kissinger when he was secretary of state.

"I met with a gentleman of the PLO in the lobby of the Mammounia Hotel in Marrakech in front of assembled multitudes for half an hour for a cup of coffee when we were both there as members of the Moroccan Academy," Kissinger said.

'Dead' woman lives again

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — A 23-year-old woman was "resurrected" and revived hours after she had been considered dead because a policeman noticed her swallow, authorities said.

"We were lucky, and she was lucky she was in a trauma center," Dr. Jitemdar Sethi said Sunday night at the Burnham City Hospital, where the woman was reported to be talking and thinking normally three days after the incident. Doctors say they expect a full recovery.

Karla Woods was found on the floor of her apartment Thursday afternoon. Although the door was open and the room was chilly, the detectives who took her to the hospital morgue believed she had died from a mixture of drugs and alcohol, police said.

At least a dozen officers as well as doctors at the scene believed Miss Woods was dead, and it was hours before she was placed on a morgue table and Detective Gary Wright noticed her move her diaphragm and swallow.

"I'm telling you, I've seen dead people 100 times in my life, and she was dead," Wright said later. "I saw a resurrection. I'm going to my grave believing she had a second chance and this is a miracle."

The victim was rushed to the emergency room upstairs, where her body temperature was measured at 80 degrees, but no brain or heart damage was found. Doctors gave her oxygen and warmed her with thermal blankets, raising her temperature slowly over the next several hours, said Dr. Samuel Young, a neurologist.

Miss Woods' blood showed an alcohol level of 0.15 and some trace chemicals, but "nothing that would constitute an overdose," Young said.

Epton wants to buy Chicago newspaper

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Chicago mayoral candidate Bernard Epton, who criticized media coverage of his campaign, says he wants to buy the Chicago Sun-Times and then fire two of its columnists.

"I would buy any major commercial (news) outlet ... because I think they were all guilty of misinterpreting and in some cases falsifying the news," the millionaire lawyer said during a televised interview Sunday night with WLS-TV, an ABC-owned station in Chicago.

The Chicago Tribune reported Sunday that Epton had spent the past few days organizing a group of investors to bid for the newspaper from Palm Beach, Fla., where he arrived last Wednesday, one day after he lost the mayoral race to Democrat Harold Washington.

Epton told the Tribune he was interested because "the people of Chicago are entitled to the truth." The Sun-Times ranks eighth in circulation among the nation's dailies.

Epton, a Republican, also said that if he acquired the newspaper, he would "immediately" fire Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Mike Royko and another Sun-Times columnist, Roger Simon. Epton criticized both columnists during his campaign.

"Every time the man opens his mouth he confirms the good judgment of Chicago voters," Royko responded in a telephone interview with WLS. "He obviously really needs this vacation."

Epton said, however, he would hope to keep most of the newspaper's staff, "because I think there are plenty of sincere men and women who would welcome the opportunity to tell the truth without fear of repercussion."

Kenneth Towers, the newspaper's assistant managing editor for news, reiterated the newspaper's earlier statement that "all reasonable, qualified bids" for the Sun-Times would be considered. He said Simon was not available for comment.

"I have to see what the terms are before I can determine if I am in a position to go ahead," Epton told the Tribune. "But I am confident I have the people able to put together a deal."

Field Enterprises announced Friday it was dissolving the corporation and would sell the Sun-Times, which has a circulation of 649,000, and other assets. The company reported revenue of more than $425 million last year.

Ralph Otwell, executive vice presidnet and editor of the Sun-Times, said he had been contacted about Epton's interest by the candidate's brother, Saul Epton, who confirmed it would be a serious offer.

Epton lashed out at reporters on several occasions during the bitter campaign — at one point calling several journalists "slime."

After the election, Epton told a gathering of reporters, "You make me ill," and threatened to take legal action against what he called the "disgraceful news media."

Epton also said he would file complaints with the Federal Communications Commission and was considering lawsuits against newspaper columnists to "make sure that any future candidate doesn't have to kiss your rear, doesn't have to bow the head."

The candidate, a former state legislator and partner in the firm of Epton, Mullin, Segal & Druth Ltd., led a group in 1961 that unsuccessfully bid $4.8 million for 54 percent interest in the Chicago White Sox.

Officials hopeful about seize

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Prison officials negotiating for the release of two corrections workers got close enough to joke with one of them and reported progress in convincing a pair of armed inmates to end a siege that entered its fifth day today.

The negotiations were taking place by telephone or through a wooden door in a barricaded basement room of the State Correctional Institution at Pittsburgh. Behind the door Richard Henkel, 45, a convicted bank robber awaiting trial for murder, and convicted murderer Louis Coviello, 26, held the two hostages, authorities said.

Robinson said one of the negotiators joked with hostage Kostas "Gus" Mastros, a civilian records supervisor, while speaking through the door Sunday afternoon. The negotiator teased Mastros about whether he would be paid overtime for the hours spent in the windowless, 10-by-20-foot room.

Missouri finds another dioxin site

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Dioxin apparently has been found in samples from a waste lagoon here, making it the 28th site of the toxic chemical in the state, a state official says.

The official, who asked not to be identified, told the Springfield Daily News that tests conducted by Syntex AgriBusiness at its lagoon here showed dioxin was in the waste samples.

"We don't know the actual level, whether it's one part per billion or more than that," the official said Sunday. "We won't know how serious it is until tomorrow (Monday)."

But Fred Lafser, the director of the state Department of Natural Resources, said such a find would not present as serious a health hazard as previously confirmed dioxin sites such as Times Beach.

Congress talks missiles again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission's proposal to put 100 MX missiles into used missile silos on the Western plains is coming up for its first airing in a skeptical Congress.

The Senate Armed Services Committee hears testimony today from Brent Scowcroft, the Ford administration national security adviser who headed the commission appointed by President Reagan in January.

Reagan regards the MX as a vital link in his program to "rearm America" and use the resulting military muscle to compel the Soviets to bargain on deep reductions in nuclear armaments.

The House, meanwhile, resumes action Wednesday on a keystone of opposition to the Reagan plan — a resolution calling for the United States and the Soviet Union to immediately seek a mutual, verifiable freeze of nuclear weapons.

Two face charges on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men extradited from Australia are being arraigned on charges stemming from a drug investigation involving some members of Congress and their staffs.

Former congressional page Douglas W. Marshall of Washington and Troy M. Todd of Potomac, Md., were to be arraigned today before U.S. District Judge Thomas Hogan.

Bill Dempsey, public information officer for the U.S. Marshals Service, said the two men were formally arrested on a variety of drug charges upon their arrival at Dulles International Airport on Sunday.

Marshall and Todd were indicted on Nov. 18, 1982, after earlier charges were dropped. Marshall was charged in nine drug-related counts involving possession and intent to distribute cocaine, and he faces a maximum possible penalty of 76 years in prison and a $200,000 fine.

Todd was charged in eight counts, including supervising a continuing criminal enterprise, and faces a maximum possible sentence of life in prison and a $165,000 fine.

Doctors optimistic about patient

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A 13-month-old liver transplant patient remained hospitalized in critical condition today, but doctors said he was improving quickly and probably will survive.

Brandon Hall, of Walnut, Miss., "seemed to be more alert and responded to his mother and others around him real well for the first time since Wednesday night's transplant operation," said Le Bonheur Hospital spokesman Scott Kent.

"For the first time ... we feel he has a better than 50-50 chance," Kent said today.

Brandon underwent a 12-hour liver transplant operation that began Wednesday night. His abdomen was reopened Friday to remove clotted blood and to make sure his new liver was not being damaged by poor circulation.

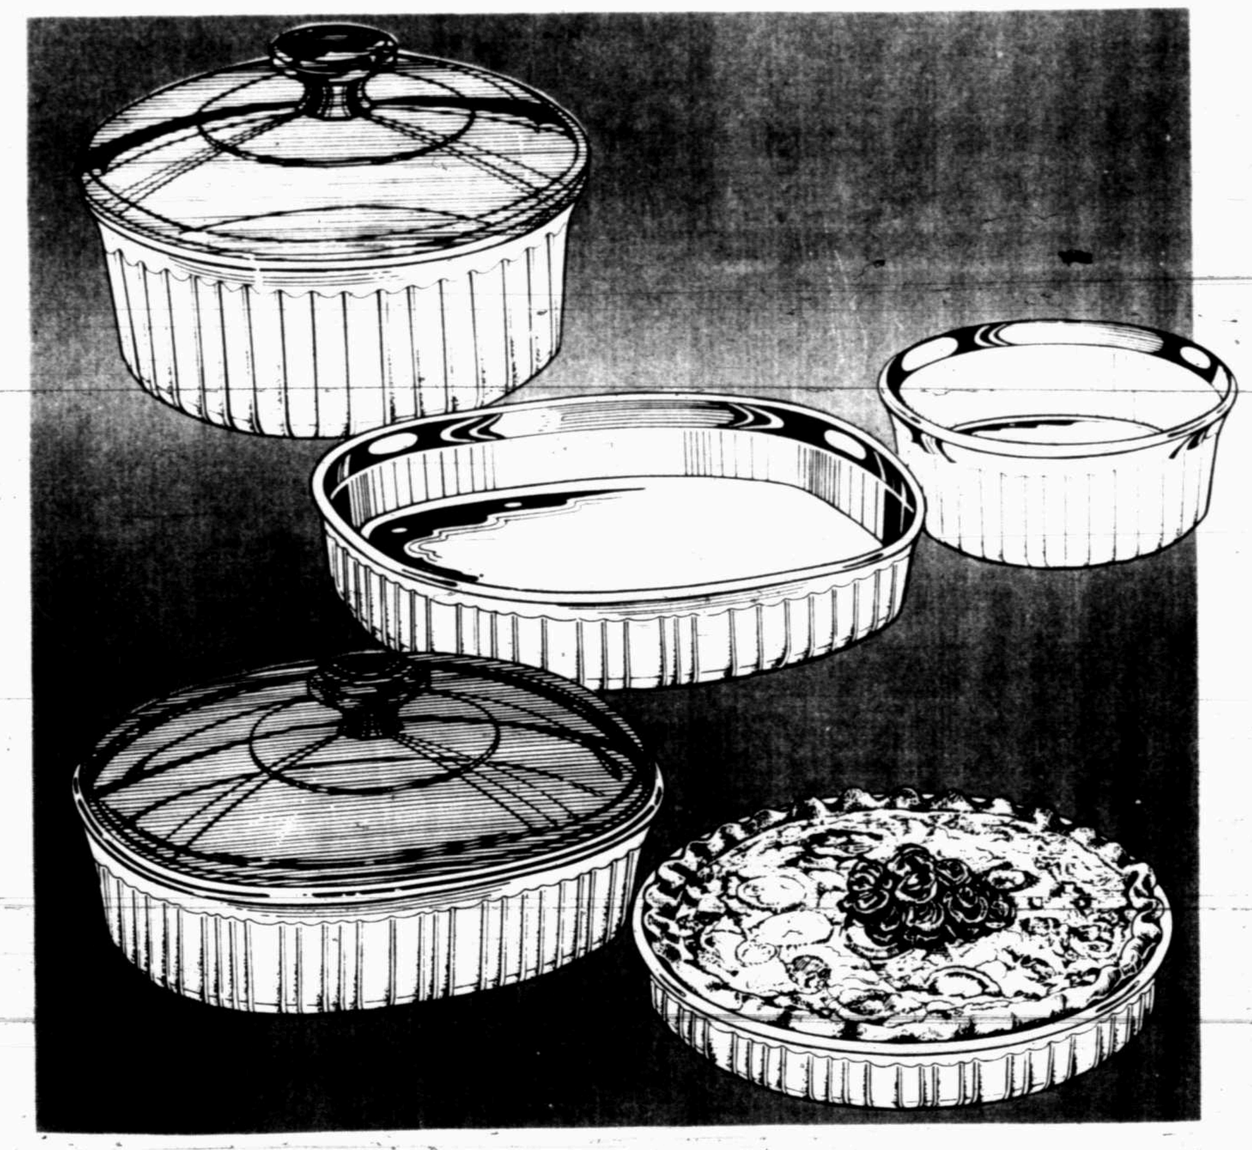

Washington will support Daley

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor-elect Harold Washington says he will support Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, whom he defeated in the Feb. 22 Democratic mayoral primary, if Daley decides to seek another term next year.

"I see no reason not to support Daley," Washington said Sunday. "He's done a good job. It's not easy to take defeat calmly and he comported himself exceedingly (well)."

Washington made his comments after being asked if his support for Daley, the son of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley, would boost his popularity with other Democrats on the city council.

El Salvador reforms pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has agreed "in principle" to send a high-level negotiator to El Salvador to work for broad-based elections and human rights improvements, a House subcommittee chairman says.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md,, said Sunday he obtained the agreement in return for a promise of prompt subcommittee action on the administration's stalled request for $60 million in additional military aid this year for El Salvador.

Long, chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, said that without progress on human rights and elections, "I think they can forget about getting any military money."

President Reagan, asked about Long's statements as he returned to the White House on Sunday from a weekend at Camp David, Md., said: "I can't answer anything like that now."

Lebanon makes complaints

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese government has complained to U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib about newly built Israeli airstrips on Lebanese territory, Beirut newspapers reported today.

The independent An-Nahar and the leftist As-Safir said Lebanon is concerned that the new airfields may indicate Israel does not plan a rapid withdrawal of its troops from Lebanon.

An-Nahar quoted an unnamed government spokesman as saying Israel has built two airfields in Lebanon, one on a beach strip in the fishing town of Damour, 10 miles south of Beirut, and one near the central mountain town of Ain Zhalta, 15.5 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital.

Arafat in Soviet bloc capital

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — PLO chairman Yasser Arafat arrived today for talks with Czechoslovak leaders, the official news agency CTK reported. It was his second trip to a Soviet bloc capital in four days.

His visit here and an earlier trip to Bulgaria came after a breakoff of talks with Jordan's King Hussein on Jordanian representation of the Palestine Liberation Organization in peace negotiations with Israel.

A PLO spokesman in Vienna said Arafat planned to discuss "the whole situation in the Middle East."

Chemical trial opens in Italy

MONZA, Italy (AP) — The trial of five chemical company executives charged with criminal negligence in the 1976 explosion that sprayed the town of Seveso with dioxin opened today but was quickly ajourned until May 11.

None of the defendants, an Italian, two Germans and two Swiss, was present in the courtroom, packed with reporters and some former workers at the chemical plant. Under Italian law, defendants need not be present at their trial unless called to testify.

Judge Cesare di Nunzio agreed to a defense request to adjourn the trial to allow time for examination of new claims for financial compensation filed against the Swiss-owned Icmesa hemical plant.

Twenty-four children suffering from skin diseases and some former workers have filed for damages from the July 1976 explosion, Italy's worst environmental accident.

Thailand election predicted

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's general elections, viewed as a power struggle between military and civilian factions, ended today with indications that Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda would retain his position as prime minister.

The army has dominated Thai politics for the past half century and has broad influence in Prem's coalition government. But former Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj, a rival candidate and frequent critic of the military's political role, said today he was prepared to back Prem

As the voting took place, there were reports of Vietnamese shelling near the Thai-Cambodian border which wounded three people, including a district chief inspecting voting booths.

An Interior Ministry spokesman said a district chief and two villagers were wounded when Vietnamese forces fired M-79 grenades and mortars into Thailand's eastern province of Trat. The spokesman said the chief was on his way to inspect a polling booth in the district of Klong Yai when the attack began.

Experts study contamination

LOWER ALLOWAYS CREEK, N.J. (AP) — Although radioactive dust found on 26 workers at the Salem II nuclear plant posed no health threat, the incident will be reviewed to see if the company "did everything it should have," a federal spokesman says.

A spokesman for Public Service & Electric Co., however, said the dust contamination, resulting from an incident Saturday, was "not of a very serious nature."

He said the company now is "in a fishbowl" partly because it wants permission to restart a twin reactor shut down after safety equipment failed.

Radiation detectors showed the workers were exposed to radiation dust released into the air when a pump motor was started at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, said Silverio. The motor was being tested, and stirred up more particles of radiation than usual, he said.

Perle says dealings were fair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard N. Perle says there was nothing improper in his dealings with an Israeli weapons company that paid him a $50,000 consulting fee the month he entered government service.

Perle also says there was nothing wrong about his dealings with an American company that paid him $5,000 after he joined the government.

The New York Times reported in Sunday editions that Perle recommended that the Army consider buying weapons from the Israeli company in 1982, a year after he was paid the consulting fee.

"In simple fact, I terminated all relationships with all of my business clients when I entered the government as a consultant, and this was some months before I became assistant secretary of defense," Perle said Sunday on NBC's "Meet The Press."

"All the fees that I received from my business clients were fully reported at the end of March (1981), the beginning of April, when I entered the government as a consultant, including the fees in question," said Perle, assistant secretary for international security policy.

Before joining the Defense Department on March 23, 1981, Perle worked for the Abington Corp., a consulting firm that was owned by John F. Lehman, now secretary of the Navy. Israeli arms dealers, Shlomo Zabludowicz and his son, Chaim, became clients of Perle in 1980.

The Times said Perle and Daniel Spiegel, the Zabludowiczes' lawyer, agreed in interviews that the $50,000 fee was paid in two installments, one in early March 1981 and one later that month.

According to the Times, Perle sent a memorandum to the secretary of the Army in 1982 suggesting consideration of the Soltam mortar made by the Israeli company.

Perle said Sunday his letter did not actually recommend that the Zabludowiczes' firm be given a contract, but that the British firm which had the business had been given special consideration and that his former client's product should be considered.

"It did not recommend giving business to that former client with whom I had severed all connection," Perle said. "It simply recommended that a competition be held in which all companies in a position to compete be given an opportunity to do so."

The Times noted that Perle's letter advocating a "fair competition" among all firms seeking the mortar contract mentioned that the company had once been a client of his.

The newspaper also reported that Perle received $5,000 from TRW, a major military consulting firm, on June 25, 1981. According to the paper, TRW's files show Perle signed a one-year agreement with TRW on April 1, 1981, eight days after he began work at the Pentagon. The company said it canceled the contract on June 30, 1981.

Cubs take second straight from Gators

Pitching was difference in Midland's 15-8 victory

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland made it two in a row over Beaumont, 15-8, in a 29-hit spree and, honest, pitching was the difference at Cubs Stadium Sunday night.

If the Moose hadn't ambled out of the bullpen and teased the Golden Gators with four shutout innings, the Texas League rivals might still be swapping scoring haymakers.

Tim Millner gave up only four hits after relieving Doug Welenc in the sixth with Midland trailing 8-6. The Cubs, who lost the series anyway, 3-2, tied it in the sixth on Bill Hatcher's lead off homer to left and a Jim Walsh singled that chased home Rick Baker, who had walked and stolen second.

Tommy Johnson opened the seventh inning by striking out and then ended it by hitting into a double play, but in between the Cubs won it, sending seven runs racing across the plate. And Manager Tom Harmon was happy. He finally got his running game going.

Bruce Chaney and Don Hyman launched the rally with singles and then Hatcher walked to load the bases. First baseman Pat Casey gloved Baker's hot shot, but had no play. He couldn't get back to first in time and no one had covered and, with all the other runners breaking, Pat couldn't go anywhere else. Chaney scored the go ahead run and that opened the flood gates. Tom Lombarski, who already had two hits and two rbi, hit a two-run single, Mike Anicich singled in another run, Jim Walsh singled home his fourth run of the game and Trey Brooks delivered a two-run single.

Marty Kain, who was 3-0 against Midland last year and already had a save against the Cubs this year, took the loss.

LEAGUE-LEADING, naturally, San Antonio follows the Gators into Cubs Stadium for five games starting at 7 p.m. tonight with Ron Richardson scheduled to go for the Bruins. It's also guaranteed win night.

As for Sunday's win, Harmon said, "Sure, I was happy, especially coming from five down to win. And we did it without the long ball." The Cubs had 17 hits, only three for extra bases and benefited from seven walks, three of which scored.

And the big seventh, "When you get ahead, you can make things happen. Tonight we got in a position to use our speed, which is one of our big pluses."

Everybody talks about Bill Hatcher's 84 stolen bases at Salinas last year, but Baker, in the No. 2 spot, has some get up and go, too. "He's the guy who has been sparking us all year. How many bases did he steal last year? I don't have the figures, but when he broke Willie Wilson's record at Waterloo," Harmon said.

Another big plus Sunday was Millner, the big Moose whose fluttering stuff drove the Gators to the drink. "Moose did a super job and it came when we really needed it. Ken Pryce's arm is tired and needed the day off and Tim's performance gave our bullpen a big boost," Harmon said.

Baker, Lombarski and Brooks all had three hit nights for the Cubs and lead off man Hatcher did his thing by scoring four times. Lombarski and Walsh both had four rbi nights.

And the Cubs finally took care of Beaumont outfielder Mark Gillaspie. Welenc and Millner had him 0-for-4 with one walk. Going into the game, Mark, who last year hit 22 homers at Reno, was 6-for-12 with three homers, nine rbis and nine walks.

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Going into Sunday's game, the Gators held a 3-1 edge and if you don't believe walks were the difference....11 of 26 walks received by Beaumont scored....three of 18 received by Midland came home...Randy LaVigne went on the disabled list to undergo an eye exam. His new prescription won't arrive until next week...Welenc and Millner combined for nine whiffs...

New Jersey quarterback Bobby Scott (10) recovers the football during USFL action Sunday against the Washington Federals.

Walker gets third 100-yard game

Generals escape USFL cellar with 23-22 win

By The Associated Press

Herschel Walker had his third straight 100-yard game Sunday and moved into a tie for the United States Football League rushing lead as the New Jersey Generals downed the Washington Federals 23-22 and escaped from the USFL's cellar.

But it took a missed 33-yard field goal by Ken Olson with eight seconds left to keep the hero's mantle from Joe Gilliam. The much-troubled and traveled quarterback nearly pulled out the game for Washington with three touchdown passes, two in a frantic final period.

In other USFL games Sunday, the Michigan Panthers upset the Chicago Blitz 17-12 and the Denver Gold beat the Birmingham Stallions 9-7. Boston outscored Arizona 44-23 in a night game.

Richard Crump ran for two touchdowns and caught a pass for another score to lead the Breakers over the Wranglers. Tim Mazzetti kicked three field goals to run his consecutive streak to 12 for Boston, now 5-2.

The Los Angeles Express will be at Tampa Bay Monday night with the Bandits trying to move to 6-1 and keep pace with the Philadelphia Stars, who topped the Oakland Invaders 17-7 on Saturday night.

NEW JERSEY, winning only its second game in seven starts, took a 23-8 lead on Walker's 8-yard touchdown burst on the first play of the fourth quarter. He finished with 142 yards in 28 carries and two touchdowns and his 713 yards ties him with Philadelphia's Kelvin Bryant for the league's rushing lead.

But from then on it was all Gilliam, the one-time Pittsburgh Steeler who has bounced around minor league football for almost a decade after admitted drug problems cut short his National Football League career.

He threw scoring strikes of nine yards to Joey Walters and 52 yards to Craig James as Washington, 1-6, closed to 23-22. But a pass for a two-point conversion after the second touchdown was batted down.

In the final minute, Gilliam drove the Federals to the New Jersey 16. But Olson's field goal attempt went wide.

JOHN WILLIAMS, a rookie running back from Wisconsin, gained 133 yards in 19 carries to lead Michigan over Chicago and drop the Blitz to 4-3 in the Central Division.

The Panthers, 3-4, trailed 6-3 at the half. But they went 72 yards in four plays for a touchdown with Williams ripping off one run of 24 yards, then bursting 31 yards up the middle for the score that put them ahead to stay.

In Birmingham, Denver beat the Stallions on Brian Speelman's 50-yard field goal with six seconds left. The drive was prolonged by a roughing penalty after Speelman had failed from 52 yards.

It was the first score since early in the second quarter when Birmingham took a 7-6 on Earl Gant's four-yard touchdown run. Denver scored in the first quarter on a 15-yard pass from Ken Johnson to Bo Matthews but failed on a two-point conversion attempt.

On Saturday night, Bryant ran 35 yards for a touchdown and 47 yards to set up a David Trout field goal as Philadelphia won its sixth of seven. He rushed for 118 yards overall.

Rangers need 14 to defeat Bosox

By The Associated Press

Boston's Fenway Park, that renowned graveyard for left-handers, proved to be a pitchers' paradise, for a change. Instead, it was a right-hander — shortstop Glenn Hoffman — whose arm did the Red Sox in.

Texas' Larry Biittner scored on Hoffman's wild relay throw to the plate with two out in the top of the 14th inning Sunday, breaking up a marathon pitching duel and lifting the Texas Rangers to a 1-0 victory over the Red Sox, the first 1-0 game at Fenway in almost three years.

With two out, Biittner singled off Bob Stanley and Pete O'Brien doubled into the left-field corner. Hoffman took Jim Rice's throw and Biittner appeared to be a sure out at the plate, but the shortstop's throw sailed high and wide.

"Good Lord, I thought Biittner was out by a mile," said Texas Manager Doug Rader.

"I looked and figured I had him by 20 feet, but as I threw the ball just slipped out," said Hoffman. "As soon as I let it go I knew it was going to be over his (catcher Rich Gedman's) head. I wish I had it back."

Texas' Rick Honeycutt blanked Boston on five hits over eight innings, while John Tudor of the Red Sox hurled 10 scoreless innings, yielding only four hits.

American League

A's 7, Mariners 4

Mike Norris scattered five hits and struck out 11 in eight innings as the A's won for the sixth time in the last seven games. Norris gave up homers to Ken Phelps, Dave Henderson and Domingo Ramos to account for all the Seattle runs. Jeff Burroughs and Dwayne Murphy homered for Oakland.

Jim Gantner drove in three runs with a homer and sacrifice fly, while Mike Caldwell, who had been rocked for 19 hits and 11 runs in his first two outings, scattered eight hits and one run over seven innings. Relievers Jamie Easterly and Pete Ladd struck out George Brett and Amos Otis, respectively, with the bases loaded to end the game.

Orioles 6, Indians 1

Mike Flanagan hurled a three-hitter and Eddie Murray put the Orioles ahead 3-1 with a first-inning single. Flanagan, who lasted only two innings in his last start while yielding six runs, allowed singles to Manny Trillo in the first inning, Andre Thornton singled in the sixth and Julio Franco in the ninth.

Loser Bert Blyleven walked the first three Baltimore batters in the bottom of the first. The tying run scored on a passed ball by Chris Bando before Murray delivered his two-run single. Baltimore made it 4-1 in the third when Murray singled, took second on an infield out and scored on a single by Jim Dwyer and added two runs in the on Joe Nolan's single, Al Bumbry's RBI double and Dan Ford's single.

Twins 11, Angels 8

Dave Engle's tie-breaking two-run double in the seventh inning helped Minnesota snap a four-game losing streak and end the Angels' three-game winning streak. Before Engle's decisive hit in the three-run seventh, the Twins tied the score 7-7 on singles by John Castino, Gary Ward and Tom Brunansky. Engle then ripped his second double of the game off Andy Hassler. The Twins added two runs in the eighth on singles by Mickey Hatcher, Castino, Ward and Gary Gaetti.

Kent Hrbek hit a three-run homer for the Twins, while Reggie Jackson had a three-run shot — his third homer in three games — and Fred Lynn hit a two-run homer for California.

White Sox 6, Tigers 1

Rookie Ron Kittle's two-run homer, his fourth homer this season, capped a four-run first inning and Dennis Lamp hurled a two-hitter. The game in Chicago was played in 34-degrees and a 14-mile-an-hour wind lowered the wind chill factor to 17.

Rudy Law opened the Chicago first with a single and scored on a double by Tony Bernazard, who reached third when third baseman Howard Johnson dropped the relay throw for an error. Bernazard scored on Johnson's second error, a wild throw home on Greg Luzinski's grounder, and Kittle lofted a shot into the upper deck in left field. Lamp gave up a single to Lou Whitaker leading off the game and lost his shutout bid in the fifth when Larry Herndon hit his third homer.

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 5

Dave Winfield smashed a two-run homer and Steve Kemp scored from second base on a sacrifice fly as New York rallied with four runs in the fifth. Doubles by Buck Martinez and Cliff Johnson had given Toronto a 4-3 lead in the top of the fifth. Ken Griffey singled to open the Yankees' fifth against Jim Clancy and Winfield followed with his fourth home run of the year, a 400-foot drive over the left field fence.

Zoeller 'experiences' win

Nelford's strategy fails on 15

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Fuzzy Zoeller's victory in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic was a textbook example of cautious experience beating an aggressive challenge.

"I never worry about what the other guys are doing," Zoeller said Sunday after his final round of par 71 had been good enough for a two-stroke triumph over Canadian Jim Nelford.

"Oh, I was aware of what they were doing. I was trying to be very patient, trying not to force the issue. I was just trying to make some pars, sneak in a birdie where I could.

"I didn't want to play stupid. I wanted to play some smart golf, and I think I was able to accomplish that."

NELFORD, THE last man to challenge Zoeller, said he had a different approach.

He had holed a couple of medium-range putts for birdies on the 13th and 14th holes and, at that point, had a share of the lead.

From the fairway on the 15th, however, he elected to go for the flag. "I wanted to get it close, try to make a birdie, put some pressure on Fuzzy," said the young man who has yet to win in six years on the PGA Tour.

But his shot was knocked down by the winds swirling through the pines and he was plugged in a bunker in an almost impossible position. He had to make an 8-foot putt to save bogey.

That put him one shot back and, he said, he felt he needed to make birdie, get the ball close to the hole, to catch up. But, on the next hole, the wind got him again, sweeping his approach to the right. It was plugged in a bunker again. This one led to a double bogey. He had lost three shots to par — and to Zoeller — and the tournament was over. Fuzzy had a three-stroke lead with two holes to play.

"After those birdies 13 and 14, I felt the tournament was mine to win," said Nelford, who plays right-handed and putts left-handed. "I wanted to put some pressure on Fuzzy.

"On 15, it all turned around. I let it slip away.

"I hit two marginal shots, not bad shots, just marginal, and it cost me. I came up with two bad lies. But those kind of breaks happen in golf.

"I played the wrong shots and Fuzzy played the right shots," Nelford said.

ZOELLER, A former Masters champion, acquired the fourth title of his career and his first in two years, on a 275 total, 9-under-par on the Harbour Town Golf Links, only 6,650 yards in length but one of the more demanding on the Tour.

"It's a great thrill to beat such a great golf course," Zoeller said after picking up the winner's check of $63,000.

Nelford was second alone with a closing 71 that included six birdies, four bogeys and the decisive double bogey. He won $37,800 and had a total of 277.

Mac O'Grady, a 31-year-old rookie who made 17 tries at the Tour qualifying school before gaining his playing rights last fall, and Bob Eastwood were next at 279. O'Grady had a last-round 73, Eastwood 74.

The group at 280 included Tom Kite, Hale Irwin, Craig Stadler, David Graham, Calvin Peete and Mark McCumber.

1899 — John McGraw managed his first game and his Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Giants 5-3.

1923 — Yankee Stadium opened its doors for the first time, to 62,281 spectators who witnessed a 4-1 Yankee victory and a home run by Babe Ruth — the first ever in the Bronx ballpark.

1981 — In an International League night game, the Rochester Red Wings and Pawtucket Red Sox played to a 2-2 tie through 32 innings before play was suspended at 4:07 the next morning. They completed the contest later that evening with Pawtucket scoring the winning run in the 33rd inning of the longest game in professional baseball history.

Boston favorite feels nervous,

BOSTON (AP) — Greg Meyer, the favorite for Monday's 87th Boston Marathon, is approaching the race with some trepidation but also with much more confidence than he had in 1981, when he finished 11th.

"It's scary," said the 27-year-old Meyer, "because I feel I've done my preparation but I'm afraid I'm going to come up empty. I'm afraid something could go wrong, and that makes me nervous."

Meyer's training has been called "textbook preparation."

He has won his last four races — at 10 kilometers (6.2 miles), 30 kilometers, 10 miles and 10,000 meters on the track.

He has won 11 of his last 13 races, with second-place finishes in the other two, since last September.

He won his last marathon, the America's Marathon at Chicago last Sept. 26 in 2 hours, 10 minutes, 59 seconds, a personal best.

He has set American records for 15 kilometers (43:07) and 20 kilometers (58:26) in the past eight months.

And since late 1982, except for a two-week period in February when he had lung congestion and a cough, he has been training 115-120 miles per week. He has managed several hard runs of 20-22 miles which incorporated the Boston hills.

Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan uncorks a fastball to strike out Montreal's Andre Dawson in the fifth inning to become only the second pitcher in baseball history to record 3,500 strikeouts.

Bench ends Hammaker's no-hitter with single to left in eighth inning

By The Associated Press

It was Cap Day in San Francisco — and the Giants' fans took their hats off to Atlee Hammaker.

Pitching the best game of his young career, the lanky left-hander hurled perfect baseball for seven innings and wound up with a nifty two-hitter as the Giants defeated the Cincinnati Reds 3-0 in the opener of a doubleheader Sunday.

It was the third serious bid for a no-hitter by a major leaguer over the weekend. On Friday night, Detroit's Milt Wilcox pitched a one-hitter, coming within one batter of a perfect game. And on Saturday, Montreal's Charlie Lea yielded only an eighth-inning hit in another one-hitter.

"I'll tell you, the way the pitchers have been flirting with no-hitters and perfect games the last few days, I was thinking maybe the third time was the charm and he might get it," said Reds Manager Russ Nixon.

"It was fun. I'd like to try it again," said Hammaker, whose attempt at perfection was cheered loudly by a crowd of 37,094 at Candlestick Park as he mowed down the Reds with his sliders and fastballs.

The Reds quieted the fans considerably by scoring nine runs in the first inning of the second game, which they won 12-3.

Johnny Bench ended Hammaker's no-hit bid with a line single to left field on the first pitch of the eighth inning.

"He felt confident against me," Hammaker admitted. "I could tell that. His first time up he hit the ball well and I thought it might go into the alley."

Bench: "The pitch I got the hit on was the same pitch I hit in the second inning, a slider up over the plate. I was sort of guessing with him in the eighth. I was confident I'd get a pitch to hit, and I was going to hit it. It happened to be the first pitch."

National League

Astros 6, Expos 3

Nolan Ryan moved within seven strikeouts of Walter Johnson's all-time major league record, leading Houston over Montreal in his first appearance of the 1983 season.

Ryan fanned seven in six innings before reliever Vern Ruhle took over. Ryan now has 3,501 career strikeouts to 3,508 for Johnson.

It was Ryan's first appearance of 1983 after coming off the 21-day disabled list after a bout with prostatitis. Ray Knight knocked in two runs for the Astros with a homer and a single.

Pirates 7, Cubs 0

John Candelaria and Rick Rhoden combined on a three-hitter as Pittsburgh weathered two snow delays and temperatures in the mid-30s to beat Chicago. The second game was postponed because of the bad weather.

Candelaria gave up just two hits and retired the final 12 batters he faced but was lifted after two two delays caused by snow flurries in the bottom of the sixth. Pittsburgh's Lee Lacy had a double and two singles, scored three runs and had two stolen bases, raising his NL-leading total to 10.

Chicago Manager Lee Elia called the game conditions disgraceful, saying the game never should have been played.

"You don't play in snow and you're not supposed to be play when it's in the 30s," said Elia. "I've never been so cold, not even in Montreal. And I've never been in a snow delay before. I've been around the game for 25 years and never seen a game where snow was involved."

Braves 3, Phillies 1

Bob Horner's two-run homer in the seventh triggered Atlanta over Philadelphia, snapping the Phillies' five-game winning streak. Horner's homer, following a single and stolen base by Claudell Washington, provided the Braves with a 2-0 lead and all the runs they needed.

Pascual Perez worked 7 2-3 innings and gave up four hits and one run in the eighth inning for his third victory against no losses. The run off Perez was the first he had allowed in 24 2-3 innings. He also issued one walk, his first in 20 1-3 innings, and struck out eight.

Padres 9, Dodgers 1

Terry Kennedy singled three times and knocked in two runs to back the six-hit pitching of Dave Dravecky as San Diego downed Los Angeles and snapped the Dodgers' six-game winning streak.

Dravecky hurled his second complete game of the season, but lost his bid for his first major league shutout when pinch hitter Jose Morales singled home Steve Yeager from third in the eighth. Dravecky had retired 20 consecutive Dodgers until Yeager singled with one out in the eighth.

Bob Welch took the loss, giving up Kennedy's two-run single in the third and then two more runs in the fourth when the Padres scored on an error by Dodger second baseman Steve Sax and Gene Richards' RBI single.

Adams posts two-shot win in Orlando Classic

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Lynn Adams triple bogeyed the first hole to fall out of the lead but regained it with an eagle on No. 12 and went on to win the $150,000 LPGA Combanks Orlando Classic by two strokes over JoAnne Carner and Janet Anderson Sunday.

The victory was the first in six years as a professional for Adams, who shot a final round 71 for a 54-hole total of 8-under-par 208. Her best previous finish was second in the Tucson Conquistadores Open in February.

Carner, chasing her 38th tour victory, but her first in 1983, matched par on the final day over the 6,274-yard Cypress Creek Country Club course for a 6-under 210 total. Anderson fired a 68 to quietly remain among the leaders all day.

Tech's rally good for 10-9 victory

SWC Baseball

By The Associated Press

A game-winning double by Todd Howey in the ninth inning helped Texas Tech come from behind to edge Arkansas 10-9 in Southwest Conference baseball play.

In other SWC action Sunday, the University of Houston eked out a win against Texas Christian 5-4.

The Red Raiders began a five-run surge over the last three innings, after Arkansas enjoyed a 5-2 lead through five innings and held a 9-5 advantage going into the bottom of the seventh.

Mark Michna singled to center for Tech and scored in the seventh when centerfielder Mike Robinson let the ball get by and roll to the wall. Catcher Greg Landry then walked, moved to second on a Dale Redman single, advanced to third on a sacrifice and scored when Jim Sullivan hit a sacrifice fly to center.

In the eighth period, Jimmy Zachry led off with a single and scored after two consecutive bunt singles by Gene Segrest and Wes McKenzie. Landy then drove Segrest home with a fielder's choice and Pat Moore delivered a pinch-hit sacrifice fly to score McKenzie and tie the game.

Sullivan led off the ninth with a double for the Red Raiders and scored on Howey's double.

Tech's Mark McDowell picked up the win in relief. Reliever Lester Lancaster was tagged with the loss for the Razorbacks.

Tech improved its SWC record to 7-8 while Arkansas fell to 10-8 in league play.

The Cougars' Steve Seberger drove a two-out triple to score two runs against TCU.

With two men on, Seberger whacked a Bryan Ohnoutka fastball into right-center to drive home both runners, after TCU led 2-1 in the seventh inning. Seberger scored later on a passed ball to give Houston a 4-2 lead.

The Cougars added their fifth run in the eighth on Jack Horning's run-scoring single.

Two runs were contributed by four TCU singles in the ninth inning. But reliever Rayner Noble struck out pinch hitter Barry Davis to stop the Horned Frogs rally and end the game.

The win was picked up by Noble. It was his second in two days and 10th of the season. Ohnoutka took the loss for the second time in a three-game series between the two schools. His record fell to 7-5.

Houston raised its record to 11-4 in SWC play and 38-8 on the season while the Horned Frogs fell to 4-11 and 22-21.

Chamblee's 219 best in SWC, leads Longhorns to league crown

WEST COLUMBIA, Texas (AP) — Brandel Chamblee captured individual honors with a 3-over-par 219 and helped Texas come from 7 shots behind to a 9-stroke win over second-place Houston Sunday in the Southwest Conference Golf Championships.

Texas made up 15 shots on the final six holes of the tourney at the Columbia Lakes Country Club and won its second SWC title in three years.

The Longhorns outdistanced the eight-school field by posting a 54-hole total of 899 while the Cougars finished at 908.

Chamblee started the day tied for the individual lead with Houston's Billy Tuten, but the Longhorn golfer's birdie on the par-5 17th hole solidified his third tournament victory of the spring. Tuten finished 4 strokes behind at 223.

"When I started the day, I thought a 220 would win this tournament," said Chamblee. "I had trouble with my driver today but I had been hitting it good this week so I was reluctant to put it in the bag."

The Longhorns were helped by a pair of 2-over-par 74s from Paul Thomas and Mark Brooks.

Jackson hitters go wild enroute to 14-7 victory

Texas League

By The Associated Press

Terry Blocker blasted a two-run triple to help Jackson to a 14-7 win over Shreveport, as the first nine Mets batters reached base in Texas League baseball action.

In other league play Sunday, San Antonio clubbed El Paso 8-2.

The first seven Jackson batters got hits off Captain starter and loser Glenn Barling, now 0-1.

He allowed three hits and three walks, hit a batter and balked home a run.

Jackson's Billy Deane hit two home runs, one from the left and one from the right side.

Shreveport first baseman Mark Schuster scored two homers, one for two runs and another for three.

The Captains are now 4-5 going into a home stand. Jackson is 5-3, at first place in the Texas League East.

The Dodgers had nine hits against El Paso, which posted six, with no homeruns for either team.

Southern U bangs out 31-23 win over PVA&M

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Southern University of Baton Rouge, La., banged out a 31-23 baseball victory Sunday over Prairie View A&M, completing a three-game weekend sweep that saw the Jaguars outscore their Southwestern Athletic Conference opponent by 52-31.

Southern got its 31 runs Sunday on 33 hits, while Prairie View got its 23 runs on 26 hits for a total of 54 runs on 59 hits. Each team committed 3 errors.

Southern swept a Saturday doubleheader from Prairie View, 10-2 and 11-4.

Womens' fears make them wary of computers

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Serive

They sit in front of their video display units, their eyes strained and blurry from looking at the monitors and their backs aching from leaning forward towrad the keyboard. Headaches, backaches and eyestrain have become an almost accepted way of life.

• • •

Is this a picture of the sweatshops of the future or is it a nightmare being nurtured by women who are afraid to step into the world of modern technology — the way people before them were afraid of the industrial revolution? According to Nancy Mae Bonney of Silver Spring, Md., recording secretary for the national organization of the Association for Women in Computing, it's mostly fear — and stress brought on by this fear.

"A computer is just a tool. A tool to make a woman's life easier both in the office and in the home," she said. As for the physical discomforts, she believes they can be corrected by proper lighting and the right chair.

"In the future, all business will rely on some sort of computer service system as opposed to rulers and pencils," said Bonney, whose organization began with about 20 women in December 1978, and now has more than 2,000 members and 12 local chapters.

As for the home, Bonney foresees computers replacing the typewriter and even, to a more limited degree, the telephone and mail service. But first, she said, a woman must get over her fear of computers.

The fear — that computers are something strange and not easily mastered by women — has been fostered, according to recent articles in Psychology Today and Business Week, largely because computers are mainly sold in stores dealing with electronic euipment, generally thought of as men's domain, and that elementary school through college, computer studies focus on math, which, traditionally, many young girls and women dislike. The latter situation may soon be a thing of the past, according to Bertram Bruce of the consulting firm of Bolt Beranek and Newman, in Cambridge, Mass.

BRUCE IS DEVELOPING a computer-driven writing package for schools that will include a simplified word processor. "For many children, filling a single page with print is more physically arduous than chin-ups," he said in the March-April issue of Channels magazine. "Elementary school students in San Diego, using a similar program, have begun writing more clearly, enthusiastically and extensively."

Video games, another way of spurring interest in computers, tend to be violent and may turn young women away. "I've told Atari (the video game division of Warner Communications) that they should be trying to develop nonviolent games without the blow-em-away mentality, so that girls can get involved," said Judith B. Edwards Allen, director of the computer technologfy program at the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory, Portland, Ore. But the response she got from Atari, according to a report in a recent issue of Business Week, was, "Well, frankly, that isn't wehre the market is. Boys are the market."

Most games, according to Dan Gutman, editor of Video Game Player, are designed "by boys for other boys." But, he said, the industry is beginning to turn out some nonviolent games to appeal to young girls.

"Children get computers at first for the games, but that's just a Trojan horse to get them interested," said Rita Lane, president of the New York Chapter of the Association for Women in Computing. "Now the children are teaching the adults." Lane got her initial computer training while working at Chemical Bank. She's now a data-processing special projects manager at Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Greater New York. In three years, the New York chapter's membership has risen from 20 to 325.

The association's purpose — to keep women informed of technological developments and to help them establish contact with others in their fields — is carried out through national conferences and newsletters, a speakers' bureau and a board that advises members on the submission of technical papers.

"WE'VE REACHED the Information Age and everyone needs to learn how to operate a computer," Lane said. "The cost of owning one is going down, so in about 10 years, it would be considered like (buying) a calculator." Though she doesn't own her own home computer, she's planning to buy one for her mother and 5-year-old niece. "my mother will be able to keep track of bill payments and the house's energy efficiency," she said. "My niece won't be just playing games but will use it to learn spelling and to gain educational information from the Encyclopedia Britanica. I anticipate that she'll be able to program by the time she's 8 or 9."

According to the March issue of Psychology Today, a large proportion of the current enrollment in college computer classes is female. Mount Holyoke College, in South Hadley, Mass., reports that 50 percent of this year's graduates have used computers in their courses, an increase of 35 percent from seven years ago. John Durso, professor of computer studies at the college, found that "the basic course has quadrupled in enrollment from 30 students seven years ago to 120 today."

Braniff to file reorganization plan

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International officials say they will file a plan of reorganization today in federal bankruptcy court, but they don't yet know what it will be.

Talks continued late Sunday between many of Braniff's creditors and airline officials pushing an offer from the Hyatt Corp. to put the grounded carrier back in the air, Braniff officials said.

"There are still negotiations. There are still a lot of phone calls going on around the country," Braniff chairman Howard Putnam told The Dallas Morning News.

Braniff is scheduled to file its formal plan of reorganization in U.S. bankruptcy court in Fort Worth this afternoon. Creditors then have 60 days in which to approve or reject the plan.

Putnam refused to release details of the discussions, and also refused to say whether any other companies or airlines are offering to buy the remainder of Braniff's fleet if creditors insist the assets must be sold.

Since it collapsed last May under a $1 billion debt, Putnam has worked with several companies to develop operating agreements acceptable to both the courts and the creditors.

An earlier deal with Pacific Southwest Airlines was rejected by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and secured creditors earlier rejected a $10 million offer from Chicago-based Hyatt.

But Hyatt sweetened its offer, and it was that plan that Braniff was discussing with creditors.

Braniff's secured creditors failed to approve a $30 million Hyatt offer to get the airline flying again, said Anthony Walsh, chairman of the court-appointed committee of creditors to whom Braniff owes $100 million.

Walsh said the offer fell short of the $60 million in cash needed to restart Braniff.

Friday night, the secured creditors met in Manhattan with Hyatt chairman Jay Pritzker and unanimously rejected the complex proposal, Walsh said.

Pritzker, who is known for buying financially troubled companies and turning them around, originally was approached about a deal by two former Braniff pilots.

Hyatt wants to use 31 Braniff jets and 2,000 former workers, who have been idled since Braniff ceased operations.

Higher auto production predicted

DETROIT (AP) — Planned production increases by General Motors Corp. and American Motors Co. will help boost industry output nearly 3 percent in the next two quarters, an industry journal reported today.

Ward's Automotive Reports also said increased sales of import cars have reduced U.S. dealers' stocks of the cars to a 37-day supply at the end of March, with Japanese models in the shortest supply.

In the production report, Ward's said a 2.7 percent April-June increase and a 3 percent increase for the third quarter are due largely to plans by GM and AMC, and Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. are not likely to increase their production schedules.

The industry is scheduling 1,753,000 cars for second-quarter comletion, up from the 1,706,000 planned a month ago, Ward's said. July-September production plans are now 1,565,000 as against 1,519,000.

GM plans to add about 16,000 workers with new second shifts at its Buick Division plants in Flint, Mich., Van Nuys, Calif., and Janesville, Wis., the journal said.

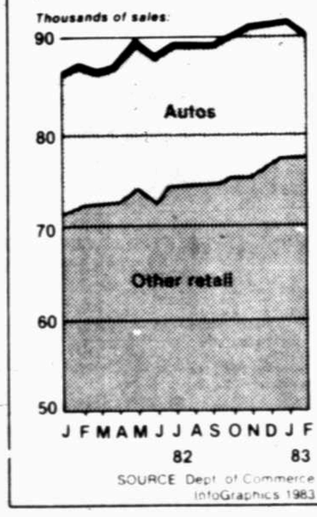

The planned AMC and GM increases mean the entire industry could produce 1 million to 1.5 million more cars in 1983 than last year, Ward's said. Carmakers posted a 432,000-unit gain in the first quarter of 1983 over the year-ago quarter.

The 37-day supply of import cars is down from a 43-day supply a month earlier, and substantially under the year-ago supply of 53 days, Ward's said.

Japanese makes, with just a 31-day supply overall, were down from February's 34 days and from 50 days in March 1982, Ward's said.

Retail sales inching up

Since January of 1982, U.S. retail sales have been inching up steadily but slowly. In the 14-month span ending in February '83 total sales have risen from $86.5 billion to $91.7 billion, an increase of 6 percent.

Future Midlander places in world-event

Brugalossi

Claudio Brugalossi, manager-to-be and part owner of the Masters Club,. placed second overall in a world cook-off staged April 1, in Tokyo. Brugalossi, who currently resides in Rome, and will be moving to Midland in September, represented Rome's Sans Souci restaurant, which he has managed for the past seven years. Members of the Sans Souci staff assited Brugalossi.

Participating in the cook-off were eighteen restaurants from eighteen different countries, and to be invited, a restaurant must be rated as the best in the country. Brugalossi and his staff prepared as their corte a pasta and fish dish. Various other dishes prepared by the future Midlander received fifth place honors.

Brugalossi intends to bring some of his trained staff with him to Midland and offer the kind of quality and service at The Masters Club that earned his invitation to and victory at the world cook-off.

The Masters Club, to be located near The Midlander health club, on Corporate Drive, is scheduled to open in November. Construction is to begin in June.

December gas yield down

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace said Texas oil and gas wells produced 497,251,313 Mcf of gas in December 1982, down 10.22 percent from field runs a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 410,770,836 Mcf and reflected a 12.31 percent decrease from the December 1981 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in December totaled 256,844,132 Mcf. Exports of Texas-produced gas in December totaled 190,502,009 Mcf, and reflected a 2.07 percent decrease from the year-earlier month.

Texas gas production in December came from 230,222 oil and gas wells.

In November 1982, Texas wells produced 481,397,322 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in November totaled 393,633,261 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in November totaled 393,633,261 Mcf. November exports of Texas-produced gas toaled 186,742,479 Mcf.

Oilman leading takeover effort

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The annual stockholders' meeting May 12 is shaping up as a bid by Texas oilfield businessman Delo Caspary to take over the big Louisiana Land & Exploration Company.

Caspary, from Rockport, Texas, recently bought 116,000 share of LL&E stock. He now heads a group of nine businessmen waging a proxy fight to win management of the New Orleans-based company at its annual stockholders meeting May 12.

In an April 7 letter to shareholders, Caspary proposed replacing John G. Phillips as LL&E's chairman and chief executive.

"We believe he is just looking for a public company to run — any public company," Phillips responded in his own letter to stockholders.

His letter branded Caspary and his allies as speculators without the skills to run the company.

Phillips, 59, has been critized recently because company earnings fell in 1982. He points out, however, that earnings set a record the three years before that.

Phillips said last week that, despite a drop in revenues for the first quarter of 1983 from $305 million to $250 million, the firm expects to post a profit of $27 million, double that of last year's first quarter.

Caspary dwelled on the company's lackluster 1982 performance in his letter asking stockholders to turn their proxy votes over to his group, the Louisiana Land Committee for New Management.

Stockholders in publicly-held companies have one vote for each share they hold. Louisiana Land and Exploration has almost 38 million shares outstanding.

Bruner promoted

Bruner

Thomas M. Bruner has been promoted to executive vice president and trust officer at Texas American Bank/Midland.

Bruner joined Texas American Bank/Midland in 1975 as vice president and trust officer in charge of the Trust Department. In 1977, he was promoted to senior vice president and trust officer, and in 1980 he became senior vice president and executive trust officer.

Under Bruner's direction, Texas American Bank/Midland's Trust Department has doubled in asset size over the past two years to a current size of over $30 million in trust assets.

Bruner received his education from the University of Texas, Austin where he was graduated with a Trust Degree from SWIGSBIE in Dallas, Texas.

Lundberg sees higher prices ahead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices will drift upward in coming weeks as retailers continue to pass along tax increases and make up for recent losses, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

"After eight months of gasoline price cutting, a market turnaround may be at hand," Lundberg said in his weekly Lundberg Letter. "The question is whether it could hold."

Gasoline prices rose with the 5-cent-a-gallon tax increase instituted by the federal government on April 1.

However, Lundberg said Saturday that his surveys show the average pump price has increased by only 4.5 cents, meaning that another half-cent a gallon remains to be passed on by dealers to motorists.

Retailers also have not passed along recent wholesale price increases of about 2.5 cents a gallon, Lundberg said. That makes a total of at least 3 cents a gallon waiting to be added to pump prices.

Lundberg said stronger demand for gasoline should allow dealers to post the increase and noted that wholesale prices for gasoline on the spot market in New York Harbor and other key shipping areas are already rising.

"After two years of intermittent gasoline price erosion, the market is turning around," Lundberg said. "A gasoline price turnaround is indicated in all parts of the country."

Price and production agreements reached by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries appear to be holding, Lundberg said, meaning that crude oil prices may stabilize and remove downward pressure on gas prices.

Analyst say interests should change little

NEW YORK (AP) — Credit analysts say interest rates should change little in the days ahead now that a surge in the nation's money supply has slowed.

"Interest rates will essentially move sideways," said economist David Jones of the government securities firm Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

The Federal Reserve said the basic money measure, called M1, rose $2.2 billion in early April and climbed $6.6 billion in March. M1, including cash in circulation and deposits in checking-type deposits at banking institutions, rose 16 percent in March from February, compared with a 22 percent spurt between January and February.

A broader money measure, called M2, rose $18.8 billion in March, or at an 11 percent rate, compared with a 23 percent spurt in February. M2 includes M1 and such deposits as savings accounts and money market mutual funds.

100,000 songs on 'live' jukeboxes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Crooners and divas, rockers and waltzers all make music in Helen Reutzel's "live" jukeboxes. Just drop in a quarter, pick up the telephone and choose — from among 100,000 selections.

That's about 999,950 more tunes than in a standard juke, but these vintage deco-style jukeboxes, solid mahogany with red stained glass panels, contain no records, just amplifiers and telephone wires. They are more than a half-century old and can be found in 13 Pittsburgh taverns.

Telephone operators, who go by first names only, answer 16 hours a day, seven days a week. After 26 years, Jean can pick out most any song from the clutter of records piled in the small, ramshackle studio.

Choose from among toe-tapping big bands on heavy, scratchy 78 rpm discs to new wave hits on their way up the charts. There's likely to be every song you know and quite a few you don't.

Dedicate a song to the good-looking guy across the room, and Jean will deliver your message live throughout the bar.

SHE KNOWS thousands of songs by heart. Request "Burning Bridges" and she immediately thinks "A888," the song's file number. Ask for a Neil Young song, and Jean, though not of the rock generation, rattles off a dozen titles.

Ms. Reutzel says Telephone Music Service, operating since 1929, is the only live juke box business left in the world.

Her father, William Purse, designed the system and had 120 jukes across the country before World War II, when telephone lines were inexpensive.

AP Laserphoto

Helen Reutzel takes a call for a request for her 'live' jukebox service. The service, which originated in 1929, is the last remaining 'live' jukebox in the world.

"During the war, the trend was away from going to a bar with friends and talking," Ms. Reutzel said. When television was a novelty, "people didn't want the music in the bars," she added.

Telephone Music Service declined. Purse subsidized the business by running a tavern. At his death seven years ago, the equipment was obsolete, and just five jukeboxes were left, in "rough neck" Pittsburgh bars.

"In the hospital, my father told me to lock it up, it isn't worth it," said Ms. Reutzel, who shunned the advice. "What can you do when someone dies and leaves you something? You can't just leave it."

INSTEAD, MS. REUTZEL left her career as a dream analyst and dream interpretation teacher. "I kept it going to get Dad out of debt," said Ms. Reutzel. "It was a matter of survival, and now it looks like I can make it.

"Now that everyone has a television, there's a trend to go back and sit and talk."

She has all the original 120 jukeboxes, most in storage and in need of repair.

"There's times when you could buy it (the business) for a song. Others, I wouldn't give it away for a million," she said. "I'm living a dream — it was Dad's dream and now it's mine."

It may be easy to get clients for her "Juke Box With A Heart," but it's not easy to become a client.

"If someone wants a jukebox, I go in anonymously and have a beer, see if I like the place," Ms. Reutzel said. Each tavern is wired separately, so songs play only where they are requested.

JIM COSTANZO, who owns two bars with Telephone Music Service, said the jukeboxes bring him business.

"Most jukeboxes have just 50 songs," he said. But with the music service, he added, "people come in and have a party around the jukebox. It's a lot cheaper than hiring a band."

"A lot of guys don't have families. They come in and talk to the girls on the telephone and it makes their day," said "Chicago Red," a bartender who is now the boyfriend of a Telephone Music Service operator. They became friends on the phone, six weeks before they met.

"One guy says the only time he feels loved is when he calls the jukebox," Ms. Reutzel said.

The jukeboxes can also affect what happens in the bars, Ms. Reutzel said.

"IF A GUY is playing up to another girl, his girlfriend can call and dedicate 'Breaking My Heart' to him," she said. And on a recent night, a fight was averted when the men turned to the jukebox to dedicate "offbeat" songs to one another, "using the songs instead of their fists."

Ms. Reutzel works the phones as an extra, collects the quarters from the bars, manages the business and operates Fantastic Dog, a small eatery on the North Side, and the only place where people too young to frequent bars can use the live jukebox.

Las Vegas star Wayne Newton will perform at Chaparral Center April 24. Newton has headlined at the top Las Vegas showrooms 30 weeks a year for more than 16 years. This is Newton's third tour in the last 10 years. Tickets, priced at $15 and $12.50, may be purchased at Endless Horizons in Midland and Odessa, Hastings Record Store in Hobbs, N.M., and Chaparral Center. To date, the center has sold almost 3,000 tickets.

Lynn Redgrave starring as 'unangelic' Sister Mary Ignatius

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lynn Redgrave, whose films include such risque items as "Tom Jones" and "The Happy Hooker," is changing her habits.

In her latest role, she plays a nun.

Lynn Redgrave

But as might be expected of the adventuresome, 40-year-old actress, this is no angelic sister. She plays the title role in "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You," Christopher Durang's black comedy about an opinionated teacher who expounds a rather mangled theology.

Miss Redgrave, on hiatus from her role in NBC's "Teachers Only," replaces Elizabeth Huddle in the lead role at the L.A. Stage Company production.

While she may not have originated the part in Los Angeles, it wasn't for lack of trying.

She first read the script several years ago after a friend saw it in New York. "My husband and I just fell in love with it," she said. "I hadn't got excited about a new play in I don't know when."

Unfortunately, stage rights for Los Angeles had already been committed. Then, months later, L.A. Stage Company Artistic Director Susan Dietz was discussing other stage possibilities with Miss Redgrave "and she threw in, 'Oh, by the way . Elizabeth Huddle's leaving. You wouldn't want to step in, would you?' "

Yes, she would, and so here she is for an open-ended run.

"I'm playing it very differently from Elizabeth," said Miss Redgrave, relaxing in the schoolroom the theater maintains for two boys who alternate in a part in the play.

"I've had to do quite a lot (of research) because I'm not a Catholic," she said. She has talked with a priest and a nun and read material about the education Sister Mary Ignatius would have undergone in "the old days" prior to Pope John XXIII in 1959.

"She's an uneducated person, undoubtedly, and from the lowest background one could have," Miss Redgrave said. "I'm making her Irish only because I know what her kitchen smelled like if she's Irish and I don't if she's the American equivalent.

"I don't mean to imply that the Irish are uneducated, it's just that I've lived in Ireland and it would be rare to find an English nun" because the country is largely Protestant, she said.

"My great-aunt was a mother superior," Miss Redgrave added. "I didn't know my great-aunt, so it didn't help, but it's a little-known fact."

Opera Omaha: 'Good theater set to music'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Mary Robert hates a certain television commercial and what it does to the image of opera.

"It shows two men who apparently have been dragged to the opera by their wives. A huge man is on the stage singing. And the two men are bored to tears sitting in the back playing this game," Mrs. Robert says. "The stereotypes persist."

Although she doesn't like the stereotypes, Mrs. Robert agrees that many people believe opera is boring and they'd rather be doing almost anything else.

When she became general director of Opera Omaha in October 1981, Mrs. Robert promised to change the situation. Observers say the success her group has had in winning opera converts makes Opera Omaha unusual among the nation's opera companies.

Mrs. Robert is convinced that "average" Nebraskans — known for their love of Big Red football and a good tall stand of corn — can also become interested in opera.

OPERA OMAHA officials are even contemplating reaching out to a new market with commercial spots on the local cable sports channel.

Unless opera gains a substantial following among the general public, including from the legions of TV sports fans, Mrs. Robert believes opera may soon disappear from the American landscape.

"It's been associated with boredom and the elite," Mrs. Robert says. "We're not the mink coat and tiara crowd. We're just good theater set to music."

You needn't even be proficient in Italian. All of Opera Omaha's productions are sung in English, she says.

As Opera Omaha gears up to celebrate its 25th-anniversary next year, its campaign to change opera's image seems to be paying off.

It's a growing, new and younger crowd that is showing up at the historic and ornate Orpheum Theatre, home of Opera Omaha. "When you go to the theater now, you see all the tennis shoes you can imagine," Mrs. Roberts says.

During the past year, generally one-fourth of the approximately 2,000 people in the audience were in their teens or early 20s.

MOST OF THE success seems to come from educational programs in area schools, programs beefed up considerably since Mrs. Robert took over as general director. Tours to smaller towns throughout Nebraska have also been successful.

Last fall's "Don Pasquale" was the first Orpheum production taken on tour across the state.

Next year, Opera Omaha plans to co-produce an opera with three smaller communities. Local talent will fill minor roles with professional singers in the major roles.

Many operas in the country have various educational offerings and programs into smaller communities. But Opera Omaha officials believe Nebraska's company differs from others in its emphasis on winning converts to opera.

"The workshops are why we're here. For them, the performance is the lure, rather than the other way around," Mrs. Robert says.

Cindy Oxberry, a mezzo-soprano with the New York City Opera Company, says she doesn't know of any other company the size of Opera Omaha having such extensive workshop programs.

"FROM THE OPERA singer's point of view, I would say Opera Omaha is unique. I'd think the only people who would do something like this is someone with a $1 million budget: San Francisco, New York, the Met," she says.

According to Mrs. Robert, Opera Omaha has an annual budget of $600,000 and, in terms of funding and prestige, falls about in the middle if ranked among the approximately 50 U.S. operas.

A workshop with a choir class at Omaha Central High School shows the enthusiasm for opera generated by some Opera Omaha-style education.

The workshop was conducted by Ms. Oxberry and Karen Wicklund, a soprano with the Lake George, N.Y., Opera.

The two women, guest performers for Opera Omaha's spring production of "Madame Butterfly," employ humor to capture their high school audience.

"We're not the mink coat and tiara crowd...When you go to the theater now, you see all the tennis shoes you can imagine."

Kathryn Falk, author and organizer of the "Romantic Book Lover's Conference," to be held in New York City, waits for the "Love Train" to leave Los Angeles Union Station. Ms. Falk, author of "How to Write a Romance and Get It Published," will try to unite budding authors with agents and editors on the cross-country train trip and at the conference.

Love Train heads for romance confab

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kathryn Falk, author of "How to Write a Romance and Get it Published," is heading east on the Love Train, her compartment decorated with pink satin sheets, ruffled pillows and flowers.

The specially designated Amtrak train is scheduled to make stops in Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago; Pittsburgh and Philadelphia on its five-day trip to New York City for a Romantic Book Lovers' Conference, where authors such as Barbara Cartland, Phyllis A. Whitney, Joan Dial and Jude Deveraux are to meet to talk about their craft.

The Love Train, which pulled out of Union Station Saturday night, was the idea of Chelley Kitzmiller, an aspiring romance writer from Placentia, Calif.

"I wanted to go to Kathryn's conference," Chelley said. "I'm terrified of flying so I thought I'd take the train. I mentioned it to someone and said 'Why don't you come with me and we'll call it the Love Train?' From there it's mushroomed beyond anything I could have imagined."

On board, along with about 250 other passengers, were 40 to 50 romance agents, editors and writers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Merete Van Kamp, a Danish actress and countess, has been selected to star in the title role of the NBC miniseries "Princess Daisy," based on Judith Krantz's best-selling novel, a network official says.

Miss Van Kamp, 21, was selected after a two-year worldwide talent search in which more than 700 actresses were interviewed, Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, said Sunday.

"Not only is Merete Van Kamp actually a countess, but also like her character she has lived in England, the U.S. and France. She exudes the regal, ladylike qualities of Daisy," he said.

In the book and miniseries, Daisy is the daughter of a former Russian prince and a Hollywood film star. Production is scheduled to begin in Los Angeles later this month and continue in New York, London and France through mid-July.

Joan Rivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedienne Joan Rivers, known for her biting comments about such public figures as Nancy Reagan and Jackie Onassis, says she's "totally different" offstage.

"In private, I'm very much a mother. Very conservative and very boring" is how she assesses herself in an interview in this week's People magazine.

Miss Rivers, who has a 14-year-old daughter, Melissa, calls herself "terribly sensitive" and says she picks on the "biggies" because "they can take it."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pianist Andre Watts and soprano Wilhelmenia Fernandez joined 87 members of the Philadelphia Orchestra in a "Concert for Humanity."

Sponsors of Sunday's event said nearly 3,000 tickets were sold, ranging in price from $5 dollars to $500.

Proceeds from the concert were to go to the Pennsylvania Campaign for a nuclear weapons freeze and the Physicians for Social Responsibility.

Record producer's wife charged in his death

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of record producer and bass guitarist Felix Pappalardi has been charged with murder in the shooting death of her husband at their Manhattan apartment, police say.

Felix Pappalardi

Pappalardi's 43-year-old wife, Gail, called police at 6 a.m. Sunday. Officers said she allowed police into the apartment where they found Pappalardi's body.

The 41-year-old musician, who had performed with the rock group Mountain, had been shot once in the neck, and was pronounced dead at the scene, authorities said. Pappalardi was found lying on his bed in his underwear, police said. Officers said they recovered a .38-caliber derringer that was nearby.

Mrs. Pappalardi was charged with second-degree murder and criminal possession of a weapon, Officer Fred Elwick said.

Police said they had not yet determined the circumstances that led to the shooting.

The Bronx-born Pappalardi played guitar on the Greenwich Village folk music circuit during the 1960s, but then turned to production. He worked with such artists as Joan Baez, the Lovin' Spoonful, the Youngbloods and Cream.

In 1968, Atlantic Records asked him to work with a group called the Vagrants. That group did not succeed, but Pappalardi produced a solo album by their lead guitarist, Leslie West.

The next year, he and West formed Mountain — a hard-rock quartet generally identified with West's guitar and voice. The group performed four times before appearing at the Woodstock Festival and turned out a series of albums and such singles as "Mississippi Queen."

They broke up in 1972 and reformed in 1974. Members of the group since have rejoined in various combinations.

Pappalardi played bass and keyboards, sang backup vocals and produced the group's records. According to the Illustrated Encyclopedia of Rock, Pappalardi was rendered deaf by his appearances with the band.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Insomnia's emotional basis differs

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father always complains that he doesn't sleep very well. He is 78 years old. I don't want to make a mountain out of a molehill, but do you think he ought to see a shrink? — Todd, Newark, N.J.

Dear Todd: When it comes to insomnia, there appears to be a difference in the degree of emotional disturbance between older and younger people with the same problem.

Dr. T. Roehrs of the Sleep Disorders and Research Center of the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, tested two groups of patients who had trouble sleeping. The young ones, who averaged about 44 years of age, were found to have more emotional problems than did the older group of patients, who averaged over 68 years of age. Moreover, the psychological problems in the older patients were no different from those in a control group of subjects with an average age of about 71 years who did not have sleeping problems.

Before considering psychiatric treatment for your father, I would have him seen by a physician to determine, if possible, the cause of his insomnia. It seems a little premature to attribute it to emotional problems.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I never realized how serious bone loss could be in older people until I read about it in your column. I'm only in my 20s, but I believe with you that prevention is better than cure. What suggestion would you have to avoid this problem? — Marie, Casper, Wyo.

Dear Marie: The American Society for Bone and Mineral Research has announced guidelines for the prevention of osteoporosis. They include the following suggestions, among others:

Children and young adults should have from 800 to 1,000 milligrams of calcium daily; women who are pregnant or breast-feeding should have 500 milligrams more.

Unless prescribed by a physician, the consumption of large amounts of vitamins A and D should be avoided.

Weight-bearing exercises should be a part of a person's daily activities. Brisk walking and running are beneficial, but swimming is not.

Cigarette smoking should be avoided.

Elderly people should take measures to avoid falls. These include the removal of throw rugs from polished floors, installation of adequate lighting and the avoidance of high-heeled shoes.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Many months ago you wrote about how gallstones could be dissolved with a certain kind of acid. Is there anything new about this treatment? The reason I'd like to know is that I have gallstones and I don't want an operation. — Mrs. M. O'C., Augusta, Ga.

Dear Mrs. O'C.: Both chenodeoxycholic (chenic) acid and ursodeoxycholic acid are effective in dissolving gallstones. Chenic acid appears to be slightly superior, but it requires a larger dose than ursodeoxycholic acid and tends to produce more side effects.

Dr. Timothy Meredith, of Guy's Hospital and Medical School in London, arrived at these conclusions after comparing the effectiveness of the two acids in almost a hundred gallstone patients. Diarrhea occurred in about 60 percent of the patients treated with chenic acid, but in none of those treated with rusodeoxycholic acid.

I assume that your diagnosis of gallstones was made by a physician and that you are being followed medically. This form of treatment may not be appropriate for you.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I would appreciate some information on psoriasis, particularly at what age it starts and whether it can be cured. What actually happens when a person has it? — Andy, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Dear Andy: Psoriasis usually starts at an early age, but it can begin at any time. The condition cannot be cured, but it can be treated and controlled in many patients.

Everyone normally sheds some dead skin cells each day, and these are replaced by new skin cells. In patients with psoriasis, however, the new skin cells proliferate very rapidly, giving rise to the formation of abnormal scaly patches on the outer layer of the skin.

The patches generally occur on the elbows, penis, knees, back, chest, buttocks, and scalp; they are not painful and may not even itch. The condition is not contagious, but can constitute a cosmetic problem in severe cses.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I suppose doctors know what they say when they say that chilren should be vaccinated for whooping cough. From what I understand, a child who is not vaccinated has a better chance of getting it. What I'd like to know is how much better a chance. If it's only a little more, it would seem best to forget about the vaccinations and just let nature take it course. — Mrs. H.D., Altoona, Pa.

Dear Mrs. D.: The results of a widespread study in England by the Public Helth Laboratory Service show that children who do not get the pertussis vaccine are almost six times more likely to get whooping cough than children who receive the vaccine. More than 435,000 children were involved in the survey.

Shoppers regularly snip, save

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The rate of increase in supermarket prices has eased, but the coupon industry continues to grow as millions of Americans regularly snip and save.

Figures compiled by A.C. Nielsen Co. indicate manufacturers distributed 119.5 billion coupons in 1982, up 17 percent from 1981. That compared with a 13 percent growth from 1980 to 1981.

Nielsen estimates 4.5 percent of the coupons are redeemed. It says the average face value of the manufacturers' coupons last year was 21.7 cents, making the redeemed coupons worth $1.2 billion.

The most popular place for manufacturers' coupons, according to Nielsen, is the Sunday newspaper; one-third of the cents-off offers last year were found in inserts in the Sunday paper.

A study by the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture showed a variety of reasons for the use of coupons by the food industry. But it also found that misredemption and fraud add to the cost of coupons and lessen their effectiveness.

The study showed that coupons not only help manufacturers introduce new products and build loyalty for established brands, they also make it easier for the companies to make sure that a discount is actually passed on to the consumer. Otherwise, the USDA researchers said, a retailer may choose not to lower the price on an item that the manufacturer has put on sale.

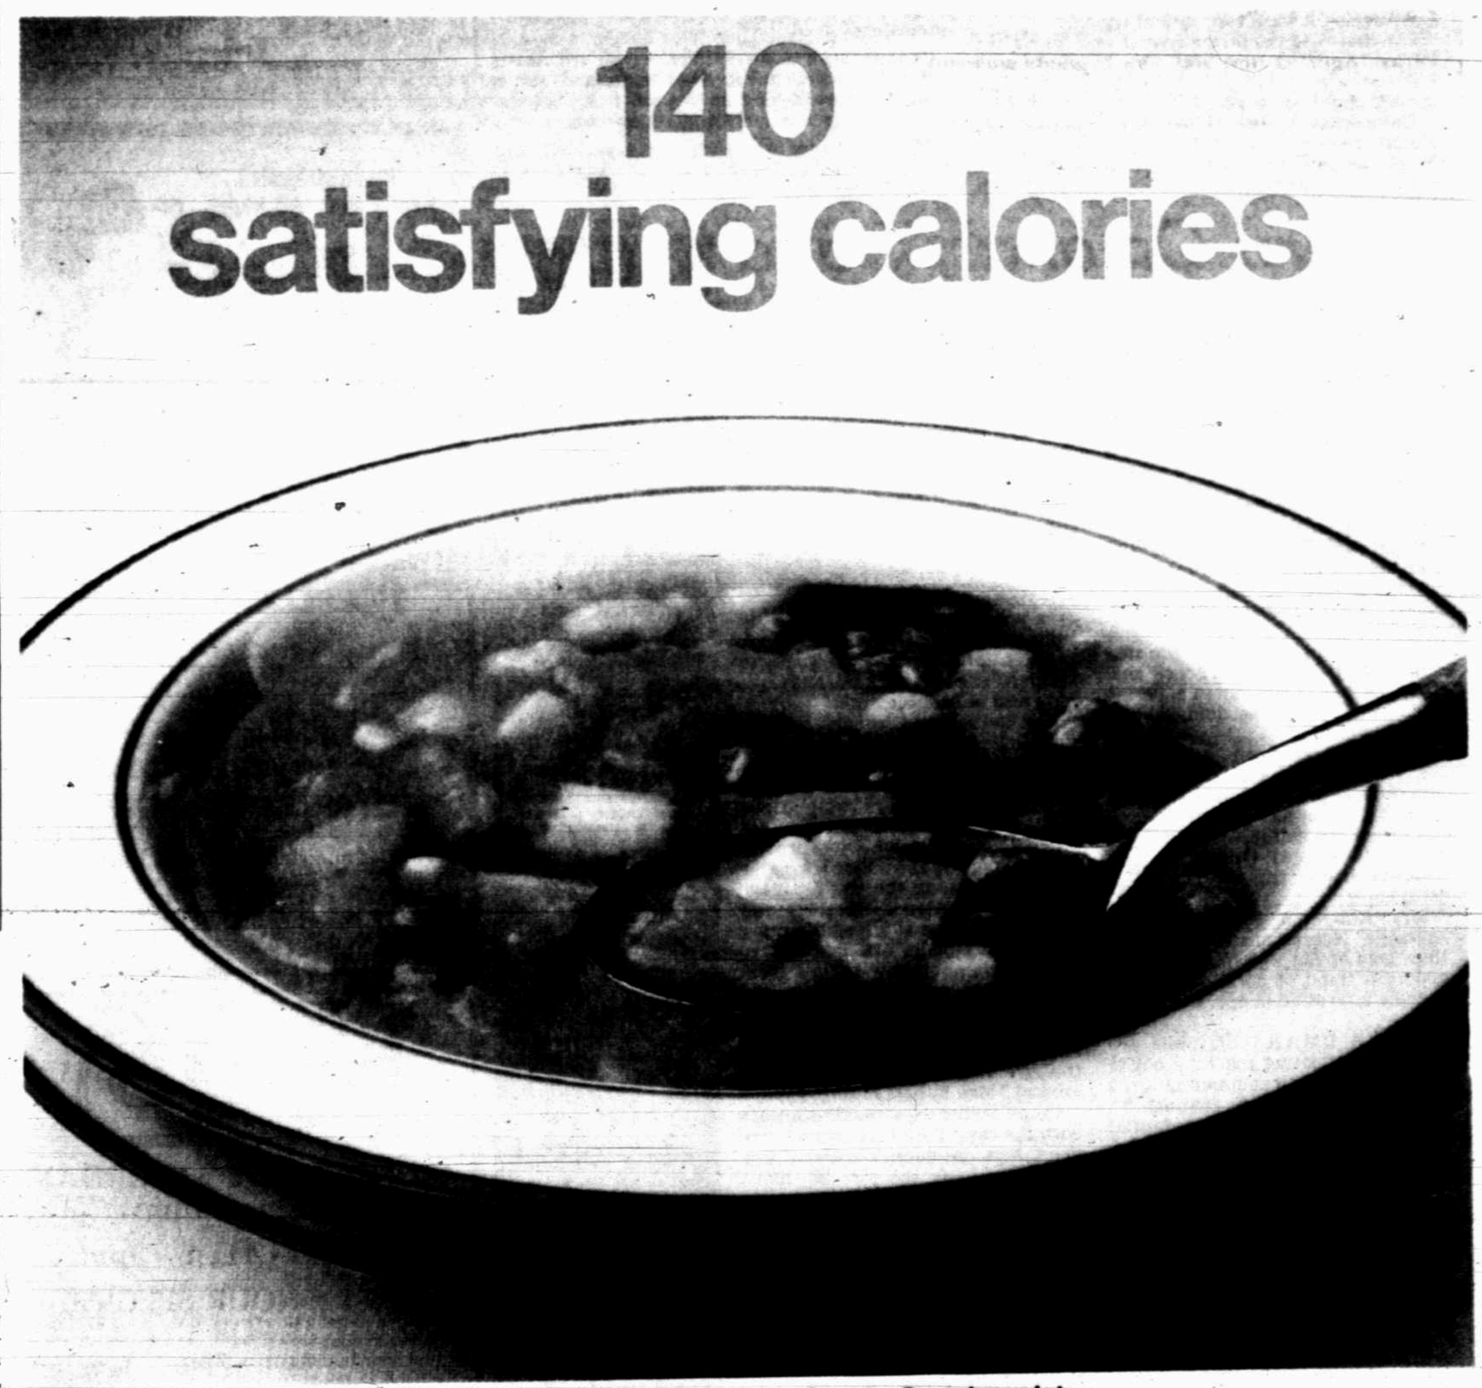

The Economic Research Service said it had not been able to verify an estimate of coupon fraud. But the researchers noted that industry studies show between one-tenth and one-fifth of the value of redeemed coupons was obtained illegally.

Since manufacturers' coupons can be redeemed in any store, they do little to attract customers to a particular outlet. Some retailers have tried to change that situation in recent years, however, by offering to double — and occasionally even triple — the value of manufacturers' coupons. The USDA researchers said such programs can provide extra savings for consumers, but they also noted that retailers may increase the price of non-couponed items to offset the cost of double couponing.

Coupons are not without criticism. Some consumer activists claim that overall prices would be lower without coupons; they say the cost of issuing the coupons — most of which are never redeemed — is simply passed on to shoppers. Manufacturers counter that if coupons were eliminated, other promotional tools would be substituted; there would be no saving.

Twenty-two-year-old David McGuire rests after conquering the stairwell.

Steps toward independence

ODESSA — The beads of perspiration forming below his sweat band glistened on his brow. The liquid bubbles slid down the bridge of his nose and settled on his lip.

Struggling to keep his body erect, the young man's knuckles whitened as he gripped the crutch.

The metal braces trussed his torpid legs. He steps were short, rigid — but he was walking.

Walking. A natural function 22-year-old David McGuire thought he'd never do again.

Left a paraplegic after a car accident in June 1980, David was confined to a wheelchair.

But determination, desire and physical therapy have given David a new view. Once again, the six-foot Midland man views life from a standing position.

"I couldn't get in all the places I wanted to in my chair," David said, brushing back his sandy-blonde hair.

"Now, it's easier to get around and go where I want."

DETERMINATION, desire and physical therapy also abetted Troy Bolling, an 18-year-old Lee High School student who was left a paraplegic following a 1981 motorcycle accident.

Topped by a green "gimme" cap, with metal braces clamped to his cowboy boots, Troy clutched the parallel bars.

He stared intensely at the carpeted floor. As he squeezed the bars, bluish veins rippled his smooth arms. Taking a deep breath, Troy jackknifed his slender body into the air.

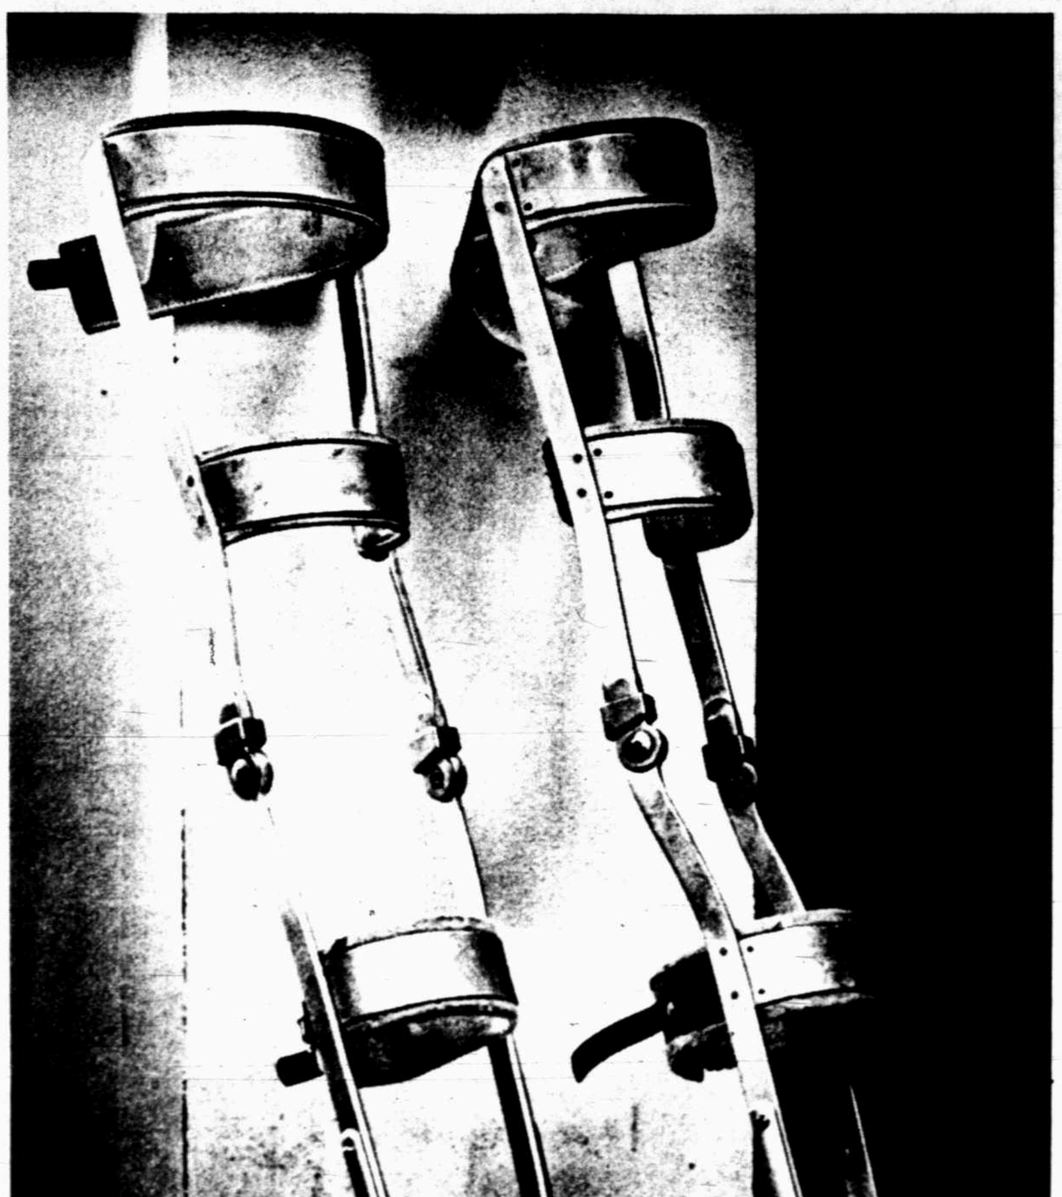

Although he was using a walker when he began physical therapy, Troy wanted "to be more independent." Troy, who is in Future Farmers of America, wants to walk — independently on crutches — so he can "work on the farm."

Both young men are becoming independent with physical therapy treatments at Odessa's Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center. They drive themselves from Midland to Odessa three days a week.

For the staff at the PBRC, the words, "crippled, handicapped and disabled" are words alone — not a way of life.

Judy McGookey, a physical therapist at PBRC, said the center's purpose is to help people, including David and Troy, to reach their full potential and achieve the best possible lifestyle.

(See PHYSICAL, Page 2C)

These metal trusses have given David McGuire a new look on life.

Although Troy Bolling was able to use the walker when he came to physical therapy, he wanted physical therapist Judy McGookey to help him become more independent with the use of crutches.

EPA cleaning up toxic waste site

FORT WORTH (AP) — Workers wearing respirators and protective clothing have begun cleaning up a toxic waste site filled with cancer-causing substances.

The football field-sized outdoor storage yard is contaminated with toxic nickel cadmium, copper cadmium and other heavy metals, said U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on-scene coordinator Jeff Gilley.

Chemicals at the site were reclaimed by Pesses Chemical Co. from used dry-cell batteries and then sold to steel mills for use in metal plating.

The chemicals can cause kidney and respiratory damage, the metals can be cancer-causing and fumes from burning cadmium can be toxic, Gilley said.

Rusting 55-gallon barrels of chemicals were removed from the site Sunday, and bulldozers piled trash, weeds and topsoil for removal in closed trucks today to the Chemical Waste Management dump in Port Arthur. Workers then will begin piling up the barrels for removal, Gilley said.

EPA officials learned about the site after a Fort Worth firefighter was overcome by fumes March 2 while fighting a grass fire at the storage yard.

"We began talking to company officials immediately. We met with them and told them the site needed to be cleaned up. They agreed, but what they told us did not materialize. They didn't clean it up," Gilley said.

Stations sell gasohol out of super unleaded pumps

DALLAS (AP) — Texas motorists have been using more gasohol than they think because service stations have been selling the gasoline and alcohol blend from pumps marked super unleaded, officials say.

One result is that the state has lost millions of dollars in revenues since a tax break for gasohol took effect more than a year ago, officials add.

No state law requires pumps to be labeled as gasohol when they contain the mixture instead of gasoline.

"The gasohol that you have today is...marketed as super unleaded and it's in pumps everywhere. You've been burning it and I've been burning it if we've used super unleaded gasoline in our cars," said Dan Kubiak, a former legislator who sponsored the gasohol tax law two years ago.

Kubiak, of Austin, estimated that about a quarter of all super unleaded fuel sold in the state now is gasohol.

The 5-cent-a-gallon tax break designed to boost the gasohol industry instead has become a windfall for companies who sell the fuel as super unleaded gasoline, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

In 1982, when the tax break went into effect, the sale of gasohol in Texas increased 4,000 percent over the previous year, the Times Herald said. But the booming sales have cost the state millions of dollars in taxes and deprived consumers of price cuts.

Elderly Odessan killed in car wreck

ODESSA — An elderly Odessa man was killed instantly when his car hit a concrete column in the 1700 block of South Grant Street here early Saturday morning.

Pronounced dead at the scene was 73-year-old Abel S. Ramos of 417 Ruth St. Police said he was northbound on Grant at an apparent high rate of speed went his car suddenly veered into the wrong lane and hit a concrete column of the Interstate 20 overpass about 5:30 a.m. Saturday.

The engine was knocked into the front seat of Ramos' car. He died of crushing head and chest injuries, and both legs were broken, according to police. His body was taken to Easterling-Wilson Funeral Home.

Therapist 'continually encouraged'

A warm feeling of pride and satisfaction fills Judy McGookey everytime a paraplegic stands up. She knows her work has worth everytime a chronic pain sufferer is relieved and learns to cope.

Ms. McGookey is one of many physical therapists who help rehabilitate and treat patients with handicaps, resulting from arthritis, cerebral palsy, traumatic injuries, amputations, burns, strokes, birth defects and polio.

With physical means — light, heat, water, exercise, sound and electronic waves — physical therapists restore patients to a functional level.

Physical therapists nationwide, including Ms. McGookey will celebrate National Physical Therpapists Week April 24 through 30.

Ms. McGookey, who works at Odessa's Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center, said it can take from six months to two years for a person to be rehabilitated.

"We give the patients realistic answers about their abilities," she said. "We are continuously encouraged from watching the patient's progress."

To become a qualified physical therapist, it takes college preparation, practical experience, completion of exams and then, licensure.

But the paper alone is not always enough — the job takes a "people person who has a lot of patience," said Ms. McGookey, who has been a physical therapist for five years.

Physical therapists evaluate and plan treatment programs for patients who have been referred by a physician. They test the patients' abilities, limitations and potential for rehabilitation.

Ms. McGookey said physical therapists also work with the patients' families, teaching the use and care of equipment, such as wheelchairs, crutches and braces.

Physical therapy aids independence

BY PRACTICING to walk with one crutch and swinging the body into a jackknife position on the parallel bars, David and Troy have strengthened their upper bodies, enabling them to walk up and down stairs.

"Walking on one crutch is probably the hardest thing to do in physical therapy," Ms. McGookey said.

"After I do this (walk with one crutch), I feel like I can walk around all day on two," David said, chuckling.

Troy, who was finishing 100 jackknife exercises, added: "But, it takes a while to psych yourself up for those stairs."

With a crutch under each of their arms, Troy and David walked toward a stairwell at the center where they would conquer the ascent.

While David has mastered the stairs by thrusting his body up the steps in a backward stance, Troy has succeeded in getting to the top in the traditional fashion.

"The crutches have to land in the right spot," Ms. McGookey said, explaining that the crutches are placed on the step before the feet.

"When those crutches are in the air (from step to step), there's nothing to balance you," she added.

SINCE DAVID STOPPED smoking, his endurance has increased five times when climbing the flight, he said.

"Here's where your jackknife exercises come in handy," Ms. McGookey said, while assisting David up the stairs.

After David walked up and down the two flights of 24 steps in three minutes, Ms. McGookey observed Troy with another physical therapist.

"It makes me nervous," she said. "It's worse when you're watching. It's different when your helping."

David grinned, adding "Watching myself on the video (tape) made me nervous."

Troy, who has created a challenge for himself by insisting on wearing cowboy boots with his braces, breezed down the dozen steps in 45 seconds.

Although David and Troy are highly motivated, they both said their "victories" could not have been won without the coaching and prodding of the PBRC's physical therapists.

Ms. McGookey is one of many physical therapists who will be honored during National Physical Therapist Week April 24 through 30. According to Ms. McGookey it takes a person with a lot of patience and one who likes people to be a physical therapist.

"You've got to care about people, but not have a bleeding heart," she said. "When we run into frustration, we give them (patients) easier goals and advance them when their ready. You need to be their friend, but keep the respect of a physical therapist."

Ms. McGookey said physical therapists help people "with all disabilities to be as functional as possible. If they can only use one arm, we'll teach them to be functional with that one arm."

David and Troy have their arms. With the help of physical therapy they have strengthened their arms and now David and Troy are learning to walk — anywhere — once again.

Police look for man who held up store

ODESSA — Police here are looking for a man who reportedly held up the Colonial Food Store at 1401 W. University Ave. about 7:25 a.m. Sunday.

A store clerk told officers she had her back turned when the man entered, brandished a knife and demanded she put the money in a bag he threw at her.

She complied, and he fled after ordering her to lie on the floor until he was gone. The man was described as white, in his mid-to-late 20s, having a deep voice and wearing a green ski mask and brown zipper jacket. The clerk said she did not hear or see a car leave the scene.

Texas Supreme Court upholds lower decision

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court last week let stand a lower court decision in a dispute between C.L. Tyra of Midland and Dowell, Division of Dow Chemical USA over a promissory note made in March 1978.

The 238th District Court in Midland County awarded a summary judgment of $179,939 for Dowell against Tyra on the note, which had an original amount of $219,004.

The El Paso Court of Appeals upheld the trial court ruling and the Supreme Court ruled "no reversible error" had been made.

In his appeal, Tyra argued Dowell hadn't shown it was holder of the note.

Carrot Soup has satisfying flavor

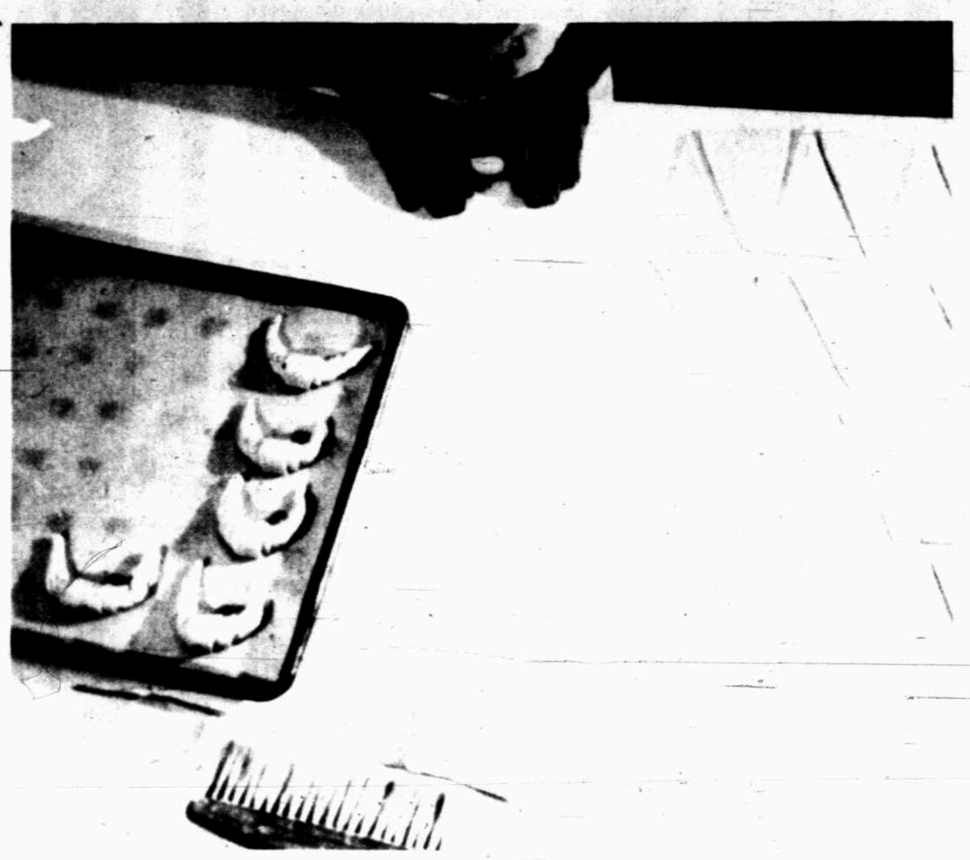

By The Associated Press

COMPANY DINNER
Carrot Soup & Rolls
Roast Chicken & Broccoli
Strawberry Roll & Coffee

MICHELE URVATER'S CARROT SOUP
It has a mellow, satisfying flavor.

3 tablespoons butter
2 medium (each 3 ounces) onions, finely chopped
3 medium (each 3 ounces) carrots, finely chopped
1 quart clear fat-free chicken broth
1-3rd cup long-grain rice
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup heavy cream
Minced parsley

In a 4-quart saucepot, melt butter; stir in onion and carrots. Cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes. Add broth, rice, salt and pepper; bring to a boil; simmer, uncovered, 25 minutes longer. Puree in a food mill, electric blender or food processor. Stir in cream, reheat and correct seasoning. Garnish with parsley. Makes 5 to 6 cups. (Adapted from Michele Urvater's "Fine Fresh Food Fast," published by Irena Chalmers Cookbooks Inc.)

It may take as long as 18 hours to make the ever-popular, flaky croissants, but some cooks — and pastry lovers — say they are well worth the wait.

Break out of lunchtime doldrums with leftovers

Copley News Service

Do you ever get the lunchtime blues? Find yourself sighing over the thought of yet another tuna sandwich? Are you tired of the same old peanut butter or egg salad day after day?

The time-saving miracle of microwaves is really appreciated when, as for most of us, there is a limited amount of time for lunch. And what a money-saver! There's no need to go to a restaurant anymore for a hot lunch, when you can spend less time and money making your own.

If you have no leftovers to warm up, try a hot toasted cheese sandwich. Just toast two slices of bread in your toaster, butter, and place cheese in the middle. Heat on a napkin for 20 seconds (wait a minute before eating, as cheese will be very hot) and serve with fruit for a quick and easy lunch.

Or heat up a hot dog in a mere 25 seconds.

There's no longer any reason to suffer along with cold peanut butter sandwiches, when your microwave oven can make lunch a real meal. Here are some more ideas!

HOT BOLOGNA SANDWICH

1 slice of bread, toasted
Mayonnaise
Mustard
2 slices of tomato, ½-inch thick
1 slice processed American cheese
1 slice bologna

Spread toasted bread with mayonnaise. Add bologna, and spread thinly with mustard. Top with tomato slices, and then cheese. Microwave for 35-45 seconds, or until cheese melts and bubbles. Makes one open-faced sandwich.

QUICK QUESADILLA

1 flour tortilla (about 8 inches in diameter)
2 tbsps. sour cream
¼ cup shredded jack cheese
½ small tomato, chopped
Chopped chives to taste

Lay tortilla on a plate and spread with sour cream. Sprinkle cheese on one side, then add tomato and chives. Fold tortilla in half, place plate in microwave for 30 seconds, until cheese bubbles around edges. (Other fillings such as chopped black olives, cooked leftover meat, refried beans, etc. may be added to the quesadilla.) Serve with salsa, if desired. Makes one quesadilla.

POCKET CHILI FOR FOUR

4 pita breads
1 can chili con carne with beans
Shredded cheddar cheese
Chopped onion

Split pita breads to make a pocket. Fill with chili con carne, and then addcheese and chopped onion. Heat each individually on paper plate for one minute or so.

REUBEN ON A MUFFIN

Cooked sliced corned beef
1 English muffin, split and toasted lightly
2 tbsps. mayonnaise
¼ cup sauerkraut
2 slices Swiss cheese

Place muffin halves on a plate. Spread each with mayonnaise, then top with liced corned beef. Add sauerkraut, then Swiss cheese, and microwave for 45 to 50 seconds, or until cheese melts. Serves 1 or 2.

THE BUTCHER

Steak ideas for spring barbeques

By MERLE ELLIS

Spring is here! I know it is. My daffodils have come and gone. They were lovely while they lasted, but they didn't last long.

Anyway, if spring is here or even near, it follows that summer can't be far behind. It'll be no time at all 'til the barbecues come out of hiding for the winter and are back at full sizzle in backyards and patios all over town. So for meat, it's not at all too soon to take advantage of a good buy when one comes along. Last week I ran across a great bargain in one of the markets in my neighborhood. "Large End Rib Roast, $1.98" was what the sign over that section of the meat counter said, but what I saw was stew for now and some great steaks for summer, both at a bargain price and some barbecuing beef ribs to boot. Now that's a bargain.

The large end of the beef rib is the cut of meat that butchers all over the country will be boning out to sell for steaks in the summer. They'll call them market steaks or Delmonico steaks or Spencer steaks, depending upon which part of the country they're in or which side of the street the market is on, and they'll be charging a hefty price for them no matter where the market is. If you can find one or two at a good price, this is the time to think barbecue – no matter what the weather.

A large end rib roast is easily divided up in your own kitchen into tender cuts to be cooked in all manner of ways aside from roasting. The heart of the cut is a section of rib-eye, that same part butchers make into steaks.

AT WIT'S END

Panda passion questioned

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I've always loved this country's penchant for giving animals human qualities.

That's why we have bears in rangers' hats, tigers who eat a nutritious breakfast, and who could ever forget Fraser, an oversexed lion who was the role model of every jock in the country?

Enter Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling, the pandas in Washington, whom I expect to appear any day now on "Love Boat" playing themselves.

I cannot believe the scientists who have followed them around for the past eight years showing them diagrams and reading sex manuals out loud to them, hoping to get a baby panda born in captivity.

What do they expect from those two? To begin with, it was not a marriage made in heaven, but the Washington National Zoo, and there's a difference. Washington is not conducive to anyone getting together.

The headline I read announcing their consummation read, "PANDAS FINALLY FIGURE IT OUT."

"That's insulting," I said to my husband. "How do they know Ling-Ling didn't have an eight-year headache? A lot of women I know have eight-year-headaches."

"Don't be so sensitive," he said. "They're just animals. It says here, 'Hsing-Hsing was never able to establish an effective posture and may have been victimized by a poor self-image as he was overanxious, misdirected or just plain inept.'"

"I don't want to hear anymore," I said. "It just cheapens the relationship."

Advance hospital care creates new microbes

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

LAT Photo

Surgeons work on a hand in Alexandria, Va. Any opening in the human body makes a new pathway for infectious organisms to enter.

A healthy, 6-pound baby girl, sent home with her mother only two days earlier, was rushed back to a Florida hospital in 1979. Flushed with fever and convulsions, she was the third apparent victim of meningitis in the same hospital nursery over several months. The staff was becoming frightened.

A few days later she died. A fourth case and a fifth case of the rare infection followed. When doctors began tests they found that more than 150 healthy infants had been infected while passing through the nursery. Two died; three others have permanent paralysis or brain damage.

Citrobacter, the rare microbe that caused the epidemic in the Florida hospital, had not been known to strike infants. The Centers for Disease Control investigated and decided that the infection was transferred unwittingly from baby to baby on the hands of the pediatric nurses.

These Florida babies were victims of hospital-caused infections, illnesses that strike hundreds of thousands of Americans each year and kill a minimum of 20,000.

IN THE WAR between man and disease, the hospitals are the trenches.

Hospitals house the sick and defenseless, and patients lie by the thousands, vulnerable to attack. The sicker a patient is and the longer he is in the hospital, the more likely he is to get a hospital-caused infection. The problem is as old as hospitals, but there is something new:

We have built great healing institutions and in them have created ways for the profoundly sick — from tiny newborns to nonagenerians — to be treated with miraculous new technology. To these sick people we attach needles, tubes and machines, and each one makes a new pathway into the body for infectious organisms. For each new instrument, new method and new set of antibiotics, new microbes appear. They develop new poisons, new resistance, new means of transporting themselves.

So now the hospitals constantly face new deaths.

"Counting these things is difficult," James Hughes of the Centers for Disease Control said. "On the one hand you have a (hospital-caused) pneumonia in an 80-year-old man with cancer of the lung ... who came into the hospital terminal in the first place. He develops a (hospital-caused) pneumonia and dies; he might have died of the cancer the next week anyway. ...

"That's on the one end. There is the other end, too. Someone comes in for a minor surgical procedure and gets a bloodstream infection related to the intravenous tube put in him. ... He came in for nothing more than a hernia, and now he is dead," Hughes said.

"THE PERIOD ONCE euphemistically called the Age of the Miracle Drugs is dead," wrote Marc Lappe of the University of California at Berkeley. "Only the most optimistic observers can believe that we stand much of a chance of recapturing the spirit ... of that wonderful era when we believed we were on the verge of chemically conquering all infectious diseases. We tried, and the evolutionary prowess of the microbial world won out."

David E. Rogers, now head of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, wrote two decades ago about how the old infections were giving way to new ones, and he discussed a new microbe, Pseudomonas aeruginosa.

This bug now is responsible for tens of thousands of hospital-caused infections and hundreds of deaths a year.

Today's medical students learn that it is not only fatal to humans, but also that it is very resistant to drugs.

"So it has gone the full gamut," said Dr. William Schaffner, epidemiologist at Vanderbilt University hospitals and chairman of the department of preventive medicine. "It was a brand new organism two decades ago. Then it became recognized as a cause of human disease. And now it has become resistant to treatment. The whole cycle in less than 25 years."

THERE IS NO DOUBT that a hospital is the best place to be when serious illness strikes.

"Ninety-five percent of the people do not get these infections; you can't get those kind of odds at the track," said Timothy R. Townsend of Johns Hopkins University Hospital. Those who do get them also tend to be the very sickest people. One survey showed that the rate of hospital-caused infections may be as high as 10 percent among those with terminal illnesses because their illness makes them vulnerable. But the rates for non-terminal patients are far lower, near 1 or 2 percent.

"For the man who is in a highway accident and bleeding, if he says that he doesn't want to go to the hospital because he has a few percent chance of getting an infection there, you've got to tell him his chances of dying are closer to 100 percent if he doesn't go," Townsend said.

Hospital-caused infections, called nosocomial infections in medical literature after an obsolete name for a hospital, cost billions of dollars in extra hospital and doctor charges alone. But perhaps only 25 percent are preventable even with the most extraordinary measures, according to the CDC.

THE SINGLE BIGGEST factor in causing and preventing infections, however, according to Dr. Robert Haley, head of the hospitals infection branch of the Centers for Disease Control, is one of the oldest on the books: doctors' and nurses' need to wash their hands between examinations of patients.

A few years ago when Johns Hopkins Hospital beefed up its infection control staff, Townsend said, "We were able to cut, for example, urinary tract infections in half, simply because we were able to ... go over to the ward and get doctors and nurses and aides to do what they already knew they should do — such as washing their hands after emptying a patient's catheter (urine-filled) bag.

"What they were doing was ... forgetting to wash their hands, and going over to the next patient. In the process they would be passing on the first guy's bugs. These bugs then would grow up in the bag and ascend back up the catheter tubing into the patients. ... We reminded people about many of these little things." They were critical, he said, "like the horseshoe nail that lost the war."

HANDWASHING IS critical, but cleanliness in general is not as important in preventing the spread of disease in hospitals as was once thought. Cultures from walls and floors, collected at the cost of tens of millions of dollars, are largely useless and a waste of money. One CDC study estimated that more than 2 million cultures were taken in U.S. hospitals during one year and that between 75 and 90 percent of them were probably useless.

"This is a funny story that is not so funny," Vanderbilt's Schaffner said. Recently a hospital with two intensive care units discovered that one had an out2reak of Serratia infections while the other had none. The hospital epidemiologist and infection control nurse began working to isolate and eradicate the Serratia from the unit. In the interim, an important meeting on infection control took place, and the epidemiologist left to attend it.

"While he was away, with all good intentions, the hospital administrator ordered the intensive care unit 'cleaned up.' He moved all the patients, including the infected ones, out of the one unit and into the other while the first was scrubbed, painted, and disinfected. Then he moved the patients back. Now, to his surprise, he had two intensive care units with outbreaks of Serratia where before he had only one," Schaffner said.

ANTIBIOTICS, once believed to be the magic-bullet cure for scores of diseases, now turn out to be a cause of disease as well. Because microbes can change from generation to generation, using antibiotics can make new generations of microbes stronger and more resistant to treatment than the ones before them. Antibiotics also can cause trouble when they enter the human system, because they wipe out all the harmless microbes populating the territory. When the harmless inhabitants are gone, there is free food and space for the more deadly ones.

Virtually all disease organisms are becoming more and more resistant to drugs. If we continue to use antibiotics freely, said Walter Gilbert, a Nobel laureate in biochemistry, "There may be a time down the road when 80 to 90 percent of infections will be resistant to all known antibiotics."

The common dose of penicillin required to treat an infection is now 50 times the size of the dose used to treat the same infection 30 years ago.

In response to hospital outbreaks of the 1950s, one of the quiet revolutions in modern medicine has taken place. Around 1970, uncovering and fighting hospital-caused infections became a specialty in itself. Now every accredited hospital in the United States is required to have at least one infection-control officer. The profession does not exist in most other countries.

AT WORK

Fear of success

By DR. ADELE M. SCHEELE

I am corrected all the time. "You can't possibly mean fear of success. You must mean fear of failure!" But I mean what I say. Absurd as it sounds, a lot of people, maybe you and I, sabotage ourselves just when we are about to realize our achievements. Consider:

— The project leader who organized the best conference ever, then got drunk the last night at the banquet and publicly confronted the association president.

— The researcher known for being a perfectionist can never seem to get the report done on time.

— The secretary who turned down an offer to move up because she was afraid of being labeled "traitor" by the other secretaries.

— Sound crazy? It is. But then most fears are irrational, crazy. Why would you be afraid of success?

— You're afraid you might exceed the level of your parents, particularly your father. Or, you believe that you aren't good enough. Most of us suffer from lack of self-esteem. We're afraid to be found out to be the fraud that we secretly believe we are. And the fear of being found out stops us from growing. Or you crave being loved — rather than achieving.

What can you do when you recognize fear of success? First, being aware of it is a big step. Most of us don't; by denying our fears, we are doomed to be imprisoned by them. The second step is accepting the fact that we use fear to deliberately limit ourselves.

Why would we do that? Somewhere in the past, we must have been taught that we have limits. "Who do you think you are? Nobody in this family has ever gone to college (become rich, run for public office, changed careers, become a corporate executive, gone into business for himself)." Fill in your own blanks and you'll get the idea of being circumscribed.

The successful live without those limits, though they have other fears, to be sure. From my research, I found that one of the reasons successful people escape these fears is that someone in their early life believed in them completely and told them so without any restraints or mixed messages. A parent, relative, teacher or coach — someone important to them — thought they could be anything they wished to be.

What can we do now, if there wasn't anyone like that in our past? Create that person in the present! It could be a friend, relative, religious leader or support group. Talk to that person or group about your dreams, your goals. Ask for feedback. Many people find that in confronting themselves in this way they shape a stronger, more courageous identity. Along with insight and acceptance must come an action plan if we are ever to change.

— That project leader must confront the mess he has made. Apologize to the president and ask for a second chance. If getting drunk has been a way to deal with fear, then he must summon the courage to join A.A. and plan another conference immediately. Like falling off that proverbial horse, one way to fight fear is to get right back on again.

THIS MONTH IN SAN ANTONIO, A GREAT TEXAS TRADITION CAME BACK TO LIFE.

THE GRAND ST. ANTHONY HOTEL IS NOW A MAGNIFICENT NEW INTERCONTINENTAL HOTEL

We've restored this classic hotel. And we've spent millions bringing every facility and amenity up to the standards of a modern, international luxury hotel.

But even more important, we've painstakingly preserved the special character, the style, the hospitality and warmth that made the St. Anthony famous. After all, those are things that money can't buy.

The new Inter-Continental brings other new dimensions of hospitality to San Antonio as well. The international style of the great Inter-Continental Hotels of Paris, London, New York, Rio and more than 80 cities around the world. And the unparalleled standards of service that have made Inter-Continental the first choice of the world's most demanding travelers.

Welcome back.

Tape of news bloopers and disasters making rounds in Washington

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush wanted to see it, and so did the first lady's press secretary, Sheila Tate. White House Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes has shown it in his office, and Communications Director David Gergen even took it home. The New York Times' Washington bureau had a lunchtime screening last week and in the ABC foreign bureaus they're watching it, too. Now the Betamaxes are spinning around faster than James Watt on the Beach Boys.

What is it?

The "Tapes of Wrath," the hottest new underground reel in Washington. Shown 2 1/2 weeks ago at the annual Radio and Television Correspondents dinner, the tape is a 24-minute medley of bloopers that never saw the light of the evening news, plus a few disasters that did. It also has a few brilliantly spliced segments that combine Ronald Reagan's old movies with some of his new moves.

It begins with an announcer who booms, "Ladies and gentlemen, the president of the United States!" Then, to the strains of "Hail to the Chief," Reagan saunters slowly into a Western saloon.

Around him are geezers swilling whiskey. "Mr. president," says one, "I'm poor and I'm hungry. What am I going to do?"

The president, wearing a white hat, pauses briefly, cries "SHUT UP!" and then knocks the questioner flat.

In another segment various television personalities are seen flubbing their nightly "stand-ups" on the White House lawn. CBS correspondent Bill Plante is seen screaming at the camera as a sleeting rain plasters his hair to his forehead, and his colleague, Lesley Stahl, is shown as the camera lights go out around her.

"That's it," she says, throwing her microphone to the ground and stalking off in a huff. "I'm not going to do it again."

The tape was produced by Sharon Young and Carole Simpson of ABC, and edited by Charles Wilson of CBS. Wilson, 31, is the unofficial keeper of outrageous outtakes at CBS, and over the years he has produced several gag reels that were seen only inside the bureau. This is the first one in years to be seen publicly.

"I'm kind of surprised," says Wilson, who thinks there might be 40 or 50 copies of the tape floating around, "but then, I'm kind of not. I've always had a pretty good sense of humor. In fact, my wife thinks I have a perverted sense of humor."

So far, Young says, only one correspondent has complained of treatment on the tape. Most people, like the vice president, were delighted to be included. Bush, in fact, wrote notes to Young and the others, calling the tape "a classic."

One segment on the tape is of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill. He's seen holding a roll-call vote, although his words are dubbed in.

He's asking for pizza orders. "How many for anchovies?" he calls from the stately chamber.

Glenn's campaign plagued by ineptitude

John Glenn

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Glenn's presidential candidacy is like one of those endless spaceshot countdowns that stop and start and stop again while technicians scramble to find out what is wrong.

The man is a star, a true celebrity who gets asked for his autograph even by other politicians. The hero's aura and an Eisenhower grin give the moderate senator the potential to soar to the top of the Democratic presidential field.

Many Democrats think the former astronaut has the right stuff to beat Ronald Reagan in 1984.

"If I were to suggest John Glenn would be the most electable Democrat in November, I don't think many people would disagree," said Joe Grandmaison, Glenn's campaign manager, stating what the Glenn camp believes is their candidate's strongest card in the contest for the 1984 nomination.

To be electable in November requires being nominated in July and so far the Glenn campaign is dogged by tales of ineptitude — of Iowans upset by appearances abruptly canceled, of state party officials complaining that their telephone calls are never returned.

His candidacy — to be announced officially Thursday — is getting off to the kind of start that plagued his historic space flight that catapulted Glenn into Earth orbit and national celebrity. That flight was scheduled for Dec. 20, 1961, but a series of postponements, many of them with Glenn already strapped in the capsule, delayed the actual launch until Feb. 20, 1962.

John Glenn is best described as a Marine, a pilot, an astronaut, as a senator, but not as a politician.

Walter Mondale is a politician and he's been running for president ever since January 1981, when he and Jimmy Carter left office. He spends a lot of time on the telephone talking to other politicians, to money men and organizers, to labor leaders. He knows how to touch base, to stroke. Mondale is the man to beat for the Democratic nomination.

Grandmaison summed up a difference between Glenn and Mondale this way:

"When Walter Mondale picks up the phone more likely than not he is renewing a relationship. When John Glenn does, likely or not, he is attempting to build a relationship."

You might think that difference would prompt Glenn to spend a lot of his time on the phone, building relationships with party and elected officials. But that doesn't seem to be Glenn's style.

The Mondale advantage showed up at the Massachusetts Democratic Party's convention when he finished first in a straw poll of the 4,000 delegates. Glenn used telelphone banks and other organizational tools in an effort to do well among the Massachusetts liberals. He ended up finishing fourth, behind Mondale, a solid labor vote for "Jobs" and Sen. Alan Cranston of California.

Can Glenn catch up among real people who vote in the primary elections? Can he capitalize on his name recognition, his star quality? To do that he'll have to start finishing higher than fourth in some of the early party tests of strength that often are organizational contests.

"John Glenn is a sleeping giant," said a prominent Iowa Democrat. "If he ever wakes up his organization he'll be...tough out here."

"An organization is important to have in place when you need it," responded Grandmaison, the widely respected political pro who signed aboard as Glenn campaign manager. "It is not important to have in place when you don't need it...Give us time, I think you'll be surprised."

Glenn plans to announce his presidential candidacy Thursday in the John Glenn High School auditorium in his hometown of New Concord, Ohio.

He had two appearances scheduled the next day in Iowa, the state whose precinct caucuses lead off the delegate selection process. It was Iowa's caucuses that brought Jimmy Carter national attention in 1976.

Then the Glenn campaign canceled both appearances.

"We were obviously disappointed, to say the least," said Paddy Kalahar, legislative lobbyist for the Iowa Credit Union League, whose annual meeting was one of the two appearances Glenn scrapped.

The Glenn paradox is that many of the party officials who complain about his organization also describe him as potentially very strong in their states.

The South is considered a well of potential support. One party official said, "He could run super well in this state, like he could in any Southern state. But organizationally I just see him as weak. You can't get their national headquarters to return your calls half the...time."

Mondale and Glenn visited Mississippi this spring. Gov. William Winter will endorse Mondale, but he has been scrupulous about offering equal hospitality to all Democratic aspirants.

The day after Mondale's visit, he was on the phone to Winter at eight in the morning to thank the governor. Mississippi is a caucus state where help from the established organization can be very useful.

There was no followup call from Glenn.

Companies to compete for shuttle contract

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — More than 7,000 jobs and $2 billion in revenues are up for grabs in what one aerospace contractor calls "the largest NASA contract of the decade."

Nine major aerospace companies are involved in fierce competition for the right to launch and process America's space shuttles in Florida and California. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration wants one contract to cover functions now performed by 16 different companies.

The award, expected in September, will consolidate under a single team the responsibility for all launch and landing activities, processing of all hardware between launches and operation of related ground systems at Kennedy Space Center and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Longtime space agency contractors have formed into two teams for the competition, which officials are calling the most important since the building of the shuttle itself.

NASA is convinced the new setup will result in "significant cost savings," said Kennedy Space Center Director Richard Smith. It will "focus clear responsibility on a single contractor," he said.

One of the competing teams is composed of Rockwell International, the manufacturer of the reusable spaceplane; Martin Marietta, which builds the shuttle fuel tanks; United Space Boosters, which supplies the rocket boosters; Boeing Services International, and United Airlines.

Rockwell, as the prime shuttle builder, is the lead company for that group. The company's bid is being spearheaded by ex-astronaut James McDivitt, who was commander of the Apollo 9 mission to the moon.

Rockwell has set up an office for that subsidiary in Cocoa Beach.

POSITIVE THINKING

By right thinking you can be somebody

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Having been born and raised so closely to poverty as to feel it breathing down my neck, I felt a strong desire to escape its control. Not that money of itself ever meant anything, for I am a plain sort. But still I have always resented poverty for myself or for anyone else.

I believed that by my own efforts in a free society, I could move up to a better level of existence for my family and perhaps might be able to help others to do the same. Hence I have written and spoken on this subject a great deal, urging people to believe in their own worth, to understand their God-given potential; and, therefore, by right thinking, decency and creative work to make something really worthwhile of their lives.

One special event which I recall with clarity happened in the old Williams Avenue school in Norwood, Ohio, in my fifth grade class. The teacher of the class was Professor George Reeves. In those days, teachers, even below university level, were referred to with dignity regretfully absent today. Mr. Reeves is stamped indelibly upon my memory. He was a large man weighing over 220 pounds and of good height. He had a stern look which covered up a kind heart. He was, in a sense, a character, which seems to be a term applied to any "different" type of person. But he would do things that would make an indelible impression on his students. For example, occasionally he would write on the blackboard in large letters the word CAN'T. Then dusting the chalk off his fingers he would look at the class and ask, "What shall I do now?"

We knew what he wanted and chanted back, "Knock the T off the can't," which he forthwith proceeded to do with a sweeping gesture. Then he would say, "Let that be a lesson to you — you can if you think you can." Following which he would point his big forefinger and growl, "And don't you ever forget it, either."

Doubtless some modern instructors would lift the eyebrow at such pedagogy. But it must have had some teaching effect, for one student, at least, is remembering the lesson more than half a century. I bless the name of George Reeves, for he started a trend of thought working in the mind of a shy little boy who, years later, was privileged to convey it to millions through his books.

My own father was party to this same teaching, for I have a clear memory of that incredible night when Halley's Comet, in all its glory, hovered over our very house on Spencer Avenue in Cincinnati. Watching it Father told us that so exact is the universe that this comet came on the dot every 75 years. "Dad, do you think I will be here when it comes again 75 years from now?"

His answer was characteristic. "I don't know; but the length of life is not nearly as important as quality of life. I really do not care so much whether you will be here, but I do hope you will amount to something before Halley's Comet comes back."

Always our parents were telling Bob and me to work and study hard, to be honest and of good character, to "be somebody." And with it we were adjured to serve the Lord and help people. Always we were to be true to the Christian religion and follow Jesus Christ in all things.

This current generation of young people can hardly know the intensity of the old Americans in their desire to rise out of poverty. Mother often told us how the mother of Abraham Lincoln said to her son, even though they lived in poverty, "Abe, be somebody." This same entreaty was given by succeeding generations of American mothers and fathers to their children, at least those we knew. These parents hated poverty, and mediocrity. They wanted their children to amount to something in life, to do more than their parents had done. This was their consuming desire for their children. And in my book it is still a good motivation for today or any time.

Hollings wants to bring discipline to White House

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina joins the growing list of contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination today with a publicity blitz geared to make the low-profile lawmaker more of a standout.

Ernest Hollings

"His worst problem is recognition," said John Patterson, publicity director of Hollings' campaign. "We don't have to build his image; we have to expose it."

"Fritz" Hollings, 61, chose the Midlands Technical College campus near Columbia Metropolitan Airport as the site of his announcement, after which he headed for Washington for a news conference and interviews with reporters at the National Press Club.

Hollings has said he wants to bring discipline back to the White House.

"I know I can turn it around," he said in a recent interview. "We've gone from Vietnam to Watergate to busted budgets and high unemployment. They've all been playing games with each other there for a dozen years. They just don't have any discipline."

Hollings, a former South Carolina governor, would like to follow the trail blazed by another Southern governor, Jimmy Carter of Georgia. He said the country now is ready for his middle-of-the-road politics.

"I think the country's looking for a centrist — someone who's not a big spender and who's not insensitive," Hollings has said. "The market is there for the politics of moderation, the centrist position...The others are all trying to be somebody else and I'm trying to be myself."

Hollings has been called a hawk on defense and a moderate on social issues. Some have said Hollings' silver hair and his tall, lean frame make him look like a Hollywood version of a presidential candidate. His wife, Rita "Peatsie" Hollings, says her husband is "terribly embarrassed" by these accounts.

Hollings proposed a freeze in federal spending after President Reagan challenged the Democrats to "put up or shut up" in opposing his proposed budget in February 1982. He also has been a vocal opponent of the MX missile system.

Hollings has regularly criticized the Reagan tax cuts and says the administration has increased the size of government rather than kept its promise to reduce it.

In May 1980, Hollings succeeded Edmund Muskie as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, but lost that job later in the year after the GOP took over the Senate.

He left the Budget Committee several months ago, saying he wanted to focus his efforts on the Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, where he now is the ranking Democrat.

Hollings served with the U.S. Army in North Africa and Europe during World War II and is a graduate of The Citadel Military College in South Carolina, located at Charleston.

SPLISH SPLASH...
THE BABY TAKES ITS FIRST BATH

Bathtime should be funtime!
Always use a gentle claner on baby's delicate skin.

It's been nine months..and you're ready to bring your beautiful baby home. So far, so good. You've handled the feedings, the burpings, the squeals, the colic, the cooing with a unique combination of steely nerves and euphoria. You're even squeaked through the first week or two with a simple baby lotion bath or sponging. But..this is it...the moment of truth...it's time for a real BATH!

Many a first bath has been approached with great fear and trepidation. The first rule is not to panic. Bathtime should be a pleasurable experience for both you and baby. You don't need a flow chart or a computer printout. You need common sense. Here are some helpful reminders.

Choose a convenient time (not after feeding) for baby's bath. Make sure the room is draftless--the kitchen is ideal. You can place a plastic basin filled with bathwater inside the sink or a large basin on the corner. Set a chair or high stool alongside. Get comfortable.

The Key to a smoothly organized bathtime is preparation. Besides a plastic basin, gather the following items so they'll be ready before you bring baby to the bath.

- A Very soft towel to line the washbasin
- A mild cleansing bar such as DOVE. Soaps can harm a baby's delicate skin and increase the chances for diaper rash as well as other common skin problems. DOVE is not a soap. It is a non-irritating cleansing bar that many doctors recommend for even the most sensitive skin.
- Soft washcloth for gentle rinsing
- Soft towels for pat-drying
- Clean diaper (pin if necessary)
- Cotton balls/baby lotion
- Clean set of clothing
- Large bath towel or blanket (to cover baby before and after bath)

Now you're ready for the bathing process. Before you begin, check the water temperature with your elbow. It should feel just warm, not hot. Start from baby's head down. First dip a soft washcloth into water. Wash gently and carefully around the eyes. Blot dry with a soft towel. Gently wash face, neck and outer ears (never go inside nose or ears). Using a soft cloth gently rinse baby's skin with water. Blot dry with a soft towel. Supporting baby's head with one hand, lather up a gentle cleanser like DOVE Bar on your hand and wash head and scalp. Rinse and blot dry. Continue these steps for the rest of baby's body. Remember, baby's skin is delicate, and should never be rubbed or scrubbed. Finally, wrap baby in a large, soft towel, patting skin dry. Smooth on a little baby lotion-- particularly in the creases. Take a deep breath! You've successfully completed baby's first real bath, and from now on, bathtime should be funtime for you and your baby.

Family accommodations.

Whether you're going on vacation, to the grocery store or just driving across town, you'll find the Honda Civic 4-Door Wagon very accommodating.

It has a wide-opening liftgate and flat loadspace for hauling. And five-passenger seating for people.

All of whom would be pleased to know that a tailgate lock indicator and child-proof rear door locks come standard on this Civic Wagon.

Not to mention a 5-speed manual transmission, front-wheel drive, steel-belted radial tires, reclining front bucket seats and rear window wiper/washer.

The Honda Civic Wagon. It's also very accommodating when it comes to family budgets.
